Documents Claim

Patty Shared SLA Sex Life

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Multipartner sexual relations were an integral part of the day-to-day lives of the fugitive Symbionese Liberation Army members — including Patricia Hearst, the Los Angeles Times reported today.

The Times, quoting documents found in the apartment of SLA members Bill and Emily Harris, said the sexual practices were used to preserve "feminist self-determination" by successfully smashing "the dependencies created by monogamal (sic) personal sexual relationships . . . in the cell."

The Times said the documents it obtained appear to include a series of answers to questions submitted to the SLA by an unnamed person, similar to the kind of queries a writer might use in the preparation of material for a book.

Other writings obtained by the Times include a handwritten discourse on the kinds of problems female SLA members faced as "feminist freedom fighters" and a typewritten message apparently written to Miss Hearst by an SLA member.

The Times said some investigators believed the Hearst message is written in the style of Bill Harris, and the question-answer series appears to have been handled by his wife, Emily.

The FBI had no immediate comment on the authenticity of the documents or their possible authorship.

The writings stressed that the multipartner relationships were not limited to heterosexual activities, the Times said.

"Our position was one of conditional practicality," one document read. "We knew from the experience what it was like to live in the cell.

"So far as sex was concerned, we had to get most of our sexual and personal needs met by comrades within the cell. Everyone realized that at this time there was no time for exclusive relationships because each of us had to help the other comrades meet their sexual needs and maintain harmony in the cell."

The writer said it was not the SLA's intent to exploit Patty Hearst sexually after she was kidnaped, but that she later was allowed to participate in the relationships.

Man Arrested In Pregnant Wife's Death

The husband of a pregnant Westminster woman who was shot in the head and died after she was kept alive for three days by hospital life support systems was arrested Thursday and charged with two counts of murder.

Gerald Allen Cody, Jr., 25, was apprehended at his parents' home in El Casco Lake near Redlands and charged with murder in the deaths of his wife and unborn child.

He was booked into Orange County Jail. Bail was set at $200,000.

Sharon Sue Cody, 22, was shot in the early hours of Aug. 26 at the couple's Westminster apartment and kept alive in Westminster Community Hospital in the hope that the 5-month-old baby was still alive.

She died three days later when her heart stopped beating. No signs of life were detected in the fetus.

Police Lt. Joe Woods said today that Cody was arrested after new evidence was received from a third person who was believed to have witnessed the shooting.

Officers declined to provide further details.

Police had originally arrested Cody on the night of the shooting. He allegedly admitted the shooting that day and said it was an accident.

Cody was charged with involuntary manslaughter at the time, but was released two days later for lack of evidence.

SMOKE-EATING FIREMEN SEEK FRESH AIR AFTER CLOSE-UP FIRE FIGHTING
Warehouse Fire Rages After Plane Crash Near Orange County Airport

Pilot Dies in OC Crash

By ALAN DIRKIN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A twin engine Beech Baron airplane crashed near Orange County Airport this morning, killing the pilot and spewing flames and debris through a huge Costa Mesa warehouse.

Identification of the pilot was not immediately available.

Two Costa Mesa firemen were injured battling the blaze. One was hospitalized.

Two warehouse workers inside the structure were thrown to the floor by the crash and explosion which followed.

They said they were able to run out through the flames and flying debris and escaped with apparently minor injuries.

One fireman, Scott Barger, was taken to Costa Mesa Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries suffered when a high-pressure hose coupling came apart and the heavy metal hit him in the face.

Authorities said Fire Capt. Barry Adams was also injured, but was treated by paramedics at the scene.

Firemen from several cities fought the blaze in the warehouse of Memorex ConData at 385 Clinton Ave., Costa Mesa, a building about 100 feet from the southwest of the airport perimeter.

Federal Aviation Administration official Russ Thayer said the pilot was executing a missed approach when he lost the plane in fog with a ceiling of 100 feet and one-quarter mile visibility.

The weather conditions were reported to the pilot by Orange County airport tower aides,

Officers Close Off Euclid

Fountain Valley police closed off a portion of fog-bound Euclid Avenue this morning after "a minimum of 30 cars" were involved in numerous separate traffic accidents.

Police Sgt. Marty Engquist said all the night shift officers were kept on duty this morning handling traffic problems on the street described as "slick as ice."

In addition, detectives were sent to the scene, and the city asked for extra help from the California Highway Patrol, Engquist said.

Police closed off the street between Edinger and Warner Avenues, and Engquist said it probably would remain closed most of the morning or until conditions improved.

He said a few persons were sent to hospitals, but all injuries were described as minor.

Engquist explained the street had recently been resurfaced and was slickened by the moisture from the fog.

He said motorists spotting an accident simply slid into it, in many cases, because of the slick roadway.

Meanwhile, Huntington Beach police reported no traffic troubles, and West Orange County beaches and waterways were experiencing no problems, officials said.

Mayor Vows To Cut Off Porn Power

MISHAWAKA, Ind. (AP) — Mishawaka Mayor Margaret Prickett is set to turn off the juice to some of the Northern Indiana city's racier establishments Saturday.

St. Joseph Circuit Court Judge John Montgomery refused Thursday to issue a restraining order preventing the mayor from shutting off electricity to the city's adult bookstores, X-rated movie houses and a massage parlor on Saturday.

Montgomery ruled the mayor didn't have the right to turn off the power, but said he couldn't do anything about it until she actually turns the switch.

An attorney for one adult bookstore said he would file a suit against the mayor if she does pull the power.

Amoco Cuts Gas Price 1c

CHICAGO (UPI) — Amoco Oil Co., the nation's fourth largest gasoline supplier, today reduced its price one cent per gallon to become the third major oil firm in four days to make the cutback.

Amoco's decision came one day after the nation's second largest supplier, Shell Oil Co., trimmed a penny from its prices. Exxon did it on Tuesday.

Here Rests Someone Else

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The bodies of two elderly women were placed in each other's coffins and one was buried under the other's tombstone as the result of an apparent mixup between two Philadelphia funeral homes.

Wednesday night, relatives of 91-year-old Marie Entriken went to view her body at Valvardi Funeral Home. They realized there had been a mistake when they saw the body of another elderly woman dressed in Miss Entriken's long, gray gown in the coffin.

Relatives of the other woman, who was not identified, did not realize there had been a mixup, even though they viewed Miss Entriken's body instead of the body of the other woman at Murphy Funeral Home the night before.

CRASH KILLS PILOT . . .

Thayer said.

The FAA official said that the pilot was on instrument landing and was executing his approach. In such circumstances there is a minimum altitude that a pilot can go down to, then he must be able to see the runway threshold.

It could not be determined whether the plane crashed through the roof of the building or through the front.

One of the warehousemen said that the plane came through the roof, but an airport official said that there were marks to indicate the plane might have skidded through the front.

The two warehousemen who escaped were taken to Costa Mesa Memorial Hospital suffering from shock and minor injuries. A Costa Mesa fireman was also slightly injured in the face by flying debris.

John Loeffert, 21, of Anaheim, said he was in the building with Carrol White, 37, of Santa Ana when the plane crashed through the roof about 20 yards from them.

"We went through the flames running like crazy," Loeffert said. "We fell down three or four times. We made it out of the door about 25 yards away.

"The pilot we didn't see in the plane. We were lying on the dirt outside the building and I saw the pilot's body out next to a truck."

Don Wilson, personnel manager for Memorex said that the two warehousemen were the only people in the building located at the end of a cul de sac in the industrial complex. Wilson could not estimate the cost of the value of the warehouse but said that the building, used strictly for storage, was filled with plastic computer compenents worth at least $250,000.

Memorex has an assembly building located nearby 1352 Reynolds.

The pilot was the only occupant of the plane.

An hour after the crash, about 8:30 a.m., fire fighters were still battling to bring the inferno under control though the blaze was contained and did not appear to be in danger of spreading to any other industrial plants in the area.

Costa Mesa fire protection analyst Russ Henderson said that the intensity of the fire was due to the highly combustible aluminized material inside the building and the fuel of the plane.

It was believed that the sprinkler system was knocked out by the crash and that there were running water mains inside.

Onlookers were turned back from the area by firemen who expected one wall of the building to collapse. The warehouse appeared to be a total loss.

Part of the plane was on the landscaping in front of the building.

The warehouseman Loeffert, who lives at 2230 Orange Ave., Anaheim, had a scraped leg, but his partner White was in shock and given oxygen by the Costa Mesa paramedics before being taken to hospital. Loeffert said he also got a bump on the head.

Skydiver Dies In 15th Jump

ELIZABETHTOWN, Pa. (UPI) — The parachute of a student skydiver apparently failed to open on her 15th jump and Barbara Schober plunged to her death in a cornfield.

State police said Thursday Miss Schober, 21, Lancaster, had been taking skydiving lessons at Elizabethtown-Marietta Airport here. They said she was one of five divers who jumped from a plane flying at 3,000 feet but her main parachute and backup parachute apparently failed to open.

The Federal Aviation Administration held the parachutes for examination.

Homosexual Bars Cleared

BOSTON (UPI) — The Massachusetts Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission has overruled a decision of the Boston License Commission which would have shut down two homosexual bars.

With the chairman dissenting, the commission voted 2-1 Thursday to order the Boston board to reverse a July 21 decision which ordered the two gay bars to relocate by Jan. 1 or have their liquor licenses suspended.

The state commission ruled the two bars, Jacques and the Other Side, were not responsible for crimes of violence which have occurred in the vicinity of the establishments.

WM Officer Faces Eight Sex Charges

YUMA, Ariz. (UPI) — A woman Marine officer is being court-martialed for allegedly having sex with eight enlisted men, her mother reported, complaining of discrimination because no action is being taken against the men.

Lt. Mary C. Niflis, 23, faces charges of conduct unbecoming an officer and gentlewoman, and disobedience of orders against fraternizing with enlisted personnel, said her mother, Mrs. Eric M. Rickard of Southard, Conn.

Mrs. Rickard wrote to Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.), and Arizona news organizations, protesting that the Marine Corps acted only against her daughter, filing no charges against the eight men.

Lt. Niflis had been stationed at the Yuma Marine Corps Air Station since November, 1973.

Attorney Jay W. Jeffcoat confirmed Mrs. Rickard's story, saying he had been hired as her defense attorney when her court-martial begins Nov. 12 at El Toro Marine Corps Air Station.

A Marine spokesman at El Toro would not comment.

The charges of sexual relations with enlisted men cover eight separate incidents, the lawyer said. The charge of disobedience of a direct order carries a possible sentence of five years in prison.

Jeffcoat said the lieutenant had offered to resign her commission under honorable conditions, but her commanding officer refused.

Mang Hearing

Two CdM Coeds Cite Obscenity

By HILARY KAYE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Two Corona del Mar High School senior girls testified at the dismissal hearing against suspended teacher Michael Mang that the instructor told them, when asked last spring, that his class would be "fornicating."

Defense attorney John Williams attempted to get the girls to admit Mang might have said either "formicating" or "forticating" — words with decidedly different meanings.

Fornicating means the act of sexual intercourse but formicating means "swarming with ants" and forticate is to "strengthen or reinforce."

Both girls, who were clad in blue and white cheerleader outfits Thursday, insisted the word was fornicating.

They testified that the conversation took place last May, when Laura Asbury and Diana Clark, both 16, asked Mang in the school's media center what his class would be doing that afternoon.

Miss Clark, Mang's former student, said her teacher answered "fornicating."

She said none of the three students who heard the remark understood the meaning of the word but that teacher Dan Gillis and school nurse Cheryl Caverly, who were both standing nearby told Miss Asbury that it was a word for "the sex act."

Miss Asbury stated she was "a little embarrassed" to learn the meaning of the word from two adults, and Gillis, an English teacher at the school, said he was "really shocked."

Mang, 35, faces 36 charges of unprofessional conduct brought against him by the Newport-Mesa Unified School District. He was suspended from teaching his social studies classes at Corona del Mar High last May.

A third student to testify, Doug Killian, alleged that Mang answered his classroom intercom with the phrase, "Clyde's Abortion Mill. You rape 'em, we scrape 'em."

Killian said students in the class laughed when the remark was made and were "startled" that Mang had said it.

Killian also testified that Mang told his class "a certain percentage of the faculty is homosexual."

Killian, who did not recall the exact percentage used by Mang, added under cross examination that the remark came up when a student asked Mang about a former teacher.

Another witness, James Tomlin, related an incident last spring when Mang allegedly greeted another teacher with a coarse obscenity.

Tomlin, a social studies teacher and track coach, related the incident in such a comic manner that both the participants in the hearing and members of the audience laughed throughout his testimony.

He said that Mang greeted teacher Henry Wong with the obscenity before the start of school in the social studies office.

Tomlin admitted the remark was probably made "facetiously", but said he was concerned students might have been within earshot. He added that he saw no students near the open door.

Today, the prosecution was expected to call additional former students and school officials to testify about more of the 36 charges against Mang.

The hearing, being heard by a three-man panel headed by a state hearing officer from Sacramento, is expected to run at least through the remainder of this month.

At the end of the hearing, the panel will decide whether or not Mang should remain in the school district. He is currently temporarily assigned to McNally Continuation High.

PATTY . . .

as POW (prisoner of war), denied Tania (Miss Hearst) the freedom to have sex with another person," the writer said.

"But later on these conditions changed, partly due to her own initiative, but also because of our growing love and respect for her. As she became more integrated into the day-to-day aspects of cell life, we tried to treat Tania as an equal.

"It was only natural that with increased personal inter-action between Tania and members of the cell these relationships would develop sexually."

The Times said an SLA writer stressed in the question-answer series that while sexual interaction flourished with the group it was not the only reason Miss Hearst decided to join her terrorist captors.

"However, only the most foolish, naive bourgeois mentality could deduce that Tania decided to stay because of some magical sexual satisfaction or because of a strong personal attachment to an individual," the writer said.

"Tania has certainly, by her actions, proven that her commitment was forged from a political rather than personal outlook. The comrades she felt the most personal solidarity with died fighting in L.A."

Miss Hearst was said to have had a strong personal relationship with "Cujo," believed to be Willie Wolfe, one of six SLA members killed in a May 1974 shootout with police.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A street entertainer who does a comic impersonation of former President Nixon is free of charges that his height violated a city ordinance.

Municipal Court Judge Frank E. Hart dropped misdemeanor charges against Bob Clark on Thursday after an assisant district attorney said there was reasonable doubt he had broken the law.

Clark, whose costume includes a large papier-mache caricature of Nixon's head, was arrested May 28 under an ordinance banning any street artist's display over five feet in height.

Refugees Leaving Pendleton

By FREDERICK SCHOEMEHL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Within two weeks, the city of Vietnamese refugees that sprang up at Camp Pendleton Marine Base will be a memory.

By Thursday, only 4,200 of the more than 50,000 arrivals remained in the tent city over the hills from San Clemente.

Many of those still stationed at the base occupied their time packing what few belongings they have acquired in the six months the tent city has been in operation.

Refugees who have sponsors are leaving the base at about 200 persons per day for resettlement throughout the United States.

Maj. Sally Prichett, a base spokeswoman, said Marine Corps officials hope all remaining refugees will have sponsors by the Oct. 31 shutdown date ordered for Camp Pendleton.

Those that do not have sponsors will be transferred to Fort Chaffee, Ark., until they are resettled.

Others spent their time Thursday sewing, listening to English language tapes or just watching as Marines methodically removed the scores of tents that were pitched to house the war refugees.

Three of the eight mini-camps within the refugee complex have been dismantled.

English classes for children still were being conducted by bilingual teachers. There was still a bustle of activity at the main processing center located on the outskirts of the camp.

From time to time, a voice came over the camp-wide public address system, calling the name of another refugee whose sponsorship was certain.

"Yeah, it's really pretty quiet," said one Marine. "I guess it'll be that way here until the reservists come in next summer."

Private Quilting

DEAR PAT: Do you have any information about where I might be able to find a private party willing to do hand quilting for me? I've inquired at a number of places, but no one seems to know.

C.H., Costa Mesa

The name of one AYS "quilting source" is being mailed to you. Other readers willing to do hand quilting for a fee may contact AYS for future reference. Although many sources of learning to quilt are available, there is a lack of private parties willing to do this work for others. Quilters are asked to respond. This is a frequent AYS "where can I find" type of inquiry.

Repair Ripoff

DEAR PAT: Where can I complain about a television repair ripoff? I was quoted a reasonable service call charge and then taken to the cleaners on "labor" charges for the time the repairman needed to fix the set in my home. I argued, but it didn't do any good.

W.D., Newport Beach

Complain to the Bureau of Repair Services, 909 S St., Sacramento, CA 95815. Telephone numbers are (916) 445-4751 in Sacramento or (213) 620-4132 in Los Angeles. Bureau chief Jack Hayes said that a number of repair firms, including some statewide operators, are being investigated for deceptive price advertising. Extremely low cost "service call" charges may cover only the cost of transportation of the repairman to the consumer's door. Time charges after that can range up to $39 an hour. Before arranging television repair, ask how much a service call to your home costs and exactly what is included in that cost. If your TV has to be taken to the shop, be sure to get a claim receipt. A written estimate must be provided if requested. It should include the cost of parts and labor necessary to repair the set. No more than the estimate can be charged without consent of the customer. A reasonable fee can be charged for the estimate.

Best Vacuums

DEAR PAT: I'm about ready to buy a new vacuum cleaner, and I want to know which type cleans most effectively. I've heard that upright cleaners are better, but several of my friends say their canister models are preferable.

R.E., Newport Beach

According to Consumer Reports, the best type of vacuum cleaner for removing deep, gritty soil is an upright with a revolving brush or a canister with a rug cleaning attachment that has a power driven brush. The rotating brush moves the grit to the top of the rug where the vacuum can pick it up. With this type of vacuum, take long, slow strokes, allowing the brush and suction to do the cleaning. If you have a canister cleaner with no revolving brush, you must supply the brushing action with short, quick strokes. You'll have to work harder to get your carpet clean with this kind of vacuum. With either type, empty the bag often to get maximum cleaning power.

Kerner Bid Nixed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department today rejected on procedural grounds a request for a pardon by former Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner, convicted 2½ years ago of conspiracy, bribery, mail fraud and perjury.

3-Year-Old To Witness

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — Prosecutors say they think a 3-year-old boy, who identified a suspect in the slayings of his mother and sister, is reliable enough to be a witness in the murder trial.

The prosecutors have not decided whether they will call Chad Chancey as a witness in the preliminary hearing Oct. 28, but if they do they are convinced he will be accepted as a competent witness under Oklahoma law.

Chad already has played a major role in the case. His graphic description of what happened the night his mother and sister were shot to death, and his identification of the suspect from police file pictures, led to the rapid arrest of James Washington, 29.

Tied to 3 OC Hospitals?

Solon's Lobbying Told

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblyman William Campbell (R-Hacienda Heights), who carried legislation beneficial to hospitals connected with an Orange County political-financial group, later served as a $1,000-a-month lobbyist for one of the group's corporations, the Sacramento Union reported today.

In a copyrighted story, the Union said Campbell had also received campaign contributions from hospitals and an individual connected with the group.

Campbell flatly denied any connection between his legislative actions, his employment as a lobbyist and the campaign contributions.

"I swear to you on a stack of Bibles that it never happened, it never happened," he was quoted as saying. "What I did was good government."

The newspaper had previously reported three hospitals owned by corporations associated with the group headed by Orange County multi-millionaire Richard O'Neill and Dr. Louis Cella are being investigated by the state and federal auditors.

The hospitals are Bristol Mercy at Santa Ana, Placentia-Linda Community at Placentia, and Fountain Valley Community at Fountain Valley. A fourth hospital, not affiliated with the Orange County group, is also being investigated.

A bill passed by the legislature in 1969 said new hospitals or additions had to have approval of local or state planning agencies if they were to receive payments for patients covered by Medi-Cal.

However, the law allowed about 200 hospitals at the "commence construction" stage of building to be constructed.

An Orange County judge upheld objections to the law by a group of hospitals and more narrowly defined "commence construction." That left about 35 hospital construction projects stalled because they would not be paid for Medi-Cal patients, including four in which Cella or his business associates had interests, the Union said.

Campbell, who in 1972 was chairman of the Assembly Health Committee, introduced legislation that would re-define the phrase "commence construction," in a manner that would help the hospitals, including those in which Cella, O'Neill or their business associates had an interest, according to the Union.

The measure stalled in the Senate, but Campbell worked the same language into another bill, the newspaper said.

It said the Campbell bill was lobbied heavily by Robert Gillman, whose construction company was to build four hospitals affected by the legislation. Gillman was "closely" associated with Cella who was financially involved with most of the projects, the Union said.

Campbell, who lost a 1972 bid for Los Angeles County Supervisor, left the Assembly and founded a lobbying firm.

The newspaper said one of Campbell's clients was Community Medical Industries, in which Cella and O'Neill had an interest, and for which he worked at $1,000 a month for 16 months during 1973 and 1974.

Campbell described his efforts as a lobbyist for the company as "mostly an information kind of thing. We didn't promote specific legislation."

While still a lobbyist for CMI, Campbell launched his successful campaign to return to the Assembly, the Union said.

The newspaper reported that Campbell was still being paid until after winning the June 1974 Republican primary election. It said Campbell also received two $500 campaign contributions from CMI that year, and $1,000 each from Bristol Mercy and Mission Community Hospitals for postage.

Since his return to the Assembly this year, the Union said records in the Secretary of State's office show Campbell has received another $250 from Bristol Mercy and $100 from Cella personally.

State Rejects Medi-Cal Aid For Hospitals

SANTA ANA (AP) — Four hospitals that allegedly added beds without state or county approval will lose the right to treat Medi-Cal patients as a result, the state Health Department has ruled.

Mercy General Hospital here, Placentia-Linda Community Hospital in Placentia, Pacifica Hospital in Huntington Beach and Fountain Valley Community Hospital are the targets of the landmark action requested of the attorney general by Health Department counsel Richard Ochsner.

This is the first such action in the state, said Ochsner.

More than $3.3 million in Medi-Cal funds have been channelled into the four hospitals since 1973 for treating indigent inpatients and outpatients, he said.

Health planners have said Orange County has one of the largest surpluses of hospital beds in the nation. Of 6,992 beds, 2,504 went unused last year, the Orange County Health Planning Council reported.

A total of 159 beds were added at the four hospitals, Ochsner said, including 101 alone at Fountain Valley, which has received $1.3 million in Medi-Cal funds since opening in 1973.

Mercy General Hospital, principally owned by major state campaign contributors Dr. Louis J. Cella Jr. and Richard J. O'Neill, added 12 unapproved beds and is in the process of adding another 89, Ochsner said. adding it also has been paid nearly $1.3 million.

Placentia's hospital added 16 beds and received $427,000, while Pacifica got $365,000 and opened 30 beds, he said.

Nine Counts Of Burglary Face Countian

Arizona authorities have returned to Orange County a man who allegedly ran into a Tucson church and hid in a pew when officers tried to detain him on the California warrant.

Gary Dale Austin, 37, of Phoenix, will be arraigned Oct. 27 in Superior Court on burglary charges filed after he allegedly stole antiques in El Toro, Laguna Niguel and Capistrano Beach and later sold them in stores he operated in Phoenix and Tucson.

Sheriff's officers who filed nine counts of burglary against Austin said his prime targets were model homes and antique shops.

They said he made a number of trips to Orange County from Phoenix and always returned to his home state with a van stacked with choice furnishings and costly antiques—all allegedly stolen.

SPORT NUTS DEPT. — You may find it difficult to locate your favorite television program on the tube these days. Friends may ignore you because they have ears glued to small transistor radios. Husbands may be dawdling at downtown saloons. All of this disruption is for the sake of sport.

Right now we have baseball's annual hooraw, known as the World Series, under way. Meanwhile, across our coastal region, high school gladiators are clashing upon the gridiron on Friday nights, collegians play football on Saturdays, the junior colleges are usually in action Saturday nights and on Sundays and Monday night, professional football takes over the scene.

PEOPLE NOT ONLY watch all this clashing and grinding, they love to speculate on it both before and after the contests.

Of course, I'm not suggesting that the good, honest, law abiding citizens of our coastline would ever lay a wager upon the outcome of these gridiron or diamond contests.

Everybody knows it is illegal to bet on these games. Also, placing down money on a football card or participating in a World's Series pool with the faint hope of a cash reward is likewise against the law of the land.

A district attorney of one of our northern California counties most recently issued a warning against such money pools and caused a flurry among his fellow county employes.

It forced them to take the World Series pool card off the county bulletin board.

YOU CAN ALSO TELL there is never any illegal betting on the outcome of football games, either. Oh well, you may have noticed that a lot of newspapers print the odds each week on which teams are likely to whip which other teams the coming weekend.

Right at this moment, for example, I have on my desk before me several clippings. These are titled "Football Odds," and "Football Favorites" and "This Weekend's Football Odds" and "Major Hoople's Football Forecast."

Within these columns you may learn about the anticipated fate of such as the Los Angeles Rams who will be serving as hosts this weekend to a friendly group from Atlanta, Ga., known as the Falcons.

The oddsmakers, it develops, suggest that when the dust settles up in Los Angeles, the Rams should have emerged victorious by either 13, 11, or 7 points.

EARLIER UPON SATURDAY, within the collegiate ranks, you are informed that the Stanfords will be playing football against the Washingtons. Again, the grid pickers tell you Stanford should come out of all this as winners by either 6.5, 6, 7, or 14 points.

The uninformed should know that it's difficult to win a football game by 6.5 points but that's what the oddsmakers say anyhow.

WRONG THINKERS might be led to believe that the 6.5 points thing was invented for the purpose of wagering money on this college game.

Suspect Admits 42 Deaths

WALLACE, Idaho (AP) — A former sexton at an Episcopalian church on trial for two murders sat calmly on the witness stand, smiling occasionally, as he described the deaths of 42 persons he claims to have killed in satanic worship and drug dealing.

Thomas Eugene Creech, 25, of Portland, Ore., spent a full day Thursday on the witness stand, denying that he was guilty of the two murders for which he is on trial.

IF HIS BIZARRE account of the other murders is true, it would become the largest mass murder case in U.S. history.

Law enforcement officials in several states discounted many of his claims, saying they had investigated earlier statements from Creech and found nothing. But other officers said they had found bodies on information given them by Creech and more charges might be filed.

Creech took the stand as the first witness in his own defense against the accusation that he shot two itinerant painters after they picked him up on a remote Central Idaho mountain highway Nov. 4.

Creech testified he met John Wayne Bradford, 40, and Edward Thomas Arnold, 34, at Grand Junction, Colo., a month before their deaths and was involved in drug-running with them. But he said other members of the ring killed them.

Defense attorney Bruce O. Robinson told the jury he planned a full disclosure of Creech's life and said it would be "complex and shocking." But he said the jury was not to conclude Creech was "a cold-blooded thrill-killer."

CREECH ALREADY is charged with a pair of murders in Oregon. And authorities in Nevada, California and Wyoming said they wanted to see whether Creech is convicted and gets the mandatory death penalty for first-degree murder in Idaho before filing any charges in their states.

Creech also claimed to have committed murders in Ohio, Washington, Utah, New Mexico, Montana, Oklahoma and Kansas. He said some of the murders were committed during human sacrifices by satanic cults.

Creech called himself a professional killer for a motorcycle gang involved in national drug traffic. He said a casino operator in Las Vegas, Nev., gave him contracts for the killings.

HE SAID he was telling the story because he was tired of running.

"I felt that on the satanic cults, that sort of thing should be stopped," he said. "A lot of the killings I done I know was wrong. Maybe by writing the story, I could help a lot of people, younger people, so they wouldn't follow the same path as I did."

Creech has given officials and newsmen a lengthy account of his life, including his claimed killings.

Creech testified he was captured while on his way to Colorado to fulfill a murder contract on Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo. He said he attended a meeting in Salt Lake City in July 1973 in which Hart and Govs. John Love of Colorado and John J. Gilligan of Ohio were involved with deals with a drug syndicate.

Law enforcement officers have discounted the story. Hart, Gilligan and Love called the story preposterous, outrageous and ravings.

HE CONFESSED to one killing he is charged with in Oregon, but denied the other. He said he killed William J. Dean, 22, Astoria, Ore., in Creech's sexton quarters at St. Mark's Episcopal Church in Portland Aug. 14, 1974. But he denied shooting Sandra Jane Ramsamoog, 19, at a Salem, Ore., grocery store Aug. 17, 1974, saying he was there but did not pull the trigger.

Fifth U.S. Nobel Win Reported

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — The Nobel chemistry prize was awarded today to an Australian and a Yugoslav-born Swiss. The Nobel physics prize went belatedly to an American and two Danes who made fundamental discoveries in physics in the 1950s.

THE SWEDISH Academy of Sciences announced that Professors James Rainwater of Columbia University in New York and Danish scientists Aage Bohr and Ben Mottelson, a one-time American who won Danish citizenship in 1973, had won the physics prize for their research and contributions in nuclear physics, specifically for their findings regarding the atomic nucleus.

John Warcup Cornforth, 58, a deaf Australian living in England, and Vladimir Prelog, 69, shared the chemistry prize for "work on the stereochemistry of organic molecules and reactions."

THE PRIZES are worth $143,000 in each category this year and will be shared by the winners.

SEATTLE (AP) — All 120 passengers aboard a United Airlines DC10 about to take off for a nonstop flight to San Francisco were abruptly evacuated Thursday because of a fire in the aircraft's tail section, a United spokesman said.

The spokesman said the tower noticed the fire just as the plane was leaving the gate. He said the tower notified the aircraft's crew, which also spotted the fire indicator light on the cockpit panel.

About 10 persons were taken to the hospital with minor injuries after the 120 passengers evacuated the plane by sliding down a rubberized emergency chute, said the spokesman.

Mormons Opposed

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Schools run by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon) will not comply with federal regulations on elimination of sex discrimination because the rules infringe on religious freedoms, the president of Brigham Young University says.

Dallin H. Oaks said at a news conference Thursday that ads will be placed in newspapers Sunday to explain the church's opposition to Title IX regulations issued by the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Youths Arrested

NEW BUFFALO, Mich. (UPI) — Police have arrested nine boys, ranging in age from 12 to 15, in connection with an 11-month extortion and terror plot against a 73-year-old Czechoslovakian widow.

The woman said she did not notify authorities because she is afraid of all men in uniform. The boys, all students at New Buffalo Middle School, were arrested Thursday.

Welfare Costs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Welfare costs this year surpassed $22 billion — up more than 20 percent over the last fiscal period.

Department of Health, Education and Welfare estimates released Thursday showed the increase amounted to nearly $3.8 billion over the $18.8 billion required in the 1974 fiscal year.

Just Wanted to Help

Grocer Harassed After Turning In Boy

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A grocer who turned a 6-year-old boy over to police for allegedly stealing a brownie cookie says he has received angry phone calls and even a bomb threat from irate people who just didn't understand that he was trying to help the little boy.

"I just couldn't let him go back out in the dark, barefoot in this neighborhood," said Frank Haynes, owner of Clyde's Grocery Market, of the boy he had police pick up as an accused shoplifter.

"I'VE GOTTEN 30 to 40 threatening calls . . . and one guy even said there was a bomb in my store set to go off at 6 p.m.," Hayes said.

"Everybody's been calling me up, telling me what a bad man I am. I'm not a bad man. I'm a good man. I did not intend to hurt that kid."

Hayes said after he caught the boy taking a 15-cent brownie, the youngster told him his father did not live at home and his mother left him alone each night about 7, returning just in time to dress him for school.

"I'VE GOT THREE kids of my own. They're all under six. . . . We love them. All kids are supposed to be taken care of. . . . I just wanted to help this little 6-year-old boy," the grocer said. "I wanted somebody to talk to that child's mother."

He said when he telephoned the police dispatcher and asked what to do, the dispatcher said police would "take the boy home and give his mother a verbal reprimand. If it happened again, then they might do something stronger."

Police said the boy's mother was located and the child was returned to her. Officers said the boy's behavior was discussed with his mother, who was not identified.

"PEOPLE STARTED calling me at 6 this morning before I even got my eyes open," Hayes said Thursday. "Somebody called and said I was cold-blooded. Another person said he hoped I'd have to file bankruptcy real soon."

Just to "set the record straight, I was trying to help that little boy," Hayes said.

Man Rescued On Sea Buoy After 3 Days

KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI) — Thomas Gibbons took a bite from the seagull he had captured, his first taste of food in nearly three days, and "decided I was not that hungry yet."

The 22-year-old Gibbons told the story Thursday of how he survived, clinging to a tossing sea buoy, after his 37-foot wooden boat Diana sank in rough seas Sunday. A coast Guard search for a Key West couple who set out with Gibbons on the fishing trip to Fort Jefferson in the Dry Tortugas was suspended late Thursday.

GIBBONS, WHO was rescued Wednesday by a shrimp fishing boat, said the Diana was struck by six-foot-high waves about 3 a.m. Sunday and sank in a matter of minutes about four miles from Fort Jefferson.

He said he grabbed a life jacket, flashlight and an automobile inner tube and jumped into the water. His companions, Ross and Dorothy Corwin, jumped in without anything, Gibbons said, and he threw them the inner tube.

Currents continued to hamper his progress but Gibbons managed to reach a 30-foot-high marker buoy and he crawled onto its five-foot-wide platform. He said he strapped himself to the platform with his belt at night to sleep.

Morocco Sets Sahara March Of 350,000

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — Recruiting began today for a march of 350,000 unarmed Moroccan civilians into the Spanish Sahara to reinforce their government's claim to the northern part of the disputed territory and its rich phosphate deposits.

In Casablanca, Morocco's largest city, 33 recruiting offices opened promptly at 8 a.m. Many volunteers could be seen registering there and in other cities.

Announcing the "peaceful" invasion in a broadcast Thursday night, King Hassan II said he would lead the columns into Morocco's southern neighbor. He did not say when the walk would begin but said recruiting would take about 12 days.

He said 10 special trains would immediately begin moving volunteers from the north and east to the southern city of Marrakech. From there, 7,813 requisitioned trucks and buses are to take them 500 miles farther south to Tarfaya, where they are to be grouped into 35 divisions.

The king said the marchers are to be provided with 18,000 tons of food, 63,000 tons of water and 370 physicians and nurses equipped with 220 ambulances and first aid stations. He said 761,460 gallons of gasoline had been stockpiled for the operation.

California

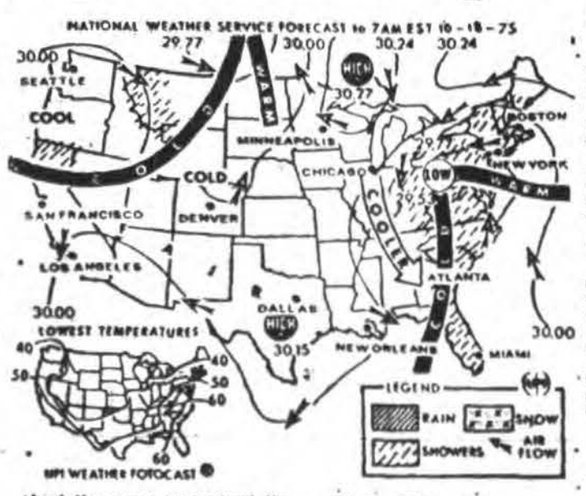

Cooler weather moved into Southern California today, wiping away traces of a muggy, Santa Ana condition that had kept temperatures warm. Mercury readings were expected to continue to dip or remain about the same throughout the weekend.

Los Angeles had a Civic Center high of 83, down five degrees from Thursday.

Mountains were sunny with highs climbing into the lower 70s at resort levels.

Deserts were sunny and warm again with highs ranging through the 90s in the upper deserts and into the middle 90s in the low desert valleys.

Heavy rains hit the coastal states even before the major portion of the Gulf depression's center moved inland over New Orleans Thursday evening.

