Drug Roundup

Mesa Detectives Net 32 Suspects

By ARTHUR R. VINSEL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A sweep through Costa Mesa by teams of narcotics detectives Thursday and today has netted 32 among 42 suspected on-the-street drug dealers, many of them students at two high schools.

The age among those arrested so far ranges from 14 to 35, according to police and includes one diminutive adult, 18, who gave his occupation as race-horse jockey.

Arrest warrants naming most of the arrestees and others still on the streets were issued following a four-month investigation.

Vice and Narcotics Detail Detective Sgt. Gene "Mother" Norden said today it was coordinated with the Orange County Narcotics Task Force and aimed at cutting campus drug use.

"Only a few of the drug buys were conducted on local high school campuses. . .," he explained.

Some parallels exist to a recent mass Los Angeles County drug-dealing roundup in which 226 students from among 20 high schools were taken into custody.

Fourteen more arrests are expected.

No officers were actually enrolled at Costa Mesa or Estancia high schools to investigate the alleged drug trafficking, which he said mainly involved marijuana, hashish, cocaine and amphetamine stimulant tablets.

He said some undercover agents were active on campus, but posed as old hangers-on or dropout students during the four-month probe.

"We've found the trend tends to be more one of selling to close friends or persons they know well," said Sgt. Norden. He suggested this may indicate a growing fear of selling to police agents, due to many arrests in the past 18 months.

By this morning the tally of those in custody included 25 juveniles — all but five of whom were booked into Juvenile Hall on charges of drug sales — and seven adults.

The five juveniles released to their parents were arrested incidentally to the main thrust of the drug roundup, according to Sgt. Norden. They are charged with only possession, not sales.

Adult arrestees captured during the sweep, which was suspended at 10 p.m., pending resumption today, include:

Investigators said Galeana lives in a rear room at his place of business, but that others present denied knowledge of him, so the raid team returned two hours later.

Naked Mesa Sunbather Acquitted

Orange County's nude beachgoers may have been given a green light to put it together in the altogether.

Beachgoers who found going rough in the buff in recent months were vindicated late Thursday when South Orange County municipal court Judge John A. Griffin found Charles Anderson of Costa Mesa not guilty of multiple charges filed when he sunbathed in the nude at South Laguna's 9th Street Beach.

Anderson, 27, was found not guilty on charges of lewd conduct and disturbing the peace after defense attorney Bill Sheffield successfully argued that his client had disturbed no one and no sexual intent when he exposed his entire body to the sun.

Anderson is one more than 100 nude beachgoers who have been arrested by sheriff's officers in recent months on such charges.

His acquittal, Sheffield said today, may effectively bar the sheriff from any further arrests of that type.

Judge Griffin's ruling may also mean the end of the county ordinance which Anderson was said to have violated, Sheffield said.

Property owner Willard Cain had earlier argued for the prosecution that nude beachgoing near his cliff top home on South Coast Highway had reached the point that he could no longer invite his grandchildren to the house.

Cain is by far the most constant caller to the sheriff's office in all such instances of nudity on the beach.

Sheffield successfully argued that the ordinance under which Anderson also was prosecuted pertained more to nude and semi-nude entertainment than naked sunbathing on the beach.

"I look on this as a test case," the defense attorney said. "And I very much regret that many of the people who have been similarly arrested on these charges decided to plead guilty rather than take the issue to trial as Mr. Anderson did."

IS JUDGE A RAT? HE BARS 'MICKEY'

NEW BRAUNFELS, Tex. (UPI) — District Judge Robert Pfeuffer has rejected a bid by backers of Mickey Mouse to have their votes count in the Comal County judge's race.

Pfeuffer overruled a motion for a recount of write-in votes to include those cast for the rodent.

Precinct officials argued that Mickey Mouse was not a bona fide candidate because he had not resided in Comal County for six months before the election. Pfeuffer upheld the contention on the mouse's residency.

Fire Guts Cruiser; None Hurt

By ALMON LOCKABEY
Boating Editor

A boat explosion rocked the Lido North apartment complex on Lido Peninsula with the force of a sonic boom Thursday night. The concussion and fire caused damage to boats in adjacent slips.

Gutted by the explosion and fire was a 35-foot cabin cruiser belonging to David Hreha, 19162 Constellation Lane, Huntington Beach. The boat had been berthed at the marina, 633 Lido Park Drive, with a "for sale" sign on it.

Cause of the explosion was not immediately known, according to James Upton, inspector for the Newport Beach Fire Department.

Occupants of boats in nearby slips were shaken up by the force of the explosion, but no one was injured.

Severely damaged by concussion and heat was the 63-foot Glissando, a converted military Vessel owned by Mark Armistad which was in the adjacent slip. Damage to the Glissando was estimated at $1,500.

A Tahiti ketch on the opposite side of the burned boat was backed into the bay by her owners, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Steele who were aboard another boat about three slips away. It was not immediately determined if the ketch

Grand Jury Indictments

Vallerga Confident Of Fraud Case Flop

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Orange County Assessor Jack Vallerga today announced that he has no intention of suspending or taking any type of disciplinary action against seven employes accused in a Grand Jury indictment.

Vallerga emerged from a 24-hour seclusion to condemn any such action as "quite inappropriate at this time."

"As of now they have simply been charged," Vallerga said. "I understand that the Grand Jury investigation is continuing and I see no reason to interfere with their duties at this early stage.

"I have every confidence in the system," Vallerga said. "And I have every confidence that these charges are going to be thrown out at a later stage of the game."

All seven employes and two former assessor's aides who are now retired will be arraigned later today in Superior Court on charges of grand theft, submitting false claims and violating government codes.

It is alleged that the nine drew county money in 1970 for time actually spent in working for what eventually was the election of then county assessor Andrew J. Hinshaw to the 40th District Congressional seat.

Hinshaw's secretary said the Congressman was in the House voting and will not be available to the press until later today.

Later, Hinshaw told the Daily Pilot in a telephone conversation that he is "making no comment at this time on the advice of my attorney."

He said would speak with his attorney again this afternoon to determine if some explanation of his role in the issue could be made.

Vallerga today confirmed that he and Hinshaw appeared before the Grand Jury during a five-month investigation that put 49 witnesses before the investigative panel.

The assessor also confirmed that he declined to testify before the Grand Jury — again like Hinshaw — but

Exporters Hike Cost of Crude By 3 Percent

VIENNA (UPI) — The world's major oil exporting nations decided today to increase the price of crude oil by 31 cents a barrel — 3 percent — on Jan. 1, Iran's Interior Minister Jamshouzegar said.

"The selling price of oil will be $10.46 a barrel effective Jan. 1," Amouzegar said after a two-day meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).

The new price will be frozen for the first nine months of 1975, he said.

The present average selling price of crude oil is $10.15 a 42-gallon barrel, oil industry officials said.

It was not immediately clear whether this would mean an increase in the price of gasoline because of the complicated oil pricing and royalty system which determine oil prices.

Larry Goldstein, a New York oil consultant, said the action by OPEC may not be an increase at all since $10.46 is the market price established last month by Saudi Arabia, Abu Dhabi and Qatar.

The action by OPEC, he said, is "nothing more than a confirmation that this is the market price for everybody."

But, he said, oil companies had been paying an average of $10.36 a barrel for that oil owned by the Arab nations and that owned by the companies. The set price of $10.46 for all OPEC oil, Goldstein said, means "an increase in cost to the companies of 10 cents a barrel."

'Bombshell' Ailing

Betty Hutton Suffering 'Breakdown'

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Betty Hutton, the "Blonde Bombshell" of stage and screen who surfaced as a cook in a church rectory last spring after squandering her personal wealth, has been hospitalized for a "complete emotional breakdown."

The Rev. James Hamilton of St. Anthony's Church in Portsmouth said Miss Hutton, 53, was committed at Butler Hospital, a psychiatric facility, by her psychiatrist.

"She's been in since the beginning of the week. I guess they characterize it as complete emotional breakdown," the priest said.

A hospital spokeswoman said "we don't have anyone by that name here and we don't divulge any information on our patients to the press anyway."

Miss Hutton, leading lady of 1940s and 1950s movies and broadway musicals, took over cooking at St. Anthony's Rectory in February and converted to Catholicism.

Father Peter Maguire, the pastor, met her at a time when "she was hurt deeply, had gone through over $9 million, fame and fortune and everything else," as he described it at the time.

Word of her activities at the small, rural church brought a heavy volume of mail from people who remembered her performances, Hamilton said.

"She got 35,000 to 37,000 letters easily. When she would be feeling well, she would try and answer them but the bulk remains untouched."

When word of her arrival in Portsmouth got out last Easter, Miss Hutton was bubbling over with expressions of joy.

"It's a miracle that I'm alive," she said, adding it had been preceded by a time in which she "didn't want to live."

She admitted that the transition was difficult.

"Some days I cry and say 'This just won't work. It won't work.' But they say 'Don't cry Betty. Your eyelashes will come off'."

Hamilton said he did not expect her to return to Portsmouth, "because I don't think she can function here. I think it's something within herself."

She was hospitalized twice since her arrival, once for a medical checkup last spring and for shoulder surgery three months ago.

She responded warmly to the reception from townsfolk and some accompanied her on a bus trip to New York City last June for a tribute paid by old friends in the entertainment business.

Pill for Men 'Successful' In Lab Tests

LONDON (UPI) — A birth control pill for men that produces no loss in sex appetite has been successfully tested by two Australian biochemists, a British science magazine reported today.

Nature Magazine said the pill used in the controlled experiment was a combination of a female hormone, estrogen, and the male hormone androgen already marketed as a cure for bone disorders.

The report said men testing the drug stopped producing sperm after nine to 15 weeks without any visible side effects except for slight nausea at the start of the program.

Sperm cells returned after use of the pill was stopped.

The magazine said there was no known loss of desire on the part of the men being tested.

Several male birth control pills have been produced before, but in each case usage has been accompanied by a sharp decline in sexual desire and the adoption of some female characteristics.

The two Australian scientists, Dr. Michael and Dr. Maxine Briggs of Melbourne's Alfred Hospital, said no such developments occurred in their experiment, according to the magazine.

In the test, four of the five men stopped producing sperm within nine weeks. The fifth stopped in 15 weeks of treatment.

At the end of the test, the magazine said, it was 15 weeks before any of the men began producing sperm again and nine to 10 months before sperm production was back to normal.

Monthly Tour Of Upper Bay Set Saturday

The Friends of Upper Newport Bay will conduct their monthly guided tour of the upper bay Saturday morning.

Those who join the free tour will spend an hour and walk about a mile along the bay shore, stopping at eight stations along the way to hear brief lectures on features of the upper bay.

The tour's starting point is at the northwest corner of the intersection of Back Bay and Eastbluff drives. Group tours will leave from there at varying intervals between 9 and 11 a.m.

AIR FORCE WIG TRIAL' ENDS IN SENTENCE
Sgt. Jerome Verdi Given Bad Conduct Discharge
UPI Telephoto

'Wigged' Sergeant Given AF Sentence

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — The Air Force's first "wig trial" has ended with the sentencing of a decorated sergeant to a bad conduct discharge, reduction in rank to airman basic and a fine of $300.

Sgt. Jerome Verdi, 29, of Philadelphia, received the punishment from a court-martial at Lackland AFB Thursday on his conviction for disobeying an order to remove his short-hair wig and get a haircut. Verdi never denied he wore the wig and refused to get a haircut as ordered.

"I've tried to be honest," Verdi told the court-martial.

"A lot of my men asked what you can do about this. I counseled my men about their hair. I'd rather see them with hair over their ears than slicked down or greased down to conform to military regulations.

"I've tried all the legal actions, but to no avail. If bald men can wear wigs and women, who can wear their hair down to their butts, are allowed to wear wigs, why can't everybody?"

Verdi said he wore the wig for two years before superiors discovered it and ordered him to remove it and cut his long hair underneath. His civilian attorney, Gerald Goldstein, said he would appeal the conviction and sentence to a higher military court.

Maj. Gen. John P. Flynn, the highest ranked American prisoner of war in North Vietnam and the officer who ordered Verdi to remove the wig in the first place, automatically will review the bad conduct discharge.

Flynn, commander of the Air Force Training Center at Lackland, indicated before the court-martial began he believed courts-martial dealt too leniently with grooming offenses.

Flynn, a Cleveland native, will be decorated in a ceremony at Lackland today with the Air Force Cross, Distinguished Service Medal and Bronze Star for valor during more than five years of captivity in Hanoi where his plane was shot down.

Verdi holds two Purple Hearts, a Bronze Star and several other military citations for bravery during the Vietnam war.

"I'm disappointed in the BCD (bad conduct discharge)," Verdi said Thursday. "If I'd known I was going to get that, I would have taken a discharge instead of going to trial."

Surprise testimony from a doctor at the five-day trial showed Verdi had a scar on his temple which would not be covered unless he wore a wig. His attorneys argued Verdi was justified by military regulations allowing servicemen to wear wigs to cover physical disfigurements.

Maj. David Lockman, acting chief of dermatology at the Wilford Hall Air Force Hospital where Verdi serves as a medical technician, testified Verdi had a one-inch long, half-inch wide scar on his left temple — one of more than 40 shrapnel wounds he received in Vietnam.

OIL. . .

The earlier increases imposed unilaterally by Saudi Arabia, Abu Dhabi and Qatar had already been passed on by the oil companies through their distributors and the latest action may not mean higher prices for consumers, he said.

Asked if gasoline and home heating oil prices would go up, Amouzegar said: "That depends on how much the oil companies can absorb from their profits."

Iran, he said, proposed limiting oil company profits to 50 cents a barrel. Present oil company profits are about 75 cents a barrel, OPEC officials said.

The increase of 31 cents in the selling price of a barrel of oil was decided by ministers of the 13 OPEC nations meeting in a Vienna hotel following two bomb threats against OPEC headquarters.

OPEC did away with the posted price system which maintained artificially high prices, in favor of the unified system.

Amouzegar said OPEC had been forced to increase the price of oil because three members — Saudi Arabia, Abu Dhabi and Qatar — raised their prices at a meeting in Abu Dhabi last month.

"We had two choices — either to go back to the September price system, and this would mean the three Arab members reversing their decision, which they would not do, or adopt the Abu Dhabi price," he said.

Mick Taylor Quits 'Stones'

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) — Guitarist Mick Taylor is quitting the Rolling Stones rock group, Mick Jagger, the band's leader, said today.

Jagger said Taylor is leaving the group after 5½ years for "a change of scene." Taylor "wants the opportunity to try out some new initiatives. While we are all sorry he is going, we wish him great success," he said.

Taylor joined the group in 1969 to replace Brian Jones, who was found dead in his swimming pool.

No incidents were reported during the roundups, most of which occurred at the suspects' homes, said Sgt. Norden, except for one involving an irate mother who objected to the routine fingerprinting of her daughter.

Investigators say the alleged drug purchases all involved relatively limited quantities of contraband, such as $5 and $10 plastic baggies of amphetamine pills, containing 35 to 40 each.

"These people are just street dealers," Sgt. Norden added. "The operation doesn't begin to match the magnitude of the Irvine roundup last spring."

San Clemente Agents Seize Drug Suspects

San Clemente narcotics agents and state investigators arrested four apartment dwellers late Thursday on charges related to a small-scale heroin sales case.

Besides Smith, agents booked Michaela Ann Ivy, 18; Kathleen A. Bickmore, 24, and John Robert Smith, 24. Those three arrestees were booked on charges of possession of heroin and narcotics paraphernalia.

The case stemmed from alleged small purchases of the drug which undercover agents had made in recent weeks.

Timing Issue

Watergate Jury Zeroes on Golf

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The exact time when Richard Kleindienst played golf and his wife quit cleaning her kitchen cabinets to have lunch on Saturday, June 17, 1972, emerged as a vital issue today at the Watergate cover-up trial.

Such seemingly trivial events were at the heart of the defense of Robert C. Mardian, a sometime San Clemente resident, as he seeks to convince the jury he had no part in trying to hush up the scandal.

Five agents of then President Nixon's re-election campaign had been arrested at Democratic headquarters at 2 a.m. and the prosecution charges that Kleindienst, then attorney general, received an urgent message later that day while playing golf at Burning Tree Country Club. The message asked him to release the burglars from jail.

The request allegedly originated with defendant John M. Mitchell, then Nixon's campaign manager and now a cover-up defendant, and was relayed by Mardian on the telephone to Watergate mastermind G. Gordon Liddy, who in turn rushed to the country club to give it to Kleindienst.

Mardian, a former assistant attorney general and Nixon campaign operative, was with the campaign high command in California at the time. He contends that because of the time difference, he could not possibly have called Washington in advance of Liddy's trip to Burning Tree about noon Washington time.

Kleindienst's wife, Margaret, was called to the stand to testify about receiving what she called "a curious call" from Liddy shortly after noon that day.

"He said he was calling on behalf of the Committee to Re-elect the President, for Mr. Mitchell," Mrs. Kleindienst said. "He said it was a very sensitive and urgent matter and needed to contact my husband immediately."

She said she remembered the call came between noon and 12:30 p.m. EDT because she had been cleaning her kitchen cabinets and took a break to have lunch.

The prosecution contends that Liddy called her about 1 p.m. or 1:15 p.m. and that he got to Burning Tree about 1:30 p.m. to 1:45 p.m. — late enough to have received a 10 a.m. PDT call from California. It has been established earlier in the trial that Mardian and other campaign officials learned of the burglary about 10 a.m. PDT.

Mrs. Kleindienst said she remembered telling Liddy that her husband was playing golf and she then called the pro shop at the club to have him paged.

But she conceded on cross-examination that no one at the pro shop remembers talking with her that day and no such message ever was relayed to her husband. She also acknowledged her close friendship with Mardian and admitted she did not remember the timing of Liddy's call until after talking with Mardian about it after he was indicted last March.

Kleindienst testified Thursday about the visit from Liddy, recalling he was having lunch sometime after noon following a golf tournament.

Two Officers Round Up 30 Clemente Cows

Avenida Vaquero—a San Clemente street named for the Mexican cowboy— gave San Clemente police a chance to try their hand at the cow business Thursday afternoon.

Residents along the roadway leading along the edge of the Forster Ranch called officers after noticing 30 head of beef gathering along the street.

Sgt. Craig Steckler and Patrolman Rusty Rice served as herdsmen for a short time, chasing the steers back through a hole in the fence, then they waited for professionals from the ranch to take over.

Officers said that when they arrived, the herd was just starting to move toward the expensive residential area.

Mr. and Mrs. K.C. Dawson were aboard their 42-foot Yankee ketch two slips away when the explosion occurred. They called the Fire and Harbor departments and attempted to quell the flames with fire extinguishers.

Prompt action in knocking down the fire was credited to Upton and four other Newport Beach firemen who were attending a retirement party in an apartment two buildings away. They rushed to scene and fought the fire with two garden hoses and three fire extinguishers until equipment arrived.

The other off-duty firemen on the scene were Bill Nollar, fire marshal; Dick Wright, training officer; Jim Reed, executive officer, and Art Morgan, public information officer.

They had the fire under control by the time equipment arrived.

Residents of nearby apartments said the explosion shook the neighborhood with the force of a sonic boom.

AEC Dump Hit By 3 States

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The three Western states that may end up with the Atomic Energy Commission's nuclear garbage dump are unanimous in their criticism of the groundwork for the facility.

Idaho, Nevada and Washington representatives appeared at an AEC public hearing Thursday to register objections to a draft environmental impact statement on setting up a temporary nuclear waste storage facility.

Idaho officials say they want no part of the dump. Nevada is wary, but interested, and Washington is receptive. Texas, which is not even under consideration, is skeptical.

She was voted down, four to one. Then her colleagues Kathleen Kelly, John Noble, Cal Neve, and Richard Lowcock — lit cigarettes and the meeting went on.

Reservation Refund

DEAR PAT: Prior to our family's summer vacation in the East, I had confirmed reservations at the Sheraton North-Adams in Massachusetts for June 7-9 made through the Sheraton reservation service. When I arrived, I was told the rate was $4 more per day than the reservation service had quoted because it was a "busy weekend." I also was required to pay in advance. Can I get a refund for the extra charge?

G.G., Garden Grove

Barbara J. Mellin, manager of guest relations for the Sheraton Corp., reports that you have been refunded the $12, "which represents an overcharge" to you. A member of the American Hotel and Motel Association explained that unless your hotel reservation and rate is confirmed in writing, the amount may change. She reports that payment in advance of at least one night's stay is not uncommon. The national headquarters of the Association is at 888 Seventh Ave., New York, N.Y. 10019, with branches in every state.

New Mixer Sent

DEAR PAT: I bought a Hamilton Beach mixer two years ago and it's had to be repaired four times, only once under warranty. Each time the gears had to be aligned and replaced. I never mix anything more coarse than cake mixes, and now it just broke again while I was beating egg whites. The thought of another $10 or $15 repair is just too much!"

V.C., Costa Mesa

Lillie Woolard, a customer relations correspondent for Hamilton Beach, apologized for your inconvenience. A new model mixer motor with beaters is being shipped to you at no charge.

Help on Wednesdays

DEAR PAT: I tried to phone the South Orange County number for the Department of Consumer Affairs to save myself a toll charge on a call to Santa Ana. The phone rang off the wall, but no one answered. Have they closed this office?

K.H., San Juan Capistrano

No, but its operation is limited to Wednesdays only. Call 495-1650 any Wednesday and you will be given assistance.

Wills and Estates

DEAR PAT: The library books on wills and estates all conclude by suggesting that the reader consult an attorney. The minimum fee schedule for attorneys I contacted was $50 per hour. I can't afford this rate and would like to know where I could find an attorney who would handle this type of work for less. Or better still, can you locate a useful reference book on this topic available at the library?

K.P., Newport Beach

The names and subsequent legal services of attorneys specializing in wills and estates in your area can be obtained by calling the Lawyers Reference Service of Orange County at 547-6381. The initial consultation fee is $10 for 30 minutes and $20 for one hour. Additional fees would be based on the services you require. One easy-to-understand reference book available at Newport Beach and other county libraries is titled, "Settling and Safeguarding Estates in California Without An Attorney," by Clive Hinckley. This manual, written for the layman, includes complete instructions and blank standard legal forms. It also can be ordered by writing to Clive Hinckley, 106 E. Sunset Dr. South, Redlands, Ca. 92373.

Knowing Good Syrup

DEAR PAT: I recently ordered and received a $9.90 half-gallon of maple syrup from the Green Mountain Sugar House in Ludlow, Vt. It has been watered down so much that it isn't even sweet enough to qualify as a syrup. It has the consistency of water and practically no maple flavor. Can anything be done about this apparent gyp?

L.B., Garden Grove

David Harlow, head of Green Mountain Sugar House, says you apparently are not familiar with fine quality syrup. He explained that the top grade of pure Vermont syrup, "Fancy," has a mild flavor and light color. The next lowest grades, "A" and "B," indicate progressively stronger flavor and darker color. Harlow added that fresh syrup turns stronger and darker because of bacterial action. The state of Vermont has laws governing minimum thickness (weight) of maple syrup.

