WINDS LASH CATALINA, HURL BOATS ON ROCKS

24 Babies Die in Flash Fire

'Disaster Area'

Winds Batter Catalina Boats

By ALMON LOCKABEY

Daily Pilot Boating Editor

Blustery northeast winds and heavy seas blasting into the mouth of Avalon Harbor today threatened to make a disaster area out of the waterfront at the popular Catalina Island resort.

Harbormaster Bill Harvey said seven boats were on the rocks this morning and that two of them were breaking up in 5 to 10 foot seas inside the breakwater.

"The northeaster has been blowing 20 knots steady with gusts up to 30 since 11 p.m. last night," said Harvey. "At the moment we have every available man and boat working to get people off their moored vessels."

Harvey said it was the worst wind storm to hit Avalon since the disastrous blow of 1966 when 18 boats were lost or severely damaged.

There are nearly 100 boats still on moorings and unable to power out to open sea, Harvey said. Seas outside the Avalon breakwater were estimated at 10-12 feet and breaking.

Boats which parted their moorings and were hurled on the beach included 25 to 30 foot power boats, a 35 foot and a 40-foot sailboat. Harbor boats were able to pull four of the smaller boats off the rocks and re-moor them. One of the deep-keel sailboats was breaking up and the other was in danger, according to Harvey.

"It's a near disaster," said Casper "Cap" Blackburn of Newport Beach who was viewing the debris strewn harbor as he talked from a phone booth at the water's edge.

"There are life jackets and small craft adrift all over the harbor. The boats still on moorings are pitch-poling as the heavy seas roll in."

"A Mariner-40 sailboat has just hit the rocks as I'm talking to you," exclaimed Blackburn.

Blackburn said many of those still secure had their engines running in preparation for attempting an exit to open sea should the moorings let go.

Blackburn's own bright red Monterey had to be moved to a more secure mooring behind the breakwater and was still holding fast, he said. "But I'm glad I'm not aboard."

Seas were so heavy inside the harbor that the harbor patrol boats were unable to operate, according to Blackburn.

"I see a lifeguard boat operating in the bay but it goes completely out of sight in the troughs of the swells," said Blackburn.

Wrong Man Identified

Wednesday's edition of the Daily Pilot included the name of Kenneth MacLeod in a partial listing of Orange County Assessor's Office employees indicted by the county Grand Jury.

MacLeod is employed in the Assessor's Office but is not one of the nine men named in the jury's indictment.

The Daily Pilot regrets the error.

Viejo Husband Shot By County Officers

A knife-wielding Mission Viejo man was shot and killed Thursday by sheriff's deputies in a Dana Point apartment. They said he tried to slash his way past them to stab his estranged wife and her boyfriend.

A sheriff's spokesman said today Lawrence Stech, 28, whose last known address was 25711 Santo Drive in Mission Viejo, died at San Clemente General Hospital an hour after the 6 p.m. incident.

Officers said it was the second time in three weeks deputies had been called to the second floor apartment at 34042 Alcazar Street, responding to complaints about loud arguments between Stech and his 19-year-old wife, Terri.

Investigators were told Stech's wife moved into the apartment of Michael W. Thompson after she and Stech separated. The first confrontation on March 8 was broken up by officers without incident.

When deputies arrived at the apartment Thursday, they found Stech threatening his wife and her boyfriend with a large kitchen knife and screaming at them, the sheriff's spokesman said.

"The deputies ordered him several times to drop the knife and surrender, but he refused," the spokesman said. "They tried to reason with him, but it didn't work."

Two of the deputies grappled with Stech, who was waving the knife wildly in the air around them. A third deputy tried to shield Mrs. Stech and her boyfriend from the battle, the spokesman added.

"He fought them off and they joined the third deputy to form a shield in front of the woman and her boyfriend," the spokesman said.

4 Others Critical In Ward

RIJEKA, Yugoslavia (AP) — A flash fire killed 24 babies and critically injured four others in the maternity wing of a Rijeka hospital early today, officials said. Most of the victims were only two to three days old, a hospital source said.

Many mothers on the same floor as the babies became hysterical because they couldn't reach them in time, a source said.

He said some oxygen probably leaked from a tank attached to the incubators and fed the flames.

Rijeka is about 35 miles southeast of Trieste.

An official announcement blamed the blaze in an infants' room on "faulty electrical installations." A spokesman for Dr. Zdravko Kucic Hospital said 23 of the infants perished when the fire burned up oxygen or choked it off to incubators containing newborn babies.

Weeping parents and relatives besieged the hospital seeking information but were held back by officials who were ordered to give out no information except for the brief official announcement. The statement said the babies' identification was still being established.

Flames were lowered to half staff in this Adriatic port and industrial city and the City Council proclaimed a day of mourning.

Westerner's Fast Sinking Not Explained

By HILARY KAYE

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Navigational equipment, fishing poles and other gear from the sunken Westerner were brought to the surface outside of Newport Harbor Thursday by divers but the quick sinking of the fishing boat on Wednesday still remains a mystery.

All 33 persons aboard were dumped into the water when the boat sank but all were rescued within minutes by the Orange County Harbor Patrol.

Owner and skipper of the 65-foot boat, Doug Ferrel, said today he doesn't know yet whether he will salvage the $35,000 boat. He added that he doesn't believe it is worth the effort.

The diver from the insurance company and a private diver hired by Ferrel spent several hours in the water Thursday afternoon at the site of the sinking. The Westerner is lying on her port side in water 70 feet deep, about 100 yards off Newport Harbor's east jetty.

U.S. Coast Guard officials are still investigating the mishap but as yet have reached no conclusions.

Big Layoffs Seen

Coast Douglas Plants Affected

By KATHY CLANCY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Lay-offs began today at the McDonnell Douglas Corporation's Huntington Beach plant, where production has been hampered by a six-week machinists strike.

There also are "a few" cut-backs today at the Torrance and Santa Monica plants, in addition to 9,500 lay-offs already announced by the company at its Long Beach aircraft facility.

Company officials refused comment about the number of lay-offs at Huntington Beach, Torrance and Santa Monica.

"There are some, but we don't regard them as significant," a company spokesman said. "We cannot confirm any numbers."

Leaders of the International Association of Machinists said they also do not know the exact number.

Unofficial reports place the number of layoffs at the Huntington Beach plant at anywhere from 200 to 2,000. All are unconfirmed.

Company officials said there are continuous lay-offs at the Huntington Beach plant, where the staff has dropped from 27,000 in 1969 to 7,000 today.

"Not all of the lay-offs are related to the strike," they said.

A company spokesman also said there would be very few lay-offs in Torrance and Santa Monica.

"Most of the workers are in the IAM, and are on strike," officials said.

Meanwhile, Leonard Loomis, business representative for the IAM Lodge 720, said union members picketed Thursday at the National Labor Relations Board headquarters in Los Angeles, demanding a quick ruling on their unfair labor practices charges against the company.

The union has asked the NLRB to force the company to pay holiday wages withheld during Thanksgiving and Christmas holiday shutdowns — about $385 per union member.

Loomis also said striking machinists will receive $40-a-week strike benefit checks for at least one more week. Then union strike funds will be depleted, but he said the union hopes to receive contributions from other lodges to continue the checks.

The company has said it plans no new pay offer to the IAM. The union Sunday turned down a new three-year contract with three percent pay boosts each year plus a 2.5 percent cost-of-living hike the first year.

Loomis said today he still is awaiting word from federal mediators about reopening contract talks, with the 7,000 IAM members in Southern California.

Another 12,000 IAM members, covered under a separate contract in St. Louis, were meeting with mediators today but no progress has been announced.

Evacuation Plans Set By Marines

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two companies of Marines remain on alert on Okinawa for possible duty in evacuating Americans from Cambodia, a Pentagon spokesman says. (Related Story, A4)

"No orders have been given to any unit to move out," Maj. Gen. Winant Sidle said Thursday.

The two companies were placed on alert several weeks ago as a possible backup for a Marine battalion of about 1,500 men afloat on the helicopter carrier Okinawa in the Gulf of Thailand.

Sidle told a briefing there is no basis for rumors of an imminent move of Marines from Okinawa to Indochina.

At the same time, Sidle said a Navy amphibious group due to leave San Diego for the western Pacific will relieve another group already there with the U.S. 7th Fleet. He called this "a normal replacement action."

Spokesmen acknowledge that some 200 Marines will travel with the westbound amphibious group, but he said they will get off in Hawaii.

Sidle described them as individual replacements for Marines on duty in the islands.

Laguna Beach Police Hold El Toro Man

Laguna Beach police today are holding a 21-year-old El Toro man on armed robbery, burglary and concealed weapon charges while four other departments indicate they want to question the suspects.

Officers identified the suspect as Kern Wayne Dunagan, of 23132 Orange Ave., El Toro. He is held in Laguna jail in lieu of $50,000 bail.

Dunagan, police said, will also be questioned by officers from Newport Beach, Costa Mesa and the Orange County Sheriff's Office in connection with cases within those jurisdictions.

Dunagan was arrested in Laguna Beach at 12:30 p.m. Thursday in the 1200 block of South Coast Highway after a shopkeeper became suspicious of his wandering in and out of several stores.

Laguna officers allege the suspect was carrying a concealed .22 caliber automatic pistol at the time of his arrest.

Dunagan, police said, told them he had been living in the area for four months and that his wife and child are living in Alaska.

Mesa Boy, 9, Hurt by Bomb In Desert

A strange device he found in the desert almost killed 9-year-old Christopher Shellhouse of Costa Mesa.

San Diego County sheriff's deputies said that the boy came across a four by eight-inch board with wires, flashlight batteries and a tube of some kind near the Peg Leg Pete Monument in Borrego Springs Wednesday.

When he reached for it, it exploded.

The youngster, who had been camping with his parents was rushed 75 miles to Pioneer Memorial Hospital in Brawley, where surgeons operated on his badly gashed hand. Hospital officials reported this morning that the boy, who lives at 2443 Vassar Place, Costa Mesa, is "doing fine," and that he may be released soon.

Investigators aren't certain what the device was, but believe it may have been a homemade bomb.

TV Tower Falls

SALEM, S.D. (AP) — Mitchell television station KXON was knocked off the air Thursday when high winds and ice combined to topple its 1,565-foot transmitting tower near Salem.

He said no one was injured, although there were personnel in the building at the transmitter site when the tower collapsed.

'Just Disgusted'

"I wasn't shook up; I was just kind of disgusted with myself," said David South, 19 of Costa Mesa after his car overturned at a sharp curve in Trabuco Road, El Toro. South, 1993 S. Meyer Place, said he swerved Thursday afternoon to avoid an oncoming car. His car hit an earth bank beside the rural road, coming to rest on its top. South was not injured. The accident occurred a half mile north of El Toro Road, near El Toro Cemetery.

'No-frill' Discount Air Fare Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board today approved a "no-frill" fare discount that would let airline passengers on some routes fly for less than it would cost to take a train or bus.

The regulatory agency approved a proposal by National Air Lines to start the bargain fares April 14 on flights using the airline's jumbo jets.

National proposed offering the low-cost fares on its East Coast runs and on flights between Florida and New Orleans, Houston, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Las Vegas, Nev.

The fares would be 35 percent below the cost of a regular day coach ticket. Passengers using the discounts would be segregated in the rear of National's jumbo jets and would not be served food or any alcoholic beverages. They could purchase coffee or soft drinks for 25 cents and could bring their own food for longer flights.

In addition, passengers using the third-class fare would have to purchase tickets seven days in advance and have to pay a service charge if they missed their flight or cancelled their ticket.

The discounts would be offered only on Monday through Thursday flights. Children aged 2 to 12 could fly for two-thirds the ticket prices.

A third-class no-frill ticket between Miami and Los Angeles would cost $112. The current lowest air fare now is $183. Bus fare is $113.90 and train fare is $178.

The no-frill flight authorization applies only to National. However other carriers have requested similar fares and the board said it would rule on their applications soon.

Applications from American, Continental, Delta, and Eastern are not exactly like National's. Some propose more liberal discount requirements than National's.

Although the board agreed to let National put the discounts into effect, it announced it planned to investigate the fares and regulations to determine if the fares should be continued.

Meanwhile, coach passengers on National and Eastern Airlines will be paying for alcoholic drinks starting April 14 on flights to and from Miami.

A Cheap Shot?

U.S. Tied to Faisal Death

MOSCOW (AP) — Some Soviet newspapers including the Communist party organ Pravda published excerpts today from Arab newspapers that suggested the United States might have been behind the assassination of King Faisal of Saudi Arabia.

There was no comment from Pravda or six other papers, but the selection of the Arab newspaper excerpts indicated what line the Soviet media were indirectly endorsing.

In Washington, State Department officials noted today that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger at a news conference Wednesday declared: "I'm absolutely confident that nobody in the United States had anything to do with such an action."

The Cairo newspaper Al Akhbar was quoted as saying "the assassination was a consequence of a foreign conspiracy. It cannot be ruled out, the newspaper writers say, that someone did stand behind the assassin."

CATALINA

Harbormaster Harvey said the storm struck without warning. "We didn't even have a chance to hoist small craft warnings."

Harvey said persons still on their boats were unable to get off and that those ashore were unable to get to their boats.

"There have been no injuries up to now," Harvey added.

Northeast winds are the most hazardous to Avalon. After the 1966 disaster a breakwater was built partially across the mouth of the harbor, but heavy seas often break over the stone jetty.

"We're nervous as hell," said Harvey. "All we can do at this point is trust to luck that the wind and seas subside."

Rockefeller Visits Arabs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford welcomed Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller back from his condolence visit to Saudi Arabia today and called Rockefeller's meeting there with Arab leaders "very important."

Rockefeller returned this morning from a trip as Ford's personal emissary to the funeral of King Faisal of Saudi Arabia, who was shot to death Tuesday by a nephew.

Rockefeller met with Ford at the White House less than seven hours after his return.

Rebels Free French Envoy

DJIBOUTI, Afars & Issas Territory (AP) — Jean Gueury, the French ambassador to Somalia who was kidnapped Sunday by African rebels, was freed in South Yemen today in exchange for $100,000 in gold and two terrorists released from French jails, informed sources said.

The 57-year-old envoy flew to Djibouti in a French military plane. Diplomats said Gueury was in good condition and spoke with his wife, Francoise, by telephone.

An Italian Embassy spokesman in Somalia said the prisoner exchange took place after a plane carrying the envoy, his four captors and a Somali diplomat who volunteered as an additional hostage flew to the Yemeni port of Aden at the same time as a French plane carrying the released terrorists and the gold.

Jeka District Court Judge Vladimir Pavic said the blaze broke out between 2 and 3 a.m., killing 23 of the 28 babies in the room.

He said five injured babies were taken to a children's hospital in Rijeka and one of them died later in the morning. He did not specify the exact cause of death.

The judge said he ordered a committee of experts to investigate the "causes and responsibilities for the fire" and promised further information as soon as reliable details could be established.

The City Council went into special session and decided to extend assistance to the parents of the dead children. It said a ceremonial funeral will be held.

Prime Rate Cut Again

NEW YORK (UPI) — First National City Bank today lowered its interest rate for prime business loans to 7 1/4 percent, the lowest since May, 1973.

Citibank, the nation's second largest, has been reducing its prime steadily since September when it was at a historic high of 12 percent. Most bankers expect the rate to go to below 7 percent this year.

A small St. Louis bank, Southwest Bank, is believed to have the lowest interest rate in the nation — 7 percent.

Crucified Filipino Lasts 3 Minutes

SAN PEDRO, The Philippines (UPI) — The Mardi Gras atmosphere in this little farming town north of Manila ended today with the thud of nails through flesh into wood.

Tourists were still clicking their cameras, ice cream vendors hawking their wares and blood-spattered news cameramen fighting for the best view, when at precisely 1:10 p.m. Fernando de la Cruz was crucified.

Two Filipinos dressed bizarre-ly in red Roman-soldier tunics hammered 2 1/2-inch-long stainless steel nails into 24-year-old Cruz's hands, then triumphantly hoisted the cross upright.

Cruz looked passively down on the swaying, sweaty mob below him.

"He'll stay up 30 minutes," yelled one of his supporters, it's the first time he's been nailed and he's going to stay up 30 minutes."

Cruz beat all town records and "stayed up" about three minutes.

"Brave man, brave man," muttered a German news cameraman who managed to fight his way to the foot of the cross.

"I've had enough," said the squeamish wife of an American airman from nearby Clark Air Force Base, trying to fight her way out of the crowd.

"He stayed up longer than Pir-ing (the town favorite who retired this year)," said a flagellant, one of scores of young village men who lined the hot dusty village pathway strewn with hay to the crucifixion site, beating their backs into a pulp with bamboo whips.

The only priest in attendance refused comment and stalked across the field, his white cassock swishing against the grass.

The Roman Catholic church in this only Asian Christian nation disapproves of the crucifixions and thousands of instances of flagellation that take place in the Philippines each Good Friday.

"People shouldn't let it worry them," said the flagellant, Oscar Canas, 24. "I've done it for nine years, ever since my father died. He used to do it, that's why I took over."

"It hurts at first, then your back gets numb."

At least three fellow flagellants collapsed on the road. Canas' blue jeans were a mess of congealed blood and his back quivered with gasps. His face was hidden behind a black hood held in place with a crown of thorns.

The head flagellant, pink flowers instead of thorns on his head, came bouncing past, apparently a little tipsy, giggling at newsmen.

Cruz, down from his cross, jumped down from the front of a commandeered Jeepney — a bus converted from a Jeep — and raced through the crowd waving his bloody hands above his head.

"Must be relieved it's over," commented a Westerner.

Polish Women?

DEAR PAT: I have tried with no success to locate the Polish Women's Association in Orange County. I've seen notices of the Los Angeles group's social activities, but no phone is listed for that group, nor for one in this area. Can you help?

G.C., Huntington Beach

I tried, but names and addresses of current Orange County Polish Club officers were not available. If any AYS reader knows how to contact this club and drops us a line, you will be informed. Although it appears that no Polish Women's Association is active in Orange County, perhaps you will be able to join in the women's activities of the OCPC.

U.S. Art Prints

DEAR PAT: Before moving to Laguna for the winter, I ordered a set of 1937 U.S. Government Art Prints from U.S. Surplus in Tarzana. My order, mailed from Denver, requested the prints to be sent to my California residence. My $19.95 check, dated Oct. 29, was cashed months ago, and my letter to the firm has not been answered. I'm returning to Colorado this week, so I suppose it's too late to correct this problem.

L.H., Laguna Beach

Not at all. Another set of art prints is being mailed to your home in Denver. U.S. Surplus couldn't explain the nondelivery, especially since all orders are sent by first class mail. Apparently your letter of inquiry was overlooked or misplaced.

No Fireflies

DEAR PAT: Why don't we have lightning bugs (fireflies) here in California? Back East they'd always appear as soon as the weather became warm in June. I assumed they'd be here too as we have warm weather almost all of the time.

D.R., Costa Mesa

They'd probably freeze their little lights off due to our cool California nights. Fireflies inhabit warm and tropical climates and are found only in areas east of the Rocky Mountains in the United States, according to the World Book Encyclopedia. Although our climate is warm, we do not qualify as tropical because of low-humidity conditions.

Antenna Laws

DEAR PAT: When contacting various firms to get estimates for installation of a TV antenna, several made a point of telling me that their installers were registered with the state. Is this indicative of more qualified servicemen or just an advertising gimmick?

L.G., Capistrano Beach

It's the law! Effective Jan. 1, 1975, the provisions of the Electronic and Appliance Repair Dealer Registration Law were expanded to include installers of television and radio receiver antennas or rotators. The law does not include contractors who install such devices incidental to the construction or restructuring of a building.

Pizza Dinner

'Walked Off'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Seven persons worked off the calories of a midnight pizza dinner by hiking up 250 feet of steps in a San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge tower.

The hike came about because the engine in their cabin cruiser conked out.

The group left a yacht harbor here shortly before midnight Thursday for a trip to Oakland for pizza. The four men and three women dined and then headed back when the vessel's engine malfunctioned. The cruiser drifted to the bridge station.

The seven then decided to walk to the bridge to summon help. They were found by a California Highway Patrol sergeant

County Appeals Judgment On Judges' Filing Fees

Appellate action was taken by the county Thursday against six Patrick McCray have been set

Santa Ana municipal court judges who successfully sued in municipal court for the return of their 1974 election filing fees.

tor nearing April 18 in Superior Court.

Court officials hope to set the appeals filed against Santa Ana municipal court Judges Robert Law, Edward L. Laird, Robert E. Rickles, Phillip B. Schwab, Sources indicated that the re-C. Teal on the same day.

Judge Todd agreed with each judge that the election filing fees paid last year should be refunded.

The practice of charging filing fees for California elections was abandoned last May when the state Supreme Court declared it to be unconstitutional.

All nine judges had paid their filing fees for the June primary prior to the high court's decision. They successfully sued in small claims court for their refunds.

County lawyers will argue the appellate action on the basis that Attorney General Evelle J. Younger believes that filing fees should only be refunded if they were paid under protest. No such protest was made by the nine judges, they argue.

Arco Land

Jury Urges OC To Buy Blufftop

The Orange County Grand Jury Thursday urged the Board of Supervisors to buy 10 acres of blufftop Arco land adjacent to Niguel Beach Park in the south county.

The recommendation was one of 14 contained in a four-page jury report on operations of the county Harbors, Beaches and Parks Department.

"Distressed economic conditions and regulatory agency controls indicate a reasonable purchase price is possible," the jury said, suggesting the board use funds in the county tidelands trust or put the project in next year's budget.

The land in question was planned by Arco for use as a private beach parking area adjacent to the Monarch Bay development. But the company has been stymied in its efforts to win regional coastal commission approval.

The possibility of the county stepping in to buy the land, located at the north end of Niguel Beach Park, was broached in January when Supervisor Thomas Riley got a letter from Arco.

Supervisors referred the matter to the Harbors, Beaches and Parks Commission, which will hold its first hearing on the proposed acquisition April 8.

Robert Yablonski, administration chief in the harbor department, said Thursday no valid appraisals have been made of the land's fair market value. But he said a "ballpark guess" is $1 million.

Part of the property is traversed by the old channel of Salt Creek, center of a long controversy between Arco and environmental groups seeking to preserve the beach area for public use.

Beside the Niguel Beach Park recommendation, the Grand Jury made a number of other observations and suggestions about harbor department operations.

Referring to the oft-delayed dredging of the Grand Canal on Balboa Island, the Jury urged supervisors to "actively discourage" creation of new regulatory agencies that tie up necessary projects in red tape.

The Jury also suggested the harbor department continue working actively toward its goal of acquiring six acres of open space for every 1,000 people in the county. The county goal is acquisition of 15,000 acres by 1990. It now owns nearly 10,000 acres.

The Jury report was also mildly critical of the harbor department for making many of its decisions on the basis of short-term financial gain rather than long-range benefits.

The report cites on-going lease problems at Dana Point Harbor and suggests the department revitalize its leasing procedures and management.

Miami Ending Rock Fetes After Rioting

MIAMI (UPI) — Fire Chief Donald Hickman has ordered an end to rock concerts at Miami Marine Stadium until adequate methods are found to limit and control crowds.

Hickman announced his decision Thursday following a disturbance at the stadium Wednesday night in which disgruntled ticket buyers unable to gain admittance to the already packed arena battled police with rocks and bottles. Thirteen persons were arrested and more than a dozen hurt.

Authorities said promoters of the rock concert by Lynyrd Skynyrd sold 7,200 tickets for the 6,538-seat stadium. However, 500 of the tickets were sold to persons who watched from boats moored at the stadium.

Oregon Sex Bill

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) — The Oregon Senate gave unanimous approval Thursday to a proposed state constitutional amendment prohibiting discrimination based on sex. The measure went to the House.

THE NOX POX: There is no sense trying to report to you today on the status of that new law which rules that Orange County owners of 1966 to 1970 autos must install a new anti-smog gadget, known as a NOx device.

There is no sense trying to report the status of this law because it seems to keep changing hourly.

First it looks like the Legislature might repeal the law; then it appears otherwise.

One minute a Superior Court judge in Santa Barbara County has issued a restraining order against NOx enforcement; and the next thing you know he has dissolved that restraining order.

Meanwhile, local authorities in Orange and Los Angeles counties are shopping around for another judge who might issue another restraining order.

SO RIGHT NOW, your guess is as good as mine, or anybody else's, as to whether NOx is on or NOx is off.

You have to have a strong measure of pity for owners of those older cars who want to be law-abiding citizens.

They want to be lawful on the one hand, but in these budget-wary times, they don't want to plunk down $35 for a required smog gimmick that may not be required one hour from now.

WHILE PLENTY of pity goes out to these motorists, all of us should also save a large measure of sympathy for the good officers of our California Highway Patrol.

You see, they are the ones who are supposed to inspect cars and enforce the NOx law.

But the California Highway Patrol, too, has been shoved into a legalistic revolving door on the entire issue.

One day the CHP is expected to enforce the law and the next day they face a restraining order.

You get the notion that the California Highway Patrol ought to gather each dawn in military formation, face Sacramento and ask, "Oh, our Legislators, your humble servants plead to learn from you learned ones — what is the law today?"

The latest reported CHP tactic in all this NOx imbroglio, however, is this:

If a motorist's auto is inspected and found to be without the NOx device, he will be issued a warning notice to get one within 10 days. If he fails to report in with his NOx installed, he will get a reminder notice. If he ignores the reminder notice, all this paperwork will be filed and held.

Later, if the NOx law is retained, the CHP would go after the offender. If the NOx law is repealed, however, the motorist would get another notice to forget the whole affair.

THAT'S THE LATEST word as of this writing. It may or may not be right tomorrow.

Meanwhile, the Legislature ponders the NOx law. And ponders, and ponders, and ponders.

One of our good solons was quoted as remarking, "There is such overwhelming opposition to this smog device law that I'm beginning to wonder why we are breaking our pick on this."

And that, my friends, is a very good question.

Rioters Peril Da Nang Airlift

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Da Nang's military commander ordered his men today to shoot to kill anyone causing disturbances in the threatened northern city as rioting mobs forced the temporary suspension of the American airlift of refugees. The U.S. consulate in Da Nang also closed after a rocket and artillery attack and the staff reportedly took refuge on a ship in the South China Sea.

Some shots were fired in the isolated city, but there was no information on any casualties.

THE SAIGON COMMAND said its forces repulsed a North Vietnamese tank attack on Da Nang's southern defense perimeter, about 25 miles south of the city. Elsewhere, the Communists succeeded in capturing Lam Dong Province, in the lower central highlands 90 miles northeast of Saigon, overran a former U.S. base camp on the central coastal plain and threatened another district capital there.

Lam Dong is the 12th of South Vietnam's 44 provinces lost to the Communists since the start of the year. These plus areas in a number of other provinces give the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong control of more than half of South Vietnam's territory of 66,263 square miles, including all the northern provinces except the city of Da Nang and all the central part of the country except the coastal strip.

IN CAMBODIA, the U.S. airlift to the besieged capital of Phnom Penh was suspended temporarily after the heaviest rebel shelling attack at the airport in two weeks killed two persons and wounded five, officials said. None of the American planes was hit.

On the Cambodian political front, several hundred students staged the sharpest antigovernment demonstration in months, equating American aid with the continuing war and demanding a change of government in Phnom Penh. The rally came shortly after the government shut all schools in Phnom Penh on security grounds.

The Soviet Union has told Lon Nol's government to close its embassy in Moscow and remove its diplomats from the country, an embassy official said today.

Cheo Boun Eng, third secretary at the embassy, said the staff had been given two weeks to leave. He said they were waiting for confirmation from Phnom Penh before packing.

He said the Soviet request, handed to the embassy's charge d'affaires, did not include a formal severance in diplomatic relations.

"There has been nothing official at all about breaking diplomatic relations," he said.

THE U.S. EMBASSY in Saigon was reported not receiving any reports from Da Nang because the consulate was closed. Sources said the consul general, Al Francis, was safe and in the Da Nang area with a handful of other consular officials.

The informants said more than 300 Americans, including about 85 officials assigned to the consulate, had been evacuated during the past two days in anticipation either of a North Vietnamese attack or a complete breakdown of law and order in Da Nang.

Despite the suspension of the airlift from Da Nang, sources said the CIA airline, Air America, flew three planes into an airstrip on the coast about four miles east of the main Da Nang airport, and lifted out about 300 Vietnamese and Americans. They said Air Vietnam also flew refugees from Da Nang to Saigon, but it was not known how many people it carried out. An American seafighter involving three U.S. vessels able to carry 26,000 persons was set to begin soon.

In Saigon, Gen. Frederick C. Weyand, the U.S. Army chief of staff, arrived from Washington during the night and conferred with President Nguyen Van Thieu for more than an hour shortly after daybreak. Weyand, who was the last American commander in Vietnam, is on a mission for President Ford to assess the military situation in South Vietnam and determine what additional help might be needed.

