FENRICK WELLS MOVES DRUM IN WHICH BODY FOUND
Orange County Sheriff's Officer Takes Custody of Barrel

Police Stay Silent On Murder Motive

A strict gag order forbidding any discussion of a possible motive in the bludgeoning and cement-barrel murder of Corona del Mar matron Nancy Atwater was imposed by police today.

However, questioning of individuals close to Mrs. Atwater, 50, wife of A.G. Atwater, 67, an heir to $10 million worth of the P.K. Wrigley chewing gum fortune, continued.

Investigators were also spending morning hours preparing paperwork required for an afternoon court arraignment of Glendale male nurse Daniel Garbis Bedelian, 40, her suspected killer.

He is charged with beating Mrs. Atwater to death at the couple's home at 4633 Perham Drive, in the Cameo Shores district.

The immigrant from Lebanon was arrested late Wednesday and held in lieu of $250,000 bail.

This afternoon, he was scheduled to be formally charged with battering Mrs. Atwater during a violent altercation before dawn Wednesday and later in the day stuffing her body into a 55 gallon oil drum and filling it with wet concrete.

Detectives allege that, after Bedelian killed the woman, he wrapped her body, clad in nightclothes, and then tied it and hid it.

Later in the day, workmen at a Pacoima junkyard told police, Bedelian arrived there, and obtained an old oil drum. He brought with him, they said, three sacks of ready mix concrete.

The junkyard workers added that Bedelian left the area without the drum Wednesday afternoon.

North State In for Storm

By The Associated Press

The gloomy series of weather fronts attacking Northern California will be reinforced with a new storm bringing more rain and snow through Saturday.

The National Weather Service said temperatures in the Sierra Nevada would be slightly warmer with the snow level increasing Saturday to 6,000 to 8,000.

In the San Francisco Bay Area occasional light rain increasing tonight and continuing Saturday was expected.

Nixon Had Doubt On Ford?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former White House aide Charles W. Colson said today that Richard M. Nixon talked seriously in December 1973 about resigning as president but expressed doubt about whether Gerald Ford could handle the job.

Nixon was particularly concerned about whether Ford could control Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, Colson said.

In an interview on the NBC "Today" program, Colson quoted Nixon as saying "maybe what this country needs is a nice clean Jerry Ford. The trouble with Jerry Ford is it would take him two years just to get up speed. Also, Jerry's greatest difficulty is he couldn't control Henry Kissinger.

"You know, Henry really is unstable at times," Colson quoted Nixon as saying.

Kissinger was asked about Colson's comments as he left the White House today. He told reporters, as he stepped into his car, that "I will not dignify that with a comment." He then headed back for the State Department.

Colson, recently released from federal prison after serving seven months of a one-to-three year sentence for obstruction of justice, said Nixon made the comments during a conversation on Dec. 18, 1973.

At the time, Nixon was resisting efforts to turn over additional White House tapes to Watergate prosecutors and House and Senate investigators.

Colson said, that during the

PIGGY BANKS COME THROUGH

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Children in the West have robbed their piggy banks, and the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco is happy.

Federal Reserve Vice President Wes de Vries said Thursday that more than five million "hidden" pennies have been returned to circulation as a result of a six-month drive.

The campaign was started to allevaiate a shortage of one-cent pieces which especially plagued commercial banks, restaurants, supermarkets, retail stores — and consumers themselves. Hoarding started when the price of copper went up.

Test Case Seen

He Wouldn't Help Cop

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — A deputy sheriff who struggled and lost a man he was attempting to arrest, turned around Thursday and arrested a service station attendant who failed to respond to the officer's calls for help.

Robert Cain, 50, was released under $250 bond on a little-used charge of "neglect or refusal to come to the aid of a police officer."

Deputy Donald Porter said that while attempting to arrest James Cherry, 21, at Cain's service station Thursday, Cherry began struggling, grabbed Porter's revolver and hit the officer with the gun before running off. During the struggle, Porter said he yelled at Cain for help but Cain did nothing.

Cain protested that Cherry had the gun and that if he had aided the officer, his own life would have been endangered.

The Broward County state attorney's office says it may develop into an important test case.

Astrologist Trial Could End Today

By ARTHUR R. VINSEL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A silent courtroom gallery listened Thursday as Church of Astrolight founder Zelda Pryor, 75, testified that the tiny sanctuary in her home is no paying business, but a place where the troubled may find comfort and counsel based on the universal truths.

The Maine-born astrologist and spiritualist is on trial for allegedly violating a Costa Mesa city ordinance forbidding acceptance of pay for any form of occult practice.

She looked small and hunchbacked in the big witness chair, but her cheeks were pink, her eyes glittered and her jaw jutted proudly forward.

Defense attorney Donald Smallwood crossed in front of Harbor Judicial District Court Judge Betty Lou Lamoureaux and handed Mrs. Pryor one of 34 books she has published.

He had marked a spot and asked her to read.

"In my Father's house are many mansions, with the same light shining through. . ." she intoned, her voice holding a hint of the old Maine accent.

She continued reading the text, a form of credo based on the universal religious truths, which she says are spoken to her inwardly by spirits so she may write them down.

She claims no personal authorship.

One fashionably dressed woman juror leaned forward — her brows knitted sadly — as the old lady recited her beliefs that all elements of religions since the dawn of time knit together into God's divine plan woven for the universe.

By the time she finished the 30 lines, the lady juror had discreetly shielded her eyes with her hand.

"Your Honor. . .the defense rests," said Smallwood.

The trial was scheduled to resume this afternoon, and could possibly conclude today.

Policeman's Plea Presented Posthumously

MILWAUKEE (AP) — "I have been shot at and would have hated to think that all I could do was throw a beanbag at the party shooting," Robert E. Atkins Jr., a policeman in the town of Summit, wrote in a letter to the Milwaukee Journal.

Atkins was protesting a letter in the Journal that suggested policemen carry a gun that shoots beanbags instead of bullets. The beanbags would stun rather than kill.

The letter was forwarded to the Journal Thursday by Atkins' widow.

She said her husband had written it on the night of Jan. 26 but did not have the opportunity to mail it. He and a fellow officer were shot to death from ambush while on duty early the next morning.

A 16-year old youth is being held by juvenile authorities.

Officers Guessed Correctly

MIAMI (UPI) — A little girl got her finger stuck in a hand grenade and authorities were faced with this decision Thursday:

Amputate her finger because the grenade could explode, or take a chance the grenade wouldn't blow up, and saw it off to save the finger.

Doctors at American Hospital, where 9-year-old Laura Salvan was brought by her parents, debated what to do for 3½ hours.

The World War I grenade was used as a paperweight, and Laura had absent-mindedly stuck her left-hand ring finger into a hole in it Wednesday night while watching television.

The doctors, fearing the grenade might contain live explosives, decided to amputate.

But a fire department rescue squad asked the doctors to wait and consult a bomb squad.

Newton Porter of the sheriff's bomb squad and police technician Tommy Carroll, who were called in, disagreed with the doctors. Saw off the grenade, they argued. Chances are it will not blow up. The doctors agreed.

"Tommy and I took her on a stretcher to the maintenance room, put the grenade in a vise

Swedish Reds Hit 'Big Mac'

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Swedish Communists are trying to bring McDonald's "golden arches" tumbling down because they say franchised hamburger chains are "a danger to the working people."

If the Communists had their way, a "Big Mac" hamburger, "fries" and a "Coke" would be a thing of the past in Stockholm.

An irate party member accused "the American cultural imperialism of spreading food not native to Sweden," and lamented that the hamburgers didn't have any essential vitamins and minerals.

Arne Soederkvist, chairman of the Communist representatives on the Stockholm City Council said in an interview Thursday that "the hamburger culture is a danger to the working people."

The chains not only ruin the customer's health because of the poor nutritional value of the food but also because "the people have to eat very fast and under pressing conditions — lots of people and noise," Soederkvist said.

"First, we learned to do our shopping very fast in supermarkets" like the Americans "and now we must also learn to eat fast," he said.

If the council appears interested in what Soederkvist called "the hamburger problem," the issue would be passed on to Parliament with suggestions for alternatives, he said.

"The large capital and huge profits behind chains like McDonald's and Carrolls may eventually beat all smaller common restaurants," Soederkvist said.

"An alternative could be restaurants run by the city, serving non-profit food consisting of nutritious things."

McDonald's, an American-franchised take-out restaurant, has two outlets in Stockholm. Carrolls, another American franchise, and the British hamburger chain Wimpys are also in operation in Sweden.

Soon to open is a Floyd Patterson take-out, advertising "Floyd Burgers," named for the former heavyweight boxing champion.

Soederkvist lamented that the final blow of the chains was that they "mostly employ very young people and the work is a great strain to a teen-ager."

Red Glow Puzzles Officers

A brilliant red light in the sky over San Clemente Thursday night kept the police department switchboard buzzing with UFO reports.

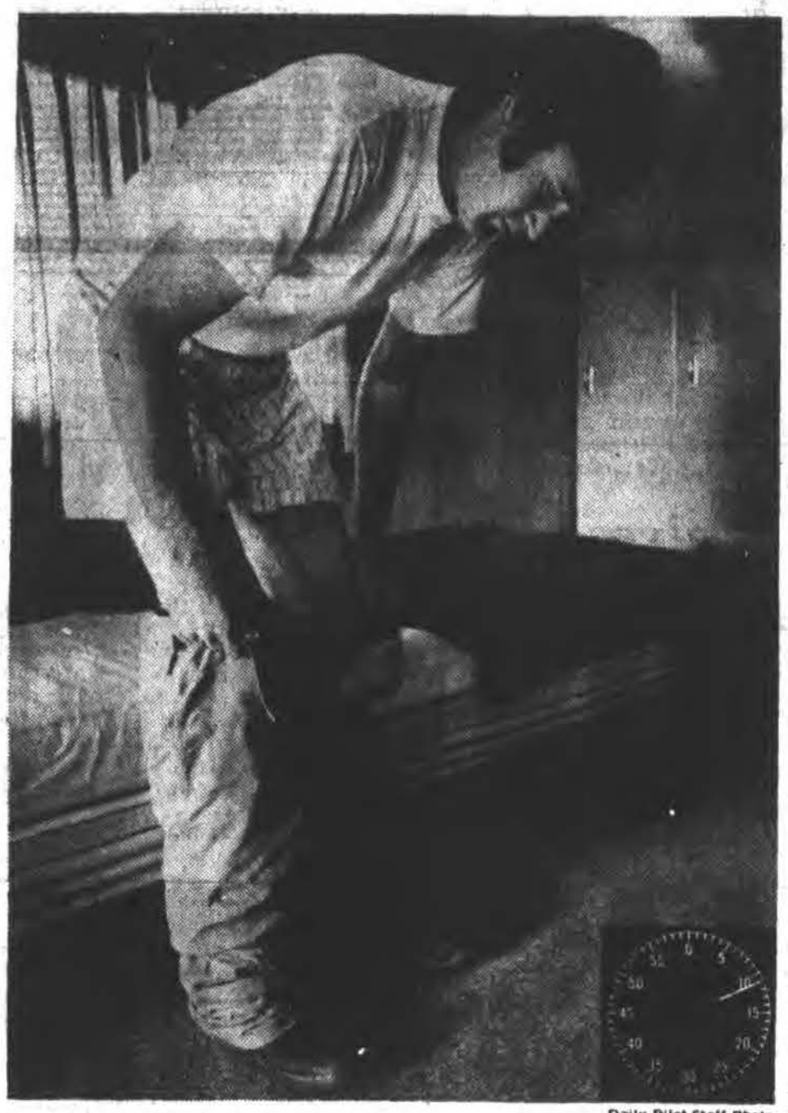

The light appeared around 6:15 a.m., remaining stationary overhead, and then moved in a northerly direction before disappearing.

Police Lt. Al Ehlow and Officer Norris Cole both confirmed the sighting and tracked the object with binoculars. Their skywatch lasted for 10 minutes.

Dana Point Harbor Patrol officers who had been alerted to the sighting informed the two officers what they were actually seeing was two airplanes.

However, San Clemente police logged the sighting as probable pyrotechnic devices from Camp Pendleton. They noted that other similar lights were reported later in the vicinity of the Marine base.

A San Clemente fireman theorized that the UFO was probably a flare sent up on a weather balloon. There have been recent reports of youngstors using helium-filled balloons or surgical gloves to launch UFOs over San Clemente, he pointed out.

and we sawed — very carefully," Porter said.

He said Laura did not speak at all during the sawing, which took 15 minutes. The grenade did not explode.

It came off and Laura's finger was saved. A later examination of the grenade, nearly 60 years old, indicated it was not explosive.

Laura walked into the hospital waiting room and was given a big hug by her mother.

"It's just part of the job," Porter said. "We didn't want to see the little girl hurt."

Porter said Laura was "pretty relieved" when she removed her finger from the grenade, but didn't say anything more than "gosh" or "great" when the operation was over.

"She was quite dazed," Porter said of the mother. "I didn't think she realized it was all over."

Red Attack Foiled

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist forces today attacked a government infantry position near Duc Duc, on the southern approaches to Da Nang, but were driven off, leaving 45 bodies and 25 weapons on the battlefield, according to military reports reaching Saigon. The attack was part of renewed Communist assaults on government positions in South Vietnam's northernmost quarter, the reports said.

Mesa Woman Hunted In Car 'Deception'

From Wire Services

DALLAS — Sheriff's deputies are seeking a former Costa Mesa woman who is the president of Twentieth Century Motor Car Corp., the company which claimed to have made a revolutionary new car.

Elizabeth Carmichael, 42, and nine other officers of the corporation are charged with conspiracy to commit theft over $10,000. Bond was set at $25,000 each.

Deputies searched Mrs. Carmichael's home in Dallas Thursday. They are also searching for the nine others accused in a restraining order alleging violation of Texas' deceptive trade practices act.

"There is a good possibility she has returned to California," said Sheriff's spokesman Charles Coleman. "We're checking every kind of lead on her whereabouts. If she's gone back to California, I'm sure we'll want to extradite her."

Mrs. Carmichael arrived in Dallas from California over a week ago, announcing she was moving her company's headquarters and plant from Burbank to Dallas where some 9,000 persons would be employed in building the car that would go 85 miles an hour and would give 70 miles per gallon of gas.

She failed to say the company is under three restraining orders in California prohibiting sales of stocks, dealerships or opns to buy the car, a three-wheel two-cylinder vehicle called the Revette.

Mrs. Carmichael said in a recent interview in Los Angeles, "I didn't build this company to serve humanity. And I don't give a hoot in hell what people think of me as long as they buy my cars."

She claimed she put $5,000 to $15,000 a day into her business and "where I get it is nobody's damned business."

Mrs. Carmichael said she began working on car engines whe she was 10 years old, could perform an overhaul when she was 16, and built her first car at 18.

Late Wednesday night sheriff's deputies in Dallas reported they could not find Mrs. Carmichael or other members of the corporation's staff. Meanwhile, a showroom the company had on Ventura Boulevard in Encino was closed down Thursday.

Others sought along with Mrs. Carmichael are identified as Leonard Katch and Samuel Schlisman, both of California; Andrew Farrell, 61, of Thousand Oaks; Joseph Comstock Jr., 32, Redondo Beach; Ronald Consoli, 41, Encino; Charles Lewis Jr., 39, Dallas; Earl Lively Jr., 47, Dallas; Kristin Cooper, 27, Dallas, and Whitlock Sharpe, 45, Dallas.

In another development, John Power, a designer recently fired by the company, testified at a hearing in Dallas Wednesday that that the prototype automobile promoted by the company was "cannibalized" and there were no original parts in it.

He said the air-cooled engine was the type used for portable generators and the steering wheel a type found on a small foreign car.

Actions in California charge the firm with not having enough capital to back up investments.

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Museum officials have offered a $1,000 reward for the return of a Gainbsborough painting stolen from the nation's oldest public art museum. Onassis Put In Hospital

PARIS (AP) — Aristotle Onassis entered the American Hospital in suburban Neuilly today for treatment of a debilitating muscular disease complicated by flu. He went in through a rear door to avoid photographers gathered at the main entrance.

The 69-year-old Greek multimillionaire and husband of the former Jacqueline Kennedy flew to Paris from Athens Thursday night in a private executive jet. Family sources said Mrs. Onassis insisted that her husband be moved from Athens for treatment abroad.

Orange County

Unemployment Hits New High

By GARY GRANVILLE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Unemployment in Orange county reached an all time high in January when there 62,500 persons out of work and the unemployment rate jumped to 8.1 percent.

And, according to state labor analysist Alta Eldridge, the end of a sharp decline in employment that began six months ago isn't in sight.

"Every indicator we have tells us things will get worse before they get better," Mrs. Eldridge said.

Included among those indicators are forecasts received from employers who say they see fewer rather than more jobs on the horizon.

U.S. UNEMPLOYMENT HITS 8.2%. Story, Page A4.

Mrs. Eldridge also mentioned that new employers are not coming to Orange County as rapidly as they did the last two years when unemployment dropped after a series of aerospace layoffs hit the job market in the early 1970s.

Hardest hit last month when the number of jobless climbed by 9,900 persons were retail trade and service industries.

Both were hit hard by expected seasonal layoffs in department stores and at amusement parks that thrive on tourist trade.

But the job losses were across the board, in manufacturing, construction, government, and other service industries as well as in retail trade and amusement park operations.

The construction industry continued in an employment slump that began two years ago.

In January, 1974, there were 28,400 employed in the building trades. Last month, the total employed in construction was 24,900.

Mrs. Eldridge's gloomy monthly report was accented by predictions of a worsening situation on the Orange County labor market.

How much worse?

"I wouldn't be surprised to see the unemployment rate reach 9 percent," Mrs. Eldridge said.

"As a matter of fact," she added "it's possible the rate might climb to 10 percent."

Orange County's all time high unemployment rate came in January and April of 1971 when it reached 8.7 percent.

However, in those months, the total number of unemployed ranged from 48,000 to 52,000. Last month's unemployment roll of 62,500 exceeded the former record high of 52,800, a mark reached in January, 1971.

same period, Nixon told him that he would resign if the U.S. Supreme Court ruled he had to surrender the tapes.

"He said he would not sit and preside over the destruction of the presidency," Colson said. "He said if he lost in Supreme Court on the tapes he would resign."

Colson said Nixon was confident that the Supreme Court and particularly the four justices Nixon appointed would support him.

The court ruled 8 to 0 in July 1974 that Nixon had to surrender the tapes.

Nixon resigned the presidency three weeks later.

Colson said Nixon's comment about Kissinger apparently was based on Kissinger's advocacy of an early resumption of the bombing of North Vietnam in December 1972.

Colson said Kissinger, then White House adviser for national security affairs, resumed secret negotiations in Paris with the North Vietnamese on Dec. 5, 1972 and immediately cabled Nixon: "Start the bombing immediately. These madmen have doublecrossed us."

OCCULT . . .

depending upon re-questioning with final arguments to the six-man, six-woman jury.

The people's case was rested by Assistant City Attorney Robert Campagna at noon Thursday, whereupon Smallwood submitted a motion to Judge Lamoureux for a direct acquittal.

He claims the all-encompassing Costa Mesa city ordinance — describing it in the words of Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas on another law as a Meat Axe Ordinance — is far too broad.

Smallwood said the statute which bans more than a score of specific practices dealing with the occult does not even have the saving grace of exempting certain religious matters which could be related.

"I submit that under the ordinance, an unscrupulous police department and an unscrupulous city government could prosecute any orthodox minister who counseled a young person and accepted a church donation," he said.

Both Detective Dick Bowman and paid police agent-informant Mrs. Cindee Seidel, who first set the elderly woman up for arrest, have testified Mrs. Pryor seemed sincere in discussing their stated problems during an interview.

Smallwood argued that the ordinance is also in violation of both U.S. and state constitutional guarantees of freedoms of speech, worship and the right to make a living.

The motion was denied, but for re-submission later.

"That's a doozy," prosecutor Campagna declared of arguments that Mrs. Pryor is being deprived of her right to make a living by requiring that she only give astrological readings and counsel free.

He compared it to a case of prosecuting prostitution, in which the law forbids prostitution, although presumably the woman would be free to do whatever she pleased as long as she did not charge.

"What we are prohibiting is 'the business' of practicing these Black Arts in Costa Mesa," Campagna said of the long list of disciplines, beliefs, talents or alleged abilities which are forbidden if paid for.

"When they begin charging others, they come into contact with ordinance," said Campagna.

A donation of $15 is accepted by Mrs. Pryor, but she says it is to help supplement upkeep of her home and sanctuary at 499 Cabrillo St., and publishing costs.

"I hate to do it," she testified. "The sign says donations. But I give them two hours of talking about their wives and boyfriends. . .There's no charge. If I would charge I'd be in business and I'm not in business."

She testified she has often served clients free.

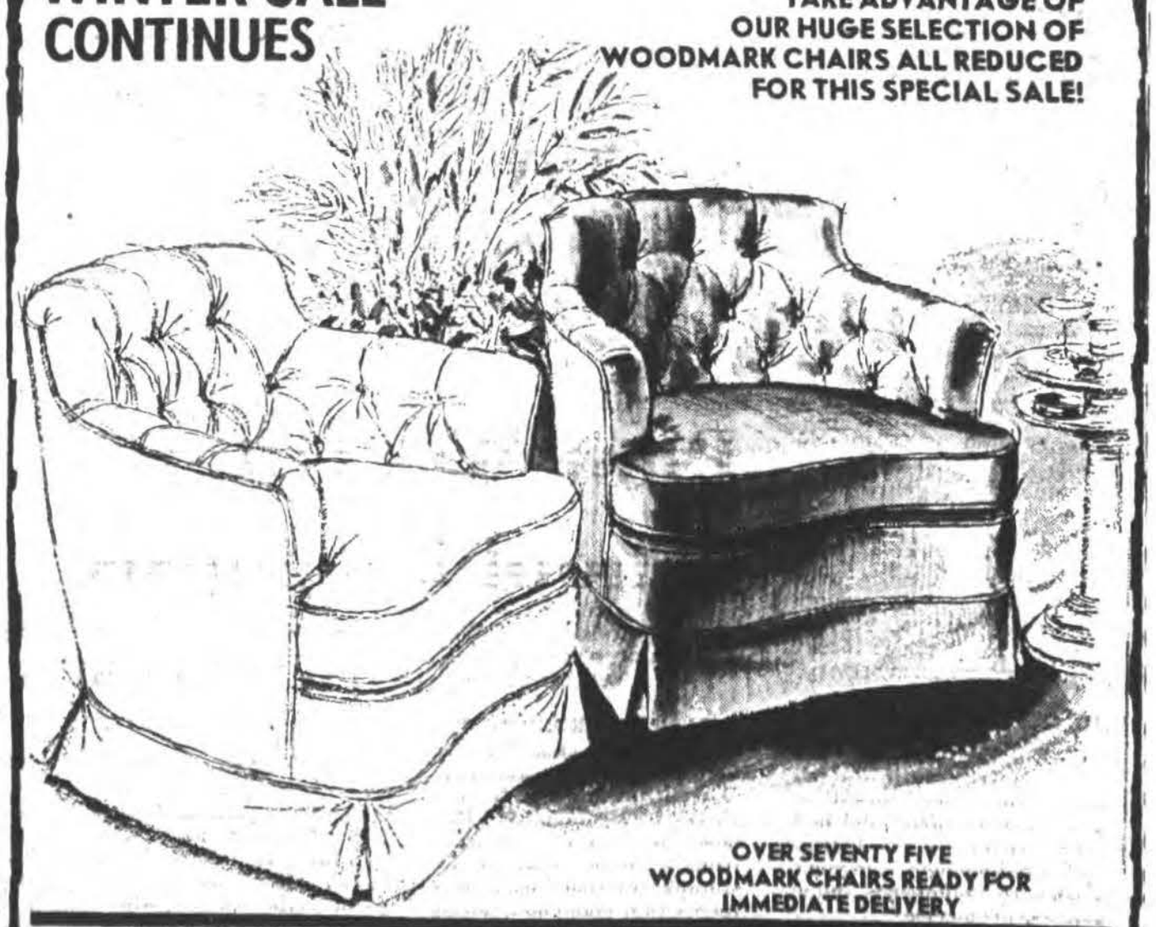

"Do you think I'm persecuting you?" Assistant City Attorney Campagna asked at one point.

"No, I like you," Zelda replied, asking for his birthdate so she could prepare an astrological chart for him.

Quake Risk

County School May Be Closed

By GARY GRANVILLE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The school at a county operated juvenile forestry camp will have to be closed June 30 unless it is rehabilitated to meet new earthquake safety standards, the Orange County Grand Jury has warned.

"Immediate action" is needed to bring the school at Los Pinos Forestry Camp up to standards, the jury said in a letter this week to the county Board of Supervisors.

"The Field Earthquake Safety Act is meant to protect the health and welfare of children. Therefore, the Grand Jury urges the board's prompt action," the letter continued.

JUVENILE JUSTICE
Orange County
1975

It is expected that the board will respond to the jury's plea for action Tuesday by asking County Administrative Officer Robert Thomas for recommendations.

Los Pinos is a 96-bed, 18-building juvenile facility located near Ortega Highway a short distance from the Orange-Riverside county border.

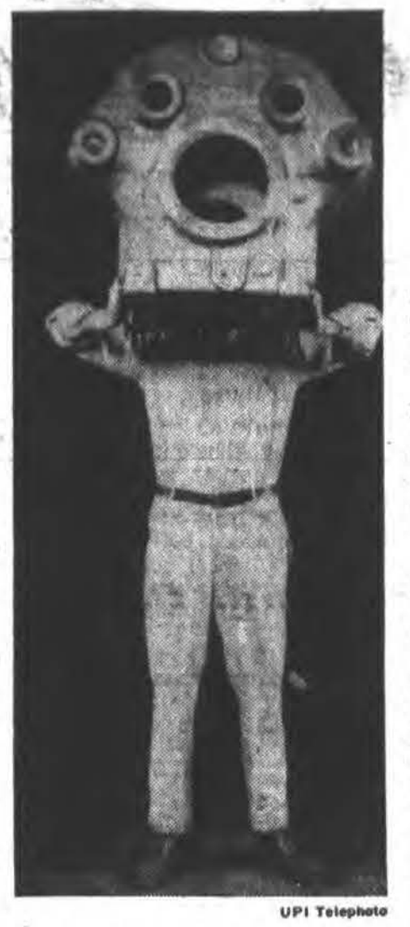

It was built to federal rather than local specifications in 1965 as a Job Corps training center.

The $2.5 million facility was abandoned in mid-1969 and later leased to the county under a 20-year free use permit issued by the U.S. Forestry Service.

Youths sent to the detention institution spend half their day in class and the other half on assigned work projects.

According to Assistant Probation Officer Tom Borque, seven classrooms are in use at the Los Pinos. Because of split shifts, the school, which is operated by the county Department of Education, can "get by" with four classrooms, Borque added.

He said Thomas' office has begun cost and work studies to determine what work is needed to bring the school up to standards and what the project is likely to cost.

Shadow Knows

Radio Star Recalls Mystery Era

By JAN WORTH
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The spooky organ music builds to a climax. Suddenly, a deep, ominous voice booms out slowly, "Who knows what evil lurks in the hearts of men?"

As millions of Americans of the 1930s, 40s, and 50s knew well, the answer can only be "The Shaaadoow Knows."

So began "The Shadow," one of the most popular radio series of all time.

For more than 20 years, stories of the debonair Lamont Cranston, transformed into the wily Shadow, captivated Sunday night audiences.

Bret Morrison was the man whose voice and spine-chilling laugh kept listeners pleasantly goosebumpy from 1944 to 1956. In El Toro Thursday for a savings and loan grand opening, Morrison reminisced about radio in its Golden Age.

Near 70, now, Morrison looks more like a healthy Palm Springs retiree than the eerie hero who "clouds men's minds" with a mystical ability to mesmerize them and then disappear.

He's plump and round-faced, with a half-moon of white hair circling his bald spot.

THE SHADOW KNOWS
Bret Morrison

"I'm more substance now than shadow," he says.

But if you close your eyes when he demonstrates the famous "Shadow" voice and laugh, you'll be right back to 1950s radio.

"People today still like to be scared," he said. "It's a kind of stimulus that we seem to need from time to time."

He regrets the passing of radio's theatrics.

"Radio was theater of the mind," he said. "You heard the voices, and your imagination did the rest. The unknown is much scarier."

With the visuals of television and cinema, Morrison said, illusion disappears.

"Take Frankenstein," Morrison said. "We've glamorized him so much — to make him appeal to children — that he has become a pet.

"Frankenstein and Wolfman — those old scary figures — are no longer frightening. Mere visual treatment doesn't have the shock value of something unknown."

In the early days of Morrison's stint as "The Shadow," the show was produced before live audiences in the Longacre Theater in New York City.

"I never approved of live audiences," he said "It destroyed the illusion."

"The Shadow" was created by a writer of the early 30s named Maxwell Grant. It started as a pulp magazine, which was so successful that someone hit on the idea of trying it as a series on the infant medium, radio.

An early "Shadow" was none other than Orson Welles. Later, radio actor Bill Johnstone took over the character, and Morrison came along after that, playing the part longer than either of the other two until the show went off the air in 1956.

Lamont Cranston, alias "The Shadow," was a young, wealthy sophisticate who had learned the art of hypnosis in the Orient.

He fought for the good and right and always ended up saving his girlfriend Margo. Margo was played by four different actresses during Morrison's years, including Marjorie Anderson, Leslie Woods, Grace Matthews, and Gertrude Warner.

"The plot was as good as anything else then," Morrison reflects. "Maybe it's a little funky and corny by today's standards."

Morrison and his colleagues went through the rocky transition to television in the 50s. Some survived in the business, and many didn't.

Vocational School

DEAR PAT: I plan to attend a vocational school after my high school graduation this June. Do you have any tips on telling a good school from one that is less desirable?

A.V., San Clemente

Visit the school before enrolling and check with at least three prospective employers, asking if they would hire a graduate of the school being considered, if any have been hired recently and whether or not the school's training makes any difference in starting pay. Avoid schools using high pressure sales methods and read any contract carefully to see if it can be canceled. Ask for references from graduates and check accreditation standards by writing to the Department of Education, Bureau of School Approvals, 721 Capitol Mall, Sacramento, CA 95814. Information on vocational programs offered by the state also can be requested from Vocational Education at the above address. You also may want to order the free pamphlet, "Pocket Guide to Choosing a Vocational School," from Consumer Information, Pueblo, Co. 81009.

Mailing List Blues

DEAR PAT: Please, please tell me if there is any way to get my name off dozens of mailing lists. I'm so tired of all the junk mail I get. There must be some way to do this short of contacting each advertiser.

E.W., San Clemente

Write to Direct Mail Marketing Association, 968 National Press Building, Washington, DC 20004. Ask for the appropriate form, fill it out and return to DMMA. This trade association then will ask its 1800 member companies to stop sending you ads, catalogs and solicitations. Since two-thirds of all direct mail advertisers belong to DMMA, this move on your part should eliminate most of your troublesome mail.

Granola Formula

DEAR PAT: As a newcomer to this area, I've read "At Your Service" since my arrival, and now I have a request for you. While driving in the Midwest, one of the newspapers there ran a whole column on home-made granola cereal that was out of this world, plus being highly nutritious. Can you provide a similar recipe?

K.F., Laguna Niguel

It's in the mail, one of several "Super Snack" recipes available from Dorothy Wenck, home adviser for the Orange County Agriculture Extension Service.

Runaway-teen Line

DEAR PAT: I've heard there is a toll-free number that runaway teen-agers can call to relay a message home and be referred to social agencies for financial or medical help. Can you tell me what this number is and who sponsors this service?

T.D., Huntington Beach

Operation Peace of Mind is a nationwide service set up last year by the Texas governor's office and financed by private donations. Initiated after the Dean Allen Corll murder ring was disclosed in Houston, the service aims to relieve the minds of parents of runaway teens. The toll-free line for out-of-state calls is 800-231-6946. The Texas number is 800-392-3352. In Houston it's 524-3821.

Commissary Food Costs To Increase

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A century of subsidized groceries available to servicemen in military commissaries will come to an end next year, the Pentagon said today.

The decision to stop using taxpayers' money to pay operational costs will drive up the price of food sharply in the domestic commissary system. The nation's fourth largest food chain did $2 billion in business last year.

It will also increase the cost of food by a lesser degree in U.S. military commissaries abroad.

Higher military pay and congressional cuts in the Pentagon budget were cited as two major reasons for the move.

Service personnel pay for the commissary food but the government currently uses tax funds for the salaries of store employes and to subsidize other costs. A Navy study last March showed commissary customers saving an average of 19 percent on purchases.

Military officials said today the taxpayer support in domestic military stores will be phased out beginning in October. By October, 1976, commissary shoppers will have to pay the full cost of commissary operations, they said.

Tax money will continue to pay for the cost of shipping food to American commissaries abroad, but those who buy food will find the cost of store workers salaries included.

One of the main reasons for the change, officials said, is the pay raises given servicemen in recent years to bring their wages up to pay scales in private enterprise.

Calypso King 'Abdicates'

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (UPI) — Trinidad's famous calypso king, Mighty Sparrow, has retired his title following an outburst of obscenity during a performance. He also faces arrest.

The Sparrow, who helped spread Trinidad's famous musical storytelling to all corners of the world, told the carnival development committee he would not perform Sunday at the calypso king competition, a traditional high point of the island's annual pre-Lenten carnival.

Police Commissioner Tony May said Sparrow, whose real name is Slinger Francisco, would be charged with using obscene language in a public place.

Hitler Gets Worker Fired

TORONTO, Ont. (AP) — A Canadian arbitrator has ruled that a Jewish employer had the right to fire a worker who hung a picture of Adolf Hitler at his workplace.

H.W. Arthurs, a law professor, ruled in favor of dress manufacturer Henry Zett and said he acted within his rights under his company's agreement with the International Ladies Garment Workers Union.

But Arthurs awarded the worker, whose name was not made public, a week's pay in place of notice of dismissal.

Mesa Funeral Home Blasts Coroner Ban

Operators of a Costa Mesa funeral home accused the Orange County coroner's office Thursday of discriminating against the premises by refusing to take bodies there.

It is alleged in the Orange County Superior Court action filed by Norman and Elaine Arbuckle, Westcliff Chapel Mortuary, that two other funeral homes in Costa Mesa are still enjoying business generated by coroner's officers who transport bodies to those establishments.

The Arbuckles claim they were taken off the coroner's rotation list last May 31 with no explanation from the sheriff-coroner for that decision.

Under the rotation list system used by coroner's deputies, bodies are transported to the funeral home at the head of the list when relatives express no preference for the funeral director handling the last rites of their next of kin.

The Arbuckles claim that the coroner's decision has cost them at least $60,000 in revenue from the date they were taken off the list and they demand that sum in damages.

Judge H. Walter Steiner has set March 13 as the date he will rule on the Arbuckles' demand for a restraining order against further observance of the coroner's ban.

Deputy County Coroner Gene Miller commented Thursday that his department would have more to say on the subject at a later date.

Bloody Suitcase Just for Supper

ROME (UPI) — The pilot of an Italian airliner radioed the control tower as he approached Leonardo da Vinci Airport for landing that a bloodstained suitcase had been spotted in the baggage hold.

Police turned out in force. Inside the suitcase they found a newly slaughtered lamb cut into pieces for someone's dinner.

"I wanted a dependable, safe place for Charlie. I decided on Mini-Skool. And I'm glad I did.

The first day I walked in to Mini-Skool, I was impressed. I saw child-sized furniture, stairways with small steps, bright happy looking walls and carpets. Things that seemed to add up to a safe place for my child.

And now that Charlie goes to Mini-Skool every day, I feel even more secure. I like the personal attention Charlie gets from the staff. And the proper supervision.

Mini-Skool is the best value in child care that I've found. And I've checked a lot of places. I would recommend Mini-Skool to the parent of any pre-schooler."

Sherlock Receives Degree

From Wire Services

Sherlock Holmes received an honorary degree — for contributions to the "art and science of sleuthing."

Colorado State President A.R. Chamberlain presented the degree to the mythical detective at the end of a four-day symposium on Holmes and his creator, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle.

PEOPLE

It possibly was the first awarded to a fictional character.

Cameron Hollyer, curator of the Toronto Sherlock Holmes Collection, accepted the award on behalf of Holmes and apologized for the detective's inability to attend the ceremony in person.

U.S. Unemployment Hits 8.2%

Highest in 33 Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate jumped to 8.2 percent in January, its highest level in 33 years as 7.5 million Americans were unable to find jobs last month, the government reported today.

The January rate was a full percentage point above December's 7.2 percent level, the single biggest monthly increase since December 1953 when it also rose 1 percent — from 3.5 percent to 4.5 percent.

Heavy layoffs were spread across the economy last month, the Labor Department said, affecting blue and white-collar workers, teen-agers, women and men.

THE SHARP increase in unemployment since the fall is evidence of the speed with which the recession has spread through the economy and apparently is much more severe than the Ford Administration has forecast. The administration's latest prediction is that joblessness will peak at 8.5 percent this year but continuing layoffs since the January data was collected now indicated it could rise even higher.

Unemployment has not risen above 8 percent since 1941 when it averaged 9.9 percent for the entire year. There were 55.9 million persons in the work force that year. The government did not begin keeping monthly statistics until 1948.

In the post World War II period, joblessness approached 8 percent only once, in October 1949 when it hit 7.9 percent of 62.1 million persons, and that was only for one month because of a coal miners strike.

DURING THE 1957-58 recession, which at that time was regarded as the worst since the Great Depression, joblessness hit a peak of 7.5 percent in May 1958. There were 67.8 million persons in the work force that month.

More people are out of work today than at any time since the depression years, but the work force now is much larger, having grown from 52 million to about 91 million.

The surge in unemployment is in sharp contrast to the picture just 15 months earlier, when the jobless rate had fallen to a 3½-year low of 4.6 percent. Although a small part of the subsequent increase occurred during last winter's energy crisis, the unemployment rate rose most sharply from last August, when it was 5.4 percent.

SINCE AUGUST, joblessness has risen by a seasonally adjusted 2.6 million, more than in any other five-month span since 1940, the government said.

In its latest report, the Labor Department said a seasonally adjusted 930,000 Americans joined the unemployment rolls from December to January.

Most increase in joblessness last month was due to layoffs, as the number of workers who lost their last job was reported up by 640,000, seasonally adjusted.

Nixon Belongings On Way to Coast

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 50 boxes of former President Richard M. Nixon's personal belongings are being flown to his San Clemente home aboard a military cargo plane.

The bulky shipment of Nixon's memorabilia, pre-presidential papers and materials that have accumulated since his resignation last Aug. 9 was to be dispatched to him today at government expense.

The personal items were freed by court order Wednesday, but the question of ownership and possession of his presidential tapes and documents remains to be resolved.

CHIEF JUDGE David L. Bazelon of the U.S. Court of Appeals here appointed a three-judge panel Thursday to handle the legal challenges raised by Nixon's lawyers against a new law that says the government owns the presidential materials.

The panel must first decide whether a constitutional question exists. If the decision is yes, the court will then take up the case on its merits.

U.S. District Court Judge Charles R. Richey ruled a week ago that the official materials belong to the government, but the appeals court intervened at the request of the former president's lawyers before Richey could sign an order confirming his ruling.

BAZELON NAMED Richey and Court of Appeals Judges Carl McGowan and Edward Tamm to the special panel. No date has been set for their hearing of the matter.

At issue is the Presidential Materials and Recordings Act signed into law by President Ford last Dec. 19. It provides that the head of the General Services Administration "shall receive, obtain or retain complete possession and control" of the documents and tapes.

Woman Sues — Has a Thing About Bras

HONOLULU (AP) — Charlette Holdman contends that she has a constitutional right not to wear a bra.

Miss Holdman sued three state prison officials for $60,000 in damages this week after being refused entry to visit a prisoner in her capacity as local executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union.

"I was told prison regulations required that I could not enter unless I wore a bra," she said.

Miss Holdman said she has not worn a bra for several years. Her suit asks for an injunction in circuit court against the no-bra rule, which she says violates her constitutional rights. Which rights aren't specified.

Unintentionally emphasizing her unfamiliarity with the garment, the suit consistently spells brassiere "brazier."

LAS VEGAS (AP) — A 9-year-old boy trying to follow the route of Santa Claus into his home only made it part way.

Arsenic, Old Lace?

2 Elderly Sisters Charged in Fires

NEW YORK (AP) — Two elderly sisters have been arrested on an arson charge and are suspected in an "Arson and Old Lace" scheme involving more than 400 fires and millions of dollars in insurance claims, authorities say.

The 12-year pattern of suspicious fires suggests the work of "one of the biggest arson rings" ever encountered by the Fire Department, said the department's secretary, Robert Perez.

Rose Shiffman, 73, and Sylvia Goldberg, 66, were arrested on charges of hiring a "torch" — a professional arsonist — to burn a vacant $50,000 house in Far Rockaway, Queens. The house belonged to Mrs. Shiffman's 46-year-old son, Abraham J. Shiffman, a real estate man, who was also arrested.

THE SILVER-HAIRED sisters showed up in state Supreme Court on Thursday bundled in fur coats and well-tanned from a vacation in Miami Beach, Fla. They and Shiffman were released in their own custody.

Indictments for conspiracy to commit arson and soliciting to commit arson came after the three allegedly hired and paid a "torch" who turned out to be Fire Marshal Thomas Russo, working undercover.

The sisters, who live near each other in Rockaway, Queens, were charged in only the one case. But Queens Dist. Atty. Nicholas Ferraro said they were believed to have been the go-betweens for building owners and arsonists hired to set fires for insurance money.

FERRARO SAID the operation began 12 years ago when the three allegedly began to buy up houses in Queens, obtain high insurance on them and then pay to have them burned to the ground. None of the fires under investigation led to death or injury, authorities said.

Perez said in some instances bungalows were purchased cheaply and superficial repairs made to increase the insurance value of the building.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The ABC-TV network movie "The Legend of Lizzie Borden" will not be carried by WPVI-TV here because it contains "excessive violence," Eugene McCurdy, vice president and general manager of the station, announced today.

McCurdy said the movie, scheduled to be telecast Monday night, contained "two exceptionally macabre and bloody sequences of brutality and violence which occur in the movie's final scenes."

U.S. Summary

Arctic air produced bitter cold from the Rockies to the Mississippi Valley early today and in the Upper Mississippi, temperatures dropped below zero.

Dubuque, Iowa, reported an overnight low of 14 below zero, and most other sections of the state recorded below zero readings. Cedar Rapids and Sioux City had overnight lows of 7 below. It was 6 below zero at Fort Dodge and Spencer and 5 below at Waterloo.

The mercury at Fayetteville, Ark. dropped to 7 degrees above zero and Ardmore, Okla. reported 17 degrees.

To the east, cloudy skies warmed the central gulf coast into the lower Great Lakes and New England.

Scattered snow fell as far south as Birmingham, Ala. An inch of new snow whitened the ground Thursday night at Beckley, W.Va., Burlington, Vt., Binghamton, N.Y., and Pittsburgh, Pa.

Snow slickened roads in parts of the Appalachians. West Virginia, Virginia and Kentucky had travelers' advisories issued Thursday night that continued into today.

California

A dissolving storm front off the Southern California coast may leave a parting shot of rain showers and forecasters said another front is expected by Sunday.

The gap between the two storm systems was expected to produce clear skies Saturday but temperatures will be generally lower.

High temperatures in the lower 60s were forecast for coastal areas and snow was predicted above the 7,000-foot level in the mountains.

Desert spots will have high temperatures in the upper 60s and there will be gusty winds in some areas, forecasters said.

The high temperature at Los Angeles Civic Center Thursday was 71.

(Coastal weather information will be found today on Page D1).

Reagan Offers To Quit

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Ronald Reagan offered to resign from the panel investigating the CIA because his busy schedule would keep him away from Washington. Vice president Nelson Rockefeller turned down the offer.

Rockefeller said Reagan could keep abreast of developments by reading transcripts. The problem is that the transcripts are so hush-hush Reagan cannot get them.

Reagan said Thursday — his 64th birthday — that he missed three of the first four meetings of the Rockefeller panel and will miss the next one too, because of his busy schedule. He left early from the one meeting he did attend.

State

Brown Charges

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Brown administration has been accused by legislators of breaking at least two state laws and violating the U.S. Constitution.

Two Democratic legislators accused Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. Thursday of prying illegally into the affairs of prospective appointees to his administration in violation of state law and the U.S. Constitution.

Later in the day, a Republican leader charged that a Brown cabinet secretary illegally imposed a gag order on state officials who might be called before the legislature.

UC Unions

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Employes of public colleges and universities in California would be able to join unions and bargain collectively under a measure that has been introduced in the Assembly.

The measure by Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, (D-San Jose,) would cover employes of the University of California's nearly 100 publicly supported community colleges.

Child Abuse

VISTA (AP) — A construction worker whose wife is charged with murdering their 12-year-old son has been charged with child abuse for allegedly beating their 10-year-old daughter.

Walter A. George was arrested Wednesday for investigation into the beating of his daughter, Roxanne, said a spokesman for the San Diego County Sheriff's Department.

Technician Killed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A technician for the British rock group Deep Purple, driving on the left-hand side of the road as is normal in England, has been killed in a head-on collision.

Police said Ronald Quinton, 24, of London, was driving southbound in the left lane of the Pacific Coast Highway when his car collided with a vehicle driven by Rockford Belmonti, 40, of Malibu, who was also killed.

The accident occurred early Thursday morning.

Maxwell Fine Levied Due To Can Cuts

MONROVIA (UPI) — General Foods Corp. was ordered Thursday to pay a $500 fine for shortweighting jars of Maxwell House instant coffee.

Municipal Court Judge John H. Sanders said the company would not have to pay an additional $1,000 fine if no further shortweighting occurs.

The shortweighting occurred in both 10-ounce and 12-ounce jars of coffee, according to the complaint filed by deputy district attorney Michael Byrne. Each jar was said to be missing an average of about a half ounce.

FINED BY JUDGE
Sportscaster Cosell

Cosell Slapped By Fine

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A county judge has fined sportscaster Howard Cosell $150 for failing to answer questions formally submitted to him in a $3 million lawsuit.

The suit, filed for teen-ager Scott Schindler, alleges Cosell struck Schindler in March of 1973 when the youth asked for his autograph.

The suit, which names Cosell and the American Broadcasting Co. as defendants, originally asked for $100,00 in damages. But Schindler's lawyer, Bernard Levy, asked for permission to amend the complaint upwards to $3 million.

San Diego County Superior Court Judge Jack R. Levitt authorized the amended complaint Wednesday. Levy said he decided to amend the complaint after learning the net worth of the network.

Cosell's lawyer argued against the increase in damages sought, claiming that Schindler suffered no damage.

In New York, a spokesman for ABC said the company would have no comment.

Fresno Bee's Case Linked To Court Key

FRESNO (AP) — A courthouse master key has become the key issue in a hearing over how the Fresno Bee obtained a sealed grand jury transcript.

Reporter William K. Patterson had possession of the key until he and two other Bee staffers were found in contempt 62 times last month for refusing to testify where they got the transcript.

Superior Court Judge Denver Peckinpah Thursday ordered testimony reopened on Feb. 21 after learning the key, now in the court's custody, provided "unlimited access" to the offices of all judges and other county officials who had copies of the transcripts.

"Freedom of the press does not mean freedom from the law of the land," Peckinpah said. "It does not mean freedom from being accountable for anything they do."

However, an attorney for the Bee staffers later told newsmen the key was never used improperly.

"The Fresno Bee's employes have never improperly used a courthouse key," said Phil C. Fullerton in a statement. "These witnesses or any other representative of the Fresno Bee will freely testify on the use of such keys."

Pay for Your Insurance At Gas Pump?

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The 13 million motorists in California would buy auto insurance at gas stations, paying about three cents extra a gallon under legislation introduced in the Assembly.

"Pay As You Drive" auto insurance, similar to a two-year-old system in the state of Maryland, would eliminate the problem of uninsured motorists in California, the bill's authors said Thursday.

Assemblymen Edwin Z'berg (D-Sacramento), and Charles Warren (D-Los Angeles), revealed the plan at a Capitol news conference Thursday.

Drivers would pay for the insurance — generally at a savings over current premiums — through a six percent increase in gas taxes.

That would amount to three cents at a 50-cent-a-gallon rate. Additional funding would come from "modest" boosts in license plate and driver's license fees.

Liberation Front Takes Credit

22nd SF Bay Bombing

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A bomb has exploded in a radio station building, the 22nd terrorist bombing in the San Francisco Bay area in two years.

Police said the Thursday night explosion at KRON-TV here caused no injuries. It was preceded by an anonymous telephone call from a man who said, "I'm from the New World Liberation Front. There's a bomb set to go off in your building in five minutes."

Police believe a tough new type of radical dedicated to violence is responsible for the terrorist attacks.

FEDERAL BUILDINGS, General Motors offices, Bank of America branches, oil company buildings, schools and brokerage houses have been the targets.

"We expect more of the same kind of thing," Capt. Larry Stuefloten, head of police intelligence in San Jose, said in an interview before Thursday night's explosion. "We believe the extremists are working to exploit hard times against the establishment, Watergate and that kind of thing."

San Francisco Police Lt. Richard Klapp said a pipe bomb containing TNT went off in a stairwell on a side of the KRON building. He said damage was confined to that area.

"I felt the explosion on the fourth floor," said newsman Curt Rutter. "I heard a good-sized kaboom and felt vibrations."

The building was not vacated despite the warning. Francis A. Martin III, station operations manager, said about 40 people were inside.

Klapp said another station, KGO-TV, received a bomb threat earlier in the day, but police searched the building and found no device.

HE SAID THE KRON bombing seemed related to a New World Liberation Front communique received Tuesday by radio station KPFA in Berkeley that was critical of broadcast station programming. It said in part:

"Our objective is a socialist revolution in order to serve the interest of poor people. We're not going to accept that you parasites 'give' and 'aid' us except in 'giving' us miserable crumbs and 'aiding' the continuance of those miserable conditions in your dog eat dog narrow world. And your programming. We that know you, Rockefeller, controlling figure in Standard Oil of California, control CBS and RCA which controls NBC. ABC is controlled by another wealthy New York family, fellow parasites of yours."

KGO is affiliated with ABC and KRON is affiliated with NBC.

IN THE SAME communique, the New World Liberation Front claimed responsibility for other bombings this week in the bay area — a $100,000 blast at a San Jose office building Monday and a minor explosion at an Air Force radar station near Half Moon Bay on Tuesday. No injuries were reported.

Police believe the group is a stepchild of Weatherman, which splintered from Students for a Democratic Society in the 1960s.

'Lenient' Judge To Face Hearing

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Municipal Court Judge Robert J. Cooney was prevented by court order Thursday from carrying out a vow to dismiss all speeding tickets issued by the California Highway Patrol.

Cooney disclosed Wednesday that he had dismissed a speeding ticket because the patrol declined to cite or discipline two of its out-of-uniform officers who were stopped for speeding with then-Gov. Ronald Reagan as a passenger.

SHE CAME UP AND SAW THEM

BEVERLY HILLS (UPI) — Invading the traditionally all male Hollywood Friar's Club roast Thursday night, Mae West received a standing ovation when she made an unplanned appearance.

Miss West, wearing a white coat over a floor length white and black paneled dress, was the only woman present at the roast, which poked fun at George Raft.

Others attending the roast at the Beverly Hilton were Cary Grant, Buddy Hackett, Telly Savalas and Don Rickles.

Shootout Victims Honored at Rites

OCEANSIDE (AP) — David R. Terrell and Leland Phelps, victims of a bizarre four-hour confrontation, have been buried side-by-side.

Terrell, 20, fired wildly at police all Monday afternoon before killing himself with a .22-caliber rifle. Phelps, 15, was shot to death by a San Diego County Sheriff's deputy who reportedly mistook him for Terrell.

"We're wearing the bandanas because that's what Lee Phelps was wearing when he got killed," said Ralph Hatcher, 15. Phelps was buried in his bandana.

One of the pallbearers at Thursday's service was Charles Ryan, whose house was commandeered by Terrell during the siege and whose young daughters had been taken hostage inside, but escaped unharmed. His wife, Elizabeth, also attended.

During the service at the Eternal Hills Memorial Park, David Terrell Sr., the sniper's father, got into a shoving match with a television cameraman and was restrained by Willard M. Underwood, Phelps' father.

"You're not wanted here and you better go," Terrell warned. "There better not be any pictures taken here. That is an invasion of privacy."

"How come my electric bill is so high? And we've been using less."

We know your electric bill is higher. A lot higher—even though you're conserving electricity. Why? Primarily because of the increased cost of oil.

It's our job to provide the electricity you, your family and your job require. And we must do so in a manner that meets all air pollution control regulations. This means burning foreign, low-sulfur oil in Edison generating plants. The price is set by foreign governments, and it more than tripled in the last 18 months. It could go even higher. Since January, 1972, the increasing costs of oil and the additional amounts we have had to buy are responsible for almost 90% of the increase in your electric bills.

So we won't always be so dependent on foreign oil, we're spending millions of dollars building coal and nuclear plants. We are also researching new ways to generate electricity—without foreign oil. Geothermal power. Solar power. Fuel cells. Fast breeder reactors. Nuclear fusion. Research is costly, but it will also help to reduce our reliance on foreign oil.

Projects related to the environment are expensive, too, and in 1974 will account for about 20% of our capital expenditures. In the past six years, $325 million were required to be spent for such projects. It looks like we will have to spend another $450 million for environmental purposes within the next four-year period.

On top of all this, inflation is eating into our budget—as it is yours. The cost of constructing new plants is 10 times higher than it was a few years ago, and borrowing costs have more than doubled.

Your electric bill will reflect these rising costs. What can you do to hold down your bill? Budget your use of electricity wisely. For ways to do this, send for our free booklet. Write: "Conservation," Edison, P.O. Box 800, Rosemead, CA 91770.

New College Campus?

There is a chance — albeit remote — that Saddleback College might be able to latch onto a temporary campus in Tustin.

