Fetus Paintings Bring Growing Festival Flap

Festival Caught in Flap Over Art Subject Matter

It wouldn't be a Laguna art festival season without a controversy. This year a vest pocket flap has broken out among some artists exhibiting at the Festival of Arts, grand daddy of the Art Colony's trio of simultaneous festivals. At issue is what some artists are calling censorship. Festival officials call it "maintaining community standards and cooperation."

It all started last week when a painting by Robert E. Russell was removed because it contained a four-letter word, albeit partially covered by other lettering on a graffiti-covered wall.

Artist Kathy Newlin was then asked

"unofficially" according to Festival spokesmen to remove a painting she had on exhibit.

It depicted a pregnant woman and fetus. This action touched off reaction by some artists, who quickly responded with their own "fetus" paintings and hung them in their booths this week in protest.

Some 10 fetus works were on exhibit Thursday.

Friday, there were two.

One by Ann Reid Gordon was on display before the fetus flap started. The other was a doll stuffed in a red cabbage

Dr. Leary Arrested in Girl's Death

Hippie high priest Timothy Leary is free today after having been arrested Friday afternoon and booked for contributing to the delinquency of a minor in connection with the death of a 17-year-old Laguna Beach girl on his Hemet commune-ranch.

As six plainclothes detectives led the LSD advocate off the parking lot of the Los Angeles Free Press he declared "I have contributed to the delinquency of over 30 million young people."

Leary, a frequent visitor to Laguna Beach, faces arraignment Thursday on the misdemeanor charge. The arrest was sparked by the disclosure that Charlene Almeida was under the influence of LSD when she drowned in the 30-foot-deep pool in a creek running throughout his mountain ranch July 14.

The officers arrested him Friday before he could address reporters in the parking lot of the underground newspaper.

Leary was freed later in the day after posting $625 bail on the misdemeanor charge.

"I wanted a chance to talk to the people of California," he shouted as he was lead away in handcuffs. "I'm absolutely innocent."

He arrived at the press conference with his wife, Rosemary, 33, who was to have read a prepared statement dealing with the drowning and the seizure Thursday by sheriff's deputies of a quantity of marijuana and several suspects at the ranch.

She declined to deliver the statement, however, because of the way her husband was treated by police, she said.

She charged that the warrant, issued by a Riverside court earlier this week, was "a ghastly thing."

"They're trying to make political capital out of a young girl's death. We loved her very much," she said.

She described the victim, who had been swimming in the nude when she drowned, as "a young and a beautiful girl."

Miss Almeida, whose Laguna address was not immediately known, had been staying on the ranch for 10 days.

Leary, his wife, and his son John, 19, are under grand jury indictment in Orange County on charges of possessing marijuana. That case stemmed from a Christmas eve arrest last year in Laguna Beach.

Leary recently won a U.S. Supreme Court reversal of a narcotics conviction but failed to have the Orange County charges dismissed.

Yellow Sub Hasn't Found Nessie Yet

DRUMNADROCHIT, Scotland (UPI) — Dan Taylor of Atlanta, dived his yellow submarine deep into Loch Ness Friday in the search for Scotland's fabled monster.

"I didn't see the fearsome beastie," said the 28-year-old Taylor after surfacing. "But I was very pleased with the way the craft is behaving."

Nixon Knows the Feeling Kennedy TV Plea Recalls '52 Checkers Appeal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Somewhere over the Pacific Richard M. Nixon's thoughts must have raced back 17 years when he learned of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's agonizing crisis of conscience shared with the American public.

No other person, in private life or public, save Nixon could even guess at the anguish or torment that Kennedy faced when he told a nationwide television audience some of the details of his tragedy. A 28-year-old girl drowned one week ago when the car Kennedy was driving plunged off a Martha's Vineyard wooden bridge.

But the contrasts in the crisis which faced Kennedy and the one which Nixon had to contend with in the presidential campaign of 1952 are marked as much by difference as by parallel.

Nixon's crisis dealt with money and when he was challenged he refused to pull out of the vice presidential race because "I'm not a quitter."

Kennedy's tragedy dealt with a human life and his response was unwillingness to decide whether he should continue as a senator or to withdraw from public life.

Both Nixon and Kennedy went on national television, not only to plead their cases, but to seek the support of their electorates.

Nixon, charged with using an $18,000 slush fund, gave his now-famous "Checkers" speech. The answer was an outpouring of sentiment that assured him his niche as the GOP's vice-presidential candidate with Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Kennedy already has received an indication that he may be in for the same type of emotional response, certainly from his colleagues in the Senate.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, an old friend and mentor, has asked him to return to the Senate as assistant majority leader because "he has my confidence."

And Sen. George D. Aiken of Vermont, the Senate's senior Republican, said Kennedy

Kennedy Fate in Balance

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy has put his fabled political future on the line before a divided public after a pretty secretary's death that left haunting questions still unanswered today.

Kennedy announced Friday night he may resign from the U.S. Senate if Massachusetts voters have lost confidence in him because of the car accident which killed his young blonde passenger on a lonely island road a week ago.

The first swelling tide of telegrams and telephone calls in his home state ran strongly in support of the senator. But across the nation, the doubts lingered.

"I still trust him. But I don't think a lot of people do," said a college student in Pittsburgh.

The senator addressed his possibility of resignation to Massachusetts voters only, asking their advice on whether he should stay in office. But there was no doubt that he was being judged also by the people of the nation, and his future hung in the balance.

In Massachusetts, the support swelled. Switchboards at newspapers and television stations were deluged. The small Western Union office at nearby Hyannis was swamped. In Boston, an editor said, "They're calling by the millions. They're overwhelmingly in favor of him staying."

However, in Baltimore, Md., the switchboard at a television station counted its calls 38-4 in favor of Kennedy's resignation.

Kennedy, in an unprecedented national television appearance, said there is "no truth whatever" to ugly rumors of immoral conduct that shadow the accident. "Nor was I driving under the influence of liquor," he added.

But nowhere in his speech did he make any mention of why his car was on the deserted dirt road that led to the death of Mary Jo Kopechne, 28, on Chappaquiddick Island around midnight July 18.

A Memphis, Tenn., man said, "To me, it's about as big a mystery as it was before. I still don't know what to think."

Kennedy told a dramatic story of a night of tragedy and horror in which he twice brushed against the very brink of death, of nearly becoming the third brother to die in sudden calamity while at a pinnacle of American political power.

And in those terrible moments, he said, he questioned "whether some awful curse did actually hang over all the Kennedys."

The 37-year-old senator told of the water rushing into his lungs as he fought to escape his sunken car after it plunged off a bridge into an estuary. And he said he nearly drowned again as he swam across a channel from the island to the village where he had been staying.

This was the first explanation of how Kennedy got off the island in the nine hours between the accident and the time he walked into the police station in Edgartown to report the death. And the swim seemed to raise more new questions instead of quieting old ones.

Kennedy appeared on national television on the same day he pleaded guilty in court to leaving the scene of an accident. A two-month sentence was suspended and he was placed on probation for one year.

The senator said his failure to report the accident immediately was "indefensible."

Astronauts on Land

Hawaii Plans Roaring Greeting Today

ABOARD USS HORNET (UPI) — The men who opened the moon to mankind, rested and in good health after eight days in space and two days at sea, steamed toward a royal Hawaiian welcome home to U.S. soil today.

The last time Neil A. Armstrong, Michael Collins and Edwin E. "Buzz" Aldrin walked the soil of their own country was July 16, just before their blast-off toward the moon from Cape Kennedy. The last soil Armstrong and Aldrin trod was that of the moon.

The closest they were to come to American soil today was about three feet, the distance to the ground from the bed of an aircraft loader waiting to carry the astronauts in their mobile quarantine van from Pearl Harbor to Hickam Air ton. An elaborate, half-hour welcoming ceremony — expected to draw 50,000 persons who would hear the astronauts and see their silvery isolation van, but not see the men themselves, was planned at Pearl Harbor after the van was removed from this prime recovery ship.

Aboard the Hornet Friday the nation's three newest heroes made their second post-flight "public" appearance. Framed in a window inside their van, they took part in a thanksgiving service for their safe flight, splashdown and recovery.

Aldrin paused during the service to remind the crew of the eight American astronauts — including the first Apollo crew — and perhaps the two Russian cosmonauts who have died in accidents since the space program began:

"We are the ones that made it," he said. "But we will remember that there are those in our corps that did not make it, and will never make it."

Fifteen seconds of silent prayers were then said for the Apollo 1 crew — Virgil I. Grissom, Edward H. White and Roger B. Chaffee — who died in a flash fire that swept their spacecraft Jan. 27, 1967, preparing for the first Apollo flight at Cape Kennedy.

Armstrong praised the Apollo 11 command ship named Columbia as the "gem of the ocean of space." He called the Hornet "the gem of the oceans of earth," and said the crew's recovery from the South Pacific was "the smoothest and most professional operation we have either witnessed or participated in."

ble." He said he was confused, tortured, tired. He indicated he still did not remember all that happened in the nine-hour period.

In Berkeley Heights, N.J., the mother of the victim, Mrs. Joseph Kopechne, came out onto a neighbor's front porch after the broadcast to say in a halting voice "I am satisfied with the senator's statement — and do hope he decides to stay in the Senate."

Kennedy's fellow Democrats hailed the speech. Republicans were generally silent.

FULL CONFIDENCE

"He has my full confidence," said Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, (D-Mont.).

Sen. Fred Harris, (D-Okl.), the party's national chairman, said "Kennedy has my unqualified support."

Until the accident, Kennedy, the No. 2 Democrat in the Senate as assistant majority leader, had been regarded as a front-runner for the 1972 nomination for the presidency—the prize that brought his two brothers to violent death.

Former Gov. John Connally of Texas, riding in the same car when President John F. Kennedy was killed, said of the youngest brother:

"There's no doubt he will be hurt unless he gives more satisfactory answers. He really gave none of substance tonight."

Kennedy's speech was his first explanation beyond a brief statement to police last Saturday.

KEY QUESTIONS

It still left unanswered these key questions:

—Why Kennedy was on the dirt road leading to the narrow wooden bridge where his car plunged into a salt-water inlet? The senator told police he made a wrong turn driving Miss Kopechne to the island ferry after a reunion party. At a T-intersection, the only paved road on the island turns left toward the ferry and is marked with an arrow; the dirt road goes right. In the television speech, he made no mention at all of the turn.

—What happened when he plunged into the water to swim from the island to Edgartown? Kennedy said two friends, Joseph Gargan and Paul Markham, had helped him dive for Miss Kopechne after the accident. He said he was confused and in shock. Kennedy said they took him to the ferry landing and he suddenly jumped into the water to begin swimming, almost drowning in the crossing.

Did Gargan and Markham watch his struggle without telephoning authorities for help? Or, if they had left and were unaware of the swim, weren't they concerned about where the troubled Kennedy had gone? Why did they take no apparent action that would have summoned officials?

Gargan, who is Kennedy's cousin, and Markham could not be reached for comment.

nedy should return "the sooner the better." The reaction of Kennedy's rank-and-file constituents was slower in making itself known. But there was reason to believe his emotional speech, with its stark admission of his inexplicable action in leaving the accident scene, would stir warm sympathy in Massachusetts.

The reaction from the country as a whole—if Kennedy takes that into account in making his decision—may not be so favorable. The anti-Kennedy feeling, muted when President John F. Kennedy was assassinated and again when Sen. Robert F. Kennedy was killed, is certain to be reinforced by events of the past several days.

In any case, there can be no doubt that any ambitions for the presidency held by Kennedy were hurt by the accident. The only question is whether the tragedy was fatal. Politically, or merely a temporary setback.

Until the accident, it was generally conceded that the 1972 Democratic nomination was Kennedy's for the asking. There was even speculation the party would have drafted him as the best possible candidate.

A Kennedy candidacy now would have to deal not only with the tragedy itself but with inevitable questions as:

—Should a man seek the presidency who showed such indecision about staying in the Senate.

—Should a candidate have a past which in his own words included "fear, doubt, panic, confusion and shock."

Perhaps, Kennedy signaled the end of his presidential ambitions in his final words when he talked about further contributions to his "state and mankind" but did not mention the nation.

Two of a Kind

Not Twins, But Identical

No two persons in this world are exactly alike.

But a pair of babies brought into the world under surprisingly similar circumstances Friday at Hoag Memorial Hospital in Newport Beach came close.

The babies were born into different Orange County families. The members of the Stelling household, Costa Mesa, and the Stacey family, Santa Ana, were complete strangers before Friday's unbelievable events.

Both mothers have the same first name—Diane.

Both were hoping they would give birth to a girl. Both did.

Both mothers gave their new girl the same name — Heather Diane.

Both women have the same family doctor and pediatrician.

Both women gave birth via Caesarean operation.

Both infants are now being kept in the same room in the maternity ward.

Mothers and daughters are doing well, thank you.

SUE ROSE DELIVERS YOUTH'S MESSAGE TO SHOPPERS
Students Spend Summer Touring and Talking

Students Visiting Coast To Explain How to Live

By RANDY SEELYE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

"...How many years must some people exist, before they begin to be free... the answer, my friend, is blowin' in the wind, the answer is blowin' in the wind..."

The words of a soft flowing folk song, made popular by the singing group Peter, Paul and Mary, drifted through the mall at Fashion Island Shopping Center in Newport Beach Friday.

The song was being sung by a group of students from Michigan State University who are touring the nation this summer to deliver a message.

"We believe we can solve problems without throwing rocks," said the advisor and coordinator of the trip, Dr. Clyde Morris.

Dr. Morris is a communications professor at MSU. He is accompanied by 23 students from the university. The trip is designed to create dialogue between the college students and people across the country.

The group is traveling by station wagon and living in homes in each community visited.

The students are not alike. They come from different backgrounds, from poor to rich and black to white. All have different ideas.

But Dr. Morris says the group has one common bond. "We only agree that dialogue is a much better method of exchanging ideas than violence."

The students spent 11 hours at the shopping center Friday, discussing different and varied subjects with shoppers.

They will be at Fashion Island today from 10 to 5.

The students are giving out literature to all shoppers at the center and, so far, have been well received.

"We have had a lot of real good discussions," Morris said.

The stop at Newport is the seventh leg of a 17-city tour for the students. They have been on the road for four weeks and will travel six more weeks to complete the 10,000 mile circuit.

Sue Rose, 18, a sophomore at MSU, said most members of the group are a bit tired and are looking forward to two days of rest next week. They will spend a day on the beach and then go to Disneyland.

Expenses for the group are being earned along the way through "labor stopovers" at wheat fields and canneries. Cars were donated by an automobile firm in Michigan.

When queried about the beauties of his native Sweden, where nearly all the girls reportedly have Miss Benington's obvious attributes, Johan grinned and said:

"That's one department where we don't need foreign aid."

A 19-year-old Orange Coast College photographic student who says he enjoys nature photography Friday became the first entrant in the Fotorama Camera Contest.

The contest is the forerunner of Fotorama at Fashion Island, a show which will be staged next month at the Newport Beach shopping center and which will feature hundreds of photos and other exhibits.

First entrant in the contest is Scott

Baily, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Baily, 2000 Beryl Lane, Newport Beach.

His picture taken at the San Diego Zoo captures a baby alligator riding on its mother's back. Baily's caption is: "Mama, I don't like the way that guy is looking at us!"

Entries for the first week in the three-week Fotorama Camera Contest competition must be received at the DAILY PILOT by noon next Thursday.

Here are rules and details of the contest:

1. Eligible to enter the contest.
2. Only black and white photos, taken since Jan. 1 of this year will be accepted for judging.
3. Pictures should be unmounted glossy prints at least 5 x 7 inches in size, preferably 8 x 10 inches.
4. Negatives of contest photos must be readily available so that blowups can be made for publication and for display at Fotorama.

Third Files In Valley Recall Vote

A third candidate for the Sept. 23 recall election in Fountain Valley has taken out nomination papers from the city clerk's office.

Bernie P. Svalstad, 9803 El Tulipan Ave., indicated Friday he plans to run against Vice Mayor Donald Fregeau, one of three city councilmen at whom a heated recall action is aimed.

Svalstad has been active in the recall movement and is also an active member of the Fountain Valley Jaycees.

Previously, attorney Robert Sassone took out nomination papers, stating he would run against Mayor Robert Schwerdtfeger, and Paul P. Savarino stated his intention to run against Councilman Joseph Courgees.

The three councilmen are facing recall because of a controversy over minimum lot sizes in new Fountain Valley residential developments.

They have strongly supported planned developments which have allowed lots as small as 5,000 square feet. Recall backers claim the three are not representing the people and insist the minimum lot size should be maintained at 7200 square feet.

Closing date for candidate to file for the special election is noon, July 31.

Mansfield Warns Republicans Of Tax Defeat

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield has hinted at a Democratic defeat of the 10 percent income tax surcharge if Republicans do not buy his compromise offer for a short extension of it coupled with "very substantial tax reform."

Mansfield's warning of Democratic disenchantment with the tax on the grounds that it has not curbed inflation may lead to Republican reexamination this weekend of his offer to continue the tax for five months.

But by raising the possibility of defeat, Mansfield also dangled the result of such action: a 10 percent tax cut for every taxpayer plus a substantial tax refund next spring.

The refund would result from the fact that Congress has continued withholding from paychecks since the surcharge expired June 30 in the expectation it ultimately would be extended. On Monday,

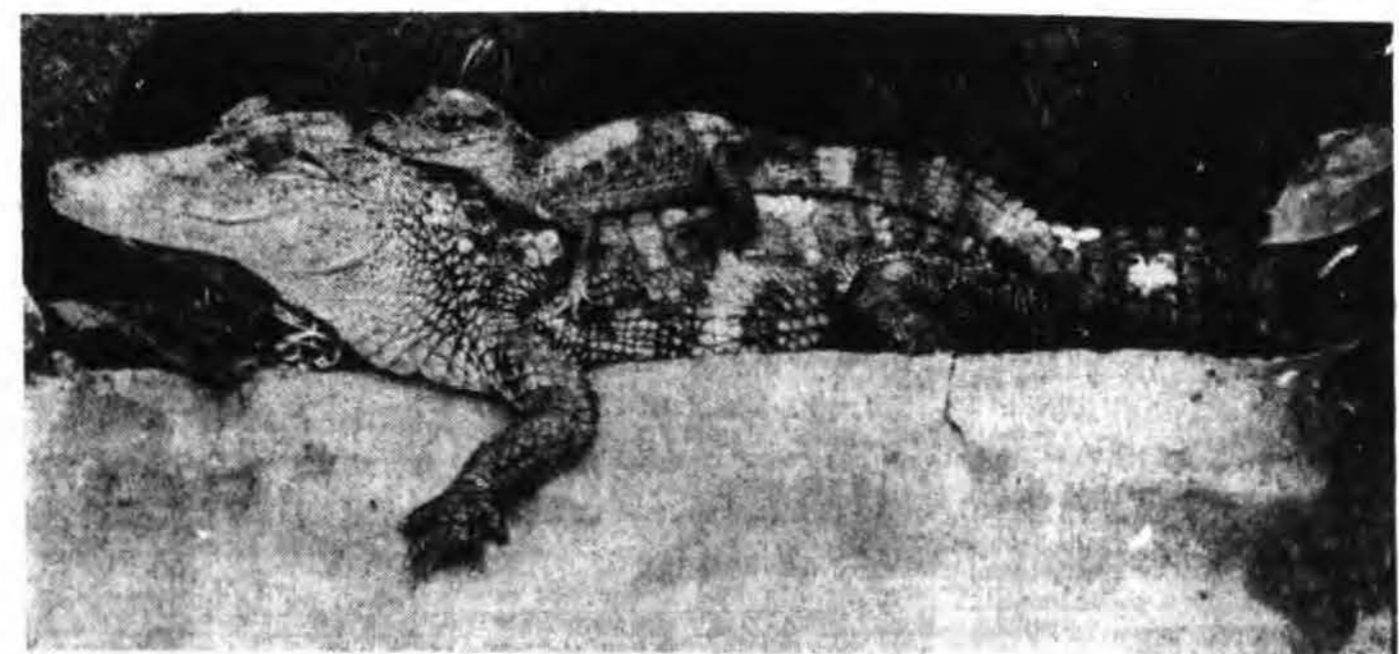

Child Dies Under Car of Grandma

A two-year-old Anaheim boy was fatally injured Friday afternoon when a car driven by his grandmother ran over him in front of his home.

Coroner's investigators said Raymond Eric Harris died from a skull fracture and broken ribs at 7:30 p.m., two hours after the mishap at 3110 W. Monroe St.

Coroner's aides said the grandmother, Mrs. Irma Mae Wims, 63, Lakewood, had backed out of the driveway and was parking on the street.

She did not see her grandson playing in the street near the curb. Her car ran over the toddler, investigators said.

Santa Ana Free Of Murder Count

A Superior Court jury has cleared Lester Keith Simmons of charges that he murdered his next-door neighbor.

The panel ended a four-hour deliberation by declaring the Santa Ana man innocent of charges that he shot and killed Gary William Rosenthal during a quarrel over a gun. The verdict went into the records Friday as excusable homicide.

Testimony at the trial indicated that Simmons, a gun collector, and Rosenthal got into an argument while the two men were drinking at Simmons' home last Feb. 16.

Simmons, 57, testified that the angry Rosenthal hit him with a chair and that he (Simmons) fled to the bedroom. He told the jury that he grabbed a gun, fired a shot at the advancing Rosenthal and kept on firing when Rosenthal "kept on coming."

Kennedy Future Cloudy

Opinions Split After Emotional TV Plea

2 Suits Seek $7 Million In Air Crash

Orange County was sued for a total of $7 million Friday in two Superior Court suits charging the county Airport Commission with responsibility for an air crash which claimed the lives of all nine aboard.

Both actions claim that the commission's failure to properly maintain and equip the airport with "equipment designed to protect services in all types of weather" led to the fiery crash last Nov. 23 of a Cable Commuter Airlines plane.

