Bullets, Fists Fly In County Robbery

FULLERTON — Double trouble at the Normandy Restaurant-Bar here early today — two hefty bandits, two bullets in the ceiling, fat lips on two customers and $200 taken from the till.

A gent, more sober than he looked, slipped off a bar stool at 1:20 a.m. and called attention to himself by firing a bullet into the ceiling.

"This is a holdup," he announced. "I don't want to have to kill anyone."

Bartender Marty Lawson, 36, asked him to quiet down and quit disturbing the customers. The suspect put another shot in the ceiling and averred "I'm serious; this is a holdup."

Bar owner Eldon Edes began cleaning out the cash register. Two customers, a man and a woman, decided to depart.

"Where do you think you are going?" spoke up an obvious associate of the bandit. When the woman didn't stop, he planted a fist on her hip. She sat. Her escort advanced on the assailant. He also took a blow on the chops. The pair fled into the darkness.

OCC Still Registering

Evening classes begin Monday at Orange Coast College but there are still a few registration days left.

Day classes also begin at OCC Monday.

A total of 8,250 students have registered thus far for evening classes at OCC. Last year at this time, 7,341 had enrolled for courses.

Dr. Thomas Blakely, director of the evening college, said registration will be held for classes with vacancies Sept. 13-16 and Sept. 20-23 from 6-9 p.m. in the Student Center.

Blakely said classes are filling rapidly, however, and urged those who are interested to register as soon as possible to make sure they get the course they want.

Pier Acrobatics Charge Sought

Newport Beach police filed a petition with the juvenile probation department today in a complaint against Kenneth Grochow, 15, of Costa Mesa, who jumped from the Newport Pier August 30.

Lifeguards at first thought Grochow, 3138 Gray Lane, seriously injured, but he later walked away from Hoag Memorial Hospital. The guards issued him a citation for leaping 20 feet to the sand in violation of a city ordinance.

Reservations can be made by calling Mrs. Gelker, 673-0081.

Restaurant Fire Clues Lacking

Fire investigators are still puzzled today as to what caused the $50,000 blaze at the Bayside Inn restaurant in Newport Beach Thursday morning.

"We know it started in the bar, but so far that is all we know," says Battalion Chief Milt J. Meehan, Fire Marshal W. C. Nooler, in charge of investigation, was not available for comment, but his men were reported to have turned up no clues.

Bombed by B52s Cong Stronghold Just a Village?

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. and Vietnamese special forces today occupied the hamlet of Phung Xa Tay 325 miles northeast of Saigon only hours after B52 bombers from Guam dumped hundreds of tons of bombs there. But the area, long considered an impregnable Communist stronghold, was deserted.

The village had been described as a major Viet Cong communications center garrisoned by 200 men but a force of 260 men flown in by helicopter found only a few trails which showed up on photographs as sandbagged trenches.

A UPI dispatch from the scene said what had appeared to be radio antennas turned out to be bamboo spikes and that the costly operation had gone for nothing although the B52s did deliver their bombs on target with devastating efficiency.

The village is in Quang Tin province on the northern edge of the Viet Cong's Do Xa base which protects the Ho Chi Minh infiltration trail from North Vietnam. It is covered by heavy jungle and Vietnamese ground forces have never been able to get here.

UPI correspondent Ray F. Herndon flew into the village today with eight Vietnamese and American special forces men aboard a helicopter accompanied by 41 other helicopters laden with allied troops. He reported the troops were scouring the area for Viet Cong.

It was at least the second time raid's by the giant eight-engined jet bombers of the Strategic Air Force had opened up formerly impenetrable

Fire Destroys Racing Cars

ANAHEIM — Fire of undetermined origin destroyed two expensive sports cars under construction in the plant of Bill Thomas here Thursday night, causing damage estimated in excess of $50,000.

The flames also damaged several other custom made cars, destroyed tools and seized an adjoining furniture store.

Thomas makes the "Cheeta," a fancy racing sports car, in his plant at 510 E. Juliana St.

Workmen reported the fire broke out at 7:16 p.m. in an area where paints, solvents and other chemicals were stored and used.

Peace Corps Proves Busy Life for Mesan

By TOM TITUS
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

"The first thing you notice is the loneliness, immediately after the bus pulls away and you realize you're going to spend the next two years in a remote part of the world."

But, according to a 23-year-old Costa Mesa girl just back from a Peace Corps mission in South America, the loneliness has worn off by nightfall.

Karen Gardner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis F. Gardner of 854 Sonora Road, was one of two girls assigned to the small Colombian village of Cunday (Cooon-die). They were, Karen believes, the first Americans ever to live here.

Karen and her partner, Susan Holtz, 22, of Escondido, worked in the village's health center where they taught general hygiene and sanitation, two subjects they found sorely lacking in the rural village of 2,000 to 3,000 people.

"The mortality rate is quite high there," Karen explained. "One woman had given birth to 18 children, only eight of whom were living."

But, though backward in many respects, the Colombian people are keeping pace with their northern neighbors in others, Miss Gardner reported.

"The teen-age girls there wear basically the same styles worn by American teens," she observed, "and many of them could twist a lot better than we could."

And, while there were only two automobiles in the entire village, nearly everyone owns a radio, Karen pointed out. "They keep in close touch with world developments."

When President Kennedy was shot, they took it just as hard as we did.

Ed by villages, she noted. While Cunday was conservative and anti-Communist, a neighboring town leaned toward Castro philosophies.

Political sentiment is divided. "Our people were greatly disturbed over the fighting in Santo Domingo," Karen said. "They're just over one civil war they don't want any more trouble."

As to entertainment in her village, there wasn't much, she reported. "But we were never bored. Our house was just like a YMCA; people were always coming over to see us because we represented something different, a change from the old routine."

Language was no problem for either girl since both speak fluent Spanish, but on Sunday mornings the girls found themselves without a place of worship since both were Protestants in a nearly all-Catholic community.

"It really didn't present any problems, though," Karen noted. "Only that the people were sad because we couldn't be godmothers to their children."

When the eventual parting time came, she recalled, "there were many tears on both sides."

Back in the United States only a few weeks, Karen has been kept busy telling her story to various organizations. Next week she leaves for the University of New Mexico where she hopes to obtain a master's degree in Latin American studies.

SOUVENIR — Karen Gardner of Costa Mesa unsheathes a machete given her as a farewell gift when she left the village of Cunday, Colombia, after a two-year mission with the Peace Corps there.

2 Brothers Arrested in Westminster

Westminster police early today arrested two Santa Ana brothers on charges ranging from disturbance of the peace to suspicion of illegal drug possession.

The suspects, John D. Ulriksen, 23, and his 18-year-old brother Noel, had to be forcibly subdued, officers said.

Patrolling officers reported they spotted the suspects at 1:45 a.m. in a "jerkily-moving" auto that pulled into a restaurant parking lot in the 8400 block of Westminster Avenue.

When police attempted to question the brothers, a brief fracas developed. Officers said they found pills in the clothing of John Ulriksen, the driver, and pills inside the car.

The elder brother was booked on suspicion of possessing drugs, resisting arrest and driving under the influence of drugs. Noel Ulriksen was arrested for disturbing the peace.

Wayne Ferrell

Sheraton Inn Names New Manager

Robert A. Baersch has been named general manager of Huntington Beach's Sheraton-Beach Inn, following the surprise resignation of Wayne Ferrell who had held the position since July, 1964.

Baersch, 36, has managed a Torrance hotel for the past seven years and before that was with two Las Vegas hotels.

Ferrell left Thursday saying he had no plans at this time as to future employment. He joined the Huntington Driftwood Corp., operators of the Sheraton, previous to the opening of the 150-unit hotel here in August of last year.

Before taking over management of the Sheraton, Ferrell had been manager of the Pacific Club in Long Beach. Previously he opened the Huntington Harbour Beach Club and for six years had been manager of the Balboa Bay Club in Newport Beach.

He was with the Hilton Hotels chain for many years.

Two Women Find Purses

Two Newport Beach women can proudly claim themselves "good citizens" today on the strength of acts recorded by the police department.

Adda M. Brennan, 17079 Cantara Street, and Eve E. Cleaves, 824 W. 15th Street, found and turned in to police purses containing $23 and $26 in cash.

Mrs. Brennan found her lost purse at a Balboa Island laundromat and waited an hour and a half for the owner to return before handing it over to police. Loser was Sara E. Dudek of Encino.

Mrs. Cleaves found the other purse, belonging to Patricia L. Ross of Glendale, at a counter at Lido Drugs, 3445 Via Lido, where she works as a sales girl.

U.S. Summary

Hurricane Betsy, accompanied by vicious winds, heavy rain and high water, continued to cut a swath of destruction as it swept inland into central Louisiana.

Betsy struck New Orleans during the night, knocking out communications and causing widespread destruction.

The Weather Bureau has issued a tornado forecast for central Louisiana and west central Mississippi this morning and heavy rains up to 5 inches were predicted for the area.

Elsewhere during the night, tornadoes were reported in Kansas and Wisconsin, while much of the Midwest was drenched with rain.

A large mass of cold air in the northern Plains was expected to drop temperatures to freezing tonight in the Dakotas and Minnesota. Jamestown, N.D., reported a 22 degree reading early today, the low for the nation.

Isolated thunderstorms were expected today in the Rocky Mountain regions and in scattered areas of New England. Cooler weather spread from the southern Rockies to the western Great Lakes, while warm humid air blanketed the area from Texas to New England.

Southern California was warm and sunny with little temperature change. Blythe was the nation's warmest spot with a 102 reading.

2 Astronauts Prove Moon Flight Possible

Undersea Phone Call Studied

LA JOLLA (UPI)—A transatlantic, underwater telephone contact between America's Sealab 2 aquanauts and a new team of French aquanauts in the Mediterranean was being considered today.

Capt. George Bond, principal investigator for the American team, said yesterday, "we are looking into the possibility of having our aquanauts talk with the French aquanauts."

"We don't want a conversation to take place if it is just going to be a stunt," Bond stressed. "We want it if it will result in a useful exchange of information between the two groups."

The French aquanauts, directed by Jacques-Yves Cousteau, will descend this week to a depth of 33 feet for a 14-day stay in an 18-foot metal sphere.

The U.S. team is working 205 feet beneath the water in a 57-foot long laboratory in a project lasting 45 days. The first 10 U.S. aquanauts descended on Aug. 28 and all but Scott Carpenter, the second American to orbit the earth, will emerge on Sunday after 15 days of sometimes strenuous chores and scientific tests.

America's aquanauts have already participated in an extraordinary telephone conversation with the orbiting Gemini 5 space twins.

Capt. Bond stressed yesterday that communications had not yet been worked out for the transoceanic talk and the plan was still tentative. Bond, who speaks French, would serve as an interpreter for the exchange.

Meanwhile, the Sealab aquanauts went about their daily underwater activity despite ear infections which were a nuisance for nine of the ten but provided no serious problems.

All but Carpenter will leave the Sealab on Sunday, but the second team of nine will descend a few hours in advance.

Americans Turn Tide of Conflict

By PHIL NEWSOM

SAIGON (UPI) — American blood and sweat are turning the tide of war for the better in South Vietnam.

That is the good news. The bad news is the mounting cost in American lives and the likelihood that before the job is done American manpower in South Vietnam may go considerably beyond the 125,000 already promised by President Johnson.

This is a war that never has gone according to plan, not since 1954 when the United States began giving its aid to South Vietnam, nor since 1962 when the United States began realizing the determination of the Communist attack.

It is not going according to plan now. Back in February, when American fighter-bombers began carrying the war to North Vietnam, it was with the thought that such action would make the Communist north more agreeable to the conference table. So far it has not.

But important changes have taken place, both militarily and politically.

Militarily, despite initial success, the Viet Cong moon offensive has been a failure. They have not mounted a regimental size attack since mid-August when they overran the district capital of Dak Sut in the central highlands north of Kontum, some 200 miles north of Saigon.

Instead they have been under the mounting pressure of attack from United States and South Vietnamese forces.

The U.S. marines virtually wrecked the hard core Viet Cong 1st regiment in an August attack on the Van Tuong peninsula south of Chu Lai. Elements of the U.S. 173rd Airborne cleared Highway 14 to Kontum and permitted the first supply convoys in weeks to enter. The 173rd, the 101st Airborne and units of the U.S. 1st Army Division conducted other important clearing operations along Route 19, the road which bisects South Vietnam from Qui Nhon on the South China Sea to Pleiku and the Cambodian border in the central highlands.

Gemini 5 Twins Tell Of Trip

MANNED SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) —

Astronauts L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and Charles Conrad Jr., two space champions who itch to fly to the moon, proved to space officials' satisfaction man could survive a roundtrip lunar voyage.

The Gemini 5 space twins wound up 11 days of debriefing on their eight-day flight Thursday with an enthusiastic story of lots of work, excitement and only a few frustrations.

Before their news conference, Dr. Robert Gilruth, director of the Manned Spacecraft Center, noted that the Cooper-Conrad flight matched the time it would take to fly to the moon and back.

"The results, I think, prove man can do this and do it well," he said.

NO PROBLEMS

The flight apparently revealed no major problem areas that might endanger or delay the Gemini program, with Gemini 6 on tap Oct. 25 and the marathon 14-day Gemini 7, sometime in December.

The space agency is wasting no time preparing for the critical Gemini 6 flight, a one or two day mission that will include a rendezvous, docking and locking maneuver with an Agena satellite.

The capsule was mated with the Titan 2 rocket Thursday on the launch pad at Cape Kennedy, Fla.

Cooper and Conrad had hoped to maneuver to within a few feet of a small radar evaluation pod they launched early in their flight Aug. 21. But a pressure problem in the fuel cell system forced a scrub.

OWN SATELLITE

Then, they created their own ghost satellite, coming to within a relatively short distance of it in a series of rendezvous maneuvers like those planned by astronauts Walter M. Schirra Jr. and Thomas P. Stafford on Gemini 6.

Cooper and Conrad have no doubts the maneuver can be completed. Docking is absolutely essential on a lunar excursion.

"I think we can be successful," Cooper told the news conference in regard to docking. "I don't see any reason why it won't be."

Conrad agreed. "Every indication we got from onboard systems operations says we should be able to do it."

Cooper and Conrad have made several recommendations to space officials on how space flights can be more comfortable and more successful.

SLEEP CYCLE

One, he said, is that astronauts should sleep at the same time and during a normal day-night cycle.

Cooper noted the spacecraft was extremely quiet, "but the noise level was so low that I would actually wake Pete and vice versa, turning the pages in our flight plan, or doing things you normally wouldn't think would make enough noise to bother anybody."

"Plus the fact there's so many interesting places you pass over, doggone it, during the day you'd be trying to sleep and you'd invariably start looking out the window at some of these places and windup never sleeping during the day because you hated to miss anything," Cooper said.

Cooper said he had warned Gemini 7 pilots Frank Borman and James A. Lovell Jr. "stowage and housekeeping will be their No. 1 problem."

Much of the 120-orbit flight was spent drifting in a powered-down condition to hold electricity usage to a minimum and prevent an overload of water from the fuel cell.

Lady Bird, Lynda End Holiday Visit

JACKSON HOLE, Wyo. (AP) — It's the end of a brief vacation amid the Teton Mountains for Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson today and farewell for now to a summer beau for her daughter, Lynda.

The President's wife and daughter fly back to Washington after three days in Grand Teton National Park.

Mrs. Johnson said she found her stay as a guest at the ranch of the Laurance Rockefeller relaxing and "sheer joy."

Lynda, 21, said goodbye again to a new boyfriend, Brent Eastman, 25, Evanston, Wyo., a bronzed 6-foot-2 medical student who has been spending his past six summers here as a Snake River float trip guide.

They first met when Lynda visited the park on a Western trip in July. Eastman squirmed around then as he has been doing for the past three days.

Thursday they went mountain climbing together in the rugged, snow-capped Teton.

Eastman returns this weekend to the University of California medical school in San Francisco where he is a senior.

Lynda, as a senior history major, goes to the University of Texas in Austin.

They both were noncommittal about any romance.

Mrs. Johnson came here officially to make a speech in behalf of her pet project — beautifying America — before a joint meeting of three conservation organizations.

Typhoon Carves Path Of Death in Japan

TOKYO (UPI) — Powerful typhoon Shirley carved a path of death and destruction across Japan today with 173 mph winds—the strongest ever recorded here.

It had zeroed in on the populous Tokyo-Yokohama area but veered away to the northwest into the Sea of Japan where it is expected to rapidly weaken.

At least 25 persons were reported killed, 164 others injured and 10 persons were missing. Authorities expected the death toll to climb.

The fierce storm came out of the sea at a dead run and swept into Aki on southern Shikoku Island. Then it swerved northwestward into the area of Osaka on Honshu Island. Heavy rain triggered by the storm fell in Tokyo.

The worst damage was on Shikoku. Extensive flooding was reported.

At Naruto City on the eastern end of the island, the winds demolished a home. Five persons were pinned under the debris. One died. The other four were injured.

More than 50 ships fled from the storm's path outside of Osaka harbor. More than 1,000 residents of a low waterfront area were evacuated to schools and temples on higher ground.