Airports 'to Expand'

Air Cal Chief Predicts More Growth

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Airport expansion in Orange County is as inevitable as continued economic and population growth in this mushrooming area, Air California president Robert Clifford told local lawyers Friday.

"Such expansion is necessary for our economic survival," Clifford told the Orange County Bar Association. "The public has to realize that we can't do it differently and we can't live without it."

Clifford warned that an increasingly crammed Orange County Airport will soon be insufficient for the county's air travel requirements and predicted that the level will be reached in two or three years when the facility handles three million passengers a year — double its present capacity.

But he refused to predict which of three suggested sites — El Toro, Los Alamitos or Chino Hills — should be used to handle the overflow or take over from Orange County Airport.

"My company can only offer technical advice on the implementation of a chosen facility," he said. "We can not take a stand on the best site for a new airport."

Clifford reassured questioners that "Orange County could never become another Los Angeles International Airport and Newport Beach can never become another Playa del Rey."

And the Air California chief urged those "involved in public clamor" to recognize that the aircraft industry has taken giant strides in cutting the noise levels that have resulted in massive lawsuits.

At that point, a member of his audience urged Clifford to recognize that "Laguna Hills residents are already getting all the planes we can stand over our homes and we don't want any more."

Clifford assured the heckler that aircraft that will be used on his airline within the next few years will be operating under substantially reduced noise emission levels.

They will also be adhering to flight patterns and other innovative forms of air service that will remove many public objections to their daily presence in the skies above Orange County, he said.

"There is a need for us and that need has to be met," Clifford said. "It will be better for all concerned if we can get together and discuss, like reasonable people, how the need can be met and both sides left satisfied.

"Nobody cares to live next door to a school any more than he wants to live close to an airport," Clifford said. "But people come to accept such conditions of life when it is made clear to them that they are dealing with the inevitable and the necessary."

Boy Facing Death Penalty

FORT PIERCE, Fla. (AP) — A 15-year-old boy convicted as an adult in the first-degree murder of a 12-year-old girl faces execution by electrocution.

The death sentence for George Thomas Vasil was recommended Thursday by a 12-member Circuit Court jury. Judge Wallace Sample accepted the recommendation.

Vasil was accused of the Sept. 14 strangulation of Pamela Vassar. A courtroom observer said the Fort Pierce youth displayed no emotions as the sentence was read.

Coastal Study Meet Delayed Until Jan. 15

A meeting of 22 public and private groups on the Irvine Company's development plans for its 10,000 coastal acres, initially set for next week, has been rescheduled for Jan. 15.

The delay, according to Larry Moore, the company's coordinator of The Irvine Company Multi-Agency Planning Program, is to give other representatives time to review an evaluation of how the company intends to meet the goals and policies of the various groups.

More than 300 separate concerns of the groups were addressed in the company's version of how it is meeting their goals.

Gas Tax Hike Asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Calling automobiles the prime cause of the energy shortage, Sen. Edward W. Brooke proposed today that gasoline taxes be raised 20 cents a gallon and cars be taxed according to their weight. The Massachusetts Republican said he would introduce legislation to impose the taxes and also abolish the federal aid highway trust fund used to finance 90 percent of interstate highway construction.

Newport Businessman Just Loves Those 13s

By ARTHUR R. VINSEL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Friday the 13th would seem to be an ideal day to stay away from such places as a glass company, but James A. Stanley reported to his shop as usual.

Stanley considers Friday the 13th a lucky day, for it is his birthday, which falls on a Friday every four years or so.

And the co-owner of Harbor Glass Company, in business at 222 21st St., Newport Beach, considers 13 his lucky number.

He has, in fact, literally made a hobby of the observation and collection of the number 13.

The impressive list of phenomena involving the number 13 in the life and times of James A. Stanley includes the following examples:

—His parents married in 1913 and his father, James W. Stanley and his wife Betty J. Stanley all have 13 letters in their names.

—His sister was born on Oct. 13 and the family has produced 13 grandchildren.

—His firm, Harbor Glass Co., has 13 letters in the title and the mailing address is P.O. Box 1382, Newport Beach.

—He commutes precisely 13.2 miles from home to work and back, while his Social Security Card number, 284-28-8048 adds up to 39, or 13 three times.

and Mrs. Stanley went to Europe last May and toured 13 countries.

—He and Mrs. Stanley went to Europe last May and toured 13 countries.

His American Express Card number is 13141-271 and his firm did $113,057.68 in gross business for the fiscal year, he discovered this week while doing some accounting.

"And before I left West Virginia, I worked for a chemical company that had 13 letters in its name and my clock number was V-13P20. And I went to work through Plant Gate 13," he explains.

Stanley turned up another lucky 13 Thursday when he went to write out paychecks for himself and his partner for their Friday the 13th payday.

His was written on company check 13,113 in the old ledger they've been using during their 27 years in business.

"I couldn't believe it," he remarked.

Arabs 'Blow Wad' in Vegas

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — Three oil-rich Saudi Arabian princes lost $1 million a in a weekend gambling spree, a casino manager said today. They gave tips of up to $200.

"In my 21 years here I've seen a lot of big spenders, but I've never seen anyone spend money and gamble on the order of the Arabs," said Morrie Jaeger, casino manager of the MGM Grand Hotel.

Arabs loaded with oil dollars have become a regular feature of casino life here, he said, but although they travel with huge retinues, they keep out of sight by sticking to the exclusive "high roller" clubs.

THE THREE SAUDI ARABIANS insisted for security reasons on gambling only in the Grand Hotel's Metro Club, which is restricted to those who have a line of credit of at least $10,000.

Even there, Jaeger said, "Each prince walked into the Metro Club with three guards in front, three guards behind and one on each side.

The Arabians placed bets of $20,000 or more at a time, he said, playing roulette, craps, blackjack and baccarat. In fact, the Arabs are responsible for the addition of bacarat to the games in the Metro Club.

There was no table for the game when they arrived, but "they wanted to play baccarat," Jaeger said, posing a problem in moving one of the large tables from the public casino 26 floors below.

"We were ready to charter a helicopter or hurl ropes over the side of the roof," he said, but finally managed to "take the roof out of an elevator" to hoist the table.

"TIP! MY GOD, DID THEY tip!" said a security guard at the Metro Club. "They gave the maids $50 each."

A female photographer said she was tipped $200. "Nothing like this ever happened before," she said.

Jaeger said that other "wealthy Arabs have been flying into Las Vegas on their private jets the past several weeks. One Arab has been flying in here on a regular basis. He gambles all over town. . .he alone dropped $1 million one night recently. He beat us too. One night he won $200,000."

A Metro Club guard said the Arabians' security men were "discreetly armed," when asked about rumors among hotel workers some of them had submachine guns.

JAEGER DESCRIBED MOST OF the Arabs as "younger men, in their 30s and 40s, well educated in English and American universities, fine gentlemen, very easy to get along with."

X-rated Show To Get Rated

VERNON, Conn. (UPI) — The owner of three movie theaters in Vernon says he will reconsider his plan for live sex shows if there is enough opposition from the public in general, and not just from church groups.

William Elliott, owner of the Rockville Cinema 1, 2, and 3, said Thursday most persons at the two theaters which now show X-rated movies favor the live, unsimulated sex shows.

Elliott labeled the 1,000 persons who signed a petition against the sex shows presented to the town council by St. Bernard's Parish council a "radical group."

New Waves In County

RICKY TICKY POLITIX: We've got trouble right here in Orange County. Our Grand Jury has indicted nine employes of the assessor's staff on charges of grand theft, conspiracy, submission of false claims and government code violations.

All this is pretty heavy since these are what get characterized as felony raps in the law enforcement trade.

The allegations harken back to 1972 when then-Orange County Assessor Andrew J. Hinshaw was campaigning in the Republican Primary in his effort to unseat then-Congressman John G. Schmitz.

So now the Grand Jury's indictments allege that the nine assessor aides worked on Hinshaw's successful primary campaign and submitted false overtime and vacation claims for the time thus spent politicking.

WHETHER OR NOT the charges hold any water whatsoever will of course be determined in the courts.

The allegations, however, do hit the public at a time when it is still suffering a monumental Watergate hangover. Thus the whole business sends new waves of shock and dismay across Orange County.

Most unfortunate is that as of this writing, nothing has been heard from the two central figures in the affair, the aforementioned Congressman Hinshaw and his successor and former chief aide at the county seat, Assessor Jack Vallerga.

Thus right now you have only the charges to judge and any defense of the activities within the assessor's office during 1972 are left to your own speculation.

DO YOU SUPPOSE there was any political activity by those within the assessor's office during Hinshaw's 1972 primary campaign?

You just know there was.

You know that some of Hinshaw's aides were certainly out there on the campaign trail trying to give a political boost "to the boss."

The thin, questioned line, then, becomes one of were these boosts being given to the boss or the employe's own time or while he or she was supposed to be doing the business of county government?

And that line can be thin. Take the phone call that comes in to the assessor's office. An aide answers. County business gets transacted. Then the aide adds, "Say, by the way George, I sure hope you'll give Andy your vote in the election.

Has the county phone thus been used for an illegal political purpose?

WHEN THE PRESIDENT of the United States flies off in Air Force One to make a speech, is it personal politics or government business?

Was a deputy assessor's overtime caused by the workload of his office or his politicking for his boss?

Indeed, it may come down to a thin little line which will now apparently be trotted out and walked before the courts of Orange County.

Strips Again

'Tired' Fanne Fox Back on Stage

CASSELBERRY, Fla. (UPI) — Stripper Fanne Foxe missed her first show at the Club Juana Thursday night, apparently suffering from the fatigue of an early morning arrest for indecent exposure.

But Miss Foxe, billed as the "Tidal Basin Bombshell" because of an incident involving Rep. Wilbur Mills, showed up on time for her final two acts.

"She was just tired, I guess," explained Mike Pinter, owner of the Club Juana, who was arrested along with Miss Foxe after she allegedly appeared bottomless during the final act of the Wednesday night show.

Miss Foxe became stripdom's biggest name overnight after she jumped from Mills' car into Washington's tidal basin last October. She upped her price from $3,800 to $15,000 a week after Mills appeared with her on stage in Boston.

Her manager, Jerry Brandt, denied that she appeared bottomless and said the arrest "embarrassed her because of her children."

Police quoted Miss Foxe, whose real name is Annabel Battistella, as saying "I'm not going," when she was arrested.

They said she grabbed a post and said "I don't want my pictures taken. Wait until the photographers are gone."

Officers ignored her request.

Pinter was charged with "promotion of an indecent show by a live person before an audience" and she was charged with "indecent exposure of sexual organs by going naked in a public or private place."

Seminole County Sheriff's deputies translated that as "dancing bottomless."

"That's not true," argued Brandt. "What the police neglected to say was that she was wearing a full length negligee from the floor to her neck. She was covered, believe me."

He said she "has been wearing that same negligee for four years now, and she's never been arrested for wearing it before."

After the tidal basin incident and Mills' appearance in Boston, the Arkansas Democrat lost much of his political power. Mills was recently hospitalized at the Bethesda Naval Hospital suffering from exhaustion.

Birds Are Back On Rice Trees

HOUSTON (UPI) — The birds are back at Rice University.

For several winters, thousands of cowbirds have made the campus' numerous trees their roost, causing the expected problems.

Hoping to find a way to deal with the annual feathered onslaught, Dr. Dan Johnson has been perfecting a scientific method of counting the birds by the droppings they leave. He's learned at least one thing.

"I've never really been a connoisseur of bird droppings before," Johnson said. "But on our boards we find bright purple droppings, beautiful greens, lovely browns. They look like a fascinating mural."

Woman Guilty In Kidnaping Of Ex-husband

A Mahaska County District Court jury of eight women and four men deliberated four hours Thrusday before reaching the verdict. Judge Michael Enich set sentencing for Dec. 30 and ordered a presentence investigation.

Mrs. Carney, who remained free on bond, showed no emotion as the verdict was read.

She was charged with kidnaping Dr. Robert Carney on May 15.

Dr. Carney testified that his former wife lured him to her home, telling him that the couple's two children had gifts for him.

She allegedly forced him to remain at her home overnight, shot him in the hand and thigh and forced him to accompany her to Hannabal, Mo., where he escaped from the car in a parking lot.

Mrs. Carney testified in her defense that in a struggle in her home, her ex-husband was dragging her into the kitchen when he said, "I've been shot."

She testified she had a pistol in her robe pocket, but did not know her husband had been shot.

In earlier testimony, Mrs. Carney began weeping on the witness stand when she recounted her discussion with Carney of how he should tell the couple's two daughters he was planning to marry another woman.

U.S. Summary

Snow and rain sent a wintry chill through much of the northern half of the country from the Rockies to the Great Lakes today and put travel on an icy footing over a wide area.

Freezing drizzle glazed highways and sidewalks in portions of Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois and Michigan.

A heavy snow warning was issued for parts of northern Utah as a strong storm system spilled out of the Pacific Northwest into the Rockies. Three to 6 inches of snow was forecast. Locally heavy snow also was expected in the mountains of Idaho.

Gale warnings flew along the Washington coast southward to Oregon.

Snow also whitened sections of Washington, Oregon, Montana, the Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan during the night. Rain fell in areas south of the snow band and turned to an icy glaze in stretches of the Midwest.

Isolated snows piled into northern Maine.

Clear skies were limited to the Southwest and areas from the central Rockies through the Plains to the central Gulf Coast.

California

Locally gusty winds swept through some sections of Southern California today, leaving skies mostly sunny and temperatures slightly warmer.

The winds moved northerly through the coastal canyons and over the mountains, but persistent patchy fog still hovered along the coast.

Los Angeles got its share of the winds, and after the gusts blew away coastal fog, the day was mostly sunny. The weather picture looks about the same for Saturday with a slight rise in temperatures predicted.

The high in Los Angeles Saturday should be near 72. Today's predicted high was 68.

The gusty winds blew about 20 to 35 miles per hour at times below the canyons in the San Fernando and the San Bernardino valleys.

Gaza Roundup

Arab Guerrilla Suspects Held

By the Associated Press

Israeli security forces seized about 25 Arab guerrilla suspects in the Gaza Strip today, including a judge accused of leading Al Fatah terrorists in the occupied zone, the Israeli command said.

Over southern Lebanon, antiaircraft gunners fired at Israeli jets, driving them off the coast of Sidon and Tyre four times, Lebanese military sources said. No hits were reported.

THE ACTION CAME hours after Israeli artillery bombarded the Lebanese city of Nabatiyeh in retaliation for guerrilla rocketing of the Israeli town of Safad, and less than 24 hours after an Israeli air raid on Palestinian camps on the edge of Beirut.

"Security forces detained a Fatah terrorist network," an Israeli communique said. "The detainees included the Fatah commander of the Gaza Strip, Judge Khaled el Qabra."

Also seized were senior aides of the guerrilla command in Gaza, Khan Yunis and Rafah in the Sinai Desert and documents "which contained lists of recruits and instructions for the execution of terrorist acts," the communique said.

It said the detainees were suspected of "a number of terrorist acts," including bombing a bus inside Israel 10 months ago.

In Tel Aviv, Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon told newsmen on his return from Washington that his talks with President Ford were so useful "that even the most skeptical Israeli will not be able to criticize them."

ALLON TOLD newsmen the talks dealt with U.S. aid and arms supplies.

Ford Indicates He'll Accept Tapes Decision

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has indicated he will accept the will of Congress to nullify his agreement granting former president Richard M. Nixon custody of his presidential tapes and papers at the zuggurat in Laguna Niguel.

White House officials said Thursday that although Ford would go along with it, he had not decided whether to sign the legislation or simply permit it to become law without his signature.

Nixon's attorney, Jack Miller, met with White House aides Thursday and apparently argued strongly for a veto of the bill. He told reporters the legislation is "clearly unconstitutional."

Some White House lawyers believe the legislation was passed too quickly and encompasses too much. It would even cover Nixon's dictabelts, on which he recorded his most intimate thoughts.

The legislation would nullify a Sept. 7 agreement that Ford signed with the General Services Administration saying that the tapes and papers were Nixon's property and he could dispose of them after five years of joint custody with the government.

Under the legislation Nixon still would have access to his papers, but would not be allowed to remove them from government custody.

Textbook Meet Ends In Fighting

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI) — A flurry of fists and shoving marred the close of the Kanawha County board of Education meeting Thursday night, another incident in the long-simmering textbooks dispute.

The fracas erupted when some members of the audience filling the meeting room jumped on board of education member F. Douglas Stump and superintendent Kenneth Underwood and other board members who intervened.

No one was seriously injured, and no one was arrested.

Opponents of the textbooks, mostly parents, have branded the books anti-God, un-American and filthy.

IN SHORT

Rocket Tests

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union announced today that a new series of rocket tests in the Pacific Ocean had been "successfully accomplished" ahead of schedule.

The tests were announced Dec. 11 and it was said then that ships and planes should remain outside designated areas from Dec. 12-30.

Burma Riot

RANGOON (UPI) — Burmese military tribunals today jailed 35 persons accused of rioting and destroying public property in bloody protests against the burial of former U.N. Secretary General U Thant.

Soldiers with rifles and automatic weapons guarded key government buildings and major roads throughout Rangoon, but some degree of calm returned to the riot-torn capital.

Jobs Bills

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House and Senate each passed multi-billion dollar programs Thursday to provide public service jobs for the unemployed and special benefits for persons out of work who are not covered by unemployment insurance.

The House also passed and sent to the Senate 374-2 a bill extending unemployment insurance benefits an additional 13 weeks for most Americans, giving them a full year of benefits.

Aussie Arrests

42 Skinny-dippers Nabbed

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — "I yelled to a friend to bring me my costume," said the naked swimmer. "Before he could reach me, a policeman waded out and said I was under arrest and told me to get into the speedboat."

He was one of 42 nudists state police arrested Thursday afternoon in a military-style amphibious operation at Lady Jane Beach in Sydney Harbor.

As the police launch Nemesis patrolled offshore with a police runabout, 15 policewomen and detectives in bathing suits and casual clothes moved along the beach among the sunbathers making arrests.

Police lowered ladders from surrounding cliffs onto the beach to evacuate the nudists. After dressing, 34 of the nudists were taken to a police station. The other eight were taken aboard the Nemesis to a wharf, then driven in police vans to the station.

A senior detective of the vice squad said the raid was made "following complaints received of perversion being carried on in daylight hours there."

Man Robs Navy Base Exchange

MOUNTAIN VIEW (AP) — A lone gunman robbed a Navy Exchange employe at the Moffett Field Naval Air Station and escaped with some $15,000 in cash and checks, a Navy spokesman said.

The Exchange worker had collected the day's receipts from outlying exchanges on the base Thursday evening and was about to deposit the money at the night window of the main exchange building when he was accosted by a man wearing a tan jacket and brandishing a large-caliber pistol, said John Shackleton, Navy information officer.

The gunman took 13 money bags from the man and fled on foot through very dense fog, Shackleton said.

One 'Healthy'

SAN JOSE (UPI) — Mrs. Charlotte Lange held her fragile daughter Jolene, the healthiest of her three surviving sextuplets, in her arms for the first time Thursday.

Jolene is doing well at Valley Medical Center without respiratory support while her two surviving brothers, Brian and Jason, are in serious condition with continuing deterioration of their respiratory system.

Suit Declined

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Attorney General Evelle J. Younger has declined to file suit against former Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti accusing him of violating campaign disclosure laws.

People's Lobby, a political activist group, charged last month that Moretti failed to properly report campaign contributions and expenditures during his unsuccessful bid for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. The group asked Younger to file suit to force compliance with the disclosure law. Younger Thursday said an investigation by his office into the charges found "no willful, knowing, or grossly negligent violations" of the law to warrant a suit.

Act Challenged

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California bankers and a legislator have gone to court in an attempt to block implementation of a lobbyist-control provision of the newly enacted State Political Reform Act.

They insist that the law could require public disclosure of the most minute financial transaction of a state employe, official, or legislator and even members of their families.

The California Bankers Association asked Superior Court Thursday to either declare the challenged section illegal or delay its implementation.

No Body Found

Wife Murdered; Man Convicted

MERCED (AP) — A Contra Costa County gardener convicted Thursday of murdering his estranged wife whose body never was found admitted hours earlier that she is dead, the prosecutor said.

Timothy Bennett, 26, of Concord was convicted of first-degree murder in one of the state's few such guilty verdicts on record where a body never was located.

Mary Jo Bennett, 23, disappeared without a trace after leaving work at the Pacific Telephone Co. here on Oct. 18, 1972.

BENNETT MET with her mother, Ida May Kempel Wednesday night after the jury deliberations began, Dep. Dist. Atty. Robert Quall told newsmen after the verdict.

Quall quoted Bennett as telling his mother-in-law: "If it's any consolation to you, Mary Jo died a sudden and painless death."

BENNETT ALSO tried to commit suicide twice by hanging and slashing his wrists Wednesday night, Quall said.

He also admitted to Quall picking up a woman across from the telephone company and driving south to an overpass near Chowchilla, Quall added.

Bennett said that when he returned to Merced, "If he had killed her, the person he had been with was not with him as far as being alive," Quall said.

These revelations were kept from the jury which deliberated less than two days. Sentencing is scheduled Jan. 2.

THE PROSECUTION presented circumstantial evidence placing Bennett in the area near the time of his wife's disappearance. Bennett said he had a memory lapse for two hours during that period, which was shortly after he had been involved in a minor traffic accident.

The defense argued two hours was insufficient time for Bennett to have abducted, murdered and buried his wife, then plant notes the prosecution claimed he forced her to write.

Slayings Unrelated

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police investigators reported Thursday that viewing an episode of "Police Story" has not provided any clues to the murders of three Skid Row derelicts.

The investigators watched a rerun of the Nov. 26 episode of the NBC television show, which involved the slaying of five derelicts.

Lt. Charles Kilgo, who heads the investigation, said the only relationship between the TV show and the slayings is that all the victims were derelicts.

3 Convicts' Escape Try Discovered

FOLSOM (UPI) — Three convicts from Southern California attempted to cut their way out of the maximum security section of Folsom Prison by using hacksaw blades, prison officials reported Thursday.

The three include a man convicted of murdering four California highway patrolmen and another sentenced for stealing guns in a 1971 plot to free convicted mass-murderer Charles Manson.

3 Charged In Grisly Slaying

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Three men are charged in connection with what officers call one of Sacramento County's most grisly slayings in recent years.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Herbert Anderson said Thursday, "This is the most heinous crime in which I have been involved in the sheriff's department."

THE VICTIM was redheaded Mark V. Raiter, 25, who was last seen Nov. 25, 1973. His headless body was found floating in the Sacramento River in May, 1974, after apparently being stuffed into a weighted garbage can. His head is believed to have been delivered to someone in Oakland as proof he had been slain on a "contract," officers said.

Anderson said Victor George Pryor, 24, of 3115 Crandall Way, was arrested last week and charged with being an accessory to the disposal of Raiter's body.