She Bows Out

Dislikes 'Guise and Dolls'

CHICAGO (UPI) — Voodoo, the occult and a can of "Come to Me" powder have come between Janet Wojtas and her chiropractor husband of four years.

Mrs. Wojtas, 25, of Streamwood, Ill. said she filed for divorce Wednesday because the supernatural interests of her husband, Victor, 29, had made her "miserable and unhappy."

She said she often found voodoo dolls around their house and once discovered a container of "Come to Me" powder which the suit described as "a very powerful attraction powder used only when you desire to force a certain person to feel strong sexual responses toward you."

Wojtas said he was not a strong believer in the occult and felt his wife was overreacting.

"She even got upset when I saw 'The Exorcist'," he said.

Compromise Policy In Gay Hiring OK'd

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A compromise solution to Police Chief Edward M. Davis' objections to hiring homosexuals for the force has been recommended by the Police Commission.

The policy deletes specific reference to homosexuals but theoretically permits hiring qualified gay police officers, the commission reported Thursday.

Both Chief Davis and representatives of the gay community gave approval to the compromise. "Sexual conduct in private between consenting adults shall not, in and of itself, be disqualifying," the standards now read.

Bank Robber Killed

SAN MARINO (AP) — A bank robber running for his getaway car was shot to death in a gunfight with a policeman who was summoned by a silent bank alarm, authorities said.

Keary Jack Trent of Colorado Springs, Colo., robbed a Security Pacific Bank branch of $4,051 but was killed by a shotgun blast Thursday from police officer Rodney E. Bowyer as Trent headed toward the car he left with the motor running, officers said.

UC Raises Limited

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — University of California regents, perhaps staying a step ahead of economy-minded Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., are moving to keep faculty pay raises below 5 percent next year.

A regents' committee voted without dissent Thursday to give UC's 4,683 teachers a 4.93 percent, $30-million raise despite President David Saxon's admission that the teachers are falling far behind inflation.

Refugees on Welfare

FRESNO (AP) — Twenty-four bewildered Vietnamese refugees, who had been living under "deplorable" conditions, have been moved to public housing and placed on welfare by Fresno County officials.

The refugees, ranging from an 84-year-old grandfather to a 2-month-old infant born prematurely, were living at Eagle Field, a dilapidated World War II airbase on the stark western edge of Fresno County.

Suspect Convicted

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jurors have found an 18-year-old man guilty in the meat-cleaver murder of a tiny 86-year-old Los Angeles woman during a robbery at her residential hotel.

Edgar Lee Warren was convicted of first-degree murder and robbery in the death of 4-foot-9, 95-pound Masue Shimoto, as well as separate counts for robbery and assault in an attack the same night, July 28, 1974, on Antonio Pedraza, 21, in a nearby hotel.

Spared Death Penalty

SAN BERNARDINO (UPI) — A jury deliberated five days before deciding not to impose a death sentence on James Hangan, 25, in the killing of a Fontana liquor store owner last February.

The same jury convicted Hangan of first-degree murder and robbery. He will be sentenced next Wednesday.

Cyanide Accident

WILMINGTON (AP) — A mismatch of chemicals was blamed for spewing cyanide gas that sent three men to the hospital and forced the evacuation of 100 others.

The three victims were admitted to Harbor General Hospital for overnight observation Thursday, but they were said to be in good condition. They were identified as Guadalupe Arroyo, 32; Jose Raigosa, 42, and Daniel Jiminez, 58.

THREATENED
Hope Lange

Hope Lange, Petula Clark Threatened

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Police guards were posted today at the homes of actress Hope Lange and singer Petula Clark because an anonymous caller threatened to torture and kill Miss Lange and her children.

Police pointed out that a similar telephone call was received before the Charles Manson family slaughtered actress Sharon Tate and four friends at her home in 1969.

They discovered that Miss Lange had moved only three weeks ago, and Miss Clark took over her former home, so guards were posted at both.

13 Mouths To Feed

BAKERSFIELD (UPI) — A woman marched into a Community National Bank branch Thursday and demanded of teller Ann Stimmel:

"I need money for food. I've got 13 kids. Give me $20,000 or I'll blow this place up."

A short time later Rita Autry, 42, was arrested in a nearby apartment.

'A Lot of Dirty Blood'

Judge Bans Manson Film in 26 Counties

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A federal judge has temporarily banned the showing of a film on the Manson clan in 26 California counties after saying that it might deny Lynette Fromme a fair and speedy trial.

Miss Fromme, a follower of convicted mass murderer Charles Manson, is charged with attempting to kill President Ford when he visited Sacramento Sept. 5.

U.S. District Court Judge Thomas MacBride issued his order Thursday after Miss Fromme told a friend in a courtroom conversation that the movie had "a lot of dirty blood and sex."

OFFICERS ESCORTED Miss Fromme from the room when she refused to cut off her conversation, but she was brought back before MacBride made his ruling.

The judge said the film could "so increase the difficulty of selecting a fair and impartial jury that there is a high probability that the defendant could be denied her right not only to a fair trial but to a speedy trial."

One scene in the movie, shown to reporters in Los Angeles after the assassination attempt, shows Miss Fromme holding a rifle and saying:

"You have to make love with it. You have to know every part of it so that you could pick it up any second and shoot."

THE 90-MINUTE documentary, entitled "Manson," was made by two Southern California film makers.

MacBride banned the movie in 26 northeastern counties around Sacramento until a jury is sequestered in the Fromme trial or a verdict is reached.

The trial is scheduled to begin Nov. 4.

One of the film's producers, Robert Hendrickson, said after the hearing that he thought MacBride's ruling was fair. "There's too much at stake," he said.

Hendrickson said the film had already been shown in Los Angeles and was scheduled for nationwide release.

MISS FROMME WATCHED the film with the judge in a jury room before the hearing.

A few minutes later, as she sat in the courtroom, she was asked by former roommate Sandra Good if she had seen the movie.

"The words were bad," Miss Fromme said. "The faces were nice, but the words were bad. It wasn't Charlie's voice. He sounded like an old man. There's a lot of dirty blood and sex."

Miss Good was sitting several feet away in the spectator's section.

WHEN MISS GOOD said that "every parent should see it," a bailiff told Miss Fromme that she would be removed from the court if she tried to talk with spectators.

Miss Fromme then stood up and said: "Sandy, the problem is they put the whole thing on Manson. They make us out to be innocent children."

Officers then escorted her out of the courtroom and placed her in a holding cell until the hearing began.

Tax Soft Drinks

Tooth Decay War Proposed by State

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California's top health official proposes a war on tooth decay, including a tax on soft drinks and an advertising campaign against sugar-based products.

Mario Obledo, the state health and welfare secretary, said Thursday he would present his preliminary recommendations to Democratic Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., who appointed him.

He said a tax of ½-cent per 8-ounce drink on carbonated beverages would raise $80 million a year to finance a wide range of dental health programs.

DIET BEVERAGES without sugar would be exempt.

Obledo said the anti-sugar advertising fund could total $50 million a year. That sum would come from required payments by makers of sugar-based products who advertise in California.

Ads financed by the fund would discourage the use of sugar-based products and recommend more nutritious alternatives.

Obledo's office released the recommendations in connection with a report issued by a dental task force he appointed.

Brown has so far opposed any general tax increase.

Obledo said 95 percent of all Californians suffer from some sort of dental disease.

HE BLAMED sugar-dominated, non-nutritious diets as the basic cause.

"To fail to attack this is to permit a continuance of the shockingly low level of dental health, or, in the alternative, to at least triple dental health costs," Obledo said.

Half of California's children under 15 have never been to a dentist, Obledo said, and Californians have over 75 million unfilled cavities.

The program "could help end the shame of 2.5 million California children never seeing a dentist and probably losing most of their teeth by age 40," Obledo added.

THE TENTATIVE program also included:

—Elimination of candy and soft drinks from sale in schools and school vending machines.

—Development of a "professional Dental Corps" to go into underserved rural and urban areas to fix teeth.

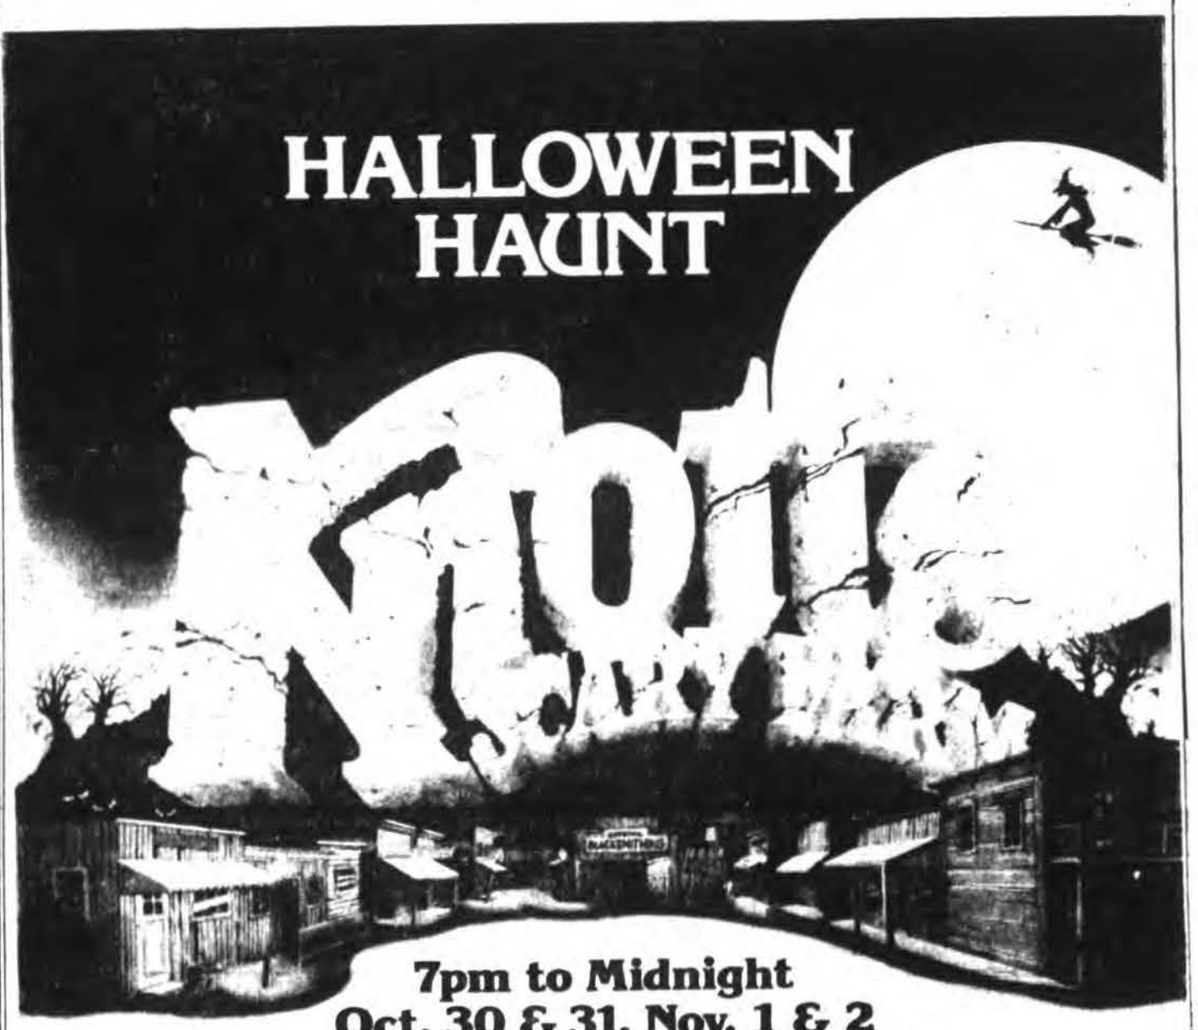

—Creation of a "Young People's Dental Auxiliary Force," including volunteers and some paid school-age leaders, to sponsor preventive education.

Coast Freeway Finale

The last legal vestige of the once-controversial Pacific Coast Freeway was rubbed out this week in Sacramento.

The California Highway Commission voted to formally delete the route that was abandoned by the state Legislature three years ago under strong pressure from irate coastal cities, particularly Newport Beach.

The commission's action this week was more important than it may seem because it freed for sale nearly $14 million worth of land the state had acquired as freeway right-of-way.

First priority for acquisition of the prime property will go to government and public agencies in need of additional land for local road improvements or other public projects such as parks.

Orange County supervisors this week prudently urged a delay in sale of the land until late 1976 to give local government time to choose which land they want to buy.

At long last, the commission's action closes a long and often bitter chapter in inter-governmental relations.

Out of Balance

When Social Security was launched 40 years ago its aim was relatively simple. The nation's workers would contribute a tiny percentage of their wages, their employers would match this amount, and a fund would be established to guarantee a modest pension for the elderly.

It was envisioned as a strictly pay-as-you-go program and it functioned as such for many years.

Today 32 million Americans are receiving $69.5 billion a year in Social Security checks. This year they will amount to $66.5 billion, a deficit of $3 billion, despite the fact that 100 million workers are contributing.

The deficit has been brought about by the gradual — and deserved — extension of Social Security benefits from the elderly to younger widows, children and the disabled.

The federal government has more than $46 billion in Social Security trust funds, so there is no immediate danger to the program.

But it is clear that if Social Security is to survive — as it most certainly should — Congress will have to act with much more restraint in extending its benefits too far beyond the original intent of the program. The load being carried by the work force already grows heavy.

Commendable Job

Orange County Sheriff's investigators and county auditors this week concluded a lengthy, painstaking investigation of a receipt-skimming operation at the county airport parking lot that may have cost the public hundrdeds of thousands of dollars.

The teams spent more that seven weeks in the field and poring over stacks of cancelled tickets and other evidence. It was patient and professional work that may have saved additional thousands of dollars. It was enough, apparently, to crack an elaborate plot that succeeded in side-stepping supposedly fail-safe price registering devices.

The investigation was frustrating because it was hard to determine how the $500-a-day fraud was being perpetrated.

The outcome of this probe will be of additional value to county officials in their efforts to improve, refine and safeguard systems used at county facilities that provide a healthy return of public revenue.

Meaningful Dialogue Is the Key

ART HOPPE

My uncle, Jerry, is President of The Daisy Dell Happy Farm. He was kind enough to show me around the other day. It's a lovely place. The patients have television sets to keep them amused. And while they may grumble a bit about this and that, most of them seem reasonably content.

"They're good, decent people," said Uncle Jerry, smiling and waving as he led the way into one of the wards, "whether they be manics, depressives or independents. What's more, I think they all feel I'm a very nice guy."

"How do you know?" I asked.

"Because," explained Uncle Jerry, "they've only tried to pot me twice in the last couple of weeks."

A SHOT rang out. A bullet zinged overhead. As the guards led away an elderly lady with a smoking revolver, I rolled over under a bed and inquired, "Do all the patients want to shoot you, Uncle Jerry?"

"Of course not," he said indignantly. "Only the nuttiest."

"Do all the patients have guns?"

"Of course not," he said indignantly. "Only the nuttiest."

"That's good," I said. "Excuse me for asking, but why do you wander around this place unarmed?"

"Every President in the history of The Daisy Bell Happy Farm has always wandered around here unarmed," he said. "And we've only lost three or four. Fortunately, the patients aren't very good shots."

"Why do Presidents have to do that?"

"It's important to the welfare of the patients that their President go around talking to them about their problems," he explained. "It makes them feel he's one of them."

"COULDN'T you just talk to them on television?"

"It wouldn't be the same. What counts is that a President can have a face-to-face, meaningful dialogue with his patients so that he knows what their problems are."

"A meaningful dialogue?"

"Sure, watch." With that, Uncle Jerry resumed his rounds of the wards, pumping hands and having meaningful dialogues:

"How are you today?"

"Fine, thanks."

"Glad to see you."

"Likewise."

"Nice day."

"Sure is."

You could tell that Uncle Jerry was right. It really bucked the patients up to shake their President's hand. They were all grinning and cheering. And it sure bucked up Uncle Jerry, too. I guess it was that, thanks to these meaningful dialogues, he learned his patients had no problems at all.

Dear Gloomy Gus

We saw the President's motorcade go through a red light and hit a vehicle with the right-of-way. It then proceeded to the airport. Isn't that hit and run?

Paddleboard Skill Can Help

How to Succeed in Washington

JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Likeable, loquacious Thomas Kleppe, who is waiting in the wings to take over the Interior Department, has demonstrated how to succeed in Washington without really trying.

He looks like the successful businessman he once was, with thinning grey hair and the soul of a bookkeeper. He was a Republican pillar in Bismarck, N.C., active in the American Legion, Lions and Elks.

In 1967, his fellow citizens sent him to Congress where he represented North Dakota's second district without distinction for four years. He was best known, colleagues recall, for his fine paddleball play in the House gym.

Twice, he ran for the Senate. Twice, he was defeated. But as a consolation prize, President Nixon in 1971 appointed him to head the Small Business Administration.

KLEPPE has directed the nation's small business affairs with even less luster than he displayed in the House. For instance, he placed cronies of prosegregationist Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., in charge of minority programs.

This was about the time that Nixon's hatchet man, Fred Malek, was trying to Nixonize the federal bureaucracy. His notorious "Malek Plan" was intended to replace career officials with Nixon loyalists.

The plan, of course, ran afoul of the Civil Service Commission. It, therefore, has been aborted — that is, everywhere except Kleppe's Small Business Administration.

Malek's aide who helped draft the infamous plan, Dan Kingsley, wound up as Kleppe's associate administrator. Kleppe put him in charge of operations, the most powerful adminstrative post in the agency.

ANOTHER SBA employe who participated in the Malek scheme, Loren Rivard, was scolded by the Civil Service Commission, which recommended that he be fired. Instead, Kleppe promoted him. Last week, Rivard received an award for his "outstanding performance."

The Civil Service Commission also recommended that regional director Gilbert Montano be placed on leave without pay for his alleged role in the Malek manipulations. He not only was kept on the payroll but was honored as the best regional director in the SBA system.

In contrast, the regional director in Philadelphia, Russ Hamilton, blew the whistle on the use of loans for political purpose. His information fueled a House hearing and an FBI investigation. For this contribution to good government Kleppe fired him.

Yet President Ford has now raised Kleppe to an even higher level of incompetency by naming him the new Interior Secretary. And the Senate Interior Committee doesn't seem disposed to challenge him. Senators are notoriously charitable to former members of Congress, particularly those who were good paddleball partners.

MONOPOLY IN MOSCOW: The State Department has been accused of serving as an overseas agent for U.S. corporations. But the diplomats have stiffly refused to promote Monopoly, the classic game of capitalism, behind the Iron Curtain.

Parker Brothers, Inc., the Monopoly makers, have asked Secretary of State Henry Kissinger to present the 80 millionth copy of their game to a prominent communist leader.

Any top communist — Russia's Leonid Brezhnev, China's Chou En-lai or even Cuba's Fidel Castro — would do just fine, the company has pleaded.

But Kissinger is too busy maintaining the detente with communist leaders, say our State Department sources, to push Monopoly upon them. "No way," will be his answer to Parker Brothers.

Monopoly is already sold in 15 foreign languages. There is a Hebrew edition, for example, but no Arabic one. The Arabs, it seems have it on their boycott list.

INTRODUCING the game behind the communist curtain would be a coup for Parker Brothers. For the game has been banned as a "capitalist tool," in Marxist countries.

It may be assumed, however, that half-a-dozen bootleg copies are floating around Moscow somewhere. For six Monopoly games mysteriously disappeared from the 1959 Moscow Trade Fair.

Should Kissinger turn down Parker Brothers' request, as we have been told will happen, the company has contingency plans. Their landmark copy will be offered to the Smithsonian Institution.

Should the prestigious Smithsonian reject the historic, if commercial offer, then the 80 millionth game will be presented to the metropolis of Atlantic City, the town whose street names are used in the game.

Foreign Oppressors Still 'Taxing' U.S.

PAUL HARVEY

But whatever it's not called, you'll want to know:

The United States bought that Mideast peace. We are going to send $800 million to Egypt and $2 billion-plus to Israel.

You have heard that U.S. "technicians" will be stationed in the Sinai to snoopervise the fragile Arab-Israel peace.

Less generally known are some of the other prices you have agreed to pay.

You will guarantee Israel "enough oil" to compensate for the captured oil field which Israel is giving back to the Egyptians.

You will make available to Israel 2.5 billion American dollars in economic and military aid.

You will supply Egypt with a million tons of grain "on easy terms."

FURTHER, you will provide Egypt with enough military equipment to reduce her dependency on Russia for such hardware.

In such negotiations as this, most United States of Americans are inclined to assume that our leaders must know what they are doing.

Though they don't always.

In Vietnam, they didn't.

In the Mideast, our President and secretary of state justify American involvement — the acknowledged risk of getting US involved in a possible war there — by saying that mediation without our involvement had failed, but volatile Arabs and Israelis might have set the world on fire.

And the United States' dependence on Mideast oil would have rendered our ships and planes and tanks — and home-front industry — impotent.

Does this suggest that the Mideast nations have us in a stranglehold? That they can blackmail us indefinitely just by threatening to pinch off our petroleum lifeline?

Yes.

Does this mean that a bit-by-bit involvement in the Mideast might eventuate in another untenable Vietnam situation?

WE WENT in there first — with "technicians and money."

All of which suggests that the first order of business by this Congress should be the all-out development of other kinds of energy. Eleven-dollar-a-barrel oil is making other fuels sufficiently attractive so that evolution will phase out our dependency on foreign oil eventually.

But Congress can accelerate that evolution and get us off the hook within 10 years instead of 30.

Until we can re-declare our nation's independence, we're right back where we were 202 years ago — overtaxed by a foreign oppressor.

Let's Restore Halloween Fun

EARL WATERS

With Halloween two weeks away there is ample time for those sincerely interested in the welfare of children to plan festivities different from those which have turned a once holy observance into one of neighborhood nightmares across the nation.

For the weird custom of trick or treat has degenerated into something far off of the harmless roamings envisioned by the well meaning organizations which fostered it as an answer to the more sinister "pranks" which were being perpetrated. So much so that the city council of Cumberland, Maryland has banned the practice.

That the diversion was in itself a perversion of the serious origin of the occasion can be ignored for it had long since lost its true meaning.

IT GREW out of a three-day celebration at the beginning of November held by the ancient Druids. Druidism was a pre-Christian religion of the Celtic people, the principal tenet of which was immortality. The Druids were the leaders who combined philosophy and magic in their roles as prophets, teachers, priests and judges.

In the belief that witches and ghosts would threaten the celebration, bonfire vigils were maintained. The Druid observance was coincidental to the festival of Pomona, Roman goddess of the harvest, so the roasting of nuts, apples and other autumn crops became symbolic.

After the occasion was adopted as a Christian feast day honoring All Saints, preceded by the Hallow Mass, many of the pagan beliefs and customs continued. Halloween became a night of mystery and funmaking. The carrying of lanterns and wearing of masks became part of it and the whole idea carried over to this country.

IN ITS earlier observance in America it was the occasion for community festivals, usually sponsored by the churches. Neighbors gathered to watch the young duck for apples bobbing in a tub, hunt for nuts, and roast marshmallows. Jack-o-lanterns made from pumpkins, and black witches and cats cut from paper were used as decorations. White sheeted figures with weird masks and witches' hats added to the air of mystery.

But, as the years went by, some of the tomfoolery became rather cruel prankery. As this country became more urban children came to roam the streets indulging in thoughtless pranks which worked hardships on others. Eventually, the more sinister types used the masks and other disguises to perpetrate thefts and other crimes.

In the effort to steer young people away from trouble the trick or treat was born. The idea ignored the self-contained suggestion that extortion is something to be encouraged if done in fun. And innocence is lost when children are turned loose to roam without parental guidance. Most dangerous to the truly innocent is the retaliatory methods taken by some adults of planting cathartics and even poison in the candies offered to the children.

THAT HALLOWEEN is a time for both fun and love is attested in the poem by Robert Burns. Unfortunately, the Scottish poet's use of the Celtic dialect makes it hard to understand and difficult to quote.

But Burns's idea, coupled with the mystery and witchcraft of the ancients, could restore the occasion to one of gala festivities. There is a need to return the celebration to that of neighborhood festivals, whether sponsored by the churches or other community groups.

Under adult supervision the young could enjoy all of the funmaking games and feasting without parents having to worry about the safety of their children and without annoying those who, through illness or other reasons, are not in the mood to be harassed by gangs of kids.

Bank Robber 'Good Citizen'

SAN JOSE (AP) — A salesman who shot himself to death during a confrontation with police apparently robbed banks while living an outwardly exemplary life, authorities say.

The FBI said Thursday that John Binger, 39, who left a widow and two children when he killed himself Tuesday, may be the same man who robbed at least four banks in the area since 1971.

"I DON'T BELIEVE it," said Henry J. Down Sr., Binger's boss of five years. "He was a man who could be counted on. There was never any trouble with him. He lived within his means."

The FBI in San Francisco said the method used in all the robberies was the same, the getaway cars seemed to be the same, and each holdup pointed to Binger. The total take may have been $50,000, said agent Frank Perrone, spokesman for the FBI's San Francisco office.

On Tuesday, Perrone said, a man fitting Binger's description tried to get into a Santa Clara bank at opening time, but was locked out by a bank employe who called police. A short time later, Perrone said, Binger took a shot at a policeman chasing him, then killed himself with his .38-caliber pistol.

BINGER'S FRIENDS and family are in shock over the death of the man who "was generous to everybody," said Mrs. Donald H. Williams, a neighbor. "He was always willing to lend something to you, and if he ever borrowed, he'd give you back twice what you got."

Binger's photograph, showing a sober-faced, clean-cut man with a well-trimmed haircut, is being circulated by authorities in an attempt to close their files on the bank holdups.

Down said Binger made "between $20,000 and $30,000 a year," as a salesman and layout designer for a San Jose firm that provides equipment and furnishings to restaurants.

BINGER WAS A "FAIR" salesman, Down said, whose main fault was that he "always thought of the customer first and not himself."

He said Binger had only small payments on his San Jose house "and drove a car with nearly 200,000 miles on it. You prided yourself on his friendship. All this has everybody here in shock."

Binger's car, a maroon station wagon, figures in the case the FBI believes it is weaving against him.

The FBI said a 1974 robbery of a San Jose branch of the Bank of America was committed by a man who walked into the bank with employes at opening time, then escaped in a maroon station wagon.

"THE DESCRIPTION of the individual fits Binger," Perrone said.

In another holdup at a Crocker National Bank branch in the area, the robber entered the bank with employes at opening time, then escaped in a maroon station wagon, Perrone said. In Tuesday's attempt, the car in which Binger shot himself was a maroon station wagon, he said.

In each robbery, including a bank stickup in 1971, the weapon used was described as a pistol with a six-inch barrel. The weapon Binger turned on himself has a six-inch barrel, Perrone said.

"These were all similarities," he said. "They don't necessarily tag Binger as the robber, but the elements in the robberies point to him."

Chewers Cheated

Man Charged In Gum Offer

NEW YORK (UPI) — A 47-year-old man was arraigned in federal court here, accused of reneging on an offer to send model jetliners to 6,000 young bubblegum chewers across the country.

Charles Welch of Northport, N.Y., appeared before U.S. Magistrate Max Schiffman on Thursday and was released in his own recognizance pending a hearing Nov. 6.

ASST. U.S. ATTY. CHERYL Schwartz said Welch made an arrangement in August, 1974, with the Topps Chewing Gum Co. to include an offer of a three-model airplane kit with each lump of the firm's Bazooka bubblegum.

Under the terms, the kit — with parts for models of a Boeing 727, a Boeing 747 and a Lockheed 1011 in a box which opened into a simulated airport — could be obtained by sending in 10 Bazooka wrappers plus $1.

MISS SCHWARTZ SAID WELCH stopped delivering the so-called "Bazooka Air Fleet" about a year ago, but did not refund about $6,000 he received from throughout the country for model kits.

Miss Schwartz said the company got the names of the bubble-gummers who had not received their planes and had kits manufactured and mailed to them at its expense.

'Too Much Lead'

Canned Baby Food Danger?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Children, particularly those who eat canned baby food, may be exposed to potentially hazardous levels of lead, the Food and Drug Administration warns.

It announced Thursday a "priority program" to cut levels of the poisonous metal in canned baby and infant food, because it said research has shown children absorb more lead from food and other sources than adults do, and every effort should be made to cut their intake.

IT ALSO SAID IT will tell industry that some adult canned foods show "undesirably high" lead content over the longer term.

The agency announced results of a survey of 2,900 samples of 41 different foods produced during 1973.

"Of the (canned) baby foods, orange juice had the highest mean lead level," it said. "Next in order in the baby foods were applejuice, applesauce, and peaches. . .vegetables and beef, and mixed vegetables, had the lowest means."

CONSUMER

Industry has told the FDA that lead levels in canned juice have dropped since the survey was made and are now about half of what they were during 1973, the agency reported.

"THE OVERALL RESULTS of the survey indicated that heavy metals in foods do not pose hazard to the American people," the FDA said, "though total lead intake in children who ingest lead from sources other than food could represent a potential problem."

The National Canners Association and the Can Manufacturers Association issued a statement saying they believe the industry is "continuing to make substantial progress" to reduce lead levels.

Lead in canned foods could come from the solder or other metal in the can.

Calif. City OKs Ban on Aerosols

COTATI (AP) — The City Council in this college town has voted to ban the sale of aerosol sprays starting next June on grounds they are harmful to the environment.

The council voted 3-1 to outlaw the controversial sprays after City Atty. Jay Cantor said the action would not conflict with any state or federal laws.

Mayor Harry Fassio voted against the ordinance, arguing that state and federal regulatory agencies should handle the problem. One councilman who works for a chemical firm abstained.

Aerosol sprays have become the center of controversy since scientists reported gases used in them may break down ozone in the atmosphere that blocks harmful solar rays.

aulty Device uit Settled

NTA ANA — A eral court has rded $12,500 to a itgomery, Ala., ian whose Santa -made pacemaker d three weeks after as implanted to re- te her heartbeat.

wards Labs of San- na, a firm which re- y recalled a batch of t valves, had been d by Mrs. Cora ser, 66, for $200,000.

torneys for Mrs. Houser contended that the manufacturer knew of the 5 percent failure rate of the devices, but refused to recall them or warn doctors of the danger because "they were hungry for money."

In testimony this week, Robert Kelley of Edwards Labs, said that the 5 percent failure rate was not excessive and that doctors had been adequately warned of possible failures.

ORANGE COUNTY

7 Women Appointed To Board

SANTA ANA — Seven more Orange County women have been named to the newly-created 15-member county Commission on the Status of Women.

The county Board of Supervisors made eight of the appointments earlier in the week.

Two of the latest appointees were chosen by Supervisor Ralph Diedrich to represent his north county district.

Diedrich's commissioners will be Greta Hambsch of La Habra, a housewife and former schoolteacher, and Minna Van Tilburg, a Fullerton resident who is an officer in the American Association of University Women.

Supervisors also approved the appointment of five "at-large" commission members, each of whom will serve one-year terms.

The at-large appointees are Mary Schmitz of Newport Beach, wife of former Congressman John Schmitz; Anne Doyle, a Fullerton member of the National Organization for Women; Nola Simon, an Irvine insurance woman; Dolly Schultz, an Anaheim resident and member of the county Democratic Central Committee and Sadie Reid of Santa Ana, a former candidate for supervisor.

Red Flag Patrols

Fire Alert Activated

The arrival of hot, dry Santa Ana wind conditions has prompted the California Division of Forestry—Orange County Fire Department to reactivate its Red Flag Fire Alert program.

Its objective is to prevent fires in pre-selected high hazard areas which have been designated by the fire chief to be extremely vulnerable to major conflagrations with loss of life and property if a fire were to start under extreme weather conditions.

THIS YEAR COUNTY firemen have enlisted the aid of five city fire departments and three major utility firms to implement the Red Flag patrol program.

The cities — Anaheim, Brea, Orange, Laguna Beach, and San Clemente — were chosen because a portion of their jurisdiction lies within the high hazard areas.

Utility trucks from the Pacific Telephone Company, the Southern California Edison Company, and the Southern California Gas Company also will participate in the program.

Most of the Red Flag Fire Patrol vehicles will be identified by a large white sign with red letters reading "Red Flag Fire Patrol" and red flags on their radio antennas.

IN ADDITION, all county fire stations will fly a large red flag on top of the station when critical fire conditions persist.

The purpose of the program is to make the public aware of acute fire danger and to spot unsafe burning, camp fires, unsafe actions by recreationists, fire closure violations, and to report suspicious persons or actions.

Firemen hope that utility company employes will be able to spot fires in early stages or spot suspicious activities because they travel in critical areas frequently and have the capability of making reports over their radios.

County Imposes EIR Process Fee

SANTA ANA — Orange County government planning agencies will now charge fees for processing and refining environmental impact reports for new development projects in unincorporated areas.

The county Board of Supervisors Tuesday adopted a rate schedule proposed by H.G. "George" Osborne, director of the county Environmental Management Agency.

AN EXAMINATION of Osborne's proposal by the County Administrative Office showed the county could collect upwards of $221,000 a year from the fees — nearly two-thirds of the $350,000 spent annually to handle the often-bulky documents.

Osborne estimates his staff spends about 50 hours reviewing each developer's EIR before it is sent on for approval by either the planning commission or supervisors.

Under the new rate structure such review and refinement will cost $20 per hour plus the cost of any consulting work.

IN THE CASES where county staff must prepare a complete EIR for public projcts, Osborne estimated about 150 hours are consumed.

The county will charge nothing for appeals of draft EIR's by interested citizens.

Weekend Calendar

'Gold Cup' Readied

There's something for everyone on the competitive sailing front out of Newport Harbor this weekend.

Biggest event will be Newport Harbor Yacht Club's Fall Gold Cup regatta which annually attracts large turnouts in all classes from dinghies racing inside the bay to the larger one-design and ocean racing yachts sailing around the buoys in the ocean.

Racing inside the bay will be such classes as the Lido-14, Lehman-12, Laser, and Sabots. Outside classes invited to compete include Etchells-22, Soling, Star, Rhodes-33, Shields, PHRF and Luders-16.

Inside classes will have three races Saturday starting at 11:30 a.m., and two on Sunday starting at 12:30 p.m. Outside classes will have two starts Saturday starting at noon, and one on Sunday, starting at noon.

PHRF ratings not racing in the Gold Cup regatta will have their choice of competing in either Voyagers Yacht Club's High Point Series on Sunday.

The stately 10-meters will see action in Bahia Corinthian Yacht Club's Walter Podolak Series of match races Saturday and Sunday. Racing will be in the ocean off Newport Pier.

Los Angeles Yacht Club will play host to the ocean-racing types in the second race of its Harbor Series. The series is being sailed under the new IOR/ORF-75 handicap rule.

Southern California Yachting Association calendar:

Terry Dahl, with Sharon Turner as crew, sailed his Sol Cat-18 to the Sol Cat Association's A-Fleet California Regional Championship on Lake Vail.

The regatta drew 41 boats for the two-day event, the largest turnout ever recorded for the speedy catamaran class.

Regional results:

CLASS A — Terry Dahl, 11½ pts; 2, Steven Aranyos, 12¾; 3, Kelly Connel, 15¾; Rodger Janos, 17¾; 5, Chip Whalen, 22.

Match racing fever is expected to hit Southland sailors in the next few weeks with the announcement by Long Beach Yacht Club that its famed Congressional Cup Series has been booked for March 17-21.

Elimination races are expected to start at various Southland yacht clubs within the next few weeks.

General Chairman W.E. Steuber said the 12 annual edition of the series would again feature the Cal-40 sloops.

La Jolla Not Jolly On Skin

LA JOLLA (AP) — Having the nation's only municipal beach for nudism is a mixed blessing at best, says the Town Council.