At Tanabe City, directly across the channel from Tokushima, gales tore down signs, knocked out power lines and carried away a steel frame fabricated house on the roof of a four-story hospital.

The dwelling smashed into a house below but there were no injuries because the occupants had already been evacuated.

Train service in Shikoku Island and along Central Honshu was disrupted and domestic airline flights were cancelled.

Pay Increase Plan Studied By House

WASHINGTON (UPI) —

House members are going to get at least a nibble next week at the tantalizing question of whether to raise again the pay of every civilian in government, including their own.

House leaders scheduled a vote Monday on whether to consider a $1 billion-plus pay boost, a raise double that recommended by President Johnson and one the chief executive believes would be "disastrous."

This means that members can kill the pay bill — in the highly unlikely event that they want to. But it does not necessarily mean that they will get an opportunity to pass it.

U.S. Tax Collections Rise Despite Slash

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Federal tax men collected more money than ever in fiscal 1965 — despite a drop of nearly 2 per cent in personal income tax receipts due to reduced tax rates.

The White House announced Thursday that total collections for the bookkeeping year that ended June 30 were $114.4 billion, up $2.2 billion from the previous fiscal year.

Personal income taxes accounted for $53.7 billion, about $930 million less than was collected in fiscal year 1964. But the drop was offset by a $1.8 billion jump in corporation income taxes, which totaled $26.1 billion.

Other major tax collections included $14.8 billion in excise taxes, up $638 million; and $2.7 billion in estate and gift taxes, up $328 million. Interest and penalties accounted for other income.

The total reflects all money taken in by the government including various trust funds.

King Talks To Goldberg About Viet

NEW YORK (UPI) — Negro leader Martin Luther King put aside civil rights problems today to discuss his Vietnam peace ideas with Arthur J. Goldberg, U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations.

Goldberg invited King to meet with him in New York after the Nobel Prize winner became an outspoken advocate for peace in Vietnam. King promised to plead his case directly to President Johnson and also with leaders in North Vietnam, Communist China, the Soviet Union and Saigon.

The Goldberg-King meeting was scheduled at U.S. mission headquarters, directly across the street from the United Nations complex.

Dominican General Booted Out

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Gen. Elias Wessin y Wessin, the Dominican army's controversial militant anti-Communist, was booted out of his job and the country Thursday night. Provisional President Hector Garcia-Godoy announced the retirement of the 42-year-old general who led the coup that ousted President Juan Bosch in 1963. Garcia-Godoy said Wessin had been appointed consul general in Miami, Fla.

There was no doubt, however, that the squat, beetle-browed general went involuntarily. For two years he had resisted removal. Two days ago he charged that U.S. Embassy officials had tried to bribe him into leaving the country. The embassy has not denied the charge.

Other Dominican military leaders and the chiefs of the Inter-American Peace Force went with heavily armed escorts to Wessin's modest bungalow home 15 miles east of Santo Domingo at dusk Thursday.

After a 50-minute conference, the 5½-foot, 175-pound general emerged grim faced and in crumpled fatigues, hatless and unarmed.

He was escorted to a waiting car filled with officers and in less than an hour was aboard a U.S. Air Force transport, reportedly bound for the Panama Canal Zone or Puerto Rico.

Wessin's ouster drew cheers in the rebel sector of Santo Domingo. His removal was a prime objective of the insurgents, who accused him of indiscriminate bombing of civilians at the outbreak of the revolution last April. Wessin denied the charge, saying only military targets were attacked.

the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Council in Paris with instructions to strengthen and expand the political and nuclear roles of the Atlantic alliance.

"A strong NATO remains essential," Johnson told departing Ambassador Harland Cleveland. "If we are to reach a solid agreement with the Soviet Union that reflects the common interests of each of the allied nations in peace and security."

The President conferred with Cleveland Thursday. The White House made public Johnson's statement a few hours after De Gaulle had declared at a news conference in Paris that France intends to end at least by 1969 the "subordination" of French defense forces by NATO.

De Gaulle's words were read here and by Western observers in Paris as a definite statement of intention to remove France from the NATO military command. This could mean removal of NATO headquarters from Paris.

De Gaulle's words came as no surprise to U.S. officials. Authorities here and in other allied capitals have been conferring for several months on the possibility that De Gaulle, assuming he is re-elected in December, may pull France out of the Atlantic alliance when that becomes legally possible in 1969. The treaty was concluded in 1949 and contains a 20-year withdrawal clause.

White House press secretary Bill D. Moyers declined direct comment on De Gaulle's statement. He also said Johnson was unaware of De Gaulle's remarks when he wrote his own statement. But it had been known for weeks that De Gaulle would hold a news conference Thursday and it had been expected that he would attack the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in some way.

Johnson said that each of the 15 countries in the NATO alliance sees it "from its own perspective."

"But this alliance of the West is bigger than any of its members," he declared. "We must maintain its strength and we must continually update it to serve the common aspirations of all of us."

The President told Cleveland there are three projects of "enduring importance" for the future of the alliance. He described these as strengthening NATO as an organization, developing it as an instrument of political cooperation and working out improved ways of organizing a collective nuclear defense system.

With respect to the nuclear problem — a disputed issue among the NATO allies for more than five years — Johnson said:

"I have asked Ambassador Cleveland to make clear to our friends in NATO the continuing desire of the United States to find more satisfactory means of dealing with this central problem."

Heresy Charges Dropped

EAST GLACIER, Mont. (AP) — Bishops of the Protestant Episcopal Church have rejected heresy charges against Bishop James A. Pike of California.

In a side issue the Episcopal leaders refused Thursday to allow Bishop Pike to ordain a woman deacon. The bishop withdrew his plans for the ordination, which would have been the first in the 3½-million-member church.

The Rt. Rev. John E. Hines, presiding bishop of the church, said Bishop Pike and others who agree with him probably would be subjected to more criticism.

"It's part of the hazard of the ministry," Bishop Hines said, "but you can't cry when someone takes pot shots at you."

Bishop Hines said the achievements of this year's meeting "were not spectacular but they have been constructive."

"The controversy over Bishop Pike has drawn this house closer together in recognizing the individual bishop's freedom and responsibility."

A church spokesman said the meetings were open except for the nomination and election of the Rev. William Davidson, Jamestown, N.D., as bishop of the missionary district of western Kansas.

Next year's meetings will be at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Oct. 30-Nov. 3.

Although Bishop Pike was not upheld in his proposal to elevate a woman to the office of deacon, he was happy with the resolution rejecting the heresy charges against him.

Bishop Hines also expressed approval, saying the church is committed to Bishop Pike's goals of revising the church's mission.

"The church is not going to back down," the presiding bishop declared.

Boston Again Has School Problems

BOSTON (AP) — For the second straight day, Negro parents used chartered buses and private cars today to transport their children to schools in predominantly white neighborhoods.

At the Grew Elementary School, principal Martin Feehey refused to allow some 50 children to enter the building.

He told adults with the children there were only 13 vacant seats in the school. Those seats would be given, he said, to students in the group carrying transfer permits.

The adults led the youngsters to the back of the school where pupils were lined up ready to enter. But the door was closed and the youngsters, both white and Negro, were left outside.

The Negro parents inaugurated the program, which they call "Operation Exodus" when the public schools opened Thursday as a protest against crowded conditions in some schools in Negro neighborhoods and the school committee's refusal to use busing to relieve the situation.

Chair Waits Pope's Visit

NEW YORK (AP) — For 115 years a gold-painted Victorian chair has stood in readiness at the residence of New York's Roman Catholic cardinal.

It will get its first use next month when Pope Paul VI visits the United Nations.

The chair is a papal throne, built in 1850 by the city's first cardinal, John McCloskey. It was the custom for each cardinal to prepare a papal throne in anticipation of a visit by the Pope.

Pope Paul's visit Oct. 4 will be the first by a pontiff to the North American continent. The Pope will visit the United Nations, where he is to address the General Assembly and offer a mass for world peace.

He will sit on New York's papal throne when he visits Francis Cardinal Spellman, archbishop of New York, at the cardinal's residence.

Demos Pushing Ahead To Work Law Repeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said today he will push ahead with a bill to bar state laws against union shop contracts despite a threatened filibuster.

A group of Republican and Democratic senators met late Thursday in the office of Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen to map strategy for blocking the measure to repeal section 14B of the Taft-Hartley Act.

Under that section, 19 states now forbid union shop contracts, under which a worker must join a labor union to hold his job.

Earlier Dirksen had announced at a news conference, with the backing of the Senate-House Republican leadership, that an all-out, bipartisan effort to kill the bill was being organized.

If President Johnson continues to insist on Senate consideration of the measure this year, Dirksen said, "the present session of Congress will end not with a bang in the fall but with a whimper when the snow falls."

U.S. Asks Support Of Britain

LONDON (UPI) — The United States has asked Britain to maintain its military strength in Malaysia because of widening troubles in Vietnam and other parts of Asia, diplomatic sources said today.

The sources said the United States was opposed to a threatened reduction of the British military posture in Malaysia following the departure of Singapore from the federation.

U.S. Under Secretary of State George W. Ball reviewed the Southeast Asia situation in his confidential talks with Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart here earlier this week.

It was understood that Wilson would discuss the important implications of Britain's "East of Suez" policy and the need for defense savings in talks with President Johnson when he visits the United States, probably next month, to speak before the United Nations General Assembly.

The United States wish for Britain to maintain its military force in Malaysia was said to stem from a growing conviction that the Vietnam war may go on for some time and that chances for a settlement in the near future are remote.

To Attend School

Unruh Proposes Paying Students

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Assembly Speaker Jerse M. Unruh today proposed that California solve the social ills of Watts and other slums by busing high-paid master teachers into the areas and paying unemployed youths to attend school. These were among several proposals made by Unruh in a 19-page statement on the riots that raged through the Los Angeles district of Watts last month.

While calling for aid, Unruh said: "I am not willing to see our hard won constitutional democracy subverted and replaced by self-appointed leaders imposing vigilante law. This is the first step on the road to anarchy. We cannot permit extremists to capture the leadership of our disadvantaged citizens because we have failed to meet critical needs in poverty areas."

Unruh said Assembly committees will begin hearings on his proposals immediately. If they approve them, he will ask Gov. Brown to place the plan before a special legislative session, perhaps the one beginning Sept. 20.

Unruh said top teachers should be enlisted in a high-paid master teaching corps and be bused into areas threatened with social crisis. And he proposed special schools for the army of unemployed dropout youngsters milling around the slums, offering basic skills such as English, simple government, and arithmetic.

Staffing the special schools would be college students, businessmen — "anyone who wants to teach and who has knowledge or a skill that he is willing and able to share."

The students, he said, would receive some financial aid.

Unruh's program also calls for: —A system of pinpointing areas of "serious social malfunction" where unrest will erupt into violence. The areas would be listed by the State Planning Office and whenever a community hit the danger level, it would become automatically eligible for special state help.

—More parole officers, aid for victims of violence and making possession of a gas-oline-bomb Molotov cocktail a felony instead of a misdemeanor.

—Stepped-up city traffic control by the California Highway Patrol to free local police for work in crisis neighborhoods.

—Cooperation between business and government in helping those in the crisis areas get into small business.

Muslims

Arrest Defended

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "The evidence seemed sufficient to us" for felony assault charges to be filed against 19 members of the Black Muslim sect, says Dist. Atty. Evelle J. Younger.

The charges, however, were dismissed by Municipal Judge Arnold M. Jewell last Tuesday on grounds of insufficient evidence. The men had been charged with assault with intent to commit murder, and Younger said his office "felt justified" in filing the charges.

Younger said Thursday: "But the wheels of justice continue to turn, and the court does not always agree with us. I do not want to imply any criticism of the court for its action."

Deputy Dist. Atty. Harold J. Ackerman said he was satisfied evidence would show the Muslims fired on police from their temple when officers arrived to investigate a firearms report last Aug. 18.

But Judge Jewell said the only evidence of any shot having been fired from within the mosque consisted of statements from "some witnesses that they heard or saw flashes or reports or puffs of smoke."

No weapons were found in the search that followed the raid, officials said.

Mayor Samuel W. Yorty said Wednesday that he couldn't "second guess the judge" because he "didn't hear the evidence." He did say, however, that police and National Guard soldiers "many 'ave over-acted" in the affair.

Police Chief William H. Parker was not available for comment on Yorty's statements, but had said earlier in response to Muslim accusations that he considered Judge Jewell's decisions to mean "there was no illegal search" of the mosque.

Muslim minister John Shabazz told a news conference Wednesday he was asking Gov. Edmund G. Brown to begin criminal conspiracy proceedings against at least nine state, county and city agencies for allegedly harassing the sect.

Shabazz said the raid, which followed on the heels of the wild rioting in Los Angeles south-central section, was a deliberate plan to get inside the temple. He accused the police of wanton destruction, saying the mosque would have to be rebuilt from the ground up.

Copter Just Barely Misses Home, 2 Die

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two businessmen were killed when their helicopter crashed alongside a West Los Angeles home, barely missing its occupants.

Police said the aircraft grazed the roof of the home before hitting the ground. The victims were identified as Zachary M. Justman, 37, of Beverly Hills, the pilot, and his passenger, Maurice Bardovi, 46, of West Los Angeles.

Justman, father of four, was president of the 20th Century Cigarette Vending Machine Corp. Bardovi was a partner in Donn-Maur Photography.

Witnesses said the helicopter made a loud noise, then dropped suddenly. It hit with a few feet of the dining room of Mr. and Mrs. LaCount Adams, investigators said.

"We were sitting at the dining room table doing our bills when we heard a loud crash. We saw shingles fall from the roof over the back door. We didn't know what it was," Mrs. Adams said.

Officers said the helicopter was rented from R. K. Gray Helicopters Inc., of Santa Monica. Airport officials said Justman obtained his pilot's license last December and was an excellent pilot.

Fire Sweeps Xerox Plant, Loss Heavy

SANTA FE SPRINGS (UPI) — Exploding cases of cleaning solvent fed a raging industrial fire for more than three hours this morning, causing up to $2 million damage.

Firemen from six cities fought to control the flames early today in a 100,000 square foot warehouse, the only distribution point west of the Rocky Mountains for all Xerox Corporation products.

Cases of alcohol solvent, used to clean the firm's copying machines, shot green and blue-tinted flames 150 feet into the air and caused jets of flame to leap like flame throwers out of ventilators in front of the building.

Two snorkels which fed water down into the exploding cases were virtually useless. Xerox officials estimated damage to the gutted structure at $600,000 and more than $1 million to the inventory. Firemen saved the administrative offices located in a connecting structure in front of the warehouse.

Eleven companies and more than 120 men were called in to combat the blaze.

The plant, made of prefabricated concrete, was opened on July 1, 1964.

Water Project Pacts Signed

OROVILLE (AP) — State Water Resources Director William E. Warne said today more than half of the contracts to construct the State Water Project are completed or under way.

Of 320 contracts needed to construct facilities, Warne said, 69 are complete and 104 are in progress.

Sorority Signs Race Pledge

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The final sorority holdout in the signing of UCLA's anti-discrimination certificate has agreed to sign the pledge by agreeing to sign the pledge.

Alice Mansfield, the national president of Pi Beta Phi, yesterday directed her sorority's chapters at UCLA and the University of California at Santa Barbara to sign the certificate. She said membership policies would permit them to sign in good faith.

One UCLA fraternity, Acacia, still has not signed, according to dean of students B. H. Atkinson.

University of California regents and the state board of trustees of the state colleges had ruled last year that social organizations would not be recognized unless they signed the pledge.

The pledge reads: "I hereby certify that the student members of (Blank) chapter of (Blank) are free to choose and accept new members without discrimination as to race, religion or national origin."

Pi Beta Phi and Acacia brought suit against the regents and the board of trustees last year in an attempt to force them to abandon the Last March they tried to require. The suit has not come up in court yet. Meanwhile, the two organizations sought an injunction but the plea was also turned down in superior court against the down.

Young GOP Chided by New Group

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —

Recent attacks by Los Angeles County Young Republicans on elected GOP officials have been termed "irresponsible and immature" by the president of the California Republican League.

William P. Gray, head of the Republican volunteer group, said yesterday that the young Republican group's recent move to "read U.S. Sen. Thomas Kuchel out of the Republican Party is the latest of a series of attacks on several incumbent Republican legislators and sabotages the earnest efforts" of other Republican leaders to unify the party.

South Coast Repertory

Subscription Campaign Set

The South Coast Repertory company of Newport Beach, currently preparing for its first complete season in the Harbor Area, today announced the inauguration of a subscription campaign.

The DAILY PILOT is one of the few community newspapers of its size in the country to have the combination of both Associated Press and United Press-International.

Patrons taking advantage of the subscription plan prior to the opening of the 1965-66 season Sept. 30 will have the opportunity to attend the theater's seven productions at a reduced rate, according to Managing Director David Emmes.

Brochures detailing the coming season and explaining the origin and history of the regional theater group were in the mail today.

Subscribers are being offered the choice of Friday or Saturday performances at $14 or Thursday and Sunday performances at $11. The theater also is soliciting charitable contributions for subscribers wishing to support the company further.

The SCR group is now closing out its summer season with Jean Anouilh's "Ring Round the Moon," its 11th production since the company first formed in Long Beach two years ago.