Thursday, officers served murder warrants on Daniel Carl Fisk, 31, also known as Blosser, who is now in Folsom Prison on a later voluntary manslaughter conviction, and Harry Otto Daigh, 35, also known as "Fat Jack," who is in Cierra Conservation Center on conviction of illegal possession of firearms by an exconvict.

School Restructure Ordered by Court

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The State Board of Education turned to financing again today in an attempt to deal with a court-ordered restructuring which could cost billions of dollars.

Board members considered a $1.4 billion proposal to equalize the amount of money public school students receive in poor and rich districts.

The state's current school financing system was ruled unconstitutional by a Los Angeles Superior Court because of the educational tax rate disparities that result.

With inflation taken into consideration it could cost an additional $2 billion to bring the system in compliance with the court order by the 1980 deadline. The financing system relies heavily on property taxes.

Thursday, the board adopted a tough conflict-of-interest rule covering persons involved in the selection of millions of dollars worth of textbooks for California schools.

Art Plied By Inmate

SAN QUENTIN (UPI) — Inmates at San Quentin State Prison have been warned there is a counterfeiter among them.

Tickets for photographic service in the visiting room, sold for two packs of cigarettes, are fake, prison officials said.

The warning, published in the San Quentin News, advised inmates "against purchasing picture tickets for cigarettes until the present problem is resolved."

"How come my electric bill is so high? And we've been using less."

We know your electric bill is higher. A lot higher—even though you're conserving electricity. Why? Primarily because of the increased cost of oil.

It's our job to provide the electricity you, your family and your job require. And we must do so in a manner that meets all air pollution control regulations. This means burning foreign, low-sulfur oil in Edison generating plants. The price is set by foreign governments, and it more than tripled in the last 18 months. It could go even higher. Since January, 1972, the increasing costs of oil and the additional amounts we have had to buy are responsible for almost 90% of the increase in your electric bills.

So we won't always be so dependent on foreign oil, we're spending millions of dollars building coal and nuclear plants. We are also researching new ways to generate electricity—without foreign oil. Geothermal power. Solar power. Fuel cells. Fast breeder reactors. Nuclear fusion. Research is costly, but it will also help to reduce our reliance on foreign oil.

Projects related to the environment are expensive, too, and in 1974 will account for about 20% of our capital expenditures. In the past six years, $325 million were required to be spent for such projects. It looks like we will have to spend another $450 million for environmental purposes within the next four-year period.

On top of all this, inflation is eating into our budget—as it is yours. The cost of constructing new plants is 10 times higher than it was a few years ago, and borrowing costs have more than doubled.

Your electric bill will reflect these rising costs. What can you do to hold down your bill? Budget your use of electricity wisely. For ways to do this, send for our free booklet. Write: "Conservation," Edison, P.O. Box 800, Rosemead, CA 91770.

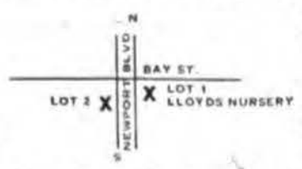
STILL TIME TO PLANT BULBS



Serving Education

South Coast residents have an opportunity to do something constructive about education—by running for a position on the school board.

Four of the seven positions in the Capistrano Unified district and two of the five positions in the Laguna Beach Unified district will be up for election March 4.

Trustees set district policy in all areas, including budgeting, new classes and programs, and negotiations with teachers.

Serving on a school board involves spending at least two evenings a month at meetings. Most trustees also serve on subcommittees or related boards and have a special area of responsibility, such as keeping track of related state legislation.

Concerned residents have until Jan. 3 to register, at no cost, with the Orange County Registrar of Voters.

Wise Election Delay

Laguna Beach school trustees showed good judgment in turning down a chance to call a tax override election for next March.

Laguna Beach is governed by state legislation which restricts increases in expenditure per pupil to a rate far short of holding even against inflation, unless voters approve an override.

However, trustees pointed out that the state legislature is considering new laws which would supersede local election results.

Also, the March election would coincide with a school trustee election, raising the possibility that the override would become a political issue tied to candidates.

It would be especially controversial at a time when the economy is slamming taxpayers from all sides.

And although educational programs may be pared, a financial projection shows the district can squeeze through one more year with its permitted budget.

Then, if trustees must ask for an override election, they will have gained credibility by not crying "Wolf!" too soon.

College Satellites

When Robert Lombardi took the reins as superintendent of Saddleback College three months ago, he promised immediate action to set up satellite campuses in surrounding communities.

He kept his word. Starting next month, classes will be held in Tustin, Irvine, Laguna Beach, Dana Point and San Clemente.

In all, 137 classes will be held away from the college's Mission Viejo campus. The new setup will allow students to register, buy textbooks and go to school without ever having to travel to Mission Viejo.

College officials predict the satellite campuses will be so popular that the normal fall to winter quarter enrollment drop-off will not occur this year.

A mid-year enrollment increase would be a telling sign. It would mean the college finally has found an answer to a problem it has faced since the district was formed: the relative isolation of the Mission Viejo campus from many of the communities it serves.

'I said take two of these aspirin and come back to see me next year!'

'Lovelock' Can't Match 'Wedlock'

SYDNEY HARRIS

In reply to a random query of mine some time ago—"What name should we apply to the many couples today who are living together though not married?"—I have received a number of both palatable and ribald suggestions. Two of the most frequent were "cohabs," and "lovelock" instead of "wedlock."

Interestingly enough, one of the reasons modern young people object to the term "wedlock" is the implication that the couple is manacled or handcuffed together in the institution of matrimony. They resent the idea of being "locked" together by a law.

BUT THIS is a misreading of the old Anglo-Saxon word: "wedlock" meant "marriage pledge," and the suffix "lock" had nothing at all to do with handcuffing people together. (It is like the word "sweetheart," where the "heart" part has nothing to do with that organ of the body, but was originally "sweetard," in the same form as "coward" and "dotard.")

Time and custom shape and distort words, and then the words themselves become a kind of tyranny, so that we respond to the distortion rather than to the basic meaning. Indeed, the very word "tyranny" is a perfect example of what happens to a word throughout history.

The earliest "tyrants" in ancient Greece were simply absolute rulers or monarchs, with no implication of cruelty. Both Pericles and Pisistratus were "tyrants," but they were model rulers of wisdom and tolerance. Gradually, however, the word began to assume its later connotation of harshness and oppression, and utterly lost its primal neutral meaning.

FOR COUPLES to live in "lovelock" rather than "wedlock" suggests they have pledged their love—but what value is such a pledge, if it can be withdrawn at the whim of either, with no lasting sense of commitment? The word "pledge" itself means a "guarantee"—but a guarantee is empty if you are not willing to make good on it.

It is my feeling that we have not yet, as a species, arrived at any finally satisfactory form of man-woman relations. The traditional form of matrimony is too filled with rigidities, injustices, and inconsistencies; yet the new "cohabs" have merely exchanged one set of difficulties for another, for without a deep sense of permanence and commitment the living-fabric is too fragile to sustain a family.

THE NUB of the problem is that the human infant, unlike all others, needs years of stable development before it is ready to cope with its physical and social environment. Without children, marriage might be unnecessary; with children, it may be a necessary evil, capable of being ameliorated, but not eliminated from the social structure.

GOP Survivors Alienated

Ford Absence Offends Governors

EVANS-NOVAK

ST. LOUIS — Unfairly or not, the thimbleful of Republican governors and governors-elect who survived the Democratic landslide of Nov. 5 were outraged that President Ford could not make a brief appearance at their midwinter conference here last week after his long journey to the Far East.

Indeed, intensive negotiations had started in mid-November with low-level White House aides to arrange a visit by Mr. Ford that would lend Presidential endorsement to party-rebuilding efforts. Yet, despite repeated telephone calls to the White House by host Gov. Christopher Bond of Missouri, presidential aides insisted Mr. Ford could not spare a couple of hours. Contact was never made with Dean Burch, Mr. Ford's political adviser until his resignation last week, who took no interest in the governors' appeal.

THIS non-appearance by a President who was sharply criticized for traveling to real estate conventions in Las Vegas added to the funereal gloom at the governors' conference. Even before they learned he would not appear, the governors were grumbling over Mr. Ford's performance as both party chief and national leader.

Their aggravation did not peak until word spread that even William Seidman, the highest White House aide scheduled to meet the governors, was going to back out on his scheduled appearance.

With tempers rising among the governors, White House aide James Falk, Mr. Ford's chief liaison with the governors, rushed to a pay phone here with an SOS to the White House. That firmed up Seidman's appearance and also brought Falk's boss, Domestic Council chief Ken Cole, to the session.

But it scarcely mitigated disappointment with Mr. Ford. One governor, reelected last month by a huge majority while other Republican candidates in his state were losing, told us: "This would have been the perfect place for Jerry Ford to come and show his interest, with the few of us who won, in trying to revive his party."

THE GOVERNORS' unhappiness with Mr. Ford goes beyond reviving the Republican party. They believe he is spending far too much time on foreign travel at a time of deepening recession and general economic crisis at home. The President's WIN — Whip Inflation Now — public relations campaign is ridiculed as outdated in the face of national unemployment expected to approach eight percent next summer.

Gov. William Milliken of Michigan, arguing that "mere rhetoric cannot save our free enterprise system," came here handing out lapel buttons of his own contradicting the White House WIN pins. His pins say BAC — Buy a Car.

Milliken's reelection by 114,000 votes against multiple adversity in the depression-threatened automobile state was a stunning offset to his party's national disaster, but not a single White House political aid has bothered to call him for a post-election analysis.

WORSE YET, Milliken's carefully considered economic program sent to Mr. Ford in a letter one week before the election has never been answered. He proposed a blend of tax reform, vastly more public service employment, extended unemployment compensation and public works. But Milliken's proposals were not considered important enough to warrant a reply.

Most criticism of Mr. Ford and what one governor called his "Nixon holdover" administration was private. But New Hampshire's Gov. Meldrim Thomson, the anti-tax crusader who is indisputably the most conservative of all Republican governors, felt no such scruples. He delivered an angry statement to what he called the "closetful" of Republican survivors (sitting around the huge horseshoe conference table with embarrassingly wide spaces between them) attacking Mr. Ford for "not caring enough" about the future of the Republican party "to help us set the course for the long climb back."

AN HOUR spent with the governors by Jerry Ford would scarcely make a dent on the staggering political problems of his defeated party. There was no such false hope here. "The GOP has a pinhead for a base and we're kidding ourselves if we think it can be turned around in anything like two or three years," Michigan state chairman William McLaughlin told us.

But that handful of Republican governors who survived last month would have been a good place to start. The fact that the President and his political staff didn't see it that way made a bad situation worse, alienating the governors at a time Mr. Ford needs every possible ally.

Letters from readers are welcome. Normally, writers should convey their messages in 300 words or less. The right to condense letters to fit space or eliminate libel is reserved. All letters must include signature and mailing address but names may be withheld on request if sufficient reason is apparent. Poetry will not be published.

To the Editor:

I have received some literature from The Citizens Committee for the Right to Keep and Bear Arms.

Their letter urges me to write my local newspaper "to protest the anti-gun distortions of the news media." Contrary to their wish, I am writing you to support federal effort to get rid of handguns except for the possible needs of persons who may live in areas remote from law enforcement agencies.

THE EASE with which people may acquire handguns contributes to their unlawful use. Domestic arguments many times are "settled" with a handgun in a family's possession.

I believe that the "right to bear arms" may have been important in the early days of the growth of this nation, but not today. The lives of too many people are endangered. More strict law enforcement would not have prevented the killing of Bobby Kennedy, Martin Luther King, nor the attempt on George Wallace's life, although handguns alone were not used in all cases, including the killing of President Kennedy.

CARTER McDONALD

Innocent Victims

To the Editor:

Now is very much the right time for all good citizens to come to the aid of their purchasing power and each other.

There is no single way or magic answers to live within our means and have the means required to live, according to varying standards.

ECONOMIC predictions are up and down—leaving us to believe that up-and-down may very well be the cycle confronting us.

Between the cycle of life and death are many cycles of economic nature that reflect genuine shortages/oversupply — as are included many cycles of contrived and/or controlled shortages/oversupply.

We, the innocent victims, must consider and decide which is which—or suffer the outrageous misfortune that following each cycle, real or otherwise, may lead us.

THERE ARE many examples of abuse, such as witnessing two, three and four price changes on food market merchandise, clearly indicating increases not warranted for merchandise acquired at lower prices.

Daily Pilot readers should contribute ideas or observations of ways and means to help us all stay within our means.

Christmas Club accounts, longtime favorites of banks and tellers, surely deserve to be compared with other ways of saving for better interest returns.

Let's hear it in favor of we, the people, to get the most from our money under current and predictable ups and downs.

ART WEISSMAN

Age of Hostility

To the Editor

As a graduate of Orange Coast College and former student of Lee Bradley's Psychology 110 class, I find myself replying to an article in the Daily Pilot of Dec. 5.

IN AN AGE of hostility perpetrated by the high cost of sugar, oil, musing about Watergate and reading newspapers, any constructive class in human communication on a one-to-one basis or group level is beneficial. To touch or not to touch. Each man's separate choice. How? A word, pantomine or a light hand. In any attempt at encountering another person, the real threat of rejection is ever present. This tends to make us silent sieves, dumb and dormant.

The course offered at OCC on personal and human awareness was for me an experience of some magnitude. It was a heavy class and so explained at the beginning of the semester. As the class progressed, I become more circumspect in my outlook and actions as my shortcomings became more obvious.

THIS WAS followed by a true feeling of love for some of my classmates which at best is difficult to express. There also occurred feelings of resentment, anger, frustration and jealousy.

When an instructor with 15 years teaching experience attempts to convey methods of communication in this sensitive area, there will be criticism. If we hope to progress beyond the conversational level of "How are You? . . . "I am fine," then classes such as this must continue.

From an older and more experienced student.

CHUCK FIELD

Tax Relief Just an Illusion

EARL WATERS

By now it must be crystal clear to those who must face up to property tax payments, that the relief promised again and again by the Legislature is but an illusion.

Despite the increased aid given to local governments, and the schools, by the state and federal governments, despite the freeze on tax rates imposed on local governments at the insistence of Governor Reagan, the tax bills are higher than ever.

This erosion of homeowner property tax relief, intended by the state subsidized exemptions and the governor's freeze, comes about simply by increasing the assessed valuations. It is a subversion of the intent of the state and federal governments to bring relief to homeowners. For Californians this is the second time that the exemption approach to relief for homeowners has been completely eroded in short order by local governments. The first of $750 was wiped out within two years. The governor then sought an increase to $1750 and attempted to prevent the eroding of this by a freeze on tax rates.

FOR EVEN the hardest heads in the Legislature it should now be starkly obvious that there can be no homeowner relief without a freeze on both tax rates and assessed values. For the state to continue to pour funds into local governments as a means to relieving local property taxes, without first shutting the door tight on both rates and values, accomplishes nothing excepting to encourage more spending on the part of local officials.

And, encouragement is the last thing they need. The appetite for spending exhibited by local governments, especially the schools is insatiable.

In their zeal to tax and spend, spend and tax, and tax and spend, one is reminded of the lemmings. These small rodents, native to the Arctic, are possessed of a congenital desire for self destruction. They, too, have an insatiable appetite. They increase enormously in numbers, exhausting their food supplies. They move steadily across the countryside, regardless of all obstacles, committing devastation in their line of march. Always advancing in the same general direction they ultimately reach the sea where they plunge in and drown.

ONE CANNOT change nature but taxation is a political being, not a creature of nature. It can be changed.

The high property taxes cannot be excused by stating the assessor must increase the valuations because of state law. That would not matter if, on the rise of valuations, the tax rate went down accordingly. But it doesn't go down; despite the millions in additional revenues from state and federal sources. Local officials just don't seem to know how to stop spending.

THE FALLACY of the present system of home taxation is adjusting to current market values even though there is no intent to sell. One buys a home at $10,000, spends his life paying for it, only to find he is now living in a home valued at $40,000 which is beyond his means because of taxes. It's still the same home and it isn't appropriate to be taxed out of it on such a basis.

Assemblyman Gene Chappie, a farmer, is one who has recognized the injustice. He is proposing legislation which would freeze assessed home values. While the details of his proposal haven't been perfected, the aim is to treat homes for what they are, just homes and not speculative land purchases. Property taxes would remain constant until such time as a home is sold. If, at that time a profit has been realized on the sale, taxes would then be assessed on the sale.

Carter Leaves, Battling for Image

AP Photo

Not Sold

Former Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban says in a Connecticut talk that United Nations' recognition of Palestine Liberation Organization is like admitting Al Capone to American Bar Association. Capone was a gangster.

NAME in the NEWS

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — During his tenure as Georgia governor, Jimmy Carter, who entered the Democratic presidential race Thursday, reorganized the state government and gave blacks a greater voice.

But he leaves office Jan. 14 battling the image that he is unpopular in his own state, and some prominent Georgians openly scoff at his presidential ambitions.

THE 50-YEAR-OLD peanut farmer from Plains in southwest Georgia could not seek a consecutive term as governor under Georgia law.

Carter is a graduate of the Naval Academy at Annapolis and a former senior officer on the atomic submarine Seawolf. His father's death in 1953 took him back to the peanut farm and eventually into community affairs, two terms in the state Senate and finally the governor's office.

He and his wife, Rosalynn, have four children: Jack, 27, Chip, 24, Jeff, 22 and Amy, 7.

HIS MAJOR accomplishment was an over-all reorganization of state government, reducing more than 300 agencies, departments and bureaus to just over 20. The program reduced overlapping services and provided for centralized state purchasing.

Much of Carter's supposed unpopularity was caused by a single aspect of reorganization — the creation of a massive Department of Human Resources, dispensing welfare and health services from a single department.

The department was opposed from the outset by major officials in the formerly separate departments of health and welfare, and has continued to produce legislative conflicts since its creation in 1972.

However, federal officials praise the "umbrella approach" to social services and hold it up as a model for other states.

CARTER NAMED three blacks in the 15-member board that govern the Department of Human Resources, and for the first time named a black to the prestigious Board of Regents, which operates the state's public universities and colleges. He also named blacks to the state Board of Pardons and Paroles, and increased the level of black employment in subexecutive posts.

In the legislature, he fought unsuccessfully for tough consumer protection laws, but passed a measure to preserve scenic and historic sites. He also pressed tough environmental protection laws.

Many of his problems stemmed from Lester Maddox, who surrendered the governor's office in 1970 only to become lieutenant governor and the presiding officer of the state Senate.

MADDOX'S FREQUENT attacks on Carter and his programs undoubtedly helped foster Carter's image of unpopularity, although Maddox, himself, lost a return bid to the governor's office this year.

Carter was described by one state official as being "stubborn as a south Georgia turtle. He won't go around things," said Secretary of State Ben Fortson. "He just keeps pushing, pushing, pushing."

Rebozo Angers Group

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) — Key Biscayne residents, angered by what they consider is a request for "special privileges" by Bebe Rebozo and Richard Nixon, are up in arms against a petition to make Bay Lane a private road.

"Why should he have this special privilege?" asked Toni Reinhardt defiantly. "Everybody else would like to have their streets made private, too."

MRS. REINHARDT is heading a group of neighbors who intend to register their opposition to Rebozo's request when the matter comes up before the Dade County Commission Tuesday.

The petition, filed by the former president's close friend, asks that Bay Lane — which fronts the former president's villa — be declared private once the Secret Service removes security later this month.

Rebozo and several other Bay Lane homeowners, including Nixon, signed the petition.

MRS. REINHARDT said about 200 members of the Key Biscayne Property Taxpayers Association, Inc., voted unanimously this week to oppose the petition.

If Bay Lane is closed, Mrs. Reinhardt said, several Key Biscayne residents would be forced to take detours to get to their homes.

Requests from other property owners to make roads around their homes private have been rejected.

"Maybe we should secede from the nation and blow up the bridge that leads here," said Mrs. Reinhardt.

Relaxing Of Pot Law Eyed

DAVIS (AP) — Davis City Attorney William Owen is under instructions to find out what the city can do — if anything — to reduce the penalty for possession of marijuana.

Owen received the instructions on a 4-1 vote of the Davis City Council late Wednesday.

The councilman who made the proposal, UC Davis law student Bob Black, said he feels the current strict laws are "out of line with reality."

State law permits the judge to prosecute cases of marijuana possession as either misdemeanors or felonies.

The Davis action followed that of Berkeley, which passed an ordinance to liberalize marijuana law.

But the California attorney general ruled that marijuana laws are in the domain of the state and not affected by city ordinances.

DO YOU SLEEP WELL?

One of the first signs of impending poor health is poor sleep. Sleep is a necessary requirement of the body to replenish the strength and restore and repair the ravages of the day's activities of your body. If you are restless at night and get up feeling tired in the morning — this indicates that you did not acquire a refreshed sleep. Oh, there is no doubt that worries and frustrations of the day rob you of some sleep, but persistent poor sleep may have serious considerations. Sleeping tablets quiet the nerves temporarily — but do nothing constructive to correct the cause. Many of our patients thought they were sleeping well before adjustments. But since having Chiropractic care, they now realize what a GOOD NIGHT SLEEP really provides as they awake fully refreshed, full of pep and energy to meet the day's events in good form.

EPA to Speed Inquiry of Aerosol Peril

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency said it will quickly expand research to determine if gases from aerosol sprays and other products are destroying the earth's protective atmospheric shield — and, if so, to find substitutes for them.

"We recognize that if the predictions of some scientific investigators are correct, very little time remains before the emergence of a serious global health problem," EPA deputy Administrator John R. Quarles Jr. said Thursday.

QUARLES MADE the statement in a letter submitted on the second day of a congressional investigation into the potential hazard.

Scientists told the panel Wednesday that the ozone layer is thinning with the accompanying possibility of a major increase in skin cancer as more of the sun's ultraviolet rays reach earth.

A Du Pont official promised the House subcommittee Thursday that the firm would stop manufacturing fluorocarbon gases if they were proved to be injurious to health.

QUARLES SAID his agency's expanded effort to look at the ozone problem could well take in excess of two years before enough questions are answered to warrant action.

Another federal official, Lloyd B. Tepper, associate commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration, also told the House commerce subcommittee that it would be one to two years before proper readings of the ozone layer 10 to 40 miles above the earth's surface can be made.

Testimony was also presented Thursday from the National Resources Defense Council which suggested that legislation under consideration be expanded to prohibit the manufacture of fluorocarbon gases not only in the United States but also by U.S. owned corporations anywhere in the world.

THE GROUP said only about half the gases such as Freon are made in the United States.

A researcher for Du Pont, the country's largest manufacturer of Freon, said research at this stage is purely speculative and unproven.

But, Raymond L. McCarthy said, the threat now is only "purely speculative" with absolutely no experimental evidence to prove it.

McCARTHY IS products technical manager for Du Pont. He said a "comprehensive experimental program should be initiated to determine whether the hypothesized reactions in fact could take place."