A few of those using Black's Beach walk naked through residential areas to get to their cars and occasionally leave human waste along the way, citizens have complained.

After a public hearing this week, the council voted 11-5 to ask San Diego's governing City Council to require bathing suits, at least for now.

Pill, Drug Use

Birth Defect Results Seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sex hormones used in birth control pills and other drugs can result in birth defects ranging from stunted limbs to malformed hearts, the Food and Drug Administration says.

It disclosed the findings Thursday in releasing the draft of proposed warning labels for birth control pills which would also tell women who take them they run an increased risk of suffering fatal and nonfatal heart attacks.

THE NEW WARNINGS WOULD also tell the nation's 10 million women who use the pills not to take them at all if they are over 40 years old and warned again that their use increases chances of blood clots and related problems such as strokes.

The new labeling would advise women who wish to stop taking the pill and become pregnant to wait at least three months because "studies show there is a possible increased risk of spontaneous abortion in women who become pregnant shortly after discontinuing the pill."

THE LABEL WOULD ALSO advise any woman who misses one period while on the pill to have an immediate test for pregnancy to minimize the risk of damage to the developing child should she continue on the pill.

Sports Headliners Managed

Business manager Marilyn O'Brien's clients include, (clockwise, from top) O.J. Simpson, Bobby Unser, Mario Andretti and Calvin Hill.

By DENNIS McLELLAN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

After five years of teaching at a junior high school in Carson, Marilyn O'Brien decided to leave in 1968 because she felt she "would like to grow in other directions."

There is no doubt the 34-year-old former English and journalism teacher has succeeded.

As president of Sports Headliners, Inc., a Marina del Rey-based firm, Miss O'Brien manages business and investments for such sports superstars as O.J. Simpson, Mario Andretti and A.J. Foyt. She reportedly is the only woman in the country to negotiate a pro-football contract.

Miss O'Brien has, in effect, traded students for clients. But the attractive, personable firm president is still a teacher at heart.

It is evident in the warm and enthusiastic way she speaks of her clients. She is as interested in seeing them reach their potential in the business world as she would be in seeing a promising student make his mark back at Stephen White Junior High School.

POTENTIAL

"We seek out young collegiate athletes with potential in other areas besides sports," explained Miss O'Brien. "You want to build youth where their natural talents lie."

She mentioned clients John McKay and Pat Haden, former USC football teammates whom she signed up with the Southern California Sun.

"Pat has a potential in so many areas; politics, law. (He is now attending Oxford University on a Rhodes Scholarship.) John is an intelligent and sincere individual who has potential in the business world."

Miss O'Brien was in San Clemente last week to speak to the San Clemente-Capistrano Bay Branch of the American Association of University Women.

She explained Sports Headliners deals mainly in three areas: contract negotiations, financial management and seeking sponsorships and endorsement for clients.

INVESTMENTS

"Working small, you have a long-range interest," she said, explaining the firm has reduced its list of clients from 25 to 11. "We look for a good solid investments that, hopefully, have longevity."

"My goal in financial management is after three years they will become well enough versed to make their own decisions with our guidance."

'We seek out collegiate athletes with potential other than in sports.'

Miss O'Brien feels she was "extremely enriched in teaching." But she also was doing graduate work in business and public relations at UCLA when she felt the urge to move on to other things.

Before seeking opportunity elsewhere she took a year off to tour the world, visiting Russia, Europe, Africa, India, Asia and Japan. "It was terribly enriching."

BUSINESS DECISIONS

When she returned she began interviewing at advertising and public relations firms. But then she talked to Chuck Barnes, chairman of the board of Sports Headliners, and took on the job of handling O.J. Simpson's personal appearances. "Since then I've been involved in every business decision he has made."

Mention of Simpson's name brings a smile to her face. She reached into her large purse and pulled out a recent issue of People magazine featuring a profile on the Buffalo Bills star.

"Look at that quote," she said pointing proudly to a paragraph describing Simpson as "the first black athlete to become a bona fide lovable media superstar."

Miss O'Brien keeps in close touch with her clients, calling them on the phone and visiting them when they're in town. "There's a very warm personal relationship. You're their friend and you know their families.

MOVIE ROLE

"O.J. called to tell me he's growing a beard. He wants to send his picture with a beard to a producer for a movie role. O.J.'s future is in film. He thinks about it all the time."

The 28-year-old athlete has appeared in small parts in "The Klansman" with Richard Burton and "Towering Inferno" with Paul Newman. Miss O'Brien feels Simpson's goal is to work with great actors to gain experience until he is able to find his own major roles.

She was asked why so many athletes tend to lean toward a career in entertainment and the movies when their sports careers end.

"A lot of people want to be in the movies," she said thoughtfully. "An O.J. or Joe Namath may have ticket power in a film. They may be an asset to a film so they're given an opportunity.

"I think it's a need for recognition that causes them to excel. They look at it and say, 'I can do it too.' We're often more critical because we know who they are."

COMMERCIALS

Simpson, whom Miss O'Brien described as "a corporation unto himself with his own legal and accounting staff," does commercials for an array of companies including Hertz, Wilson Sporting Goods and Foster Grant glasses. He also has a contract with ABC as an off-season sports commentator and does the Superstars commentary.

"We handle all personal appearances, press requests, marketing and endorsement activities for O.J.," Miss O'Brien explained.

"I think I have developed an intuitive feeling of what he wants to do. I know him that well." She smiled. "Oftentimes I can convince him of the merits of certain things. As he grows we'll concentrate on Pat, Johnny and Calvin (Hill of the Honolulu Hawaiians)."

OPERATION

Miss O'Brien said when she started with the firm it didn't take her long to learn every phase of the operation. "I think many teachers would do well in the business world. The discipline of having to be prepared forces you to be directed in your activities."

Rx for Young Mothers

Life Plans Mapped

By ALLISON DEERR
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Attention is devoted to the children, or the husband, and somehow the wife/mother's sense of self is lost.

She isn't growing, while her husband and children are. In two to five years, she may find herself headed for divorce and not really know why.

Pediatrician Marlene Coleman, along with Adele M. Scheele and Beverly L. Kaye of futureFOCUS, will offer a one-day workshop, Rx for Mothers, which can help prevent this pattern from occurring.

To be presented Thursday, Oct. 23, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the Marriott Hotel, Newport Beach, the workshop will offer concrete life planning techniques.

"We feel that life should be lived as an experiment with the total picture in mind — self, husband and children, in that order," Dr. Coleman said.

Part one, presented by Dr. Coleman, will be How to Survive Parenting and Maintain Adventurousness and Romance in Marriage.

GOOD COMBINATION

"The big question is how can a woman combine a happy home and meet her own needs, whether it be a job now or preparation for one later?"

Too often, she said, mothers feel that their time is "non-time" or negative time. The second portion of the day will deal with time management, she said.

"Especially in this affluent area, parents schedule 100 percent of a child's out-of-school time.

"In keeping children completely occupied we deprive the child of his right to boredom and the mental exercises he would use to fill his own time," Dr. Coleman said.

The day will begin with a discussion of "mother's syndrome."

"Adele and Beverly begin with a skit that demonstrates some of the demands on a mother's time. Then we'll break into small groups to determine what their expectations are for the day.

"They will evaluate where they are in terms of life planning. Each one will fill out information sheets on number of children, husband's work, their activities."

FOCUS GROUPS

Based on the interests of the participants, mothers of infants or preschoolers for example, focus groups will be formed.

"Each will look at the next five years of her life, where she'd like to be, and how she might get there. Some find that although they believed they didn't want to work until their children were in school, they were ready to begin SOMETHING.

"Others consider finding new interests, going back to school and working part-time."

Essentially, she said, the workshop deals with "empty nest syndrome" long before it happens.

"You must keep your self in focus as well as your family. You must grow so that you can deal with your children or your husband leaving home," Dr. Coleman said.

Another subject is the guilt many mothers feel about leaving the home to work or enjoy their own interests.

"I like to talk about the 'perfect fantasy mother' whose entire life is devoted to her children. In actuality, 95 percent of the problems with children can be handled with common sense. The other 5 percent, that's when you call the pediatrician."

The workshop offers the opportunity for women to get to know other women with similar problems and interests.

MANAGING TIME

During the time management sequence, hints on saving time at cooking, cleaning and all the other things involved in parenting will be given.

"We'll also talk during the afternoon about How to Know What I Want to Be and How to Be It. Women are asked to look back into their past and find those qualities that made them successful."

Other participants share experiences and resources.

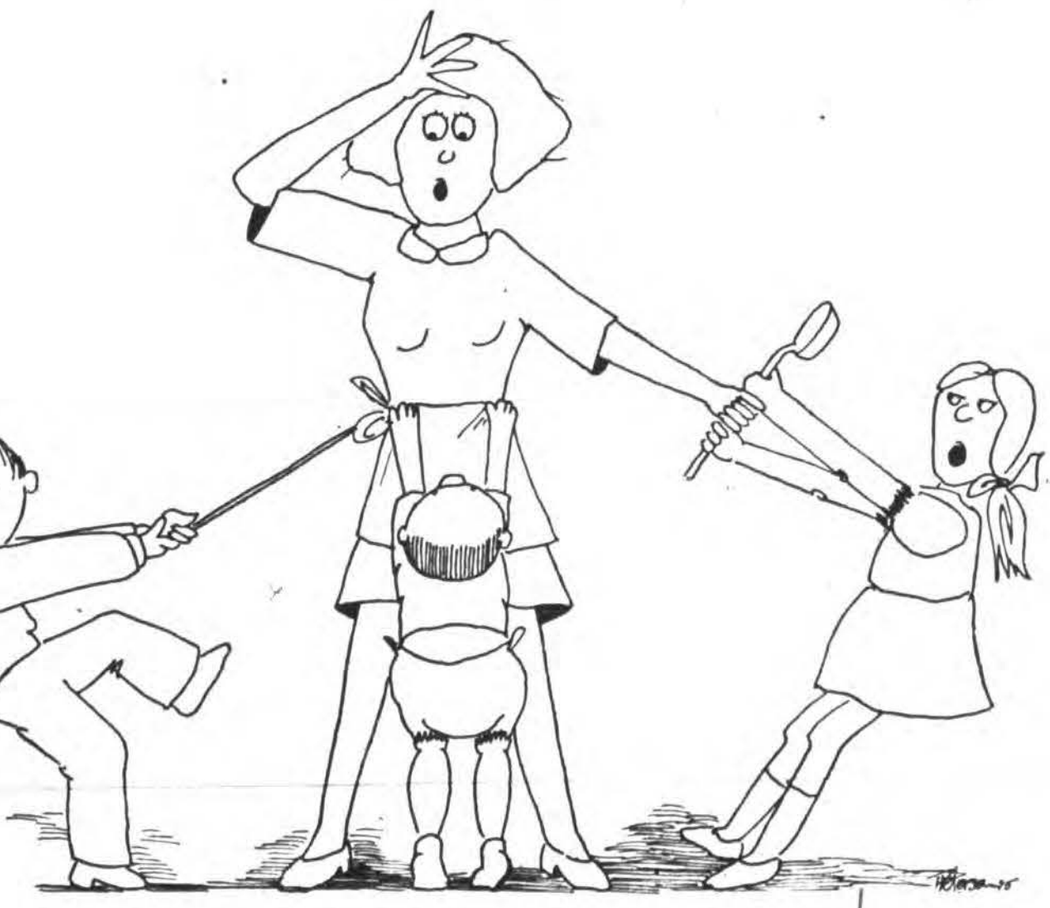

Adele Scheele and Beverly Kaye are doctoral candidates at UCLA where they are instructors. They are partners in futureFOCUS, a service of Social Engineering Technology.

Ms. Scheele, a former labor researcher and negotiator, also is a change manager fellow at UCLA, as is Ms. Kaye, who is a former assistant dean at Pomona College and author of several articles related to planning change and group dynamics.

Dr. Coleman, in private pediatric practice in Newport Beach, is in charge of clinical pediatric training for Loma Linda University and is attending physician at the Cal Tech Health Center.

Air Ways 'Choraled'

Beginning Dec. 1, the Irvine Master Chorale literally will be "taking to the skies" on Qantas Airways.

The chorale will be part of the audio program on the classical channel of the airlines' fleet of 747 jets during the months of December, January and February.

This will mean that the chorale will be heard by hundreds of people on the millions of miles in the Qantas routes covering the Pacific Islands, U.S., Indian Ocean, Southeast Asia, the Middle East, Mediterranean, Europe and the United Kingdom.

The announcement was made to the chorale by Colin Chapman of Sydney, inflight entertainment coordinator, during a visit to Newport Beach.

Such extensive exposure is welcomed by the chorale members, who are trying to elevate the group to the level of the Los Angeles Master Chorale and other such professional ensembles.

Now preparing for its current four-concert season under the direction of John Alexander, the chorale will present Verdi's "Manzoni Requiem" Saturday, Oct. 25, at 8:30 p.m. and Sunday, Oct. 26, at 4 p.m. in the First Baptist Church, Santa Ana.

Soloists will be Susan Smith, Bonnie Hurwood, Paul Harms and Michael Gallup.

Tickets may be obtained from local music stores or the Orange County Chorale Association, 328 N. Newport Blvd., Newport Beach.

Bliss Is Doomed

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm in love with this boy and we plan to marry. We've been going together for six months but there's a problem I can't discuss with anyone — least of all him. Doug is about 5-10, weighs 110 pounds and is not in good shape physically. I don't want to end up a young widow.

He eats the worst junk in the world, cares nothing about nourishing food or a balanced meal, and never gets enough rest. He was in a car accident two years ago and received multiple head injuries. The doctor told him he shouldn't drink but he gets loaded nearly every night and it worries me sick. I know this is harming him because he gets terrific headaches, has blurred vision and has trouble remembering things.

I just found out Doug takes LSD, uppers and downers, and also pot. I've begged him to take care of himself but he says he has to stay on the booze and junk to keep himself going. He's working two jobs trying to save enough money to buy a house so we can get married.

When I try to talk sense to him he says, "Stop nagging me. I'm doing all this for you." What can I do to help him see he's killing himself? —ALBQ, N.M.

DEAR ALBQ: Nothing. He'll kill himself before he'll listen to you or anyone else. Doug's physical condition is the result of his mental condition. He's self-destructive and severely unbalanced.

Your only hope is to make it clear you'll have nothing more to do with him unless he goes to a doctor and gets straightened out. If he refuses, my advice is to stop seeing him. The fact that you tolerate such erratic behavior and would actually marry such a sick guy raises many questions in my mind about your mental health.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Yesterday I walked into the kitchen and caught my mother steaming open a letter with the tea kettle. It was to my 17-year-old sister from her boyfriend.

Mom seemed embarrassed and then said, "I'm doing this because I don't trust Marie and a mother has the right to know what's going on." Is Mom right or wrong? —MISS DONNO

DEAR MISS: She's wrong. Such a mother will never know what's going on because her children won't trust her. Trust begets trust and it starts early. Your mom lost out a long time ago.

Earth-moving machines grade what will be perimeter road on the Saddleback College campus. The four-lane road will link the college's entrances on Marguerite and Avery Parkways. The $800,000 project, which includes construction of the road and three small parking lots and landscaping, should be completed within four months.

Fed Compromise On Female Credit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Reserve Board, choosing a generally even compromise between the demands of women and creditors, proposed final rules forbidding creditors from discriminating against applicants because of sex or marital status.

The rules, written and revised twice this year to implement the Equal Credit Opportunity Act that goes into effect Oct. 28, were designed to outlaw many old techniques that deny credit to working women — including the practice of asking about birth control.

CREDIT EXPERTS generally agreed the final rules made more concessions to the women's demands than a previous proposal published last Sept. 8. But they cited numerous "loopholes" favoring creditors.

Federal Reserve Board Governor Jeffrey M. Bucher indicated the agency would continue to listen to the counter demands of women and creditors. "Just because we've put out these final regs doesn't mean we're through," he said.

Linda Cohen, credit expert for the National Organization for Women, called Bucher's statement an "invitation" and declared, "We certainly intend to complain like hell about the things we don't like."

THE MAJOR dispute centers on a provision that creditors must explain — not necessarily in writing — the reasons for denying credit to an applicant who requests such an explanation.

The first proposed regulations issued last April 23 required a written statement of reasons for denial. But the September draft dropped that requirement, prompting a cry of outrage from a group of congresswomen.

The women still insist the law cannot be enforced without written statements and they note this rule also does not require the creditors to inform applicants of their right to such a statement.

GM Chief Paints Hopeful Picture

Thomas A. Murphy, president and board chairman of General Motors said new car sales are starting to experience a major upward surge, signaling the end of last year's disastrous recession impacts on the industry.

In a speech Thursday before the Orange County Chamber of Commerce Economic Outlook Conference in Anaheim, Murphy said that by the time 1975 is over, at least 12 million new cars and trucks will have been sold.

THE SAME FIGURE FOR 1975 stood at 9.5 million, which Murphy said proportionately was the worst sales year in recent auto history.

The GM chief said all signs point to an even better year with the 1976 models with sales estimated at more than 13 million vehicles.

Murphy termed it a "steady, stable and encouraging growth pattern."

He credited the increase in sales volume to lasting improvement in the nation's economy and the fact that more and more consumers are realizing "the American automobile is an excellent buy."

CITING STATISTICS, Murphy said the average American family can buy a moderately-priced car today for 3.8 months income compared with 4.3 months income for the same type of car in 1970.

"It seems clear that car prices are very much within the consumer's reach and continue to represent outstanding value," Murphy said.

Earnings Drop 32% At Edison

ROSEMEAD (UPI) — Southern California Edison Company said earnings per share dropped 32 percent during the third quarter compared with one year ago, largely because of the increasing use of more costly fuel oil to generate electricity.

Jack K. Horton, chairman and chief executive of Edison, said net income during the three months ending Sept. 30 was $54 million, compared with $68 million during the same period last year. Earnings per share were 90 cents, compared with $1.33, he said.

Operating revenues for the quarter increased $28 million, to $434.5 million, Horton said, but operating expenses climbed $43 million to $358 million.

During the third quarter of 1974, Horton said, earnings were helped by above-average precipitation which increased availability of low cost hydroelectric power. Natural gas also was more available, he said.

LA JOLLA — Avco Community Developers Inc. reported a consolidated net loss of $2,684,000, or 46 cents a share, for the third quarter ended Aug. 31 on consolidated revenues of $19,117,000.

Economists See GNP Report Soon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Top government economists and White House officials have predicted the nation's output of goods and services for the last three months rose at an "extremely high annual rate" of 10 percent or more.

The predictions indicate that economic recovery from the recent recession is stronger than was previously anticipated but in line with similar rebounds from past recessions.

The Commerce Department will release the third quarter real Gross National Product Monday and experts say according to the latest economic indicators the GNP should make the largest upturn since the last quarter of 1972.

Speaking to the Economic Outlook Conference in Anaheim, Assistant Commerce Secretary James L. Pate supported a promise by President Ford that Americans would soon receive some "very encouraging" economic news.

"Stripping away the effects of inflation, this report is expected to show that real output grew during the July-September period by an extremely high annual rate of 9 to 10 percent — or perhaps even higher," Pate said.

Technical Seminar Scheduled

Control of lead times, which caused major problems for many local companies during the recent business downturn, will be the subject of an all-day seminar for Southern California high-technology companies Wednesday at the Sheraton Hotel in Newport.

The seminar, "Managing Lead Times: A Vital Factor in Manufacturing Control," will be conducted by George Plossl, a nationally-known authority on production and inventory control and president of his own Atlanta, Ga. consulting firm.

Registration will be limited to 30 to insure maximum interaction between participants and the seminar leader.

IBM Cutting Copier Price

NEW YORK (AP) — International Business Machines Corp. says it is cutting prices for its two plain-paper copiers, following similar reductions announced earlier by Xerox Corp.

IBM, saying it was acting "to be competitive," said it would cut per-copy charges about 10 percent.

'Surgicenters'

Walk-in Surgery Cuts Cost by ½

By SYLVIA PORTER
(Last in a Series)

In an era of fast-food outlets and drive-in banking, why not walk-in surgery?

With walk-in surgery — or in-and-out or same-day surgery — you enter a hospital in the morning, have your operation, go home before the day ends. Ordinarily, the operation might have kept you in the hospital at least two or three days.

You save time. You save money. By eliminating the need to occupy expensive bed space and many customary expenses that go with hospitalization, this quick procedure may cost you one-third to one-half of what the same operation done the traditional way would cost.

PIONEERED IN 1961 at Butterworth Hospital in Grand Rapids, Mich., walk-in surgery grew slowly at first, then took off — today, more than 2,000 hospitals offer this type of care.

In addition, a new form of free-standing health facility (with names such as "surgicenter") has come into being to provide walk-in surgery exclusively. There are about two dozen of these facilities in existence now, with as many as 100 more said to be in the planning stage.

Of the more than 40 types of operations that can be done on a one-day outpatient basis, the most frequently performed is the dilation and curettage (D&C).

Others include tonsillectomies and adenoidectomies, hernia repairs, removal of cysts and other growths, hemorrhoidectomies, biopsies, skin grafts, therapeutic abortions, vasectomies, cataract removals, and various kinds of plastic and orthopedic surgery.

GENERALLY, PATIENTS selected must be in reasonably good health and not too old — in order to minimize the possibility of complications which could come in the absence of the prolonged observation that follows conventional surgery.

With this precautionary pre-admission screening, the record for walk-in surgery has been impressive. For instance, of the 26,500 operations performed over a five-year period by the Phoenix Surgicenter, one of the oldest and best-known of the free-standing facilities, not one resulted in a fatality or required an emergency transfer to a regular hospital.

You, the patient, are watched closely immediately after the operation and you may be kept in the recovery room for, say, an hour or two. Patients undergoing some operations, however, have been able to check in and out of the hospital or clinic in as little as three and a half hours. Walk-in surgery is particularly beneficial for children, for it eliminates the psychological trauma that is often triggered by an overnight stay in the hospital.

WHAT ABOUT THE possible dollar savings?

— To illustrate, a D & C that costs $121 in the facilities of the Phoenix Surgicenter would cost $265 and involve a two-day stay if done on an inpatient basis at a hospital in the same city. (None of the figures include the surgeon's or anesthetist's fees.)

— At the walk-in unit at Watts Hospital in Durham, N.C., savings of $120 were reported for an operation to excise a breast tumor, and of $170 for treating a broken arm.

— Verticare, Blue Cross of Southwest Ohio's same-day surgery program, estimated savings of $250,000 during its first 24 months of operation. In addition, the 1,273 patients receiving treatment under the program saved an estimated 4,121 hospital days.

As walk-in surgery proves itself, increasing numbers of health insurance plans from coast to coast are providing coverage for it. Right now, more than half the nation's Blue Cross Plans offer this benefit. In New York City alone last year, 100,000 Blue Cross Plan subscribers received benefits for same-day surgery. In Boston, 25,000 subscribers did. In Phoenix, the number also was 25,000.

"IT CUTS COSTS BECAUSE it eliminates the hotel part of the expense, such as room, board and meals," says a Blue Cross official in Rhode Island, on the basis of his state's experience.

"The hospital can then also be used more effectively, for beds go only to those patients requiring full hospitalization."

I Never Got Down, Says Reds Hero Perez

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Boston Red Sox find themselves on the critical list after being hit and run over by the Big Red Machine.

After looking sick in the first four games of the World Series, Tony Perez suddenly regained his health with two home runs as the Cincinnati Reds beat the Red Sox, 6-2, Thursday night and took a 3-2 stranglehold in the best-of-seven game classic.

The National League champions can polish off the Red Sox Saturday in the sixth game at Fenway Park, where Jack Billingham will face Boston lefthander Bill Lee.

"I never get down on myself," said Perez, who had fought a torturous batting slump before breaking it Thursday night before the appreciative, roaring hometown fans in Riverfront Stadium.

In the sixth, Perez got another good pitch from the beefy Boston right-hander and parked that one a little higher over the left-center field fence. Two men were on base at the time and it gave hard-throwing Don Gullett a handsome 5-1 lead.

"On the first home run, the ball was in on me and it felt good when I hit it," said Perez, happy to finally escape the clutches of his Series-long slump. "It was the first pitch all Series inside to me. The second homer was on a fastball inside. They kept the ball away from me all series, but tonight they came in. I felt real good in batting practice."

Perez had tried everything to crack the distressing drought. He told reporters that his superstitious wife, Pituka, urged him to try driving a different way to the ballpark for Game 5. Also, she took Tony shopping before the game to "spend money" and try to get his mind off the Series.

"She tried everything to get me back in the groove again," Perez said.

Perez' depressing slump had reached such a point that manager Sparky Anderson tried some humor before the game to loosen up his bull-shouldered star. The good-natured manager kidded the first baseman that the way he was going, he would soon set a record for hitless appearances in a World Series.

"I don't want that record," Perez told Anderson before he went on his hitting tear.

"It got to be ridiculous," Anderson told the press afterward. "I had to lighten things up with a little joke. I've seen what slumps can do to power hitters. Our power boys, like Tony and Johnny Bench, are either red-hot or ice-cold. They're streak hitters — and when they start streaking, watch out."

Perez has been in slumps before but never worried about them.

While the Cuban-born star was making life miserable for the American League champions with his bat, Gullett was making them look sick with his arm. The Reds' best pitcher gave up just two hits to Boston through eight innings and then three more in the ninth before being forced from the game with just one out to go.

Red Sox Remain Confident

CINCINNATI (AP) — Beaten in the fifth game? Yes. Down 3-2 to the Cincinnati Reds in the World Series? Yes. A whipped team? Definitely NO.

That summed up the general feeling among the Boston Red Sox today as they returned home, faced with the task of winning two in a row from the Reds for the city's first World Series championship since 1918.

Except for southpaw Bill Lee, the Red Sox talked softly but with the confidence they've shown all year after dropping a 6-2 decision to the Reds in Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium.

Lee, listed as the starting pitcher for Saturday's sixth game at Fenway Park, released personal tension by sipping tea and wise-cracking with writers.

"I like pressure," he said. "I'm going to show up. What else can I do. I'm not gonna lie down and play dead. I won't have cardiac arrest. I'll do what I can."

Team captain Carl Yastrzemski, who led the Red Sox to their last pennant in 1967, recalled the drama of the past two days of that championship season as he looked ahead, hopefully, to two games with Cincinnati this weekend.

"I keep thinking back to 1967 when he beat the Minnesota Twins two in a row to win the pennant," Yaz said. "I know we can do it with the Reds. The fans will give us a tremendous lift in our ball park."

"This puts them one up, but they still have to win four," said third baseman Rico Petrocelli, the only other Boston player still around from the 1967 team.

"Sure, we're behind 3-2 in the series, but now we're going home to our ball park," Petrocelli said. "We're just going to have to go like heck Saturday. You can bet we'll be ready. We've come from behind all year, and we can do it again."

Although most admitted the team did not play very well in the field, the Red Sox gave due credit to Cincinnati southpaw Don Gullett for a fine pitching performance which gave the Reds the series advantage. Gullett allowed only two hits until tiring in the ninth and needing relief help.

ALVIN DARK
Out as A's Skipper?

Dark Out, Mauch In At Oakland?

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley will offer manager Alvin Dark's job to Gene Mauch, a Birmingham newspaper reported in today's editions.

The Birmingham Post-Herald said Finley decided not to renew Dark's contract, which expired at the end of the 1975 season, partly because of the owner's displeasure with Dark's last two seasons.

And the paper quoted reliable sources as saying the club was up for sale for an estimated $15 million, but there were no immediate offers.

The Post-Herald also said that Finley was upset over a comment made by Dark at a church service on the West Coast. Dark told the congregation, the paper said, that Finley was "going to hell."

Also, the sources reportedly said, Finley complained that his manager had no control over his players.

Dark is in his second tenure as head of the club. After he was hired for the second time, Finley said: "Yes, he has been manager of this club before. Yes, he was fired. Yes he is back to manage this club. Yes, he expects to be fired again some day."

After a 14-season career as a major league infielder, Dark stopped playing in 1960 and began directing the San Francisco Giants the next year.

In 1962, he led the Giants to a National League pennant, but was fired just two years later.

He went to Kansas City and Finley in 1966 and lasted that year and part of the next before the owner fired him for the first time. From there he went to Cleveland, as skipper and general manager, but was dismissed with 2½ years left on his contract.

After a few seasons out of baseball, Dark returned to the Finley organization — and took the A's to its third consecutive World Series victory. This month, his team was beaten by the Boston Red Sox in three straight games during the AL playoffs. Mauch was recently fired by Montreal.

Comedy of Errors

Another Foulup In Pan Am Games

MEXICO CITY (AP)—The VII Pan American Games almost made it through one day without controversy.

Emphasize "almost."

As the fifth day of the problem-plagued Games began today, the United States tied the Cubans in gold medals, 26-26, and jumped out to a healthy 66-50 edge in total medals. The gold-silver-bronze count for the Americans was 26-24-16 with the Cubans at 26-16-8. Next was Canada at 5-6-12 with host Mexico following with 3-5-11.

Thursday's schedule started out innocently enough, but just as it had each of the three previous days, officialdom came down with a case of foot-in-mouth disease.

This time it was in the women's 200-meter finals where young Americans Chandra Cheeseborough and Pamela Jiles finished 1-2 in a photo finish that took hours to sort out.

But just before the medals were to handed out, a misinformed official told Jiles she had won. So she joyfully accepted what she thought was her second gold of the Games.

Later, when the mixup was discovered, the medals were tearfully exchanged.

Two disputes left over from Wednesday's comedy of errors were mediated Thursday. A jury of appeal let stand the results in the men's discus, even though it was conceded the Cuban who won the silver medal used an illegal disc. Americans John Powell and Jay Silvester took the gold and bronze medals.

The Yanks fared better in the three-day equestrian finals where a protest had been lodged over the accidential disqualification of world champion Bruce Davidson of Unionville, Pa., in the middle of an impressive run. An official thought Davidson was Canadian Jim Day, who was ousted for a minor rules violation.

Davidson was allowed to resume his ride from the point of disqualification. He finished with a silver medal behind Tad Coffin of Strafford, Vt., the gold medal winner.

The U.S. equestrian team also earned a gold medal — one of eight Thursday for the Americans.

After three days of Cuban domination in weightlifting, the United States finally made a successful challenge. Lee James won two gold medals of three in the light heavyweight weightlifting categories. Cuba's Abel Lopez won the other gold, and both silvers. James had the third silver.

In middle heavyweight, the Americans did even better with Phil Grippaldi winning two golds and a bronze, and Frank Capsouras, adding a silver and two bronze.

Both U.S. gold medals in track and field were Pan Am records. Cheeseborough, with Jiles four-hundredths of a second behind, traveled the 200 meters in 22.77, bettering a mark Jiles set in preliminaries, and Tom Woods, a senior at Oregon State, triumphantly cleared 7-4½ on his final try in the high jump.

Guyana won its first gold medals of the Games, thanks to University of California sprinter James Gilkes, a legal resident of the small South American country. Gilkes won the 200 meters with a clocking of 20.43 seconds.

Diane Jones of Canada easily outdistanced runner-up Gail Fitzgerald of the U.S., 4,673 points to 4,486 in the women's pentathlon. Jones' sister, Joanne, was seventh.

Mexicans set the pace in the 5,000-meter run, Domingo Tibauduiza of Colombia and Ted Castenada of the U.S. swept past them in the late going and finished 1-2 in the event. Rodolfo Gomez, the Pan Am torch lighter last Sunday, held on for third behind the winning time of 14 minutes, 2 seconds.

In basketball, the undefeated U.S. men's squad rolled to an easy victory over Puerto Rico, 85-53. Otis Birdsong led the Americans with 18 points, and coach Marv Harshman was able to play substitutes most of the second half after building a 36-19 halftime edge.

Cuba, the United States and Mexico were the top three in the fencing foil team finals.

Uncertainty Surrounds Sun Game

HONOLULU (AP) — Players and management of the World Football League Hawaiians appeared to be nearing settlement, but it remained uncertain whether the Hawaiians would play here Sunday against the Southern California Sun.

The team earlier voted not to take the field after rejecting two proposals for cutting pay.

Player representative Ken Bowman said Thursday that "it is safe to assume" that Sunday's game would be played. Henry Shigekane, a member of the team's executive committee, also said he understood the game would be played.

Coach Mike Giddings, however, injected another note of uncertainty Thursday when he hinted that coaches might boycott the game.

"We will not put a team on the field, or at least we will not be with that team on the field Sunday, unless we feel as coaches that they have a chance to win and that we can give the fans their money's worth," Giddings said.

The team did not practice Wednesday or Thursday, and Giddings said he did not know if there would be a practice session today.

"There is no question that we are in real financial difficulty," Giddings added.

Management reportedly asked many players to accept a pay cut to $250 a game.

The Honolulu Star-Bulletin quoted a team source as saying that WFL officials in New York have asked all players to take pay cuts.

The league's board of governors met in New York earlier this week amid reports that they were considering disbanding. League president Chris Hemmeter, however, refused to comment on the league's financial position after the meetings ended.

Sunday's contest against Southern California is a late addition to the Hawaiians' schedule, made after the league shut down its Chicago franchise.

The game is not part of the team's season ticket package, and team officials view Sunday's attendance as a critical test of the Hawaiians' future.

"We are not unhappy with local attendance figures, but a show of good faith Sunday night certainly wouldn't hurt things," said Dave Stringer, another member of the executive committee.

Stringer configued that lower player salaries are one option being pursued by the struggling league.

"We feel we owe it to the players to ask them if they wish to continue under these conditions," Stringer said.

Boston Forecast: Rain

BOSTON — Rain is forecast for Saturday's sixth game of the World Series between the Cincinnati Reds and the Boston Red Sox.

No Series game has ever gone less than nine innings once it's begun and baseball officials say they will make every effort to play Saturday's game despite predictions of rain.

A spokesman for the baseball commissioner's office said "we would wait and wait and wait, no matter how long, in an attempt to complete the game. But if it became impossible to continue, regular season rules would apply." Such a decision is up to Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

U.S. Favored

TUCSON — The United States was heavily favored over less seasoned Venezuela today as play began in the second round of the Davis Cup tennis challenge for 1976 with superstar Jimmy Connors for the first time heading the Yankee effort.

The U.S. drew a bye in the first round and will attempt to atone for early round losses the past two years to Mexico and Colombia.

While the 1976 series is already under way, the rather confusing Davis Cup international competitive format finds the 1975 championship at stake when Sweden meets Czechoslovakia in Stockholm in December.

Evert Sails

ORLANDO, Fla. — Chris Evert subdued Isa Fernandez of Colombia, 6-1, 6-4, in 56 minutes Thursday night to head into the quarterfinals of the $50,000 Orlando Women's Classic.

In other singles matches, Rosie Casals annihilated Kris Kemmer Shaw, 6-0, 6-1; Betsy Nagelsen blasted Joanne Russell, 6-1, 6-4; and Donna Ganz downed Roberta Stark, 6-3, 6-4.

A Lot to Kick About

Unbeaten Pirates Thrive On It

By HOWARD HANDY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

How important is the kicking game to the success of an undefeated football team that is averaging 40.4 points per game in five straight victories?

In the case of the Orange Coast College Pirates and coach Dick Tucker, it is extremely important and an integral part of preparations for every game.

The Pirates are blessed with two outstanding kickers and statistics bear out their importance to the team's success.

Freshman punter Marc Lopez is averaging 36.0 yards per try in 18 attempts but the big statistic is that none of these has been returned for even one yard.

"He kicks the ball so high that our ends have time to get downfield under the ball before it comes down," Tucker says.

"He is definitely one of the better kickers we have had," the coach adds.

Alvin White averaged 38.3 yards per kick as a sophomore and Mark Schrupp averaged 37.9 yards for each of the last two seasons but neither one put the ball as high as Lopez.