The De Havilland aircraft, headed for Orange County from Los Angeles, failed to find the county runway in thick fog and crashed near the intersection of Dyer Road and the Newport Freeway.

Killed in the crash was Clark R. Burns, 26, of 29932 S. Morengo Drive, South Laguna. His widow, Nancy Beckwith Burns and two children, Gregory, 8, and Heather, 1, are seeking $2 million from the county.

Damages totalling $5 million are being sought by a Huntington Beach man whose son and daughter-in-law died in the burning wreckage of the ill-fated plane.

Laurence Van Mourick also claims that county negligence led to the death of Laurence Van Mourick Jr., 38, and his wife, Teresa Sholes Van Mourick, 37. He is now guardian of the couple's children, Mark, 12, and Lisa, 9.

The suit brings to a total of $8 million the damages sought from the county by the decedents' next of kin.

North Viets Praise Apollo Guardedly

HONG KONG (AP) — North Vietnam today praised the "excellent achievement of the United States by landing a man on the moon" — but said it had been made possible only by earlier Soviet space triumphs.

Radio Hanoi also attacked "the Nixon reactionary, imperialistic, and aggressively bellicose clique for abusing the Apollo 11 scientific and technological achievement by using it for propaganda and as a military threat to other nations."

Nixon Starts Asia Tour With Manila Outbreaks

MANILA (AP) — President Nixon arrived today in the troubled Philippines, where anti-American nationalism has been building, for a 23-hour visit featuring talks with President Ferdinand Marcos and his political opponents.

The President and Mrs. Nixon flew to Manila from Guam. They were greeted by Marcos with full military honors and drove in a motorcade to Malacanang Palace.

Nixon was to confer there for 2½ hours with Marcos and other Philippine leaders, followed by a state dinner. He is to confer again with Marcos on Sunday.

Upon arriving at his first stop on an Asian tour, Nixon declared Asians themselves should take the lead in promoting their defense and economic progress and in achieving peace in the Far East.

"Peace and progress must be shaped and protected primarily by Asian hands," Nixon said at the airport. "The contributions which my country can make to that progress should come as a supplement to Asian energies and in response to Asian leadership."

Marcos seemed to share Nixon's views. He agreed there should be no "heavy handed dominance" by the United States, but voiced concern about a "complete pullout of the U.S. from Asia."

A typhoon skirting the northern tip of the Philippines brought grey skies and gusty winds to the airport, which was jammed by top-ranking dignitaries, troops, students, newsmen and other spectators.

Thousands lined the five-mile route from the airport to the presidential palace. Some waved signs that read: "Mr. Nixon: Fly Us to the Moon."

A total of 16,000 security troops were reported deployed along the route from the airport and in the capital to ensure that no possible demonstrations got out of hand.

Before leaving Guam, Nixon told newsmen he recognizes the validity of "Asia for the Asians" sentiment and is determined to assist, but not dictate to, the non-Communist nations on the subcontinent.

But Marcos indicated that he has some questions to ask Nixon about U.S. policy in Asia, particularly the rate of U.S. troop withdrawals from Vietnam. In comments to newsmen before Nixon's arrival Marcos also said he believes that some kind of American military umbrella will be needed in Southeast Asia for the next "10 or 20 years."

"The danger we face in the Philippines is not external aggression but internal subversion," Marcos said.

Senate Debate On ABM Bitter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A third week of Senate debate on the Safeguard anti-ballistic missile system has ended in flaring tempers, bitter words and collapse of plans for a vote next week on the ABM.

Chairman J. William Fulbright, (D-Ark.) said the Senate Foreign Relations Committee would start additional hearings Wednesday on what he said was a newly-discovered flaw in the ABM.

Fulbright's announcement triggered a sharp exchange with Chairman John C. Stennis, (D-Miss.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

On demand from Stennis, Fulbright apologized for saying freshman senators had refused to become "stooges of the military." Stennis accused Fulbright of discrediting motives of his colleagues and challenged him to prove collusion between the Pentagon and defense contractors.

Joan Kennedy Expecting Child

BOSTON (AP) — Mrs. Joan Kennedy, the 32-year-old wife of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, is expecting her fourth child in February, the Boston Herald Traveler reported today.

The paper said a Kennedy family spokesman confirmed the report shortly after the Massachusetts Democrat appealed to state residents to help him decide his political future in a nationally broadcast television and radio speech.

The senator said in the speech that "reasons of health" prevented his attractive blonde wife from accompanying him last Friday to a party on Chappaquiddick Island, where Kennedy was later involved in an auto accident that killed a 28-year-old woman.

The Kennedys have three children, Kara, 9; Edward Jr., 7; and Patrick, 2. Mrs. Kennedy has lost two children in miscarriages in July 1963, and June, 1964. The Kennedys were married in New York in 1958.

Man Dies Aboard Boat in Newport

An elderly Bakersfield man visiting Newport Beach died of an apparent heart attack aboard a 39-foot cabin cruiser Friday evening.

Harbor patrolmen said Frank Digler, 75, was declared dead at Hoag Memorial Hospital at 5:45 p.m. shortly after the cruiser Jemp pulled into the department guest docks to summon aid for the heart victim.

Lifeguards applied mouth-to-mouth resuscitation on Digler at the docks until an ambulance arrived.

What's 'Family' Art?

Festival Caught in Flap

It wouldn't be a Laguna art festival season without a controversy.

This year a vest pocket flap has broken out among some artists exhibiting at the Festival of Arts, grand daddy of the Art Colony's trio of simultaneous festivals.

At issue is what some artists are calling censorship. Festival officials call it "maintaining community standards and cooperation."

It all started last week when a painting by Robert E. Russell was removed because it contained a four-letter word, albeit partially covered by other lettering on a graffiti-covered wall.

Artist Kathy Newlin was then asked "unofficially" according to Festival spokesmen to remove a painting she had on exhibit.

It depicted a pregnant woman and fetus.

This action touched off reaction by some artists, who quickly responded with their own "fetus" paintings and hung them in their booths this week in protest.

Some 10 fetus works were on exhibit Thursday.

Friday, there were two.

One by Ann Reid Gordon was on display before the fetus flap started. The other was a doll stuffed in a red cabbage (See FESTIVAL, Page 2)

Hawaii Plans Roaring Greeting Today

ABOARD USS HORNET (UPI) — The men who opened the moon to mankind, rested and in good health after eight days in space and two days at sea, steamed toward a royal Hawaiian welcome home to U.S. soil today.

The last time Neil A. Armstrong, Michael Collins and Edwin E. "Buzz" Aldrin walked the soil of their own country was July 16, just before their blast-off toward the moon from Cape Kennedy. The last soil Armstrong and Aldrin trod was that of the moon.

The closest they were to come to American soil today was about three feet, the distance to the ground from the bed of an aircraft carrier waiting to carry the astronauts in their mobile quarantine van from Pearl Harbor to Hickam Air Force Base for the long flight to Hawaii since the space program began.

An elaborate, half-hour welcoming ceremony — expected to draw 50,000 persons who would hear the astronauts and see their silvery isolation van, but not see the men themselves, was planned at Pearl Harbor after the van was removed from this prime recovery ship.

Aboard the Hornet Friday the nation's three newest heroes made their second post-flight "public" appearance. Framed in a window inside their van, they took part in a thanksgiving service for their safe flight, splashdown and recovery.

Aldrin paused during the service to remind the crew of the eight American astronauts — including the first Apollo crew — and perhaps the two Russian cosmonauts who have died in accidents

"We are the ones that made it," he said. "But we well remember that there are those in our corps that did not make it, and will never make it."

Fifteen seconds of silent prayers were then said for the Apollo 1 crew — Virgil I. Grissom, Edward H. White and Roger B. Chaffee — who died in a flash fire that swept their spacecraft Jan. 27, 1967, preparing for the first Apollo flight at Cape Kennedy.

Armstrong praised the Apollo 11 command ship named Columbia as the "gem of the ocean of space." He called the Hornet "the gem of the oceans of earth," and said the crew's recovery from the South Pacific was "the smoothest and most professional operation we have either witnessed or participated in."

ble." He said he was confused, tortured, tired. He indicated he still did not remember all that happened in the nine-hour period.

In Berkeley Heights, N.J., the mother of the victim, Mrs. Joseph Kopechne, came out onto a neighbor's front porch after the broadcast to say in a halting voice "I am satisfied with the senator's statement — and do hope he decides to stay in the Senate."

Kennedy's fellow Democrats hailed the speech. Republicans were generally silent.

FULL CONFIDENCE

"He has my full confidence," said Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, (D-Mont.).

Sen. Fred Harris, (D-Okla.) the party's national chairman, said "Kennedy has my unqualified support."

Until the accident, Kennedy, the No. 2 Democrat in the Senate as assistant majority leader, had been regarded as a front-runner for the 1972 nomination for the presidency—the prize that brought his two brothers to violent death.

Former Gov. John Connally of Texas, riding in the same car when President John F. Kennedy was killed, said of the youngest brother:

"There's no doubt he will be hurt unless he gives more satisfactory answers. He really gave none of substance to-night."

It still left unanswered these key questions:

—Why Kennedy was on the dirt road leading to the narrow wooden bridge where his car plunged into a salt-water inlet? The senator told police he made a wrong turn driving Miss Kopechne to the island ferry after a reunion party. At a T-intersection, the only paved road on the island turns left toward the ferry and is marked with an arrow; the dirt road goes right. In the television speech, he made no mention at all of the turn.

—What happened when he plunged into the water to swim from the island to Edgartown? Kennedy said two friends, Joseph Gargan and Paul Markham, had helped him dive for Miss Kopechne after the accident. He said he was confused and in shock. Kennedy said they took him to the ferry landing and he suddenly jumped into the water to begin swimming, almost drowning in the crossing.

Did Gargan and Markham watch his struggle without telephoning authorities for help? Or, if they had left and were unaware of the swim, weren't they concerned about where the troubled Kennedy had gone? Why did they take no apparent action that would have summoned officials?

Gargan, who is Kennedy's cousin, and Markham could not be reached for comment.

FESTIVAL...

which had been sliced and hollowed out by Lyn Havlin.

A festival spokesman said that it had been determined that six paintings would have to be taken down and that two artists had been contacted and asked to cooperate. They did.

Festival spokesmen maintain that the Festival has been and is a family show and that certain standards have to be upheld.

They say the artists should understand this.

One painting, a water-color cartoon by Earl Klein of Dana Point, was meant as a gentle nose twit to Festival officialdom. The painting showed two cartoon cats, a tomcat glaring at a tabby who is obviously with kitten, four of them, all pink and roly-poly and plainly visible.

Although originally done as a spoof. The painting was sold to a Long Beach man for $100. Artist Klein said Friday he was told the cartoon sold just in the nick of time, just before it was due to be taken down.

Kathy Newlin hung a second fetus painting, depicting a bird. She said she had been told to take it down.

"I'm really put out about it. They've really opened up a real hornet's nest now. In a couple of days, they (the paintings) all would have come down anyhow."

"I am in disbelief that this whole thing could happen. It's just stupid, I don't know what else to call it," Mrs. Newlin said.

Not Twins, But Identical

No two persons in this world are exactly alike.

But a pair of babies brought into the world under surprisingly similar circumstances Friday at Hoag Memorial Hospital in Newport Beach came close.

The babies were born into different Orange County families. The members of the Stelling household, Costa Mesa, and the Stacey family, Santa Ana, were complete strangers before Friday's unbelievable events.

Both mothers have the same first name— Diane.

Both were hoping they would give birth to a girl. Both did.

Both mothers gave their new girl the same name — Heather Diane.

Both women have the same family doctor and pediatrician.

Both women gave birth via Caesarean operation.

Both infants are now being kept in the same room in the maternity ward.

Mothers and daughters are doing well, thank you.

Swedish Youth to Return

To Sample Beach Surfing

'I'LL BE BACK'
Sweden's Ottoson

By RUDI NIEDZIELSKI
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

"I wanted to be the first Swede to return as a surfer, but I think it's hopeless. I lose balance too easily and I can't practice every day like I should."

But 17-year-old Johan Ottoson, who has spent the last year in Huntington Beach as a Swedish foreign exchange student, says he'll be back again for another try.

He plans to finish two more years of high school in his hometown of Malmo, then he expects to return to the United States for more surfing and to enter college.

The blond youngster had been attending Marina High School since last September and adjusted without trouble to the American school system, as evidenced by a 3.8 grade average.

All of his time has not been devoted to studies, however. He has sampled a wide assortment of American pastimes, ranging from skin diving off San Diego to dunebuggy driving near Palm Springs.

His "parents" in Huntington Beach have been Mr. and Mrs. William Wardle, 6421 Shane Drive, who have shown him much of California and even a good portion of Utah during holiday trips.

"I feel lucky to have been in America this year," says Johan. "Not only did I witness the presidential election but also the fantastic moon landing. Thanks to the Wardles I have seen sights that other exchange students have not."

Johan will leave Huntington Beach next week, and head for New York City where he and about 700 exchange students will take a week-long boat trip to Europe.

Before he leaves, a farewell party will be given in his honor in Sunset Beach.

About 50 of his classmates are expected to attend the event, including teachers and "America's Junior Miss" Jackie Bennington.

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A new commercial communications satellite was in orbit around earth today, getting into position to be fired Sunday into permanent station over the Atlantic Ocean.

Poised atop a Delta rocket, the 622-pound Intelsat 3 was launched from Cape Kennedy at 10:06 p.m. Friday into an egg-shaped orbit that will carry the craft to a peak altitude nearly 22,300 miles high.

SUE ROSE DELIVERS YOUTH'S MESSAGE TO SHOPPERS
Students Spend Summer Touring and Talking

Students Visiting Coast

To Explain How to Live

By RANDY SEELYE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

"...How many years must some people exist, before they begin to be free... the answer, my friend, is blowin' in the wind, the answer is blowin' in the wind..."

The words of a soft flowing folk song, made popular by the singing group Peter, Paul and Mary, drifted through the mall at Fashion Island Shopping Center in Newport Beach Friday.

The song was being sung by a group of students from Michigan State University who are touring the nation this summer to deliver a message.

"We believe we can solve problems without throwing rocks," said the advisor and coordinator of the trip, Dr. Clyde Morris.

Dr. Morris is a communications professor at MSU. He is accompanied by 23 students from the university. The trip is designed to create dialogue between the college students and people across the country.

The group is traveling by station wagon and living in homes in each community visited.

The students are not alike. They come from different backgrounds, from poor to rich and black to white. All have different ideas.

But Dr. Morris says the group has one common bond. "We only agree that dialogue is a much better method of exchanging ideas than violence."

The students spent 11 hours at the shopping center Friday, discussing different and varied subjects with shoppers. They will be at Fashion Island today from 10 to 5.

The students are giving out literature to all shoppers at the center and, so far, have been well received.

"We have had a lot of real good discussions," Morris said.

The stop at Newport is the seventh leg of a 17-city tour for the students. They have been on the road for four weeks and will travel six more weeks to complete the 10,000 mile circuit.

Sue Rose, 18, a sophomore at MSU, said most members of the group are a bit tired and are looking forward to two days of rest next week. They will spend a day on the beach and then go to Disneyland.

Expenses for the group are being earned along the way through "labor stopovers" at wheat fields and canneries. Cars were donated by an automobile firm in Michigan.

When queried about the beauties of his native Sweden, where nearly all the girls reputedly have Miss Benington's obvious attributes, Johan grinned and said:

Pilot, Fashion Island Contest Under Way

A 19-year-old Orange Coast College photographic student who says he enjoys nature photography Friday became the first entrant in the Fotorama Camera Contest.

The contest is the forerunner of Fotorama at Fashion Island, a show which will be staged next month at the Newport Beach shopping center and which will feature hundreds of photos and other exhibits.

First entrant in the contest is Scott

Baily, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Baily, 2000 Beryl Lane, Newport Beach.

His picture taken at the San Diego Zoo captures a baby alligator riding on its mother's back. Baily's caption is: "Mama, I don't like the way that guy is looking at us!"

Entries for the first week in the three-week Fotorama Camera Contest competition must be received at the DAILY PILOT by noon next Thursday.

Here are rules and details of the contest:

1. Is eligible to enter the contest.
2. Only black and white photos taken since Jan. 1 of this year will be accepted for judging.
3. Pictures should be unmounted glossy prints at least 5 x 7 inches in size, preferably 8 x 10 inches.
4. Negatives of contest photos must be readily available so that proofs can be made for publication and for display at Fotorama.

Third Files

In Valley

Recall Vote

A third candidate for the Sept. 23 recall election in Fountain Valley has taken out nomination papers from the city clerk's office.

Bernie P. Svalstad, 9803 El Tulipan Ave., indicated Friday he plans to run against Vice Mayor Donald Fregeau, one of three city councilmen at whom a heated recall action is aimed.

Svalstad has been active in the recall movement and is also an active member of the Fountain Valley Jaycees.

Previously, attorney Robert Sassone took out nomination papers, stating he would run against Mayor Robert Schwerdtfeger, and Paul P. Savarino stated his intention to run against Councilman Joseph Courgees.

The three councilmen are facing recall because of a controversy over minimum lot sizes in new Fountain Valley residential developments.

They have strongly supported planned developments which have allowed lots as small as 5,000 square feet. Recall backers claim the three are not representing the people and insist the minimum lot size should be maintained at 7200 square feet.

Closing date for candidate to file for the special election is noon, July 31.

Mansfield Warns

Of Tax Defeat

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield has hinted at a Democratic defeat of the 10 percent income tax surcharge if Republicans do not buy his compromise offer for a short extension of it coupled with "very substantial tax reform."

Mansfield's warning of Democratic disenchantment with the tax on the grounds that it has not curbed inflation may lead to Republican reexamination this weekend of his offer to continue the tax for five months.

But by raising the possibility of defeat, Mansfield also dangled the result of such action: a 10 percent tax cut for every taxpayer plus a substantial tax refund next spring.

The refund would result from the fact that Congress has continued withholding from paychecks since the surcharge expired June 30 in the expectation it ultimately would be extended. On Monday,

Child Dies Under

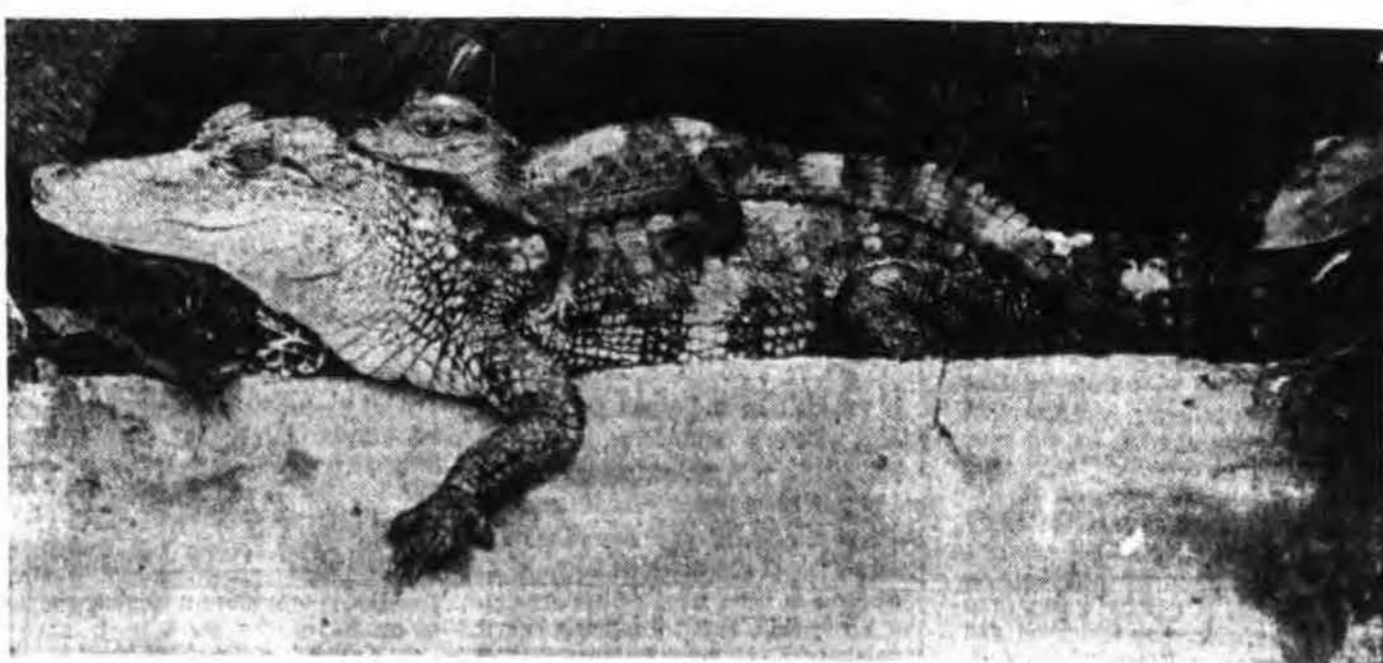

Car of Grandma

A two-year-old Anaheim boy was fatally injured Friday afternoon when a car driven by his grandmother ran over him in front of his home.

Coroner's investigators said Raymond Eric Harris died from a skull fracture and broken ribs at 7:30 p.m., two hours after the mishap at 3110 W. Monroe St.

Coroner's aides said the grandmother, Mrs. Irma Mae Wims, 63, Lakewood, had backed out of the driveway and was parking on the street.

She did not see her grandson playing in the street near the curb. Her car ran over the toddler, investigators said.

'Noisy Jet, Don't Return'—A County Hope

By JEROME F. COLLINS
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

"Hello, Flight 602. Your departure for San Francisco was too noisy. So you can't come back."

That, in effect, may be one way Orange County officials can control jet noise at County Airport, federal government sources indicated today.

But first the county will have to do a little homework. So might other government agencies.

Here is the way Federal Aviation Administration General Counsel

Nathaniel H. Goodrich puts it in a letter to Sen. George Murphy (R-Calif.):

"Airport owners acting as proprietors can presently deny use of their airports to aircraft on the basis of noise considerations so long as such exclusion is nondiscriminatory."