Sharp Quake Jars Utah, Idaho Area

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The strongest earthquake in the continental United States since the deadly Los Angeles tremor of 1971 struck in desolate desert country along the Utah-Idaho line Thursday night, causing minor damage.

The quake swayed buildings in downtown Salt Lake City, broke windows and crumbled plaster in the small towns of Malad, Idaho, and Snowville, Utah — near its epicenter — and was felt throughout much of northern Utah, southeastern Idaho and southwestern Wyoming.

A teen-age girl who suffered cuts and bruises when a wall panel fell on her head, was the only person reported by authorities to be injured.

THE NATIONAL Earthquake Information Center at Golden, Colo., said the tremor measured 6.3 on the Richter Scale — a "moderately strong and potentially destructive quake."

Center spokesman Waverly Person said it was the strongest quake in the continental United States since the Feb. 9, 1971, tremor in Los Angeles San Fernando Valley, which killed 65 persons, injured 1,000 and caused more than $1 billion in damage. That was a 6.5 on the Richter Scale.

Thursday night's quake hit in unpopulated desert country north of the Great Salt Lake, the same area rattled by a light tremor the previous night. The first jolt measured 4.3 on the Richter Scale.

DAMAGE WAS reported to homes and businesses in Malad and Snowville, including plate glass windows breaking, plaster falling from ceilings and walls, bricks tumbling from chimneys and building exteriors, light fixtures crashing down, and dishes falling to the floor.

"It scared us real bad. It just trembled for what seemed like hours," said Irma Sorenson, 62, a waitress at Hickman's Cafe in Snowville.

Ehrlichman Wife Target

SEATTLE (UPI) — The Seattle Symphony Orchestra office has been picketed by underemployed persons protesting the hiring of Mrs. John Ehrlichman with public funds.

Mrs. Ehrlichman, wife of the former domestic affairs adviser to Richard Nixon, has a $10,000-a-year job paid for by the Federal Comprehensive Employment Training Act.

"I've been looking for a job for two months," said Carol Hooker of Bellevue. "I feel angry that the taxpayers are paying for the trial and the disbarment proceedings and everything else and I'm damned if I'm going to help put groceries on their table."

President Still Open On Tax Bill

From Wire Services
WASHINGTON — President Ford believes Congress' $24.8 billion tax cut bill contains "some good things and some very bad things." He will take several days deciding whether to sign or veto it, according to his spokesman.

Ford called his economic and energy advisers to a Good Friday meeting. He met with several of them Thursday to go over the dozens of provisions of the tax bill.

Ford has until April 8 to decide whether to let the bill become law. If he consents, the government will begin in May sending rebate checks of $100 to $200 on 1974 income taxes to most Americans. It would also begin in May withholding less money for 1975 taxes.

Quiz Winding Up

WASHINGTON — The Watergate prosecutors are winding up their investigation of the ITT antitrust settlement and do not plan to bring charges against former Atty. Gen. John H. Mitchell for his role in the controversial case.

The Associated Press learned Thursday that the prosecutors have decided not to pursue their investigation of Mitchell, who was convicted in the Watergate cover-up case and sentenced to a minimum of two and one-half years in prison.

Interior Chief

WASHINGTON — White House and congressional sources say former Wyoming Gov. Stanley Hathaway will be named Secretary of the Interior to succeed Rogers C. B. Morton, nominated Thursday as commerce secretary.

Morton replaced Frederick Dent, who was sworn in Wednesday as the chief U.S. trade negotiator.

New Rates Okayed

WASHINGTON — A broad package of new transatlantic air fares, including increases of up to 16.5 percent and some discount prices, was approved by the Civil Aeronautics Board today. They become effective April 1.

Fugitive Captured By Chance

Susan Saxe

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Susan Edith Saxe is a one-time college honors student who was on the FBI's "10 Most Wanted" list for a record five years. Her days as a fugitive ended because of policeman Joseph Reid's memory for faces.

Miss Saxe dropped out of sight after she, Katherine Power and three men allegedly held up a Boston bank and shot a policeman to death in 1970. Thursday night, Reid saw her walking along a city street and recognized her from a new FBI photograph and description.

He pulled her over and asked for identification. When she tried to run away, he said, he arrested her and took her to jail.

MISS SAXE, 26, was using the name of "Aileen A. Hellman," but police said they identified her by fingerprints. "We did not know she was in this area," an FBI spokesman said. "Fortunately, the officer was very alert."

Miss Saxe, of Albany, N.Y., and Miss Power, of Denver, Colo., were on the FBI's "Most Wanted" list longer than any other women. Miss Power is still at large.

They are accused of helping three men hold up the State Street Bank and Trust Co. in Boston Sept. 23, 1970, and shooting to death a policeman during the holdup. The three men were caught, but the women escaped.

MISS SAXE, described as once a shy and quiet girl, first attended Syracuse University and then transferred to Brandeis University in Waltham, Mass. There she became friends with Miss Power. They were described as good students who both won awards for scholastics and community service.

Nuclear Scare Plant Workers Evacuated

WATERFORD, Conn. (AP) — "This whole thing has got a lot of residents here scared. You can't suddenly evacuate over a thousand people and not call it an emergency situation. We're talking here about radioactivity," said a Waterford resident.

The resident, who did not want to be identified, was one of dozens who called the town hall Thursday asking about the evacuation of 1,200 construction workers from the Northeast Utilities (NU) nuclear power plant complex. The evacuation was ordered after 1,000 gallons of radioactive contaminated water overflowed in a heating boiler.

NU officials said through "some hitch in procedure" town officials were not notified of the incident.

"Someone who was supposed to call me could have been counting seagulls instead, because I wasn't notified," said Waterford First Selectman Herbert Davis.

"This was not an emergency situation. It was an abnormal occurrence," said William Council, supervisor of the two Millstone nuclear power plants.

"We did not want to alarm the population, but as it turned out things did get a little out of hand," said Council.

Decontamination of the 1,000 gallons of water was completed early today, according to George Fox, an NU spokesman.

Twenty workers who had worked on the water containing the radioactive isotopes manganese, cobalt and cesium, were found to be uncontaminated after examination, said Fox.

The contaminated water, caused by a leaky tube carrying radioactive isotopes, overflowed on the floor Thursday morning from an oil-fired burner at Millstone Unit 1, NU officials said.

U.S. Summary

A Good Friday blizzard — one of the worst in more than a decade — pummeled a 1,000-mile swath of the North today, piling up to 10 feet of snow, stranding or delaying thousands of motorists and isolating entire communities.

At least four deaths were blamed on the blizzard, which began its assault Thursday and became the third major snowstorm this week on the upper Midwest. National Guardsmen and rescue crews took to snowmobiles and four-wheel-drive vehicles in efforts to rescue hundreds of persons stranded in their cars in Nebraska's western panhandle.

One man died of a heart attack while two snowplows leading a rescue team to his snowbound farm home near Bayard, Neb., got stuck in the snow. A truck driver was killed in a two-truck collision on a snow-slicked highway near Baldwin, Wis.

A 24-year-old Hubbard, Iowa, school teacher, on her way home after the storm forced early dismissal of classes, was killed when her car skidded off an icy road and slammed into a bridge.

In Ridgely, Ill., where the storm spawned light snow, sleet and freezing rain, a motorist was killed when his car skidded off an icy road and slammed into a bridge.

Strong winds with gusts 25 to 40 miles an hour blew in mountain passes today but began to die down later in the day although travelers' advisories

The Public's Rights

Word coming out of Sacramento is that Governor Brown and the Democratic legislative leaders are coming close to a "consensus" on legislation covering public employees' right to bargain collectively, and particularly to strike.

Since they were strongly committed to produce such a bill this session, the big question is not whether there will be such a bill, but what specifically will it provide in the way of right to strike.

The disturbing element in all of the discussion so far is that nobody — not the governor and not the legislative spokesmen — has voiced strong concern for the rights of the public in a strike by government employees.

Gov. Brown has said he doesn't think public employees would abuse the right to strike. The sad fact is that when public employees go out on strike, the public usually is abused — or certainly misused.

Until the governor and his legislative leaders forthrightly declare that the public's rights come first, it is all too likely that the public employee collective bargaining legislation produced at this session will add a new chapter to the sad saga of "the public be damned."

Solution Misdirected

Orange County Airport officials have poked holes in a proposal by Newport Beach's Airport Action Association to build a new airport runway aimed at Costa Mesa to be used only by jets taking off.

Judging by the weight of evidence produced by Airport Director Robert Bresnahan on such a runway, the Airport Action folks were either being facetious or failed to do their homework.

The proposal was to construct a take-off strip diagonally across the existing runway. Planes taking off would fly over the county fairgrounds and surrounding residential areas in Costa Mesa.

But Bresnahan reported that such a runway would cost more than $10 million because existing airport terminal buildings and light plane storage areas would have to be torn out and relocated.

He also noted that the federal government would never help pay for a new runway that, in effect, blocks traffic on the old one.

The solution to jet noise at the county airport will never be achieved while that airport is the only facility serving the air travel needs of our still growing urban county.

Gun Law Support

A recent survey by the California Poll reveals that a growing majority of Californians, including gun owners, favors tighter controls on ownership of firearms.

A law requiring registration of guns with law enforcement authorities was favored by 82 percent of the 504 adults questioned in the survey. This compared with 69 percent favoring such a law in a survey made in 1969.

Interestingly enough, the number of present gun owners favoring registration increased from 55 percent in 1969 to 73 percent this year.

Sixty-eight percent of those questioned also said they would approve licensing of handguns only for persons showing a real need for them.

These are significant statistics for lawmakers who have veered away from gun control legislation of any kind under concerted lobbying pressure.

The California survey seems to indicate approval of somewhat more positive gun laws would not cost all that many votes.

Mobile Home Scene Takes on New Look

To the Editor:

Last week you published three articles in a series on mobile homes. Excellent and accurate as they may be on a national average, they, nevertheless, are completely out of touch with the Southern California scene.

The writer gives an example of a 12 foot by 70 foot, 3-bedroom mobile home. Right here the usual size set up in a luxury park is much more spacious. Double widths of 24 feet are usually 64 feet long and have 1,440 square feet of living space. They are as large or larger than new medium priced houses. These doubles come complete with all kitchen appliances and have two bedrooms, two bathrooms, living room, kitchen, laundry room, and have a very large family room often complete with a wet bar. Very different indeed.

The articles gave their 800-square-foot model a price tag from $7,500 to $9,900—or $10 per square foot. Looking around the sales lots you can find the 1,440-square-foot models from $15,000 to $22,000 which works out to $10 to $15 per square foot. The articles compare with conventional housing at $20 per square foot. Local housing seems now to be about $37 per square foot.

NATURALLY the modern luxury parks with their recreation halls, shuffleboard courts, exercise rooms, laundromats, RV storage, color TV rooms, card rooms, pool tables, swimming pools and jacuzzis must cost more than the simple parks. Against space rentals of $40 to $125 a month, and typically $50 to $70, quoted in the articles, the local going rate is perhaps closer to the range of $115 to $190 with $135 a good average.

On the matter of depreciation quoted at 72 percent in 10½ years it seems completely inaccurate. A modern double wide set up in a good park fetches as a resale often 80 percent to 90 percent of today's replacement cost. That is often more than it originally cost. The former boggy of depreciation was only too true as the size of coaches grew from 8 foot wide to 10 feet, then 12 feet before the trade standardized at 24 feet by 64 feet. Once it reached this size and configuration, depreciation just about disappeared.

The article's conclusion that for 11 percent more money a house owner enjoyed a "bonus" in living space of over 35 percent would be strongly contested as nonsense by a modern local park occupant. Additionally the life style in a local luxury park has to be seen to be believed. Few occupants ever wish to return to conventional housing.

False Comparison

Committee's bill should be soundly defeated in these times of economic turmoil.

The age-old argument that the legislatures' salaries are below comparable industry-related salaries should not be given the courtesy of consideration. Our state government has not been set up to compete with private industry — nor should it.

IF OUR state Senators envy the salaries earned in private industry, let them resign and enter the private field. Then perhaps, we could have a few elected officials working for the benefit of the people of California, and not for the benefit of feathering their own nests.

The current state senator's salary of $21,120, plus a $30 a day expense allowance, plus a free car, plus an unlimited credit card, plus other fringe benefits, is quite enough!

If the aim is to get a salary increase enacted well before the 1976 elections, and thereby circumvent a very tender, explosive issue, they are mistaken. The people are not now, nor will they be in 1976, forgetful of past Senate actions.

To the Editor:
Your March 20 editorial, talking about fringe benefits for employees of utility companies, was in error as far as the Southern California Gas Company employees are concerned.

Free Speech

To the Editor:

Exercising my right of free speech, I would like to be heard in what appears to be a minority opinion. Nonetheless, it is valid. I believe Alan J. Schwalbe to be an innocent and victimized man. He has taught many years in the Newport-Mesa School District espousing the cause of truth and justice in America. He is going to pay the supreme price for his belief. He is willing to serve time in jail rather than to lie and admit to something he has not done.

I admire his courage and deplore his conviction, for the ultimate price is paid by his family. His children can be proud that their father is such a man. We sympathize with them in their suffering, but also share with them the respect, admiration and love they feel for Alan Schwalbe.

Hair Views

To the Editor:

Orange County Supervisor Battin, among others, champions the cause of the unnatural by their public opposition to all but barefaced men.

If Mr. B. were truly consistent, he should appear in public with clean shaven head and that would serve to compound his error towards "unnatural" vs. "natural" growth of hair.

The extremes of absolute conformism as well as non-conformism are to Mr. B. and his disciples.

Surely, Objective Editor, there is Mailbox space for honest individuality and individual consideration without clinging to the hiring/firing equation that facial hairlessness is the only way to evaluate employees!

Anything less would be absurd.

Revolutionaries Strike It Rich

Drugs Finance Terror

JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Urban terrorists in Latin America have turned to narcotics smuggling to finance their revolutionary activities. The drugs usually are sneaked into the United States by methods which have made U.S. enforcement practices largely obsolete.

Our information comes from underworld sources who have inside knowledge of the smuggling operations. They have risked their lives to tell us what they know. We have checked their disclosures with federal investigators who have been able to confirm most of the details.

THE TERRORISTS have found the narcotics trade a more dependable source of revenue than kidnappings and bank robberies. They use most of the money to purchase arms, preferably American and Israeli automatic weapons, from gun dealers in Africa.

The revolutionaries go deep into the hinterlands of Latin America, particularly Bolivia, to buy up coca leaves treated with kerosene. This produces a cocaine sulphate, which can be refined into pure cocaine.

They sell the raw cocaine to underworld contacts who may smuggle it directly into the United States or may exchange it for heroin in Europe under a complicated barter deal. Whether it's Bolivian cocaine or bartered heroin, here's how the stuff is now smuggled into the United States:

ed States or may exchange it for heroin in Europe under a complicated barter deal. Whether it's Bolivian cocaine or bartered heroin, here's how the stuff is now smuggled into the United States:

—PARACHUTISTS, carrying drugs in back packs, have dropped into the California mountains. One husky courier, known in the underworld as "Crazy Tony," made three parachute jumps with 100 pounds of narcotics strapped to his back. After the last drop, our sources say, he and the narcotics disappeared.

—Businessmen with clean records usually can get past customs without a thorough search. Some have been unable to resist the $2,000 fee they are offered for every kilo of heroin they can sneak into the country.

—THE SMUGGLERS have been able to bribe airline cargo handlers or plant their own men on cargo crews at U.S. airports. For $500 a kilo, they divert the drugs before customs agents make their inspections.

—Sometimes, a corrupt cargo handler may simply empty the heroin from a package. Or he may pull a switch, substituting some legitimate item for the arriving heroin. The manifest is doctored to show the substitute item.

—Another tactic is to address the heroin parcel to a destination in Europe or Asia, and then bribe a cargo crewman to put it on a plane for the United States. The paperwork will show that a package was misrouted to the United States and rerouted to the proper destination. But while it is sitting in the U.S. airport, it is quietly stolen.

THESE TRICKS, according to our underworld informants, usually fool U.S. authorities. They are still using the old system of assigning undercover narcotics agents to infiltrate the distribution system.

The agents usually start in a lowly capacity and try to work their way into the confidence of the higher-ups. Their objective is to make a case against the bosses.

Meanwhile, illicit drugs are flowing into this country in alarming volume. The smugglers have succeeded in changing their methods faster than the enforcement agencies can keep up with them.

More effort should be made to nail the separate shipments, our underworld tipsters suggest, than to waste time infiltrating the U.S. smuggling operation. The best way to find out about the shipments, these sources say, is to concentrate on developing better intelligence at the other end of the smuggling network overseas.

Words in Praise of the Siesta

CHARLES

your adobe or concrete than out in the rays of the sun.

In Puerto Rico this was quite true. At midday it was boiling. It was the practice of most shops to close at one and open again at four or four-thirty.

Most of the big American companies, like General Motors and Swift, insisted that their Yankee representative show the flag and uphold the Puritan ethic at the same time. It was a point of perverse pride with these boys that they work the same hours as they had on the mainland.

WHAT FINALLY converted me to paganism was the fact that my boss, one Basil Gallagher, and an Irish Catholic of the most pronounced stripe, did not hesitate to stay away from the office for three or four hours in the afternoon. I never did know whether he in fact took a siesta; but he kept siesta hours.

After a long vinous lunch at La Mallorquina, I would repair to my home on Calle Miramar in suburban Santurce, and crawl under the mosquito netting of my bed for a couple of hours snooze. I would get back to work about five and work until seven, more or less.

I HAVE BEEN taking my siesta steadily for about 15 years now, or since the time I was liberated from the city room by being awarded a daily column. On the days when, for one reason or another, I have to forego the afternoon sleep, my life is seriously discombobulated, and my temper far from improved.

There are people who find this mode of life mildly amusing. To them I can only say they do not know what they are missing.

I actually sleep for only an hour or so; but remain in bed for an hour or two longer. The siesta seems to refresh me completely, body and mind. I spend the rest of the time in bed, just reading, usually light stuff like periodicals or the occasional mystery story. The Latins say the siesta, with its systematic withdrawal of the old libido, adds years to their lives. I'm prepared for it.

Animals Starving

Redding authorities are preparing to take feed to a herd of 3,000 starving cattle and horses found on a ranch near Redding. Efforts are being made to find ranch foreman. Complaints of starving livestock are on increase lately, as feed costs rise.

Ellsworth's 75 Horses Improved

LOS ANGELES (AP) — About 75 horses from Rex Ellsworth's Chino herd are in "satisfactory condition" at an Ellsworth ranch in Arizona, the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals says.

About 48 more horses at Chino are improving and Ellsworth will soon move them to the ranch near Safford, Ariz., with the SPCA's permission, an SPCA official said Thursday.

GEORGE CROSIER, executive vice president of the SPCA office here, said 75 of the approximately 500 horses at the ranch at Safford, Ariz., were from Ellsworth's herd at Chino, east of Los Angeles.

Ellsworth was fined $5,000 in a San Bernardino County Court last January after the SPCA charged that about 130 horses at the Chino ranch were not being fed properly.

The herd was impounded and Ellsworth paid the SPCA $12,000 to care for the animals at Chino. Later Ellsworth moved the 75 horses to Arizona with the SPCA's permission.

Horsemeat Sex Ring Charge Faces Ex-officer

SACRAMENTO (AP) — State officials say a Merced County man has been booked for investigation of 18 felony counts of selling consumers horsemeat when they thought they were buying beef.

Donald Hennagan of Dos Palos was named in the complaint filed by the Merced County district attorney, the state Department of Food and Agriculture said Thursday.

LENNOX (UPI) — A former Highway Patrolman has been arrested on charges of being the head of the biggest prostitution ring in Southern California.

Horace J. McKenna, 32, who was dismissed from the patrol after he was arrested for credit card fraud, was held under $15,000 bail on charges of conspiracy to commit pimping, pandering and prostitution.

Los Angeles County Sheriff's investigators said McKenna was suspected of being the head of a syndicate that ran brothels and "sex centers" that took in an estimated $100,000 a month. Deputies Tuesday night raided nine sex centers, believed to be part of the operation, in the southern Los Angeles area.

A spokesman for the Highway Patrol said McKenna, of New Orleans, became an officer in June, 1968, but was dismissed in 1972 after being arrested in Palm Springs on charges of stealing and forging credit cards.

Friend of Scott

Ex-Olympic Star Eyed in SLA Case

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A federal grand jury has issued a subpoena for a former Olympics long jumper who is a close friend of a sports activist sought for questioning in the Patricia Hearst search.

Sources say the subpoena seeks the testimony of Phillip K. Shinnick, now a New Jersey college instructor, on April 10 before the special grand jury here probing the Symbionese Liberation Army.

RECENT NEWS reports have linked Shinnick's longtime friend, Jack Scott, former Oberlin University athletic director, to the flight of Miss Hearst and other known fugitives. Miss Hearst joined the SLA after being abducted by some of its members last year.

"The subpoena was issued, but this does not mean it has been served on him," a source close to the investigation told The Associated Press Thursday.

Scott, 33, and his wife, Micki, rented a South Canaan, Pa., farmhouse where the fingerprints of Miss Hearst, SLA companions William and Emily Harris and another fugitive, Wendy Yoshimura, reportedly were found. No charges have been filed against the Scotts.

Officials declined comment on reasons for issuing a subpoena for Shinnick, formerly athletic director at Livingston College at Rutgers University and currently a sociology instructor there.

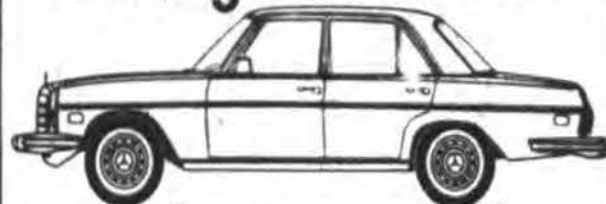

Shell Hiking Price of Oil

SAN MATEO (UPI) — All grades of Shell motor gasoline went up in price a penny a gallon Thursday.

Shell Oil also announced here that the price of kerosene, premium diesel, furnace oil, diesel fuel and jet fuel would be hiked 1.5 cents while aviation gasoline and liquid petroleum gas would be boosted two cents a gallon.

The increases, the company said, were made in accordance with federal cost pass-through regulations. And, Shell Oil said, the increases would apply to all classes of trade, resellers and consumers nationwide.

Jackson Death Police Plot?

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Los Angeles police knew in advance about and contributed to the bloody escape attempt at San Quentin Prison in which George Jackson and five others were killed, a public defender has charged.

An inoperable gun and simple window putty resembling plastic explosive was smuggled to Jackson in an attempt to get him to escape, charged Chief Deputy Public Defender Frank J. Cox of Marin County.

"This was an attempt to kill George Jackson by a preemptive first strike," Cox said in an affidavit on file today with the state Court of Appeal.

PG&E Reward

SAN JOSE (UPI) — Pacific Gas & Electric Co., faced with a 48-hour ultimatum to provide free service to the jobless, is offering a $15,000 reward for the capture of terrorists who blasted a substation and two other facilities in a week.

The latest sabotage occurred Thursday. Five pipebombs were detonated at a substation here, knocking out power to some 35,000 homes in the Santa Clara Valley. There were no injuries.

Smoking Fine?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — What happens when an airline passenger refuses to comply with the "no smoking" sign?

Donald Duffy found out Thursday. The U.S. government filed suit against him in federal court, seeking to have him fined $1,000 for violating federal aviation regulations.

Fraud Denial

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — H. M. (Hank) Greenspun, publisher of the Las Vegas Sun, has denied any wrongdoing in the takeover of an airline by Howard Hughes in 1968.

Greenspun was one of several defendants named in a multimillion-dollar Securities & Exchange Commission suit filed in San Francisco. The suit said stockholders of Air West, Inc., were defrauded in the takeover.

ACLU Sues LA Police

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A $2 million suit has been filed by the American Civil Liberties Union on behalf of two women arrested in the controversial "sex-hostesses" case.

The suit filed in U.S. District court here Thursday alleges that Sandra Birdsong and Geraldine Washington, both 25, were denied their constitutional rights to be free of illegal arrest and to due process of law. The defendants are 25 Los Angeles police officers, including Capt. Jack Wilson, commanding officer of the police administrative vice divisions.

Wives Get VD 'Call'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Housewives: ignore that phone call warning that your husband has venereal disease.

California health officials say someone claiming to be a public health inspector has called Sacramento women, telling them to seek medical attention or take preventive measures because their husbands have VD.

"You can't imagine the telephone calls we get after the woman has had an opportunity to discuss this with her husband," a State Department of Health official said Thursday.

Pandering Charge Admitted

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Terri Lynn Martin, who had a trick book in her apartment that officers said included the names of two legislators, pleaded guilty to a charge of pandering.

Miss Martin, a 28-year-old woman who lived in an apartment several blocks from the Capitol when arrested last November, made the plea on the condition she not be sent to prison.

OFFICERS EXPLAINED THAT pandering means procuring a female for an act of prostitution. Miss Martin will be sentenced April 16.

She acknowledged to a reporter that her customers included legislators and state employees. But Miss Martin, who says she first engaged in prostitution at age 13, added:

"There were also plumbers, electricians, carpenters and truck drivers."

THE NAMES IN THE TRICK book have never been revealed, and Brian Flynn, Miss Martin's attorney, asked that the book be sealed indefinitely. Judge Michael J. Virga agreed and sealed the book.

Miss Martin also had a message for any of her former clients who are worried that she may talk too much about the past. Miss Martin says she won't and adds if she did "there would be a lot more divorces."

MISS MARTIN ALSO PUT in a pitch for legalized prostitution and said she would like to talk to Margo St. James, a former prostitute who founded an organization of prostitutes and their supporters called Coyote.

Miss Martin said she would like to start a Sacramento chapter of the group.

At court, Miss Martin was wearing a white uniform, white shoes and a wig. She said she was going to beauty school to learn a new trade.

Movie: Message and Messenger

Dolores J. Sloan discusses women on both sides of the movie camera and film as history in Cal State Long Beach class in Westminster.

By LAURIE KASPER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The movie screen is more than a setting for a story. It's a mirror which reflects our society, morality and values, according to Dolores J. Sloan, teacher of a California State University, Long Beach continuing education class on Women in Film: The Message and the Messenger.

Noting that motion pictures have been here since 1895, she explained, "We're tracing history."

Her discussion of the class, which meets in Westminster High School, extends beyond women either in front of or behind the camera over the years and emphasizes that part of the course title which comes after the colon.

She wants to give her students a "cinematic eye" so they will understand what is being said and how, as well as be able to ask what is not being said.

"I think it's very important we see the media as the conveyor of the dominant values in the mass society," she explained.

"I think if we truly examine the media we'll know where we're at."

A hundred years from now, people will be able to look at motion pictures and see how people thought, felt and believed, she said.

CATHARSIS

Catastrophe films, she added, demonstrate people's belief that life is chaotic. "It's kind of a catharsis." People can watch the movie and get in touch with their fears, even if they are on an unconscious level.

Films, she said, even show people's wish fulfillment, as with pornographic films.

Ms. Sloan, coordinator of continuing education programs for women at CSULB, also teaches classes called Helping Children Meet the Mass Media Impact and Film Making through La Verne College's weekend series.

The Newport Beach resident has a bachelor's degree in journalism and political science, a masters degree in government and is working on another masters in psychology. (The first "didn't help me career-wise.")

She also produced a film, "Women at Your Doors," for KOCE.

Next spring, she will teach the women in film class through Cal State's Radio-TV Department.

In the early silent films, Ms. Sloan said, woman was either a very lovely, sensitive person or one who henpecked her husband. Later, the woman came in as the helpless victim who needed to be saved by the male hero. But she was also highly manipulative, using her "feminine wiles" to get her way.

EXAGGERATED ROLES

Although some of these stereotypes continue to exist in today's films, Ms. Sloan pointed out that they needed to be exaggerated in the silent films.

Only titles, as "the man" and "his wife" were used in these films, none of which were concerned with the development of individual characters.

In the 20s, there were the flappers, "naughty girls" who became good at the end, reflecting the existing middle class morality.

"Very rarely do you see women create the action." When they do, she said, they create problems or appear foolish.

Never the hero or the protagonist, they are the reactors.

Except for a brief period in the 30s, films have also shown the fragmentation of women who have careers but also feel guilty about them, a feeling which has been substantiated in real-life studies.

In the end of most movies, the woman has given up her work for marriage.

Ms. Sloan credits much of this to the male directors, since "film is a director's medium," and most directors have been men.

Through "selective perception," a concept she also uses in teaching journalism classes, directors see and portray women according to their own economic, social, cultural upbringing.

ROLES REFLECTED

Men want to see themselves as the conquerors because they have been trained to believe that unless they are like that, they won't make it in life, she said.

'I think it's very important we see the media as the conveyor of the dominant values in the mass society.'

Women, on the other hand, have been trained to be afraid of achievement and to function primarily as child bearers.

And this is reflected in films, but Ms. Sloan said she doesn't believe there have been any villains.

She believes all the stereotypes have been values necessary for the preservation of our economic system.