How is it the Pirates are consistently good with the kicking game and the record shows they have not had a punt blocked in two years?

"We work quite a bit on the kicking game in practice," Tucker admits. "We punt every day with a live rush and this helps us in two ways—the punter gets to work on his kicking and our line has an opportunity to try for the block.

"It also helps our punt returners," he adds.

A check of the South Coast Conference statistics shows Orange Coast with the three top players in this department. Tony Accomando has returned four for 122 yards while Grif Amies and Dave Bienek are next in this department.

Does Tucker have a formula for punt returners?

"The most important thing is that he has good hands," the coach says. "We would never put a guy back there if he didn't have good hands no matter how good a runner he is. He has to be able to catch the ball and hang on to it."

What about the place kicking of Woody Tressler? Is he on a par with all-time leading kicker Benny Ricardo?

"He's at least the second best place kicker we have had at Orange Coast," Tucker admits.

"He's ahead of last year and he could become the top kick scorer in our record books," the coach says.

Ricardo scored 103 points in two years with 15 field goals (a school record) and 58 conversions.

Tressler had 55 points on 10 field goals and 25 conversions as a freshman and in five games this season, has three field goals and 23 conversions for 32 points. This gives him 87 for the two years with at least five games to play.

Tressler, however, doesn't get as much opportunity to kick field goals with the explosive OCC offense this season. But he could easily get two more to tie the record of Ricardo or three to break it.

If Saturday night's game with Fullerton is decided by a field goal, Tressler and Dave Donk of Fullerton are two of the best in the area. Donk has two to three for Tressler this season.

Mutual Opponent Tabs OCC

The Rustlers coach, asked by the Daily Pilot to pick a winner and a score in Saturday night's South Coast Conference crucial with OCC and Fullerton, grudingly selected OCC by a 28-27 margin.

But that may prove to be a bad omen for OCC's Pirates.

"It seems like every year I make one of these predictions the other team wins," says Shackleford, whose Golden West team is the only common opponent of the Hornets and OCC.

"Last year I felt Fullerton's defense would stop Coast, and it didn't"

(Shackleford predicted Fullerton would win the '74 game by a 14-7 or 14-13 margin, but OCC dominated the tilt, 29-14).

"In past years I felt I really had an opinion in picking the winner of this game. I really felt the team I picked would win. But to be honest, it's hard to pick between Fullerton and Coast based on our games with them," says Shackleford.

"I'll tell you one thing, I wouldn't bet a dime on it."

Shackleford rates the offensive edge to OCC.

"Orange Coast is a little better offensively. Based upon the entire season, Coast runs the ball better than Fullerton, but Fullerton also runs well. Fullerton ran better against us than Coast.

"And both teams threw well against us."

Shackleford feels Fullerton has improved quite a bit over its first two games with the insertion of freshman Morris Bledsoe at quarterback. Bledsoe tossed four TD passes against the Rustlers in a 27-26 comeback win. OCC defeated Golden West, 31-14.

"Fullerton has really improved with Bledsoe. And it has receivers who have enough speed to keep Coast honest. That's how you beat Coast—with fast receivers who keep the defense honest."

Fountain Valley, Newport Struggle

Fountain Valley High's blazing aerial game and the comeback efforts of Newport Harbor's Sailors collide tonight in Sunset League football action at Orange Coast College.

Kickoff is at 8 and the passing finesse of Fountain Valley's Barons makes them 5-point choices to hand the Sailors their third straight loop setback.

Chris Dove and Gary Coleman pace the Barons, who went to the air 50 times against Westminster last week.

Both are pin-point passers and have the outstanding receivers to complement their passing in Ken Margerum and Bo Boxold. Mike Marquez is not expected to play, however, due to a pulled hamstring injury.

The QBs have combined for 66 completions in 109 attempts for 815 yards and 6 TDs. And only 2 passes have been intercepted. Boxold has scored with 3 of those passes and Margerum twice for coach Bruce Pickford's Barons.

The running attack has not shown any consistency, however, and if the Sailors' secondary can contain the passing game the Barons could be in for a long night.

Coach Bill Pizzica's Sailors have a more orthodox attack with tailback Steve Foley the big running gun. Foley has scored five times, four on the ground.

Newport's punch is hampered without fullback Dan Christy (back injury), but if Gordon Adams can come up with another 145 yards in the air like he did against Marina it could take a great deal of the pressure off the Sailors' ground attack.

Both teams have the good defensive standouts—the Barons boasting noseguard Kevin Patterson and tackles Mark Burke and Mark Cowper.

Oilers, Kennedy Collide

Led by the passing combination of Mark Larsen and Rick Parma, the Kennedy High Fighting Irish, 4-0 and ranked No. 6 in the CIF 4-A poll, are solid favorities to defeat the host Huntington Beach High Oilers tonight.

Kickoff in the Empire League football game is 8 and the Irish are 12-point choices over an Oilers team that is 1-3 overall and 1-1 in circuit action.

With Larsen passing to Parma, Chris Egan and John Culver, the Irish figure to have too much offense against Huntington Beach.

Larsen has completed 45 of 79 passes for 823 yards and 9 touchdowns and Parma, despite suffering from a mild case of mononucleosis, has caught 19 for 473.

Egan, a six-foot tight end, has caught six Parma aerials for 74 yards and Culver has grabbed 11 for 271.

The Irish don't have the strong running game they did a year ago, but Paul Cain (5-9, 185) has rushed for 217 yards on 40 carries.

If Kennedy has a weakness, it is on defense, particularly in the secondary which allowed El Modena's Steve Cody to pass for 288 yards.

The Oilers hope to exploit this weakness with quarterback Bill Holst, who has completed 29 of 61 passes for 485 yards.

Huntington Beach's running game hasn't scared its opposition thus far, grinding out 495 yards for a 123.7 average. Top runner is Jim Lucas.

Vikings, Griffins In Sunset Battle

The Marina High Vikings do battle with the Los Alamitos Griffins tonight at Westminster High in a Sunset League gridiron struggle at 8.

Both teams are primarily ground oriented, although they have quarterbacks who can throw well and have won with the pass.

But the infantry figures to roll up most of the yardage tonight.

Los Al comes well-armed with a ground attack that has used fullback Steve Fogel and Sam Snyder to good advantage.

If last year's all-Sunset League rushing star David Sprague is healthy and playing, the Griffins' offense could be even more explosive.

But Marina will be countering with a strong ground assault. With backs like Fred Rennaker, Jim Rankin and Bob Craft, the Vikings should be able to do quite a bit of damage themselves. They have accumulated 598 yards on the ground in their 2-2 season.

But Los Al, 2-2 on the year and with two victories against league opponents, has the edge.

The momentum Marina gained because of its 10-7 upset over Newport Harbor may have been reversed by the injuries it suffered.

The loss of running back Mike Fuentes, who is out for the season with a knee injury may be a factor. Tackle Mark Scavo, defensive end Jim DeLuca and tight end Chris Kilgore are all doubtful.

Also among the ailing is quarterback Dave Wallach, who may not see too much action because of a back injury.

Los Al, on the other hand, seems to be pretty fit and should be riding high after its 12-8 upset over Edison.

End to Streak Sought

Mesa, CdM Square Off

Costa Mesa and Corona del Mar, two Century League prep football teams bent on staying in contention for the loop title, clash tonight at Newport Harbor High.

Kickoff is at 8 and coach Tom French's Costa Mesa Mustangs are 3-point favorites to beat Corona del Mar for the first time in eight years.

Mesa's game revolves around quarterback Tim Rosauer, who has gone to the air 95 times in four games, completing 50 for 712 yards and 5 touchdowns. His favorites targets are Dan Valentine, Mike Snow and Dan Byers.

Valentine caught a 31-yard scoring pass last week against Villa Park and ran 85 yards for a touchdown with a kickoff return.

Guisness can connect at nearly 50 percent accuracy yet is an even bigger threat with the rollout. He ran for 99 yards in pacing Corona del Mar to a 34-13 rout of Estancia and has scored twice.

Both teams feature solid running backs, but none of breakaway capability.

Mesa's leading rusher is fullback Dan Duddridge, who has carried 50 times for 181 yards. He's also a field goal threat, having clicked on a 35-yarder against Magnolia.

Coach Dave Holland's CdM attack includes running backs Gary Turner and Rob Elson. Turner came up with a pair of TD plunges among his 57 yards in 19 carries against Estancia.

But overall, both teams' running games complement the passing attack, whether they actually pass or take the option and run.

Mesa's defense is led by ends Steve Park and Byers, while Corona del Mar defenders are paced by end Spyro Kemble.

The two teams are virtually equal in weight, Mesa holding a ½-pound advantage on offense and 4½-pound advantage on defense.

Friars Fall, 27-3

Taking advantage of two Servite turnovers, the powerful St. Paul High Swordsmen rolled to a 27-3 win over the Friars in their Angelus League football opener Thursday night before 9,000 fans at Anaheim's La Palma Park.

Playing every bit like the CIF's No. 1 4-A team, the Swordsmen scored a touchdown in every period and totally dominated the No. 4 Friars, netting 294 yards to Servite's 107 and gaining 12 first downs to Servite's five.

The decisive TD came with 4:42 left in the third quarter when St. Paul quarterback Craig Johnston threw a nine-yard scoring pass to 210-pound Matt McFarland on a tackle eligible play.

When McFarland made his third conversion, the Swordsmen were ahead, 21-3. The TD pass came only five plays after St. Paul recovered a Servite fumble at the Friars 21-yard line.

Late in the first quarter, the Friars—trailing 7-0—lost a fumble at St. Paul's 48, and the Swordsmen scored six plays later on a one-yard run by fullback Jerry Ancich. In all, Servite had four turnovers.

MD Tests Saints

LONG BEACH—Unbeaten in the non-league football season, the Mater Dei High Monarchs now face the unenviable task of competing in the rugged Angelus League.

Tonight at 8 they open circuit action against the host St. Anthony Saints and the Monarchs have been installed as nine-point choices to win their first league opener since 1969.

The Monarchs, No. 5 in the CIF 4-A poll, look too strong for the winless Saints who may be better than their 0-4 record indicates.

Mater Dei's quarterback, Tim Wigmore, hasn't been contained yet and the Monarchs defense has permitted just 20 points.

St. Anthony has barely fallen to Del Rey League powers St. Francis (18-17) and St. John Bosco (27-23) and has a top quarterback in Joe Plummer, who has completed 42 of 68 passes for 686 yards.

Unbeaten San Clemente Duels Winless El Toro

Undefeated San Clemente High School (4-0), the CIF's fifth-ranked 2-A football power, will host winless El Toro High (0-4) tonight in opening South Coast League action. Kickoff is at 7:30.

The Tritons will enter the game as 14-point choices and the favorites to capture the circuit championship.

Tritons coach Allie Schaff is concerned about depth on his team and fearful that injuries or the flu might cause problems.

Schaff is also looking for El Toro to come out throwing. The Tritons may counter with an aerial game of their own if the powerful running of Brian Wood, Tom Arons, Ron Wade and Randy Adams finds the going too tough.

El Toro coach Mac Moore feels his team's defense must improve to contain the Tritons.

"We had a letdown last week," Moore says. "We weren't tackling and our team pursuit wasn't there. We have to play our regular defense in order to contain their running game."

With the passing game a potential offensive threat for the Tritons, Tim Vleisides and Glenn Dill will be cast into the limelight. The duo completed 7 of 16 attempts last week in tuning up for league play.

Wood is the rushing leader for the Tritons but was limited to 46 yards last week after an early week bout with the flu. He was used sparingly but against Redondo Beach a week earlier, he ran for 208 yards. He is ready again this week.

The El Toro offense has had trouble getting untracked but figures to come into its own at any time and give any of the South Coast League foes trouble.

Any one of the three can break into the open at any time and Burghardt is joined by Steve Key in the passing game. Key hit on four passes for 81 yards and a touchdown last week.

Cross Country Stars at UCI

All 15 Orange Coast area high schools will enter cross country teams in Saturday's Orange County Invitational at UC Irvine.

Among the 15 schools entered in this meet are Edison, rated No. 1 in the CIF 4-A poll, No. 3 Costa Mesa and No. 10 Marina. Mission Viejo, ranked No. 2 in the 2-A poll, will also compete.

Freshmen races start at 8:20 and are followed by the sophomores (9:20), varsity (10:20) and junior varsity (11:40).

Diablos, Trojans In Loop Struggle

The new-look Mission Viejo High Diablos, compiling a 3-1 pre-season record, are favored by six points to defeat University's Trojans in their South Coast League football opener at Mission Viejo tonight.

Kickoff is at 7:30, and the balanced Diablos offense may prove to be the difference in a game which figures to be close all the way.

University, which tied for the league title with a 4-1 mark last year, is 2-2 but its offense has been threatening to explode in recent weeks.

Mission Viejo's offense has been consistent and has taken a completely different appearance from the 1974 offense in which quarterback Dave Schmidt threw on almost every down.

Schmidt was graduated and Doug Reeves has been more than an adequate successor, passing for 354 yards and running for 47.

But the key to Diablos success so far has been the running game, sparked by tailbacks Scott Spear and Joe Blum who have rushed for 326 and 184 yards.

University, though, may have a defense strong enough to contain Mission Viejo's offense. Only one team has scored more than six points against University, and the Trojans are allowing an average of nine points per game.

Their top defender is linebacker Dave Scroggins, an all-league pick in 1974.

The Trojans' offense has been somewhat erratic, but Mission Viejo must stop tailback Ron Dykes and quarterback John Halagan.

Dykes has picked up 284 yards on 69 carries while Halagan has completed 19 of 51 passes for 239 yards.

Artists, Dolphins Open Fire Tonight

The Laguna Beach High Artists and the Dana Hills Dolphins collide tonight in their Sunset League football opener at 7:30 in Laguna.

If wins and/or losses to common opponents are any indication as to the outcome of a game, Dana Hills has the edge over Laguna. They have identical 2-2 records.

Both teams lost to Brea, the Dolphins 18-15 and the Artists 15-7. Both squads also played Canyon. In this one, Dana Hills was the victor 22-14 and the Artists lost 13-7.

But the real difference seems to be in their offenses. Dana Hills is getting its act together. Despite injuries to key people and a bout with the flu that affected most of the team, the Dolphins' attack has put points on the board.

The return of running back Kerry Crabb to the Dana Hills lineup should bolster an already strong ground game.

The leadership and capable passing attack of quarterbacks Rob Stamos and Vince Winninghoff, combined with the running of Keith King, John Gill and Crabb could be more than Laguna's defense is up to.

The Artists' attack, on the other hand, has not progressed sufficiently. Laguna's struggling offense has accounted for 715 total net yards this season while the Dolphins rolled up 879.

Relying heavily on its alert defense, Laguna has managed to keep within a touchdown in both of its losses. Speedy cornerback Vince McCullough and safety Rich Nunis have given more than one opposing quarterback some painful moments.

The Dana Hills defense has also done a creditable job. Senior linebacker Brent Danninger's relentless pursuit has been a key factor in several games.

True Story Of Murder At UCI

BALDWIN PLAY IS BASED ON TRUE INCIDENT
Stanley Patrick Comforts Wounded Phillip Nunn

Stories by JACKIE HYMAN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

If the director has her way, 700 prisoners at the Federal Correctional Institute on Terminal Island, Long Beach, will get a look at "Blues for Mr. Charlie" before it comes to UC Irvine.

Cassandra Moore, who prefers to use her professional name, Casey, is directing the workshop production which will be at UCI Oct. 24 at 8 p.m. and Oct. 25 at 3 and 8 p.m. in the Humanities Hall Little Theater, Room 161.

She is working through the campus organization Students for Prison Change to try to arrange an Oct. 23 performance at the prison.

LAST JUNE, Casey's production of "Purlie Victorious" successfully played at the prison as well as at UCI. The initial suggestion came from fellow student Mari Predific, who had worked at the institute.

"The prison audience is the toughest. If you can please them, well, you've done something," Casey said.

The two productions stem from the Truth Black Repertory Company, which Casey founded last February. It involves many UCI students—most not drama majors—and some community members.

"My first reason for doing any of the plays is that I wanted to venture a historical phase of black performing art. I'm researching through performance," Casey explained.

"WHAT I'M leading up to is what's happening now, so the reason I'm doing these plays is to show why," she said.

"Charlie," by James Baldwin, is based on the true story of a young black man who was murdered by a white man. The killer is acquitted by a jury.

"It's a total illusionistic and expressionistic play. It's very powerful. I believe it's X-rated...By mature audiences, I mean those who can accept reality," Casey explained.

Casey, a senior, said she aims at a racially mixed audience, noting that people come to see plays for many reasons.

"SOME PEOPLE come to see the other form of life. Some people come to see the performing arts. Other people, actors, come to see if they could do better, and other people come to see if it's something they want to put money in. Audiences are funny. I find that interesting."

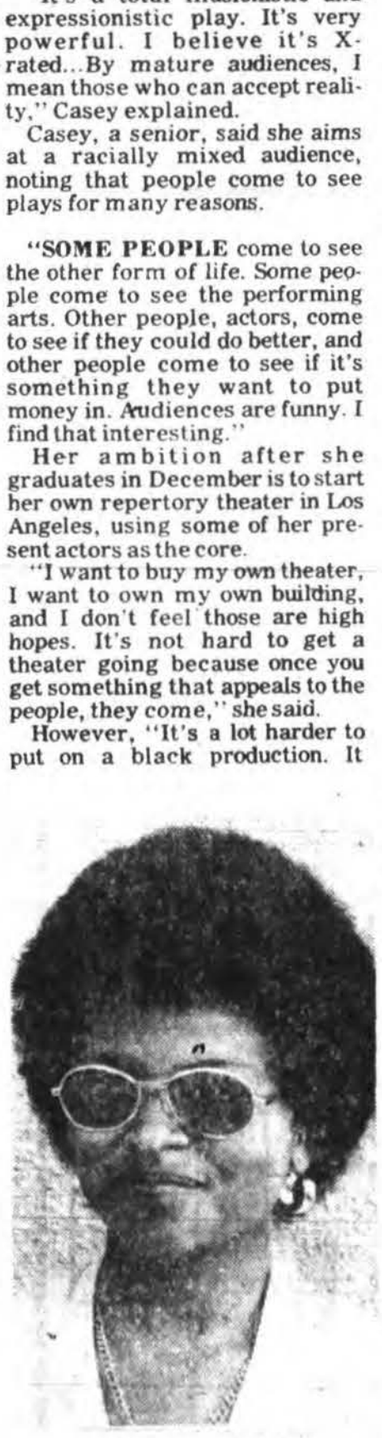

Her ambition after she graduates in December is to start her own repertory theater in Los Angeles, using some of her present actors as the core.

"I want to buy my own theater, I want to own my own building, and I don't feel those are high hopes. It's not hard to get a theater going because once you get something that appeals to the people, they come," she said.

Admission to "Blues for Mr. Charlie" is 75 cents. Advance tickets are available at the UCI Associated Students office and at the Fine Arts Box Office, 833-6617.

PLAYWRIGHT OLIVER HAILEY AND DIRECTOR JOHN FERZACCA (FRONT) DISCUSS PLAY
Richard Fehring and Teri Ciranna (Back) Are Among Six Actors in Hailey's Adult Drama

Author Advises at OCC

In 1970, "Father's Day" flopped on Broadway. Last year, it was a hit at the Huntington Hartford Theater in Hollywood and was returned twice by popular demand.

"Now that we have broken new ground for women, this play I think can be enjoyed in a way it couldn't five years ago," said John Ferzacca, who is directing a production of the play which will run from Oct. 22 through Oct. 25 in the Orange Coast College Auditorium, 2701 Fairview Road, Costa Mesa.

Admission is free and curtain time is 8 p.m.

"Father's Day," which is about three divorced couples, will be OCC's entry in the American College Theater Festival. The college's production of "Lenny," also directed by Ferzacca, was a finalist in last year's regional competition.

Although the play has previously been performed in Orange County, this production will have additions specially written by the playwright, Oliver Hailey, who is serving as a consultant to the production.

Hailey said he is delighted at the response the play has received in other college productions. He described student audiences as "sensational...I find that youthful audiences always make plays sexier than they are. They pick up every nuance.

"The old folks either don't hear it or don't care."

The strong language of the play also is readily acceptable to young people, he said, adding, "I didn't know there was any bad language in it (until it got to New York). The language shocked them."

HE SAID he likes to write about women, partly because "that's where most of your talent is. Very few men work well on the stage today. That's not true of film...For one thing, I think women have more of the dedication that it takes for a long-run play."

He also noted that more abundant roles for men — and greater pay — in television and movies has siphoned off many male performers.

Another reason he likes to write female characters, Hailey said, is that "women, to my taste, are just more interesting than men. They're certainly more interesting in a concentrated area, which the stage is.

"THE WOMAN is allowed to express her emotions, to articulate them on her face. Men have to be stoic all the time and that gets boring. What's lovely in the conversation between women if you're blessed enough to hear it is how open they become."

"Also, I think women feel more deeply than men. Certainly in the case of divorce, I think the pain is much deeper for women. . . 'Father's Day,' although it is not about women's liberation because these women are not liberated yet, is certainly a pro-female play," Hailey said.

He said his strongly pro-female stance has not aroused antagonism by men. "That's the wonderful thing about men. I'd be worried if I attacked women. But things are easier for men," he said.

Hailey is also the author of "First One Asleep, Whistle," which was produced on Broadway in 1966; "Who's Happy Now?," staged at the Mark Taper Forum in 1967 and off-Broadway in 1969, and "For the Use of the Hall," a Trinity Square Players production which was broadcast on public television.

He has recently finished "And Where She Stops, Nobody Knows," which has just been optioned for Broadway.

Cast members for "Father's Day" are McKee Anderson, Teri Ciranna, Shirley Valek, Richard Rowland, Richard Fehring and Ron LaCaria. Sets and lighting were designed by Jeff Koppe.

Painter at Home in Past Era

By JO OLSON
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

When the surf's up in Huntington Beach, Hawaii or Australia, you probably won't find Richard Peterson at his easel working on his 17th century landscapes.

The 27-year-old artist, who once considered following the waves as a permanent life style, will head for the beach if he knows the surf is good, but if he happens to become inspired as he walks out of his house, he'll dump his surfing gear and paint for a while.

This is part of the enigma of Peterson, a native of San Pedro and product of Orange County. He was born in the 20th century and lives part of his life in this era but feels more at home in the 17th century.

HE COLLECTS antiques of the era, likes harpsichord music, counts Vivaldi as a favorite composer and says that age was "robust."

The other interesting and awesome thing about Peterson is that he didn't set out to become a famous artist or attempt to make a living at it, as many painters do.

He was "discovered," in the old Hollywood manner, by Henry Vorgang, curator of the Old World Art Investment Co., while Vorgang was walking in Corona del Mar.

One of his friends had a gallery, which was going out of business, so Vorgang dropped in for a visit.

HE SAW a tiny painting, which his friend told him was done by "some young kid of 22."

"Something hit me," Vorgang said. "This painting was out of the ordinary."

He called Peterson and asked the surprised young artist if he could be his agent. This was agreed upon, and over the past five years the relationship has deepened to a friendship as well.

"He's a genius. Where he gets this from, I don't know."

PETERSON, from an artistic family, remembers being taken as a young child to the county museum in Los Angeles to view the famous paintings.

"I remember seeing the paintings of the old masters. I always identified with them," he said.

He always thought it would be "nice" to be able to paint for a living, but was well aware of the difficulty involved.

"I was always painting, trying to sell, but I had a lot of bad experiences with art dealers. They would order paintings, then refuse them. They sometimes found something wrong with the paintings so they could put the price down."

Now, as he has gained confidence, his output is slowing as he puts more work into each painting.

Peterson has dabbled in abstract art, but finds he is compelled to paint in the 17th century mood. He doesn't paint from sketches or pictures, but draws from his extensive memory of scenes from nature.

"I HAVE a good memory for faces, objects, places I see," he explained.

It is this keen memory which enables him to play music of the great composers on the piano completely by ear.

Vorgang, who displays Peterson's work in his Newport Beach gallery, admits he doesn't understand his young client, who divides life between two centuries.

Peterson can only say he has a deja-vu feeling about the 17th century. He prefers the furniture, art and music from that age.

He tends to shun modern things, which lack the feeling of having been made lovingly by someone's hands, and looks for natural fabrics and materials to carry through the mood.

"I feel stifled in plastic," said the blond surfer, whose heart is in the England of Charles II while his feet are in the waves.

Art: Does It Need a War?

VICTORIA KAUFMAN

"The trouble is everyone looks the same. Avant-garde artists look like other avant-garde artists and bourgeois artists look like other bourgeois artists. But in 1915 that wasn't the case."

Victoria Kogan Kaufman, acting assistant professor of art history at UC Irvine, was discussing a theory of contemporary art which she will present in a slide-lecture at the Laguna Beach Museum of Art, 307 Cliff Dr., Laguna Beach, at 2 p.m. Oct. 20.

The lecture, "Backgrounds of Contemporary Art: Is Anything Really New?", is the first in a series sponsored by the museum affiliates. Attendance by members is free; for nonmembers, the cost is $1. Information is available by calling 494-6531.

"What I will be talking about is the fact that most of the revolution in the visual arts happens from 1905 to 1919 and mostly we've been living it out since then," explained Ms. Kaufman, who specializes in 20th century art history.

SHE BELIEVES radical changes took place at the time because of the social unrest and disturbance caused by World War I.

"During a war people have their minds changed radically. When people come back from the war they're no longer threatened by abstraction. They've been to the abyss," Ms. Kaufman said.

She noted that after World War II, abstract art once again became prominent.

"There is a whole theory of art history which is that in periods of stability, art is extremely humanistic, it's representational, it's egoistic, whereas in periods of disruption art is not defined in any one style," Ms. Kaufman said.

"Today there is a lot of different art, but it's so understood...We're at the point where nothing fazes us, except of course a world war," she said, noting that it might take another war to stimulate change in the art world.

In addition to her position at UCI, Ms. Kaufman serves on the board of directors of the Los Angeles Institute of Contemporary Art in Century City and is Southern California editor of a new quarterly publication, Visual Dialog.

Other lecturers in the series will be George James of Cal State Fullerton on "Photo Realism/Super Realism," Nov. 17; Don Lagerberg, professional art lecturer, on "Subculture Art," Jan. 19 and Ed Berea of the UCI faculty on "The New Abstract Expressionism," Feb. 16.

ALSO scheduled to speak are Diana Zlotnick, editor of Newsletter on the Arts, on "What's on in the Galleries," March 15; Bosjan Ader, a conceptual artist from UCI, on "The Dematerialization of the Art Object," April 19; and Sue Wilson of the Newport Harbor Art Museum on "New Approaches With Children's Art," May 17.

All lectures will be from 2 to 3 p.m. at the museum.

Picnics on the Run

Cheese, Meat Varied in Mesa Submarines

By CAROL MOORE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Move over Philadelphia.

Costa Mesa is well on its way to taking over your fame for super sandwiches, first called hoagies and now known variously as submarines, grinders, poor boys or Dagwoods.

Coast diners should take note of these places where they can get a quick picnic-on-the-run for these weekends when the weather doesn't turn on until 11 a.m.

The objectivity of the search was assured because I was looking for a new supply as my former source had closed.

RALPH'S Sandwiches, at the corner of E. 17th St. and Santa Ana Avenue, offers 50 varieties with the boast that "a truly good sandwich is as rare as a two dollar bill."

The spread is mayonnaise so these submarines don't have quite the zip in this department.

But you wouldn't believe how many chopped tomatoes, dill pickles and onions they add to a soft, seeded, elbow-length roll already brimming with pastrami, steak, ham or roast beef.

Or how the three-egg omelet sandwiches melt in your mouth.

Avocado is a welcome ingredient in about a third of the meat and cheese combinations. And two of the offerings are strictly for vegetarians.

PRICES vary from 85 cents for some small subs to $2.50 for the Monster: avocado, roast beef, turkey, ham AND Swiss cheese.

Most of the large sizes are $1.50 but easily feed two. A pair of football wives ahead of me described their take-outs as their husband's "fillers" for the three-hour game.

Best to call ahead, 642-6661, especially around lunch time.

Oil and vinegar enliven the layers of four delicious meats, three cheeses, green pepper and onions — all for $1.20. Minestrone soup and marinated vegetable salads beckon in the deli case.

Other sandwich possibilities include Italian sausage, meat ball, roast beef, pastrami, ham and cheese or turkey, from $1.05 to $1.45.

Philadelphia transplants will recognize the real hoagies and steak sandwiches served at George's two locations, 507 W. 19th St. and 2510 S. Bristol St.

Cheese, ham, shrimp, clam and tuna hoagies are updates of the original combinations devised by hungry shipbuilders at Hog Island near the Philadelphia Navy Yard during World War II.

They didn't want to wrap separate sandwiches so they split whole loaves and loaded them with everyone's favorite fillings.

For two-fisted grilled specialties, Eve's Gourmet Sandwiches are recommended. The melted cheese and Russian dressing add zest to various club combinations.

THAT SHOP, at 1767 Newport Blvd., 646-3820, also offers soups, salads, soft drinks and carrot cake to complete your picnic.

The $1.35 submarine at the Italian Village deli in South Coast Village is smaller than the rest but just as satisfying for light eaters. Plus there's the nicety of toasting the rolls which makes a crispy holder for the circular tangy smorgasbord surrounding the tomato and shredded lettuce.

Grads Find Acting Jobs

Intermission
Tom Titus

In his book "Acting Professionally," UC Irvine drama professor Robert Cohen does his best to discourage all but the most dedicated from seeking a career in the theater or the movies.

"A young actor with superb college credentials should no more expect to get a paid acting job than a political science graduate should expect to become a United States Senator," Cohen remarks. Yet it begins to be quite evident that a good deal of his former UCI students weren't taking their instructor too seriously.

For an updated edition of "Acting Professionally," Cohen surveyed the 46 students who comprised the Irvine Repertory Theater from its beginning in 1967 to its disbanding in 1970. Of these performers, a full 42 percent had become, by 1974, members of the major performing unions — Actor's Equity Association and/or the Screen Actors' Guild.

ANOTHER 40 percent also were keeping their talents sharpened by acting in nonunion positions or directing, choreographing and managing, Cohen reported.

Three recent UCI drama graduates will be appearing on Broadway this season, he added. They are Cameron Mason and Anne Given from the class of 1973 and Michael Stoddard, who graduated in 1974.

Mason, who played Bill in UCI's "Kiss Me, Kate," is featured in the Broadway hit "A Chorus Line." Miss Given (Desdemona in UCI's "Othello" and the girl in "The Fantasticks") is in the company of Pearl Bailey's "Hello Dolly," while Stoddard (now Michael Stratford) will understudy the lead in "Yentl."

Bruce Bouchard, who'll be remembered as the MC in Irvine's "Cabaret," is currently playing off Broadway in "The Hot L Baltimore."

STEPHEN Nisbet, like Bouchard a 1972 grad and a veteran of over a dozen UCI productions, is a regular on daytime television in "Search for Tomorrow." Kris Jolliff ('72), who played the title role in UCI's "Ondine," had a leading role in the national company of the musical "Grease" and is now doing TV programs and commercials in New York.

Robert Gunton, one of UCI's first graduates in 1969 and one of the finest talents to come out of the Irvine drama program, recently had co-starring billing in the Broadway hit "A Little Night Music." Gunton played the Marquis de Sade to Cohen's Jean Paul Marat in the university's "Marat/Sade" as well as appearing as Oedipus in the first Irvine Repertory production and playing the title role in Cohen's original drama "The Death of Morris Biederman."

Other UCI alumni in the professional ranks include Richard O'Connell, Linda Alper, Susan Bedsow, Craig Gardner and Larry Lott, who recently directed an original play, "Ben," by another UCI grad, Elaine Bernard, in London.

In Blues Special

Singers Mose Allison and Bonnie Raitt will be featured on "In Performance at Wolf Trap," Monday at 8 p.m. on Channel 28.

India Dance Classes

India's well-known dancer Indrani and her company of dancers and musicians will present a lecture-demonstration and a master class at Golden West College in Huntington Beach on Nov. 5.

The lecture-demonstration (admission $2) will take place from 3 to 5 p.m. and the master class (also $2) from 5:30 to 7 p.m. in the recreation building, room 201 (dance studio.) Presale tickets are on sale at the college bookstore, with participation limited to 100.

'Conquests' Lively Fun

By DENNIS McLELLAN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

If "Table Manners," the first of a trilogy of English comedies, is any indication, American audiences are in store for a delightful and diverting three evenings of theater.

"Table Manners," which premiered last week at the Ahmanson Theater of the Los Angeles Music Center is one of three plays under the catch-all title "The Norman Conquests."

The other two plays, "Living Together," and "Round and Round the Garden," are performed on alternating nights. All three have the same cast and characters.

THE NORMAN of the above-mentioned conquests is played by Richard Benjamin as a love-starved assistant librarian who sets out to change his situation by romantically conquering his wife's sister, Annie (Paula Prentiss) and his sister-in-law, Sarah (Estelle Parsons).

There is little to be said against the view from the dining room.

English playwright Alan Ayckbourn —whose prolific writing has led him to be compared with America's Neil Simon—has succeeded in creating an evening filled with laughter, at the same time making sharp statements on human foibles.

RICHARD Benjamin as Norman stands out as the most lively and entertaining of characters. His marital frustrations turn him into a wacky and enjoyable character to watch, especially in a breakfast table scene where, ignored by his relatives, he is forced to carry on a conversation with himself.

Norman's love of life and love is in sharp contrast to his businesswoman wife Ruth, played with stuffy perfection by Carole Shelley.

Miss Prentiss as Annie has the least demanding role. She plays the part in a decidedly more subdued manner than is characteristic of her past roles.

Barrie Nelson is good as the quick-with-a-quip Reg who would much rather play golf on a sunny Saturday afternoon than be with relatives.

'Condor' Top Spy Yarn

Movie Review by Robert Q

To put it unequivocally, "Three Days of the Condor" is one of the best spy, intrigue melodramas Hollywood's ever turned out.

Robert Redford plays Joseph Turner, a CIA reader-researcher, who is plunged into a harrowing chain of events that exposes covert activities within the agency.

And this story line, an intensely gripping series of events which literally leaps out of your morning newspaper, is as brilliantly constructed as a three-dimensional chess game. It is another great success for Redford and Faye Dunaway and another blockbuster for Sidney Pollack who has directed with consummate skill at breakneck pace.

The most startling aspect of the film is the realization that the situations it depicts have apparently occurred.

This Stanley Schneider production for Paramount has been tended carefully in every phase. The casting is perfect. In addition to Redford and Dunaway, Cliff Robertson, Max von Sydow and John Houseman add colorful characterizations.

The writing is concise and to the point. Its message is clear: No government agency, especially those involved in police and espionage activities, can be allowed go its own way, unchecked. "Condor" will certainly entertain you; it may also give you a great deal to think about.