Wounded Youth Seeks Damages

An 18-year-old youth shot by Fountain Valley police during a market robbery has filed three claims of $2.5 million each against the cities of Fountain Valley and Westminster and Orange County.

Howard D. Stewart of Buena Park claims he was working as an undercover narcotics agent for Westminster police, when the robbery occurred.

HE SAID HE tipped off Westminster police about the holdup, then police there notified Fountain Valley authorities.

Fountain Valley patrolmen were waiting inside the 7-Eleven market, at 10545 Slater Ave., when police said Stewart, James H. Morrison, 19, and a 17-year-old juvenile simulated a weapon and took about $100 from the clerk.

Fountain Valley police said they fired at the three as they fled from the market. Police said they didn't fire until the trio disobeyed orders to halt.

But Stewart contends police didn't order them to halt, but fired instead.

STEWART SUFFERED head and arm wounds, while Morrison suffered a gunshot wound in the head. The juvenile was not injured.

Later, police said, they found the men had simulated a gun and were armed only with knives.

Officers also said they "may have known" an undercover agent was involved somehow in the robbery, but didn't know for sure he was in the market or which one he was.

WESTMINSTER AND Fountain Valley rejected the insurance claim. County officials could not be reached.

Stewart may file suit in Superior Court to collect the damage claim. It includes $2.5 million for medical expenses and lost wages and $300 for damage to his car from police fire.

Westminster police could not be reached for comment about Stewart's involvement in the incident or for confirmation of his job as an undercover agent.

Fountain Valley officers confirmed, however, that while Morrison and the juvenile were charged with robbery, Stewart was not.

U.S. Suit Seeking Eviction

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The wife of financier C. Arnholt Smith has lived for 14 months in a penthouse suite of the Westgate Hotel without paying $2,500 monthly rent, a federal suit says in asking her eviction.

The complaint was filed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and operators of the Little America Westgate, considered one of the country's most fashionable hotels.

ALTHOUGH THE suit says Mrs. Smith entered into a "purported" lease agreement Oct. 15, 1973, it claims no rent has been paid and the owners believe Mrs. Smith never intended to pay the rent.

The FDIC said it agreed to collect rent due on the luxury suite before last July 1, when the downtown hotel was sold by Westgate-California Corp. to California Little America Co.

THREE DAYS before the rental agreement was arranged, says the suit, the Smith-owned United States United States National Bank was declared insolvent. Smith is a former chairman also of Westgate.

The $2,500 is far below the fair rental value of the 19th-floor suite and hence California Little America is not bound by it, the suit said in asking that Mrs. Smith be evicted.

Smith, who faces trial in January on charges of conspiracy and misapplication of bank funds, has stayed in his La Jolla home.

TV Commercials' 'Idiocy' Flayed

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — The nation's consumers are being brainwashed by television commercials of "nauseating, intelligence - insulting, armpit quality" which big business feels is necessary to promote their products, the president of the National Consumers League has charged here.

Esther Peterson, a former official for consumers affairs in President Johnson's administration and currently vice president for Giant Foods, Inc. of Washington, D.C., told the second national Symposium on Consumer Movement Wednesday night:

"The impact of television commercials with their vast outlay of money has not met their responsibility to the American consumer, by presenting false and vastly misleading commercials from toilet paper, which is claimed to be super soft, to deodrants, wash powder, bath soap, hair spray and other products.

"Their idiotic portrayals are all designed to make the consumer buy one particular product without telling them that practically all similar products are the same because they are competitive and have to be.

"The quality standards of the goods we are offered to buy, when we can afford them, are often standards we find unacceptable when we have no alternatives to accept."

Mercy Flight

Copter Helps Surgeons

Officials at a Long Beach hospital have credited a 17-minute Newport Beach helicopter mercy flight during last week's rainstorm with helping to save the life of a 63-year-old woman.

Aboard the copter piloted by officer Doug Olmstead Wednesday morning was a mechanical heart pacer needed in a surgery at Long Beach Memorial Hospital.

OFFICER DOUG Morton acted as Olmstead's observer during the hurried flight to Long Beach from Orange County Airport through rainy skies made worse by a cloud ceiling of only 300 feet.

According to Fritzi Cohn of the hospital's clinical physiology department, the heart pacer was called for by a doctor performing open-heart surgery on a patient.

OLMSTEAD reported the pacer was delivered to the police helicopter base at Orange County Airport by its manufacturer. It was used to replace a temporary pacer installed in the patient while the chopper was in flight.

The police helicopter pilot credited ground-controlled radar both in Orange County and in the Long Beach area with a "big assist" in the mercy flight.

Saddleback Contract

Redesign Cost Sparks Meeting

Consider ation of a con- tract am endment that would prov ide two Santa Ana archite cts $377,000 to redesign two buildings proposed for Saddleback College has be en tabled by the board of tru stees.

The action, i nmediately followed by an executive session on the subject, brought speculatio n that the architects' existi ng contract with the distr ct is in jeopardy.

BOARD PRESID ENT Patrick Backus of L Dana Point confirmed that the contract of Robert Hi ppe and George Randell was t he topic of the secret session.

"There is some concern," said Backus when asked about the relationship between the architects and the board. "We've needed to take a look at it."

The two architects were initially unavailable for comment on the status of their contract with the district.

Other trustees contacted would not publicly comment on the matter, other than to confirm the contract was discussed at the executive session.

HIPPE AND Randell were hired by the district in May following the firing of the architectural firm Robert Lowrey and Associates. Both Hippe and Randell were employed by Lowrey in the past.

Their original contract called for completion of plans for permanent buildings at the 200-acre Mission Viejo campus. Two structures, housing the library, science and mathematics divisions, have been completed. Other classes are held in relocatable structures.

Trustees ordered redesign of the proposed music-arts and physical education-gymnasiums complexes in an economy move.

RANDELL AND Hippe then presented to the board a revised contract showing it would cost $230,000 to redesign the music-arts complex and $147,000 to rework plans for the physical education-gymnasium facility.

Hippe and Randell so far have been paid more than $154,000 for work on plans for the two buildings prior to the decision by trustees to redesign.

What Is a Girl Like Rhoda Doing In an "Old-Fashioned Christmas Cookbook"?

FAMILY WEEKLY's cover subject this week is Valerie Harper, star of the new and successful CBS series, "Rhoda." She has a lot to say on the subject of food and dieting, and she even shares two of her favorite recipes: Barbecued Chicken and a calorie-pinching salad. But Rhoda's keeping strange company: her thoroughly modern recipes are nestled in an old-fashioned Currier and Ives Christmas Cookbook section especially prepared by Food Editor Marilyn Hansen. Look for witty city-girl Rhoda, plus good old traditional country trimmings — a fascinating Christmas melange.

BUREAU FOUNDER Judge R. R. Engebretsen

Trio Given Clearance Of Charges

SANTA ANA — Two doctors and a chiropractor indicted by the Grand Jury on multiple grand theft and conspiracy allegations were cleared of all charges Thursday at the midway mark of their Orange County Superior Court trial.

Judge John L. Flynn Jr. granted the motion for dismissal filed by lawyers for Drs. Harry Rudolph Alsleben, 41, of Yorba Linda and William J. Goldwag, 47, of Santa Ana and Dr. Paul L. Black, 63, an Anaheim chiropractor as the prosecution closed its case against the trio.

Judge Flynn made it clear in his ruling that the three lawyers had no case to defend.

The indictment of the trio followed an investigation by the district attorney's office during which patients treated at the Alsleben Clinic allegedly described costly treatments prescribed for them as "absolutely worthless."

Autonetics Receives Contract

ANAHEIM — Rockwell International's Autonetics group in Anaheim has received a major new federal contract which officials say will have a substantial impact on county employment rolls.

The announcement by federal officials that the Anaheim-based plant will do more than $55 million in new work on the Minuteman III missile system was greeted with enthusiasm by Autonetics officials.

The contract calls for the construction of guidance equipment and other ground-support electronic gear for the ballistic missile.

The latest contract calls for revisions to lines of equipment which the firm has built before the system.

Autonetics is the base firm for the Rockwell group's entire electronics operation and the Anaheim facility has an employe roster of about 11,400 workers.

Seal Beach Suit Told

SANTA ANA — A woman who claims she was attacked and beaten by two Seal Beach policemen without reason or provocation has sued them and the City of Seal Beach for $750,000 in damages.

Mrs. Jacqueline Singer states in her Orange County Superior Court action that officers James Swenson and "Doe One" grabbed her and beat her with flashlights or nightsticks last March 17 at the intersection of Main and Electric streets.

Mrs. Singer claims she was detained in a car and later in a bus for three hours at the end of which confinement she was released. She states she was not arrested and was never charged.

Judge Engebretsen

He Talks to Kids About Law

WESTMINSTER — "The judge who talks to kids" intends to live up to his nickname through the West Orange County Judges Speaker's Bureau he brought into being this week.

Municipal Judge Ragnar R. Engebretsen, who announced the formation of the speakers bureau Tuesday, said he and the other judges hope their new commitment will help young people gain a better understanding of what courts are and who judges are.

The judges have volunteered to visit high schools and service clubs to promote that understanding.

Judge Engebretsen, who gained a reputation for disrupting his schedule to talk with kids touring the court building in Westminster, said he came up with the idea for a speaker's bureau bureau after talking with his 17-year-old daughter.

He visited her class, then wrote other high school schools, asking if they would like him to speak. He received an overwhelming response — 16 high schools wanted him to visit not one but many of their classes.

So the bureau evolved.

"I am concerned, as are the other judges, about the impression most of the population is getting about the law," he said.

The people associate judges with the police, with a bad experience they had in traffic court, with what they see on television or with highly controversial articles in the newspapers, he said.

To request a judge from the speakers bureau, interested persons can call Judge Engebretsen at the courthouse, 896-7111.

Air Cops Absorbed

SANTA ANA — Orange County Airport police have officially been absorbed by the county Sheriff's Department.

The airport security forces had been operating as a separate law enforcement unit under the command of the county Airport Department.

But last month, county supervisors decided to consolidate all law enforcement activities controlled by county government.

Wins Supervisors' Blessing

Coast Juvenile Center Opens Operations

By WILLIAM SCHRIEBER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The privately-funded Assessment and Treatment Center of Coastal Orange County began operations Thursday after winning the blessing of Orange County Supervisors.

The center, located near the corner of Bristol Street and Redhill Avenue, is a counseling and referral service for juvenile offenders and their families. It works with young lawbreakers referred to it by police in Costa Mesa, Irvine and Newport Beach.

Police can call upon the services of the center as an alternative to sending young offenders to Juvenile Hall.

ACTION WEDNESDAY by the county Board of Supervisors capped a year-long effort by a group of private citizens in the three Orange Coast communities to retain a juvenile diversion program operated under a federal grant by the county Probation Department for the past three years.

Juvenile authorities, including police and judges, have applauded the countywide program, but public agencies in coastal Orange County, citing budget crunches, declined to pick it up. The federal grant runs out at the end of the year.

County supervisors also declined to fund the countywide program at the end of the three-year pilot program. They are waiting for the results of a juvenile justice system study before deciding which programs to fund in the future.

ESSENTIALLY, county supervisors Wednesday gave approval to the stationing of county Probation Department psychologists and deputy probation officers in the privately-funded center.

Under a contract with the county, the private group backing the center plans to pick up the tab for the operation, including the salaries of county employes.

Supervisors attached two conditions to their approval. A report on the center's work must go to the county's nine-member Juvenile Justice Study Committee. And supervisors warned they would not make up the slack should the center's private backers fail to come up with enough money to keep it going.

Coastal ATSC directors already have secured grants from the Newport Harbor Junior League, and Fluor Foundation and from several individuals.

THE ATSC program stems from the belief that a high percentage of youngsters run afoul of the law initially because of some problem rooted in the family.

Police can decide to refer a young — perhaps first time offender — to the center for counseling with his or her family. Use of the center's service is voluntary, but police retain jurisdiction in each case and, should the family refuse to cooperate, can choose to send the youngster to Juvenile Hall and, thus, through the juvenile justice system

2 Ecology Bills Lost By Hosmer

U.S. Rep. Craig Hosmer, the Republican lame-duck whose district includes part of the north Orange Coast, has lost two battles in Washington, D.C., this week on a pair of bills related to environmental controls.

A new federal strip mining control bill that Hosmer testified against this week at committee hearings has been sent for a vote to the full House with orders that no parliamentary challenges can be lodged.

Hosmer testified against the legislation that would impose levies of a quarter per ton for underground coal and 35 cents for strip-mined coal. The money would pay for restoration of areas already ravaged by the strip mining practice

HOSMER STRESSED that the Ford Administration plans to veto the legislation if it passes.

On another front, an attempt by Hosmer to filibuster against a bill endorsed by conservationists concerned about new dams on the Snake River failed as well.

He accused fellow members of the House Interior Committee of railroading the legislation that would ban construction of a hydroelectric dam on the Snake River.

The measure also is opposed by the electrical utility industry, which insists that the hydroelectric dam is needed to meet power needs in the Northwest.

Court Nixes Convictions

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The California Supreme Court has refused to overturn 12 contempt of court convictions imposed on attorney Richard Hawk during his defense of mass murderer Juan Corona in 1972.

The court denied without comment Wednesday Hawk's petition for a hearing on a Sept. 27 State Court of Appeal ruling which upheld 12 of 14 contempt convictions.

Hawk was sentenced to 54 days in jail and fined a total of $3,200 last February by Solano County Superior Court Judge Richard Patton.

Law-School Dean Was a Pimp

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — An investigating committee of the State Bar has heard how a lawyer disbarred for pimping became a law school dean.

"A horror story," it was called by George Hillsinger, of the bar's board of governors.

The testimony "shocked all of us," said John Gorfinkel, consultant to the Committee of Bar Examiners.

THE COMMITTEE was hearing testimony on its proposal to set minimum standards, by law, for private, unaccredited law schools.

Such schools prepare graduates to pass the State Bar exam. If they pass, they are entitled to practice law, regardless of the lack of accreditation of the school.

Students at the Ocean University College of Law in San Jose testified that, at one point, the school was headed by David DeLoach, who had been disbarred after a conviction for pimping and pandering. He has since resigned, said student Bobbi Mendenhall, but the school's students are in trouble.

ALTHOUGH THE 45 students have paid tuition, the rent on classrooms and teachers' salaries have not been paid, and the school has no registrar or criminal law instructor, she said.

"The students feel abandoned. We don't know whether we are going to receive any credits for this semester. We feel we have been wronged, misled," she said.

Gorfinkel said the case of DeLoach "is the first time, but I fear there may be others like it."

JOHN LAWSON, a student at the Los Angeles campus of the same school, came to DeLoach's defense, saying "the school has survived on the dedication of Mr. DeLoach. I feel his conviction should not be eternal condemnation. I feel he has given high quality education."

Irvine Council Not Too Excited By Low-cost Housing Fund Share

By DOUGLAS FRITZSCHE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Irvine city councilmen want additional legal advice before deciding whether to join Orange County government in seeking federal housing funds.

They also are wondering whether the $10,000 to $40,000 they might acquire for the city under the 1974 Housing and Community Development Act would be worth the effort.

"THAT WON'T even buy one house in Irvine," observed Councilman Robert West after hearing a presentation by Reed Flory, the county's senior housing planner.

Noting that the county by itself cannot claim a population large enough to qualify for federal housing funds, Flory suggested that Irvine, along with other smaller cities, join the county in applying to the Department of Housing and Urban Development for the money.

Irvine's first-year share would be between $10,000 and $40,000, he said.

Indicating they viewed that amount as mere crumbs from an $8.4 billion federal housing pie, Irvine councilmen asked Flory what they would use the money for.

HE SAID costs of housing-related items such as sewer connections, amenities to new tracts, or a new housing plan could be met with the money.

Councilmen, apparently conscious of the attention focused on the new city in connection with its lack of low or moderate-cost housing, called upon the city attorney for a report to be delivered in the coming weeks.

The city's own study has indicated most people employed in Irvine can't afford to live there and the state Attorney General's Housing Task Force has hinted at legal action if Irvine fails to meet its own goals for attracting housing that would be available to all income levels.

FLORY CAUTIONED the council that a decision on whether Irvine will join hands with the county must be made before the mid-January deadline for the federal grant application.

And he asserted that the city could lend its population to the grant effort and still not commit itself to low-cost housing endeavors.

The alternatives, he said, are to do nothing and see Irvine's share of the money go elsewhere, or for the city to seek a federal grant of its own from a $48 million discretionary fund.

Christianity 'On the Rise'

BRUSSELS (UPI) Evangelist Billy Graham says more people — especially young people — are turning to Christianity than ever before.

"The youth of our world has tried everything," he told a news conference. "They've tried drugs but they've found no peace in them. Now they are turning towards philosophy, the occult and thousands are turning towards Christianity."

Deputies Nab Pair for Swim In Hot Springs

Orange County Sheriff's deputies made their first arrest in the newly-created Ronald Caspers Regional Park near San Juan Capistrano this week when two men were cited for trespassing, unlawful swimming and being in possession of alcohol in a county park.

Deputies said Eric Russell Giroux, 18, of 850 Temple Hills Drive, Laguna Beach and Robin Thomas Ranger 20 of 31611 Florence St. South Laguna, were booked after they were spotted swimming in what used to be known as the San Juan Hot Springs.

Officers said further investigation showed both men to be in possession of alcohol.

That's Breaks Of the Game

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A policeman who broke a leg playing on a department all-star softball team has been denied disability leave by the city Retirement Board.

The board refused to grant the benefits to patrolman Donald Schneider, 35, who had to miss two months' work after being injured while playing against an FBI team at South Lake Tahoe last August.

Boy, 3, Spends Week Alone — Mother Killed

DETROIT (AP) — A 3-year-old child spent a week alone in his home with the body of his slain mother, police say.

The police forced their way into the house and found the boy alone with his mother's body.

Officers were summoned by a neighbor who saw young Jack Jones peering from a window in the home. The neighbor said it occured to her than that his mother had not been seen for a week.

Vanella Maxine Jones, 26, was lying on a bed with her hands and feet bound and with two stab wounds in the neck. Police said she had been dead for about a week.

Empty cereal boxes were found in the house, and police said they believe Jack ate the cereal and drank from the kitchen faucet during his week without supervision.

The unidentified neighbor took the child to her home to feed and bathe him.

"The poor tyke was so hungry and dirty. But he is so young he really doesn't know what was going on. He just stayed quiet — like while he was in my house," the neighbor said.

13 Indicted In Stars' Oil Scheme

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Robert S. Trippet, a prominent Tulsa, Okla. attorney, and 12 persons have been indicted by a federal grand jury in a massive stock fraud scheme in which many celebrities, including Jack Benny and Barbra Streisand, were allegedly swindled.

A federal grand jury returned the indictment Thursday in the court of U.S. District Judge Irving Hill in the case which involved alleged misuse of $130 million in a non-existent oil exploration scheme.

THE U.S. ATTORNEY'S office said that there was a "domino" effect in which big name investors were attracted by the fact that other prominent persons also had put hundreds of thousands of dollars into the Home-Stake Production Company during a period of nine years.

Others indicted were Frank E. Sims, senior vice president of Home-Stake, Tulsa; Harry L. Fitzgerald, executive vice president for sales, Tulsa; Elmer M. Kunkel, the company's treasurer-controller, Tulsa; Kent M. Klineman, a New York City attorney and former partner in Dryfuss and Co. ; John T. Lenior, vice president and accountant, Tulsa.

ALSO, THOMAS A. Landrith, attorney and director of Home-Stake, Tulsa; David C. Davies, vice president and petroleum engineer, Tulsa; Larry A. Martin, chief evaluation engineer, Danville, Calif.; F. Conrad Greer, vice president and general manager, Santa Maria, Calif.; Norman C. Cross Jr., certified public accountant, Tulsa; Richard A. Ganong, petroleum engineer and geologist, Bakersfield, Calif.; and Herbert R. Smith, vice president and petroleum engineer of Home-Stake, Tulsa.

Singer Andy Williams was the biggest celebrity loser listed, with an investment of $538,000. Others listed included Liza Minnelli, Walter Mathau, Phyllis Diller and Jonathon Winters.

The investors included J. W. Goodman, a financier who wrote "The Money Game" under the name "Adam Smith," Harry J. Volk, president of the Union Bank of Los Angeles, and Russell W. McFall, president of Western Union Corp.

Legislators' Pay--Who's to Say?

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Bigger pay checks are justified for California's lawmakers, legislative leaders say, but an independent commission should decide just how big the pay hikes should be.

"I think any decision we would make would necessarily be suspect," said Senate President pro tem James Mills.

Most legislative leaders join Mills in advocating stripping the Legislature of the power to set its own pay and handing it over to an outside group. Such a move would avoid the voter indignation that has erupted when the lawmakers have given themselves past pay boosts, they say.

"I THINK THE public would go along with an independent board setting salaries," added Mills, who introduced an unsuccessful bill last year to turn the power over to such a board.

Currently, California lawmakers earn $21,120 a year — plus living expenses, a state-leased car, gasoline credit cards, a generous pension plan and other benefits.

"I think there should be an increase," said Mills. "It should about reflect the cost of living increases in the last eight years.

"THE WORST PLACE to economize is on the salaries of your decision makers" if you want clean government, the San Diego Democrat added.

A bill to raise lawmakers' salaries in January failed in last year's session. Under the current Constitution, lawmakers cannot get a salary increase until 1976.

Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy agreed with Mills.

"I would like to see a commission totally removed from the Legislature in charge of establishing salaries and benefits," said the San Francisco Democrat.

BUT McCARTHY ADDED that lawmakers deserve more than a cost-of-living increase.

"I have no hesitation in saying that a member of the Legislature should be receiving twice as much salary as is now paid," he said, "because the decisions made by members of the Legislature are of such enormous significance to 21 million people."

Assemblyman Bob Beverly, minority floor leader, said he wasn't sure a pay raise could be passed this coming year, but that he could support creation of a pay commission.

"I would not be optimistic about a pay increase bill," said the GOP representative from Manhattan Beach. "I can support an outside commission of some sort . . it gets rid of all the hassle and the charges and so forth."

ASSEMBLYMAN Robert McLennan (R-Downey), who led the fight against special reapportionment pensions last year, says an independent wage-setting body might help.

"It would allay suspicion. Whether any increase that is voted is justified, it still brings them under suspicion," he said. "It would take the onus off the Legislature."

Assemblyman Mike Cullen has introduced a constitutional amendment to completely change the way legislative salaries are set — and double them at the same time.

His bill would tie lawmakers' salaries to those paid appellate judges, now about $45,000 a year, he said. And it would also wipe out the pension benefits — the cause of a major uproar and a special session last year.

"THE PUBLIC APPROVED $16,000 salary in 1967," said the Long Beach Democrat. "While nonagricultural salaries in California have kept up with inflation, the current legislators' salary is $14,000 in 1967 dollars."

Cullen's estimate of the buying power of current legislative salaries is approximately correct, since the national cost of living index has jumped about 53 percent in eight years.