County government is the proprietor and owner of County Airport.

Goodrich's letter, a copy of which was received at Newport Beach City Hall, was in response to a request by Murphy for FAA views on proposed state legislation regulating aircraft noise. Goodrich said the federal government pre-empts the field of noise regulation — with some exceptions.

Locally owned and operated airports are among these exceptions. Goodrich explained:

"Just as an airport owner is responsible for deciding how long the runways will be, so is the owner responsible for obtaining noise easements necessary to permit the landing and takeoff of the aircraft."

"The federal government is in no position to require an airport to accept service by larger aircraft and, for that purpose, to obtain longer runways."

"Likewise, the federal government is in no position to require an airport to accept service by noisier aircraft, and for that purpose to obtain additional noise easements."

Goodrich — by underlining — emphasized that "the issue is the service desired by the airport owner and the steps it is willing to take to obtain the service."

The FAA counsel's views were happily received by Newport city officials.

"From our standpoint," said Phil Bettencourt, assistant to the city manager, "his is encouraging, but the next step is up to the county."

Bettencourt said it would appear that the county is in a position "to at least make some effort to control the level of service at the airport, and thus control the level of noise."

The city aide conceded, however, that there is a big legal question hanging over Goodrich's use of the term "nondiscriminatory" in regard to refusing service to noisy aircraft.

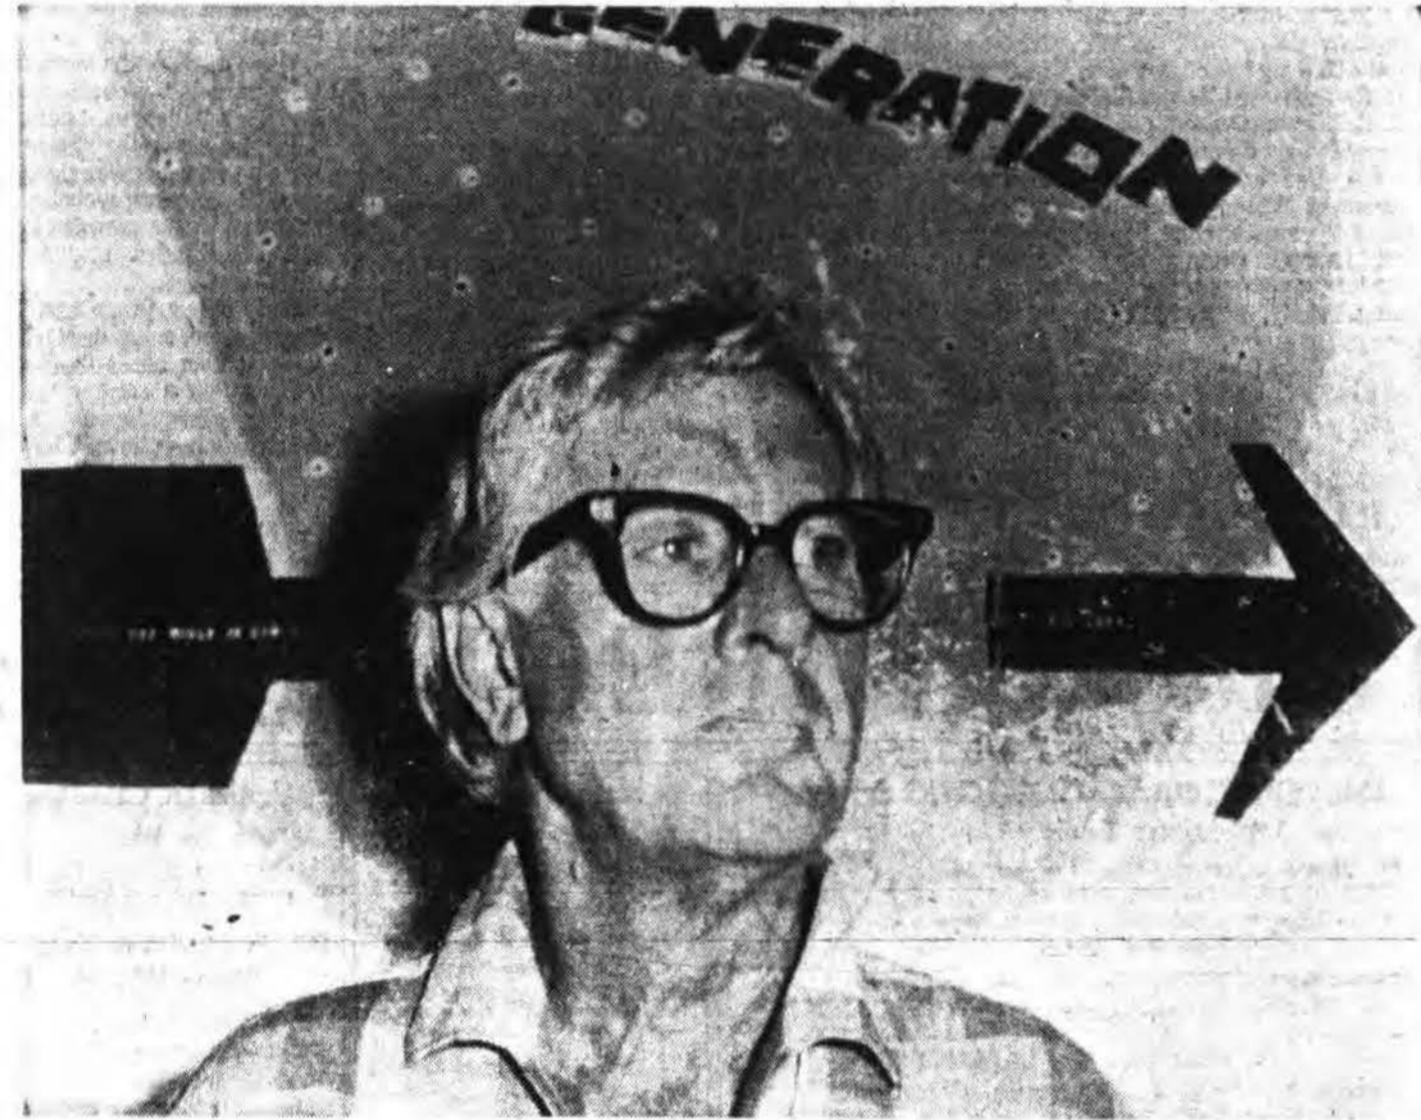

Does it mean that acceptable noise levels established by the county must be in accord with noise levels established by every other airport?

Or does it mean that acceptable noise levels established by the county must be enforced equally against all aircraft using just County Airport?

If it means the former, there isn't much Orange County by itself can do. The federal government would have to set up the standards on a nationwide basis.

If it means the latter, Orange County Airport officials can, indeed, make that theoretical call to Flight 602.

"It's something the county ought to find out about," Bettencourt concluded.

ARTIST HALL: 'THEY COULD HANG THEM IN THE BATHROOM. I WOULDN'T MIND.'
Beneath the Gray, Ruffled Hair of a 58-year-old, the Mind of a Young Man

(Compiled by the Daily Pilot Staff)

A Paiute Indian woman in Los Angeles will observe what her family says is her 120th birthday tonight. She is Mrs. Tizumbie Dupea who maintains she was born July 26, 1849 in the High Sierra community of Lone Pine. The birthday party will be at her convalescent home. Attendees say her hearing is good, but that she is bothered by failing eyesight and occasional lapses in memory.

The Boy Scout Council in Lancaster, England is investigating complaints by scouts who claimed they were "forced to kneel before a mock altar and bow to Ernie, the god of scouts" during a ritual at a troop headquarters.

A sea lion is frolicking in the Missouri River at Kansas City, just about as far from the ocean as you can get in the United States. The young animal escaped from the Swope Park Zoo Tuesday night, went down a small creek to the Blue River, and on to the Big Muddy. Donald R. Dieflein, zoo director, who tried unsuccessfully to lure the animal ashore with fish, said the sea lion probably will get along all right if the river pollution doesn't make it sick.

A few "oinks" were heard among the "ayes" when Ohio's state senators voted on a minor resolution. The resolution gave senate support to a "Pork Week" festival this week in southwestern Ohio. The theme of the festival was "hogs are beautiful." The resolution passed.

Meet the People

Laguna Artist Puts Punch In Bright, Simple Works

By JANICE BERMAN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Dixi Hall is a man. "Yes, it's my real name. I have another name, too . . . my middle name is Gail," he says quietly, waiting for the reaction.

Beneath the gray, ruffled hair of a 58-year-old, there is the mind of a young man, a man who soaks up the sayings and ideas and impressions of a rapidly changing world and brings new life to them through his imagination.

It's all done with bright acrylic paint on tissue paper, formed into simple shapes — a bird, a flower, a strawberry — and accompanied with bits of wisdom from Nietzsche, Anne Frank, the Bible, a college revolutionary.

The juxtapositions are occasionally startling.

So are the colors. "They aren't the kind of things most people want to hang in their living room," Hall said. "They don't really go well with most decor."

"But they could hang them in the bathroom. I wouldn't mind."

Three of the paintings he has displayed at the Festival of the Arts deal with campus unrest.

One is the Stars and Stripes, accompanied by the slogan, "Since the First Republic of the United States is 192 years old and I am 19, I will give it one more chance." The author is James Simon Kunen, a student at Columbia.

"I don't approve of campus violence," said Hall, "but I'm with them. Things ought to be changed."

Another is a bright, abstract flower. "Flowers are infinitely finer than fences," it proclaims. Hall did that after the Peoples' Park episode at Berkeley.

When Hall isn't painting, he's running an art supply store in Laguna Beach, his home for the past 21 years.

He has had little formal art training, save a half year at the Art Institute of Chicago. He used to work for a Los Angeles advertising agency.

His own taste in the art he collects runs to experimental art. But the walls of his home are also hung with Dixi Halls.

His wife doesn't mind, he said.

Is she an artist?

"No. She has enough trouble just taking care of one," he said.

GWC Prepares for Fall With Doubled Facilities

Architects, contractors and planners are at work on 12 buildings and additions on the Golden West College campus this summer.

Three of the units have just been completed, one is under construction, four have gone to bid, three have working drawings and one is in preliminary planning.

Together they will more than double the facilities at the 122-acre Huntington Beach campus.

Moving into the new buildings, measuring 16,000 square feet, this August will be nursing, cosmetology and law enforcement programs which are being transferred from Orange Coast College in Costa Mesa to Huntington Beach.

The third unit to be completed in August is a two-story addition to the library and multi-media center. It will feature a graphic arts and enlarged instructional materials center on the ground floor while the second floor will be occupied by a fine arts studio, an audio tutorial lab for English and a general classroom.

Under construction and scheduled for completion by September is a $75,000 corporation yard and maintenance building with 6,000-square feet.

On July 29, bids will be opened on four other units — two-story mathematics and sciences addition, technology building, physical education complex including gymnasium, and combined telecommunications center and large-group forum.

If bids are accepted by the Orange Coast College trustees construction on these buildings will begin in August with an 18-month completion target.

The trustees have already approved working drawings on the college's fifth increment. It consists of a 300-seat little theater, an addition to the law enforcement facility to house the police academy, and a two-story addition to the college center to expand food services, student government and student activities offices.

Meanwhile, architects William L. Pereira and Associates are updating the college's master plan to handle an ultimate limit of 18,000 to 20,000 students. Original estimates put maximum enrollment at 10,000 students, but this has been long since approved.

Santa Ana Girl Killed

DUNLAP (UPI) — Michele Monahan, 20, Santa Ana, was killed Thursday on Highway 180 near Dunlap when she lost control of her small foreign car and ran off the highway.

'Barbershop Polls' Liked

County School Chief Seeks Okay for More

Orange County School Superintendent Robert Peterson is persisting today in seeking County Board of Education approval for more of his controversial "barbershop polls."

But the board Thursday voted to delay until Aug. 14 any decision on future polls which Peterson said would cost about $95 each.

The superintendent was sharply criticized by some board members in April for conducting a survey last October without board knowledge. That poll was conducted in 20 Orange County barbershops and only males were questioned.

Trustees also attacked wording used in the questionnaires. A total of 90 men — about 10 percent of them barbers — responded in the poll which Peterson said cost $50.

The superintendent had previously requested board approval of new surveys on June 26, but no action was taken. He promised he would include women in future questionnaires saying that some might be sent to beauty parlors.

He told the board at that time that he would conduct the periodic poll whether or not they approved them. He said he had the right under the California Education Code to conduct such surveys.

He plans to conduct the next survey in August.

He said the polls will include "questions in such problem areas as discipline, vandalism, drug abuse, minority rights, school taxes, vocational education, respect for law and authority, and teacher strikes."

"Owners or managers of at least four different types of commercial or professional establishments in carefully selected locations will be used in the surveys," he said.

Peterson promised that results this time will be available to "department personnel, district persons, the Board of Supervisors, Orange County legislators, the State Department of Education and the general public."

Last spring members of the board criticized him for withholding the results of the first poll for several months pending completion of hearings on sex education by the board.

Keep Newport Bay Green—Order Boating Crackdown

If the registration tag on the bow of any yachtsman's boat in Newport Bay is red, he will be in for some trouble, Harbormaster Al Oberg warned today.

The tag should be green.

Announcing a crackdown on expired boat registration tags and CF Numbers, Oberg said his men have begun citing boaters for the infractions, which can run a bail figure up to $50.

The crackdown, he said, was "our normal reaction after months of warnings and requests to boaters who haven't complied with the law."

He equated the need for current registration and license numbers with state motor vehicle requirements.

"If a police officer sees a car without license plates and stickers he'll stop the driver every time," he said.

Oberg has already started a plan to urge all yacht clubs and sailing organizations to require valid green registration stickers and CF numbers on all competing craft.

"At least it's a start toward having every boat in the harbor bearing fresh registration," he said.

Many offenders, especially owners of small boats in yacht club storage yards, have been notified by notes left on their boats by patrolmen.

"If they keep ignoring us," Oberg explained, "we have to start writing citations, and we've done a lot of it in the past few months."

Oberg stressed the importance of both the two-year green registration tag and the CF numbers.

"We have scores of lost or stolen boats recovered by our men each year, and if they don't have the numbers on the hull it's difficult returning the vessels to their owners. It's an absolutely essential means of identification," he said.

Information on obtaining current registration is available through the harbormaster's office at 1901 Bayside Drive.

First Mass In State Recalled

A St. Anne's day mass was to be celebrated this morning at Lambert Reservoir to commemorate the first mass of record in California 200 years ago. The site is just east of the U.C. South Coast Agriculture Field Station and north of El Toro U.S. Marine Base.

On Saturday, July 26, 1769, the mass of St. Anne was offered for a 200-man expeditionary force under Capt. Gaspar de Portola, which had set out from San Diego for Monterey Bay.

At today's ceremonies, jointly sponsored by the State of California Orange County Bicentennial Committee, the Irvine Co. and St. Cecilia Parish of Tustin, Judge Raymond Thompson, chairman of the Orange County Bicentennial Committee, was to speak briefly, dressed in early Spanish costume.

Preceding the Mass, brief ceremonies scheduled for 10 a.m., were held at the site of the historical marker. The marker points out that the site was christened "San Pantaleon" and that Padre Gomez discovered a spring nearby.

'Odd New Strains'

Minireligions' Make Scene

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
NEW YORK (AP) — In a world of minicars, miniskirts and minirebellions, the environment today also is producing an assortment of minireligions.

That's the term which a New York publisher applies to various devotional divergencies now showing up in American culture. Church scholars and sociologists also have cited an upsurge of odd new strains of religiosity.

It's a reaction against scientific rationalism and a "search for nonrational ways of coping," says Dr. Holmes Welch, research associate of the Center for the Study of World Religions at Harvard University.

Referring to the variety of curious religious-like manifestations now current, which depart from conventional faiths, Melvin L. Arnold, president of Harper and Row, told a recent meeting of religious publishers: "Minireligion may be exerting more influence today than traditional religions. Perhaps we may have been focusing too narrowly up to now in assuming religion meant only the standardized, traditional kinds." He noted the rising popularity of astrology, spiritual mediums, the widespread cult of escapism in drugs, the cult of violence, and the heavily accented cult of sex.

"We are inundated and drowning in what the Greeks called the religion of Eros," he said of the contemporary sex obsession.

The Rev. Andrew M. Greeley, a Catholic sociologist of the University of Chicago, says the modern generation, in revolt against scientism, is so intrigued by the sacred that it "on the way to becoming superstitious."

"The popularity of witchcraft and astrology, contemplation and mysticism, vegetarian diets and the tarot cards shows how obsessed with the sacred some of the younger generation really is," he writes. A church historian, the Rev. Dr. Martin E. Marty, of the University of Chicago Divinity, also ticks off a list of some of the proliferating "world of private religious expression," saying: "America, 1969, has millions of advocates, devotees or half-believers in astrology, the cabala, drugs, ESP, fortune-telling, horoscopes, I Ching, Karma, LSD, mysticism, nirvana, occultisms, peyote, quietism, reality therapy, seances, T-groupism, Upanishads, the void, witchcraft, xylomancy, yoga and Zen."

In addition, there are "126 nationalisms, the religions of communism and free worldism, F Black Power, of left and right," Dr. Marty told the meeting of the Religious Publishers Group of the American Book Publishing Council.

There also are the spreading "charismatic" groups, stressing glossolalia, or speaking with tongues, the Spiritual Frontiers Fellowship, investigating parapsychological phenomena, the crowded Soka Gakkai meditation centers on the West Coast.

Back a few years ago, Dr. Marty noted, some theologians were talking about the world moving into a secular era of "postreligious man and postreligious culture," but instead, he said there are signs of a "new religiousness."

A National Survey of Rising Food Prices

U.S. NEWS AND WORLD REPORT

High and rising prices for fresh meat are straining food budgets of American families everywhere.

A check of food prices in eight major cities in mid-July found cuts of beef and pork to be the major items that are consistently and substantially higher in price than a year earlier.

In Washington, D.C., round steak was $1.69 a pound, up 20 cents from a year ago, in markets of a grocery chain that provided price comparisons for the "U.S. News and World Report" survey.

An Atlanta chain was selling chuck roast at 75 cents a pound, an increase of 6 cents over July, 1968. Sirloin steak was $1.49 in Chicago, up 20 cents, and in Houston pork chops were $1.19, an increase of 10 cents.

OFFICIAL FIGURES confirm that the price of meat is the major factor in higher food costs to U.S. families. The Government's latest cost-of-living report shows that the amount spent on food eaten at home has increased by 3.6 percent in the past year. Price increases for meat, which makes up 25 percent of the average family food budget, were much greater than the increase for all foods. As examples, round steak had increased in price by 10.2 percent, hamburger by 10.7 percent, pork chops by 5 percent.

There appears to be little grumbling about the higher meat prices. In San Francisco, a supermarket spokesman reported:

"We're selling more meat at higher prices. I haven't seen any change in buying habits, such as switching to cheaper cuts."

IN PORTLAND, porterhouse steak was reported to be bringing $1.75 a pound, boneless top sirloin, $1.98, and the cheapest grade of hamburger, 65 cents.

Said a buyer who handles meat purchases for a major chain:

"It's wild. We're actually having trouble keeping enough choice cuts in stock to satisfy customer demand."

"People have more income and they have developed an appetite for steaks and roasts."

A Detroit housewife took this view:

"I still buy pretty much what I did a year ago. If you buy the cheaper cuts, there's just more fat and bone to throw away."

Some resistance on the part of buyers was reported by an official of a Chicago chain, who said:

"Beef is coming down a bit for the summer months, but I expect it to go right back up again for Labor Day and thereafter. I doubt that prices will go much higher than at present because of consumer resistance. The gals have a lot of clout, you know."

LIVESTOCK MARKET experts of the U.S. Department of Agriculture note that prices of choice cattle had eased off to as low as $31 a hundredweight in mid-July.

Despite the lower cattle prices, the retail price of beef is expected to hold around current levels. This reason is given: The full impact of higher cattle prices in recent months has not been passed on to consumers. Thus, retailers will tend to keep prices where they are to make up for the smaller margin on which they have been operating.

Over all, Government economists look for some easing of beef and pork prices during the rest of 1969. But they expect no sharp drop in these prices as long as consumer buying power is maintained at present levels.

Housewives trying to hold down food budgets say they are finding bargains harder than usual to come by.

IN SOME CITIES, eggs were reported to be cheaper in mid-July than a year ago, but in others they were higher in price. Eggs were down 10 cents a dozen in New York, up 12 cents in Los Angeles.

While food costs are rising, so are family incomes. The average family is expected to spend 17.2 percent of its income after taxes on food in 1969. That is the same as in 1968, and the lowest in U.S. history.

SLEEPING

What It Is, How to Do It Best

By IRWIN ROSS, Ph.D.
Health Magazine

People have done weird things to enhance sleep. In the Middle Ages men shaved their heads to avoid having nightmares. Charles Dickens carried a compass when traveling and always made sure his bed lay north and south. He thought a flow of polar magnetism made for better sleeping. Benjamin Franklin used four beds, switching from one to another when he became too warm. Today our stores sell hundreds of sleep-inducing gadgets.

One of the best aides to proper sleeping is an understanding of sleep itself. What is it? What happens to us when we sleep?

Sleep is the exit of consciousness. The higher brain centers go into temporary retirement to recuperate and repair. It is as if the nerve connections to the cortical centers of the brain had been pulled out like plugs from a telephone switchboard. But the unconscious self continues its activities. Involuntary muscular activities such as digestion and respiration remain in business, and the unconscious personality continues to manifest itself in dreams.

SLEEP IS A normal, one might say a preferred, condition of the human being. It is only a continued bombardment of stimuli which keeps us awake — stimuli such as light, sound, muscle activity, hunger, worry, and anxiety.

While we sleep, some interesting physical changes take place. For example, we get taller. The vertebrae in our spines, which have settled down on cushions of cartilage during the day, stretch out as we lie supine on our beds. We may gain a quarter of an inch or more.

