NEWPORT BEACH, CALIFORNIA, WEDNESDAY, DEC. 7, 1955

PHONE HARBOR 1616

Pioneer Mesa Civic Head ACH, ZEND ZEE HELP ZOOM—

Charles W. TeWinkle, first mayor of Costa Mesa when the city incorporated in 1953, today submitted a letter of resignation to members of the Mesa City Council. If accepted, the resignation will be effective Jan. 1, 1956.

The reason TeWinkle gave for tendering his resignation "is that I cannot continue to devote the necessary time and energy which the position demands if duties of councilman are to be performed properly. The building program and city annexations require hours of work for which I am unable TeWinkle said it was with regret that he tendered his resignation. But he promised, "I shall continue to take an interest in the municipal affairs of the city.

GOINGS ON AT THE BALBOA BAY CLUB

By DAN BAYLESS

Certain facets of the Good Neighbor Policy, a cozy title embracing the free interchange of goods, ideas and culture with the countries to the South, can be viewed with alarm without really working at it. We have yet to find anyone who will step forward and praise the high price of coffee or the destructiveness of the hoof and mouth disease.

On the other hand the Policy has paid off hand-somely in many other areas, including music. The United States has, in its time, exported some pretty awful jazz to the Latin American countries (we are thinking specifically of "Marzie Doats") while we received some wonderful Latin music in exchange. Clearly, we have had all the

Among the importations are the rumba, tango, samba and mambo. The rumba proved to be the most popular of probably because it was the first and the easiest of the lot to dance to. That is, it is easy for most people, including Arthur Murray. Arthur says there's really nothing to it. You put your left foot out, bring up your right even with it, then slide the right to the right, bring the left even with it, and continue in this fashion until you form a how. We followed him this fash but had to you form a box. We followed him this far, but had to break off our lessons to go in the Army and learn another popular step - the Route. To this day we can't find our way out of that box when the castanets start clicking.

However, we plan to end this embarrassing situation when Diana Castillo and her Latin-Aires show up for the Christmas Tree Ball at the Club on Thursday evening, December 15. It is said that you can't help dancing like Fred Astaire when this group makes music, even though your south-of-the-border stuff is strictly border-line. So, we are counting big on Miss Castillo to show us the way. We've been hemmed in long enough.

Diana plays the guitar, sings, and is the prettiest "front man" we've ever seen before a band. It is this talent, musical and otherwise, that creates such a demand for the Latin-Aires. They've played the most sophisticated rooms in the West, and are the most-wanted musicians for large private parties. Judy Garland has had them at her home several times, and that recommendation goes a long Alternating with the Latin Aires will be the Rounders Orchestra, so that there will be continuous, music and plenty of fox-trotting for those who have never felt comfortable on a shake-down cruise. The Rounders play conventional music in a very unconventional way, much to the delight of the hundreds who have heard them since they opened their engagement at the BBC several months ago.

The Christmas Tree ball, a black-tie affair, is the second in a series of monthly parties planned by member hosts and hostesses. Doing the honors for this one are Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Alwyn L. Cloud, Mr. and Mrs. J. Ross Castendyck, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Howell, and Mr. and Mrs. David MacClyment. They've devised the glamorous decorations and the gourmet-ish menu.

But getting back to the dancing, we figure it will take us only a half-hour under Diana's expert guidance to get straightened out on this rumba routing. We take to the floor at 10 o'clock, after dinner. You can cut in on us

Burglary of $218 from the Speedy Lunch Cafe at 2014 Placentia Ave., Costa Mesa, was reported to Costa Mesa police early Tuesday by Doris C. Hedrick of 1933 Meyer Place, Costa Mesa

The victim said $150 was taken from a pinball machine with approximately $68 removed from a juke box in the restaurant

Investigating officers reported entry was gained through a window and into the amusement machines by means of a small jimmy, probably a screw driver.

POSTHOLE DIGGER HITS PIPE, CREATES 20-FOOT GEYSER

Minor damages to an underground water pipe belonging to the Fairview County Water District resulted at 3:15 p.m. Saturday when an Edison Co. crew accidentally knocked a hole in the pipe on Evergreen Ave. near Monrovia St., Costa Mesa.

William Scott, manager of the water company, said the electric company crew was digging holes for new light poles in the Freedom Homes tract when the posthole digger bit into the underground pipe.

Water shot into the air 20 feet and flowed for an hour before the water district was able to turn it off. Damage was estimated at $50.