It recently was announced by Tustin Unified School District officials that an elementary school might be closed because of declining enrollment.

A Tustin campus would have obvious benefit for the college district. It would ease complaints about the long distance between Tustin and Saddleback's Mission Viejo campus. It would help increase college enrollment, thereby expanding the amount of money Saddleback could collect from the state.

There are some hitches. First, the Tustin district is taking some heat from parents who don't want the school closed.

Second, assuming the school is closed, there are laws that require public property put up for sale or lease must be first offered to the federal government, then the state, then the county, and so forth. Saddleback would be last in line.

While the odds may be less than favorable, the idea deserves thorough study.

School Still Needed

Trustees of the Capistrano Unified School District did the right thing in abandoning plans to build a junior high school on a site in Shorecliffs San Clemente.

The action followed complaints that traffic generated by the cars of teachers, parents and visitors, and school buses would continue to ply neighboring residential streets for the life of the school, because of a change in freeway planning.

When the school was first proposed in 1968, a freeway offramp was planned close by. The school was even positioned on its 20-acre plot to take advantage of the easy access. But, later, offramp plans were changed. School plans were not.

By delaying construction on the property in San Clemente, the district will be able to see if alternate access from streets in proposed development near the school site will ease the traffic problem.

The delay ought not hold up construction of a new junior high, however. The district has other sites available.

'Village' Wins

It was only a few years ago that a gavel-pounding Laguna Beach mayor told a group of residents that intentions to maintain a village atmosphere could not stand in the path of development.

The comment came during a blistering attack on a city proposal to widen Glenneyre Street south of Calliope Street to four lanes.

Times have changed. The planning commission last week took the first of two official steps that will undo the old city council's action.

The commission has recommended Glenneyre be kept a two-lane street to preserve the residential flavor of the neighborhood.

It is now up to the city council to consider the commission's recommendation.

The modified plan worked out in months of hearings calls for improvements along Glenneyre — parking bays, a meandering walkway and heavy landscaping. The improvements will be constructed as property fronting on Glenneyre is developed or redeveloped.

The proposed plan makes allowances so that the improvements not conflict with existing topography or trees.

Apparently, the village has won out.

A Happy Hedonist Defends His Style

To the Editor:

Re: the letter from Mr. Bantel printed Jan. 29.

This is the first time I've written in response to an article but feel I must express the "the other view."

I'm sick of other people implying what type of car I can drive or where to set my thermostat in my home. Because of my fantastic prudence and foresight to live close enough to work to use only 10 gallons of gasoline per week and to not have an ego-trip style, grossly over-sized family that requires heating a barracks sized barn-house, I'll live within my "ration" (be it coupons or prices or both) with any damn sized car and room temperature I (not Bantel or J. Ford) select.

IN MY opinion, to stop the alleged energy shortage:

(A) Stop the income tax advantages to selfish producers of excess numbers of offspring (that's what causes pollution and energy consumption) Archaic religions that demanded more children in 1300 A.D. are laughable to any educated modern society.

(B) Drastically curtail the senseless energy wasting of obsolete U.S.N. battleships, etc., that cruise in circles for months on end for "experience" — politically motivated power freak-outs.

(C) Defer installation of gas-gulping auto smog devices, e.g., NOX (we all agree—no-one likes pollution) and develop nuclear power plants and off shore drilling at maximum speed. Do this without allowing selfish Sierra Club narrowminded procrastination but with reasonable safeguards and with massive government funding.

In the meantime, I'll continue to drive my beautiful 400-cubic inch Firebird and 370 H.P. Corvette in luxury and at speed feeling proud I'm conserving energy as I pass the grossly ugly 10-passenger station wagons dragging five kids with "Navy Reserve", "Stop NOX Now" and "Sierra Club is Nifty" bumper stickers. By the way, some clown had better return the 70 mph speed limit on the highway to Mammoth or my wife and I will be forced to ignore (as everyone does) the ridiculous 55 mph speed traps — in the interest of a logical and rewardingly hedonistic life style.

It interests me to see of you will print this "other" viewpoint.

Parking Facts

To the Editor:

If the metered parking lot on Broadway near Coast Highway were full 10 hours a day, six days a week, the annual income would be $3,000 less than the lease payment.

Why did it take the city 12 years to find this out?

If there is a shortage of parking in the downtown area, the city added to it greatly by removing 140 existing parking spaces for the Main Beach. That's almost twice the spaces on the large Glenneyre lot.

Let's get the facts and figures reported more accurately.

Food Fears

To the Editor:

Since the editorial appeared with regard to the unsanitary condition of many of the restaurants in Orange County, we have not been able to bring ourselves to "eat out," a custom which we have greatly enjoyed in our area, thinking that we have some of the finest restaurants anywhere.

WE WANT to add our voices to others expressing apprehension in "eating out" after having to face the reality that things behind the kitchen doors in most restaurants are so appalling. Can't the customer be protected in some way? Just knowing the condition exists can't be allowed to stop there.

Let the restaurants that have nothing to hide invite customer inspection—or perhaps we need checkers checking the checkers. There really seems no excuse for careless handling of food offered for public consumption, from either the persons handling food to the cleanliness of preparation areas, cooking or storage. — HELP. Not 'Scared'

To the Editor:

On Jan. 7, 1975, your paper ran an article titled "Precaution in Politics", which article centered around a letter to Mobil's California customers and vendors over my signature. The clear implication of the article is that big corporations are fretting about doing business with another party unless that party's politics are known. I do not believe you accurately grasp the true situation.

AFTER last June's election, a new body of law came into being — the Political Reform Act of 1974 (Proposition 9). This law requires every employer of a lobbyist in California to file monthly reports with the Secretary of State showing (among other things) the name and official position of any elective state official, state candidate, legislative official, state agency official or members of their immediate family with whom the lobbyists' employer had certain business transactions. Also required is a disclosure of the name and address of every business entity, in which one of the above categories of persons have a specified interest, with which the lobbyists' employer had certain business transactions. Mobil retains a lobbyist in Sacramento, as do about 500 other businesses and organizations such as labor groups, religious organizations, banks,peace officers groups, etc. As an employer of a lobbyist, Mobil is required to file these reports and furnish the appropriate information to the Secretary of State.

The letter which was described in your article was solely prompted by the necessity of gathering the information as required by law. Mobil has no desire to know the politics of those with whom it does business and is certainly not "running scared" as your article alleges.

Garden Fan

To the Editor:

As a regular subscriber to the Daily Pilot, I am fully aware of the interest you take in local affairs, and I wish to draw your attention to an item that may not have been suggested up to this point in time.

When an active person suddenly comes on to retirement his whole life changes unless he has something to fill that void.

I retired in 1970, and my wife and I spent our first two retirement years living on a farm in Scotland, we enjoyed every minute of, and activity in my garden certainly took care of any boredom, however family ties were too great to stay there indefinitely, and for that reason we returned.

Up to this point I have worked part time which certainly helps, but now I am fully retired.

THE FIELD that adjoins our complex in Huntington Beach is owned by S & R Farms, and they produce three crops per year mainly cauliflowers, but each corner of this field is unworkable because of the heavy machinery used, and I noted the corner near our apartment was grown over with weeds, but I could see the potential as a so called "Victory Garden."

I went to the Office of S & R Farms and asked if they would allow me to use this 1,500 square-foot-plot for raising vegetables etc., and they readily agreed, and they should be commended for it. So as you see I do have as much as I can take care of for my family, but I cannot help but think that the numerous plots of unused ground that are just doing nothing year in and year out. Surely these owners would be public spirited enough to do as S & R Farms have for me, probably no one has asked them.

Our complex is one of 198 units, and is run under an arrangement with HUD, with a rent reduction for low paid or retired people. If it were possible for the local authorities or the HUD to delve into this idea further, we could have right adjoining this 198 homes sufficient land made into plots, and rented for a very low figure to supply all the vegetables needed and at the same time reducing boredom for the retired, and giving healthy recreation for families at a very low cost.

Nixon Didn't Invent Political Spying

Archives of Espionage

RICHARD WILSON

WASHINGTON — The evidence continues to accumulate that political espionage was not invented in the Nixon administration however badly the practice might have been abused. The latest disclosure is that of J. Edgar Hoover's No. 3 man (as reported in the New York Times) that President Johnson ordered the surveillance of the Republican vice presidential nominee in the 1968 campaign, Spiro T. Agnew.

This brings back some memories. Lyndon B. Johnson used to hint darkly to private visitors during the 1968 campaign that the lovely Chinese widow, Anna Chennault, a pillar of the China lobby, was up to some hanky-panky with the Saigon government to delay Vietnam peace negotiations because President Thieu would get a better deal if Richard M. Nixon were elected.

Now it appears (if the FBI's Cartha D. De Loach's purported secret testimony is to be believed) that Johnson put the FBI on both Mrs. Chennault and the Republican vice-presidential nominee, to get the goods on their plotting, if any.

THE PARIS peace talks were deadlocked at the time on the issue of getting Saigon and Hanoi representatives to sit down together and Johnson was beside himself about any interference both from the political and the national security point of view.

Whether Johnson got the information first from Hoover and instigated the surveillance on his own doesn't make much difference. Hoover was evidently a willing collaborator with Johnson on the Chennault-Agnew-Nixon inquiry as he was on other matters of interest to a president with an insatiable hunger for useful information. Johnson was high on Hoover in those days and, gadget-minded as he was, took special delight in a mechanism Hoover had supplied him for opening and closing his bedroom window while still under the covers.

JOHNSON, in his private conversations, often conveyed the impression that he was in possession of special information which might prove embarrassing to his contemporaries. It is also reliably reported that he urged Nixon to maintain some kind of a recording system in the White House to preserve for posterity, or other purposes, the historic conversations therein, and that Nixon off-handedly ordered in the voice-actuated system which ruined him.

None of this is beside the point, which is that there were recorded conversations in the Johnson administration and maybe in the Kennedy administration which, unlike the Nixon tapes, are buried in the archives of history. Along with them are buried such use as may have been made of the FBI for political espionage with its fruit of embarrassing or incriminating tidbits.

ADD TO THAT the until now secret Watergate committee memo asserting that in the 1964 Democratic national convention Johnson, through the FBI, was wiretapping Martin Luther King and Robert F. Kennedy and a different perspective of the Nixon tragedy begins to emerge.

In another aspect of this general matter, former Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski and the present prosecutor, Henry S. Ruth, argue against a full report on their inquiries out of tender solicitude for some who might be hurt by "juicy" (Jaworski's word) information. Certainly former President Nixon could not be hurt any more, so the impression is left that there is still hidden information which might have a bearing upon the perspective brought to bear on Nixon's guilt in the Watergate affair.

THE PROSECUTORS argue it would be unconstitutional to disclose the full story as a matter of fundamental fairness under the Fifth Amendment. Congress, which is considering legislation requiring a full disclosure, could well pass the legislation and leave the constitutional issue to the courts.

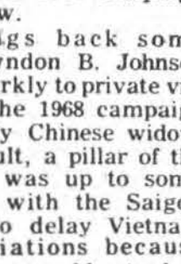

Maybe the time has come to follow the course President Nixon once considered — "let it all hang out." That procedure should not be confined to the Watergate affair but should reach a bit back into the past in the interests of providing perspective on the single most shocking event of American political history. What Nixon's predecessors did does not excuse him, but at least it might show that he was not the sole originator of political dirty work.

Automobiles Don't Kill . . .

SYDNEY HARRIS

A letter in Time magazine a few weeks ago, from a reader who opposes gun laws, was typical of the kind of illogical thinking that supports such arguments. The letter said:

"A gun has no will of its own. A gun does only what its owner causes it do to. The root of the problem is within the human heart. Cure the cause rather than treat surface symptoms."

Let me transpose this argument to a similar term to demonstrate how absurd it is:

"An automobile has no will of its own. An automobile does only what its driver causes it to do. The root of the problem is within the human heart. Cure the cause rather than treat surface symptoms."

THEREFORE, dispense with automobile laws. No more speed limits, no more traffic signals, no more registration of cars, no more tests for drivers, no more fines or jail terms for offenses.

Instead, we try to reform and change human nature. We work at making most people kind and considerate and attentive and rational and model citizens.

Meanwhile, what is happening on the streets and highways? Slaughter, that's what's happening. While we're slowly "curing the human heart," we're speedily killing thousands of human bodies.

Why bother to make cars safer, either? Since it's obviously the motorist, and not the car, that causes accidents, let's also dispense with stronger bumpers, roll-over bars, seat-belts, impact-bags, or anything else designed to protect in a crash. When people's hearts are warmer, the highway homicide rate will go down to practically nothing.

AUTOMOBILES don't kill; people do. No one has ever seen an automobile take off by itself and knock someone down. Ergo, why place all these constraints upon owning and operating an automobile? All we have to do is improve the human race — it may take a few thousand years — and the auto will be no more of a threat, or fatal weapon, than the tricycle.

This is what the gun people imagine is rational thinking. Another of their themes is "infringement of liberty." But what would they think of a drunk driving a car down the road, without a license, without plates, without the slightest responsibility or obligation to others? Are we "infringing" on his liberty by demanding that he be qualified and in a state to drive, or that his automobile be registered and licensed and insured for liability?

The automobile, at least, serves a useful purpose when its ownership and operation are carefully supervised. The handgun serves no purpose except the taking of human life. True, guns don't kill — but people with guns do. And far too often.

Badham's Bill

Kill Tax on Gold Sale

By O.C. HUSTINGS
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Assemblyman Robert Badham (R-Newport Beach) wants to exempt gold bullion sales from California's six percent sales tax. His bill (AB 474) would kill the tax on such sales.

Badham says state residents shouldn't be forced to pay a higher price for gold because of the tax.

The assemblyman noted that, currently, sales of gold or silver coins amounting to more than $1,000 are not subject to the sales tax.

ASSEMBLYMAN Robert Burke (R-Huntington Beach) has introduced a bill (AB 638) that would open to public scrutiny the state income tax returns of candidates for office.

His bill would require candidates to sign a declaration permitting the state Franchise Tax Board to release returns for at least the preceding four years for public inspection from 30 days after the close of filing to election day.

BURKE ALSO has introduced a measure aimed at cutting out what he terms "quickie paroles" for mass murderers.

Under current state law, says the legislator, all prisoners serving life terms are eligible for parole after seven years, no matter how many life terms they were handed by the court.

Burke's bill (AB 592) would require a convicted felon to serve his life terms consecutively rather than concurrently, so seven years would have to be served for each life term.

THE HUNTINGTON Beach legislator also has introduced a bill (AB 672) he describes as his public school employe rights legislation.

Under the existing law public school employes have the right to organize, join and participate in the activities of their employe organizations for the purpose of being represented on matters which pertain to employer-employe relations.

"AB 672 would simply prevent the rights and benefits of a public school employe from being affected because they did or didn't belong to an association or a union.

"There is tremendous pressure building to bring about a 'closed shop' type of operation in our public schools," said Burke. "This would mean the teachers and other employes would be required to join school employe associations or unions and would then have the corollary of required impoundment of dues money.

"However, there is no doubt many thousands of school people would like to have some choice in the matter. I believe that my legislation would bring this about. It would provide the protection necessary to assure each individual public school employe that they would be free to join or not to join — contribute or not contribute — to the employe organization of their choice without losing any of their rights and benefits," Burke said.

Wife Sentenced

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Dorothy Mitose, the 62-year-old wife of a self-styled Japanese "priest," was sentenced to 1 to 10 years in prison for extortion and grand theft for her part in a scheme to bilk a wealthy strawberry farmer of $100,000. Her husband, James Mitose, is serving a life term for ordering a "disciple" to kill Frank Naminatsu after the farmer threatened to report Mitose's phony medical cure scheme to police.

Newport Man Faces Jail Term

SANTA ANA — A Newport Beach business executive who was grabbed in a Costa Mesa home after the family was roused by a 5-year-old boy's screams was found guilty Wednesday of child molestation.

Orange County Superior Court Judge Walter Smith returned that verdict against John Francis Weller, 52, of 2908 Cliff Drive. He appointed two psychiatrists to examine Weller.

BURGLARY charges also filed against the federal contract administrator when he was arrested by Costa Mesa police Sept. 12 were dismissed by Judge Smith.

Weller had been scheduled to face a jury trial in Judge Smith's courtroom. But he elected to waive that trial and have Judge Smith rule on his guilt or innocence after a reading of the transcript.

JUDGE SMITH will rule March 13 on whether Weller is a mentally disordered sex offender. In the absence of such a determination, the Newport Beach man faces a state prison term of one year to life.

Deprogramming

Cult Angered By Seizures

SEATLLE (UPI) — The "Love Family," a religious cult, has complained to federal authorities that two more of its members were captured by relatives to win them away from the group.

The incidents in January follow the federal court aquittal in December of Ted Patrick, San Diego, on charges of kidnaping another member of the sect. .

JOSIAH ISRAEL, 22, SAID he was forced into a car Jan. 4 by four persons and taken to a motel in the city. He says he was kept bound and gagged at one time while being held in the motel for three days while he was "deprogrammed" by Patrick.

Josiah said deprogramming included listening to tapes of statements by former members of the family and other cults and diatribes against the Love Family.

Josiah said he now recants an affidavit he signed saying he was not being taken against his will.

He said he was taken to Los Angeles, then to San Diego for more deprogramming and finally to his parents' home in Belmont, Mass. He escaped from his parents' home and hitched back to Seattle.

HIS PARENTS, MEL AND Beatrice Fraiman, deny he was taken against his will.

Patrick was acquitted in December by U.S. District Court Judge Walter McGovern on charges of kidnaping Kathy Crampton.

McGovern said the girl's parents and Patrick as their agent had the right to take her from an environment they believed was causing her physical and mental harm.

Mother Starves Daughter

SAN JOSE (AP) — "This crime boggles the mind," said a judge as he sentenced a woman to up to 15 years in prison for the starvation death of her 2½-month-old daughter whose body was infested with maggots.

Rose Salinas, 31, was sentenced by Superior Court Judge James Duvaras Jr. who added: "Society demands the maximum penalty allowed."

Mrs. Salinas' daughter, Elizabeth, died Oct. 1. The coroner's office said the infant weighed only 4 pounds, 2 ounces, compared with the 4 pounds, 7 ounces she weighed at birth.

The coroner said the child's skin was wrinkled and contained patches of peeling, with abrasions. Police discovered the child in a filthy and cockroach infested house and said the infant was drinking curdled milk.

The infant was dead on arrival at a hospital.

The judge also sentenced Mrs. Salinas' husband, Servero Hernandez, 37, and her mother, Helen Saunders, 60, to each serve 10 months in jail and be placed on two years' probation.

He ordered Hernandez to undergo alcoholism counseling and Mrs. Saunders psychiatric counseling.

All three pleaded guilty Dec. 5 to a charge of involuntary manslaughter. Charges of willful cruelty and unjustifiable punishment of a child were dropped.

Mrs. Salinas has had seven children, two of them living at home. Another child, Armida, 18 months, was taken to the Santa Clara County children's shelter.

Little Elizabeth's twin, Christina, underwent treatment for malnutrition and an intestinal ailment.

Mrs. Salinas' other four children had been removed from the home years ago because of unsanitary conditions.

She will serve her term at the California women's prison at Frontera.

Intentional Life Style Successful

Through Intentional Living Workshops, people learn to lead purposeful lives, act rather than react, tune in to other people.

By ALLISON DEERR
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Are you living on purpose?

Or do you simply react to the forces inside or outside yourself?

Most of us, said Neal Jensen, are reactive rather than proactive.

"The person living on purpose knows what kind of life he wants, and makes deliberate decisions about what he will or will not do.

"He does most things on purpose, not by chance, takes positive action and collects information about himself from others."

Jensen is a representative of Training Enterprises, New Techniques (TENT), a consortium of Seattle psychologists and educators who have developed a planned learning experience applicable to daily life.

Intentional Living is one of six learning systems TENT has developed thus far, the Costa Mesan said.

During the 16-hour course 12-15 participants learn to identify goals, establish priorities and make decisions.

SOUNDS SIMPLE

It sounds simple, but Jensen noted that many people are just drifting, reacting to what happens to them but not making things happen for themselves.

"I'm a young mother living alone now," said Judy, a Costa Mesa resident who attended a recent series. "With my two children, I'm trying to make a life for myself.

"I didn't realize it, but I have been kind of drifting. I first read about this workshop and threw away the announcement. But, I pulled it out of the trash and finally attended.

"After the workshop, I found I was planning and doing things that I could have done a long time ago. I'm really doing them now. My life seems really beneficial."

Eva, another participant,

'I'd been told what to do for so long, I'd forgotten how to live.'

learned how to live for herself. "I'd been told by others what to do for so long I'd forgotten how to live on my own, for me."

Using workbooks that serve as a guide after the Intentional Living course is over, processes of evaluation and decision-making are learned.

"The processes can be used over and over'" Jensen said.

RESOURCES SHARED

A strength of the program is that it teaches how to draw upon the resources of others, he explained.

During the workshop, small groups are formed that become support groups and resources for each individual. "They make a contract to fulfill specific goals with their group and meet later to measure progress."

One woman reached the point where she could take action on her goal to enter the ministry. "It was something she always wanted to do, but never could commit herself to actually doing. Now she's enrolled in theology at Claremont."

For another, the goal was to feel more at ease with people. A project was to go to the park and start conversations with complete strangers. That was her contract.

When Jensen went through the program, his goal was to learn to cook.

The process is simple. You do certain activities, look at what is done and learn from that.

Jensen cited the example of the Coat-of-arms exercise. Participants list the most significant events in their lives before and after age 18, their greatest accomplishment and failure in the past year, and if they died today, what three words would be said most about them.

"Then everyone shares what 'It means working against conditioning, not fitting the system.'

they've written and learn something about themselves," he said.

GROUP EFFORT

"This is not the kind of group where you act completely as an individual. You work as part of a group and become very people oriented."

The intentional living concept "means working against a lot of how we've been conditioned to be, to be fitted into the system."

For many women, making decisions means "moving into uncharted territory," Jensen said.

He cited the example of a woman whose goal was to open a handcrafts shop. "Everyone gave her suggestions, encouraged her and she's in business. She said she got ideas that she never would have gotten alone, and made decisions she'd put off."

The intent, he said, is not to make people plan every phase of their lives, "but to realize that some thought about goals and direction is essential, then to help them enjoy the curiosities which life offers.

"Part of the course teaches you to let your imagination be free but to be realistic eventually about what is possible. Often, we are limited because our first response is to think of all the reasons why we CAN'T. We practice listing three reasons why we CAN, before the negatives."

TEAMS BUILT

Jensen also works with groups on Team Building and Group Sharing.

"Most team efforts, in an organization or a marriage, begin with a sharing of information and expectations. Then comes a commitment to these and a productive period.

"Then, because people change and there are disruptions and uncertainty, anxiety and frustration build up. You have three options — terminate the relationship, kiss and make up or renegotiate your original expectations.

"If you kiss and make up, the period of productivity normally gets shorter and shorter until you end up terminating," he explained.

With groups, he explained, problems arise when the initial expectations are misunderstood or forgotten as time passes. "We learn to listen, speak and define goals. It's very skill-oriented."

A by-product of these workshops, Jensen said, are some lasting relationships.

"No written words could ever describe the relationships developed during the workshop," said Harold, a participant in a recent session.

"The dynamics are there for a close relationship. Great feelings were developed, great experiences. I really got to know people in a non-threatening, warm, friendly way."

Added his wife Marjorie, "You can learn to make decisions on how you are going to deal with life rather than the other way around.

"And with today's problems that's worth a lot."

Jensen can provide further information at 979-8234.

Better Rx For Relief

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: As the director of the North Carolina Drug Authority, I would like to comment on your advice to "Addict's Daughter." The girl's father was a physician.

May I suggest what I believe to be a better answer to her question, "How can I help him?"

First: I would have pointed out to the girl that her father cannot LEGALLY prescribe drugs for non-existing patients and divert them to his own use.

Second: An addict is an addict regardless of his profession, education or social background. Addicts manipulate people for their own benefit and take greater advantage of their relatives and friends than of strangers.

Third: Addicts justify in their own minds their use of drugs. Almost without exception, they resist counsel and advice of any kind. I have seen very few drug-dependent people seek rehabilitation on their own.

Fourth: I would have advised that daughter to report her father's drug problem to the State Board of Medical Examiners. This is a regulatory agency that has the authority to require a physician to submit to treatment and rehabilitation or have his license suspended or revoked.

Your column is widely read. In the interests of all physicians and other medical practitioners who may be drug-dependent, I solicit your support in asking their colleagues to bring the problem to the attention of the appropriate licensing boards when they have knowledge that the problem exists.

Past experience in North Carolina shows that a medical professional who is addicted to drugs and submits to treatment has a 90 percent cure rate. — F. E. EPPS, Raleigh, N.C.

DEAR MR. EPPS: Thanks for your viewpoint, which is an informed and authoritative one and well worth considering.

Personally, I doubt it will work in all cases. Moreover, that 90 percent cure-rate, if accurate, is extraordinary.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our daughter, who is a sophomore in college, has decided to quit after this term and go to work to put her fiance through law school.

We are very fond of the young man. Lisa has been going with him for three years, but my husband and I are unhappy about her decision because we believe she is not being fair to herself.

Lisa is an unusually bright young woman and was awarded a four-year scholarship. She insists she wants to get married in May and the only way this can be accomplished is if she goes to work and supports the two of them.

My husband has pointed out (to me, not her) that several couples who did it that way now are divorced. It seems the professional man often "outgrows" the wife who made it possible.

Later he becomes attracted to a more sophisticated, better-educated woman and dumps the wife, who by that time is 10 years older and has no college education to fall back on. What is your opinion? — MOM AND DAD

DEAR M. AND D.: The decision should be Lisa's, but she would be foolish not to consider all the possibilities. Stay out of it and hope for the best.

Don't flunk your chemistry test. Love is more than one set of glands calling to another. If you have trouble making a distinction you need Ann's booklet, "Love or Sex and How to Tell the Difference." Send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request and 50 cents in coin to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Valentine Misses Post

By JOAN RIVERS

I'm not sure what I will do this Valentine's Day, but I know what I can't do.

I can't use the same excuse this year that I did last and stand by my mailbox saying, "My Valentine mail must be a little late this year." That excuse wore a little thin around June 1. And I don't dare show my face inside the post office after last year, when they installed a "Dead Valentine" window just for me. I also won't be able to use the subtle hint I tried last year to make Edgar aware it was soon going to be Valentine's Day and that he'd better get moving on some kind of present.

I'd copied Robert Redford's handwriting and left a note lying open on the dresser: "Joan, we just can't go on meeting like this." At the bottom of the note Edgar had scrawled, "Like how?" So I figure this Valentine's Day I'll just have to take what I can get, which probably will be nothing. It took a long time to learn this, but the lesson started as early as the second grade.

I'll never forget my second grade teacher, Miss Fussmore, mainly because she was the only one in the class who received fewer Valentines than I.

Nevertheless, she cheerfully instructed us in how to create little boxes to attach to the bottom of the blackboard for our Valentines. I began to get the idea I might not be Miss Popularity on Valentine's Day when Miss Fussmore mentioned that my Valentine holder would not need any reinforcing.

Still, I remained hopeful in the face of disaster. I remember watching all the boys cutting and pasting their homemade Valentines and thinking, "Which one is for me?" I was still thinking the same thing the day after Valentine's Day. In fact, the thought still sometimes crosses my mind.

That Valentine's Day in second grade, however, wasn't totally horrible. There were two happenings that made everything bearable.

The first was that after some looking, I did find two Valentines in the bottom of my box. I was so delighted to receive them that I hardly noticed they were marked "Occupant."

The second thing was that Miss Fussmore, seeing that I felt much neglected, opened her desk, signed a Valentine, and handed it to me. It meant so much that I've saved it all these years. It reads: "To a really nice boy on Valentine's Day."

Because of the above you can understand why I am constantly hinting to my family not to forget Valentine's Day. Yesterday, I even said to Melissa, "A corsage would certainly be nice on Valentine's Day."

"Yeah, I guess," she said, "if you want to spend all that money on me."

And as far as Edgar goes, I finally realized the only way to get him to remember Valentine's Day was to buy a card for him to sign and hand back to me. It read:

Each morning I awake to find
You resting there beside me,
And thank my stars that I have you
To trust in and to guide me.

A lovely card for a lovely wife, I thought. Yesterday, I was delighted to spot the card on Edgar's dresser. I snuck a look, hoping he'd tucked a check inside. To my amazement, I discovered Edgar had added another stanza:

And so I beg my Valentine
Who wants to be a winner
Could she just sweep out the garage
And try to unthaw dinner?

Your Horoscope

Cancer: See Potential

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 8
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Challenge is a welcome stimulant. You come alive. What you do becomes meaningful. You receive compliment from one you respect.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Good lunar aspect coincides now with educational material, advertising, publishing — and spiritual insight.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Hard facts demand to be confronted. Toss aside superficialities. Accent is on adding up, taking inventory, getting second emotional breath.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Emphasis on contractural obligations, relationships that are important. Key now is to become more aware of general potential.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Basic issues are important — but you only accomplish now if your heart is in your work. Means get some inspiration.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Lunar aspect promotes love, creativity and a better rapport with young persons, including offspring.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You will find family circle "more flexible." Means there will be more humor at home base than was true in recent past.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Visit from "long lost" relative could be on agenda. Forces tend to be scattered.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent is on personal possessions, special collections, income. Submit suggestions, ideas.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Cycle is high and your ability to be at right place at right time is enhanced. Exude confidence.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your romantic illusions could gain substance. You begin to perceive vast difference between wishful thinking — and actuality.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accent is on fulfilling goal. Some of your ambitions prove more practical than many would have suspected.

1st Show Lays an Egg Roll

By F.S. SWERTLOW

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Khan!" is chop phooey.

"Khan!" — in case you have not been watching all the hyped promos on CBS — is the network's new detective thriller set in San Francisco. It premieres tonight (Channel 2, 8 p.m.).

"Khan!" also is the second bald-headed private-eye on CBS. The other is "Kojak."

KHAN, NOT related to Ghengis or Kubla, is a modern day Charlie Chan. In fact, he's such a modern day Charlie, that a group of Chinese in San Francisco — the Chinese Media Committee — have contended the Khan is offensive to Sino-Americans.

The group is wrong. "Khan!" is offensive to everyone. Unless the scripts and the acting improve, CBS might as well send Khan to his ancestors.

In the opening show, Khan, played by Khigh Dhiegh, clears a professional football player accused of clubbing his girlfriend to death with a statue. The ball player, a black quarterback, was framed by a coach trying to keep him out of a championship game. The coach was working for professional gamblers.

NOW, THIS plot is not the worst in the history of television or the most hackneyed. Certainly, the use of theme of pro ball allows the network to extend the football season. But it seems evident that Khan will never rise above mediocrity, especially since the level of acting never reaches the quality of the plot.

To wit: Khigh Dhiegh, who used to play the villain Wo Fat in "Hawaii Five-O," walks through his role like a windup Buddha doll suffering from terminal constipation. In fact, Dhiegh recites his lines like a telegram.

Others in the show suffer from the same problems. Irene Yah-ling Sun plays Khan's no. 1 and only daughter, Anna, a doctoral candidate in criminology. Miss Sun is attractive and icy, but suffers from the same malady that afflicts Khan.

EVAN KIM, Khan's No. 1 and only son, Kim, is designated by CBS to be "college educated." There must be a fear around CBS that Kim must be a college man because all Occidentals think Chinese work in laundries and use abacuses. The trouble with Kim is that he is filled with starch and waiting to be pressed.

The only interesting group left is the supporting cast, which is much better than the primary characters. Clu Gulager is workmanlike as the coach who tries to frame the quarterback. John Ireland adds a touch of class as the football team's impotent head coach.

And Victor Buono is his old delightful, villainous self as the gambling czar. He oozes evil. The only unfortunate thing about his performance was that he was saddled with terrible lines.

"Ed, don't be a twit," says Buono.

ORDINANCE NO. 75-3

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF COSTA MESA ADOPTING BY REFERENCE THE 1973 EDITIONS OF THE UNIFORM BUILDING CODE, THE UNIFORM MECHANICAL CODE, THE UNIFORM HOUSING CODE, THE UNIFORM PLUMBING CODE, AND THE 1975 NATIONAL ELECTRICAL CODE AND CERTAIN MODIFICATIONS AND AMENDMENTS TO SAID CODES.

THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF COSTA MESA DOES HEREBY ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

SECTION 1. The City Council of the City of Costa Mesa hereby finds and declares that the Uniform Building Code, 1973 Edition; Uniform Mechanical Code, 1973 Edition; Uniform Housing Code, 1973 Edition; National Electrical Code, 1975 Edition; and the Uniform Plumbing Code, 1973 Edition, have been published.

Council further finds and declares that in order to conform with current building practices, it is in the best interest of the health, safety, and welfare of the City that said Codes be adopted.

Council further finds and declares that certain amendments to said Codes as compiled and published are necessary to conform to special circumstances in the City of Costa Mesa.

Accordingly, Title 5 of the Costa Mesa Municipal Code is hereby amended to read as follows:

SECTION 2.

Section 5-1 is hereby amended to read as follows:

"Section 5-1, Uniform Codes Adopted. Those certain documents, three (3) copies of which are on file in the office of the City Clerk, being identified as the Uniform Building Code, 1973 Edition, including the appendix thereto, as amended; the Uniform Mechanical Code, 1973 Edition, including the appendix thereto as amended; the Uniform Housing Code, 1973 Edition, as published by the International Conference of Building Officials, are hereby adopted as the Building Code of the City."

SECTION 3.

Section 5-5 is hereby repealed and a new Section is hereby enacted as follows:

"Section 5-5, Reinspection Fees. When any inspection of structural, plumbing, electrical, or heating facilities is required due to the negligence of a permit holder, his agent, or other responsible person, or due to the failure of said parties to comply with previous correction notices, a fee of ten dollars ($10.00) may be charged by the Building Official prior to each such reinspection.

SECTION 4.

Section 5-7 is hereby amended to substitute 1973 for 1970.

SECTION 5.

Section 5-15 is hereby amended to substitute 1973 for 1970.

SECTION 6.

Section 5-27 is amended to read as follows:

"Section 5-27, Adoption of Codes. That certain published document, three (3) copies of which are on file in the office of the City Clerk, being marked and designated as 'National Electrical Code — 1975', and the amendments thereto, establishing rules and regulations for the installation and operation of electrical wiring, electrical fixtures and other electrical equipment and appliances; and that certain printed document, three (3) copies of which are on file in the office of the City Clerk, entitled: 'Uniform Wiring Code of the City of Costa Mesa', amendments to 1975 National Electric Code, are hereby adopted as the electrical code of the City, and are hereby referred to, adopted and made a part thereof to the same effect as though fully set forth in this chapter."

SECTION 7.

Section 5-28 if hereby repealed.

SECTION 8.

Section 5-41 is hereby amended by substituting 1973 for 1970.

SECTION 9.

Section 5-42 is hereby repealed and a new Section is hereby enacted as follows:

"Section 5-42, Fees. Every applicant for a permit to do work regulated by this code shall state in writing on the application form provided for that purpose, the character of work proposed to be done and the amount and kind in connection therewith, together with such information, pertinent thereto as may be required. Such applicant shall pay for each permit issued at the time of issuance, a fee in accordance with the following schedule, and at the rate provided for each classification shown herein.

Any person who shall commence any work for which a permit is required by this code without first having obtained a permit therefor shall, if subsequently permitted to obtain a permit, pay double the permit fee fixed by this section for such work, provided, however, that this provision shall not apply to emergency work when it shall be proved to the satisfaction of the Administrative Authority that such work was urgently necessary and that it was not practical to obtain a permit therefor before the commencement of the work. In all such cases a permit must be obtained as soon as it is practical to do so, and if there be an unreasonable delay in obtaining such permit, a double fee as herein provided shall be charged.

For the purpose of this section, a sanitary plumbing outlet on or to which a plumbing fixture or appliance may be set or attached shall be construed to be a fixture. Fees for reconnection and retest of existing plumbing systems in relocated buildings shall be based on the number of plumbing fixtures, gas systems, water heaters, etc., involved.

When interceptor traps or house trailer site traps are installed at the same time as a building sewer on any lot, no sewer permit shall be required for the connection of any such trap to an appropriate inlet fitting provided in the building sewer by the permittee.

When a permit has been obtained to connect an existing building or existing work to the public sewer to connect to a new private disposal facility, backfilling for private sewage disposal facilities abandoned consequent to such connection is included in the building permit.

PLUMBING PERMIT AND PLAN CHECK FEES

Permit fee $3.00 and in addition:

1. For each plumbing fixture or trap or set of fixtures on one trap (including water, drainage piping and backflow protection therefor)	$ 3.00
2. For each building sewer	2.00
3. For each water heater and/or vent	2.00
4. For each gas piping system of one (1) to five (5) outlets	2.00

ORDINANCE NO. 75-6

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF COSTA MESA AMENDING A PORTION OF SECTION 13-581 OF THE COSTA MESA MUNICIPAL CODE SPECIFYING PORTLAND CEMENT CONCRETE AS PAVING UNDER COVER AND STATING REASONS THEREFOR.

THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF COSTA MESA DOES HEREBY ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

SECTION 1: The City Council of the City of Costa Mesa finds and declares that the development standards for paving under cover on parking areas on residential developments as set forth in the Costa Mesa Municipal Code, do not fully and accurately express the requirements of the development standards provided for this purpose. The City Council further finds and declares that the term "cement concrete" means asphaltic cement concrete, in accordance with the Uniform Building Code and means Portland Cement Concrete, in accordance with the development standards followed by the Planning Department. The Council further finds and declares that the health, safety and welfare of the community, require that the development standards be amended to accurately express the requirements of the City of Costa Mesa for paving under cover.

Accordingly, Section 13-581 (5) (d) is hereby amended to read as follows:

SECTION 2: "(d) Paving Under Cover — The paving under required covered parking spaces shall be Portland Cement Concrete (PCC)."

SECTION 3: This ordinance shall take effect and be in full force and effect thirty (30) days from and after its passage, and before the expiration of fifteen (15) days after its passage, shall be published once in the Orange Coast Daily Pilot, a newspaper of general circulation printed and published in the City of Costa Mesa, together with the names of the members of the City Council voting for and against the same.

Brand X May Still Be Best Medical Deal

By MILTON MOSKOWITZ

Doctors are like you and me. When it comes to selecting products, they are strongly influenced by advertising and tend to rely on brand names.

This tendency is of more than passing interest because of the way the pharmaceutical business works. The medicines you take for your ailments are chosen not by you but by your physician. We're now spending about $8 billion a year for drugs prescribed by doctors.

A NEW STUDY by the New York-based Council on Economic Priorities (CEP) indicates that we are overpaying considerably as a result of the market power wielded by brandname prescription drugs. CEP estimates the price premium at between 52 percent and 62 percent, the premium representing the difference between the actual price and the lowest average price at which a drug is available.

It's a complicated affair, the pharmaceutical business, and the CEP study, "Resistant Prices," is a welcome addition to the thicket of misunderstanding that surrounds the field.

A manufacturer that develops a new drug naturally wants to mine this discovery for the greatest amount of dollars. It does that by patenting the drug under a brand name and promoting this brand name heavily to physicians.

Now this company may license other companies to produce this drug under other brand names. Or it may even supply the drug to other companies for sale under different brand names. Other companies may develop the drug in their own laboratories. Once the patent runs out, of course, anyone is free to make it.

HOWEVER, THE CEP study demonstrates clearly that if any or all of these circumstances occur the company that's first with a new product invariably continues to do the lion's share of the business—even though its brandname version of the product is usually the highest priced.

More and more doctors are prescribing generically these days, which means that, instead of jotting a brand name on the prescription pad, they specify the chemical compound. But that doesn't guarantee lower prices for the patient. The choice of the drug you take is then left up to the pharmacist, who may fill the prescription with a high-priced brand name anyway. The druggist may stock only the high-priced brands. And, if a generic (nonbranded) drug is supplied, the pharmacist's markup is usually higher than it is on brand-name products.

IT SEEMS THAT you can't win.

From the manufacturer's standpoint, the system yields enormous sales and profits in established brand-name drugs. The CEP study deals only with antibiotics. Here are the sales volumes done in 1973 by the leading antibiotic drugs (the dollar figures representing what drugstores and hospitals paid):

Keflin and Keflex, two penicillin-derived antibiotics produced by Eli Lilly—$68 million and $49 million, respectively; Erythrocin, Abbott's brand of erythromycin, $25 million; Ilosone, Lilly's brand of erythromycin, also $25 million; Vibramcyin, a Pfizer tetracycline, $28 million; V-Cillin-K, Lilly's oral penicillin, $22 million; Clindamycin, an Upjohn antibiotic, $21 million; Polycillin, the Bristol-Myers brand of ampicillin, a semisynthetic penicillin, $18 million.

THESE ARE brand names you never see unless you read medical journals or examine the hieroglyphics on your prescription slips. But very few individual products in our economy generate that kind of dollar volume.

OC Marketing Group Slates Lunch Meet

The International Marketing Association of Orange County has scheduled its monthly luncheon meeting Wednesday at the Jolly Roger Inn in Anaheim beginning at 11:30 am.

Luncheon fee is $3.50 for members and $5.50 for guests. Please make reservations by phoning the IMA at (714) 635-6160.

The topic for this meeting, "Ways U.S. Firms Can Watch International Currency Markets" will be discussed by William J. Doomey, assistant vice president, of Bankers Trust International (Pacific) Corp. Doomey will view problems of costs and risks involved with foreign exchange. He will suggest ways to anticipate foreign exchange exposures and will offer some mechanisms to reduce uncertainties and risks.

The IMA of Orange County is manufacturer oriented and welcomes guests and application for membership.

Impact On You

Ford's Budget Deficit Mulled

By SYLVIA PORTER

Money's Worth

What do government budget deficits of the magnitude that President Ford is projecting for this fiscal year and next mean to you? In terms of your living costs? Job security? Business prospects? Cost of borrowing money? The availability of credit to you? Interest rates paid on your savings?

the 1975-1976 budget figures are so enormous the defy comprehension — but their impact can be clearly translated into terms of your everyday life. To bign with, huge as Ford's estimates are, they are most certainly underestimates.

THE COMBINED '75-'76 deficits could easily soar into the $100 billion-plus range — meaning that the U.S. Treasury's outgo will exceed its income by this massive total and the Treasury will be compelled to enter the markets to borrow the funds.

Only if the economic stimulation provided by tax cuts and other moves this Congress is sure to make sends us into a sharp rebound very soon, will revenues be higher than Ford predicts. An unlikely "only if."

Only if Congress obeys every request Ford makes for budget reductions and adds no additional spending or tax stimulation on its own will government spending be as low as he forecasts. Another most unlikely "only if."

So what do the $100-billion deficits mean to you?

(1) Your cost of living will continue to rise at a slower rate than in 1974 but the pace of the rise will be faster than it would otherwise be if our budget were more under control.

WHILE THE upsurge in our living costs decelerates from 1974's "double digit" figures into the "single digit" range, this explosion of red ink is, all by itself, dimming hopes for a steep and prolonged slowing down of inflation. And the danger is mounting of another inflationary blow-off later, fed by this red ink.

A budget drowning in red ink because of shrinking revenues is less dangerous than one drowning because of soaring spending. But the billions of extra dollars are still fed into our economic stream. They still will lay the basis for more inflation later.

(2) Your job and business prospects will brighten, however — assuming the deficits work to restimulate the economy, as they almost always have.

As business works off its load of unsold inventories, as credit flows into the housing market, as the steps to stimulate the economy take hold our economy will bottom out and the upturn will be underway. While the shape of the next upswing is a key question, the prospects for business are turning better — and eventually, this will ripple out into more jobs.

(3) Your costs of borrowing money will decline but here too, the rate of decline will be slower than it would have been if the budget were closer to balance.

IT'S EASY to find statistics to prove that the projected deficits — under 3 percent of our Gross National Product — are akin to deficits in the Eisenhower and Johnson administrations and tiny in comparison with the 30 percent of GNP deficits in World War II. But the periods are not the same. In World War II, interest rates were "pegged" at record low levels by the Federal Reserve and Treasury. There also was little demand for money because the nation was concentrating on war production only.

As for 1959 and 1968, today's strains dwarf corporate demands for funds in those years. When Treasury Secretary Simon admits that he's "horrified" by the "enormous financing" task, he knows what he's talking about. For Simon has an intimate knowledge of how markets work. He came from Salomon Bros., one of the great investment banking houses of Wall Street, where he was a specialist in the U.S. Government securities market. To downgrade his "horror" is to ignore his background.

(4) The availability of credit will be adequate to finance economic recovery; the Federal Reserve will make sure of that. But with the competition for money so fierce, so relentless and coming from such top-quality sources, you well may find yourself on the outside — if you're a third-rate risk.

(5) AS A SAVER, though, you'll benefit in the sense that interest rates paid to attract your savings won't go down as much as they otherwise might. This is the other side of the outlook for interest rates over the longer term.

In balance, the economy is in you is favorable, if the net result is an end to the slump and if we keep fighting to curb inflation. That second "if" is crucial.

Miller In Lead With 69

PALM SPRINGS (AP) — Front-running Johnny Miller rallied on his back nine for a 69 and stretched his lead to three strokes Thursday in the second round of the $160,000 Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic.

Newport Beach's Alan Tapie is still in the thick of it, although he dropped six strokes off the pace with a 139 after shooting 71 Thursday.

Huntington Beach's Ray Carasco is six strokes further down the line at 145 with his 72.

Miller, who scored such sensational successes in the first two tournaments of the year, got one in the water on the front side but played his last nine in 33 and put together a two-round total of 133, a distant 11 under par.

Tom Shaw, who hasn't won in three years, had the best round of the bright, warm, sunny day, a six-under-par 66 and moved into a tie for second in this long tournament with a 136.

Skinny Mac McLendon was tied with him after another 68. Arnold Palmer, meanwhile, encountered some more putting miseries and slipped to a par 72.

Palmer, a five-time winner of this five-day, 90-hole event and a sentimental favorite to do it again, was an extremely frustrated man after falling seven shots back at 140.

"I don't know that I've ever played a better round of golf,' Palmer said. "It was just the putting. It was so frustrating. . ."

He paused, flashed the famous smile, and, in a mock serious voice proclaimed:

"I became extremely annoyed I came close to losing my temper."

Australian veteran Bruce Crampton, John Mahaffey, Miller Barber, rookie Bill Rogers and Tom Jenkins were at 137, one stroke behind Shaw and McLendon.

Mahaffey had a 67, Rogers 68, Barber and Crampton 69 and Jenkins 71 in the almost ideal playing conditions.

All of the leaders but Shaw, McLendon and Crampton played at Tamarisk, one of the four desert courses being used for the first four days of this unique event. Crampton was at La Quinta, Shaw at Bermuda Dunes and McLendon at Indian Wells.

All of the courses are within a six-mile radius of this desert resort.

Bruins, SC Test Oregon Fives

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — A year ago, unbeaten UCLA paid its annual visit to the Willamette Valley and lost to Oregon State and Oregon, shocking the collegiate basketball world.

Now UCLA, ranked second in the nation, is back for another weekend series against the Oregon schools and this time first place in the Conference is at stake.

"This is the biggest weekend of basketball since I've been at Oregon State," said OSU coach Ralph Miller, who is in his fifth year at the Corvallis school.

Oregon State and UCLA share the Pac-8 lead with 4-1 records and face each other tonight. Meanwhile, 40 miles away, eighth-ranked Southern California goes against ninth-rated Oregon in a conference game at Eugene. Both are 3-2 and tied for third place behind Stanford, now 4-2.

The teams swap opponents Saturday.

Miller figures Oregon State must win both games. "We can't really count on winning two in Los Angeles, so, logically, we need to win two this weekend," he said. "If we can win a couple, the pressure will be on them when we go south for the rematches next weekend."

Oregon State upset UCLA 61-57 last year in Corvallis, ending the Bruins' 50-game Pac-8 winning streak. Oregon followed with a 56-51 win over the perennial NCAA champions the following day.

UCLA on TV
Channel 5 at 8

"There is a tendency to take away from UCLA because Bill Walton and Keith Wilkes are gone," Miller said. "I'd be the last to minimize the loss, but I can promise you this team isn't exactly helpless without them."

To whip the Bruins, Miller said Oregon State must do things — "We have to control tempo, we have to keep them off the boards and we have to beat the press.

"UCLA is playing more like it did before Walton. It is putting more emphasis on getting a shot off the break and it is exploiting quickness."

UCLA coach John Wooden described Oregon and Oregon State as "outstanding basketball teams that are capable of beating us."

Bayi Leads Spike Aces At Forum

INGLEWOOD (AP) — Filbert Bayi runs like a man being chased by a tiger.

As soon as the gun goes off in a distance race the slender Bayi leaps to the front unlike almost any other runner in history. Distance races are traditionally strategic, with runners jockeying for position and fearful of taking the lead — "doing all the work," some call it.

He's heavily favored to win the mile tonight at the Los Angeles Times Indoor Games in the Forum.

At last year's Commonwealth Games, Bayi set a torrid pace and won the 1,500-meters in 3:32.2, breaking Jim Ryun's record which had stood nearly a decade. The time is equivalent to a mile in under 3:50. Bayi really doesn't know what he's capable of and that's part of the reason Rod Dixon and his other foes Friday night, Steve Prefontaine and John Walker, are rated underdogs.

The Times Games won't only be a mile race. The regular contingent of Pacific Coast Club world record holders will be on hand: high jumper Dwight Stones, shot putters Al Feuerbach and George Woods, quarter-miler Jim Bolding and middle distance runner Francie Larrieu.

The shorter races, such as the 60-yard dash and the high hurdles, will be run in heats with finals for the qualifiers. The two-mile features two former stars — Tracy Smith and John Lawson.

Sports in Brief

Drug Accusations Are Unfounded

ST. LOUIS — A federal investigation revealed a series of drug charges made by a 19-year-old woman against a number of National Football League players are unfounded, a federal drug official said today.

Thomas Maher, special agent in charge of the Drug Enforcement Administration office here, said a thorough investigation into charges made by Roxie Ann Rice "concerning the trafficking of drugs" do not in any way substantiate her allegations.

UCI Girl Stars

TORQUAY, England (AP) — The United States' women's team took a 1-0 lead over Britain in the final of an under-21 tennis tournament today when UCI Irvine's Lindsay Morse topped Annette Coe 6-2, 6-2.

Morse was helped by the British under-21 champoin's three double faults in the opening game and display of nervousness throughout the 55-minute match.

Decision to Lampkin

PORTLAND — Portland's Ray Lampkin scored a unanimous 10-round decision Thursday night over San Diego's Miguel "Mike" Mayon in a tune-up for his lightweight title fight next month against world champion Roberto Duran.

The judges scored it 100-94, 100-93 and 98-94 for the 27-year-old Lampkin, who will meet Duran in Panama Mar. 2.

There were no knockdowns. Lampkin was staggered with an overhand right in the opening round but later stunned his younger opponent several times without putting him down.

Worthy Shines

SANTA BARBARA — With ex-Huntington Beach High star Jim Worthy scoring 23 points, Biola's Eagles remained unbeaten in NAIA District 3 northern division play Thursday night by notching an 86-68 triumph over Westmont.

Biola improved its District 3 record to 7-0 and went 18-4. Overall while Westmont slipped to 7-13.

Cards Win

PULLMAN, Wash. — The Stanford Cardinals defeated Washington State 71-58 Thursday night in a Pacific-8 Conference basketball game, despite the efforts of Cougar Steve Puidokas, who scored 23 points.

The Cougars took an early lead before Stanford coach Howie Dallmar went to a zone defense. The Cardinals moved in front for good with a Rich Kelley jumper from the base line 10 minutes into the game.

Bears Routed

SEATTLE — Paced by the inside shooting of James Edwards and the outside scoring of Clarence Ramsey, the University of Washington routed the California Golden Bears 83-57 Thursday night in a Pacific-8 Conference basketball game.

Ramsey and Edwards each totaled 17 points and Lars Hansen added 13 as Washington won its second conference game in six outings.

Fence Raised

SAN FRANCISCO — The outfield fence at Candlestick Park will be raised in height from eight feet to 12 before the 1975 baseball season opens.

Lakers on TV

BUFFALO — The Los Angeles Lakers tackle Buffalo tonight in National Basketball Association action. It'll be televised on Channel 5 at 5.

Coach Bill Sharman will rejoin the Lakers after missing a pair of games due to the death of his father.

The Lakers split with New York and Philadelphia in that span.

MV Tennis On Tonight

Mixed doubles action will be highlighted tonight on the second day of the first annual Winter Tennis Carnival at the Marguerite Tennis Center in Mission Viejo with action from 5 to 10.

Women Threaten Boycott

NEW YORK — Billie Jean King and her association of women tennis pros gave Wimbledon one more chance Thursday to give them equal prize money with the men — or a promise of it — or face a boycott by the game's top players.

"Jerry Diamond, our executive director, and I are ready to fly to London to seek a compromise solution," the five time Wimbledon winner, president of the Women's Tennis Association, said, disclosing an overhelming vote by members to shun the event unless adjustments are made.

In London, Maj. David Mills, secretary of Wimbledon's governing All-England Club, said, "The prize money has been settled and there will be no alteration."

Laver Wins

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Strong service returns and volleying enabled unseeded Rod Laver to oust third-seeded Ismail El Shafei 7-6, 6-2 Thursday night in the $50,000 Blue Group tournament of World Championship Tennis here.

Also, Alex Mayer defeated Australia's Colin Dibley 6-4, 6-2; Raul Pamirez halted Mike Estep 6-2, 6-1; and Roscoe Tanner downed Charlie Pasarell 6-3, 6-3.

Connors Hurt

NORTH LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — Jimmy Connors, the top seed in the $25,000 Arkansas Internatinonal Tennis tournament defaulted Thursday night after complaining of an inflammation in the area of his left knee.

In action Thursday, John Holladay served 11 aces in the second set and upset Jeff Austin, 6-3, 6-2.