It has needed low paid and volunteer workers to continue. The best way to do this is to cast women as homemakers.

This affects men too, she said, for they are portrayed as the workers. "We have to keep men in this pace or the whole system will collapse."

Men are not totally to blame for these roles, she added. There also have been women directors, some of whom have done what she considers the "most grossly chauvinistic films."

And sex role stereotypes are, not the only image problem seen in films. Minorities also have been shown unrealistically.

Blacks have always been the slaves, servants and cooks. And the American Indian has been shown only as making it hard for the frontiersman.

SKILLS NEEDED

Recognizing this, Ms. Sloan still is not opposed to using film for propaganda. She admits that her films always carry her point of view.

Because this is a democratic society, she explained, all ideas should be heard. "But we need to develop the skills in order to really hear what's coming at us."

Most people, she said, only see films at the story level. She hopes to help her students "really see what's going on in that film beyond the story level."

She wants her students to know how the camera was used to show the person and to question what else might have been done.

The more a person knows about the media, she explained, the more they can be a "conscious consumer" of the ideas they are asked to buy.

Ann Landers

Time Checked

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This letter is a complaint against doctors who make appointments with patients, then keep them waiting for hours in a stuffy, germ-filled waiting room. Shouldn't the patient be allowed to deduct from his bill the value of the time lost in waiting?

For example: A lawyer's time is worth at least $50 an hour, a skilled worker, maybe $10, etc. Their time is worth money — same as the doctor's — isn't it? What's your opinion, Ann? — NOT SO PATIENT GRISELDA

DEAR GRIS: Unfortunately, the best doctors are trapped by emergencies, get delayed at the hospital and are booked solid at the office. So you wait — now and then.

If, however, you are kept waiting for hours on a regular basis, you have a legitimate complaint. Deduct your time loss from the doctor's bill and let me know how you make out.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a girl, 16, who is going with a super guy. Hal is nearly 18. I thought we were going steady, but I found out last week that he has been seeing another girl behind my back. She's a "hot tomato" with a crummy reputation. I was really knocked out when I found out that Hal was late-dating her.

I asked him what he was up to and he said, "I'm getting from her what I can't get from you." Then he added something from the Bible, like "Man cannot live by bread alone."

I'm a wreck because I'm very hung-up on Hal. I don't want to lose him. I think he was trying to get across the idea that he wouldn't be going with that trashy girl if I gave him what he wanted. What do you think about the spot I'm in? — HUNGSVILLE

DEAR HUNG: You're not in a spot, honey. Hal is. Just ignore his "after-hours" social program and MYOB. There's very little chance that "hot tomato" will displace you. Those sad little girls who allow themselves to be used for fun and games are seldom elevated to the status of a real girlfriend.

I think you might profit from my new booklet, "High School Sex and How to Deal With It — A Guide for Teens and Their Parents." Send 50 cents to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120, along with a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. "Hot Tomato" could profit from it too. Girls who have gone over the line need information to help themselves stay out of trouble.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Since others have unloaded their minor (and major) irritations on you over the years, and felt better for having done so, I think I'll do the same.

My gripe is people who spend good money to have their eyes examined, are fitted with glasses by the ophthalmologist or optometrist and that's the last time they ever bother about something that is a permanent part of their face.

I wish I had nerve enough to carry a camera and take pictures of friends, relatives and colleagues whose glasses are hanging on an upper lip, or halfway down a nose. Don't they realize glasses need to be tightened, straightened and realigned periodically?

I wear glasses myself and am at a loss to understand how a person can stand specs that are falling off his face. It would drive me nuts.

Thanks for letting me have my say. — I FEEL BETTER ALREADY

DEAR BETTER: So do I because I happen to share that irritation. Thank you for writing.

Maryalyce Sager, who has driven tractor-trailer rigs for more than seven years, teaches new drivers among other jobs. Driving, she says, is freedom.

Truck Driver Shifts Jobs

By ALLISON DEERR
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

"Wouldn't you like to drive one of these?" asked the man checking out the tractor-trailer rigs at the California Trucking Association booth.

"I have," replied Maryalyce Sager.

Most of the people who passed her booth at the International Trucking Show at the Anaheim Convention Center probably assumed she was just another model distributing brochures.

But, her business card reads, "Instructor, CTA Trucking School." She teaches truckers.

"Seven years ago, when I went through driving school, people would stop dead still on the highway, turn around and stare. I still get double takes, but nothing like when I started."

The Arcadia woman made long hauls across the country and ran three businesses of her own including a trucking firm and a catering truck operation before adding teaching to her list.

THEY'RE HIRING

Women, she asserted, have the best chance ever of getting a job after certified training. "Companies are dying to hire women drivers. Why? They're the best you can get."

She explained that many men take the job for the money. "They have to work, have a family to feed, the money's good, so they take it. It's just a job."

"When a woman takes it, she really has to want to succeed.

Although the ranks of women who drive the huge vehicles are growing, discrimination is still present.

Fair Employment Practices Commission rulings have made things easier, she said, but you have to face the treatment you get in an occasional truck stop.

"I've had waitresses tell me that a certain section is for drivers only. Or, that the rooms were for men only. That's ridiculous! They're separate rooms with locks on the shower doors. It's something you have to deal with."

Trucking is no big deal to Ms. Sager who remembers favoring scaled-down heavy equipment and trucks even as a child. She built her share of soap box cars and did a bit of pre-teen joyriding in the family car.

FAMILY PLAN

Two of her sisters are truckers—one in Florida, the other in Montana.

Work is an integral part of her make-up.

"I always have at least two jobs," she said.

If the trucking industry hits a slump she can fall back on her training as a nurse, her skills as a small business manager and her job as an equipment officer third class in the Seabees, Navy Reserve.

What leisure time she has will find her skydiving or rock climbing.

Currently, she drives two jobs as well as teaching at the CTA school.

The job could have no better recruiter. She has a way of cancelling out negative attitudes.

"When I talk to someone who wants to drive, but isn't sure she can handle it, I take her on a trial run on five empty acres."

"Pretty soon, they don't want to stop."

She believes that a lot of people have a secret desire to be a trucker.

"You'd be surprised at the doctors, lawyers and company executives who tell me what they'd really like to do is drive."

REALIZE DREAM

"I tell them to take a leave, go to school and do it."

A great many people idolize the huge vehicles, she said.

She took to the multi-gearred monsters with no trouble, finding in her work a sense of freedom.

She exudes self-confidence.

"I've always been independent. I think I was born independent. Even as a little girl I was always opening doors I wasn't supposed to open."

Her two children seem to be following her lead. Her daughter wants to drive a truck for awhile then go to veterinary school. Her son plans to study medicine.

"Things are changing. People still are surprised to see me on the road alone. But now, when women apply they don't get the hysterical laughter I did."

Guests Piped Aboard

Hurrying to the Pavilion Queen for an evening of fun are (left to right) Mrs. Thomas Williams, Bonnie Cowan and Cinnamon Williams. Guests of the Girls Club of the Harbor Area will gather on the boat Friday, April 11, for a moonlight cruise, then adjourn to the Balboa Bay Club for dinner and dancing. The event priced at $25 per person, will raise funds for the club. Reservations are available at the club, 646-7181.

Houses Divided

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — Although they may be the nation's only married state legislative couple, Paul and Sharon Hess like to think of themselves as just ordinary folks.

He enjoys jogging and she likes to sew. They look forward to starting a vegetable garden when they can afford to buy a house. And, they talk of starting a family some day.

Last fall Sharon decided to join her husband as a member of the Kansas House from Wichita. She said a helpful factor in her election was advice and aid from her husband, already an experienced campaigner at age 26. They are both Republicans.

Hess was elected to the Kansas House in 1970 and became a senator in 1972. "As far as I can determine," said the senator, "We may be the only married legislators in the country."

Their unique status in the tradition-oriented Kansas legislature initially generated occasional good-natured ribbing from fellow lawmakers.

"At one dinner we were introduced as Rep. Sharon Hess and her lovely husband Paul," said Hess.

"We're getting used to people telling us politics makes strange bedfellows," said Sharon. "One colleague told me he was going to introduce a resolution to prevent senators from sleeping with house members."

The Hesses have been married for six years. They occasionally disagree on legislation but they have encountered no major differences so far.

The couple said they felt no pressure from each other to vote one way or another. After discussing the issues each reaches independent decisions.

Lawmakers Sharon and Paul Hess

Sharon said she and her husband realized early they didn't have to compete, and both agreed discussing issues brought them closer together.

While Hess says he doesn't rule out running for a higher office, his wife maintains she merely wants to be effective as a state representative.

"If I ever decide to run for governor, though," Sharon said, "you can bet Paul will be running for lieutenant governor."

Project Delayed By Mesa

The widening of Adams Avenue at Harbor Boulevard, a $90,000 project, will be delayed for a year so the money can be spent on another street job, the Costa Mesa City Council has decided.

The council decided at a meeting this week that the money be used for property acquisition to provide a new opening for St. Clair Street in the Mesa del Mar tract.

Presently, residents can get out of the back of the tract via Randolph Avenue to Bristol Street and they will still be able to get out after the Corona del Mar Freeway is constructed through access to a freeway frontage road.

But Public Works Director Jim Eldridge said that eventually St. Clair Street will also need an opening to Baker Street.

Eldridge estimated the cost of an opening to Baker Street at between $160,000 and $200,000 depending on which alignment is chosen. The council decided to buy the right-of-way — with money saved by delaying the Adams Avenue job — this year and budget money to build the street next year.

Eldridge said that the Adams Avenue widening could hold for another year.

Detective To Get FBI Training

The Huntington Beach Police Department will lose its chief detective for three months this spring while he undergoes FBI training.

Capt. Bert Ekstrom said today he plans to leave Tuesday for the Marine base at Quantico, Va., for three months at the FBI National Academy.

TOP POLICE officers throughout the nation are invited to the academy only after background investigations and clearance from Clarence Kelley, director of the FBI.

Two other members of the Huntington Beach force, Police Chief Earle Robitaille and Capt. Grover Payne, head of the department's uniform division, have also attended the FBI academy.

A WIDE RANGE of courses, from labor relations to special police tactics, are offered at the academy, which is an extension of the University of Virginia.

Ekstrom's city pay will continue while he is at the academy, but the FBI pays the extra cost of schooling.

Marathon's A Monster

By ALAN DIRKIN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

If you run the Los Angeles city marathon, you can drink all the orange juice and Coke afterward you want. And you get a T-shirt.

All that just for the $2 entry, and for running the 26.2-mile course. During most of the race it seems worth it. You start out at 8 a.m. Saturday from the Los Angeles Police Academy at Chavez Ravine and go for a spin around Elysian Park.

If you haven't trained like you should, and if you've run a marathon before, you'll take it very easily for as long as your spirit will allow. Pick an older chap out and run with him. He won't do anything foolish.

HE SAYS HE'S SHOOTING for 3½ hours, eight minutes a mile, because the course is hilly. He's been running six or seven years, ever since he gave up smoking.

"You see that bald-headed man up ahead?" your running mate asks. "He's the one always quoted in the newspapers and magazines about marathons. I've seen him quoted twice. Once he said no one who has ever finished a marathon has died of arterio-sclerosis."

"The second time he put it this way, 'No one has ever died of arterio-sclerosis within six years of finishing a marathon.' I like the guarded claim better because I'd rather die of arterio-sclerosis than cancer. So six years before I'm ready to go I'm going to stop running marathons."

About 90 minutes later, after going through Griffith Park, past the zoo and toy town, Forest Lawn comes up and the arterio-sclerosis story can be joked about again.

YOU REALIZE YOU HAVE gone halfway and the times called out by the officials tell you that the pace has been steady, 7½ minutes a mile. Far from the close to 5 minutes a mile that the winner will be running, but respectable.

About two miles before the 20-mile mark, though, you start wishing for it to come soon. There's no more joking, no more kidding about the pain. It's too real. There's nothing psychosomatic about the ache in the ankles, calves, and the back. You tell yourself to keep your head up, to keep your rhythm, but it doesn't work.

Twenty miles and the news is that if you can finish the last 6.2 miles, just a training run on any other day, in an hour you'll break 3½ hours. Some people aim to break 2½ hours, some 3 hours, some 3½ hours, some 4 hours. All goals are important.

BUT THERE ARE HILLS now. The older man is drawing ahead and there's nothing you can do about it. You think about how you would enjoy a milk shake. But the vision quickly fades. You start counting. You're in the teens and then you're in the forties. What happened to the twenties and thirties? Did you count them and not remember them or did you not count them? You've only gone 100 yards.

You try sexual fantasies, but for once they aren't diverting. They don't seem to last a second before you are aware again of the jarring sensation as your feet come down on the pavement. You're confused about whether the policeman is holding the traffic up for you, or you up for the traffic. He's waving vigorously.

Halfway up Stadium Way, at 25 miles, an official calls out, "Just over a mile to go." Three hours and 14 minutes have passed. Your pace has dropped to 10 or 11 minutes a mile.

SOMEHOW, IN A JOG-WALK, Stadium Way is climbed, and you limp home, passing another runner who seems at a standstill. Then you drink orange juice and Cokes and you don't wonder why you do this. It's not anticlimactic. You did beat 3½ hours, by 53 seconds. You know now that you were right to keep going. There would be nothing to appreciate if it was easy.

Comedian Found Guilty

Tells Judge He Never Filed Tax Returns

From Wire Services

Comedian Dave Gardner was found guilty in Mississippi of failure to file federal tax returns for four years.

Federal Judge Dan M. Russell Jr. delayed sentencing Gardner pending a probation report.

Gardner, 48, used to appear frequently on the Jack Paar show and recorded several popular comedy records during his career.

When the judge asked why he did not file returns, Gardner chuckled and said:

"Excuse me for laughing, but I never took care of that. I never kept up with the money I made. I don't know how much I'm worth so if I filled out one of them forms it would be fraud."

Ford Motor Co.'s top two officers told stockholders that slumping profits last year meant no executive bonuses — awards that gave each man an extra $590,000 in addition to their salaries in 1973.

Ford Chairman Henry Ford II and President Lee A. Iacocca were paid $291,667 each last year, an increase of $16,000 from the previous year, but the 60 percent drop in profits meant no bonuses. Earnings last year were the lowest for the No. 2 auto company since 1958.

Dorothy Ebright of Carlsbad says she can't understand what the world press made such a fuss about last month.

All she did was go to a London car dealership and pay $103,200 in cash for seven Rolls-Royces and two Bentleys.

"They made me out as some kind of kook," she said, looking out from her rustic home at her private lake.

Mrs. Ebright jealously guards her privacy, but agreed to an interview with the San Diego Union "to set the record straight."

Government auditors reported that "a number of gifts apparently received" from foreign governments by former President Nixon and his family are not officially recorded.

White House gift records of former President Johnson were found to be in order.

The report of the General Accounting Office to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee gave no details on the unreported Nixon gifts.

Charles W. Colson says his commitment to Christ has deepened since his conversion and the seven months he spent in prison for his Watergate sins.

Once a $200,000-a-year corporate lawyer and one of Richard M. Nixon's closest advisers, Colson says he has no desire to return to his old life. He says his only plans are to work "with the fellowship" and for prison reform. He has enough money saved to live this way awhile.

Colson, 44, was interviewed in his sprawling Tudor home in a hilly, wooded area of McLean, Va. Autographed pictures of Nixon and former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew hang beside his desk.

Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis returned to New York from Paris, where she had been since the funeral of her husband, shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis.

President Ford conferred with Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., NATO supreme military commander. Some of the conversation centered on Haig's days as White House chief of staff.

During a picture-taking session, Donald Rumsfeld, who replaced Haig as chief of staff, quipped that the general had "really overplayed this job."

"I get in at 10 in the morning, have a sauna bath, telephone my wife," Rumsfeld said. "It's a piece of cake."

Haig is now posted in Brussels where Rumsfeld previously served as U.S. ambassador to NATO.

Evening College Studied

A push toward resolving a dispute over the Evening College, which is responsible for night classes at both the Golden West and Orange Coast campuses, has been made by administrators at OCC.

The issue is whether the Evening College should be run as a separate institution from the two day colleges. The Academic Senate at Golden West College has urged trustees of the Coast Community College District to place the Evening College under the jurisdiction of the day colleges.

THIS WEEK trustees were informed that the OCC Administrative Cabinet studied the GWC Academic Senate proposal and recommended that a districtwide committee be established to develop an analysis of all the colleges.

The OCC cabinet also proposed that the administration of the summer school, presently an Evening College operation, be assigned to the day colleges beginning with the summer of 1976.

The OCC cabinet proposals were endorsed by a unanimous vote of the OCC Faculty Senate.

Trustees took no action on the OCC cabinet proposals. District Chancellor Dr. Norman Watson said that a management study of the Evening College is being made. He said several options will be presented to the board later.

IN AN APPARENT rejection of the OCC cabinet proposal that a districtwide committee be set up to study the issue, Dr. Watson said, "I prefer the present structure because we are continually involved in management self-study."

Charges have been made that classes are crowded and the support staff and equipment inadequate at the Evening College in comparison with the day colleges.

Another question raised about the Evening College concerns whether quality is maintained in parallel courses — courses supposed to have the same content and value in both day and evening classes. Allegations also have been made that the Evening College is a moneymaker, allegedly receiving more in state revenue than it spends.

IN RESPONSE, Evening College administrators pointed to the climbing attendance at night classes and said that because the school is free from ties to the day colleges it is able to respond more readily to changing student demands, such as the introduction of courses.

Night classes must be well taught otherwise the adults who go to night school would not continue to attend, Evening College administrators argue.

Three Draw Jail Terms In Robbery

Three San Clemente men, two of them Camp Pendleton Marines, have been sentenced to varying terms in Orange County Jail for their part in a Newport Beach purse snatching incident that netted the trio $20.

Superior Court Judge Robert L. Corfman sentenced William Robert Storm, 26, of 452 Elsinore Ave., San Clemente, to 150 days in jail after he pleaded guilty to grand theft charges.

Identical pleas were filed by Marines Lee Roy Morrisch, 20, of 105 E. El Portal, and Gregory Lloyd Lovellette, 18, of 152 W. Escalones, both of San Clemente. Each man drew a 90-day jail term and all three were placed on three years probation.

Newport Beach police arrested the trio last Feb. 7 after they attacked and robbed Mrs. Sara Ortig, 67, of 3111 Bayside Drive.

Police said Storm knocked Mrs. Ortig to the ground as she was walking near her home and ran to the car which contained his two co-defendants. Police halted the car at Jamboree Road and Santa Barbara Drive after witnesses provided them with a description of the auto.

Costa Mesa Fiesta Set

The chamber of commerce already is working on plans for the Fiesta de Costa Mesa, scheduled for Sept. 19-21 in the downtown city park.

Fiesta chairman Les Miller says there will be a bicycle parade, a 15-ride carnival, music and dancing groups, a tiny tots royal court, a young adults beauty contest, and helicopter rides.

The bicycle parade will be open to mini bikes, tricycles, baby buggies, strollers, unicycles, tandems, and any other pedal operated bike. There will be divisions for mothers pushing strollers, cyclists up to 11, cyclists, 12 through 17, and cyclists over 18.

Former Stockboy Becomes Policeman

By ARTHUR R. VINSEL
Of The Daily Pilot Staff

He wears a boyish grin, and Costa Mesa Police Department Badge 115, but officer Bob Baker does not strike you as a typical TV show cop, quick to pull his weapon and join a gun battle.

Still, it could come to that.

"One of my main concerns is coming up against a life-or-death situation," says the earnest young patrolman. "Where you have to make a decision whether to use 'The Weapon'."

"I've known a couple of officers who have had to. For a few months afterward, physically and emotionally, you go through hell.

"EXCUSE THE expression. . .," he adds quietly.

Robert Leslie Baker, 21, Westminster High School Class of '71, former stockboy for the J.C. Penney Company, is starting a new career.

He carries Badge 115 and he's a cop.

His duties involve answering the front desk phone and doing office work in the department's records bureau, but April 14 he enters the Orange County Peace Officers Academy, simultaneously graduating from Pepperdine University with a degree in public management.

He gets a gun. He learns to use it. How to. When to.

He has been shuffling papers and answering telephones in the records bureau since June, when the police cadet program began.

OFFICER BAKER

HE IS ITS first graduate, but before that he put in four years as a member of the Westminster Police Department's law enforcement Explorer Scout post. He helped capture a nursery business burglar on a ride-along patrol situation.

He also worked on the department's bicycle safety program. Even after you've met him a few times, you have to remind him your first name isn't "Sir," but that's the way he has been brought up as a modern policeman. He never expected to be one.

"When I was a little kid, I wanted to build a bridge or be an airplane pilot," he says.

HIS FATHER, Forrest Baker of Westminster, has been in the retail sales business, while his older brothers are in the electronics field and mechanical engineering.

Officer Baker, a Golden West College graduate, is single and lives with his parents.

He expects to graduate from the Peace Officers' Academy in late June, but says no change is likely in his status as a bachelor. He is to be assigned as a patrolman in the field, where all young cops start.

Drunks, dopers, screaming haridians who began their marriages as beaming brides and pathological bad-check writers could cripple Baker's outlook, but it is now idealistic.

"I THINK right now, police work is at a point of change," he says. "I think probably law enforcement is going to change even more.

"I'm interested in the SWAT (Special Weapons and Tactics team) but I'm intrigued with the duties of a patrol sergeant," he comments. "I've seen them work."

The patrol sergeant is the man who in crises is the nerve center of the sometimes-frantic process of restoring order, stopping a crime, or perhaps saving life in the daily routine of a busy city.

"HE HAS SIX to eight men under him and can't program what's going to go down," says Baker who hopes to be a patrol sergeant, coordinating that community reaction to crisis.

He is a fan of former LAPD Sgt. Joseph Wambaugh, author of three novels about what police work is like, "The Onion Field," "The Blue Knight" and "The Centurions."

Wambaugh is also consultant to the television series "Police Story."

"He produces as close to it as you can come with the TV media," says Baker.

Baker, with eight days as an officer and assigned to the records bureau, says there isn't all that much adventure.

Planners Eye Car Glut

Newport Beach planning commissioners will wait until next month to decide how to solve the problem of overflowing parking lots at busy restaurants.

Commissioners held a public hearing recently on a staff proposal calling for many more parking spaces than are now required.

They took no action on the proposal, but did express surprise at the great impact the changes would have. They will reopen the public hearing April 17, after first huddling with staff planners to discuss the problem in more detail.

Current provisions call for one space for every 45 square feet of public area in restaurants.

Planners now have suggested two alternate ways of calculating how many new spaces to demand.

One method calls for requiring one space for every 35 square feet of public area. The area considered public, however, would be larger than what is now counted. Patios, balconies and stairways not now counted would be added in.

The second method would be to calculate parking spaces on the basis of total gross area of the

SCAG Okays Mesa's Bid For Funding

Costa Mesa's application for $229,000 in federal funds for housing and community development has been approved by the Southern California Association of Governments (SCAG).

The SCAG review noted the emphasis on housing and said that Costa Mesa's application "is in keeping with the spirit and letter of the 1974 Housing and Community Development Act."

The city is waiting for the state review of the application to be completed before submitting it to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. This must be done by April 15. The funds are expected July 1, if the application is successful.

These are the other developments on the housing front:

—City Planner Doug Clark reported that Costa Mesa is now a member of the Orange County Housing Authority, and that the city will be a part of the authority's next request for federal funds to subsidize rents.

—Boyd McCullough, an employee relations manager, has been appointed chairman of the 11-member Community Development committee, succeeding Councilwoman Norma Hertzog who acted as chairman during the committee's formation; Mary Smallwood has been named vice chairman of the committee.

This committee is the group that recommended to the city council that Costa Mesa apply for the federal housing funds, join the housing authority, hire a housing administrator and get involved with programs to improve substandard homes.

Clark, the staff member working with the committee, reported that sub-committees are working on implementation of the council's approved by the council, such as emergency shelter for evicted families, low-interest loans to rehabilitate housing and grants to bring houses up to code. The committee will next meet at 7 p.m. April 8 in the fifth-floor conference room at city hall.

3 Killed In Church

ZARAGOZA, Spain (AP) — A crumbling village church claimed three victims, bringing to six the number of lives lost under its collapsing stonework in five months.

The latest three workers were killed when the dome of the Valdehorashe church calved in, officials said. The masons were repairing damage caused when the church partly collapsed last November killing three members of a family living in a nearby house.

restaurant. Under this method, restaurants would need one space for every 62 square feet.

For example, if the Rusty Pelican on Coast Highway were to apply now for a restaurant permit and the new method were in operation, the restaurant would need 98 percent more spaces than are now offered.

Currently, the Rusty Pelican has 53 spaces. Under the first method suggested, it would need 105.

Under the second method, the Rusty Pelican would need 93 spaces, or a 63 percent increase.

Hurst Stays in Tune

Auto Whiz Starting New Business in Mesa

By STEVE MITCHELL
Of The Daily Pilot Staff

George Hurst, who rode to fame on the success of his auto racing equipment, has shifted gears with a new enterprise called George Hurst Executive Systems.

Headquartered on the West side of the Orange County Airport, the venture provides indoor parking and automotive service for commuters departing from the airport.

HURST, WHOSE patented gear shifter is installed in practically all floor-shifted General Motors and Chrysler products as original equipment, says his Costa Mesa company will begin tune-up service on customers' autos by the end of April.

For now, the two-week-old firm provides transportation to and from the airport, indoor parking while commuters are out of the county, and a hand-washed and vacuumed vehicle when they return.

Hurst has sunk about $100,000 into the enterprise, a figure he terms "embarrassing," but hopes to operate a nationwide network of automotive tune-up and parking centers at airports eventually.

This goal may sound far-fetched, but to Hurst, who built an $11 million-a-year manufacturing plant from a two-car garage in suburban Philadelphia, the venture should be a piece of cake.

THE 48-YEAR-OLD businessman sold his interest in Hurst Performance, Inc. in 1972 for $2.5 million in Sunbeam Company stock and spent a year promoting the Navy on a $1-a-year contract.

He received a Meritorious Public Service Award from former Secretary of the Navy Paul H. Nitze for his efforts.

"I was just sort of goofing off that year," he explained, but recalled a time when he couldn't afford the luxury.

The former Navy aviation machinist mate started selling mail-order engine conversion kits to hot rodders when he was discharged from the service in the mid-50s.

"AT THAT TIME, if a guy wanted a more powerful engine

GEORGE HURST STILL TINKERING WITH AUTOS
Coast Man Opens New Service at OC Airport

in his car, he had to put it in himself," Hurst said.

The mechanic also designed and sold Volkswagen bus bumper guards, which "sold real well until VW changed the design of its buses and started making its own bumper guards," he said.

The move put Hurst out of business and $20,000 in debt. He went back to his engine conversion kits, and after an 11,000-mile trip to promote his product, began to edge out of the red in 1958.

Seventeen years later, the company employs more than 500 in Philadelphia and in several California subsidiaries, one of which designed the disc brake system for the Bay Area Rapid Transit District (BART).

With that business behind him, Hurst has started again, this time with a 60,000-square foot facility in Costa Mesa and eight employees.

He is investing $50,000 in a 19-seat van prototype to transport commuters and will move the first of six auto diagnostic computers into the new building next month.

AL CARPENTER, vice president of communications for the company, says the executive service will save commuters the problem of finding a parking space at the airport.

"There are only 1,150 parking spots at the airport now," Carpenter said. "Activities are much heavier than that and as a result, many commuters can't find a place to park."

All this will change, Hurst feels, when the business gets rolling.

Hurst, who strongly resembles a close friend, actor Ernest Borgnine, said if the Orange County venture is successful, he will train an army of tune-up technicians to man his nationwide scheme.

AND, JUDGING from his past successes, that time may not be far off.

'Handling' Contested In GM Ads

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission says General Motors Corp. agreed it will not make advertising claims about how well its cars handle unless it can back up such claims with competent scientific tests.

The case grew out of a GM commercial for the 1971 Chevrolet Vega which describes the car as the best-handling passenger car ever built in the United States. The ETC alleged GM had no reasonable basis for making such a claim.

Under a negotiated settlement tentatively approved last November and finally agreed upon Thursday, GM said it would provide substantiation any time it makes superiority claims for its cars on such things as emergency steering maneuvers, turning corners at high speed or driving the car in gusty cross winds or under other severe braking and steering conditions.

GM's advertising agency, Campbell-Ewald Co. of Detroit, also signed the agreement.

Pest Strip Gets Test

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency has asked for public and scientific comment on whether pest strips, which hang indoors to kill insects, are safe.

The products, such as the Shell "no-pest" strip, currently are listed on their labels as not for use in kitchens or in rooms where infants, ill or aged persons are confined. They also are not supposed to be used in restaurants, food preparation areas or hospital patient rooms, the EPA said.

EPA said Thursday it is publishing a notice for more information as part of its continuing evaluation of pesticides.