I might add they are very natural looking . . . They look the way every house plant should look with its leaves all made bright and glistening with Leaf Luster or Britter (Flower Shop) . .

Also they are very bendable ... You can bend each leaf in any direction you wish and make the stems go just so ... When you get tired of one arrangement, they can all be bent in another direction .

Now here's the "date" part of December 10 . . . We're very proud to have Mrs. Louise Wilson, who has made decorative arrangements with these artificial leaves in large restaurants, banks and offices all over Los Angeles, spend the day with us to plant your planters for you . . . There will be no charge for this service and we will supply the moss or styrafoam needed to make your plant arrangement complete . . . Mrs. Wilson is a true artist from away back . . . Even if you are not artificial plant minded, right this minute, you'll enjoy watching her work with these plants and obplant decor . .

Booming Mesa Area Growth Shows More Costs to Come

Our neighbors in Costa Mesa and its immediate county environs are in for some tall growth in rapid fashion, according to figures compiled by Everett Rea, Mesa union school district superintendent. The figures are enough to give any civic leader charged with orderly growth of an area statistical nightmares.

Look at this for size:

· Rea reports there are now under construction some 1300 new homes while the Costa Mesa Building Department, he says, has 2990 applications for new residences before it. Add the two figures together and you get a total of 4290 new homes.

Then multiply a population factor of 3.5 times the 4290 and your product is 15,015 new residents the Mesa and its surrounding county areas will possess as soon as the homes are sold and occupied. This is enough to stagger any planner, school official or civic leader.

In the same breath Rea reported the new homes under way or on order, he mentioned that two new elementary schools are planned, one in the area between Palisades Road and Mesa Drive and the continuation of Orchard Drive, while its twin will be built next to Orange Coast College.

The veteran Mesa schools superintendent declared before these new "back-to-back" type school buildings are finished they will be needed badly, they will be full when they are opened and will not solve the problem of housing and teaching the children still expected to come as the new residences are occupied.

Clearly the most intelligent planning for growth is needed, not only by the schools but all other civic facets. Parks, streets, curbs, sewer connections,—the myriad things which make a complete home area must be planned for ahead of time by Costa Mesa officials and their county counterparts.

Costa Mesa is seeing what is sometimes referred to in national magazine articles as the "plight of the suburbs." Several articles have been published, showing what this newspaper has been reporting for several

As we have pointed out in previous editorials, building a new community or adding a tremendous "shot" of population to an existing town in quite an expensive matter. Someone must pay for all the"housekeeping" services of a newly created community no matter whether it's in a city or the county.

In the case of the City of Costa Mesa we see a thriving community, incorporated a little over two years ago, struggling to get set up financially as a municipality. Then, along come a few large subdivisions. The new owners want to be annexed to the Mesa so they will get city services—services which the Mesa already is paying to create, maintain or extend.

As you can see, a financial snowball is the result for the taxpayers, many of whom do not realize when they buy property what their eventual tax bills will tally. Were the municipal cost all, the problem would be serious enough in this day of high taxation.

But when you see thousands of new residents' children wanting to go to school-then you see more fiscal problems and construction costs, not to mention the added administrative and faculty costs.

We cannot blame the potential new residents for wanting to live in the Costa Mesa area which has so much to offer its population. We can only offer our best wishes to the Mesa school officials and city officials that they can devise sound plans for absorbing the anticipated onrush of new population.

One of the soundest methods we know is for cities and school districts to insist the subdividers of the new housing areas provide free school sites and free parks. This could be achieved by the City of Costa Mesa and Orange County officials making acceptance of subdivision plans and maps contingent upon these sites being amply provided in advance.

Finally, the new residents of these areas should agree upon annexation to the City of Costa Mesa to assume their share of the bonded indebtedness and the various taxes imposed on those residents already occupying homes. Only through such a plan of sharing the high cost of new area development can the municipality and or school districts involved manage to swallow the large bite of sudden population increase.

The time is far gone when much of this could have been done but there is no time like the present to start.

All-time High

There was a time when it seemed that the days of the newspaper might be numbered. What with radio and television cutting into the available advertising dollars it was feared that newspapers' share might be reduced to the point where the dailies and weeklies might have to give up. But editors, publishers and newspaper advertising managers are sleeping better now (if they ever lost much sleep.)

National newspaper advertising lineage hit a new alltime high for the first nine months of 1955 showing a whopping jump of 64.5 per cent in automobile advertising in September over the corresponding month of last year. By Jan. 1, next, total newspaper advertising revenue for the year should exceed $3 billion, the greatest sum, by far, ever invested in any advertising

Total national advertising for the first three quarters of 1955 was nearly 12 per cent above 1954. Retail ads were approximately 7 per cent greater and classified advertising close to 17 per cent higher in volume.