Karl Meiler crushed Barry Phillips-Moore in a swift pair of 6-2 sets. And George Hardie of Long Beach eliminated Rumania's Ion Tiriac 7-6, 6-3.

Okker Rallies

BOLOGNA, Italy — Tom Okker came from behind to beat Buster Mottram 6-7, 6-1, 6-2 in the opening round of the $60,000 World Championship Tennis tournament here Thursday evening. Bob Giltinan edged Jose Higueras, 7-6, 6-3 and Onny Parun beat Sherwood Stewart 6-3, 7-5.

UCI Hosts Pomona

UC Irvine returns home for the first time in three weeks tonight, hosting Pomona-Pitzer in college basketball action. It begins at 8.

UCI's Anteaters have found the going rough on the road, losing four of five. But they figure to handle the Sagehens tonight.

Pomona comes into the game with a 6-9 record while UCI is 11-7.

ARNOLD PALMER JUST MISSES AT PALM SPRINGS.

Says Ex-area Coach

Get Sledgehammer For Big 10 Games

Lute Olson, former Marina High and Cal State University (Long Beach) basketball coach has a nifty piece of work cut out for his University of Iowa basketball team the next three days.

Saturday night the Hawkeyes roll out the welcome mat for Indiana, the nation's No. 1 rated college quintet. And Monday night they take on Ohio State, also at Iowa.

"Is playing Indiana like running into a buzz saw?," I asked

GLENN WHITE

WHITE WASH

Olson during a telephone interview Thursday. "Yeah," he retorted. "Haven't you seen them? They're awesome. They keep the pressure on you so strongly and they play with great intensity.

"They blitzed us in Bloomington 102-49 but we're still sold out (13,700) for Saturday night's game. In fact, we'll come back with another crowd of over 13,000 Monday night."

Olson says his Hawkeyes can compete with almost anyone at Iowa because of the immense homecourt advantage Big 10 schools seem to enjoy.

"You go to other arenas in the conference and you don't see many friendly faces in those giant crowds. It's tough for any of the visiting teams' fans to get tickets. We called to get tickets for our fans three weeks from now when we play at Minnesota and we can't get anything — their 17,000-seat fieldhouse is sold out already.

"Those crowds really seem to intimidate the players," Olson says.

"Is the Big 10 tough?," Olson asks. "It's like the NBA without NBA officials. You need a sledgehammer if you are a big man."

Olson is in his first year as head coach and he's been besieged by injuries, including a broken hand suffered by ex-Long Beach Millikan star Dan Frost. Frost was leading Iowa in assists, scoring and rebounds when hurt.

The team's top two guards were also injured.

But Olson will have his entire team back for next season and he's only a victory away this year from tying last season's win mark. Iowa is currently 7-10.

One of the big wins was a 53-44 upset of Minnesota and the Hawkeyes only lost by four at Ohio State.

Olson has his eye out for a big man and one of the candidates is Los Amigos High's Tom Schneiderjohn. "A good big man could probably come in and play for us a lot as a freshman," Olson says.

Olson also vigorously denies rumors that he will be the next head coach at San Diego State. "My contract here is for four years and I have no intention now of leaving sooner," he says.

"I'm happier here than I've been anywhere for a long time. And so is my family. I have two daughters at the University of Iowa and they've already said if we move, they stay.

"It's not easy to get things turned around against this kind of competition but if we could win 12 or 13 games this year it would be a step in the right direction."

Public Donations Save SF Prep Sports

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco is applying a bandage of donated dollars to a budget cut calling for an end to after-school sports in the city's nine high schools and 17 junior high schools.

Early contributions totaling about $50,000 by Thursday had assured completion of the high school basketball schedule and following baseball and spring football seasons.

From the city publicity and advertising fund, Mayor Joseph L. Alioto diverted $24,000 to pay for continuation of drama, music, debate and other high school after-hour extra-curricular activities that were eliminated along with sports. The mayor said he's seeking an additional $19,000 to save these nonsports programs in junior high schools, too.

Meanwhile, students were signing strike petitions and scheduled a meeting for Monday.

The Board of Education voted 6-1 Tuesday night to pare this year's budget to a total of $122 million. Knocking out the sports programs accounted for about $204,000 in a $1.6 million budget slash, but about $2.2 million must still be trimmed to keep the district in the black.

School board president Lucille Abrahamson says the problem is the 1972 Property Tax Reform Law, which ties school district revenues in California to student enrollment. Student numbers have declined sharply here and as a result, school officials say the law has failed to provide the district with enough money to cope with inflation.

"Next year will be chaotic," she said, referring to estimates the budget deficit of the San Francisco district could mount to $20 million.

While Mrs. Abrahamson pleaded for new legislation, state Sen. Milton Marks introduced a bill at Sacramento to require all school districts to have both intramural and interschool athletic programs with the state paying the cost.

"Many school districts throughout California are facing the same difficulty," Marks said.

Diablos, Chargers Tangle

The Mission Viejo High Diablos, who have not lost to the same team twice this season, and El Toro's Chargers, who are unbeaten against zone defenses, clash in a crucial South Coast League basketball game tonight. Tipoff is at 8 at Mission Viejo.

The Diablos and Chargers are both 6-3 and tonight's winner will be in an excellent position to finish second. San Clemente is 8-1.

In their first meeting, El Toro easily defeated Mission Viejo, 56-45. Guards Dean Egertson and Dave Cooper only scored eight points for Mission in that loss, and the Chargers' zone defense completely baffled the Diablos.

However, the Diablos have a habit of gaining revenge. They were beaten by Costa Mesa and University only to win handily the second time around.

The Chargers also have a unique trait. They have never lost to a team that plays a zone, and Pat Roberts' Diablos are always in a 2-3. El Toro also whipped zone-oriented Huntington Beach, 62-53, in a game Chargers coach Wendell Witt called "our best of the year."

The Chargers will have a height advantage, but the Diablos are quicker. Leading El Toro inside is 6-3 forward Mike Capistran (12.6), 6-8 center Ed McFadden (8.1) and 6-4 forward Jon Jackson (7.6).

Mission Viejo's only tall player is 6-5 center Steve Sawyer (12.7). Its two starting forwards, Kelly Cox and Mitch Adams, are 5-10. Cox, a good shooter from the right corner, is averaging 9.3.

But for Mission Viejo to win, it will need top performances from the usually consistent Egertson (11.2) and Cooper (10.7).

Gary Connally, a 5-11 guard, is El Toro's leading scorer with a 14.6 average. The other guard, 5-6 Joe Carta, is averaging 8.1.

Unique Feud

Overnight Rivalry For ET, Diablos

BY ED BURGART
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

"The El Toro-Mission Viejo rivalry is quite unique. Not like UCLA-USC. Not like Army-Navy.

"After all, a school in only its second year of existence like El Toro High doesn't usually develop a rivalry overnight.

But that's exactly what happened, especially in the case of the El Toro and Mission Viejo basketball teams that collide at 8 tonight at Mission.

"Just two years ago, Joe Carta, Gary Connally, Jon Jackson, Ed McFadden and Dean Egertson played on Mission Viejo's sophomore basketball team that went 22-2.

Tonight, Carta, Connally, Jackson and McFadden will start for El Toro, Egertson for Mission Viejo.

"I only wish that any other school we played had a rivalry as good as this one," says Carta. "It's great for the school and community. We have played basketball with half of them."

Carta is a good buddy of Egertson. So is Connally.

"Dean and I are close friends," says Connally. "This game has to mean a little more than the others."

It will be the third time Connally has opposed his former teammate. The first encounter was a nightmare, the second a dream.

"We weren't ready to play them last year," says Connally of the 59-40 defeat. "I now kind of wish we had not played them. We were not in their class."

But El Toro proved it was in the same class this year when it defeated Mission Viejo, 56-45.

"Going into the game last year, we knew our chances were not good," says Carta. "But this year, we knew we had a good team and we had to prove it. We wanted to beat them to show we are not second hand."

Both teams are pretty much equal now. They are currently tied for second place in the South Coast League with 6-3 records.

And now that El Toro has beaten Mission Viejo, Carta feels tonight's game will not be a grudge match. Coach Wendell Witt feels the same way.

"We'll probably maintain the rivalry through this year," he says. "But there are a lot of kids here who didn't even play there."

Witt doesn't envision the same kind of intensity tonight that was prevalent in El Toro's win a couple of weeks ago. In that victory, El Toro was only playing its second game in its new gymnasium. The Chargers previously played at—where else?—Mission Viejo.

"We would also have to practice from 6-9 p.m. down there," recalls Witt.

And being familiar with Mission's court will not be a disadvantage to El Toro tonight.

"We'll feel more comfortable there than they did here," says Witt. "It won't be any game like last time."

Yet, the glaze in Witt's eyes would lighten up a dark alley when he was asked about the feelings between the two schools.

"Being honest about it, I do look at our games as a rivalry," he says.

Race More Important

Rivalry Secondary To Mission Viejo

By DAVE ROMANO
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The Mission Viejo High Diablos would just as soon forget about any rivalry that exists between them and El Toro High—at least for the moment.

The two South Coast League schools collide tonight at 8 for second place in the standings. Due to a sound thrashing dealt it by El Toro in the first round, Mission Viejo is looking at this game with a different attitude.

During its first year of existence, El Toro shared the Mission Viejo campus with the Diablos. The players on both teams grew up together, played junior high ball on the same teams and competed on the same lightweight cage squads.

Thus, when the two district schools collide there is usually more at stake than just a win or a loss in the standings. The winner gets a boost in pride and the loser has to live with the fact her sister school gained the upper hand.

That was the feeling when the two squads met earlier in the season.

For Mission Viejo the game definitely meant more than another South Coast League tussle.

Mission Viejo players looked at the game as being a rival match, one which it had to win to quiet pressure being put on it from other students, faculty and the community in general.

But for the Diablos, the stage had already been set for what was to be a disatrous evening as everything seemed to be in El Toro's favor.

It was only the second game for the Chargers in their new gym. The two rivals had met once the previous year with Mission notching an easy win which made El Toro look bad. And being the offspring of what was once one campus, the Chargers felt they had more to prove than the Diablos.

The result of the contest could have been predicted, the fired-up Chargers jumped to an early 16-8 lead and went on to record a 56-45 triumph. The loss taught Mission Viejo players a good lesson.

"The last time we played El Toro we were all thinking about the big rivalry and not really about what the game meant to us in the standings," says guard Dean Egertson, who is averaging 11.2 points a game. "We're in a battle for second place right now and that's all we're thinking about. We don't care about the rivalry, we want to win and get into second place."

Mission Viejo coach Pat Roberts shares Egertson's views.

"I have never made a big thing out of the rivalry, but I have to admit the feeling is there," says Roberts. "I think El Toro would probably like to beat us more than we would like to defeat it. I hope our kids know how important tonight's game means to us in the standings, the rivalry should mean less this time."

Dave Cooper plays opposite Egertson in the Diablos' back court. He points out that there was some pressure on Mission Viejo when it met El Toro for the first time.

Tritons, Dolphins Collide

League-leading San Clemente, winner of six straight, meets the Dana Hills Dolphins, losers of six straight, in a South Coast League basketball game tonight at San Clemente High. Tipoff is at 8.

Laguna Beach travels to University for an 8 o'clock encounter.

Stan DeMaggio's Tritons lead the circuit in offense (67.4) while Tony Stillson's Dolphins have surrendered the most points (61.6).

The Dolphins have already lost to San Clemente, 74-59, and their lack of height doesn't figure to help tonight either. At 6-7½, Tritons center Ted Kalota figures to score against the smaller Dolphins. Kalota only tallied nine in their first meeting, but has been averaging 21 since then. The Dolphins' tallest starter is 6-3 center Henry Mikiewicz.

Like Dana Hills, Laguna Beach is 2-7 but rates a chance to defeat University's Trojans who are 3-6. The Artists have been respectable lately and only lost to the Trojans, 41-38. Laguna Beach has the league's fourth best defense (58.1) but the worst offense (50.3).

University has dropped four straight and ranks fifth in offense (53.4) and defense (58.8).

Calendar

Saturday (Feb. 8)
Basketball—Dana Hills at El Toro, Laguna Beach at Mission Viejo, San Clemente at University, Citrus vs Saddleback at San Clemente, UC Irvine at Cal State Northridge (all at 8), El Camino at Orange Coast (7:30), Southern California College vs Biola at OCC (2 p.m.), UC Irvine frosh at Cal State Northridge frosh (5:45).
Swimming—El Toro at Esperanza (11 a.m.), San Diego State, UOP, UC Irvine at Newport Harbor High (1 p.m.).
Baseball—UC Irvine-Alumni game.
Wrestling—Estancia at Holtville tourney (3).

Monday (Feb. 10)
Soccer—Marina at Edison, Fountain Valley at Westminster, Huntington Beach at Newport Harbor, Dana Hills at San Clemente (all at 3:15).
Baseball—Cypress at Orange Coast (2:30).
Tennis—Saddleback at Santa Ana (2).

GWC Tries To Stay Alive

Golden West College bids to stay alive in the Southern California Conference basketball race tonight when the Rustlers host run-and-gun LA Southwest College at 8 o'clock.

GWC's Rustlers (4-4) trail circuit leader Cypress by two games, but play five of their remaining six conference tilts at home.

Golden West was bottled up completely by Cypress Wednesday in losing, 73-48, but figures to hold its own against an LA Southwest outfit it defeated, 94-78, in the first round.

The Cougars added former Verbum Dei High standout Dwight Slaughter to their roster at the semester break.

In another key conference game tonight, Cypress invades second place Santa Monica (5-3).

Huntington Battles Saddleback

Huntington Beach High will be trying to keep pace for its Empire League basketball showdown with Katella High tonight at 8 when it travels to Saddleback High.

The Oilers of Huntington Beach and the Katella Knights are 8-1 in loop play and will meet Tuesday at Huntington for what might be the title.

Both leaders, however, will have to survive tonight's games, with Katella drawing the tougher assignment. Katella hosts Foothill and the visitors are the hottest club in the league, riding a five-game winning streak.

The Oilers might have some trouble with Saddleback if they get caught looking ahead to the Katella game. The host Roadrunners are 2-7 in league and have won only three games all year, but they are coming off a 42-41 win over Cypress and have the home court advantage.

The first time Huntington and Saddleback met, the Oilers set an Orange County scoring record with a 119-58 win. Seven Huntington players scored in double figures in that game, led by Phil Dunkelberger and Jim Cable with 18 each.

Cable has been hot recently for the Oilers with 40 in his last two games. Paul Gassmann collected 21 in Huntington's 64-63 win over Kennedy Tuesday.

Monarchs Vie

LONG BEACH—The Mater Dei High Monarchs will try to move into a tie for first place tonight when they invade St. Anthony for a key Angelus League basketball game. Tipoff is at 8.

St. Anthony currently is in first place with a 4-1 record. Mater Dei is 3-2. The Saints are the league's top defensive team while the Monarchs are the best offensive club.

FV Faces Lions; Tars Host Vikes

Second place in the Sunset League basketball race will be at stake tonight at 8 when the Fountain Valley Barons travel to Westminster High.

The Barons are in second place with an 8-1 record while Westminster could gain a tie with a victory tonight. The Lions take a 7-2 mark into the contest.

Other Sunset games tonight find Newport Harbor hosting Marina, Edison entertaining Los Alamitos and Loara traveling to Western.

Fountain Valley came away with a 63-52 win the first time it met the Lions at home. The Barons were able to work the ball in deep to Dave Rohde in that game. The big center paced Fountain Valley with 23 points.

The Lions will counter with the play of 6-4 forward Linn Wilson. He is averaging 24 points a game and is shooting over 50 percent from the field.

Newport will be hoping the third time is the charm when it hosts Marina. The visiting Vikings have knocked off the Sailors twice this year (although Newport officially won the first game via forfeit). Neither game was close with the Vikings walking off with 94-69 and 86-55 victories.

Edison will be out to avenge a 69-62 first round loss to Los Alamitos. Todd Zirbel scored 21 points and Tom Lloy threw in 26 for Edison in that game.

Mesans, Spartans In Century Crucial

Costa Mesa High's amazing Mustangs—picked to finish seventh in Century League basketball hostility—trek to Villa Park tonight in a bid to remain in first place.

For Mesa it's another crucial in what is becoming a bi-weekly situation.

It's an 8 o'clock start, as are the other three conflicts—Estancia at El Modena, Corona del Mar at Santa Ana and Magnolia at Tustin.

Coach Larry Sunderman's Mesans knocked off Villa Park, 56-51, in first round action and their momentum has carried them to a 7-2 mark—equal to Villa Park and the league's hottest team, Tustin.

Mesa began the season with no standouts and no all-league candidates. There are still none that stand out from the rest—but they're all approaching all-league status.

The front line of Keith Josephson, Dan Byers and Stan Miller is usually the key, but if the opposition sags inside, the play of guards Gary Spink and Mark Richardson is capable of turning the tide.

Villa Park, on the other hand, has an offense that revolves around 6-4 Steve Nelson, a candidate for player of the year in Century circles.

Junior Jim McCloskey will be trying to extend his brilliant performances in the past four games. He's averaged 30.0 per outing in that span, although Estancia has lost two of those four games to fall a game behind Costa Mesa, Tustin and Villa Park in the race for the title.

El Modena's big gun is Ken Quigley. Estancia's fast break, led by guards Ray Orgill and Kyle Bishcoff, however, gives the Eagles the edge.

Two streaks are on the line and both figure to continue.

Tustin's Tillers, after an 0-2 start and burdened by injury and illness, have won seven straight. Magnolia has succeeded only once in nine league starts.

And Santa Ana High's 34-game losing streak will be tested against Corona del Mar's Sea Kings.

SPAGHETTI FEED BENEFITS TRITON

A spaghetti dinner with proceeds ticketed to San Clemente High student Al Sandoval is tonight at Triton Center on the school campus.

The dinner is from 5 to 7:30 and cost is $1.50 per person.

Sandoval, a grid star on the Tritons' varsity football team which earned a berth in the CIF playoffs last fall, was seriously injured in an automobile accident during the Christmas holidays.

Proceeds will help defray rising medical costs.

Cage Victory For UCI Gals

Kristy Schoonover and Becky Smith paced UC Irvine's women's basketball team to a 49-22 victory over Cal State (Long Beach) Tuesday afternoon.

Schoonover hit 16 points and had 12 rebounds while Smith scored 14 points and had six rebounds. UCI is now 4-1 for the season.

Rustlers Bag 8-0 Victory

Golden West College used virtually every offensive weapon in the book from stealing home to belting a pair of home runs in opening the 1975 baseball season with an 8-0 triumph over College of the Canyons on the winner's diamond Thursday.

Mike Kiefer stole home in the second inning on the front end of a successful double steal with John Macauley going to second.

In the fifth inning, Curt Etchandy belted a 345-foot home run with teammate Curnal Rungo on base.

Gary North then culminated the day with an inside-the-park home run in the sixth inning.

Coach Fred Hoover used three pitchers in a combined shutout including Scott Borie, Ed Orozco and Tim Richards.

From Modern to Ballet

Two Coast Dance Groups to Perform

A wide variety of dance styles will be performed by two different dance groups in shows coming up Feb. 13 through 16.

The shows are suitable for children as well as adults.

In fact, one show is especially for children. At 2:30 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 15, Ballet Pacifica will present two new entries in its "Ballet for Children" series.

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" and "The Enchanted Toyshop" will be on the program in the Newport Harbor High School auditorium, 600 Irvine Ave., Newport Beach.

Tickets cost $3 for adults and $2 for children.

Featured dancers will be Louise Frazer, Carrie Kneubuhl, Molly Lynch, Charles Colgan, Cynthia Tosh, Roger Faubel, Kristi Stephens and Belinda Smith.

Ballet Pacifica will present an entirely different show at 4 p.m. on Sunday, Feb. 16, when the group will dance "Les Sylphides" and several other short ballets.

Tickets are $4 for adults and $3 for children to the performance at the Laguna Moulton Playhouse, 606 Laguna Canyon Road, Laguna Beach.

"Les Sylphides," set to music by Chopin, has been choreographed by Michael Panaieff. David Panaieff will dance the lead.

Also on the program will be "Moods of Ancient Russia," choreographed by Lila Zali. Two other short ballets include "Boxed," choreographed by Jill Sweet, and the black swan pas de deux from "Swan Lake," danced by Louise Frazer and Victor Moreno.

Reservations for the Ballet Pacifica performances may be made by calling Betsy Townsend at 494-7271.

Dance styles ranging from abstract modern and tap to romantic ballet will be part of "Dance 75," a concert directed by Nannette Pistole at Golden West College, 15744 Goldenwest St., Huntington Beach.

The performance, sponsored by the college dance club, will be at 8:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 13, and 1 and 8:30 p.m. Friday, Feb. 14 in the college theater.

Tickets are $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for students.

The show will feature original music by Linda Wells, David Luddington and John Goodwin, plus bluegrass intermission music provided by Country Convention.

Student choreographers are Janice Dulak, Robyn Frey, Milford Kemp, Robin Myers and Kathleen Weaver. Professional choreographers for the production are Carol Caniglia, John Goodwin and Nannette Pistole.

Additional information about the concert is available from Golden West College at 892-7711.

Changes, New Show at Jack Glenn Gallery

By JACKIE HYMAN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

To celebrate its fifth birthday, the Jack Glenn Gallery has moved and changed its name.

It's also giving a birthday party.

The celebration will begin at 8 p.m. Saturday in the new location on the third floor of the Beacon Bay Building in Design Plaza of Newport Center in Newport Beach.

The new name is the Glenn Smith Gallery, acknowledging a formal partnership between Jack Glenn and Michael Smith, who has been working with Glenn for two years.

To open the new gallery, Smith and Glenn have borrowed 12 paintings sold during the gallery's five years on Coast Highway in Corona del Mar.

Each of the paintings is accompanied by a new painting by the same artist. The new works are for sale.

The show will continue through March 19. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Monday through Saturday.

Artists represented are Roy Lichtenstein, Jake Berthot, Robert Rauschenberg, Claes Oldenburg, Sam Francis, Helen Frankenthaler, Jim Dine, Robert Ryman, Tom Wesselmann, Andy Warhol, Wayne Thiebaud and Kenneth Noland.

The show was being assembled this week in the new galleries, which occupy more than 3,000 square feet in a building shared chiefly with financial firms.

"It seems like a strange connection but that's about it," commented Jack Shea, the building's owner and a collector of works by such artists as Warhol and Lichtenstein.

"A lot of people that we know have reservations about it (the third story, New York-style location) but I haven't," Glenn added.

He cited better parking and traffic flow and more flexible gallery space as reasons for the move.

The new site includes two galleries, large offices and even larger storage facilities.

They were needed for the new show when crates as large as seven feet across came pouring in.

So far, Glenn said there hasn't been any trouble getting things in the elevator or up the staircase.

"If you can't get it into that elevator chances are you can't get it into someone's house," he said.

The old paintings were borrowed from collectors and dealers, who were very cooperative, Glenn said.

Collectors form a large part of the Glenn clientele, although students and anyone interested in art are encouraged to come in and browse, he said.

"A certain number of people collect things and they might collect baseball cards or stamps and some of these people collect art," Glenn commented.

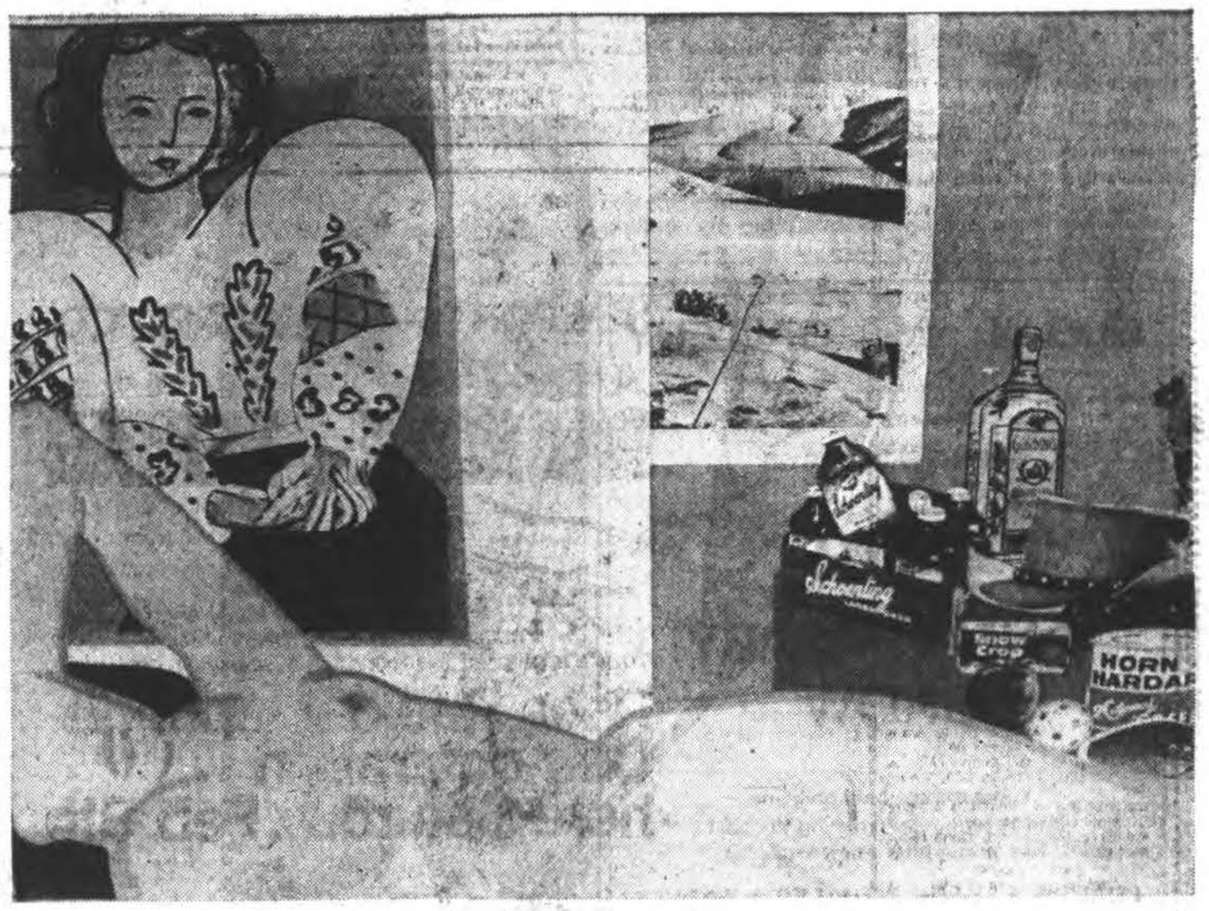

However, art costs a little more than baseball cards and stamps. A purchase at the gallery can cost anywhere from $60 for a photograph or $125 for a framed work during a less prestigious show up to $60,000, the largest amount paid for a sale there so far. The confidential sale was to a museum.

Smith, Glenn's new partner, formerly had his own gallery on La Cienega Boulevard, the Los Angeles art center.

"We're both collectors. We just happen to have a gallery," he said of himself and Glenn.

Smith said that despite a period of confusion in art directions during the last few years, he believes new artists are restoring some focus to the art world.

"I think a lot of artists right now are truly exploring art. They're really discovering some creative things," Smith said.

DIAGRAM SHOWS PARADE ROUTE THROUGH CHINATOWN IN LA

Parade to Begin New Year in Chinatown

Next weekend is New Year's.

The year of the Enchanted Hare (year 4673 on the Chinese calendar) will be ushered in at 8 p.m. Friday, Feb. 14, with the traditional Golden Dragon Parade through Los Angeles Chinatown.

Los Angeles Mayor Thomas Bradley will lead the parade, assisted by Grand Marshall Hugh Hefner. Also participating as an honorary grand marshall will be March Fong Eu, California Secretary of State.

Featured in the parade will be a 100-foot golden dragon and a ceremonial lion. Each float will represent a different Chinese holiday, including the moon festival, the dragon boat festival and the lantern festival.

The new year will be celebrated in Chinatown throughout the weekend of Feb. 14 through 16, with such events as a three-day carnival and stage shows.

There will also be displays of bonsai trees and demonstrations by Chinese chefs.

Special events for children will include a chow mein noodle eating contest and a fried rice eating contest.

The celebration culminates with the Hoi Nen or opening of the New Year banquet on Thursday, Feb. 20. According to tradition, Chinese people fast before the new year to rid the body of evil spirits. The Hoi Nen dinner breaks the fast.

'Fair Lady' Set

Eliza Doolittle, Henry Higgins and the music of Lerner and Loewe are returning to Orange County.

The Fullerton Civic Light Opera production of "My Fair Lady" will open Friday, Feb. 14 and run for three weekends.

Performances are at 8:30 p.m. Feb. 15, 21, 22, 28 and March 1, and a 2:30 p.m. matinee will be held Feb. 23.

Tickets cost from $2.50 to $5 and are available from Wallichs Music stores and Mutual agencies, or by calling 879-1732.

Starring in the production will be Leslie Tinnaro of Westminster as Eliza Doolittle, the Cockney flower girl transformed into an elegant lady, and Ace Mask of Norwalk as Henry Higgins, the man who transforms her.

Joe Kaye will play Alfie Doolittle and Richard Clave will be Colonel Pickering. Charles Caywood plays Freddie.

The popular musical features such songs as "I Could Have Danced All Night," "On the Street Where You Live" and "Get Me to the Church on Time."

Leslie Tinnaro of Westminster will sing the part of Eliza Doolittle.

Where is the Drama?

Intermission
Tom Titus

Community theater followers parched for an oasis of serious drama these days may find some — but not much — relief in the second half of the season along the Orange Coast.

Midway through the 1974-75 lineup, and with the balance of each local theater's schedule announced, there appears a cut or two of lean dramatic meat. But by and large, most playhouses appear more concerned with filling their seats by offering continuous comedy than with fulfilling their cultural commitments by presenting more diverse and thought-provoking fare.

Three theaters along the coast —all of which once produced at least one drama a season and usually two—have, in fact, completely eliminated serious plays from their schedules for 1974-75.

CONVERSELY, the one community group from which one might expect more frothy, inconsequential material, has taken the lead in producing plays of substance. This would be the Lido Isle Players, who in past years have offered "Dial M for Murder" and "Sunrise at Campobello" and now are preparing for the courtroom drama, "Witness for the Prosecution."

What makes the Lido Isle situation even more commendable is the fact that the players mount only two plays a season. Thus, half their schedule is given over to serious productions.

On the other side of the coin are three coastal groups which have presented notable dramatic works in past seasons — the Laguna Moulton Playhouse, the Costa Mesa Civic Playhouse and the Westminster Community Theater. Significant drama is conspicuous by its complete absence from the schedules of all three theaters.

This leaves, apart from Lido Isle's "Witness," only two other upcoming plays which could accurately be classified as dramas — the Huntington Beach Playhouse's "Another Part of the Forest," Lillian Hellman's predeeessor to "The Little Foxes," and the Irvine Community Theater's "Father's Day," more accurately described as a comedy-drama but definitely for adult audiences.

Along with Irvine's earlier "Silent Night, Lonely Night," this constitutes the entire lineup of heavy drama for the 1974-75 season from seven coastal community theaters — out of a collective schedule of 35 plays. Quite an imbalance.

THE POPULAR argument from the playhouses is that comedies are far more popular with audiences than are dramas, a point which cannot be denied. People go to the theater (the timeless refrain echoes) to be entertained.

That may well be. But just a few years ago, these same community theaters were entertaining the bejeebers out of their patrons with a lineup of heavyweights like "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," "Death of a Salesman," "Long Day's Journey Into Night," "The Glass Menagerie," "Rashomon," "The Big Knife," "A View From the Bridge," "David and Lisa," "A Delicate Balance," "A Streetcar Named Desire" and "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?"

Somewhere between that "golden age" of local theater, circa 1970 and 1971, and the present glut of theatrical trivia community playhouses began selecting their scripts with one eye on the box office. The attendant loss of prestige can hardly be compensated for by whatever gains may have been registered in the bank balance.

Is it too much to ask that our theater groups, as they pore over the catalogues to concoct their 1975-76 seasons, each reserve one slot for a play of substance? If the Lido Isle Players, with two shows a season, can put on one drama, it can't be that hard for the rest of the playhouses.

Dance, Jazz Offered

Black History and Culture Week will be celebrated at Santa Ana College beginning at 2:30 p.m. Feb. 9 with a concert by the Soul Sensation jazz group and the Contemporary Dance Guild in the college amphitheater.

Information about additional Black Week activities is available by calling the black studies department at 835-3000.

Singer

Jerry Velasco is now performing at the Crown House, 32802 Coast Highway, Laguna Niguel. The musician is there Tuesday through Saturday from 8:30 p.m. to 1:30 a.m.

Kid Stuff Coming

Two special activities for youngsters, a film festival and a "happening," will be available this month.

Saddleback College will present the happening Feb. 15 at Bowers Museum in Santa Ana. The program of painting, printmaking, mime, dance and rhythm will last from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The free program is limited to 50 children from kindergarten through third grade. Reservations can be made by calling 834-4024.

Live animals, puppets and magicians will join in celebrating the Fifth International Children's Film Festival Feb. 15 through March 9 at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art.

Performances are 1 and 3:30 p.m. Saturdays and 1 p.m. Sundays. Admission is $2 for adults, $1 for children and tickets are available from the museum's ticket sales office, 5905 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles, 90038, or by calling (213) 937-4250, ext. 265.

Donovan

Folk singer Donovan will visit Soundstage on KOCE-TV, Channel 50, at 8 p.m. Feb. 15. Donovan is known for such hit songs as "Mellow Yellow" and 'Jennifer Juniper."

Couples Will Perform

Performances by Russian dancers Valery and Galina Panov and a concert by Tony Bennett and Lena Horne will be among the highlights of March in Los Angeles.

Tickets for the Bennett and Horne concerts, which are set for March 17 through 30, will go on sale Sunday at the Shubert Theater. Information is available from the theater at 2020 Avenue of the Stars, Century City, 90067.

Bennett and Miss Horne, singing both duets and solos, will cover a wide range of contemporary songs. They will be accompanied by a 32-piece orchestra.

The Panovs, who gained fame during their long struggle to emigrate from the Soviet Union, will dance in the Shrine Auditorium at 8:30 p.m. March 1 and 2:30 p.m. March 2.

Information about tickets is available by calling (213) 622-1644. Tickets can be ordered by mail from Variety Concerts and will go on sale at Mutual agencies two weeks in advance of appearance dates.

Queen

Maureen Stapleton will star as a recently widowed housewife in "Queen of the Stardust Ballroom," a special to be broadcast Feb. 13 at 9 p.m. on Channel 2, KNXT.

Now It's Foot Stomping Time

Canyon Grass, an Orange Coast bluegrass group, will give a concert at 8 p.m. Feb. 15 in the Orange Coast College auditorium.

Admission is $1.50 for adults and $1 for students, and tickets can be purchased at the door.

The concert is sponsored by the college music department.

Opera, Country to Air

KFAC's ever-popular Metropolitan Opera Broadcasts this Saturday will feature Puccini's "Tosca," with Wagner's "Das Rheingold" set for February 15, representing the first of the broadcasts of the entire "Ring Cycle."

And a reminder: the Third Annual National Leukemia Radiothon gets underway this weekend, beginning at 5 a.m. Saturday on KFI and KGIL, with a total of 39 stations across the U.S. slated to participate in raising funds amounting to $500,000 this year.

KLAC has announced it will cover the 10th Annual Academy of Country Music Awards dinner scheduled for the Hollywood Palladium Feb. 27, with KLAC setting up its own booth in the lobby of the Palladium and tapping Chuck Sullivan to do his entire show from that site from 7:05 to midnight on that date. Sullivan will feature nominees' records on that evening's broadcast; as the winners in the 20 categories are introduced from the Palladium stage, they'll be simultaneously aired on KLAC. Additionally, all winners, nominees and prominent C&W performers in attendance will be interviewed by KLAC personalities.

Turning on Scott Manchester

In the pop music market, KMPC's annual year-end music poll disclosed that for the third straight year Roberta Flack swept the sweepstakes, with her "Feel Like Makin' Love" voted the best song of 1974 and best record of 1974. She placed second for best female vocal of the year as well.

Ms. Flack was the only repeat winner from KMPC's '73 poll, which saw other sweepstakes places go to Tony Orlando and Dawn, Deodato, Stevie Wonder, Marie Osmond, Mocedades, and Rich.

'Dybbuk'--New Exorcist?

By GEORGE LEIDAL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

"The Dybbuk" — a Jewish folk drama in its American premiere run at the Mark Taper Forum in Los Angeles — is more an educational oddment than it is an entertainment.

The Centre Theater Group production running through March 23 is John Hirsch's adaptation of the S. Ansky play set in a Polish Hassidic community.

The period is the 1880s prior to the demise of the tightly knit Jewish folk communes bound together by faith, ritual and tradition. "The Dybbuk" deals with people and times not unlike those of "Fiddler on the Roof".

As did "Fiddler", Dybbuk recalls the waning days of the tradition-bound Jewish communities which proliferated in Europe in the 1800s.

Indeed, we are told in the ample program notes that Ansky wrote the play as a kind of memorial to the life and times of the Hassidic Jews that the rush of history was to destroy.

THE PLAY'S title deals with a myth of those times and peoples. A dybbuk is the unhappy soul of a dead person which has found a home in the body of a living person.

The "exorcism" of the dybbuk which possesses the daughter of a wealthy and respected villager at the moment she is to be married is the main plot which allows the work to be a play and not a documentary.

It's a Yiddish "Exorcist" — a reverent account of a folk tale and those who would believe in such things as dybbuks. It's a plot worthy of operatic interpretation.

Indeed, this Mark Taper production has operatic qualities which make the analogy sound of truth.

THE TENOR of the cantor, mezzo soprano of Marilyn Lightstone as Leah and others in the cast suggest a vocal quality seldom heard in stage plays. There is not a great deal of music in the play, but enough.

Hirsch takes credit for choreographing the folk dances which blend naturally as the expressions of joy of a people clothed in drab, gray rags which match their otherwise sober life of poverty.

Standouts in the polished company include Miss Lightstone who will alternate with Melora Marshall in the role of Leah.

Jean-Paul Mustone is adequate as Chanon the yeshiva student who dabbles in the demonic writings forbidden most Jews.

Marvin Kaplan's Meyer smacks of Kaplan's familiar Yiddish flip style and the schmoozing is not entirely welcome.

Passage Slowing?

Light Winds Hit Vallarta Race

BOATING

Light winds at Cape San Lucas and across the Gulf of California may rob Windward Passage of a new elapsed time record in the 1,125-mile Marina del Rey to Puerto Vallarta race.

At noon Thursday Passage still had 288 miles to go to the finish but was encountering eight knots of wind from the south off the cape and was tacking up the beach toward Palmillo seeking better airs.

Winds in the gulf were predicted at 6-10 knots from the northeast. If these conditions remain static the big ketch was expected in Puerto Vallarta about noon Saturday. She would have to have finished by 3 p.m. today for a new record.

IN THE LIGHT going some of the other Class A yachts were expected to move up on WP but it appeared unlikely that anyone would beat her for line honors.

Ragtime, the 62-foot sloop from Long Beach Yacht Club, is a noted light air performer, but she was still more than 100 miles astern late Thursday.

Class A elapsed time leaders were Windward Passage, 288 miles to go; Ragtime, 419; Socery, 430; Olinka, 432; Dorothy O, 475, and Concerto, 488.

DICK KELTON'S Chance-37 sloop Kari II from Los Angeles Yacht Club appeared to have the handicap victory sewed up. She has been leading since the start. Handicap (corrected time) position is considered the actual race winner.

Handicap leaders:

OVERALL — 1, Kari II; 2, Chipeta; 3, Crisis; 4, Hornblower; 5, Sigame.

CLASS A—1, Tribute; 2, Concerto; 3, Dorothy O.

CLASS B—1, Mistress III; 2, Primavera; 3, Lussino.

CLASS C—1, Kari II; 2, Chipeta; 3, Hornblower.

100 Die In Peru Rioting

LIMA (UPI) — The military government of Peru announced today that "around 100 persons" died during the army's suppression of the civil disorders that rocked Lima Wednesday and Thursday.

As tranquility returned to the capital and the government ordered Peruvians to return to work, an official communique said:

"The number of deaths in the vandalism and counter-revolutionary activity is around 100."

IN SHORT

Jackson 'In'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson warned today against "blank checks" for Southeast Asia and "fantasies of gunboat diplomacy" in the Middle East after formally entering the 1976 presidential race.

Jackson also charged that the Ford administration's energy and economic policies fail to pass a simple test of fairness to all Americans.

The Washington Democrat made it official in a five-minute, paid telecast Thursday night that he will enter the 1976 presidential race for which he has already raised more than $1 million.

Wallace Probe

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Justice Department officials have begun a study of the 1965 voting rights act to determine if Gov. George Wallace is serving his third term illegally. Wallace had no comment.

A Justice Department official Thursday said the department was trying to decide if a 1967 amendment to the Alabama constitution allowing state officials to succeed themselves in office should have been submitted to the department for approval.

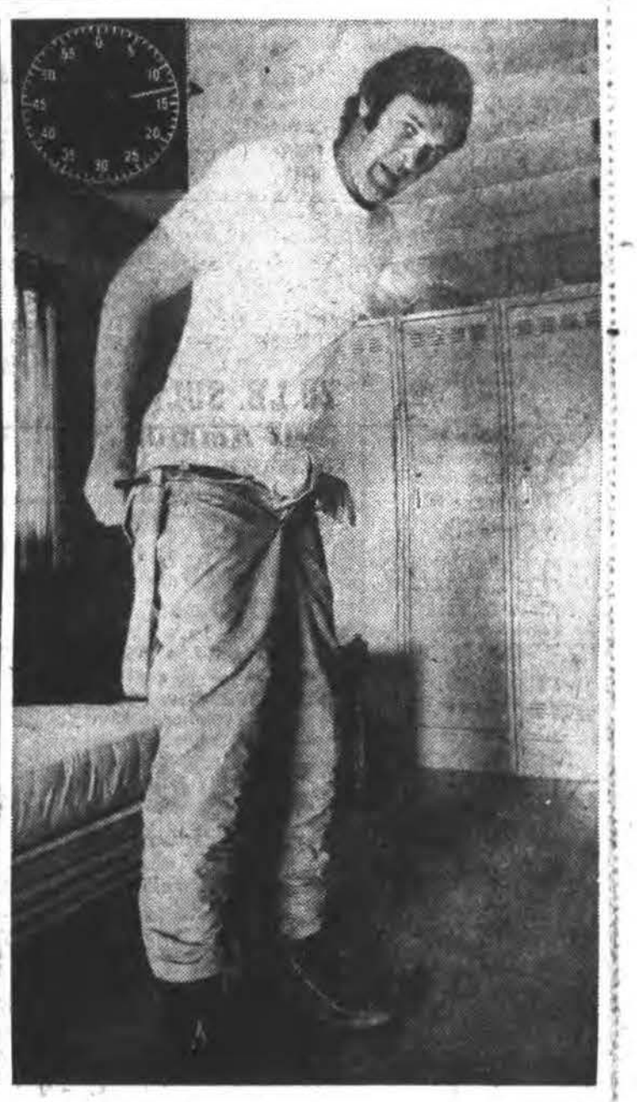

Ready, Get Set, Go

Daily Pilot Photos by Rudi Niedzielski

Ever wonder how firemen got out of bed and on the back of racing fire truck in less than 60 seconds? Well, there's a secret. Mission Viejo Fire Captain Rodger Cornelison demonstrates the turnout trick. What makes it possible is "tricking" up your turnout gear by rolling trousers over boots and placing a sock on top of each boot. In an actual test it took Capt. Cornelison exactly 17 seconds to get dressed and ready to go. No time to make up the bed. I suppose?

Weekend Calendar

Yacht Clubs in Action

Barring adverse weather conditions, three Orange County yacht clubs will put sailors on the water this weekend, and all three regattas will be used by skippers and crews as a tuneup for the 46th Midwinter Regatta the following weekend.

The top event in Newport Harbor Saturday and Sunday will be the Valentine Regatta co-sponsored by Balia Corinthian and Lido Isle yacht clubs. LIYC will handle the inside classes starting off the clubhouse committee tower and sailing over bay courses. BCYC will handle outside classes sailing in the ocean off the usual Balboa Pier starting line.

NEWPORT Harbor Yacht Club will be host to the Lehman-12 and Laser sailors competing for the Mann and March trophies.

Dana Point Yacht Club has labeled its weekend regatta a Midwinter tuneup for all classes expecting to sail in the gigantic Southern California Yachting Association event Feb. 15-16-17.

Hobie Cat sailors from Newport Beach and other western yachting communities are in Mexico this weekend for their own Midwinter Regatta at San Felipe.

Other events on the Southern California Yachting Association calendar:

Los Angeles-Long Beach

ALAMITOS BAY YACHT CLUB — Opening Day Regatta, all classes, Saturday.

LOS ANGELES YACHT CLUB — Opening Day Regatta, IOR, PHRF, Saturday.

CABRILLO BEACH YACHT CLUB — Midwinter Tuneup, all classes, Sunday

Santa Monica Bay

DEL REY YACHT CLUB — Marina del Rey to Los Angeles, all keelboats, Saturday.

KING HARBOR YACHT CLUB — Winter Regatta, all classes Saturday.

ASSOCIATION OF SANTA MONICA BAY YACHT CLUBS — Cal-20 fleet race, all member fleets, Saturday, Sunday.

Hobie Cats Vie In Mexico Race

Hobie Cat sailors from throughout the southwest are converging on San Felipe, Baja California, Mexico today for the start of the Midwinters West Regatta Saturday and Sunday.

San Felipe is a quaint town boasting a unique "Mexican village" atmosphere 120 miles below the California border, on the Sea of Cortez.

In past years the Midwinters West has been held at Guaymas, Mexico on the opposite side of the gulf and farther south. Officials of the Hobie Class Association think the new location will attract nearly 300 sailors as it is more easily reached by camper and trailer than Guaymas.

Headquarters for the Saturday and Sunday regatta will be the El Cortez Motel but most Hobie Catters will be pitching their tents at the Club de Pesca campgrounds adjacent to the hotel.

Guadalupe Race Slated in April

Balboa Yacht Club has sent out advance notices setting the date for its third annual Guadalupe Island race for April 12. The 600 mile race starts and finishes at Newport Harbor.

Under normal weather conditions the race will take from four to six days, placing the finish close to the start of the Newport to Ensenada race which has been scheduled for April 26.

The Guadalupe Island race is open to single-hull yachts rating 25.0 feet or greater under the International Offshore Rule (IOR), and to Performance Handicap Racing Fleet yachts rating 174 or lower.

There will also be a class for divided rig yachts — schooners, ketches and yawls — with a minimum waterline length of 27 feet.

The course lies mostly in Mexican waters with a predominantly downwind leg to the island and a beat or close reach back to the finish. General chairman John Arens is hailing the race as a good tuneup for yachts planning to sail in the Transpac in July. Entry fee for the race is $50.

Thief Jailed

MARTINEZ (UPI) — Edward Murphy, 32, one of several former Contra Costa County sheriff's deputies accused of being in a burglary ring, has been sentenced to 90 days in jail after pleading guilty to two counts of burglary.

Coastal Weather

Considerable cloudiness with a chance of rain today. Light variable winds this morning becoming westerly 8 to 14 knots this afternoon. Highs today in the 60's. Coastal temperatures will range between 50 and 61. Inland temperatures will range between 47 and 65. The water temperature will be 53.

Terns Mate With Fish

When that bird known as the male tern goes out cruising for a mate, he carries a small fish crossways in his beak to offer to the female tern of his choice. If she accepts, that's it, instant matrimony. Those Love and War experts Lorus and Margery Milne, who report the foregoing, point out that a fancy fish between terns is even more effective than chilled champagne between people.

HUMORISTS have treated at length that whimsical custom of requiring a suspected drunk to walk a straight line. But it was not always a joking matter. Originated aboard ships. A seaman's inability to walk the chalk could land him in the brig or worse.

FIRST of the new-car guarantees in 1902 was good for 60 days, I'm told.

GAS STATIONS

Q. "How many of the country's gas stations were forced out of business last year?"

A. Between the summer of '73 and the summer of '74, about one out of every 10 stations folded. Almost 20,000 to be specific.

Q. "ARE there supermarkets in Germany?"

A. Call them minimarkets. They're almost exact copies of the U.S. stores, but so small that six could fit into the average supermarket hereabouts.

Q. JOHNNY Roventini was the most famous midget because of his 'Call for Philip Morris' commercials. Did he have counterparts for that tobacco company in other nations?"

A. No, Johnny also sang out same in Spanish, French, German, Swedish, Italian and Chinese, even.

DOG AND CAT

Note it stated in print that a dog never feels ashamed of itself. Can't believe it. I've seen a poodle, clipped too short, go hide under a bed until his hair grew out. And a certain dalmatian frequently skulked away in obvious embarrassment when it skidded off course in a squirrel chase. It's true, however, that a cat never feels ashamed of itself.

THOSE FAMILY tree experts think there are about 3.5 million people nationwide directly descended from John Alden and Priscilla of Mayflower fame. That romantic pair had 11 children. Who in turn. And who in turn.

In Newport Beach
10% Down 8¼% Interest
8½% Annual Percentage Rate*

Good things just seem to get better at SeaWind. With only 10% downpayment, homebuyers can qualify for a remarkable 8¼% interest rate. In Newport Beach, only SeaWind can offer the homebuyer a combination of such an incredibly low interest rate and low price of $44,950. All this, in addition to its dramatic location above Newport Harbor and the blue Pacific, makes SeaWind the area's finest new home buy. Walk or bicycle to the beach or nearby shopping centers. Before it's too late, see SeaWind's 2-bedroom/den condominium homes and take advantage of this value beyond compare.

NO JOB TOO SMALL

Promise her anything, but give her our page.

This Valentine's Day send your love a greeting all the world can share.

Express your love in a Daily Pilot Valentine.

Your personal message will be published in the "card" of your choice. You may write or print your own sentiments or ask us to set them in attractive type. Either way, your Valentine will proclaim your feelings for that special someone.

It's easy. Write your message to fit any of the boxes on this page. Bring it to any Daily Pilot office prior to noon Feb. 12. Mail to Daily Pilot Classified Department, Box 1560, Costa Mesa 92626. The minimum charge is $8 for greetings in the smaller boxes or $16 for the larger Valentine.

If words alone won't do, Design your border too.

Should you wish to create your own decorated greeting, use one of the plain boxes shown here. Print or write your message in black ball point pen and use the same pen to draw your personalized border.

You may fill the entire space. Only the lines drawn within the dotted line will appear in your Valentine's Day ad.

If you want help composing a suitable greeting or have any questions, call 642-5678. A friendly Daily Pilot ad-viser will be glad to help you.

And, if you like, you can charge your Valentine ad. Your credit is good with us, or you may use your Master Charge or BankAmericard.

Mail to: Daily Pilot Classified Department Box 1560, Costa Mesa 92626 Or call 642-5678

Nixon Doubted Ford's Ability—Colson

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former White House aide Charles W. Colson said today that Richard M. Nixon talked seriously in December 1973 about resigning as president but expressed doubt about whether Gerald Ford could handle the job.

Nixon was particularly concerned about whether Ford could control Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, Colson said.

In an interview on the NBC "Today" program, Colson quoted Nixon as saying "maybe what this country needs is a nice clean Jerry Ford. The trouble with Jerry Ford is it would take him two years just to get up speed. Also, Jerry's greatest difficulty is he couldn't control Henry Kissinger.

"You know, Henry really is unstable at times," Colson quoted Nixon as saying.

Kissinger was asked about Colson's comments as he left the White House today. He told reporters, as he stepped into his car, that "I will not dignify that with a comment." He then headed back for the State Department.

Colson, recently released from federal prison after serving seven months of a one-to-three year sentence for obstruction of justice, said Nixon made the comments during a conversation on Dec. 18, 1973.

At the time, Nixon was resisting efforts to turn over additional White House tapes to Watergate prosecutors and House and Senate investigators.

Colson said, that during the same period, Nixon told him that he would resign if the U.S. Supreme Court ruled he had to surrender the tapes.

"He said he would not sit and preside over the destruction of the presidency," Colson said. "He said if he lost in Supreme Court on the tapes he would resign."

Colson said Nixon was confident that the Supreme Court and particularly the four justices Nixon appointed would support him.

The court ruled 8 to 0 in July 1974 that Nixon had to surrender the tapes.

Nixon resigned the presidency three weeks later.

Colson said Nixon's comment about Kissinger apparently was based on Kissinger's advocacy of an early resumption of the bomb

FENRICK WELLS MOVES DRUM IN WHICH BODY FOUND
Orange County Sheriff's Officer Takes Custody of Barrel

Offshore Oil Drilling Said 'Irresponsible'

Police Stay Silent On Murder Motive

A strict gag order forbidding any discussion of a possible motive in the bludgeoning and cement-barrel murder of Corona del Mar matron Nancy Atwater was imposed by police today.

However, questioning of individuals close to Mrs. Atwater, 50, wife of A.G. Atwater, 67, an heir to $10 million worth of the P.K. Wrigley chewing gum fortune, continued.

Investigators were also spending morning hours preparing paperwork required for an afternoon court arraignment of Glendale male nurse Daniel Garbis Bedelian, 40, her suspected killer.

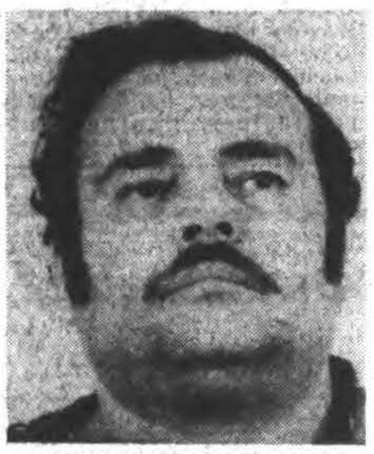

He is charged with beating Mrs. Atwater to death at the couple's home at 4633 Perham Drive, in the Cameo Shores district.