After traveling for more than a year, the repertory company moved into its first permanent home at 2815 Villa Way in early April. To date, seven plays have been presented in the 70-seat Second Step Theater.

The 1965-66 season will open with Shakespeare's "Othello," followed in November by Harold Pinter's "The Birthday Party." Other scheduled offerings are "Heartbreak House" by George Bernard Shaw, "Baal" by Bertolt Brecht, "The Time of Your Life" by William Saroyan, "The Mandrake" by Machiavelli and an original work yet to be announced.

The SCR brochure may be obtained by contacting the theater at 673-9664, Emmes stated.

Tract Office Theft Term Is 60 Days

SANTA ANA — For his part in a $2,000 sales tract office burglary, a Huntington Beach teen-age has been sentenced to 60 days in Orange County Jail.

The sentence handed down by Superior Judge William L. Murray also included three years probation for James W. Calvert, 18, of 9412 Litchfield Drive. The youth earlier had pleaded guilty to one count of second degree burglary.

Another youth, Paul M. Scruggs, 18, of Tustin is slated to go on trial here in Superior Court October 20 for the same case.

Police said the pair allegedly forced open the back door of the South Shores Home sales office, 19066 Brookhurst St., Huntington Beach and took a strong box containing $1,000 in cash and $1,000 in checks.

Most of the loot was recovered when officers apprehended the youths shortly after the alleged robbery.

Dredging Completed

SANTA ANA — Notice of completion of the main channel dredging of Sunset Harbor was received Tuesday by the Board of Supervisors.

The $145,126 project was completed in one year by Shellmaker, Inc., of Newport Beach.

The dredging, to a depth of 10 feet, provides a 150-foot channel from the Pacific Coast Highway bridge on the north to Huntington Harbour.

County Harbor Department officials said material taken from the channel was added to the county owned island proposed for an aquatic park in Sunset Harbor.

Foreign Students

They Like Something New

Potato chips, Bermuda shorts, bacon and eggs, and sailing have become new treats for two newly arrived American Field Service exchange students who will attend Newport Harbor High School this year.

Helga Voegler, 17, who attends her interests to potato chips and bermuda shorts, is staying with Mr. and Mrs. William Wilson and their five children. Taz, 17, Jim, 14, Kathy, 12, Joe, 6, and Ben, 5.

She left her own five brothers and sisters in Dortmund, Germany, to sail to the United States on the Groote Beer with 800 AFS students. In her own words, it was an "unforgettably wonderful experience."

The bacon and egg and sailing fan is Augusto Caesar Vieira, 17, from Fortaleza, Ceara, Brazil. He will spend the year with Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Shepard, 2215 Anniversary Lane, Newport Beach.

Augusto, one of seven children, will also have a foster brother, Tim Shepard, 17, who returned Monday, Aug. 31, from Thailand where he has been an AFS student this summer.

Neither Helga nor Augusto is strangers to the AFS program. Helga first heard about it three years ago from a friend at the all-girl school she attends.

"The first year I applied they said I was too young," Helga explained.

"The next year, instead of sending me overseas, they gave our family a girl from New Jersey, and this year I thought I was too old, and I just couldn't believe it when they wrote me I'd been accepted."

Augusto, on the other hand, heard about AFS in quite a different way. He responded to commercials on television and ads in the newspapers asking for applicants for the program.

"The only difficulty I had with the program in Brazil," Augusto said, "was that they only let me know I have been selected to go to America four days before my plane was to leave."

In the 10 days since their arrival, the families and the AFS committee have kept the mbusy seeing as much of Southern California as possible before school starts.

"We went sailing for the first time last Saturday," Helga said in her perfect Oxford English. "There was so much wind for our little Met-calf, we just flew over the water."

Helga and her foster sister, Taz, who will be a senior at Newport Harbor High, also went to a fashion show.

Helga said she was so fascinated with the shift dresses all the girls were making that she went home and made a turquoise and white polka dot one for herself.

Augusto got another chance to sail this week when friends of his foster family took him out in the ocean in a 10-meter sloop.

The highlight of his vacation, however, was a surprise birthday party given in his honor by the AFS committee Friday night.

But along with all the pleasant surprises, the two AFSers have been surprised by some American customs.

"Men do dishes here," said Augusto. "No man would go near the kitchen in Brazil!"

"In Germany, we dance to talk and get to know boys," Helga said. "We either twist or do the fox trot, but here the dancing is just wild movements and you can't hear anybody."

But then they like classical music.

And they agreed that American food makes up for whatever deficiencies we may have in our dances. Helga, whose father is an executive in a bicycle parts company, said how lucky Americans are to get so much meat.

"It is so expensive in Germany that we only have it for Sunday dinner," she added.

Augusto, on the other hand, eats large amounts of fruit and bread in Brazil. At home, he has a squashed banana every day for breakfast with his coffee and bread.

PEUGEOT—THE CAR THAT DOMINATES THE WORLD'S ROUGHEST RALLY

Year after year, Peugeot cars score in the 3000-mile East African safari, considered the most punishing ordeal on earth for stock cars. This year only 16 out of 85 finished—five of them Peugeots! Last year, 21 out of 94 cars finished—and 6 of them were Peugeots! Small wonder Peugeot is considered one of the seven best made cars in the world.

A New War on Crime

A desperately needed new, more effective war on crime all across the nation may come out of the work of the 19-member National Crime Commission appointed by President Johnson in July and sworn in by Chief Justice Earl Warren last Wednesday.

Need for "daring, creative and revolutionary" recommendations, as the President put it, is pointed up in the questions he asked the commission to explore. Among them were these:

- Why one-third of all parolees revert to crime.
- Why drug addiction is increasing among youth.
- Why organized crime continues to expand.
- Why juvenile delinquency knows neither economic nor educational boundaries.

There are many more, and the commission likely will split into panels to dig into specific problems.

Those old enough to recall the growth of crime under Prohibition will recognize that times have changed, and so have causes and weapons.

Warren, recalling his 20 years in law enforcement before becoming governor of California, said the major problems in the Prohibition era were bootlegging, racketeering, hijacking and all the graft and corruption that went with these activities.

President Herbert Hoover appointed a national crime commission headed by George W. Wickersham, attorney general under President Taft. The group's main finding was that the machinery for enforcing criminal laws was inadequate — and steps were taken to strengthen enforcement agencies.

Now, as Warren pointed out, the causes of crime are attributable to society as well as to individuals. Just as blame for the Los Angeles riot rests with those who rioted, the causes were many, complex and deep-seated.

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI, had some pertinent comments to make to the commission, also. He was critical of some recent court decisions that "too often severely and unfairly shackled police officers." He cited a growing contempt for law-enforcement officers. He said it is particularly important for young people to understand that "respect for law is the cornerstone of our republic."

In support of his statement that the crime problem is a shocking indictment of the American way of life, Hoover pointed to the fact that more than 2.6 million serious crimes were committed in the nation last year and that the annual cost of crime is now $27 billion.

Action at the federal level is under way, even as the commission begins its studies. A bill has been passed, at the President's request, authorizing the attorney general to spend $10 million in the first year of a three-year program to train state and local police and for law enforcement demonstration projects.

No more serious problem is before the nation, crying for prompt solution. Three Californians are among the 19 persons from all sections of the country who are tackling the job as members of the commission. They are Thomas Lynch, state attorney general; Otis Chandler, publisher of the Los Angeles Times, and Thomas J. Cahill, San Francisco police chief.

That great majority of the American people who are law-abiding citizens will join in the fervent hope that the National Crime Commission will be able to come up with an effective blueprint. As the President put it:

"Crime is a sore on the face of America... let the nation know we have taken a pledge not only to reduce crime, but to banish it."

Everyday Problems

Teen-age Marriages

By NORMAN NIXON, M.D.

A recent cartoon by Conrad shows an obstetrician at his desk, saying to his perplexed Junior Miss patient, "Congratulations! That draft-dodging husband of yours is going to have a deferment." Conrad's cartoon reflects the current scene with bitter irony since marriage alone no longer keeps a man from being drafted; now only fatherhood, actual or impending, is a legitimate excuse. So with our country at war in Vietnam the present high rate of teen age marriages and pregnancies no doubt will increase substantially.

ABOUT one-third to one-half of all girls who marry while in high school are pregnant before the wedding. And up to three-fourths of boys who marry prior to high school graduation are involved in premarital pregnancies. In comparison, not more than one in six brides over 20 are pregnant when married.

Of course, draft evasion is only one of many reasons for youthful marriages. Other contributing factors are the rapid tempo of modern living and the growing number of broken homes with the resulting insecurity, confusion and loneliness. As one young child bride put it: "I wanted to have someone really love and want me."

EQUALLY important is the breaking down of sexual morals so that more youngsters now date and go steady earlier than ever before. Since the current "steady" often changes periodically, promiscuity results when teen-agers are unwilling to postpone sexual gratification until after marriage.

One California researcher compared a group of married high school girls with another group who were single. The single girls were decidedly better adjusted emotionally, made higher grades, participated more actively in school activities and had better relations with their parents than those who married prior to high-school graduation.

ANOTHER research study in Iowa showed that 11 per cent of 100 high school girls who had been married an average of six months bemoaned their action. Of the girls who were pregnant at the time of marriage, 76 per cent regretted their decision to marry in comparison with 41 per cent of those who were not pregnant when married.

In the teen-age marriages which succeed, and many do, the readiness of the bride and groom to assume mature responsibilities, young as they were when married, is obvious. Rather than damn all early marriages (except those of draft evaders), isn't it important to assume a more positive attitude?

SHOULDN'T WE try and help these young people to achieve a successful marriage relationship? That would include doing away with those out-dated rules in many high schools which expel or suspend married students, thus hampering their future by curtailing their education.

Law In Action

New Father, New Home

When a divorced woman remarries, she generally takes the name of her new husband. But what about a child of the first marriage? Shall he, too, take the new name? Or shall he continue to carry the name of his natural father?

If the parties see eye to eye on the problem, so much the better. But if they disagree, then a court — provided it has discretion in the matter — may have to settle the argument for them.

By George!

Dear George: I have an unfortunate problem. People don't believe me, although I am absolutely truthful. My wife simply won't believe I was off on a perfectly innocent fishing trip. How can I convince her?

CONCERNED

Dear Concerned: Look her straight in the eye and explain that a marriage must be based on mutual trust and faith. Point out how ridiculous and unfounded her suspicions are. (Saa — aren't you the same concerned I met over at Lulu's Limbo with that wild little redhead?)

Even more important, our children and youth need to be prepared for marriage and family life through required courses which cover the entire field of dating, courtship, engagement, readiness for marriage, marital relationships, and parent-child relations.

THEY NEED to know the meaning of love and the true feelings involved in a happy and rewarding sexual union in marriage, not just factual material concerning procreation, body differences and venereal disease.

Obviously there is no panacea for the problem of teen-age marriages. But for meaningful family life with more opportunities for meaningful family life education — in our schools and churches, as well as in our homes, we can help young people to become better prepared for marriage and for life in general, regardless of their ages when they say "I do."

AS IN MOST lawsuits involving the children of divorce, parental emotions often run high. But the law is guided primarily by the welfare of the child, not by the feelings of either the mother or the father.

Thus, in one case, the court granted a name change when it appeared that the father was objecting simply to spite the mother. He resented the fact that she had been able to find happiness in her second marriage.

In another case, the father argued that a name change would sever the bonds of affection between him and his son. But it turned out that for six years he had neither seen the boy nor sent any money for his support. Overruling the father's objection, the court said:

"THIS FATHER is wholly unknown to the boy. He is a total stranger to him. Filial love cannot be decreed by the court. It must be earned."

On the other hand, when filial love does exist, the law seeks to preserve it — even at the cost of some awkwardness in the child's new household.

A Walk By the Sea

From Notes Made on a Sea Island off South Carolina — "The sea drowns out humanity and time: it has no sympathy with either, for it belongs to eternity, and of that it sings its monotonous song forever."

— O. W. Holmes: "The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table."

As one walked along the beach at night, with the "immense and contemptuous surges" of the Atlantic breaking and hissing, purring foam at one's feet, his eyes luckily caught a satellite overhead. It was large and bright. It moved steadily down the sky, a large, egg-shaped blob of light, and at last was gone behind the dark, ragged shadows of palm trees beyond a marsh. Somewhere in the star-lit sky Gemini 5 was in its orbit and its spacemen talked down to earth, made jokes, sang bits of made-up doggerel verse.

THE NEARNESS of the sea causes one to think about it. It has changed less than anything since the creation of earth. "The sea is His, and His hands prepared the dry earth." Man has not been able to change it or confine it. (Man's sole contribution is pollution.) The challenge of the sea remains for the more daring.

Robert Manry, copyreader on the Cleveland Plain Dealer, recently sailed his 13½ foot dingy across the Atlantic, requiring 80 days to cross its treacherous and unpredictable reaches. He sailed alone and his feat was greater than that of Columbus. Indeed, we must go back to the Norsemen, of whom the legendary Erik the Red is the best known, to compare with him. Even the Norsemen, in their marvelously constructed long boats, were many.

MANRY SAILED alone. We milder persons, breaking rarely the pattern of our lives, exult in his daring.

ing. A quiet family man, he thought about his journey for a long time and then, one day, quietly took leave from the office and sailed off alone with almost 4,000 miles of sea between him and his objective port of Falmouth.

O. S. Holmes, whose quotation began this article, said another true thing about the sea: "The sea is feline. It licks your feet—its huge flank; purr very pleasantly for you; but it will crack your bones and eat you, for all that, and wipe the crimsoned foam from its jaw as if nothing had happened." And so it will.

MANRY experienced, in the exhaustion and strain of his 80 days, illusions such as Charles Lindbergh reported as his experience in his more than 30 hours flying the tiny Spirit of St. Louis nonstop to Paris. There was a time, he wrote in his book, when there were two invisible spirits in the cabin with him. They talked with him and he talked back, or listened. Manry, for a time, had his small son in the miniature craft, he said. Voices spoke to him. Once he so strongly saw a monster of a man aboard that he, Manry, leaped into the small cabin to do battle with him or learn he was not there. There is much man has yet to learn about the mystery of the mind.

One thought of these things, walking at night by the sea, watching a man-made satellite move across the sky to disappear behind a distant darkness of palms.

Sure As Shootin'!

WASHINGTON, D. C. — If I were Paul G. Hoffman, once head of the Marshall Plan, I'd be ashamed to show my face before Americans.

If I were William O. Douglas, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, I'd turn in my robes for a suit of sackcloth and a supply of ashes.

If I were Harry S. Ashmore, once a crusading editor in Little Rock, I'd find a great big rock to crawl under.

THESE MEN and others less conspicuous as public figures are responsible for the most irresponsible screed I have read thus far on the American war effort in Vietnam.

They are officers of the Center and Fund for the Republic, a tax-exempt foundation, with a subsidiary called Center For the Study of Democratic Institutions. Their outfit has recently published a pamphlet entitled "How the U.S. Got Involved in Vietnam." The author is one Robert Scheer, a correspondent for the magazines called Ramparts and Realist.

THE THESIS of this well-financed, widely distributed work, is one designed to give a maximum of comfort to our enemies in time of undeclared war. It is not treason, but it is high-brow treachery. It does not "adhere" to the Communist enemy (that verb being part of the Constitution's definition of treason), but it is subversive of the President's, the Congress's and the Armed Forces's will to defeat our foes in Asia.

This is the thesis: that American anti-Communism, as shown at home and in Vietnam, is Fascism and no more moral than Communism itself. Let anybody think me guilty of overstatement, here is the wrap-up paragraph in the pamphlet's final chapter which is labeled "Conclusion." It reads:

"IN EASTERN Europe, Soviet Communism became involved in a ludicrous situation that presents it with continued instability and turmoil and has stained the ideology of Communism. Writing about Hungary, Albert Camus created the phrase 'socialism of the gallows' to describe the low point of an ideology that claimed to lead a civilization. But must we not also speak of the United States' involvement in Vietnam in terms of a 'democracy of the gallows'?"

We find in this single publication, I think, a cache of argumentative weaponry for our intellectual pacifists who want so much for their country to lose a war against Communism. It is a publication which declares that the USA "broke those rules" set up by the 1954 Geneva Treaty (we are not a signer of it); which whines that the American press never describes a Communist as 'altruistic or genuinely committed to the well-being of his fellow man,' and which deplores the systematic purging from American life of all those suspected of harboring sympathies toward Communism."

IT IS A publication, made possible by a front of respectable names, encouraged by a generous tax policy which stimulates the circulation of ideas, protected by our canons of free speech. For all these reasons it is much more hurtful to our American cause than if it bore the frank imprint of Peking or Moscow.

We must, of course, guard American liberty in all its forms. The President's war policies, and all others, need loyal criticism — the more of that the better. But the same liberty, for which Americans are now giving their lives, requires denunciation of men like Hoffman, Douglas, Ashmore et al., who lend their good names to evil work.

Growing Pollution Problem

Many Americans know the Great Lakes. Some have sailed on them or lived on or near their shores.

No other continent has such an expansive and otherwise remarkable freshwater lake system. It was created by glaciation, so it is geologically young.