Yawn Healthy Sign in Patient

Writes a kindly feminine client: "Being a registered nurse, I sometimes have sad occasion to watch patients who are far past medical help. Once long ago, I saw such a patient yawn. I was so surprised that I waited for her next yawn. Sure enough, that was the turning point, and she recovered. Subsequent vigils confirmed to me that terminally ill persons do yawn, I rejoice, when very sick patients do yawn, I rejoice, expecting their recovery."

IF YOU HAVE 12 guests at a party and ask each of them to specify the exact amount of change in their pockets or purses, you can be fairly certain that at least two will name the same amount. Or so a statistician tells me.

NO RAIN
Q. "How can the Peruvians grow things around Lima if it never rains there?"

A. A fog bank hangs over the city about six months out of every year. It's called the "garua." Dampens things down fairly well.

Q. "WHO SAID, 'Everybody talks about the weather, but nobody does anything about it?' Mark Twain or Will Rogers?"

A. Both said it, but Charley Dudley Warner said it first.

Q. "WHAT WAS the average wage in this country 150 years ago?"

A. Exactly $5.30 per week.

RING
"Why is a boxing ring called a 'ring' when it's square?" inquires a customer. Because the original boxing sites were simply circles drawn with sticks in the dirt. Believe I already told you that the earlier boxers sat not on stools, but on the knees of their handlers.

Ford Seat Problem Reported

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Front seat pivot pin brackets on 1968 and 1969 Ford Mustangs and Mercury Cougars may give way suddenly, causing seat backs to collapse and drivers to lose control of their cars, federal safety experts say.

A spokesman for the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration said such failures resulted in 18 injuries.

APPROXIMATELY 600,000 of the 1968 and 1969 Mustangs and Cougars are in use, the spokesman said.

The announcement, issued both to the public and to the Ford Motor Co., was the first step toward a possible recall action.

An NHTSA investigation indicated the seat failures were caused by "repetitive occupant pressure against the seat back," the spokesman said. When the pivot pin bracket fails, he said, it can cause sudden partial collapse of the front seat backs.

INITIAL FINDINGS by the safety agency showed the potential defect exists on both front seats of the cars in question, the spokesman said.

Pacemaker Warning

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration says an estimated 4,900 Cordis pacemakers implanted in heart patients may be subject to moisture leakage and premature battery depletion.

Under federal regulations the announcement Thursday was listed as a recall, although the FDA did not advise doctors to remove the units.

Instead, doctors were advised to monitor patients with these pacemakers to check for possible pacing and sensing changes.

Dodgers' Buckner To Phils?

CLEARWATER, Fla. — The Philadelphia Phillies, looking for added offensive punch, reportedly are talking with the Los Angeles Dodgers regarding a possible trade for Bill Buckner.

Buckner, an outfielder-first baseman whose .314 average was third best in the National League in 1974, could be available with the Dodgers looking for another starting pitcher and also for an outfielder to replace sore-armed center fielder Jimmy Wynn.

The Phillies, who admit negotiations with Los Angeles are in the preliminary stage, are offering pitcher Wayne Twitchell and outfielder Don Hahn. The Dodgers are interested in Twitchell, but would rather have Alan Bannister or Mike Anderson instead of Hahn.

INGLEWOOD—Kansas City-Omaha invades the Forum tonight at 8 in a National Basketball Association test with the Los Angeles Lakers.

Angels Split

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — If at first you don't succeed, try again. That might have been the motto of the California Angels Thursday.

In the morning, World Series champion Oakland used the strong bat of a revitalized Billy Williams to turn back the Angels 7-1 in a spring exhibition game. But California came back in the second game of a rare "doubleheader" to whip the Chicago Cubs 8-3.

Williams, sidelined for two weeks with a sprained ankle, returned to the A's lineup and slammed a two-run home run and a single in the first game which had been postponed from Wednesday.

Dodgers Cut 10

VERO BEACH, Fla. — The Los Angeles Dodgers prepared for their final spring weekend in Florida by trimming 10 players from their 40-man roster.

The Dodgers also announced Thursday that pitcher Tommy John, who underwent surgery on his left elbow during the winter, would be placed on the disabled list just before the start of the regular season.

After exhibition games Saturday and Sunday, the Dodgers fly to Phoenix Monday leaving John behind to work on his left arm.

Willie Crawford's home run leading off the bottom of the 10th inning gave Los Angeles a 4-3 victory over Minnesota Thursday and boosted the record of the defending National League champions to 14-5.

Blass Waived

BRADENTON, Fla. — It's been a long fall for Steve Blass since he made that wild, glorious leap into the air after winning the seventh game of the 1971 World Series. He may finally have hit bottom.

The Pittsburgh Pirates made it official Thursday, asking waivers on the 32-year-old pitcher so they can give him his unconditional release.

"In a sense, it's a relief considering what's gone on for two and a half years," said Blass, who has labored in vain to regain the pitching control he lost inexplicably early in the 1973 season.

99 Tickets Bring Fine Of $1,145

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Tony Dorsett, University of Pittsburgh football star, has been fined $1,145 by Traffic Court Judge Louis Dadowski.

The judge ordered Dorsett Thursday to pay the fines on 99 overdue parking tickets he's amassed within the last year near his dormitory in the Oakland section.

"You've given us no cooperation whatsoever within the past year," Dadowski told Dorsett, a sophomore who has rushed for over 1,000 yards in each of his first two seasons and was a first-team All-American as a freshman.

Angela Marasco, chief clerk in Municipal Court, said Dorsett's car was impounded by the city March 19. She said the city would keep it until Dorsett comes up with $400 down payment on the fines.

"The reason he got no break is because he is a repeater," said Marasco.

She noted that Dorsett's first reaction after the judge levied the fines was to call his coach, Johnny Majors. However, Majors said later he would be of no help.

"That's Tony's business and the judge's business — not mine," the coach said.

Basketball Now Fun for Wooden

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The lines are gone from John Wooden's brow and basketball is fun once again.

The agonizing pressure of strings of victories and strings of national titles took its toll on UCLA's usually placid man from Indiana. He suffered a heart attack a few years ago and in the last decade and a half has been embroiled in more behind-the-scenes verbal battles than he likes to recall.

"This has been a more enjoyable season," said the 64-year-old coach. "This team has been very easy to work with — no bickering off the court and no troubles on the court."

He admits that the 1974-75 version of UCLA basketball has less talent than in the past.

"We haven't had the great play at center, and our guards have been maligned for their poor shooting, but on the whole this team has played well as a team, and basketball is, after all, a team sport."

Change used to come hard to Wooden.

"Johnny used to have a philosophy and nothing would change his mind," said Pete Newell, former California coach and now the Los Angeles Lakers' general manager. "I don't think you could say defense was his strong point in the 1950s, but later he became adaptable and defense was very important to him."

For years the UCLA attack was a strict high-post offense. When Lew Alcindor, now Kareem Abdul-Jabbar enrolled in school, some critics sarcastically said Wooden would use the 7-foot-1½ center 15 feet from the basket.

Wooden adapted well and the UCLA offense was revamped drastically — and spectacularly.

When Alcindor graduated, a powerful front line of Sidney Wicks, Curtis Rowe and Steve Patterson used a slightly different offensive system and Bill Walton's three years saw another idea.

"Yes, I think I've been flexible," said Wooden. "But this has been one of my most enjoyable teams ever, because they have adapted well, too. They work hard and cause so little trouble that it has made this season one of my happiest."

The heart attack in December 1972 forced Wooden to take up a new sport: jogging. His doctor prescribed a daily five-mile walk and Wooden has since not missed a walk-run around UCLA's track, except when he's on the road and then he walks the streets of stranger towns.

Still, his dedication to the exercise program was an inspiration to many of his players, who then realized that if Wooden ditched it out in long, hard practice sessions, they knew he, too, could endure that kind of regimen.

JACK NICKLAUS, MOMENTS AFTER SINKING 40-FOOT PUTT.

Heritage Leader

Nicklaus' Round Ranks Among Best

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus considered the question carefully. He pursed his lips, stared into the middle distance and mused.

He'd just been asked if his first-round 66 in the $200,000 Heritage Golf Classic ranked among his best efforts of the last couple of years.

"Well," he said, "I've had some pretty good rounds but, yes, considering the conditions, that was a good round of golf. I'm pleased."

But, while Nicklaus was delighted with his leading effort, some of the game's other glamour names were considerably less than enchanted after Thursday's play on the 6,655-yard, par-71 Harbour Town Golf Links.

"Terrible," muttered Arnold Palmer, his mouth a tight, grim line. He'd three-putted four times and lost four strokes to par on his last three holes on his way to a 74.

"What can I say?" asked Johnny Miller. "I just played lousy. I did everything bad." The young man who has dominated the game in recent months blew to a fat 78 in the chilly, gusty, blustery winds that swept this millionaires' playground off the coast of South Carolina.

Lee Trevino shot 41 on his last nine, had a 73 and wasn't at all bothered about it. "This is the toughest golf course in the world," he said. "I played good. I'm not at all unhappy. I'm satisfied with the way I'm hitting the ball."

Nicklaus, a winner his last time out, made seven birdies despite the severity of the course, the adverse playing conditions and a nagging earache that prompted him to seek medical attention before and after his round.

He was three strokes ahead of Australian Bruce Crampton, veteran Don January, Andy North, Tom Kite and U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin, tied for second at 69.

John Mahaffey and Tom Weiskopf were the only others in the elite field of 102 to break par. They were at 70. South African Gary Player, the British Open and Masters champion, shot 71 in his first American start of the season.

Nicklaus needed only 28 strokes on the tiny greens of the course he helped design, but had an unusual round. He made four birdie putts of 25 feet or more and missed six times from eight feet or less.

"I missed the ones I should have made and made the ones I had no business making," he said.

Syracuse Unlikely Title Pretender

By Associated Press

The NCAA's basketball playoffs have everything this year:

—A perennial champion in UCLA.

—A team loaded with tradition in Kentucky.

—And Syracuse.

Syracuse? Yes, Syracuse.

The team that nobody expected with players that nobody wanted is among the final four at this year's glamorous playoffs in San Diego. And nobody is more surprised than Syracuse.

"It's unbelievable," says sports information director

Larry Kimball. And few would disagree.

The Orangemen are an unlikely pretender to the crown. They started the season with three of last year's starters gone. None of their players, including powerhouse forward Rudy Hackett, was heavily recruited by anybody.

Coach Roy Danforth didn't have his starting team of Hackett, Chris Sease, Ernie Siebert, Jim Lee and Jim Williams playing as a unit until the ninth game of the season.

When the Orangemen won the ECAC's New York State tournament and took an at-large berth

SC Holds Swim Lead; Naber Stars

CLEVELAND (AP) — John Naber, a University of Southern California sophomore, had more confidence in his competition, but he also had more speed.

"I didn't think I could win," Naber said after setting an American record in the 500-yard freestyle. "I guess I felt more confident about (Robin) Backhaus than he did. He's just too tough. Especially when you're as passive as I am."

Naber was clocked in 4:20.45. The old American mark of 4:23.40 was set by Long Beach Wilson High's Tim Shaw last week.

Backhaus, a University of Washington sophomore who bested Shaw's record time in the qualifying round, dropped to 4:23.61 in the championship swim.

"Robin made a move and I didn't let go," Naber said. "I knew I needed a lead going into the final 100, so I went out and got it."

Naber's American record was one of four set Thursday during the first day of the National Collegiate Athletic Association Division I swimming and diving championships at Cleveland State University.

Southern Cal held the lead at the end of the first five events with 117 points. Indiana was second with 97 and Tennessee third with 59.

The Trojans' 400-yard medley relay team successfully defended its title and broke its own American record.

Fred Tyler nipped Lee Engstrand, the old American recordholder, by a thousandth of a second to take the 200-yard individual medley title and the record.

Tyler, an Indiana junior, was clocked in 1:50.628, the same as Tennessee's Engstrand, but the electronic timing system gave the victory to Tyler by a fraction. Engstrand set the old American and NCAA records at 1:51.28 in 1974.

Results of Thursday's events in the NCAA swimming and diving championships at Cleveland State University:
500 freestyle — 1. Naber, Southern California, 4:20.45 (American record, old mark 4:23.40); 2. Backhaus, Washington, 4:23.61; 3. McDonald, UCLA, 4:24.43; 4. Strickland, Southern California, 4:25.24; 5. Bruner, Stanford, 4:28.00; 6. Orr, Southern California, 4:28.20.
200 individual medley — 1. Tyler, Indiana, 1:50.628 (American record, old mark 1:51.28); 2. Engstrand, Tennessee, 1:51.29; 3. Engstrand, Tennessee, 1:50.628; 4. Wilkie, Miami, 1:50.67; 5. Brown, Southern California, 1:50.83; 6. Corning, Alabama, 1:51.92; 7. Poucher, Southern California, 1:52.15.
400 medley relay — 1. Eddyton, Southern California, 20:11; 2. Fairbank, Stanford, 20:18; 3. Skinner, Alabama, 20:49; 4. Nash, Indiana, 20:51; 5. Nease, Indiana, 20:58; 6. Anderson, Stanford, 20:52.
One-meter diving — 1. Moore, Ohio State, 502.71 points; 2. Kennedy, Tennessee, 473.53; 3. Crane, Michigan, 460.85; 4. Kington, Indiana, 459.30; 5. Nuckler, Indiana, 454.35; 6. McAllister, Air Force, 451.48.
300 medley relay — 1. USC (Chaffetz, Naber, Eddyton, 1:49.22) (American record, old mark 1:50.71); 2. Southern California, 1:51.28; 3. Alabama, 1:52.92; 4. Auburn, 1:53.29; 5. Tennessee, 1:53.22; 6. Auburn, 1:53.87.
Team standings — 1. USC 117; 2. Indiana 97; 3. Tennessee 59; 4. Stanford 54; 5. Alabama 46; 6. UCLA 41; 7. Washington 27; 8. Ohio State 24; 9. Auburn 20; 10. Miami 20.

KINGS, CANUCKS ON TV TONIGHT

VANCOUVER — The Los Angeles Kings will seek to extend their winning streak to five tonight when they tangle with the Vancouver Canucks here in a televised game.

Action starts at 9 tonight with Channel 5 bringing it live. Canada is not on daylight saving time which causes the late start.

Los Angeles could move within three points of Division 3 leader Montreal with a victory.

Sizzling Laver Turns Back Fairlie

ORLANDO, Fla. — Fifth-seeded Charlie Pasarell of Puerto Rico was knocked out of World Championship Tennis' $60,000 Blue Group tournament Thursday night, losing to Brian Gottfried, 6-2, 7-5.

Raul Ramirez downed Colin Dibley of Australia 6-3, 6-1 and faced Gottfried today.

In other singles matches, top-seeded Rod Laver of Corona del Mar downed Brian Fairlie of New Zealand, 6-0, 7-6, and Vitas Gerulaitis of New York stopped Teimuraz Kakulia of the Soviet Union 6-2, 6-3. Laver met Jeff Borowiak today.

In other quarterfinals Thursday, unseeded Australian Fred Stolle upset No. 4 seed Roger Taylor of England, 3-6, 7-5, 6-3 and Butch Borchholz defeated Aussie Bob Carmichael 4-6, 7-6, 3-6.

Alexander Wins

ATLANTA — Second-seeded John Alexander of Australia beat South Africa's Cliff Drysdale, 6-4, 7-5 Thursday to advance into the quarterfinals of the $60,000 World Championship Tennis Atlanta Classic.

The second-round action for the Red Group touring pros followed the script as third-seeded Stan Smith and sixth-ranked Harold Solomon also recorded victories.

Smith sidelined Anand Amritraj of India 6-4, 6-2 while Solomon disposed of Amritraj's brother, Vijay, 6-4, 6-1.

In the other second-round match Thursday, Milan Hlecek of West Germany downed Graham Stilwell of Great Britain 6-4, 6-0 in a battle of unseeded players.

Goolagong Upset

PHILADELPHIA — Chris Evert and Martina Navratilova scored contrasting victories Thursday night in reaching the semifinal round of the $75,000 Philadelphia Tennis Classic at the Palestra.

Second-seeded Evert out-dued seventh-seeded Nancy Gunter in a baseline struggle, 7-6, 6-1.

Left-handed Navratilova, an 18-year-old from Czechoslovakia, toppled defending champion Olga Morozova of the Soviet Union, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4 in a masterpiece of severe stroke work in the forecourt.

Billie Jean King won 6-1, 6-0 over Wendy Overton while Virginia Wade upset fourth-seeded Evonne Goolagong, 6-4, 6-0.

Newcombe in Semis

JACKSON, Miss. — Australians John Newcombe and Ken Rosewall struggled to three-set victories Thursday in advancing to the semifinals of the $35,000 Tennis South Invitational tournament.

Newcombe, the top seed, outlasted ill-tempered Romanian Ion Tiriac 6-3, 4-6, 6-2.

But Rosewall, the diminutive 40-year-old No. 2 seed, overshadowed his countryman with a brilliant rally for a 5-7, 7-5, 6-3 victory over unseeded Englishman John Feaver.

Verbum Dei Star Sparks 110-100 Win

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A team of California high school senior all-stars, paced by Roy Hamilton's 32 points, beat a U.S. all-star high school seniors' basketball team Thursday night, 110-100.

The game, first of its kind, was arranged as a benefit by and for the Los Angeles Summer Olympics Development program. It drew a capacity 3,767 fans to Memorial Auditorium. Another sellout crowd is expected when the teams play again Sunday night in Long Beach.

Hamilton, a 6-foot-3 guard from Verbum Dei High, was the game's high scorer, and Winford Boyne of Oklahoma City, a 6-foot-7 forward for the U.S. all-stars, was runner-up with 26.

The California team led from the first few minutes and held a 52-43 edge at halftime.

Bill Cartwright, 7-foot center from Elk Grove, Calif., scored 21 points. Other players on the winning team who were in double figures were David Greenwood, 6-foot-10 forward and a Verbum Dei teammate of Hamilton, with 16, and James Hardy of Long Beach with 10.

Bernard Toone, 19, a 6-foot-9 forward from Yonkers, N.Y., hit 19 for the U.S. team. Guards Reggie Carter of Long Island, N.Y., and Clint Richardson of Seattle were the losers' other performers in double figures with 11 and 10, respectively.

Sunset League Champions

Rustlers In 3-2 Setback

SANTA MARIA—Golden West College's Rustlers were in consolation action today in the Hancock baseball tournament here following Thursday's 3-2 setback at the hand of DeAnza.

The Rustlers met the host Hancock College nine after the latter dropped a 5-4 decision to Canada College in the opening round.

Golden West loaded the bases with three free passes in the ninth inning Thursday, but couldn't come up with the key hit to overcome DeAnza's advantage.

DeAnza scored in the sixth inning, then came up with a two-run homer in the top of the eighth inning to obtain a 3-0 margin.

Catcher Jerry Brown stroked a two-run four-bagger for Golden West in the bottom of the eighth with John Macauley aboard. Macauley had reached first on a single.

Pitcher Tim Richards looked good in striking out seven and walking only three, but the gopher ball in the eighth proved his undoing.

Oates Quits Santa Ana Cage Post

Bill Oates, after five successful years as Santa Ana College basketball coach, has resigned that position to accept the head coaching reins of Athletics in Action West, which is to be headquartered in Orange County.

"It's an exciting challenge," says Oates, a Balboa resident. "We'll have a tryout in early June and my first priority as coach is to begin a heavy recruitment program."

Athletes in Action is a religious-oriented group which competes with post graduates who have not played professionally.

Next year's schedule already includes Indiana, Louisville, North Carolina State, Notre Dame, Marquette, Alabama, Baylor, Memphis State and Cal State (Long Beach).

"Michigan and Purdue want to play us next year, too," says Oates. "We'll also be competing in AAU tournaments and in foreign competition. Perhaps even Russia."

Oates coached at Villa Park High for several seasons before re-juvenating the Santa Ana College program,

Gauchos Downed By Dons

Former Mater Dei High baseball standout Jerry Linnert led the way with a solo homer in the fifth inning to help pace his Santa Ana College mates to a 7-1 non-conference triumph over Saddleback College Thursday afternoon.

The Dons dropped Saddleback to a 10-8 overall record as the Gauchos could collect only three hits off Santa Ana pitching. And the Gauchos were guilty of four miscues as Santa Ana scored a run in the first and two in the second to take a 3-0 lead.

Saddleback countered with a single tally in the third inning, but that was about the end of Gauchos' fireworks.

Alec Robbie walked to start the third, and after two out, Rich Douglass nursed a free pass. Chuck Adams hit a hot one to third that couldn't be fielded and was ruled an error.

The ball skipped into left field and Robbie scored on the play.

Carl Sandstedt was the only other Gauchos player to get as far as third base. He reached first on a walk, stole second and went to third on a passed ball with no out in the fourth frame.

Long Run For Eagles

Ten Estancia High athletes are eyeing a 240-mile objective in a 24-hour span, which begins tonight at 7 on the Estancia cinders.

Each runner will run a mile before handing the baton off to the next and they'll continue the format until 7 p.m. Saturday.

An average of six minutes per mile would accomplish the 240-mile feat.

St. Paul Nips MD, 2-1 in 8

Angelus League baseball leader St. Paul came up with a run in the eighth inning and made it stick Thursday afternoon as the Swordsmen topped the host Mater Dei High Monarchs, 2-1.

St. Paul put together three singles to load the bases, then scored with two out when the Monarchs threw the ball away trying to pick off a St. Paul player in a run-down.

St. Paul pitcher Andy Rincon baffled Mater Dei on one hit as he struck out 11 and walked only four.

The only hit of the game for Mater Dei was Mark Macauley's solid rap to left-center.

He knocked in his brother, Bob, who was stashed on third after walking and advancing on two balks in the fourth inning.

Mater Dei had its chances to score. George McGowan got to third base in the first inning and to second in the fifth frame. And Mark Macauley and Pat Pritzl were at second during the contest, but the Monarchs couldn't come up with the run-producer.

Yacht Clubs To Compete

Newport Harbor Yacht Club is the primary challenger for the Al Adams & Son Challenge Trophy which will be competed for in Los Angeles Harbor Saturday.

NHYC has challenged with the three-quarter ton sloop Quadriga, a Ranger-32.

Cabrillo Beach Yacht Club has elected to defend the trophy with the Cal-3-30 skippered by Roy Cundiff.

Secondary challengers are Southwestern Yacht Club with the Ranger-32 Auspicious; Santa Monica Yacht Club with the PT-30 Merlin; Los Angeles Yacht Club with the Irwin-30 Grasshopper, and San Diego Yacht Club with the Ranger-32 Skookum.

The Al Adams & Son trophy dates back to 1947 and is one of the most coveted yachting awards in Southern California. It has been competed for in everything from dinghies to 10-meters in areas from San Diego to San Francisco.

In local waters, South Shore Sailing Club will conduct the fourth race of its Winter Hibachi Series Saturday.

Major action at Marina del Rey will be California Yacht Club's Anacapa Island race of the Overton Series starting Saturday. The South Bay Yacht Racing Club will host keelboat skippers in the Point Dume race Saturday.

Only other scheduled event in the Southland is in the Santa Barbara area where Pierpoint Bay Yacht Club will conduct its singlehanded Master Mariners race.

Boating Show Set Tuesday

The largest in-the-water boat show in the west is scheduled to get under way at Lido Village April 2 and run through April 6, according to Duncan McIntosh, show director.

Lido Village fronts the bay and is one block off Newport Blvd., south of Pacific Coast Highway.

McIntosh said the show will feature 9 million dollars worth of power and sailboats, all displayed in the water. In addition, the brick streets of the picturesque shopping center will be lined with trailer boats and yachting gear.

A few of the builders exhibiting will be Chris Craft, Hatteras, Bertram, Californian, Clipper, Cal, Ranger and others.

Exhibits will range from small sail and power boats to 60-foot cruisers valued at $300,000.

"We believe this will be the largest selection of power and sail ever assembled in the water for public inspection in Southern California," said McIntosh.

Battin's Target

Assault Set On Pop-tops

By BILL SCHREIBER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

SANTA ANA — Orange County Supervisor Robert Battin, foe of smoking, long hair and beards, Tuesday will turn his lance on another target—tab-top and no-deposit beverage containers.

Battin will ask his fellow county supervisors to approve the first reading of a county ordinance that would:

— Outlaw the sale of any beverage container with a pop-top in unincorporated county territory.

— REQUIRE DEALERS and distributors of bottled or canned beverages to accept returned containers and pay deposits on all brands they stock.

— Set penalties of $1,000 or six months in jail for violation of the ordinance.

"This ordinance is intended to correct the intolerable situation created by the use of disposable containers," Battin said. "We now find many of our streets and roadsides cluttered with mountains of unsightly bottles and cans."

Battin said the disposables represent a waste of energy since it took energy to produce them out of nonrenewable resources.

"RE-USING containers can save us this energy," he said. "We have a finite amount of resources and we must begin conservation now to assure future generations of the availability of these resources."

If the ordinance clears a first reading, Battin wants it set for a full hearing April 8. If it is adopted, it would go into effect July 1.

Containers that could hold 17 or more fluid ounces would be worth 20 cents on return and those holding less than 17 ounces would be worth a dime.

Knott's Wreckage

Inspectors at Knott's Berry Farm in Buena Park probe wreckage of uncompleted new exhibits that were destroyed by fire Wednesday. Officials of the amusement park said reconstruction will begin immediately on the two exhibits, the Knott's Bear-y Tales and the Palms Casino. They had been scheduled to open in June.

SACRAMENTO — Thousands of California's elderly became eligible for free fishing licenses and stamps last January. At the request of the Department of Fish and Game, legislation was approved and signed into law permitting the practice.

To qualify for a free sport fishing license, which will not require stamps for inland and trout fishing, an applicant must be 62 years of age or older, a resident of the state for at least the last five years, and have a total monthly income of no more than $250 if single and $500 combined if married.

Previous income limits were $140 and $280 monthly, respectively, and eligible persons received only the basic license. Stamps for inland waters and trout stamps had to be purchased.

According to Fish and Game Department's figures, about 250,000 additional Californians will become eligible for free licenses. Under the old arrangement, about 250,000 people qualified, have a total monthly income of no more than $250 if single and $500 combined if married.

Professor To Speak

ORANGE — Dr. John K. Davidson, professor and director of the diabetic unit at Grady Memorial Hospital at Emory University in Atlanta, Ga., will speak about insulin Monday at a meeting of the Orange County unit, American Diabetes Association.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the St. Joseph Hospital auditorium, 1100 Stewart Drive. The public is welcome.

"RE-USING containers can save us this energy," he said. "We have a finite amount of resources and we must begin conservation now to assure future generations of the availability of these resources."

Charity Exceeds Goal

While tough economic times have put a crimp in business and private pocket books, they haven't slowed up the campaign for charity causes, according to the West Orange County United Crusade.

The Crusade exceeded its $649,499 fund raising goal this year though it took a lot of hard work from the 271 volunteers who knocked on doors, called on merchants, and wrote letters. They raised a total of $655,315.

E.A. Greene, executive director of the West Orange County United Crusade, credited the volunteers with this year's campaign success in the midst of economic decline.

Though no immediate upswing is expected in the economy, the West Orange County United Crusade will try to collect $700,000 for its 1976 social welfare activities. The up-coming campaign for 1976 is expected to begin in mid-September and continue through next February.

The Crusade provides cash subsidies for 32 agencies, including such youth organizations as the YMCA, the Boy Scouts and the Girl Scouts. In recent years, the Crusade started the Garden Grove Girls Club, and helped fund three local boys clubs.

Sailing Series Starts

The second half of Garden Grove Unified School District's series, "Advice from Sailing Experts" will start Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Los Amigos High School Lyceum, 16566 Newhope St., Fountain Valley.

First speaker will be Gary Mull, noted West Coast designer and the U.S. representative to the International Technical Committee of the Offshore Rating Council. His subject will be "Yacht Design: Current IOR and Cruising Trends." Mull will augment his talk with his own practical sailing experiences on Star boats, 6-meters and ocean racers. Mull is the designer of the Ranger yachts produced in Costa Mesa.

"Offshore Racing and Its Application to the Cruising Yachtsman" will be the subject of Burke Sawyer of Watts Sails who has been skippering the successful one-tonner America Jane in local and international races. Sawyer will speak Tuesday, April 15.

Sawyer will also show the one-hour film of the 1973-74 Around the World race.

The final Tuesday evening will be devoted to multihull enthusiasts by Wayne Schafer and Warren Seaman, two noted Southland catamaran sailors.

Lectures Slated On Trailerboats

Lectures geared to the interests of trailerboat and cruising enthusiasts will be presented free on four Thursdays in April at the Troy High School lecture hall, 2200 E. Dorothy Lane, Fullerton. All programs will be at 7:30 p.m.

Information on the lectures sponsored by the North County Community College District, Adult Education Division, may be obtained by calling 879-1080.

Opening the "Cruising Under Sail" series will be John Carson and Britt McPherson, who will comment on slides they took during 18 months at sea aboard a 32-foot sloop.

"Mexico Is a State of Mind" will be the subject of Dix Brow, Sea Magazine's Mexico expert. He will discuss pitfalls, facilities and procedures in Baja California.