The immigrant from Lebanon was arrested late Wednesday and held in lieu of $250,000 bail.

This afternoon, he was scheduled to be formally charged with battering Mrs. Atwater during a violent altercation before dawn Wednesday and later in the day stuffing her body into a 55 gallon oil drum and filling it with wet concrete.

Detectives allege that, after Bedelian killed the woman, he wrapped her body, clad in nightclothes, and then tied it and hid it.

Later in the day, workmen at a Pacoima junkyard told police, Bedelian arrived there, and obtained an old oil drum. He brought with him, they said, three sacks of ready mix concrete.

The junkyard workers added that Bedelian left the area without the drum Wednesday afternoon.

Mystery Light In Sky

A brilliant red light in the sky over San Clemente Thursday night kept the police department switchboard buzzing with UFO reports.

The light appeared around 6:15 a.m., remaining stationary overhead, and then moved in a northerly direction before disappearing.

Police Lt. Al Ehlow and Officer Norris Cole both confirmed the sighting and tracked the object with binoculars. Their skywatch lasted for 10 minutes.

Dana Point Harbor Patrol officers who had been alerted to the sighting informed the two officers what they were actually seeing was two airplanes.

However, San Clemente police logged the sighting as probable pyrotechnic devices from Camp Pendleton. They noted that other similar lights were reported later in the vicinity of the Marine base.

A San Clemente fireman theorized that the UFO was probably a flare sent up on a weather balloon. There have been recent reports of youngstors using helium-filled balloons or surgical gloves to launch UFOs over San Clemente, he pointed out.

Park Pushed

Federal Okay Clears Way

Approval by the federal Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, Department of the Interior, for a $280,500 matching grant to the state of California has cleared the way for acquisition of Crescent Bay Point Park in Laguna Beach.

City aides said today the matter of county purchase of the 1.6 acre ocean bluff point will be placed on the board of supervisors' agenda Tuesday.

Estimates of the value for the lands have hovered above $500,000.

In addition to the state and federal funds, the county and the city of Laguna Beach will contribute for the acquisition.

The point was once proposed for construction of houses and a vigorous citizen campaign was launched to retain the point for public use.

Bradley Opposes Leasing

BEVERLY HILLS (AP) — Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley said today it would be "irresponsible to sell America's publicly owned oil resources" without a comprehensive national energy policy.

Bradley spoke in opposition on behalf of the Council of Local Governments to a proposal by the U.S. Department of the Interior to lease 10 million acres of offshore land for oil drilling, including 1.6 million acres off California.

He said the 41 cities and counties in the council adopted a three-point resolution which calls for opposition to the federal proposal until three things happened: (1) a comprehensive national and regional energy policy has been formulated; (2) the Department of Interior submits its proposed oil development program to the affected state, regional and local agencies for review; and (3) Congress has enacted legislation strengthening existing laws related to oil development on the outer continental shelf.

"I want to be very clear that we do not necessarily oppose the concept of development and use of the oil on the outer continental shelf," Bradley said.

"We do oppose the haste with which it is being undertaken,

Commission Plan

Officials Divided On Fund Priority

By ANNE COOPER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

As might be expected, not all San Clemente civic leaders agree with the priorities established Monday night by the planning commission for use of federal funds.

San Clemente is applying for $450,000 over a three-year period under the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. After considering possible projects to fund with the money, the commissioners selected five priority areas which they will recommend the city name on its application:

— $200,000 for revitalization of the downtown business district.

— $155,000 for acquisition of beaches, beach accesses, view parks or historical sites.

— $50,000 for housing ($10,000 to update the housing element of the general plan and $40,000 for housing assistance.

— $35,000 for hiring of a person to coordinate social services in the city.

— The remainder to go for administrative costs.

"This money should be used for the general public welfare," said Rev. Allan Vernon, a minister active in San Clemente service programs. "It should benefit all citizens, particularly the elderly, not primarily the businessmen."

"Top priority should be given to a full-time services coordinator," said Don Hodson, San Clemente fire marshall. "I work as a volunteer with the county mental health program, and people in San Clemente have no idea the services available to them. I've seen really poor people, people who are struggling to put food on the table, pay for counseling because they don't realize what free services are available."

"I have faith in professional planners," said Chuck Bossard,

Laguna Councilmen To Meet Saturday

The Laguna Beach City Council will meet at 9 a.m. Saturday to consider three major items left over from its regular meeting Wednesday.

Council members will mull access from Alta Laguna Boulevard to a proposed tract of estate-size lots located in rolling hills behind Top of the World, funding for the city's Over-60 Center, and a draft environmental impact report for the city's sphere of influence.

Greeter Set For Return To S. Coast

Laguna Beach's famous Greeter, Eiler Larsen was scheduled to leave Long Beach Veterans Hospital today to return to his Capistrano Beach nursing home.

Larsen, 84, was hospitalized in mid-January in critical condition as the result of a kidney disorder and cancer. He had remained on the hospital's critical list for weeks before slowly gaining strength.

As Laguna's Greeter, Larsen during healthier days would stand on the corner of South Coast Highway and Park Avenue, wave and yell "Helloooo" to passersby.

It was the second time within a year the tough Dane was hospitalized in critical condition.

Project Still 'On' Despite Legal Action

The city of Laguna Beach will continue its planning effort for Sycamore Hills, despite a $37 million lawsuit hanging over the city's head.

That was the decision of the city council Wednesday when it voted to continue a special planning committee looking at ways in which a specific plan could be drawn up for the 522-acre tract, once the proposed site for 2,000 townhouses.

The landowner, Rancho Palos Verdes, is suing the city of Laguna Beach, Laguna Greenbelt, Inc., and 43 past and present city officials and private citizens it claims engaged in a conspiracy to deprive the developer of a right to build on the land.

A ruling on the suit filed in United States District Court, Central District of California, Los Angeles may be made as early as next week.

The council action was precipitated by a letter from Planning Commissioner Clayton Claxton who resigned from the Sycamore Hills Committee.

Claxton said that because of

North State In for Storm

By The Associated Press

The gloomy series of weather fronts attacking Northern California will be reinforced with a new storm bringing more rain and snow through Saturday.

The National Weather Service said temperatures in the Sierra Nevada would be slightly warmer with the snow level increasing Saturday to 6,000 to 8,000.

In the San Francisco Bay Area occasional light rain increasing tonight and continuing Saturday was expected.

Firemen Petition For Personnel Vote

Laguna Beach firemen today were to present petitions bearing nearly 3,500 signatures to the city clerk in their quest for a citywide initiative election on the question of department manpower.

The petitions demand the size of the Laguna Beach Fire Department be established at 32 sworn firefighters. The department size is now 29 following layoff of three firemen when dispatching was combined with police in December.

Under initiative proceedings, petitions must bear valid signatures of 15 percent of the registered city voters. City Clerk Dorothy Musfelt set the required number of valid signitures at 1,560.

Although City Attorney George Logan has ruled the firemen's petitions are invalid in that they encroach into an area reserved exclusively for the City Council, Mrs. Musfelt said she will have to go through validation procedures.

She said she will present the petitions for certification to the City Council after checking each name and voting precinct at the office of the registrar of voters.

Mrs. Musfelt said it was up to the City Council to reject the initiative on the advice of attorney, if it chose to do so.

City Manager Al Theal has estimated the rehiring of the firefighters would cost the city $50,000.

The Laguna Beach Firemen's Association, backer of the petition, maintains the present staffing leaves the force dangerously understaffed.

The association states that the force has remained at the 32-man level for years while the town was growing and fire engines used by the department are inadequately manned.

Bus Passers Face Action

The Laguna Beach Unified School District has launched a crackdown on motorists who illegally pass school buses stopped for children.

The vehicle code requires that any driver must stop if red lights mounted on the front and rear of the bus are flashing.

Because of repeated violations of the code section, Laguna bus drivers have been asked to take down the license plate number of offenders and turn them over to Laguna Beach Police.

OCTD to Discuss Local Bus Routes

Representives of the Orange County Transit District will be at the Dana Point library from noon to 1 p.m. Tuesday to discuss local bus routes and schedules.

The transit district has a flat 25-cent fare for transportation anywhere in Orange County. Transfers are free and a maximum of three children under six years of age may ride free with a fare paying passenger. The library is located at 24721½ La Plaza, Dana Point.

Orange County

Unemployment Hits New High

By GARY GRANVILLE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Unemployment in Orange county reached an all time high in January when there 62,500 persons out of work and the unemployment rate jumped to 8.1 percent.

And, according to state labor analysist Alta Eldridge, the end of a sharp decline in employment that began six months ago isn't in sight.

U.S. UNEMPLOYMENT HITS 8.2%. Story, Page A4.

"Every indicator we have tells us things will get worse before they get better," Mrs. Eldridge said.

Included among those indicators are forecasts received from employers who say they see fewer rather than more jobs on the horizon.

Mrs. Eldridge also mentioned that new employers are not coming to Orange County as rapidly as they did the last two years when unemployment dropped after a series of aerospace layoffs hit the job market in the early 1970s.

Hardest hit last month when the number of jobless climbed by 9,900 persons were retail trade and service industries.

Both were hit hard by expected seasonal layoffs in department stores and at amusement parks that thrive on tourist trade.

But the job losses were across the board, in manufacturing, construction, government, and other service industries as well as in retail trade and amusement park operations.

The construction industry continued in an employment slump that began two years ago.

In January, 1974, there were 28,400 employed in the building trades. Last month, the total employed in construction was 24,900.

Mrs. Eldridge's gloomy monthly report was accented by predictions of a worsening situation on the Orange County labor market.

How much worse?

"I wouldn't be surprised to see the unemployment rate reach 9 percent," Mrs. Eldridge said.

"As a matter of fact," she added "it's possible the rate might climb to 10 percent."

Orange County's all time high unemployment rate came in January and April of 1971 when it reached 8.7 percent.

However, in those months, the total number of unemployed ranged from 48,000 to 52,000. Last month's unemployment roll of 62,500 exceeded the former record high of 52,800, a mark reached in January, 1971.

principal of Concordia School, "to assess the community's needs. But I think we need a broadly based approach to meet needs primarily of youth and senior citizens. Our seniors are being shot at from every direction these days."

"This money comes to us gratuitously," said Marion Moon, chairman of Windows to the Sea, a San Clemente conservation program. "It should be used in long-range and beneficial projects, not for operating expenses or for prettifying.

"With so many old people neglected in our city," she said, "we should give top priority to a social services coordinator."

"The big problems of the elderly are loneliness and poor nutrition," said Barbara Williams, president of the San Clemente Seniors' Center. "People who have worked hard all their lives are not eating properly. Many of them can't even afford a television for amusement.

"We need a full-time coordinator urgently," she concluded.

"There is a real need in San Clemente for facilities large enough to house recreation activities for both children and retired people," said Father Joseph Karp, associate pastor at Our Lady of Fatima Catholic Church.

"We need viable, realistic programs for both youth and the elderly," said Bill Angerman, director of San Clemente Hotline, a telephone counseling service. "This money can go to better use than beautifying the downtown area."

Stan Northrup, a San Clemente insurance man and former city councilman, disagreed with the others interviewed. "Give it back to the President," he said, "and tell him to curb inflation."

Asked if he opposes federal spending, he said, "I don't oppose federal spending, just federal wasting. This is a time for government to pull in its horns."

Burglars Ransack Masonic Temple

Burglars who entered an unlocked access door on the roof of San Clemente's Masonic Temple took silverware, coins and ceremonial masonic emblems valued at $564 Thursday night, police reported today.

Officers said once the burglars had entered the building at 3001 S. El Camino Real they used a knife to pry open other doors and to obtain access to the valuables.

Signal Study Scheduled In Clemente

San Clemmnte's traffic and parking commission moved Thursday night to invite several firms to a March 6 meeting to study the feasibility of synchronizing traffic signals on El Camino Real.

"The cost estimates will probably be the same," said Diane Keeler, commission secretary, "but the commissioners want the company that will do the best job.

Other decisions made at the meeting include:

—A decision to make Calle Valle a cul-de-sac

—Rejection of a proposal to restrist parking at the corner of Mariposa and Ave. de la Estrella

—A request to city police to enforce strictly the 25 mph speed limit in the area of Camino De Los Maros and Calle Campana

—Continuation of a proposal to install stamped concrete flagstones on Avenida Acapulco at the entrances to a Presidential Heights tract until the city engineer can assess possible traffic hazards which might result in wet weather

—A decision to make a cost survey on the widening of San Pablo and the conversion of San Gabriel to a cul-de-sac

—Postponement of a decision on a proposed on-street parking fee so that commissioners can study solutions other cities have found to vehicle-cluttered roadways.

Laguna Man Sent to Jail For Assault

James Henry Davis of Laguna Beach has been sent to Orange County Jail for 30 days after pleading guilty to assault charges filed after another man was knifed during a fracas at the Poet's Library on Ocean Avenue.

Superior Court Judge Kenneth E. Lae ordered the jail term and two years probation after Davis, 43, of 479 Ocean Ave., pleaded guilty to charges that were reduced to a misdemeanor.

Davis was arrested Sept. 19 after Alexander Anderson Harris, 26, of 435 Ocean Ave. was stabbed following an argument that erupted when Davis' dog, Duke, allegedly bit a small child at the library gathering.

Police said Davis threatened several persons with a shotgun before Harris was stabbed in the melee. Harris spent 10 days in the intensive care unit of a local hospital.

OLD FASHIONED VALENTINE'S DAY WILL BE HELD AT AMERICAN LEGION HALL
Laguna's Historical Society Will Recapture The Past At Town's First School

Society Planning Valentine Party

An old-fashioned community Valentine's Day party to be held in Laguna's historic American Legion Hall is being planned by the Laguna Beach Historical Society.

Reservations for the potluck dinner provided by the Cottage Restaurant and society members may be made now with Society President John Randall, 494-2073; Char Griffin, 494-1750; or at society headquarters, 494-9965. Tickets are limited.

The party beginning at 6:30 p.m. will feature old time movies, community singing and dancing in the hall, once the town's first school.

The American Legion acquired possession of the structure in 1928. It was formerly the old Park Avenue school and was auctioned off to make way for a new high school on the site. The legion bought it for $1.

Men of the legion moved the building from its Park Avenue location (site of the present high school) to its present site.

According to the Historical Society, the Legion had various methods of raising funds to pay off the debt on the land for the land on which the building was placed. One was a street dance celebrating the opening of Forest Avenue.

Other Historical Society events scheduled through February include: a luncheon featuring a fashion show of historic costumes at noon Feb. 19, at the Old Brussels Restaurant, a historical slide presentation by Scott Case at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 24 at the society headquarters 226 Ocean Ave. and a wine-tasting party from 7 to 10 p.m. Feb. 28 at the Warehouse of Wines, 230 Broadway, Laguna Beach.

the threat of the suit, he found himself and the landowner in a "combative posture." He said he wished to resign because he no longer had an open mind on the matter.

Other members of the committee questioned whether they could be endangering themselves and the city by continuing to discuss plans for the land.

During the council session, City Attorney George Logan said the city should not stop its planning because of the threat of a suit. He said the city committee was working in good faith and was doing something extra for the landowner.

Planning Commissioner William Leak addressed the council and at first suggested the committee be "hung on the wall" until the court action is settled.

Leak referred to it as being "the better part of valor."

Councilman Charlton Boyd disagreed, however, and he said he saw the committee as a means of reaching accommodation with the landowner. Boyd is also a member of the committee.

Councilwoman Phyllis Sweeney, also a committee member, noted that the committee had already done much work and said it would be a shame for all the effort to go down the drain.

Preliminary recommendations by the committee for development of the land include a low density semi-exclusive residential development, horse trails and riding stables, a recreation club, and potential tie-in to a golf course development.

The specific plan originally was initiated by the developer, but the city rejected environmental reports for the condominium project, saying they were inadequate.

particularly with regard to the lack of understanding of the true value of this resource — a value which can only be determined within the context of a comprehensive national energy policy."

Bradley told the Interior Department hearing board in the auditorium at the El Rodeo Elementary School that originally he had been given only three weeks to review a "highly technological" 1,300-page draft prior to public hearings set for mid-November.

He said it was only after local officials were able to meet with Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton that a 60-day delay in the hearings was granted.

Bradley said an analysis of the draft indicates that there has been "no careful consideration of a balanced mix of new resources," nor had consideration been given to developing such existing resources as the Elk Hills Naval petroleum serve.

Buenos Aires Says Swallow Flock on Way

The swallows are on their way.

Bill Smith, long-time spokesman for Mission San Juan Capistrano, has received word from Rafael Morig of Buenos Aires that the tiny birds have left their winter roosts in Argentina and are heading home.

Swallows, which have made San Juan Capistrano famous, traditionally arrive on March 19, St. Joseph's Day, while Scouts begin flying in weeks before.

The visitors are always greeted by a lavish fiesta and this year is no exception.

A week full of activities has been scheduled by the San Juan Capistrano Fiesta Association starting March 16 with the coronation of Miss San Juan Capistrano and ending with a parade on Saturday, March 22. In addition the Mission presents an annual pageant on March 19.

It is not known if the birds appreciate all the fanfare and celebrations held in their honor. Reports in the last few years suggest the flocks are getting smaller.

Dr. Wilbur Mayhew, a swallow expert hired by the city last year, debunks that theory.

"I suspect that probably about as many cliff swallows nest in the city today as used to nest on the Mission," he said. "Since the nesting sites now are widely scattered and much smaller, the birds are not as obvious to most people."

Last year swallows invaded Lion Country Safari, Newport Beach and Mission Viejo. Mayhew says the birds are likely to be attracted to any area that has lots of open space and handy mud for nest building. They particularly like new subdivisions.

Solon's UC Note Mulled

State Sen. Dennis Carpenter probably did not realize he was writing to a UC Irvine medical faculty member when he purportedly said Orange County's $5.5 million price for Orange County Medical was "blackmail," the recipient of the letter said Thursday.

Dr. Robert Pfeffer, an assistant professor of neurology, said the Jan. 31 letter from Carpenter was in response to a letter he wrote to the senator Jan. 17.

Carpenter said Wednesday he does not recall the letter and does not know Pfeffer. One source said the letter probably was written by a member of Carpenter's staff detailing views previously expressed by the senator.

UCI-California College of Medicine plans to buy the Medical Center for use as a teaching hospital. Additionally, the school plans to reduce the 524-bed facility by 200 beds and build a 200-bed hospital on the UCI campus.

The letter repeated previous statements by Carpenter that he will oppose the on-campus hospital if it will compete with Hoag Memorial Hospital in Newport Beach.

Pfeffer said he does not have a copy of the Jan. 17 letter he wrote to Carpenter.

However, he described its contents as asking Carpenter to oppose a suggestion by Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post that the UCI med school be closed and its operations be combined with those at UC Davis.

Pfeffer wrote the letter from his home address and speculates that Carpenter may have assumed he was a physician in private practice.

Carpenter's response, said Pfeffer, "was a little tangential to what I wrote him about."

Pfeffer said he cannot understand how the reply on Carpenter's letterhead was made public. The original, he said, is still in his office files at the Orange County Medical Center.

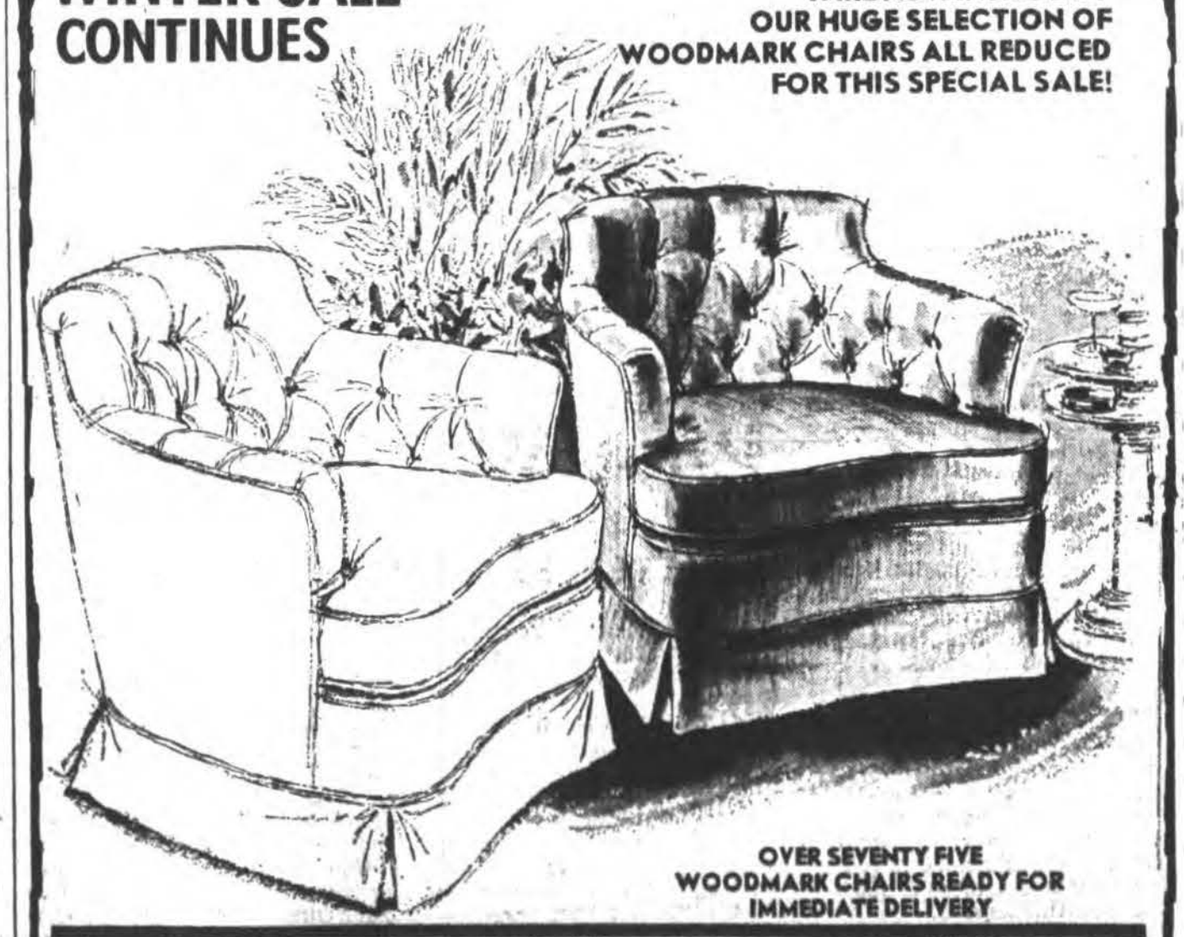

Panel Named In San Juan

The city's first cultural heritage commission was appointed this week by the San Juan Capistrano City Council.

Members include: Mary Jane Forster, Carmen Oyharzabal, Les Remmers, Natalie Mitchell, Ann Schauwecker, Dan Rios and Pamela Hallan.

The group will be charged with the compiling and inventory of historical structures, places and people and will advise the city council on matters relating to the cultural heritage of the community.

44th Awards Fete

Board Honors Two Realtors

Bruce E. Howey, Newport Beach realtor and resident of Costa Mesa, was named 1974 "Realtor of the Year", and Barbara W. Aune, realtor-associate of the Macnab-Irvine Realty Company, received the "Realtor-Associate Service Award" during the Newport Harbor-Costa Mesa Board of Realtors 44th Annual Awards dinner-dance at the Balboa Pavilion.

Howey retired from the Navy in 1964, and entered the real estate business that same year with the Semple Real Estate Company in Corona del Mar. In addition to the local board, he holds membership in the California Association of Realtors, the National Association of Realtors, the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers, and the Society of Exchange Counselors.

He belongs to the Orange Coast Exchangors, the California Association of Real Estate Teachers, the Real Estate Certificate Institute, and is a Graduate, Realtors Institute (GRI).

Aune has been a resident of Newport Beach since 1952, and first entered the real estate industry in 1966 as an associate of Ruth Pardoll, realtor. She has been a consistent producer through the real estate board multiple listing service, and served as an instructor of multiple listing rules and regulations in their orientation classes for all new members.

Spanish Accent On New GM Car

DETROIT (UPI) — There's a strong Spanish accent in Detroit's auto industry now that General Motors has zeroed in on Seville as the name for its new "baby Cadillac."

UPI has learned that Seville, a city in southwest Spain, was selected after GM's top brass tossed out an earlier pick — the La Salle which was a less-expensive version of the Cadillac prior to World War II. They were afraid it would bear the stigma of being a cheap Cadillac which it is not with its $12,000 price tag.

Seville is the third Spanish name selected by Detroit auto makers this year to put on entirely new cars.

Ford went to Granada for its new luxury compact and Chrysler went to Cordoba for its new mid-sized Chrysler. Like the Cordoba, Americans are sure to murder the Spanish name of Cadillac's new car.

Chrysler calls it the Cordoe-ba with the accent on the second syllable while its Cord-a-va in Spanish with the accent on the first syllable.

In any case, the four-door sedan goes on sale May 1. It has lots of glass area and is 28 inches shorter than the standard Cadillac at 203 inches GM hopes to build 25,000 Sevilles during the current model year with a two-door model expected in the next model year.

Unemployment Rate

How Accurate Are Job Polls?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — During the third week of each month, government agents knock on doors or telephone the homes of an estimated 100,000 Americans to ask how many are out of work. The answers are eagerly awaited for clues to the health of the economy.

Former Gov. Ronald Reagan of California has complained the survey is too limited and imprecise to be a reliable gauge of unemployment. A Labor Department specialist says that "for the money, I think it's the best survey undertaking we have in this country."

PRODUCING DATA for the monthly U.S. unemployment rate is the largest exercise of its kind in the world. About 1,100 government employes contact 47,000 households in 923 cities and counties within predominantly industrial, populous states.

By comparison with the 100,000 citizens who are questioned, the Gallup Poll surveys 1,000 individuals in measuring the popularity of presidents.

The Labor Department Bureau of Labor Statistics believes its sampling is large enough that the December estimate of 6,535,000 unemployed Americans was accurate to within 150,000 persons either way, and that a complete population census would almost certainly prove it.

In a total labor force of 91,711,000, that means the margin of error in the 7.1 percent jobless rate for December was less than two-tenths of 1 percent.

Reagan said on a recent television talk show that the government's estimate is misleadingly inflated and that "jobs are going begging in some parts of the country."

HE SAID THE unemployed figure includes 14-year-olds who "express a desire to have a paper route," wives who would like a job but don't need it for family support and husbands who quit work voluntarily for a better job.

The BLS agrees that the temporarily idle job changer would be listed as unemployed, along with a worker who is laid off or dismissed for economic reasons.

But no one under age 16 is counted among the labor force. Neither is the wife who would take a job if offered but did not try to get one in the previous four weeks, nor is the person who has abandoned a job search.

Jack Bregger, chief of the BLS employment and analysis division, said a person is classified as unemployed if he did not work but was available for work during the week before the survey, and had "made specific efforts to find a job within the past four weeks," was waiting to be called back after a layoff or was waiting to report to a new job within 30 days.

Miller In Lead With 69

PALM SPRINGS (AP) — Front-running Johnny Miller rallied on his back nine for a 69 and stretched his lead to three strokes Thursday in the second round of the $160,000 Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic.

Newport Beach's Alan Tapie is still in the thick of it, although he dropped six strokes off the pace with a 139 after shooting 71 Thursday.

Huntington Beach's Ray Carasco is six strokes further down the line at 145 with his 72.

Miller, who scored such sensational successes in the first two tournaments of the year, got one in the water on the front side but played his last nine in 33 and put together a two-round total of 133, a distant 11 under par.

Tom Shaw, who hasn't won in three years, had the best round of the bright, warm, sunny day, a six-under-par 66 and moved into a tie for second in this long tournament with a 136.

Skinny Mac McLendon was tied with him after another 68. Arnold Palmer, meanwhile, encountered some more putting miseries and slipped to a par 72.

Palmer, a five-time winner of this five-day, 90-hole event and a sentimental favorite to do it again, was an extremely frustrated man after falling seven shots back at 140.

"I don't know that I've ever played a better round of golf,' Palmer said. "It was just the putting. It was so frustrating. . ."

He paused, flashed the famous smile, and, in a mock serious voice proclaimed:

"I became extremely annoyed I came close to losing my temper."

Australian veteran Bruce Crampton, John Mahaffey, Miller Barber, rookie Bill Rogers and Tom Jenkins were at 137, one stroke behind Shaw and McLendon.

Mahaffey had a 67, Rogers 68, Barber and Crampton 69 and Jenkins 71 in the almost ideal playing conditions.

All of the leaders but Shaw, McLendon and Crampton played at Tamarisk, one of the four desert courses being used for the first four days of this unique event. Crampton was at La Quinta, Shaw at Bermuda Dunes and McLendon at Indian Wells.

All of the courses are within a six-mile radius of this desert resort.

Bruins, SC Test Oregon Fives

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — A year ago, unbeaten UCLA paid its annual visit to the Willamette Valley and lost to Oregon State and Oregon, shocking the collegiate basketball world.

Now UCLA, ranked second in the nation, is back for another weekend series against the Oregon schools and this time first place in the Conference is at stake.

"This is the biggest weekend of basketball since I've been at Oregon State," said OSU coach Ralph Miller, who is in his fifth year at the Corvallis school.

Oregon State and UCLA share the Pac-8 lead with 4-1 records and face each other tonight. Meanwhile, 40 miles away, eighth-ranked Southern California goes against ninth-rated Oregon in a conference game at Eugene. Both are 3-2 and tied for third place behind Stanford, now 4-2.

The teams swap opponents Saturday.

Miller figures Oregon State must win both games. "We can't really count on winning two in Los Angeles, so, logically, we need to win two this weekend," he said. "If we can win a couple, the pressure will be on them when we go south for the rematches next weekend."

Oregon State upset UCLA 61-57 last year in Corvallis, ending the Bruins' 50-game Pac-8 winning streak. Oregon followed with a 56-51 win over the perennial NCAA champions the following day.

"There is a tendency to take away from UCLA because Bill Walton and Keith Wilkes are gone," Miller said. "I'd be the last to minimize the loss, but I can promise you this team isn't exactly helpless without them."

To whip the Bruins, Miller said Oregon State must do things — "We have to control tempo, we have to keep them off the boards and we have to beat the press.

"UCLA is playing more like it did before Walton. It is putting more emphasis on getting a shot off the break and it is exploiting quickness."

UCLA coach John Wooden described Oregon and Oregon State as "outstanding basketball teams that are capable of beating us."

Bayi Leads Spike Aces At Forum

INGLEWOOD (AP) — Filbert Bayi runs like a man being chased by a tiger.

As soon as the gun goes off in a distance race the slender Bayi leaps to the front unlike almost any other runner in history. Distance races are traditionally strategic, with runners jockeying for position and fearful of taking the lead — "doing all the work," some call it.

He's heavily favored to win the mile tonight at the Los Angeles Times Indoor Games in the Forum.

At last year's Commonwealth Games, Bayi set a torrid pace and won the 1,500-meters in 3:32.2, breaking Jim Ryun's record which had stood nearly a decade. The time is equivalent to a mile in under 3:50. Bayi really doesn't know what he's capable of and that's part of the reason Rod Dixon and his other foes Friday night, Steve Prefontaine and John Walker, are rated underdogs.

The Times Games won't only be a mile race. The regular contingent of Pacific Coast Club world record holders will be on hand: high jumper Dwight Stones, shot putters Al Feuerbach and George Woods, quarter-miler Jim Bolding and middle distance runner Francie Larrieu.

The shorter races, such as the 60-yard dash and the high hurdles, will be run in heats with finals for the qualifiers. The two-mile features two former stars — Tracy Smith and John Lawson.

Women Threaten Boycott

NEW YORK — Billie Jean King and her association of women tennis pros gave Wimbledon one more chance Thursday to give them equal prize money with the men — or a promise of it — or face a boycott by the game's top players.

"Jerry Diamond, our executive director, and I are ready to fly to London to seek a compromise solution," the five time Wimbledon winner, president of the Women's Tennis Association, said, disclosing an overhelming vote by members to shun the event unless adjustments are made.

In London, Maj. David Mills, secretary of Wimbledon's governing All-England Club, said, "The prize money has been settled and there will be no alteration."

Laver Wins

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Strong service returns and volleying enabled unseeded Rod Laver to oust third-seeded Ismail El Shafei 7-6, 6-2 Thursday night in the $50,000 Blue Group tournament of World Championship Tennis here.

Also, Alex Mayer defeated Australia's Colin Dibley 6-4, 6-2; Raul Pamirez halted Mike Estep 6-2, 6-1; and Roscoe Tanner downed Charlie Pasarell 6-3, 6-3.

Connors Hurt

NORTH LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — Jimmy Connors, the top seed in the $25,000 Arkansas Internatinonal Tennis tournament defaulted Thursday night after complaining of an inflammation in the area of his left knee.

In action Thursday, John Holladay served 11 aces in the second set and upset Jeff Austin, 6-3, 6-2.

Karl Meiler crushed Barry Phillips-Moore in a swift pair of 6-2 sets. And George Hardie of Long Beach eliminated Rumania's Ion Tiriac 7-6, 6-3.

Okker Rallies

BOLOGNA, Italy — Tom Okker came from behind to beat Buster Mottram 6-7, 6-1, 6-2 in the opening round of the $60,000 World Championship Tennis tournament here Thursday evening. Bob Giltinan edged Jose Higueras, 7-6, 6-3 and Onny Parun beat Sherwood Stewart 6-3, 7-5.

Sports in Brief

Drug Accusations Are Unfounded

ST. LOUIS — A federal investigation revealed a series of drug charges made by a 19-year-old woman against a number of National Football League players are unfounded, a federal drug official said today.

Thomas Maher, special agent in charge of the Drug Enforcement Administration office here, said a thorough investigation into charges made by Roxie Ann Rice "concerning the trafficking of drugs" do not in any way substantiate her allegations.

UCI Girl Stars

TORQUAY, England (AP) — The United States' women's team took a 1-0 lead over Britain in the final of an under-21 tennis tournament today when UCI Irvine's Lindsay Morse topped Annette Coe 6-2, 6-2.

Morse was helped by the British under-21 champoin's three double faults in the opening game and display of nervousness throughout the 55-minute match.

Decision to Lampkin

PORTLAND — Portland's Ray Lampkin scored a unanimous 10-round decision Thursday night over San Diego's Miguel "Mike" Mayon in a tune-up for his lightweight title fight next month against world champion Roberto Duran.

The judges scored it 100-94, 100-93 and 98-94 for the 27-year-old Lampkin, who will meet Duran in Panama Mar. 2.

There were no knockdowns. Lampkin was staggered with an overhand right in the opening round but later stunned his younger opponent several times without putting him down.

Worthy Shines

SANTA BARBARA — With ex-Huntington Beach High star Jim Worthy scoring 23 points, Biola's Eagles remained unbeaten in NAIA District 3 northern division play Thursday night by notching an 86-68 triumph over Westmont.

Biola improved its District 3 record to 7-0 and went 18-4. Overall while Westmont slipped to 7-13.

Cards Win

PULLMAN, Wash. — The Stanford Cardinals defeated Washington State 71-58 Thursday night in a Pacific-8 Conference basketball game, despite the efforts of Cougar Steve Puidokas, who scored 23 points.

The Cougars took an early lead before Stanford coach Howie Dallmar went to a zone defense. The Cardinals moved in front for good with a Rich Kelley jumper from the base line 10 minutes into the game.

Bears Routed

SEATTLE — Paced by the inside shooting of James Edwards and the outside scoring of Clarence Ramsey, the University of Washington routed the California Golden Bears 83-57 Thursday night in a Pacific-8 Conference basketball game.

Ramsey and Edwards each totaled 17 points and Lars Hansen added 13 as Washington won its second conference game in six outings.

Fence Raised

SAN FRANCISCO — The outfield fence at Candlestick Park will be raised in height from eight feet to 12 before the 1975 baseball season opens.

Get Sledgehammer For Big 10 Games

Lute Olson, former Marina High and Cal State University (Long Beach) basketball coach has a nifty piece of work cut out for his University of Iowa basketball team the next three days.

Saturday night the Hawkeyes roll out the welcome mat for Indiana, the nation's No. 1 rated college quintet. And Monday night they take on Ohio State, also at Iowa.

"Is playing Indiana like running into a buzz saw?," I asked

GLENN WHITE

WHITE WASH

Olson during a telephone interview Thursday. "Yeah," he retorted. "Haven't you seen them? They're awesome. They keep the pressure on you so strongly and they play with great intensity.

"They blitzed us in Bloomington 102-49 but we're still sold out (13,700) for Saturday night's game. In fact, we'll come back with another crowd of over 13,000 Monday night."

Olson says his Hawkeyes can compete with almost anyone at Iowa because of the immense homecourt advantage Big 10 schools seem to enjoy.

"You go to other arenas in the conference and you don't see many friendly faces in those giant crowds. It's tough for any of the visiting teams' fans to get tickets. We called to get tickets for our fans three weeks from now when we play at Minnesota and we can't get anything — their 17,000-seat fieldhouse is sold out already.

"Those crowds really seem to intimidate the players," Olson says.

"Is the Big 10 tough?," Olson asks. "It's like the NBA without NBA officials. You need a sledgehammer if you are a big man."

Olson is in his first year as head coach and he's been besieged by injuries, including a broken hand suffered by ex-Long Beach Millikan star Dan Frost. Frost was leading Iowa in assists, scoring and rebounds when hurt.

The team's top two guards were also injured.

But Olson will have his entire team back for next season and he's only a victory away this year from tying last season's win mark. Iowa is currently 7-10.

One of the big wins was a 53-44 upset of Minnesota and the Hawkeyes only lost by four at Ohio State.

Olson has his eye out for a big man and one of the candidates is Los Amigos High's Tom Schneiderjohn. "A good big man could probably come in and play for us a lot as a freshman," Olson says.

Olson also vigorously denies rumors that he will be the next head coach at San Diego State. "My contract here is for four years and I have no intention now of leaving sooner," he says.

"I'm happier here than I've been anywhere for a long time. And so is my family. I have two daughters at the University of Iowa and they've already said if we move, they stay.

"It's not easy to get things turned around against this kind of competition but if we could win 12 or 13 games this year it would be a step in the right direction."

Public Donations Save SF Prep Sports

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco is applying a bandage of donated dollars to a budget cut calling for an end to after-school sports in the city's nine high schools and 17 junior high schools.

Early contributions totaling about $50,000 by Thursday had assured completion of the high school basketball schedule and following baseball and spring football seasons.

From the city publicity and advertising fund, Mayor Joseph L. Alioto diverted $24,000 to pay for continuation of drama, music, debate and other high school after-hour extra-curricular activities that were eliminated along with sports. The mayor said he's seeking an additional $19,000 to save these nonsports programs in junior high schools, too.

Meanwhile, students were signing strike petitions and scheduled a meeting for Monday.

The Board of Education voted 6-1 Tuesday night to pare this year's budget to a total of $122 million. Knocking out the sports programs accounted for about $204,000 in a $1.6 million budget slash, but about $2.2 million must still be trimmed to keep the district in the black.

School board president Lucille Abrahamson says the problem is the 1972 Property Tax Reform Law, which ties school district revenues in California to student enrollment. Student numbers have declined sharply here and as a result, school officials say the law has failed to provide the district with enough money to cope with inflation.

"Next year will be chaotic," she said, referring to estimates the budget deficit of the San Francisco district could mount to $20 million.

While Mrs. Abrahamson pleaded for new legislation, state Sen. Milton Marks introduced a bill at Sacramento to require all school districts to have both intramural and interschool athletic programs with the state paying the cost.

"Many school districts throughout California are facing the same difficulty," Marks said.

Male Nurse Held in Atwater Slaying

A 40-year-old immigrant from Lebanon — married only about six months — was scheduled for arraignment on murder charges late today in connection with the battering death of a Corona del Mar millionaire's wife whose body was found stuffed under concrete in an old oil drum.

Daniel Garbis Bedelian of Glendale, a male nurse who had the night shift in caring for 67-year-old Wrigley chewing gum heir, A.G. Atwater, is being held in the death of Mrs. Nancy Atwater.

Police allege that Bedelian bludgeoned the wealthy woman to death sometime before dawn Wednesday and later in the day stuffed her body into an oil drum at a Pacoima junk yard. He then assertedly filled the barrel with wet cement.

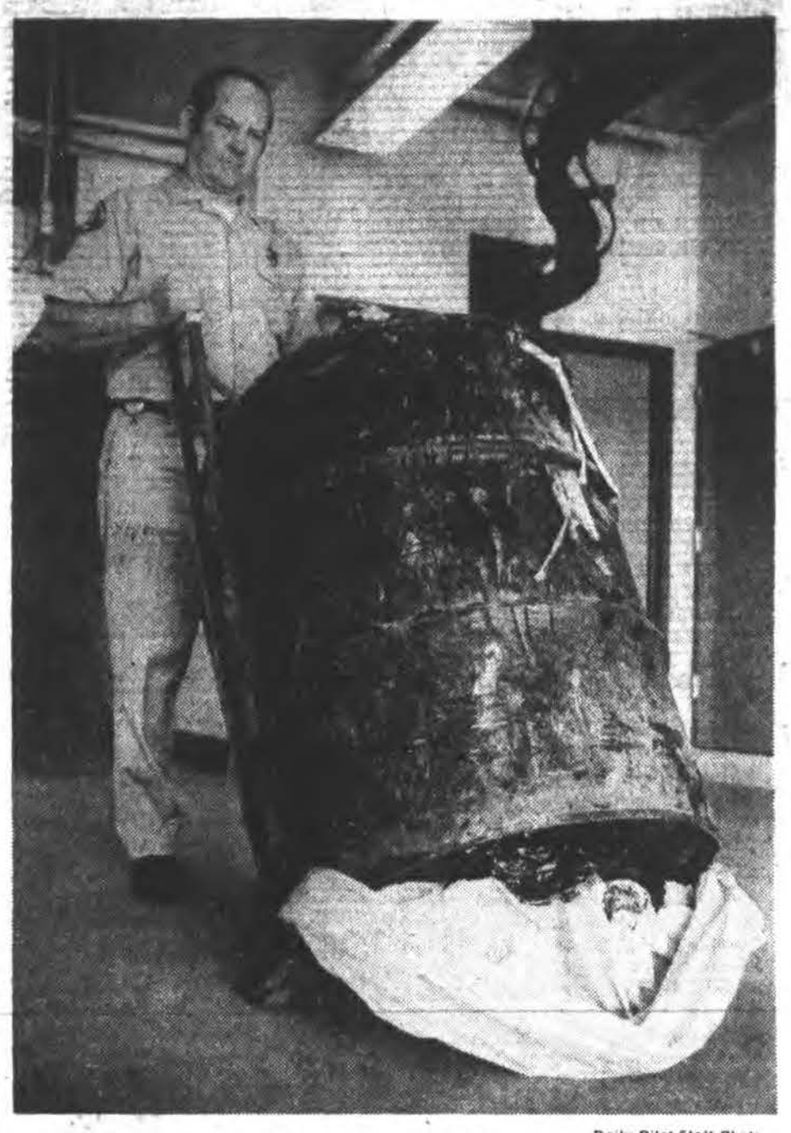

Newport Beach detectives said today they were under strict orders not to discuss any alleged motive in the killing, and they have said only that a dispute may have erupted at the Atwater home at 4633 Perham Drive early Wednesday morning.

Atwater, whose sister is married to Wrigley board Chairman P.K. Wrigley Jr., was a member of the corporate structure which includes chewing gum manufacuring, land holdings and ownership of the Chicago Cubs baseball team.

Described by police as suffering from severe mental illness, Atwater has been confined for several years in his home in Cameo Shores.

Officers said they first arrived at the home shortly before noon

SACC Asking Funds For New Rec Chief

Revenue Sharing Sought

The Saddleback Area Coordinating Council (SACC) Thursday night voted to ask Orange County Supervisors for $32,628 in revenue-sharing funds for the employment of a recreation coordinator.

If the grant is approved, the coordinator would direct a major portion of the Saddleback Valley's recreation needs for the next 15 months.

However, neither Mission Viejo nor the Aegean Hills area will take part in the valley-wide recreation program. Both areas have indicated a preference for planning their own recreation programs.

That leaves three other county service areas in the Saddleback Valley to divide the $58,000 in county funds which are available for recreational programming.

Of this South Laguna Hills (Service Area 8) share is $15,000; El Toro's (Service Area 6), $27,000 and Leisure World and New World's (Service Area 4), $16,000.

The total cost for the valley-wide recreation plan, including the salary of the coordinator, is estimated at $90,000.

Mission Viejo's Municipal Advisory Council at a meeting held Monday preceded the SACC action by announcing that it would prepare its own recreation program.

A study by the MAC Recreation and Parks Committee concluded that the recreation needs of its community should remain under local control.

It was concluded that Mission Viejo "remains in the best possible position to judge its own needs, devise its own programs, and implement those programs to the benefit of the entire community."

Ford's Ability Doubted?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former White House aide Charles W. Colson said today that Richard M. Nixon talked seriously in December 1973 about resigning as president but expressed doubt about whether Gerald Ford could handle the job.

Nixon was particularly concerned about whether Ford could control Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, Colson said.

In an interview on the NBC "Today" program, Colson quoted Nixon as saying "maybe what this country needs is a nice clean Jerry Ford. The trouble with Jerry Ford is it would take him two years just to get up speed. Also, Jerry's greatest difficulty is he couldn't control Henry Kissinger.

"You know, Henry really is unstable at times," Colson quoted Nixon as saying.

Kissinger was asked about Colson's comments as he left the White House today. He told reporters, as he stepped into his car, that "I will not dignify that with a comment." He then headed back for the State Department.

Colson, recently released from federal prison after serving seven months of a one-to-three year sentence for obstruction of justice, said Nixon made the comments during a conversation on Dec. 18, 1973.

UC Faculty Member Gets Solon's Note

State Sen. Dennis Carpenter probably did not realize he was writing to a UC Irvine medical faculty member when he purportedly said Orange County's $5.5 million price for Orange County Medical was "blackmail," the recipient of the letter said Thursday.

Dr. Robert Pfeffer, an assistant professor of neurology, said the Jan. 31 letter from Carpenter was in response to a letter he wrote to the senator Jan. 17.

Carpenter said Wednesday he does not recall the letter and does not know Pfeffer. One source said the letter probably was written by a member of Carpenter's staff detailing views previously expressed by the senator.

UCI-California College of Medicine plans to buy the Medical Center for use as a teaching hospital. Additionally, the school plans to reduce the 524-bed facility by 200 beds and build a 200-bed hospital on the UCI campus.

The letter repeated previous statements by Carpenter that he will oppose the on-campus hospital if it will compete with Hoag Memorial Hospital in Newport Beach.

Pfeffer said he does not have a copy of the Jan. 17 letter he wrote to Carpenter.

However, he described its contents as asking Carpenter to oppose a suggestion by Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post that the UCI med school be closed and its operations be combined with those at UC Davis.

Pfeffer wrote the letter from his home address and speculates that Carpenter may have assumed he was a physician in private practice.

Carpenter's response, said Pfeffer, "was a little tangential to what I wrote him about."

Pfeffer said he cannot understand how the reply on Carpenter's letterhead was made public. The original, he said, is still in his office files at the Orange County Medical Center.

Ruling Set On Barricade

Mission Viejo's Municipal Advisory Council will make its recommendation on the Montilla Lane barricade Monday night at Mission Viejo High School.

The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the school's multi-purpose room.

Members of the five-man panel will forward their recommendation for action by the Orange County Board of Supervisors.

Also scheduled for Monday's council meeting is discussion about the installation of a fence around Preciados Park.

Barricade Issue Heats

Road Official Favors Removal 'Personally'

A spokesman for the Orange County Road Department refused to take an official position on a two-year old cul-de-sac controversy in Mission Viejo Thursday night, saying it would be premature.

Murray Storm, assistant road commissioner, told members of the Mission Viejo Municipal Advisory Council (MAC) he personally favors removing the barricade, at the intersection of Montilla Lane and Jeronimo Road.

But he stressed that was his personal opinion only, and said the final recommendation would have to come from Road Commissioner Ted McConville, and then only in a presentation to the county Board of Supervisors.

Two months ago, supervisors asked the MAC to review whether the barricade should come down and make a recommendation. Two hearings have been held and a final decision is scheduled following a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday at Mission Viejo High School.

"The road department is in a delicate position in regard to the MAC," Storm said. "We still are not sure how the MAC will function.

"We feel that to give you a recommendation before we give one to the board would be premature."

The Montilla barricade is the last remaining of three built in the summer of 1973, when construction of the artificial cul-de-sacs prompted a neighborhood uproar. Two barricades finally were removed two months later.

But residents along a corridor between La Paz Road and Jeronimo Road, including Montilla Lane, Naccome Drive, and San Andreas Drive, maintain their barricade is needed to keep out short-cutters and preserve safety for their children.

The road department has taken alternating positions on the barricade. Originally McConville had recommended that the three barricades be built.

Later in 1973, after a series of public meetings and demonstrations, Assistant Commissioner Storm, a Mission Viejo resident, said he believed the Montilla barricade should come down.

But when his boss McConville went before the supervisors to give the road department's official recommendation after the first round of public debate, he

Brown Okays Cuts

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. has accepted most of the $46 million in cuts recommended by legislative analyst A. Alan Post in the governor's proposed $11.3 billion state budget. Actually, Brown Thursday sent the veteran fiscal watchdog $7.7 million better in proposed budget reductions.

Orange County

Unemployment Soars

By GARY GRANVILLE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Unemployment in Orange county reached an all time high in January when there 62,500 persons out of work and the unemployment rate jumped to 8.1 percent.

And, according to state labor analysist Alta Eldridge, the end of a sharp decline in employment that began six months ago isn't in sight.

U.S. UNEMPLOYMENT HITS 8.2%. Story, Page A4.

"Every indicator we have tells us things will get worse before they get better," Mrs. Eldridge said.

Included among those indicators are forecasts received from employers who say they see fewer rather than more jobs on the horizon.

Mrs. Eldridge also mentioned that new employers are not coming to Orange County as rapidly as they did the last two years when unemployment dropped after a series of aerospace layoffs hit the job market in the early 1970s.

Hardest hit last month when the number of jobless climbed by 9,900 persons were retail trade and service industries.

Both were hit hard by expected seasonal layoffs in department stores and at amusement parks that thrive on tourist trade.

But the job losses were across the board, in manufacturing, construction, government, and other service industries as well as in retail trade and amusement park operations.

The construction industry continued in an employment slump that began two years ago.

In January, 1974, there were 28,400 employed in the building trades. Last month, the total employed in construction was 24,900.

Mrs. Eldridge's gloomy monthly report was accented by predictions of a worsening situation on the Orange County labor market.

How much worse?

"I wouldn't be surprised to see the unemployment rate reach 9 percent," Mrs. Eldridge said.

"As a matter of fact," she

Policeman's Plea Presented Posthumously

MILWAUKEE (AP) — "I have been shot at and would have hated to think that all I could do was throw a beanbag at the party shooting," Robert E. Atkins Jr., a policeman in the town of Summit, wrote in a letter to the Milwaukee Journal.

Atkins was protesting a letter in the Journal that suggested policemen carry a gun that shoots beanbags instead of bullets. The beanbags would stun rather than kill.

The letter was forwarded to the Journal Thursday by Atkins' widow.

She said her husband had written it on the night of Jan. 26 but did not have the opportunity to mail it. He and a fellow officer were shot to death from ambush while on duty early the next morning.

A 16-year old youth is being held by juvenile authorities.

Bradley Berates Oil Plan

BEVERLY HILLS (AP) — Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley said today it would be "irresponsible to sell America's publicly owned oil resources" without a comprehensive national energy policy.

Bradley spoke in opposition on behalf of the Council of Local Governments to a proposal by the U.S. Department of the Interior to lease 10 million acres of offshore land for oil drilling, including 1.6 million acres off California.

He said the 41 cities and counties in the council adopted a three-point resolution which calls for opposition to the federal proposal until three things happened: (1) a comprehensive national and regional energy policy has been formulated; (2) the Department of Interior submits its proposed oil development program to the affected state, regional and local agencies for review; and (3) Congress has enacted legislation strengthening existing laws related to oil development on the outer continental shelf.

"I want to be very clear that we do not necessarily oppose the concept of development and use of the oil on the outer continental shelf," Bradley said.

"We do oppose the haste with which it is being undertaken, particularly with regard to the lack of understanding of the true value of this resource — a value which can only be determined within the context of a comprehensive national energy policy."

Bradley told the Interior Department hearing board in the auditorium at the El Rodeo Elementary School that originally he had been given only three weeks to review a "highly technological" 1,300-page draft prior to public hearings set for mid-November.

He said it was only after local officials were able to meet with Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton that a 60-day delay in the hearings was granted.

Bradley said an analysis of the draft indicates that there has been "no careful consideration of a balanced mix of new resources," nor had consideration been given to developing such existing resources as the Elk Hills Naval petroleum serve.

He added "our experts found that no analysis of the relative environmental impacts of drilling the various areas had been performed."

Los Angeles City Attorney Burt Pines, who followed Bradley to the witness table, said his staff analysis of the draft Environmental Impact Statement indicates it is "legally inadequate."

Pines said, "Our view is that a new draft EIS must be entirely redone."

Pines submitted a 500-page analysis of the EIS which he said highlights his principal concern with the draft statement.

SLAYING . . .

Wednesday after the day nurse who attends Atwater became alarmed at Mrs. Atwater's absence.

The day nurse, David Jacobsen, told police he arrived as usual at 8 a.m. and noticed fresh paint on wallpaper and walls at the expensive Atwater home. Jacobsen reportedly told police that Bedelian told him Mrs. Atwater had left earlier with an unidentified man. Jacobsen added that Bedelian identified red stains in the house as cranberry juice he spilled.

Later in the morning, Jacobsen said his concern was heightened when Mrs. Atwater's lawyer phoned to report that she did not show up for a scheduled court hearing in Santa Ana. That hearing was the latest apeparance in a lengthy battle over control of Atwater's fortune.

At that point, the day nurse phoned police. Officers examined the expensive house and found signs of a violent and bloody struggle.