Seventy-five years ago, when only a few million people lived near the lakes, they were as clear as a mountain stream. Today they are polluted in varying degrees, the worst, Erie because it is the shallowest, 210 feet. The other lakes are over 700 feet deep, up to Superior with a sounding of 1333 feet. Seventy-five years ago five cities on Erie had a population of about 800 thousand. Now the metropolitan areas of Detroit, Toledo, Cleveland, Erie and Buffalo total 8 million.

THE LAKES, once abounded in fish, and now approach sterility in many areas. Commercial fishing is but a fraction of what it was 40 years ago.

Some fish thin out under attack by parasites like lampreys, but the pollution as a whole is man's work. About 25 million people pour their sewage into the lakes, and their industries have increased twentyfold, injecting a vast flow of harmful chemicals.

The lake system is nothing but a great river washing seven states. But no large-scale, integrated effort has succeeded in arresting contamination, though the problem has been manifest for 50 years. Selfish interests, industrial and municipal, and interstate contention, have paralyzed efforts to find a solution.

Recently in Cleveland there was a four-state meeting on Erie, attended by 450, including delegates from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Immediately a skirmish developed between New York and the other states. Gov. Rockefeller is mounting a $1.7 anti-pollution bond issue, and it is reported he wants New York to go it alone.

The New York argument is that it does not contaminate Lake Erie, that contaminants from the Buffalo area (pop. 1.3 million) flow east into the Niagara River. Some federal health service scientists contest this, saying Erie also has a westward current.

BECAUSE IT is the biggest American water pollution problem, every American has an interest in Great Lakes action. But every American is also concerned because his region has the same problem on a smaller scale. San Francisco, Seattle, Los Angeles, the Mississippi basin, the Eastern seaboard and the South all suffer river or still-water pollution. Phosphates from sewage, other chemicals from industrial wastes, create algae and sap the waters of oxygen, ruining beaches and killing marine life.

Debutantes Transfer Energies to College

Joie de vivre has become a byword among debutantes of Newport Chapter, National Charity League.

The same zest they apply to social and charitable activities will be transferred to campuses of the West where the young women will enter the halls of higher learning before a reunion Nov. 27 for their formal presentation to society in Newport Inn.

Miss Jane Lee McAllister, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. McAllister, is home from abroad, having headquartered in Switzerland for her travels on the Continent. She'll remain in the area for studies at Orange Coast College.

School will be held in abeyance for Miss Chaneen Margaret McCurdy. After a trip to Hawaii, travel has beckoned. She will be touring the world with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chandler S. McCurdy. Returning from the Islands, Miss Donna Duryea Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Haviland V. Smith, had just enough time to assemble a wardrobe and sharpen her pencils for classes at University of Arizona.

Complexity of University of Southern California campus will be quite a contrast for Miss Leah Gale Rogers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul M. Rogers after her tour to the wilds of Nova Scotia, but she'll have the company of Miss Linda Lee Jesch, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Norman H. Jesch.

Many young debutantes spent summer following the serious pursuits of study and charity work, including Miss Terry Ann McLaughlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. McLaughlin. She enrolled at OCC. On campus with her after a summer in Carmel by the Sea will be Miss Catherine Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John V. Baker Jr., and Therese Evelyn Londelius, already a summer session veteran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Londelius.

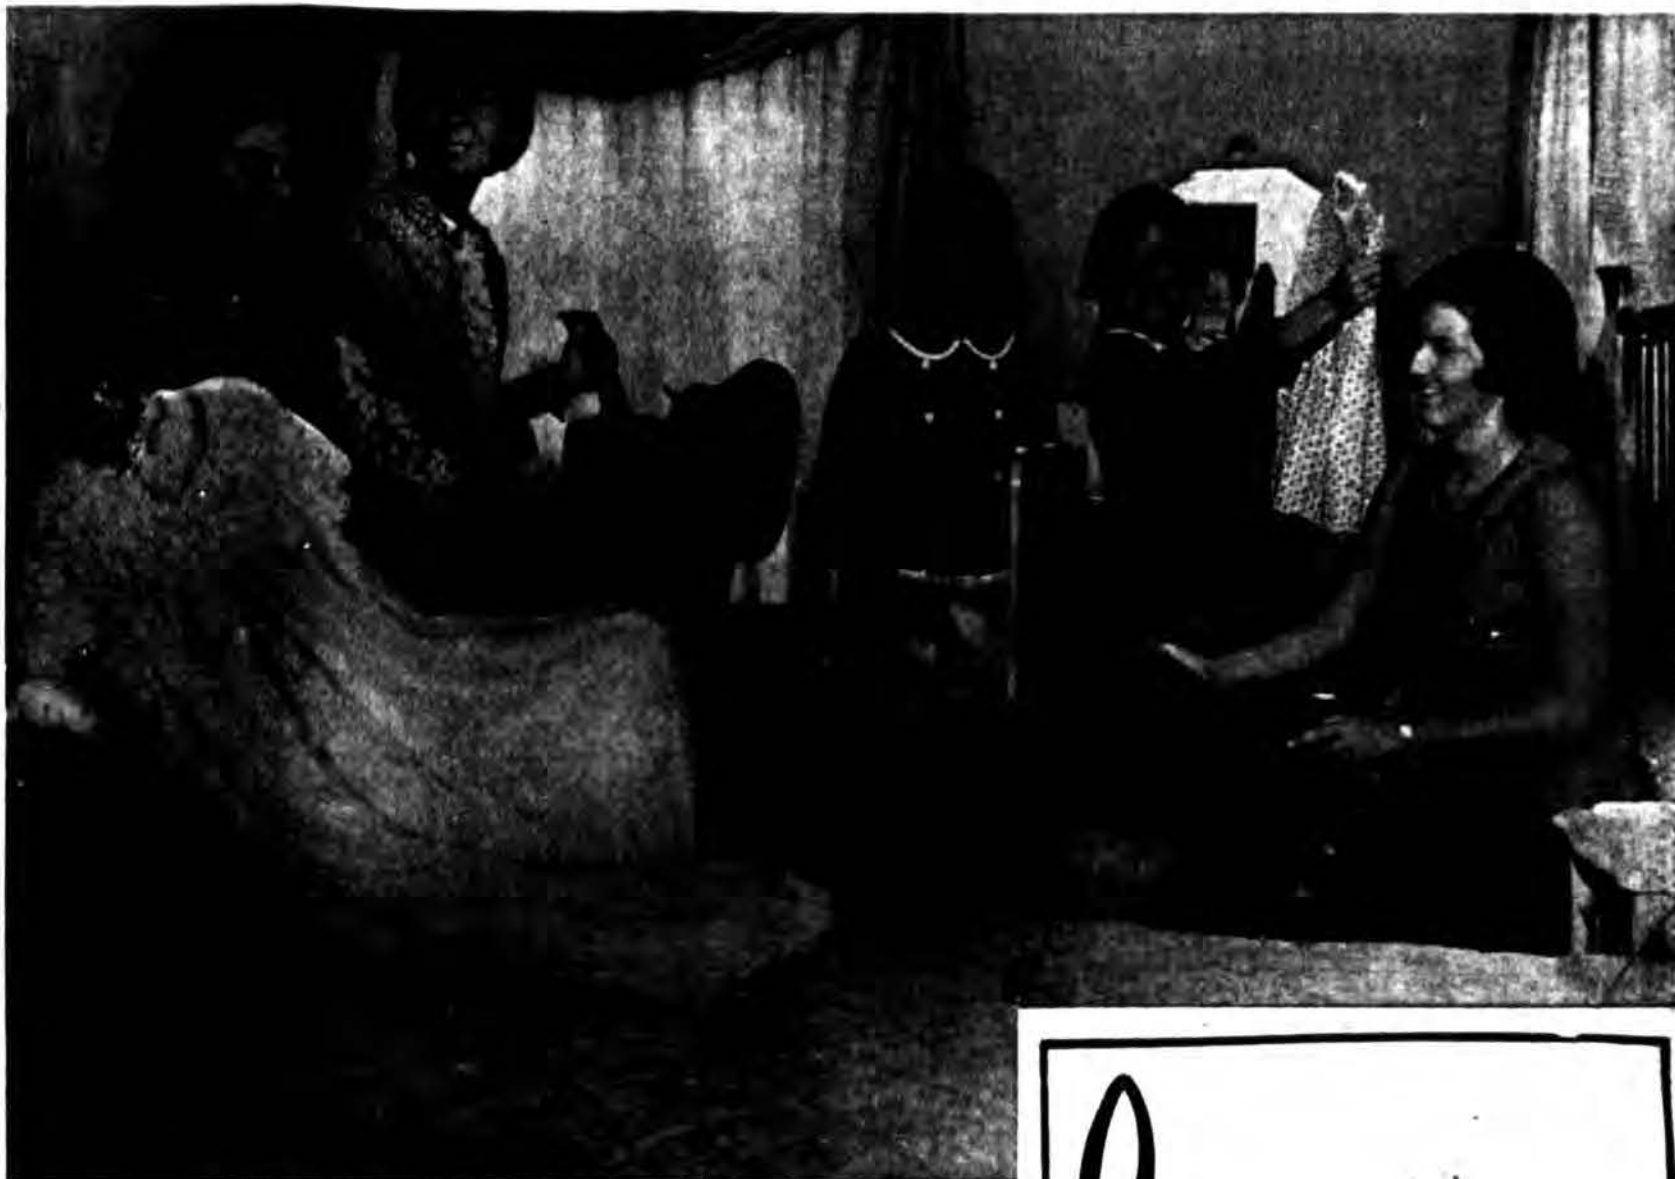

University of California, Irvine has accepted Miss Sue Ann Olrich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl S. Olrich, and Miss Carol Jean Rose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton E. Rose, who filled her vacation days to the brim as counsellor at "Y" camp.

Off to Pitzer College in Claremont is Miss Susan Louise Pratt, who undoubtedly will be tagged for the tennis team. Susan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund C. Pratt, spent the summer on the courts improving her very fine game.

Stanford bound is Miss Lura Marie Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Smith. After touring the area surrounding the campus, she'll be hearing stories from classmate Miss Sandra Louise Thomas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Thomas, newly returned from European travels. And not too far away, Miss Kathryn Hartley, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert A. Hartley, will be at University of California, Davis.

After a trip to the high Sierras and counsellor service at "Y" camp, Miss Joan Nollinda Wells, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald D. Wells, is looking toward the greenery of Oregon and Willamette University where Miss Susan Elizabeth Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard B. Smith, is enrolled.

Devotion to handicapped children and adults in the therapy pool of Orange County Crippled Children Society was Miss Susan Barclay Straitiff's chosen work for the summer. She'll be back from Colorado Women's College in Denver to join debutantes for their formal bow.

DEBUTANTES STEP FORTH — A new world at college will open for Newport Harbor National Charity League debutantes before their November presentation to society. Carefully choosing wardrobes for their fledgling careers on campuses of the West are (from left) the Misses Kathryn Hartley, Therese Evelyn Londelius, Susan Barclay Straitiff, Joan Nollinda Wells and Leah Gale Rogers.

Professor's 'Homework' ...

... Assignment: Wall Street

Posh Men's World Penetrated

By COLLEEN McCLOSKEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Trying to enter one of New York's plush, private clubs which are "off limits" to America's "better half" could prove to be quite a chore for most Orange Coast women — but not for Huntington Harbourn: Mrs. J. Radford Belt.

Better known to her colleagues at California State College at Long Beach as Dr. Virginia McKemie Belt, the vibrant young doctor, who ranks as wife and mother as well as associate professor of finance, "unlocked" sealed doors and got more than just a glimpse of the posh establishments during a three-week visit in the big city.

A little know-how (not the kind she acquired while studying for her PhD) was necessary, Dr. Belt con-ed, recalling the night she was escorted into the Recess Club on Broad Street via the back service elevator.

Her escorts, who knew their way around town, were a group of Wall Streeters — or "men of the Street" as they characterize themselves. Dining with them in the elegant clubs and seeing most of the major Broadway plays, as well as those off - Broadway, were sidelights offered her as a participant of the Forum on Finance, staged on famed Wall Street by the nation's leading stock exchanges.

SPONSORED BY ASI
Sponsors were members of the American Securities Industry including New York Stock Exchange, American Stock Exchange, Investment Bankers Association of America and Association of Stock Exchange Firms.

Their purpose, Dr. Belt explained, was to afford the academic and financial communities an opportunity to take part in a mutual exchange of ideas and at the same time offer professors throughout the country first hand experiences in the policies and practices of many of the leading men and institutions which comprise Wall Street.

Dr. Belt was among 30 professors invited, by recommendation, to participate. Besides being the only representative from California, she was the only woman chosen.

MEETS OLD FRIEND

"Ivy colleges were heavily represented," she commented. "I was pleasantly surprised to learn during the opening session, that among participants was my former professor at the University of Illinois, Dr. Robert Mayer." Dr. Belt received her degree from UI in 1955.

During the forum Dr. Belt and her colleagues, both singly and in groups, observed the major firms in the securities business in action. They were their guests during the three-week period.

BIDDING FOR BONDS

"A few of us were admitted to the 'closed door' bidding for $21 million of government bonds," she said enthusiastically. "We witnessed the tension and competition among dealers who planned to bid on the bonds."

But Dr. Belt's biggest thrill came near the end of the forum when, during the closing banquet she was selected by fellow professors to represent them by giving the after dinner speech.

"My audience was comprised of forum participants and a room full of millionaires," she beamed, proud of the fact that she was the only professor to give an address during the entire forum.

WELL QUALIFIED

But she was more than qualified for such an honor. Besides being professor at the Long Beach institution, Dr. Belt is a guest lecturer at the University of California, Los Angeles; consultant and lecturer, Small Business Administration, Los Angeles, and consultant in econometrics, California Department of Employment.

(See POSH CLUBS, Page 12)

FLIGHT PATTERN—Dr. Virginia McKemie Belt, wife and mother as well as college professor whose "homework" this summer took her to famed Wall Street to participate in a Forum on Finance and to six other states as well as New York to carry out a research program, returns to Orange Coast via private plane after serving as a discussant for the Western Finance Association during a two-day meeting in San Diego. She now is preparing for the opening of the fall term at California State College at Long Beach, where she is associate professor of finance.

Cockles of Foolish Heart Warmed by 'Goose Bumps'

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a 25-year-old male who is writing this letter in the washroom because if anyone in the office walked by my desk and saw a letter that started "Dear Ann Landers" they'd split a gut.

I have a problem that is bugging me something terrific. I'm engaged to a lovely, attractive girl. Cathy and I grew up together as neighbors. She was the only girl I ever cared about. Cathy and my sister are close friends. My parents think she's great. It just seems natural for us to get married.

About three months ago a real little doll started to work in this office. I find myself borrowing stamps from her, paper clips, manila envelopes — anything to start a conversation. This chick draws me like a magnet. Yesterday she came over and asked me how to spell a word and I got goose bumps.

Our wedding date is set for October. Although I'm making light of this I'm dead serious. What should I do? — THE BIG Q

DEAR Q: Tell Cathy how you feel. Suggest that she call off the engagement and date others for a few months. Then get better acquainted with goose bumps. By October you should know for sure which of these girls you want and Cathy will have had a chance to compare you with a few others, too, which is fair to all concerned. Now wash your hands and go back to your desk.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I do a lot of informal entertaining during the summer. We have fixed up our back yard and it's ideal for barbecue suppers. The trouble is the next door neighbors.

Whenever they see we have guests they move right in on the party. They actually kidnap our friends by inviting them into their home to see something of interest or to try a special bourbon.

We have invited these neighbors to many backyard parties but we see no reason to invite them every time we entertain. Do you? My husband says we might as well. They come anyway.

Last night most of our guests ended up in the neighbors' house and I'm boiling. Am I selfish, petty or justified? What's the solution?

—LOVE THY WHAT?

DEAR WHAT? If you really want to knock off the guest raiding tell your neighbors in plain English exactly what you told me. It will probably terminate your friendship as well — but I don't think that would be a great loss.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My wife's favorite aunt was widowed nine years ago. It was my suggestion that she make her home with us. Lily was one of the loveliest, most delightful people I've ever known.

Seven months ago Aunt Lily became ill. The doctors told us (and her) that she had terminal cancer. We decided to keep her at home rather than put her in a hospital.

My wife's sister and brother dropped in every other Sunday for 10 minutes. How we would have appreciated an evening out during those last months, but no one in the family offered to relieve us.

Aunt Lily's will was read two weeks ago. She left everything to us. We didn't know she had stocks and bonds that went back many years. She never mentioned it. Now the family is swarming around, demanding their "share." My wife's sister says Aunt Lily was not mentally competent toward the end and that it is up to us to do "the right thing." She feels we should divide the money equally with her and her brother. What do you say? — BEFUDDLED

DEAR BEFUDDLED: Why should I say anything? It was Aunt Lily's money and SHE said it.

What is French kissing? Is it wrong? Who should set the neck-line limits — the boy or the girl? Can a shotgun wedding succeed? Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Ten-see Sex — Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of the DAILY PILOT, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

David Lee Vaughn Claims Janice Bassett as Bride

With Laguna Beach Community Presbyterian Church decorated with red gladioli, yuletide roses and matching red bows and streamers and white candles in the altar candelabra, Janice Elizabeth Bassett and David Lee Vaughn were married in a candlelight service performed by the Rev. Dr. Dallas R. Turner.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rolf F. Bassett of Laguna Beach and was given in marriage by her father. The benedict is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Vaughn of Newport Beach.