Yacht broker and marine consultant Ellie Dowd will discuss what to look for in production or custom offshore cruising sailboats.

Twenty-eight years of cruising the offshore waters of the Pacific will wind up the series in lectures by Jack and Carolyn West, a husband-wife yachting and author team who did most of their cruising in a 72-foot powerboat.

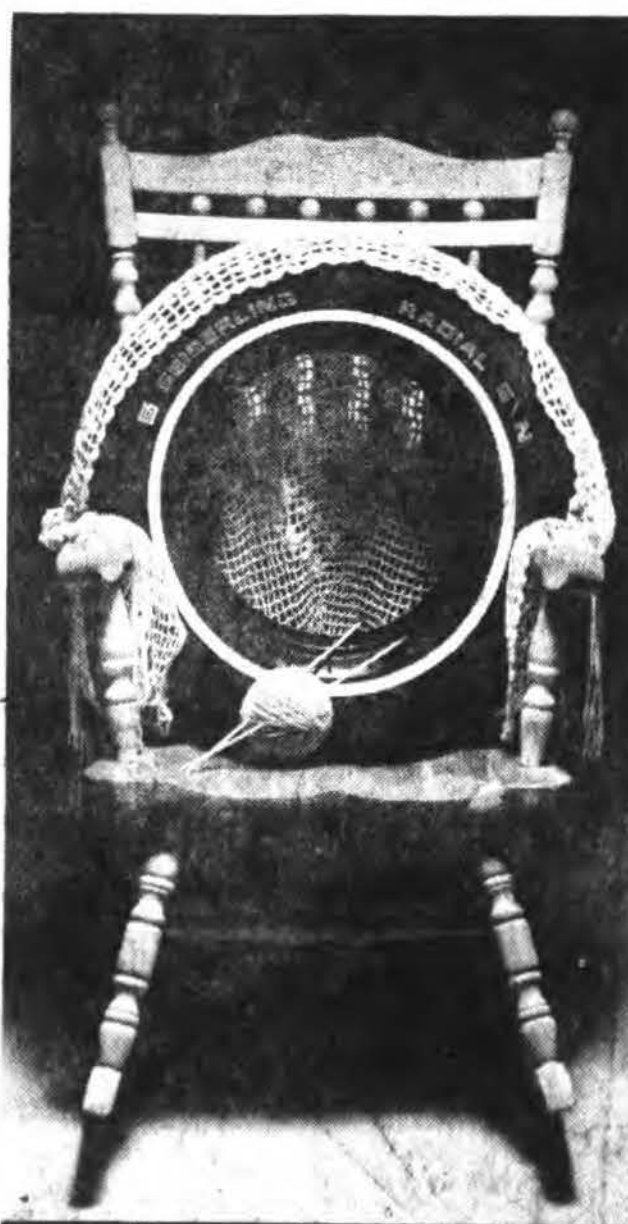

RETIREMENT CENTERS:

We've ReTired for 55 years. You see, we got rolling in 1920. And not as some operator of a national chain. We started in Santa Ana with one store, when there wasn't much else there. And we gradually expanded into Costa Mesa, Placentia, Orange and Laguna.

Part of our long-term success is your confidence. We'll tell you facts a lot of tire dealers don't... or won't.

Bias and Unbiased facts. Miller Retirement specialists will give it to you straight. You probably know that the unique construction of a radial gives you better, tighter cornering. Here are some more facts you should know. Fact One: Radials give you about one extra mile per gallon. Fact Two: At 60 mph, radials run about 40° cooler than bias tires. Less wear. Less chance of a blow-out. Fact Three: Radials use about 25% less horsepower. In a sports car or compact, that means a lot. Fact Four (and you're not ready for this one): Not everyone needs radials. The type of tire you need depends on the type of driving you do. And Miller stocks all types of tires. Let's talk about The One that's just right for your car, driving habits and budget.

Social security. Honesty doesn't stop with the sale. No way. Some of our competitors feel that if they can get everyone in their stores just once, they'll get rich. Not us. We depend on customers who return. And they do. Have been for half a century.

We plan on being in business another 55 years. We know if we help you with good, friendly, reliable service, you'll help us. With your confidence. And your business.

Hi!
I'm George Hurst.

I'd like to introduce our new service, George Hurst Executive Systems. "While you fly" from Orange County Airport, we can save you time and money by providing executive indoor parking and performing that essential automotive service, maintenance, and repair you may be putting off, due to your busy schedule.

You may associate my name with the Hurst Shifter, the Hurst Power Rescue Tool (a lifesaving device — Orange County has nine units currently in use) or Hurst Performance, Inc., a company I founded in 1958. I sold my interest in that company to the Sunbeam Corporation in 1972.

We hope to provide career opportunities to many physically and socially handicapped Orange County citizens and continue this practice as our system expands nationwide.

Give me a call at my office during the day (979-4100) or, better yet, call me at home in the evening (846-2501). I'd like to tell you, personally, about our exciting new service.

Rodeo Pros Bucking for Benefit

By TOM McCANN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Larry Mahan's All Pro Rodeo, centerpiece for the Bicentennial Round Up being promoted in the Harbor Area all next week, will climax the benefit activities with two performances at the Orange County Fairgrounds on Fair Drive in Costa Mesa.

The rodeo is scheduled for 2 p.m. each day on Saturday and Sunday, April 5 and 6. Tickets are on sale this week, especially at retail stores, banks and other local establishments where "frontier" costumes and decorations indicate participation in the communitywide promotion.

Ticketron agencies also have the advance tickets, at $4.50 for adults ($5 at the gate, if there are any left), with children 12 and under at half price.

Proceeds of the rodeo will go to the Children's Hear-More Institute, which has developed from some foundation work done by the Newport Harbor Jaycees.

THE RODEO itself will be virtually a live, in-person version of the motion picture, "The Great American Cowboy," if the film's star, Larry Mahan, has his way.

And he will. He's producer of the rodeo. Mahan plans to have the announcer introduce each self-sponsored Rodeo Cowboys Association (RCA) professional cowboy as his turn comes up and give the rodeo audience a capsule version of the contestant's career in the sport.

The rodeo animals also will be introduced, including Oscar, the "unridable" bull from the "Cowboy" movie.

Background music for each ride will be played live by an up-tempo group of Southern California "amplified bluegrass" musicians which calls itself Wild Oats. The Oats will play miniconcerts during breaks in the rodeo in addition to providing "music to buck and rope by" for participants.

ANOTHER GROUP, Red Dog Weber and Custer's Last Band, will play on the Fairgrounds Mall prior to the show to enliven the exhibit area for visitors who want to browse through outdoor sport and recreation displays which will be open to the public from 11 a.m. each day of the rodeo.

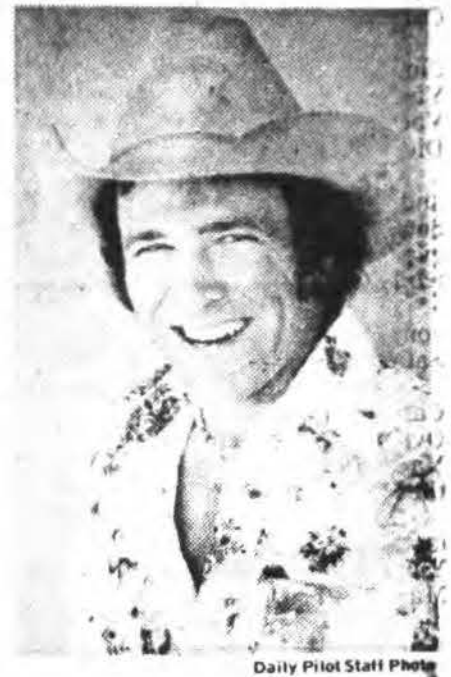

The Rock and Ride Drill Team, a mounted group from Lakeside, Calif., will be featured as part of the arena show.

Mahan, however, has pledged to make his rodeo an event that emphasizes the sport of rodeo itself. Only the traditional grand entry, possibly featuring local political leaders as well as some show business celebrities, will add "circus" touches to the Mahan show.

And there will be a steer-riding contest involving disc jockeys from Orange County and other Southern California radio stations. KEZY's "Rodeo Dave" (Dave Lee, who is "Skier Dave" or "Surfer Dave" to his listeners, depending on the season) will attempt to ride a bull in exchange for donations and pledges for the Children's Hear-More Institute.

But the rest will be pure rodeo. Some of the best ever seen here, possibly, with the Mahan name and the RCA sanction drawing top professional entrants.

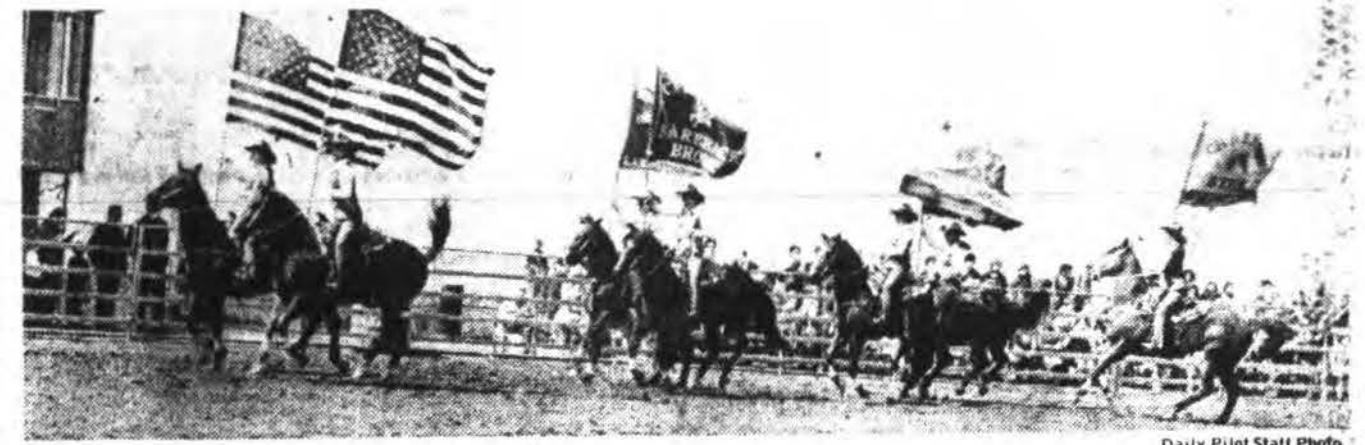

Larry Mahan, rodeo's first superstar (right), will produce local show. At left, he rides bucking horse.

Oscar, the 'unridable' bull from Mahan movie, gives Larry a wild ride (left) Rock and Ride Drill Team from Lakeside, Calif. (below), will also perform here.

At Golden West: Jazz-rock Oratorio Will Offer a Modern Message

By JACKIE HYMAN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

"We didn't know what to call this thing. I think it's a new form, what we've got here. I suppose we just could have called it a concert and let it go at that."

Tommy Wolf, librettist and arranger, was discussing the jazz-rock oratorio "When Jeremiah Sang the Blues," which will be presented at Golden West College in Huntington Beach at 8 p.m. on April 9, 10, 11 and 12 in the college theater. "The only reason we called it an oratorio is that everyone except the Lord sings everything. But there isn't any action in it, so we couldn't call it an opera," Wolf said.

He said he considers the oratorio to be thoroughly modern in its message.

"It's the Old Testament story of the Jewish people up to the Babylonian captivity. But it has special meaning for us today because I think we've lost sight of most of the old-fashioned virtues," Wolf said.

"WE CONDONE lots of things today. We're ready to be pushed off the brink. We really have to change our way of living, otherwise I don't think the world is going to be here much longer."

"And I think all that is stated in our oratorio, in 'Jeremiah,' because he is ordained by the Lord to warn the people that unless they mend their ways He's going to destroy them," he said.

Wolf said he considered a number of stories before he decided to base his libretto on the Book of Jeremiah.

"Suddenly, I was going through the Bible, I was searching for other things, and suddenly I came across Jeremiah and as soon as I opened the book and started to read I knew that I had my story," he said.

He said he worked for seven months on the libretto, which was set to music by Alf Clausen. It was originally commissioned by a $1,000 grant from Golden West and a $500 gift from the National Endowment of the Arts.

"Jeremiah" was given in one performance at Golden West last year. Many of the performers will be returning this year.

THE ORATORIO was something new for both creators, although they are by no means new to the music field. Clausen, who acted as a judge at the recent Orange Coast College Jazz Ensemble Festival, is known as an instrumentalist and arranger who has helped coordinate music for television specials by Lena Horne, Jack Benny, Dionne Warwick and others.

Wolf, who also works extensively in television, recently finished coordinating the music for the 1975 Fashion Awards Show as well as for a Flip Wilson special and an episode of "Maude."

JEROME RICHARDSON WILL BE SOLO INSTRUMENTALIST

MICHELE ZARGES AND RODGER BRASIER WILL SING LEAD ROLES

"Jeremiah" will be produced at Golden West with the college singers, studio orchestra and jazz ensemble, plus soloists, a narrator and professional jazz musicians.

The production will be directed by Gerry Schroeder and David

Anthony. Featured instrumentalists will be Jack Coan on the trumpet and flugelhorn and Jerome Richardson on woodwinds.

The narrator will be Stewart Rogers, Golden West theater instructor, with Rodger Brasier, tenor, singing the role of Jeremiah. Michele Zarges will also be a featured soloist.

Tickets cost $3 for adults and $2 for students and senior citizens. They are available in advance from the college bookstore.

Easter Sunrise

The Children's Choir of second through sixth grade students will join the Harbor Youth Chorus to form a 400-voice choir under the direction of Merle Valdez of Newport Beach. Students from Orange Coast and Golden West Colleges and UC Irvine will join the choir.

The Children of the Day Singing group will also join in the service, which is sponsored by the Newport Harbor Kiwanis Club.

The guest speaker will be Chuck Smith, pastor of Calvary Chapel of Santa Ana.

Tickets

... For Musicals

The Los Angeles Civic Light Opera will open its season May 13 at the Los Angeles Music Center Pavilion with "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying", starring Robert Morse.

The second Civic Light Opera attraction will be the new musical, "Odyssey", which brings Yul Brynner back to the stage. Joan Diener, the original Dulsinea of "Man of La Mancha", will star opposite Brynner. The musical has book and lyrics by Erich Segal and music by Mitch Leigh, composer of "Man of La Mancha". "Odyssey" opens at the Ahmanson Theatre June 10.

July 1 will bring Nanette Fabray to the Pavilion as star of "Wonderful Town", with music by Leonard Bernstein, lyrics by Betty Comden and Adolph Green, and book by Joseph Fields and Jerome Chodorov. The occasion will mark Miss Fabray's first major musical theatre appearance after more than a decade in television.

Final attraction of the season will be Lerner and Loewe's "Camelot", starring Robert Goulet and Carol Lawrence. It opens at the Pavilion Sept. 2.

The Civic Light Opera offers season subscriptions to all four musicals, with significant discounts from regular box office prices. Additional information is available by calling (213) 620-1280.

... For Drama

The Greek Theatre Association announces that balcony tickets for the Royal Shakespeare Company production of "Hedda Gabler" are now on sale at the Huntington Hartford Theater box office.

The production of Henrik Ibsen's classic, starring Academy Award-winner Glenda Jackson, will open at the Hartford Theater in Hollywood for a 10-day engagement on Wednesday, April 9.

Reservations may be made by calling (213) 462-6666.

At GWC: Sci Fi Speakers

Award-winning author Frank Herbert will keynote an all-day science fiction symposium at Golden West College in Huntington Beach on Saturday, April 12.

A workshop in teaching science fiction, for both students and teachers, will open the day at 9 a.m. in Forum 2, followed by Herbert's talk.

Herbert, who won the most coveted science fiction awards—the Hugo and Nebula Awards—in 1965 for his novel "Dune," will also be a panelist for the workshops and will show his film "The Hellstrom Chronicle" at the end of the day.

A science fiction writers workshop and a workshop on the future of science fiction will highlight the afternoon program.

Panelists, in addition to Herbert, will be Dr. Willis McNelly and Dr. Jane Hipolito, editors of a recent book on science fiction, "Mars, We Love You."

Tickets for the symposium, limited to 350, are on sale in the college bookstore. General admission is $5, or $3 with any student ID or Golden West senior citizen card.

Dancers

The Moving Company, a modern dance group, will present a children's matinee at Golden West College in Huntington Beach at 3:30 p.m. Thursday and an evening performance at 8 p.m. April 4, both in the theater. Tickets are $3 for adults $2 for students and $1 for children under 12. The group will also offer a master class at 2 p.m. Wednesday in room 201 of the recreation education building. Information, 892-7711.

'Male Animal' Disappoints

About the only thing one can say in defense of "The Male Animal" at the San Clemente Community Theater is that it certainly points out how times have changed in the theater over the past 35 years.

One might presume that just about anything from the pen of James Thurber, who wrote "Male Animal" with Elliot Nugent, would be deliciously humorous. Again, the result is disappointing, for the play merely serves to remind us that the triteness of the formula domestic comedy of the '50s and the '60s had nothing on that of the '40s.

The San Clemente Community Theater, to its credit, has left the script untouched, opening the show with a marvelously nostalgic radio soap opera and Oxydol commercial. But from that point it's all downhill, save for some sporadic moments of splendid character interpretation by a pair of supporting actors, Ed Tierney and Richard Tudor.

"The Male Animal" focuses on an unassuming college professor drawn into the spotlight of controversy by an activist college magazine editor (who is really a pretty nice kid; this is 1940, remember?) over the prof's suggestion that he read to his class a letter written by convicted murderer and anarchist Bartolomeo Vanzetti. The hierarchy of the conservative midwestern campus, naturally, is outraged.

Intermission
Tom Titus

Had this conflict, the individual vs. the establishment, remained the focal point of the play — "The Male Animal" might have grown older more gracefully, as "You Can't Take It With You" has. But the Thurber-Nugent plot becomes mired in domestic clichés, which must have been clichés even then, and is advanced with only the skimpiest of motivation.

Rick Kosbab plays the professor as a weak-willed milkop quite content to let the visiting onetime football hero walk off with his wife. His only show of real purpose comes after a heavy drinking bout, and disappears soon afterward. Kosbab's indecision often is irritating.

AS THE WIFE, Joanne Applegett likewise can do little with a part that calls for her to react with insufficient motivation and burst into tears periodically on cue. Neither Kosbab nor Miss Applegett succeeds in provoking much empathy since their situation is so preposterous.

As mentioned earlier, the best performances are turned in by Tierney as the thick-headed (and thick-waisted) ex-football star and Tudor as the reserved college dean.

Tierney attacks his role with the gusto of a Jack Carson from that period, while Tudor skillfully underplays his part, scoring high on his carefully modulated witticisms.

Charles Judson is the weakest of the cast, regrettably in the important role of a "Red"-hunting college trustee; he fails to sustain what might have been a strong characterization. Rose Wahlstrom takes a nice share of the laughs as the prof's klutzy maid.

"THE MALE Animal" continues through this weekend and next with performances Thursdays through Saturdays at 8:30 p.m. at the Cabrillo Playhouse, 202 Avenida Cabrillo, San Clemente.

Among the younger players, Mark Razor as the college editor and Harvey Dabbling as the football hero offer too little variation in their contrasting characters, both coming off rather bland. Kym Wells as the coed whom both pursue turns in a bright performance, if one somewhat limited in dimension. Maureen Bangston and Bonnie Judson as the respective wives of the dean and the trustee are given little to do.

Director Paul Ideker encounters some problems in movement with a large cast on a small stage. Much of the play's blocking is awkward, necessitating discomforting staging situations. Timing also is deficient, with much snappier cue pickups required.

On KOCE

Dancers Buddy Calbo and Catherine Miller of the Matti Lascoe Dance Theater Company will perform on KOCE-TV, Channel 50, at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday and again on April 5.

Easter Fare: Eggs Plus

Time is short to nail down your dining plans for Sunday's big Easter feast. Otherwise the family will be dressed and ready for a nice meal that has to be called off amid disappointment.

Those who have waited until the last minute can check out the following list of possibilities. Wherever house policy permits, reservations should be booked to keep a busy holiday flowing smoothly for everybody.

BEN BROWN'S, 31106 Coast Highway (at Aliso Canyon), South Laguna, will feature special menus for brunch, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., and dinner, 4 to 10 p.m.

Selections on the midday fare will include eggs Benedict, New York steak and eggs with mushrooms, boneless mountain trout saute amandine, poached finnan haddock, and the holiday special: strawberries in champagne, crab-meat omelette and broccoli hollandaise.

AIRPORTER INN, 18700 MacArthur Blvd. (opposite Orange County Airport), Irvine, is offering an Easter triple-header: brunch in the Mediterranean Room from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., dinner from 5 to 10 p.m., and a poolside champagne buffet between the hours of 10 a.m. and 3 p.m.

CROWN HOUSE, 32802 Coast Highway (at Crown Valley Parkway), Laguna Niguel, will serve a special Easter Sunday brunch, 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., followed by Easter dinner from 4 to 11 p.m.

Holiday entrees on the brunch menu include wild rice pancakes and sausage, eggs Benedict, omelette gourmet, broiled lamb chop, lobster crepes, poached salmon.

BOB BURNS, 37 Fashion Island, Newport Center, Newport Beach, will serve Easter brunch from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., and dinner will get under way at 4 p.m.

Served with a choice of peach in champagne cocktail, fruit cup or juice, brunch selections include ham steak or bacon and eggs, eggs

Benedict, poached filet of halibut, tournedo Madeira, apple pancakes, Monte Cristo sandwich, crepes Chantilly.

STUFF SHIRT, 2241 W. Coast Highway, Newport Beach, will serve its traditional Easter Sunday champagne buffet brunch from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Dinner, in addition to the regular menu, will feature roast leg of lamb au jus or baked Virginia ham, served with soup or salad, vegetables and old fashioned strawberry shortcake.

MAGIC PAN, South Coast Plaza, 3333 S. Bristol, Costa Mesa, will feature their San Francisco brunch specialties on Easter Sunday, starting at 11 a.m. Entree selections include crepes Benedict, maple butter crepes and bacon, crispy ham palacsintas served with apple sizzle, creamed chicken crepes.

SAM'S SEAFOOD restaurants — 16278 Coast Highway, Huntington Beach, and 3901 E. Coast Highway, Corona del Mar, will serve Easter Sunday dinner from 11:30 a.m.

A complete holiday menu of fish and steak entrees will include such house specialties as jumbo gulf shrimp, mahi mahi, frog legs and cracked crab.

Out 'n' About Norman Stanley

NEWPORTER INN, 1107 Jamboree Road, Newport Beach, will observe the holiday with two different offerings. First up will be an Easter champagne hunt breakfast, served from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Dinner will be served in the Marine Room from 4 to 10 p.m.

VELVET TURTLE, 59 Fashion Island on Newport Center Drive, Newport Beach, will serve Easter Sunday brunch from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Dinner service will get under way at 2:30 p.m. with a special holiday menu.

REUBEN'S and other restaurants operated by Far West Services will offer the dining public Easter Sunday brunch between the hours of 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Reuben's locations presenting the holiday bill of fare include those at 1555 Adams Ave., Costa Mesa; 251 E. Coast Highway, Newport Beach; 24001 Ave. de la Carlotta, Laguna Hills; 1513 N. Tustin Ave., Santa Ana Other Far West restaurants offering the brunch include the Moonraker, 18542 MacArthur Blvd., Irvine; the Plankhouse, 6060 Warner Ave., Huntington Beach; Reuben E. Lee, 151 E. Coast Highway, Newport Beach.

Pizza Pizzazz

John Bangle, Dennis Fox and Joe Fletcher play cheerful pizza cooks in "The Most Happy Fella," a musical now playing at Sebastian's West Dinner Playhouse in San Clemente. Phone number for information is 492-9950.

Millions of glossy prints are made each year depicting vacation highlights and capturing forever the fond memory of the family holiday. Millions of glossy prints are also made each year depicting camera straps, toes, and perfect thumb prints. They are the work of amateur photographers who could use a little advice. The Rancho Santiago Community College District is planning to help. "Introduction to Photography," an 11-week course for beginners, will be offered beginning April 1 by the district's Continuing Education Division.

Classes will meet each Tuesday and Thursday from 7 to 9 p.m. in room B-8 at Valley High School in Santa Ana. Tuition is $5 and can be paid during registration at the first class meeting. There is no cost to students under 21 or over 60, or to those taking the class for high school credit.

Instructor John Branscom will teach students how to compose a better photo, how to operate their cameras for optimum performance, and how to develop and print black and white film.

Further information can be obtained by calling 979-5284.

Bach Mass Today On TV and Radio

Johann Sebastian Bach's Mass in B Minor, with maestro Karl Richter conducting the Munich Bach Orchestra and Choir, will air as a Good Friday special tonight at 9 o'clock on KCET, Channel 28. It will be broadcast simultaneously over KFAC AM (1330) and FM (92.3).

Baritone Hermann Prey, soprano Gundula Janowitz, mezzo-soprano Herta Topper and tenor Horst Laubenthal are the featured soloists in this special performance of Bach's masterpiece.

The 2½-hour program was filmed in the Stiftskirche (Abbey Church), one of the loveliest baroque churches in Germany. Built during Bach's lifetime in 1733, it is an hour's ride southwest of Munich in the small town of Diessen-am-Ammersee.

Oscar Movies to Air

As a tribute to the upcoming Academy Award presentations, KHJ-TV, Channel 9, will broadcast past Oscar-winning movies on "Million Dollar Movie" beginning Monday evening and ending April 6.

The award-winning movies will begin Monday at 7:30 p.m. with "Written on the Wind," which received three awards in 1956 (Best Male Star — Rock Hudson; Best Supporting Actor — Robert Stack; Best Supporting Actress — Dorothy Malone).

"Hud," winner of three awards in 1963

(Best Actress — Patricia Neal; Best Supporting Actor — Melvyn Douglas; Best Cinematography) will air Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

"The Bridges at Toko Ri," which won an Oscar in 1955 for Best Special Effects, will be shown Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

"Sunset Boulevard," which took four Oscars in 1950 (Best Story and Screenplay; Best Scoring; Best Art Direction; Best Set Direction), will air Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

"The Country Girl," winner of two Academy Awards in 1954 (Best Ac-triss — Grace Kelly; Best Screenplay), will be shown Friday, April 4, at 7:30 p.m.

"Marty," which received four Academy Awards in 1955 (Best Production; Best Actor — Ernest Borgnine; Best Direction; Best Screenplay), will air Saturday, April 5, at 7:30 p.m.

On Sunday afternoon, April 6, "Somebody Up There Likes Me," winner of three Academy Awards in 1956 (Best Cinematography; Best Art Director; Best Set Director), will be telecast from 3 to 5 p.m. on Channel 9.

THE PRISONER OF SECOND AVENUE — The script for Neil Simon's comedy about a middle-aged couple coping with crime and the recession seems to have been pasted together from scenes rejected from his previous writings. Good acting by Anne Bancroft and Jack Lemmon can't compensate for the awkward combination of clunking jokes and nervous drama.

YOUNG FRANKENSTEIN — The humor is juvenile and the parody is heavy-handed, but Mel Brooks' take-off on the classic horror tale emerges as a refreshing journey into absurdity and irreverence. Some top-notch performances even succeed in introducing subtlety where none appears to have been written.

LENNY — Bob Fosse's fictionalized account of the rise and fall of controversial comic Lenny Bruce stars Dustin Hoffman and Valerie Perrine as Lenny's wife, Honey. In black and white, the movie captures the oppressive mood of the time, but Bruce is glamorized, seen as a victim only of society, not of his own flaws.

SHAMPOO — Warren Beatty is the attractive Beverly Hills Casanova hairdresser who spends as much time in bed with his customers as he does on their hair. Unreserved and occasionally funny, "Shampoo" is also the sad story of people's personal lives out of control, and of a people whose political leaders are beginning to get that way. It takes place on election eve, 1968.

THE GODFATHER PART II — Francis Ford Coppola's prologue and continuation of the fictional Corleone Mafia family story is superior to the first "The Godfather." Violence is down, emotion is up in this rich production, which stars Al Pacino and says a lot about the losing inherent in winning at any cost.

THE STEPPORD WIVES — A horror tale on the surface with an elementary feminist statement underneath, this suspenseful film by the author of Rosemary's Baby works better on the shallower, entertainment level. Starring Katherine Ross in her best role yet, it is about a suburban town where the women lose their minds and the men love it.

ALICE DOESN'T LIVE HERE ANYMORE — Ellen Burstyn is at her best in this sensitive story of a widowed woman and her irrepressible son fighting to survive on her limited musical abilities. Not without its faults, "Alice" is full of truth and humor as Kris Kristofferson helps the two understand that peace is a state of mind, not a geographical place.

MURDER ON THE ORIENT EXPRESS — Better than most all-star vehicles, this Sidney Lumet screen adaptation of the Agatha Christie novel lets only Albert Finney (and his hair) shine, while Lauren Bacall and others wither or fight for recognition. The solution to the murder is anticlimactic and the accents phony, but fast pacing keeps you engaged.