Another constitutional amendment that will probably be introduced would set up the independent commission Mills and McCarthy talk about, says Assemblyman Edwin Z'berg (D-Sacramento).

Such amendments — if passed by the Legislature — would have to be approved by the voters in June, 1976.

3 Firms Face Charges Over Cattle Buying

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has charged three Southern California firms with using unfair business practices and restricting competition in cattle buying.

Department spokesmen, in announcing the action, said the firms may have violated the Federal Packers and Stockyards Act.

The firms named were Atlas Packing Co. and Ideal Packing Co., both of Vernon, and the Chino Valley Meat Packing Co., doing business as Dairyland Meat Packers in Chino.

The formal complaint said the three firms failed to compete actively with one another and took turns buying cattle at the Corona Livestock Auction in Corona.

If the charges are upheld at a hearing the firms could be placed under "cease-and-desist" orders department spokesmen said.

An official of Dairyland said the firm has already replied to the charges.

Hoard Wet Stuff

Bottled Water Next Scarce Good?

By MILTON MOSKOWITZ

It's too bad that more of us can't play this supply-and-demand game. It's one of the hottest things going these days.

Supply and demand, as you know, is one of the cardinal laws of economics. It says very simply that, when the demand for a product is greater than the supply, the price of that item goes up. Conversely, when the demand tapers off, the prices goes down.

It's all very neat.

IF YOU ARE A producer, you can see how the game must be played. You have to limit the supply of your product. In that way you can get a higher price.

Many people were nauseated recently at the pictures of farmers in the Midwest killing calves and burying them. But they were just playing this supply-and-demand game. They were purposely reducing the supply so that prices would rise.

American farmers are old hands at this game. This is why we have price supports and crop quotas. Who knows how many cling peaches have been destroyed by California growers to keep the supply down?

Egg producers in California are currently producing about 430,000 cases a week. But state consumption has been running at only 400,000 cases a week. So the state agricultural department is allowing the producers to take 5 percent of their eggs off the market and put them into a special pool for possible sales overseas. In this way they hope to drive the prices up 5 cents or 8 cents a dozen.

THE GAME IS becoming so popular that it's being played on a global scale.

The government of Chile has announced the closing of one of its major copper mines for six months. Three other copper-producing countries — Peru, Zaire and Zambia — also promised to cut their exports by 10 percent. The aim: to bolster copper prices.

Latin America's coffee-exporting countries don't want to be left out of the game. They got together in Caracas last month to discuss how they could withhold 20 percent of their new coffee crop from the world markets, thereby kiting the price of the remaining supply.

The lowly consumer is the demand part of this equation. What can you do? The alternatives seem to be two: boycott products when prices escalate sharply or become a hoarder.

You would have been very smart if two years ago you had stocked up on gasoline, assuming you owned a tank car. And you would have been very smart if you had stocked up on sugar early this year.

BUT THAT'S ancient history. The question is: What should you start hoarding now? And I have the answer: water.

The water supply of New Orleans has been found to contain 66 organic chemicals, some of them possibly hazardous. That discovery has prompted the Environmental Protection agency to launch a nationwide study "to determine the concentration and potential effects of certain organic chemicals in drinking water."

You can see what's coming. Bottled water sales, even prior to this announcement, had been moving up sharply and some big companies — Foremost, Coca-Cola, Nestle — are into it.

THE DEMAND IS now likely to skyrocket. And that means, of course, that the price of the supply will head for the stratosphere. So save money — buy water now!

ASSEMBLYMAN BILL GREEN (D-LOS ANGELES) OUTLINES FUEL PLAN
Astronaut Scott Carpenter (Right) Heads Up Non-profit Firm

'Trash Into Gas' Plants Could Be Set by 1977

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A plant to convert solid waste into automobile fuel could be operating on a full-time basis in California by 1977, according to assemblyman Bill Greene, (D-Los Angeles).

Appearing at a news conference Tuesday with former astronaut Scott Carpenter, Greene said such an operation would lead to lower gasoline prices.

Greene said the plant would be much like Seattle's proposed $56 million facility to convert garbage and other solid waste into automobile fuel.

Methanol, which could be produced for about 30 cents a gallon, can be used as a gasoline additive or used solely to power internal combustion engines, such as the Germans did during World War II.

Carpenter is president of the non-profit Edict Corporation, which has been contracted by Greene's select committee on manpower development to conduct a $1.1 million four-year study on the feasibility of producing fuel from waste materials.

"If we get a commitment we could develop a fully operational plant in two years," Greene said, adding that four California cities were already "aboard."

"Production and use of methanol as an automobile fuel supplement will reduce prices, eliminate our dependence on foreign oil and substantially reduce automotive air pollution," Greene said.

He also said it could improve car mileage by 10 percent, save urban governments about $2 billion a year and create thousands of new jobs in a new private industry.

Nutrition Comparison Aids in Food Purchase

By SYLVIA PORTER

Q. Which of these canned soups is the most nutritious: (a) turkey noodle; (b) onion; (c) lentil-tomato; (d) Manhattan-style clam chowder?

A. Lentil-tomato is 12 times as nutritious as onion soup — and therefore 12 times the bargain if the price for each can is the same. Lentil-tomato is nearly seven times as nutritious as turkey noodle soup and five times as vitamin-mineral-protein packed as Manhattan clam chowder.

Q. WHICH OF THESE vegetables is the best nutritionally: (a) frozen collard greens; (b) frozen green beans; (c) celery; (d) canned carrots?

A. Frozen collard greens are twice as nutritious as canned carrots, five times as nutritious as cut green beans and 18 times as nutritious as an equivalent amount of celery.

Q. Which of these fruits has the most nutrition value? (a) cantaloupe; (b) strawberries; (c) plum; (d) pear?

A. A serving of cantaloupe contains twice the nutrition that a helping of strawberries contains, five times as much nutritional value as a pear and nine times as much as a plum.

These samplings from the "Food Scorecard" recently published by the Center for Science in the Public Interest (a condensed version of the earlier "Nutrition Scoreboard: Your Guide to Better Eating"), underline one of the least known but surely most important food saving rules you have today:

Specifically, that among the hundreds of "how to save" rules I have submitted to you in the past, "the nutritional return" on your food dollar well may be the most valuable of all — although few have any concept of it.

BY CHOOSING lentil-tomato soup, you can get a whopping 12 times the food value that you can get from an equal amount of onion soup. Or by selecting collard greens over frozen green beans, you'll get five times the food bargain, in terms of the actual benefit of the food to you. Or by buying cantaloupe instead of plums, you'll get nine times the nutritional return for each dollar you spend on each fruit.

The scoring system, explains CSPI director Michael Jacobson, involves "plus" points for the amounts of protein, key vitamins and minerals, starch and fiber, naturally occurring sugar and unsaturated fat (from vegetables, oils, nuts, fish and margarine).

Foods get minus points for sugar and corn syrup added by the manufacturer and for saturated fats (e.g., those found in meats and dairy products). Minus points also are given when fat becomes more than 20 percent of the food's weight after removal of all moisture.

To illustrate the system, here's how a hamburger scores:

Chinese Food Recalled

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 9,500 large cans of Chinese vegetables have been ordered recalled by the Food and Drug Administration because of possible health hazards resulting from underprocessing.

No injuries or deaths have been reported, but the underprocessing may allow the growth of microorganisms that could be harmful, the FDA said.

The cans of bamboo shoots, bean sprouts and mixed vegetables were produced by the Great China Food Products Co., Chicago, last April and May in 19-ounce and six-pound, six-ounce cans and labeled under 41 different names

The FDA said the cans should be returned to the supplier and not be opened The FDA said the cans normally would have been purchased by institutions such as hospitals and restaurants.

Ritualistic Cattle Kill Gets Probe

DENVER (UPI) — An official of the American Humane Association says the recent deaths of nine Colorado cattle in "ritualistic-style killings" were part of a series of such incidents being perpetrated across the country by members of a mysterious cult.

R. T. Phillips, AHA executive director, said it was believed "cults are involved in the bizarre slayings." He said the association was offering $500 rewards for arrests and convictions of the killers.

Phillips said eight cattle "were slain in 11 days near Glenwood Springs, Colo.," and a ninth, a 1,100-pound Hereford cow, was killed, drained of blood and had its sexual organs and one ear cut off near Wray, Colo.

"In Nebraska's Platte County, it was reported 44 such crimes occurred in the past month," he said.

Phillips said the latest reports of such slaughter came from Minnesota, where numerous cattle were slain and mutilated for no apparent reason.

Trio Get Probation

NEW YORK (AP) — Suspended sentences were given to two sons of noted newspaper figures and a friend, who admitted conspiring last April to sell cocaine to a man who turned out to be a federal agent.

U.S. District Court Judge Thomas P. Griesa suspended five-year sentences and decreed five years of probation, along with steady work or study, for Barry Considine, 32, son of columnist Bob Considine; Kerry A. Kollmar, 20, son of the late Dorothy Killgallen and the late Richard Kollmar, and Jonathan Cohen, 21, a student.

Pat Witcher, a 'lineman' for the phone company, adjusts a sign of the times cautioning that women are working in the area.

HARD HATS ON NEW PEG

By LAURIE KASPER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Pat Witcher was busy at work one day when a woman walked up, looked in her face and said, "I've never seen one of those before."

Although she's been one of the telephone company's "linemen" for a year now, she still surprises and is talked about by those men and women who see her at work.

About half of the women she meets are shocked and dismayed by her. They ask, "What have we come to?"

But the other half are "more liberated" and more favorable, she said.

As for the men, about a half dozen have been "downright nasty."

But Miss Witcher said most of the men she meets, plumbers, electricians and construction workers in the new housing tracts where she does much of her work, are very nice. "They're real morale boosters."

SIDE BENEFIT

An unexpected side benefit of the job is that she gets asked for dates by these men about two or three times a week. Although she doesn't always accept them, she said, "It's nice."

She began with Pacific Telephone as a long distance operator and moved up to being an office clerk before accepting the company's offer to train women for the outside "men's jobs."

She started as a splicer. "I got it very rough," she admitted. "It was nothing against me. I was just a woman."

Because of this, she became a lineman, a job which Lasley described as much more physical.

There are only three female linemen for the company in the county.

"This has been a real tough one for the gals," said a company spokesperson.

This year, about a dozen women have started out to be linemen but switched to different jobs when they found it was more difficult than they anticipated, he explained.

(The company spokesperson said they now have a training device which helps men and women get up and down the poles without the fear of falling.)

DIGS DITCHES

Since her crew works in an area where most of the utilities are being put underground, she often has to dig ditches and put in a heavy concrete box which protects the cable connections to a person's house.

She also has to pull 3,000 to 4,000 feet of cable which can weigh as much as three quarters of a pound per foot.

A lot of the guys just put it over their shoulders and pull it easily, she said. "I have to use my whole body. I have to learn how to use leverage."

Judy Kumler, a splicer who also works in the Saddleback Valley area, believes her job is harder for women because they haven't learned the logic by tinkering with cars and other machines as youngsters.

But she said this can be learned with the help of a patient foreman which both of the women cited as a primary requirement for women's success in their jobs.

Miss Kumler's most negative reactions have come from her boyfriend. "I make more money than he does."

The men she works with were "kind of cold" at first. "I had to prove myself to them before they would even talk to me."

Now they show her the easy, "smart" way of doing things.

After 10 months on the job, she admits, "I still have a whole lot to learn."

EXCITING DAY

She applied for the job when she heard the company was hiring women. "When they said, 'all right,' it was the most exciting day in my life."

She had been running a punch press machine in a factory but "I wanted to be outside more than anything."

Both of the women describe their work as heavy, hard and dirty.

They recommend it to other women with a warning.

"You have to really want it," said Miss Kumler.

Miss Witcher, who believes "being a woman comes first and lineman second," said, "You have to have guts and determination to stay out here."

Both go home from the job tired and with aching muscles but they won't admit this to the men.

"I would never tell them," said Miss Kumler, "if they asked me I would deny it."

"I feel that I have to do better than the men because I feel I have to prove something.

"Because you're a woman, you have to make that extra effort because you know you're not as strong as a man."

Agreed Miss Witcher, "It's like I'm proving it to them as well as myself."

But neither will quit it willingly.

Miss Witcher said she wouldn't go back inside "unless I'm forced to." And if this happened, she added, "I think I'd go buggy."

But she is looking ahead and thinking of another job with the company. Since she's been the focus of much of the company's publicity, and enjoyed it, she thinks she'd like to get into public relations in the future.

Miss Kumler also hopes to move up in the company.

"With this women's liberation thing, they're carrying it really far and they're promoting people without cause," she said.

Show Him Fair Way

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Well, here's one you've never had before: How do you tell a charming, dignified, elderly man who has been playing golf nearly every day at a private club for the past 10 years (or longer) that he is supposed to be a member or pay daily greens fees?

As newly elected club officers we reviewed the list of paid-up memberships and discovered to our astonishment that this distinguished old gentleman, who is practically a fixture around the place, is not a member, nor has he ever been one!

Apparently everyone assumed he was a member and no one bothered to question his right to play here. He must owe the club thousands of dollars by this time. What do we do now? — QUANDARY IN HARTFORD

DEARHEART: What is the elderly, charming, distinguished "fixture's" financial status? Is he on Social Security, loaded, or what? This ought to be taken into consideration.

If the gentleman is well-heeled, he should be asked to join or pay daily greens fees. If he's a man of modest means, you could be sweet and give him an honorary lifetime membership.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Is there such a thing as an "unwritten code" for hiring baby-sitters? I hope you will settle something by suggesting a few moral guidelines. Here is what happened to me.

When good friends asked for the name of a reliable sitter I was always happy to help them out. But what about a neighbor who saw two of my sitters in the yard playing with my children?

This woman came over, took their names and telephone numbers and now when I call they aren't available because they are sitting for HER. Am I mistaken to consider this unethical? — SNOOKERED AND MAD

DEAR SNOOKS: Your neighbor should have asked YOU for the names of the sitters and not gone directly to them.

Once a friend or neighbor has the name of a sitter, however, I know of no way to prevent that person from pre-empting you except by establishing a standing date — say, every Friday or Saturday night — and paying the girl whether she sits or not.

It occurs to me that your neighbor cannot be using BOTH girls she grabbed when your back was turned. If she has one tied up, why not call the other?

What's Sew Funny?

Keeping 'em in Stitches

By JOAN RIVERS

Do you remember when Hollywood starlets used to come on TV and coo, "If I can sew, you can sew"?

Well, recently I found out we only heard half of their speech. What they really said was: "If I can sew, you can sew . . . but I can't sew worth a darn!"

Now, that makes more sense. When you look like those girls did with their 38-24-36 figures, who needs to know how to sew? Only homely girls. Take Betsy Ross. With her looks, she needed a hobby. What else was she going to do on a Saturday night?

Because I didn't want to be thought of as homely, I never sewed and I liked it that way. Then I got married and my values changed as prices did likewise.

One day, I read an article that promised that sewing would save me from $2 to $10 on every item I made.

I rushed out, bought a machine, a cabinet, pinking shears, patterns, pins, needles, material and thread and started teaching myself That was three years ago . and to this day, I still can't sew.

I really shouldn't have been surprised, as it was clear even when I was in sixth grade that I was meant to be a comedienne, not a seamstress, because my sewing was such a joke.

What I cannot sew the most (or is it the best?) are buttonholes, zippers and snaps. This definitely creates a problem, as anything I sew has no exit! When they say "Sew your way into pretty fashion," I have to add, "and rip your way out!"

My talent is knots. No matter how I try, everything I touch gets tangled up, which is why I should make it big in macrame. (But how many places can you wear a macrame hanging?) Therefore, every time I sew, I spend one hour trying to read the directions and then two hours taking knots out of my thread. At this rate, I can turn a jiffy pattern into a project that will carry me into— and through—old age.

Aside from sewing something from scratch, I think the lowest form of sewing is mending. There are things in my sewing basket with styles dating back so far; the local historical society has proclaimed my basket a "time capsule."

My perfect-neighbor, Harriet, who sews her own curtains, drapes, and even the ric-rac on her white anklets, went into shock when she found out I can't sew.

"Don't dwell on past failures," she said to me. "Think of the satisfaction you'd get out of sewing your own window treatment."

"What's to sew?" I asked, for to me, there's only one way to treat a window—leave it dirty.

"I'll admit sewing by hand is difficult," Harriet went on, "but at least try using your sewing machine."

"Are you crazy?" I said "The way I drive, I wouldn't dare come that close to a needle going that fast, with me at the controls."

"Well, how do you plan to get away for the rest of your life without sewing?"

"Easy," I smiled. "Whenever anything rips I'll just take it and put it in my sewing box . . . and wait."

"For what?" asked Harriet.

"For nature to heal the tear."

Horoscope: Gemini Enlightened

SATURDAY
DECEMBER 14
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent is on business, the ability to change without being disloyal. One who has authority wants to see you in social sense.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Good lunar aspect coincides now with ability to perceive future trends. You can find ways to implement plans.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): If you ask questions, you gain enlightenment. Don't be embarrassed if money is involved. You do have right to know.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Play waiting game. Let others have first crack — you do best as counterpuncher. Means don't be discouraged by initial refusal.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Those who make big promises are not likely to carry through on them. Know it and adopt conservative course.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your desires are fulfilled. Key is to know what you are asking for — don't request more than you can handle.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You get some straight answers — and that's all to the good. Don't attempt to hang on to outmoded situation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Some phases of activity are ending while other areas are initiated. Accent is on short trip.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Lunar emphasis is on money and how it gets that way. You should review budget — and gain co-operation from family member.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Assert yourself; maintain positive attitude. Take initiative — welcome new starts, challenges. Trust your own judgment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): What occurs is likely to be quiet and behind the scenes. Be aware of subtle nuances. Someone is trying to tell you something.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accent is on what to do now that you have received green light. Request is fulfilled.

If today is your birthday you are dynamic, capable of expressing yourself in meaningful manner, a good traveler and excellent at aiding others to resolve their problems.

Ward Parties

Sponsors Needed

So, with the help of the community, Christmas spirit is brought to them through holiday parties in the wards. Volunteer services director Enid Lathrop has issued a call for groups to sponsor these events from 2 to 7 p.m.

Wards have 30 to 50 clients with differing problems. All that is required of sponsors is to provide refreshments, some light entertainment or music and decorations to set the mood. Groups in the past have contributed small gifts.

Anyone interested in such an activity, or playing Santa for a party, can contact Mrs. Lathrop at 545-9331, Ext. 483.

Warning

Danger Days Ahead

SACRAMENTO — Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger has suggested that parents of children who will be out of school for the holidays keep an eye on their youngsters.

Noting that the period between now and New Year's Day are danger days in terms of crime, he related that every resident of the state, particularly children, can become victims of crime.

The attorney general remarked that during the Christmas vacation period, school districts and recreation agencies plan programs for children, and he encouraged parents to have their children participate.

"This will ensure that youngsters have a wholesome vacation and stay out of trouble," he said.

On another matter — hitchhiking — he pointed out that it is always a dangerous undertaking for the hitchhiker and the driver. "The anticipation is that many more young people will be thumbing rides now that Christmas vacation is nearly here."

Younger urged parents to caution their children not to hitch rides, and said the safest way to travel is with someone you know — never with a stranger.

January Date Set

Calvary Chapel, Santa Ana will be the setting for the Jan. 18 nuptials linking Linda Fleischman of Santa Ana Heights and Michael C. Whitney of Santa Ana.

Their engagement has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Fleischman Jr. of Fullerton.

Whitney is the son of the Chester M. Whitneys, residents of Massachusetts.

Harbor Entries Sign for Race

With deadline for entries in the biennial Marina del Rey to Puerto Vallarta race set for Jan. 3, the sponsoring Del Rey Yacht Club reports a dozen paid entries to date with prospects of about 30 more. The race gets underway Feb. 1.

Several local boats are among the 44 applicants, according to Commodore Ira Brazilay and Ron Kaplan co-chairman of the 1,125-mile race.

Ragtime, the 62-foot sloop owned by the Long Beach Yacht Club syndicate of Bill Pasquini, Bill White and Stan Miller, is expected to make the race and thus set up a rematch for the battle for first to finish with Windward Passage. Ragtime beat WP to Honolulu in 1973 by four minutes.

Ragtime started in the 1973 PV race but was forced out when she started taking on water in heavy weather before the race was 24 hours old. Several other boats were knocked out of the 1973 race by gear failures or dismasting.

Weekend Calendar

Holiday Classic Opens Saturday

Newport Harbor Yacht Club's annual Christmas regatta, scheduled Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 14-15 will wind up the regatta year in Newport Beach.

Invitations have been sent out to seven small boat classes which will be sailing outside courses and nine keelboat and high-performance dinghy classes scheduled to sail on outside courses.

Inside classes listed in the invitation are Lido 14 A and B, Laser A and B and Sabot A, B and C.

Outside classes listed are PHRF, Rhodes-33, Etchells-22, Soling, Star, Shields, Luders-16, 470 and Finn.

Inside classes will sail three races Saturday and two on Sunday and outside classes will sail two races Saturday and one on Sunday.

Yachtsman In Back Of Firm

Down East Yachts, Inc., the Harbor Area's newest boat building firm, holds the distinction of being a yachtsmen's yacht building company.

It was founded by an active yachtsman and funded by some of the area's leading yachtsmen.

Bob Poole, president and founder, was formerly with Columbia Yachts and has long been involved in yacht racing through his affiliation with Bahia Corinthian Yacht Club. The new Down East Yachts, however, are being built primarily for cruising.

The list of stockholders and financial backers of Down East reads like a who's who of local yachting. Those involved financially with the new company include Chuck Ullman, Rod Lippold, Dave Cuckler, John Virtue, Ted Munroe, Bill Banning, Don Ayres Jr., Don Silisbury, Burton Yale, Morrie Kirk, R. W. Maple, W. G. Paul, Bill Robinson, Roger Turner, Steve Chesebro and Dave Webster.

Boating Maps Now Available

A series of guide maps showing California's many boating facilities is now available from the State Division of Navigation and Ocean Development.

The reference maps show the state's boating access areas, including launching sites and marinas. In addition, each booklet contains several basic safety practices and certain boating regulations.

"These guides provide an excellent reference to the thousands of launching sites, marinas and resort areas in California," said Frank Torkelson, acting director of DNOD. "They are designed for use by all boaters, from the offshore cruising sailor to the lake fisherman," he added.

The booklets are divided into three areas — Northern, Central and Southern California.

Shipping Lanes Planned

In an effort to prevent marine pollution and the loss of life and property caused by ship collisions off the Southern California coast, the Coast Guard is establishing "shipping lanes" in the San Pedro Channel.

Similar to a divided highway used by automobiles, the shipping lanes are part of a Traffic Separation Scheme (TSS) which will become effective Jan. 1, 1975.

The shipping lanes will be an extension of the TSS which has been in existence since 1969 in the western approaches to Los Angeles/Long Beach Harbor from the south and vessels leaving there on southbound courses.