Gowned in embroidered Swiss silk organza with a scoop neckline, trumpet sleeves and cathedral train of embroidered silk net, the bride wore a hair bow of matching organza with a face veil. Her pearls were a gift of the bridegroom and she carried a cascade of white roses and a white Bible.

Her maid of honor was Miss Shari Wilcox of Los Angeles, who wore pomegranate red linen in a princess style gown with scoop neck and trumpet sleeves. She wore matching gloves, a Dior hair bow and carried a cascade bouquet of yuletide roses.

Bride's attendants were Mrs. Richard W. Meacham of San Mateo, sister of the benedict; Mrs. Dennis Mortimer of Santa Monica and junior bridesmaid, Miss Lynne Bassett of Kelowna, B.C., Canada, a cousin of the bride.

Karen Rowley of Laguna Beach was flower girl and wore an exact copy in miniature of the attendants' gowns.

Donald S. Redington of Anaheim was best man, and usher duties were performed by Richard W. Meacham, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Charles E. Vandervort Jr. of Newport Beach, Barton W. Hinesley of Costa Mesa, a cousin of the benedict, and Donald Bassett of Canada, a cousin of the bride.

Gale Glenn sang the "Lord's Prayer," accompanied by Mrs. Freda Druchel and the Witherspoon Bell Ringers of the church were also accompanied in songs.

The bride's home was decorated with red and white carnations in silver baskets and white wedding bells and the garden was lit with pink flood lights, tiki torches and Japanese lanterns.

Mrs. K. V. Douglas of Vancouver, B.C., presided at the coffee urn.

The bride is a graduate of North Hollywood High School, Orange Coast College and California State College at San Fernando Valley, where she was president of Theta Sigma Tau.

Wine Buffs Dine Vineyard's Best Tasted

Select wines sampled in select restaurants engage the interest of California Wine Buffs, a club organized several years ago to enable members to familiarize themselves with the attributes of fine wines.

The 24 charter members of the Buffs strive for the unusual in wines and cuisine. To this end, four dinners are arranged each year, with one in Orange County, two in Los Angeles and one in a remote location. Plans for 1966 include a trip to the wine country during the grape harvest.

The Lido Towers apartment of the Worth Bernards was chosen by members and their guests to sample premium rose wines before dining in an Orange County restaurant of distinction.

Guests and members included the Messrs. and Mrs. Norman Shanahan, Frank Klaus, Bertram Coffey Jr., Walter Prince, Earl Snyder, Richard Elwood, James Lindeman, North Swanson and Eric Erickson.

Others were the Mmes. Anne Pravorne, Marian Gannon, Joy Bondy and Paul Lamberton and Gene V. Christensen.

The next dinner is scheduled for Thursday, Nov. 4, in a Beverly Hills restaurant.

Alumni Kick Off Season

Newport Harbor Trojan Alumni will kick off their season with installation and a dinner dance tomorrow evening in Irvine Coast Country Club. The 8 o'clock dinner will be preceded by a cocktail hour.

George Bissell will take the gavel, and assisting him will be Gerald McClellan, vice president; Mrs. John W. McCabe, secretary, and Herb Riley, treasurer.

Several of the Trojan football staff will preview the team's chances of playing in the Rose Bowl.

Bus transportation will be provided when the Trojans play Stanford Oct. 16, Pittsburgh Nov. 13 and UCLA Nov. 20. Buses will leave and return to IOCC, and reservations may be made by calling Mrs. McClellan at 673-0061.

Club Year Will Open

A new permanent meeting place, date and time of meetings has been selected by Mesa Harbor Club which will launch its fall season Sept. 16.

The group will meet every second Thursday of the month in Balboa Bay Club for a 10:30 a.m. brunch and program.

To help members select philanthropic projects for the year, Mrs. George Snider and her philanthropic committee will present skits explaining needs and backgrounds of several charities.

Harbor Area women interested in attending may call Mrs. Lloyd Baker, membership chairman at 545-1567 for information or Mrs. Tommie Skinner, 545-8620 or Mrs. Delmar Phillips, 546-6043 for reservations.

B'nai B'rith Movie Showing

A movie on the work of B'nai B'rith will be shown to Orange Coast Chapter 1230, B'nai B'rith Women at 8:15 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 16, in the home of Mrs. Norman Aratin, 10226 Falcon Ave., Fountain Valley.

Further information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Albert Kramer, 546-5482.

Midway City Women Blighty Club Plan Club's Activity Sets Dance, Charabanc

A get-acquainted potluck luncheon is being planned for noon Tuesday, Sept. 14, by Mrs. Charles Barnett, Mrs. Galvin Street and Mrs. Harry Hayden, hostesses, for members of Midway City Women's Club.

A musical program will be presented by Mrs. R. J. O'Donnell, music chairman.

A planning session for the luncheon took place in the home of the club's president, Mrs. Clarence Caswell. On the board's agenda also was the fall festival and bazaar.

Scheduled for Tuesday, Sept. 21, is a workshop for new chairmen.

The evening section will resume activities Thursday, Sept. 29, in the home of Mrs. Dewey Carlson, chairman.

Next dance of the Blighty Club will be Saturday, Sept. 11, in the American Legion Hall, Newport Beach.

Dick Webster and his band will play and refreshments will be on sale. Admission for members is $1.25 and guests, $1.75. Information may be obtained by calling Blighty headquarters, 646-8456.

On Friday, Sept. 24, members will take their second summer's trip to Las Vegas, with the charabanc leaving at 7 p.m. Information regarding fares may be obtained by calling headquarters.

Already under way are plans for the Christmas party given for children of members.

Workshop Postponed

A painting workshop offered by Huntington Beach Women's Club will begin in October instead of Sept. 16, as previously scheduled, announced Mrs. Arthur J. Williams, president.

September meetings were cancelled owing to clubhouse remodeling. Further information may be obtained from Mrs. Williams, 536-9568, or Mrs. Clarence Opperman, art chairman, 536-9806.

How Do You Spell Trouble?

By BILL DONER

Annually when the leaves turn brown, sportswriters throughout the land begin to think seriously about going into early hibernation.

Without fail, open season on scribes is officially declared the first day of September and anyone who has a grievance with the press takes the opportunity to stand up and be heard.

With tempers short during the baseball stretch run, it is inevitable some player takes a poke at a writer. Sometimes managers even get into the act, particularly if they happen to be on their way out the door.

Cincinnati's Earl Lawson, a friendly little fellow, is a three-time veteran of such waltzes and twice he has dropped unanimous decisions to Vada Pinson of the Redlegs.

It is, naturally, a distinction the guy can do without. Not necessarily a lover, Lawson is definitely not a fighter. In all his outings with athletes, he has yet to land a punch.

If it meets the approval of the Ohio boxing lords, Lawson would just as soon retire from active competition. Lawson's undistinguished ring career, however, serves a purpose. It points up the hazards of his calling.

It is to be wondered if the public appreciates the fact sports writers take their lives in their hands as they attempt to report the events of the day. When a journalist goes to an athletic contest, it is much like embarking on a bombing mission. He is never sure whether or not he will return.

One is never sure where danger lurks. At a Riverside basketball game last year, for example, this writer had a close brush with disaster. A confirmed coward, I somehow managed to avoid a bunch of irate Riversiders and when last seen I was headed down the Newport Freeway at about 120 miles per hour. And my car was still in the gymnasium parking lot at the time.

This is not to suggest there have not been other harrowing moments and close escapes.

In fact, I claim the distinction of leading the Eastern Conference in grabbed lapels. When I am through with a certain sports coat, Orange Coast football coach Dick Tucker has promised to have the lapels cast in bronze.

For some strange reason, former Santa Ana College coach Homer Beatty spent much of his time swinging from my coat collar. It was after the third or fourth time that I took the notion his advances were other than affectionate.

Beatty's replacement Myrel Moore kept the record intact by playing clutch and grab a few days after he joined the Don staff.

All of this leads up to something strange that happened. At the first meeting of the Orange County Football Writers Thursday, I managed to say a few words to Moore's successor, Dick Gorrie.

To be sure the conversation was not lengthy, but it was nevertheless without incident. My coat, for example, was not stretched in the least and not a single drink was hurled in my face.

Of course, it's still early in the month, but I'm beginning to wonder if I'm over the hill. Even the dog at home doesn't bite me any more.

Could it be the area's number one troublemaker is growing peaceful in his old age?

An entire summer without controversy. Not even once have I tabbed pro golfers a bunch of drunks and I haven't even hinted that local gridders are nothing more than surf bums in shoulder pads incapable of knocking down anything bigger than a number three pencil.

Even the boss is smiling now that he's able to sleep nights. He says there hasn't been a single midnight phone call demanding, "Fire that Doner or else."

Not so much as one irate letter or even a nasty postcard has arrived on my desk lately.

But before I despair completely, there is one final hope. Both Gorrie and Fullerton coach Hal Sherbeck are scheduled to appear at the writers function next week. And if that combination doesn't spell rage with a capital R, then there's no doubt about it:

I'm through!

So stay tuned and I'll give you a blow by blow description of what could be the final round.

One Around The Circuit

Miscellaneous ramblings of a roving reporter:

As late as Sunday, quarterback Shawn McKinney was still seriously thinking about leaving Orange Coast College in favor of the University of Idaho. McKinney didn't feel he was cutting the mustard for the Pirates and it wasn't until his impressive showing in Tuesday's scrimmage with San Diego Mesa that he definitely decided to stay at OCC.

Ontario scribe Tom Youlden says Fullerton JC could compete in the AAWU and predicts the Hornets won't lose a game in Eastern Conference play. "It could, however, be a battle for second," explains Youlden and he's not counting Chaffey's Panthers out of the struggle.

Cerritos, which provides the opposition for OCC in the season opener one week from Saturday night, has boasted all along of its finest football team in history and the Falcons gave evidence of their strength this week by thrashing San Bernardino by some seven touchdowns in a scrimmage. Making the scrum triumph even more impressive is the fact San Berdo followers have tabbed the Tribe as "one of the best outfits around in '65."

Remember Warren McVea? He was considered the best high school football player in the nation two years back and shocked everyone when he said he wanted to leave Texas and attend Orange Coast College. Well, McVea will make his collegiate debut Saturday on national television when he leads the University of Houston against Tulsa in the Astro-dome. Those who have seen him in action say he's a cinch All-American right off the bat.

For years they've been asking big Dave DeBusschere which sport he preferred — baseball or basketball. DeBusschere always declined to answer, but Wednesday he finally made a decision when he refused to report to the Chicago White Sox and announced he was going to devote full time to his job as player-coach of the Detroit Pistons of the NBA.

Two former Huntington Beach and Orange Coast football stars, Ben Rapp and Mike Fazio, figure to help out Cal State, Long Beach, this season. Rapp who has been out of action for two years, reported to the 49ers at 217 pounds and has been converted from guard to linebacker. Fazio is a 195-pound end.

Insiders say Jules Gage, still recovering from a heart attack, shouldn't attempt to coach Costa Mesa High's basketball team this year, but the spunky Gage reports he'll definitely be at the Mustang helm when the cage campaign gets under way. Almost a fixture in Harbor area coaching, Gage could have one of his finest teams at Mesa this year.

Noiseless Win

Newman Needs Seclusion

KANSAS CITY (AP) — California Angels' pitcher Fred Newman does his best work in seclusion.

After seven straight losses, Newman beat Kansas City, 7-2, Thursday night, but only 1,271 intrepid fans were there to see it.

The 23-year-old righthander gave up a two-run homer to Athletics' third baseman Ed Charles in the first inning. But from that point Newman thrived on the silence of the scattered patrons.

In going the distance for his 12th victory against 14 losses, Newman scattered seven hits, walked none and struck out three.

Unlike Newman, Kansas City starter Lew Krausse requires more popular support. The victory moved California to within 2½ games of the sixth-place New York Yankees in the American League standings. The last-place Athletics are 3½ behind Boston.

Tonight the Angels open a three-game series in Washington with left-handed George Brunet (8-10) pitching against the Senators' Pete Richter (12-10).

Senik and Mike McLellan. McKinney will open in the scrum, but both McLellan and Senik will see plenty of duty.

No Hitting For Troy

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The University of Southern California football team, hit by injuries during preseason practice sessions, will hold no contact workouts before its meeting Sept. 17 with Minnesota.

Following yesterday's scrimmage for the benefit of about 40 touring sportswriters and broadcasters, coach John McKay said, "that's the last time we'll hit anybody until we play Minnesota."

The Trojans have suffered a large number of injuries in fall practice and McKay was afraid any more hitting could aggravate the situation.

The first and second defensive units drilled against a team of offensive reserves concentrating on goal line defense and pass defense, with the Pacific 8 Skywriters looking on.

The first two offensive teams worked against a reserve defensive team and broke fullback Mike Hull away on one long run.

It's More Than Scrimmage For Coast Gridders Saturday

By BILL DONER Sports Editor

Orange Coast College won't officially open the 1965 football season for another week, but you couldn't prove it by looking at the pepped-up Buccaneers who have vowed to the man to whip Glendale and Oceanside in a scrimmage Saturday.

"We're approaching it just like a game," OCC coach Dick Tucker admits about the triangular scrim which is set to get under way at 11 a.m. in OCC's Pirate Stadium.

The Glendale portion of the controlled scrimmage should have a tremendous effect — mentally at least — on the OCC troops since everyone is well aware that Glendale topped what figures to be Coast's chief rival, Fullerton, in a similar session earlier in the week.

Two years back, the Vaqueros gained the upper hand over OCC's national championship bunch in a scrimmage and Glendale coach Don Bennett feels he has an even better team this season.

Certainly the folks up Fullerton way got a big shock when Bennett's horses outplayed the rose-sniffing Hornets, 7 touchdowns to 5, on Tuesday.

"If we do a good job against Glendale," Tucker said, "our players are bound to lose a little of their apprehension about Fullerton."

In bombing San Diego Mesa 4 touchdowns to 1 Tuesday, OCC unveiled a potent overhead attack paced by the spectacular slingshot from Westminster, Shawn McKinney.

Against Glendale, however, McKinney may be meeting his match in Dean McAdams, who hurled for three scores against Fullerton and ran for yet another.

Saturday Scrums Plotted for Preps

Mater Dei

A highly pleased Dick Coury is looking ahead to Saturday night's annual Chicken & Beans intersquad game at Chapman College as his Mater Dei Monarchs whip into shape for their biggest clash of the young football campaign. Game time is 6:30.

Coury is especially satisfied with his backfield performers, complimenting quarterback Pete Sanchez, and fullbacks Joe Obemima and Ralph Godfrey.

Obemima was shifted from a tight end spot to fullback to bolster the Monarch backfield and the move has apparently proven to be a perfect one.

Kevin Williams has moved up a notch at quarterback, taking over the third string berth from Jack Wigmore.

In the line, the spot Coury has been most concerned about, the Monarchs are also turning in pleasing efforts. Tackle Dennis Malek drew praise from the Mater Dei mentor for his work.

Co-captains for the Chicken & Beans game were selected. They'll be Ron Brown and Sanchez. One team will be quarterbacked by Sanchez and Wigmore while Williams and Huarte will QB the other squad.

The winning side eats chicken while the losers will be fed beans. Last year's duel ended in an 18-18 draw.

fer Mike McClaskey played Bee ball at Rancho Alamitos and reportedly runs the 100 in 10 seconds flat. He'll work at halfback.

Westminster

The Lions will have their first intersquad scrimmage Saturday afternoon at 4 p.m. head coach Bill Boswell indicated today.

Boswell singled out halfback Tommy Watson for praise following Thursday's workouts. Watson, who is tabbed as the number two halfback behind letterman Dan Loomer, was impressive carrying the ball.

The defensive platoon is rapidly becoming set, with several players already having nailed down spots. Included in this group are end Bob Stirling, tackles Gary Boydston and Wayne Hall, linebackers Don Jones and Doug Gephart, plus halfback Rikki Aldridge.

Marina

The Vikings plan their first serious scrimmage Saturday morning (offense) and afternoon (defense) with sessions beginning at 9 and 3.

Coach Virgil Savage is more than a little pleased with the progress shown by his young team since contact work opened Tuesday. And he credits a lion's share of the advancement to his assistants, Dick Lindner and Jim Coon.

Savage has had a couple of impressive transfers show well so far. Dick Hanlin, a tackle in from Las Cruces, N.M., and guard Mike Flanagan are both doing a bang-up job.

Savage lauded backfield ace John Anderson, Doug Evans and Sam Buzbee.

Corona del Mar

Coach Howard "Corky" Johnson is concentrating on development of a second unit, in hopes of adding depth to his talented first squad. And, he's trying to pick up on a few of the team weaknesses.

Johnson will run CdM through an hour's scrimmage Saturday morning at 9. He gave extensive coverage to passing Thursday with quarterbacks Tim Kinney and Dennis Hartley both looking good.

Additional praise was passed out to halfback Mike Ray, tackle Eben Sprague and fullback Tom Westgate.