'Nashville' Charming

FLICK FARE

NASHVILLE — Director Robert Altman introduces 24 disparate, sometimes desperate characters in an attempt to profile America through a country-music scene microcosm. Seductively related, this loose tale of paths that cross and values that clash is framed by the presidential campaign of a populist candidate. The C&W music is sarcastically trite but as charming as the movie itself, with top performers by a whole covey of stars. (R)

THE HIDING PLACE — Not a religious movie, but a movie about religious people who took God with them into a Nazi prison camp in Holland during World War II. The surprise is not that Julie Harris and some other familiar talents do a creditable job, but that newcomer Jeannette Clift is very appealing in a top role. Some very exlicit violence scenes earn the film a PG rating, but the pace drags nevertheless. (PG)

CLOCKWORK ORANGE — The violence has been highly publicized but it's so stylized that it rarely seems real. Intellectuals will finds this an intriguing movie; others may find it distasteful. (R)

MONTY PYTHON AND THE HOLY GRAIL — This satirical look at King Arthur's court has some very funny parts reminiscent of early Mel Brooks and Woody Allen, although the film doesn't quite come together as a whole. (PG)

GIVE 'EM HELL, HARRY! — It's almost too much Harry, even for a real Truman buff, but James Whitmore does an incredible job of staying totally in character, even when the wide-screen cameras zoom in for a closeup that practically looks at his tonsils. James Whitmore IS Harry S Truman in this re-creation on film of his live tour de force from the stages of America. (PG)

TOMMY — The Ken Russell version of The Who's rock opera is a kaleidoscope of sometimes-brutal, sometimes-moving images which, overall, are effective. The film stars Ann-Margret, Oliver Reed and Roger Daltrey. (PG)

JAWS — The impact is terrifying in this story of a killer shark which may give you nightmares but is sure to please lovers of suspense. Superb acting by Robert Shaw and Richard Dreyfuss. (PG)

Ethnic Night Set

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Students with the Los Angeles Philharmonic's orchestral training program for minorities, local choirs, music and dance groups are tuning their instruments and rehearsing for the first daylong Ethnic Music Festival at the Music Center Oct. 25.

The purpose of the program, sponsored by the philharmonic, is to give ethnic minorities a showplace for their talents and create awareness within the community of musical entertainment, said a spokeswoman for the program.

The orchestral training programs for minority students provide music training for 40 young people between the ages of 10 and 20.

The daylong activities will begin with a youth concert conducted by Associate Conductor Sidney Harth and end with an evening concert under the baton of Zubin Mehta, the philharmonic's music director.

Five hours of entertainment will be staged by dancers and music organizations from the American Indian, Asia, Black and Spanish-speaking communities at the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion and in the Music Center plaza.

Newporter Inn
Newport Beach, CA

Dr. E. Lee Doyle of Dallas, Texas will be the featured speaker at a two day workshop on "Human Sexuality—Trick or Treat" presented for the general public October 25 & 26 at the Newporter Inn in Newport Beach.

This is a rare opportunity for anyone who wants to improve his general knowledge and awareness of sexuality, who wants more comprehensive understanding of male and female orgasmic functionong, who would like to improve his overall sexual and sensual attitudes or just become a more sensitive and loving human being, as well as those who have a more specific sexual dysfunction but have not had the opportunity of awareness of where to go for help.

In a professional and tasteful manner the full range of human sexuality will be explored and discussed, with some use of slides and films. There will be opportunity for the audience to present written questions to the speakers for discussion, throughout the two days.

About the Speakers . . .

Currently, Dr. Doyle is engaged in private practice at Dallas, Texas, and is teaching Communications in Marriage and Family at Texas Woman's University. Her memberships include: American Psychological Association, Texas Psychological Association, American Association of Marriage and Family Counselors (Board Member), National Council of Family Relations, and Scientific Society for the Study of Sex.

William Pickering, Ph.D., the luncheon speaker each day, received his university training in English, philosophy, theology, and psychology. He received his license in Clinical Psychology from The State of California, Board of Medical Examiners, in 1973.

Dr. Pickering was a clergyman for 10 years, and received honors in homiletics (public speaking) from several major universities. Flames Engulf Warehouse

Pilot Dies in OC Crash

He Crashed Into Warehouse Near South End of Orange County Airport

Firemen Injured In Blaze

By ALAN DIRKIN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A twin engine Beech Baron airplane crashed near Orange County Airport this morning, killing the pilot and spewing flames and debris through a huge Costa Mesa warehouse.

Identification of the pilot was not immediately available.

Two Costa Mesa firemen were injured battling the blaze. One was hospitalized.

Two warehouse workers inside the structure were thrown to the floor by the crash and explosion which followed.

They said they were able to run out through the flames and flying debris and escaped with apparently minor injuries.

One fireman, Scott Barger, was taken to Costa Mesa Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries suffered when a high-pressure hose coupling came apart and the heavy metal hit him in the face.

Authorities said Fire Capt. Barry Adams was also injured, but was treated by paramedics at the scene.

Firemen from several cities fought the blaze in the warehouse of Memorex ConData at 385 Clinton Ave., Costa Mesa, a building about 100 feet from the southwest of the airport perimeter.

Federal Aviation Administration official Russ Thayer said the pilot was executing an apparent approach when he lost the plane in fog with a ceiling of 100 feet and one-quarter mile visibility.

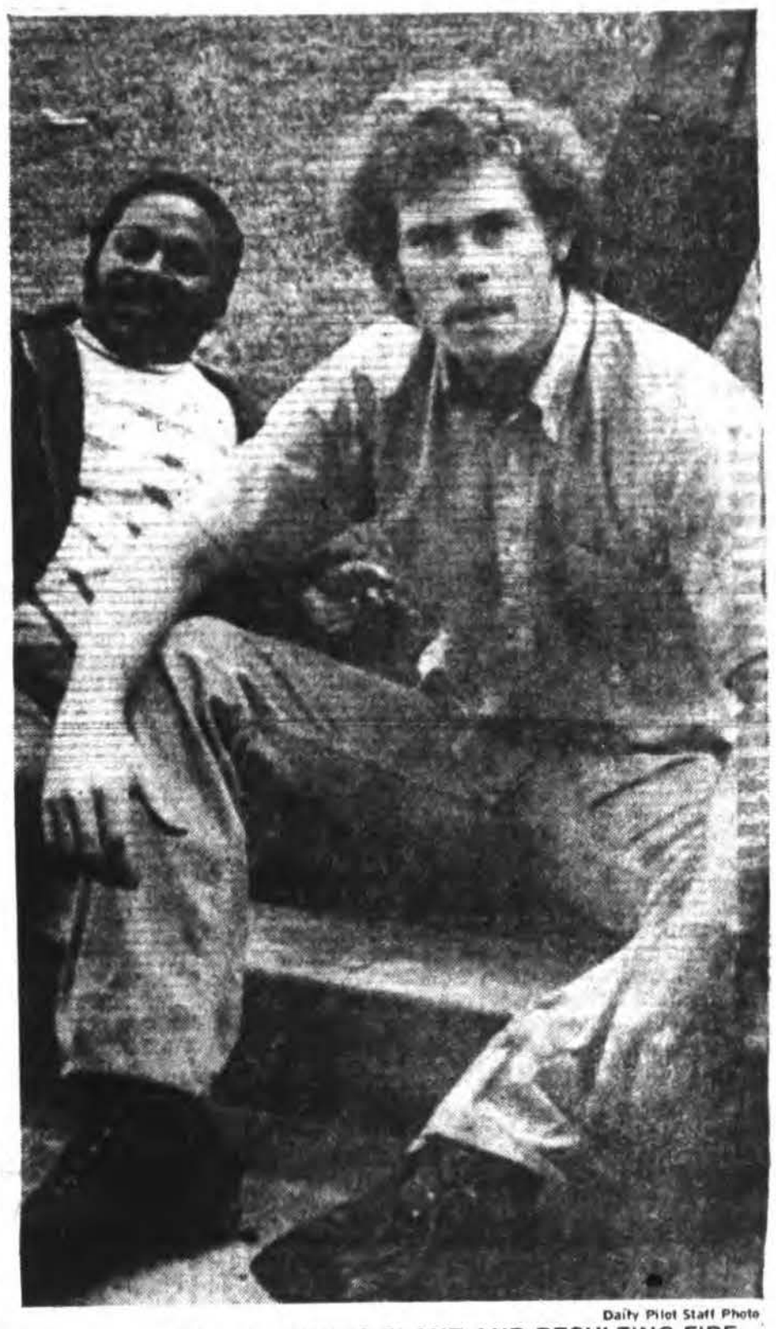

The weather conditions were reported to the pilot by Orange County airport tower aides, Thayer said.

The FAA official said that the pilot was on instrument landing and was executing his approach. In such circumstances there is a minimum altitude that a pilot can go down to, then he must be able to see the runway threshold.

It could not be determined whether the plane crashed through the roof of the building or through the front.

One of the warehousemen said that the plane came through the roof, but an airport official said that there were marks to indicate the plane might have skidded through the front.

WM Officer Faces Eight Sex Charges

YUMA, Ariz. (UPI) — A woman Marine officer is being court-martialed for allegedly having sex with eight enlisted men, her mother reported, complaining of discrimination because no action is being taken against the men.

Lt. Mary C. Niflis, 23, faces charges of conduct unbecoming an officer and gentlewoman, and disobedience of orders against fraternizing with enlisted personnel, said her mother, Mrs. Eric M. Rickard of Southard, Conn.

Mrs. Rickard wrote to Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.), and Arizona news organizations, protesting that the Marine Corps acted only against her daughter, filing no charges against the eight men.

Lt. Niflis had been stationed at the Yuma Marine Corps Air Station since November, 1973.

Attorney Jay W. Jeffcoat confirmed Mrs. Rickard's story, saying he had been hired as her defense attorney when her court-martial begins Nov. 12 at El Toro Marine Corps Air Station.

A Marine spokesman at El Toro would not comment.

The charges of sexual relations with enlisted men cover eight separate incidents, the lawyer said. The charge of disobedience of a direct order carries a possible sentence of five years in prison.

Jeffcoat said the lieutenant had offered to resign her commission under honorable conditions, but her commanding officer refused.

2 CdM Coeds Cite Talk With Mang

By HILARY KAYE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Two Corona del Mar High School senior girls testified at the dismissal hearing against suspended teacher Michael Mang that the instructor told them, when asked last spring, that his class would be "fornicating."

Defense attorney John Williams attempted to get the girls to admit Mang might have said either "formicating" or "forticating" — words with decidedly different meanings.

Fornicating means the act of sexual intercourse but formicating means "swarming with ants" and forticate is to "strengthen or reinforce."

Both girls, who were clad in blue and white cheerleader outfits Thursday, insisted the word was fornicating.

They testified that the conversation took place last May, when Laura Asbury and Diana Clark, both 16, asked Mang in the school's media center what his class would be doing that afternoon.

Miss Clark, Mang's former student, said her teacher answered "fornicating."

She said none of the three students who heard the remark understood the meaning of the word but that teacher Dan Gillis and school nurse Cheryl Caverly, who were both standing nearby told Miss Asbury that it was a word for "the sex act."

Miss Asbury stated she was "a little embarrassed" to learn the meaning of the word from two adults, and Gillis, an English teacher at the school, said he was "really shocked."

Mang, 35, faces 36 charges of unprofessional conduct brought against him by the Newport-Mesa Unified School District. He was suspended from teaching his social studies classes at Corona

Carr's Resignation Tied to His 'Goals'

By FREDERICK SCHOEMEHL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Professional goals and personal considerations were cited by San Clemente City Manager Keneneth Carr in announcing Thursday that he will step down as city manager to become the city's finance director.

Ctity councilmen approved Carr's request to leave the city's top administrative post during a lengthy executive session Wednesday night. Carr has been city manager for 11 years.

"I have carefully weighed professional goals and objectives along with personal considerations," Carr said in a statement issued at midday Thursday.

Asked if his reason for requesting the reassignment was due to persistent disagreements with some city council members, Carr said, "The statement speaks for itself. I don't think it requires elaboration."

Both Carr and Mayor Anthony DiGiovanni said there was no demand from the council for him to seek a reassignment or resign.

In his statement, Carr said he had given considerable thought over the last several months to leaving the city manager's position.

During the same period, he has been caught in the middle of a controversy between the City Council and police officers over the officers' decision to hire the Teamsters Union as its negotiating agent.

Carr served as the council's negotiator until May when he recommended that the council's position be represented by an outside consultant.

On the personal front, Carr's 22-year-old son, Ronald, was arrested in August on suspicion of sales of cocaine. His case is pending in Superior Court.

Carr will replace Gerald Teachout, 60, as the city's finance director. Teachout has suffered two heart attacks recently, and has asked to retire.

Carr said he will remain as city manager until the council hires a successor. DiGiovanni predicted that the hiring process could take three to four months.

"I think Ken is an outstanding finance man," DiGiovanni said. "It's fortunate we can still have him."

A native of Glendale, Carr was raised in the Los Angeles area. He worked in banking, insurance and pharmaceutical manufacturing industries until 1957, when he became a city administrative assistant in Paramount. In 1959, he became assistant city manager of Compton. He became San Clemente City Manager in August 1964.

Amoco Cuts Gas Price 1¢

CHICAGO (UPI) — Amoco Oil Co., the nation's fourth largest gasoline supplier, today reduced its price one cent per gallon to become the third major oil firm in four days to make the cutback.

Amoco's decision came one day after the nation's second largest supplier, Shell Oil Co., trimmed a penny from its prices. Exxon did it on Tuesday.

Crescent Bay Work Frozen by Council

Development of remaining Crescent Bay Point lots has been frozen by action of the Laguna Beach City Council which Wednesday approved an interim open space zoning designation for the oceanfront lots.

The action affects seven lots including the one already developed with an occupied house.

The council's action was designed to prevent development of the lots until a study is done on the potential for public acquisition of the lands. The city and the county this year acquired three lots for $550,000 on the point itself.

The interim zone can be applied for 120 days after which it may be continued if the studies are not complete.

To accommodate property holders of lots north of the existing house, the council ordered the planning commission to first determine if property there would be needed for park development.

If not, the council will consider lifting the freeze on those properties.

'False Claims'

Homeowners Sue Rossmoor

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Rossmoor Corporation, a group of defendants identified in the lawsuit as subsidiaries of the developers and a utility were sued by the state Thursday in a consumer fraud action.

Defendants in a lawsuit filed for the state by the Orange County District Attorney's economic crime division include the Southern California Edison Company and the Casa Linda realty group.

It is alleged in the Superior Court action that 214 persons who bought homes in the New World development in Laguna Hills were the victims of a series of false representations made by the Rossmoor group.

Linked with Rossmoor Corporation to those allegations are Oaklawn Homes, Rossmoor Water Company and Rossmoor Sanitation Company.

Also named is L. G. Fuglie who is identified by Deputy District Attorney C. Brent Swanson as a corporate officer of the Oaklawn company at the same time as he held the office of president of the Moulton Parkway Residents Association.

Swanson said he will seek a civil judgment that could compel the defendants to post signs admitting their liability on charges of consumer fraud, unfair competition and repeated violations of real estate laws. The suit seeks penalties that total more than $10 million.

That judgment, Swanson said, would also provide for restitution to New World residents who demand compensation from the defendants.

The bulky lawsuit alleges that the New World residents were assured by defendants that their new homes were of stucco construction and were designed to keep out jet noise prevalent in the Laguna Hills area.

It is alleged that the construction material used was actually two-inch plywood coated with an inferior substance which proved inadequate in terms of soundproofing or insulation.

It is also alleged that residents in the 214-home tract were promised an 86-home "adult only" area, prohibited by state and federal law, a parking area for trailers that proved to be far too small and two wading pools that were never built.

In addition, Swanson said, the residents were faced with extra monthly payments that included $4.50 for sewage service, a total of $900 a month to Edison for exterior lighting in addition to regular light bills and extra unlawful payments for water lines and fire hydrants.

The lawsuit further charges Edison with illegally cutting off exterior lights for four months during a dispute with New World residents. An action filed by Edison is awaiting trial in Superior Court.

Swanson explained Thursday that the New World residents had been "saddled with a blanket encumbrance that none of them expected or were warned about and all of them are protesting."

Documents Claim

Patty Shared SLA Sex Life

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Multipartner sexual relations were an integral part of the day-to-day lives of the fugitive Symbionese Liberation Army members — including Patricia Hearst, the Los Angeles Times reported today.

The Times, quoting documents found in the apartment of SLA members Bill and Emily Harris, said the sexual practices were used to preserve "feminist self-determination" by successfully smashing "the dependencies created by monogamal (sic) personal sexual relationships . . . in the cell."

The Times said the documents it obtained appear to include a series of answers to questions submitted to the SLA by an unnamed person, similar to the kind of queries a writer might use in the preparation of material for a book.

Other writings obtained by the Times include a handwritten discourse on the kinds of problems female SLA members faced as "feminist freedom fighters" and a typewritten message apparently written to Miss Hearst by an SLA member.

The Times said some investigators believed the Hearst message is written in the style of Bill Harris, and the question-answer series appears to have been handled by his wife, Emily.

The FBI had no immediate comment on the authenticity of the documents or their possible authorship.

The writings stressed that the multipartner relationships were not limited to heterosexual activities, the Times said.

"Our position was one of conditional practicality," one document read. "We knew from the experience what it was like to live in the cell.

"So far as sex was concerned, we had to get most of our sexual and personal needs met by comrades within the cell. Everyone realized that at this time there was no time for exclusive relationships because each of us had to help the other comrades meet their sexual needs and maintain harmony in the cell."

MANG . . .

del Mar High last May.

A third student to testify, Doug Killian, alleged that Mang answered his classroom intercom with the phrase, "Clyde's Abortion Mill. You rape 'em, we scrape 'em."

Killian said students in the class laughed when the remark was made and were "startled" that Mang had said it.

Killian also testified that Mang told his class "a certain percentage of the faculty is homosexual."

Killian, who did not recall the exact percentage used by Mang, added under cross examination that the remark came up when a student asked Mang about a former teacher.

Another witness, James Tomlin, related an incident last spring when Mang allegedly greeted another teacher with a coarse obscenity.

Tomlin, a social studies teacher and track coach, related the incident in such a comic manner that both the participants in the hearing and members of the audience laughed throughout his testimony.

He said that Mang greeted teacher Henry Wong with the obscenity before the start of school in the social studies office.

Tomlin admitted the remark was probably made "facetiously", but said he was concerned students might have been within earshot. He added that he saw no students near the open door.

Design Change OK'd For El Camino Park

In a split vote, San Juan Capistrano City Councilmen Wednesday approved a revised design for El Camino Real Park.

The city will now advertise for bids on the project.

The council sent the park design back to the planning department two weeks ago after residents objected to the location of restrooms and picnic facilities. Residents also complained that the planned plants and trees would not block noise.

In the new plan, picnic and restroom facilities have been moved, landscaping has been altered and several evergreens have been added.

Councilmen Doug Nash and Yvon Heckscher opposed the new plan.

Nash asked that the restroom facilities be removed from the plans until a citywide study of the need for such facilities could be accomplished. He said he does not believe the park is the most logical place for such facilities."

The four-acre park runs in a long, narrow strip between Camino Capistrano and the railroad tracks from Oso Road to La Zanja Street.

Financed with $50,000 each from the city, county and state, the park also will include an outdoor theater, pedestrian walkways and a bike trail.

Sawdust Gifts To Lagunans Equal $9,000

Funds given to ACT-5 will be used by the organization to provide new parking lots, public transportation and relieve traffic congestion during the summer art festival season.

Scholarships will aid two Laguna Beach High School graduates for full-year terms at the School of Art. Two other students will be given half-year grants. Two scholarships will be given to Laguna Beach senior citizens.

OC AIRPORT CRASH . . .

The two warehousemen who escaped were taken to Costa Mesa Memorial Hospital suffering from shock and minor injuries. A Costa Mesa fireman was also slightly injured in the face by flying debris.

John Loeffert, 21, of Anaheim, said he was in the building with Carrol White, 37, of Santa Ana when the plane crashed through the roof about 20 yards from them.

"We went through the flames running like crazy," Loeffert said. "We fell down three or four times. We made it out of the door about 25 yards away.

"The pilot we didn't see in the plane. We were lying on the dirt outside the building and I saw the pilot's body out next to a truck."

Don Wilson, personnel manager for Memorex said that the two warehousemen were the only people in the building located at the end of a cul de sac in the industrial complex. Wilson could not estimate the cost of the value of the warehouse but said that the building, used strictly for storage, was filled with plastic computer components worth at least $250,000.

Memorex has an assembly building located nearby 1352 Reynolds.

The pilot was the only occupant of the plane.

An hour after the crash, about 8:30 a.m., fire fighters were still battling to bring the inferno under control though the blaze was contained and did not appear to be in danger of spreading to any other industrial plants in the area.

Costa Mesa fire protection analyst Russ Henderson said that the intensity of the fire was due to the highly combustible aluminized material inside the building and the fuel of the plane.

It was believed that the sprinkler system was knocked out by the crash and that there were running water mains inside.

Onlookers were turned back from the area by firemen who expected one wall of the building to collapse. The warehouse appeared to be a total loss.

Part of the plane was on the landscaping in front of the building.

The warehouseman Loeffert, who lives at 2230 Orange Ave., Anaheim, had a scraped leg, but his partner White was in shock and given oxygen by the Costa Mesa paramedics before being taken to hospital. Loeffert said he also got a bump on the head.

The FAA official said that the plane was among what is termed transient traffic.

He said that the pilot was given the weather conditions by the airport and was geared for an instrument approach.

The pilot did not confirm by radio that he was executing a missed approach, just before the crash occurred but it was assumed he was doing that because the location of the crash site was at the opposite end of the field for a landing.

The weather conditions were below instrument landing standards but the clearance for approach was not clearance to land.

The procedure, the official said, allows the pilot to go down to what is called a decision height, a minimum altitude at which time he must be able to see the runway threshold environment or he must then execute a missed approach.

The plane was following the normal instrument landing approach to the airport from the north.

Taiwan Scuttles JAL's Shuttles

By MILTON MOSKOWITZ

The world's newest airline is Japan-Asia Airways (JAA), and it owes its existence to political hatred. You're not likely to be flying JAA unless you decide to visit Taiwan, which is the island Chiang Kai-shek retreated to in 1949 when the Chinese Communists occupied the mainland and established the People's Republic of China.

JAA flies between Tokyo and Taipei, the capital of Taiwan. That's the only route it has. It will probably never get another one. It doesn't want one. It was set up just to fly this one route.

Politics dictate many bizarre happenings in the international airline business, and the creation of JAA is surely a classic example.

IT'S NOT THAT AIRLINE service between Japan and Taiwan is not needed. On the contrary, it's a heavily traveled route, currently flown by seven airlines, including our own Northwest Airlines. And up to 1974, it was the busiest route flown by Japan Air Lines (JAL), Japan's national flight carrier.

JAL, now one of the leading international carriers, had a problem with this route order it wanted to fly to mainland China. The Taiwanese government was blunt about it: If you fly to Peking, you don't fly to Taipei.

JAL chose the route to mainland China. Began flying there in April of 1974.

Taiwan kept its word. JAL's service was suspended. Indeed the Taiwanese were so furious that they warned JAL that if any of its planes flew over Taiwan en route to China, they might be shot down.

SO JAL HAS BEEN shut out of this lucrative market for more than a year. From a strictly business standpoint it made no sense. On the two flights a week it now makes to Shanghai and Peking, JAL carries about 30,000 passengers a year. On the 37 flights a week it used to operate in Taipei, JAL carried 30,000 passengers every month.

Japan-Asia Airways is JAL's answer to this ludicrous situation. While any plane bearing JAL's insignia is forbidden to set down in Taiwan, the prohibition does not extend to planes bearing the newly created JAA insignia.

JAA inaugurated service between Tokyo and Taipei on Sept. 15. It's making 12 flights a week, using DC-8s. Next year it will add Boeing 747 jumbo jets as it gradually expands its service to the 37 flights a week formerly operated by JAL.

IT APPARENTLY DOESN'T bother the Taiwanese that JapanAsia Airways is a wholly owned subsidiary of Japan Air Lines. They just don't want to see JAL at Taipei Airport. JAA is okay.

Phone Rate Hikes Of 60% Seen by '85

DALLAS (UPI) — A study shows that business and residential telephone rates could increase by nearly 60 percent by 1985, the U.S. Independent Telephone Association has announced.

The prediction was based on an industry financed study of competition in the telecommunications field over the next 10 years, the association said.

JAMES T. NAYLOR, staff director of the USITA interconnection committee, disclosed the figures at the association's 78th annual convention in Dallas.

"If competition in some of our markets is going to prevail, we need to define those markets and we need to be assured of the opportunity to compete on a fair and equitable basis," Naylor said in prepared remarks. "Our survival may depend on early reaction to the prospective changes."

The USITA hired a California firm, Systems Applications, Inc., to conduct the $360,000 study.

NAYLOR SAID the study showed a severe economic impact on the independent telephone industry.

The report showed that, under a 'most likely' scenario over the next 10 years, business rates would increase 55 percent and residential rates 58 percent by 1985.

The USITA said the report took into account the fact that the nation's telephone industry, historically functioning as a regulated monopoly by Bell and independent companies, faced new competition under decisions of the Federal Communications Commission.

3rd Best Year

Construction Up For Huntington

By ROBERT BARKER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Building activity is heading for its third highest year in Huntington Beach history, according to John F. Behrens, director of building and community development.

Behrens said construction performed in the first nine months of this year amounted to $71,749,542 and would climb to approximately $95,000,000 at the end of the year.

ONLY 1969 AND 1972, each of which he said was a record for cities in Orange County exceeded this figure, according to Behrens.

"Huntington Beach has never been down like other communities," Behrens said. "Beach cities don't seem to be subject to the fluctuations of inland areas."

Behrens said 1975 was helped a bit by easing of money after some tightening of construction in 1974.

According to figures given by Behrens, the September building total is more than four times that of last year. It brings the total for the first nine months of 1975 to 62 percent above the same period of 1974.

THE NUMBER OF permits issued, 3830, is up 60 percent from a year ago. A total of 593 permits were issued in September compared to 313 last year. The September surge brought the number of single family units to 1,065 for the year.

Behrens also said that it was significant that building permits for commercial and industrial development in September were valued at $2,102,227, a high mark for the year.

Tract sales remain high, according to Behrens, who said that most homes are sold before they are built.

HE SAID they are priced at $50,000 and up.

"The demand remains high," he added.

I Never Got Down, Says Reds Hero Perez

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Boston Red Sox find themselves on the critical list after being hit and run over by the Big Red Machine.

After looking sick in the first four games of the World Series, Tony Perez suddenly regained his health with two home runs as the Cincinnati Reds beat the Red Sox, 6-2, Thursday night and took a 3-2 stranglehold in the best-of-seven game classic.

The National League champions can polish off the Red Sox Saturday in the sixth game at Fenway Park, where Jack Billingham will face Boston lefthander Bill Lee.

"I never get down on myself," said Perez, who had fought a torturous batting slump before breaking it Thursday night before the appreciative, roaring hometown fans in Riverfront Stadium.

In the sixth, Perez got another good pitch from the beefy Boston right-hander and parked that one a little higher over the left-center field fence. Two men were on base at the time and it gave hard-throwing Don Gullett a handsome 5-1 lead.

"On the first home run, the ball was in on me and it felt good when I hit it," said Perez, happy to finally escape the clutches of his Series-long slump. "It was the first pitch all Series inside to me. The second homer was on a fastball inside. They kept the ball away from me all series, but tonight they came in. I felt real good in batting practice."

Perez had tried everything to crack the distressing drought. He told reporters that his superstitious wife, Pituka, urged him to try driving a different way to the ballpark for Game 5. Also, she took Tony shopping before the game to "spend money" and try to get his mind off the Series.

"She tried everything to get me back in the groove again," Perez said.

Perez' depressing slump had reached such a point that manager Sparky Anderson tried some humor before the game to loosen up his bull-shouldered star. The good-natured manager kidded the first baseman that the way he was going, he would soon set a record for hitless appearances in a World Series.

"I don't want that record," Perez told Anderson before he went on his hitting tear.

"It got to be ridiculous," Anderson told the press afterward. "I had to lighten things up with a little joke. I've seen what slumps can do to power hitters. Our power boys, like Tony and Johnny Bench, are either red-hot or ice-cold. They're streak hitters — and when they start streaking, watch out."

Perez has been in slumps before but never worried about them.

While the Cuban-born star was making life miserable for the American League champions with his bat, Gullett was making them look sick with his arm. The Reds' best pitcher gave up just two hits to Boston through eight innings and then three more in the ninth before being forced from the game with just one out to go.

Red Sox Remain Confident

CINCINNATI (AP) — Beaten in the fifth game? Yes. Down 3-2 to the Cincinnati Reds in the World Series? Yes. A whipped team? Definitely NO.

That summed up the general feeling among the Boston Red Sox today as they returned home; faced with the task of winning two in a row from the Reds for the city's first World Series championship since 1918.

Except for southpaw Bill Lee, the Red Sox talked softly but with the confidence they've shown all year after dropping a 6-2 decision to the Reds in Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium.

Lee, listed as the starting pitcher for Saturday's sixth game at Fenway Park, released personal tension by sipping tea and wise-cracking with writers.

"I like pressure," he said. "I'm going to show up. What else can I do. I'm not gonna lie down and play dead. I won't have cardiac arrest. I'll do what I can."

Team captain Carl Yastrzemski, who led the Red Sox to their last pennant in 1967, recalled the drama of the past two days of that championship season as he looked ahead, hopefully, to two games with Cincinnati this weekend.

"I keep thinking back to 1967 when he beat the Minnesota Twins two in a row to win the pennant," Yaz said. "I know we can do it with the Reds. The fans will give us a tremendous lift in our ball park."

"This puts them one up, but they still have to win four," said third baseman Rico Petrocelli, the only other Boston player still around from the 1967 team.

"Sure, we're behind 3-2 in the series, but now we're going home to our ball park," Petrocelli said. "We're just going to have to go like heck Saturday. You can bet we'll be ready. We've come from behind all year, and we can do it again."

Although most admitted the team did not play very well in the field, the Red Sox gave due credit to Cincinnati southpaw Don Gullett for a fine pitching performance which gave the Reds the series advantage. Gullett allowed only two hits until tiring in the ninth and needing relief help.

Dark Out, Mauch In At Oakland?

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley will offer manager Alvin Dark's job to Gene Mauch, a Birmingham newspaper reported in today's editions.

The Birmingham Post-Herald said Finley decided not to renew Dark's contract, which expired at the end of the 1975 season, partly because of the owner's displeasure with Dark's last two seasons.

And the paper quoted reliable sources as saying the club was up for sale for an estimated $15 million, but there were no immediate offers.

The Post-Herald also said that Finley was upset over a comment made by Dark at a church service on the West Coast. Dark told the congregation, the paper said, that Finley was "going to hell."

Also, the sources reportedly said, Finley complained that his manager had no control over his players.

Dark is in his second tenure as head of the club. After he was hired for the second time, Finley said: "Yes, he has been manager of this club before. Yes, he was fired. Yes he is back to manage this club. Yes, he expects to be fired again some day."

After a 14-season career as a major league infielder, Dark stopped playing in 1960 and began directing the San Francisco Giants the next year.

In 1962, he led the Giants to a National League pennant, but was fired just two years later.

He went to Kansas City and Finley in 1966 and lasted that year and part of the next before the owner fired him for the first time. From there he went to Cleveland, as skipper and general manager, but was dismissed with 2½ years left on his contract.

After a few seasons out of baseball, Dark returned to the Finley organization — and took the A's to its third consecutive World Series victory. This month, his team was beaten by the Boston Red Sox in three straight games during the AL playoffs. Mauch was recently fired by Montreal.

Comedy of Errors

Another Foulup In Pan Am Games

MEXICO CITY (AP)—The VII Pan American Games almost made it through one day without controversy.

Emphasize "almost."

As the fifth day of the problem-plagued Games began today, the United States tied the Cubans in gold medals, 26-26, and jumped out to a healthy 66-50 edge in total medals. The gold-silver-bronze count for the Americans was 26-24-16 with the Cubans at 26-16-8. Next was Canada at 5-6-12 with host Mexico following with 3-5-11.

Thursday's schedule started out innocently enough, but just as it had each of the three previous days, officialdom came down with a case of foot-in-mouth disease.

This time it was in the women's 200-meter finals where young Americans Chandra Cheeseborough and Pamela Jiles finished 1-2 in a photo finish that took hours to sort out.

But just before the medals were to handed out, a misinformed official told Jiles she had won. So she joyfully accepted what she thought was her second gold of the Games.

Later, when the mixup was discovered, the medals were tearfully exchanged.

Two disputes left over from Wednesday's comedy of errors were mediated Thursday. A jury of appeal let stand the results in the men's discus, even though it was conceded the Cuban who won the silver medal used an illegal disc. Americans John Powell and Jay Silvester took the gold and bronze medals.

The Yanks fared better in the three-day equestrian finals where a protest had been lodged over the accidential disqualification of world champion Bruce Davidson of Unionville, Pa., in the middle of an impressive run. An official thought Davidson was Canadian Jim Day, who was ousted for a minor rules violation.

Davidson was allowed to resume his ride from the point of disqualification. He finished with a silver medal behind Tad Coffin of Strafford, Vt., the gold medal winner.

The U.S. equestrian team also earned a gold medal — one of eight Thursday for the Americans.

After three days of Cuban domination in weightlifting, the United States finally made a successful challenge. Lee James won two gold medals of three in the light heavyweight weightlifting categories. Cuba's Abel Lopez won the other gold, and both silvers. James had the third silver.

In middle heavyweight, the Americans did even better with Phil Grippaldi winning two golds and a bronze, and Frank Capsouras, adding a silver and two bronze.

Both U.S. gold medals in track and field were Pan Am records. Cheeseborough, with Jiles four-hundredths of a second behind, traveled the 200 meters in 22.77, bettering a mark Jiles set in preliminaries, and Tom Woods, a senior at Oregon State, triumphantly cleared 7-4½ on his final try in the high jump.

Guyana won its first gold medals of the Games, thanks to University of California sprinter James Gilkes, a legal resident of the small South American country. Gilkes won the 200 meters with a clocking of 20.43 seconds.

Diane Jones of Canada easily outdistanced runner-up Gail Fitzgerald of the U.S., 4,673 points to 4,486 in the women's pentathlon. Jones' sister, Joanne, was seventh.

Mexicans set the pace in the 5,000-meter run, Domingo Tibauduiza of Colombia and Ted Castenada of the U.S. swept past them in the late going and finished 1-2 in the event. Rodolfo Gomez, the Pan Am torch lighter last Sunday, held on for third behind the winning time of 14 minutes, 2 seconds.

In basketball, the undefeated U.S. men's squad rolled to an easy victory over Puerto Rico, 85-53. Otis Birdsong led the Americans with 18 points, and coach Marv Harshman was able to play substitutes most of the second half after building a 36-19 halftime edge.

Cuba, the United States and Mexico were the top three in the fencing foil team finals.

Uncertainty Surrounds Sun Game

HONOLULU (AP) — Players and management of the World Football League Hawaiians appeared to be nearing settlement, but it remained uncertain whether the Hawaiians would play here Sunday against the Southern California Sun.

The team earlier voted not to take the field after rejecting two proposals for cutting pay.

Player representative Ken Bowman said Thursday that "it is safe to assume" that Sunday's game would be played. Henry Shigekane, a member of the team's executive committee, also said he understood the game would be played.

Coach Mike Giddings, however, injected another note of uncertainty Thursday when he hinted that coaches might boycott the game.

"We will not put a team on the field, or at least we will not be with that team on the field Sunday, unless we feel as coaches that they have a chance to win and that we can give the fans their money's worth," Giddings said.

The team did not practice Wednesday or Thursday, and Giddings said he did not know if there would be a practice session today.

"There is no question that we are in real financial difficulty," Giddings added.

Management reportedly asked many players to accept a pay cut to $250 a game.

The Honolulu Star-Bulletin quoted a team source as saying that WFL officials in New York have asked all players to take pay cuts.

The league's board of governors met in New York earlier this week amid reports that they were considering disbanding. League president Chris Hemmeter, however, refused to comment on the league's financial position after the meetings ended.

Sunday's contest against Southern California is a late addition to the Hawaiians' schedule, made after the league shut down its Chicago franchise.

The game is not part of the team's season ticket package, and team officials view Sunday's attendance as a critical test of the Hawaiians' future.

"We are not unhappy with local attendance figures, but a show of good faith Sunday night certainly wouldn't hurt things," said Dave Stringer, another member of the executive committee.