Our 1975 Season-Opening Special: Eight Baseball Stars Pay Tribute To the Players They Admire the Most

Especially for Easter:
Anita Bryant's Painful Progress Toward God
"Since high school, I have always known I could be a Broadway star. But I learned the hard way that Broadway was my ambition, not God's."

This week, FAMILY WEEKLY brings you a beautiful, moving tale of faith for the holiday. Anita Bryant (the lovely spokesperson for Florida citrus commercials) is our choice for queen of the Easter Parade — a woman who gave up a promising nightclub career for the sake of her family life, a woman who put her personal ambitions aside and followed God's will instead. Anita's religious fervor is an inspiration to all.

Sports Extra for '75:

Eight Great Baseball Stars Talk About Their Own Idols

Major-league baseball, the most uniquely American of all sports, is about to begin its 1975 season. So FAMILY WEEKLY asked eight of the all-time great players to recall other baseball players whom they admire most. From the responses of home run king Hank Aaron to those of Hall of Famer Ralph Kiner, it's a story that hits home.

"I'm looking forward to facing Catfish Hunter. I respect anyone who commands $3.5 million! He must be doing something right."

say YES to a better car

Is this a good time to buy a better Car? We think so...and here's why!

First of all, prices are up on used cars, thus increasing the value of your present car to an alltime high. Second, with the increased cost of gasoline, your operating costs can be greatly reduced with a car which gives you better mileage. And third, because car sales have been slow, we've lowered the asking price.

Think about it . . . and think about the comfort, dependability and safety . . . and see if you don't agree it all adds up to this being a good time for you to say YES to a better car!

VALLEY REALTY PRESENTS OUR SUPERSTAR

Nell Shukes joined our company as manager of our Saddleback office on April 1, 1974. By the end of the year she had listed 71 homes in Mission Viejo, 52 of these had sold, and she had also sold 38 additional homes. She exceeded four million dollars in production for the year and again led her board in sales. Nell came to us because she believes in the future! She knows that we are the fastest growing residential resale company in the country and that currently we are second in size to only one other publicly held real estate corporation; and we sell more homes than they do! She knows that our exclusive American Home Shield warranty program is a strong sales incentive, and that our equity advance program and guaranteed sales program are tools that few other brokers offer. WE CAN LOAN YOU THE MONEY TO CLOSE YOUR PURCHASE ESCROW BEFORE YOUR OWN HOMESSELLS! If you would like a confidential interview to discuss your real estate future call Hal Butts, the manager of our Corona del Mar office.

THE CAR BUYER IS KING — RIGHT NOW!

Right now, the used car market is way below its usual seasonal average. And that makes you, the car buyer, king. You can purchase a late model, low mileage car which was recently traded in for a new '75 Mercedes-Benz. You can now demand prices that will be under market value for the next 6 to 8 months!

Laguna Will Take Look at Nudity

By FREDERICK SCHOEMEHL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Laguna Beach City Council members soon will reckon with what one city hall aide called the "hot potato of 1975" — should the city allow nude sunbathing on the beach, and, if so, where.

In a memorandum circulated to the council and city department heads this week, Police Chief Frank Schopen said recent court decisions and changes in state laws have the net effect of allowing nudity on the beach, on city streets, and even in the city council chambers.

Schopen outlined four alternatives to the council to deal with the nudity questions:

—Take no action, thus allowing persons to be nude in all public places such as streets, parks and council meetings.

—Prohibit nudity in all public places save one beach where nude gatherings could be held.

—Prohibit nudity in all public places except the beaches.

—Prohibit nudity in all public places, but designate some city beaches as nude beaches and some as traditional beaches where bathing suits would be required.

Schopen today said he favors an outright ban on nudity in all public places.

But if that is not acceptable to the council, he said he would recommend the last alternative, thus allowing nudity on some city beaches.

Schopen says the council must face the matter since summer is not far away. He said there are indications that unclothed persons will be appearing on beaches during the 1975 summer season.

Attached to the memo is a copy of an ordinance adopted in July by the Los Angeles City Council. It prohibits nudity on public parks, playgrounds and beaches.

The law applies to persons over 10 years old.

Dion Morrow, an assistant Los Angeles city attorney, said the constitutionality of the ordinance has been upheld by Los Angeles Superior Court, state Court of Appeals and the state Supreme Court.

Morrow said the reason the law

Deputies Kill Man In Viejo

A knife-wielding Mission Viejo man was shot and killed Thursday by sheriff's deputies in a Dana Point apartment. They said he tried to slash his way past them to stab his estranged wife and her boyfriend.

A sheriff's spokesman said today Lawrence Stech, 28, whose last known address was 25711 Santo Drive in Mission Viejo, died at San Clemente General Hospital an hour after the 6 p.m. incident.

Officers said it was the second time in three weeks deputies had been called to the second floor apartment at 34042 Alcazar Street, responding to complaints about loud arguments between Stech and his 19-year-old wife, Terri.

Investigators were told Stech's wife moved into the apartment of Michael W. Thompson after she and Stech separated. The first confrontation on March 8 was broken up by officers without incident.

When deputies arrived at the apartment Thursday, they found Stech threatening his wife and her boyfriend with a large kitchen knife and screaming at them, the sheriff's spokesman said.

"The deputies ordered him several times to drop the knife and surrender, but he refused," the spokesman said. "They tried to reason with him, but it didn't work."

Two of the deputies grappled with Stech, who was waving the knife wildly in the air around them. A third deputy tried to shield Mrs. Stech and her

Laguna Beach Police Hold El Toro Man

Laguna Beach police today are holding a 21-year-old El Toro man on armed robbery, burglary and concealed weapon charges while four other departments indicate they want to question the suspects.

Officers identified the suspect as Kern Wayne Dunagan, of 23132 Orange Ave., El Toro. He is held in Laguna jail in lieu of $50,000 bail.

Dunagan, police said, will also be questioned by officers from Newport Beach, Costa Mesa and the Orange County Sheriff's Office in connection with cases within those jurisdictions.

Dunagan was arrested in Laguna Beach at 12:30 p.m. Thursday in the 1200 block of South Coast Highway after a shopkeeper became suspicious of his wandering in and out of several stores.

Laguna officers allege the suspect was carrying a concealed .22 caliber automatic pistol at the time of his arrest.

Dunagan, police said, told them he had been living in the area for four months and that his wife and child are living in Alaska.

Wrong Man Identified

Wednesday's edition of the Daily Pilot included the name of Kenneth MacLeod in a partial listing of Orange County Assessor's Office employees indicted by the county Grand Jury.

MacLeod is employed in the Assessor's Office but is not one of the nine men named in the jury's indictment.

The Daily Pilot regrets the error.

Fire Kills 24 Babies In Hospital

RIJEKA, Yugoslavia (AP) — A flash fire killed 24 babies and critically injured four others in the maternity wing of a Rijeka hospital early today, officials said. Most of the victims were only two to three days old, a hospital source said.

Many mothers on the same floor as the babies became hysterical because they couldn't reach them in time, a source said.

He said some oxygen probably leaked from a tank attached to the incubators and fed the flames, but that several persons also were responsible.

Rijeka is about 35 miles southeast of Trieste.

An official announcement blamed the blaze in an infants' room on "faulty electrical installations." A spokesman for Dr. Zdravko Kucic Hospital said 23 of the infants perished when the fire burned up oxygen or choked it off to incubators containing newborn babies.

Weeping parents and relatives besieged the hospital seeking information but were held back by officials who were ordered to give out no information except for the brief official announcement. The statement said the babies' identification was still being established.

Flags were lowered to half staff in this Adriatic port and industrial city and the City Council proclaimed a day of mourning.

An announcement read by Rijeka District Court Judge Vladimir Pavic said the blaze broke out between 2 and 3 a.m., killing 23 of the 28 babies in the room.

He said five injured babies were taken to a children's hospital in Rijeka and one of them died later in the morning. He did not specify the exact cause of death.

Winds Lash Avalon, Put Boats on Rocks

Potential Disaster Feared

By ALMON LOCKABEY
Daily Pilot Boating Editor

Blustery northeaster winds and heavy seas blasting into the mouth of Avalon Harbor today threatened to make a disaster area out of the waterfront at the popular Catalina Island resort.

Harbormaster Bill Harvey said seven boats were on the rocks this morning and that two of them were breaking up in 5 to 10 foot seas inside the breakwater.

"The northeaster has been blowing 20 knots steady with gusts up to 30 since 11 p.m. last night," said Harvey. "At the moment we have every available man and boat working to get people off their moored vessels."

Harvey said it was the worst wind storm to hit Avalon since the disastrous blow of 1966 when 18 boats were lost or severely damaged.

There are nearly 100 boats still (See CATALINA, Page A2)

Moody Resigns Laguna Post

Wayne Moody, director of planning and development for the city of Laguna Beach for the past four years, unexpectedly resigned from his post with the city today.

No reason was immediately available.

Moody, 34, was not available for comment this morning. Sources indicated that the resignation would be effective sometime in early May.

Moody replaced Alvin O. Autry as the city's planning director in April 1971.

Good Friday

Pope Leads Services

By United Press International

Pope Paul VI led the world's 600 million Roman Catholics today in solemn Good Friday observances marking Christ's crucifixion. In Jerusalem, holy city of the world's three major faiths, two bombs apparently set by Arab guerrillas exploded, injuring 13 persons.

Police and hospital officials in Jerusalem, sacred to Christians, Jews and Moslems, said all the injured were aboard a bus on which a bomb exploded. Three were hospitalized, the others were released after treatment for minor injuries.

The second bomb caused no injuries, police said.

along the Via Dolorosa — traditional path of Christ's march to his crucifixion.

The 77-year-old pontiff was scheduled to attend an evening liturgical service in St. Peter's Basilica and then carry a tall cross in a procession around Rome's Colosseum to re-enact the stages of Jesus' crucifixion.

parently chlorine added for purposes of oxidation and purification rather than the filtration system.

"My observations tell me the filtration is working excellently," says Peter, noting that the water has been absolutely clear.

He said water samples would be analyzed to determine what is wrong with the water but that he remains certain "the problem we have had recently is not because of the filtration system."

San Clemente residents had red water about last January but its surprise appearance at the spigot wasn't blamed on the filtration system either. A changeover to greater amounts of Metropolitan Water District water was held to blame.

But even though the filtering system may be doing its job, there is at least one San Clemente resident who would just as soon have that good old red water back.

Jack Pastorok, 509 Monterey Lane, blames the filtered water for killing his prized tropical fish from Tanganyika.

He filed an official damage (See WATER, Page A2)

Hinshaw Back in Town

Plans No Public Appearances, Interviews

By GARY GRANVILLE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Representative Andrew Hinshaw (R-Newport Beach), is in town, but doesn't plan to make any public appearances or meet with the press, an aide said today.

Hinshaw left Washington for Southern California late Thursday afternoon, according to a member of his staff in the nation's capital.

However, aides in his offices in Washington and Santa Ana refused to say where the Newport Beach congressman can be contacted while in Southern California, or how long he would stay.

Hinshaw will continue to follow legal advice and not speak about the scandal that has rocked the county assessor's office he once headed, according to Chip Cleary, his chief aide in Santa Ana.

But, Cleary added, the congressman will be meeting with some constituents.

It is believed those constituents (See HINSHAW, Page A2)

San Clemente Not Tumwater

By RUDI NIEDZIELSKI
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

When it comes to water, San Clemente is just about as famous as the city of Tumwater, Oregon.

Infamous rather than famous. Because instead of being clear and pure, San Clemente's water has historically been murky and reddish.

The problem was traces of manganese and red iron in the city's water supply, a headache city councilmen thought they had cured with the installation of a sophisticated new filtration system.

Completed about a month ago, the system employs zeolite, a lava-born natural rock which has a natural affinity for the obnoxious mineral traces.

But problems with the water persist despite the city's effort to clean it up.

City councilmen complained about "bad water" again Tuesday and requested a formal report from the engineering office.

But this time it appears to be the taste rather than the color, according to City Engineer Phil Peter. He said the problem is ap-are his chief campaign backers.

During earlier attempts to contact Hinshaw as the assessor's office scandal unfolded, Cleary told a reporter that Hinshaw had met with those backers shortly after nine men were indicted for allegedly campaigning on his behalf at county taxpayer expense.

At the time, Cleary said Hinshaw had satisfactorily answered questions asked about the scandal and there were no defects from the ranks of his supporters.

Last Friday night Orange County District Attorney investigators armed with a search warrant seized evidence in Hinshaw's Alexandria, Va., apartment.

Affidavits filed in Virginia Monday indicated that the seizure of stereo equipment by the investigators was related to an investigation of bribery charges.

Cleary said today, as he has before, that he would tell Hinshaw of press attempts to contact him to obtain his side of the story on the assessor's office scandal.

However, Cleary added, he doubts that Hinshaw will have anything to say publicly on the subject during his visit to Southern California, his first since early January.

on moorings and unable to power out to open sea, Harvey said. Seas outside the Avalon breakwater were estimated at 10-12 feet and breaking.

Boats which parted their moorings and were hurled on the beach included 25 to 30 foot power boats, a 35 foot and a 40-foot sailboat. Harbor boats were able to pull four of the smaller boats off the rocks and re-moor them. One of the deep-keel sailboats was breaking up and the other was in danger, according to Harvey.

"It's a near disaster," said Casper "Cap" Blackburn of Newport Beach who was viewing the debris strewn harbor as he talked from a phone booth at the water's edge.

"There are life jackets and small craft adrift all over the harbor. The boats still on moorings are pitch-poling as the heavy seas roll in."

The Vatican switched the Holy Thursday Mass from the basilica of St. John the Lateran to St. Peter's so more pilgrims could see it, but the world's largest church — which can hold 30,000 people — was only half full.

In Washington, President Ford went to perhaps the only place in public where a chief executive could find privacy. He attended a Good Friday service at the little church across from the White House.

Ford stepped alone from his limousine after a two-minute ride from the White House around Lafayette Square to the steps of St. John's Church.

He joined 21 worshipers in pews in front of the left side altar in the Episcopal church built in 1816 by Capitol architect Benjamin Henry Latrobe and known since then as the "Church of the Presidents."

Prime Rate Cut Again

NEW YORK (UPI) — First National City Bank today lowered its interest rate for prime business loans to 7 1/4 percent, the lowest since May, 1973.

Citibank, the nation's second largest, has been reducing its prime steadily since September when it was at a historic high for 12 percent. Most bankers expect the rate to go to below 7 percent this year.

A small St. Louis bank, Southwest Bank, is believed to have the lowest interest rate in the nation — 7 percent.

Police Probe Purse Thefts In Laguna

Police today are investigating two purse thefts that occurred in Laguna Beach restaurants within six hours Wednesday night and Thursday morning.

Marjorie P. Bottler, 61, of 2073 D Ronda Granada, Laguna Hills, told police her purse was removed from beneath a table as she and her husband dined at the Royal Hawaiian Restaurant, 331 N. Coast Highway. The purse and its contents were valued at $195. The crime occurred between 6:30 and 7 p.m.

The second victim, Linda Bauer, 21, of 469 Oak St., Laguna Beach, told officers her purse was stolen between 12:30 and 1:30 a.m. Thursday while she danced at the Refried Bean, 696 S. Coast Highway. Loss was set at $50.

Canyon Ranch Proposal Set For Hearing

Consideration of proposals for a 472-acre Laguna Canyon Ranch will continue Tuesday in a hearing at the Orange County Planning Commission.

The Crosby Ranch, located above Laguna Canyon Road in the coastal ridge behind Laguna Beach, is being proposed for 99 single family residence lots and a private equestrian center.

The planning commission will discuss the proposal anytime after 1:30 p.m. in the hearing room of the engineering building, 400 Civic Center Drive, Santa Ana.

County planners have recommended that the environmental impact report for the project be denied as inadequate and that the tentative tract map also be denied.

When Stech was only a few feet from the human screen, deputies Rex Hatch and Charles Mullen each fired a single shot, striking Stech in the chest.

Utility Fighting Inquiry

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — San Diego Gas and Electric Co. has asked for a superior court injunction to halt an audit of the firm's books by the state auditor general.

The inquiry was ordered last week by Assemblyman Bob Wilson (D-La Mesa), chairman of the legislature's joint audit committee. Wilson said Thursday that public inspection of the utility's records was needed because it had received or requested rate increases totaling 60 percent in the past 20 months.

The company said it questions whether the auditor general has jurisdictional authority to conduct such an audit of private business. At a news conference Wednesday, SDG&E president Walter Zittlau called the proposed probe a "witch hunt" and said his firm would not voluntarily cooperate.

Wilson said he had been told the company withdrew its previously announced cooperation after being pressured by other state utilities fearing similar inquiries.

The utility said it agreed to cooperate with the rate investigation after a representative of the auditor general said the information was needed to verify findings of the public utilities commission, which regulates SDGE.

In its announcement, the company said it would cooperate with "legally constituted government bodies such as the PUC" but would fight "any attempted incursion into its business by government bodies that do not have such jurisdiction."

In another announcement, the utility said it would seek PUC approval Friday of the sale of its 21-story headquarters building for $20 million to New England Mutual Life Insurance Co. The company will lease back the property for 30 years and use sale proceeds to retire outstanding short term debt.

has stood up is because it regulates rather than prohibits public nudity.

Had the ordinance been written to prohibit nudity in all public places, the law probably would have been unconstitutional, Morrow said.

Schopen points out in his memo to city fathers that public nudity once was controlled by laws on indecent exposure and disturbing the peace.

Courts have held recently that indecent exposure must involve lewdness as well as nudity to be used to prosecute persons, Schopen said.

And disturbing the peace statute has been amended by the state Legislature rendering it useless to prosecute nudity cases, the chief noted.

Cities and counties, however, are given the privilege to adopt ordinances regulating public nudity, Schopen said.

A recent study by a UC Irvine researcher showed that 75 percent of 575 beachgoers questioned in Laguna Beach and South Laguna favor the setting aside of nude beaches.

Thieves Hit Pier Meters

Police say a heavy object such as a sledgehammer or crowbar was used to smash the heads of six new parking meters at the Linda Lane parking lot near the San Clemente Pier.

About $5 in small change was lost to the thieves but officials say the damage to the meters themselves was considerably more. There was no immediate estimate of the damage.

Police believe the meters were destroyed sometime Wednesday or Thursday.

A Cheap Shot? U.S. Tied to Faisal Death

MOSCOW (AP) — Some Soviet newspapers including the Communist party organ Pravda published excerpts today from Arab newspapers that suggested the United States might have been behind the assassination of King Faisal of Saudi Arabia.

There was no comment from Pravda or six other papers, but the selection of the Arab newspaper excerpts indicated what line the Soviet media were indirectly endorsing.

In Washington, State Department officials noted today that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger at a news conference Wednesday declared: "I'm absolutely confident that nobody in the United States had anything to do with such an action."

The Cairo newspaper Al Akhbar was quoted as saying "the assassination was a consequence of a foreign conspiracy. It cannot be ruled out, the newspaper writers say, that someone did stand behind the assassin."

'No-frill' Discount Air Fare Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board today approved a "no-frill" fare discount that would let airline passengers on some routes fly for less than it would cost to take a train or bus.

The regulatory agency approved a proposal by National Air Lines to start the bargain fares April 14 on flights using the airline's jumbo jets.

National proposed offering the low-cost fares on its East Coast runs and on flights between Florida and New Orleans, Houston, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Las Vegas, Nev.

The fares would be 35 percent below the cost of a regular day coach ticket. Passengers using the discounts would be segregated in the rear of National's jumbo jets and would not be served food or any alcoholic beverages. They could purchase coffee or soft drinks for 25 cents and could bring their own food for longer flights.

In addition, passengers using the third-class fare would have to purchase tickets seven days in advance and have to pay a service charge if they missed their flight or cancelled their ticket.

The discounts would be offered only on Monday through Thursday flights. Children aged 2 to 12 could fly for two-thirds the ticket prices.

A third-class no-frill ticket between Miami and Los Angeles would cost $112. The current lowest air fare now is $183. Bus fare is $113.90 and train fare is $178.

The no-frill flight authorization applies only to National. However other carriers have requested similar fares and the board said it would rule on their applications soon.

Applications from American, Continental, Delta, and Eastern are not exactly like National's. Some propose more liberal discount requirements than National's.

Although the board agreed to let National put the discounts into effect, it announced it planned to investigate the fares and regulations to determine if the fares should be continued.

Meanwhile, coach passengers on National and Eastern Airlines will be paying for alcoholic drinks starting April 14 on flights to and from Miami.

Eastern announced Thursday it will end its practice of serving free cocktails in coach effective April 14. National announced a similar policy March 17 to go into effect at the time.

claim of $100 for his two Julidichromis Malieri with city hall. The claim was denied last week by the city council.

Pastorok, 18, said he never had any trouble with the old water but that his fish died "almost immediately" when he changed their water.

"I put the new water in at 4 p.m. and at 6 p.m. they were dead," he charges. Pastorok blames his problems directly on the water because he claims he kept all other aquarium conditions "just perfect."

Earlier Pastorok lost another valuable fish, a Pseudotropheus auratus, when he changed over to the new water but he thought he had caused his death by making a mistake.

Then, when the others died, he decided it was the water. Before that time Pastorok says his fish always got along swimmingly whenever the water was changed.

He says he has always followed proper procedures, keeping the temperature at the right level, and adding "medicines for water aging."

Because his claim was denied Pastorok says he was advised by city hall that his only available option was to take his case to court.

But the youth says he has lost his job and doesn't have enough money to replace his fish, let alone hire an attorney.

City engineer Peter meanwhile says he doesn't know what killed the fish because he hadn't read Pastorok's claim. But he does not believe it to be the filtration system.

Upturn Seen In Economy

A downturn in the economy has brought an upturn in business at the Laguna Beach Free Clinic.

The increase in the patient load has caused a recurring problem to flare anew — the clinic needs more doctors to treat its clients.

"People coming in are verbalizing the fact that money is short," said Mary Stack, administrator of the clinic at 460 Ocean Ave.

"We are hearing more from people who are unemployed or on fixed incomes," she added.

She said the clinic now receives about 250 patients per week during evening sessions that begin at 6 p.m., except Wednesdays when sessions begin at 5:30 p.m.

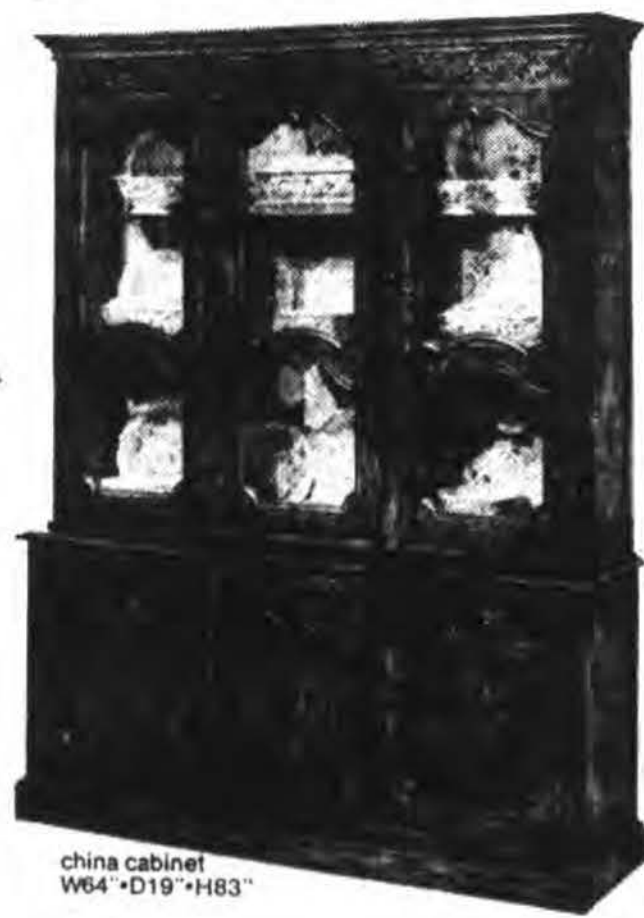

She said the 28 doctors now working at the clinic on a rotating basis simply cannot handle the current patient load.

"We need more doctors, as many as we can get," said Miss Stack. "We could really use doctors who could work during the afternoons to take some of the pressure off the evening hours."

Doctors who would be willing to donate time to offer free medical treatment were urged by Miss Stack to call the clinic at 494-0761 or 546-3715. She said all doctors are covered by malpractice insurance held by the clinic.

Winds Hurl Boats on Rocks in Avalon

Blackburn said many of those still secure had their engines running in preparation for attempting an exit to open sea should the moorings let go.

Blackburn's own bright red Monterey had to be moved to a more secure mooring behind the breakwater and was still holding fast, he said. "But I'm glad I'm not aboard."

Seas were so heavy inside the harbor that the harbor patrol boats were unable to operate, according to CATALINA, Page A2.

Viejo Man Killed

Lawmen Shoot Knife-wielder

A knife-wielding Mission Viejo man was shot and killed Thursday by sheriff's deputies in a Dana Point apartment. They said he tried to slash his way past them to stab his estranged wife and her boyfriend.

A sheriff's spokesman said today Lawrence Stech, 28, whose last known address was 25711 Santo Drive in Mission Viejo, died at San Clemente General Hospital an hour after the 6 p.m. incident.

Officers said it was the second time in three weeks deputies had been called to the second floor apartment at 34042 Alcazar Street, responding to complaints about loud arguments between Stech and his 19-year-old wife, Terri.

Investigators were told Stech's wife moved into the apartment of Michael W. Thompson after she and Stech separated. The first confrontation on March 8 was broken up by officers without incident.

When deputies arrived at the apartment Thursday, they found Stech threatening his wife and her boyfriend with a large kitchen knife and screaming at them, the sheriff's spokesman said.

"The deputies ordered him several times to drop the knife and surrender, but he refused," the spokesman said. "They tried to reason with him, but it didn't work."

Two of the deputies grappled with Stech, who was waving the knife wildly in the air around them. A third deputy tried to shield Mrs. Stech and her

Laguna Beach Police Hold El Toro Man

Laguna Beach police today are holding a 21-year-old El Toro man on armed robbery, burglary and concealed weapon charges while four other departments indicate they want to question the suspects.

Officers identified the suspect as Kere Wayne Dunagan, of 23132 Orange Ave., El Toro. He is held in Laguna jail in lieu of $50,000 bail.

Dunagan, police said, will also be questioned by officers from Newport Beach, Costa Mesa and the Orange County Sheriff's Office in connection with cases within those jurisdictions.

Dunagan was arrested in Laguna Beach at 12:30 p.m. Thursday in the 1200 block of South Coast Highway after a shopkeeper became suspicious of his wandering in and out of several stores.

Laguna officers allege the suspect was carrying a concealed .22 caliber automatic pistol at the time of his arrest.

Fire Kills 24 Babies In Hospital

RIJEKA, Yugoslavia (AP) — A flash fire killed 24 babies and critically injured four others in the maternity wing of a Rijeka hospital early today, officials said. Most of the victims were only two to three days old, a hospital source said.

Many mothers on the same floor as the babies became hysterical because they couldn't reach them in time, a source said.

He said some oxygen probably leaked from a tank attached to the incubators and fed the flames, but that several persons also were responsible.

Rijeka is about 35 miles southeast of Trieste.

An official announcement blamed the blaze in an infants' room on "faulty electrical installations." A spokesman for Dr. Zdravko Kucic Hospital said 23 of the infants perished when the fire burned up oxygen or choked it off to incubators containing newborn babies.

Weeping parents and relatives besieged the hospital seeking information but were held back by officials who were ordered to give out no information except for the brief official announcement. The statement said the babies' identification was still being established.

Flags were lowered to half staff in this Adriatic port and industrial city and the City Council proclaimed a day of mourning.

An announcement read by Rijeka District Court Judge Vladimir Pavic said the blaze broke out between 2 and 3 a.m., killing 23 of the 28 babies in the room.

Hinshaw Back in Town

Plans No Public Appearances, Interviews

By GARY GRANVILLE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Representative Andrew Hinshaw (R-Newport Beach), is in town, but doesn't plan to make any public appearances or meet with the press, an aide said today.

Hinshaw left Washington for Southern California late Thursday afternoon, according to a member of his staff in the nation's capital.

However, aides in his offices in Washington and Santa Ana refused to say where the Newport Beach congressman can be contacted while in Southern California, or how long he would stay.

Hinshaw will continue to follow legal advice and not speak about the scandal that has rocked the county assessor's office he once headed, according to Chip Cleary, his chief aide in Santa Ana.

But, Cleary added, the congressman will be meeting with some constituents.

It is believed those constituency are his chief campaign backers.

During earlier attempts to contact Hinshaw as the assessor's office scandal unfolded, Cleary told a reporter that Hinshaw had met with those backers shortly after nine men were indicted for allegedly campaigning on his behalf at county taxpayer expense.