"We weren't as sharp as we've been other days," Johnson stated when quizzed about Thursday's drills. "But they still did a good job."

Huntington Beach

Defense stole the show in the Oilers' first scrimmage of the season, Thursday evening. Coach Ken Moats was extremely pleased with the defensive wares shown by his

Downey Too Tough For Richards, 7-2

ANAHEIM — Scott Reed, who led the Dodger backstop in three runs with a home run and a double to power Downey to a 7-2 win over Richards Market of Newport Beach Thursday night in the second annual Southern California Collegiate Baseball Classic at La Palma Stadium.

The loss was the second suffered by the Richards nine in the double elimination tournament, thus dropping them from contention.

Downey jumped on top with three runs before the Dodger even came to bat and never trailed thereafter. Tom Bradshaw led off with a single and scored on Justin Dedeaux's long triple to right centerfield. Dedeaux, who is the son of USC baseball coach Rod Dedeaux, then dented home plate in front of Reed after the latter had drilled a 370-foot shot into the seats in right center.

The Dodgers came back with a pair of runs in the bottom of the first to get back in the ball game. Walks to Bob Eadie and Jim Vickers, sandwich around a single by Bob Beckner, loaded the bases for Bob Thompson with one out.

The husky Dodger backstop responded by bouncing a single over the Downey third baseman's head to score Eadie and Beckner, but that was the end of the scoring for the Dodgers.

Downey went on to score the win, tallying once in the third, once in the fifth and twice more in the sixth.

Newkirk's One-hitter Shuts Out Orange, 3-0

ANAHEIM — Jim Newkirk, on a wild pitch and scored on a single by Hockenberry. They padded their lead to 3-0 in the fourth on a single by Terry Thompson and a double by Harold Caldwell and Steve Johnson.

The three-run lead was more than enough for Newkirk as the Orange nine was unable to get a runner past second base.

The Pirates are now slated to face a potent La Mesa team in the semifinals Saturday night. Game time for the tilt is 9 p.m.

Most observers felt the one hit Newkirk gave up should have been called an error. Bud Cunningham hit a bouncer to short which Dick Newhart backed up on and in hurrying his throw, pulled first baseman Jon Hockenberry off the bag. The official scorer ruled it a base hit, however, and Newkirk's no-hitter went down the drain.

Newkirk has been virtually invincible in the tournament. The nifty right-hander has now pitched 14 innings, giving up one unearned run on 10 hits and one walk while striking out 21.

The Pirates got Newkirk off to a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the first frame, as Barry Wallace walked moved to second

Time Finds Yachting

By ALMON LOCKABEY

Time Magazine has discovered yachting.

Under the heading, "Plug-In Boats," in the Modern Living section, the weekly news magazine published the following article in the Sept. 3 issue. The report was based on interviews with some of the nation's outstanding manufacturers of powerboats in eastern and southeastern United States. How many of these yachting types do you recognize here in Southern California?

"Yachtsmen once prided themselves on being a hardy lot who asked only for a 'tall ship and a star to steer her by.'"

"Even those who like their ships squat and motorized took a certain pleasure in the austerities of self-sufficiency. The most popular models were made with no frills, on the reasoning that the buyer's impulse was to get away from it all, with a minimum of expense."

NO OBJECT

"But in the past five years, more and more people have wanted more and more money, and price no longer seem an object. Furthermore, the little woman has become a back-seat helmsman, and she demands all the comforts of home."

"Result is that the average new yacht is neither austere nor able to get very far away from it all. Chris Craft, the General Motors of the power boat industry, now finds that 70 per cent of its customers want 28-foot yachts, and more also want and are willing to pay for a whole galaxy of luxury accessories. Among them: refrigerator-freezer, $1,250; four-burner stove with oven and broiler, $365; deluxe hot water systems with mixer faucets and spray hose, $1,210; electrically pumped shower, $450; automatic pilot, $1,195."

"Virtually every boat manufacturer has had the same experience. C. P. Leek & Sons, a New Jersey company that built clipper ships 40 years before Ben Franklin flew his first kite, began making luxury items standard equipment on their Pacemaker yacht five years ago, has seen sales soar from $1 million to $14 million. Its longest model, a 53-foot luxury yacht, offers all the amenities found in Chris Craft, plus built-in television, bathtub, washer-dryer combination and ironing board, symbols of domesticity that would wrinkle the brow of any old salt.

DISHWASHER

"The 50-foot, $100,000 Hatteras usually comes off the ways weighed down with stereo-tape and record players, a boat-wide complex of stereo speakers, built-in bar with electric ice cube maker, dishwasher, disposal, wall-to-wall carpeting and air conditioning."

"Thus there is a new breed of sailor that doesn't sail—at least not much or very far. Says Dave Parker, executive vice president of the Hatteras Yacht Co.: 'People who buy these yachts aren't sailors—they're landlubbers. They like to get there fast and drink long.'"

"And to enjoy Beethoven in stereo and bourbon on the rocks, the owner of a modern yacht must hook up to a marina's power line (and he often wants a telephone line) almost as soon as he shuts off his engine. His appliances draw too much juice to allow for quiet nights lying at anchor in secluded coves."

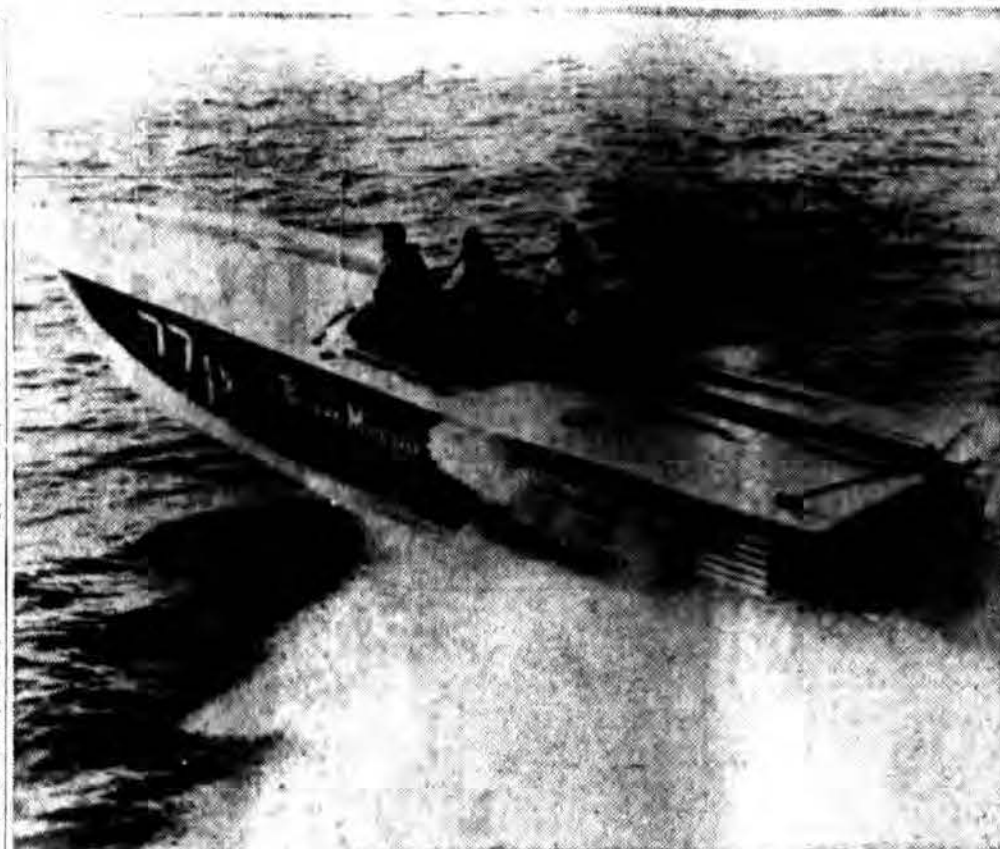

"If the new yachtsman wants to go for a cruise, he must plot his cruise from one electric outlet to another, lest his TV dinners defrost, his ice cubes melt, and his electrical toilet break down."

PLUGGED IN

"The latter day salt does not seem to mind. In fact, rather than lose their charge or their communications, many may never even leave the dock, preferring to remain permanently plugged in. Many just like to go down to their boats on a hot summer night, and sit on the stern deck for a quiet, cool drink and a chat with friends."

"Yacht clubs, which usually let visiting yachtsmen plug in free of charge, are not much happier. Said Ted Tolson, vice commodore of the St. Petersburg Yacht Club: 'They hook up on our docks and blow all the fuses in the circuit. Then they holler like hell because the power's off.'"

"When the fuses do blow, at least a few old salts must think back fondly on the days when stars, not sockets, were what sailors swore by."

OFFSHORE POWER HOUSE — Brave Moppie, one of Dick Bertram's famed "Moppie" series of offshore power boat racers, will be seen in action off Newport Sept. 25 in the first Southern California Offshore Power Boat Race. Bertram himself will be a driver in the race.

Sept. 25

Excitement Building For Power Boat Race

Excitement is building in South Coast yachting communities from Newport Beach to Long Beach over the offshore power boat speed race Sept. 25.

At a press conference at Long Beach Yacht Club Thursday, Sandy Kemp, president of the newly organized Offshore Power Boat Racing Association of Southern California, outlined plans for the race which is attracting some of the world's most daring rough-water race drivers. Kemp is a yacht broker associated with Balboa Marina.

The 180-mile course, over some of the roughest water in the world, will take the racers along the coast line from the Long Beach start to Newport before heading across the choppy channel to encircle both San Clemente and Santa Catalina Islands.

The exact course is as follows: Start inside the Long Beach breakwater near the entrance to Alamitos Bay, westerly along the beach to Cherry Ave., southerly across Long Beach Harbor through the Long Beach entrance, southeasterly along the coast to the No. 2 buoy 1½ miles off the Newport Pier, southwesterly across the Catalina channel past the east end of Catalina to the west end of San Clemente Island, southerly down the back side of San Clemente and around Pyramid Point, northwesterly along the back side of Catalina and around the west end and back to the finish point off Seal Beach.

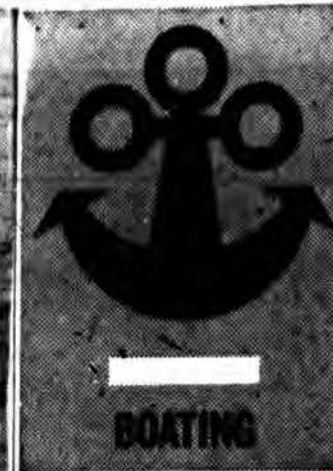

A firm entry in the race is Dick Bertram of Florida, internationally known sailing and powerboat racing skipper.

'Wrong-way' Race Tonight

Nearly 50 ocean racing sailing yachts will answer the starting signal at 7 p.m. today for Balboa Yacht Club's annual "wrong-way" Catalina Island Race.

The race usually draws a number of individual entries in addition to the fleet entered in the Newport Harbor Yacht Club sponsored Ahmarson Series. The BYC event is the windup of the Ahmarson Series, consisting of six offshore races during the season.

Barring a major upset in the final race, Robert M. Allan's Holiday Too will be the winner of the Ahmarson Series. The winner is based on the best five of the six races and Holiday Too would have to finish further back than 13th to lose the top spot.

Women 'Man' Boats Saturday

Women skippers will hold the yachting spotlight in Newport Harbor Saturday when they "man" Lido 14s for the 17th annual sailing of the Jane Schock Memorial Trophy series.

The three-race series will be conducted by Voyagers Yacht Club from a starting line in the turning basin at the east end of Lido Isle. All courses will be inside. The first race will start at noon.

Under the specifications of the deed of gift, all boats must have women skippers as well as crews. The race is open to any woman sailor whose husband, parents or guardians are members of yacht clubs affiliated with the Southern California Yachting Association.

The series dates back to 1948 when Mrs. Edson (Jane) Schock, wife of a noted naval architect, dedicated a handsome silver tray as a perpetual trophy for women skippers. Mr. and Mrs. Schock were honorary members of Voyagers Yacht Club.

After Mrs. Schock's death in 1949 the series became known as the Jane Schock Memorial. Last year's winner was Pamela Wimpers of Balboa Yacht Club. Other past winners have been Nancy Corbett, Ruth Haskell and Lillian Lumpkin.

Also on the VYC calendar this weekend is the Allen Campbell Trophy Race for Ladders-16s. This is a single race that will start at the same location as the women's race. Rod Lippold of Newport Harbor Yacht Club is the defender.

SCRUBS . . .

In line for honors from the forward wall were Richard Spicher, Mike Bailey, Ray Hunt, Rick Wright, Butch Rollins, Steve Benson, Tim Kipper and Bob Lindberg.

Defensive backs who stood out were Woody Stewart, Mitch Gillis, Ray Byworth, Len Calvillo, Dave Leader and Mike Herod.

A two-hour practice is billed Saturday from 7-9 a.m., and a 30-minute scrum will conclude hostilities.

Costa Mesa

The Mustangs of coach Neil Peek got in a scrimmage Thursday with quarterback Scott Gatzke doing a good job of throwing. Receivers Howard Nathanson and Gary Edminston were singled out for excellent reception efforts.

Passing out of the cup and pass protection was stressed with the Mesans doing a good job in both departments.

A pair of scrimmages are tentatively scheduled Saturday with one planned for 9:30 a.m. and the other for 2 p.m., with separate units working on each occasion.

Vince Dunne Wins Rhodes

Vince La Danne of San Francisco Yacht Club won the Rhodes-19 national championship Sunday in a tight battle with Chuck Eddy of the host Balboa Yacht Club. La Danne was tied with Eddy at the conclusion of the final race, but the San Franciscan was awarded the title by virtue of beating Eddy in two of the three races.

Promoting the U.N., But Successfully?

By RICK DU BROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Since television's five fiction specials about the United Nations — the third of which was shown last night on ABC — are frankly intended to promote the organization, perhaps the most important questions about them are: How successfully are they doing their assigned jobs? And are they approaching it with the proper techniques to achieve maximum effect?

For the moment, I am not at all considering the programs from a creative, artistic aspect, but simply as what they are mainly intended to be — a tremendous and undisguised public relations effort. This is not a matter of opinion, but of fact, since the producer of the specials is Telsun Foundation Inc. — with Telsun standing for "Television Series for the United Nations." My above-stated grounds for judgment are entirely fair since, as soon as one employs public relations in business he can no longer claim listing as a purist; for as soon as he employs public relations professionally he is saying he wants to get his money's worth — every penny.

GOT SCARED — From this point of view — and disregarding the theatrical achievements, such as they are — I don't think Telsun is getting its money's worth in terms of maximum effect in promoting the United Nations. The reason is that, after the first special "Carol for Another Christmas," Telsun apparently got scared and upset by critics whom it considered friendly to the United Nations, but who were shocked by the straight black-and-white polemical approach of the show at the expense of more artistic subtleties. Here Telsun made its fatal promotional error. It backed off its selling job. Like many intellectuals, it tried to have purity and public relations too. You can't do that.

The second special, "Who Has Seen the Wind?" was about people without a country, and the United Nations was mentioned; but no salesman — of shoes or ideas — could consider it a successful promotion. And last night's program, "Once Upon a Tractor," a wacky, sometimes amusing odyssey of a farmer who is mistaken for a spy when he crosses the ocean to get to the U.N. in New York to get him a tractor, was not likely to convince too many people the world organization is a great institution.

RIGHT IDEA — "Carol for Another Christmas" had the right idea as a cool, plain promotional venture. It realized fully that critics and producers have totally separate functions, the producer's being to accomplish exactly what he sets out to do, and that neither of these professions should pay any attention whatsoever to the other in evaluating their tasks. It realized that the show's goal was not to worry about those people who agreed with the U.N. already — but, as a practical business venture, to concentrate on the mass audience in clear, very clear, mass-oriented terms. The play "The Deputy" is a crude piece of theatre, but it got its point across, is talked about and packs in audiences. "Carol for Another Christmas" was loved and hated — but it was talked about.

It was, in fact and without doubt, the most controversial and discussed dramatic show of last season. "Once Upon a Tractor" was much more soothing, full of sly dialogue about politics, morality, involvement, international foibles and the like — but I think it hit the wrong audience, the one that is already convinced one way or the other. If I were running Telsun — and aimed at my money's worth, regardless of my personal belief — I would totally ignore the friendly critics (they will stay loyal anyway) and stick to polemics and blockbuster casts. I would try to get people so enthused or so angry that they wouldn't miss the next show for anything.

A Condor?

Group Checks Rare Birds

Five members of the Santa Ana and Sage Audubon Society, including Mrs. Edna Chamness of Costa Mesa, took part in an all-day observation and count of the rare California Condor in Los Padres National Forest recently.

The trip into the upper reaches of Sespe Creek was arranged by the Los Angeles Audubon Society and 40 persons were stationed at lookouts to make the count.

The condors — it is estimated that only 40 remain in North America — have a wingspread of 8½ to 10½ feet. The day was excellent for observation, and since deer hunting season had begun, the birds were cruising on the alert to feed.

Each bird observed was plotted on a chart, with time and flight direction noted, and thus duplications were avoided.

A condor observed from Mt. Abel at 11:20, flying east, Mrs. Chamness explained, thus probably is the same one reported 10 minutes later from Mt. Pinos.