Perspiration increases during sleep. Our absorption of oxygen increases. Our temperature goes down about a degree and a half, reaching its lowest point between 1:00 and 3:00 a.m. Many of our secretions decrease, such as the mucus of the nose and pharynx, the urine, and tears. This explains why we rub our eyes when we are sleepy. The secretion of tears is already slowing down.

Sleep is not only a need, but a demand, of the mind and body. The most thorough barrage cannot keep soldiers awake when they have gone without sleep for 48 hours. Deprivation of sleep was used during the Middle Ages as one of the cruellest of all tortures. Dogs deprived of sleep die in nine to 17 days.

If sleep is in so great demand, how do we account for the insomnia? Even when the physical conditions for sleep are perfect, the insomniac tosses and turns in a cruel torment of wakefulness. What's wrong?

The answer is that the bombardment of stimuli which keeps us awake is a two-directional barrage. It comes from within as well as without. The insomniac is able to still the bombardment of outside stimuli, but he fails to silence the salvos within himself. He cannot sleep because the guns of worry are sounding within his own mind.

THERE ARE two types of insomnia: inability to fall asleep in the first place, and a tendency to wake up in the middle of the night or early morning.

The first type (which usually is more severe) is a "state of alertness." It is as if one were unable to call it a day, unable to close shop. His fears that he may have done the wrong thing, or that fortune may turn against him — all the fears we commonly call "worries"—keep him in a state of alertness.

The second type of insomnia — interrupted sleep — often has disturbed rhythm as a major cause. Sleep, especially for the very young and those from middle age onward, has a habit quality closely linked to rhythmic repetition. Napping after dinner, or keeping irregular hours, often will disturb this rhythm and cause irritating breaks in sleep.

In nearly all cases of insomnia, the fear of sleeplessness is far worse than sleeplessness itself. I have seen repeated cases in which men and women bitterly complain, "I can't go on like this. I know something dreadful is going to happen to me — I just can't sleep at all!"

BUT SUCH PERSONS actually sleep a good deal more than they think they do. Often they could get along very well on the amount of sleep they are getting if only they did not worry about it. There is, of course, something eerie, lonely, and depressing about the still darkness of night. Thirty minutes of wakefulness in the middle of the night can seem like 30 hours. But numerous observations of insomniacs have shown that they are in a state of sleep or half-sleep most of the night. "I didn't sleep a wink last night" usually indicates a fitful or unsatisfactory sleep, but it is rarely to be taken literally.

Opposite the insomniacs are oversleepers. Perhaps you know a friend who sleeps 10 to 12 hours a night, who finds it impossible to drag himself out of bed in the morning. Psychiatrists have pretty definitely nailed this type of sleep habit as a "flight from reality." The over-sleeper is using sleep as a refuge or an escape.

Sleep requirements are as individual as food requirements. While eight hours is a good average, do not think that there is anything wrong if you require nine hours or do well on six. Some of the more dynamic characters of history, such as Napoleon, Frederick the Great, Schiller, Humboldt, and Edison, did well on four to five hours.

We reach our deepest sleep at the end of the first hour. This continues until the end of the third-hour, and then our sleep becomes progressively lighter until we awaken. At Colgate University, Donald A. Laird discovered that people who awakened at the end of four hours of sleep were in just as good condition as those who slept eight hours. They had gained the full benefit of the deep-sleep period.

THE NAP, or siesta, has proved its worth not only in the hot countries but among many businessmen in cooler climates who are able to sneak in an hour of shut-eye after lunch. The axiom, regarded as medically sound, is that an hour's nap during the day cuts two hours off your sleep requirements at night. Among history's more famous nappers have been Benjamin Franklin, Theodore Roosevelt, and Winston Churchill.

Doctors as well as laymen have dozens of do's and don'ts for better sleeping. Of the many suggestions encountered in the preparation of this article, the following are the golden nine:

1. Sleep in a flat, firm bed. If it sags in the middle, a piece of plywood inserted between the spring and the mattress may improve it.
2. Sleep alone. Husbands and wives who sleep in the same bed (87 per cent of married couples do) may not realize how much they disturb each other's sleep. Photographic tests show that the average sleeper shifts position 40 times in eight hours.
3. Stretch out when you sleep, flexing the knees slightly. But do not "curl up in a ball." Also, do not worry about the old wheeze that sleeping on the left side strains the heart. It does not.
4. If you tend to wake up hungry during the night, try crackers and milk before retiring.
5. Never take sleeping pills without specific instructions from a physician. You may not need them, and they can be dangerous.
6. Do not try to doze back for "another

Ben Wicks in Vacation Land

40 winks" after you awaken in the morning. Your mind and body have had all the sleep they need. Get out of bed and make use of your time.

7. If you have trouble falling asleep, try a tepid bath at bedtime. Water should be 92 to 97 degrees. Take a leisurely, prolonged bath — soak for 30 minutes. When you emerge from the bath, dry yourself gently to preserve your feeling of relaxation.

8. Read a nonexciting, restful book in bed if you have difficulty dropping off to sleep. Do not lie awake and mull over your worries of the day.

9. Keep regular hours. Adults who go to bed regularly between 11 and midnight and arise between 7 and 8 a.m. have the best chance for pleasant, refreshing sleep.

View From Above Under-30 Group Not That Potent

By CHARLES F. ADAMS

As I watch television and read magazines and attend movies these days, I sometimes wonder if anybody besides myself is over thirty. There seems to be a conscious denial of middle age — and certainly of old age.

I recently went through a large national consumer magazine — and of 48 models used in the ads, only two could conceivably have been over thirty-five. One of these looked about thirty-six. I watched a weekend of football on television a month or so ago, and I saw very little except kids, singing and vibrating and dancing at me. Fine looking kids, to be sure, but kids. When a Pontiac commercial finally came on and an old-timer named Frank Sinatra tottered into view, he looked more like an ancient soothsayer than the sharpest, swiftest member of my generation. If you think I'm kidding, take a look for yourself. Perhaps advertising people have come to the conclusion that middle age is obscene.

Youth seems literally to overpower the American landscape and to dominate the news. We see the young intellectuals taking over, if not the universities, at least the university facilities. We see them battling the establishment in loud and angry voices. We hear them crying for the new and untold. We fear them as a bewildering and bewildered political force as well as a growing and volatile power in the marketplace.

AND WHILE youth is flexing its muscles and making itself so noticeable, what do we hear of middle-aged America? Not all that much. Older America just quietly goes on running the machines, driving the trucks, operating the businesses, electing the presidents, making the money, spending the money, and running the country.

In light of the excitement that youth creates and the vitality that the statistics and facts about youth generate, it is little wonder that the lure of youth has been great for the marketer. Youth-oriented market planning and youth-oriented products, and youth-oriented advertising have glamour and pizzazz and a "right now" feeling to it. It's an easy sale and a safe bet.

And it is little wonder, either, that it is so easy to overlook the fact that older America — far less interesting, far more sedate, far less exciting, far more complacent — is still in charge, not only of the levers of power, but of the overwhelming majority of America's purchasing power.

"Under-thirty" has been the catch phrase to describe the youth market. But I would like to suggest that if it is valid to isolate the market that has been on this earth thirty years or less, then it might be equally valid to look at the market that has thirty years or less to go — the over forty-five market. I believe that an examination will reveal that it is, indeed, "the generation at the top" — at the top not only of the demographic chart, but at the top in its power in the marketplace.

HERE ARE SOME broad-gauge facts to think about.

1. The "under-thirty" segment accounts for only about 25 percent of all spending in the U.S. The "thirty-to-go" segment spends some 50 percent of all U.S. dollars.
2. Only 14 percent of all U.S. households are headed by a member of the "under-thirty" market — 56 percent are headed by the "thirty-to-go" market.
3. Incomes over $10,000 are relatively rare under thirty — but nearly one in three in the over forty-five group earns more than $10,000.
4. Households headed by persons under thirty account for only 7.8 percent of the spending in the United States — and the under thirty bracket is responsible for only a third of all furniture and appliance buying. Of the 80 million cars on the road, teenagers own a mere 1.5 million — most of them used.

Mr. Adams is president of a Michigan advertising agency. This is an excerpt from a speech he delivered to the Dallas Advertising League.

5. A far higher percentage of the far greater income in the over forty-five market is available for discretionary spending — when the children are no longer at home and the mortgage has been either eliminated or reduced. The older market travels more, lives better, and purchases higher quality products.

6. While the under-thirty market, measured by heads of households, will enjoy great growth between now and 1975, it will then top out. It will represent a peak total of only 13 percent of all U.S. households and will do only 12 percent of the nation's total spending.

7. The "thirty-to-go" market will, before too much time, be the "thirty-five-to-go" or even the "forty-to-go" market. Medical science is lengthening the lifespan constantly. Even at sixty-five, the average American has a life expectancy of 15 years. A full 15 percent of all couples over sixty-five have assets in excess of $15,000 — as well as incomes that are largely tax exempt and almost entirely discretionary. And this top of the mature market is increasing at a rate of 300,000 a year, now totaling almost 20 million, with a total purchasing power of more than 40 billion dollars.

PERHAPS I'M prejudiced, because in four years I'll be a member of the "thirty-to-go" market. But I feel that this is, indeed, "the generation at the top" — at the top of its form in power and influence, in income and spending ability, in health and vigor, and in judgment and outlook.

Emotion Isn't Sole Ingredient

The escalating cycle of disruption and reprisal on campus must be stopped. It must be stopped because, as it grows, it will eventually destroy all reason. It must be stopped because unless it is stopped it will destroy us all — students, faculty and administration alike — with impersonal inhumanity.

The creative life of the mind is built in part on soaring emotion and in part on rigid discipline. This mixture is volatile, explosive, and must be handled with great care.

Use reason to root out injustice, and use emotion to sustain your commitment. Not the other way around; for when emotion is used to root out injustice and reason is employed to justify a commitment to violence, the disaster of holy war is only a step away.

Our Man in San Francisco

The Great Speckled Tourist Arrives

By HERB CAEN

SAN FRANCISCO — Don't look now, but I think the long-delayed tourist season is on at last — and high time, too. For a while there, it looked as though the Camera-Breasted Seersucker had gone the way of the Monterey sardine and the Bay shrimp, and don't think there weren't a lot of worried people around town. Tourism is our No. 1 industry, No. 2 being testimonial dinners for people you never heard of, and without tourists, we're in worse shape than a pregnant belly-dancer.

Their absence in June caused a new wrinkle to appear on Mayor Alioto's noble dome: but why was the tourist refusing to take the bait? Was he leaping upstream to spawn in clearer waters? Had all those people who left their hearts in San Francisco gone elsewhere for a transplant? Were the wayward busts of Bawdway no longer a two-pronged attraction?

Dunt esk. Nobody knew.

JUNE WAS a bust but things began picking up in July. The first official sighting occurred at 1:03 p.m. on July 3 at Powell and Geary. "There's one now!" cried Sam the Flower Man, focusing his binoculars on a Yellow-Sweatered Loafer carrying two Instamatics, a map and an out-of-date guidebook — a true 10-pointer.

Sam thrust a rose into his hand, a kid stuffed a Berkeley Barb into his pocket, and Mr. Alioto appeared in a puff of smoke to hand him the keys to the city.

"Who needs keys?" said the tourist doubtfully. "I thought this was a wide-open town."

Three streetwalkers arose from a manhole and led him away for a massage from Garcia, one of the best.

The season became official at 4:33 p.m. on Mission near Third, where a station wagon bearing Michigan plates was towed away.

A LOT OF ridiculous theories have been advanced about the slow-starting season. Some experts claim it was all publicity about California sliding into the sea, to which I say pish-tosh. The only thing this state is sliding into is bankruptcy, and anyway, suppose it DID slide into the sea? Who'd want to miss a sight like that? It only comes once in a lifetime.

Other sages believe it was the earthquake scare, which is likewise silly. All our big buildings are earthquake-proof, and if they aren't, it's time we found out.

Then there was the bad publicity about S.F. State, described in news stories as a "streetcar campus"; this led some Easterners to think the campus is downtown and that they might have their wires yanked by some guy wearing a tam o' shanter. S.F. State isn't downtown, strangers. It's WAY out.

Black Panthers, murders in the Hashbury, muggings in the Park — all these things have sullied the S.F. image, too, but I still say you're more likely to be injured by a tourist driving through a red light while trying to find the street sign that isn't there.

QUESTION: Why should I list my house exclusively with one of you brokers. I have never understood this. It would seem to me that if I listed my property "openly" with many different brokers, that they would work on it harder; inasmuch as I am agreeing on what you call an open listing to pay a commission to the selling broker, he is protected.

Also, with an open type listing to several different brokers I can still sell the property myself, which is a definite advantage to me. And the first broker that comes to me with a buyer is the one that gets the commission.

Again, it seems to me that this would be a real incentive for them to really push my property; and yet, most of your realtors are not interested in this open type listing. You want exclusives. Why should I give an exclusive listing to a broker? What are the advantages to me?

B. B. Newport Beach

ANSWER: From the owner's point of view, there are positive advantages. When he gives one broker exclusive agency, he has a right to expect vigorous sales effort. He anticipates results, for no broker should accept an exclusive listing unless he believes that he can successfully promote the sale. If the broker fails, he runs the risk of incurring ill will which will be detrimental to his business. The broker accepts not only the opportunity of earning a commission but also the duty of giving the owner the best results possible.

When a broker has an exclusive contract, he is justified in spending time and money to locate logical buyers and negotiate a sale. He can afford to advertise the property, and if desired he can offer it through other realtors, thereby giving the owner a special service which includes both individual preferred attention and wide market distribution.

It is vastly better for the broker to concentrate on properties the sale of which he controls, for then he is assured of fair compensation for his services. No sane salesman would go on the road and take orders for goods without definite knowledge that he could make delivery. Exclusive listing gives the broker assurance that the property he is selling can be delivered at a definite price and upon pre-established terms.

The advantages of exclusive listing are summarized in a leaflet prepared by the Brokers Institute for distribution by its members. The mailing piece contains this definition:

EXCLUSIVE LISTING is the modern sales plan recommended by the National Association of Real Estate Boards. You give the realtor of your choice exclusive authority and responsibility for prompt, satisfactory sale of your property. He becomes your personal representative and you get preferred attention and expert service from start to finish.

Subsequent paragraphs tell why exclusive listing is the "fastest way to sell your real estate at fair market value."

PREFERRED ATTENTION. When you authorize a realtor to sell your property as your exclusive representative, you are "first in line" when he shows real estate to the qualified buyers he locates through advertising and personal sales contacts.

ACTIVE SALES EFFORT. The realtor shares your desire to sell the property quickly, at the best price obtainable. He uses his experience, information and facilities to advertise your property effectively and to close the sale.

REAL SELLING POWER. With assurance that the property can be delivered at a definite price, your exclusive agent can offer it through other brokers — giving you a special service with real selling power.

7-acre Site

Rancho California Signs New Company

Products Engineering Corporation of Los Angeles will construct a 15,000 square foot manufacturing facility on a seven acre site in the new industrial park at Rancho California in southwest Riverside County, the ranch company has announced.

The new plant will turn out a variety of measuring products and typewriter accessories, augmenting the company's present production facilities at its main plant in Los Angeles.

E. James Murar, Rancho California president, said that this brings to seven the total number of manufacturing plants completed or in process of development at the Rancho California Industrial Park. When all are in full operation the total payroll for the area should exceed 500.

L. A. Spiveak, president of Products Engineering Corp., estimated that the new plant will employ 50 people, most of whom will be hired from the southwest Riverside County and North San Diego County areas.

The first of the seven industrial firms in operation was Ardee Machine and Design Co. which employs 50.

What Does The Bible Say About Salvation?

God PLANNED Christian salvation BEFORE he created the Earth! Eph. 1:3-4, 1 Pet. 1:19-20, Titus 1:2. God created all things for His pleasure, Rev. 4:11 (King Jax. Bible). This is LOGICAL; that one would create good things for his OWN pleasure, Gen. 1:31. God never intended ANY creature to become EVIL, but he gave his creatures this CHOICE. How else could God have PLEASURE in the OBEEDIENCE of his creatures (if DISOBEEDIENCE were IM-POSSIBLE)? Satan and certain angels became EVIL and disobeyed in Heaven, rebelling against God, Rev. 12:7-9, Jude 6. God KNEW rebellion would take place among men, His creatures on Earth (since they were FREE to rebel). Hence, He planned in advance a Christian way of salvation? Have you learned of God's plan? HARBOR ELEGANCE — Interior elegance and outdoor proximity are the elements of design which go into the making of Harbor View Homes. The popular Newport Beach community has just announced the sale of its 300th home in as many days.

Fastest Selling

Leadership Held By Harbor View

Harbor View Homes continue to maintain its leadership position as one of the fastest-selling new home developments in Orange County with the announcement of the sale of the 300th home within as many days.

The announcement was made by Duffie Fryling, sales manager for Harbor View Homes. "Our sales people are pretty proud of our sale-a-day rate," Fryling went on to say. "We figure we've got the best product for the money in Newport Beach. And the way homes have been selling here, it's obvious that people agree with us. We've already begun work on a new unit."

Fryling cited location and the homes themselves as key reasons for Harbor View Homes' enviable sales record. The homes are literally "in the middle of everything" in Newport Beach. Balboa Bay is less than a ten minute drive from Harbor View Homes. So are some of California's most beautiful beaches. Closer still is the renowned Fashion Island shopping center. To the east lies the campus of UC Irvine; again, just a matter of minutes away.

Yet the Donald L. Bren Co., builders of Harbor View Homes, have managed to create a secluded neighborhood in the heart of desirable Orange County. Harbor View Homes has its own identity as a community. Homes fronting quiet, safe streets are clustered around a wide central park which bisects the neighborhood. The park widens to include a large playground adjacent to the neighborhood's elementary school site. Another focal point is the residents' private recreation club (complete with Olympic-sized pool) which is now open. The homes are emblematic of individuality in design and interior styling. They have gained nationwide recognition for architectural excellence. 2, 3, 4 and 5-bedroom homes in one and two-story plans are available. Each plan provides a number of exclusive features which qualify Harbor View Homes for a custom homes category. Yet prices (by Newport Beach standards) remain exceptionally reasonable: $27,995 to $38,995.

Harbor View Homes are located at Ford Road and MacArthur Blvd. in Newport Beach. Take the San Diego or Newport Freeway to the MacArthur Blvd. off-ramp, and drive south to Ford Road. Or, take Coast Highway to MacArthur Blvd. and turn north. The models are on display daily from 10:00 to 6:00 p.m.

Bind Told In Homes Purchase

Philip N. Brownstein, former federal housing commissioner and assistant secretary of housing and urban development for mortgage credit, told a Senate subcommittee that, even with federally-subsidized interest payments, the sky-rocketing costs of land, labor, materials and financing have made it "virtually impossible" for low-income families to purchase homes in many of the nation's cities.

Brownstein, who is now Washington representative and counsel for the Council of Housing Producers, urged enactment of an amendment to the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 which would give HUD Secretary George Romney authority to raise the mortgage limits on homes for persons of low incomes by as much as 45 percent in high-cost areas. The Council of Housing Producers is an organization of America's 15 largest professional home builders.

Brownstein pointed out that currently the mortgage ceiling in high-cost areas under the act's Section 235 can be increased to a maximum of $17,500. This, he said, is inadequate under today's market conditions.

"The council fully supports the housing goals of the act, and is willing and anxious to offer all of its energy and resources to make those goals a reality," Brownstein said.

"But they will be achievable only if all of those in responsible roles are willing to commit fully to achieve the objectives. This will mean at the Federal level full funding of the subsidized programs and the elimination of those constraints which are keeping the programs from realizing their full potential."

In the field of multifamily housing, he urged that Romney's authority for increasing mortgage limits in high-cost areas be raised to 60 percent.

Among other recommendations, Brownstein also called for:

—Removal of a restriction under Section 235 of the Housing Act which prevents one eligible family from selling its home with a subsidized mortgage rate to another eligible family.

"The effect of this restriction is to deprive the low-income family of one of the basic attributes of home ownership — salability," Brownstein told the senators. "It saddles each family with a home not marketable to the great mass of prospective buyers of that type of property — other low-income families."

—Funding of an already authorized program offering counseling services to families who have little or no experience in the budgeting of income to meet monthly mortgage payments was also urged.

Complex Opened in Costa Mesa

A recent Edison Company champagne opening celebrated the completion of the first half of the Villa Pomona, a 130-unit apartment complex in Costa Mesa.

The all-electric meditation bachelor, one and two-bedroom apartments, located at the corner of Pomona and Park Avenues, were constructed by Newport Beach builders and developers Dick Jordan and Donald Ward.

The Pomona Investment Group, comprised of 10 Orange County professional men, owners of the apartments, were also present to toast the 100 percent occupancy of the furnished apartments.

Developer Ward said that he and Jordan will complete the second 65-units of the Villa Pomona, beginning in July. Scheduled is a second pool and cabanas.

Farrow Realty Corp., headquartered in Garden Grove, has named three new office managers, according to Jerry Farrow, president.

Newport Beach resident Ron Roman has assumed management of Farrow's Tustin office. He was formerly manager of another Orange County real estate firm, and from 1958 to 1964 owned his own swimming pool company.

Charles Hensley of Garden Grove has been appointed manager of Farrow's West Anaheim office. Bob Brockman of Anaheim, has been named manager of the Garden Grove office.

Farrow Realty Corp. is Orange County's largest realty organization

The Baycrest Homes in Newport are a beautiful reflection of the combined talents of the J. H. Biggar decorator-furnishings firm and builders Ivan Wells and Sons. Both organizations enjoy a long-standing reputation in the Southland for their quality workmanship.

The Baycrest homesites are located in the natural beauty of Newport Harbor's famed West Bluff, in exclusive Dover Shores. The "Forever View" of this choice property affords a panoramic picture of the Pacific Ocean, Saddleback Mountain and the surrounding foothills, with the bay directly below. Ingenious designing has captured the "Forever View" by the generous use of glass on the view side of each home.