Later in the day, Bedelian arrived at the wrecking yard in his 1968 Cadillac which allegedly contained three sacks of cement and the victim's body.

Yardworker Pete Seropian said that Bedelian called him Wednesday afternoon and asked for an empty metal drum saying he wanted to mix cement and fill it so he could have a weight for the front of his truck.

Police allege that Bedelian stuffed Mrs. Atwater's body into the drum, filled it with cement and left. Police were already in Glendale looking for the male nurse and found him at about 4 p.m. at an intersection a few blocks from his home.

After a trip to Newport Beach police headquarters and an interview ewith investigators, Bdelian was booked on a murder charge and police drove to the wrecking yard.

They found the barrel, three empty cement sacks and several blood stained paper towels. Investigators also found Mrs. Atwater's remains still clad in nightclothes in the barrel.

Workers at the junkyard were quoted as describing Bedelian, whom they knew, as "a nice guy." He was one of several male nurses employed over the years at the household to provide 24-hour attendance for the confined heir whose mental problem began many years ago, according to Newport Beach Detective Capt. Richard Hamilton.

Although wealthy, the couple had no car, and Mrs. Atwater rarely left home except for trips to a beauty shop, to the doctor or for appearances in court, police said.

Airport Land Panel Delays Toro Ruling

The Orange County Airport Land Use Commission's public hearing on land planning around El Toro Marine Corps Air Station opened Thursday night but won't close until March 6.

After listening to 45 minutes of testimony, the commission agreed to hold the hearing open until next month to allow further study of an environmental impact statement that wasn't completed until late last week.

The environmental statement covers a 23,000-acre land use plan that touches both unincorporated and city of Irvine land that surrounds the military air base.

The commission is empowered to implement whatever plan it adopts, subject to veto by the local agencies involved, to "forestall urban encroachment" on airports.

Irvine's City Council was critical of the El Toro plan when it was presented to it Tuesday night by commission planner Ken Delino.

Whale Watching Trips Scheduled

Eight whale watching trips sponsored by the San Clemente High School Parent Teacher Student Association will be held this month.

The trips, leaving Dana Point Marine at 9:45 a.m. and 1 p .m., will go out on Feb. 15, 16, 22 and 23. Cost is $4 for adults and $3 for children 12 years and younger. Reservations may be made by calling 496-7106.

COLSON . . .

At the time, Nixon was resisting efforts to turn over additional White House tapes to Watergate prosecutors and House and Senate investigators.

Colson said, that during the same period, Nixon told him that he would resign if the U.S. Supreme Court ruled he had to surrender the tapes.

"He said he would not sit and preside over the destruction of the presidency," Colson said. "He said if he lost in Supreme Court on the tapes he would resign."

Colson said Nixon was confident that the Supreme Court and particularly the four justices Nixon appointed would support him.

The court ruled 8 to 0 in July 1974 that Nixon had to surrender the tapes.

Nixon resigned the presidency three weeks later.

Colson said Nixon's comment about Kissinger apparently was based on Kissinger's advocacy of an early resumption of the bombing of North Vietnam in December 1972.

Colson said Kissinger, then White House adviser for national security affairs, resumed secret negotiations in Paris with the North Vietnamese on Dec. 5, 1972 and immediately cabled Nixon: "Start the bombing immediately. These madmen have doublecrossed us."

Colson said Nixon showed him the Kissinger cable. He said Nixon rejected Kissinger's advice and told him to continue negotiating.

Thirteen days later the bombing was resumed.

Board Mulls Its Policy On Relatives

Saddleback College trustees will consider a policy change Monday that would allow related persons to work for the college district.

Current district policy bars related individuals, such as a husband and wife, from working for the district concurrently.

Superintendent Robert Lombardi has requested the policy change. He has said the current standard may violate statutes that ban job discrimination.

Another policy to be considered by trustees would allow instructors with seven years service to the district to take sabbatical leaves for up to one year.

A teacher taking a year's leave would be paid two-thirds of his annual salary. A teacher taking only two quarters leave would be paid full salary.

The policy would permit administrators to take sabbaticals up to two months in length at full pay.

Trustees will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the James B. Utt Memorial Library.

said the Montilla barricade should stay.

Storm then conceded his statements had been his personal opinion, and not that of the road department.

"I'd like to know which one of you is going to make the road department's recommendation to supervisors this time," MAC member Jeanne Gagnebin quipped Thursday.

"I don't think it should be Mr. McConville," Mrs. Gagnebin said. "I don't think he's educated on this issue. He has only been to one meeting out here on the subject."

McConville was invited to Thursday's review session, but sent Storm instead.

West Agrees To Oil Cut

PARIS (AP) — Major Western oil importing nations have agreed to cut crude oil imports this year by about 10 percent, or two million barrels per day, the president of the International Energy Agency said today.

Etienne Davignon of Belgium told a news conference after a meeting of the agency that the reduction is a rough figure based on measures already taken and expected to come into force among the agency's original 16 nations.

The agency's three-day meeting ended, he said, with the expectation that a preliminary meeting for a conference between oil producers, consumers and developing nations could be held in March.

Viejo Plant Site Held Up By Lot Quiz

The fate of a 12-unit Mission Viejo industrial park will hang in the balance for another week as members of the Orange County Planning Commission review its parking facilities.

Commissioners ordered the zoning variance from the Burroughs Corp. plant brought back for review Tuesday. The project site is on Jeronimo Road.

At last Tuesday's hearing, the commission refused to consider developer Robert L. Wish's quest for reduced parking because he had not turned over modified parking plans in time.

A planning aide said the plans had not been forwarded for analysis until Tuesday morning and that some commission members didn't understand certain details.

Wish originally wanted parking reduced from 577 spaces to 478 spaces. Commissioners rejected that request as "too drastic."

added "it's possible the rate might climb to 10 percent."

Orange County's all time high unemployment rate came in January and April of 1971 when it reached 8.7 percent.

However, in those months, the total number of unemployed ranged from 48,000 to 52,000. Last month's unemployment roll of 62,500 exceeded the former record high of 52,800, a mark reached in January, 1971.

Astrologist Trial Could End Today

By ARTHUR R. VINSEL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A silent courtroom gallery listened Thursday as Church of Astrolight founder Zelda Pryor, 75, testified that the tiny sanctuary in her home is no paying business, but a place where the troubled may find comfort and counsel based on the universal truths.

The Maine-born astrologist and spiritualist is on trial for allegedly violating a Costa Mesa city ordinance forbidding acceptance of pay for any form of occult practice.

She looked small and hunchbacked in the big witness chair, but her cheeks were pink, her eyes glittered and her jaw jutted proudly forward.

Defense attorney Donald Smallwood crossed in front of Harbor Judicial District Court Judge Betty Lou Lamoureaux and handed Mrs. Pryor one of 34 books she has published.

He had marked a spot and asked her to read.

"In my Father's house are many mansions, with the same light shining through. . ." she intoned, her voice holding a hint of the old Maine accent.

She continued reading the text, a form of credo based on the universal religious truths, which she says are spoken to her inwardly by spirits so she may write them down.

She claims no personal authorship.

One fashionably dressed woman juror leaned forward — her brows knitted sadly — as the old lady recited her beliefs that all elements of religions since the dawn of time knit together into God's divine plan woven for the universe.

By the time she finished the 30 lines, the lady juror had discreetly shielded her eyes with her hand.

"Your Honor. . .the defense rests," said Smallwood.

The trial was scheduled to resume this afternoon, and could possibly conclude today, depending upon re-questioning with final arguments to the six-man, six-woman jury.

The people's case was rested by Assistant City Attorney Robert Campagna at noon Thursday, whereupon Smallwood submitted a motion to Judge Lamoureux for a direct acquittal.

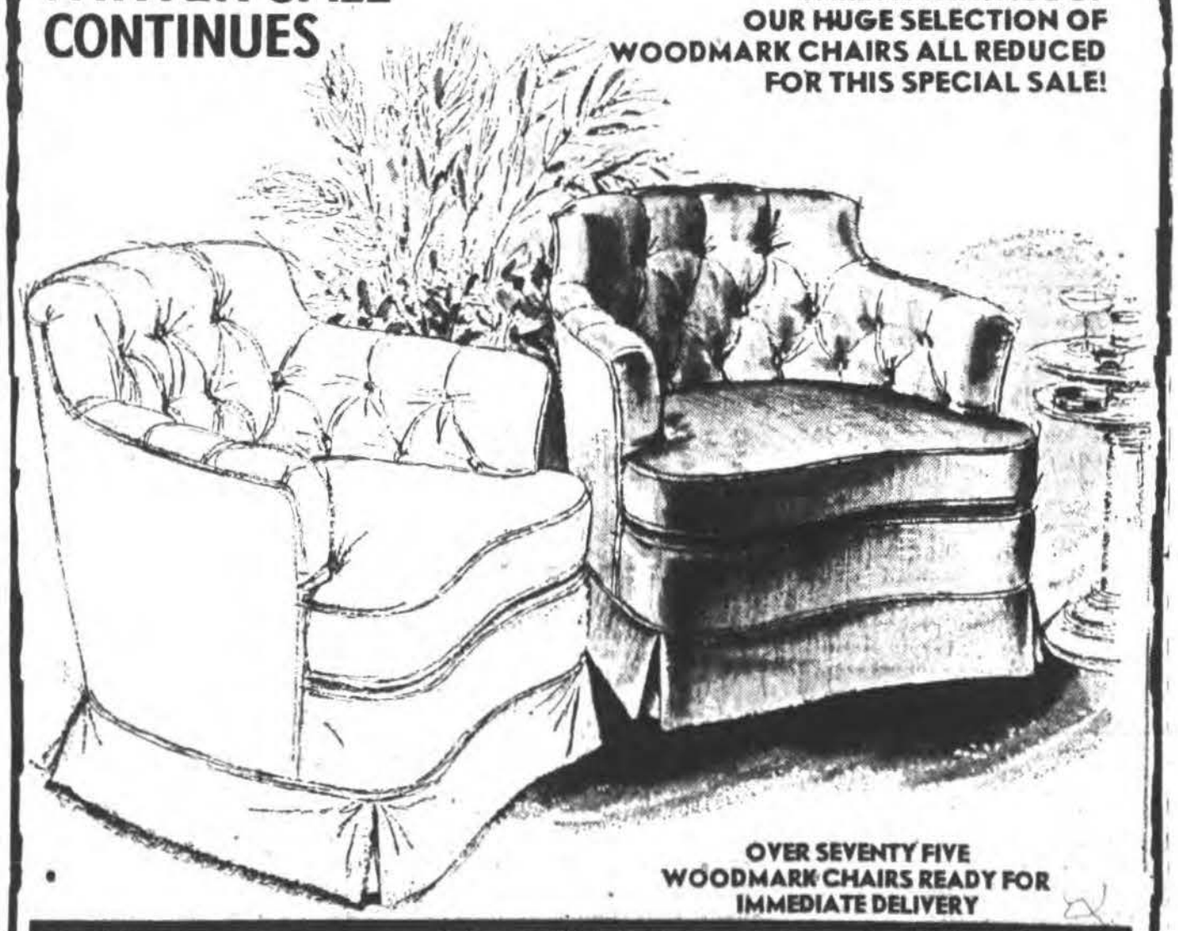

He claims the all-encompassing Costa Mesa city ordinance — describing it in the words of Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas on another law as a Meat Ax Ordinance — is far too broad.

Smallwood said the statute which bans more than a score of specific practices dealing with the occult does not even have the saving grace of exempting certain religious matters which could be related.

New College Campus?

There is a chance — albeit remote — that Saddleback College might be able to latch onto a temporary campus in Tustin.

It recently was announced by Tustin Unified School District officials that an elementary school might be closed because of declining enrollment.

A Tustin campus would have obvious benefit for the college district. It would ease complaints about the long distance between Tustin and Saddleback's Mission Viejo campus. It would help increase college enrollment, thereby expanding the amount of money Saddleback could collect from the state.

There are some hitches. First, the Tustin district is taking some heat from parents who don't want the school closed.

Second, assuming the school is closed, there are laws that require public property put up for sale or lease must be first offered to the federal government, then the state, then the county, and so forth. Saddleback would be last in line.

While the odds may be less than favorable, the idea deserves thorough study.

SACC and MAC

The Mission Viejo Municipal Advisory Council (MAC) decided this week to cut its financial ties with the Saddleback Area Coordinating Council (SACC).

While this decision is a smart move fiscally, MAC members should take care not to damage their rapport with SACC beyond repair.

MAC's share of the yearly SACC budget was $2,800, or about 15 cents per Mission Viejo household per year. The money helped pay for a SACC office in El Toro and fund the lobbying efforts SACC conducts at the county level on local issues.

The MAC probably can make better use of that money, provided from the budget of County Service Area Nine, for local needs.

But SACC and MAC, as sister organizations striving for many of the same goals, need to work together.

There has been a simmering resentment among some leaders of the two groups ever since the inception of the drive for a Mission Viejo MAC several years ago. The time for settling those ill feelings and cooperating for the valley's best interests is here.

Bidding Justified

A question of business ethics has come up as a result of the Irvine City Council's recent decision to seek competitive bids for a commercial tennis teaching facility to be built at the planned Irvine High School Community Park.

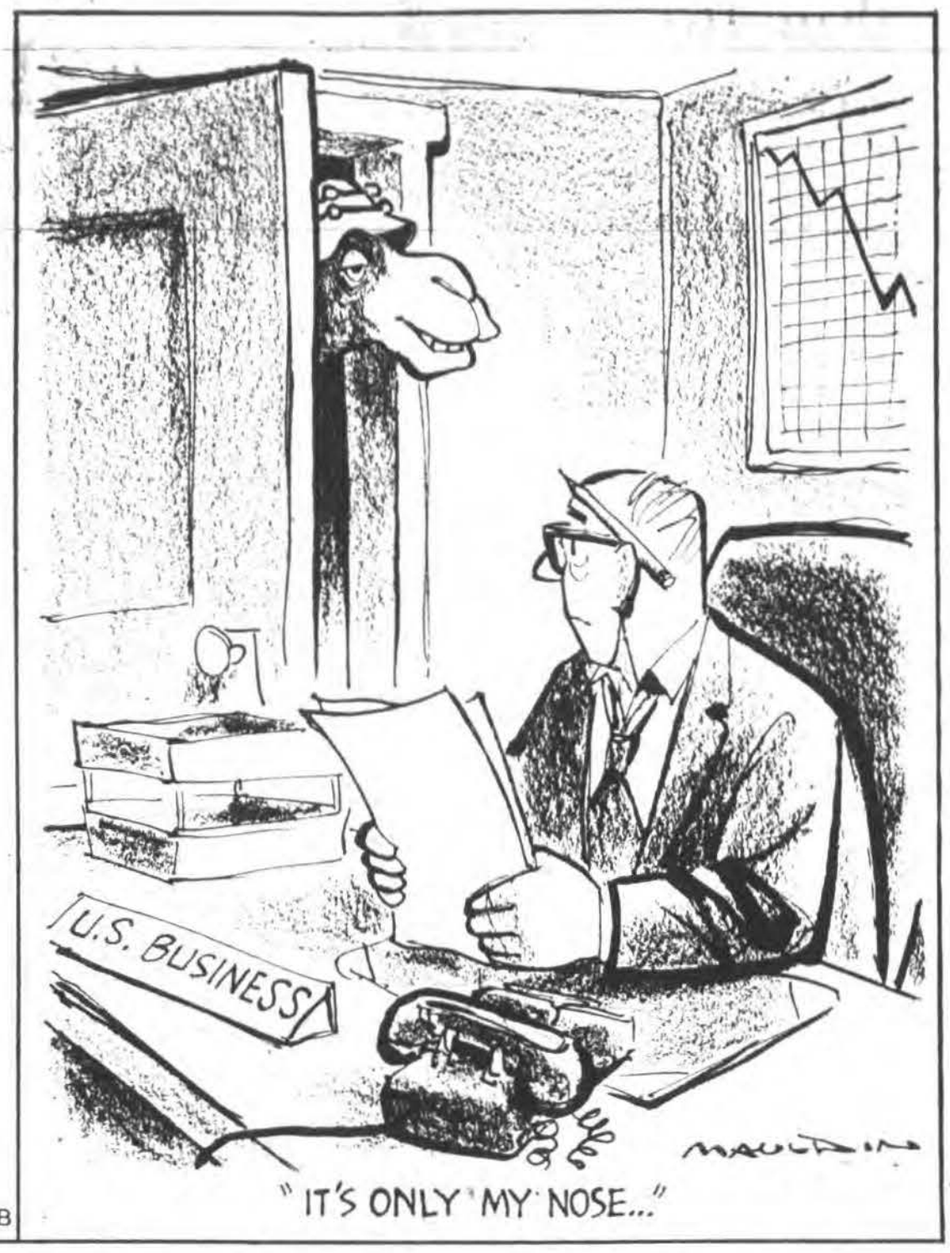

The Laver-Emerson tennis teaching firm has had a proposal for a 2.2-acre facility on file at city hall for several months. Subsequent to receipt of that proposal, master plans for the park were changed to roughly delineate a three-acre site designated for a tennis teaching facility.

When the council decided to seek bids, Laver-Emerson withdrew its proposal. The firm's representative felt its ideas were to be essentially stolen and put up for competitive bid.

It is an unfortunate conflict. In discussing the tennis facility, the city is breaking new ground on the inclusion of commercial recreation in city parks. Care is essential in deciding what facilities are allowed.

Any facility allowed will be a neighbor to the city park for a long time to come. A precedent for future commercial facilities is being set. The city, therefore, must be absolutely certain it is receiving the most advantageous terms available.

"IT'S ONLY MY NOSE..."

A Happy Hedonist Defends His Style

To the Editor:

Re: the letter from Mr. Bantel printed Jan. 29.

This is the first time I've written in response to an article but feel I must express the "the other view."

I'm sick of other people implying what type of car I can drive or where to set my thermostat in my home. Because of my fantastic prudence and foresight to live close enough to work to use only 10 gallons of gasoline per week and to not have an ego-trip style, grossly over-sized family that requires heating a barracks sized barn-house, I'll live within my "ration" (be it coupons or prices or both) with any damn sized car and room temperature I (not Bantel or J. Ford) select.

IN MY opinion, to stop the alleged energy shortage:

(A) Stop the income tax advantages to selfish producers of excess numbers of offspring (that's what causes pollution and energy consumption) Archaic religions that demanded more children in 1300 A.D. are laughable to any educated modern society.

(B) Drastically curtail the senseless energy wasting of obsolete U.S.N. battleships, etc., that cruise in circles for months on end for "experience" — politically motivated power freak-outs.

(C) Defer installation of gas-gulping auto smog devices, e.g., NOX (we all agree—no-one likes pollution) and develop nuclear power plants and off shore drilling at maximum speed. Do this without allowing selfish Sierra Club narrowminded procrastination but with reasonable safeguards and with massive government funding.

In the meantime, I'll continue to drive my beautiful 400-cubic inch Firebird and 370 H.P. Corvette in luxury and at speed feeling proud I'm conserving energy as I pass the grossly ugly 10-passenger station wagons dragging five kids with "Navy Reserve", "Stop NOX Now" and "Sierra Club is Nifty" bumper stickers. By the way, some clown had better return the 70 mph speed limit on the highway to Mammoth or my wife and I will be forced to ignore (as everyone does) the ridiculous 55 mph speed traps — in the interest of a logical and rewardingly hedonistic life style.

It interests me to see of you will print this "other" viewpoint.

Food Fears

To the Editor:

Since the editorial appeared with regard to the unsanitary condition of many of the restaurants in Orange County, we have not been able to bring ourselves to "eat out," a custom which we have greatly enjoyed in our area, thinking that we have some of the finest restaurants anywhere.

WE WANT to add our voices to others expressing apprehension in "eating out" after having to face the reality that things behind the kitchen doors in most restaurants are so appalling. Can't the customer be protected in some way? Just knowing the condition exists can't be allowed to stop there.

Let the restaurants that have nothing to hide invite customer inspection—or perhaps we need checkers checking the checkers. There really seems no excuse for careless handling of food offered for public consumption, from either the persons handling food to the cleanliness of preparation areas, cooking or storage.— HELP. Where is our Health Department?

Not 'Scared'

To the Editor:

On Jan. 7, 1975, your paper ran an article titled "Precaution in Politics", which article centered around a letter to Mobil's California customers and vendors over my signature. The clear implication of the article is that big corporations are fretting about doing business with another party unless that party's politics are known. I do not believe you accurately grasp the true situation.

AFTER last June's election, a new body of law came into being — the Political Reform Act of 1974 (Proposition 9). This law requires every employer of a lobbyist in California to file monthly reports with the Secretary of State showing (among other things) the name and official position of any elective state official, state candidate, legislative official, state agency official or members of their immediate family with whom the lobbyists' employer had certain business transactions. Also required is a disclosure of the name and address of every business entity, in which one of the above categories of persons have a specified interest, with which the lobbyists' employer had certain business transactions. Mobil retains a lobbyist in Sacramento, as do about 500 other businesses and organizations such as labor groups, religious organizations, banks,peace officers groups, etc. As an employer of a lobbyist, Mobil is required to file these reports and furnish the appropriate information to the Secretary of State.

The letter which was described in your article was solely prompted by the necessity of gathering the information as required by law. Mobil has no desire to know the politics of those with whom it does business and is certainly not "running scared" as your article alleges.

Garden Fan

To the Editor:

As a regular subscriber to the Daily Pilot, I am fully aware of the interest you take in local affairs, and I wish to draw your attention to an item that may not have been suggested up to this point in time.

When an active person suddenly comes on to retirement his whole life changes unless he has something to fill that void.

I retired in 1970, and my wife and I spent our first two retirement years living on a farm in Scotland, we enjoyed every minute of, and activity in my garden certainly took care of any boredom, however family ties were too great to stay there indefinitely, and for that reason we returned.

Up to this point I have worked part time which certainly helps, but now I am fully retired.

THE FIELD that adjoins our complex in Huntington Beach is owned by S & R Farms, and they produce three crops per year mainly cauliflowers, but each corner of this field is unworkable because of the heavy machinery used, and I noted the corner near our apartment was grown over with weeds, but I could see the potential as a so called "Victory Garden."

I went to the Office of S & R Farms and asked if they would allow me to use this 1,500 square-foot-plot for raising vegetables etc., and they readily agreed, and they should be commended for it. So as you see I do have as much as I can take care of for my family, but I cannot help but think that the numerous plots of unused ground that are just doing nothing year in and year out. Surely these owners would be public spirited enough to do as S & R Farms have for me, probably no one has asked them.

Our complex is one of 198 units, and is run under an arrangement with HUD, with a rent reduction for low paid or retired people. If it were possible for the local authorities or the HUD to delve into this idea further, we could have right adjoining this 198 homes sufficient land made into plots, and rented for a very low figure to supply all the vegetables needed and at the same time reducing boredom for the retired, and giving healthy recreation for families at a very low cost.

Nixon Didn't Invent Political Spying

RICHARD WILSON

WASHINGTON — The evidence continues to accumulate that political espionage was not invented in the Nixon administration however badly the practice might have been abused. The latest disclosure is that of J. Edgar Hoover's No. 3 man (as reported in the New York Times) that President Johnson ordered the surveillance of the Republican vice presidential nominee in the 1968 campaign, Spiro T. Agnew.

This brings back some memories. Lyndon B. Johnson used to hint darkly to private visitors during the 1968 campaign that the lovely Chinese widow, Anna Chennault, a pillar of the China lobby, was up to some hanky-panky with the Saigon government to delay Vietnam peace negotiations because President Thieu would get a better deal if Richard M. Nixon were elected.

Now it appears (if the FBI's Cartha D. De Loach's purported secret testimony is to be believed) that Johnson put the FBI on both Mrs. Chennault and the Republican vice-presidential nominee, to get the goods on their plotting, if any.

THE PARIS peace talks were deadlocked at the time on the issue of getting Saigon and Hanoi representatives to sit down together and Johnson was beside himself about any interference both from the political and the national security point of view.

Whether Johnson got the information first from Hoover and instigated the surveillance on his own doesn't make much difference. Hoover was evidently a willing collaborator with Johnson on the Chennault-Agnew-Nixon inquiry as he was on other matters of interest to a president with an insatiable hunger for useful information. Johnson was high on Hoover in those days and, gadget-minded as he was, took special delight in a mechanism Hoover had supplied him for opening and closing his bedroom window while still under the covers.

JOHNSON, in his private conversations, often conveyed the impression that he was in possession of special information which might prove embarrassing to his contemporaries. It is also reliably reported that he urged Nixon to maintain some kind of a recording system in the White House to preserve for posterity, or other purposes, the historic conversations therein, and that Nixon off-handedly ordered in the voice-actuated system which ruined him.

None of this is beside the point, which is that there were recorded conversations in the Johnson administration and maybe in the Kennedy administration which, unlike the Nixon tapes, are buried in the archives of history. Along with them are buried such use as may have been made of the FBI for political espionage with its fruit of embarrassing or incriminating tidbits.

ADD TO THAT the until now secret Watergate committee memo asserting that in the 1964 Democratic national convention Johnson, through the FBI, was wiretapping Martin Luther King and Robert F. Kennedy and a different perspective of the Nixon tragedy begins to emerge.

In another aspect of this general matter, former Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski and the present prosecutor, Henry S. Ruth, argue against a full report on their inquiries out of tender solicitude for some who might be hurt by "juicy" (Jaworski's word) information. Certainly former President Nixon could not be hurt any more, so the impression is left that there is still hidden information which might have a bearing upon the perspective brought to bear on Nixon's guilt in the Watergate affair.

THE PROSECUTORS argue it would be unconstitutional to disclose the full story as a matter of fundamental fairness under the Fifth Amendment. Congress, which is considering legislation requiring a full disclosure, could well pass the legislation and leave the constitutional issue to the courts.

Maybe the time has come to follow the course President Nixon once considered — "let it all hang out." That procedure should not be confined to the Watergate affair but should reach a bit back into the past in the interests of providing perspective on the single most shocking event of American political history. What Nixon's predecessors did does not excuse him, but at least it might show that he was not the sole originator of political dirty work.

Automobiles Don't Kill . . .

SYDNEY HARRIS

A letter in Time magazine a few weeks ago, from a reader who opposes gun laws, was typical of the kind of illogical thinking that supports such arguments. The letter said:

"A gun has no will of its own. A gun does only what its owner causes it do to. The root of the problem is within the human heart. Cure the cause rather than treat surface symptoms."

Let me transpose this argument to a similar term to demonstrate how absurd it is:

"An automobile has no will of its own. An automobile does only what its driver causes it to do. The root of the problem is within the human heart. Cure the cause rather than treat surface symptoms."

THEREFORE, dispense with automobile laws. No more speed limits, no more traffic signals, no more registration of cars, no more tests for drivers, no more fines or jail terms for offenses.

Instead, we try to reform and change human nature. We work at making most people kind and considerate and attentive and radional and model citizens.

Meanwhile, what is happening on the streets and highways? Slaughter, that's what's happening. While we're slowly "curing the human heart," we're speedily killing thousands of human bodies.

Why bother to make cars safer, either? Since it's obviously the motorist, and not the car, that causes accidents, let's also dispense with stronger bumpers, roll-over bars, seat-belts, impact-bags, or anything else designed to protect in a crash. When people's hearts are warmer, the highway homicide rate will go down to practically nothing.

AUTOMOBILES don't kill; people do. No one has ever seen an automobile take off by itself and knock someone down. Ergo, why place all these constraints upon owning and operating an automobile? All we have to do is improve the human race — it may take a few thousand years — and the auto will be no more of a threat, or fatal weapon, than the tricycle.

This is what the gun people imagine is rational thinking. Another of their themes is "infringement of liberty." But what would they think of a drunk driving a car down the road, without a license, without plates, without the slightest responsibility or obligation to others? Are we "infringing" on his liberty by demanding that he be qualified and in a state to drive, or that his automobile be registered and licensed and insured for liability?

The automobile, at least, serves a useful purpose when its ownership and operation are carefully supervised. The handgun serves no purpose except the taking of human life. True, guns don't kill — but people with guns do. And far too often.

Reagan Offers To Quit

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Ronald Reagan offered to resign from the panel investigating the CIA because his busy schedule would keep him away from Washington. Vice president Nelson Rockefeller turned down the offer.

Rockefeller said Reagan could keep abreast of developments by reading transcripts. The problem is that the transcripts are so hush-hush Reagan cannot get them.

Reagan said Thursday — his 64th birthday — that he missed three of the first four meetings of the Rockefeller panel and will miss the next one too, because of his busy schedule. He left early from the one meeting he did attend.

State

Brown Charges

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Brown administration has been accused by legislators of breaking at least two state laws and violating the U.S. Constitution.

Two Democratic legislators accused Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. Thursday of prying illegally into the affairs of prospective appointees to his administration in violation of state law and the U.S. Constitution.

Later in the day, a Republican leader charged that a Brown cabinet secretary illegally imposed a gag order on state officials who might be called before the legislature.

UC Unions

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Employes of public colleges and universities in California would be able to join unions and bargain collectively under a measure that has been introduced in the Assembly.

The measure by Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, (D-San Jose,) would cover employes of the University of California's nearly 100 publicly supported community colleges.

Child Abuse

VISTA (AP) — A construction worker whose wife is charged with murdering their 12-year-old son has been charged with child abuse for allegedly beating their 10-year-old daughter.

Walter A. George was arrested Wednesday for investigation into the beating of his daughter, Roxanne, said a spokesman for the San Diego County Sheriff's Department.

Technician Killed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A technician for the British rock group Deep Purple, driving on the left-hand side of the road as is normal in England, has been killed in a head-on collision.

Police said Ronald Quinton, 24, of London, was driving southbound in the left lane of the Pacific Coast Highway when his car collided with a vehicle driven by Rockford Belmonti, 40, of Malibu, who was also killed.

The accident occurred early Thursday morning.

Maxwell Fine Levied Due To Can Cuts

MONROVIA (UPI) — General Foods Corp. was ordered Thursday to pay a $500 fine for shortweighting jars of Maxwell House instant coffee.

Municipal Court Judge John H. Sanders said the company would not have to pay an additional $1,000 fine if no further shortweighting occurs.

The shortweighting occurred in both 10-ounce and 12-ounce jars of coffee, according to the complaint filed by deputy district attorney Michael Byrne. Each jar was said to be missing an average of about a half ounce.

FINED BY JUDGE
Sportscaster Cosell

Cosell Slapped By Fine

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A county judge has fined sportscaster Howard Cosell $150 for failing to answer questions formally submitted to him in a $3 million lawsuit.

The suit, filed for teen-ager Scott Schindler, alleges Cosell struck Schindler in March of 1973 when the youth asked for his autograph.

The suit, which names Cosell and the American Broadcasting Co. as defendants, originally asked for $100,00 in damages. But Schindler's lawyer, Bernard Levy, asked for permission to amend the complaint upwards to $3 million.

San Diego County Superior Court Judge Jack R. Levitt authorized the amended complaint Wednesday. Levy said he decided to amend the complaint after learning the net worth of the network.

Cosell's lawyer argued against the increase in damages sought, claiming that Schindler suffered no damage.

In New York, a spokesman for ABC said the company would have no comment.

Fresno Bee's Case Linked To Court Key

FRESNO (AP) — A courthouse master key has become the key issue in a hearing over how the Fresno Bee obtained a sealed grand jury transcript.

Reporter William K. Patterson had possession of the key until he and two other Bee staffers were found in contempt 62 times last month for refusing to testify where they got the transcript.

Superior Court Judge Denver Peckinpah Thursday ordered testimony reopened on Feb. 21 after learning the key, now in the court's custody, provided "unlimited access" to the offices of all judges and other county officials who had copies of the transcripts.

"Freedom of the press does not mean freedom from the law of the land," Peckinpah said. "It does not mean freedom from being accountable for anything they do."

However, an attorney for the Bee staffers later told newsmen the key was never used improperly.

"The Fresno Bee's employes have never improperly used a courthouse key," said Phil C. Fullerton in a statement. "These witnesses or any other representative of the Fresno Bee will freely testify on the use of such keys."

Pay for Your Insurance At Gas Pump?

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The 13 million motorists in California would buy auto insurance at gas stations, paying about three cents extra a gallon under legislation introduced in the Assembly.

"Pay As You Drive" auto insurance, similar to a two-year-old system in the state of Maryland, would eliminate the problem of uninsured motorists in California, the bill's authors said Thursday.

Assemblymen Edwin Z'berg (D-Sacramento), and Charles Warren (D-Los Angeles), revealed the plan at a Capitol news conference Thursday.

Drivers would pay for the insurance — generally at a savings over current premiums — through a six percent increase in gas taxes.

That would amount to three cents at a 50-cent-a-gallon rate. Additional funding would come from "modest" boosts in license plate and driver's license fees.

Liberation Front Takes Credit

22nd SF Bay Bombing

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A bomb has exploded in a radio station building, the 22nd terrorist bombing in the San Francisco Bay area in two years.

Police said the Thursday night explosion at KRON-TV here caused no injuries. It was preceded by an anonymous telephone call from a man who said, "I'm from the New World Liberation Front. There's a bomb set to go off in your building in five minutes."

Police believe a tough new type of radical dedicated to violence is responsible for the terrorist attacks.

FEDERAL BUILDINGS, General Motors offices, Bank of America branches, oil company buildings, schools and brokerage houses have been the targets.

"We expect more of the same kind of thing," Capt. Larry Stuefloten, head of police intelligence in San Jose, said in an interview before Thursday night's explosion. "We believe the extremists are working to exploit hard times against the establishment, Watergate and that kind of thing."

San Francisco Police Lt. Richard Klapp said a pipe bomb containing TNT went off in a stairwell on a side of the KRON building. He said damage was confined to that area.

"I felt the explosion on the fourth floor," said newsman Curt Rutter. "I heard a good-sized kaboom and felt vibrations."

The building was not vacated despite the warning. Francis A. Martin III, station operations manager, said about 40 people were inside.

Klapp said another station, KGO-TV, received a bomb threat earlier in the day, but police searched the building and found no device.

HE SAID THE KRON bombing seemed related to a New World Liberation Front communique received Tuesday by radio station KPFA in Berkeley that was critical of broadcast station programming. It said in part:

"Our objective is a socialist revolution in order to serve the interest of poor people. We're not going to accept that you parasites 'give' and 'aid' us except in 'giving' us miserable crumbs and 'aiding' the continuance of those miserable conditions in your dog eat dog narrow world. And your programming. We that know you, Rockefeller, controlling figure in Standard Oil of California, control CBS and RCA which controls NBC. ABC is controlled by another wealthy New York family, fellow parasites of yours."

KGO is affiliated with ABC and KRON is affiliated with NBC.

IN THE SAME communique, the New World Liberation Front claimed responsibility for other bombings this week in the bay area — a $100,000 blast at a San Jose office building Monday and a minor explosion at an Air Force radar station near Half Moon Bay on Tuesday. No injuries were reported.

Police believe the group is a stepchild of Weatherman, which splintered from Students for a Democratic Society in the 1960s.

'Lenient' Judge To Face Hearing

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Municipal Court Judge Robert J. Cooney was prevented by court order Thursday from carrying out a vow to dismiss all speeding tickets issued by the California Highway Patrol.

Cooney disclosed Wednesday that he had dismissed a speeding ticket because the patrol declined to cite or discipline two of its out-of-uniform officers who were stopped for speeding with then-Gov. Ronald Reagan as a passenger.

SHE CAME UP AND SAW THEM

BEVERLY HILLS (UPI) — Invading the traditionally all male Hollywood Friar's Club roast Thursday night, Mae West received a standing ovation when she made an unplanned appearance.

Miss West, wearing a white coat over a floor length white and black paneled dress, was the only woman present at the roast, which poked fun at George Raft.

Others attending the roast at the Beverly Hilton were Cary Grant, Buddy Hackett, Telly Savalas and Don Rickles.

Shootout Victims Honored at Rites

OCEANSIDE (AP) — David R. Terrell and Leland Phelps, victims of a bizarre four-hour confrontation, have been buried side-by-side.

Terrell, 20, fired wildly at police all Monday afternoon before killing himself with a .22-caliber rifle. Phelps, 15, was shot to death by a San Diego County Sheriff's deputy who reportedly mistook him for Terrell.

"We're wearing the bandanas because that's what Lee Phelps was wearing when he got killed," said Ralph Hatcher, 15. Phelps was buried in his bandana.

One of the pallbearers at Thursday's service was Charles Ryan, whose house was commandeered by Terrell during the siege and whose young daughters had been taken hostage inside, but escaped unharmed. His wife, Elizabeth, also attended.

During the service at the Eternal Hills Memorial Park, David Terrell Sr., the sniper's father, got into a shoving match with a television cameraman and was restrained by Willard M. Underwood, Phelps' father.

"You're not wanted here and you better go," Terrell warned. "There better not be any pictures taken here. That is an invasion of privacy."

"How come my electric bill is so high? And we've been using less."

We know your electric bill is higher. A lot higher—even though you're conserving electricity. Why? Primarily because of the increased cost of oil.

It's our job to provide the electricity you, your family and your job require. And we must do so in a manner that meets all air pollution control regulations. This means burning foreign, low-sulfur oil in Edison generating plants. The price is set by foreign governments, and it more than tripled in the last 18 months. It could go even higher. Since January, 1972, the increasing costs of oil and the additional amounts we have had to buy are responsible for almost 90% of the increase in your electric bills.

So we won't always be so dependent on foreign oil, we're spending millions of dollars building coal and nuclear plants. We are also researching new ways to generate electricity—without foreign oil. Geothermal power. Solar power. Fuel cells. Fast breeder reactors. Nuclear fusion. Research is costly, but it will also help to reduce our reliance on foreign oil.

Projects related to the environment are expensive, too, and in 1974 will account for about 20% of our capital expenditures. In the past six years, $325 million were required to be spent for such projects. It looks like we will have to spend another $450 million for environmental purposes within the next four-year period.

On top of all this, inflation is eating into our budget—as it is yours. The cost of constructing new plants is 10 times higher than it was a few years ago, and borrowing costs have more than doubled.

Your electric bill will reflect these rising costs. What can you do to hold down your bill? Budget your use of electricity wisely. For ways to do this, send for our free booklet. Write: "Conservation," Edison, P.O. Box 800, Rosemead, CA 91770.

Male Nurse Held in Atwater Slaying

A 40-year-old immigrant from Lebanon — married only about six months — was scheduled for arraignment on murder charges late today in connection with the battering death of a Corona del Mar millionaire's wife whose body was found stuffed under concrete in an old oil drum.

Daniel Garbis Bedelian of Glendale, a male nurse who had the night shift in caring for 67-year-old Wrigley chewing gum heir, A.G. Atwater, is being held in the death of Mrs. Nancy Atwater.

Police allege that Bedelian bludgeoned the wealthy woman to death sometime before dawn Wednesday and later in the day stuffed her body into an oil drum at a Pacoima junk yard. He then assertedly filled the barrel with wet cement.

Newport Beach detectives said today they were under strict orders not to discuss any alleged motive in the killing, and they have said only that a dispute may have erupted at the Atwater home at 4633 Perham Drive early Wednesday morning.

Atwater, whose sister is married to Wrigley board Chairman P.K. Wrigley Jr., was a member of the corporate structure which includes chewing gum manufacuring, land holdings and ownership of the Chicago Cubs baseball team.

Described by police as suffering from severe mental illness, Atwater has been confined for several years in his home in Cameo Shores.

Officers said they first arrived at the home shortly before noon

Nixon Doubted Ford

President Mulled Quitting—Colson

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former White House aide Charles W. Colson said today that Richard M. Nixon talked seriously in December 1973 about resigning as president but expressed doubt about whether Gerald Ford could handle the job.

Nixon was particularly concerned about whether Ford could control Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, Colson said.

In an interview on the NBC "Today" program, Colson quoted Nixon as saying "maybe what this country needs is a nice clean Jerry Ford. The trouble with Jerry Ford is it would take him two years just to get up speed. Also, Jerry's greatest difficulty is he couldn't control Henry Kissinger.

"You know, Henry really is unstable at times," Colson quoted Nixon as saying.

Kissinger was asked about Colson's comments as he left the White House today. He told reporters, as he stepped into his car, that "I will not dignify that with a comment." He then headed back for the State Department.

Colson, recently released from federal prison after serving seven months of a one-to-three year sentence for obstruction of justice, said Nixon made the comments during a conversation on Dec. 18, 1973.

At the time, Nixon was resisting efforts to turn over additional White House tapes to Watergate prosecutors and House and Senate investigators.

Colson said, that during the Conflict Develops Over Road

A conflict within a conflict is brewing over the proposed Michelson Drive extension in Irvine which would join the Irvine Industrial Complex with the residential University Park area.

The mile stretch of road is designed to provide access to the Fluor site at Jamboree Boulevard and the San Diego Freeway. The project, to be funded by the city, Orange County and Fluor, includes bridges over San Joaquin Creek and San Diego Creek.

A number of University Park residents are worried that linking the now-separate segments of Michelson will cause traffic congestion and safety problems at the Michelson intersection with Culver Drive and cause potential industrial traffic flow through the residential area.

But University Community Association President Bill Vardoulis considers many of the fears "overreaction."

The community association board of directors, he said, discussed the matter in an executive session this week but failed to take a position for or against the road.

Meanwhile a group of residents headed by Judy Marx and Marilyn Vassos have taken a position.

"The proposed Michelson extension is a precedent-setting intrusion upon the village concept," they said Thursday in a statement signed by six members of the University Community Association.

"We as residents are unalterably opposed to the impact that heavy volumes of industrial traffic will have on our residential areas. This traffic will result in heavy congestion, pedestrian and bicycle safety hazards including great potential danger to our neighborhood school children and will create irreversible and unacceptably high air and noise pollution levels.

"The proposed Michelson extension violates the basic rules of sound residential traffic planning and will destroy the village concept, if implemented.

"We as residents, deserve and demand that alternative traffic routing be found," they said.

The road issue is likely to come up at Tuesday's city council meeting, where a review of the Fluor site plan is set.

The plan was approved by the planning commission, but set for appeal to the council by Councilman Robert West. Meanwhile, a stop work order has been issued and activity at the Fluor site has ceased.

"The whole thing is getting blown out of proportion. To stop construction and cause mass hysteria is not necessary," Vardoulis said Thursday.

Community Association concerns, he said, revolve around determining how the traffic consultants arrived at a prediction that the connection will bring an additional 100 cars a day along Michelson east of Culver.

He said he would also like to see the figures for expected traffic from sites in the industrial area other than Fluor.

Test Case Seen

He Wouldn't Help Cop

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla (UPI) — A deputy sheriff who struggled and lost a man he was attempting to arrest, turned around Thursday and arrested a service station attendant who failed to respond to the officer's calls for help.

Robert Cain, 50, was released under $250 bond on a little-used charge of "neglect or refusal to come to the aid of a police officer."

Deputy Donald Porter said that while attempting to arrest James Cherry, 21, at Cain's service station Thursday, Cherry began struggling, grabbed Porter's revolver and hit the officer with the gun before running off. During the struggle, Porter said he yelled at Cain for help but Cain did nothing.

Cain protested that Cherry had the gun and that if he had aided the officer, his own life would have been endangered.

The Broward County state attorney's office says it may develop into an important test case.

Astrologist Trial Could End Today

By ARTHUR R. VINSEL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A silent courtroom gallery listened Thursday as Church of Astrolight founder Zelda Pryor, 75, testified that the tiny sanctuary in her home is no paying business, but a place where the troubled may find comfort and counsel based on the universal truths.

The Maine-born astrologist and spiritualist is on trial for allegedly violating a Costa Mesa city ordinance forbidding acceptance of pay for any form of occult practice.

She looked small and hunchbacked in the big witness chair, but her cheeks were pink, her eyes glittered and her jaw jutted proudly forward.

Defense attorney Donald Smallwood crossed in front of Harbor Judicial District Court Judge Betty Lou Lamoureaux and handed Mrs. Pryor one of 34 books she has published.

He had marked a spot and asked her to read.

"In my Father's house are many mansions, with the same light shining through. . ." she intoned, her voice holding a hint of the old Maine accent.

She continued reading the text, a form of credo based on the universal religious truths, which she says are spoken to her in-

PIGGY BANKS COME THROUGH

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Children in the West have robbed their piggy banks, and the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco is happy.

Federal Reserve Vice President Wes de Vries said Thursday that more than five million "hidden" pennies have been returned to circulation as a result of a six-month drive.

The campaign was started to allevaiate a shortage of one-cent pieces which especially plagued commercial banks, restaurants, supermarkets, retail stores — and consumers themselves. Hoarding started when the price of copper went up.

Orange County

Unemployment Soars

By GARY GRANVILLE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Unemployment in Orange county reached an all time high in January when there 62,500 persons out of work and the unemployment rate jumped to 8.1 percent.

And, according to state labor analysist Alta Eldridge, the end of a sharp decline in employment that began six months ago isn't in sight.

U.S. UNEMPLOYMENT HITS 8.2%. Story, Page A4.

"Every indicator we have tells us things will get worse before they get better," Mrs. Eldridge said.

Included among those indicators are forecasts received from employers who say they see fewer rather than more jobs on the horizon.

Mrs. Eldridge also mentioned that new employers are not coming to Orange County as rapidly as they did the last two years when unemployment dropped after a series of aerospace layoffs hit the job market in the early 1970s.

Hardest hit last month when the number of jobless climbed by 9,900 persons were retail trade and service industries.

Both were hit hard by expected seasonal layoffs in department stores and at amusement parks that thrive on tourist trade.

But the job losses were across the board, in manufacturing, construction, government, and other service industries as well as in retail trade and amusement park operations.

The construction industry continued in an employment slump that began two years ago.

In January, 1974, there were 28,400 employed in the building trades. Last month, the total employed in construction was 24,900.

Mrs. Eldridge's gloomy monthly report was accented by predictions of a worsening situation on the Orange County labor market.

How much worse?

"I wouldn't be surprised to see the unemployment rate reach 9 percent," Mrs. Eldridge said.

"As a matter of fact," she

Douglas Strike On For Sunday

By PATTY BURNETT
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The strike call is on for one minute after midnight Sunday for 1,500 aerospace workers at the Huntington Beach plant of McDonnell Douglas.

Only a change in management's position might stave off the strike by Local 720 of the International Assbciation of Machinists, a union official said today.

The union represents a total of 7,000 workers in McDonnell Douglas plants throughout Southern California. Those workers and others at the company's St. Louis facility.

Union officials said the company's estimate earlier this week of 900 IAM members at its Huntington Beach facility is incorrect. The union has more than 1,500 members locally, they said.

Leonard Loomis, assistant business representative of the union, explained how the call for strike came about.

"Last Sunday we held a mass meeting of our membership and presented the company's latest written proposal (from the previous Wednesday). The members rejected it by 77 percent and voted to strike," Loomis said.

On Thursday the union's negotiating committee took that authorization to strike and made it official for Monday, he continued.

Between the two actions union officials tried to renew talks with management, Loomis said, but were told the company "wasn't interested in going all through it again."

In contrast, a a spokesman for the Huntington Beach facility said McDonnell Douglas was willing to continue to negotiate but the union was balking.

The primary demand of the union is for "parity" with other aerospace workers. Loomis said McDonnell Douglas employes are paid about 5.5 percent less than others in the industry, or about 31 cents less per hour.

UC Faculty Member Gets Solon's Note

State Sen. Dennis Carpenter probably did not realize he was writing to a UC Irvine medical faculty member when he purportedly said Orange County's $5.5 million price for Orange County Medical was "blackmail," the recipient of the letter said Thursday.

Dr. Robert Pfeffer, an assistant professor of neurology, said the Jan. 31 letter from Carpenter was in response to a letter he wrote to the senator Jan. 17.

Carpenter said Wednesday he does not recall the letter and does not know Pfeffer. One source said the letter probably was written by a member of Carpenter's staff detailing views previously expressed by the senator.

UCI-California College of Medicine plans to buy the Medical Center for use as a teaching hospital. Additionally, the school plans to reduce the 524-bed facility by 200 beds and build a 200-bed hospital on the UCI campus.

The letter repeated previous statements by Carpenter that he will oppose the on-campus hospital if it will compete with Hoag Memorial Hospital in Newport Beach.

Pfeffer said he does not have a copy of the Jan. 17 letter he wrote to Carpenter.

However, he described its contents as asking Carpenter to oppose a suggestion by Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post that the UCI med school be closed and its operations be combined with those at UC Davis.

Airport Land Panel Delays Toro Ruling

The Orange County Airport Land Use Commission's public hearing on land planning around El Toro Marine Corps Air Station opened Thursday night but won't close until March 6.

After listening to 45 minutes of testimony, the commission agreed to hold the hearing open until next month to allow further study of an environmental impact statement that wasn't completed until late last week.

The environmental statement covers a 23,000-acre land use plan that touches both unincorporated and city of Irvine land that surrounds the military air base.

The commission is empowered to implement whatever plan it adopts, subject to veto by the local agencies involved, to "forestall urban encroachment" on airports.

Irvine's City Council was critical of the El Toro plan when it was presented to it Tuesday night by commission planner Ken Delino.

Policeman's Plea Presented Posthumously

MILWAUKEE (AP) — "I have been shot at and would have hated to think that all I could do was throw a beanbag at the party shooting," Robert E. Atkins Jr., a policeman in the town of Summit, wrote in a letter to the Milwaukee Journal.

Atkins was protesting a letter in the Journal that suggested policemen carry a gun that shoots beanbags instead of bullets. The beanbags would stun rather than kill.

The letter was forwarded to the Journal Thursday by Atkins' widow.

She said her husband had written it on the night of Jan. 26 but did not have the opportunity to mail it. He and a fellow officer were shot to death from ambush while on duty early the next morning.

A 16-year old youth is being held by juvenile authorities.

Reasonable Man Hunted in Irvine

By DOUG FRITZSCHE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A Greek named Diogenes once trod the streets of Athens, swinging a lamp and searching for an honest man.

An unreasonable endeavor, perhaps, but Diogenes lived from about 412 to 323 B.C. and that was before empirical criteria existed to determine just what is a reasonbable man.

Fortunately, that is no longer the case. The Irvine City Council, which no one could consider an unreasonable body, learned Tuesday that a reasonable man is one who can stand living in a 64 CNEL (Community Noise Equivalent Level) zone, and can't stand living in a 65 CNEL zone.

FRITZSCHE

It's that simple.

KEN DELINO, A planner for the Orange County Airport Land Use Commission, which the city council considers an unreasonable body, was describing the commission's reasoning in determining its planning boundaries.

The commission, he explained, reasoned that the 65 CNEL boundary to human noise tolerance was a shifty kind of a limit. When the wind shifts, the noise level shifts.

So, to make sure they can exercise reasonable control over what is developed in the noisy area around El Toro Marine Corps Air Station, the commission drew another noise contour line around the 65 CNEL line at the 60 CNEL line.

UNDER ITS STATE charter, the commission gets a shot at telling cities and counties what can be built around airports. Just to make sure they covered all the reasonable people with their boundaries, the commission stretched its jurisdiction five CNEL.

Patiently explaining how reasonable all this activity is, Delino cited title four of California's Administrative Code, describing the Department of Aeronautics Noise Standards.

Those standards say that noise levels of 64 CNEL can be tolerated by a reasonable man and 65 can't.

This confused Councilman John Burton. He wanted to know what is a reasonable man.

DELINO EXPLAINED that by the law's reasoning, a reasonable man is one who can tolerate 64 CNEL and can't take 65.

CNEL is a very arcane measure used by specialists to describe noise zones. It consists, more or less, of an average of noise over a year with some noises worth more than others and noises at some times worth more than others.

The key is that it takes a year to make a CNEL.

Now, the city council thinks the commission is unreasonable stepping on Irvine's jurisdictional toes by planning in the City of Irvine. But the commission, acting under its state-mandated charter, must find Irvine a little unreasonable in its opposition.

FORTUNATELY, THERE IS a clear test to see who is right, if anybody.

The whole bunch of them should go out to the 65 CNEL line and take one step toward the 60 CNEL line.

One fashionably dressed woman juror leaned forward — her brows knitted sadly — as the old lady recited her beliefs that all elements of religions since the dawn of time knit together into God's divine plan woven for the universe.

By the time she finished the 30 lines, the lady juror had discreetly shielded her eyes with her hand.

"Your Honor. . .the defense rests," said Smallwood.

The trial was scheduled to resume this afternoon, and could possibly conclude today, depending upon re-questioning with final arguments to the six-man, six-woman jury.

The people's case was rested by Assistant City Attorney Robert Campagna at noon Thursday, whereupon Smallwood submitted a motion to Judge Lamoureux for a direct acquittal.

He claims the all-encompassing Costa Mesa city ordinance — describing it in the words of Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas on another law as a Meat Ax Ordinance — is far too broad.

Smallwood said the statute which bans more than a score of specific practices dealing with the occult does not even have the saving grace of exempting certain religious matters which could be related.

"He said he would not sit and preside over the destruction of the presidency," Colson said. "He said if he lost in Supreme Court on the tapes he would resign."

Colson said Nixon was confident that the Supreme Court and particularly the four justices Nixon appointed would support him.

The court ruled 8 to 0 in July 1974 that Nixon had to surrender the tapes

Nixon resigned the presidency three weeks later.

Colson said Nixon's comment about Kissinger apparently was based on Kissinger's advocacy of an early resumption of the bombing of North Vietnam in December 1972.

Colson said Kissinger, then White House adviser for national security affairs, resumed secret negotiations in Paris with the North Vietnamese on Dec. 5, 1972 and immediately cabled Nixon: "Start the bombing immediately. These madmen have doublecrossed us."

Colson said Nixon showed him the Kissinger cable. He said Nixon rejected Kissinger's advice and told him to continue negotiating.

Thirteen days later the bombing was resumed.

Bradley Berates Oil Plan

BEVERLY HILLS (AP) — Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley said today it would be "irresponsible to sell America's publicly owned oil resources" without a comprehensive national energy policy.