Dr. Alden Miller and Evan McMillan, after three years of research, have determined that the remaining condors can be preserved if given adequate protection.

First, efforts must be made to prevent their being shot out of ignorance or contempt for law. The second is complete sanctuary — the absence of human disturbance.

Parents will desert the nest for a prolonged period of time if persons are detected in the vicinity.

The Audubon Society thus is urging that the United Water Conservation District seek another site for its proposed Topa Topa Reservoir, in the area where the birds still are found.

Trash Firm Rate Hike Rejected

SANTA ANA — County supervisors Tuesday turned thumbs down on a rate increase sought by a Seal Beach trash collection firm.

A proposal by Seal Beach Disposal Co. to up collection rates from $1.25 to $1.50 monthly was rejected.

Edward H. Schlein, company owner, had cited higher labor, gas and repair costs as necessitating the increase.

A. S. Koch, county road director, who also is in charge of refuse dumps, told supervisors Schlein was making 17.7 per cent profit in Rossmoor, with a $3,300 monthly operation, and 32.7 per cent profit on a $2,800 operation in Seal Beach.

"The $1.25 per month, per unit, rate should be adequate to return a reasonable margin of profit," Koch said.

County OKs Annexation

SANTA ANA — The Orange County Boundary Commission Tuesday approved a proposed 380-acre annexation to the city of Orange.

The proposal would add to Orange a snake-like belt between the east boundaries of the city of Villa Park and the Orange city line. The annexation runs north from Chapman Avenue, along Santiago Creek, to Santiago Boulevard.

The Local Agency Formation Commission will consider the annexation next month.

On January 12th of this year Walker & Lee, Inc. SOLD their 60,000th home.

This is indeed an unmatched and most impressive figure. However, statistics alone do not tell the full story. Walker & Lee's achievements are far more personal. In regarding people as individuals first, and then possibly as clients they foster in the staff an awareness that the purchase of a home is always the most important transaction in a person's life. Walker & Lee always tries to translate this awareness into dedicated, personalized service to each and every client. Furthermore Walker & Lee Inc., one of the largest real estate companies in the nation, continues to grow with their community, as shown locally by the expansion of three local Orange Coast Offices. A combined sales staff of 40 representatives are always ready to assist each prospective buyer or seller in the community. This is the why and how of Walker & Lee's claim to success.

A Pledge . . . And A Promise

"We will remember that we have grown and flourished on the principal that no business force in the world can begin to calculate a profit without the consent of the people."

All our hopes for the future will hinge on bringing our know-how and person-to-person service to YOU.

The Week Our Fleet Came Home

"... In Newport, Mackerel Was King"

Most folks around the Newport Harbor area are breathing sighs of relief today because we have marked the end of our summer season with all its hustle, bustle and confusion.

Twenty-five years ago in Newport Harbor, we had something else to celebrate on this week after Labor Day. I wonder how many old-timers are still around to remember?

This was the week when the fishing fleet came in.

Through the morning mists outside Newport Harbor jetty, the scoop boats began to appear. They chugged into our bay, holds brim full with catches of mackerel or sardines.

Unless you were there then, you have no idea what this homecoming meant.

Arrival of the fishing fleet touched off a flurry of activity. Newport's three canneries would swing into high gear production.

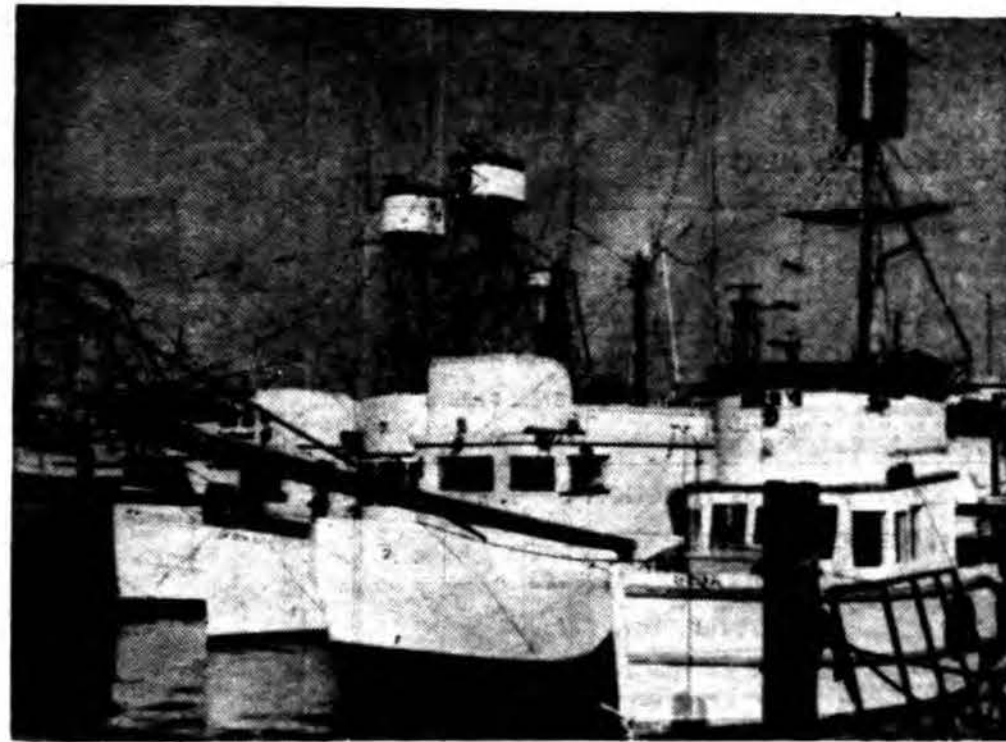

It meant the town's biggest payroll would begin and continue until the weather set in around Christmas-time.

One old-timer who remembers those days is Walter M. Longmoor, operator of Western Cannery Company. He recalls that 25 years ago, each of the three canneries employed about 100 workers. The fishing fleet included perhaps 100 scoop boats. Payrolls from canning alone was more than $6,000 each week and perhaps $100,000 for the season. It was a lot of money in circulation for those days.

I can recall operating as many as 37 scoop boats in my own fleet. Some days we would dock with 180 tons of mackerel.

Over the years, however, the great schools of fish have gradually declined. Even in the 1930s, many of us urged passage of laws that would ban netting and establish restricted fishing seasons. For the most part, our efforts failed.

Fishing and conservation authorities just didn't seem to understand that the fish were vanishing.

Today, I wonder who was right?

The great schools of fish from yesteryear are gone. The substantial cannery operations of Newport and Monterey have shut down. Monterey is a ghost of what it was.

Both commercial and sport fishermen have lost because of unrestricted fishing.

I'm sure we don't want to return to the "Good Old Days" when fishing was the life's blood of Newport Harbor economy. Today, our Harbor Area has found many other avenues for growth and prosperity.

Yet those of us who are Old-Timers can't help smiling when we remember the excitement of this week after Labor Day many years ago, when the cry went out: "The Fleet's In!"

Some traditions from yesteryear never change. Like the friendliness, courtesy and help we give both old and new customers down at our store. We think of our place as an institution. We've been serving Harbor Area folks since 1928.

Why not drop around? Shop with us in the tradition of "The Good Old Days."

Best Regards,

AI

By MIKE CONNOLLY
Chronicle Features

Dear Mike: Who does Les Crane blow those kisses at at the beginning of his "Night Life" TV shows? — Carrie Ballin, Vienna, Va.

Dear Carrie: Tina Louise, because they're separated by a continent, but they'll soon be together on this Coast when he starts doing his show practically side-by-side with her "Gilligan's Island" series.

Dear Sir: Didn't Irene Ryan of the "Hillbillies" used to be a vaudeville star? Is she married? — Jane Stovall, Chicago, Ill.

Dear Jane: She was not only in vaudeville, she starred in a radio show called "Tim and Irene." She divorced Harold Knox in 1961 and received permission in Los Angeles Superior Court last week to jettison her married surname. Her real name is Irene Noble.

Dear Mike: Whenever we see Oscar Levant on TV he always acts like he's drunk. Is he — or is he mentally ill? He slumps 'way down in his seat with that cigarette dangling from his mouth, looking like he's asleep, stuttering when he talks, and wobbling from side to side when he walks — what's wrong with him? — Mrs. J. D., Newport News, Va.

Dear Mrs. D.: His new book, "Memoirs of an Amnesiac," explains it all. Oscar has had a very rough time, over the past ten years, withdrawing from drugs. The book pulls no punches.

Dear Mike: How dare one of your readers call "The Sandpiper" slimy? I thought it quite fascinating. The acting was very good, the story moved right along and it was thoroughly enjoyable throughout. — Mrs. Elwood Tobey, Kennedy, N.Y.

Dear Mrs. Tobey: You go to your church, Liz and Dick (among others) will go to theirs. They claim they haven't even seen it — and that they just did it to "make a fast buck."

Dear M. C.: What's happened to Herb Jeffries? Is it true he has given up singing — and that he and his wife, Tempest Storm, have broken up? — Fred Jacobsen, La Jolla, Calif.

Dear Fred: Herb's busier than I've ever seen him. He's singing every night at the Hollywood Playboy Club and acting every day in his first movie, a Western called "Twenty Notches to Tombstone." Wanda Hendrix and Bob Dix are the romantic leads, Herb plays the heavy, and Tempest plays Herb's team-mate, a dancehall doll named Kansas Kelly. Tempest and Herb, believe me, are very happily married, despite the irresponsible columnist who said they weren't.

Dear Mike: Albert Finney was so fabulous in "Tom Jones," why haven't we heard anything about him since? — Emily Myrtille, Chappaqua, N.Y.

Dear Emily: Albert is just like one of those free-and-easy characters he plays in pictures. He took off on a round-the-world tour, just to get away from it all for a year. He's back now and his next picture will be 20th-Fox's "Two for the Road," co-starred with Audrey Hepburn. But first he has to shed the 60 pounds he gained during that trip!

Meet The People...

HIS NEW CHURCH A MODEL

Sunday was a proud day for the Rev. Thomas J. Nevin, one of Costa Mesa's senior clergymen. It was the day he and his growing congregation moved into their new St. Joachim's Church on Orange Avenue.

Father Nevin, who has spent more than half of his 61 years in Orange County, was the first resident priest in Costa Mesa, coming to the community in 1947 to establish a Catholic parish. In 18 years the city's Roman Catholic population rose from 200 persons to an estimated 4,000 families today.

A personable man with thinning white hair, Father Nevin's Irish brogue discloses the place of his birth. After being ordained, he came to the United States in 1930 and within two years after his arrival found himself in Santa Ana parish as an assistant pastor.

Prior to his transfer to Costa Mesa, he served as chaplain at St. Joseph's Hospital in Orange. His present assignment was the first pastoral in his career.

"When I first came here, I was a priest without a church," Father Nevin recalls. "I said my first mass in the Bell Broadway Mortuary Chapel."

Soon, however, the small congregation moved into the building at 1964 Orange Ave., which formerly housed the chapel for the Santa Ana Army Air Base. But until the rectory next to it became available in 1949, Father Nevin was forced to spend most of his $150 monthly salary for rented quarters.

As the city's population grew, along with St. Joachim's congregation, he doubled the size of the church in 1956. Three years later, when Costa Mesa was in the middle of its northward expansion, he built St. John the Baptist church on Baker Street to serve Catholicism on the city's north side.

Now the latest milestone in his career is finished, a modern church building with seating for 800 parishioners. To serve them all, Father Nevin says six masses each Sunday, the last one in the afternoon.

Soon, probably after the first of the year, the new St. Joachim's edifice will be dedicated, with James Francis Cardinal McIntyre, archbishop of the Los Angeles Diocese, officiating.

"Our church is the first in the diocese built with the altar facing the congregation," Father Nevin says proudly. "It is being used as a model for other churches."

GARDEN NOTES

Start Planting Bulbs

Iris is most attractive in masses.

Bulb planting season is here again. Bulbs are an easy source of growing color because the bulb has stored up food, ready to get the plant off to a fast start in the spring.

September and October are the most popular months for bulb planting; however, some bulbs, like tulips and lilies, should be planted later in the year.

The general planting rules for bulbs are simple. Bulbs like a rich, porous soil that drains well, so that the bulbs don't sit in water that may rot them. It is helpful to add planting mix in the soil, but don't use any fertilizer other than bonemeal.

The depth of planting varies from bulb to bulb but, as a general rule, plant a bulb three times as deep as it is tall. In heavy soils this must be modified somewhat.

Following is a list of the commoner bulbs available to be planted now, and a few tips on their culture.

Daffodils are wonderful plant-them-and-forget-them subjects. Once put into the ground, they will stay there, undisturbed, until they become so crowded that they must be taken up and separated. The commonest variety is King Alfred, which is a large golden trumpet type. There are other types and colors, including pure whites and near pinks.

Tulips are another well-known and popular bulb, but in our mild climate they are strictly a one-shot deal. Buy the bulbs now, store them in the refrigerator for six weeks before planting. Our climate is not conducive to their growth, and they won't form bulbs strong enough to bloom again.

Hyacinths will do a little better here than tulips. They will sometimes return year after year — and sometimes the bulbs are good for only a single year. The commonest complaint seems to be the short bloom stalks they often have. This can be corrected by inverting a pot, paper cone, or something else to keep the bloom spike in darkness as it emerges from the center of the bulb. This will cause the bloom spike to elongate. Be sure to remove the covering before the stalk gets too tall. When the bloom spike is nearly the height of the leaves would be the proper time to expose it to light.

Dutch iris is another type of bulb that you can plant-and-forget. These come in shades of purple, white, yellow, orange, and bronze, with several combinations of two shades. These, like most bulbs, are especially attractive when planted in groups of the same color.

Freelias can run you right out of a garden, they are so easily grown. They multiply rapidly, and even self-sow from seed readily. However, it would be hard to get too many of them. Their sweet scented flowers have long since ceased coming in only white. They are now available in blue, pink, red, yellow, orange and bronze.

CATALINA ISLAND ART FESTIVAL

This street scene shows part of the outdoor exhibit which makes up the Art Festival at Catalina Island. This year's Festival is expected to be the largest in attendance and exhibits, both.

Catalina Artists Jean Crow, left, and Henry Vander Velde, have been enjoying one of the paintings which will be entered by Harbor Area artist Paul Blaine Henrie, shown in the center, below.

Warner Baird, Laguna artist, at right, has accepted an invitation to exhibit some of his work in the Invitational Show which is limited to artists selected as outstanding in their field. Baird is shown with paintings he has shown at the Laguna Festival of Arts.

Catalina Island will be the capital of the Pacific Coast art world September 18-19 when thousands of artists and art connoisseurs converge on Avalon for the Seventh Annual Catalina Island Art Festival.

The event annually attracts capacity crowds from the mainland to view paintings by outstanding California and American artists competing for $1,150 in prizes and the national prestige that goes to a winning entry.

Climax of the two-day festival is the annual Artists and Models Ball in the famed Avalon Casino September 19. This colorful costume affair is designed around Catalina Island's famous glass-bottomed boats this year — gracious tribute to entertainment stars Doris Day, Arthur Godfrey and Rod Taylor, who are currently filming "The Glass-bottom Boat" for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer at Avalon.

Miss Day, Godfrey and Taylor have been invited to the Ball and Art Festival.

The Art Festival weekend brings hundreds of private yachts and cruisers to Avalon Bay, from Laguna, San Diego, Newport Beach and Los Angeles. Scores of private planes also fly in for the festival.

Visitors planning to attend the Catalina Island Art Festival this year are advised by Virginia H. Renton, festival director, to book transportation reservations early.

The S.S. Catalina and the Magic Isle will maintain regular daily sailings during the Festival, and in addition, special off-shore motor cruisers also leave from Wilmington Terminal.

A special feature of the Festival this year will be the Invitational Show, limited to artists selected by the festival director as especially outstanding in their field.

Among the artists who have accepted invitations to show their recent work are Roger Upton, Richard Oldden, Henry Vander Velde and Marjorie Vander Velde of the Catalina Island art colony; Warner Baird and Bennett Bradbury of the Laguna group, and Gano Waano, Emil Kosa, Jr., Paul Lauritz and Arthur Beaumont of Los Angeles.

Festival transportation information is available at Wilmington Terminal, phone: (area code 213) SPruce 5-3341, where the Big White Steamer, the S.S. Catalina, and her sister ship, Magic Isle, are berthed.

DESIGNER'S NOTEBOOK

By JACQUELINE CAGLE, Orange County Designer-Decorator

QUESTION: What type of floor tile would be best for a family room that has an open beam wood ceiling and both end walls wood paneled? One end wall will only be half paneled with wood cabinets and book-shelves; the other half, a used brick fireplace, floor to ceiling. Do you think a parquet tile floor would be too much wood and if so what would you suggest?

—R.M., Costa Mesa

ANSWER: Peg and random plank floor should be quite attractive. The color tone of the floor should be the same color as the wood paneling or darker. Use an area rug of color to interrupt the expanse of the floor.

QUESTION: We are looking for a transitional Spanish-designed dining room fixture. We've blended Spanish and Italian provincial furniture in our living and dining rooms. Wrought iron is out of the question. What would you suggest?