At the time, Cleary said Hinshaw had satisfactorily answered questions asked about the scandal and there were no defections from the ranks of his supporters.

Last Friday night Orange County District Attorney investigators armed with a search warrant seized evidence in Hinshaw's Alexandria, Va., apartment.

Affidavits filed in Virginia Monday indicated that the seizure of stereo equipment by the investigators was related to an investigation of bribery charges.

Cleary said today, as he has before, that he would tell

Good Friday

Pope Leads Services

By United Press International
Pope Paul VI led the world's 600 million Roman Catholics today in solemn Good Friday observances marking Christ's crucifixion. In Jerusalem, holy city of the world's three major faiths, two bombs apparently set by Arab guerrillas exploded, injuring 13 persons.

Police and hospital officials in Jerusalem, sacred to Christians, Jews and Moslems, said all the injured were aboard a bus on which a bomb exploded. Three were hospitalized, the others were released after treatment for minor injuries.

The second bomb caused no injuries, police said.

along the Via Dolorosa — traditional path of Christ's march to his crucifixion.

The 77-year-old pontiff was scheduled to attend an evening liturgical service in St. Peter's Basilica and then carry a tall cross in a procession around Rome's Colosseum to re-enact the stages of Jesus' crucifixion.

Thursday, aides supported the Pope, who suffers from arthritis, as he descended from the altar in St. Peter's Basilica to wash and kiss the feet of 12 boys in re-enactment of Christ's gesture to the Apostles at the Last Supper.

The Vatican switched the Holy Thursday Mass from the basilica of St. John the Lateran to St.

RECALLS PEARL HARBOR
Larry Farquhar

'We Could Win in Day'

Arizona Survivor Tells Misconceptions

By JAN WORTH
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Just before the raid on Pearl Harbor in 1941, the young American servicemen stationed at the Hawaii post had little idea war would reach them.

"We were cocky," recalls Larry Farquhar, one of the survivors of the U.S.S. Arizona which was severely bombed during the raid.

"We thought we could beat the Japanese in the morning watch," Farquhar said. "We figured one day we'd steam out into the ocean somewhere, fight it out, and steam back into port."

"It didn't quite work out that way."

Farquhar, now manager of the El Toro branch of Wells Fargo Bank, has been recalling that crucial December day in talks to Saddleback Valley luncheon groups.

Farquhar was a second class petty officer in the fire control division at the time of the raid, meaning, "my main concern was when was payday and what time does liberty start."

The battle group including the giant U.S.S. Arizona had been in port two weeks prior to the raid and had been scheduled to go to sea Dec. 5, he recalled.

For some reason, the battle group did not go out, meaning that the entire battle force was anchored that Sunday.

When the general alarm sounded, Farquhar was on his way to go swimming in his skivvies.

"One of the problems behind the disaster Dec. 7 was that the general alarm was used for everything," Farquhar said. "It got so commonplace that even though the alarm meant go to your battle stations, nobody was in any rush to get there."

He got dressed and proceeded to his battle station.

"The first thing I saw was a plane flashing over and then a tremendous explosion. I found out later it was a bomb hitting the U.S.S. West Virginia."

Then he heard a sound "like if you were standing right behind a passing passenger train." It was the sound of strafing—and Farquhar gradually realized it was no drill.

"There was total confusion," he recalled. "There was never in the whole time any communication from the ship's headquarters about what was going on."

Farquhar made it to his battle station, while watching the sky turning black with bursts.

Prime Rate Cut Again

NEW YORK (UPI) — First National City Bank today lowered its interest rate for prime business loans to 7 3/4 percent, the lowest since May, 1973.

Citibank, the nation's second largest, has been reducing its prime steadily since September when it was at a historic high of 12 percent. Most bankers expect the rate to go to below 7 percent this year.

A small St. Louis bank, Southwest Bank, is believed to have the lowest interest rate in the nation — 7 percent.

Evacuation Plans Set By Marines

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two companies of Marines remain on alert on Okinawa for possible duty in evacuating Americans from Cambodia, a Pentagon spokesman says. (Related Story, A4)

"No orders have been given to any unit to move out," Maj. Gen. Winant Sidle said Thursday.

The two companies were placed on alert several weeks ago as a possible backup for a Marine battalion of about 1,500 men afloat on the helicopter carrier Okinawa in the Gulf of Thailand.

Sidle told a briefing there is no basis for rumors of an imminent move of Marines from Okinawa to Indochina.

At the same time, Sidle said a Navy amphibious group due to leave San Diego for the western Pacific will relieve another group already there with the U.S. 7th Fleet. He called this "a normal replacement action."

Spokesmen acknowledge that some 200 Marines will travel with the westbound amphibious group, but he said they will get off in Hawaii.

Sidle described them as individual replacements for Marines on duty in the islands.

He is survived by his daughter, Virginia Brown, with whom he had lived at 3222 Via Carizzo; by a granddaughter, Cheryl Brown of Dana Point; and by a grandson, Kitchell Brown of a Palo Alto.

Monday's funeral service will be held at Pacific View Memorial Park in Newport Beach, Rev. Bruce Kurre officiating.

Utility Fighting Inquiry

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — San Diego Gas and Electric Co. has asked for a superior court injunction to halt an audit of the firm's books by the state auditor general.

The inquiry was ordered last week by Assemblyman Bob Wilson (D-La Mesa), chairman of the legislature's joint audit committee. Wilson said Thursday that public inspection of the utility's records was needed because it had received or requested rate increases totaling 60 percent in the past 20 months.

The company said it questions whether the auditor general has jurisdictional authority to conduct such an audit of private business. At a news conference Wednesday, SDG&E president Walter Zittlau called the proposed probe a "witch hunt" and said his firm would not voluntarily cooperate.

Wilson said he had been told the company withdrew its previously announced cooperation after being pressured by other state utilities fearing similar inquiries.

The utility said it agreed to cooperate with the rate investigation after a representative of the auditor general said the information was needed to verify findings of the public utilities commission, which regulates SDGE.

In its announcement, the company said it would cooperate with "legally constituted government bodies such as the PUC" but would fight "any attempted incursion into its business by government bodies that do not have such jurisdiction."

In another announcement, the utility said it would seek PUC approval Friday of the sale of its 21-story headquarters building for $20 million to New England Mutual Life Insurance Co. The company will lease back the property for 30 years and use sale proceeds to retire outstanding short term debt.

Ford stepped alone from his limousine after a two-minute ride from the White House around Lafayette Square to the steps of St. John's Church.

He joined 21 worshippers in pews in front of the left side altar in the Episcopal church built in 1816 by Capitol architect Benjamin Henry Latrobe and known since then as the "Church of the Presidents."

Top Aide Sees Smog Device Repeal Action

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A top aide to Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. says he expects the legislature to repeal the law requiring extra smog control devices on 1966-70 cars in six Southern California counties.

Donald Burns, secretary of the Business and Transportation Agency, also said Thursday that he agrees with the California Highway Patrol's decision to issue warnings, instead of tickets, to drivers whose cars don't have the antismog devices.

"People who know more than I do about it tell me that will happen," Burns said in an interview.

He said he had talked with Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. frequently about the situation, but didn't know whether Brown would veto the repeal measure by Sen. Omer Rains (D-Ventura).

"Frankly, I don't know what the governor is going to do. I don't think anyone does," Burns said.

Burns said he agreed with the decision by CHP Commissioner Dan Lanza's decision Thursday to issue warning notices to drivers whose cars aren't equipped with the devices designed to eliminate oxides of nitrogen (NOx) from exhaust fumes.

"You have to enforce a law in the whole contest," said Burns, who is Lanza's superior. He said by the time the legislature and governor settle the issue, the judicial situation should also be clarified.

The law has been challenged as unconstitutional because it is limited to six counties.

cording to Blackburn.

"I see a lifeguard boat operating in the bay but it goes completely out of sight in the troughs of the swells," said Blackburn.

Harbormaster Harvey said the storm struck without warning. "We didn't even have a chance to hoist small craft warnings."

Harvey said persons still on their boats were unable to get off and that those ashore were unable to get to their boats.

"There have been no injuries up to now," Harvey added.

Northeast winds are the most hazardous to Avalon. After the 1966 disaster, a breakwater was built partially across the mouth of the harbor, but heavy seas often break over the stone jetty.

"We're nervous as hell," said Harvey. "All we can do at this point is trust to luck that the wind and seas subside."

Bridge Widen Project Set For Hearing

Proposed widening of the Alicia Parkway bridge and the location of a new south Orange County animal shelter are the two items on the agenda of the Mission Viejo Municipal Advisory Council regular meeting Monday.

The council meets at 7:30 p.m. in its office at 26129-D La Paz Road, Mission Viejo.

Also on the meeting schedule is a presentation on preserving open space by Irvine City Councilman Henry Quigley. Quigley made a similar report to the Saddleback Area Coordinating Council last week.

Other items include:

- Naming the MAC's sixth committee to study cultural and heritage issues.
- Proposal to limit MAC meetings to three hours.

Rites Slated For County's Mr. Carlson

Laguna Hills resident Lester Carlson died Thursday at Saddleback Community Hospital following a lengthy illness.

Born in Logan, Utah, Mr. Carlson lived in Seattle, Wash. before moving to Laguna Hills two years ago. He was a retired engineer.

Mr. Carlson is survived by his wife, Inez, of the family home, 2363B Via Mariposa East; by two brothers, Leland Carlson of Cedar City, Utah, and W. Dean Carlson of Logan, Utah; and by two sisters, Veda Pixton of Salt Lake City, and LuRue Stewart of Logan, Utah.

A graveside funeral service will be held at 3 p.m. Saturday at El Toro Cemetery, Dr. R. Dunham Taylor of St. George's Episcopal Church in Laguna Hills officiating.

Funeral arrangements are being handled by McCormick Mortuary, Laguna Beach.

Bomb Ring Cited

CRESTWOOD, Ill. (AP) — Authorities have broken up a grade school bomb ring in which boys aged 12 to 14 made crude explosive pipe bombs and sold them to classmates for 35 cents each.

Nine youngsters were implicated, although only two apparently made the devices and peddled them to fellow pupils at Kolmar Elementary School in this south of Chicago suburb.

'No-frill' Discount Air Fare Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board today approved a "no-frill" fare discount that would let airline passengers on some routes fly for less than it would cost to take a train or bus.

The regulatory agency approved a proposal by National Air Lines to start the bargain fares April 14 on flights using the airline's jumbo jets.

National proposed offering the low-cost fares on its East Coast runs and on flights between Florida and New Orleans, Houston, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Las Vegas, Nev.

The fares would be 35 percent below the cost of a regular day coach ticket. Passengers using the discounts would be segregated in the rear of National's jumbo jets and would not be served food or any alcoholic beverages. They could purchase coffee or soft drinks for 25 cents and could bring their own food for longer flights.

In addition, passengers using the third-class fare would have to purchase tickets seven days in advance and have to pay a service charge if they missed their flight or cancelled their ticket.

The discounts would be offered only on Monday through Thursday flights. Children aged 2 to 12 could fly for two-thirds the ticket prices.

A third-class no-frill ticket between Miami and Los Angeles would cost $112. The current lowest air fare now is $183. Bus fare is $113.90 and train fare is $178.

The no-frill flight authorization applies only to National. However other carriers have requested similar fares and the board said it would rule on their applications soon.

Applications from American, Continental, Delta, and Eastern are not exactly like National's. Some propose more liberal discount requirements than National's.

Although the board agreed to let National put the discounts into effect, it announced it planned to investigate the fares and regulations to determine if the fares should be continued.

Meanwhile, coach passengers on National and Eastern Airlines will be paying for alcoholic drinks starting April 14 on flights to and from Miami.

ARIZONA . . .

He and three buddies held out on the battle station for several minutes, firing into the air, but there was so much going on they had no idea if they were hitting anything.

Finally, they decided to try to get off the ship, which by then time had been hit on the fore part and was aflame.

"Since we were in an enclosed mount, we didn't get burned," Farquhar recalls. But in the wild rush to get off the flaming ship, he was burned on 65 percent of his body.

"The first burns I got were on my hands," he said. "We were trying to get down ladders with brass rungs and they were so hot I burned my hands."

As he got to one of the lower decks, a bomb hit with such force that it tore off his shirt and socks and split his pants. Although he didn't realize it at the time, that was the moment he received his worst burns.

At that point, he became separated from his three friends, whom he never saw again. He ran into another friend, who was waiting for a chance to get off the boat but couldn't swim.

"I jumped into the water to swim around to the Captain's life boat," Farquhar recalls. "I freed it, took my friend, and headed for shore."

Doctors later told Farquhar that his panicked jump into the salt water was lucky: it acted as a disinfectant for his burns.

At the dispensary, the scene was one of complete chaos.

"All the fellows I saw who got off my ship walked into the dispensary," he said. "But once some of them laid down, they never got up."

One man who walked in was totally charred, with strips of burned flesh hanging from him. "He was a friend," Farquhar said. "But I never would have known him. He died the next day."

Winds Hurl Boats on Rocks in Avalon

By ALMON LOCKABEY
Daily Pilot Boating Editor

Blustery northeast winds and heavy seas blasting into the mouth of Avalon Harbor today threatened to make a disaster area out of the waterfront at the popular Catalina Island resort.

Harbormaster Bill Harvey said seven boats were on the rocks this morning and that two of them were breaking up in 5 to 10 foot seas inside the breakwater.

"The northeaster has been blowing 20 knots steady with gusts up to 30 since 11 p.m. last night," said Harvey. "At the moment, we have every available man and boat working to get people off their moored vessels."

Harvey said it was the worst wind storm to hit Avalon since the disastrous blow of 1966 when 18 boats were lost or severely damaged.

There are nearly 100 boats still on moorings and unable to power out to open sea, Harvey said. Seas outside the Avalon breakwater were estimated at 10-12 feet and breaking.

Boats which parted their moorings and were hurled on the beach included 25 to 30 foot power boats, a 35 foot and a 40-foot sailboat. Harbor boats were able to pull four of the smaller boats off the rocks and re-moor them. One of the deep-keel sailboats was breaking up and the other was in danger, according to Harvey.

"It's a near disaster," said Casper "Cap" Blackburn of Newport Beach who was viewing the debris strewn harbor as he talked from a phone booth at the water's edge.

"There are life jackets and small craft adrift all over the harbor. The boats still on moorings are pitch-poled as the heavy seas roll in."

"A Mariner-40 sailboat has just hit the rocks as I'm talking to you," exclaimed Blackburn.

Blackburn said many of those still secure had their engines running in preparation for attempting an exit to open sea should the moorings let go.

Blackburn's own bright red Monterey had to be moved to a more secure mooring behind the breakwater and was still holding fast, he said. "But I'm glad I'm not aboard."

Seas were so heavy inside the harbor that the harbor patrol boats were unable to operate, according to Harvey. (See CATALINA, Page A2)

A Cheap Shot? U.S. Tied to Faisal Death

MOSCOW (AP) — Some Soviet newspapers including the Communist party organ Pravda published excerpts today from Arab newspapers that suggested the United States might have been behind the assassination of King Faisal of Saudi Arabia.

There was no comment from Pravda or six other papers, but the selection of the Arab newspaper excerpts indicated what line the Soviet media were indirectly endorsing.

In Washington, State Department officials noted today that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger at a news conference Wednesday declared: "I'm absolutely confident that nobody in the United States had anything to do with such an action."

The Cairo newspaper Al Akhbar was quoted as saying "the assassination was a consequence of a foreign conspiracy. It cannot be ruled out, the newspaper writers say, that someone did stand behind the assassin."

Viejo Husband Killed Deputies Shoot Knife-wielder to Death

A knife-wielding Mission Viejo man was shot and killed Thursday by sheriff's deputies in a Dana Point apartment. They said he tried to slash his way past them to stab his estranged wife and her boyfriend.

A sheriff's spokesman said today Lawrence Stech, 28, whose last known address was 25711 Santo Drive in Mission Viejo, died at San Clemente General Hospital an hour after the 6 p.m. incident.

Officers said it was the second time in three weeks deputies had been called to the second floor apartment at 34042 Alcazar Street, responding to complaints about loud arguments between Stech and his 19-year-old wife, Terri.

Investigators were told Stech's wife moved into the apartment of Michael W. Thompson after she and Stech separated. The first confrontation on March 8 was broken up by officers without incident.

When deputies arrived at the apartment Thursday, they found Stech threatening his wife and her boyfriend with a large kitchen knife and screaming at them, the sheriff's spokesman said.

The fares would be 35 percent below the cost of a regular day coach ticket. Passengers using the discounts would be segregated in the rear of National's jumbo jets and would not be served food or any alcoholic beverages.

They could purchase coffee or soft drinks for 25 cents and could bring their own food for longer flights.

In addition, passengers using the third-class fare would have to purchase tickets seven days in advance and have to pay a service charge if they missed their flight or cancelled their ticket.

The discounts would be offered only on Monday through Thursday flights. Children aged 2 to 12 could fly for two-thirds the ticket prices.

A third-class no-frill ticket between Miami and Los Angeles would cost $112. The current lowest air fare now is $183. Bus fare is $113.90 and train fare is $178.

The no-frill flight authorization applies only to National. However other carriers have requested similar fares and the board said it would rule on their applications soon.

Applications from American, Continental, Delta, and Eastern are not exactly like National's. Some propose more liberal discounts.

More Cutbacks At Douglas In Huntington

By KATHY CLANCY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Lay-offs began today at the McDonnell Douglas Corporation's Huntington Beach plant, where production has been hampered by a six-week machinists strike.

There also are "a few" cutbacks today at the Torrance and Santa Monica plants, in addition to 9,500 lay-offs already announced by the company at its Long Beach aircraft facility.

Company officials refused comment about the number of lay-offs at Huntington Beach, Torrance and Santa Monica.

"There are some, but we don't regard them as significant," a company spokesman said. "We cannot confirm any numbers."

Leaders of the International Association of Machinists said they also do not know the exact number.

Unofficial reports place the number of layoffs at the Huntington Beach plant at anywhere from 200 to 2,000. All are unfilled.

Company officials said there are continuous lay-offs at the Huntington Beach plant, where the staff has dropped from 27,000 in 1969 to 7,000 today.

"Not all of the lay-offs are related to the strike," they said.

Rancid Candy Sparks Recall

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration has announced the recall of 8,600 Peter Paul "Mounds" and "Almond Joy" candy bars which it believes are rancid but not because they are a threat to health.

The agency said Thursday the candy bars were distributed in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Ohio, Tennessee and Texas.

The recall is being conducted by Peter Paul Inc., of Frankfort, Ind. Involved were 40 cases of Almond Joy bars, with 200 bars in each case, and 25 cases of Mounds with 24 bars in each.

Fire Kills 24 Babies In Hospital

RIJEKA, Yugoslavia (AP) — A flash fire killed 24 babies and critically injured four others in the maternity wing of a Rijeka hospital early today, officials said. Most of the victims were only two to three days old, a hospital source said.

Many mothers on the same floor as the babies became hysterical because they couldn't reach them in time, a source said.

He said some oxygen probably leaked from a tank attached to the incubators and fed the flames, but that several persons also were responsible.

Rijeka is about 35 miles southeast of Trieste.

An official announcement blamed the blaze in an infants' room on "faulty electrical installations." A spokesman for Dr. Zdravko Kucic Hospital said 23 of the infants perished when the fire burned up oxygen or choked it off to incubators containing newborn babies.

Weeping parents and relatives besieged the hospital seeking information but were held back by officials who were ordered to give out no information except for the brief official announcement. The statement said the babies' identification was still being established.

Flags were lowered to half staff in this Adriatic port and industrial city and the City Council proclaimed a day of mourning.

An announcement read by Rijeka District Court Judge Vladimir Pavic said the blaze broke out between 2 and 3 a.m., killing 23 of the 28 babies in the room.

Kennedy Slaying Panel May Eye CIA Charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Intelligence Committee may investigate allegations of CIA involvement in the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, an aide to Chairman Frank Church (D-Idaho), reports.

"That is among many things they may be investigating," said the aide, Bill Hall. "At this point, they're open to anything. They're kind of examining the waterfront."

Hall pointed out Thursday night that one of the committee's mandates is to "exonerate the agency of unjust allegations."

The committee was set up in the wake of allegations that the CIA conducted illegal domestic surveillance operations. Later, there were reports the CIA may have been involved in the assassinations of some foreign leaders.

So far, Hall said, only a "very preliminary" staff inquiry into the allegations of CIA involvement in President Kennedy's assassination is planned.

"There has been a lot of attention in the press across the country about these allegations," Hall said. "The old reaction to the Warren Commission is still hanging on."

The commission, which investigated the assassination, said that Lee Harvey Oswald, acting alone, was Kennedy's assassin.

But recent allegations and disclosures concerning the CIA's domestic activities have prompted a resurgence of charges that Kennedy was the victim of a conspiracy which in some way involved the CIA.

A group headed by comedian Dick Gregory asserted that E. Howard Hunt Jr. was picked up by the Dallas police near the scene of the 1963 assassination shortly after the shooting.

Hunt, a former CIA agent and onetime member of the White House Plumbers unit, was convicted in the Watergate break-in that ultimately led to former President Nixon's resignation.

On Wednesday and Thursday, the Rockefeller Commission appointed by President Ford to investigate allegations against the CIA questioned Gregory and his associates on evidence purporting to link the CIA with Kennedy's assassination.

William Miller, staff director of the Senate committee, said it discussed assassinations "in general terms" and made no decision on whether to investigate the Kennedy killing.

But, he added, "whatever falls under the mandate of the committee will be investigated."

A company spokesman also said there would be very few layoffs in Torrance and Santa Monica.

"Most of the workers are in the IAM, and are on strike," officials said.

Meanwhile, Leonard Loomis, business representative for the IAM Lodge 720, said union members picketed Thursday at the National Labor Relations Board headquarters in Los Angeles, demanding a quick ruling on their unfair labor practices charges against the company.

The union has asked the NLRB to force the company to pay holiday wages withheld during Thanksgiving and Christmas holiday shutdowns — about $385 per union member.

Loomis also said striking machinists will receive $40-a-week strike benefit checks for at least one more week. Then union strike funds will be depleted, but he said the union hopes to receive contributions from other lodges to continue the checks.

The company has said it plans no new pay offer to the IAM. The union Sunday turned down a new three-year contract with three percent pay boosts each year plus a 2.5 percent cost-of-living hike the first year.

Loomis said today he still is awaiting word from federal mediators about reopening contract talks, with the 7,000 IAM members in Southern California.

Another 12,000 IAM members, covered under a separate contract in St. Louis, were meeting with mediators today but no progress has been announced.

Laguna Beach Police Hold El Toro Man

Laguna Beach police today are holding a 21-year-old El Toro man on armed robbery, burglary and concealed weapon charges while four other departments indicate they want to question the suspects.

Officers identified the suspect as Kern Wayne Dunagan, of 23132 Orange Ave., El Toro. He is held in Laguna jail in lieu of $50,000 bail.

Dunagan, police said, will also be questioned by officers from Newport Beach, Costa Mesa and the Orange County Sheriff's Office in connection with cases within those jurisdictions.

Dunagan was arrested in Laguna Beach at 12:30 p.m. Thursday in the 1200 block of South Coast Highway after a shopkeeper became suspicious of his wandering in and out of several stores.

Laguna officers allege the suspect was carrying a concealed .22 caliber automatic pistol at the time of his arrest.

Dunagan, police said, told them he had been living in the area for four months and that his wife and child are living in Alaska.

'We Were So Cocky'

Dec. 7 Survivor Reminisces

By JAN WORTH
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Just before the raid on Pearl Harbor in 1941, the young American servicemen stationed at the Hawaii post had little idea war would reach them.

"We were cocky," recalls Larry Farquhar, one of the survivors of the U.S.S. Arizona which was severely bombed during the raid.

"We thought we could beat the Japanese in the morning watch," Farquhar said. "We figured one day we'd steam out into the ocean somewhere, fight it out, and steam back into port."

"It didn't quite work out that way."

Farquhar, now manager of the El Toro branch of Wells Fargo Bank, has been recalling that crucial December day in talks to Saddleback Valley luncheon groups.

Farquhar was a second class petty officer in the fire control division at the time of the raid, meaning, "my main concern was when was payday and what time does liberty start."

The battle group including the giant U.S.S. Arizona had been in port two weeks prior to the raid and had been scheduled to go to sea Dec. 5, he recalled.

For some reason, the battle group did not go out, meaning that the entire battle force was anchored that Sunday.

When the general alarm sounded, Farquhar was on his way to go swimming in his skivvies.

"One of the problems behind the disaster Dec. 7 was that the general alarm was used for everything," Farquhar said. "It got so commonplace that even though the alarm meant go to your battle stations, nobody was in any rush to get there."

to his battle station.

"The first thing I saw was a plane flashing over and then a tremendous explosion. I found out later it was a bomb hitting the U.S.S. West Virginia."

Then he heard a sound "like if you were standing right behind a passing passenger train." It was the sound of strafing—and Farquhar gradually realized it was no drill.

"There was total confusion," he recalled. "There was never in the whole time any communication from the ship's headquarters about what was going on."

Farquhar made it to his battle station, while watching the sky "turning black with bursts."

He and three buddies held out on the battle station for several minutes, firing into the air, but there was so much going on they had no idea if they were hitting anything.

Finally, they decided to try to get off the ship, which by then time had been hit on the fore part and was aflame.

"Since we were in an enclosed mount, we didn't get burned," Farquhar recalls. But in the wild rush to get off the flaming ship, he was burned on 65 percent of his body.

"The first burns I got were on my hands," he said. "We were trying to get down ladders with brass rungs and they were so hot I burned my hands."

As he got to one of the lower decks, a bomb hit with such force that it tore off his shirt and socks and split his pants. Although he didn't realize it at the time, that was the moment he received his worst burns.

At that point, he became separated from his three friends, whom he never saw again. He ran into another friend, who was waiting for a chance to get off the boat but couldn't swim.

"I jumped into the water to swim around to the Captain's life boat," Farquhar recalls. "I freed it, took my friend, and headed for shore."

Doctors later told Farquhar that his panicked jump into the salt water was lucky: it acted as a disinfectant for his burns.

At the dispensary, the scene was one of complete chaos.

"All the fellows I saw who got off my ship walked into the dispensary," he said. "But once some of them laid down, they never got up."

One man who walked in was totally charred, with strips of burned flesh hanging from him. "He was a friend," Farquhar said. "But I never would have known him. He died the next day."

cording to Blackburn.

"I see a lifeguard boat operating in the bay but it goes completely out of sight in the troughs of the swells," said Blackburn.

Harbormaster Harvey said the storm struck without warning. "We didn't even have a chance to hoist small craft warnings."

Harvey said persons still on their boats were unable to get off and that those ashore were unable to get to their boats.

"There have been no injuries up to now," Harvey added.

Northeast winds are the most hazardous to Avalon. After the 1966 disaster a breakwater was built partially across the mouth of the harbor, but heavy seas often break over the stone jetty.

"We're nervous as hell," said Harvey. "All we can do at this point is trust to luck that the wind and seas subside."

Westerner's Fast Sinking Not Explained

By HILARY KAYE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Navigational equipment, fishing poles and other gear from the sunken Westerner were brought to the surface outside of Newport Harbor Thursday by divers but the quick sinking of the fishing boat on Wednesday still remains a mystery.

All 33 persons aboard were dumped into the water when the boat sank but all were rescued within minutes by the Orange County Harbor Patrol.

Owner and skipper of the 65-foot boat, Doug Ferrel, said today he doesn't know yet whether he will salvage the $35,000 boat. He added that he doesn't believe it is worth the effort.

The diver from the insurance company and a private diver hired by Ferrel spent several hours in the water Thursday afternoon at the site of the sinking. The Westerner is lying on her port side in water 70 feet deep, about 100 yards off Newport Harbor's east jetty.

U.S. Coast Guard officials are still investigating the mishap but as yet have reached no conclusions.

Utility Firm Acts To Head Off Audit

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — San Diego Gas and Electric Co. has asked for a superior court injunction to halt an audit of the firm's books by the state auditor general.

The inquiry was ordered last week by Assemblyman Bob Wilson (D-La Mesa), chairman of the legislature's joint audit committee. Wilson said Thursday that public inspection of the utility's records was needed because it had received or requested rate increases totaling 60 percent in the past 20 months.

The company said it questions whether the auditor general has jurisdictional authority to conduct such an audit of private business. At a news conference Wednesday, SDG&E president Walter Zittlau called the proposed probe a "witch hunt" and said his firm would not voluntarily cooperate.

Wilson said he had been told the company withdrew its previously announced cooperation after being pressured by other state utilities fearing similar inquiries.

The utility said it agreed to cooperate with the rate investigation after a representative of the auditor general said the information was needed to verify findings of the public utilities commission, which regulates SDGE.

In its announcement, the company said it would cooperate with "legally constituted government bodies such as the PUC" but would fight "any attempted incursion into its business by government bodies that do not have such jurisdiction."