Two model homes have been built on typical view sites. Each of the homes is handsomely decorated and furnished by J. H. Biggar, Santa Ana, Biggars, with locations in Santa Ana, Pasadena and Pomona, has been one of the outstanding firms in its field in Southern California since 1928.

The builders, Gene and Don Wells, represent an organization with more than forty-five years of home construction experience. Their custom-building know-how has been demonstrated in both Beverly Hills and Bel Air.

Rockwell's New Plant Dedicated

County flood control and road projects in the immediate vicinity of the mammoth North American Rockwell Corp. plant being built here were dedicated at simple ceremonies attended by civic and business leaders of the South Coast area.

The dedication was held at the intersection of Aliso and La Paz roads, two of the roads included in the planned network of thoroughfares that will provide access to the plant from the freeway, Laguna Niguel and neighboring communities. Cost of construction so far completed is estimated at $2 million.

Master of ceremonies for the occasion was D. C. Freeburg, director of facilities and industrial engineering for Autonetics in Laguna Niguel. Principal speakers were Supervisor Alton E. Allen of the fifth district, Al Koch, Orange County Flood Control district, Woody Linton, general manager of the Marland Corp. and Carl Kymka, general manager of the Moulton Niguel Water District.

Contractors involved in the flood control and road projects were Altifilisch-Fulton Co., Ecco Construction, Kelly Corkhill, Bob Skamnes, Sully-Miller, J. E. Robinson Co., and Griffith Co.

Rights of way for the projects were donated by the Laguna Niguel Corp. North American Rockwell Corp. and other developing companies, together with several individual owners of property.

Representing Laguna Niguel Corp. and the ceremonies were Knowlton Fernald Jr., vice president in charge of architecture and engineering, and Larry Lizotte of the firm's engineering department.

Multi-million Project Apartment Firm Set for County

Recent formation of Harcliff, a development company with headquarters in Santa Ana, has been announced by the two principals of the new firm, Harold Hirsch and Clifford Everman, both of whom have long been associated with the home building industry in the Southland.

Prior to the formation of Harcliff, Hirsch was responsible, as a principal of the Hirsch-Edmunds Building Co., for the construction of approximately 15,000 housing units, comprising single-family residential developments, condominiums and other multiple unit projects.

Everman has built several thousand single family homes in the past years in Orange County, and has also developed a number of luxury apartment projects including the 526-unit Loma Palisades in San Diego and the San Piper in Palm Desert. He was also involved in the construction of some 900 single family and multiple unit residences in Las Vegas.

Hirsch and Everman announced that Harcliff will be primarily concerned with the development of apartment complexes throughout Orange County and has already embarked on a multi-million dollar program, with 790 units under construction in three large luxury projects; two in Santa Ana and one in the city of Orange.

The Santa Ana projects are the Colony Bristol, a 274-unit development expected to be completed in early August, and the 266-unit Colony East which will be ready some time in October.

Orange Square, in the city of Orange represents a unique concept of apartment design, as the 250 units which will eventually comprise the development are planned as a series of individual, four-apartment buildings, ideal for the owner-investor. Apartments will range in size from one to three bedrooms, and both one and two-story buildings will be available. Private balconies and patios are included, and air-conditioning systems head the long list of luxury features in all units. First buildings are now under construction, with occupancy scheduled in September.

In addition to the three apartment projects now under way, having a value of over $9,000,000, Harcliff has plans for the construction of an additional 450 units this year, and is already planning for 700 more units to be built in 1970. All these units, Hirsch said, are to be built in Orange County.

Ann Landers

Shaking Hands Proves Painful

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband has arthritis in his right hand. When he meets people they invariably grab his hand and pump way. I have seen him nearly faint from the pain.

How can be let them know he can't shake hands without seeming unfriendly or ungracious?

—J's WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Your husband should quickly grab the other fellow's right hand with his left and say, "Sorry, I've got arthritis in the other one. . . ." No one will be offended.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am engaged to be married in the fall. My fiancée's aunt wants to give a huge kitchen and linen shower for me. Her plans are making me sick and I don't know what to do about it.

Yesterday Aunt V. handed me the guest list — about 70 women. At least half the names are of people I have never heard of. She asked if I'd like to add anyone. I told her no, but I'd like to take about 40 names off the list! She yelled, "Every woman on that list owes me something. I've been going to showers for 20 years and this is the only chance I will have to get even." When I tried to tell her gifts don't mean that much to me, she screamed, "Shut up and don't be a fool. This shower will save you at least $400."

My mother refuses to get involved. She says it's between me and Aunt V. Your advice would be appreciated.

— CAUGHT IN THE SWITCHES

DEAR CAUGHT: Ask your Aunt V. to remove from the guest list the names of the women you don't know. She can "get even" some other way. If she refuses, insist that she cancel the shower. The whole thing smells like an unclaimed shipment of mackerel.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Settle an argument, please. My husband won't believe me, but if he sees it in your column it might make a difference.

I love plants and keep two beautiful ficus pandoras in our living room. My husband insists that plants absorb the oxygen and rob us of healthy air. He is forever nagging me to get rid of the plants for the sake of our health.

I say the reverse is true — that the plants absorb the carbon dioxide thereby contributing to our good health. Who is right? And while you're at it, please tell me if cut flowers do the same thing.

— GREEN THUMB

DEAR G.: My authorities on botany say you are closer to being right than your husband. Actually plants use up carbon dioxide but the infinitesimal amounts of oxygen they give off wouldn't contribute much to anyone's good health.

Cut flowers do nothing, one way or the other.

CONFIDENTIAL TO CITY LIFE PRO OR CON: The question is, how ya gonna keep 'em down on the farm after they've seen the farm? Some farms are beautiful but the one you describe sounds like work, work, work.

Alcohol is no shortcut to success. If you think you have to drink to be liked by your friends, get the facts. Read "Booze and You — For Teenagers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 35 cents in coin and a long self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problem, send them to her in care of the DAILY PILOT, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You may find it more practical to work with one familiar with your habits — it is not the kind of day to break new ground.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You feel revitalized. Self-confidence returns. You know your abilities and successfully demonstrate them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your intuitive intellect works well. Study Leo message. Be yourself; avoid scattering efforts. Stick to practical issues.

Sophia Likes Russia But Misses Her Son

KHLEBNIKOV, Soviet Union (AP) — Sophia Loren likes movie making in Russia, but she misses her 7-month-old son.

"Now is the time they do so many things — tiny things — and I won't be able to see all that," the Italian actress said in an interview in this town just outside Moscow.

Asked how many teeth he had, her smile grew broader and she held up four slender fingers.

She left little Carlo Ponti Jr. in Rome two weeks ago and came here to shoot scenes for the movie "Sunflower," in which she is starring with Marcello Mastroianni.

"Sunflower," to be released next year, tells of an Italian woman's postwar trip to Russia to find her soldier husband.

Although a movie of hers has not been shown here since "Marriage Italian Style" four years ago, she said Russians on the street recognize her.

"They call me Sophia Filomena because Filomena was the character I played in that film," she added.

After a week of filming in the Ukraine starting Friday, she flies home to her baby.

LA Wins, 4-2; Jenkins Hurt

CHICAGO (AP) — Andy Kosco's pinch two-run double after starter Ferguson Jenkins had been knocked out of the game with a line drive off his pitching thumb launched the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 4-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs Friday.

With one out in the third, Maury Wills beat out an infield single for the first hit off Jenkins. Willie Crawford then smashed the ball off Jenkins' thumb and the big right-hander was forced to leave the game.

Hank Aguirre relieved Jenkins and after getting Willie Davis to force Crawford, Kosco battled for Len Gabrielson and doubled off the left field wall.

Bill Sudakis provided the rest of the Dodger offense. Sudakis slugged his fifth homer to open the fourth. In the fifth, Davis doubled and Sudakis drove him home with a single.

The injury to Jenkins was not believed serious but it came at a bad time for the Cubs. Ken Holtzman leaves for two weeks of military duty Saturday and Bill Hands has been sidelined with a strep throat.

Osteen, 13-8, staggered until Ernie Banks singled with one out in the eighth for the Cubs' 11th hit and was relieved by Jim Brewer.

The Cubs picked up a run in the first on singles by Don Kesinger, Billy Williams and Ron Santo but Osteen got Banks to hit into an inning-ending double play. Chicago added another in the eighth on a run-scoring double by Don Young.

Six of the Dodgers' 12 hits were of the infield variety but only the two which preceded Kosco's double figured in the scoring.

The Cubs, meanwhile, kept threatening throughout the game and the only clean inning pitched by Osteen was the second.

Chicago had two hits in the third and couldn't score and another double play killed off their chances in the fourth.

They finally scored again in the eighth after Osteen went out. Jim Hickman greeted Brewer with a single and Young doubled in the run. Brewer retired pinch batter Paul Popovich to end the inning and set down the Cubs in order in the ninth.

Woman Wins Fight to Land Umpire's Job

NEW YORK (AP) — A Long Island housewife won a three-year fight with organized baseball Friday and got a job as an umpire.

Bernice Gera, 37, of Jackson Height will report for work Friday in the Class A New York-Pennsylvania League.

"I am thrilled to death," Bernice said. "Now I must go out and prove myself. I see no reason why women shouldn't be able to umpire baseball as well as men."

Mrs. Gera, whose husband is a photographer, said the letter of her employment came from Vincent McNamara, president of the league with headquarters in Orchard Beach, N.Y.

Teams in the circuit are Corning, Batavia, Auburn, Geneva, Oneonta, Newark and Jamestown, all in New York and Williamsport, Pa.

Thwarted at every turn in efforts to break into a profession which has been restricted to men, Mrs. Gera filed a suit against the NY-Penn League, charging discrimination.

The suit never came to the courts. The league capitulated before the matter could be determined legally.

"I am sure some day we will have women umpires in the big leagues — and I hope to be the first," Bernice said.

Snead Still Tops Canadian, Logs 68 Card

MONTREAL (AP) — Unbelievable Sam Snead gave par another sound trouncing Friday in the Canadian Open Golf Championship and at the halfway mark of the 72-hole tournament still held a one-stroke lead.

The easy-going 57-year-old West Virginian fired a four-under-par 68, one stroke higher than he produced Thursday for a 135, nine under the Pingro course par for the two rounds.

Back of Snead at 136 came Roberto deVicenzo, 46-year-old senior from Argentina. DeVicenzo came up with a spectacular 67 to go with his first round 69.

Les Peterson of Riverside, Calif., 28-year-old newcomer to the tour since January, came in with a 68 for 138 and sole occupancy of third place.

All alone in fourth place at 139 was a surprisingly young Canadian, Vaughan Trapp of Victoria, B.C., who shot a two-underpar 70 in his second round.

Tony Jacklin of England, British Open champion, slipped a bit and took 71 for a 140. With him were Al Balding of Toronto and Takasaki Kono of Japan. Balding had a pair of 70s, and Kono came through with a second round 68.

Leaders after Friday's second round of the $125,000 Canadian Open Golf championship, par 144:

Sam Snead	67-68-135
Roberto de Vicenzo	68-67-135

all-time record of 61.

In the pitching department, Baltimore's Dave McNally won his 16th straight game, Bob Gibson struck out 11 in 13 innings and scored the winning run as St. Louis beat San Francisco, 2-1, and Denny McLain won his 15th game for Detroit.

McNally needs only two more victories to equal the American League single season mark of 16 in a row held jointly by Smokey Joe Wood, Walter Johnson, Lefty Grove and Schoolboy Rowe.

Old Men Wrecking Track---Flowers

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Richmond Flowers Jr., once one of America's finest high hurdlers, says he quit track for football because "a bunch of old men are killing track."

Flowers, a rookie pass receiver with the Dallas Cowboys, said Wednesday he wants to run the hurdles again but can't because he is now a professional.

"There's no turning back now because I've signed a professional contract," he sighed. "But I'd love to run track again in the off season. The only thing that's stopping me are the rules."

"Football and track are very different. There's no correlation between the two sports. And a bunch of old men are killing it with their rules."

The International Amateur Athletic Federation has long ruled that amateurs cannot receive money for competing in any sport. The American Amateur Athletic Union follows the IAAF rules.

Flowers signed a pro contract with the National Football League team after his senior season at Tennessee "because you can't make money running track."

"I'm not advocating they pay track athletes," Flowers said.

"You can be a professional football player and still compete in amateur golf tournaments. And an amateur tennis player can compete against a pro and still be considered an amateur."

"But track has never changed and those men are killing it. As long as they're in it, track will continue to die."

Another for Big Frank

Nicklaus Fires 2nd Straight 66 at Akron

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Big Jack Nicklaus, his awesome game once again in harness, blasted out his second consecutive 66 Friday and stormed into the 36-hole lead in the $125,000 American Golf Classic.

Ambitious Bobby Mitchell, who shared the first-round lead, broke the course record for 36 holes, shooting a two-under-par 68 in the morning round for a 133, seven under par on the gigantic 7,180 yard par 70 south course at the Firestone Country Club.

But that mark stood for only a few hours before falling again in the face of Nicklaus' swift striking assault. Big Jack finished at 132.

The Golden Bear, who started the bright sunny day four under par, rapped in a birdie on the first hole, caught Mitchell with an eagle on the 500-yard par 5 second and went in front with another bird on the fifth.

Frank Beard, one of the most feared competitors on the tour, and Ray Floyd trailed Mitchell at 135. Beard, the No. 3 money winner this year, had a 67 and Floyd a 68.

Gene Littler was alone at 137 after a second-round 69 while host pro Bobby Nichols and Masters champion George Archer were at 138 each after both shots 70s.

Terry Wilcox, who shared the first-round lead with Mitchell, went from a 65 to 74 for a 139.

U.S. Open champion Orville Moody carded a second consecutive 71. Julius Boros had a 70 for a 141, and Arnold Palmer rallied with a 68 for a 143. Dave Hill, winner of three of his last four starts, fell back with a 75 for a 144.

Second round scores Friday in the $125,000 American Golf Classic:

Messersmith Tosses 2-hitter At Yanks, 6-0

ANAHEIM — Andy Messersmith colared New York on two hits for his ninth victory in his last 11 decisions as the California Angels whipped the Yankees 6-0 Friday night.

Messersmith, 9-7, gave up a one out double to Jerry Kenney in the first inning — Kenney was later out trying to steal third — and a one out double to Jake Gibbs in the eighth. Messersmith cut short the last Yankee threat by striking out pinch-hitter Jimmy Hall and getting Horace Clarke on a fly.

Messersmith struck out five and walked six. He also helped the Angels to their first run in the third inning after Jim Spencer doubled off loser Fritz Peterson, 10-12. Messersmith singled him to third and Spencer scored on a groundout.

The Angels added five runs in the eighth off Lindy McDaniel as Jay Johnstone singled in two, Jim Fregosi tripped for one and two scored on errors.

SID GILLMAN SAYS O.J. SHOULD TRY TOROS

Agent to Blame Gillman Talks of O.J.'s Woes

By EARL GUSTKEY
 Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The belly laughs gurgled from coast to coast the other day when the San Antonio Toros of the Texas Football League made a $250,000 offer to O.J. Simpson.

But Sid Gillman, the coach and general manager of the San Diego Chargers, says he'd like to see Simpson accept the offer.

"I'd like to see O.J. barnstorm with that club," he says. "It would do O.J. good to discover what an expensive operation pro football is. From an owner's standpoint, pro football is a very poor investment and a player — especially a rookie — has no right to try and milk profits like O.J. and his agent are."

Gillman, encamped with his club at UCI, pins most of the trouble O.J. is having with Buffalo on the player's agent, Chuck Barnes.

"I love it when an agent comes into my office to talk contract. I hate to throw a football player out of my office but I'll throw an agent out. These guys are coming into the picture for what they can get themselves, not so much for what their clients will get."

"These characters are inconsiderate and unknowledgeable about football and a rookie who attaches himself to an agent is doing a disservice to himself and football."

The Texas team offered O.J. 80 percent of the net gate from its eight home games. The USC Heisman Trophy winner of last season hasn't come to terms with Buffalo, three weeks after pro football's rookies reported to camp.

Gillman says high-priced rookies like O. J. were mainly responsible for the Chargers' decline after winning the AFL championship in 1963. Charger owner Barron Hilton refused to shell out the kind of bonus money rookies like Donny Anderson and Mike Garrett were getting in the mid-1960s.

But since Gene Klein bought the club two years ago, the San Diegans are once again signing rookies.

"We went through a couple of years without signing a damn soul out of the draft," Gillman says.

"As a consequence, we ran out of bench strength. Last year, for instance, we ran out of linebackers. But now we're back on the beam and we'll be a contender this year — I'm sure of it."

In fact, Gillman surprisingly rates this club with his '63 juggernaut — one that many pro football observers say is the best ever out of the AFL.

"Our club this year will be on a par with that 1963 team — we have more depth now but the league as a whole is stronger, too. In 1963 we had a young Lance Alworth, a young Keith Lincoln and Paul Lowe and Ron Mix. Earl Faison and Ernie Ladd were interested in football in those days and were great that year."

It is a measure of the AFL's growth to hear Gillman rate the '69 Chargers the equal of the '63 bunch. But when you recall what transpired in the last Super Bowl game, you shouldn't be shocked.

McLain Wins 15th Aaron Slams 536th; Jackson Rips No. 38

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The game's more renowned hitters and pitchers shared the top billing Friday in Major League baseball action.

Hank Aaron of The Atlanta Braves belted his 536th career homer in the Braves' 8-7 loss to Montreal, tying Mickey Mantle for third place on the all-time home run roster.

And another slugger, Oakland's amazing Reggie Jackson, clouted his 38th of the season during the A's 4-3 victory over the Washington Senators.

Should Jackson hit two more round-trippers this month he'll enter August needing only 21 homers over the last two months of the season to tie Roger Maris'

ASHE MAKES SEMIS AT INDY TOURNNEY

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A comeback victory by Arthur Ashe Friday put him into today's semifinals against Charlie Pasarell of Puerto Rico, an upset winner over Stan Smith in quarter-final play at the National Clay Court Tennis Championship.

Clark Graebner of New York and top-seeded foreigner Zeljko Franulovic of Yugoslavia were the quarter-final winners in the other bracket of men's singles, and Nancy Richey of San Angelo, Tex., led the field which advanced to the women's singles semis.

The racing bug doesn't care whom he bites. In the Detroit Athletic Club, where once it was almost un-American to talk about competition automobiles, the white-haired squaw players gossip about lap times at Daytona trick engine parts for Indianapolis.

Suddenly, almost as if by signal, everybody in Michigan has gone nuts for auto racing, high performance, speed, call it what you will.

Ford and Chrysler have been in the game for awhile. They both compete in stock car and drag racing, and Ford is in just about every other form of competition there is.

American Motors leaped into America's motorized sandbox last year, and some August financial observers credit racing with changing AMC's image just in the nick of time. Out the back door by way of a Canadian subsidiary Pontiac helped a private Trans-American racing operation get started this season.

Although GM maintains almost a saintly "no racing" posture, more and more special Chevy engines are showing up everywhere. Chevy dominates road racing.

There seems to be no end of factory involvement, now that Detroit brass has discovered how popular racing is and how enthusiastic it makes not only automobile customers but also their own employees.

Early this year Chrysler made a deal with Andy Granatelli's STP Racing Team to campaign Indy cars with Plymouth engines providing the power. That deal has led to another less ballyhooed but equally interesting project for a different kind of racing.

Using much of the information learned in developing an engine for Granatelli, Plymouth will soon take to the SCCA Continental Grand Prix circuit with a formula A Eagle driven by a rather talented journeyman.

A 305 cu. in. Plymouth V8 will go in the Eagle single-seater owned by Wayne Jones, a Burbank, Cal., auto dealer. The driver is from Florida, Bill Eve, a three-year regular in the Canadian-American Challenge Cup series.

This is not to infer that the Jones-Eve operation is a "factory team," but it is helped significantly by Chrysler engineering data being gathered by the STP organization on the USAC champ trail.

Jones formed a private company and took in as partners two former McDonnell Douglas engineers, Bob Williams and Bill Kaiser, to complete development of the car. If they haven't erred in their calculations, Eve will have a 15-horsepower advantage when he first takes to the track in August.

First race for the Plymouth formula A will be either at Bridgehampton, N.Y., Aug. 3 or Thompson, Conn., Aug. 10.

Another semi-factory formula racing operation is being watched closely in Southern California, James Garner's American International Racing team — which uses Javelin engines provided by American Motors. There's no word when the Garner group will be ready, but it could be one of those same two events.

Cal State Student on Tour

Steve Smith, a student at Cal State Fullerton and an auto racing addict, is on tour with the NASCAR Grand National boys in the East. He made connections with some of the gentlemen who race on the circuit when they were in California for the rain-plagued Riverside 500, and they have taken him under their wing this summer.

Accustomed to the somewhat primitive conditions at tracks back home, Steve was quite impressed with a new plant at Dover, Del. This is what he wrote about it:

"Dover Downs is a beautiful new facility that opens the door for a new kind of major racing plant of the future."

"The track was completely computer designed, with slightly banked straightaways that lead into wide gentle banks, building up to 27 degrees, where the cars start to accelerate. Although it is a one-mile oval, the wide turns shorten the straightaways to put the whole show right in front of the spectators."

"The grandstand is completely glass enclosed and air conditioned. The first level is baseball stadium type of seating, going for $15 each, the second level has loge type theater seats costing $25 per person, and the third level is called the Diamond Lounge."

"In the Diamond Lounge you pay $50 a seat, you are seated at tables and are treated to a dinner of steak or lobster. You also are asked to make yourself at home at the bar, where you are entitled to all the drinks you want. Being that the pit area of the race track is not visible to the grandstand, another benefit of the Diamond Lounge is closed circuit TV broadcasting the pit action."

Steve reports the drivers are pleased with the track, David Pearson and Richard Petty agreeing there is no such thing as a fast groove through the turns. Outcome of the Dover race bore this out, he said, as Petty and Yarborough passed each other in the turns only, going high one time and low the next. Petty won.