Bradley spoke in opposition on behalf of the Council of Local Governments to a proposal by the U.S. Department of the Interior to lease 10 million acres of offshore land for oil drilling, including 1.6 million acres off California.

He said the 41 cities and counties in the council adopted a three-point resolution which calls for opposition to the federal proposal until three things happened: (1) a comprehensive national and regional energy policy has been formulated; (2) the Department of Interior submits its proposed oil development program to the affected state, regional and local agencies for review; and (3) Congress has enacted legislation strengthening existing laws related to oil development on the outer continental shelf.

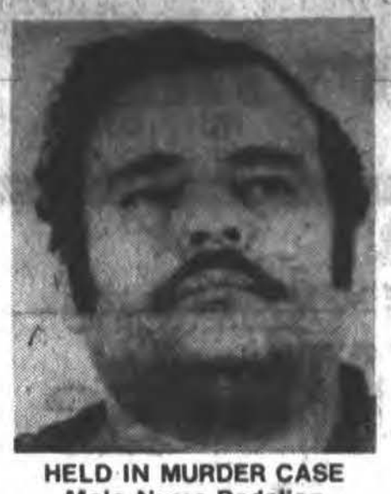

"I want to be very clear that we do not necessarily oppose the concept of development and use of the oil on the outer continental shelf," Bradley said.

"We do oppose the haste with which it is being undertaken, particularly with regard to the lack of understanding of the true value of this resource — a value which can only be determined within the context of a comprehensive national energy policy."

Bradley told the Interior Department hearing board in the auditorium at the El Rodeo Elementary School that originally he had been given only three weeks to review a "highly technological" 1,300-page draft prior to public hearings set for mid-November.

He said it was only after local officials were able to meet with Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton that a 60-day delay in the hearings was granted.

Bradley said an analysis of the draft indicates that there has been "no careful consideration of a balanced mix of new resources," nor had consideration been given to developing such existing resources as the Elk Hills Naval petroleum reserve.

HELD IN MURDER CASE
Male Nurse Bedelian

SLAYING . . .

Wednesday after the day nurse who attends Atwater became alarmed at Mrs. Atwater's absence.

The day nurse, David Jacobsen, told police he arrived as usual at 8 a.m. and noticed fresh paint on wallpaper and walls at the expensive Atwater home. Jacobsen reportedly told police that Bedelian told him Mrs. Atwater had left earlier with an unidentified man. Jacobsen added that Bedelian identified red stains in the house as cranberry juice he spilled.

Later in the morning, Jacobsen said his concern was heightened when Mrs. Atwater's lawyer phoned to report that she did not show up for a scheduled court hearing in Santa Ana. That hearing was the latest apeparance in a lengthy battle over control of Atwater's fortune.

At that point, the day nurse phoned police. Officers examined the expensive house and found signs of a violent and bloody struggle.

Later in the day, Bedelian arrived at the wrecking yard in his 1968 Cadillac which allegedly contained three sacks of cement and the victim's body.

Yardworker Pete Seropian said that Bedelian called him Wednesday afternoon and asked for an empty metal drum saying he wanted to mix cement and fill it so he could have a weight for the front of his truck.

Police allege that Bedelian stuffed Mrs. Atwater's body into the drum, filled it with cement and left. Police were already in Glendale looking for the male nurse and found him at about 4 p.m. at an intersection a few blocks from his home.

After a trip to Newport Beach police headquarters and an interview ewith investigators, Bdelian was booked on a murder charge and police drove to the wrecking yard.

They found the barrel, three empty cement sacks and several blood stained paper towels. Investigators also found Mrs. Atwater's remains still clad in nightclothes in the barrel.

Workers at the junkyard were quoted as describing Bedelian, whom they knew, as "a nice guy." He was one of several male nurses employed over the years at the household to provide 24-hour attendance for the confined heir whose mental problem began many years ago, according to Newport Beach Detective Capt. Richard Hamilton.

Girl Has Grenade Removed

MIAMI (UPI) — A little girl got her finger stuck in a hand grenade and authorities were faced with this decision Thursday:

Amputate her finger because the grenade could explode, or take a chance the grenade wouldn't blow up, and saw it off to save the finger.

Doctors at American Hospital, where 9-year-old Laura Salvan was brought by her parents, debated what to do for 3½ hours.

The World War I grenade was used as a paperweight, and Laura had absent-mindedly stuck her left-hand ring finger into a hole in it Wednesday night while watching television.

The doctors, fearing the grenade might contain live explosives, decided to amputate.

But a fire department rescue squad asked the doctors to wait and consult a bomb squad.

Newton Porter of the sheriff's bomb squad and police technician Tommy Carroll, who were called in, disagreed with the doctors. Saw off the grenade, they argued. Chances are it will not blow up. The doctors agreed.

"Tommy and I took her on a stretcher to the maintenance room, put the grenade in a vise and we sawed — very carefully," Porter said.

He said Laura did not speak at all during the sawing, which took 15 minutes. The grenadè did not explode.

It came off and Laura's finger was saved. A later examination of the grenade, nearly 60 years old, indicated it was not explosive.

Laura walked into the hospital waiting room and was given a big hug by her mother.

"It's just part of the job," Porter said. "We didn't want to see the little girl hurt."

Porter said Laura was "pretty relieved" when she removed her finger from the grenadè, but didn't say anything more than "gosh" or "great" when the operation was over.

"She was quite dazed," Porter said of the mother. "I didn't think she realized it was all over."

Orange County's all time high unemployment rate came in January and April of 1971 when it reached 8.7 percent.

However, in those months, the total number of unemployed ranged from 48,000 to 52,000. Last month's unemployment roll of 62,500 exceeded the former record high of 52,800, a mark reached in January, 1971.

Board Mulls Its Policy On Relatives

Saddleback College trustees will consider a policy change Monday that would allow related persons to work for the college district.

Current district policy bars related individuals, such as a husband and wife, from working for the district concurrently.

Superintendent Robert Lombardi has requested the policy change. He has said the current standard may violate statutes that ban job discrimination.

Another policy to be considered by trustees would allow instructors with seven years service to the district to take sabbatical leaves for up to one year.

A teacher taking a year's leave would be paid two-thirds of his annual salary. A teacher taking only two quarters leave would be paid full salary.

The policy would permit administrators to take sabbaticals up to two months in length at full pay.

Trustees will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the James B. Utt Memorial Library.

According to a traffic study included in the project environmental impact report, the road link will have little effect on the residential area.

Time Change Turned Back

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Passionate arguments about the safety of children kept the Michigan House from passing a bill to put the state on Daylight Saving Time Feb. 23 with most of the country.

Another vote on the bill is planned next week, but it appears the bill's backers will, like everyone else in the state, remain on standard time until April 27. The Senate approved the bill earlier.

Supporters say the nine-week lag in turning clocks ahead will hamper industry, airlines, trucking and others in interstate commerce.

Tough Luck

Assembly Raps Holiday

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblymen are unhappy because they will be given a holiday on Washington's Birthday, Feb. 17.

IT IS NOT the thought of missing work that is upsetting them, but the threatened loss of $120 each in tax-free expense allowances.

Legislative rules provide that each legislator receive $30-a-day expense allowances when in session, including weekends. But no expenses are allowed for occasions when more than three days pass without a meeting.

ASSEMBLYMEN shook their heads in dismay and grumbled when Speaker Leo McCarthy (D-San Francisco) told them just prior to Thursday's adjournment that the Washington Birthday holiday on a Monday would be observed by the assembly and there would be no session the preceding Friday.

Assemblyman Robert Badham (R-Newport Beach) took to his feet to ask, "That means we'll have a four-day recess?"

Reaction rippled across the chamber at the possible loss of $120 in expense payments for the four days off.

"I REALIZE the nature of the crisis, Mr. Badham," McCarthy replied. The speaker announced he would try to remember the situation and report back later.

Huntington Low Income Housing Scant

By TERRY COVILLE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

More than 7,000 Huntington Beach families have an annual income less than $7,200 — a fact which places them in the federally defined very low income bracket.

At least 6,525 of those families cannot find homes or apartments at a suitable price to match their incomes, according to a survey by the city planning staff.

The gap between affordable housing and family income is greatest at the lowest poverty line, where the family's annual income is less than $3,000.

According to the staff survey 3,138 families fall under that income level, but only 32 homes and 56 apartments match their financial capability of a $63 monthly rent or a $7,500 house.

Ed Selich, chief of the city's advance planning division, says Huntington Beach hopes to win enough federal funds next year to help 350 of those families with rent subsidies under a new federal housing assistance program.

The majority of those helped would be senior citizens, 65 and older, who are affected the most by inflation, the rapid rise in home prices, and higher rents, while their income remains at a fixed level.

About 1,430 senior citizen families fall under the very low income category of a $7,200 annual income. And that figure could be higher because the number was taken only from those families which agreed to report their incomes on the city's special census in 1973.

Selich says the city hopes for about $300,000 for each of the next three years, though the federal department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has not released any estimates on what it will grant to individual cities.

"The problem is, when they start looking at Orange County, then someplace like St. Louis, we don't always come up with the greatest need," Selich explained today.

A public hearing on the city's housing assistance plan was held Tuesday night before the planning commission. Another hearing is scheduled Feb. 18 before the city council.

Selich said commissioners generally agreed with the primary staff recommendation

Bradley Berates Oil Plan

BEVERLY HILLS (AP) — Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley said today it would be "irresponsible to sell America's publicly owned oil resources" without a comprehensive national energy policy.

Bradley spoke in opposition on behalf of the Council of Local Governments to a proposal by the U.S. Department of the Interior to lease 10 million acres of offshore land for oil drilling, including 1.6 million acres off California.

He said the 41 cities and counties in the council adopted a three-point resolution which calls for opposition to the federal proposal until three things happened: (1) a comprehensive national and regional energy policy has been formulated; (2) the Department of Interior submits its proposed oil development program to the affected state, regional and local agencies for review; and (3) Congress has enacted legislation strengthening existing laws related to oil development on the outer continental shelf.

"I want to be very clear that we do not necessarily oppose the concept of development and use of the oil on the outer continental shelf," Bradley said.

"We do oppose the haste with which it is being undertaken, particularly with regard to the lack of understanding of the true value of this resource — a value which can only be determined within the context of a comprehensive national energy policy."

Bradley told the Interior Department hearing board in the auditorium at the El Rodeo Elementary School that originally he had been given only three weeks to review a "highly technological" 1,300-page draft prior to public hearings set for mid-November.

He said it was only after local officials were able to meet with Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton that a 60-day delay in the hearings was granted.

The campaign was started to allevaiate a shortage of one-cent pieces which especially plagued commercial banks, restaurants, supermarkets, retail stores — and consumers themselves. Hoarding started when the price of copper went up.

FENRICK WELLS MOVES DRUM IN WHICH BODY FOUND
Orange County Sheriff's Officer Takes Custody of Barrel

Male Nurse Charged In Woman's Death

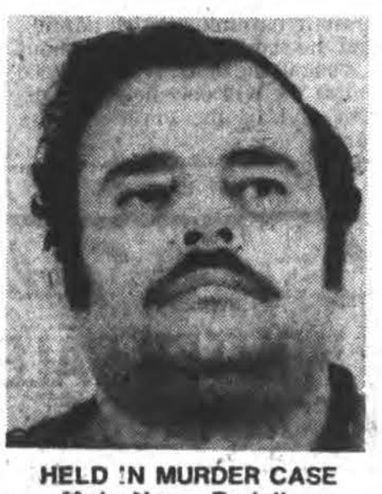

A 40-year-old immigrant from Lebanon — married only about six months — was scheduled for arraignment on murder charges late today in connection with the battering death of a Corona del Mar millionaire's wife whose body was found stuffed under concrete in an old oil drum.

Daniel Garbis Bedelian of Glendale, a male nurse who had the night shift in caring for 67-year-old Wrigley chewing gum heir, A.G. Atwater, is being held in the death of Mrs. Nancy Atwater.

Police allege that Bedelian bludgeoned the wealthy woman to death sometime before dawn Wednesday and later in the day stuffed her body into an oil drum at a Pacoima junk yard. He then assertedly filled the barrel with wet cement.

Newport Beach detectives said today they were under strict orders not to discuss any alleged motive in the killing, and they have said only that a dispute may have erupted at the Atwater home at 4633 Perham Drive early Wednesday morning.

Atwater, whose sister is married to Wrigley board Chairman P.K. Wrigley Jr., was a member of the corporate structure which includes chewing gum manufacuring, land holdings and ownership of the Chicago Cubs baseball team.

Douglas Strike

Beach Union to Walk Out?

By PATTY BURNETT
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The strike call is on for one minute after midnight on Monday for 1,500 aerospace workers at the Huntington Beach plant of McDonnell Douglas.

Only a change in management's position might stave off the strike by Local 720 of the International Association of Machinists, a union official said today.

The union represents a total of 7,000 workers in McDonnell Douglas plants throughout Southern California. Those workers and others at the company's St. Louis facility.

Union officials said the company's estimate earlier this week of 900 IAM members at its Huntington Beach facility is incorrect. The union has more than 1,500 members locally, they said.

Leonard Loomis, assistant business representative of the union, explained how the call for strike came about.

"Last Sunday we held a mass meeting of our membership and presented the company's latest written proposal (from the previous Wednesday). The members rejected it by 77 percent and

County's Jobless At 8.1%

By GARY GRANVILLE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Unemployment in Orange county reached an all time high in January when there 62,500 persons out of work and the unemployment rate jumped to 8.1 percent.

And, according to state labor analysist Alta Eldridge, the end of a sharp decline in employment that began six months ago isn't in sight.

U.S. UNEMPLOYMENT HITS 8.2%. Story, Page A4.

"Every indicator we have tells us things will get worse before they get better," Mrs. Eldridge said.

Included among those indicators are forecasts received from employers who say they see fewer rather than more jobs on the horizon.

Mrs. Eldridge also mentioned that new employers are not coming to Orange County as rapidly as they did the last two years when unemployment dropped after a series of aerospace layoffs hit the job market in the early 1970s.

Hardest hit last month when the number of jobless climbed by 9,900 persons were retail trade and service industries.

Both were hit hard by expected seasonal layoffs in department stores and at amusement parks that thrive on tourist trade.

But the job losses were across the board, in manufacturing, construction, government, and other service industries as well as in retail trade and amusement park operations.

The construction industry continued in an employment slump that began two years ago.

In January, 1974, there were 28,400 employed in the building trades. Last month, the total employed in construction was 24,900.

Mrs. Eldridge's gloomy monthly report was accented by predictions of a worsening situation on the Orange County labor market.

Trustees Trimming Budget

The Fountain Valley School Board did a little budget belt tightening Thursday night after learning the district has 200 fewer students than had been expected.

Trustees trimmed $113,000 from the district's $12.8 million budget, the amount they lost in state aid for those 200 students.

Assistant Superintendent Chuck Woodfin said the economy is to blame. Fewer homes were built in the district than had been expected, he explained. In addition, fewer homes are being sold and some residents moved from their more expensive Fountain Valley homes into cheaper ones elsewhere, he said.

The district had expected 11,986 students this year, but has an enrollment of 11,782 instead.

Woodfin said the school board trimmed nearly $73,000 from the $9.6 million personnel budget, eliminating teaching and other staff jobs that would have been filled if the additional students had enrolled.

He said no teachers or other workers will lose district jobs they now have, however.

The district also cut $9,800 from the $45,500 allocated to replace instructional and office equipment, which means the district may have to delay replacing some worn-out or broken items until next year, Woodfin explained.

Colson: Nixon Doubted Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former White House aide Charles W. Colson said today that Richard M. Nixon talked seriously in December 1973 about resigning as president but expressed doubt about whether Gerald Ford could handle the job.

Nixon was particularly concerned about whether Ford could control Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, Colson said.

In an interview on the NBC "Today" program, Colson quoted Nixon as saying "maybe what this country needs is a nice clean Jerry Ford. The trouble with Jerry Ford is it would take him two years just to get up speed. Also, Jerry's greatest difficulty is he couldn't control Henry Kissinger.

"You know, Henry really is unstable at times," Colson quoted Nixon as saying.

Kissinger was asked about Colson's comments as he left the White House today. He told reporters, as he stepped into his car, that "I will not dignify that with a comment." He then headed back for the State Department.

Colson, recently released from federal prison after serving seven months of a one-to-three year sentence for obstruction of justice, said Nixon made the comments during a conversation on Dec. 18, 1973.

At the time, Nixon was resisting efforts to turn over additional White House tapes to Watergate prosecutors and House and Senate investigators.

Colson said, that during the same period, Nixon told him that he would resign if the U.S. Supreme Court ruled he had to surrender the tapes.

"He said he would not sit and preside over the destruction of the presidency," Colson said. "He said if he lost in Supreme Court on the tapes he would resign."

Colson said Nixon was confident that the Supreme Court and particularly the four justices Nixon appointed would support him.

The court ruled 8 to 0 in July 1974 that Nixon had to surrender the tapes.

Nixon resigned the presidency three weeks later.

Colson said Nixon's comment about Kissinger apparently was based on Kissinger's advocacy of an early resumption of the bombing of North Vietnam in December 1972.

Colson said Kissinger, then White House adviser for national security affairs, resumed secret negotiations in Paris with the North Vietnamese on Dec. 5, 1972 and immediately cabled Nixon: "Start the bombing immediately. These madmen have doublecrossed us."

Colson said Nixon showed him the Kissinger cable. He said Nixon rejected Kissinger's advice and told him to continue negotiating.

Chamber Funding Quizzed

The Fountain Valley Chamber of Commerce is trying to work out a misunderstanding over its $30,000 budget grant from the city.

Chamber officials met Tuesday night with two city councilmen and city administrators after the regular council meeting adjourned at 11 p.m.

City Controller Howard Stephens explained the issue involves the chamber's budget requests for last quarter.

Stephens withheld part of the money (about $2,400) allocated for the organization, because he believed the money was to be only for paying a chamber manager's salary.

But the chamber was without a manager for 70 days of the quarter, so Stephens did not believe full payment was in order.

Mayor George Scott and Councilman Al Hollinden, however, said they would consider making full payment if the chamber can show why it needs the money anyway and how it was spent.

The city this year increased its grant to the chamber from $14,000 to $30,000 so the organization could hire a manager and secretary. However, the first manager resigned after just a few weeks on the job and was not replaced until December, when Joan Warner accepted the post.

Stephens said chamber officials listed increased rent and telephone expenses among reasons they needed the money. He also said chamber officials reported dues did not come in as rapidly as hoped, while the organization was without a manager.

Chamber officials say they believe the young organization can be totally self-supporting within five years.

City Weighs Future Uses For Library

Future uses of the old Huntington Beach library at Fifth and Main streets will be determined by an administrative staff study of requests for space in the building.

The city council agreed Monday night to leave those recommendations up to City Administrator Dave Rowlands, to be handled in a manner similar to the use of the old civic center.

The decision was made when councilmen were faced with a request from the Huntington Beach Historical Society for space in the old library.

Members of the historical society want about 1,000 square feet of the library to use for an office, a storage area and a mini-museum for old documents and artifacts of historical interest.

The staff of the library will be moving to the new central library at Talbert Lake in mid-March. Rowlands said several civic groups have already indicated interest in using vacant portions of the Main Street library.

City councilmen have not made a decision on whether the Main Street facility will be kept open as a full branch library.

FILLS NEW POST
Coordinator Reitz

Services Aide Now 'Cooking'

Fountain Valley's new Human Services Coordinator, Judie Reitz, once was a cooking consultant for a microwave oven company.

She also has been a secretary, a YWCA program coordinator, a social worker, counselor, a model home hostess and a part-time college instructor.

Miss Reitz, 33, will be in charge of the city's new Human Services Department, formed a year ago to assess and monitor Fountain Valley's social service needs.

A five-member Human Services Committee was appointed last month to help give guidance to the department.

A native of Washington State, Miss Reitz has lived in Orange County the past 10 years. She is now completing a master's degree in counseling at Chapman College.

She will be responsible for special social service projects, as well as the operation of the Colonia Juarez Community Center program and various youth projects.

Her $9,600 salary is being paid by a one year federal government jobs grant.

JOBLESS...

How much worse?

"I wouldn't be surprised to see the unemployment rate reach 9 percent," Mrs. Eldridge said.

"As a matter of fact," she added "it's possible the rate might climb to 10 percent."

Orange County's all time high unemployment rate came in January and April of 1971 when it reached 8.7 percent.

However, in those months, the total number of unemployed ranged from 48,000 to 52,000. Last month's unemployment roll of 62,500 exceeded the former record high of 52,800, a mark reached in January, 1971.

stretcher to the maintenance room, put the grenade in a vise and we sawed — very carefully," Porter said.

He said Laura did not speak at all during the sawing, which took 15 minutes. The grenade did not explode.

It came off and Laura's finger was saved. A later examination of the grenade, nearly 60 years old, indicated it was not explosive.

Laura walked into the hospital waiting room and was given a big hug by her mother.

Teachers Asking 'Voice'

Teachers in the Fountain Valley School District asked the school board for a greater voice in district decision making Thursday night.

But, in presenting their contract proposals for next year, they did not list any specific salary increase.

Judie Lowman, president of the Fountain Valley Education Association, said teachers have asked that their pay be adjusted, reflecting the increase in the cost of living, experience and education.

But they will not ask for a specific increase until they learn the outcome of the district's 67-cent March 4 tax override election.

The school district has called for the tax hike, the first in 13 years, earmarking most of the funds for pay increases.

If voters reject the increase, district officials predict reductions in educational programs for next year by about $670,000. The district's budget this year is $12.8 million. The tax increase would cost the owner of a $50,000 home $85 a year.

The school board took the teacher proposals under advisement. They are expected to prepare proposals of their own or counter-proposals.

Teachers spelled out demands for a greater voice in deciding curriculum and budgets, as well as in the hiring of teachers and administrators.

They also want improvements in insurance benefits, a revision in their grievance procedures and transfer policies, overtime pay for after-school activities and smaller classes.

voted to strike," Loomis said.

On Thursday the union's negotiating committee took that authorization to strike and made it official for Monday, he continued.

Between the two actions union officials tried to renew talks with management, Loomis said, but were told the company "wasn't interested in going all through it again."

In contrast, a a spokesman for the Huntington Beach facility said McDonnell Douglas was willing to continue to negotiate but the union was balking.

The primary demand of the union is for "parity" with other aerospace workers. Loomis said McDonnell Douglas employes are paid about 5.5 percent less than others in the industry, or about 31 cents less per hour.

Onassis Put In Hospital

PARIS (AP) — Aristotle Onassis entered the American Hospital in suburban Neuilly today for treatment of a debilitating muscular disease complicated by flu. He went in through a rear door to avoid photographers gathered at the main entrance.

The 69-year-old Greek multimillionaire and husband of the former Jacqueline Kennedy flew to Paris from Athens Thursday night in a private executive jet. Family sources said Mrs. Onassis insisted that her husband be moved from Athens for treatment abroad.

Tough Luck

Assembly Raps Holiday

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblymen are unhappy because they will be given a holiday on Washington's Birthday, Feb. 17.

IT IS NOT the thought of missing work that is upsetting them, but the threatened loss of $120 each in tax-free expense allowances.

Legislative rules provide that each legislator receive $30-a-day expense allowances when in session, including weekends. But no expenses are allowed for occasions when more than three days pass without a meeting.

ASSEMBLYMEN shook their heads in dismay and grumbled when Speaker Leo McCarthy (D-San Francisco) told them just prior to Thursday's adjournment that the Washington Birthday holiday on a Monday would be observed by the assembly and there would be no session the preceding Friday.

Assemblyman Robert Badham (R-Newport Beach) took to his feet to ask, "That means we'll have a four-day recess?"

Reaction rippled across the chamber at the possible loss of $120 in expense payments for the four days off.

"I REALIZE the nature of the crisis, Mr. Badham," McCarthy replied. The speaker announced he would try to remedy the situation and report back later.

Hospital Workers Given New Contract

Operations at Kaiser Permanente prepaid health care clinics were returning to normal today following overwhelming approval Thursday of a "tops in the industry" pay pact by the striking Hospital and Service Employes union.

Nearly 4,200 workers walked off their jobs Monday at Kaiser's five hospitals and 14 clinics in Orange, Los Angeles and Ventura Counties. The plan, which caters largely to union health programs, has clinics in Orange and Garden Grove.

The final agreement, patched together by a team of three federal mediators, calls for 26 to 27.5 percent wage and fringe benefit hikes over the two-year contract.

Polled Thursday, the union membership backed the new agreement with a 3,105 to 375 vote.

Hospital and Service Employes president George Hardy termed the contract, which sets the lowest scale at $3.92 an hour, "tops in the industry."

The union covers non-professionals such as cooks, nursing aides, technicians and clerks. Doctors and registered nurses are not in the union.

Throughout the four-day strike, Kaiser maintained emergency and most continuing care operations despite the staff shortage.

HOUSING...

that housing assistance be channeled through the Orange County Housing Authority.

The staff suggested the city seek funds primarily for rent subsidies and to help lower income families buying homes in Huntington Beach. This plan would utilize existing housing.

A staff reprt says there is a 5.4 percent vacancy ratio in the city, which means there are about 1,560 unoccupied homes and 1,225 empty apartments.

An alternative to housing subsidies would be direct support for new, low-cost housing, or government-built housing, but the staff recommended against that as being too costly and too slow.

Before the city receives any money, the housing plan must be reviewed by the Southern California Association of Governments (SCAG), then studied by HUD.

Selich doesn't expect the city to learn how much, if any, money it will receive until June.

But even the $300,000 is an optimistic estimate, Selich admits, and he adds, "We need about 6,200 housing units. With this (350 units) we will only help the bottom end of the lower income range."

Man Survives Bridge Jump

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A man jumped from the Golden Gate Bridge Thursday night and lived, becoming the eighth person to survive a plunge from the span.

The hospital he was taken to invoked a state law and refused to release details, other than he was in critical condition.

The California Highway Patrol said the man, a resident of San Rafael and about 30 years old, jumped from the north tower of the bridge.

as usual at 8 a.m. and noticed fresh paint on wallpaper and walls at the expensive Atwater home. Jacobsen reportedly told police that Bedelian told him Mrs. Atwater had left earlier with an unidentified man. Jacobsen added that Bedelian identified red stains in the house as cranberry juice he spilled.

Later in the morning, Jacobsen said his concern was heightened when Mrs. Atwater's lawyer phoned to report that she did not show up for a scheduled court hearing in Santa Ana. That hearing was the latest apeparance in a lengthy battle over control of Atwater's fortune.

At that point, the day nurse phoned police. Officers examined the expensive house and found signs of a violent and bloody struggle.

Later in the day, Bedelian arrived at the wrecking yard in his 1968 Cadillac which allegedly contained three sacks of cement and the victim's body.

Yardworker Pete Seropian said that Bedelian called him Wednesday afternoon and asked for an empty metal drum saying he wanted to mix cement and fill it so he could have a weight for the front of his truck.

Police allege that Bedelian stuffed Mrs. Atwater's body into the drum, filled it with cement and left. Police were already in Glendale looking for the male nurse and found him at about 4 p.m. at an intersection a few blocks from his home.

After a trip to Newport Beach police headquarters and an interview ewith investigators, Bdelian was booked on a murder charge and police drove to the wrecking yard.

They found the barrel, three empty cement sacks and several blood stained paper towels. Investigators also found Mrs. Atwater's remains still clad in nightclothes in the barrel.

Workers at the junkyard were quoted as describing Bedelian, whom they knew, as "a nice guy." He was one of several male nurses employed over the years at the household to provide 24-hour attendance for the confined heir whose mental problem began many years ago, according to Newport Beach Detective Capt. Richard Hamilton.

BRADLEY...

Bradley said an analysis of the draft indicates that there has been "no careful consideration of a balanced mix of new resources," nor had consideration been given to developing such existing resources as the Elk Hills Naval petroleum reserve.

He added "our experts found that no analysis of the relative environmental impacts of drilling the various areas had been performed."

Los Angeles City Attorney Burt Pines, who followed Bradley to the witness table, said his staff analysis of the draft Environmental Impact Statement indicates it is "legally inadequate."

Pines said, "Our view is that a new draft EIS must be entirely redone."

Retirement Ruling Seen As City Boom

The city of Huntington Beach expects to save $156,000 a year under new state legislation affecting the public employes retirement system.

Ed Thompson, the city's personnel director, said the savings will be made possible because the average age of municipal workers in Huntington Beach is younger than the average age of public employes throughout the state.

In past years, the city has paid money into the retirement system at a rate based on the state age averages. Now, the city will be allowed to pay at a rate based on the ages of its own workers.

Thompson said the city would probably begin saving the money in April. The city council approved an initial change in city policy Monday night which paves the way for the savings.

The $156,000 windfall was not included in the $1.3 million in savings announced last week by the city staff, so it represents a bonus in the city's fight to balance the budget.

In 1973-74, Huntington Beach paid a total of $980,375.65 into the public employes retirement system.

The lower rate will not affect the amount of money a city employe will receive on retirement, Thompson explained.

In addition to the savings made possible for the city, the new state legislation allows government workers to acrue retirement credit for prior military service, if the employe pays his share into the retirement fund based on what his military salary was.

The extra military benefit will not cost the city any additional money, Thompson said.

Money Search Pays

The "doomsday budget" has suddenly disappeared in Huntington Beach. The city staff last week announced it could save $1.3 million without any drastic, dramatic measures such as firing personnel or sharply cutting back city services.

Most of the savings were made possible by not hiring people to replace workers who had quit or retired; by deferring the purchase of some equipment to another year; and by slicing a couple of major programs.

For example, the city saved $115,000 this year (for half a year) by turning the harbor patrol over to the county. It also salvaged another $41,000 by cutting back the environmental engineering division in the harbors and beaches department. Elimination and reductions in some recreation programs provided another $80,646 in savings and a cutback in library services kept an additional $83,041 in the city coffers.

Members of the city staff did manage to balance the budget for 1974-75 and avert a predicted fiscal crisis, at least for one year. But while they deserve praise for getting the financial situation clarified, they should not be hailed as conquering heroes.

Many of the decisions which saved the money, such as not hiring new personnel, were made long before the administration issued its dire warnings about a $1.3 million shortage in the budget. Much of the savings announced last week was really a simple matter of eliminating paper deficits — money budgeted to be spent — by finding out how much of it really had been spent.

And while City Administrator Dave Rowlands declared there was no fat in the budget, it is difficult to view a $250,000 harbor patrol (which the county took over for free) as a "bare bones" item.

It is quite true that Huntington Beach is faced with financial troubles and in the next few years must make major decisions regarding new taxes and services offered. But when your financial back is to the wall, it is sometimes amazing how much meat may still be left on those old bones.

It will be interesting to see what the new economic advisory commission finds as it delves more thoroughly into the city budget. It may help clear up some of the city's financial mysteries.

Police Mean Business

Fountain Valley police should be commended for putting teeth into their threats to keep drug pushers out of their city.

Last April, police, with the help of undercover agents planted on the city's two high school campuses, rounded up 74 suspected pushers. At the same time, police pledged to make a continuing effort to halt narcotic sales throughout Fountain Valley.

They proved they meant it three weeks ago with another crackdown and roundup of 22 more suspected drug pushers.

Sgt. William De Nisi, who coordinated both undercover drug operations, said he wants pushers to realize that every third or fourth sale they make could be to an undercover officer. While he realistically understands that police raids aren't a drug problem cure-all, he sees them as a way to dry up drug traffic.

De Nisi said Fountain Valley probably has not seen its last drug sweep. He plans to work on the problem until it is curbed. Drug-sellers better figure he means what he says.

"IT'S ONLY MY NOSE..."

A Happy Hedonist Defends His Style

MAILBOX

To the Editor:

Re: the letter from Mr. Bantel printed Jan. 29.

This is the first time I've written in response to an article but feel I must express the "the other view."

I'm sick of other people implying what type of car I can drive or where to set my thermostat in my home. Because of my fantastic prudence and foresight to live close enough to work to use only 10 gallons of gasoline per week and to not have an ego-trip style, grossly over-sized family that requires heating a barracks sized barn-house, I'll live within my "ration" (be it coupons or prices or both) with any damn sized car and room temperature I (not Bantel or J. Ford) select.

IN MY opinion, to stop the alleged energy shortage:

(A) Stop the income tax advantages to selfish producers of excess numbers of offspring (that's what causes pollution and energy consumption) Archaic religions that demanded more children in 1300 A.D. are laughable to any educated modern society.

(B) Drastically curtail the senseless energy wasting of obsolete U.S.N. battleships, etc., that cruise in circles for months on end for "experience" — politically motivated power freak-outs.

(C) Defer installation of gas-gulping auto smog devices, e.g., NOX (we all agree—no-one likes pollution) and develop nuclear power plants and off shore drilling at maximum speed. Do this without allowing selfish Sierra Club narrowminded procrastination but with reasonable safeguards and with massive government funding.

In the meantime, I'll continue to drive my beautiful 400-cubic inch Firebird and 370 H.P. Corvette in luxury and at speed feeling proud I'm conserving energy as I pass the grossly ugly 10-passenger station wagons dragging five kids with "Navy Reserve", "Stop NOX Now" and "Sierra Club is Nifty" bumper stickers. By the way, some clown had better return the 70 mph speed limit on the highway to Mammoth or my wife and I will be forced to ignore (as everyone does) the ridiculous 55 mph speed traps — in the interest of a logical and rewardingly hedonistic life style.

It interests me to see of you will print this "other" viewpoint.

Puzzled Voter

To the Editor:

As a taxpayer and a resident and home owner of Huntington Beach for 14 years I would like to know by what authority three members of the H.B. Union High School District have to override the vote of 35,000 taxpayers and voters.

I attended the board meeting at Marina High School and the architects estimate for construction of the new school was $8 million and that is not the contractors bid. The board when confronted by objectors stated, you voted us in and we make the decisions. I always assumed public officials were in office to do the will of the people.

THEY ARE considering closing Gill Elementary School for lack of attendance which will have its reflection on all high schools in the not too distant future. If there is an overflow of high school students, why not use Gill school?

We have been told that if they build this new school the district will be bankrupt in two years, I have two daughters in the high school district, I wonder what will happen to their education if that should happen.

If the board is going to take the attitude voters don't know what they are doing, then I say let's take measures to remove them from office.

Writing Class

To the Editor:

Re: "$3,600 Writing Class," The Daily Pilot, Jan. 30.

It sounds so commendable, but COST questions the expenditure from Huntington Beach city funds, especially when the budget is facing a deficit, and the city is looking for new ways to tax the people, to meet that deficit. Furthermore, COST deplores the insensitivity of taxpayers' employes toward the taxpayers' pocketbook.

Anyone with a need to improve writing skills can be helped through courses at our colleges, which are already supported by tax dollars, so there is no need for municipal employes to receive specialized tutoring for self-improvement on city time and at city expense, even though the city may receive some remote benefit.

ANOTHER alternative would be to make available to interested personnel books such as one put out by Reader's Digest, "Write Better; Speak Better," which can "Make Words Work for You." If "more than half those taking the course already have college degrees —" as quoted from the Pilot, then they can surely read and comprehend such a book. One wonders how they could earn a college degree without having learned to express themselves effectively, and why they were hired, not having proved they had acquired the necessary "tools" of their trade.

The Daily Pilot states that the instructor, Allen Amenta, is charging the city $30 per hour, and the city is crediting him with 120 hours, only 42 of which are class time, leaving 78 hours (nearly double the class time!) for preparation. This, plus paying the city employes for the 672 hours they spend in class on taxpayers' time at taxpayers' expense, makes this a very expensive course.

It isn't just the initial $3,600 that COST objects to, but each seven-week course will be another $3,600 the city, and the taxpayers, can ill afford.

Our advice is: Keep the cost of government down by encouraging employes to enroll in self-improvement courses on their own time, or even by providing a few inexpensive books. Or is that too sensible an approach for those in government to comprehend?

We taxpayers have had to economize; now it's time for those whose hands are in the taxpayers' pockets to try it.

Garden Fan

To the Editor:

As a regular subscriber to the Daily Pilot, I am fully aware of the interest you take in local affairs, and I wish to draw your attention to an item that may not have been suggested up to this point in time.

When an active person suddenly comes on to retirement his whole life changes unless he has something to fill that void.

I retired in 1970, and my wife and I spent our first two retirement years living on a farm in Scotland, we enjoyed every minute of, and activity in my garden certainly took care of any boredom, however family ties were too great to stay there indefinitely, and for that reason we returned.

Up to this point I have worked part time which certainly helps, but now I am fully retired.

THE FIELD that adjoins our complex in Huntington Beach is owned by S & R Farms, and they produce three crops per year mainly cauliflowers, but each corner of this field is unworkable because of the heavy machinery used, and I noted the corner near our apartment was grown over with weeds, but I could see the potential as a so called "Victory Garden."

I went to the Office of S & R Farms and asked if they would allow me to use this 1,500 square-foot-plot for raising vegetables etc., and they readily agreed, and they should be commended for it. So as you see I do have as much as I can take care of for my family, but I cannot help but think that the numerous plots of unused ground that are just doing nothing year in and year out. Surely these owners would be public spirited enough to do as S & R Farms have for me, probably no one has asked them.

Our complex is one of 198 units, and is run under an arrangement with HUD, with a rent reduction for low paid or retired people. If it were possible for the local authorities or the HUD to delve into this idea further, we could have right adjoining this 198 homes sufficient land made into plots, and rented for a very low figure to supply all the vegetables needed and at the same time reducing boredom for the retired, and giving healthy recreation for families at a very low cost.

Nixon Didn't Invent Political Spying

RICHARD WILSON

WASHINGTON — The evidence continues to accumulate that political espionage was not invented in the Nixon administration however badly the practice might have been abused. The latest disclosure is that of J. Edgar Hoover's No. 3 man (as reported in the New York Times) that President Johnson ordered the surveillance of the Republican vice presidential nominee in the 1968 campaign, Spiro T. Agnew.

This brings back some memories. Lyndon B. Johnson used to hint darkly to private visitors during the 1968 campaign that the lovely Chinese widow, Anna Chennault, a pillar of the China lobby, was up to some hanky-panky with the Saigon government to delay Vietnam peace negotiations because President Thieu would get a better deal if Richard M. Nixon were elected.

Now it appears (if the FBI's Cartha D. De Loach's purported secret testimony is to be believed) that Johnson put the FBI on both Mrs. Chennault and the Republican vice-presidential nominee, to get the goods on their plotting, if any.

THE PARIS peace talks were deadlocked at the time on the issue of getting Saigon and Hanoi representatives to sit down together and Johnson was beside himself about any interference both from the political and the national security point of view.

Whether Johnson got the information first from Hoover and instigated the surveillance on his own doesn't make much difference. Hoover was evidently a willing collaborator with Johnson on the Chennault-Agnew-Nixon inquiry as he was on other matters of interest to a president with an insatiable hunger for useful information. Johnson was high on Hoover in those days and, gadget-minded as he was, took special delight in a mechanism Hoover had supplied him for opening and closing his bedroom window while still under the covers.

JOHNSON, in his private conversations, often conveyed the impression that he was in possession of special information which might prove embarrassing to his contemporaries. It is also reliably reported that he urged Nixon to maintain some kind of a recording system in the White House to preserve for posterity, or other purposes, the historic conversations therein, and that Nixon off-handedly ordered in the voice-actuated system which ruined him.

None of this is beside the point, which is that there were recorded conversations in the Johnson administration and maybe in the Kennedy administration which, unlike the Nixon tapes, are buried in the archives of history. Along with them are buried such use as may have been made of the FBI for political espionage with its fruit of embarrassing or incriminating tidbits.

ADD TO THAT the until now secret Watergate committee memo asserting that in the 1964 Democratic national convention Johnson, through the FBI, was wiretapping Martin Luther King and Robert F. Kennedy and a different perspective of the Nixon tragedy begins to emerge.

In another aspect of this general matter, former Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski and the present prosecutor, Henry S. Ruth, argue against a full report on their inquiries out of tender solicitude for some who might be hurt by "juicy" (Jaworski's word) information. Certainly former President Nixon could not be hurt any more, so the impression is left that there is still hidden information which might have a bearing upon the perspective brought to bear on Nixon's guilt in the Watergate affair.

THE PROSECUTORS argue it would be unconstitutional to disclose the full story as a matter of fundamental fairness under the Fifth Amendment. Congress, which is considering legislation requiring a full disclosure, could well pass the legislation and leave the constitutional issue to the courts.

Maybe the time has come to follow the course President Nixon once considered — "let it all hang out." That procedure should not be confined to the Watergate affair but should reach a bit back into the past in the interests of providing perspective on the single most shocking event of American political history. What Nixon's predecessors did does not excuse him, but at least it might show that he was not the sole originator of political dirty work.

Automobiles Don't Kill . . .

SYDNEY HARRIS

A letter in Time magazine a few weeks ago, from a reader who opposes gun laws, was typical of the kind of illogical thinking that supports such arguments. The letter said:

"A gun has no will of its own. A gun does only what its owner causes it do to. The root of the problem is within the human heart. Cure the cause rather than treat surface symptoms."

Let me transpose this argument to a similar term to demonstrate how absurd it is:

"An automobile has no will of its own. An automobile does only what its driver causes it to do. The root of the problem is within the human heart. Cure the cause rather than treat surface symptoms."

THEREFORE, dispense with automobile laws. No more speed limits, no more traffic signals, no more registration of cars, no more tests for drivers, no more fines or jail terms for offenses.

Instead, we try to reform and change human nature. We work at making most people kind and considerate and attentive and radional and model citizens.

Meanwhile, what is happening on the streets and highways? Slaughter, that's what's happening. While we're slowly "curing the human heart," we're speedily killing thousands of human bodies.

Why bother to make cars safer, either? Since it's obviously the motorist, and not the car, that causes accidents, let's also dispense with stronger bumpers, roll-over bars, seat-belts, impact-bags, or anything else designed to protect in a crash. When people's hearts are warmer, the highway homicide rate will go down to practically nothing.

AUTOMOBILES don't kill: people do. No one has ever seen an automobile take off by itself and knock someone down. Ergo, why place all these constraints upon owning and operating an automobile? All we have to do is improve the human race — it may take a few thousand years — and the auto will be no more of a threat, or fatal weapon, than the tricycle.

This is what the gun people imagine is rational thinking. Another of their themes is "infringement of liberty." But what would they think of a drunk driving a car down the road, without a license, without plates, without the slightest responsibility or obligation to others? Are we "infringing" on his liberty by demanding that he be qualified and in a state to drive, or that his automobile be registered and licensed and insured for liability?

The automobile, at least, serves a useful purpose when its ownership and operation are carefully supervised. The handgun serves no purpose except the taking of human life. True, guns don't kill — but people with guns do. And far too often.

Reagan Offers To Quit

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Ronald Reagan offered to resign from the panel investigating the CIA because his busy schedule would keep him away from Washington. Vice president Nelson Rockefeller turned down the offer.

Rockefeller said Reagan could keep abreast of developments by reading transcripts. The problem is that the transcripts are so hush-hush Reagan cannot get them.

Reagan said Thursday — his 64th birthday — that he missed three of the first four meetings of the Rockefeller panel and will miss the next one too, because of his busy schedule. He left early from the one meeting he did attend.

Brown Charges

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Brown administration has been accused by legislators of breaking at least two state laws and violating the U.S. Constitution.

Two Democratic legislators accused Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. Thursday of prying illegally into the affairs of prospective appointees to his administration in violation of state law and the U.S. Constitution.

Later in the day, a Republican leader charged that a Brown cabinet secretary illegally imposed a gag order on state officials who might be called before the legislature.

UC Unions

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Employes of public colleges and universities in California would be able to join unions and bargain collectively under a measure that has been introduced in the Assembly.

The measure by Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, (D-San Jose,) would cover employes of the University of California's nearly 100 publicly supported community colleges.

Child Abuse

VISTA (AP) — A construction worker whose wife is charged with murdering their 12-year-old son has been charged with child abuse for allegedly beating their 10-year-old daughter.

Walter A. George was arrested Wednesday for investigation into the beating of his daughter, Roxanne, said a spokesman for the San Diego County Sheriff's Department.

Technician Killed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A technician for the British rock group Deep Purple, driving on the left-hand side of the road as is normal in England, has been killed in a head-on collision.

Police said Ronald Quinton, 24, of London, was driving southbound in the left lane of the Pacific Coast Highway when his car collided with a vehicle driven by Rockford Belmonti, 40, of Malibu, who was also killed.

The accident occurred early Thursday morning.

Maxwell Fine Levied Due To Can Cuts

MONROVIA (UPI) — General Foods Corp. was ordered Thursday to pay a $500 fine for shortweighting jars of Maxwell House instant coffee.

Municipal Court Judge John H. Sanders said the company would not have to pay an additional $1,000 fine if no further shortweighting occurs.

The shortweighting occurred in both 10-ounce and 12-ounce jars of coffee, according to the complaint filed by deputy district attorney Michael Byrne. Each jar was said to be missing an average of about a half ounce.

Sportscaster Cosell

Cosell Slapped By Fine

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A county judge has fined sportscaster Howard Cosell $150 for failing to answer questions formally submitted to him in a $3 million lawsuit.

The suit, filed for teen-ager Scott Schindler, alleges Cosell struck Schindler in March of 1973 when the youth asked for his autograph.

The suit, which names Cosell and the American Broadcasting Co. as defendants, originally asked for $100,00 in damages. But Schindler's lawyer, Bernard Levy, asked for permission to amend the complaint upwards to $3 million.

San Diego County Superior Court Judge Jack R. Levitt authorized the amended complaint Wednesday. Levy said he decided to amend the complaint after learning the net worth of the network.

Cosell's lawyer argued against the increase in damages sought, claiming that Schindler suffered no damage.

In New York, a spokesman for ABC said the company would have no comment.

Fresno Bee's Case Linked To Court Key

FRESNO (AP) — A courthouse master key has become the key issue in a hearing over how the Fresno Bee obtained a sealed grand jury transcript.

Reporter William K. Patterson had possession of the key until he and two other Bee staffers were found in contempt 62 times last month for refusing to testify where they got the transcript.

Superior Court Judge Denver Peckinpah Thursday ordered testimony reopened on Feb. 21 after learning the key, now in the court's custody, provided "unlimited access" to the offices of all judges and other county officials who had copies of the transcripts.

"Freedom of the press does not mean freedom from the law of the land," Peckinpah said. "It does not mean freedom from being accountable for anything they do."

However, an attorney for the Bee staffers later told newsmen the key was never used improperly.

"The Fresno Bee's employes have never improperly used a courthouse key," said Phil C. Fullerton in a statement. "These witnesses or any other representative of the Fresno Bee will freely testify on the use of such keys."

Pay for Your Insurance At Gas Pump?

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The 13 million motorists in California would buy auto insurance at gas stations, paying about three cents extra a gallon under legislation introduced in the Assembly.

"Pay As You Drive" auto insurance, similar to a two-year-old system in the state of Maryland, would eliminate the problem of uninsured motorists in California, the bill's authors said Thursday.

Assemblymen Edwin Z'berg (D-Sacramento), and Charles Warren (D-Los Angeles), revealed the plan at a Capitol news conference Thursday.

Drivers would pay for the insurance — generally at a savings over current premiums — through a six percent increase in gas taxes.

That would amount to three cents at a 50-cent-a-gallon rate. Additional funding would come from "modest" boosts in license plate and driver's license fees.

22nd SF Bay Bombing

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A bomb has exploded in a radio station building, the 22nd terrorist bombing in the San Francisco Bay area in two years.

Police said the Thursday night explosion at KRON-TV here caused no injuries. It was preceded by an anonymous telephone call from a man who said, "I'm from the New World Liberation Front. There's a bomb set to go off in your building in five minutes."

Police believe a tough new type of radical dedicated to violence is responsible for the terrorist attacks.

FEDERAL BUILDINGS, General Motors offices, Bank of America branches, oil company buildings, schools and brokerage houses have been the targets.

"We expect more of the same kind of thing," Capt. Larry Stuefloten, head of police intelligence in San Jose, said in an interview before Thursday night's explosion. "We believe the extremists are working to exploit hard times against the establishment, Watergate and that kind of thing."

San Francisco Police Lt. Richard Klapp said a pipe bomb containing TNT went off in a stairwell on a side of the KRON building. He said damage was confined to that area.

"I felt the explosion on the fourth floor," said newsman Curt Rutter. "I heard a good-sized kaboom and felt vibrations."

The building was not vacated despite the warning. Francis A. Martin III, station operations manager, said about 40 people were inside.

Klapp said another station, KGO-TV, received a bomb threat earlier in the day, but police searched the building and found no device.

HE SAID THE KRON bombing seemed related to a New World Liberation Front communique received Tuesday by radio station KPFA in Berkeley that was critical of broadcast station programming. It said in part:

"Our objective is a socialist revolution in order to serve the interest of poor people. We're not going to accept that you parasites 'give' and 'aid' us except in 'giving' us miserable crumbs and 'aiding' the continuance of those miserable conditions in your dog eat dog narrow world. And your programming. We that know you, Rockefeller, controlling figure in Standard Oil of California, control CBS and RCA which controls NBC. ABC is controlled by another wealthy New York family, fellow parasites of yours."

KGO is affiliated with ABC and KRON is affiliated with NBC.

IN THE SAME communique, the New World Liberation Front claimed responsibility for other bombings this week in the bay area — a $100,000 blast at a San Jose office building Monday and a minor explosion at an Air Force radar station near Half Moon Bay on Tuesday. No injuries were reported.

Police believe the group is a stepchild of Weatherman, which splintered from Students for a Democratic Society in the 1960s.

'Lenient' Judge To Face Hearing

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Municipal Court Judge Robert J. Cooney was prevented by court order Thursday from carrying out a vow to dismiss all speeding tickets issued by the California Highway Patrol.

Cooney disclosed Wednesday that he had dismissed a speeding ticket because the patrol declined to cite or discipline two of its out-of-uniform officers who were stopped for speeding with then-Gov. Ronald Reagan as a passenger.

SHE CAME UP AND SAW THEM

BEVERLY HILLS (UPI) — Invading the traditionally all male Hollywood Friar's Club roast Thursday night, Mae West received a standing ovation when she made an unplanned appearance.

Miss West, wearing a white coat over a floor length white and black paneled dress, was the only woman present at the roast, which poked fun at George Raft.

Others attending the roast at the Beverly Hilton were Cary Grant, Buddy Hackett, Telly Savalas and Don Rickles.

Shootout Victims Honored at Rites

OCEANSIDE (AP) — David R. Terrell and Leland Phelps, victims of a bizarre four-hour confrontation, have been buried side-by-side.

Terrell, 20, fired wildly at police all Monday afternoon before killing himself with a .22-caliber rifle. Phelps, 15, was shot to death by a San Diego County Sheriff's deputy who reportedly mistook him for Terrell.

"We're wearing the bandanas because that's what Lee Phelps was wearing when he got killed," said Ralph Hatcher, 15. Phelps was buried in his bandana.

One of the pallbearers at Thursday's service was Charles Ryan, whose house was commandeered by Terrell during the siege and whose young daughters had been taken hostage inside, but escaped unharmed. His wife, Elizabeth, also attended.

During the service at the Eternal Hills Memorial Park, David Terrell Sr., the sniper's father, got into a shoving match with a television cameraman and was restrained by Willard M. Underwood, Phelps' father.

"You're not wanted here and you better go," Terrell warned. "There better not be any pictures taken here. That is an invasion of privacy."

"How come my electric bill is so high? And we've been using less."

We know your electric bill is higher. A lot higher—even though you're conserving electricity. Why? Primarily because of the increased cost of oil.

It's our job to provide the electricity you, your family and your job require. And we must do so in a manner that meets all air pollution control regulations. This means burning foreign, low-sulfur oil in Edison generating plants. The price is set by foreign governments, and it more than tripled in the last 18 months. It could go even higher. Since January, 1972, the increasing costs of oil and the additional amounts we have had to buy are responsible for almost 90% of the increase in your electric bills.

So we won't always be so dependent on foreign oil, we're spending millions of dollars building coal and nuclear plants. We are also researching new ways to generate electricity—without foreign oil. Geothermal power. Solar power. Fuel cells. Fast breeder reactors. Nuclear fusion. Research is costly, but it will also help to reduce our reliance on foreign oil.

Projects related to the environment are expensive, too, and in 1974 will account for about 20% of our capital expenditures. In the past six years, $325 million were required to be spent for such projects. It looks like we will have to spend another $450 million for environmental purposes within the next four-year period.

On top of all this, inflation is eating into our budget—as it is yours. The cost of constructing new plants is 10 times higher than it was a few years ago, and borrowing costs have more than doubled.

Your electric bill will reflect these rising costs. What can you do to hold down your bill? Budget your use of electricity wisely. For ways to do this, send for our free booklet. Write: "Conservation," Edison, P.O. Box 800, Rosemead, CA 91770.

Nixon Doubted Ford's Ability—Colson

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former White House aide Charles W. Colson said today that Richard M. Nixon talked seriously in December 1973 about resigning as president but expressed doubt about whether Gerald Ford could handle the job.

Nixon was particularly concerned about whether Ford could control Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, Colson said.

In an interview on the NBC "Today" program, Colson quoted Nixon as saying "maybe what this country needs is a nice clean Jerry Ford. The trouble with Jerry Ford is it would take him two years just to get up speed. Also, Jerry's greatest difficulty is he couldn't control Henry Kissinger.

"You know, Henry really is unstable at times," Colson quoted Nixon as saying.

Kissinger was asked about Colson's comments as he left the White House today. He told reporters, as he stepped into his car, that "I will not dignify that with a comment." He then headed back for the State Department.

Colson, recently released from federal prison after serving seven months of a one-to-three year sentence for obstruction of justice, said Nixon made the comments during a conversation on Dec. 18, 1973.

At the time, Nixon was resisting efforts to turn over additional White House tapes to Watergate prosecutors and House and Senate investigators.

Colson said, that during the same period, Nixon told him that he would resign if the U.S. Supreme Court ruled he had to surrender the tapes.

"He said he would not sit and preside over the destruction of the presidency," Colson said. "He said if he lost in Supreme Court on the tapes he would resign."