IN ADDITION to the shipping lanes, the new TSS will have a precautionary zone whose boundary will run from Point Fermin to Huntington Beach at a distance of five miles off the Los Angeles/Long Beach Harbor breakwater. This precautionary zone will tie the present TSS into the harbor approach and new southern lanes, and serves as a warning that vessels may be approaching from many directions and that extreme caution should be used while navigating in the area.

At their junction with the precautionary zone, the new shipping lanes will be one mile wide. At their southern end, 19 miles distant midway between the southern tip of Santa Catalina Island and Dana Point, their width increases to 1½ miles. Separating inbound and outbound lanes will be a two-mile wide separation or buffer zone.

INITIALLY, participation in the TSS will be voluntary, but upon the adoption of the new International Rules of the Road, vessels will be required to comply with the provisions of the rules pertaining to such lanes as part of internationally adopted Traffic Separation Schemes.

Mercury's New Boat Unveiled

Mercury Marine has launched itself into another dimension of pleasure boating with the unveiling of a 375-horsepower marine jet drive.

The MerCruiser Jet 400 is a complete package, including engine, pump and installation components.

The engine is developed for installation in 16 through 22-foot jet-type boats. Mercury engineers say the MerCruiser Jet package is capable of speeds up to 70 miles per hour.

Burglar Looks In 3 Places

A burglar of lengthy experience contends the three places a householder is most likely to leave a key are: 1. Under the doormat. 2. Over the doorjamb. 3. In a flower pot. Or did you suspect as much? This felon says he never took time to check more than these three hiding places for fear neighbors might take note. If he were the homeowner, he says, he would not hide the key as close to the door as possible, but rather as far away from it as not too inconvenient.

Checkroom attendants at most all the nation's race tracks get considerably bigger tips right after the seventh race than after the eighth or the ninth? Losers stick around to the end, but winners go early.

FAMOUS MEN

Q. "What did these famous men have in common? John Paul Jones, Ulysses S. Grant and Winston Churchill."

A. Each was six inches taller than Napoleon Bonaparte who was 5-foot-1. What else they had in common was that thing called drive.

Q. "HOW FAST do those South American soldier ants march?"

A. Takes them about three and a half hours to cover a mile, romping and stomping and chomping up everything as they go.

Q. "HOW OLD is the average car in this country? How about the average truck?"

A. Car, 5.6 years. Truck, 7.6 years.

SILOGRAMS

A test called a silogram is what the research scientists use to measure a person's aptitude with words. More specifically, a person's ability to relate known words with unknown words. This knack of memory is highly desirable in fields of chemistry, medicine, and law. Scholars at the Human Engineering Laboratory in Boston checked out numerous girls and boys with silograms. The boys remembered 27 words out of 80, average. The girls, 35 out of 80. Upshots: Girls are better suited than boys to become chemists, doctors, lawyers.

SO YOU THOUGHT the United States was tops in television? No, there are 401 TV sets for every 1,000 Swedes, only 399 for every 1,000 U.S. citizens. Man for man, the Swedes read more newspapers, too.

Magazine Guilty In Libel Battle

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The Florida Supreme Court has ruled that Time, Inc. libeled Mary Alice Firestone and must pay her $100,000 for reporting that she was divorced from millionaire Russell A. Firestone on grounds of adultery.

The 4-2 opinion said the divorce was granted on grounds of mental cruelty, although there was considerable testimony of promiscuity in the divorce trial.

"FURTHERMORE, this erroneous reporting is clear and convincing evidence of the negligence in certain segments of the news media in gathering news," the court said.

"A careful examination of the final decree prior to publication would have clearly demonstrated that the divorce had been granted on the grounds of extreme cruelty, and thus the wife would have been saved the humiliation of being accused of adultery in a nationwide magazine," the court said.

"The trial court, although stating that enough testimony had been introduced to make Dr. Freud's hair curl, specifically stated in the final judgment that the court was inclined to discount much of the testimony as unreliable."

MRS. FIRESTONE'S 1967 divorce settlement provided her $1.2 million in alimony from the grandson of Firestone Tire Co. founder Harvey Firestone, payable in monthly installments of $2,500 each. Mrs. Firestone, 38, was married this month to Kentucky coal executive John Asher.

After the Time article on the divorce appeared, a Palm Beach County Circuit Court jury awarded Mrs. Firestone $100,000 in damages, but the Florida 4th Circuit Court of Appeals overturned the award.

The Supreme Court ordered the appeals court to reinstate the damages, saying that the jury found the amount reasonable after examining the article and that falsely accusing a woman of adultery is libelous.

Insurance Payment Premature

DENVER (UPI) — The U.S. 10th Circuit Court of Appeals said the Veterans Administration was premature when it awarded a $10,000 life insurance claim to a woman who killed her husband.

The court ordered the federal agency to turn over a like amount to the man's children by a previous marriage, who were listed as contingent beneficiaries.

The dispute arose from a decision by the VA to award the National Service Life Insurance policy proceeds to Rebecca Glass, whose husband Elliott Glass was shot to death April 9, 1967.

She was listed as the primary beneficiary and the children of his first marriage, Carolyn J. and Kenneth Eldon Glass, were contingent beneficiaries.

Although the VA was notified by officials in Tarrant County, Tex. that the woman had been indicted, it concluded she would not be brought to trial and awarded her the money. She recieved the payment Feb. 21, 1968, four months before she was convicted of murder without malice.

Prexy Named

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Mark H. Curtis, president of Scripps College, has been elected president of the Association of Independent California Colleges and Universities. Curtis succeeds Robert J. Wert, president of Mills College.

Hoosiers Are No. 1 --Phelps

INDIANAPOLIS — Notre Dame coach Digger Phelps says Indiana's basketball team is No. 1 in the country — bar none.

"I've got UCLA next week," Phelps said, "and I'm going to tell coach Johnny Wooden, 'They'll kick your fanny anytime, anywhere'."

Phelps was duly impressed with the Hoosiers' 94-84 victory over the 11th-ranked Irish Wednesday night. Despite Indiana's No. 3 ranking, behind North Carolina State and UCLA, he told Indiana coach Bobby Knight, "You're No. 1."

Athletes Arrested

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. — Two Purdue University athletes were among nine persosn arrested Wednesday night in a drug raid at a campus residence hall, police said.

All nine were charged with visiting a common nuisance, police said. Substances believed to be marijuana and hashish were found outside a room at Owen Hall.

Rodgers Signs

ATLANTA — Pepper Rodgers became the first head football coach in Georgia Tech history to receive a contract Thursday, signing a three-year pact.

Previous Tech football coaches operated on a year-to-year basis with a verbal understanding with the Tech Athletic Association's Board of Trustees.

Rodgers, who in his first season at his alma mater, brought the Yellow Jackets to a 6-5 record and a 34-14 triumph over archrival Georgia, said the action was "most unexpected and much appreciated."

Ramirez Advances

MELBOURNE — Raul Ramirez of Mexico crushed Harold Solomon 6-1, 6-1 in a match that lasted only 40 minutes today and advanced to the semifinals of the Grand Prix Masters Tournament.

Maryland Rolls

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Freshman Chris Patton scored 23 points and senior Tom Roy tossed in a career-high 19 in leading fifth-ranked Maryland to a 113-49 basketball rout over DePauw Thursday night.

It was the fifth consecutive victory for the unbeaten Terps, and the 64-point victory margin was the largest in Maryland history.

Just as they did in their last game against Georgetown, the Terps hit 60 percent of their shots in the first half while rolling up a 62-22 lead. All nine Maryland players who performed in the first half scored baskets.

Santo Quits Sox

CHICAGO — Veteran third baseman Ron Santo, who last year demanded the Chicago Cubs trade him to the Chicago White Sox, Thursday quit the Sox "after my most frustrating season."

Santo, 34, announced at a news conference he was retiring from baseball even though he still has a season left in a two-year pact reportedly calling for more than $100,000 yearly.

Bowl in San Diego?

LONG BEACH — The Pacific Coast Athletic Association Council voted Thursday to support a proposed Carnation Bowl post-season football game in San Diego with the league's champion and a school from another conference.

Power Failure Shocks Kings

BOSTON (AP) — Coach Bob Pulford kept his Los Angeles Kings in a closed locker room for 45 minutes after an 8-1 shellacking by the Boston Bruins Thursday night.

Doubtless, he had them writing on the blackboard a couple of hundred times or more: "On a power play we will shoot the puck at the net. On a power play we . . ."

His Kings, who had lost only two previous games this season — had won or tied 11 straight on the road — and are nip and tuck with Montreal for the Division 3 lead in the National Hockey League, ran into a tough Boston defense.

On their first four power plays, with at least a one-man advantage on the ice, the Kings had no shots on net. None. On their fifth try, they managed two, but on their sixth, reverted to form and again had no shots on net.

In fact, it was on a Los Angeles power play that the Bruins picked up a key goal in the second period, a Gregg Sheppard shot from the left circle after he took the puck from Frank St. Marseille.

That followed first period goals by Ken Hodge and Phil Esposito and gave the Bruins a 3-0 edge.

Bobby Orr made it 4-0 about nine minutes later — a wicked slap shot that Bruins' goalie Ross Brooks thought "was going to wind up in Braintree (15 miles away)."

The view from the Boston net "was a pleasure," Brooks said later, although he lost his shutout on an unassisted 80-foot lob from Gene Carr that broke off his stick and into the net.

In the third, Dave Forbes beat Gary Edwards on a 10 footer from the right side, Bobby Schmautz lifted in a rebound to make it 6-1, and veteran Johnny Bucyk showed the Kings what to do with a power play — in fact, with two of them.

"Both went to the top corner," said the Bruins captain, "the first one to the short side and the second to the far side." Pulford hadn't much comment after the game, but did say, "That's as good as I've seen the Bruins play in two or three seasons."

Twins Won't Offer Pact To Killer

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Veteran slugger Harmon Killebrew said Thursday he was "shocked" to learn that Minnesota Twins President Calvin Griffith would not offer him a player's contract for the 1975 American League baseball season.

"I guess that's the only way to express my reaction," said Killebrew, a veteran of 16 major league seasons with the Twins and old Washington Senators.

Killebrew met with Griffith Wednesday to discuss his future and another session is scheduled Friday.

Griffith said he offered Killebrew three options for next year and none included returning as an active player. Killebrew could become a coach with the Twins, manage the Twins' Pacific Coast League farm team or be released to make his own deal with another major league team, Griffith said.

"It isn't very probable he will be back although I won't say that's absolutely definite," Griffith said after the meeting.

Killebrew, who will turn 39 next June, made it plain he wants to continue as an active player. "I believe I can play another two years. The No. 1 thing I still want to do is play with the Twins next season," he said.

Killebrew, who is fifth in baseball's all-time home run derby with 559 homers, added: "I still feel I can contribute." Used mainly as a designated hitter, he appeared in 123 games and batted .222 last season with 13 home runs. He has a lifetime batting average of .260.

Killebrew underwent knee surgery in mid-1973, hitting only five home runs that year. He drove in more than 100 runs in nine of 13 seasons between 1959 and 1971, and had 25 or more home runs 13 seasons during his career. His peak of 49 homers came in 1964 and was equalled in 1969.

Killebrew has won or shared seven home run titles and won the American League's Most Valuable Player Award in 1969 when he also led the league with 140.

Griffin Will Set Example

NEW YORK (AP) — Archie Griffin, Ohio State's record-setting running back, formally received the Heisman Trophy Thursday night and promised to set an example for the youth of America.

"If today's young people look up to the Heisman Trophy winner like I did, I promise to do everything in my power to be the greatest example," the 5-foot-9, 184-pound Ohio State junior told more than 1,000 persons at the annual $50-a-plate Heisman dinner.

Griffin was a runaway winner last week for the Heisman Trophy, awarded annually by the Downtown Athletic Club of New York to "the outstanding college football player in the United States."

His voice choked with emotion, Griffin said his motto in life is "the three Ds — desire, dedication and determination," instilled in him by his coach in junior high school.

"I wish I knew a way to divide this trophy with every other member of the team," he said. "It belongs to everyone, not just to me. No one knows better than I do that the Heisman Trophy is a team award. A back is only as good as the line that blocks in front of him."

Griffin credited his parents, James and Margaret Griffin of Columbus, Ohio, with teaching him right from wrong and with making him realize "the importance of a good home."

And he said Ohio State coach Woody Hayes taught him "that you can always be just a little bit better than you think you can."

Griffin received a telegram containing "best wishes" from "a Michigan fan" — President Gerald R. Ford, who captained the 1934 University of Michigan team.

Sportscaster Tom Harmon, the 1940 Heisman winner and Thursday night's featured speaker, compared winning the Heisman with being dubbed a knight in England or winning the "medal of valor" in this country.

And Griffin heard himself described as "one of the truly great Americans today" by ex-teammate John Hicks, runnerup for the 1973 Heisman and currently an offenseive guard with the New York Giants of the National Football League.

Jokingly, Hicks said, "You don't know how I feel because I was responsible for 2,000 of those yards."

In three seasons, Griffin has rushed for 4,064 yards, a Big Ten Conference record. This season, he gained 1,620 yards, more than any other major college back.

Lakers Get Goodrich For Tonight

INGLEWOOD (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers, welcoming back All-Pro guard Gail Goodrich after a nine-game absence, seek their fifth straight homecourt victory tonight against the Seattle SuperSonics.

The Lakers, well-rested since their last outing, Sunday's 107-102 victory over Phoenix, also try to put victories back-to-back for only the second time this season.

Even with Goodrich sidelined with an ankle injury, the Lakers won four of the nine games he missed, and wound up with a 5-5 split of the toughest part of their 1974-75 schedule-10 games in 13 days.

Goodrich and his 21.3-per-game scoring average rejoin a team that has an 11-15 record, the worst in the National Basketball Association Pacific Division, but only percentage points behind fourth-place Portland. Los Angeles travels to Portland to meet the Trail Blazers on national television Sunday.

Tennessee May Use New Offensive Plan

MEMPHIS (AP) — Coach Bill Battle has settled on Tennessee's game plan against Maryland in the Liberty Bowl, but he's not saying whether it will feature a more conventional offensive attack or something he dreamed up in recent days.

Something like the "Liberty formation?" he was asked Thursday.

"Maryland might see it," Battle said. "But we might have another one for them."

Conjecture about the Vols' offensive strategy for the Monday night game has been heightened because of Battle's introduction of the "Liberty formation" in a victory over Kentucky in the next-to-last game of the regular season.

Born out of a discussion by the coaching staff over coffee, the formation is characterized by an unbalanced line — both tackles are set on one side of the center — with the three setbacks lining up in an "I" one pace over from the quarterback on the strong side.

The formation is designed to add blocking power to the attack.

Like any coach, Battle declined to say what he has decided on for Maryland, but added "We might call it the 'Liberty Bell' if we do use something different," as he considered names for any possible new formation.

Maryland coach Jerry Claiborne has said his team is preparing for any eventuality, and that this made it tough for his 10th-ranked Terrapins as they get ready.

"I hope something's tough for them," Battle said. "They have a great team that can do a lot of things well."

Tennessee goes into the nationally televised game with a 6-3-2 record. Maryland is 8-3. The Terrapins delayed their arrival in Memphis until this afternoon, but the Vols came to town on Wednesday to go to work.

"We feel we've got a good, sound game plan to use against Maryland," Battle said. "How effective it is will depend on how well we block and tackle."

One of the challenges to the Vols, Battle said, is to move the ball against the Terp defense.

47-year-old Pro

Super Bowl Last Stop For Ageless Blanda?

OAKLAND (AP) — George Blanda is near the end of his silver anniversary year in professional football and, as always, is looking ahead.

"It sounds like they made up an award just for me. No one else has ever stayed around this long," the Oakland Raiders' placekicker joked Thursday about the latest honor to come his way — the Pro Football Hall of Fame 1974 Man of the Year Award.

The Hall of Fame cited Blanda's record 25-year playing career which has produced 26,881 yards and 235 touchdowns passing, 320 field goals and 1,910 points going into Saturday night's season finale against Dallas.

The 47-year-old Blanda will receive the award in ceremonies before the Dec. 21 National Football League playoff game here against Miami. A victory over the Dolphins would make the Raiders heavy favorites to go on and claim the NFL title Jan. 12 in the Super Bowl.

"January 12 will be graduation day," Blanda said, but added he was speaking only about this season.

"No, the Super Bowl wouldn't have anything to do with it. The way I feel now, I'll be back next year if I'm invited back. If Al Davis, the man who runs the club, decides he doesn't want me back, then the decision will be made for me," Blanda explained.

Davis, the Raiders' managing general partner, says about the same thing.

"George and I talk it over after each season. When it's time for him to quit, he'll know it and I'll know it," Davis said. Davis picked up Blanda on waivers in 1967 after the Houston Oilers cut loose the man they considered finished at age 40. Blanda has been laughing at the calendar ever since.

"He's in good shape for a man his age," says Davis, 44. "But to be honest, I don't think he's in great shape. He's just a great athlete. And he's a winner. That's why I got him."

Blanda was never more of a winner than during the 1970 season, when his passing and kicking brought the Raiders from behind game after game. His 1970 awards included being voted The Associated Press Athlete of the Year.

Blanda still considers himself a quarterback and throws in practice, but hasn't passed in a league game since 1972 and knows he may never get another chance.

He's made nine of 14 field goal attempts this season, with all of his misses from 35 yards or longer. Aiming at the goal posts which were moved back this year, he's missed two extra point kicks after entering the season with a streak of 105 consecutive successes.

CHRIS EVERT AND JIMMIE CONNORS END WEDDING PLANS. UPI Telephoto

Evert, Connors United—Tennis Only

NEW YORK (AP) — Chris Evert joined her former fiance, Jimmy Connors, today in the throne room of American tennis and reiterated that separate roads lie ahead for the king and queen of the game.

There were no congratulatory phone calls exchanged when the two were designated as No. 1 in the national rankings this week by the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association.

"There are no plans for a wedding," the 19-year-old Chris said from her home in Florida after being informed she had replaced Billie Jean King at the top of the women's list.

Connors had been designated best of the men, breaking last year's tie with Stan Smith, earlier in the week.

It marks the first time either has been No. 1 and sheds some light on the mutual decision of the two young stars to call off a scheduled fall wedding.

"We are both nearing the peak of our careers," Chris said. "It is an important period for both of us and a chance for us to make the most of it. I intend to concentrate on my tennis. I am sure Jimmy does also.

"I don't know when we would have seen each other. We will be on the road, playing different circuits. We realize how foolish it would have been to go through with the wedding at this time.

"We might have looked back and said to ourselves, 'Why didn't we wait'?"

So the bloom is off for the court sweethearts who thrilled galleries with their hand-holding romance from Sydney to San Francisco this year and led the waltz at the Wimbledon Ball after sweeping the singles titles.

Chris no longer is wearing Jimmy's engagement ring on the third finger of her left hand. The two no longer run up staggering phone bills with transcontinental and international calls.

"We have no strings on each other," Chris said. "I think we will both be too busy playing tennis to worry about the other."

Chris, who is nine days away from her 20th birthday, ended the long reign of the 31-year-old King in the women's rankings. King had been No. 1 for the past four years and seven times since 1965.

The Florida backcourt automaton had a sensational season, winning 15 tournaments and once putting together a string of 56 match vic-

Trojans Test Undefeated Nevada Five

The perfect records of at least three major West Coast basketball teams — Oregon State, Washington and Nevada-Reno — are on the line for serious tests this weekend.

Washington's Huskies (3-0) travel to Lawrence, Kan., to meet Temple, 2-1 tonight in the Jayhawk Classic, and the winner will tangle with either ninth-ranked Kansas or Fordham Saturday night.

Nevada-Reno, 3-0, is at the University of Southern California tonight, meeting a Trojans team ranked No. 6 in the nation after three runaway triumphs. Southern Cal's fastbreak offense is averaging 103 points a game.

Oregon State's 5-0 Beavers have the biggest challenge, a Saturday night date at nationally top-ranked North Carolina State.

Elsewhere tonight, 3-0 Oregon, ranked No. 18, hosts Nevada-Las Vegas, 1-1 after Tuesday night's 85-80 defeat at 17th-ranked Arizona, UC-Davis is at Santa Clara, Baylor at Los Angeles State, Hayward State at Pacific, San Francisco State at Fresno State, Brigham Young at San Francisco and the Australian Nationals at Pepperdine.

Besides Oregon State's trip to N.C. State, Saturday night's schedule has Stanford, 1-0, at Nevada-Reno, Brigham Young at Seattle, St. Mary's at Fresno State, Boise State at Fullerton State, Baylor at Long Beach State, Buffalo State at Los Angeles State, San Diego State at Rice and North Dakota State at San Jose State.

Second ranked UCLA, 4-0, is taking time off for final exams, returning to action Dec. 20 by hosting Memphis State.

Sailors Battle Wilson

The No. 1 seeded Long Beach Wilson Bruins, whose starting center is only 5-11, are still favored to defeat the tall Newport Harbor High Sailors in tonight's championship game of the 46th annual Huntington Beach basketball tournament.

The Sailors and Bruins will tip off at 8:30 and will be preceded by a third place game between Edison and Warren at 7. Both games are at Huntington Beach High.

Newport will be trying for its fourth championship in this tournament and its first since 1969. Dale Hagey's Sailors have a definite height advantage over the Bruins but lack Wilson's quickness.

The key to tonight's game, however, may not be Newport's height or Wilson's quickness.

It may be how the Sailors react to an expected Bruins stall. The Sailors play a zone defense similar to Edison's and Wilson had guards Richard Rivera and Gary Mulder passing the ball back and forth for most of the first half. Wilson defeated Edison, 49-40, after leading 20-12 at halftime in their semifinals clash.

"I'm going to have to stress patience," says Hagey. "Edison was taking shots they normally would not take."

But Hagey hopes he can prevent the Bruins from stalling.

"The only time they can stall is when they get ahead," he says. "So our first goal is to stay ahead."

If Sailors' guards Dave Becker and Marty Feducia are as successful at running the fast break as they were in the second half against Warren, Newport has a chance. And if they are unable to run the fast break, Becker and Feducia have the ability to effectively pass inside, where 6-8 forward Matt Spangler and 6-9 center Dave Seymour should score over Wilson's 5-11 center Joe Stinson.

However, the Bruins have a potent weapon in 6-1 forward Neal Arnold, who scored 20 against Edison.

FOUNTAIN VALLEY'S BILL MILLER (22) MOVES OUT AGAINST JEFF DENSMORE (11).

Tritons Make Finals On Dunham Heroics

By ROGER CARLSON
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

San Clemente, thanks to the defensive and offensive exploits of 6-1 sophomore forward Tim Dunham, vies for the championship of the eighth annual San Clemente Kiwanis Invitational basketball tournament tonight against Costa Mesa.

Tipoff is slated for 8 following a 5 o'clock skirmish for consolation honors between Pacifica and Mission Viejo and a 6:30 tiff for third place between Fountain Valley and Rubidoux.

Coach Stan DeMaggio's San Clemente Tritons fought off Fountain Valley for the honors and Dunham was the key figure after the two had battled to a 46-all standoff with 4:34 left in the issue.