SoCal Club Hit Hard

When SCCA recently took drastic action to upgrade safety of its race courses across the nation, it struck particularly hard at the California Sports Car Club, which stages events throughout Southern California.

Santa Barbara, where traditional Labor Day races have been held since 1954, may be lost to road racing. It isn't designed to accommodate changes demanded by SCCA. Cal Club must spend a great deal of money improving Willow Springs if it is to continue using that famous old club course.

Riverside is apparently okay, but is currently unusable due to construction. Les Richter, the boss there, chuckles and adds: "But they haven't inspected us yet."

That leaves Pomona, which hasn't been used for several years but would also require extensive safety improvements, and Holtville, which is safe for spectators, because nobody wants to go there.

Among the major tracks turned down by SCCA are Daytona Speedway and Continental Divide. If Indianapolis Motor Speedway were sanctioned by SCCA, it would also fall below the minimum safety standards — because spectators sit too close to the cars.

One Grid Assistant Remains With Akins

Laguna High School football coach Hal Akins will retain one varsity assistant from last season, Darrell McKibbin, while two other positions on the staff are yet to be filled.

A series of coaching resignations was the result of a dispute between the coaches and school principal Bob Reeves two months ago and Akins was left with only McKibbin from last season's staff.

Varsity assistants Ed Bowen and Norm Borucki resigned in the hassle, along with lightweight coaches Jerry Neumann and Warren Watkins. Track coach Jack Lythgoe, also the Cee coach, was fired. Akins says two coaches have been hired who will coach either the Bee or Cee teams — Bruce Morris, 30, and Charlie Reich, 33. Morris recently graduated from UCI and played service football with the El Toro Marines. Reich has taught at Thurston Junior High in Laguna. Another added to the staff is Tom Haas, 30, who has pro football kicking experience. Walt Lawson will coach in the lightweight program. Akins said.

Mater Dei, Santiago Advance

Mater Dei and Santiago high schools moved into the winner's bracket of the Foothill summer league basketball playoffs with first round wins Thursday night.

Mater Dei will meet San Clemente Tuesday night at 6:15 at Foothill High School after wrecking Mission Viejo, 64-37. San Clemente drew a bye.

And Santiago faces Tustin after nipping host Foothill, 49-46.

Mater Dei had little trouble with Mission Viejo, a team the Monarchs lost to by six in the regular season.

Scoring whiz Rudy Holmes and center Dan Kratz fouled out and with that went the Diablos hopes of another upset of the tall Monarchs.

Because of the loose footing you can expect on sand shots, it becomes a bit of a problem to properly turn the lower body to the left on your downswing. If you toe out your left foot on these shots, you will find it easier to move your body through the shot. Toeing out in this manner sort of pre-turns your hips to the left.

Toeing out also restricts your backswing. This, too, is desired on sand shots as an aid for better control. A restricted backswing will prohibit too much shifting of weight on to the right side.

The less you shift weight on sand shots—short of stifling good rhythm, of course—the less chance you will have of losing your balance.

Graham Says Other Days Top Apollo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Evangelist Billy Graham today took issue with his good friend, President Nixon, about the moon landing being the most important event in history.

In a telephone interview, Graham said he felt sure Nixon had not thought through all the implications of the statement he made Thursday in welcoming three U.S. astronauts back to earth.

Nixon said of the moon flight:

"This is the greatest week since the beginning of the world, the creation. Nothing has changed the world more than this mission."

The famous Baptist preacher listed "greater days" as: "1. The first Christmas, when the creator of the universe came to dwell among men on this planet in the person of Jesus Christ."

"2. The day on which Christ died for the sins of the world, reconciling God and man and making possible reconciliation among men."

"3. The first Easter, when Christ rose again and conquered death on behalf of all mankind."

These three events, which took place 2,000 years ago, "changed the world far more than a landing on the moon," Graham said.

DIVERGENCE . . .

secular trend certainly continues," he said, but "on the long-range view, ominous and promising new quasireligious, mythical and symbolic forces are to be expected."

He said this includes the "nut groups and faddists," but he added: "The human story seems to be too complex, too passionate to be sustained without some sort of 'religious' meaning quest."

As for the traditional Judeo-Christian heritage, he said:

"Whatever is coming will imply a fusion of elements in the Jewish and Christian traditions with a new style of consciousness, sensibility and social organization. Something institutional will survive, but it will be transformed."

UNCLE LEN'S CORNER

THE MOON

Good morning, boys and girls. Just think, summer has reached the halfway point and longer, warmer days are ahead. I bet many of you have taken or will take swimming lessons this summer. Water safety is a very important thing. We should all be careful to swim with a buddy and only in guarded areas. If you follow all the rules of safe swimming, you will have a lot of water fun for the rest of the summer.

Next week let's use water safety as the theme for the art contest.

Honorable mention winners in the poetry contest are Michelle Mendenhall, Huntington Beach, and Laura Bridges, Huntington Beach.

The art this week was so good and so lively, that picking a top winner was extra hard. Honorable mentions this week are Brookie Shumway, Newport Beach; Nicholas Verdina, Huntington Beach; Connie Ann Verdina, Huntington Beach; John Szalay, Corona del Mar; Cindy Russum, Balboa; Diane Pratt, Costa Mesa; Bobby Maestas, Fountain Valley; Susan Galbraith, Huntington Beach; Stacy Ward, Costa Mesa; Jim

★ PRIZE WINNER ★

This week's contest winner is Gary Shumway, 8½, 1300 E. Balboa Blvd., Newport Beach.

(2) Do not copy or trace picture. It must be your own work. (3) Put your name, age and address on back of drawing. Mail it to Uncle Len's Art Contest, Box 1560, DAILY PILOT, Costa Mesa. Winner will receive Kennedy half dollar.

UP IN SPACE

The astronauts went up in space, Yes, they went way up there. They took with them no extra clothes. But took a lot of air. Their food, of course, was all in packs. Orange juice, meat and bread. They wore great big heavy suits. And a helmet on their heads. They then landed on the moon To get some rocks and dirt. There is quite an amount of risk And I'm glad no one got hurt.

A Kennedy half dollar goes to Susan Galbraith, 8, 20571 Reef Lane, Huntington Beach, for the winning entry in the story and poem contest. Mail your poem or story to Uncle Len, Box 1560, Costa Mesa, California.

WHAT IS THE ABYSSAL PLAIN?

The abyss was named by our remote ancestors, who believed that the deep ocean was a bottomless pit. Until the 1920s, the only way to measure deep water was with a weighted line — and the tedious job took hours. Nowadays we let electronics and echoes do the job. A modern marine ship can chart the solid floor of the deep ocean — beep-beep — as she sails along.

THE OCEAN covers about 70 percent of our globe and the job of charting its solid submarine floor has barely begun. Oceanographers had to wait for the invention of sophisticated sonar instruments. Sound waves are clocked as they pierce down to the solid seabed and echo back. How long it takes determines the depth of the water. Countless depth soundings are pieced together to assemble maps of the ocean floor. Several centuries ago, mankind gave up the idea that the ocean is a bottomless abyss. But nobody was prepared for the surprising variations in the abyssal zone. This midnight realm, where pressure is between four and six tons per square inch, is the floor of the actual ocean basins. Though it covers about half the globe, it is only one of three submarine zones. A shallow zone of continental shelves surrounds the major land masses. Miles out to sea, these gentle shelves plunge suddenly down a zone of continental slopes. These precipitous cliffs, sometimes two or three miles high, are the walls of the abyssal zone — the true basins of the oceans.

EARLY IN the century, after a few spot soundings, most experts assumed that the floor of the abyss was uniformly flat and it was called the abyssal plain. This notion was corrected with more data. The new charts revealed that the geography of the abyssal zone is even more varied than the geographical ups and downs on the land. The floor of the ocean basin humps up in stupendous mountain ranges, in gentle rises and foothills and towering, solitary seamounts. It is cracked with fissures and plunging ditches. And sure enough, here and there between the ups and downs are vast abyssal plains.

ON A GRANDER scale, the abyssal ups and downs correspond to the continental mountains and valleys. The abyssal plains correspond to the land's flat, level geographical features. But they too are on a grander scale. They are much flatter, smoothed level with layers of mud and silty sand. This abyssal ooze, hundreds of feet thick, fills the hollows and buries the bumps. It carpets the dense layers of basaltic rock that form the solid floor of the ocean basins. All the oceans have their regions of between underseas ranges and rises. Each has a name on the new submarine maps. The Alaska Abyssal Plain reaches from North America toward Asia. The Cape Verde Abyssal Plain is in the North Atlantic. It begins at the foothills of the massive Mid-Atlantic Ridge and stretches smoothly toward East Africa.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Regina Sinoska, age 11, of Somerville, Massachusetts, for her question:

HOW DO THEY MEASURE THE DISTANCE OF A STAR?

One method is to use the parallax, the same trigonometry trick our two eyes use to estimate distances. When you look at a distant tree, you see it in two slightly different positions in relation to perhaps another tree in the background. The distance between your eyes is the baseline of a triangle. Its sides focus on the first tree and continue on through to the two different positions occupied by the second tree. The parallax angle at the top of the triangle is the key to distance.

THE BASE LINE of this celestial triangle is the width of the earth's orbit. The star is photographed and its position measured in relation to some star in the background. Six months later the earth is on the opposite side of its orbit. The star is photographed again. Its position in relation to the background star is slightly different. These two positions are used to extend the sides of a triangle from the baseline. The star is at the top of the triangle. Angles are measured in degrees and there are 3,600 seconds in each degree. If a star has a parallax angle of one second, its distance in earth miles is 19,150 plus nine zeros. This distance equals the astronomical unit called the parsec—the parallax-second.

Ask Them Yourself

FOR GOV. PAUL LAXALT of Nevada

—Mrs. Betty R. Bunkley, Midway, Ga.

● As a result of action by the 1969 state legislature, Nevada will observe Washington's birthday as a holiday beginning in 1970. The omission was based simply on the idea there were too many holidays. However, the day has been observed by various ceremonies in Nevada, even though it wasn't a legal holiday.

FOR EILEEN FORD, director of Ford Model Agency

—Miss Gail Higgins, New Brunswick, N.J.

● First, she must not only be beautiful but photogenic. To counteract the camera's tendency to add width and subtract height, she must be at least five-feet-four-inches tall and slim to the point of skinniness. Miss America might be a pleasing 35-25-35; a fashion model's measurements are nearer 33-22-33 or less. Also important are ambition, sacrifice, and work. Luck, too, plays an important role—being in the right place with the right combination of looks at the right time.

FOR RONALD ZIEGLER,

President Nixon's press secretary

What is your press background? What papers did you work for?—D.L., Waco, Texas

● No newspapers directly. I was Mr. Nixon's chief press aide during the 1968 Presidential campaign. Prior to that, I was an account executive with J. Walter Thompson in Los Angeles. My first job was as press secretary to California Republican legislators in Sacramento. I was also a Nixon press aide in the 1962 gubernatorial campaign.

FOR HAYWOOD HALE BROWN,

CBS sports commentator

Why do you always wear that plaid jacket for to sports coverage?—Mrs. Mary Ann Miller, Bloomington, Ill.

● It isn't the same plaid jacket. There are about six in the wardrobe, as well as a plaid overcoat. It began when my wife suggested that I wear a colorful coat of my own for a particular tv essay about horseracing. I've rarely worn a plain coat since then.

FOR JOHN A. SHAFFER, administrator, Federal Aviation Administration

Does Cuba want a release fee for a returned sky-jacked plane?—M.L., Denver, Colo.

● Cuba does not demand a "release fee" as such. Skyjack costs to the airlines in the past have covered such things as landing fees, purchase of fuel, and passenger ground transportation, food, and lodging. Newspaper accounts have reported such costs to vary from $2,500 to $10,000.

FOR SEN. GEORGE McGOVERN of S.D.

Do you have any plans to run for President in 1972?—David Heier, Hoosier, S.D.

● Nothing is certain in politics, so it would be difficult to project potential 1969 candidates or issues in the circumstances that may exist in 1972. Let me say that I am keeping my options open.

FOR NANCY DICKERSON, NBC News

Are the clothes you wear on your telecast your own? How do you pack clothes for trips?—Mrs. Cynthia Polston, Leesville, La.

● Yes, they are. When I travel, I pack every dress on a wire hanger and fill the inside of the garment with tissue paper. As soon as I arrive at my destination, I unpack and hang every garment in the shower and steam out wrinkles. I wear black shoes, bag, and gloves. I also carry matched sets of either black or white lingerie. A black silk wool ensemble (full skirt, slim skirt, jacket, and full coat) took me all over Europe.

FOR ERNIE BANKS, Chicago Cubs

What is the toughest ball club and the toughest pitcher to play against?—James E. Groth, Kankakee, Ill.

● The toughest club this season has been the Pittsburgh Pirates. The pitcher, San Francisco's Juan Marichal.

FOR GEORGE SCHAEFER,

How do you become a movie director?—Shirley Fiore, Florence, Ala.

● There is no sure-fire way. Learn all you can about story construction, audiences, photography, and people; get as much practical experience as possible.

WHAT ^{IN} THE WORLD!

Post-Vacation Blahs Many companies find workers have a hard time settling down after they return from vacation. According to the Wall Street Journal, a Wichita, Kan., company discovered it can't count on much work getting done the first day back. Employees are busy making the rounds telling about it. Another firm gives a "verbal prodding" if the slump goes past a day and a half. An oil company times a 10 percent pay raise for mid-July so employees have something to come back to. Employee tip: Toward vacation's end, slow down a bit, with more rest and less overindulgence. Better still, return a day earlier to rest and get organized.

Ship Ahoy! Explorer-writer Robert Marx and his hardy crew have set sail from Europe for America in a Viking longboat, an authentic replica purchased for $1 from MGM after its use in the film, "Alfred the Great." They are duplicating 9th-century sailing conditions: primitive navigation aids, animal-skin clothes, whale-blubber food. The "explorers" gave in to sunglasses, though. "Civilization makes us need them," explained Marx. "Our eyes have become dependent."

Anger Without Insult A parent's failure to get angry at children may indicate indifference, not love, according to "Between Parent and Teen-ager," a new book by Dr. Haim G. Ginott, a regular guest on tv's "Today" show. "Teen-agers can benefit from anger that implies, 'Enough is enough. There are limits to my tolerance.' Expressing anger in nondestructive ways should bring some relief to the parent, some insight to the teen-ager, and no harmful aftereffects to either of them." How? "Describe what you see, feel, what needs to be done. Attack the action, not the person."

Political Heritage Myrna Loy, co-starring in the film, "The April Fools," is a dyed-in-the-wool politician. Eleanor Roosevelt was among her friends, and she campaigned for Adlai Stevenson and Eugene McCarthy. "Politics were important in my family," she told Family Weekly. "My Republican father was in the Montana legislature. My mother also was active in politics—as a Democrat. Recently, when I returned to Montana, I was very honored: the legislature had several old documents in my father's handwriting copied for me."

Tell Without Boil Mrs. Sophie Levitt teaches migrant workers to cook simply, cheaply, and nutritiously. Seems it's the children who really make the meals, though. They can read; mother probably can't and is working. But their battered pots won't boil milk well, and they don't know how to use the Government-supplied rolled wheat. So Mrs. Levitt created a recipe for Uncooked Maple Candy: 1/2 cup corn syrup mixed with 1/2 tsp. maple flavoring; gradually stir in 1/2 cup dry milk; stir in 1/2 cup rolled wheat. Mix all together. Shape into balls coated with dry milk. The recipe will be included in her forthcoming "Penny Pinchers' Cookbook"—for nonmigrants, too.

How "Silent Sound"

Ultrasonics, the magic of high-frequency sound waves, can diagnosing ills to improving computers—and we've just

By JAMES C. G. CONNIFF

Jewelry is cleaned spotlessly with lightning speed by this new ultrasonic waterless "bowl."

A PSYCHIATRIST at the University of Illinois College of Medicine, Dr. H. W. Kienast, recently fired bursts of "silent sound" into the brains of some 500 patients in Chicago State Mental Hospital. He found that 59 of them were not mentally ill!

Dr. Kienast made this "discovery" by a comparative study of the way the inaudible sound waves bounced off structures inside the brain to form distinctive echo patterns. The patterns were converted by an electronic device called a transducer for display on a televisionlike screen, then photographed.

They showed that the 59 were suffering from a variety of organic brain disorders, such as tumors. These had been misdiagnosed and, in a number of instances, could be corrected.

The space-age technique he applied—called ultrasonics or ultrasound, meaning beyond (ultra) the range of hearing—is the science of high-frequency sound which is usually generated by converting electrical pulsations into mechanical ones. This is done by a transducer. The familiar pickup on a record player, for example, is a transducer arranged to reverse this process. It changes the mechanical vibrations of a record-player needle, by following the grooves of the record, into vibrations that are amplified so they can be heard.

Certainly not new, the ultrasonic principle is the same one used for the "silent" dog whistles—namely, vibrations of such high frequency (more than 20,000 cycles or sound-pulses per second) that humans cannot hear them. The sonar devices by which the Navy detects submarines and fishermen seek out schools of fish are more sophisticated refinements of ultrasonics.

When properly controlled, as with the patients at Chicago State Mental Hospital, ultrasonic vibrations can harmlessly penetrate and rebound from variations in any known substance's texture, including flesh and bone.

In medicine especially, ultrasonics is already so well along with a silent revolution that it will greatly change your life for the better. It is absolutely pain- and sensation-free, making anesthesia unnecessary. It is so fast that it gives a permanent echo-pattern picture in 10 seconds flat, as against 10 minutes to take and develop a conventional X ray.

It is also superior to X ray, providing sharper three-dimensional detail, with no radiation exposure because there is none. Nor is any barium or injection of a contrast medium required. Above all, ultrasonics is limitlessly repeatable without risk to a person.

The obstetrician, for example, can use ultrasonics to detect fetal heartbeat early. Because there is no radiation-hazard to mother and child, he can keep using it to monitor that pulse if he feels he may have to take action to relieve fetal distress. The doctor can also safely and accurately determine the baby's head size prenatally with ultrasonics—information useful for several reasons, such as mode of delivery.

Other medical applications are equally significant. Doctors use ultrasonics to diagnose retinal detachment and eye tumors; to locate precisely and to help extract foreign bodies from the eye and from soft tissues; to remove cataracts; and to differentiate cysts from malignant growths.

Ultrasonic scanning of peripheral blood flow helps identify impending blood-vessel blockages by defining a telltale thickening of artery walls and the extent of clot formation. It also checks on heart-valve function and helps to evaluate the success of reconstructive heart and blood-vessel surgery. It cleans syringes, tubing, and surgical instruments in seconds.

One of the most delicate roles ultrasonics has played to date is in picking up signs of rejection in heart-transplant patients earlier than possible with any other method. Doctors then can begin aggressive counterefforts in time to prevent irreversible heart damage.

This outpouring of wonders from ultrasonic technology is mushrooming at a fantastic rate, in a bewildering number of directions. In the health field, it extends to a "dry sauna bath" that will leave you cleaner than soap and water ever does or can. It also includes ultrasonic muscle-toner, deep-soothing devices for the relief of arthritis pain; and a quick-dip waterless "bowl" that will instantly scour embedded dirt, both from grease-encrusted hands of a mechanic and those of children in from play.

In business, about 50 companies in the ultrasonics field do approximately $50 million business annually in the U.S. alone. This is double the output of five years ago. A jump to $160-million annual gross is foreseen by 1973. Ultrasonic home-equipment sales are expected to reach $10 million annually in the near future, compared with the present $100,000.

What will that equipment be like? We're already seeing some of it. One manufacturer recently brought out an ultrasonic artificial denture cleaner that ends the overnight-in-a-glass-of-water routine. The dentures are sound vibrated to gleaming cleanness in less than 60 seconds. A mail-order house markets at under $50 an ultrasonic scrubber that will instantly scour anything from jewelry to golf clubs, tools and paint brushes. Work on an ultrasonic toothbrush is well-advanced. While the electrical manufacturer that exhibited an ultrasonic dishwasher in 1959 has yet to bring the $3,000 price down enough for mass production, there is little doubt that it is inevitable. An ultrasonic kitchen sink is scheduled to go on the market by the end of 1969 at under $100.

Such cleaning devices are similar to the ultrasonic process that dairies use to homogenize milk. The machine electronically transmits through the cleaning solution sound waves that are beyond the range of hearing. Stirred up are millions of

do anything from cleaning false teeth to welding submarines, begun to tap their potential submicroscopic bubbles which form and collapse 20,000 to 40,000 times a second and generate forces of 70,000 pounds per bubble at an incredible 10,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

Without harming the material being cleaned, these "bubble scrub brushes" blast away almost anything—dirt, grease, lipstick, burned food, metal scorch.

Consumers, however, will probably come to appreciate ultrasonics more through such familiar avenues as the dreaded dentist's drill, which this new technique will in time replace permanently—and painlessly.

Sonar itself today represents a $200-million-a-year commercial market. Industrial applications are even greater. Other versions of ultrasonics are in food, cosmetics, paint, and chemical industries, where they emulsify such products as peanut butter, mayonnaise, hand creams, steak sauce, and car wax, speeding chemical reactions that once took months or years.