Colson said Nixon was confident that the Supreme Court and particularly the four justices Nixon appointed would support him.

The court ruled 8 to 0 in July 1974 that Nixon had to surrender the tapes.

Nixon resigned the presidency three weeks later.

Colson said Nixon's comment about Kissinger apparently was based on Kissinger's advocacy of an early resumption of the bomb-

County's Jobless Soaring

By GARY GRANVILLE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Unemployment in Orange county reached an all time high in January when there 62,500 persons out of work and the unemployment rate jumped to 8.1 percent.

And, according to state labor analysist Alta Eldridge, the end of a sharp decline in employment that began six months ago isn't in sight.

U.S. UNEMPLOYMENT HITS 8.2%. Story, Page A4.

"Every indicator we have tells us things will get worse before they get better," Mrs. Eldridge said.

Included among those indicators are forecasts received from employers who say they see fewer rather than more jobs on the horizon.

Mrs. Eldridge also mentioned that new employers are not coming to Orange County as rapidly as they did the last two years when unemployment dropped after a series of aerospace layoffs hit the job market in the early 1970s.

Hardest hit last month when the number of jobless climbed by 9,900 persons were retail trade and service industries.

Both were hit hard by expected seasonal layoffs in department stores and at amusement parks that thrive on tourist trade.

But the job losses were across the board, in manufacturing, construction, government, and other service industries as well as in retail trade and amusement park operations.

The construction industry continued in an employment slump that began two years ago.

In January, 1974, there were 28,400 employed in the building trades. Last month, the total employed in construction was 24,900.

STOCKS ERASE EARLY LOSSES

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market closed slightly lower today in the slowest trading in two weeks on the New York Stock Exchange because of profit taking and concern over rising unemployment.

The Dow Jones industrial average lost 2.26 points to 711.91. It had been down more than 10 at the outset.

Declines led advances by about an four-to-three margin. (Tables, B5).

Prices also were lower in sluggish trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Male Nurse Charged In Woman's Death

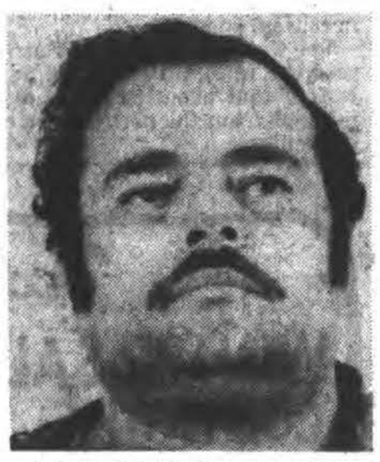

A 40-year-old immigrant from Lebanon — married only about six months — was scheduled for arraignment on murder charges late today in connection with the battering death of a Corona del Mar millionaire's wife whose body was found stuffed under concrete in an old oil drum.

Daniel Garbis Bedelian of Glendale, a male nurse who had the night shift in caring for 67-year-old Wrigley chewing gum heir, A.G. Atwater, is being held in the death of Mrs. Nancy Atwater.

Police allege that Bedelian bludgeoned the wealthy woman to death sometime before dawn Wednesday and later in the day stuffed her body into an oil drum at a Pacoima junk yard. He then assertedly filled the barrel with wet cement.

Newport Beach detectives said today they were under strict orders not to discuss any alleged motive in the killing, and they have said only that a dispute may have erupted at the Atwater home at 4633 Perham Drive early Wednesday morning.

Atwater, whose sister is married to Wrigley board Chairman P.K. Wrigley Jr., was a member of the corporate structure which includes chewing gum manufacuring, land holdings and ownership of the Chicago Cubs baseball team.

Oil Plan Hit

'Irresponsible,' Says Bradley

BEVERLY HILLS (AP) — Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley said today it would be "irresponsible to sell America's publicly owned oil resources" without a comprehensive national energy policy.

Bradley spoke in opposition on behalf of the Council of Local Governments to a proposal by the U.S. Department of the Interior to lease 10 million acres of offshore land for oil drilling, including 1.6 million acres off California.

He said the 41 cities and counties in the council adopted a three-point resolution which calls for opposition to the federal proposal until three things happened: (1) a comprehensive national and regional energy policy has been formulated; (2) the Department of Interior submits its proposed oil development program to the affected state, regional and local agencies for review; and (3) Congress has enacted legislation strengthening existing laws related to oil development on the outer continental shelf.

"I want to be very clear that we do not necessarily oppose the concept of development and use of the oil on the outer continental shelf," Bradley said.

"We do oppose the haste with which it is being undertaken, particularly with regard to the lack of understanding of the true value of this resource — a value which can only be determined within the context of a comprehensive national energy policy."

Bradley told the Interior

Astrology Fee Trial Near End

By ARTHUR R. VINSEL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A silent courtroom gallery listened Thursday as Church of Astrolight founder Zelda Pryor, 75, testified that the tiny sanctuary in her home is no paying business, but a place where the troubled may find comfort and counsel based on the universal truths.

The Maine-born astrologist and spiritualist is on trial for allegedly violating a Costa Mesa city ordinance forbidding acceptance of pay for any form of occult practice.

She looked small and hunchbacked in the big witness chair, but her cheeks were pink, her eyes glittered and her jaw jutted proudly forward.

Defense attorney Donald Smallwood crossed in front of Harbor Judicial District Court Judge Betty Lou Lamoureaux and handed Mrs. Pryor one of 34 books she has published.

He had marked a spot and asked her to read.

"In my Father's house are many mansions, with the same light shining through. . ." she intoned, her voice holding a hint of the old Maine accent.

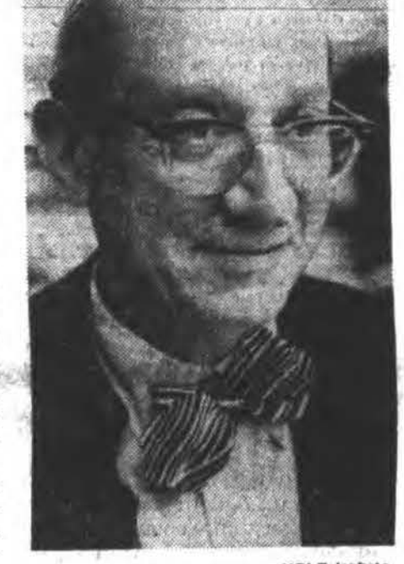

She continued reading the text, a form of credo based on the universal religious truths, which she says are spoken to her inwardly by spirits so she may write them down.

She claims no personal authorship.

One fashionably dressed woman juror leaned forward — her brows knitted sadly — as the old lady recited her beliefs that all elements of religions since the dawn of time knit together into God's divine plan woven for the universe.

Douglas Strike On For Sunday

By PATTY BURNETT
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The strike call is on for one minute after midnight on Monday for 1,500 aerospace workers at the Huntington Beach plant of McDonnell Douglas.

Only a change in management's position might stave off the strike by Local 720 of the International Association of Machinists, a union official said today.

The union represents a total of 7,000 workers in McDonnell Douglas plants throughout Southern California. Those workers and others at the company's St. Louis facility.

Union officials said the company's estimate earlier this week of 900 IAM members at its Huntington Beach facility is incorrect. The union has more than 1,500 members locally, they said.

Leonard Loomis, assistant business representative of the union, explained how the call for strike came about.

"Last Sunday we held a mass meeting of our membership and presented the company's latest written proposal (from the previous Wednesday). The members rejected it by 77 percent and voted to strike," Loomis said.

On Thursday the union's negotiating committee took that authorization to strike and made it official for Monday, he continued.

Between the two actions union officials tried to renew talks with management, Loomis said, but were told the company "wasn't interested in going all through it again."

In contrast, a a spokesman for

UC Faculty Member Tells About Letter

State Sen. Dennis Carpenter probably did not realize he was writing to a UC Irvine medical faculty member when he purportedly said Orange County's $5.5 million price for Orange County Medical was "blackmail," the recipient of the letter said Thursday.

Dr. Robert Pfeffer, an assistant professor of neurology, said the Jan. 31 letter from Carpenter was in response to a letter he wrote to the senator Jan. 17.

Carpenter said Wednesday he does not recall the letter and does not know Pfeffer. One source said the letter probably was written by a member of Carpenter's staff detailing views previously expressed by the senator.

UCI-California College of Medicine plans to buy the Medical Center for use as a teaching hospital. Additionally, the school plans to reduce the 524-bed facility by 200 beds and build a 200-bed hospital on the UCI campus.

Mariner's Mile Recovery Pushed

By HILARY KAYE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Newport Beach Planning Commission members informally agreed Thursday to accelerate the public hearing process to allow burned-out businesses along Mariner's Mile to rebuild as quickly as possible.

Even so, it will take from 90 days to six months before merchants can be issued new building permits, according to Community Development Director Dick Hogan.

The delay is occurring because Mariner's Mile is located within a "specific area plan" that includes a stretch of Pacific Coast Highway between The Arches Overpass and the Balboa Bay Club.

Permits cannot be issued until commissioners decide how they want to redevelop the area. And commissioners can't decide the fate of the area without lengthy hearings before the commission and city council.

Owners and tenants of the property devastated in the Jan. 11 blaze, were informed of the time table during an afternoon study session.

Vin Jorgensen, part owner of the property, told commissioners the delay could destroy his plans to keep the block as a marine-oriented center.

"We anticipate rebuilding in a marine motif. Our former tenants (mostly marine-oriented businesses) are anxious to return to the same site," Jorgensen said.

"If they're forced to wait a year, 18 months, or two years, they just can't do it," he said.

Jorgensen said he would probably receive another six-month delay from the Coastal Commission and then have to wait another six months before construction of the buildings could be completed.

Whether or not Pacific Coast Highway is to be widened is also a decision holding up any plan commissioners may decide upon.

Because traffic projections indicate the highway will be inadequate by 1990, suggestions have been made to widen the right-of-way, causing roadside businesses to forfeit part of their land.

Burned-out tenants present at the study session complained it would not be feasible to surrender any of their building space.

John Tropea, a senior vice president at United California Bank, told commissioners he could not rebuild a satisfactory branch of the bank if 24 feet is sliced away to widen the road.

The businessmen offered, instead, to forfeit the parking lane in front of their businesses on the highway, because most of their customers enter through the back access.

Jorgensen, who said he envisions a "Cape Cod" character when the block is rebuilt, said that, architecturally, the tenants would provide anything the planning commission wants.

Commissioners, pleased that the marine businesses would not be replaced by other types, appeared eager to help Jorgensen and the tenants.

However, they emphasized the ly shielded her eyes with her hand.

"Your Honor. . .the defense rests," said Smallwood.

The trial was scheduled to resume this afternoon, and could possibly conclude today, depending upon re-questioning with final arguments to the six-man, six-woman jury.

The people's case was rested by Assistant City Attorney Robert Campagna at noon Thursday, whereupon Smallwood submitted a motion to Judge Lamoureux for a direct acquittal.

He claims the all-encompassing Costa Mesa city ordinance — describing it in the words of Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas on another law as a Meat Ax Ordinance — is far too broad.

Smallwood said the statute which bans more than a score of specific practices dealing with the occult does not even have the saving grace of exempting certain religious matters which could be related.

"I submit that under the ordinance, an unscrupulous police department and an unscrupulous city government could prosecute any orthodox minister who counseled a young person and accepted a church donation," he said.

Both Detective Dick Bowman and paid police agent-informant Mrs. Cindee Seidel, who first set the elderly woman up for arrest, have testified Mrs. Pryor seemed sincere in discussing their stated problems during an interview.

Smallwood argued that the ordinance is also in violation of both U.S. and state constitutional guarantees of freedoms of speech, worship and the right to make a living.

The motion was denied, but for re-submission later.

"That's a doozy," prosecutor Campagna declared of arguments that Mrs. Pryor is being deprived of her right to make a living by requiring that she only give astrological readings and counsel free.

He compared it to a case of prosecuting prostitution, in which the law forbids prostitution, although presumably the woman would be free to do whatever she pleased as long as she did not charge.

"What we are prohibiting is 'the business' of practicing these Black Arts in Costa Mesa," Campagna said of the long list of disciplines, beliefs, talents or alleged abilities which are forbidden if paid for.

"When they begin charging others, they come into contact with ordinance," said Campagna.

A donation of $15 is accepted by Mrs. Pryor, but she says it is to help supplement upkeep of her home and sanctuary at 499 Cabrillo St., and publishing costs.

"I hate to do it," she testified. "The sign says donations. But I give them two hours of talking about their wives and boyfriends. . .There's no charge. If I would charge I'd be in business and I'm not in business"

Colson said Kissinger, then White House adviser for national security affairs, resumed secret negotiations in Paris with the North Vietnamese on Dec. 5, 1972 and immediately cabled Nixon: "Start the bombing immediately. These madmen have doublecrossed us."

Colson said Nixon showed him the Kissinger cable. He said Nixon rejected Kissinger's advice and told him to continue negotiating.

Swedish Reds Hit 'Big Mac'

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Swedish Communists are trying to bring McDonald's "golden arches" tumbling down because they say franchised hamburger chains are "a danger to the working people."

If the Communists had their way, a "Big Mac" hamburger, "fries" and a "Coke" would be a thing of the past in Stockholm.

An irate party member accused "the American cultural imperialism of spreading food not native to Sweden," and lamented that the hamburgers didn't have any essential vitamins and minerals.

Arne Soederkvist, chairman of the Communist representatives on the Stockholm City Council said in an interview Thursday that "the hamburger culture is a danger to the working people."

The chains not only ruin the customer's health because of the poor nutritional value of the food but also because "the people have to eat very fast and under pressing conditions — lots of people and noise," Soederkvist said.

"First, we learned to do our shopping very fast in supermarkets" like the Americans "and now we must also learn to eat fast," he said.

If the council appears interested in what Soederkvist called "the hamburger problem," the issue would be passed on to Parliament with suggestions for alternatives, he said.

"The large capital and huge profits behind chains like McDonald's and Carrolls may eventually beat all smaller common restaurants," Soederkvist said.

"An alternative could be restaurants run by the city, serving non-profit food consisting of nutritious things."

McDonald's, an American-franchised take-out restaurant, has two outlets in Stockholm. Carrolls, another American franchise, and the British hamburger chain Wimpys are also in operation in Sweden.

Soon to open is a Floyd Patterson take-out, advertising "Floyd Burgers," named for the former heavyweight boxing champion.

Soederkvist lamented that the final blow of the chains was that they "mostly employ very young people and the work is a great strain to a teen-ager."

Hospital Staff Given Increase

Operations at Kaiser Permanente prepaid health care clinics were returning to normal today following overwhelming approval Thursday of a "tops in the industry" pay pact by the striking Hospital and Service Employes union.

Nearly 4,200 workers walked off their jobs Monday at Kaiser's five hospitals and 14 clinics in Orange, Los Angeles and Ventura Counties. The plan, which caters largely to union health programs, has clinics in Orange and Garden Grove.

The final agreement, patched together by a team of three federal mediators, calls for 26 to 27.5 percent wage and fringe benefit hikes over the two-year contract.

Polled Thursday, the union membership backed the new agreement with a 3,105 to 375 vote.

Hospital and Service Employes president George Hardy termed the contract, which sets the lowest scale at $3.92 an hour, "tops in the industry."

The union covers non-professionals such as cooks, nursing aides, technicians and clerks. Doctors and registered nurses are not in the union.

Throughout the four-day strike, Kaiser maintained emergency and most continuing care operations despite the staff shortage.

SLAYING . . .

Wednesday after the day nurse who attends Atwater became alarmed at Mrs. Atwater's absence.

The day nurse, David Jacobsen, told police he arrived as usual at 8 a.m. and noticed fresh paint on wallpaper and walls at the expensive Atwater home. Jacobsen reportedly told police that Bedelian told him Mrs. Atwater had left earlier with an unidentified man. Jacobsen added that Bedelian identified red stains in the house as cranberry juice he spilled.

Later in the morning, Jacobsen said his concern was heightened when Mrs. Atwater's lawyer phoned to report that she did not show up for a scheduled court hearing in Santa Ana. That hearing was the latest apeparance in a lengthy battle over control of Atwater's fortune.

At that point, the day nurse phoned police. Officers examined the expensive house and found signs of a violent and bloody struggle.

Later in the day, Bedelian arrived at the wrecking yard in his 1968 Cadillac which allegedly contained three sacks of cement and the victim's body.

Yardworker Pete Seropian said that Bedelian called him Wednesday afternoon and asked for an empty metal drum saying he wanted to mix cement and fill it so he could have a weight for the front of his truck.

Police allege that Bedelian stuffed Mrs. Atwater's body into the drum, filled it with cement and left. Police were already in Glendale looking for the male nurse and found him at about 4 p.m. at an intersection a few blocks from his home.

After a trip to Newport Beach police headquarters and an interview ewith investigators, Bdelian was booked on a murder charge and police drove to the wrecking yard.

They found the barrel, three empty cement sacks and several blood stained paper towels. Investigators also found Mrs. Atwater's remains still clad in nightclothes in the barrel.

Workers at the junkyard were quoted as describing Bedelian, whom they knew, as "a nice guy." He was one of several male nurses employed over the years at the household to provide 24-hour attendance for the confined heir whose mental problem began many years ago, according to Newport Beach Detective Capt. Richard Hamilton.

LETTER . . .

The letter repeated previous statements by Carpenter that he will oppose the on-campus hospital if it will compete with Hoag Memorial Hospital in Newport Beach.

Pfeffer said he does not have a copy of the Jan. 17 letter he wrote to Carpenter.

However, he described its contents as asking Carpenter to oppose a suggestion by Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post that the UCI med school be closed and its operations be combined with those at UC Davis.

Pfeffer wrote the letter from his home address and speculates that Carpenter may have assumed he was a physician in private practice.

Carpenter's response, said Pfeffer, "was a little tangential to what I wrote him about."

Pfeffer said he cannot understand how the reply on Carpenter's letterhead was made public. The original, he said, is still in his office files at the Orange County Medical Center.

Hand Grenade Sawed From Girl's Finger

MIAMI (UPI) — A little girl got her finger stuck in a hand grenade and authorities were faced with this decision Thursday.

Amputate her finger because the grenade could explode, or take a chance the grenade wouldn't blow up, and saw it off to save the finger.

Doctors at American Hospital, where 9-year-old Laura Salvan was brought by her parents, debated what to do for 3½ hours.

The World War I grenade was used as a paperweight, and Laura had absent-mindedly stuck her left-hand ring finger into a hole in it Wednesday night while watching television.

The doctors, fearing the grenade might contain live explosives, decided to amputate.

But a fire department rescue squad asked the doctors to wait and consult a bomb squad.

Newton Porter of the sheriff's bomb squad and police technician Tommy Carroll, who were called in, disagreed with the doctors. Saw off the grenade, they argued. Chances are it will not blow up. The doctors agreed.

"Tommy and I took her on a stretcher to the maintenance room, put the grenade in a vise and we sawed — very carefully," Porter said.

He said Laura did not speak at all during the sawing, which took 15 minutes. The grenade did not explode.

It came off and Laura's finger was saved. A later examination of the grenade, nearly 60 years old, indicated it was not explosive.

Laura walked into the hospital waiting room and was given a big hug by her mother.

"It's just part of the job," Porter said. "We didn't want to see the little girl hurt."

Porter said Laura was "pretty relieved" when she removed her finger from the grenade, but didn't say anything more than "gosh" or "great" when the operation was over.

JOBLESS. . .

Mrs. Eldridge's gloomy monthly report was accented by predictions of a worsening situation on the Orange County labor market.

How much worse?

"I wouldn't be surprised to see the unemployment rate reach 9 percent," Mrs. Eldridge said.

"As a matter of fact," she added "it's possible the rate might climb to 10 percent."

Orange County's all time high unemployment rate came in January and April of 1971 when it reached 8.7 percent.

However, in those months, the total number of unemployed ranged from 48,000 to 52,000. Last month's unemployment roll of 62,500 exceeded the former record high of 52,800, a mark reached in January, 1971.

public hearing process cannot be sidestepped.

The first step will come on Feb. 20, when commissioners will hold a public hearing to consider the future of Pacific Coast Highway.

To speed things up at the hearing, commissioners agreed to hold a special briefing session with the staff next Thursday on traffic matters pertaining to the highway.

Department hearing board in the auditorium at the El Rodeo Elementary School that originally he had been given only three weeks to review a "highly technological" 1,300-page draft prior to public hearings set for mid-November.

He said it was only after local officials were able to meet with Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton that a 60-day delay in the hearings was granted.

Bradley said an analysis of the draft indicates that there has been "no careful consideration of a balanced mix of new resources," nor had consideration been given to developing such existing resources as the Elk Hills Naval petroleum reserve.

He added "our experts found that no analysis of the relative environmental impacts of drilling the various areas had been performed."

Los Angeles City Attorney Burt Pines, who followed Bradley to the witness table, said his staff analysis of the draft Environmental Impact Statement indicates it is "legally inadequate."

Man Survives Bridge Jump

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A man jumped from the Golden Gate Bridge Thursday night and lived, becoming the eighth person to survive a plunge from the span.

The hospital he was taken to invoked a state law and refused to release details, other than he was in critical condition.

The California Highway Patrol said the man, a resident of San Rafael and about 30 years old, jumped from the north tower of the bridge.

Assembly Raps Holiday

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblymen are unhappy because they will be given a holiday on Washington's Birthday, Feb. 17.

IT IS NOT the thought of missing work that is upsetting them, but the threatened loss of $120 each in tax-free expense allowances.

Legislative rules provide that each legislator receive $30-a-day expense allowances when in session, including weekends. But no expenses are allowed for occasions when more than three days pass without a meeting.

ASSEMBLYMEN shook their heads in dismay and grumbled when Speaker Leo McCarthy (D-San Francisco) told them just prior to Thursday's adjournment that the Washington Birthday holiday on a Monday would be observed by the assembly and there would be no session the preceding Friday.

Assemblyman Robert Badham (R-Newport Beach) took to his feet to ask, "That means we'll have a four-day recess?"

Reaction rippled across the chamber at the possible loss of $120 in expense payments for the four days off.

"I REALIZE the nature of the crisis, Mr. Badham," McCarthy replied. The speaker announced he would try to remedy the situation and report back later.

Buddy Hackett Emcees Ball In Newport

Comedian Buddy Hackett will serve as the master of ceremonies at the Newport Harbor Chamber of Commerce's Mardi Gras Ball Sunday, heralded by sponsors as the largest banquet ever planned in Newport Beach.

Up to 1,200 persons are expected to attend the affair at the Newporter Inn, which will be the kickoff event for the chamber's building fund drive.

Chamber President Bill Lusk said the directors are hoping to raise $500,000 in a long fund-raising drive to finance construction of a new, two-story chamber building at Jamboree Road and Santa Barbara Avenue.

Lusk said the largest tent ever erected in Orange County, measuring 8,000 square feet will be set up adjoining the Newporter's Monte Carlo room.

A gourmet New Orleans dinner will be served and prizes will be given to the best Mardi Gras costumes.

Time Change Turned Back

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Passionate arguments about the safety of children kept the Michigan House from passing a bill to put the state on Daylight Saving Time Feb. 23 with most of the country.

Another vote on the bill is planned next week, but it appears the bill's backers will, like everyone else in the state, remain on standard time until April 27. The Senate approved the bill earlier.

Supporters say the nine-week lag in turning clocks ahead will hamper industry, airlines, trucking and others in interstate commerce.

Funds for Tidelands

State Sen. Dennis Carpenter (R-Newport Beach) has seized on an uncannily appropriate source of cash for the state's purchase of Upper Newport Bay from the Irvine Company.

Under proposals introduced in a bill by Carpenter this week, more than $3.4 million in reparations paid by oil companies for the damage to Santa Barbara after the oil blowout would be set aside.

Thus, the spirit of the legislation would follow the tenet that cash paid for coastal damage would be used to place private coastal tidelands into public hands.

It is now important for other legislators to realize that the cash would be well spent. They must be aware of the value to the public in retaining the bay as a natural preserve.

As Carpenter has explained, the transfer of the estuary's title does not depend on his legislation; other sources of state revenue could be found.

But in spirit, the legislator's idea is sound and appropriate.

Library Site

After many months of deliberation over sites for the new Newport Beach library, it is encouraging to learn that city officials appear near agreement on acreage in Newport Center.

While not yet committing themselves to purchasing the land from the Irvine Company, city council members have requested that negotiations on acquisition begin between city staff members and Irvine Company officials.

From all indications, the site at Newport Center is the best bet. The area is expanding into a major focal point for many Newport activities, including culturally oriented ones. The Newport Harbor Art Museum would adjoin the proposed site, creating a cultural corner in Newport Center.

Logistically speaking, the Newport Center site is most accessible to a large number of Newport residents who would use the new branch library.

The acquisition talks should continue without delay. Perhaps they will turn the city's dream of a new library into a reality.

A Unique 'Park'

Months of design work and commitments of time by volunteers appearing at homeowner meetings have yielded an energetic proposal for transformation of the old Pacific Electric right-of-way in West Newport into a recreation complex.

In this rare instance, city officials have found a project that has not spawned any serious opposition.

No one yet has opposed the use of the old Red Car railbed for tennis and handball courts, playgrounds and other public facilities.

Conceptual approval already has come from the Parks, Beaches and Recreation Commission, and soon the plans will move to planning commissioners and then to city councilmen for a final set of hearings before contracts are let.

The first construction stage of the entire strip from 56th Street to the Santa Ana River jetty would be turfing, some bike trails and a rest room.

When the master plan is finally built out, residents of an area long neglected in park needs would have a marvelous recreation area.

A Happy Hedonist Defends His Style

MAILBOX

To the Editor:

Re: the letter from Mr. Bantel printed Jan. 29.

This is the first time I've written in response to an article but feel I must express the "the other view."

I'm sick of other people implying what type of car I can drive or where to set my thermostat in my home. Because of my fantastic prudence and foresight to live close enough to work to use only 10 gallons of gasoline per week and to not have an ego-trip style, grossly over-sized family that requires heating a barracks sized barn-house, I'll live within my "ration" (be it coupons or prices or both) with any damn sized car and room temperature I (not Bantel or J. Ford) select.

IN MY opinion, to stop the alleged energy shortage:

(A) Stop the income tax advantages to selfish producers of excess numbers of offspring (that's what causes pollution and energy consumption) Archaic religions that demanded more children in 1300 A.D. are laughable to any educated modern society.

(B) Drastically curtail the senseless energy wasting of obsolete U.S.N. battleships, etc., that cruise in circles for months on end for "experience" — politically motivated power freak-outs.

(C) Defer installation of gas-gulping auto smog devices, e.g., NOX (we all agree—no-one likes pollution) and develop nuclear power plants and off shore drilling at maximum speed. Do this without allowing selfish Sierra Club narrowminded procrastination but with reasonable safeguards and with massive government funding.

In the meantime, I'll continue to drive my beautiful 400-cubic inch Firebird and 370 H.P. Corvette in luxury and at speed feeling proud I'm conserving energy as I pass the grossly ugly 10-passenger station wagons dragging five kids with "Navy Reserve", "Stop NOX Now" and "Sierra Club is Nifty" bumper stickers. By the way, some clown had better return the 70 mph speed limit on the highway to Mammoth or my wife and I will be forced to ignore (as everyone does) the ridiculous 55 mph speed traps — in the interest of a logical and rewardingly hedonistic life style.

It interests me to see of you will print this "other" viewpoint.

Food Fears

To the Editor:

Since the editorial appeared with regard to the unsanitary condition of many of the restaurants in Orange County, we have not been able to bring ourselves to "eat out," a custom which we have greatly enjoyed in our area, thinking that we have some of the finest restaurants anywhere.

WE WANT to add our voices to others expressing apprehension in "eating out" after having to face the reality that things behind the kitchen doors in most restaurants are so appalling. Can't the customer be protected in some way? Just knowing the condition exists can't be allowed to stop there.

Let the restaurants that have nothing to hide invite customer inspection—or perhaps we need checkers checking the checkers. There really seems no excuse for careless handling of food offered for public consumption, from either the persons handling food to the cleanliness of preparation areas, cooking or storage. — HELP. Not 'Scared'

To the Editor:

On Jan. 7, 1975, your paper ran an article titled "Precaution in Politics", which article centered around a letter to Mobil's California customers and vendors over my signature. The clear implication of the article is that big corporations are fretting about doing business with another party unless that party's politics are known. I do not believe you accurately grasp the true situation.

AFTER last June's election, a new body of law came into being — the Political Reform Act of 1974 (Proposition 9). This law requires every employer of a lobbyist in California to file monthly reports with the Secretary of State showing (among other things) the name and official position of any elective state official, state candidate, legislative official, state agency official or members of their immediate family with whom the lobbyists' employer had certain business transactions. Also required is a disclosure of the name and address of every business entity, in which one of the above categories of persons have a specified interest, with which the lobbyists' employer had certain business transactions. Mobil retains a lobbyist in Sacramento, as do about 500 other businesses and organizations such as labor groups, religious organizations, banks,peace officers groups, etc. As an employer of a lobbyist, Mobil is required to file these reports and furnish the appropriate information to the Secretary of State.

The letter which was described in your article was solely prompted by the necessity of gathering the information as required by law. Mobil has no desire to know the politics of those with whom it does business and is certainly not "running scared" as your article alleges.

Blame Misplaced

To the Editor:

As a two-year tenant-resident of Balboa Island, I commend the Balboa Island Improvement Association's efforts at maintaining its comfortable resort-like qualities in the face of geometric development in the surrounding areas. Specifically, I commend its efforts to establish a community center, cleaner streets through the mini-sweeper, regulation of bicycle traffic, and open communication with city council and police representatives.

HOWEVER, by my also having the apparent dubious distinction of being a university "student," I feel I have been unjustly maligned in the association's newsletter dated January, 1975. Specifically, I object to the phrase, "The blame cannot be laid solely on students," in reference to the issue of "Dogs" on the Island. The underlying assumption clearly being that, "Well friends, this time we can't blame it only on the students; the ones who cause all the other problems." The reality of the "Dog" issue points directly to the absurdity of such a claim since students are rarely, if at all the ones responsible — being almost all rentors, and therefore universally under the "no pet" clauses of the Island realty groups.

The tragedy of such an apparently innocent phrase in an otherwise fine newsletter is that it continues to foster the misconception that students are the source of all evil on the Island. If this were true, I don't believe that students would be allowed to rent on the Island, let alone would students like myself be willing to live around a group of partying troublemakers. Unfortunately, as the largest and most visible tenant-class on the Island, should one of our members transgress, we are all apparently blamed.

I am convinced that a more accurate appraisal of the issue would remove the lion-share of the blame for trouble from the "students," and that it would be placed justifiably upon those individuals who deserve it.

Nixon Didn't Invent Political Spying

RICHARD WILSON

WASHINGTON — The evidence continues to accumulate that political espionage was not invented in the Nixon administration however badly the practice might have been abused. The latest disclosure is that of J. Edgar Hoover's No. 3 man (as reported in the New York Times) that President Johnson ordered the surveillance of the Republican vice presidential nominee in the 1968 campaign, Spiro T. Agnew.

This brings back some memories. Lyndon B. Johnson used to hint darkly to private visitors during the 1968 campaign that the lovely Chinese widow, Anna Chennault, a pillar of the China lobby, was up to some hanky-panky with the Saigon government to delay Vietnam peace negotiations because President Thieu would get a better deal if Richard M. Nixon were elected.

Now it appears (if the FBI's Cartha D. De Loach's purported secret testimony is to be believed) that Johnson put the FBI on both Mrs. Chennault and the Republican vice-presidential nominee, to get the goods on their plotting, if any.

THE PARIS peace talks were deadlocked at the time on the issue of getting Saigon and Hanoi representatives to sit down together and Johnson was beside himself about any interference both from the political and the national security point of view.

Whether Johnson got the information first from Hoover and instigated the surveillance on his own doesn't make much difference. Hoover was evidently a willing collaborator with Johnson on the Chennault-Agnew-Nixon inquiry as he was on other matters of interest to a president with an insatiable hunger for useful information. Johnson was high on Hoover in those days and, gadget-minded as he was, took special delight in a mechanism Hoover had supplied him for opening and closing his bedroom window while still under the covers.

JOHNSON, in his private conversations, often conveyed the impression that he was in possession of special information which might prove embarrassing to his contemporaries. It is also reliably reported that he urged Nixon to maintain some kind of a recording system in the White House to preserve for posterity, or other purposes, the historic conversations therein, and that Nixon off-handedly ordered in the voice-actuated system which ruined him.

None of this is beside the point, which is that there were recorded conversations in the Johnson administration and maybe in the Kennedy administration which, unlike the Nixon tapes, are buried in the archives of history. Along with them are buried such use as may have been made of the FBI for political espionage with its fruit of embarrassing or incriminating tidbits.

ADD TO THAT the until now secret Watergate committee memo asserting that in the 1964 Democratic national convention Johnson, through the FBI, was wiretapping Martin Luther King and Robert F. Kennedy and a different perspective of the Nixon tragedy begins to emerge.

In another aspect of this general matter, former Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski and the present prosecutor, Henry S. Ruth, argue against a full report on their inquiries out of tender solicitude for some who might be hurt by "juicy" (Jaworski's word) information. Certainly former President Nixon could not be hurt any more, so the impression is left that there is still hidden information which might have a bearing upon the perspective brought to bear on Nixon's guilt in the Watergate affair.

THE PROSECUTORS argue it would be unconstitutional to disclose the full story as a matter of fundamental fairness under the Fifth Amendment. Congress, which is considering legislation requiring a full disclosure, could well pass the legislation and leave the constitutional issue to the courts.

Maybe the time has come to follow the course President Nixon once considered — "let it all hang out." That procedure should not be confined to the Watergate affair but should reach a bit back into the past in the interests of providing perspective on the single most shocking event of American political history. What Nixon's predecessors did does not excuse him, but at least it might show that he was not the sole originator of political dirty work.

Automobiles Don't Kill . . .

SYDNEY HARRIS

A letter in Time magazine a few weeks ago, from a reader who opposes gun laws, was typical of the kind of illogical thinking that supports such arguments. The letter said:

"A gun has no will of its own. A gun does only what its owner causes it do to. The root of the problem is within the human heart. Cure the cause rather than treat surface symptoms."

Let me transpose this argument to a similar term to demonstrate how absurd it is:

"An automobile has no will of its own. An automobile does only what its driver causes it to do. The root of the problem is within the human heart. Cure the cause rather than treat surface symptoms."

THEREFORE, dispense with automobile laws. No more speed limits, no more traffic signals, no more registration of cars, no more tests for drivers, no more fines or jail terms for offenses.

Instead, we try to reform and change human nature. We work at making most people kind and considerate and attentive and radional and model citizens.

Meanwhile, what is happening on the streets and highways? Slaughter, that's what's happening. While we're slowly "curing the human heart," we're speedily killing thousands of human bodies.

Why bother to make cars safer, either? Since it's obviously the motorist, and not the car, that causes accidents, let's also dispense with stronger bumpers, roll-over bars, seat-belts, impact-bags, or anything else designed to protect in a crash. When people's hearts are warmer, the highway homicide rate will go down to practically nothing.

AUTOMOBILES don't kill; people do. No one has ever seen an automobile take off by itself and knock someone down. Ergo, why place all these constraints upon owning and operating an automobile? All we have to do is improve the human race — it may take a few thousand years — and the auto will be no more of a threat, or fatal weapon, than the tricycle.

This is what the gun people imagine is rational thinking. Another of their themes is "infringement of liberty." But what would they think of a drunk driving a car down the road, without a license, without plates, without the slightest responsibility or obligation to others? Are we "infringing" on his liberty by demanding that he be qualified and in a state to drive, or that his automobile be registered and licensed and insured for liability?

The automobile, at least, serves a useful purpose when its ownership and operation are carefully supervised. The handgun serves no purpose except the taking of human life. True, guns don't kill — but people with guns do. And far too often.

Reagan Offers To Quit

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Ronald Reagan offered to resign from the panel investigating the CIA because his busy schedule would keep him away from Washington. Vice president Nelson Rockefeller turned down the offer.

Rockefeller said Reagan could keep abreast of developments by reading transcripts. The problem is that the transcripts are so hush-hush Reagan cannot get them.

Reagan said Thursday — his 64th birthday — that he missed three of the first four meetings of the Rockefeller panel and will miss the next one too, because of his busy schedule. He left early from the one meeting he did attend.

Brown Charges

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Brown administration has been accused by legislators of breaking at least two state laws and violating the U.S. Constitution.

Two Democratic legislators accused Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. Thursday of prying illegally into the affairs of prospective appointees to his administration in violation of state law and the U.S. Constitution.

Later in the day, a Republican leader charged that a Brown cabinet secretary illegally imposed a gag order on state officials who might be called before the legislature.

UC Unions

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Employes of public colleges and universities in California would be able to join unions and bargain collectively under a measure that has been introduced in the Assembly.

The measure by Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, (D-San Jose,) would cover employes of the University of California's nearly 100 publicly supported community colleges.

Child Abuse

VISTA (AP) — A construction worker whose wife is charged with murdering their 12-year-old son has been charged with child abuse for allegedly beating their 10-year-old daughter.

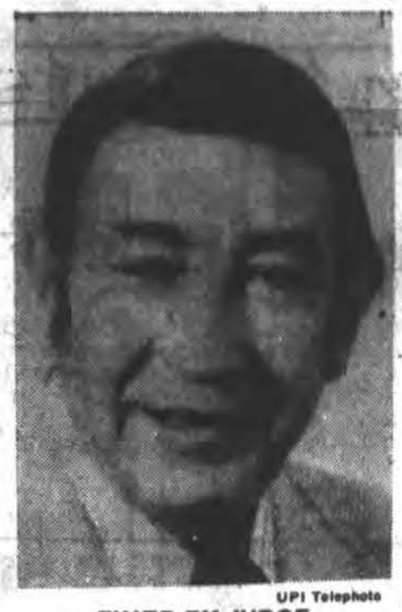

Walter A. George was arrested Wednesday for investigation into the beating of his daughter, Roxanne, said a spokesman for the San Diego County Sheriff's Department.

Technician Killed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A technician for the British rock group Deep Purple, driving on the left-hand side of the road as is normal in England, has been killed in a head-on collision.

Police said Ronald Quinton, 24, of London, was driving southbound in the left lane of the Pacific Coast Highway when his car collided with a vehicle driven by Rockford Belmonti, 40, of Malibu, who was also killed.

The accident occurred early Thursday morning.

FINED BY JUDGE
Sportscaster Cosell

Cosell Slapped By Fine

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A county judge has fined sportscaster Howard Cosell $150 for failing to answer questions formally submitted to him in a $3 million lawsuit.

The suit, filed for teen-ager Scott Schindler, alleges Cosell struck Schindler in March of 1973 when the youth asked for his autograph.

The suit, which names Cosell and the American Broadcasting Co. as defendants, originally asked for $100,00 in damages. But Schindler's lawyer, Bernard Levy, asked for permission to amend the complaint upwards to $3 million.

San Diego County Superior Court Judge Jack R. Levitt authorized the amended complaint Wednesday. Levy said he decided to amend the complaint after learning the net worth of the network.

Cosell's lawyer argued against the increase in damages sought, claiming that Schindler suffered no damage.

In New York, a spokesman for ABC said the company would have no comment.

Fresno Bee's Case Linked To Court Key

FRESNO (AP) — A courthouse master key has become the key issue in a hearing over how the Fresno Bee obtained a sealed grand jury transcript.

Reporter William K. Patterson had possession of the key until he and two other Bee staffers were found in contempt 62 times last month for refusing to testify where they got the transcript.

Superior Court Judge Denver Peckinpah Thursday ordered testimony reopened on Feb. 21 after learning the key, now in the court's custody, provided "unlimited access" to the offices of all judges and other county officials who had copies of the transcripts.

"Freedom of the press does not mean freedom from the law of the land," Peckinpah said. "It does not mean freedom from being accountable for anything they do."

However, an attorney for the Bee staffers later told newsmen the key was never used improperly.

"The Fresno Bee's employes have never improperly used a courthouse key," said Phil C. Fullerton in a statement. "These witnesses or any other representative of the Fresno Bee will freely testify on the use of such keys."

Maxwell Fine Levied Due To Can Cuts

MONROVIA (UPI) — General Foods Corp. was ordered Thursday to pay a $500 fine for shortweighting jars of Maxwell House instant coffee.

Municipal Court Judge John H. Sanders said the company would not have to pay an additional $1,000 fine if no further shortweighting occurs.

The shortweighting occurred in both 10-ounce and 12-ounce jars of coffee, according to the complaint filed by deputy district attorney Michael Byrne. Each jar was said to be missing an average of about a half ounce.

Pay for Your Insurance At Gas Pump?

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The 13 million motorists in California would buy auto insurance at gas stations, paying about three cents extra a gallon under legislation introduced in the Assembly.

"Pay As You Drive" auto insurance, similar to a two-year-old system in the state of Maryland, would eliminate the problem of uninsured motorists in California, the bill's authors said Thursday.

Assemblymen Edwin Z'berg (D-Sacramento), and Charles Warren (D-Los Angeles), revealed the plan at a Capitol news conference Thursday.

Drivers would pay for the insurance — generally at a savings over current premiums — through a six percent increase in gas taxes.

That would amount to three cents at a 50-cent-a-gallon rate. Additional funding would come from "modest" boosts in license plate and driver's license fees.

Liberation Front Takes Credit

22nd SF Bay Bombing

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A bomb has exploded in a radio station building, the 22nd terrorist bombing in the San Francisco Bay area in two years.

Police said the Thursday night explosion at KRON-TV here caused no injuries. It was preceded by an anonymous telephone call from a man who said, "I'm from the New World Liberation Front. There's a bomb set to go off in your building in five minutes."

Police believe a tough new type of radical dedicated to violence is responsible for the terrorist attacks.

FEDERAL BUILDINGS, General Motors offices, Bank of America branches, oil company buildings, schools and brokerage houses have been the targets.

"We expect more of the same kind of thing," Capt. Larry Stuefloten, head of police intelligence in San Jose, said in an interview before Thursday night's explosion. "We believe the extremists are working to exploit hard times against the establishment, Watergate and that kind of thing."

San Francisco Police Lt. Richard Klapp said a pipe bomb containing TNT went off in a stairwell on a side of the KRON building. He said damage was confined to that area.

"I felt the explosion on the fourth floor," said newsman Curt Rutter. "I heard a good-sized kaboom and felt vibrations."

The building was not vacated despite the warning, Francis A. Martin III, station operations manager, said about 40 people were inside.

Klapp said another station, KGO-TV, received a bomb threat earlier in the day, but police searched the building and found no device.

HE SAID THE KRON bombing seemed related to a New World Liberation Front communique received Tuesday by radio station KPFA in Berkeley that was critical of broadcast station programming. It said in part:

"Our objective is a socialist revolution in order to serve the interest of poor people. We're not going to accept that you parasites 'give' and 'aid' us except in 'giving' us miserable crumbs and 'aiding' the continuance of those miserable conditions in your dog eat dog narrow world. And your programming. We that know you, Rockefeller, controlling figure in Standard Oil of California, control CBS and RCA which controls NBC. ABC is controlled by another wealthy New York family, fellow parasites of yours."

KGO is affiliated with ABC and KRON is affiliated with NBC.

IN THE SAME communique, the New World Liberation Front claimed responsibility for other bombings this week in the bay area — a $100,000 blast at a San Jose office building Monday and a minor explosion at an Air Force radar station near Half Moon Bay on Tuesday. No injuries were reported.

Police believe the group is a stepchild of Weatherman, which splintered from Students for a Democratic Society in the 1960s.

'Lenient' Judge To Face Hearing

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Municipal Court Judge Robert J. Cooney was prevented by court order Thursday from carrying out a vow to dismiss all speeding tickets issued by the California Highway Patrol.

Cooney disclosed Wednesday that he had dismissed a speeding ticket because the patrol declined to cite or discipline two of its out-of-uniform officers who were stopped for speeding with then-Gov. Ronald Reagan as a passenger.

SHE CAME UP AND SAW THEM

BEVERLY HILLS (UPI) — Invading the traditionally all male Hollywood Friar's Club roast Thursday night, Mae West received a standing ovation when she made an unplanned appearance.

Miss West, wearing a white coat over a floor length white and black paneled dress, was the only woman present at the roast, which poked fun at George Raft.

Others attending the roast at the Beverly Hilton were Cary Grant, Buddy Hackett, Telly Savalas and Don Rickles.

Shootout Victims Honored at Rites

OCEANSIDE (AP) — David R. Terrell and Leland Phelps, victims of a bizarre four-hour confrontation, have been buried side-by-side.

Terrell, 20, fired wildly at police all Monday afternoon before killing himself with a .22-caliber rifle. Phelps, 15, was shot to death by a San Diego County Sheriff's deputy who reportedly mistook him for Terrell.

"We're wearing the bandanas because that's what Lee Phelps was wearing when he got killed," said Ralph Hatcher, 15. Phelps was buried in his bandana.

One of the pallbearers at Thursday's service was Charles Ryan, whose house was commandeered by Terrell during the siege and whose young daughters had been taken hostage inside, but escaped unharmed. His wife, Elizabeth, also attended.

During the service at the Eternal Hills Memorial Park, David Terrell Sr., the sniper's father, got into a shoving match with a television cameraman and was restrained by Willard M. Underwood, Phelps' father.

"You're not wanted here and you better go," Terrell warned. "There better not be any pictures taken here. That is an invasion of privacy."

"How come my electric bill is so high? And we've been using less."

We know your electric bill is higher. A lot higher—even though you're conserving electricity. Why? Primarily because of the increased cost of oil.

It's our job to provide the electricity you, your family and your job require. And we must do so in a manner that meets all air pollution control regulations. This means burning foreign, low-sulfur oil in Edison generating plants. The price is set by foreign governments, and it more than tripled in the last 18 months. It could go even higher. Since January, 1972, the increasing costs of oil and the additional amounts we have had to buy are responsible for almost 90% of the increase in your electric bills.

So we won't always be so dependent on foreign oil, we're spending millions of dollars building coal and nuclear plants. We are also researching new ways to generate electricity—without foreign oil. Geothermal power. Solar power. Fuel cells. Fast breeder reactors. Nuclear fusion. Research is costly, but it will also help to reduce our reliance on foreign oil.

Projects related to the environment are expensive, too, and in 1974 will account for about 20% of our capital expenditures. In the past six years, $325 million were required to be spent for such projects. It looks like we will have to spend another $450 million for environmental purposes within the next four-year period.

On top of all this, inflation is eating into our budget—as it is yours. The cost of constructing new plants is 10 times higher than it was a few years ago, and borrowing costs have more than doubled.

Your electric bill will reflect these rising costs. What can you do to hold down your bill? Budget your use of electricity wisely. For ways to do this, send for our free booklet. Write: "Conservation," Edison, P.O. Box 800, Rosemead, CA 91770.

Board Honors Two Realtors

Bruce E. Howey, Newport Beach realtor and resident of Costa Mesa, was named 1974 "Realtor of the Year", and Barbara W. Aune, realtor-associate of the Macnab-Irvine Realty Company, received the "Realtor-Associate Service Award" during the Newport Harbor-Costa Mesa Board of Realtors 44th Annual Awards dinner-dance at the Balboa Pavilion.

Howey retired from the Navy in 1964, and entered the real estate business that same year with the Semple Real Estate Company in Corona del Mar. In addition to the local board, he holds membership in the California Association of Realtors, the National Association of Realtors, the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers, and the Society of Exchange Counselors.

He belongs to the Orange Coast Exchangors, the California Association of Real Estate Teachers, the Real Estate Certificate Institute, and is a Graduate, Realtors Institute (GRI).

Aune has been a resident of Newport Beach since 1952, and first entered the real estate industry in 1966 as an associate of Ruth Pardoll, realtor. She has been a consistent producer through the real estate board multiple listing service, and served as an instructor of multiple listing rules and regulations in their orientation classes for all new members.

Spanish Accent On New GM Car

DETROIT (UPI) — There's a strong Spanish accent in Detroit's auto industry now that General Motors has zeroed in on Seville as the name for its new "baby Cadillac."

UPI has learned that Seville, a city in southwest Spain, was selected after GM's top brass tossed out an earlier pick — the La Salle which was a less-expensive version of the Cadillac prior to World War II. They were afraid it would bear the stigma of being a cheap Cadillac which it is not with its $12,000 price tag.

Seville is the third Spanish name selected by Detroit auto makers this year to put on entirely new cars.

Ford went to Granada for its new luxury compact and Chrysler went to Cordoba for its new mid-sized Chrysler. Like the Cordoba, Americans are sure to murder the Spanish name of Cadillac's new car.

Chrysler calls it the Cordoe-ba with the accent on the second syllable while its Cord-a-va in Spanish with the accent on the first syllable.

In any case, the four-door sedan goes on sale May 1. It has lots of glass area and is 28 inches shorter than the standard Cadillac at 203 inches. GM hopes to build 25,000 Sevilles during the current model year with a two-door model expected in the next model year.

Miller In Lead With 69

PALM SPRINGS (AP) — Front-running Johnny Miller rallied on his back nine for a 69 and stretched his lead to three strokes Thursday in the second round of the $160,000 Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic.

Newport Beach's Alan Tapie is still in the thick of it, although he dropped six strokes off the pace with a 139 after shooting 71 Thursday.

Huntington Beach's Ray Carasco is six strokes further down the line at 145 with his 72.

Miller, who scored such sensational successes in the first two tournaments of the year, got one in the water on the front side but played his last nine in 33 and put together a two-round total of 133, a distant 11 under par.

Tom Shaw, who hasn't won in three years, had the best round of the bright, warm, sunny day, a six-under-par 66 and moved into a tie for second in this long tournament with a 136.

Skinny Mac McLendon was tied with him after another 68. Arnold Palmer, meanwhile, encountered some more putting miseries and slipped to a par 72.

Palmer, a five-time winner of this five-day, 90-hole event and a sentimental favorite to do it again, was an extremely frustrated man after falling seven shots back at 140.

"I don't know that I've ever played a better round of golf,' Palmer said. "It was just the putting. It was so frustrating. . ."

He paused, flashed the famous smile, and, in a mock serious voice proclaimed:

"I became extremely annoyed I came close to losing my temper."

Australian veteran Bruce Crampton, John Mahaffey, Miller Barber, rookie Bill Rogers and Tom Jenkins were at 137, one stroke behind Shaw and McLendon.

Mahaffey had a 67, Rogers 68, Barber and Crampton 69 and Jenkins 71 in the almost ideal playing conditions.

All of the leaders but Shaw, McLendon and Crampton played at Tamarisk, one of the four desert courses being used for the first four days of this unique event. Crampton was at La Quinta, Shaw at Bermuda Dunes and McLendon at Indian Wells.

All of the courses are within a six-mile radius of this desert resort.

Bruins, SC Test Oregon Fives

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — A year ago, unbeaten UCLA paid its annual visit to the Willamette Valley and lost to Oregon State and Oregon, shocking the collegiate basketball world.

Now UCLA, ranked second in the nation, is back for another weekend series against the Oregon schools and this time first place in the Conference is at stake.

"This is the biggest weekend of basketball since I've been at Oregon State," said OSU coach Ralph Miller, who is in his fifth year at the Corvallis school.

Oregon State and UCLA share the Pac-8 lead with 4-1 records and face each other tonight. Meanwhile, 40 miles away, eighth-ranked Southern California goes against ninth-rated Oregon in a conference game at Eugene. Both are 3-2 and tied for third place behind Stanford, now 4-2.

The teams swap opponents Saturday.

Miller figures Oregon State must win both games. "We can't really count on winning two in Los Angeles, so, logically, we need to win two this weekend," he said. "If we can win a couple, the pressure will be on them when we go south for the rematches next weekend."

Oregon State upset UCLA 61-57 last year in Corvallis, ending the Bruins' 50-game Pac-8 winning streak. Oregon followed with a 56-51 win over the perennial NCAA champions the following day.

Channel 5 at 8

"There is a tendency to take away from UCLA because Bill Walton and Keith Wilkes are gone," Miller said. "I'd be the last to minimize the loss, but I can promise you this team isn't exactly helpless without them."

To whip the Bruins, Miller said Oregon State must do things — "We have to control tempo, we have to keep them off the boards and we have to beat the press.

"UCLA is playing more like it did before Walton. It is putting more emphasis on getting a shot off the break and it is exploiting quickness."

UCLA coach John Wooden described Oregon and Oregon State as "outstanding basketball teams that are capable of beating us."

Bayi Leads Spike Aces At Forum

INGLEWOOD (AP) — Filbert Bayi runs like a man being chased by a tiger.

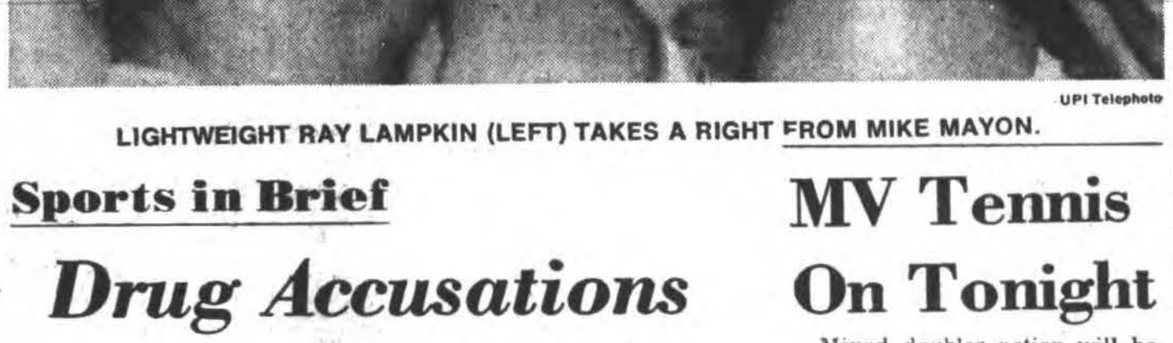

As soon as the gun goes off in a distance race the slender Bayi leaps to the front unlike almost any other runner in history. Distance races are traditionally strategic, with runners jockeying for position and fearful of taking the lead — "doing all the work," some call it.