What does all this signify? Why simply that there's nothing like your local newspaper for getting an advertising message across. The figures - and the results - speak for themselves.

1ECHNIQUE — Bill Massie, Los Angeles food broker, ties a calf which was roped by his cowhand "podner," Frank Allen, ranch foreman, as fun and business is combined.

Desert Lures with Sun, Sand

With the local cold weather, most travelers' fancy turns to the warm, dry desert regions and ours took us recently to Wickenburg, Ariz., considered the guest ranch capital of the world. For the 375 mile trip from Newport we drove through Santa Ana Canyon Freeway to Riverside, Beaumont, Banning and into Indio's San Souci Restaurant for a fine dinner.

From Indio, Highway 60 is a straight high-speed course and we sped swiftly onward. We wheeled through Desert Center and across the Colorado at Blythe and now we were in Arizona.

About two miles short of Wickenburg we took a right turn to Rancho de Los Caballeros. Our welcome was as warm as the Arizona sunshine when we were met by the rancho's managers, Dallas and Edie Gant.

Los Cab (as the locals call the rancho) is a real, functioning cattle ranch with many thousands of purebreds ruminating on the range. For the guests, the accommodations are deluxe. There is a low, rambling ranch house and fine bungalows with the added comfort of radiant floor heating. There is a fine stable of horses for riding, a grand pool for swimming and all-day sunshine for relaxing absorption.

We also took the short trip into Wickenburg which boasts that its population is composed of 2500 of the "happiest and friendliest people in the world." There are, beside Los Cab, four other dude ranches within a radius of five miles of Wickenburg—the Slash Bar-K, the Remuda, the K-L Bar and the Monte Vista.

While high-heeling in our Western boots in Wickenburg, we met a Los Angeles friend, Bill Massie and his nice wife Dec. Massie is an authority on the area.

Among the points of interest he indicated was Wickenburg's upside-down river. The Hassayampa courses through the center of town. On the surface, it is as dry as a week-old wishbone; underground it is a good-sized stream.

Posted on the Hassayampa's bridge is a sign reading: "No Fishing From This Bridge." This, of course, is a standing town joke. Wickenburg is no come-lately Western town. It was founded by Henry Wickenburg in 1863 when he panned out gold from the (then) right-side-up Hassayampa.

Gold seekers made the town the base camp for their prospecting operations in the surrounding hills. One of the most successful discoveries was the famous Vulture Mine from which miners picked out more than $10,000,000 in gold.

Once a month each of the guest ranches has a rodeo featuring both professional and amateur cowboys. In the evening, the natives and the dudes quake the boards with square dancing.

FOLK DANCE — Square dancing has survived the onslaught of improvements in the cow country of Arizone. To the chanting of "do-si-do's" these happy dancers are starting to form a "Texas Star."

Sunday morning, after church services, is devoted to a "breakfast ride" into the desert. Fortyeight of us, following a five-mile trek, were more than ready for the ranch-hand size breakfast prepared by Mrs. Gant and Foreman Frank Allen.

over Wickenburg's desert terrain.

In a skillet (larger than a manhole cover) 180 eggs were scrambled after the frying of 20 pounds of bacon. With toast and tankards of coffee, it was a tremendous breakfast. Incidentally, the trekkers will probably be in the movies soon. Paramount Studios shot reels for a flicker travelogue.

giant cacti, standing watch and cool, crystal nights.

Easterners find them strange contrast to "our trees."

As it must for all week-ends—Sunday evening comes and we had to leave for home. Travel to and from Wickenburg (which is 56 miles westerly from Phoenix) is a leisurely eight-hour drive either way. Many do it in a safe seven and a half hours.

Those who prefer the swiftness of the airways can go from Los Angeles to the Los Cab ranch in a little more than one and a half hours. A 2800-ft, landing strip, enough to handle any two-engine plane, is on the ranch range. Just telephone ahead and a station wagon will be waiting.

THE OLD WEST is still very much evident along the main street of Wickenburg, rip-roaring center of early-days gold rush. The underground Hassayampa River flows through center of town.