T. R., Newport Beach

ANSWER: See sketch above. This fixture should be perfect. The center stem is solid wood, the arms are metal that have been gold leafed. Metal is a complement to both styles.

QUESTION: Is it practical to wallpaper a kitchen ceiling?

G. H., Huntington Beach

ANSWER: Yes, it is practical to wallpaper a kitchen ceiling, providing you use a vinyl protective coating or a vicretex paper. Either of these treatments is washable.

LAGUNA PLAYHOUSE HAS 'ANGELS'

Doug Wood as one of the three convicts unnerves his "real life" wife, Karen, by flipping an expensive piece of china as a coin.

Comedy Opens Season

Crime may not pay, but it promises laughter aplenty when "My Three Angels" bows in as the opening play of the 1965-66 season at the Laguna Playhouse, September 22.

The comedy centers around a trio of convicts on a Caribbean island who go about righting a series of wrong situations in their own particular fashion.

Cast in the three title roles are Phil Interlandi, Max Sterling and Doug Wood. Interlandi is best known for his cartoons in Playboy magazine while Wood was recently seen as Mortimer, the dying Injun in Laguna's "The Fantasticks."

Doug's wife, Karen, is featured in a supporting cast that includes Gil Silvius and Mary Sherwood as the storekeeper and his wife, Bill Bunting as the wicked uncle and Larry Gottlieb as the no good fiance. Also seen will be Bruce Davis as a lieutenant and Pat Neederman as "Madame Parole."

The Production, directed by Playhouse managing director Doug Rowe, will run three weekends, closing October 9. Tickets are $2 for Wednesdays and Thursdays and $2.25 for opening night, Fridays and Saturdays.

Reservations may be made by telephoning the box office at 494-8061. The playhouse is located at 319 Ocean Ave., Laguna Beach.

The three "angels" look for new devilment in this scene from rehearsal at the Laguna Playhouse. Reading from top to bottom are Max Sterling, Phil Interlandi and Doug Wood.

Some of the characters who populate the Laguna stage in the Playhouse's opening comedy are, from left, Pat Neederman, Larry Gottlieb, Bill Bunting, Karen Wood and Gil Silvius.

By TOM TITUS

Say you'd just started up your own little theater group and at the end of your first eight weeks you were $12,800 in the hole. You might be a little hesitant about looking ahead to the fall season.

Not Reid Lowden, who recently announced an expanded fall and winter season for his Orange County Theater in Tustin. His is an optimism prevalent only in the more dedicated of the theater set.

"We expected to lose money," he confided as he discussed the venture in his comfortable Balboa Island home. "We didn't expect it to be that bad, though."

Lowden's 190-seat, semi-round theater never did see a full house, and only three of the seven productions at the former Tustin Playhouse grossed more than $1,000. His budget was based on $1,800 a week.

During this period, the Orange County players came up with a number of fine productions and one, "A Streetcar Named Desire," could be conservatively termed outstanding. In this show Lowden and his co-producer, Cheryl Maxwell, took the stage in the roles of Mitch and Blanche, respectively.

For the new season, which opens October 19, Lowden is pressing for the sale of at least 750 season subscriptions, which would guarantee $15,000 and insure the theater's reopening.

Lowden, whose theater is the only Equity house besides Melodyland in Orange County, is confident that there is enough professionally qualified talent in the county to make his venture worthwhile.

"There are stock companies all over the East, but not nearly enough on the West Coast," he maintains. "Orange is one of the fastest growing counties in the United States and it should have professional theater."

Ultimately he hopes for subsidies such as those which have built successful theaters in Houston and Minneapolis. "It's the only way for theater to live," he declares.

Until such an eventuality, the 32-year-old bachelor and a dedicated group of volunteer workers are combing the county with subscription blanks. "It was the volunteers who made me change my mind about quitting," he reflects. "But we're going to need a lot of help."

Anaheim must be pretty proud of itself these days with two of Broadway's all-time smash musicals within its bounds. For those who haven't seen Melodyland's "West Side Story," it closes Sunday; the other top drawer production, "Stop the World—I Want to Get Off," runs for two more weeks at the Anaheim Playhouse.

Speaking of "West Side Story," we hope no one said "break a leg" to Taldo Kenyon on opening night. Kenyon, who plays Chino, broke his ankle in the opening scene, but completed the show. He was scheduled to be back on stage, cast and all, this week.

STOPPING THE WORLD

Thor Nielsen stars in "Stop the World—I Want to Get Off" with Karen Stein, left, as his daughter and Patti Allen of Costa Mesa, a member of the chorus, at the Anaheim Playhouse through September 25.

West Side's Romeo, Juliet

Starring in "West Side Story" at Melodyland Theatre, are Pat Boone and Marlys Watters, at left, the love interest in the musical. "West Side Story" closes on September 12, the final production in the Summer Musical Series. Opening on September 14, the first of the fall season Broadway musicals, is "Li'l Abner."

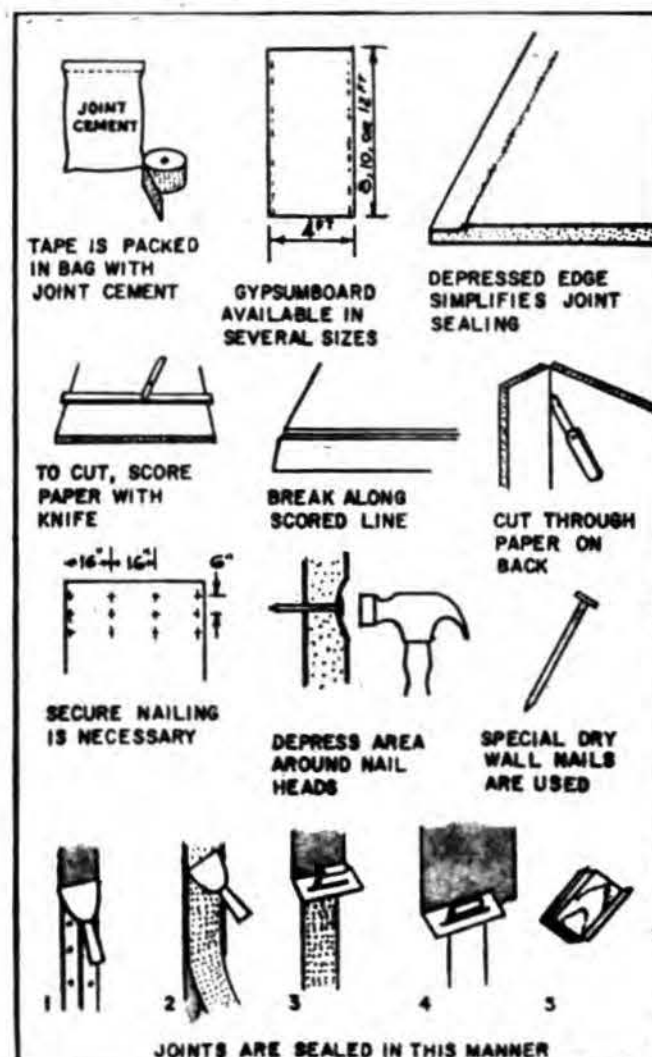

Animals Cannibal And Head- Hunters

The Animals, one of England's top-ranking mop-haired musical groups, at left, will appear at Melodyland for a one-night only stand on September 20. Also starring on the show will be Leslie Gore, backed up by the Four Castaways — The Challengers and Cannibal and the Headhunters.

The House Doctor

Short Course On Gypsumboard

Dear House Doctor: We have purchased a shell house on a lake and intend to use it for a summer cottage. We will complete the interior during our spare time. Will you please publish some instructions on how to handle gypsumboard for walls and ceilings.

S.T.W.

ANSWER — Gypsumboard is available in three thicknesses: 1/4", 5/8", and 1/2". For your purpose, use either of the last two thicknesses. Sheets are four feet wide and 8, 10 or 12 feet long. If the room is sufficiently small, use a size that can be installed horizontally wall-to-wall so as to eliminate the number of joints to be closed.

Gypsumboard lacks the rigidity of plaster so it must be well-supported. Studs, joists, or furring strips should be placed on 16-inch centers. Special dry wall nails are placed approximately 6 inches apart into these supporting members.

To cut gypsumboard, hold a straightedge close to the line and draw the point of a knife against the straightedge with sufficient pressure to cut through the paper. Break the gypsum core along this cut, fold back, cut the paper on the back, and smooth the cut edge.

Seal gypsumboard with joint cement that usually comes with a roll of perforated tape packed inside the container. Use a joint tool or a broad blade paint scraper to fill the depressed area along the joints (Fig. 1). Immediately press a strip of perforated tape in-

HOUSE PLANS YOU CAN BUY

By Hiawatha Estes

Here is a home that can be built by a family with a moderate income, and yet it offers many modern and up-to-date features that have proven to be so popular in today's market.

The layout of this plan will open your eyes to the possibilities of a well designed home. The narrow width of the plan allows it to be constructed on a lot only 45 feet wide. By moving the garage to the left, it could be built on a lot only 35 feet wide. By rotating the plan counter-clockwise ninety degrees, relocating the garage door and eliminating the roofed planter at the corner of the garage, the home could then be built on a wide lot.

In spite of the narrow plan, the center hall entry in this home routes traffic to each area of the house without passing through another room. The center hall is also accessible from the rear entry and service.

The living room roof continues over the front porch and a long planter. This roof is supported by hand sawn posts. A similar roof extends over planters at the front corners of the garage. A decorative barge rafter plus other complimentary features have been incorporated in the overall design of the house and garage roof gables which face the street. All of these ideas add up to an exterior which is both exciting and appealing.

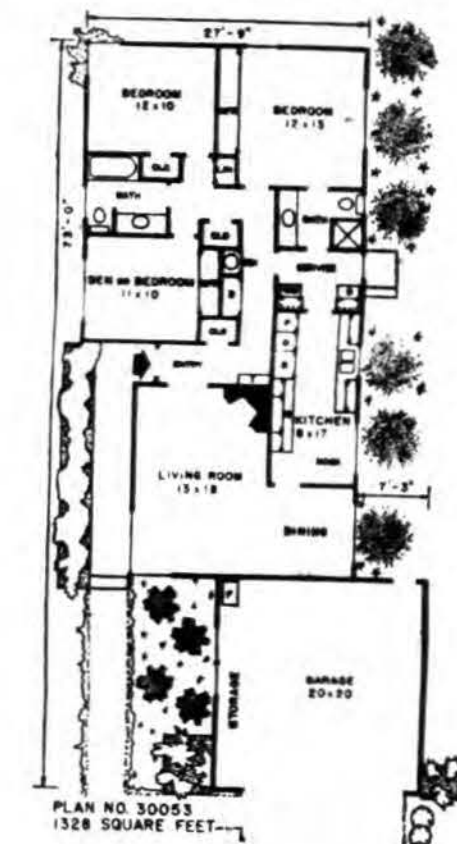

The water heater is in a closet but could be located in the garage — next to the furnace — if preferred. A guest closet, a general storage closet, a telephone table, an exceptionally wide broom closet and a linen closet all open to the entry and bedroom hall.

Both baths have pullman lavatories. The three-quarter bath is accessible from both the master bedroom and service.

The kitchen can boast of many attributes including a generous amount of cabinets plus a floor-to-ceiling pantry. The nook is ideal for family meals while the dining ell can be utilized for more formal entertaining. The dining is open to the living room which, together with the wide corner windows, helps this area appear even larger than its already ample size.

The next day apply another thin coat of ing room which, together with the wide corner windows, helps this area appear even larger than its already ample size.

Complete working drawings for this plan can be purchased at a cost of $8.50 for the first set and $5.00 for each additional set when ordered at the same time. This plan will be available at these prices until January 12, 1966. Please allow two to three weeks for delivery. The following home plan books are also available: Homes by Hiawatha—$1; Hallmark Homes—$1; Distinctive Homes—$1; Homes for Living—$1; Town & Country Homes—$1; Ranch & Modern Homes—$2. All books—a $7 value—only $5. Send all orders for either plans or books to: Hiawatha Estes, P. O. Box 494-OC, Northridge, California. California orders please add 4% sales tax.

PRINT MAKING IS A SPECIAL ART

MY WILD OATS

George DeLonge used wild oats in a well composed close-up, over an interesting yet not distracting background, to create an abstract photograph which is effective due to simplicity and excellent composition.

KATHY

Jack Colvin, who is the club president, photographed this pretty girl on a weekend holiday at Pinecrest. He used a Rolleiflex Camera, Plus-X film, and dealt with the full sun by using a yellow filter.

Arlie Toulouse, who is very interested in boats, photographed this beautiful ornamented bow of an Engleman-designed boat at Newport Beach, using the deep blue sky as simple background. The stark composition of the original print is most striking.

CLIPPER BOW

Deviating from its policy of spotlighting the work of one local photographer each week, the Weekender, this week, features photos by three of Coast Camera Club's active print makers, who have won many prizes in print competitions. Photographers represented are Arlie Toulouse of Costa Mesa, George DeLonge of South Laguna, and Jack Colvin of Huntington Beach.

LORI KEMP

Lori Kemp who lives on Balboa Island will be a member of the New York Company of "Hello Dolly," which opens at the Music Center in Los Angeles on Monday, September 13, for a seven-week engagement.

It will also play in San Francisco, Denver, Oklahoma City, St. Louis and Chicago. Carol Channing plays the lead in the show.

JUDY GARLAND

Diversity is the keynote of the Judy Garland Show, post season attraction which opens at the Greek Theatre on Monday, September 13, for six performances. Guest artists will be The Young American Singers and Los Angeles' own resident ballet company.

Judy, currently breaking records in San Carlos, will sing many of her old favorites during one of her rare Los Angeles appearances.

The Young American Singers are young professional singers, many of them graduates of The Young Americans, who appeared earlier this summer at the Theatre-in-the-Park. The Young Americans were formed by Milton C. Anderson who is still their manager and musical director.

Joining these popular attractions will be a performance of the "Pas de Dix" by the same company which last year appeared in "Serenade" at the Greek Theatre. Guest Artist George Zoritch, Premier Danseur of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo and of the Marquis de Cuevas will join ballerina Karel Shimoff in this production. James Guthrie will conduct.

Good seats are still available for all performances at box office and all agencies.

ENTERTAINMENT GALORE

Many of the summer visitors to the Harbor Area have taken their leave and returned to their homes, jobs and schools, but there are still many vacationers at the beach and there is plenty for them, and year-round residents, to find in the way of entertainment.

RON CAMERON

Vi Winters, backed up by a bass player, is at the Balboa Pavilion Thursday through Saturday nights from 9 p.m. to 2 a.m. Vi has been a favorite around these parts for a long time now.

Over at the Newporter Inn there is something new in the way of entertainment on Sunday nights in the Lido Lounge from 8 to 1 a.m. It is called Sunday Jazz and is just what it sounds like — good jazz by musicians who know how to play it. This coming Sunday Joe Graves, trumpet; Jack Dumont, alto Sax; Bill Hitz, clarinet, and Knobby Lee on trombone will join forces with the Frankie Ortega Trio for some great music. The Marine room will be open on Sunday from 2:30 p.m. for early diners and there is no cover dancing in the New Orleans Room from 8 p.m.

MEL TAYLOR

Ron Cameron is playing nightly at the Chef's Inn from 7 p.m. to 2 p.m. He is off on Sunday. Mel Taylor, an old-timer in these parts, is filling the house at the Village Inn every night from 9 p.m. until 2 a.m.

Lions Cook For Youths' Benefit

Thousands of lobsters will be in the fire this weekend when the Balboa Bay Lions Club stages its annual Lobster Bake to raise money for the youth activities of the area. A full meal will be served and there will be ground sirloin for those who prefer it.

LIONS CLUB LOBSTER BAKE TIME

It may not be apparent to everyone, but Australian lobsters play an important role in aiding the visually handicapped in Orange County.

This is rather a devious way of saying it is time for the Balboa Bay Lions Club's annual Lobster Bake, and one of the club's principal projects is assisting persons with sight problems.

The event is scheduled for tomorrow and Sunday on the Corona del Mar main beach. Charcoal-broiled lobster dinners, with all the trimmings, will be served from 12 noon to 9 p.m. both days. Ground sirloin dinners also will be available. The cost is $2.50, and tickets may be purchased from any Lions Club member or at the beach.

Concession booths at the two-day affair will be operated by Harbor Area clubs, enabling them to raise funds for their benevolent endeavors, as well as the Lions Club project.

With $4,600 of the proceeds of last year's Lobster Bake, the Balboa Bay Lions Club purchased a braille typewriter for the Transcribers of Orange County, provided eye examinations and glasses for numerous youngsters, and contributed funds to Orange County Heart Association, Community Youth Center, Girl and Boy Scouts of Orange County and the Cancer Fund.

In addition, a Lions Club work party helped finish two rooms in the Youth Center. The club also purchased two Goodwill Industry collection booths, helped needy families locally with clothing and money, and contributed money, clothing and food to the Casa de Esperanza Orphanage in Ensenada.

See Guide to Fun, Page 2, for other details.

A small portion of the crowd which attended last year's event is shown in the photograph above. The Lions expect this year's bake to exceed all previous years' attendance.