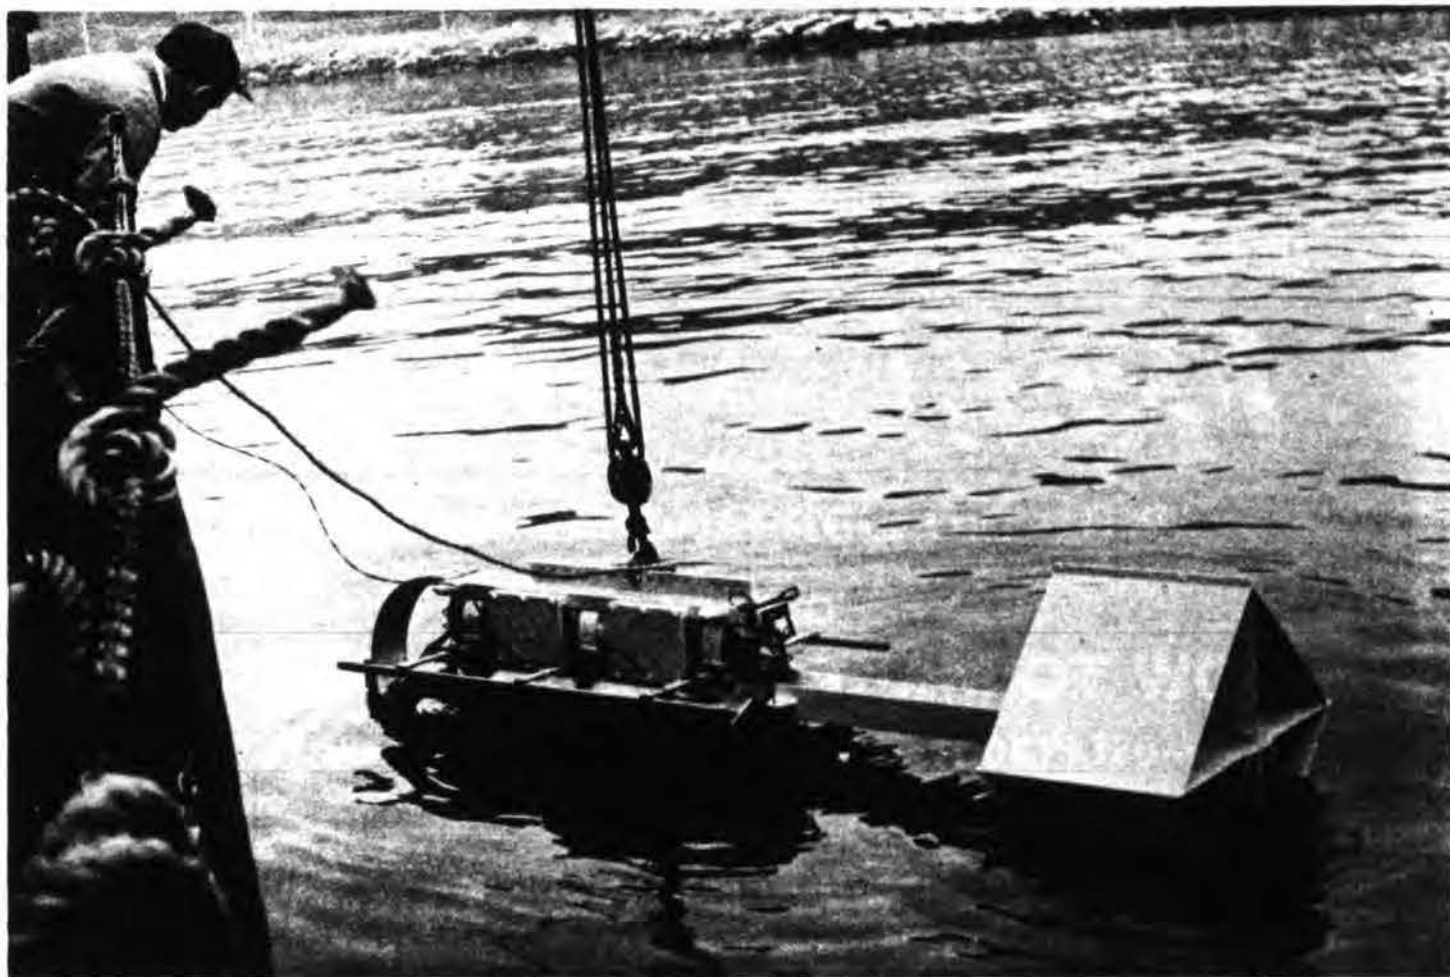

Ultrasonic know-how is helping to eliminate smokestack-caused air pollution as well as replacing the "eyeball" system of grading cattle.

Ultrasonic pile-drivers are on the horizon to speed construction. And burglar alarms that utilize ultrasound have been marketed for several years. Ultrasonics seal plastic faster, without the risk of heat-damage.

Had we been able to apply ultrasonics five years ago for checking joints and welds in nuclear submarines, the Thresher and Scorpion would not have been lost at sea. Today, in addition to prelaunch ultrasonic checkouts, every Polaris sub carries small ultrasonic units to clean metal parts, filters, tools, even pots—and to conduct on-site monitoring of critical fittings and metal-to-metal bonding.

Ultrasound is so vital to the aerospace and electronic industries that a key executive recently declared, "Without ultrasonics, we'd be out of business." NASA uses ultrasonic devices to clean spacebound equipment even on the launch pad. And an offshoot of the NASA launch-pad application is rolling "laundermats" now on the drawing board to clean soot and grime from street lamps and signs.

While American ultrasonic technology has a current lead in sonar and cleaning techniques, the Russians are going all out on ultrasonic research. The Russian Acoustic Institute has an estimated staff of 700, compared with our 150 top-level experts backed by perhaps 2,000 technicians. So they may be ahead of us in other vital areas. The five pieces of Soviet ultrasonic equipment displayed at Expo '67 indicated that some of these areas are ultrasonic activation of molten metals (vital to aerospace technology), the drilling of rocks, and the speeding of certain complex chemical reactions.

But on the other hand, we have an ultrasonic capacity to produce sound waves almost a million times higher in frequency than bat-squeak sonar (10,000 vibrations per second). This plays an important part in obtaining accurate deep-ocean temperatures, vital to exploring and peacefully colonizing the world's seabeds.

Other American gains in the ultrasonics field include using it to double the effectiveness of machine tools and to improve their quality and performance of the products. Riveting tough metals like titanium in the air-frame industry is easy for ultrasonics.

An ultrasonic bath dip, such as auto engines receive after racing, even now, could double the life of any car's power plant. Some manufacturers are already extending the life of engine cylinders with ultrasonics. An aircraft company is experimenting with an ultrasonic method of mixing motor oil and water to reduce the static charge on cylinder walls that causes erosion. If successful, it will double aircraft-engine life.

Possibly one of the most interesting efforts in ultrasonics is the attempt to produce an ultrasonic carburetor for total fuel combustion. It would increase gas mileage substantially and cut exhaust pollution to near zero. Closely allied to it is research for developing an ultrasonic home oil-burner atomizing device, to reduce fuel bills and domestic air pollution at the same time.

Ultrasonics also has helped scientists slice unimaginably thin wafers off hard, brittle materials like germanium and silicon to make the transistors, diodes, and rectifiers indispensable to satellite and other forms of space communications. Ultrasound flawlessly cleans the delicate parts of microscopes. It enables computer manufacturers to draw scratch- and impurity-free wire needed for magnetic memory components, making possible today's third-generation computers.

Without these computers, in turn, new marvels from ultrasonic potential might take decades to achieve, instead of being almost within reach. The ultrasonic nebulizers already in many hospitals point the way, for example, to home ultrasonic inhalers for asthma sufferers. And telephone research indicates increased service through a newly developed method of storing message data ultrasonically.

Ultrasonics will one day extract oil from rich but resistant Canadian tar sands, take seams out of textiles, dispel airport fog, and clean office-building windows.

It doesn't appear likely, though, that ultrasonics will come up with a device that would answer the request a company received from a missionary in the tropics—an ultrasonic way "to kill cockroaches." But then the way this space-age technique is booming, anything—even a "bug eliminator"—is possible. ♦

Wonderful Recipes from Denmark

MELANIE DE PROFT—Food Editor

Frikadeller (those famous little Danish meatballs) with potato salad, and apple cake for dessert—is the choice of a youthful Dane
party.

■ For me, my recent visit to Denmark as a guest of the Danish Ministry of Foreign Affairs was a royal experience. My calls of special interest were at meat and cheese factories, a day-care center, and at an experimental farm visiting with a Danish family.

Whether in charming homes or quaint inns, the warm hospitality of the Danes, together with the delicious food served, always created the delightful atmosphere of a party. I am most happy to share these recipes with you.

Danish Blue Cheese Mousse

An elegant salad or appetizer party mold.

- 1 env. unflavored gelatin
- ½ cup toasted chopped almonds
- ¼ lb. Samsøe cheese, grated
- ¼ lb. Danish Blue cheese
- 2 egg whites, beaten to stiff, not dry, peaks
- 1 cup chilled heavy cream, whipped to soft peaks
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon white pepper
- ¼ teaspoon dry mustard

1. Sprinkle gelatin over ½ cup cold water in a saucepan over low heat; stir until gelatin is dissolved.
2. Using a fork, gently mix almonds and Samsøe cheese in a large bowl. Using fork, break off small pieces of the Danish Blue. Gently and quickly, using fingertips, crumble pieces into the bowl with the Samsøe and almonds. Toss lightly with fork just until mixed.
3. Fold beaten egg whites and whipped cream together and then fold into cheese. Mix in gelatin and a blend of seasonings.
4. Turn into a loaf pan. Chill 4 hrs.
5. Unmold. Garnish top with a row of lettuce-heart leaves; put a maraschino cherry in each. Surround mold with slices of Danish ham.

12 servings

Danish Ham Rolls in Samsøe Cheese Sauce

Leeks, a popular vegetable in Denmark, are featured in this delicious luncheon dish for a party.

- 6 leeks
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 2 tablespoons flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 ¼ cups milk
- 4 oz. Samsøe cheese, grated
- 6 slices Danish ham

1. Cut off and discard the upper green tops of the leeks. Rinse several times in cold water to remove all sand. Place in a saucepan; sprinkle with salt and add boiling water to cover. Simmer, covered, for 10 min. Drain thoroughly.
2. Meanwhile, melt butter; stir in flour and salt. Add milk gradually, stirring constantly. Bring to boiling; cook and stir 1 to 2 min. Add one half of the grated Samsøe cheese all at one time, stirring until blended.
3. Spread ham slices with mustard. Wrap a slice around drained leek. Place in a shallow baking dish (open edge down). Pour on sauce.
4. Spoon over a topping mixture of remaining grated Samsøe cheese, 1 tablespoon of bread crumbs, and ¾ teaspoon paprika. Dot with butter (about 2 tablespoons). Broil 4 to 5 min. with top of dish about 4 in. from heat source.

6 servings

Danish Apple Cake

Mix 2½ cups coarse dry bread crumbs and ¼ cup sugar. Brown in ½ cup hot butter. Alternate layers of crumbs and applesauce (about 3 cups) in a glass serving dish. Top with whipped cream.

Science Promises You New Beauty

Lasting complexion beauty, through the achievement of a finer skin-texture and through "proofing" against wrinkles, is now within the reach of women of all ages. Recent laboratory tests have enabled scientists to promise this to every woman. For the scientists have found that the skin's cellular structure can be preserved and kept youthfully beautiful almost indefinitely. Conditions of wrinkle-dryness, keratinization (coarsening of the skin), and a dull look can now be "by-passed"—as a result of the evolution of a specially textured tropical oil. This leaves an invisible film on the top layer of the skin, while at the same time, penetrating through to the deeper cell layers.

It was found that, as normal oils contained sealing elements, the skin cells could not absorb them (just as a plant would not be able to absorb life giving moisture if the roots were sealed in oil). This tropical (or "peeled") oil however, without these sealing elements, enables the skin cells to absorb its vitalizing oil and moisture properties to the full.

Another characteristic of this remarkable beauty fluid is that it is hygroscopic (moisture-attracting) and it attracts moisture from the atmosphere to the skin—thus revitalizing the plasma colloids, which are the skin's water-carriers. Hence "wrinkle-proofing" the complexion—because it is the separation of flagging plasma colloids that create the "river-beds" of half-dried cells that we call wrinkles.

A film of this moist oil performs a double task. It gives an instant look of dewy beauty and completely protects against harmful external conditions. It penetrates below the skin surface to "fill-out" the sub-surface cells because of its isotonic properties (meaning of sufficient fluid pressure to penetrate, rather than lie ineffectually on the surface).

In the tropical areas this dual-purpose moist oil is known as oil of Ulan, in England and other parts of the world, as oil of Ulay. In America it is now available from drug stores as oil of Olay.

Scientists suggest that it is never too late—or too early—to start using oil of Olay, as our complexions are constantly exposed to winds or sun, city grime and other drying elements which rob the skin of moisture. It takes only a moment to smooth a few drops over the face and neck—in the evenings as a nutrient and in the mornings as a protective base under your make-up. The contribution to your good looks is truly remarkable.

The adaptation of this recent scientific discovery to beauty treatment, ensures you a troubled-free way of maintaining your loveliness—literally "by-passing" age and the weather. Science today is certainly doing wonders for beauty.

Beauty-Care Consultants Recommend

Beauty-care consultants are now recommending that, to take full advantage of the benefits of this moist Olay oil, it should be smoothed over the face and neck daily before making-up. In this way it helps the plasma colloids to check lines and give the skin a youthful bloom.

It is so easy to maintain a smooth youthful neck if you treat it with the same care as your complexion. Massage the neck nightly with the moist oil of Olay as a wrinkle preventive, and to encourage skin moisture around this important part. When you apply the Olay oil to your face before making-up, continue the application to your neck.

After removing your make-up before retiring, smooth on a film of oil of Olay, paying particular attention to the delicate skin tissue around the eyes, where ageing lines first appear. As you sleep the rich oils will carry on the task of beautifying the complexion.

The Ladies Love

the Tiger Tamer

A FIERCE storm hit a German circus some years ago, and lightning struck a cage while an animal trainer and his tigers were performing their most daring trick.

Gunther Gebel-Williams, acknowledged as one of the world's greatest animal trainers, recalls the tension of the moment. "The steel cage flashed blue. My tigers and elephants—natural enemies—bellowed and roared. I could hear the audience, too: there was fear there, almost panic, and my animals were picking it up.

"I said to my tigers, 'Come here. Next to me. Now!' They huddled around me in the storm, terrified. I petted them, whispered to them, nuzzled them. The elephants watched and drew comfort from us. Even the audience calmed down. For my animals, I am not just a master but security, too."

Gebel-Williams, a famed German performer since a teen-ager, has been brought to the U.S. by Ringling Bros. and Barnum and Bailey Circus. His act, featuring nine tigers, 18 elephants, 30 horses, 20 aides, and a beautiful blonde wife, adds old-fashioned zest to the modern American circus, which had become a series of vaudeville acts.

In addition, Gebel-Williams has emerged in a few months as a sex symbol. Short but with the build of a tumbler, he has the features, leopardlike grace, and blond hair usually associated with a boyish movie newcomer.

He joined the circus at 12 with his mother, a seamstress. When she left, the Williams family, an old circus ensemble, adopted Gunther, and he began his career as acrobat, bareback rider, and elephant trainer. He has a six-year-old daughter Tina; his wife Sigrid is a former model.

"I was doing an act, looking over the audience for pretty girls," he recalls in stumbling English, "and I see Sigrid. She is watching me, fascinated, not unusual. I never see a girl so beautiful—and I always look. I say, 'Hey, you got time for me?' I make sure she does."

Gunther's penchant for watching the audience instead of his tigers has earned him a mass of scars. "The animals are not to blame," he says. "I get hurt when I'm careless."

The most unusual part of Gunther's performance is riding aback a tiger, which, in turn, is riding on the back of an elephant. Not incidentally, 20 percent of all wild baby elephants are killed by tigers. The tiger is called Bengal. As a cub, he slept with Gunther; Bengal never associates with the other tigers ("he catch bad habits"), only elephants, and Gunther, who often kisses him, is rewarded with a swollen lip when Bengal tosses his massive head.

Gebel-Williams uses no chair or pistol. He relies on his voice commands. "I talk to them. The tigers are lazy. I shout at them—I am tired, too. But I must work to eat, so must you." The mastery is in the voice.

Is there anything harder to train than a tiger? Gebel-Williams looks around the luxurious mobile home in which he tours the world. His wife is out of earshot.

"When you train an animal, he does not talk back or tell you how to do the trick better. Ah, now a woman..." —JACK RYAN Should Your Child Study Music or Dance?

The performing arts, says this expert, offer a rich future for youngsters—professionally and personally

An interview with ROBERT WARD

President, North Carolina School of the Arts
Pulitzer Prize winner for the opera, "The Crucible"

Musician-scholar Robert Ward and young pupil.

ROBERT WARD, a noted composer and educator, is president of the North Carolina School of the Arts, Winston-Salem, a unique state-sponsored school which includes many well-known performing artists on its staff.

It provides training for students in dance, drama, and music from junior high-school level through college. Ward is often asked questions by parents about education in the performing arts. Here are frequently asked ones with his answers.

Can the serious arts—dance, symphony music, or theater—be economically rewarding?

Yes. In the past 30 years, there has been a great increase in the number of professional dance companies, symphony orchestras, and regional theaters in all parts of the country. In theater alone, the number of professional regional companies has gone from six to 60. Today there is not a major symphony orchestra in the country that is not looking for good professional violinists. Positions pay upwards of $10,000 a year and include the kind of fringe benefits available in other areas of employment today. Musicians are protected by a strong union, and year-round employment is no longer a rarity. In the world of dance, there are more than 10 companies making international tours today, as compared to two 30 years ago.

What are the easiest instruments to learn to play?

Flute, clarinet, trumpet, and piano would seem to be easier to start than other instruments. After the first few months, however, the difference in difficulty becomes less and less important.

How should parents choose dance or music teachers for their children?

The ability of music teachers is best demonstrated in the performance quality of their students. Another way of judging is to look into their background and training. If the music teacher is a fine performer and understands children, parents have found the right person.

How can you tell whether a child is really talented?

He should demonstrate a good sense of rhythm and pitch—sing a tune accurately or pick it out on the piano—and have good general coordination. Later on, the child will need strong, positive motivation and self-discipline to make anything develop from the raw talent.

Do you have to give up everything for a performing career? Does this include college?

Certainly not. As a matter of fact, more and more training of performing artists is taking place either in conservatory type schools which have strong academic programs as well, or in college and university situations where there is a strong program for performing arts. The North Carolina School of the Arts, for example, was established to give talented young people a rigorous academic education and at the same time concentrated professional training as an artist.

Are there opportunities for women in symphony orchestras?

Virtually every leading orchestra in this country includes women, many of them in first chairs. As examples, I can cite the Philadelphia, Cleveland, Chicago, Boston, and the New York City Opera orchestras.

Is it better to study a popular instrument like a guitar or a serious instrument like a violin?

If you wish to achieve the maximum enjoyment from the hours of study, I would always suggest an instrument which can be played in an orchestra or band or a keyboard instrument in preference to the fashionable ones that are used in modern popular music. The ultimate enjoyment in playing comes from the music rather than the instrument itself. It is, therefore, clear that the potential rewards will increase in direct proportion to the available repertoire of any given instrument. If, however, the interest is simply for relaxation, then the guitar (and, notice, I do not say "electric guitar") is a remarkable instrument. It has an excellent repertoire of serious music and is also the best vehicle for folk songs and other light music.

Are there nonperforming career opportunities in the arts for the youngster who isn't especially talented?

The business world of the arts offers many splendid career opportunities. Recording and film-making require musical knowledge plus technical training. Concert management requires administrative ability, combined with knowledge of an art. Publishing or booking agencies involve salesmanship plus an arts background. Very often, these back-of-the-scenes positions are the most stable and lucrative in the art world. ♦

NOW! Run Your Car Without Spark Plugs

NEW JET-FIRE FUEL IGNITERS

Will deliver up to 30 more horsepower, 5 more miles per gallon using only regular gas! THEY NEVER WEAR OUT

YOU'LL NEVER CLEAN, ADJUST OR REPLACE PLUGS AGAIN!

- get up to 5 more miles per gallon of gas
- add up to 30 more horsepower to your engine
- save $100 each year for you, year after year while you use the cheapest grades of gasoline!

THE IMPORTANT DIFFERENCES BETWEEN ORDINARY SPARK PLUGS AND JET-FIRE FUEL IGNITERS

Your car's power comes from tiny explosions of gasoline vapor and air in your cylinders. The bigger the explosions, the faster you go.

SPARK PLUGS NARROW SPARK

CONVENTIONAL PLUGS explode this mixture with a spark jumping across an air gap. The spark is just 35-thousandths of an inch across—not wide enough to explode all the fuel in the cylinder. Unburned gas escapes through your exhaust. In time, the electrodes become eroded and coated with carbon. The gap widens, the spark gets narrower, you lose more power, waste more fuel... and finally have to replace your plugs.

JET-FIRE FUEL IGNITER WIDE SWATH OF FLAME
JET-FIRE FUEL IGNITERS use no sparks. Instead a fanning swath of flame walks across a semi-conductor bridge from one electrode to another, exploding far more fuel, getting far more power. There is no gap that can widen, and carbon deposits actually improve performance. They do not have to be adjusted or replaced—ever!

Pat. No. 2,888,888

Spark plugs are obsolete! Now there's a far better way to run your car.

With conventional spark plugs, only a fraction of the fuel that enters your cylinders is turned into power. The rest escapes through your tailpipe as unburned vapor. That is because their spark is so narrow—only 35-thousandths of an inch wide—that it cannot possibly ignite all the fuel mixture in the cylinder. As plugs get older, their sparks get narrower and less efficient till they have to be replaced.

New Jet-Fire Fuel Igniters do a far better job of turning gasoline into power. Instead of a narrow spark, they send out a wide swath of flame that "walks" across a semi-conductor tip, fanning out in all directions and exploding far more fuel in the cylinder.

Proof That You Get Up To 30 Horsepower More

Jet-Fire Fuel Igniters look like spark plugs merely because they have to be screwed into the spark plug socket. But what they do is far different. Here's how to prove it:

1. Run your car till it's fully warmed up.
2. Stop on a perfectly level stretch of road.
3. Put the car in Drive (1st gear with manual transmission), and see how fast the car rolls at idling speed.
4. Remove plugs and install Jet-Fire Fuel Igniters (a 10-minute job).
5. Now see how fast your car rolls at idling speed. You can expect it to go 4 TO 6 MILES PER HOUR FASTER without touching the gas pedal—dramatic proof that Jet-Fire Fuel Igniters increase engine RPMs by 100 to 150 with no increase in gas consumption. (At high speeds, RPMs increase by 300 to 350.)