Stringer configued that lower player salaries are one option being pursued by the struggling league.

"We feel we owe it to the players to ask them if they wish to continue under these conditions," Stringer said.

Boston Forecast: Rain

BOSTON — Rain is forecast for Saturday's sixth game of the World Series between the Cincinnati Reds and the Boston Red Sox.

No Series game has ever gone less than nine innings once it's begun and baseball officials say they will make every effort to play Saturday's game despite predictions of rain.

A spokesman for the baseball commissioner's office said "we would wait and wait and wait, no matter how long, in an attempt to complete the game. But if it became impossible to continue, regular season rules would apply." Such a decision is up to Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

U.S. Favored

TUCSON — The United States was heavily favored over less seasoned Venezuela today as play began in the second round of the Davis Cup tennis challenge for 1976 with superstar Jimmy Connors for the first time heading the Yankee effort.

The U.S. drew a bye in the first round and will attempt to atone for early round losses the past two years to Mexico and Colombia.

While the 1976 series is already under way, the rather confusing Davis Cup international competitive format finds the 1975 championship at stake when Sweden meets Czechoslovakia in Stockholm in December.

Today's opening singles matches pitted Roscoe Tanner of the United States against Jorge Andrew in the first battle with Connors going against Humphrey Hose.

ORLANDO, Fla. — Chris Evert subdued Isa Fernandez of Colombia, 6-1, 6-4, in 56 minutes Thursday night to head into the quarterfinals of the $50,000 Orlando Women's Classic.

In other singles matches, Rosie Casals annihilated Kris Kemmer Shaw, 6-0, 6-1; Betsy Nagelsen blasted Joanne Russell, 6-1, 6-4; and Donna Ganz downed Roberta Stark, 6-3, 6-4.

$75,000 Fire Guts Lake Forest Home

By RUDI NIEDZIELSKI
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

An overheated electric blanket Thursday afternoon touched off a $75,000 blaze in Lake Forest, destroying a three bedroom home and its contents while the family was away.

The fire at 23276 Buckland Drive belched a column of black smoke high into the air and brought quick assistance from passersby who were able to save some of the belongings of the Guy Veasey home.

A glider and two parked cars were pushed from the driveway of the blazing home by Chuck Rhodes, 24, and Mike Hollos and Robert Mendez before firemen arrived.

"We started to get another car in the garage but it already was on fire and it was very hot in there," said Rhodes who rushed over from a nearby construction project.

A crew of 37 firemen, who arrived three minutes after a neighbor phoned in an alarm, found the Veasey home enveloped by lames.

"There was fire coming out of every opening," said Battalion Chief George Toussaint. "Every door and window must have been open in that place. It went through there fast."

The flames destroyed everything inside the house and in the family's three-car garage.

Veasey, a pilot, was at work when the fire was discovered at 2:38 p.m. and his wife was reportedly vacationing in Brazil. The couple's three children were attending school.

In addition to the furnishings, the fire destroyed a station wagon and a one-man helicopter, both of which had been parked in the garage.

Firefighters had the blaze under control in 20 minutes and credited neighbors who sprinkled their homes with garden hoses with keeping the fire from spreading.

Firemen Robert Miller, who had been working on the roof of the burning home, was overcome by heat exhaustion and treated at the scene. Hollos was treated by paramedics for a finger cut he received when he smashed the driver's side window to roll one of the cars out of the driveway.

Fire investigators believe the flames had already done much of their work before the blaze was spotted by neighbors.

Firemen Injured In Blaze

A twin engine Beech Baron airplane crashed in thick fog near Orange County Airport this morning, killing the pilot and spewing flames and debris through a huge Costa Mesa Warehouse.

Identification of the pilot was not immediagely available.

Two Costa Mesa firemen were injured battling the blaze. One was hospitalized.

Two warehouse workers inside the structure were thrown to the floor by the crash and explosion which followed.

They said they were able to run out through the flames and flying debris and escaped with apparently minor injuries.

One fireman, Scott Barger, was taken to Costa Mesa Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries suffered when a high-pressure hose coupling came apart and the heavy metal hit him in the face.

Authorities said Fire Capt. Barry Adams was also injured, but was treated by paramedics at the scene.

Firemen from several cities fought the blaze in the warehouse of Memorex ConData at 385 Clinton Ave., Costa Mesa, a building about 100 feet from the southwest of the airport perimeter.

Federal Aviation Administration official Russ Thayer said the pilot was executing an apparent missed approach when he lost the plane in fog with a ceiling of 100 feet and one-quarter mile visibility.

The weather conditions were reported to the pilot by Orange County airport tower aides, Thayer said.

The FAA official said that the pilot was on instrument landing and was executing his approach. In such circumstances there is a minimum altitude that a pilot can go down to, then he must be able to see the runway threshold or about the descent.

It could not be determined whether the plane crashed through the roof of the building or through the front.

One of the warehousemen said that the plane came through the roof, but an airport official said that there were marks to indicate the plane might have skidded through the front.

The two warehousemen who escaped were taken to Costa Mesa Memorial Hospital suffer-

'False Claims'

Homeowners Sue Rossmoor

Rossmoor Corporation, a group of defendants identified in the lawsuit as subsidiaries of the developers and a utility were sued by the state Thursday in a consumer fraud action.

Defendants in a lawsuit filed for the state by the Orange County District Attorney's economic crime division include the Southern California Edison Company and the Casa Linda realty group.

It is alleged in the Superior Court action that 214 persons who bought homes in the New World development in Laguna Hills were the victims of a series of false representations made by the Rossmoor group.

Linked with Rossmoor Corporation to those allegations are Oaklawn Homes, Rossmoor Water Company and Rossmoor Sanitation Company.

Also named is L. G. Fuglie who is identified by Deputy District Attorney C. Brent Swanson as a corporate officer of the Oaklawn company at the same time as he held the office of president of the Moulton Parkway Residents Association.

Swanson said he will seek a civil judgment that could compel the defendants to post signs admitting their liability on charges of consumer fraud, unfair competition and repeated violations of real estate laws. The suit seeks penalties that total more than $10 million.

That judgment, Swanson said, would also provide for restitution to New World residents who demand compensation from the defendants.

The bulky lawsuit alleges that the New World residents were assured by defendants that their new homes were of stucco construction and were designed to keep out jet noise prevalent in the Laguna Hills area.

It is alleged that the construction material used was actually two-inch plywood coated with an inferior substance which proved inadequate in terms of

WM Officer Faces Eight Sex Charges

YUMA, Ariz. (UPI) — A woman Marine officer is being court-martialed for allegedly having sex with eight enlisted men, her mother reported, complaining of discrimination because no action is being taken against the men.

Lt. Mary C. Niflis, 23, faces charges of conduct unbecoming an officer and gentlewoman, and disobedience of orders against fraternizing with enlisted personnel, said her mother, Mrs. Eric M. Rickard of Southard, Conn.

Mrs. Rickard wrote to Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.), and Arizona news organizations, protesting that the Marine Corps acted only against her daughter, filing no charges against the eight men.

Lt. Niflis had been stationed at the Yuma Marine Corps Air Station since November, 1973.

Attorney Jay W. Jeffcoat confirmed Mrs. Rickard's story, saying he had been hired as her defense attorney when her court-martial begins Nov. 12 at El Toro Marine Corps Air Station.

A Marine spokesman at El Toro would not comment.

The charges of sexual relations with enlisted men cover eight separate incidents, the lawyer said. The charge of disobedience of a direct order carries a possible sentence of five years in prison.

Jeffcoat said the lieutenant had offered to resign her commission under honorable conditions, but her commanding officer refused.

Multipartner Sex Practiced by SLA?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Multipartner sexual relations were an integral part of the day-to-day lives of the fugitive Symbionese Liberation Army members — including Patricia Hearst, the Los Angeles Times reported today.

The Times, quoting documents found in the apartment of SLA members Bill and Emily Harris, said the sexual practices were used to preserve "feminist self-determination" by successfully smashing "the dependencies created by monogamal (sic) personal sexual relationships . . . in the cell."

(An SLA document declares that Patricia Hearst "seemed more like a comrad than a prisoner" during her blindfolded conversion to the SLA and eventually declined the chance to leave her captors, the San Francisco Examiner also reported today.)

The Times said the documents it obtained appear to include a series of answers to questions submitted to the SLA by an unnamed person, similar to the kind of queries a writer might use in the preparation of material for a book.

Other writings obtained by the Times include a handwritten discourse on the kinds of problems female SLA members faced as "feminist freedom fighters" and a typewritten message apparently written to Miss Hearst by an SLA member.

The Times said some investigators believed the Hearst message is written in the style of Bill Harris, and the question-answer series appears to have been handled by his wife, Emily.

The FBI had no immediate comment on the authenticity of the documents or their possible authorship.

The writings stressed that the multipartner relationships were

2 CdM Coeds Cite Talk With Mang

By HILARY KAYE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Two Corona del Mar High School senior girls testified at the dismissal hearing against suspended teacher Michael Mang that the instructor told them, when asked last spring, that his class would be "fornicating."

Defense attorney John Williams attempted to get the girls to admit Mang might have said either "formicating" or "forticating" — words with decidedly different meanings.

Fornicating means the act of sexual intercourse but formicating means "swarming with ants" and forticate is to "strengthen or reinforce."

Both girls, who were clad in blue and white cheerleader outfits Thursday, insisted the word was fornicating.

They testified that the conversation took place last May, when Laura Asbury and Diana Clark, both 16, asked Mang in the school's media center what his class would be doing that afternoon.

Miss Clark, Mang's former student, said her teacher answered

City Calls That Art?

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A street entertainer who does a comic impersonation of former President Nixon is free of charges that his height violated a city ordinance.

Municipal Court Judge Frank E. Hart dropped misdemeanor charges against Bob Clark on Thursday after an assisant district attorney said there was reasonable doubt he had broken the law.

Clark, whose costume includes a large papier-mache caricature of Nixon's head, was arrested May 28 under an ordinance banning any street artist's display over five feet in height.

Clark, in effect his own display, is 5 feet 8.

Plead 'Not Guilty'

Harrises in Court

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — William and Emily Harris pleaded "not guilty" in firm tones today to charges of kidnaping, assault and robbery, after the trial judge rejected a defense call that he disqualify himself from hearing the case.

In an acid exchange with defense attorney Leonard Weinglass, Superior Court Judge Homer H. Bell said that there was "not a shadow of a doubt in my mind" that he could preside over the trial in an impartial manner without prejudice against the two SLA companions of Patricia Hearst.

The Harrises both stood as deputy District Attorney Samuel Mayerson asked them how they wished to plead to the charges stemming out of a shooting at a sporting goods store in Los Angeles along with Miss Hearst and their subsequent alleged abduction of two men to commandeer their automobiles.

The Harrises spoke only the words "Not Guilty" and said nothing more.

Weinglass, who was the defense attorney at both the Daniel Ellsberg and "Chicago 7" trials, raised the question of Bell's impartiality and asked that the judge disqualify himself.

Weinglass said if Bell did not see fit to do so, he would like a week's postponement so the defense could investigate whether aspects of the judge's career and statements he might have made about the SLA would indicate prejudice.

He noted that before taking the bench, Bell had been a prosecutor in the U.S. attorney's office, a city attorney and active in Republican politics for 30 years. He noted that he had been appointed by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Bell rejected the motion for a week's delay and also refused to disqualify himself.

"I probably know less about this case than anyone in the county of Los Angeles," Bell said.

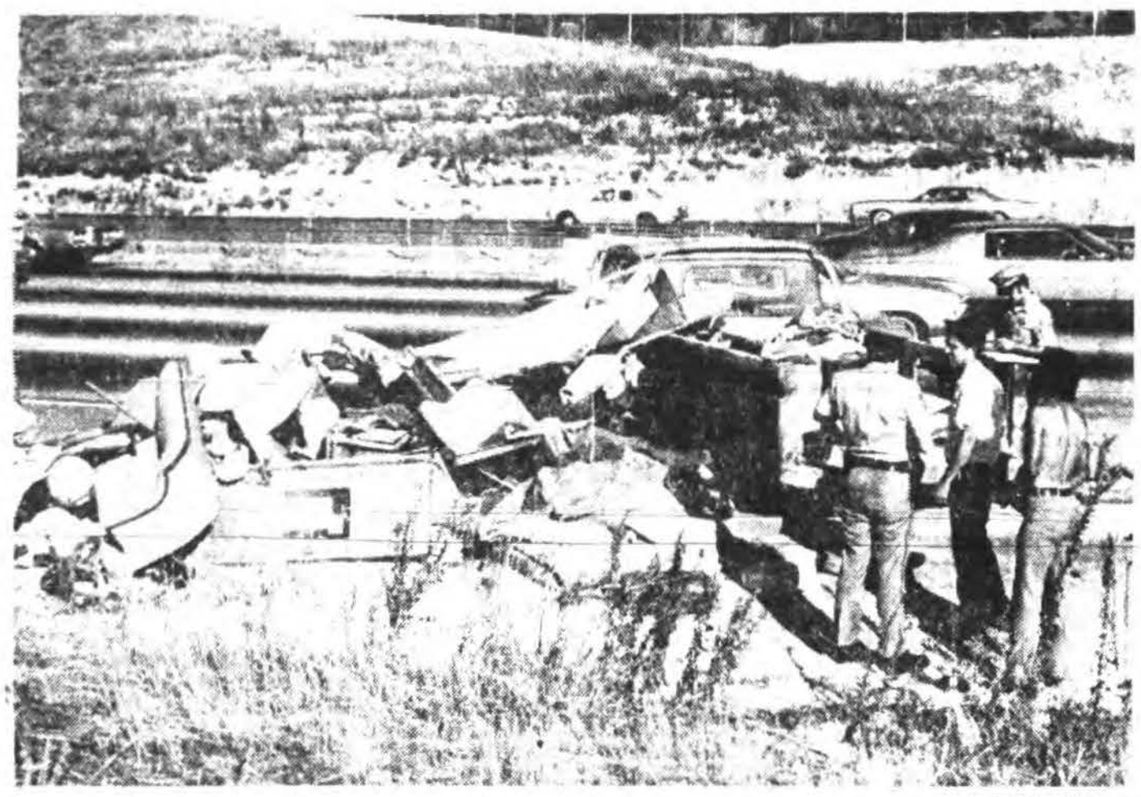

"News these days often upsets me and I just shut it off. I didn't even pay attention to Watergate because there were too many things I needed to concern myself with."

Bell said it was "degrading" to try to put a judge on trial and that he was not going to let such tactics obscure the question of whether the two defendants before him were guilty or not.

ing from shock and minor injuries. A Costa Mesa fireman was also slightly injured in the face by flying debris.

John Loeffert, 21, of Anaheim, said he was in the building with Carrol White, 37, of Santa Ana when the plane crashed through the roof about 20 yards from them.

"We went through the flames running like crazy," Loeffert said. "We fell down three or four times. We made it out of the door about 25 yards away.

"The pilot we didn't see in the plane. We were lying on the dirt outside the building and I saw the pilot's body out next to a truck."

Don Wilson, personnel manager for Memorex said that the two warehousemen were the only people in the building located at the end of a cul de sac in the industrial complex. Wilson could not estimate the cost of the value of the warehouse but said that the building, used strictly for storage, was filled with plastic computer components worth at least $250,000.

Memorex has an assembly building located nearby 1352 Reynolds.

The pilot was the only occupant of the plane.

An hour after the crash, which occurred about 8:30 a.m., fire fighters were still battling to bring the inferno under control though the blaze was contained and did not appear to be in danger of spreading to any other industrial plants in the area.

Costa Mesa fire protection analyst Russ Henderson said that the intensity of the fire was due to the highly combustible aluminized material inside the building and the fuel of the plane.

It was believed that the sprinkler system was knocked out by the crash and that there were running water mains inside.

Onlookers were turned back from the area by firemen who expected one wall of the building to collapse. The warehouse appeared to be a total loss.

Part of the plane was on the landscaping in front of the building.

The warehouseman Loeffert, who lives at 2230 Orange Ave., Anaheim, had a scraped leg, but his partner White was in shock and given oxygen by the Costa Mesa paramedics before being taken to hospital. Loeffert said he also got a bump on the head.

Toro Marine Convicted Of Murder

One of two El Toro Marines late Thursday was found guilty of first degree murder, armed robbery and burglary in the shooting death of a Santa Ana liquor store clerk.

Orange County Superior Court Judge Frank Domenichini accepted the verdict from his jury and ordered Marine Robert Edward Lee, 22, to return to his courtroom Nov. 5 for sentencing.

Lee faces life in prison for the part he played last Dec. 30 in the killing of store clerk Byron Roy Smith, 54, of Yorba Linda, and the wounding of a customer in the Santa Ana store.

Codefendant Henry George McKnight, 24, is being separately tried in the same courtroom on identical charges. Jury selection in his trial began while the jury in the Lee case was deliberating.

"Our position was one of conditional practicality," one document read. "We knew from the experience what it was like to live in the cell.

"So far as sex was concerned, we had to get most of our sexual and personal needs met by comrades within the cell. Everyone realized that at this time there was no time for exclusive relationships because each of us had to help the other comrades meet their sexual needs and maintain harmony in the cell."

The writer said it was not the SLA's intent to exploit Patty Hearst sexually after she was kidnaped, but that she later was allowed to participate in the relationships.

"Although we considered sex a basic human need, our commitment to not exploit her sexually, coupled with her overall status as POW (prisoner of war), denied Tania (Miss Hearst) the freedom to have sex with another person," the writer said.

"But later on these conditions changed, partly due to her own initiative, but also because of our growing love and respect for her. As she became more integrated into the day-to-day aspects of cell life, we tried to treat Tania as an equal.

Mr. Amlin moved to the retirement community of Leisure World upon his retirement six years ago from Amlin Associates of Chicago, a builders display company, where he had been an executive director.

Mr. Amlin, who was a native Chicagoan, was a veteran of World War I.

He is survived by his wife Helen, of the family home, 379-C Ave. Castilla; by a son Thomas Amlin, of Nile, Ill.; by two daughters, Patricia Buchannon of Berkeley, and Priscilla Mills of Highland Park, Ill.; by eight grandchildren and three sisters.

Funeral arrangements were handled by McCormick Laguna Beach Mortuary.

It is also alleged that residents in the 214-home tract were promised an 86-home "adult only" area, prohibited by state and federal law, a parking area for trailers that proved to be far too small and two wading pools that were never built.

In addition, Swanson said, the residents were faced with extra monthly payments that included $4.50 for sewage service, a total of $900 a month to Edison for exterior lighting in addition to regular light bills and extra unlawful payments for water lines and fire hydrants.

Miss Asbury stated she was "a little embarrassed" to learn the meaning of the word from two adults, and Gillis, an English teacher at the school, said he was "really shocked."

Mang, 35, faces 36 charges of unprofessional conduct brought against him by the Newport-Mesa Unified School District. He was suspended from teaching his social studies classes at Corona del Mar High last May.

A third student to testify, Doug Killian, alleged that Mang answered his classroom intercom with the phrase, "Clyde's Abortion Mill. You rape 'em, we scrape 'em."

Killian said students in the class laughed when the remark was made and were "startled" that Mang had said it.

Killian also testified that Mang told his class "a certain percentage of the faculty is homosexual."

Killian, who did not recall the exact percentage used by Mang, added under cross examination that the remark came up when a student asked Mang about a former teacher.

Another witness, James Tomlin, related an incident last spring when Mang allegedly greeted another teacher with a coarse obscenity.

Tomlin, a social studies teacher and track coach, related the incident in such a comic manner that both the participants in the hearing and members of the audience laughed throughout his testimony.

He said that Mang greeted teacher Henry Wong with the obscenity before the start of school in the social studies office.

Firemen Injured In Blaze

By ALAN DIRKIN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A twin engine Beech Baron airplane crashed in thick fog near Orange County Airport this morning, killing the pilot and spewing flames and debris through a huge Costa Mesa Warehouse.

Identification of the pilot was not immediately available.

Two Costa Mesa firemen were injured battling the blaze. One was hospitalized.

Two warehouse workers inside the structure were thrown to the floor by the crash and explosion which followed.

They said they were able to run out through the flames and flying debris and escaped with apparently minor injuries.

One fireman, Scott Barger, was taken to Costa Mesa Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries suffered when a high-pressure hose coupling came apart and the heavy metal hit him in the face.

Authorities said Fire Capt. Barry Adams was also injured, but was treated by paramedics at the scene.

Firemen from several cities fought the blaze in the warehouse of Memorex ConData at 385 Clinton Ave., Costa Mesa, a building about 100 feet from the southwest of the airport perimeter.

Federal Aviation Administration official Russ Thayer said the pilot was executing an apparent missed approach when he lost the plane in fog with a ceiling of 100 feet and one-quarter mile visibility.

The weather conditions were reported to the pilot by Orange County airport tower aides, Thayer said.

The FAA official said that the pilot was on instrument landing and was executing his approach. In such circumstances there is a minimum altitude that a pilot can go down to, then he must be able to see the runway threshold or about the descent.

It could not be determined whether the plane crashed through the roof of the building or through the front.

One of the warehousemen said that the plane came through the roof, but an airport official said that there were marks to indicate the plane might have skidded through the front.

The two warehousemen who escaped were taken to Costa Mesa Memorial Hospital suffer-

WM Officer Faces Eight Sex Charges

YUMA, Ariz. (UPI) — A woman Marine officer is being court-martialed for allegedly having sex with eight enlisted men, her mother reported, complaining of discrimination because no action is being taken against the men.

Lt. Mary C. Niflis, 23, faces charges of conduct unbecoming an officer and gentlewoman, and disobedience of orders against fraternizing with enlisted personnel, said her mother, Mrs. Eric M. Rickard of Southard, Conn.

Mrs. Rickard wrote to Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.), and Arizona news organizations, protesting that the Marine Corps acted only against her daughter, filing no charges against the eight men.

Lt. Niflis had been stationed at the Yuma Marine Corps Air Station since November, 1973.

Attorney Jay W. Jeffcoat confirmed Mrs. Rickard's story, saying he had been hired as her defense attorney when her court-martial begins Nov. 12 at El Toro Marine Corps Air Station.

A Marine spokesman at El Toro would not comment.

The charges of sexual relations with enlisted men cover eight separate incidents, the lawyer said. The charge of disobedience of a direct order carries a possible sentence of five years in prison.

Jeffcoat said the lieutenant had offered to resign her commission under honorable conditions, but her commanding officer refused.

Two CdM Coeds Testify

Claim Teacher's Remarks 'Embarrassing'

By HILARY KAYE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Two Corona del Mar High School senior girls testified at the dismissal hearing against suspended teacher Michael Mang that the instructor told them, when asked last spring, that his class would be "fornicating."

Defense attorney John Williams attempted to get the girls to admit Mang might have said either "formicating" or "forticating" — words with decidedly different meanings.

Fornicating means the act of sexual intercourse but formicating means "swarming with ants" and forticate is to "strengthen or reinforce."

Both girls, who were clad in blue and white cheerleader outfits Thursday, insisted the word was fornicating.

They testified that the conversation took place last May, when Laura Asbury and Diana Clark, both 16, asked Mang in the school's media center what his class would be doing that afternoon.

Miss Clark, Mang's former student, said her teacher answered "fornicating."

She said none of the three students who heard the remark understood the meaning of the word but that teacher Dan Gillis and school nurse Cheryl Caverly, who were both standing nearby told Miss Asbury that it was a word for "the sex act."

'False Claims'

Rossmoor in Lawsuit

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Rossmoor Corporation, a group of defendants identified in the lawsuit as subsidiaries of the developers and a utility were sued by the state Thursday in a consumer fraud action.

Defendants in a lawsuit filed for the state by the Orange County District Attorney's economic crime division include the Southern California Edison Company and the Casa Linda realty group.

It is alleged in the Superior Court action that 214 persons who bought homes in the New World development in Laguna Hills were the victims of a series of false representations made by the Rossmoor group.

Linked with Rossmoor Corporation to those allegations are Oaklawn Homes, Rossmoor Water Company and Rossmoor Sanitation Company.

Also named is L. G. Fuglie who is identified by Deputy District Attorney C. Brent Swanson as a corporate officer of the Oaklawn company at the same time as he held the office of president of the Moulton Parkway Residents Association.

Swanson said he will seek a civil judgment that could compel the defendants to post signs admitting their liability on charges of consumer fraud, unfair competition and repeated violations of real estate laws. The suit seeks penalties that total more than $10 million.

That judgment, Swanson said, would also provide for restitution to New World residents who demand compensation from the defendants.

The bulky lawsuit alleges that the New World residents were assured by defendants that their new homes were of stucco construction and were designed to keep out jet noise prevalent in the Laguna Hills area.

It is alleged that the construction material used was actually two-inch plywood coated with an inferior substance which proved inadequate in terms of soundproofing or insulation.

It is also alleged that residents in the 214-home tract were promised an 86-home "adult only" area, prohibited by state and federal law, a parking area for trailers that proved to be far too small and two wading pools that were never built.

Pregnant Wife

Countian Held In Two Deaths

The husband of a pregnant Westminster woman who was shot in the head and died after she was kept alive for three days by hospital life support systems was arrested Thursday and charged with two counts of murder.

Gerald Allen Cody, Jr., 25, was apprehended at his parents' home in El Casco Lake near Redlands and charged with murder in the deaths of his wife and unborn child.

He was booked into Orange County Jail. Bail was set at $200,000.

Sharon Sue Cody, 22, was shot in the early hours of Aug. 26 at the couple's Westminster apartment and kept alive in Westminster Community Hospital in the hope that the 5-month-old baby was still alive.

She died three days later when her heart stopped beating. No signs of life were detected in the fetus.

Police Lt. Joe Woods said today that Cody was arrested after new evidence was received from a third person who was believed to have witnessed the shooting.

Officers declined to provide further details.

Police had originally arrested Cody on the night of the shooting. He allegedly admitted the shooting that day and said it was an accident.

Cody was charged with involuntary manslaughter at the time, but was released two days later for lack of evidence.

The hearing, being heard by a three-man panel headed by a state hearing officer from Sacramento, is expected to run at least through the remainder of this month.

At the end of the hearing, the panel will decide whether or not Mang should remain in the school district. He is currently temporarily assigned to McNally Continuation High.

Harrises Say 'Not Guilty' To Charges

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — William and Emily Harris pleaded "not guilty" in firm tones today to charges of kidnaping, assault and robbery, after the trial judge rejected a defense call that he disqualify himself from hearing the case.

In an acid exchange with defense attorney Leonard Weinglass, Superior Court Judge Homer H. Bell said that there was "not a shadow of a doubt in my mind" that he could preside over the trial in an impartial manner without prejudice against the two SLA companions of Patricia Hearst.

The Harrises both stood as deputy District Attorney Samuel Mayerson asked them how they wished to plead to the charges stemming out of a shooting at a sporting goods store in Los Angeles along with Miss Hearst and their subsequent alleged abduction of two men to commandeer their automobiles.

The Harrises spoke only the words "Not Guilty" and said nothing more.

Weinglass, who was the defense attorney at both the Daniel Ellsberg and "Chicago 7" trials, raised the question of Bell's impartiality and asked that the judge disqualify himself.

Weinglass said if Bell did not see fit to do so, he would like a week's postponement so the defense could investigate whether aspects of the judge's career and statements he might have made about the SLA would indicate prejudice.

He noted that before taking the bench, Bell had been a prosecutor in the U.S. attorney's office, a city attorney and active in Republican politics for 30 years. He noted that he had been appointed by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Bell rejected the motion for a week's delay and also refused to disqualify himself.

"I probably know less about this case than anyone in the county of Los Angeles," Bell said.

"News these days often upsets me and I just shut it off. I didn't even pay attention to Watergate because there were too many things I needed to concern myself with."

The FAA official said that the plane was among what is termed transient traffic.

He said that the pilot was given the weather conditions by the airport and was geared for an instrument approach.

The pilot did not confirm by radio that he was executing a missed approach, just before the crash occurred but it was assumed he was doing that because the location of the crash site was at the opposite end of the field for a landing.

The weather conditions were below instrument landing standards but the clearance for approach was not clearance to land.

The procedure, the official said, allows the pilot to go down to what is called a decision height, a minimum altitude at which time he must be able to see the runway threshold environment or he must then execute a missed approach.

The plane was following the normal instrument landing approach to the airport from the north.

The warehouseman Loeffert was treated at Costa Mesa Memorial Hospital and released, but his fellow worker White, of 1102 S. Raitt, Santa Ana, was admitted with back injuries. His condition was termed satisfactory.

The blaze was brought under control at 9:36 a.m. The building was 53,000-square-feet, and fire officials estimated the structural damage at between $180,000 and $200,000. The contents had been estimated at $250,000.

A vacant site is opposite the building, and there did not appear to be skid marks in the field or on the road in front of the warehouse, suggesting the plane flew straight into it. The plane did hit a runway antenna before the crash.

Thick fog made it difficult for the first crews arriving to find the building despite the intensity of the blaze. An airport official said that he could not see the building from the airport fence, less than 100 feet, when he ran over.

Documents Claim

Patty Shared SLA Sex Life

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Multipartner sexual relations were an integral part of the day-to-day lives of the fugitive Symbionese Liberation Army members — including Patricia Hearst, the Los Angeles Times reported today.

The Times, quoting documents found in the apartment of SLA members Bill and Emily Harris, said the sexual practices were used to preserve "feminist self-determination" by successfully smashing "the dependencies created by monogamal (sic) personal sexual relationships . . . in the cell."

(An SLA document declares that Patricia Hearst "seemed more like a comrad than a prisoner" during her blindfolded conversion to the SLA and eventually declined the chance to leave her captors, the San Francisco Examiner also reported today.)

The Times said the documents it obtained appear to include a series of answers to questions submitted to the SLA by an unnamed person, similar to the kind of queries a writer might use in the preparation of material for a book.

Other writings obtained by the Times include a handwritten discourse on the kinds of problems female SLA members faced as "feminist freedom fighters" and a typewritten message apparently written to Miss Hearst by an SLA member.

The Times said some investigators believed the Hearst message is written in the style of Bill Harris, and the question-answer series appears to have been handled by his wife, Emily.

The FBI had no immediate comment on the authenticity of the documents or their possible authorship.

The writings stressed that the multipartner relationships were not limited to heterosexual activities, the Times said.

"Our position was one of conditional practicality," one document read. "We knew from the experience what it was like to live in the cell.

"So far as sex was concerned, we had to get most of our sexual and personal needs met by comrades within the cell. Everyone realized that at this time there was no time for exclusive relationships because each of us had to help the other comrades meet their sexual needs and maintain harmony in the cell."

The writer said it was not the SLA's intent to exploit Patty Hearst sexually after she was kidnaped, but that she later was allowed to participate in the relationships.

"Although we considered sex a basic human need, our commitment to not exploit her sexually, coupled with her overall status as POW (prisoner of war), denied Tania (Miss Hearst) the freedom to have sex with another person," the writer said.

"But later on these conditions changed, partly due to her own initiative, but also because of our growing love and respect for her."

City Calls That Art?

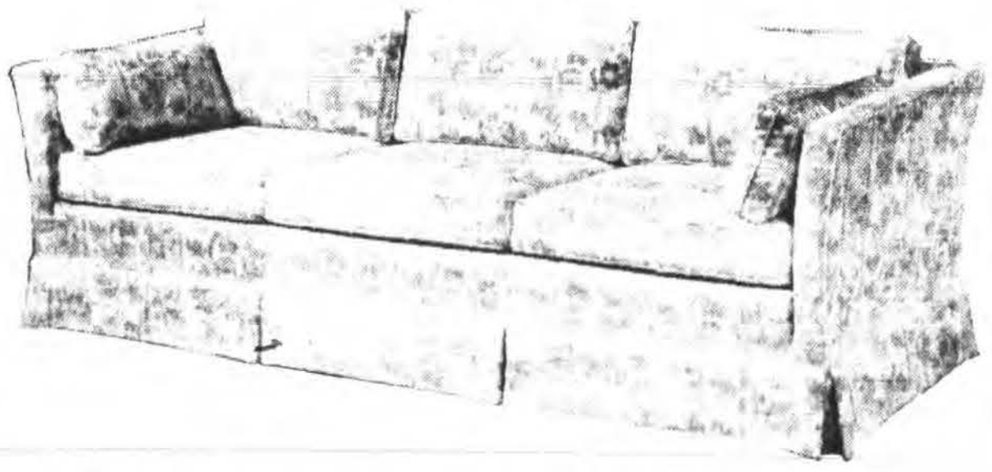

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A street entertainer who does a comic impersonation of former President Nixon is free of charges that his height violated a city ordinance.

Municipal Court Judge Frank E. Hart dropped misdemeanor charges against Bob Clark on Thursday after an assisant district attorney said there was reasonable doubt he had broken the law.

Clark, whose costume includes a large papier-mache caricature of Nixon's head, was arrested May 28 under an ordinance banning any street artist's display over five feet in height.

Clark, in effect his own display, is 5 feet 8.

A twin engine Beech Baron airplane crashed in thick fog near Orange County Airport this morning, killing the pilot and spewing flames and debris through a huge Costa Mesa Warehouse.

Identification of the pilot was not immediately available.

Two Costa Mesa firemen were injured battling the blaze. One was hospitalized.

Two warehouse workers inside the structure were thrown to the floor by the crash and explosion which followed.

They said they were able to run out through the flames and flying debris and escaped with apparently minor injuries.

One fireman, Scott Barger, was taken to Costa Mesa Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries suffered when a high-pressure hose coupling came apart and the heavy metal hit him in the face.

Authorities said Fire Capt. Barry Adams was also injured, but was treated by paramedics at the scene.

Firemen from several cities fought the blaze in the warehouse of Memorex ConData at 385 Clinton Ave., Costa Mesa, a building about 100 feet from the southwest of the airport perimeter.

Federal Aviation Administration official Russ Thayer said the pilot was executing an apparent missed approach when he lost the plane in fog with a ceiling of 100 feet and one-quarter mile visibility.

The weather conditions were reported to the pilot by Orange County airport tower aides, Thayer said.

The FAA official said that the pilot was on instrument landing and was executing his approach. In such circumstances there is a minimum altitude that a pilot can go down to, then he must be able to see the runway threshold or abort the descent.

It could not be determined whether the plane crashed through the roof of the building or through the front.

One of the warehousemen said that the plane came through the roof, but an airport official said that there were marks to indicate the plane might have skidded through the front.

The two warehousemen who escaped were taken to Costa Mesa Memorial Hospital suffer-

Coast Fog Causes Massive Pileups

Fountain Valley police closed off a portion of fog-bound Euclid Avenue this morning after "a minimum of 30 cars" were involved in numerous separate traffic accidents.

Police Sgt. Marty Engquist said all the night shift officers were kept on duty this morning handling traffic problems on the street described as "slick as ice."

In addition, detectives were sent to the scene, and the city asked for extra help from the California Highway Patrol, Engquist said.

Police closed off the street between Edinger and Warner Avenues, and Engquist said it probably would remain closed most of the morning or until conditions improved.

He said a few persons were sent to hospitals, but all injuries were described as minor.

Engquist explained the street had recently been resurfaced and was slickened by the moisture from the fog.

He said motorists spotting an accident simply slid into it, in many cases, because of the slick roadway.

Meanwhile, Huntington Beach police reported no traffic troubles, and West Orange County beaches and waterways were experiencing no problems, officials said.

Murder Charge Issued

Man Held in Death of Wife, Unborn Child

The husband of a pregnant Westminster woman who was shot in the head and died after she was kept alive for three days by hospital life support systems was arrested Thursday and charged with two counts of murder.

Gerald Allen Cody, Jr., 25, was apprehended at his parents' home in El Casco Lake near Redlands and charged with murder in the deaths of his wife and unborn child.

He was booked into Orange County Jail. Bail was set at $200,000.