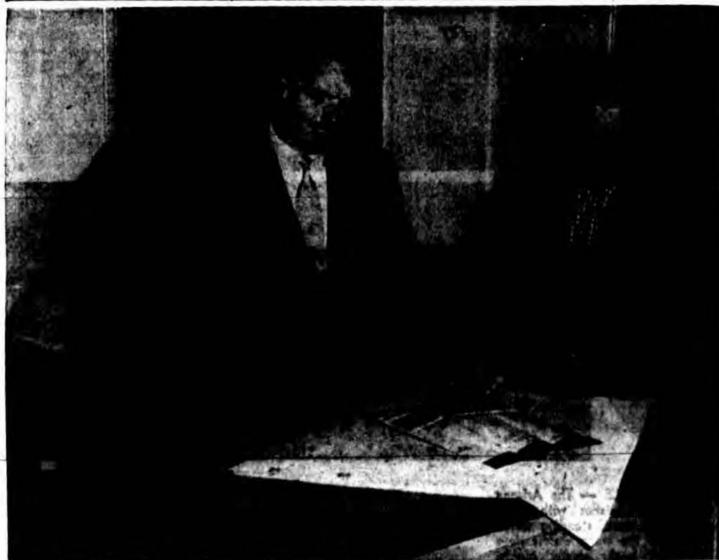

ROUTE to Wickenburg starts with Highway 60 and courses 335 miles east through a changing topography and scenery.

WITH SALLIE

December 7, 1955 Newport Harbor You and your pet planter have a date this Saturday, December 10 on our Meszanine . . . If your pet planter is nailed or cemented down, bring its measur-ments . . . If you don't have a pet planter. we'll sell you one . . . But for decoration's sake and that bare spot in your home that cries out for a bit of greenery, don't leaf a single word of the following un-

Introducing a new line of artificial plants and foliage . . All your favorites . . Pertussum, Dieffenbachia Rudolph Roehrs and Picta, Elastica, Cordatum, Dracaena Sanderiana, Ivy, Lily of the Valley . . . Plastic, Fireproof, non-fading, not effected by the elements, including salt water, sea air and gas or electric heat . . . Washable too they can be dunked in warm suds and rinsed off . . . I might add they are very natural looking . . . They look the way every house plant should look with its leaves all made bright and glistening with Leaf Luster or Britter (Flower Shop) . . . Also they are very bendable

... You can bend each leaf in any direction you wish and make the stems go just so ... When you get tired of one arrangement, they can all be bent in another direction . . Now here's the "date"

part of December 10 . . . We're very proud to have Mrs. Louise Wilson, who has made decorative arrangements with these artificial leaves in large restaurants, banks and offices all over Los Angeles, spend the day with us to plant your planters for you . . . There will be no charge for foam needed to make your plant arrangement complete . . . Mrs. Wilson is a true artist from away back . . . Even if you are not artificial plant minded, right this minute, you'll enjoy watching her work with these plants and ob-tain a world of ideas in plant decor S'wonderful! Newport Harbor went accident free on S-D Day! Thanks Harborites for stop, look and listening on the double!

A Christmas play . . . strictly kid's stuff . . . Harbor View P. T. A. under the Direction of Marcella Randal, will present "The Magic Toy Shop" in the Harbor View Auditorium, Thursday, Dec. 8 at 7:30 and Saturday, Dec. 10 at 2:30 . . . Mrs. Randal also wrote the play which is all about favorite story book ... Children 25c ... Adults

Collect all the broken, and not played with, toys around your home and put 'em in the Toys for Tots barrel in our front lobby . . . You know the Marine Corps Reserve does this every year for children who would otherwise go without . . . They do a simply marvelous job of painting, fixing and repairing.

Kids again . . . Newest type of Juvenile Christmas card is a large chocolate candy bar with a complete picture of Santa, Vixen and Blixen and the rest of the boys in relief . . . The Chocolate bar comes completely cartoned, ready for mailing in a gay cardboard container . . . What to give the milkman, the postman or the friend next door? A Gift Certifistore I know . . . Let them buy food plain or fancy, a big thick steak or a sack of potatoes . . . A garden hose or an electric coffee pot . . . A cook book or a pie . . . A box of candy or a carton of

HERE IS A NICE CLEAN commercial property in ah. attractive and busy community, It's almost new and problem-free. On the ground floor are two storefronts, both modern and attractive; both are leased although one will come up for renewal next year if your plans include a business of your own. Your neighbors are the best stores and shops in CDM. Parking in the rear. Upstairs are four modern furnished single apartments (one now available). The location and relatively low rentals will keep this building occupied yet the return is adequate on the asking price of $55,000 and we can work out 1st rate terms.