So, first thing, you can reduce the gas flow by adjusting the idling screw, and start saving money before you've even driven a mile!

(At the same time, you can make your air-to-gas mixture leaner. Fuel Igniters require only a 15:1 ratio instead of the conventional 9:1. It's a simple adjustment that you or your mechanic can make in one minute. It provides even greater economy.)

Start driving and you'll notice even more improvement—up to 30 more horsepower of acceleration power, climbing power, and passing power. All this while burning less gas!

SWITCH TO REGULAR

The next time your gas gauge gets near the "Empty" mark, tell the attendant to fill it up with REGULAR! Chances are you'll no longer need premium which costs four to eight cents more than regular gas.

And this second saving is only the beginning. Jet-Fire Fuel Igniters provide easier cold-weather starts... and that means less drain on your battery, and no drain on your patience as you try to get started.

NO REPLACING OR ADJUSTING EVER

The more you drive, the better your Fuel Igniters perform. They don't become eroded, wear out or require adjusting. And carbon build-up—the natural enemy of old fashioned plugs—actually makes fuel igniters perform better. Carbon becomes an additional carrier for the igniter's big jet flame.

So there you have a third saving. One set of fuel igniters will last the life of your car!

Invented To Save Air Force Lives—Now They Can Save You Money

Jet-Fire Fuel Igniters were first developed to save airmen's lives. During World War II, there were times when more men were killed by spark plug malfunction than by enemy action. A failure-proof replacement was needed, and Fuel Igniters did the job. Both the Navy and Air Force have approved them for jet engine use.

Now at last they have been modified for automobile use. They won't save your life, but they can save you big money—up to $100 a year with ordinary driving.

Some day, all cars may come equipped with Fuel Igniters like these. But why wait when you can install a set yourself now. Just mail the coupon with the make and model of your car, and we'll rush you a set with full instructions.

Just $12.98 per set of 8. $9.60 per set of 6. $6.40 per set of 4.

Save $100 a Year With Jet-Fire Igniters!

If you drive 15,000 miles, you can easily save:

- $50 by switching to regular gas.
- $40 on your better mileage.
- $10 by not replacing plugs.

WILSON FORD
Huntington Beach

Hazy about what's under the hood of a car, certain lady drivers come out with some wacky definitions of their own? A recent National Automobile Club survey reported some interesting figures regarding women's knowledge of their cars. Many women had these answers when asked the following: radiator hose — "brand new nylons"; brake drums — "some sort of musical instrument"; and many agreed that universal joints "were a national disgrace and should be cleaned up". You won't get those kind of answers here at our Ford store at 18255 Beach Blvd. Our highly trained mechanics know each and every part and piece of your car by their full name. Many even by part number. That's their profession. Their ability to identify, diagnose and correct your automotive problem in a proficient, time saving manner means Wilson Ford Sales has another satisfied serviced customer. Did you know that Ford has always been the leading builder of station wagons and that California leads the world in station wagon sales? Well it's a fact and we feel sure that our dealership is one of this states leading volume wagon dealers. You have a wide choice of 16 models in five sizes: 7 full-size Fords, including two luxurious LTD Country Squires, two Country Sedans, two Custom 500 Ranch Wagons and a Ranch Wagon; 3 intermediates — the Ford Torino Squire and two Fairlanes; two compacts — Futura and Falcon wagons. It stands to reason that a company that has been at it longest and produces the most... makes the best. Is it any wonder they call Ford the Wagonmaster.

A LOOK AT THE 'RED PLANET'

KCET, Channel 28 will be the only TV station providing full coverage of man's closest look at the "red planet" when satellites Mariner VI and VII begin to transmit pictures of Mars back to Earth this month.

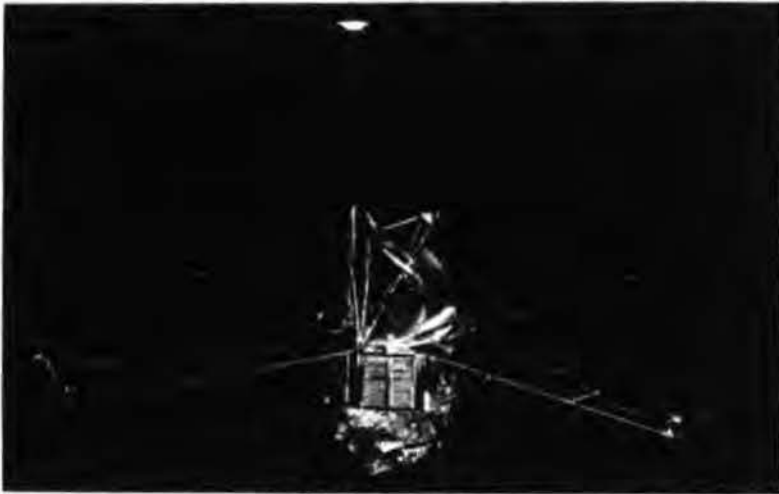

Dr. Albert Hibbs

Over a five-day period, beginning July 29, 140 pictures of the planet will be transmitted to the Goldstone Tracking Station, relayed to the Jet Propulsion Laboratory at Caltech, and telecast to Southern California viewers via Channel 28.

Mariner VI and Mariner VII will fly past Mars on the nights of July 30 and August 4, respectively. Time of closest approach—about 2000 miles altitude for each spacecraft—is estimated at 10:18 PM (PDT) for Mariner VI and 10:05 PM for Mariner VII.

The first pictures from the two satellites will be transmitted from a distance of 700,000 miles from Mars. The planet should appear about the size of a silver dollar on a 21-inch TV screen, and subsequent transmissions will show it at closer ranges until the final Mariner VII picture on August 4 will fill the screen completely.

Mariner VI, which launched from Cape Kennedy on February 24, will fly a total of 241 million miles in 156 days, and Mariner VII, launched March 27, will travel 197 million miles in 130 days. Mariner VI will examine the equatorial regions of Mars, and Mariner VII will cover some of the same area, but will concentrate on the southern hemisphere and a portion of the south polar cap.

An infrared radiometer will measure surface and atmospheric temperatures, and an infrared spectrometer will analyze the chemical constituents of the surface and lower atmosphere. An ultraviolet spectrometer will measure the chemical constituents of the upper atmosphere.

The Mariner encounter is divided into three phases—far encounter, or approach to Mars; near encounter, or close passage by Mars; and playback of near-encounter science data after the flyby.

The command and data center for the activities will be the Space Flight Operations Facility at JPL, and Caltech's Von Karman Auditorium will be the information center from which KCET will telecast the event on July 29 at 6 PM, July 30 at 5:30 PM, August 2 at 5 PM, August 3 at 7 PM and August 4 at 6 PM.

Three JPL scientists—Drs. Albert Hibbs, Robert Leighton and Bruce Murray—will analyze and comment on the pictures as they are transmitted from the satellites. KCET's anchor man will be Carl George, who will discuss various aspects of the event with other scientists. On August 4, George's guest will be Dr. Gerard P. Kuiper, director of the Lunar and Planetary Laboratory at the University of Arizona. Dr. Kuiper is considered to be one of the world's foremost experts on Mars. He will summarize some of the findings of the Mariner mission, and will compare them with previously established theories.

Togetherness...

If actor John Copage ever writes a book, he'll probably title it, "My Son, the Star."

John's famous son is Marc, who portrays Corey Baker, son of Julia Baker, on NBC-TV's Julia, which stars Diahann Carroll.

Marc, who is only seven, is just beginning to learn to read and has had to spend many hours at night learning his lines for the following day with the aid of his father.

John and his two sons, Marc and Eric, 13, are very close and enjoy moments together when possible. On several occasions this past season, the actor father appeared in episodes of NBC's The Ghost and Mrs. Muir, which, along with Julia, is filmed at 20th Century-Fox studios. Each time, father and son, Marc, were able to get together for a quick lunch. But Marc says he doesn't particularly enjoy his food at lunch because his favorite foods are cold cereal and orange juice.

"Well," comments father, "we just can't have everything."

Two NBC Television Network programs were presented with Humane Television Awards by the Animal Protection Institute of America. The programs are Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color, which is seen Sundays from 7:30-8:30 PM and "Big Cats, Little Cats," a color special, which was broadcast May 14, 1968 and repeated May 9, 1969.

The Humane Television Award Certificate reads: "Be it known that (name of show) has fulfilled the true intent of the Television Code by advancing public awareness and understanding of humane treatment for animals.

"TELE-TALK"

In recognition of such achievement this certificate is awarded."

The award to Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color was accepted by Harry Tytle, a producer of that series, while the "Big Cats, Little Cats" certificate was accepted by Barbara Sheehan, Director of Public Relations for Metromedia Producers Corporation, which packaged the special.

Christopher George has been signed by Paramount Television to star in its 90-minute feature, "The Immortal," to be produced as an ABC-TV "Movie of the Week" and pilot for a possible series. George will play the title role as an automobile test driver who has a unique condition which permits him to live in a state of perpetual youth. George starred in the Rat Patrol for two seasons on ABC-TV, in a television film titled "The Red Kitchen Murder" for future release, and in the current release, "The Devil's 8."

Veteran actor Louis Hayward comes out of retirement to play the recurring role of Jonathan Carlyle, Ralph Bellamy's brother, in Harold Robbins' The Survivors, which will air Monday nights on ABC-TV beginning in September.

Hayward, who appeared in the '30's in such films as "Anthony Adverse," "Man in the Iron Mask" and "Count of Monte Cristo," also starred in "Duffy at San Quentin," the first motion picture directed by Walter Doniger, executive producer of The Survivors.

MORE BOYS & GIRLS NEEDED FOR NEW TV COMMERCIALS

This is the latest word from the major agents and producers in Hollywood. Television commercials are big business. It is a business that employs a large number of children and pays them large salaries. But where did these kids come from, and how did they get there? Well, would you believe they're found in such far out places as Fullerton, Santa Ana, or the outer regions of Long Beach or Pomona? Some of these youngsters may live right next door! But who finds these talented boys and girls to fill the production needs? The studios and agents don't have time, so as a result, there is a large demand, and to fill this demand, a Public Relations Company called TAKE 1 PRODUCTIONS, INC. has turned its energies and resources to filling this need. TAKE 1 PRODUCTIONS makes professional contacts in Hollywood for newcomers.

SINDY ENNEN

Local school girl's earnings reach $10,000 in TV commercials a few months after being signed by Take 1 Productions.

Allen Rich

One must shed a tear for that noble breed, the producers, who upon seeking to get their little gems on the air must deal with the following taboos, otherwise known as no-no's:

Keep well away from violence, be wary of sex and do not deal very much with satire that might conceivably offend the politicians or religionists.

The sum total of these edicts from the top is that if those who are deemed the creative people of TV don't come up with something better than sex, violence and satire the industry is going to be in plenty of trouble.

Come to think of it, it's time they did come up with something better.

There must still be original ideas for television series.

Let's run a few up the flagpole and see which way the wind is blowing, as they say on Madison Ave.

First, and most obvious, thing that comes to mind is a drama concerning astronauts, their wives and/or girl friends and families. Should be plenty of material there.

Particularly now.

How about a series based on a big international airline? Practically every viewer could identify with such a series. What is more glamorous than a bigtime jet pilot, or more lovely than some of the "stews," another word for air hostesses?

How about a series which has as its locale a great television network? Man, some of the characters you could inhabit that one with! Too hot to handle? Not at all. This is an age of permissiveness, remember?

How about a series dealing with the newspaper world? I don't mean the cliché-type newspaper world, but the real one, with real-type executives and reporters. What a source of drama that could become.

Years ago there were a number of good newspaper series on the air. One that comes to mind was most authentic. It was titled The Big Story.

The point is that television, which is more than willing to spend untold millions on coverage of momentous world events — and does it so well — seems unwilling to gamble on truly new ideas — BETTER, fresher ideas — if you will, for regular series.

And ironically, regular series are their bread and butter. They pay the freight for the news departments.

The edict against violence has brought about an unusual thing in fall scheduling. There won't be one new Western.

No new detective series, as such, either, except the law enforcement segments of The Bold Ones.

This despite the fact that the viewing public continues its undying allegiance to such Westerns as Bonanza, Gunsmoke and the Virginian.

And such detective shows as Ironside, Dragnet, Mod Squad and FBI.

These can't go on forever and with nothing coming up in this line to replace them, Westerns and detective series may one day become extinct as the dodo, although viewers favor them.

Television is playing it safe by substituting a bunch of doctors, some lawyers and some teachers as the new boys in the fall — and of course everybody knows that doctors always do good; so do teachers and maybe even lawyers, except when they overcharge you, or are crooks.

Hence, no viewers are liable to be offended over much that transpires at the hands of these gentlemen.

In lieu of what is happening to the telly it would be marvy if the networks would display sufficient intestinal fortitude to experiment more with fresh, new themes and untapped sources of series material and to hell with the Nielsen ratings.

The results might bring back what the industry is loathe to admit is now a partially lost audience.

POWERFUL KNXT DRAMA POSES UNIQUE PROBLEMS

A powerful, contemporary drama about an aging white millionaire who seeks a young black man for a brain transplant airs on KNXT, Channel 2, at 10 PM.

Entitled "The Opportunity," the play was produced by KNXT in Channel 2's Hollywood studios and is part of the CBS-owned television stations' "Repertoire Workshop" exchange series, a showcase for developing talent new to the performing arts.

This particular KNXT production is unusual in that it examines what may be forthcoming on the medical horizon—brain transplants. At the same time, the drama pits material values against human values in a life-and-death situation. Beyond that, it is a microscopic examination of the present opportunities available to the black man.

"The Opportunity," very briefly, is about a young couple who meet at a carwash where he loses his job. A couple of days later at her apartment she goads him into answering an ad in an underground newspaper which offers $100,000 for what is described as "An Opportunity," but which is not spelled out in the advertisement. He answers the ad and what follows is a heated and sometime humorous confrontation as an aging white millionaire seeks to buy the young man's body for the surgical accommodation of his brain. When he meets resistance, the millionaire ups the price but shortens the time for the contract, leading to a very surprising ending.

"The Opportunity" heralds the television debut of four highly talented local newcomers to the world of entertainment—actress Lavelle Roby, actor Winston Thrash, and its two playwrights Bruce Buckingham and Irwin Barnette.

"The Opportunity" is a three-character play and is enhanced by the performance of veteran Broadway and motion picture actor John Harding, who portrays the aging white millionaire Lyle A. York. Mr. Thrash portrays Gilbert Madden, the prospective brain recipient; and Miss Roby portrays his ambitious girlfriend, Francie Turner.

Minnie Pearl: Hillbilly in London

Somehow, you don't expect to find a real, live, exuberant hillbilly gal in London, but in these days of swift air transport anything can happen. A breath of Nashville, Tenn., country air has floated into the British capital in the shape of Minnie Pearl. The comedienne made the trip to England to add her humorous presence to The Liberace Show (Tuesday at 8:30 PM) on CBS.

Minnie Pearl's wardrobe is in striking contrast to London's famous Carnaby Street look. With her gingham and lace and beflowered straw hats she looks more like a country cousin straight from a hoe-down.

She has visited Europe before, but this is her first appearance in a London-produced show. Though famed from one end of the United States to the other because of the time-honored Grand Ole Opry show and her guest appearances this summer in the Hee Haw comedy series on CBS, Minnie Pearl is but a name to viewers in many other countries, including Britain.

Judging, however, from her impact on the British studio audiences watching The Liberace Show in production, Minnie Pearl can have Britain at her feet any time she likes.

WELCOME—Liberace welcomes comedienne Minnie Pearl.

'FUN DAY'...NEW EMPHASIS IN CHILDREN'S PROGRAMMING

"Fun Day!"

That's the official tag summing up the new approach to children's programming Saturday mornings on NBC, starting Sept. 6.

The emphasis of the new shows will be on humor, friendliness and imagination. "Fun Day" is meant to communicate a mood of happiness and joy.

The new shows include:

"H. R. Pufnstuf"—a fantasy-adventure series, starring a boy, Jack Wild (Oscar-nominee for "Oliver!") on a fantasy island. Everything is alive, including trees, flowers and houses that speak. Mayor of the island is a peculiar-looking but friendly dragon, "H. R. Pufnstuf." The inhabitants are curiously amusing characters portrayed by actors inside fully flexible head and body costumes. Creators and producers of the series are Sid and Marty Krofft.

"Jambo" (meaning "Greetings" in Swahili)—a live-action Ivan Tors animal series hosted and narrated by Daktari star Marshall Thompson. Each episode will highlight different animals in personalized, real-life adventure stories. Filmed on three continents and under two oceans.

"The Pink Panther" (and "The Inspector") — television premiere of the animated Pink Panther cartoon character origi-FANTASY ADVENTURE—Jack Wild, Oscar-nominee for his performance as the Artful Dodger in "Oliver!" will be the human star involved with fantasy characters inhabiting an imaginary island, in a new adventure series, "H. R. Pufnstuf." Pufnstuf, seen here with Jack, is the mayor of the island.

inally developed by DePatie-Freleng to illustrate the titles for the Peter Sellers-David Niven film, "The Pink Panther." Each episode will consist of three segments—two starring "The Pink Panther" and one starring the hero of a related DePatie-Freleng cartoon series, "The Inspector." "The Pink Panther" character played the lead in "The Pink Phink" which won an Oscar as the best animated short subject of 1964.

"Here Comes the Grump"—an all-new animated DePatie-Freleng series featuring a young boy, Terry Dexter, and his dog, Bip, who are transported to a fantasy land inhabited by a gnome-like character named "The Grump" and his steed, a bumbling dragon. As Terry and Bip plot to return to their home, the well-meaning dragon does more to help them than his own master.

The Kroffts, Tors and DePatie-Freleng welcome the new direction that NBC has taken.

"Through television," said Tors, "we are entering the brain of young children, so we better keep our hands very, very clean. My whole life has been involved in areas of importance to parents. The whole point I wish to make with these stories is that if we can make friends with animals, we can do this with people. If animals respond to gentleness and love, people will, too."

Sid and Marty Krofft consider the new fall season a real breakthrough in children's programming.

"Up till now," said the brothers, "Saturday morning TV was vintage 1807! Kids have been seeing cartoons for 15 years. They want to see something else. 'The Banana Splits' last season opened the way. What we would like to accomplish with our series is to take away the passiveness of children before the TV set. We are aiming at imaginative participation on the part of the child."

David DePatie and Friz Freleng are all smiles about the new Saturday morning look.

"Comedy is king again!" they exclaimed. "We are getting back to what animation was originally—comedy, laughter. The emphasis will be on comedic action. We are glad to return to traditional animation. This type of work—and viewing—is fun!"

Sid and Marty Krofft pay tribute to Hanna-Barbera and NBC for initiating the breakthrough resulting in this season's new direction in children's programming.

"It all started with The Banana Splits Adventure Hour on NBC last season," said the Kroffts. "This was to children's programming what Laugh-In was to adult programming and the nighttime variety show."

The new shows represent several firsts, including:

—The first Saturday morning program ("H. R. Pufnstuf") to present actors in full fantasy costumes in a major showcase, by utilizing the expanse of a large scale studio. This innovation in children's programming will permit the creators to go beyond the limitations of puppetry.

—The first major animal production (Ivan Tors' "Jambo"), filmed on three continents and under two oceans, to be presented on Saturday mornings.

—The first theatrical Academy Award-winning cartoon series ("The Pink Panther") originally produced for adult audiences to be presented on Saturday mornings.

—The first all-new animated fantasy series for children ("Here Comes the Grump").

"The Banana Splits Adventure Hour" returns with songs, jokes, skits, a live-action series, "Danger Island," and cartoons including "The Arabian Knights," "Micro-Adventures," and an additional animated series, with the title still to be announced.

The Banana Splits (Fleegle, Bingo, Snorky and Drooper), four zany rock musicians and comedians, host this fast-moving potpourri from the Banana Pad.

The Splits are able to do most everything and anything—sing, dance, perform acrobatics, play musical instruments and match wits with a rival gang, "The Sour Grapes."

The Grapes are the unseen rascals who live just around the block and never appear on the show. In their place are five representatives—The Sour Grape Girls, consisting of 11- and 12-year-olds who also dance with the Splits.

STAN KENTON ON SHOWCASE 5

To jazz musician Stan Kenton, life has been a struggle. A struggle to find someone to listen, a struggle to have his music accepted and a struggle to get to where those who will listen and accept are found.

"It's the price we pay in order to play our kind of music without compromise," Kenton the crusader says of his tours of cross-country one-night engagements.

The "price," revealed in a penetrating 60-minute color film entitled "Bound To Be Heard" (Tuesday at 9 PM, KTLA, Channel 5), is a typical, hectic, uncomfortable nine week bus trip, which finds Stan Kenton and his band of musicians playing their kind of music in smoky night spots, school gyms, union halls, churches, and even at the Ohio State Penitentiary.

Shot with a sensitive and poetic color camera, the film takes the viewer out on the road with the band, and captures a great deal of the flavor (or, as some musicians say, the odor) of an extended tour.

"Bound To Be Heard" is an apt title for a film revolving around a man who has for the past 25 years been trying to get people to listen and appreciate his "sound" as the serious music of today.

According to Kenton, who views this film as part of his crusade for a sound, "Bound To Be Heard" will answer the question, "What happened to the big bands?" Or, at least it will show what's happened with one band and one man who will take his music to anyone who will listen—any place, any time, and under any circumstances. Kenton believes strongly in the film as a vehicle for his message that "music, even more than religion, ties all of humanity together," and he is bank-rolling efforts to get the film on the syndicated TV circuit.

"Bound To Be Heard" was written, produced, directed and photographed by Emmy-winning Baldwin Baker, former KTLA cameraman. Film editing was by Glenn Johnson, with narration delivered by Bill Marlowe and some voice-over work by Kenton himself. The music heard on the film's sound track is original compositions by Dee Barton of the Kenton band.