Sharon Sue Cody, 22, was shot in the early hours of Aug. 26 at the couple's Westminster apartment and kept alive in Westminster Community Hospital in the hope that the 5-month-old baby was still alive.

She died three days later when her heart stopped beating. No signs of life were detected in the fetus.

Police Lt. Joe Woods said today that Cody was arrested after new evidence was received from a third person who was believed to have witnessed the shooting.

Officers declined to provide further details.

Police had originally arrested Cody on the night of the shooting. He allegedly admitted the shooting that day and said it was an accident.

Cody was charged with involuntary manslaughter at the time, but was released two days later for lack of evidence.

4th Trustee Served With Recall Notice

NEW RECALL TARGET
School Trustee Ackley

By KATHY CLANCY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Trustee Karen Ackley Thursday night became the fourth member of the Fountain Valley School Board to be served with a notice of recall.

Fran Johnson, of 17474 Santa Maria St., Fountain Valley, charged that Mrs. Ackley had failed to "perform effectively and receptively as a board member."

But her recall attempt was quickly branded today as an effort by Trustee Dick Plum, the only board member not a target of recall, to discredit the school board and harm the Nov. 4 unification election.

And Jones' co-chairman Frank Bryant insisted the recall was staged as a smokescreen and publicity stunt.

But Plum denied those charges, saying they merely are efforts to discredit him.

"I don't have anything to do with the recall," he said. "It appears they want to hook everything together in one big witchhunt."

Mrs. Ackley, re-elected to the board in March, just became eligible for recall this month.

In July Mrs. Johnson served identical recall notices on Board President Roger Belgen, as well as Trustees Sheila Meyers and Bill Crane.

She said Thursday night she has more than 5,300 names on recall petitions. She said she needs only 5,200, but plans to work during the next six weeks to bring the number up to 7,000.

Mrs. Ackley said Thursday night after the meeting she was not surprised by the notice. She said Mrs. Johnson earlier "made that commitment" when she served the other trustees.

"In the past couple of weeks a lot of rumors have surfaced concerning the recall of Mr. Plum," she continued, "so it would seem natural to serve me too."

Mrs. Ackley also said she believes the recall effort is being engineered by Plum.

She said several members of the audience saw Plum give Mrs. Johnson a "cue" as to when to

Pioneer's Home Gets Fixit Fund

America the Beautiful Fund has granted the Huntington Beach Historical Society $500 toward restoration of the Newland House on Beach Boulevard.

The Historical Society and the city American Revolution Bicentennial Commission have adopted restoration of the former home of area pioneer W.T. Newland as a bicentennial project.

Thus far reconstruction of the old house has depended on donations from the city treasury and money raised by the sale of Newland House buttons and souvenirs.

Part of the $500 grant comes from the California American Revolution Bicentennial Commission and the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration, thus making the Newland House restoration an officially recognized bicentennial program.

Huntington Man Nabbed In Burglary

Newport Beach police early Thursday arrested a 24-year-old Huntington Beach resident on suspicion of burglarizing an Upper Bay area home and stealing $15,000 worth of Indian jewelry.

The Wednesday burglary at the home of a Costa Mesa businessman involved the loss of much of the man's stock of jewelry. Working with some leads from witnesses, detectives Thursday arrested Boyd L. Coker, 812 Delaware St., Huntington Beach.

Detectives said that Coker was wearing some of the baubles alleged to have been stolen the day before in the Bluffs colony of Newport.

Detective John Furrow said the identity of the victim was not specified because his home and business have been involved in other recent breakins.

Coker was booked on a charge of burglary and held in lieu of $10,000 bail.

214 Sue Firms In Fraud

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Rossmoor Corporation, a group of defendants identified in the lawsuit as subsidiaries of the developers and a utility were sued by the state Thursday in a consumer fraud action.

Defendants in a lawsuit filed for the state by the Orange County District Attorney's economic crime division include the Southern California Edison Company and the Casa Linda realty group.

It is alleged in the Superior Court action that 214 persons who bought homes in the New World development in Laguna Hills were the victims of a series of false representations made by the Rossmoor group.

Linked with Rossmoor Corporation to those allegations are Oaklawn Homes, Rossmoor Water Company and Rossmoor Sanitation Company.

Also named is L. G. Fuglie who is identified by Deputy District Attorney C. Brent Swanson as a corporate officer of the Oaklawn company at the same time as he held the office of president of the Moulton Parkway Residents Association.

Swanson said he will seek a civil judgment that could compel the defendants to post signs admitting their liability on charges of consumer fraud, unfair competition and repeated violations of real estate laws. The suit seeks penalties that total more than $10 million.

That judgment, Swanson said, would also provide for restitution to New World residents who demand compensation from the defendants.

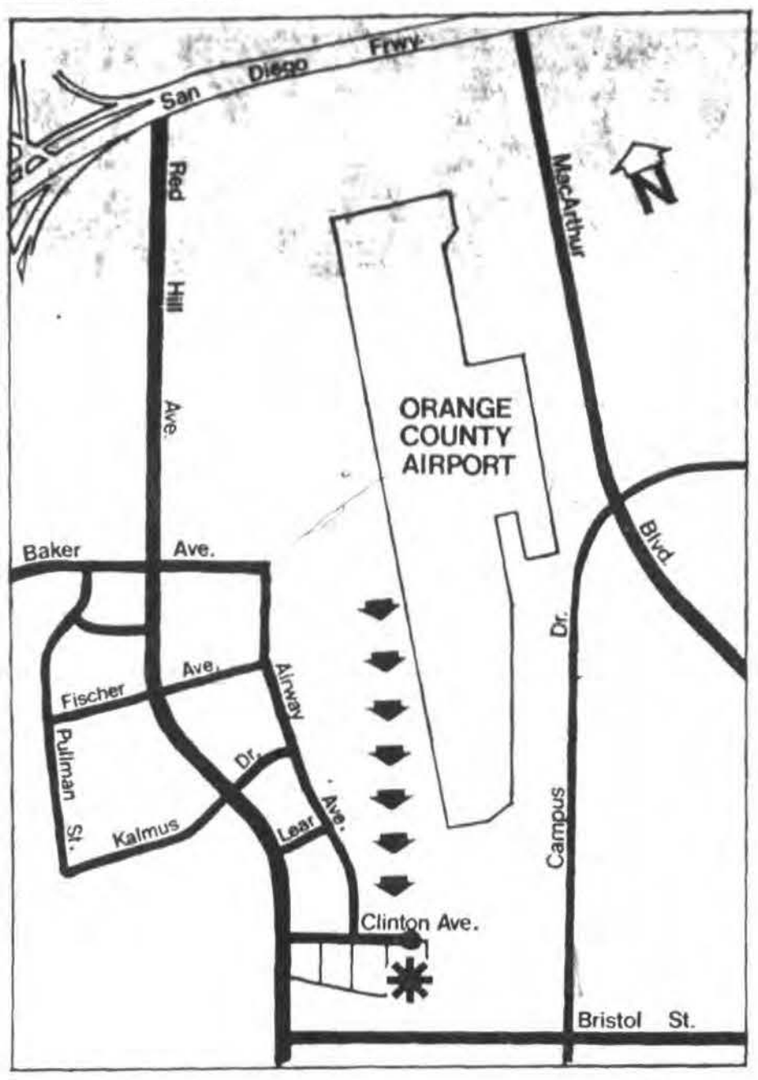

The bulky lawsuit alleges that the New World residents were assured by defendants that their new homes were of stucco construction and were designed to keep out jet noise prevalent in the Laguna Hills area.

It is alleged that the construction material used was actually two-inch plywood coated with an inferior substance which proved inadequate in terms of soundproofing or insulation.

It is also alleged that residents in the 214-home tract were promised an 86-home "adult only" area, prohibited by state and federal law, a parking area for trailers that proved to be far too small and two wading pools that were never built.

In addition, Swanson said, the residents were faced with extra monthly payments that included $4.50 for sewage service, a total of $900 a month to Edison for exterior lighting in addition to regular light bills and extra unlawful payments for water lines and fire hydrants.

The lawsuit further charges Edison with illegally cutting off exterior lights for four months during a dispute with New World residents. An action filed by Edison is awaiting trial in Superior Court.

ing from shock and minor injuries. A Costa Mesa fireman was also slightly injured in the face by flying debris.

John Loeffert, 21, of Anaheim, said he was in the building with Carrol White, 37, of Santa Ana when the plane crashed through the roof about 20 yards from them.

"We went through the flames running like crazy," Loeffert said. "We fell down three or four times. We made it out of the door about 25 yards away.

"The pilot we didn't see in the plane. We were lying on the dirt outside the building and I saw the pilot's body out next to a truck."

Don Wilson, personnel manager for Memorex said that the two warehousemen were the only people in the building located at the end of a cul de sac in the industrial complex. Wilson could not estimate the cost of the value of the warehouse but said that the building, used strictly for storage, was filled with plastic computer components worth at least $250,000.

Memorex has an assembly building located nearby 1352 Reynolds.

The pilot was the only occupant of the plane.

An hour after the crash, which occurred about 8:30 a.m., fire fighters were still battling to bring the inferno under control though the blaze was contained and did not appear to be in danger of spreading to any other industrial plants in the area.

Costa Mesa fire protection analyst Russ Henderson said that the intensity of the fire was due to the highly combustible aluminized material inside the building and the fuel of the plane.

It was believed that the sprinkler system was knocked out by the crash and that there were running water mains inside.

Onlookers were turned back from the area by firemen who expected one wall of the building to collapse. The warehouse appeared to be a total loss.

Part of the plane was on the landscaping in front of the building.

The warehouseman Loeffert, who lives at 2230 Orange Ave., Anaheim, had a scraped leg, but his partner White was in shock and given oxygen by the Costa Mesa paramedics before being taken to hospital. Loeffert said he also got a bump on the head.

The FAA official said that the plane was among what is termed transient traffic.

He said that the pilot was given the weather conditions by the airport and was geared for an instrument approach.

The pilot did not confirm by radio that he was executing a missed approach, just before the crash occurred but it was assumed he was doing that because the location of the crash site was at the opposite end of the field for a landing.

The weather conditions were below instrument landing standards but the clearance for approach was not clearance to land.

The procedure, the official said, allows the pilot to go down to what is called a decision height, a minimum altitude at which time he must be able to see the runway threshold environment or he must then execute a missed approach.

The plane was following the normal instrument landing approach to the airport from the north.

The warehouseman Loeffert was treated at Costa Mesa Memorial Hospital and released, but his fellow worker White, of 1102 S. Raitt, Santa Ana, was admitted with back injuries. His condition was termed satisfactory.

The blaze was brought under control at 9:36 a.m. The building was 53,000-square-feet, and fire officials estimated the structural damage at between $180,000 and $200,000. The contents had been estimated at $250,000.

A vacant site is opposite the building, and there did not appear to be skid marks in the field or on the road in front of the warehouse, suggesting the plane flew straight into it. The plane did hit a runway antenna before the crash.

Thick fog made it difficult for the first crews arriving to find the building despite the intensity of the blaze. An airport official said that he could not see the building from the airport fence, less than 100 feet, when he ran over.

But Plum denied giving any "cues," saying, "I don't think I need to give anybody a cue. They are all intelligent people and can think for themselves."

Mrs. Ackley noted that in addition to Mrs. Johnson's signature, the recall notice included the names of Marsha Richards and Patricia Thompson, who worked on Plum's campaign.

But Mrs. Thompson said today in the past 10 years she has worked on many campaigns. Following that logic, she continued, many people could be behind the recall.

"Everybody wants to read into this what they want," she continued, denying that Plum is involved.

The other three recall notices were signed by Mrs. Johnson, Kirk Lapan, James J. Smith, Bernard Harvey and Flora Davis.

At the same time, Bryant said today he questions the number of signatures Mrs. Johnson claims to have on the earlier recall petitions.

He said he has never seen or heard of any being passed.

But Mrs. Thompson said perhaps his neighborhood hasn't yet been covered, or he wasn't home at the time.

Bryant said he didn't think any signatures were being gathered, dismissing the recall as a "publicity stunt smokescreen by simply serving them at a public meeting where they will get some press coverage."

Jones said he believes Plum wants to remove his four fellow trustees because they frequently disagree with him.

Kissinger To Visit China

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is making his eighth trip to China, a routine journey designed to prepare for President Ford's visit there later this year.

The trip the secretary starts today lacks the drama of Kissinger's first trip in 1971, when he faked illness to sneak into China.

Harrises Plead Not Guilty

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — William and Emily Harris pleaded "not guilty" in firm tones today to charges of kidnaping, assault and robbery, after the trial judge rejected a defense call that he disqualify himself from hearing the case.

In an acid exchange with defense attorney Leonard Weinglass, Superior Court Judge Homer H. Bell said that there was "not a shadow of a doubt in my mind" that he could preside over the trial in an impartial manner without prejudice against the two SLA companions of Patricia Hearst.

The Harrises both stood as deputy District Attorney Samuel Mayerson asked them how they wished to plead to the charges stemming out of a shooting at a sporting goods store in Los Angeles along with Miss Hearst and their subsequent alleged abduction of two men to commandeer their automobiles.

The Harrises spoke only the words "Not Guilty" and said nothing more.

Weinglass, who was the defense attorney at both the Daniel Ellsberg and "Chicago 7" trials, raised the question of Bell's impartiality and asked that the judge disqualify himself.

Weinglass said if Bell did not see fit to do so, he would like a week's postponement so the defense could investigate whether aspects of the judge's career and statements he might have made about the SLA would indicate prejudice.

Amoco Cuts Gas Price 1¢

CHICAGO (UPI) — Amoco Oil Co., the nation's fourth largest gasoline supplier, today reduced its price one cent per gallon to become the third major oil firm in four days to make the cutback.

16 Picked For City Positions

The Huntington Beach City Council has appointed 16 citizens to various city boards and commissions.

Four residents were named to the Environmental Council, an entity which oversees environmental impact reports and other environment matters.

The new members are Leslie Fung, a noise and environmental specialist; Keith Lewinger, environmental engineer; Cameron A. McConnell, assistant to the president of Purex Corp. and Van D. Powell Jr., termite and pest control businessman.

Myrtle B. Stinson, a retired licensed vocational nurse, was named to the city Library Board, a group involved in policies affecting the library.

Five new members were appointed to the city's Bicentennial Commission.

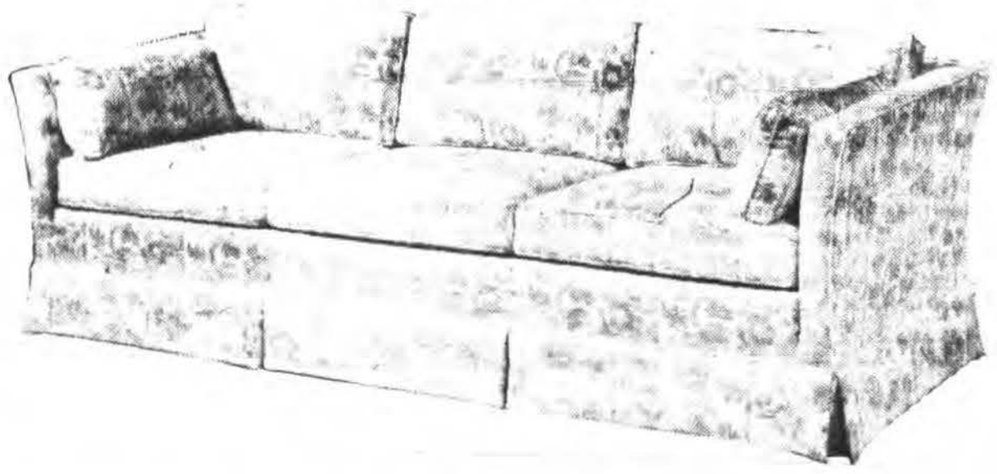

Appointees are Elizabeth A. Valley, housewife and mother; Barbara A. West, dressmaker and costume designer; Joseph T. Whaling, disability insurance examiner; Sibyl A. Kellner, housewife and student, and Dianne Jackson, Huntington Beach Art League.

John M. Steinbrugge was reappointed to the city's Board of Appeals which hears building appeals.

Five new members were appointed to the Huntington Beach Human Resources Council, expanding the number of that group from 10 to 15.

They include Kathleen Manuckin, Florence Boosey, Bobbie Mootchnik, Corrie Broussard and Barry Crawford. The council deals with problems concerning the aged and poor.

Policy Suspended

Lido Channel Clogs With Slime, Debris

By JOHN VALTERZA
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A 250-foot slick of garbage, debris and slime packed into a channel near Lido Isle Thursday and sent residents scurrying to the phones.

As a result, city officials scrapped a long-standing policy to clean up the mess.

City Marine Department Director Robert Reed said that the sudden accumulation of debris in the South Lido channel was unusual.

"It seemed like 90 percent of the bay's visible pollution of the day landed there," he said.

The debris caused concern among the community's more active pollution fighters, who said they planned to confront city councilmen with the latest incident to see if a stronger push can be made to solve the dilemma.

Sue Ficker, president of the Central Newport Beach Improvement Association, said she planned to bring the situation before city government.

Reed said the sudden collection of debris must have occurred because of shifts in wind and current.

In the past, the city has held to a policy that such debris around privately licensed piers and docks is the responsibility of the pier permit holder.

"But in thise case, it was a serious and unusually large accumulation, so we temporarily waived the policy," Reed said.

2 CdM Coeds Cite Talk With Mang

By HILARY KAYE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Two Corona del Mar High School senior girls testified at the dismissal hearing against suspended teacher Michael Mang that the instructor told them, when asked last spring, that his class would be "fornicating."

Defense attorney John Williams attempted to get the girls to admit Mang might have said either "formicating" or "forticating" — words with decidedly different meanings.

Fornicating means the act of sexual intercourse but formicating means "swarming with ants" and forticate is to "strengthen or reinforce."

Both girls, who were clad in blue and white cheerleader outfits Thursday, insisted the word was fornicating.

They testified that the conversation took place last May, when Laura Asbury and Diana Clark, both 16, asked Mang in the school's media center what his class would be doing that afternoon.

She said none of the three students who heard the remark understood the meaning of the word but that teacher Dan Gillis and school nurse Cheryl Caverly, who were both standing nearby

Rossmoor Company Faces Fraud Case

By TOM BARLEY

Rossmoor Corporation, a group of defendants identified in the lawsuit as subsidiaries of the developers and a utility were sued by the state Thursday in a consumer fraud action.

Defendants in a lawsuit filed for the state by the Orange County District Attorney's economic crime division include the Southern California Edison Company and the Casa Linda realty group.

It is alleged in the Superior Court action that 214 persons who bought homes in the New World development in Laguna Hills were the victims of a series of false representations made by the Rossmoor group.

Linked with Rossmoor Corporation to those allegations are Oaklawn Homes, Rossmoor Water Company and Rossmoor Sanitation Company.

Also named is L. G. Fuglie who is identified by Deputy District Attorney C. Brent Swanson as a corporate officer of the Oaklawn company at the same time as he held the office of president of the Moulton Parkway Residents Association.

Swanson said he will seek a civil judgment that could compel the defendants to post signs admitting their liability on charges of consumer fraud, unfair competition and repeated violations of real estate laws. The suit seeks penalties that total more than $10 million.

That judgment, Swanson said, would also provide for restitution to New World residents who demand compensation from the defendants.

The bulky lawsuit alleges that the New World residents were assured by defendants that their new homes were of stucco construction and were designed to keep out jet noise prevalent in the

GOTHAM AGAIN PLAGUES DOW

NEW YORK (UPI) — Last-minute negotiations rescued New York City from default today, but investors remained skeptical about the city's financial future and sent prices lower in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which had lost almost 10 points earlier in the session, recovered at mid-day, but later fell 5.67 to 832.18. Declines outdistanced advances, by a wide margin. (Tables, B5)

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — The Argentine government mobilized an army of 10,000 police today to guard against left-wing guerrilla attacks at a massive rally called by President Isabel Peron who resumed office Thursday after a five-week leave of absence.

He was to have received the annual Optimist Club Award.

Teachers Bail Out New York

NEW YORK (AP) — New York City was rescued from the brink of financial chaos again today when the teachers' union reversed itself and agreed to contribute $150 million in retirement funds to help bail out the city and enable it to meet immediate debts.

The teachers' action came after repeated rebuffs from President Ford, who has rejected arguments that a New York default could mean serious trouble for the entire nation.

Throughout the morning, Shanker remained adamant in his refusal to help. Finally, an hour before the 3 p.m. EDT deadline for default, Shanker said he had changed his mind "after a good deal of agonizing and consideration of the city's grave situation."

The board of trustees that runs the teachers' pension fund approved Shanker's recommendation and city officials said they would start to pay off bondholders, who had lined up in the controller's office to collect their money.

President Ford's press secretary said in Washington that Ford would "not take action to prevent a New York City default." Spokesman Ron Nessen added that none of the President's chief advisers were trying to persuade him to modify his long-standing opposition to federal aid for the city.

Following the teachers lead, trustees of the principal city employes pension fund agreed to go along with an earlier commitment of $100 million to the rescue plan. They had threatened to pull out if the teachers did.

Mayor Abraham Beame had said he had an "open line" to the White House, but Nessen said the White House meetings were being held "purely to keep up with a rapid, fluid and changing situation" — not to canvass possible solutions.

Nessen said he knew of no action Ford could take, even if he wanted to, in the absence of special legislation.

The Senate Banking Committee is holding hearings Saturday on the issue, with Mayor Abraham Beame as a scheduled witness. Various bills have been introduced to aid New York City and other cities in financial difficulty.

Charges Faced By WM

YUMA, Ariz. (UPI) — A woman Marine officer is being court-martialed for allegedly having sex with eight enlisted men, her mother reported, complaining of discrimination because no action is being taken against the men.

Lt. Mary C. Niflis, 23, faces charges of conduct unbecoming an officer and gentlewoman, and disobedience of orders against fraternizing with enlisted personnel, said her mother, Mrs. Eric M. Rickard of Southard, Conn.

Mrs. Rickard wrote to Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.), and Arizona news organizations, protesting that the Marine Corps acted only against her daughter, filing no charges against the eight men.

Lt. Niflis had been stationed at the Yuma Marine Corps Air Station since November, 1973.

Attorney Jay W. Jeffcoat confirmed Mrs. Rickard's story, saying he had been hired as her defense attorney when her court-martial begins Nov. 12 at El Toro Marine Corps Air Station.

A Marine spokesman at El Toro would not comment.

The charges of sexual relations with enlisted men cover eight separate incidents, the lawyer said. The charge of disobedience of a direct order carries a possible sentence of five years in prison.

Jeffcoat said the lieutenant had offered to resign her commission under honorable conditions, but her commanding officer refused.

Sand Castle Builders Dig In Saturday

Thirty teams of sand architects will begin creating masterpieces at Corona del Mar Main Beach Sunday when the starting siren goes off at noon.

The castle builders will be participating in the 14th annual Sandcastle Contest, sponsored by the Commodore's Club of the Newport Harbor Chamber of Commerce.

Judging the creations, which must be completed by 2 p.m., will be Assemblyman Robert Badham, Newport Beach City Manager Robert Wynn, Miss Newport Beach Debbie Van Cleve, sculptor Doug Yates, and architect Bill Ficker.

Castle creators will have 10 categories in which to win trophies, including most artistic, most humorous, best drip castle, best leasehold and best high-rise.

There are still a few 10 feet by 10 feet plots of sand open for those wishing to enter the contest, according to chamber officials. Prospective entrants may phone 675-4500.

The regular entry fee is $10 per group, but youth groups contacting the chamber of commerce will be sponsored with no entry fee charged.

The statement said "previous engagements" will prevent the pontiff from accepting the visiting governor either today or Saturday, the two days Wallace had suggested.

that there were marks to indicate the plane might have skidded through the front.

The two warehousemen who escaped were taken to Costa Mesa Memorial Hospital suffering from shock and minor injuries. A Costa Mesa fireman was also slightly injured in the face by flying debris.

John Loeffert, 21, of Anaheim, said he was in the building with Carrol White, 37, of Santa Ana when the plane crashed through the roof about 20 yards from them.

"We went through the flames running like crazy," Loeffert said. "We fell down three or four times. We made it out of the door about 25 yards away.

"The pilot we didn't see in the plane. We were lying on the dirt outside the building and I saw the pilot's body out next to a truck."

Don Wilson, personnel manager for Memorex said that the two warehousemen were the only people in the building located at the end of a cul de sac in the industrial complex. Wilson could not estimate the cost of the value of the warehouse but said that the building, used strictly for storage, was filled with plastic computer components worth at least $250,000.

Memorex has an assembly building located nearby 1352 Reynolds.

The pilot was the only occupant of the plane.

An hour after the crash, which occurred about 8:30 a.m., fire fighters were still battling to bring the inferno under control though the blaze was contained and did not appear to be in danger of spreading to any other industrial plants in the area.

Costa Mesa fire protection analyst Russ Henderson said that the intensity of the fire was due to the highly combustible aluminized material inside the building and the fuel of the plane.

It was believed that the sprinkler system was knocked out by the crash and that there were running water mains inside.

Onlookers were turned back from the area by firemen who expected one wall of the building to collapse. The warehouse appeared to be a total loss.

Part of the plane was on the landscaping in front of the building.

The warehouseman Loeffert, who lives at 2230 Orange Ave., Anaheim, had a scraped leg, but his partner White was in shock and given oxygen by the Costa Mesa paramedics before being taken to hospital. Loeffert said he also got a bump on the head.

The FAA official said that the plane was among what is termed transient traffic.

He said that the pilot was given the weather conditions by the airport and was geared for an instrument approach.

The pilot did not confirm by radio that he was executing a missed approach, just before the crash occurred but it was assumed he was doing that because the location of the crash site was at the opposite end of the field for a landing.

The weather conditions were below instrument landing standards but the clearance for approach was not clearance to land.

The procedure, the official said, allows the pilot to go down to what is called a decision height, a minimum altitude at which time he must be able to see the runway threshold environment or he must then execute a missed approach.

The plane was following the normal instrument landing approach to the airport from the north.

The warehouseman Loeffert was treated at Costa Mesa Memorial Hospital and released, but his fellow worker White, of 1102 S. Raitt, Santa Ana, was admitted with back injuries. His condition was termed satisfactory.

The blaze was brought under control at 9:36 a.m. The building was 53,000-square-feet, and fire officials estimated the structural damage at between $180,000 and $200,000. The contents had been estimated at $250,000.

A vacant site is opposite the building, and there did not appear to be skid marks in the field or on the road in front of the warehouse, suggesting the plane flew straight into it. The plane did hit a runway antenna before the crash.

told Miss Asbury that it was a word for "the sex act."

Miss Asbury stated she was "a little embarrassed" to learn the meaning of the word from two adults, and Gillis, an English teacher at the school, said he was "really shocked."

Mang, 35, faces 36 charges of unprofessional conduct brought against him by the Newport-Mesa Unified School District. He was suspended from teaching his social studies classes at Corona del Mar High last May.

A third student to testify, Doug Killian, alleged that Mang answered his classroom intercom with the phrase, "Clyde's Abortion Mill. You rape 'em, we scrape 'em."

Killian said students in the class laughed when the remark was made and were "startled" that Mang had said it.

Killian also testified that Mang told his class "a certain percentage of the faculty is homosexual."

Killian, who did not recall the exact percentage used by Mang, added under cross examination that the remark came up when a student asked Mang about a former teacher.

Another witness, James Tomlin, related an incident last spring when Mang allegedly greeted another teacher with a coarse obscenity.

Tomlin, a social studies teacher and track coach, related the incident in such a comic manner that both the participants in the hearing and members of the audience laughed throughout his testimony.

He said that Mang greeted teacher Henry Wong with the obscenity before the start of school in the social studies office.

Tomlin admitted the remark was probably made "facetiously", but said he was concerned students might have been within earshot. He added that he saw no students near the open door.

Today, the prosecution was expected to call additional former students and school officials to testify about more of the 36 charges against Mang.

The hearing, being heard by a three-man panel headed by a state hearing officer from Sacramento, is expected to run at least through the remainder of this month.

At the end of the hearing, the panel will decide whether or not Mang should remain in the school district.

Laguna Hills area.

It is alleged that the construction material used was actually two-inch plywood coated with an inferior substance which proved inadequate in terms of soundproofing or insulation.

It is also alleged that residents in the 214-home tract were promised an 86-home "adult only" area, prohibited by state and federal law, a parking area for trailers that proved to be far too small and two wading pools that were never built.

In addition, Swanson said, the residents were faced with extra monthly payments that included $4.50 for sewage service, a total of $900 a month to Edison for exterior lighting in addition to regular light bills and extra unlawful payments for water lines and fire hydrants.

The lawsuit further charges Edison with illegally cutting off exterior lights for four months during a dispute with New World residents. An action filed by Edison is awaiting trial in Superior Court.

He contracted with a private concern to clean up the garbage which would fill several 55-gallon drums, he said.

Reed said that in recent weeks his staff has been patrolling the harbor waters with debris and pollution in mind and that the department is gathering definitive data to determine the specific origins of the debris.

"Some people think we're doing nothing about it, but we are. In a case like this you can't operate on generalizations, you have to have specifics," Reed said.

Amoco Cuts Gas Price 1¢

CHICAGO (UPI) — Amoco Oil Co., the nation's fourth largest gasoline supplier, today reduced its price one cent per gallon to become the third major oil firm in four days to make the cutback.

Amoco's decision came one day after the nation's second largest supplier, Shell Oil Co., trimmed a penny from its prices. Exxon did it on Tuesday.

Multipartner Sex Practiced by SLA?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Multipartner sexual relations were an integral part of the day-to-day lives of the fugitive Symbionese Liberation Army members — including Patricia Hearst, the Los Angeles Times reported today.

The Times, quoting documents found in the apartment of SLA members Bill and Emily Harris, said the sexual practices were used to preserve "feminist self-determination" by successfully smashing "the dependencies created by monogamal (sic) personal sexual relationships . . . in the cell."

(An SLA document declares that Patricia Hearst "seemed more like a comrade than a prisoner" during her blindfolded conversion to the SLA and eventually declined the chance to leave her captors, the San Francisco Examiner also reported today.)

The Times said the documents it obtained appear to include a series of answers to questions submitted to the SLA by an unnamed person, similar to the kind of queries a writer might use in the preparation of material for a book.

Other writings obtained by the Times include a handwritten discourse on the kinds of problems female SLA members faced as "feminist freedom fighters" and a typewritten message apparently written to Miss Hearst by an SLA member.

The Times said some investigators believed the Hearst message is written in the style of Bill Harris, and the question-answer series appears to have been handled by his wife, Emily.

The FBI had no immediate comment on the authenticity of the documents or their possible authorship.

Huntington Man Nabbed In Burglary

Newport Beach police early Thursday arrested a 24-year-old Huntington Beach resident on suspicion of burglarizing an Upper Bay area home and stealing $15,000 worth of Indian jewelry.

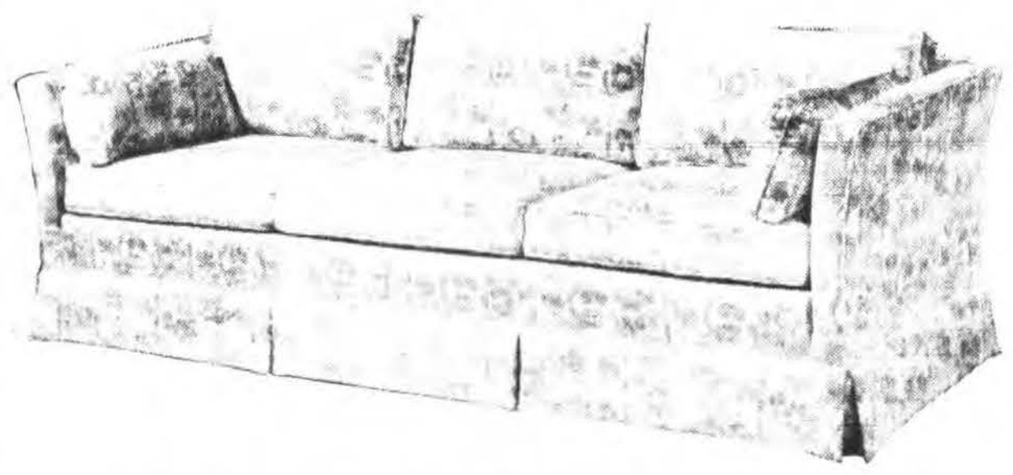

The Wednesday burglary at the home of a Costa Mesa businessman involved the loss of much of the man's stock of jewelry. Working with some leads from witnesses, detectives Thursday arrested Boyd L. Coker, 812 Delaware St., Huntington Beach.

Detectives said that Coker was wearing some of the baubles alleged to have been stolen the day before in the Bluffs colony of Newport.

Detective John Furrow said the identity of the victim was not specified because his home and business have been involved in other recent breakins.

Coker was booked on a charge of burglary and held in lieu of $10,000 bail.

Faulty Device Suit Settled

SANTA ANA — A federal court has awarded $12,500 to a Montgomery, Ala., woman whose Santa Ana-made pacemaker failed three weeks after it was implanted to regulate her heartbeat.

Edwards Labs of Santa Ana, a firm which recently recalled a batch of heart valves, had been sued by Mrs. Cora Hauser, 66, for $200,000.

Attorneys for Mrs. Houser contended that the manufacturer knew of the 5 percent failure rate of the devices, but refused to recall them or warn doctors of the danger because "they were hungry for money."

In testimony this week, Robert Kelley of Edwards Labs, said that the 5 percent failure rate was not excessive and that doctors had been adequately warned of possible failures.

ORANGE COUNTY

7 Women Appointed To Board

SANTA ANA — Seven more Orange County women have been named to the newly-created 15-member county Commission on the Status of Women.

The county Board of Supervisors made eight of the appointments earlier in the week.

Two of the latest appointees were chosen by Supervisor Ralph Diedrich to represent his north county district.

Diedrich's commissioners will be Greta Hambsch of La Habra, a housewife and former schoolteacher, and Minna Van Tilburg, a Fullerton resident who is an officer in the American Association of University Women.

Supervisors also approved the appointment of five "at-large" commission members, each of whom will serve one-year terms.

The at-large appointees are Mary Schmitz of Newport Beach, wife of former Congressman John Schmitz; Anne Doyle, a Fullerton member of the National Organization for Women; Nola Simon, an Irvine insurance woman; Dolly Schultz, an Anaheim resident and member of the county Democratic Central Committee and Sadie Reid of Santa Ana, a former candidate for supervisor.

Red Flag Patrols

Fire Alert Activated

The arrival of hot, dry Santa Ana wind conditions has prompted the California Division of Forestry—Orange County Fire Department to reactivate its Red Flag Fire Alert program.

Its objective is to prevent fires in pre-selected high hazard areas which have been designated by the fire chief to be extremely vulnerable to major conflagrations with loss of life and property if a fire were to start under extreme weather conditions.

THIS YEAR COUNTY firemen have enlisted the aid of five city fire departments and three major utility firms to implement the Red Flag patrol program.

The cities — Anaheim, Brea, Orange, Laguna Beach, and San Clemente — were chosen because a portion of their jurisdiction lies within the high hazard areas.

Utility trucks from the Pacific Telephone Company, the Southern California Edison Company, and the Southern California Gas Company also will participate in the program.

Most of the Red Flag Fire Patrol vehicles will be identified by a large white sign with red letters reading "Red Flag Fire Patrol" and red flags on their radio antennas.

IN ADDITION, all county fire stations will fly a large red flag on top of the station when critical fire conditions persist.

The purpose of the program is to make the public aware of acute fire danger and to spot unsafe burning, camp fires, unsafe actions by recreationists, fire closure violations, and to report suspicious persons or actions.

Firemen hope that utility company employes will be able to spot fires in early stages or spot suspicious activities because they travel in critical areas frequently and have the capability of making reports over their radios.