In another announcement, the utility said it would seek PUC approval Friday of the sale of its 21-story headquarters building for $20 million to New England Mutual Life Insurance Co. The company will lease back the property for 30 years and use sale proceeds to retire outstanding short term debt.

Winds Hurl Boats on Rocks in Avalon

By ALMON LOCKABEY
Daily Pilot Boating Editor

Blustery northeast winds and heavy seas blasting into the mouth of Avalon Harbor today threatened to make a disaster area out of the waterfront at the popular Catalina Island resort.

Harbormaster Bill Harvey said seven boats were on the rocks this morning and that two of them were breaking up in 5 to 10 foot seas inside the breakwater.

"The northeaster has been blowing 20 knots steady with gusts up to 30 since 11 p.m. last night," said Harvey. "At the moment we have every available man and boat working to get people off their moored vessels."

Harvey said it was the worst wind storm to hit Avalon since the disastrous blow of 1966 when 18 boats were lost or severely damaged.

There are nearly 100 boats still on moorings and unable to power out to open sea, Harvey said. Seas outside the Avalon breakwater were estimated at 10-12 feet and breaking.

Boats which parted their moorings and were hurled on the beach included 25 to 30 foot power boats, a 35 foot and a 40-foot sailboat. Harbor boats were able to pull four of the smaller boats off the rocks and re-moor them. One of the deep-keel sailboats was breaking up and the other was in danger, according to Harvey.

"It's a near disaster," said Casper "Cap" Blackburn of Newport Beach who was viewing the debris strewn harbor as he talked from a phone booth at the water's edge.

"There are life jackets and small craft adrift all over the harbor. The boats still on moorings are pitch-poling as the heavy seas roll in."

"A Mariner-40 sailboat has just hit the rocks as I'm talking to you," exclaimed Blackburn.

Blackburn said many of those still secure had their engines running in preparation for attempting an exit to open sea should the moorings let go.

Blackburn's own bright red Monterey had to be moved to a more secure mooring behind the breakwater and was still holding fast, he said. "But I'm glad I'm not aboard."

Seas were so heavy inside the harbor that the harbor patrol boats were unable to operate, according to Blackburn.

Westerner Passed 'Seaworthy' Check

By HILARY KAYE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The 65-foot Westerner that went down off Newport Harbor Wednesday successfully passed its annual Coast Guard topside inspection just two months ago, according to Coast Guard Lt. Jim Clark.

On January 29, the boat was found to be "completely seaworthy," Clark said. Only minor troubles unrelated to its seaworthiness, such as replacing running lights, were noted by the inspectors, he said.

The Westerner sank Wednesday afternoon as it was returning from a half-day fishing trip. All 33 on board were dunked into the water about 100 yards off the east jetty in Corona del Mar, but were rescued within minutes by the Harbor Patrol.

Clark said the Coast Guard is still investigating the sinking and that it probably will take between two weeks and a month before the findings are revealed.

He said, however, that he doubts the sinking was caused by anything that existed in the boat prior to the mishap.

"It probably will be determined that the sinking occurred due to something that happened when the boat sank — like running into something under water," Clark said.

"There just wasn't anything that showed up in the last inspection that indicated it wasn't seaworthy," he said.

Doug Ferrel, owner and skipper of the boat, said today he doesn't know whether he will salvage the Westerner, now lying on its port side in 70 feet of water.

Deputies Kill Man In Viejo

A knife-wielding Mission Viejo man was shot and killed Thursday by sheriff's deputies in a Dana Point apartment. They said he tried to slash his way past them to stab his estranged wife and her boyfriend.

A sheriff's spokesman said today Lawrence Stech, 28, whose last known address was 25711 Santo Drive in Mission Viejo, died at San Clemente General Hospital an hour after the 6 p.m. incident.

Officers said it was the second time in three weeks deputies had been called to the second floor apartment at 34042 Alcazar Street, responding to complaints about loud arguments between Stech and his 19-year-old wife, Terri.

Investigators were told Stech's wife moved into the apartment of Michael W. Thompson after she and Stech separated. The first confrontation on March 8 was broken up by officers without incident.

When deputies arrived at the apartment Thursday, they found Stech threatening his wife and her boyfriend with a large kitchen knife and screaming at them, the sheriff's spokesman said.

"The deputies ordered him several times to drop the knife and surrender, but he refused," the spokesman said. "They tried to reason with him, but it didn't work."

Two of the deputies grappled with Stech, who was waving the knife wildly in the air around them. A third deputy tried to shield Mrs. Stech and her boyfriend from the battle, the spokesman added.

"He fought them off and they joined the third deputy to form a shield in front of the woman and her boyfriend," the spokesman said. "Stech backed them onto a second-story landing and still wouldn't respond to repeated warnings to surrender."

When Stech was only a few feet from the human screen, deputies Rex Hatch and Charles Mullen each fired a single shot, striking Stech in the chest.

Injunction Mulled By Orange County

It will now be up to Orange County to take up where two other counties have failed and seek a preliminary superior court injunction against enforcement of the controversial NOx smog control device law.

Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Harry Hupp today denied that county's bid for an injunction that would prevent the California Highway Patrol from enforcing the law.

The law requires owners of 1966-70 automobiles to install special devices on the car engines to cut down on toxic oxides of nitrogen that otherwise escape into the air.

Orange County Counsel Adrian Kuyper this week was ordered by the county Board of Supervisors to go to court next week should the Los Angeles effort fail.

Los Angeles Deputy County Counsel, Jerry Crump, said his case declared the law to be unconstitutional.

Crump said it is his contention that the installation time table established by the law on the basis of car license numbers is unfair to owners of cars whose numbers come up first.

"The judge, obviously, didn't agree, and since he had seen our case before he said nothing new had been presented to change his mind," Crump said.

Hupp had earlier denied Los Angeles County's first attempt at a preliminary injunction and two weeks ago denied a bid for a temporary restraining order.

A judge in Santa Barbara County earlier this week denied a similar injunction request by that county, making Orange County the third to try to thwart enforcement of the law.

Rites Slated Saturday for Clarence Hall

Funeral services for former Ocean View School District superintendent Clarence Hall are scheduled for 2 p.m., Saturday, at Peek Family Colonial Funeral Home in Westminster.

Private burial services will be held Wednesday in Lodi.

Dr. Hall, 49, died Wednesday night at Anaheim Memorial Hospital.

Those who wish, have been asked by the family to make contributions to the American Cancer Society in Dr. Hall's name.

He served in Huntington Beach four years, 1968-1972, as chief of the Ocean View system.

In May, 1972, Dr. Wilson Riles, state superintendent of public instruction, named Dr. Hall one of his top assistants as an associate state superintendent.

"More words cannot express my regret over the passing of Dr. Clarence Hall," Riles said Thursday afternoon. "California education

Hinshaw In Town — Quietly

Representative Andrew Hinshaw (R-Newport Beach), is in town, but doesn't plan to make any public appearances or meet with the press, an aide said today.

Hinshaw left Washington for Southern California late Thursday afternoon, according to a member of his staff in the nation's capital.

However, aides in his offices in Washington and Santa Ana refused to say where the Newport Beach congressman can be contacted while in Southern California, or how long he would stay.

Hinshaw will continue to follow legal advice and not speak about the scandal that has rocked the county assessor's office he once headed, according to Chip Cleary, his chief aide in Santa Ana.

But, Cleary added, the congressman will be meeting with some constituents.

It is believed those constituents are his chief campaign backers.

During earlier attempts to contact Hinshaw as the assessor's office scandal unfolded, Cleary told a reporter that Hinshaw had met with those backers shortly after nine men were indicted for allegedly campaigning on his behalf at county taxpayer expense.

At the time, Cleary said Hinshaw had satisfactorily answered questions asked about the scandal and there were no defections from the ranks of his supporters.

Last Friday night Orange County District Attorney investigators armed with a search warrant seized evidence in Hinshaw's Alexandria, Va., apartment.

'We Were So Cocky'

Dec. 7 Survivor Reminisces

By JAN WORTH
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Just before the raid on Pearl Harbor in 1941, the young American servicemen stationed at the Hawaii post had little idea war would reach them.

"We were cocky," recalls Larry Farquhar, one of the survivors of the U.S.S. Arizona which was severely bombed during the raid.

"We thought we could beat the Japanese in the morning watch," Farquhar said. "We figured one day we'd steam out into the ocean somewhere, fight it out, and steam back into port."

"It didn't quite work out that way."

Farquhar, now manager of the El Toro branch of Wells Fargo Bank, has been recalling that crucial December day in talks to Saddleback Valley luncheon groups.

Farquhar was a second class petty officer in the fire control division at the time of the raid, meaning, "my main concern was when was payday and what time does liberty start."

The battle group including the giant U.S.S. Arizona had been in port two weeks prior to the raid and had been scheduled to go to sea Dec. 5, he recalled.

For some reason, the battle group did not go out, meaning that the entire battle force was anchored that Sunday.

When the general alarm sounded, Farquhar was on his way to go swimming in his skivvies.

"One of the problems behind the disaster Dec. 7 was that the general alarm was used for everything," Farquhar said. "It got so commonplace that even though the alarm meant go to your battle stations, nobody was in any rush to get there."

He got dressed and proceeded to his battle station.

"The first thing I saw was a plane flashing over and then a tremendous explosion. I found out later it was a bomb hitting the U.S.S. West Virginia."

Then he heard a sound "like if you were standing right behind a passing passenger train." It was the sound of strafing—and Farquhar gradually realized it was no drill.

"There was total confusion," he recalled. "There was never in the whole time any communication from the ship's headquarters about what was going on."

Farquhar made it to his battle station, while watching the sky "turning black with bursts."

He and three buddies held out on the battle station for several minutes, firing into the air, but there was so much going on they had no idea if they were hitting anything.

Finally, they decided to try to get off the ship, which by then time had been hit on the fore part and was aflame.

"Since we were in an enclosed room, we didn't get burned," Farquhar recalls. But in the wild rush to get off the flaming ship, he was burned on 65 percent of his body.

"The first burns I got were on my hands," he said. "We were trying to get down ladders with brass rungs and they were so hot I burned my hands."

As he got to one of the lower decks, a bomb hit with such force that it tore off his shirt and socks and split his pants. Although he didn't realize it at the time, that was the moment he received his worst burns.

At that point, he became separated from his three friends, whom he never saw again. He ran into another friend, who was waiting for a chance to get off the boat but couldn't swim.

"I jumped into the water to swim around to the Captain's life boat," Farquhar recalls. "I freed it, took my friend, and headed for shore."

Doctors later told Farquhar

that his panicked jump into the salt water was lucky; it acted as a disinfectant for his burns.

At the dispensary, the scene was one of complete chaos.

"All the fellows I saw who got off my ship walked into the dispensary," he said. "But once some of them laid down, they never got up."

One man who walked in was totally charred, with strips of burned flesh hanging from him.

"He was a friend," Farquhar said. "But I never would have known him. He died the next day."

In all, only 100 of the crew of 1,400 on the U.S.S. Arizona survived.

"Out of my division, there were only seven survivors, and three were wounded. We were lucky."

SINKING . . .

"I can't do anything until the insurance company makes its decision," he said. Ferrel added that he doesn't believe it is worth it to try to raise the $35,000 boat, built in 1948.

Thursday, a private diver hired by Ferrel and an insurance company diver spent several hours underwater, salvaging navigational equipment, fishing poles and other gear.

Part of the boat's railing and its 10 foot by 12 foot engine hatch floated to the surface Thursday morning, according to Ferrel.

The divers told the skipper that the boat appears to be "shifting around down there" and that the hull may be breaking up.

"I really don't know what happened out there," Ferrel said of the sinking. "It happened so fast, within three or four minutes, that it just shocked me."

"I've been in this business 18 years and never experienced anything like this. I never even made a claim to an insurance company before," he said.

The last drydock inspection of the Westerner, required by the Coast Guard every 18 months, occurred on February 5, 1974. The Westerner was scheduled for another drydock inspection in August.

At its last inspection in 1974, a small amount of dry rot was discovered in one of the transom frames, near the keel, Clark said.

The problem was fixed, however, and did not contribute to the boat's demise, he said. Clark also mentioned that in 1966, part of the boat's bottom had to be replaced due to dry rot and worms.

Bomb Ring Cited

CRESTWOOD, Ill. (AP) — Authorities have broken up a grade school bomb ring in which boys aged 12 to 14 made crude explosive pipe bombs and sold them to classmates for 50 cents each.

Nine youngsters were implicated, although only two apparently made the devices and peddled them to fellow pupils at Kolmar Elementary School in this south of Chicago suburb.

Fire Kills 24 Babies In Hospital

RIJEKA, Yugoslavia (AP) — A flash fire killed 24 babies and critically injured four others in the maternity wing of a Rijeka hospital early today, officials said. Most of the victims were only two to three days old, a hospital source said.

Many mothers on the same floor as the babies became hysterical because they couldn't reach them in time, a source said.

He said some oxygen probably leaked from a tank attached to the incubators and fed the flames, but that several persons also were responsible.

Rijeka is about 35 miles southeast of Trieste.

An official announcement blamed the blaze in an infants' room on "faulty electrical installations." A spokesman for Dr. Zdravko Kucic Hospital said 23 of the infants perished when the fire burned up oxygen or choked it off to incubators containing newborn babies.

Weeping parents and relatives besieged the hospital seeking information but were held back by officials who were ordered to give out no information except for the brief official announcement. The statement said the babies' identification was still being established.

Flags were lowered to half staff in this Adriatic port and industrial city and the City Council proclaimed a day of mourning.

An announcement read by Rijeka District Court Judge Vladimir Pavic said the blaze broke out between 2 and 3 a.m., killing 23 of the 28 babies in the room.

He said five injured babies were taken to a children's hospital in Rijeka and one of them died later in the morning. He did not specify the exact cause of death.

Smoke Clinic Set Monday In Huntington

A new four-week "smoker's clinic" will begin Monday through the adult school of the Huntington Beach Union High School District.

Classes will meet from 7 to 9 p.m. Monday and Thursday evenings at Marina High School, 15871 Springdale St., Huntington Beach.

The class emphasizes group discussion, as well as an analysis of why class members smoke. The tuition fee is $6, and enrollment can be completed at class.

Another clinic will begin April 28. Questions may be directed to the adult school at 847-8503.

Northeast winds are the most hazardous to Avalon. After the 1966 disaster a breakwater was built partially across the mouth of the harbor, but heavy seas often break over the stone jetty.

'No-frill' Discount Air Fare Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board today approved a "no-frill" fare discount that would let airline passengers on some routes fly for less than it would cost to take a train or bus.

The regulatory agency approved a proposal by National Air Lines to start the bargain fares April 14 on flights using the airline's jumbo jets.

National proposed offering the low-cost fares on its East Coast runs and on flights between Florida and New Orleans, Houston, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Las Vegas, Nev.

The fares would be 35 percent below the cost of a regular day coach ticket. Passengers using the discounts would be segregated in the rear of National's jumbo jets and would not be served food or any alcoholic beverages. They could purchase coffee or soft drinks for 25 cents and could bring their own food for longer flights.

In addition, passengers using the third-class fare would have to purchase tickets seven days in advance and have to pay a service charge if they missed their flight or cancelled their ticket.

The discounts would be offered only on Monday through Thursday flights. Children aged 2 to 12 could fly for two-thirds the ticket prices.

A third-class no-frill ticket between Miami and Los Angeles would cost $112. The current lowest air fare now is $183. Bus fare is $113.90 and train fare is $178.

The no-frill flight authorization applies only to National. However other carriers have requested similar fares and the board said it would rule on their applications soon.

Westerner Passed Seaworthy Check

By HILARY KAYE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The 65-foot Westerner that went down off Newport Harbor Wednesday successfully passed its annual Coast Guard topside inspection just two months ago, according to Coast Guard Lt. Jim Clark.

On January 29, the boat was found to be "completely seaworthy," Clark said. Only minor troubles-unrelated to its seaworthiness, such as replacing running lights, were noted by the inspectors, he said.

The Westerner sank Wednesday afternoon as it was returning from a half-day fishing trip. All 33 on board were dunked into the water about 100 yards off the east jetty in Corona del Mar, but were rescued within minutes by the Harbor Patrol.

Clark said the Coast Guard is still investigating the sinking and that it probably will take between two weeks and a month before the findings are revealed.

He said, however, that he doubts the sinking was caused by anything that existed in the boat prior to the mishap.

"It probably will be determined that the sinking occurred due to something that happened when the boat sank—like running into something under water," Clark said.

"There just wasn't anything that showed up in the last inspection that indicated it wasn't seaworthy," he said.

Doug Ferrel, owner and skipper of the boat, said today he doesn't know whether he will salvage the Westerner, now lying on its port side in 70 feet of water.

"I can't do anything until the insurance company makes its decision," he said. Ferrel added that he doesn't believe it is worth it to try to raise the $35,000 boat, built in 1948.

Thursday, a private diver hired by Ferrel and an insurance company diver spent several hours underwater, salvaging navigational equipment, fishing poles and other gear.

Boats on Rocks

Wind Disaster at Avalon

By ALMON LOCKABEY
Daily Pilot Boating Editor

Blustery northeast winds and heavy seas blasting into the mouth of Avalon Harbor today threatened to make a disaster area out of the waterfront at the popular Catalina Island resort.

Harbormaster Bill Harvey said seven boats were on the rocks this morning and that two of them were breaking up in 5 to 10 foot seas inside the breakwater.

"The northeaster has been blowing 20 knots steady with gusts up to 30 since 11 p.m. last night," said Harvey. "At the moment we have every available man and boat working to get people off their moored vessels."

Harvey said it was the worst wind storm to hit Avalon since the disastrous blow of 1966 when 18 boats were lost or severely damaged.

There are nearly 100 boats still on moorings and unable to power out to open sea, Harvey said. Seas outside the Avalon breakwater were estimated at 10-12 feet and breaking.

Boats which parted their moorings and were hurled on the beach included 25 to 30 foot power boats, a 35 foot and a 40-foot sailboat. Harbor boats were able to pull four of the smaller boats off the rocks and re-moor them. One of the deep-keel sailboats was breaking up and the other was in danger, according to Harvey.

"It's a near disaster," said Casper "Cap" Blackburn of Newport Beach who was viewing the debris strewn harbor as he talked from a phone booth at the water's edge.

"There are life jackets and small craft adrift all over the harbor. The boats still on moorings are pitch-poling as the heavy seas roll in."

"A Mariner-40 sailboat has just hit the rocks as I'm talking to you," exclaimed Blackburn.

Blackburn said many of those still secure had their engines running in preparation for attempting an exit to open sea should the moorings let go.

Blackburn's own bright red Monterey had to be moved to a more secure mooring behind the breakwater and was still holding fast, he said. "But I'm glad I'm not aboard."

Seas were so heavy inside the harbor that the harbor patrol boats were unable to operate, according to Blackburn.

"I see a lifeguard boat operating in the bay but it goes completely out of sight in the troughs of the swells," said Blackburn.

Harbormaster Harvey said the storm struck without warning. "We didn't even have a chance to hoist small craft warnings."

NOx Devices

Injunction Mulled By Orange County

It will now be up to Orange County to take up where two other counties have failed and seek a preliminary Superior Court injunction against enforcement of the controversial NOx smog control device law.

Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Harry Hupp today denied that county's bid for an injunction that would prevent the California Highway Patrol from enforcing the law.

The law requires owners of 1966-70 automobiles to install special devices on the car engines to cut down on toxic oxides of nitrogen that otherwise escape into the air.

Orange County Counsel Adrian Kuyper this week was ordered by the county Board of Supervisors to go to court next week should the Los Angeles effort fail.

Los Angeles Deputy County Counsel, Jerry Crump, said his case declared the law to be unconstitutional.

Crump said it is his contention that the installation time table established by the law on the basis of car license numbers is unfair to owners of cars whose numbers come up first.

"The judge, obviously, didn't agree, and since he had seen our case before he said nothing new had been presented to change his mind," Crump said.

Hupp had earlier denied Los Angeles County's first attempt at a preliminary injunction and two weeks ago denied a bid for a temporary restraining order.

A judge in Santa Barbara County earlier this week denied a similar injunction request by that county, making Orange County the third to try to thwart enforcement of the law.

By United Press International

Pope Paul VI led the world's 600 million Roman Catholics today in solemn Good Friday observances marking Christ's crucifixion. In Jerusalem, holy city of the world's three major faiths, two bombs apparently set by Arab guerrillas exploded, injuring 13 persons.

Police and hospital officials in Jerusalem, sacred to Christians, Jews and Moslems, said all the injured were aboard a bus on which a bomb exploded. Three were hospitalized, the others were released after treatment for minor injuries.

The second bomb caused no in-

The explosions occurred at the start of processions by thousands of Christian pilgrims from many denominations who crowded the narrow, cobbled streets of the ancient walled city for the walk along the Via Dolorosa — traditional path of Christ's march to his crucifixion.

The 77-year-old pontiff was scheduled to attend an evening liturgical service in St. Peter's Basilica and then carry a tall cross in a procession around Rome's Colosseum to re-enact the stages of Jesus' crucifixion.

Thursday, aides supported the Pope, who suffers from arthritis, as he descended from the altar in St. Peter's Basilica to wash and kiss the feet of 12 boys in re-enactment of Christ's gesture to the Apostles at the Last Supper.

The Vatican switched the Holy Thursday Mass from the basilica of St. John the Lateran to St. Peter's so more pilgrims could see it, but the world's largest church — which can hold 30,000 people — was only half full.

Arizona Survivor Tells Misconceptions

By JAN WORTH

Just before the raid on Pearl Harbor in 1941, the young American servicemen stationed at the Hawaii post had little idea war would reach them.

"We were cocky," recalls Larry Farquhar, one of the survivors of the U.S.S. Arizona which was severely bombed during the raid.

"We thought we could beat the Japanese in the morning watch," Farquhar said. "We figured one day we'd steam out into the ocean somewhere, fight it out, and steam back into port."

"It didn't quite work out that way."

Farquhar, now manager of the El Toro branch of Wells Fargo Bank, has been recalling that crucial December day in talks to Saddleback Valley luncheon groups.

Farquhar was a second class petty officer in the fire control division at the time of the raid, meaning, "my main concern was when was payday and what time does liberty start."

The battle group including the giant U.S.S. Arizona had been in port two weeks prior to the raid and had been scheduled to go to sea Dec. 5, he recalled.

For some reason, the battle group did not go out, meaning that the entire battle force was anchored that Sunday.

When the general alarm sounded, Farquhar was on his way to go swimming in his skivvies.

"One of the problems behind the disaster Dec. 7 was that the general alarm was used for everything," Farquhar said. "It got so commonplace that even though the alarm meant go to your battle stations, nobody was in any rush to get there."

He got dressed and proceeded to his battle station.

"The first thing I saw was a plane flashing over and then a tremendous explosion. I found out later it was a bomb hitting the U.S.S. West Virginia."

Then he heard a sound "like if you were standing right behind a passing passenger train." It was the sound of strafing—and Farquhar gradually realized it was no drill.

"There was total confusion," he recalled. "There was never in the whole time any communication from the ship's headquarters about what was going on."

Farquhar made it to his battle station, while watching the sky "turning black with bursts."

He and three buddies held out on the battle station for several minutes, firing into the air, but there was so much going on they had no idea if they were hitting anything.

Finally, they decided to try to get off the ship, which by then time had been hit on the fore part and was aflame.

"Since we were in an enclosed mount, we didn't get burned," Farquhar recalls. But in the wild rush to get off the flaming ship, he was burned on 65 percent of his body.

"The first burns I got were on my hands," he said. "We were trying to get down ladders with brass rungs and they were so hot I burned my hands."

As he got to one of the lower decks, a bomb hit with such force that it tore off his shirt and socks and split his pants. Although he didn't realize it at the time, that was the moment he received his worst burns.

At that point, he became separated from his three friends, whom he never saw again. He ran into another friend, who was waiting for a chance to get off the boat but couldn't swim.

"I jumped into the water to swim around to the Captain's life boat," Farquhar recalls. "I freed it, took my friend, and headed for shore."

Doctors later told Farquhar that his panicked jump into the salt water was lucky: it acted as a disinfectant for his burns.

At the dispensary, the scene was one of complete chaos.

"All the fellows I saw who got off my ship walked into the dispensary," he said. "But once some of them laid down, they never got up."

One man who walked in was totally charred, with strips of burned flesh hanging from him. "He was a friend," Farquhar said. "But I never would have known him. He died the next day."

In all, only 100 of the crew of 1,400 on the U.S.S. Arizona survived.

"Out of my division, there were only seven survivors, and three were wounded. We were lucky."

within three or four minutes, that it just shocked me."

"I've been in this business 18 years and never experienced anything like this. I never even made a claim to an insurance company before," he said.

The last drydock inspection of the Westerner, required by the Coast Guard every 18 months, occurred on February 5, 1974. The Westerner was scheduled for another drydock inspection in August.

At its last inspection in 1974, a small amount of dry rot was discovered in one of the transom frames, near the keel, Clark said.

The problem was fixed, however, and did not contribute to the boat's demise, he said. Clark also mentioned that in 1966, part of the boat's bottom had to be replaced due to dry rot and worms.

the staff has dropped from 27,000 in 1969 to 7,000 today.

"Not all of the lay-offs are related to the strike," they said.

A company spokesman also said there would be very few lay-offs in Torrance and Santa Monica.

"Most of the workers are in the IAM, and are on strike," officials said.

Meanwhile, Leonard Loomis, business representative for the IAM Lodge 720, said union members picketed Thursday at the National Labor Relations Board headquarters in Los Angeles, demanding a quick ruling on their unfair labor practices charges against the company.

The union has asked the NLRB to force the company to pay holiday wages withheld during Thanksgiving and Christmas holiday shutdowns—about $385 per union member.

Loomis also said striking machinists will receive $40-a-week strike benefit checks for at least one more week. Then union strike funds will be depleted, but he said the union hopes to receive contributions from other lodges to continue the checks.

The company has said it plans no new pay offer to the IAM. The union Sunday turned down a new three-year contract with three percent pay boosts each year plus a 2.5 percent cost-of-living hike the first year.

Loomis said today he still is awaiting word from federal mediators about reopening contract talks, with the 7,000 IAM members in Southern California.

Viejo Husband Shot By County Officers

A knife-wielding Mission Viejo man was shot and killed Thursday by sheriff's deputies in a Dana Point apartment. They said he tried to slash his way past them to stab his estranged wife and her boyfriend.

A sheriff's spokesman said today Lawrence Stech, 28, whose last known address was 25711 Santo Drive in Mission Viejo, died at San Clemente General Hospital an hour after the 6 p.m. incident.

Officers said it was the second time in three weeks deputies had been called to the second floor apartment at 34042 Alcazar Street, responding to complaints about loud arguments between Stech and his 19-year-old wife, Terri.

Investigators were told Stech's wife moved into the apartment of Michael W. Thompson after she and Stech separated. The first confrontation on March 8 was broken up by officers without incident.

When deputies arrived at the apartment Thursday, they found Stech threatening his wife and her boyfriend with a large knife and screaming at them, the sheriff's spokesman said.

"The deputies ordered him several times to drop the knife and surrender, but he refused," the spokesman said. "They tried to reason with him, but it didn't work."

Two of the deputies grappled with Stech, who was waving the knife wildly in the air around them. A third deputy tried to shield Mrs. Stech and her boyfriend from the battle, the spokesman added.

"He fought them off and they joined the third deputy to form a shield in front of the woman and her boyfriend," the spokesman said. "Stech backed them onto a second-story landing and still wouldn't respond to repeated warnings to surrender."

When Stech was only a few feet from the human screen, deputies Rex Hatch and Charles Mullen each fired a single shot, striking Stech in the chest.

Group Giving 200 Baskets

Citizens band radio operators in Orange County are planning to give 200 Easter baskets to children in four wards at Fairview State Hospital in Costa Mesa Sunday.

Howard Schultz, a member of the Orange County Citizens Band Club, said that both members and non-club members made donations. Schultz said that two tricycles also will be presented because more money than was needed for the chocolate-egg filled baskets was raised. The presentation will be made at 8:45 a.m.

Flash Fire Kills Babies In Hospital

RIJEKA, Yugoslavia (AP) — A flash fire killed 24 babies and critically injured four others in the maternity wing of a Rijeka hospital early today, officials said. Most of the victims were only two to three days old, a hospital source said.

Many mothers on the same floor as the babies became hysterical because they couldn't reach them in time, a source said.

He said some oxygen probably leaked from a tank attached to the incubators and fed the flames, but that several persons also were responsible.

Rijeka is about 35 miles southeast of Trieste.

An official announcement blamed the blaze in an infants' room on "faulty electrical installations." A spokesman for Dr. Zdravko Kucic Hospital said 23 of the infants perished when the fire burned up oxygen or choked it off to incubators containing newborn babies.

Weeping parents and relatives besieged the hospital seeking information but were held back by officials who were ordered to give out no information except for the brief official announcement. The statement said the babies' identification was still being established.

Flags were lowered to half staff in this Adriatic port and industrial city and the City Council proclaimed a day of mourning.