Fountain Valley's Dave Rohde, who scored 15 in a losing cause, hit a bank shot with 3:30 to go and Bill Miller gave the losing Barons a three-point cushion with a free throw with 1:32 left.

Then San Clemente went to work as Scott Severs hit a free throw, then Dunham hit two free throws to tie it at 49.

Moments later it was Dunham stealing the ball and going in for a layup, and when he was fouled on the play he hit the free throw to make it a three-point play and a three-point advantage with 32 seconds left.

Fountain Valley was playing for one last shot when Dunham knifed through to steal the ball and although Mark Mitchell pared the margin with a pair of free throws for Fountain Valley with 21 seconds left, it was all but over.

One last chance for Fountain Valley came with 15 seconds to go, but the Barons fouled Dave Taylor, who hit both free throws to make it 54-51.

Coach Dave Brown's Fountain Valley five had the edge for the most part, due mainly to the tough play of forwards Rusty Saunders and Mitchell.

But the press and 20 free throws were too much for Fountain Valley to contend with and the Barons are relegated to a third place game tonight against Rubidoux.

Mustangs Ramble; Rip Falcons, 51-43

By DONALD KEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Costa Mesa High's Mustangs are in tonight's championship finals against San Clemente following their resounding, 51-43, triumph over Rubidoux Thursday night in the eighth annual San Clemente Kiwanis basketball tournament.

Considered an underdog, coach Larry Sunderman's Costa Mesa quintet took Rubidoux apart in the third quarter as the latter's shooting went sour throughout the second half.

Rubidoux shooters could only click on six of 38 attempts from the field in the second half after taking a 28-27 lead.

But Mesa unleashed Danny Byers in the second half and he consistently burned Rubidoux from inside and outside — with short shots off offensive rebounds to 16-footers.

He scored 18 points in all for the winners and got 14 of those in the last two periods.

Rubidoux went down for the count mid way through the fourth quarter after pulling to within six at 43-37 with 5:04 to go.

Then Byers hit from inside and outside and when Curt Hanson added a good percentage shot Mesa had a 49-37 advantage with 2:59 left.

All that was left for the Mustangs was to run out the clock, and they did it against Rubidoux's half-effective press.

In all Mesa shooters connected on 22 of 49 from the field and never trailed in the second half after Byers (who else) pumped in a bucket to make it 29-28.

Rubidoux's offense was hurt when guard Brian Moore became saddled with three fouls early.

Mesa was behind most of the first half — but never by more than four points. It was tied eight times in that span before the Mesans put things together in the second half.

Sea Kings Trip Lions With 2nd Half Surge

By ED BURGART
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The Corona del Mar Sea Kings' second half punch failed on Tuesday night against Edison but it knocked the Westminster Lions right out of the 46th annual Huntington Beach basketball tournament Thursday night.

Trailing 48-46 with 7:11 left to play, the Sea Kings scored 12 straight points in four minutes and crushed the Lions, 62-50, in the consolation semfinals at Huntington Beach High.

Corona del Mar and Servite will clash at 5:30 tonight for the consolation title.

The Sea Kings appeared on the verge of losing due to some poor outside shooting and to Westminster's Linn Wilson, the Lions' version of North Carolina State's David Thompson.

Wilson was destroying the Sea Kings inside, taking high lob passes from guard Tony Engedal and scoring one layup after another. He scored all of his 24 points in the first three quarters.

But the Lions resorted to playground tactics after the Sea Kings began rallying in the fourth quarter.

Then, guard Chris Baker and Anderson each hit two free throws and Anderson scored on a reverse layup with 3:45 left. And with 3:01 remaining, Baker sank two more free throws and the Sea Kings were ahead, 58-48.

The Lions kept the Sea Kings confused in the first half, using an alternating zone and man-to-man defense. The Sea Kings had problems, hitting only two of 12 shots in the second quarter.

But it was Westminster which became rattled later, turning it over six times in the fourth quarter and taking crazy outside shots.

Diablos In 64-57 Triumph

Mission Viejo High's Diablos are vying for the consolation championship today at 5 o'clock in the eighth annual San Clemente Kiwanis basketball tournament against Pacifica following its come-from-behind 64-57 victory over Elsinore Thursday.

But junior Steve Sawyer ignited a late surge with a four-footer and moments later it was Dave Zogg chipping in from 20 feet.

Sawyer, who scored 23 in all, hit an eight-foot turnaround bank shot and then stole the ball and put in another to give his mates a 55-53 lead with 3:52 to go.

It was tied momentarily, then Kelly Cox came up with his 21st point to give the Diablos the lead for good.

The 6-5 Sawyer stole the ensuing in-bounds pass by Elsinore and scored again to give Mission Viejo a 59-55 lead with 2:33 left.

Dolphins, Eagles Drop Cage Tiffs

Dana Hills High dropped a 77-75 decision to Bolsa Grande High in the Aztec Invitational Basketball Tournament and Estancia High lost a 66-63 verdict to Garden Grove High in the Garden Grove tourney Thursday night.

Dana Hills High's Dolphins lost at the buzzer when Bolsa Grande's Handsome Roundtree scored a controversial bucket. The Dolphins thought the score came after the buzzer, but it was ruled good.

Estancia's Eagles managed only six points in the third period and Garden Grove took advantage of the situation to pull out to a 47-40 lead after three quarters. The hosts then held off Estancia in the final quarter.

Estancia takes on Sunny Hills tonight at 6:30 at Garden Grove High and Dana Hills moves into the losers bracket at 7 with a game against the Long Beach Millikan Junior Varsity at Los Amigos High.

Steve Ripple scored 23 points, Henry Mikiewicz and John Willette each contributed 13 and Andy Hoffman had 11 as four Dana Hills players scored in double figures, but it wasn't enough.

Servite Thumps Oil City

By FRANK KELLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Just a couple of weeks ago, Servite's Turk Schonert suffered a collapsed lung playing football.

But it was the Huntington Beach High basketball team that could hardly breathe Thursday night as Schonert scored seven points in the final two minutes.

As a result, the Servite Friars won the consolation semifinals of the 46th annual Huntington Beach basketball tournament, 62-51 over Elmer Combs' Oilers.

Servite will now meet Corona del Mar for the consolation championship at 5:30 tonight. Huntington Beach is eliminated.

But the Oilers gave the fans at Huntington Beach High some exciting moments in the fourth quarter, cutting Servite's lead from 50-42 with five minutes left to 51-49 with 2:47 remaining.

But the Friars star 6-5 forward Dennis Smith hit the first of a one-on-one and grabbed the rebound on the missed free throw.

Guard Mike Anderson then hit two free throws with 2:09 left to put Servite further ahead 53-49.

Then Schonert went to work. He made his first of three steals and was fouled attempting a layup. He hit one of two free throws. He stole the ball seconds later and drove for a scoring layup.

The Oilers stayed close most of the way thanks to exceptional performances from subs Larry Taite (13 points) and John Neill (8).

Area Fives in Action

The Marina High Vikings will be trying to put things together tonight at 8 when they host the Katella High Knights in a non-league basketball game.

In other non-league action tonight, El Toro High travels to Los Alamitos High and University High hosts Canyon High in games starting at 8.

Marina had a tough time in the Marina-Westminster Tournament last week when it was forced to forfeit two games due to two ineligible players. The Vikes then lost a thrilling 59-57 decision to Long Beach Poly in overtime in what would have been the championship game.

The Vikes will try and start all over tonight against a Katella team which doesn't appear to be as strong as past squads coached by Tom Danley. The Knights lost to both Newport Harbor High and Westminster High in the Marina tournament.

Despite the rough time in the tourney, Marina got solid performances from Rich Branning, Bob Losner, Matt Cook and Kevin Landgraf.

University will be looking for its third straight win against Canyon. The Trojans have been paced in scoring by Carlos Cervantes and Jim White.

El Toro high defeated Warren, 74-63, in the Marina Tournament.

Men's Golf

Irvine Coast Hosts Pro-Am

Irvine Coast Country Club will be the site of the Little Crosby pro-am tournament Jan. 24-25 according to the PGA tournament players division schedule for 1975.

The Los Angeles Open will be staged at Riviera Country Club Feb. 20-23, the last date on the West Coast instead of the first as was the case before last year.

Big Canyon

It was a two low balls of foursome competition for the men's club at Big Canyon Country Club.

Ben Rizzotto, Bill Hanen, Harry Martin and Dewey Tackaberry fired a 124 for first place. A tie resulted for second with Bob Lambert, Walter Farrell, Richard Smith and Hunter Keck on one squad. On the other were Harry Carlton, Martin, Tackaberry and Hanen with both groups firing 126.

In a seniors event on a partner's better ball scoring basis, Toby Olson and Erb Schurter fired a 62 for top honors. Second place went to Leck Merritt and Bill McGee at 63 with Frank Buckner and Art Cowan third at 64.

Costa Mesa

The annual toys for tots at Fairview State Hospital will be staged at Costa Mesa Golf and Country Club Dec. 21-22.

Golfers contribute a toy of $3 or more in value and receive a lowered green fee of $1 for play that weekend.

Seacliff

The Jonathon Livingston Seacliff seagull tournament will take place this weekend at Huntington Seacliff Country Club.

Mesa Verde

Approximately 20 members of Mesa Verde Country Club are expected to join a tour of Spain and Portugal in April on a two-week golfing expedition.

The tour will include three days at the Palacio Course in Estoril, three days play at Penina Golf Course in Faro and a week at Marabella with play at Atalaya, Guadalmina and Los Moneros courses.

For further information, contact club pro Max Bayha or call 556-2880.

19th Hole

Jerry Wisz, the Southern California Intercollegiate golf champion from UC Irvine, has been invited to participate in the second U.S.-Japan students goodwill golf matches at Corona National Golf Club Dec. 18-19.

A total of 18 players will compete for each side in the 36-hole competition with the 15 low scores couting each day to determine a team champion.

Tony Campregher of Cal State (Long Beach) and a former Marina High School star, is also on the list of U.S. players invited to participate.

BASSETT—Arcadia High exploded for 26 points in the fourth period to overtake Mater Dei High and record a 66-59 triumph over the Monarchs in the Bishop Amat Basketball Tournament, handing Mater Dei its first loss of the season.

The Monarchs will play either Bassett High or Workman High at 5 today.

Mater Dei took a 45-40 lead into the final quarter, but Arcadia took the boards away from the Monarchs and started to hit from outside to stage the comeback.

Bucs Go Into Semis

By HOWARD L. HANDY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A tenacious Orange Coast College basketball team battled its way into the semifinals of the Miles Eaton tournament Thursday night with a 71-67 victory over the Pt. Loma College junior varsity in action on the winner's court.

Orange Coast will face El Camino at 9 tonight in the championship bracket while Saddleback faced the Chapman junior varsity at 3 in consolation action.

For coach Herb Livsey's OCC Pirates, it was a case of patience and holding the upper hand on the scoreboard most of the way even though the margin was small.

With Steve Manker on the bench via five personal fouls late in the action, Pt. Loma narrowed a seven-point lead for the Pirates to two at 69-67 with 1:43 left to play.

An illegal screen brought an OCC turnover with 53 seconds remaining but a three-second lane violation with 39 seconds gave it back to the Pirates.

Using a passing game to run down the clock at this point, the Pirates' Gary Seymour was fouled and he made good on both attempts with seven seconds on the clock to give OCC a four-point bulge.

Todd Collins and Mark Adams each hit 18 points for individual honors for the Pirates. Adams had 16 of his total in the first half.

The Pirates hit at a 53.1 percentage figure in the opening half and for the game, 43.1.

In turnovers, the Pirates gave the ball up seven times in each half for a total of 14 to 13 for Pt. Loma's Crusaders. Nine of the 13 came in the second half, however.

Manker, the tallest man on the OCC squad at 7-0, ran into early foul trouble, picking up his third with 3:16 left in the first half. He had four less than five minutes into the second half, was rested for a spell, then came back with OCC in front by one, 49-48.

When he fouled out at 3:52 to play, the Pirates were in front by five, 65-60.

L.A. ALL THE WAY!

Saturday, December 14

PITTSBURGH ..... 20 CINCINNATI 17
Steelers took 7-point beating from Bengals in Cincinnati earlier in season. In return bout, Pittsburgh favored by just three. Might be for all the marbles in AFC Central.

MINNESOTA ..... 24 KANSAS CITY 14
Chiefs upset Vikings, 23-7, in Super Bowl IV in January, 1970. Possible rivalry built by that one could spark a good game to close out '74 season. Minnesota by 10.

OAKLAND ..... 27 DALLAS 24
Cowboys draw toughest assignment in league meeting AFC West champions right in Raiders' back yard. Dallas 3-point underdog to Oakland, our pick to win Super Bowl title.

Sunday, December 15

LOS ANGELES ..... 17 BUFFALO 16

WASHINGTON ..... 28 CHICAGO 10
It's the last and probably biggest game of season for Skins. Win here should put them in play-offs if not already there. Bears won't be big problem... down by 18.

HOUSTON ..... 21 CLEVELAND 20
Browns dumped Oilers earlier in season 20-7, but don't think it'll happen this time. Houston has come long way since beginning of season... and favored by one at home.

DENVER ..... 26 SAN DIEGO 17
Final AFC Western head-to-header. Chargers were beaten, 27-7, in first meeting, and Broncos favored by nine in this one. Denver's big hopes for '74 never materialized.

PHILADELPHIA ..... 23 DETROIT 21
Eagles should close out season in winning fashion for home folks... Lions'll be tough, but are 2-point underdogs. Another pair of teams that will have higher hopes for '75.

GREEN BAY ..... 24 ATLANTA 7
Falcons anxious to close out dismal season... Green Bay will add to Atlanta's woes. Pack favored by 17 in fight with Lions for second place in NFC Central Division.

MIAMI ..... 28 NEW ENGLAND 24
Miami won't have to be reminded of opening game of '74 season when Patriots game them huge jolt, 34-24. Dolphins will win by four in this all-important finale.

SAN FRANCISCO ..... 27 NEW ORLEANS 21
49ers clipped Saints, 17-13, in first game of season. Since them, their records have remained almost identical. Another battle for second place... in NFC Western Division.

ST. LOUIS ..... 20 BALTIMORE 14
Last time the teams met, Colts won their first of season, surprising Jets, 35-20. Jets have really jelled since... but Baltimore doesn't want "worst" title either!

Wrestling Action Set

Estancia High is hosting the Century-Empire League wrestling tournament which started today and will continue until 6 p.m. Saturday.

The tourney will be a round-robin affair with each wrestler from the Century League going up against an opponent from the Empire circuit. Thus, each wrestler will have eight matches during the two days.

All the schools from the Century League will be represented with the exception of Santa Ana which will be replaced by Loara. Westminster will replace Huntington Beach as a representative from the Empire League.

There will be eight matches going on at one time in the tournament, which includes 32 teams (junior varsity wrestlers will be competing also) and about 300 wrestlers.

Last year the meet was composed of wrestlers from the Sunset and Irvine Leagues. Westminster won the Sunset competition and El Modena captured the Irvine title. Both squads will be favorites this year, along with Corona del Mar, Loara and Estancia.

One of the top wrestlers in the tournament will be Paul Wilson of El Modena, who wrestles in the 145-pound class. He was second in the state tournament last year.

Angelus League Champions

Golden West Cagers Play

SAN DIEGO—Golden West College's basketball team bids for its fifth victory in six games tonight when the Rustlers take on San Diego Mesa College, here, at 8 o'clock.

Coach Dick Stricklin's Rustlers then have a Saturday night date with Southwestern College in Chula Vista.

Lagunans Drop Tilt

SAN FRANCISCO—Sacred Heart High blew open a close game in the third period Thursday night and went on to record a 68-53 basketball win over Laguna Beach High, putting a damper on the Artists trip to the Bay Area.

Laguna Beach jumps back into action tonight here when it takes on St. Ignatius High at 8:30. Artists coach Jerry Fair will be hoping for a better effort in tonight's contest.

"We played very poorly against Sacred Heart," says Fair. "We didn't hustle and it took advantage of it and finally blew us out in the final period. We hope to do better this evening."

Laguna Beach trailed after the first period 18-17 and fell behind at halftime, 34-29. Sacred Heart opened up a 49-39 lead after three periods and outscored the Artists in the final quarter, 19-14, to secure the win.

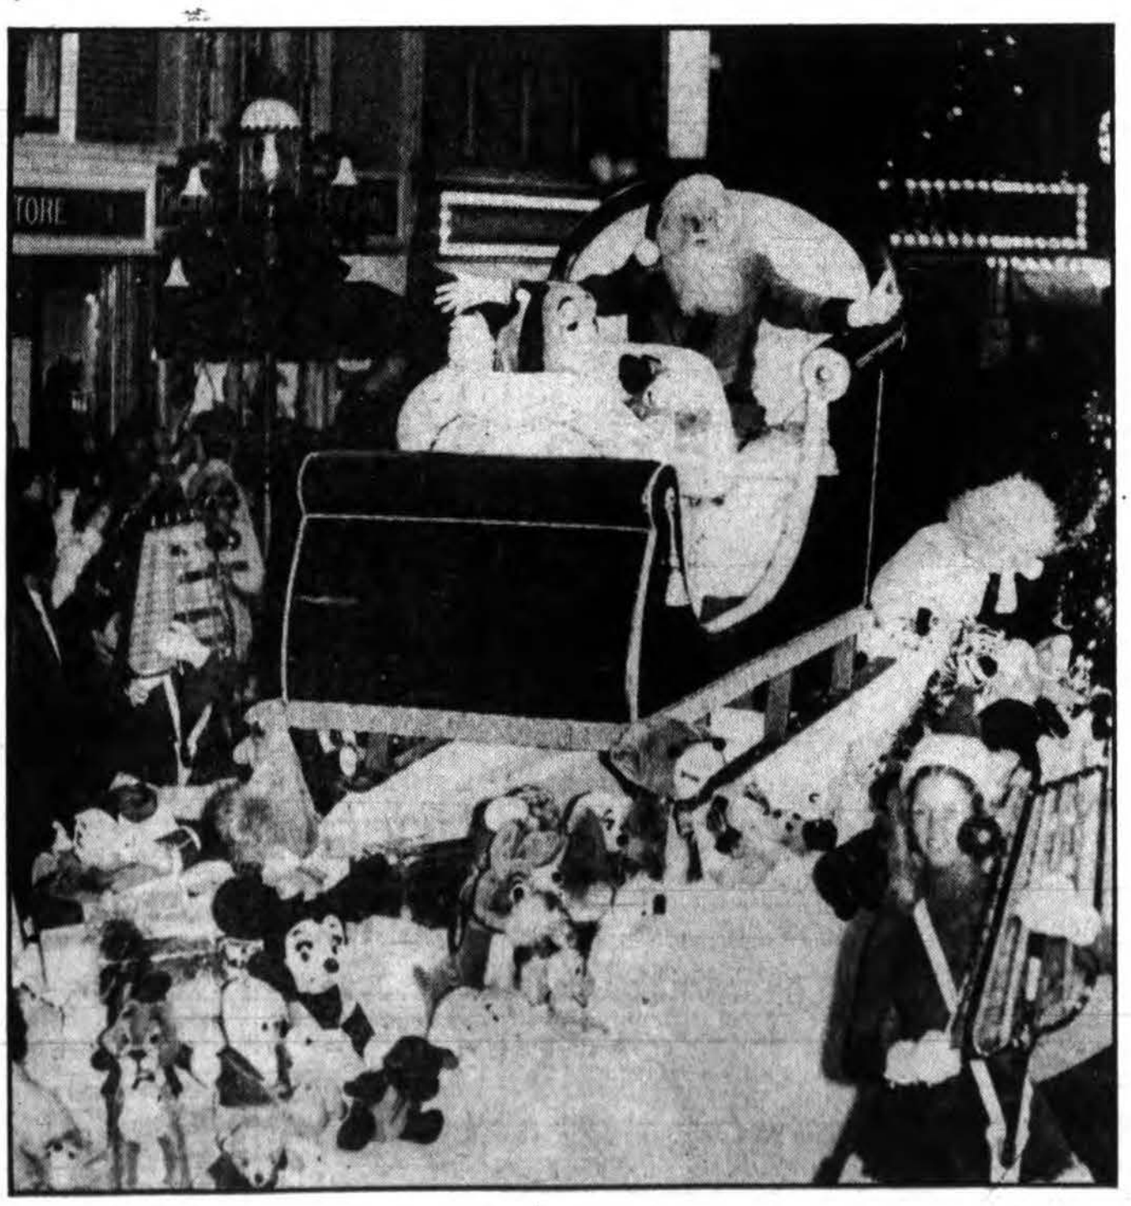
'Tis the Season In Orange County

Miles of holly and hemlock and a 60-foot Christmas tree will trim Disneyland's 20th holiday season beginning Saturday, Dec. 21. Besides the greenery will be parades, stage shows and the highlight of the Anaheim fantasy world's festivities, "Fantasy on Parade." The make-believe world of Disney combines with the Yuletide season through Jan. 4 in this lighthearted pageant. Scenes will be displayed from Walt Disney films such as "Fantasia," "Pinocchio," "Mary Poppins," "Snow White," and "Robin Hood." More than 500 performers will participate in the Main Street Promenade. Accompanying Santa's eight reindeer will be Donald Duck, Cinderella and Dumbo, among other Disneyland inhabitants. The true meaning of Christmas will be the focus of the Candlelight Caroling Ceremony Saturday and Sunday evenings, Dec. 21 and 22. Motion picture star Cary Grant (left) will narrate "The First Christmas" during the ceremony at 6 o'clock both nights. Performances of "Fantasy on Parade" will be at 2 and 9 p.m. Dec. 21-23 and Dec. 26-29, and at 2 p.m. only Dec. 24, 25, 31, and Jan. 1. Evening musical entertainment will be provided by Les Brown and His Band of Renown Dec. 21 through Dec. 23 and Bobby Sherwood and orchestra Dec. 26 through Dec. 30. Daytime entertainment will be the New Christy Minstrels Dec. 21-23 and Dec. 26-30.

Disneyland Invested With Yule Trimming



Holiday hours at Disneyland in Anaheim are 9 a.m. to midnight Dec. 21-23, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Dec. 24, 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Christmas Day, and 9 a.m. to midnight Dec. 26-30.

Despite Shortcomings

'Nutcracker' a Hit

By JACKIE HYMAN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The Ballet Pacifica's annual production of "The Nutcracker" in Laguna Beach made a hit with its audience despite some noticeable shortcomings.

It succeeded primarily because of several fine performances, some appealing children and Tchaikovsky's delightful music.

The star of the evening was Louise Frazier as the Sugar Plum Fairy. Miss Frazier, a fine dancer, has an exquisite stage presence that lights up the theater.

Another fine performance was given by Kathy Jo Kahn as the lead gingersnap. Miss Kahn is a vibrantly energetic dancer who never broke her characterization.

Of the three outstanding male performers, one was in a nondancing role and two doubled in small comic parts.