He's heavily favored to win the mile tonight at the Los Angeles Times Indoor Games in the Forum.

At last year's Commonwealth Games, Bayi set a torrid pace and won the 1,500-meters in 3:32.2, breaking Jim Ryun's record which had stood nearly a decade. The time is equivalent to a mile in under 3:50. Bayi really doesn't know what he's capable of and that's part of the reason Rod Dixon and his other foes Friday night, Steve Prefontaine and John Walker, are rated underdogs.

The Times Games won't only be a mile race. The regular contingent of Pacific Coast Club world record holders will be on hand: high jumper Dwight Stones, shot putters Al Feuerbach and George Woods, quarter-miler Jim Bolding and middle distance runner Francie Larrieu.

The shorter races, such as the 60-yard dash and the high hurdles, will be run in heats with finals for the qualifiers. The two-mile features two former stars — Tracy Smith and John Lawson.

Drug Accusations Are Unfounded

ST. LOUIS — A federal investigation revealed a series of drug charges made by a 19-year-old woman against a number of National Football League players are unfounded, a federal drug official said today.

Thomas Maher, special agent in charge of the Drug Enforcement Administration office here, said a thorough investigation into charges made by Roxie Ann Rice "concerning the trafficking of drugs" do not in any way substantiate her allegations.

UCI Girl Stars

TORQUAY, England (AP) — The United States' women's team took a 1-0 lead over Britain in the final of an under-21 tennis tournament today when UCI Irvine's Lindsay Morse topped Annette Coe 6-2, 6-2.

Morse was helped by the British under-21 champoin's three double faults in the opening game and display of nervousness throughout the 55-minute match.

Decision to Lampkin

PORTLAND — Portland's Ray Lampkin scored a unanimous 10-round decision Thursday night over San Diego's Miguel "Mike" Mayon in a tune-up for his lightweight title fight next month against world champion Roberto Duran.

The judges scored it 100-94, 100-93 and 98-94 for the 27-year-old Lampkin, who will meet Duran in Panama Mar. 2.

There were no knockdowns. Lampkin was staggered with an overhand right in the opening round but later stunned his younger opponent several times without putting him down.

Worthy Shines

SANTA BARBARA — With ex-Huntington Beach High star Jim Worthy scoring 23 points, Biola's Eagles remained unbeaten in NAIA District 3 northern division play Thursday night by notching an 86-68 triumph over Westmont.

Biola improved its District 3 record to 7-0 and went 18-4. Overall while Westmont slipped to 7-13.

Cards Win

PULLMAN, Wash. — The Stanford Cardinals defeated Washington State 71-58 Thursday night in a Pacific-8 Conference basketball game, despite the efforts of Cougar Steve Puidokas, who scored 23 points.

The Cougars took an early lead before Stanford coach Howie Dallmar went to a zone defense. The Cardinals moved in front for good with a Rich Kelley jumper from the base line 10 minutes into the game.

Bears Routed

SEATTLE — Paced by the inside shooting of James Edwards and the outside scoring of Clarence Ramsey, the University of Washington routed the California Golden Bears 83-57 Thursday night in a Pacific-8 Conference basketball game.

Ramsey and Edwards each totaled 17 points and Lars Hansen added 13 as Washington won its second conference game in six outings.

Fence Raised

SAN FRANCISCO — The outfield fence at Candlestick Park will be raised in height from eight feet to 12 before the 1975 baseball season opens.

Lakers on TV

BUFFALO — The Los Angeles Lakers tackle Buffalo tonight in National Basketball Association action. It'll be televised on Channel 5 at 5.

Coach Bill Sharman will rejoin the Lakers after missing a pair of games due to the death of his father.

The Lakers split with New York and Philadelphia in that span.

MV Tennis On Tonight

Mixed doubles action will be highlighted tonight on the second day of the first annual Winter Tennis Carnival at the Marguerite Tennis Center in Mission Viejo with action from 5 to 10.

Women Threaten Boycott

NEW YORK — Billie Jean King and her association of women tennis pros gave Wimbledon one more chance Thursday to give them equal prize money with the men — or a promise of it — or face a boycott by the game's top players.

"Jerry Diamond, our executive director, and I are ready to fly to London to seek a compromise solution," the five time Wimbledon winner, president of the Women's Tennis Association, said, disclosing an overhelming vote by members to shun the event unless adjustments are made.

In London, Maj. David Mills, secretary of Wimbledon's governing All-England Club, said, "The prize money has been settled and there will be no alteration."

Laver Wins

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Strong service returns and volleying enabled unseeded Rod Laver to oust third-seeded Ismail El Shafei 7-6, 6-2 Thursday night in the $50,000 Blue Group tournament of World Championship Tennis here.

Also, Alex Mayer defeated Australia's Colin Dibley 6-4, 6-2; Raul Pamirez halted Mike Estep 6-2, 6-1; and Roscoe Tanner downed Charlie Pasarell 6-3, 6-3.

Connors Hurt

NORTH LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — Jimmy Connors, the top seed in the $25,000 Arkansas Internatinonal Tennis tournament defaulted Thursday night after complaining of an inflammation in the area of his left knee.

In action Thursday, John Holladay served 11 aces in the second set and upset Jeff Austin, 6-3, 6-2.

Karl Meiler crushed Barry Phillips-Moore in a swift pair of 6-2 sets. And George Hardie of Long Beach eliminated Rumania's Ion Tiriac 7-6, 6-3.

Okker Rallies

BOLOGNA, Italy — Tom Okker came from behind to beat Buster Mottram 6-7, 6-1, 6-2 in the opening round of the $60,000 World Championship Tennis tournament here Thursday evening. Bob Giltinan edged Jose Higueras, 7-6, 6-3 and Onny Parun beat Sherwood Stewart 6-3, 7-5.

UCI Hosts Pomona

UC Irvine returns home for the first time in three weeks tonight, hosting Pomona-Pitzer in college basketball action. It begins at 8.

UCI's Anteaters have found the going rough on the road, losing four of five. But they figure to handle the Sagehens tonight.

Pomona comes into the game with a 6-9 record while UCI is 11-7.

Get Sledgehammer For Big 10 Games

Lute Olson, former Marina High and Cal State University (Long Beach) basketball coach has a nifty piece of work cut out for his University of Iowa basketball team the next three days.

Saturday night the Hawkeyes roll out the welcome mat for Indiana, the nation's No. 1 rated college quintet. And Monday night they take on Ohio State, also at Iowa.

"Is playing Indiana like running into a buzz saw?," I asked

GLENN WHITE

WHITE WASH

Olson during a telephone interview Thursday. "Yeah," he retorted. "Haven't you seen them? They're awesome. They keep the pressure on you so strongly and they play with great intensity.

"They blitzed us in Bloomington 102-49 but we're still sold out (13,700) for Saturday night's game. In fact, we'll come back with another crowd of over 13,000 Monday night."

Olson says his Hawkeyes can compete with almost anyone at Iowa because of the immense homecourt advantage Big 10 schools seem to enjoy.

"You go to other arenas in the conference and you don't see many friendly faces in those giant crowds. It's tough for any of the visiting teams' fans to get tickets. We called to get tickets for our fans three weeks from now when we play at Minnesota and we can't get anything — their 17,000-seat fieldhouse is sold out already.

"Those crowds really seem to intimidate the players," Olson says.

"Is the Big 10 tough?," Olson asks. "It's like the NBA without NBA officials. You need a sledgehammer if you are a big man."

Olson is in his first year as head coach and he's been besieged by injuries, including a broken hand suffered by ex-Long Beach Millikan star Dan Frost. Frost was leading Iowa in assists, scoring and rebounds when hurt.

The team's top two guards were also injured.

But Olson will have his entire team back for next season and he's only a victory away this year from tying last season's win mark. Iowa is currently 7-10.

One of the big wins was a 53-44 upset of Minnesota and the Hawkeyes only lost by four at Ohio State.

Olson has his eye out for a big man and one of the candidates is Los Amigos High's Tom Schneiderjohn. "A good big man could probably come in and play for us a lot as a freshman," Olson says.

Olson also vigorously denies rumors that he will be the next head coach at San Diego State. "My contract here is for four years and I have no intention now of leaving sooner," he says.

"I'm happier here than I've been anywhere for a long time. And so is my family. I have two daughters at the University of Iowa and they've already said if we move, they stay.

"It's not easy to get things turned around against this kind of competition but if we could win 12 or 13 games this year it would be a step in the right direction."

Public Donations Save SF Prep Sports

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco is applying a bandage of donated dollars to a budget cut calling for an end to after-school sports in the city's nine high schools and 17 junior high schools.

Early contributions totaling about $50,000 by Thursday had assured completion of the high school basketball schedule and following baseball and spring football seasons.

From the city publicity and advertising fund, Mayor Joseph L. Alioto diverted $24,000 to pay for continuation of drama, music, debate and other high school after-hour extra-curricular activities that were eliminated along with sports. The mayor said he's seeking an additional $19,000 to save these nonsports programs in junior high schools, too.

Meanwhile, students were signing strike petitions and scheduled a meeting for Monday.

The Board of Education voted 6-1 Tuesday night to pare this year's budget to a total of $122 million. Knocking out the sports programs accounted for about $204,000 in a $1.6 million budget slash, but about $2.2 million must still be trimmed to keep the district in the black.

School board president Lucille Abrahamson says the problem is the 1972 Property Tax Reform Law, which ties school district revenues in California to student enrollment. Student numbers have declined sharply here and as a result, school officials say the law has failed to provide the district with enough money to cope with inflation.

"Next year will be chaotic," she said, referring to estimates the budget deficit of the San Francisco district could mount to $20 million.

While Mrs. Abrahamson pleaded for new legislation, state Sen. Milton Marks introduced a bill at Sacramento to require all school districts to have both intramural and interschool athletic programs with the state paying the cost.

"Many school districts throughout California are facing the same difficulty," Marks said.

Grenade Sawed From Girl's Finger

MIAMI (UPI) — A little girl got her finger stuck in a hand grenade and authorities were faced with this decision Thursday:

Amputate her finger because the grenade could explode, or take a chance the grenade wouldn't blow up, and saw it off to save the finger.

Doctors at American Hospital, where 9-year-old Laura Salvan was brought by her parents, debated what to do for 3½ hours.

The World War I grenade was used as a paperweight, and Laura had absent-mindedly stuck her left-hand ring finger into a hole in it Wednesday night while watching television.

The doctors, fearing the grenade might contain live explosives, decided to amputate.

But a fire department rescue squad asked the doctors to wait and consult a bomb squad.

Newton Porter of the sheriff's bomb squad and police technician Tommy Carroll, who were called in, disagreed with the doctors. Saw off the grenade, they argued. Chances are it will not blow up. The doctors agreed.

"Tommy and I took her on a stretcher to the maintenance room, put the grenade in a vise and we sawed — very carefully," Porter said.

He said Laura did not speak at all during the sawing, which took 15 minutes. The grenade did not explode.

It came off and Laura's finger was saved. A later examination of the grenade, nearly 60 years old, indicated it was not explosive.

Laura walked into the hospital waiting room and was given a big hug by her mother.

"It's just part of the job," Porter said. "We didn't want to see the little girl hurt."

Porter said Laura was "pretty relieved" when she removed her finger from the grenade, but didn't say anything more than "gosh" or "great" when the operation was over.

"She was quite dazed," Porter said of the mother. "I didn't think she realized it was all over."

County's Jobless Soaring

By GARY GRANVILLE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Unemployment in Orange county reached an all time high in January when there 62,500 persons out of work and the unemployment rate jumped to 8.1 percent.

And, according to state labor analysist Alta Eldridge, the end of a sharp decline in employment that began six months ago isn't in sight.

U.S. UNEMPLOYMENT HITS 8.2%. Story, Page A4.

"Every indicator we have tells us things will get worse before they get better," Mrs. Eldridge said.

Included among those indicators are forecasts received from employers who say they see fewer rather than more jobs on the horizon.

Mrs. Eldridge also mentioned that new employers are not coming to Orange County as rapidly as they did the last two years when unemployment dropped after a series of aerospace layoffs hit the job market in the early 1970s.

Hardest hit last month when the number of jobless climbed by 9,900 persons were retail trade and service industries.

Both were hit hard by expected seasonal layoffs in department stores and at amusement parks that thrive on tourist trade.

But the job losses were across the board, in manufacturing, construction, government, and other service industries as well as in retail trade and amusement park operations.

The construction industry continued in an employment slump that began two years ago.

In January, 1974, there were 28,400 employed in the building trades. Last month, the total employed in construction was 24,900.

Mrs. Eldridge's gloomy monthly report was accented by predictions of a worsening situation on the Orange County labor market.

How much worse?

"I wouldn't be surprised to see the unemployment rate reach 9

FENRICK WELLS MOVES DRUM IN WHICH BODY FOUND
Orange County Sheriff's Officer Takes Custody of Barrel

Male Nurse Charged In Woman's Death

A 40-year-old immigrant from Lebanon — married only about six months — was scheduled for arraignment on murder charges late today in connection with the battering death of a Corona del Mar millionaire's wife whose body was found stuffed under concrete in an old oil drum.

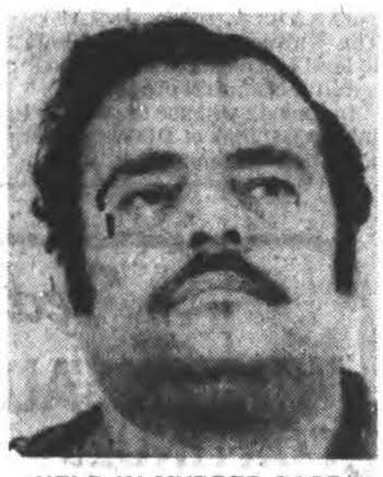

Daniel Garbis Bedelian of Glendale, a male nurse who had the night shift in caring for 67-year-old Wrigley chewing gum heir, A.G. Atwater, is being held in the death of Mrs. Nancy Atwater.

Police allege that Bedelian bludgeoned the wealthy woman to death sometime before dawn Wednesday and later in the day stuffed her body into an oil drum at a Pacoima junk yard. He then assertedly filled the barrel with wet cement.

Newport Beach detectives said today they were under strict orders not to discuss any alleged motive in the killing, and they have said only that a dispute may have erupted at the Atwater home at 4633 Perham Drive early Wednesday morning.

Atwater, whose sister is married to Wrigley board Chairman P.K. Wrigley Jr., was a member of the corporate structure which includes chewing gum manufacuring, land holdings and ownership of the Chicago Cubs baseball team.

Described by police as suffering from severe mental illness,

Atwater has been confined for several years in his home in Cameo Shores.

Officers said they first arrived at the home shortly before noon Wednesday after the day nurse who attends Atwater became alarmed at Mrs. Atwater's absence.

The day nurse, David Jacobsen, told police he arrived as usual at 8 a.m. and noticed fresh paint on wallpaper and walls at the expensive Atwater home. Jacobsen reportedly told police that Bedelian told him Mrs. Atwater had left earlier

STOCKS ERASE EARLY LOSSES

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market closed slightly lower today in the slowest trading in two weeks on the New York Stock Exchange because of profit taking and concern over rising unemployment.

The Dow Jones industrial average lost 2.26 points to 711.91. It had been down more than 10 at the outset.

Declines led advances by about an four-to-three margin. (Tables, B5).

Prices also were lower in sluggish trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Ford 'Doubted'

Colson Quotes Nixon Concern

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former White House aide Charles W. Colson said today that Richard M. Nixon talked seriously in December 1973 about resigning as president but expressed doubt about whether Gerald Ford could handle the job.

Nixon was particularly concerned about whether Ford could control Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, Colson said.

In an interview on the NBC "Today" program, Colson quoted Nixon as saying "maybe what this country needs is a nice clean Jerry Ford. The trouble with Jerry Ford is it would take him two years just to get up speed. Also, Jerry's greatest difficulty is he couldn't control Henry Kissinger.

"You know, Henry really is unstable at times," Colson quoted Nixon as saying.

Kissinger was asked about Colson's comments as he left the White House today. He told reporters, as he stepped into his car, that "I will not dignify that with a comment." He then headed back for the State Department.

Colson, recently released from federal prison after serving seven months of a one-to-three year sentence for obstruction of justice, said Nixon made the comments during a conversation on Dec. 18, 1973.

Bradley Attacks Oil Grab

BEVERLY HILLS (AP) — Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley said today it would be "irresponsible to sell America's publicly owned oil resources" without a comprehensive national energy policy.

Bradley spoke in opposition on behalf of the Council of Local Governments to a proposal by the U.S. Department of the Interior to lease 10 million acres of offshore land for oil drilling, including 1.6 million acres off California.

He said the 41 cities and counties in the council adopted a three-point resolution which calls for opposition to the federal proposal until three things happened: (1) a comprehensive national and regional energy policy has been formulated; (2) the Department of Interior submits its proposed oil development program to the affected state, regional and local agencies for review; and (3) Congress has enacted legislation strengthening existing laws related to oil development on the outer continental shelf.

"I want to be very clear that we do not necessarily oppose the concept of development and use of the oil on the outer continental shelf," Bradley said.

"We do oppose the haste with which it is being undertaken, particularly with regard to the lack of understanding of the true value of this resource — a value which can only be determined within the context of a comprehensive national energy policy."

Bradley told the Interior Department hearing board in the auditorium at the El Rodeo Elementary School that originally he had been given only three weeks to review a "highly technological" 1,300-page draft prior to public hearings set for mid-November.

He said it was only after local officials were able to meet with Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton that a 60-day delay in the hearings was granted.

Douglas Strike On For Monday

By PATTY BURNETT
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The strike call is on for one minute after midnight on Monday for 1,500 aerospace workers at the Huntington Beach plant of McDonnell Douglas.

Only a change in management's position might stave off the strike by Local 720 of the International Association of Machinists, a union official said today.

The union represents a total of 7,000 workers in McDonnell Douglas plants throughout Southern California. Those workers and others at the company's St. Louis facility.

Union officials said the company's estimate earlier this week of 900 IAM members at its Huntington Beach facility is incorrect. The union has more than 1,500 members locally, they said.

Leonard Loomis, assistant business representative of the union, explained how the call for strike came about.

"Last Sunday we held a mass meeting of our membership and presented the company's latest written proposal (from the previous Wednesday). The members rejected it by 77 percent and voted to strike," Loomis said.

On Thursday the union's negotiating committee took that authorization to strike and made it official for Monday, he continued.

Between the two actions union officials tried to renew talks with management, Loomis said, but were told the company "wasn't interested in going all through it again."

In contrast, a a spokesman for the Huntington Beach facility said McDonnell Douglas was willing to continue to negotiate

UC Faculty Member Tells About Letter

State Sen. Dennis Carpenter probably did not realize he was writing to a UC Irvine medical faculty member when he purportedly said Orange County's $5.5 million price for Orange County Medical was "blackmail," the recipient of the letter said Thursday.

Dr. Robert Pfeffer, an assistant professor of neurology, said the Jan. 31 letter from Carpenter was in response to a letter he wrote to the senator Jan. 17.

Carpenter said Wednesday he does not recall the letter and does not know Pfeffer. One source said the letter probably was written by a member of Carpenter's staff detailing views previously expressed by the senator.

UCI-California College of Medicine plans to buy the Medical Center for use as a teaching hospital. Additionally, the school plans to reduce the 524-bed facility by 200 beds and build a 200-bed hospital on the UCI campus.

The letter repeated previous statements by Carpenter that he will oppose the on-campus hospital if it will compete with

Helps the Troubled, Zelda Says

By ARTHUR R. VINSEL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A silent courtroom gallery listened Thursday as Church of Astrolight founder Zelda Pryor, 75, testified that the tiny sanctuary in her home is no paying business, but a place where the troubled may find comfort and counsel based on the universal truths.

The Maine-born astrologist and spiritualist is on trial for allegedly violating a Costa Mesa city ordinance forbidding acceptance of pay for any form of occult practice.

She looked small and hunchbacked in the big witness chair, but her cheeks were pink, her eyes glittered and her jaw jutted proudly forward.

Defense attorney Donald Smallwood crossed in front of Harbor Judicial District Court Judge Betty Lou Lamoureaux and handed Mrs. Pryor one of 34 books she has published.

He had marked a spot and asked her to read.

"In my Father's house are many mansions, with the same light shining through. . ." she intoned, her voice holding a hint of the old Maine accent.

She continued reading the text, a form of credo based on the universal religious truths, which she says are spoken to her inwardly by spirits so she may write them down.

She claims no personal authorship.

One fashionably dressed woman juror leaned forward — her brows knitted sadly — as the old lady recited her beliefs that all elements of religions since the dawn of time knit together into God's divine plan woven for the universe.

By the time she finished the 30 lines, the lady juror had discreetly shielded her eyes with her hand.

"Your Honor. . . the defense rests," said Smallwood.

The trial was scheduled to resume this afternoon, and could possibly conclude today, depending upon re-questioning with final arguments to the six-man, six-woman jury.

The people's case was rested by Assistant City Attorney Robert Campagna at noon Thursday, whereupon Smallwood submitted a motion to Judge Lamoureux for a direct acquittal.

He claims the all-encompassing Costa Mesa city ordinance — describing it in the words of Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas on another law as a Meat Ax Ordinance — is far too broad.

(See OCCULT, Page A2)

Smallwood said the statute which bans more than a score of specific practices dealing with the occult does not even have the saving grace of exempting certain religious matters which could be related.

"I submit that under the ordinance, an unscrupulous police department and an unscrupulous city government could prosecute any orthodox minister who counseled a young person and accepted a church donation," he said.

Both Detective Dick Bowman and paid police agent-informant Mrs. Cindee Seidel, who first set the elderly woman up for arrest, have testified Mrs. Pryor seemed sincere in discussing their stated problems during an interview.

Smallwood argued that the ordinance is also in violation of both U.S. and state constitutional guarantees of freedoms of speech, worship and the right to make a living.

The motion was denied, but for re-submission later.

"That's a doozy," prosecutor Campagna declared of arguments that Mrs. Pryor is being deprived of her right to make a living by requiring that she only give astrological readings and counsel free.

He compared it to a case of prosecuting prostitution, in which the law forbids prostitution, although presumably the woman would be free to do whatever she pleased as long as she did not charge.

"What we are prohibiting is 'the business' of practicing these Black Arts in Costa Mesa," Campagna said of the long list of disciplines, beliefs, talents or alleged abilities which are forbidden if paid for.

"When they begin charging others, they come into contact with ordinance," said Campagna.

A donation of $15 is accepted by Mrs. Pryor, but she says it is to help supplement upkeep of her home and sanctuary at 499 Cabrillo St., and publishing costs.

"I hate to do it," she testified. "The sign says donations. But I give them two hours of talking about their wives and boyfriends. . .There's no charge. If I would charge I'd be in business and I'm not in business."

She testified she has often served clients free.

"Do you think I'm persecuting you?" Assistant City Attorney Campagna asked at one point.

"No, I like you," Zelda replied, asking for his birthdate so she could prepare an astrological chart for him.

Testimony was also given Thursday by Burton Morse, a nationally known professional astrologer from Balboa, and Dr. and Mrs. John Hauser, a surgeon and his wife married by Rev. Pryor on Christmas Day, 1973 in the Cabrillo Street church.

"How many ordinations have you had?" Campagna asked Rev. Pryor, after establishing she has legitimate credentials in several spiritualist churches.

"Why I've had them everywhere, because all paths lead to God," she replied.

but the union was balking.

The primary demand of the union is for "parity" with other aerospace workers. Loomis said McDonnell Douglas employes are paid about 5.5 percent less than others in the industry, or about 31 cents less per hour.

Housing Plan

Council Holds Fund Hearing

Subsidized housing, a minibus system, and dormitories at Orange Coast College — these were some of the suggestions made at another public hearing in Costa Mesa on community development funds.

The hearing, conducted by the city council, was part of the application process for $4 million in federal funds to improve housing for those on moderate or low incomes.

The meeting also was attended by the citizen Community Development Committee which will make recommendations to the council on how the funds should be spent.

The council is due to vote on whether to proceed with the application at its Feb. 18 meeting.

Members of the Share Our Selves program at St. John the Baptist Catholic Church, Costa Mesa, who in the past have urged the city to join the Orange County Housing Authority or form its own housing authority, repeated their appeal Wednesday night.

Mrs. Jean Forbarth pointed out that subsidized housing is arranged through a housing authority, and that it does not result in the subsidized homes being located in a particular district, which, she said, many people apparently feared.

There were indications Wednesday night that the council may be changing its stance on subsidized housing.

Deputy Mayor Jack Hammett said, "We had priorities at the time, but at no time did we close down the idea of our own authority. That's something we are all going to school on."

At another point, Councilman Dom Raciti said, "This is what this program is all about, bringing homes up to code and then having subsidized homes."

Speakers said that subsidized housing would be scattered throughout the city. The way a housing authority works is for the agency to guarantee a year's rent to a landlord and to pay, as a subsidy, the difference between the rent and 25 percent of a family's income.

Another speaker, Beth Talbert, said that a minibus system, tieing in with Orange County Transit District lines, would be a benefit to the elderly.

Wayne Hunter suggested more housing for the elderly and the support of dormitories at OCC for students who can't afford apartments.

The Newport-Mesa Unified School District also informed the city that it was planning to provide more classes for senior citizens.

with an unidentified man. Jacobsen added that Bedelian identified red stains in the house as cranberry juice he spilled.

Later in the morning, Jacobsen said his concern was heightened when Mrs. Atwater's lawyer phoned to report that she did not show up for a scheduled court hearing in Santa Ana. That hearing was the latest apeparance in a lengthy battle over control of Atwater's fortune.

At that point, the day nurse phoned police. Officers examined the expensive house and found signs of a violent and bloody struggle.

Later in the day, Bedelian arrived at the wrecking yard in his 1968 Cadillac which allegedly contained three sacks of cement and the victim's body.

Yardworker Pete Seropian said that Bedelian called him Wednesday afternoon and asked for an empty metal drum saying he wanted to mix cement and fill it so he could have a weight for the front of his truck.

Police allege that Bedelian stuffed Mrs. Atwater's body into the drum, filled it with cement and left. Police were already in Glendale looking for the male nurse and found him at about 4 p.m. at an intersection a few blocks from his home.

After a trip to Newport Beach police headquarters and an interview ewith investigators, Bdelian was booked on a murder charge and police drove to the wrecking yard.

They found the barrel, three empty cement sacks and several blood stained paper towels. Investigators also found Mrs. Atwater's remains still clad in nightclothes in the barrel.

Workers at the junkyard were quoted as describing Bedelian, whom they knew, as "a nice guy." He was one of several male nurses employed over the years at the household to provide 24-hour attendance for the confined heir whose mental problem began many years ago, according to Newport Beach Detective Capt. Richard Hamilton.

Although wealthy, the couple had no car, and Mrs. Atwater rarely left home except for trips to a beauty shop, to the doctor or for appearances in court, police said.

Hoag Memorial Hospital in Newport Beach.

Pfeffer said he does not have a copy of the Jan. 17 letter he wrote to Carpenter.

However, he described its contents as asking Carpenter to oppose a suggestion by Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post that the UCI med school be closed and its operations be combined with those at UC Davis.

Pfeffer wrote the letter from his home address and speculates that Carpenter may have assumed he was a physician in private practice.

Carpenter's response, said Pfeffer, "was a little tangential to what I wrote him about."

Pfeffer said he cannot understand how the reply on Carpenter's letterhead was made public. The original, he said, is still in his office files at the Orange County Medical Center.

Planners Nix Name Change For Streets

The first attempt to turn streets with one alignment but two names into one-name streets was strongly resisted by residents of 22nd Street at a recent Costa Mesa planning commission meeting.

They objected to changing 22nd Street to Victoria Street so that the continuous thoroughfare would have one name.

In protesting, one resident said that he had heard the change was being proposed "at the whim of one councilman."

The proposal was turned down, but this week the issue came up at a city council meeting and Deputy Mayor Jack Hammett owned up to being the councilman with the notion of bringing street names into conformity.

But he denied that his intention is capricious. He said that clearer names would aid drivers of emergency vehicles.

Citing Rochester Street and Paularino Avenue as examples of streets where a mixture of names can cause confusion, Hammett said, "When people's lives are in the balance, it's critical that emergency vehicles don't make wrong turns."

He added, "It's a touchy subject and the easy thing to do would be not to address it. The reason is valid, though it may traumatic for a while."

The council decided to take no action on 22nd Street, but to ask the staff to prepare a list of the streets in the city which have more than one name.

City Manager Fred Sorsabal said that there are about 20 to 25 such streets.

The list will be presented to the council at its next meeting. Councilman Alvin L. Pinkley said that the next step would be to meet with homeowner groups to see how they feel about changing street names.

Planning Director William Dunn pointed out that, when names are changed, streets are double posted — with the new and the old names — for a year.

West Agrees To Oil Cut

PARIS (AP) — Major Western oil importing nations have agreed to cut crude oil imports this year by about 10 percent, or two million barrels per day, the president of the International Energy Agency said today.

Etienne Davignon of Belgium told a news conference after a meeting of the agency that the reduction is a rough figure based on measures already taken and expected to come into force among the agency's original 16 nations.

The ageney's three-day meeting ended, he said, with the expectation that a preliminary meeting for a conference between oil producers, consumers and developing nations could be held in March.

COLSON . . .

At the time, Nixon was resisting efforts to turn over additional White House tapes to Watergate prosecutors and House and Senate investigators.

Colson said, that during the same period, Nixon told him that he would resign if the U.S. Supreme Court ruled he had to surrender the tapes.

"He said he would not sit and preside over the destruction of the presidency," Colson said. "He said if he lost in Supreme Court on the tapes he would resign."

Colson said Nixon was confident that the Supreme Court and particularly the four justices Nixon appointed would support him.

The court ruled 8 to 0 in July 1974 that Nixon had to surrender the tapes.

Nixon resigned the presidency three weeks later.

Colson said Nixon's comment about Kissinger apparently was based on Kissinger's advocacy of an early resumption of the bombing of North Vietnam in December 1972.

Colson said Kissinger, then White House adviser for national security affairs, resumed secret negotiations in Paris with the North Vietnamese on Dec. 5, 1972 and immediately cabled Nixon: "Start the bombing immediately. These madmen have doublecrossed us."

Colson said Nixon showed him the Kissinger cable. He said Nixon rejected Kissinger's advice and told him to continue negotiating.

Assembly Raps Holiday

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblymen are unhappy because they will be given a holiday on Washington's Birthday, Feb. 17.

IT IS NOT the thought of missing work that is upsetting them, but the threatened loss of $120 each in tax-free expense allowances.

Legislative rules provide that each legislator receive $30-a-day expense allowances when in session, including weekends. But no expenses are allowed for occasions when more than three days pass without a meeting.

ASSEMBLYMEN shook their heads in dismay and grumbled when Speaker Leo McCarthy (D-San Francisco) told them just prior to Thursday's adjournment that the Washington Birthday holiday on a Monday would be observed by the assembly and there would be no session the preceding Friday.

Assemblyman Robert Badham (R-Newport Beach) took to his feet to ask, "That means we'll have a four-day recess?"

Reaction rippled across the chamber at the possible loss of $120 in expense payments for the four days off.

"I REALIZE the nature of the crisis, Mr. Badham," McCarthy replied. The speaker announced he would try to remedy the situation and report back later.

Hospital Workers Given New Contract

Operations at Kaiser Permanente prepaid health care clinics were returning to normal today following overwhelming approval Thursday of a "tops in the industry" pay pact by the striking Hospital and Service Employes union.

Nearly 4,200 workers walked off their jobs Monday at Kaiser's five hospitals and 14 clinics in Orange, Los Angeles and Ventura Counties. The plan, which caters largely to union health programs, has clinics in Orange and Garden Grove.

The final agreement, patched together by a team of three federal mediators, calls for 26 to 27.5 percent wage and fringe benefit hikes over the two-year contract.

Polled Thursday, the union membership backed the new agreement with a 3,105 to 375 vote.

Hospital and Service Employes president George Hardy termed the contract, which sets the lowest scale at $3.92 an hour, "tops in the industry."

The union covers nonprofessionals such as cooks, nursing aides, technicians and clerks. Doctors and registered nurses are not in the union.

Throughout the four-day strike, Kaiser maintained emergency and most continuing care operations despite the staff shortage.

Airport Land Panel Delays Toro Ruling

The Orange County Airport Land Use Commission's public hearing on land planning around El Toro Marine Corps Air Station opened Thursday night but won't close until March 6.

After listening to 45 minutes of testimony, the commission agreed to hold the hearing open until next month to allow further study of an environmental impact statement that wasn't completed until late last week.

The environmental statement covers a 23,000-acre land use plan that touches both unincorporated and city of Irvine land that surrounds the military air base.

The commission is empowered to implement whatever plan it adopts, subject to veto by the local agencies involved, to "forestall urban encroachment" on airports.

Irvine's City Council was critical of the El Toro plan when it was presented to it Tuesday night by commission planner Ken Delino.

However, in those months, the total number of unemployed ranged from 48,000 to 52,000. Last month's unemployment roll of 62,500 exceeded the former record high of 52,800, a mark reached in January, 1971.

Protests Pointless

One might want to sympathize with Costa Mesa councilmen for having to complete a statement of economic interests this past week as a result of Proposition 9, the disclosure law approved by voters last November, and another document required by the Moscone Conflict of Interests Act.

Since there is another disclosure law to contend with — the Waxman-Dymally Campaign Disclosure Act — it might at first appear that there is a case of overkill, as the councilmen vehemently protested last week.

But the councilmen were told that legislation is being introduced to repeal conflicts and overlaps among the laws. Furthermore, the Proposition 9 form that the councilmen had to fill in was relatively simple, though, of course, forms always seem foreboding.

Protests that declarations of income and holdings were not the American way also came across as a little foolish because, after all, it was the people of California who passed the legislation.

Control Warranted

Costa Mesa is taking steps to strengthen its ordinance on pawnbrokers, and judging from the growing number of the shops in the city the action does not come too soon.

The main change is to extend the holding period on merchandise left at a shop from five days to 21 days. The purpose of the holding period is to allow police time to check through a statewide system to determine if the merchandise is stolen. The day property is received by a broker he must furnish the police with a description and the serial number of the item so the check can be made.

Though the state minimum holding period is now 10 days, the average period in neighboring cities is 23 days so it is reasonable to extend Costa Mesa's requirement to 21 days.

Pawnbroking is a business that a city has a right to control — too many can lead to marginal practices as a result of the competition — and any regulations designed to prevent the receiving of stolen property must be enacted and rigorously enforced.

Conflict Resolved

The value of government in the way it can act as an intermediary between conflicting interests was exemplified in Costa Mesa this week.

For some weeks, there was a controversy over a proposal to rezone a half-acre parcel of property at Bristol Street and Presidio Drive from residential to commercial so a 24-hour restaurant could be built.

Residents from the Mesa Del Mar tract protested and the result was that meetings were held among the owner; Jerwel Enterprises, Santa Ana; the homeowners; and the city staff.

They worked out a compromise: a new commercial zone but with more limited uses, such as retail shops. Everyone went along with it and this week the council formally approved the rezoning of the property to the commercial limited zone.

Homeowners wrote to thank the city for its help. It was a credit to all involved and was a nice example of the benefits and purpose of zoning laws.

Food Fears

To the Editor:

Since the editorial appeared with regard to the unsanitary condition of many of the restaurants in Orange County, we have not been able to bring ourselves to "eat out," a custom which we have greatly enjoyed in our area, thinking that we have some of the finest restaurants anywhere.

WE WANT to add our voices to others expressing apprehension in "eating out" after having to face the reality that things behind the kitchen doors in most restaurants are so appalling. Can't the customer be protected in some way? Just knowing the condition exists can't be allowed to stop there.

Let the restaurants that have nothing to hide invite customer inspection—or perhaps we need checkers checking the checkers. There really seems no excuse for careless handling of food offered for public consumption, from either the persons handling food to the cleanliness of preparation areas, cooking or storage. — HELP. Not 'Scared'

To the Editor:

On Jan. 7, 1975, your paper ran an article titled "Precaution in Politics", which article centered around a letter to Mobil's California customers and vendors over my signature. The clear implication of the article is that big corporations are fretting about doing business with another party unless that party's politics are known. I do not believe you accurately grasp the true situation.

AFTER last June's election, a new body of law came into being — the Political Reform Act of 1974 (Proposition 9). This law requires every employer of a lobbyist in California to file monthly reports with the Secretary of State showing (among other things) the name and official position of any elective state official, state candidate, legislative official, state agency official or members of their immediate family with whom the lobbyists' employer had certain business transactions. Also required is a disclosure of the name and address of every business entity, in which one of the above categories of persons have a specified interest, with which the lobbyists' employer had certain business transactions. Mobil retains a lobbyist in Sacramento, as do about 500 other businesses and organizations such as labor groups, religious organizations, banks,peace officers groups, etc. As an employer of a lobbyist, Mobil is required to file these reports and furnish the appropriate information to the Secretary of State.

The letter which was described in your article was solely prompted by the necessity of gathering the information as required by law. Mobil has no desire to know the politics of those with whom it does business and is certainly not "running scared" as your article alleges.

To the Editor:

As a regular subscriber to the Daily Pilot, I am fully aware of the interest you take in local affairs, and I wish to draw your attention to an item that may not have been suggested up to this point in time.

When an active person suddenly comes on to retirement his whole life changes unless he has something to fill that void.

I retired in 1970, and my wife and I spent our first two retirement years living on a farm in Scotland, we enjoyed every minute of, and activity in my garden certainly took care of any boredom, however family ties were too great to stay there indefinitely, and for that reason we returned.

Up to this point I have worked part time which certainly helps, but now I am fully retired.

THE FIELD that adjoins our complex in Huntington Beach is owned by S & R Farms, and they produce three crops per year mainly cauliflowers, but each corner of this field is unworkable because of the heavy machinery used, and I noted the corner near our apartment was grown over with weeds, but I could see the potential as a so called "Victory Garden."

I went to the Office of S & R Farms and asked if they would allow me to use this 1,500 square-foot-plot for raising vegetables etc., and they readily agreed, and they should be commended for it. So as you see I do have as much as I can take care of for my family, but I cannot help but think that the numerous plots of unused ground that are just doing nothing year in and year out. Surely these owners would be public spirited enough to do as S & R Farms have for me, probably no one has asked them.

Our complex is one of 198 units, and is run under an arrangement with HUD, with a rent reduction for low paid or retired people. If it were possible for the local authorities or the HUD to delve into this idea further, we could have right adjoining this 198 homes sufficient land made into plots, and rented for a very low figure to supply all the vegetables needed and at the same time reducing boredom for the retired, and giving healthy recreation for families at a very low cost.

Nixon Didn't Invent Political Spying

RICHARD WILSON

WASHINGTON — The evidence continues to accumulate that political espionage was not invented in the Nixon administration however badly the practice might have been abused. The latest disclosure is that of J. Edgar Hoover's No. 3 man (as reported in the New York Times) that President Johnson ordered the surveillance of the Republican vice presidential nominee in the 1968 campaign, Spiro T. Agnew.

This brings back some memories. Lyndon B. Johnson used to hint darkly to private visitors during the 1968 campaign that the lovely Chinese widow, Anna Chennault, a pillar of the China lobby, was up to some hanky-panky with the Saigon government to delay Vietnam peace negotiations because President Thieu would get a better deal if Richard M. Nixon were elected.

Now it appears (if the FBI's Cartha D. De Loach's purported secret testimony is to be believed) that Johnson put the FBI on both Mrs. Chennault and the Republican vice-presidential nominee, to get the goods on their plotting, if any.

THE PARIS peace talks were deadlocked at the time on the issue of getting Saigon and Hanoi representatives to sit down together and Johnson was beside himself about any interference both from the political and the national security point of view.

Whether Johnson got the information first from Hoover and instigated the surveillance on his own doesn't make much difference. Hoover was evidently a willing collaborator with Johnson on the Chennault-Agnew-Nixon inquiry as he was on other matters of interest to a president with an insatiable hunger for useful information. Johnson was high on Hoover in those days and, gadget-minded as he was, took special delight in a mechanism Hoover had supplied him for opening and closing his bedroom window while still under the covers.

JOHNSON, in his private conversations, often conveyed the impression that he was in possession of special information which might prove embarrassing to his contemporaries. It is also reliably reported that he urged Nixon to maintain some kind of a recording system in the White House to preserve for posterity, or other purposes, the historic conversations therein, and that Nixon off-handedly ordered in the voice-actuated system which ruined him.

None of this is beside the point, which is that there were recorded conversations in the Johnson administration and maybe in the Kennedy administration which, unlike the Nixon tapes, are buried in the archives of history. Along with them are buried such use as may have been made of the FBI for political espionage with its fruit of embarrassing or incriminating tidbits.

ADD TO THAT the until now secret Watergate committee memo asserting that in the 1964 Democratic national convention Johnson, through the FBI, was wiretapping Martin Luther King and Robert F. Kennedy and a different perspective of the Nixon tragedy begins to emerge.

In another aspect of this general matter, former Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski and the present prosecutor, Henry S. Ruth, argue against a full report on their inquiries out of tender solicitude for some who might be hurt by "juicy" (Jaworski's word) information. Certainly former President Nixon could not be hurt any more, so the impression is left that there is still hidden information which might have a bearing upon the perspective brought to bear on Nixon's guilt in the Watergate affair.

THE PROSECUTORS argue it would be unconstitutional to disclose the full story as a matter of fundamental fairness under the Fifth Amendment. Congress, which is considering legislation requiring a full disclosure, could well pass the legislation and leave the constitutional issue to the courts.

Maybe the time has come to follow the course President Nixon once considered — "let it all hang out." That procedure should not be confined to the Watergate affair but should reach a bit back into the past in the interests of providing perspective on the single most shocking event of American political history. What Nixon's predecessors did does not excuse him, but at least it might show that he was not the sole originator of political dirty work.

Automobiles Don't Kill . . .

SYDNEY HARRIS

A letter in Time magazine a few weeks ago, from a reader who opposes gun laws, was typical of the kind of illogical thinking that supports such arguments. The letter said:

"A gun has no will of its own. A gun does only what its owner causes it do to. The root of the problem is within the human heart. Cure the cause rather than treat surface symptoms."

Let me transpose this argument to a similar term to demonstrate how absurd it is:

"An automobile has no will of its own. An automobile does only what its driver causes it to do. The root of the problem is within the human heart. Cure the cause rather than treat surface symptoms."

THEREFORE, dispense with automobile laws. No more speed limits, no more traffic signals, no more registration of cars, no more tests for drivers, no more fines or jail terms for offenses.

Instead, we try to reform and change human nature. We work at making most people kind and considerate and attentive and radional and model citizens.

Meanwhile, what is happening on the streets and highways? Slaughter, that's what's happening. While we're slowly "curing the human heart," we're speedily killing thousands of human bodies.

Why bother to make cars safer, either? Since it's obviously the motorist, and not the car, that causes accidents, let's also dispense with stronger bumpers, roll-over bars, seat-belts, impact-bags, or anything else designed to protect in a crash. When people's hearts are warmer, the highway homicide rate will go down to practically nothing.

AUTOMOBILES don't kill; people do. No one has ever seen an automobile take off by itself and knock someone down. Ergo, why place all these constraints upon owning and operating an automobile? All we have to do is improve the human race — it may take a few thousand years — and the auto will be no more of a threat, or fatal weapon, than the tricycle.

This is what the gun people imagine is rational thinking. Another of their themes is "infringement of liberty." But what would they think of a drunk driving a car down the road, without a license, without plates, without the slightest responsibility or obligation to others? Are we "infringing" on his liberty by demanding that he be qualified and in a state to drive, or that his automobile be registered and licensed and insured for liability?

The automobile, at least, serves a useful purpose when its ownership and operation are carefully supervised. The handgun serves no purpose except the taking of human life. True, guns don't kill — but people with guns do. And far too often.

Reagan Offers To Quit

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Ronald Reagan offered to resign from the panel investigating the CIA because his busy schedule would keep him away from Washington. Vice president Nelson Rockefeller turned down the offer.

Rockefeller said Reagan could keep abreast of developments by reading transcripts. The problem is that the transcripts are so hush-hush Reagan cannot get them.

Reagan said Thursday — his 64th birthday — that he missed three of the first four meetings of the Rockefeller panel and will miss the next one too, because of his busy schedule. He left early from the one meeting he did attend.

State

Brown Charges

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Brown administration has been accused by legislators of breaking at least two state laws and violating the U.S. Constitution.

Two Democratic legislators accused Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. Thursday of prying illegally into the affairs of prospective appointees to his administration in violation of state law and the U.S. Constitution.

Later in the day, a Republican leader charged that a Brown cabinet secretary illegally imposed a gag order on state officials who might be called before the legislature.

UC Unions

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Employes of public colleges and universities in California would be able to join unions and bargain collectively under a measure that has been introduced in the Assembly.

The measure by Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, (D-San Jose,) would cover employes of the University of California's nearly 100 publicly supported community colleges.

Child Abuse

VISTA (AP) — A construction worker whose wife is charged with murdering their 12-year-old son has been charged with child abuse for allegedly beating their 10-year-old daughter.

Walter A. George was arrested Wednesday for investigation into the beating of his daughter, Roxanne, said a spokesman for the San Diego County Sheriff's Department.

Technician Killed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A technician for the British rock group Deep Purple, driving on the left-hand side of the road as is normal in England, has been killed in a head-on collision.

Police said Ronald Quinton, 24, of London, was driving southbound in the left lane of the Pacific Coast Highway when his car collided with a vehicle driven by Rockford Belmonti, 40, of Malibu, who was also killed.

The accident occurred early Thursday morning.

Maxwell Fine Levied Due To Can Cuts

MONROVIA (UPI) — General Foods Corp. was ordered Thursday to pay a $500 fine for shortweighting jars of Maxwell House instant coffee.

Municipal Court Judge John H. Sanders said the company would not have to pay an additional $1,000 fine if no further shortweighting occurs.

The shortweighting occurred in both 10-ounce and 12-ounce jars of coffee, according to the complaint filed by deputy district attorney Michael Byrne. Each jar was said to be missing an average of about a half ounce.

FINED BY JUDGE
Sportscaster Cosell

Cosell Slapped By Fine

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A county judge has fined sportscaster Howard Cosell $150 for failing to answer questions formally submitted to him in a $3 million lawsuit.

The suit, filed for teen-ager Scott Schindler, alleges Cosell struck Schindler in March of 1973 when the youth asked for his autograph.

The suit, which names Cosell and the American Broadcasting Co. as defendants, originally asked for $100,00 in damages. But Schindler's lawyer, Bernard Levy, asked for permission to amend the complaint upwards to $3 million.

San Diego County Superior Court Judge Jack R. Levitt authorized the amended complaint Wednesday. Levy said he decided to amend the complaint after learning the net worth of the network.

Cosell's lawyer argued against the increase in damages sought, claiming that Schindler suffered no damage.

In New York, a spokesman for ABC said the company would have no comment.

Fresno Bee's Case Linked To Court Key

FRESNO (AP) — A courthouse master key has become the key issue in a hearing over how the Fresno Bee obtained a sealed grand jury transcript.

Reporter William K. Patterson had possession of the key until he and two other Bee staffers were found in contempt 62 times last month for refusing to testify where they got the transcript.

Superior Court Judge Denver Peckinpah Thursday ordered testimony reopened on Feb. 21 after learning the key, now in the court's custody, provided "unlimited access" to the offices of all judges and other county officials who had copies of the transcripts.

"Freedom of the press does not mean freedom from the law of the land," Peckinpah said. "It does not mean freedom from being accountable for anything they do."

However, an attorney for the Bee staffers later told newsmen the key was never used improperly.

"The Fresno Bee's employes have never improperly used a courthouse key," said Phil C. Fullerton in a statement. "These witnesses or any other representative of the Fresno Bee will freely testify on the use of such keys."

Pay for Your Insurance At Gas Pump?

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The 13 million motorists in California would buy auto insurance at gas stations, paying about three cents extra a gallon under legislation introduced in the Assembly.

"Pay As You Drive" auto insurance, similar to a two-year-old system in the state of Maryland, would eliminate the problem of uninsured motorists in California, the bill's authors said Thursday.

Assemblymen Edwin Z'berg (D-Sacramento), and Charles Warren (D-Los Angeles), revealed the plan at a Capitol news conference Thursday.

Drivers would pay for the insurance — generally at a savings over current premiums — through a six percent increase in gas taxes.

That would amount to three cents at a 50-cent-a-gallon rate. Additional funding would come from "modest" boosts in license plate and driver's license fees.

Liberation Front Takes Credit

22nd SF Bay Bombing

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A bomb has exploded in a radio station building, the 22nd terrorist bombing in the San Francisco Bay area in two years.

Police said the Thursday night explosion at KRON-TV here caused no injuries. It was preceded by an anonymous telephone call from a man who said, "I'm from the New World Liberation Front. There's a bomb set to go off in your building in five minutes."

Police believe a tough new type of radical dedicated to violence is responsible for the terrorist attacks.

FEDERAL BUILDINGS, General Motors offices, Bank of America branches, oil company buildings, schools and brokerage houses have been the targets.

"We expect more of the same kind of thing," Capt. Larry Stuefloten, head of police intelligence in San Jose, said in an interview before Thursday night's explosion. "We believe the extremists are working to exploit hard times against the establishment, Watergate and that kind of thing."

San Francisco Police Lt. Richard Klapp said a pipe bomb containing TNT went off in a stairwell on a side of the KRON building. He said damage was confined to that area.

"I felt the explosion on the fourth floor," said newsman Curt Rutter. "I heard a good-sized kaboom and felt vibrations."

The building was not vacated despite the warning. Francis A. Martin III, station operations manager, said about 40 people were inside.

Klapp said another station, KGO-TV, received a bomb threat earlier in the day, but police searched the building and found no device.

HE SAID THE KRON bombing seemed related to a New World Liberation Front communique received Tuesday by radio station KPFA in Berkeley that was critical of broadcast station programming. It said in part:

"Our objective is a socialist revolution in order to serve the interest of poor people. We're not going to accept that you parasites 'give' and 'aid' us except in 'giving' us miserable crumbs and 'aiding' the continuance of those miserable conditions in your dog eat dog narrow world. And your programming. We that know you, Rockefeller, controlling figure in Standard Oil of California, control CBS and RCA which controls NBC. ABC is controlled by another wealthy New York family, fellow parasites of yours."

KGO is affiliated with ABC and KRON is affiliated with NBC.

IN THE SAME communique, the New World Liberation Front claimed responsibility for other bombings this week in the bay area — a $100,000 blast at a San Jose office building Monday and a minor explosion at an Air Force radar station near Half Moon Bay on Tuesday. No injuries were reported.

Police believe the group is a stepchild of Weatherman, which splintered from Students for a Democratic Society in the 1960s.

'Lenient' Judge To Face Hearing

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Municipal Court Judge Robert J. Cooney was prevented by court order Thursday from carrying out a vow to dismiss all speeding tickets issued by the California Highway Patrol.

Cooney disclosed Wednesday that he had dismissed a speeding ticket because the patrol declined to cite or discipline two of its out-of-uniform officers who were stopped for speeding with then-Gov. Ronald Reagan as a passenger.

SHE CAME UP AND SAW THEM

BEVERLY HILLS (UPI) — Invading the traditionally all male Hollywood Friar's Club roast Thursday night, Mae West received a standing ovation when she made an unplanned appearance.

Miss West, wearing a white coat over a floor length white and black paneled dress, was the only woman present at the roast, which poked fun at George Raft.

Others attending the roast at the Beverly Hilton were Cary Grant, Buddy Hackett, Telly Savalas and Don Rickles.

Shootout Victims Honored at Rites

OCEANSIDE (AP) — David R. Terrell and Leland Phelps, victims of a bizarre four-hour confrontation, have been buried side-by-side.

Terrell, 20, fired wildly at police all Monday afternoon before killing himself with a .22-caliber rifle. Phelps, 15, was shot to death by a San Diego County Sheriff's deputy who reportedly mistook him for Terrell.

"We're wearing the bandanas because that's what Lee Phelps was wearing when he got killed," said Ralph Hatcher, 15. Phelps was buried in his bandana.

One of the pallbearers at Thursday's service was Charles Ryan, whose house was commandeered by Terrell during the siege and whose young daughters had been taken hostage inside, but escaped unharmed. His wife, Elizabeth, also attended.

During the service at the Eternal Hills Memorial Park, David Terrell Sr., the sniper's father, got into a shoving match with a television cameraman and was restrained by Willard M. Underwood, Phelps' father.

"You're not wanted here and you better go," Terrell warned. "There better not be any pictures taken here. That is an invasion of privacy."

"How come my electric bill is so high? And we've been using less."

We know your electric bill is higher. A lot higher—even though you're conserving electricity. Why? Primarily because of the increased cost of oil.

It's our job to provide the electricity you, your family and your job require. And we must do so in a manner that meets all air pollution control regulations. This means burning foreign, low-sulfur oil in Edison generating plants. The price is set by foreign governments, and it more than tripled in the last 18 months. It could go even higher. Since January, 1972, the increasing costs of oil and the additional amounts we have had to buy are responsible for almost 90% of the increase in your electric bills.

So we won't always be so dependent on foreign oil, we're spending millions of dollars building coal and nuclear plants. We are also researching new ways to generate electricity—without foreign oil. Geothermal power. Solar power. Fuel cells. Fast breeder reactors. Nuclear fusion. Research is costly, but it will also help to reduce our reliance on foreign oil.

Projects related to the environment are expensive, too, and in 1974 will account for about 20% of our capital expenditures. In the past six years, $325 million were required to be spent for such projects. It looks like we will have to spend another $450 million for environmental purposes within the next four-year period.

On top of all this, inflation is eating into our budget—as it is yours. The cost of constructing new plants is 10 times higher than it was a few years ago, and borrowing costs have more than doubled.

Your electric bill will reflect these rising costs. What can you do to hold down your bill? Budget your use of electricity wisely. For ways to do this, send for our free booklet. Write: "Conservation," Edison, P.O. Box 800, Rosemead, CA 91770.