County Imposes EIR Process Fee

SANTA ANA — Orange County government planning agencies will now charge fees for processing and refining environmental impact reports for new development projects in unincorporated areas.

The county Board of Supervisors Tuesday adopted a rate schedule proposed by H.G. "George" Osborne, director of the county Environmental Management Agency.

AN EXAMINATION of Osborne's proposal by the County Administrative Office showed the county could collect upwards of $221,000 a year from the fees — nearly two-thirds of the $350,000 spent annually to handle the often-bulky documents.

Osborne estimates his staff spends about 50 hours reviewing each developer's EIR before it is sent on for approval by either the planning commission or supervisors.

Under the new rate structure such review and refinement will cost $20 per hour plus the cost of any consulting work.

IN THE CASES where county staff must prepare a complete EIR for public projcts, Osborne estimated about 150 hours are consumed.

By MILTON MOSKOWITZ

The world's newest airline is Japan-Asia Airways (JAA), and it owes its existence to political hatred. You're not likely to be flying JAA unless you decide to visit Taiwan, which is the island Chiang Kai-shek retreated to in 1949 when the Chinese Communists occupied the mainland and established the People's Republic of China.

JAA flies between Tokyo and Taipei, the capital of Taiwan. That's the only route it has. It will probably never get another one. It doesn't want one. It was set up just to fly this one route.

Politics dictate many bizarre happenings in the international airline business, and the creation of JAA is surely a classic example.

IT'S NOT THAT AIRLINE service between Japan and Taiwan is not needed. On the contrary, it's a heavily traveled route, currently flown by seven airlines, including our own Northwest Airlines. And up to 1974, it was the busiest route flown by Japan Air Lines (JAL), Japan's national flight carrier.

JAL, now one of the leading international carriers, had a problem with this route when it decided it wanted to fly to mainland China. The Taiwanese government was blunt about it: If you fly to Peking, you don't fly to Taipei.

JAL chose the route to mainland China. Began flying there in April of 1974.

Taiwan kept its word. JAL's service was suspended. Indeed the Taiwanese were so furious that they warned JAL that if any of its planes flew over Taiwan en route to China, they might be shot down.

SO JAL HAS BEEN shut out of this lucrative market for more than a year. From a strictly business standpoint it made no sense. On the two flights a week it now makes to Shanghai and Peking, JAL carries about 30,000 passengers a year. On the 37 flights a week it used to operate in Taipei, JAL carried 30,000 passengers every month.

Japan-Asia Airways is JAL's answer to this ludicrous situation. While any plane bearing JAL's insignia is forbidden to set down in Taiwan, the prohibition does not extend to planes bearing the newly created JAA insignia.

JAA inaugurated service between Tokyo and Taipei on Sept. 15. It's making 12 flights a week, using DC-8s. Next year it will add Boeing 747 jumbo jets as it gradually expands its service to the 37 flights a week formerly operated by JAL.

IT APPARENTLY DOESN'T bother the Taiwanese that JapanAsia Airways is a wholly owned subsidiary of Japan Air Lines. They just don't want to see JAL at Taipei Airport. JAA is okay.

Phone Rate Hikes Of 60% Seen by '85

DALLAS (UPI) — A study shows that business and residential telephone rates could increase by nearly 60 percent by 1985, the U.S. Independent Telephone Association has announced.

The prediction was based on an industry financed study of competition in the telecommunications field over the next 10 years, the association said.

JAMES T. NAYLOR, staff director of the USITA interconnection committee, disclosed the figures at the association's 78th annual convention in Dallas.

"If competition in some of our markets is going to prevail, we need to define those markets and we need to be assured of the opportunity to compete on a fair and equitable basis," Naylor said in prepared remarks. "Our survival may depend on early reaction to the prospective changes."

The USITA hired a California firm, Systems Applications, Inc., to conduct the $360,000 study.

NAYLOR SAID the study showed a severe economic impact on the independent telephone industry.

The report showed that, under a 'most likely' scenario over the next 10 years, business rates would increase 55 percent and residential rates 58 percent by 1985.

The USITA said the report took into account the fact that the nation's telephone industry, historically functioning as a regulated monopoly by Bell and independent companies, faced new competition under decisions of the Federal Communications Commission.

I Never Got Down, Says Reds Hero Perez

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Boston Red Sox find themselves on the critical list after being hit and run over by the Big Red Machine.

After looking sick in the first four games of the World Series, Tony Perez suddenly regained his health with two home runs as the Cincinnati Reds beat the Red Sox, 6-2, Thursday night and took a 3-2 stranglehold in the best-of-seven game classic.

The National League champions can polish off the Red Sox Saturday in the sixth game at Fenway Park, where Jack Billingham will face Boston lefthander Bill Lee.

"I never get down on myself," said Perez, who had fought a torturous batting slump before breaking it Thursday night before the appreciative, roaring hometown fans in Riverfront Stadium.

In the sixth, Perez got another good pitch from the beefy Boston right-hander and parked that one a little higher over the left-center field fence. Two men were on base at the time and it gave hard-throwing Don Gullett a handsome 5-1 lead.

"On the first home run, the ball was in on me and it felt good when I hit it," said Perez, happy to finally escape the clutches of his Series-long slump. "It was the first pitch all Series inside to me. The second homer was on a fastball inside. They kept the ball away from me all series, but tonight they came in. I felt real good in batting practice."

Perez had tried everything to crack the distressing drought. He told reporters that his superstitious wife, Pituka, urged him to try driving a different way to the ballpark for Game 5. Also, she took Tony shopping before the game to "spend money" and try to get his mind off the Series.

"She tried everything to get me back in the groove again," Perez said.

Perez' depressing slump had reached such a point that manager Sparky Anderson tried some humor before the game to loosen up his bull-shouldered star. The good-natured manager kidded the first baseman that the way he was going, he would soon set a record for hitless appearances in a World Series.

"I don't want that record," Perez told Anderson before he went on his hitting tear.

"It got to be ridiculous," Anderson told the press afterward. "I had to lighten things up with a little joke. I've seen what slumps can do to power hitters. Our power boys, like Tony and Johnny Bench, are either red-hot or ice-cold. They're streak hitters — and when they start streaking, watch out."

Perez has been in slumps before but never worried about them.

While the Cuban-born star was making life miserable for the American League champions with his bat, Gullett was making them look sick with his arm. The Reds' best pitcher gave up just two hits to Boston through eight innings and then three more in the ninth before being forced from the game with just one out to go.

ALVIN DARK

Dark Out, Mauch In At Oakland?

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley will offer manager Alvin Dark's job to Gene Mauch, a Birmingham newspaper reported in today's editions.

The Birmingham Post-Herald said Finley decided not to renew Dark's contract, which expired at the end of the 1975 season, partly because of the owner's displeasure with Dark's last two seasons.

And the paper quoted reliable sources as saying the club was up for sale for an estimated $15 million, but there were no immediate offers.

The Post-Herald also said that Finley was upset over a comment made by Dark at a church service on the West Coast. Dark told the congregation, the paper said, that Finley was "going to hell."

Also, the sources reportedly said, Finley complained that his manager had no control over his players.

Dark is in his second tenure as head of the club. After he was hired for the second time, Finley said: "Yes, he has been manager of this club before. Yes, he was fired. Yes he is back to manage this club. Yes, he expects to be fired again some day.".

After a 14-season career as a major league infielder, Dark stopped playing in 1960 and began directing the San Francisco Giants the next year.

In 1962, he led the Giants to a National League pennant, but was fired just two years later.

He went to Kansas City and Finley in 1966 and lasted that year and part of the next before the owner fired him for the first time. From there he went to Cleveland, as skipper and general manager, but was dismissed with 2½ years left on his contract.

After a few seasons out of baseball, Dark returned to the Finley organization — and took the A's to its third consecutive World Series victory. This month, his team was beaten by the Boston Red Sox in three straight games during the AL playoffs. Mauch was recently fired by Montreal.

Red Sox Remain Confident

CINCINNATI (AP) — Beaten in the fifth game? Yes. Down 3-2 to the Cincinnati Reds in the World Series? Yes. A whipped team? Definitely NO.

That summed up the general feeling among the Boston Red Sox today as they returned home, faced with the task of winning two in a row from the Reds for the city's first World Series championship since 1918.

Except for southpaw Bill Lee, the Red Sox talked softly but with the confidence they've shown all year after dropping a 6-2 decision to the Reds in Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium.

Lee, listed as the starting pitcher for Saturday's sixth game at Fenway Park, released personal tension by sipping tea and wise-cracking with writers.

"I like pressure," he said. "I'm going to show up. What else can I do. I'm not gonna lie down and play dead. I won't have cardiac arrest. I'll do what I can."

Team captain Carl Yastrzemski, who led the Red Sox to their last pennant in 1967, recalled the drama of the past two days of that championship season as he looked ahead, hopefully, to two games with Cincinnati this weekend.

"I keep thinking back to 1967 when he beat the Minnesota Twins two in a row to win the pennant," Yaz said. "I know we can do it with the Reds. The fans will give us a tremendous lift in our ball park."

"This puts them one up, but they still have to win four," said third baseman Rico Petrocelli, the only other Boston player still around from the 1967 team.

"Sure, we're behind 3-2 in the series, but now we're going home to our ball park," Petrocelli said. "We're just going to have to go like heck Saturday. You can bet we'll be ready. We've come from behind all year, and we can do it again."

Although most admitted the team did not play very well in the field, the Red Sox gave due credit to Cincinnati southpaw Don Gullett for a fine pitching performance which gave the Reds the series advantage. Gullett allowed only two hits until tiring in the ninth and needing relief help.

Comedy of Errors

Another Foulup In Pan Am Games

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The VII Pan American Games almost made it through one day without controversy.

Emphasize "almost."

As the fifth day of the problem-plagued Games began today, the United States tied the Cubans in gold medals, 26-26, and jumped out to a healthy 66-50 edge in total medals. The gold-silver-bronze count for the Americans was 26-24-16 with the Cubans at 26-16-8. Next was Canada at 5-6-12 with host Mexico following with 3-5-11.

Thursday's schedule started out innocently enough, but just as it had each of the three previous days, officialdom came down with a case of foot-in-mouth disease.

This time it was in the women's 200-meter finals where young Americans Chandra Cheeseborough and Pamela Jiles finished 1-2 in a photo finish that took hours to sort out.

But just before the medals were to handed out, a misinformed official told Jiles she had won. So she joyfully accepted what she thought was her second gold of the Games.

Later, when the mixup was discovered, the medals were tearfully exchanged.

Two disputes left over from Wednesday's comedy of errors were mediated Thursday. A jury of appeal let stand the results in the men's discus, even though it was conceded the Cuban who won the silver medal used an illegal disc. Americans John Powell and Jay Silvester took the gold and bronze medals.

The Yanks fared better in the three-day equestrian finals where a protest had been lodged over the accidential disqualification of world champion Bruce Davidson of Unionville, Pa., in the middle of an impressive run. An official thought Davidson was Canadian Jim Day, who was ousted for a minor rules violation.

Davidson was allowed to resume his ride from the point of disqualification. He finished with a silver medal behind Tad Coffin of Strafford, Vt., the gold medal winner.

The U.S. equestrian team also earned a gold medal — one of eight Thursday for the Americans.

After three days of Cuban domination in weightlifting, the United States finally made a successful challenge. Lee James won two gold medals of three in the light heavyweight weightlifting categories. Cuba's Abel Lopez won the other gold, and both silvers. James had the third silver.

In middle heavyweight, the Americans did even better with Phil Grippaldi winning two golds and a bronze, and Frank Capsouras, adding a silver and two bronze.

Both U.S. gold medals in track and field were Pan Am records. Cheeseborough, with Jiles four-hundredths of a second behind, traveled the 200 meters in 22.77, bettering a mark Jiles set in preliminaries, and Tom Woods, a senior at Oregon State, triumphantly cleared 7-4½ on his final try in the high jump.

Guyana won its first gold medals of the Games, thanks to University of California sprinter James Gilkes, a legal resident of the small South American country. Gilkes won the 200 meters with a clocking of 20.43 seconds.

Diane Jones of Canada easily outdistanced runner-up Gail Fitzgerald of the U.S., 4,673 points to 4,486 in the women's pentathlon. Jones' sister, Joanne, was seventh.

Mexicans set the pace in the 5,000-meter run, Domingo Tibauduiza of Colombia and Ted Castenada of the U.S. swept past them in the late going and finished 1-2 in the event. Rodolfo Gomez, the Pan Am torch lighter last Sunday, held on for third behind the winning time of 14 minutes, 2 seconds.

In basketball, the undefeated U.S. men's squad rolled to an easy victory over Puerto Rico, 85-53. Otis Birdsong led the Americans with 18 points, and coach Marv Harshman was able to play substitutes most of the second half after building a 36-19 halftime edge.

Cuba, the United States and Mexico were the top three in the fencing foil team finals.

Uncertainty Surrounds Sun Game

HONOLULU (AP) — Players and management of the World Football League Hawaiians appeared to be nearing settlement, but it remained uncertain whether the Hawaiians would play here Sunday against the Southern California Sun.

The team earlier voted not to take the field after rejecting two proposals for cutting pay.

Player representative Ken Bowman said Thursday that "it is safe to assume" that Sunday's game would be played. Henry Shigekane, a member of the team's executive committee, also said he understood the game would be played.

Coach Mike Giddings, however, injected another note of uncertainty Thursday when he hinted that coaches might boycott the game.

"We will not put a team on the field, or at least we will not be with that team on the field Sunday, unless we feel as coaches that they have a chance to win and that we can give the fans their money's worth," Giddings said.

The team did not practice Wednesday or Thursday, and Giddings said he did not know if there would be a practice session today.

"There is no question that we are in real financial difficulty," Giddings added.

Management reportedly asked many players to accept a pay cut to $250 a game.

The Honolulu Star-Bulletin quoted a team source as saying that WFL officials in New York have asked all players to take pay cuts.

The league's board of governors met in New York earlier this week amid reports that they were considering disbanding. League president Chris Hemmeter, however, refused to comment on the league's financial position after the meetings ended.

Sunday's contest against Southern California is a late addition to the Hawaiians' schedule, made after the league shut down its Chicago franchise.

The game is not part of the team's season ticket package, and team officials view Sunday's attendance as a critical test of the Hawaiians' future.

"We are not unhappy with local attendance figures, but a show of good faith Sunday night certainly wouldn't hurt things," said Dave Stringer, another member of the executive committee.

Stringer configued that lower player salaries are one option being pursued by the struggling league.

"We feel we owe it to the players to ask them if they wish to continue under these conditions," Stringer said.

Boston Forecast: Rain

BOSTON — Rain is forecast for Saturday's sixth game of the World Series between the Cincinnati Reds and the Boston Red Sox.

No Series game has ever gone less than nine innings once it's begun and baseball officials say they will make every effort to play Saturday's game despite predictions of rain.

A spokesman for the baseball commissioner's office said "we would wait and wait and wait, no matter how long, in an attempt to complete the game. But if it became impossible to continue, regular season rules would apply." Such a decision is up to Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

U.S. Favored

TUCSON — The United States was heavily favored over less seasoned Venezuela today as play began in the second round of the Davis Cup tennis challenge for 1976 with superstar Jimmy Connors for the first time heading the Yankee effort.

The U.S. drew a bye in the first round and will attempt to atone for early round losses the past two years to Mexico and Colombia.

While the 1976 series is already under way, the rather confusing Davis Cup international competitive format finds the 1975 championship at stake when Sweden meets Czechoslovakia in Stockholm in December.

Today's opening singles matches pitted Roscoe Tanner of the United States against Jorge Andrew in the first battle with Connors going against Humphrey Hose.

ORLANDO, Fla. — Chris Evert subdued Isa Fernandez of Colombia, 6-1, 6-4, in 56 minutes Thursday night to head into the quarterfinals of the $50,000 Orlando Women's Classic.

In other singles matches, Rosie Casals annihilated Kris Kemmer Shaw, 6-0, 6-1; Betsy Nagelsen blasted Joanne Russell, 6-1, 6-4; and Donna Ganz downed Roberta Stark, 6-3, 6-4.

A twin engine Beech Baron airplane crashed in thick fog near Orange County Airport this morning, killing the pilot and spewing flames and debris through a huge Costa Mesa warehouse.

Identification of the pilot was not immediately available.

Two Costa Mesa firemen were injured battling the blaze. One was hospitalized.

Two warehouse workers inside the structure were thrown to the floor by the crash and explosion which followed.

They said they were able to run out through the flames and flying debris and escaped with apparently minor injuries.

One fireman, Scott Barger, was taken to Costa Mesa Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries suffered when a high-pressure hose coupling came apart and the heavy metal hit him in the face.

Authorities said Fire Capt. Barry Adams was also injured, but was treated by paramedics at the scene.

Firemen from several cities fought the blaze in the warehouse of Memorex ConData at 385 Clinton Ave., Costa Mesa, a building about 100 feet from the southwest of the airport perimeter.

Federal Aviation Administration official Russ Thayer said the pilot was executing an apparent missed approach when he lost the plane in fog with a ceiling of 100 feet and one-quarter mile visibility.

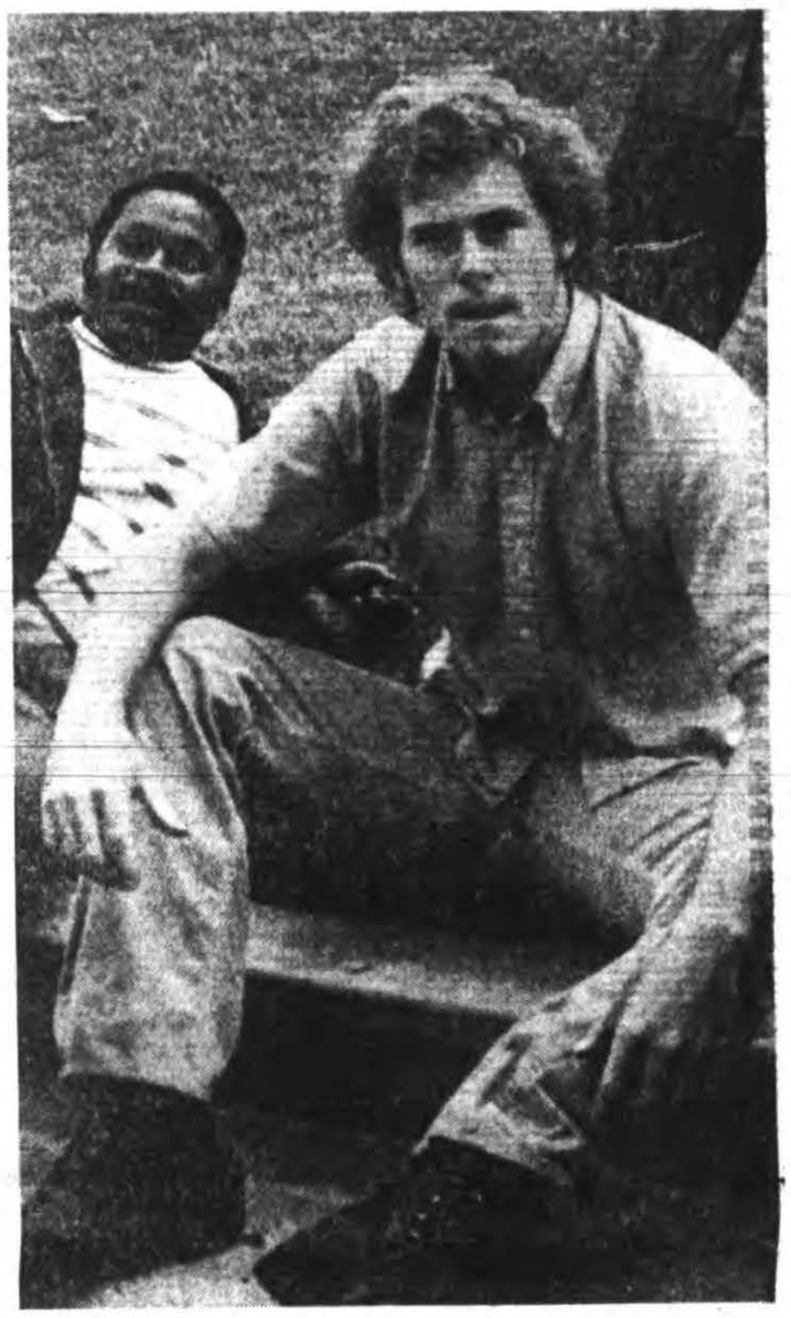

The weather conditions were reported to the pilot by Orange County airport tower aides, Thayer said.

The FAA official said that the pilot was on instrument landing and was executing his approach. In such circumstances there is a minimum altitude that a pilot can go down to, then he must be able to see the runway threshold or abort the descent.

It could not be determined whether the plane crashed through the roof of the building or through the front.

One of the warehousemen said that the plane came through the roof, but an airport official said

Harrises File Plea Of 'Not Guilty'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — William and Emily Harris pleaded "not guilty" in firm tones today to charges of kidnaping, assault and robbery, after the trial judge rejected a defense call that he disqualify himself from hearing the case.

In an acid exchange with defense attorney Leonard Weinglass, Superior Court Judge Homer H. Bell said that there was "not a shadow of a doubt in my mind" that he could preside over the trial in an impartial manner without prejudice against the two SLA companions of Patricia Hearst.

The Harrises both stood as deputy District Attorney Samuel Mayerson asked them how they wished to plead to the charges stemming out of a shooting at a sporting goods store in Los Angeles along with Miss Hearst and their subsequent alleged abduction of two men to commandeer their automobiles.

The Harrises spoke only the words "Not Guilty" and said nothing more.

Weinglass, who was the defense attorney at both the Daniel Ellsberg and "Chicago 7" trials, raised the question of Bell's impartiality and asked that the judge disqualify himself.

Weinglass said if Bell did not see fit to do so, he would like a week's postponement so the defense could investigate whether aspects of the judge's career and statements he might have made about the SLA would indicate prejudice.

He noted that before taking the bench, Bell had been a prosecutor in the U.S. attorney's office, a city attorney and active in Republican politics for 30 years. He noted that he had been appointed by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Bell rejected the motion for a week's delay and also refused to disqualify himself.

2 CdM Coeds Cite Talk With Mang

By HILARY KAYE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Two Corona del Mar High School senior girls testified at the dismissal hearing against suspended teacher Michael Mang that the instructor told them, when asked last spring, that his class would be "fornicating."

Defense attorney John Williams attempted to get the girls to admit Mang might have said either "formicating" or "forticating" — words with decidedly different meanings.

Fornicating means the act of sexual intercourse but formicating means "swarming with ants" and forticate is to "strengthen or reinforce."

Both girls, who were clad in blue and white cheerleader outfits Thursday, insisted the word was fornicating.

They testified that the conversation took place last May, when Laura Asbury and Diana Clark, both 16, asked Mang in the school's media center what his class would be doing that afternoon.

Miss Clark, Mang's former student, said her teacher answered "fornicating."

She said none of the three students who heard the remark understood the meaning of the word but that teacher Dan Gillis and school nurse Cheryl Caverly, who were both standing nearby

Rossmoor Company Faces Fraud Case

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Rossmoor Corporation, a group of defendants identified in the lawsuit as subsidiaries of the developers and a utility were sued by the state Thursday in a consumer fraud action.

Defendants in a lawsuit filed for the state by the Orange County District Attorney's economic crime division include the Southern California Edison Company and the Casa Linda realty group.

It is alleged in the Superior Court action that 214 persons who bought homes in the New World development, in Laguna Hills were the victims of a series of false representations made by the Rossmoor group.

Linked with Rossmoor Corporation to those allegations are Oaklawn Homes, Rossmoor Water Company and Rossmoor Sanitation Company.

Also named is L. G. Fuglie who is identified by Deputy District Attorney C. Brent Swanson as a corporate officer of the Oaklawn company at the same time as he held the office of president of the Moulton Parkway Residents Association.

Swanson said he will seek a civil judgment that could compel the defendants to post signs admitting their liability on charges of consumer fraud, unfair competition and repeated violations of real estate laws. The suit seeks penalties that total more than $10 million.

That judgment, Swanson said, would also provide for restitution to New World residents who demand compensation from the defendants.

The bulky lawsuit alleges that the New World residents were assured by defendants that their new homes were of stucco construction and were designed to keep out jet noise prevalent in the

GOTHAM AGAIN PLAGUES DOW

NEW YORK (UPI) — Last-minute negotiations rescued New York City from default today, but investors remained skeptical about the city's financial future and sent prices lower in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which had lost almost 10 points earlier in the session, recovered at mid-day, but later fell 5.67 to 832.18. Declines outdistanced advances, by a wide margin. (Tables, B5)

MAYOR BEAME NOT IN MOOD

NEW YORK (AP) — With New York City on the brink of default, Mayor Abraham D. Beame canceled an appointment today.

He was to have received the annual Optimist Club Award.

Teachers Bail Out New York

NEW YORK (AP) — New York City was rescued from the brink of financial chaos again today when the teachers' union reversed itself and agreed to contribute $150 million in retirement funds to help bail out the city and enable it to meet immediate debts.

The teachers' action came after repeated rebuffs from President Ford, who has rejected arguments that a New York default could mean serious trouble for the entire nation.

United Federation of Teachers President Albert Shanker was the key man in the nonstop maneuvering by city and state officials to put together a multimillion-dollar money package and avoid a midafternoon default on $453 million.

Throughout the morning, Shanker remained adamant in his refusal to help. Finally, an hour before the 3 p.m. EDT deadline for default, Shanker said he had changed his mind "after a good deal of agonizing and consideration of the city's grave situation."

The board of trustees that runs the teachers' pension fund approved Shanker's recommendation and city officials said they would start to pay off bondholders, who had lined up in the controller's office to collect their money.

President Ford's press secretary said in Washington that Ford would "not take action to prevent a New York City default." Spokesman Ron Nessen added that none of the President's chief advisers were trying to persuade him to modify his long-standing opposition to federal aid for the city.

Following the teachers lead, trustees of the principal city employes pension fund agreed to go along with an earlier commitment of $100 million to the rescue plan. They had threatened to pull out if the teachers did.

Mayor Abraham Beame had said he had an "open line" to the White House, but Nessen said the White House meetings were being held "purely to keep up with a rapid, fluid and changing situation" — not to canvass possible solutions.

Nessen said he knew of no action Ford could take, even if he wanted to, in the absence of special legislation.

The Senate Banking Committee is holding hearings Saturday on the issue, with Mayor Abraham Beame as a scheduled witness. Various bills have been introduced to aid New York City and other cities in financial difficulty.

Woman Marine Charged

YUMA, Ariz. (UPI) — A woman Marine officer is being court-martialed for allegedly having sex with eight enlisted men, her mother reported, complaining of discrimination because no action is being taken against the men.

Lt. Mary C. Niflis, 23, faces charges of conduct unbecoming an officer and gentlewoman, and disobedience of orders against fraternizing with enlisted personnel, said her mother, Mrs. Eric M. Rickard of Southard, Conn.

Mrs. Rickard wrote to Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.), and Arizona news organizations, protesting that the Marine Corps acted only against her daughter, filing no charges against the eight men.

Lt. Niflis had been stationed at the Yuma Marine Corps Air Station since November, 1973.

Attorney Jay W. Jeffcoat confirmed Mrs. Rickard's story, saying he had been hired as her defense attorney when her court-martial begins Nov. 12 at El Toro Marine Corps Air Station.

Funeral Rites Pending for Fire Victim

Funeral services were pending today for the crippled Costa Mesan killed early Thursday when fire roared through the apartment he shared with his brother, who escaped.

Kenneth D. Shields, 24, of 532 Center St., had little chance of escaping the holocaust. He burned to death because of his handicap, investigators said.

A policeman who arrived moments after the fire was reported tried to go up a stairway, then leaped for the second story balcony, but flames drove him back both times.

The victim's brother Jeffrey called the police we when he discovered flames originating from his bed, but then fled, apparently unaware his brother was in the apartment.

The fire is believed to have been started by a smoldering cigarette.

Bell Broadway Mortuary officials said Mr. Shields' remains had been delivered to them, but funeral arrangements had not been made today.

Women Hurt In Car Crash In Costa Mesa

One woman was badly injured and another bruised in a Costa Mesa collision Thursday night that sent a van careening off an auto into a traffic signal pole.

Ann Ouellette, 36, of La Mirada, was listed in satisfactory condition today at Costa Mesa Memorial Hospital, where she is being examined for a possible spinal fracture.

April C. Zoeller, 27, of 1250 Adams Ave., Costa Mesa, a second passenger in the van driven by Brian F. Parker, 25, of the same address, was treated for bruises and released.

Police said Parker was northbound on Fairview Road at Monitor Way when his van collided with the rear end of a car driven by Mrs. Vera Abramson, 66, of 133 E. 21st St., Costa Mesa.

The van then careened into the signal pole at the entry to the Monticello Town Homes, police said.

that there were marks to indicate the plane might have skidded through the front.

The two warehousemen who escaped were taken to Costa Mesa Memorial Hospital suffering from shock and minor injuries. A Costa Mesa fireman was also slightly injured in the face by flying debris.

John Loeffert, 21, of Anaheim, said he was in the building with Carrol White, 37, of Santa Ana when the plane crashed through the roof about 20 yards from them.

"We went through the flames running like crazy," Loeffert said. "We fell down three or four times. We made it out of the door about 25 yards away.

"The pilot we didn't see in the plane. We were lying on the dirt outside the building and I saw the pilot's body out next to a truck."

Don Wilson, personnel manager for Memorex said that the two warehousemen were the only people in the building located at the end of a cul de sac in the industrial complex. Wilson could not estimate the cost of the value of the warehouse but said that the building, used strictly for storage, was filled with plastic computer components worth at least $250,000.

Memorex has an assembly building located nearby 1352 Reynolds.

The pilot was the only occupant of the plane.

An hour after the crash, which occurred about 8:30 a.m., fire fighters were still battling to bring the inferno under control though the blaze was contained and did not appear to be in danger of spreading to any other industrial plants in the area.

Costa Mesa fire protection analyst Russ Henderson said that the intensity of the fire was due to the highly combustible aluminized material inside the building and the fuel of the plane.

It was believed that the sprinkler system was knocked out by the crash and that there were running water mains inside.

Onlookers were turned back from the area by firemen who expected one wall of the building to collapse. The warehouse appeared to be a total loss.

Part of the plane was on the landscaping in front of the building.

The warehouseman Loeffert, who lives at 2230 Orange Ave., Anaheim, had a scraped leg, but his partner White was in shock and given oxygen by the Costa Mesa paramedics before being taken to hospital. Loeffert said he also got a bump on the head.

The FAA official said that the plane was among what is termed transient traffic.

He said that the pilot was given the weather conditions by the airport and was cleared for an instrument approach.

The pilot did not confirm by radio that he was executing a missed approach, just before the crash occurred but it was assumed he was doing that because the location of the crash site was at the opposite end of the field for a landing.

The weather conditions were below instrument landing standards but the clearance for approach was not clearance to land.

The procedure, the official said, allows the pilot to go down to what is called a decision height, a minimum altitude at which time he must be able to see the runway threshold environment or he must then execute a missed approach.

The plane was following the normal instrument landing approach to the airport from the north.

The warehouseman Loeffert was treated at Costa Mesa Memorial Hospital and released, but his fellow worker White, of 1102 S. Raitt, Santa Ana, was admitted with back injuries. His condition was termed satisfactory.

The blaze was brought under control at 9:36 a.m. The building was 53,000-square-feet, and fire officials estimated the structural damage at between $180,000 and $200,000. The contents had been estimated at $250,000.

A vacant site is opposite the building, and there did not appear to be skid marks in the field or on the road in front of the warehouse, suggesting the plane flew straight into it. The plane did hit a runway antenna before the crash.

MANG . . .

told Miss Asbury that it was a word for "the sex act."

Miss Asbury stated she was "a little embarrassed" to learn the meaning of the word from two adults, and Gillis, an English teacher at the school, said he was "really shocked."

Mang, 35, faces 36 charges of unprofessional conduct brought against him by the Newport-Mesa Unified School District. He was suspended from teaching his social studies classes at Corona del Mar High last May.

A third student to testify, Doug Killian, alleged that Mang answered his classroom intercom with the phrase, "Clyde's Abortion Mill. You rape 'em, we scrape 'em."

Killian said students in the class laughed when the remark was made and were "startled" that Mang had said it.

Killian also testified that Mang told his class "a certain percentage of the faculty is homosexual."

Killian, who did not recall the exact percentage used by Mang, added under cross examination that the remark came up when a student asked Mang about a former teacher.

Another witness, James Tomlin, related an incident last spring when Mang allegedly greeted another teacher with a coarse obscenity.

Tomlin, a social studies teacher and track coach, related the incident in such a comic manner that both the participants in the hearing and members of the audience laughed throughout his testimony.

He said that Mang greeted teacher Henry Wong with the obscenity before the start of school in the social studies office.

Tomlin admitted the remark was probably made "facetiously", but said he was concerned students might have been within earshot. He added that he saw no students near the open door.

Today, the prosecution was expected to call additional former students and school officials to testify about more of the 36 charges against Mang.

The hearing, being heard by a three-man panel headed by a state hearing officer from Sacramento, is expected to run at least through the remainder of this month.

At the end of the hearing, the panel will decide whether or not Mang should remain in the school district.

Pregnant Wife

Countian Held In Two Deaths

The husband of a pregnant Westminster woman who was shot in the head and died after she was kept alive for three days by hospital life support systems was arrested Thursday and charged with two counts of murder.

Gerald Allen Cody, Jr., 25, was apprehended at his parents' home in El Casco Lake near Redlands and charged with murder in the deaths of his wife and unborn child.

He was booked into Orange County Jail. Bail was set at $200,000.

Sharon Sue Cody, 22, was shot in the early hours of Aug. 26 at the couple's Westminster apartment and kept alive in Westminster Community Hospital in the hope that the 5-month-old baby was still alive.

She died three days later when her heart stopped beating. No signs of life were detected in the fetus.

Police Lt. Joe Woods said today that Cody was arrested after new evidence was received from a third person who was believed to have witnessed the shooting.

Officers declined to provide further details.

Police had originally arrested Cody on the night of the shooting. He allegedly admitted the shooting that day and said it was an accident.

Cody was charged with involuntary manslaughter at the time, but was released two days later for lack of evidence.

Sex Roles of Hearst Recounted

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Multipartner sexual relations were an integral part of the day-to-day lives of the fugitive Symbionese Liberation Army members — including Patricia Hearst, the Los Angeles Times reported today.

The Times, quoting documents found in the apartment of SLA members Bill and Emily Harris, said the sexual practices were used to preserve "feminist self-determination" by successfully smashing "the dependencies created by monogamal (sic) personal sexual relationships . . . in the cell."

(An SLA document declares that Patricia Hearst "seemed more like a comrade than a prisoner" during her blindfolded conversion to the SLA and eventually declined the chance to leave her captors, the San Francisco Examiner also reported today.)

The Times said the documents it obtained appear to include a series of answers to questions submitted to the SLA by an unnamed person, similar to the kind of queries a writer might use in the preparation of material for a book.

Other writings obtained by the Times include a handwritten discourse on the kinds of problems female SLA members faced as "feminist freedom fighters" and a typewritten message apparently written to Miss Hearst by an SLA member.

The Times said some investigators believed the Hearst message is written in the style of Bill Harris, and the question-answer series appears to have been handled by his wife, Emily.

Death Suspect Can Marry

Officials originally feared that Sonia Gowda, 37, could refuse to testify at the trial of John Quaglino, 39, for the murder of his wife Dianne in Goleta last month.

Attorneys noted, however, that she has already been examined and cross-examined under oath at a preliminary hearing, and a transcript of that testimony could be used in the trial if she declined to testify herself.