Douglas Reeve as the storyteller showed a professional flare and Charles Colgan and Glenn Smith provided both excellent timing and skillful acting in their small roles.

Dee Dee Bychak as young Clara has promise both as an actress and a dancer. She managed to survive some clumsy duets with Ralph Schneider, who looked unsure of himself, probably with good reason.

Among the other dancers who contributed to the evening's success was Lisa Robertson, who showed considerable poise as the Snow Queen despite being plopped down rather hard several times by partner Roger Faubel.

Good performances were also given by Terri Bychak, Sandra Rasmussen, Molly Lynch, Kristi Stephens and Louis Carver, and by Roger Faubel in the Spanish dance.

Victor Moreno, who played the Nutcracker Prince somewhat heavily, lacked flow in his dancing. Ballet is strenuous exercise but that fact should never be apparent to the audience.

Similar problems affected several other dancers, especially the men, who tended to lose their poise after executing difficult steps.

The production was also handicapped by the choreography, which failed to use innovative and striking movements to show off the dancers' expertise and mask their areas of inexperience.

MAURICE ALLARD WILL CONDUCT UC IRVINE CHORUS IN 'MESSIAH'

UCI to Present Handel 'Messiah'

The selection of 28 young musicians is competed and rehearsals are under way for two presentations of the Christmas portion of Handel's "Messiah" during the holdisay season.

Dr. Maurice Allard, associate professor of music and conductor of the University Chorus at UC Irvine, will conduct the chorus and chamber orchestra on Sunday at 8 p.m. at the University High School Gymnasium, 4771 Campus Drive, Irvine.

Sponsored by Irvine Excursions, admission will be $2.50 for adults and $1.50 for students.

The choral group is comprised of music students and young professional singers from this area as well as former students of Dr. Allard. Members of the chorus will also serve as soloists. The program will begin with the a cappella presentation of "Motets For The Christmas Season" by Francis Poulenc.

Tickets may be obtained at the door prior to the concert.

'Theater' At Newport

"Children's Theater," will be performed in the Newport Harbor High School Auditorium Saturday at 3 and 5 p.m., and again Saturday, Dec. 21 at 3 and 7 p.m.

The school auditorium is located at 600 Irvine Avenue in Newport Beach.

Pacific Pops Concert At 8

The Pacific Pops Orchestra, under the direction of James Christensen, will present the favorite sounds of the holiday season with a special concert at 8 o'clock tonight in the City Hall Annex Theatre in Santa Ana.

Admission to the program is free.

The 23-member Pops Orchestra includes musicians with a vast experience in all facets of music. Their repertoire includes modern, semi-classical and classical music.

GWC Jazz Ensemble To Debut

Golden West College's Jazz Ensemble and Studio Symphony will debut Sunday in "Sunshower," a concert of jazz, pop, movie theme and commercial music.

The free concert will begin at 4 p.m. in the community theater on the campus in Huntington Beach.

The program will feature the first performance of "Aurora," a major jazz work for orchestra written by Don Harper, 22, a graduate of Marina High School and Golden West College.

Osmond Concert Set in Anaheim

The Osmonds will make their first Southern California concert appearance in two years, Saturday afternoon, Jan. 11 at 1 p.m. at Anaheim Stadium, under the auspices of the Boys Club of Garden Grove.

The concert, presented by KEZY radio in association with the Boys Club of Garden Grove, will launch "Around the World with The Osmonds," a six-week globe-circling concert tour that finds the singing-dancing family departing for Europe the following day.

The Osmonds tour takes them to Germany, Denmark, Sweden, England, Scotland, Belgium, Holland, Finland, Switzerland and France.

The rain-or-shine Anaheim concert is the Osmonds first local playdate since their dynamic SRO concert in '73, also in Anaheim.

SUSAN METCALF WITH NAUTICAL OBJECTS

Sign of the Crab Shows Nautical Art

By JO OLSON
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Nautical antiques and art are appropriate wares for a gallery in an old Newport Beach shipyard.

The Sign of the Crab, nestled in the back of the converted South Coast Shipyard, which now is an official Newport Beach historical landmark, has taken full advantage of its unusual setting.

This is the domain of Susan Metcalf, a transplanted Massachusetts native who says her best qualification for running a gallery is her great love for art.

"I don't claim to be an expert," she emphasized.

She and her husband, Arnie, an architect, own the gallery together and are part of a consortium of businesses at the shipyard.

Mrs. Metcalf's goal is to have a gallery "where you can see something different."

Now, she is showing the work of Jonas Gerard, a Moroccan who lives in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. Trained in mechanical engineering, he gave up his first career for painting.

The Sign of the Crab will continue to show other artists from time to time, but the theme will remain the same: an uncommon setting for unusual works.

Nostalgia Thrives Among 'Old' Balboa Inn Fans

Out 'n' About
Norman Stanley

Only old-timers are likely to remember the Balboa Inn when it was a playground for Hollywood filmfolk during the '30s and '40s. In those days the Inn was a lively place filled with celebrities, parties and good times.

Nearby, the interurban Pacific Electric "Big Red Car" unloaded less affluent fun-seekers from Los Angeles who were anticipating a sunny weekend on Balboa's beautiful beaches. These people sought cheaper accommodations in the area but for the "big night on the town" they dined at the Inn, hoping to ogle some screen idol in the flesh.

The red car is gone forever but the Balboa Inn is once again the scene of friends dining and drinking together. The Spaghetti Syndicate is a colorful new restaurant on the premises that makes it all possible.

THOSE OF you who remember the old days will find the refurbished Inn a welcome scene of nostalgia. Those who never had a glimpse of yesteryear will probably have even more fun.

Bill and Dan Madden are the two savvy brothers masterminding the operation. Several years ago they opened their first Spaghetti Syndicate in the Santa Barbara suburb of Goleta.

The interior of the Spaghetti Syndicate is patterned after a 1920s speakeasy. It is dimly lit, and the walls are lined with high-backed booths (you didn't want to be seen in a speakeasy).

Ragtime music comes out of the speaker system except for Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings when a piano player holds forth live music from the 20's from 7:30. Decorative highlights include a marvelous collection of old photographs and the Rube Goldberg-like paraphernalia — complete with the tub itself — to make bathtub gin.

WAITRESSES ARE dressed as flappers and will courteously present you with a humerous newspaper which, opened up, becomes the menu. There are nine full dinners, all in an Italian vein, on this strictly pasta bill of fare.

Since our excellent spaghetti selections seemed to be representative of the whole lot, it's probably best to let your personal preference lead you to the final choice. Leading off, though, is a good recommendation — the Don's special, $2.50, 49 yards of spaghetti in meat sauce.

Mushroom mania, $2.50, is spaghetti in mushroom sauce; Vito's blend, $2.60, is a subtle mixture of meat and mushroom sauce; the garden delight, $2.10, features spaghetti with fresh vegetables. The clam up, as you might imagine, offers spaghetti with a flavorful clam sauce, $2.70.

The combination plate, $2.80, is a union of any two of the entrees noted above. Or there's the ravioli (beef) retreat, $2.40; half and half, spaghetti and ravioli, $2.50; spaghetti and meatballs, $2.90.

ALL DINNERS include a crisp salad, with choice of dressing, or a bowl of minestrone soup, and a choice of French bread or garlic toast.

Two special salads are available if you can resist the Spaghetti Syndicate's pasta. Choose from the chef's salad, $1.90, or Sicilian salad which contains sliced mushrooms, cheese, peperoncini and an ingredient billed as "a little extra from the Don."

There are also two sandwiches on the menu, hot Italian sausage or hot meatball, each tabbed at $1.45. Both are excellent topped with parmesan cheese.

If you bring the kiddies, a child's portion of spaghetti is only $1.25.

Beverages include four house wines and a variety of beers. There's also a selection of after dinner, dessert wines.

Dinner hours are 5 to 10 p.m., Sunday through Thursday, and 5 to 11 p.m., Friday and Saturday. No credit cards accepted. Reservations at 675-2620.

The Spaghetti Syndicate is located in the Balboa Inn at the end of the inner corridor. The address is 105 Main Street, at the foot of the Balboa Pier.

It's official, Newport's first "Ancient City" restaurant will open next week in Koll Center Newport. "Ancient City" is the English translation for Koto, the name of California MTK Corporation's new $1.2 million restaurant.

Our advance word has it that Koto is designed not only to reflect the Japanese culture and food, but will feature an international menu of Japanese, American, Polynesian and Chinese dishes. Hoping to provide customers with a wide variety of foods.

It is located just off MacArthur Boulevard on Von Karam Avenue, the single story restaurant will seat 200.

Koto will offer several different dining settings: the intimate sushi bar, featuring Japanese style fresh fish; the teppan yaki room, where meals will be cooked to order on iron grills.

A Trip South to See Star of East

STAINED GLASS NATIVITY SCENE FROM LA JOLLA
St. James-by-the-Sea Episcopal Church Window

By TOM McCANN
of the Daily Pilot Staff

Christmas is a time machine trip to the Holy Land of 2,000 years ago and a chance to gaze at the star-filled skies over Bethlehem as they were seen by "shepherds, watching their flocks by night."

But that's not all there is to a captivating presentation called "The Star of Bethlehem" that is on now and will continue at a five- or eight-show-a-day clip through the holiday season at the Reuben H. Fleet Space Theater in San Diego's Balboa Park.

The rest of the program includes a lingering look at "life-sized" projections, in brilliant color, of some of the world's most beautiful stained glass windows, a collection of the best in Christmas music that envelops the audience through the theater's surround-sound system and a very special movie.

Actually, the movie, an 18-minute Academy Award winner called "To Be Alive," is a completely separate presentation and easily could stand on its own rather than to pad out the elapsed time of the "Star" show double bill.

A LITTLE OVERPOWERING at times in the space theater's relatively small, dome-shaped auditorium, the wide-screen movie (actually three screens and, at times, three separate pictures) sells its joy of living theme quite readily.

The film, shot in various locations in Africa, Italy and the United States, maybe even oversells its theme. But it is a bright, jubilant Christmas package of children and young people enjoying life.

Adults (and children too) probably will find the package a pleasing extra "gift" when they attend the "Star" show.

But the real event for anyone who spends the all-too-brief 40 minutes or so that the total presentation takes is that time machine trip back through space and time to marvel with the ancient wise men over the star that stood over Bethlehem.

Using a modern kind of a "miracle," the digital computer, and a starball capable of projecting 10,000 stars through as many optical lenses and mirrors, the "priests" of the Fleet theater produce the sky that was looked upon by those wise men — the Zoroastrian priests of ancient Persia.

WITH SONG, NARRATION and slides projected on the theater's dome, the technical staff follows the script of production chief Joseph Harrington to unravel the mystery of what the star might have been and, with special care as to historical accuracy, when it appeared in the heavens over the Middle East.

A comet, a dying star's super nova blazing over the Judean hills, the conjunction of several heavenly bodies? The star might have been any of these — or all of them — the audience learns.

There is one more possibility that is laid before the audience before it's through looking at the larger-than-life panoramas and other special effects of artist Vic Costanzo.

That possibility is that the star was exactly what the scriptures indicate — it was — a miracle to signal the birth of the Son of God, the Messiah.

If there are some who aren't ready for that message in the group you'd be traveling to San Diego with, there is an alternative diversion for them.

Suggest a happy 40-minute visit to the Science Center's exhibit area, which is, in reality, a big playpen for both adults and children. It's crammed with gadgets that impart knowledge of scientific principles through game-like displays visitors are encouraged to enjoy — strictly hands-on.

THE SPACE THEATER is located inside the Science Center. Finding the building is easy for Orange Coast area travelers. Take the San Diego Freeway (Interstate 5) all the way into downtown San Diego and watch for Balboa Park ("Zoo/Museums") signs to direct you. The Reuben H. Fleet Space Theater is on the eastern edge of Balboa Park, surrounded by lots of free parking.

"Star of Bethlehem" performances Saturday will be at 10:30 and 11:30 a.m. and at 1, 2, 3, 4, 7:30 and 8:30 p.m. Sunday schedule will be the same for the afternoon but with first performance at noon.

Starting Monday and continuing through the school holidays (until Jan. 5) the weekday schedule will be the same as Saturday's.

Admission for 10:30 and 11:30 a.m. shows only is $1.75 for adults and $1.25 for everyone 17 and under. For all other shows, adults, $2; 17 and under, $1.50. Group discounts and special senior citizen prices are available. (Phone 714-238-1168.)

Admission to Science Center only is 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children; admission to the center is included in all tickets for the space theater.

Debut

Rouchell Frederick of Huntington Beach, left, makes her acting debut in the Golden West College production of "Hiawatha." She appears with Douglas O'Connor of Westminster who plays an Indian brave. The family entertainment play can be seen tonight and Saturday. Performance is at 8 p.m. each night.

Soloist

Contralto Beryl Jensen Smiley will be one of four soloists when the Southern California Mormon Choir delivers its annual performance of Handel's "Messiah" Wednesday, Dec. 18, in the Los Angeles Music Center Pavilion.

'Butterfly' Flies High

By JACKIE HYMAN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Superb singing, acting and conducting blend together in Puccini's "Madame Butterfly," one of the New York City Opera's last Los Angeles productions this year — and certainly one of the best.

The opera is a particular favorite of even many non-opera-buffs, who hold their breath waiting for the incomparable aria "Un Bel Di." They were not disappointed.

Soprano Patricia Craig as Madame Butterfly has a big, glorious voice perfectly suited for the role. She is also a moving actress.

Gaetano Scano as B. F. Pinkerton also scored triumphs both vocally and dramatically. Scano is that rare bird, a sexy tenor, and he makes Butterfly's devotion completely understandable.

David Clatworthy, a baritone with a resounding voice, was excellent as Sharpless and Sandra Walker did well as Suzuki despite a voice marred by wide vibrato.

Conductor Christopher Keene kept the music soaring without drowning out the singers, and the entire production benefited from an imaginative and appealimg set by Lloyd Evans.

In addition, the excellent lighting by Hans Sondheimer made effective use of such techniques as backlighting to heighten mood.

The only glaring flaw resulted from director Frank Corsaro's penchant for introducing meaningless and distracting bits of stage business.

Corsaro likes to play around with shuffling people and things in ways the libretto doesn't call for, and it just doesn't work.

There is nothing gained by having Europeans at Butterfly's wedding, nor by having her menage face a screen during the humming chorus, nor by having Kate spurn a kiss from her husband and stalk offstage like a shrew, which she isn't.

A great deal can be accomplished by taking a fresh look at classic works, as Franco Zefferelli and Peter Brooks have demonstrated. Corsaro, however, apparently lacks the instinct.

Nevertheless, the minor annoyance of Corsaro's blunders was easily forgotten in the splendid emotional and musical heights of the production.

Film Entries Sought

Entries are now being accepted for the 1975 Young People's Film Festival presented by KCET, Channel 28, and the University of Southern California Department of Cinema.

Filmmakers born after Jan. 1, 1956 and before Jan. 1, 1969 are eligible. Deadline is Jan. 15, 1975.

The annual festival will again be divided into three divisions: kindergarten-6th grade, 7th-9th, and 10th-12th. The films can be silent or sound, color or black and white, and 8, super 8 or 16mm.

Entry blanks are available by writing to Young People's Film Festival, KCET, 4400 Sunset Drive, Los Angeles, Calif. 90027.

Christmas Sounds on Air Waves

It's traditional for most stations to engage in some kind of Christmas promotion or another. One is KGIL, which is busily inflating Christmas stockings via its idea of inviting listeners to take a number between one and nine. Payoffs range from $12.50 to $500.

Most listeners of that station's "amateur night," hosted by Ken Griffin from 8 to 11 p.m. on Thursday nights, generally turn down his grand prize, however. Seems there aren't too many interested in being dropped off at a gas station on Friday afternoon to spend a weekend in Lakeview Terrace.

BUT THAT doesn't prevent them from participating in the "competition," with some of the would-be winners coming down to Ken's show to try out. Witness the gentlemen recently who gave a go at being disc jockeys and played three of the "worst records" anyone had ever heard.

"Grog and gruel, Renaissance foods for shack or feast, magicians, jugglers, mimes, mystics, minstrels, jesters and continuous entertainment daily from noon to midnight. "So announces KPFK's December folio in heralding its annual "Merrie Christmas Faire and Country Crafts Market," to be held Dec. 18-23 at the Hollywood Palladium.

Admission is $2.25 for adults and 50 cents gets each kiddie into the festivities, including 100 costumed artisans and thousands of handcrafted gifts.

KCSN (88.5 FM) will present a tribute to one of the most popular bandleaders of the 1940s — Glenn Miller — on its weekly "Spotlight on a Star" series Sunday at 7 p.m., with writer-producer David Schwartz handling the hosting chores.

The special will include highlights of Glenn's radio remotes and the music of the Army Air Force Band.

ALSO SUNDAY, Jim Ladd (KLOS-FM) will play host to another top rock star on his "Sunday Stereo Special" at 8:30 p.m., which he airs every other Sunday

KMPC personalities probably have participated in more Christmas parades than other; are justifiably proud of their "KMPC Toy Menagerie" illuminated, amplified float, which has generated an enthusiastic response from parade viewers throughout the Southland.

The public has been highly responsive to KBIG-FM and KBRT-AM's Sunday public service series, "Insight," according to a station spokesperson, who also informed me that host Carl Bailey will soon broadcast a series of "Insight" interviews from Avalon.

The series airs at 7:30 a.m. on KBIG and is repeated at 4:15 p.m. on KBRT.

GOLDEN WEST COLLEGE — Work of emerging artists will be available for purchase by the general public during Christmas Student Art Fair in the college gallery Tuesday and Wednesday (Dec. 17 and 18). Works include prints, drawings, craft items, ceramics and weaving. Gallery will be open Tuesday from noon to 6 p.m. and Wednesday from noon to 8 p.m. Free admission.

HELEN RICHARDS STUDIO — New show entitled, "Samplings — A Preview of Good Things to Come," opens Sunday through Jan. 31, at the studio at 376 N. Coast Highway, Laguna Beach. Show opens with a 1 to 4 p.m. reception for its 15 artists (residents of Orange, Los Angeles and Riverside counties who work in many media). Public invited.

SEQUOIA WINE VILLAGE — Major arts and crafts show takes over outdoor patio area at 3300 W. Coast Highway (adjacent to The Arches) from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Paintings, flower arrangements, metal sculpture, macrame, bread dough, Christmas wreaths and old-fashioned photography will be featured.

It's Holiday Magic Time at Knott's

There is magic in the air at Knott's Berry Farm.

Santa Claus, having already arrived at Knott's, has brought with him all of the holiday magic that spells out season's greetings from the Knott family.

The magical Santa spirit spreads throughtout the farm, from the parking area across from Virginia's Gift Shop where Santa has set up residence, to the John Wayne Theatre where Knott's annual holiday season stage show, "The Magic of Christmas," will be entertaining audiences.

Ever since Santa arrived at Knott's Berry Farm in his reindeer-pulled stagecoach, he has been keeping business hours in his igloo every day from noon to 8:30 p.m. Available for pictures while he interviews youngsters, Santa offers both advice and gifts to his guests. As an added attraction, Mrs. Santa Claus helps out her husband on Saturdays and Sundays.

Santa will be at Knott's until Dec. 24, when at 6 p.m. he takes off to visit children around the world.

Knott's Magic of Christmas Show begins Saturday and Sunday, featuring master magician Chuck Jones on stage at 1, 4 and 8 p.m. Saturday and at 3, 5 and 7 p.m. on Sunday.

Bachelor Hunts Wife

Tired of Old Ways, He Advertises

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — A 31-year-old bachelor has tired of the singles clubs, bars and dance halls and decided to take a more direct approach to finding a wife. He spent $175.07 for newspaper ads and is accepting applications from prospective brides.

"It's not a joke at all," the wife-seeking bachelor, who wished to remain anonymous, said.

"There should be some more convenient way, more efficient way of seeing people that you like than just taking potlock at bars, dance halls and things like that," he said.

SO HE PLACED 11-by-4-inch ads this week in Madison's two newspapers. But from the looks of the advertisement, it appears he is seeking the perfect wife.

"Are you tired of hanging around bars looking for a mate?" he asks in the ad.

"I am.

"Do you refuse to settle for someone who isn't what you want even though he appears to be the only available one around? Good for you!

"If you have the attributes listed below and you like what you read about me, I want to meet you."

THEN HE SET forth the qualifications. The prospective bride, he said, must be between the ages of 23 and 28 and should not have been married before.

She should have at least a four-year degree from a national university in either accounting, physical or medical sciences, law, history or library sciences. It says he would prefer career girl earning at least $9,000 annually.

She shouldn't be taller than 5-feet-5 and should not weigh more than 115 pounds. She must be a nonsmoker, infrequent drinker, frugal, aggressive, studious, a late sleeper who prefers a house temperature of not more than 65 degrees.

CONCERNING religion, he calls for an agnostic or member of any major denomination. Politically, the prospective bride should be a moderate Democrat or independent. And her national origin should be northern European, British or Irish.

The ad also describes the prospective bridegroom as a man with three college degrees, an agnostic who stands 5-feet-10 inches tall and weighs 160 pounds. It said he is healthy, and "willing to negotiate after two years of marriage for not more than two children."

Those interested were instructed to send resumes to Route 2, Box 46A, Jefferson, Wis., 53549.

THE AD APPEARS unemotional and businesslike. And perhaps that businesslike attitude is the basis for the story of love lost that lies behind the ad.

He said in an interview that he had never been engaged but had fallen deeply in love with his childhood sweetheart.

"She liked me, she really liked me," he said. "But I finally decided it would be best for her not to marry me because of her particular personality.

"She had a peculiar preference," he said. "She was a nut on France and French things. So I advised her to go to France, marry a Frenchman.

"So, she did."

THE PICK OF Punch

"Why aren't you messing around?"

Wild Scene

U.S. Rock Group Hailed by Reds

From Wire Services

Politely, patiently, the opening night Moscow audience sat through the first three numbers of the U.S. City Center Joffrey Ballet.

Then the six-man rock group "The Vegetables," which accompanies Gerald Arpino's "Trinity" rock ballet, began warming up during the third interval and the first nighters lost their decorum.

Scores of persons, mostly young, rushed to the barrier of the orchestra pit and applauded wildly as the Americans, most long-haired and dressed in blue jeans, beat out their sounds through the staid Moscow Operatta Theater.

President Ford bestowed the nation's highest military award — the Medal of Honor — to two Vietnam Army veterans and delivered a prayer that Vietnam would be America's "last war."

At ceremonies in the East Room, Ford honored Army Warrant Officer Louis R. Rocco, 36, of Albuquerque, N. Mex., and Staff Sgt. Jon R. Cavaiani, 31, born in Royston, England and a resident of San Francisco, both of whom were severely wounded in action.

*

House Republican Leader John Rhodes of Arizona will undergo surgery today to remove a small tumor from his vocal cords, his press secretary said.

Rhodes entered Sibley Hospital in Washington Thursday and was expected to be released from the hospital Saturday.

The operation is not unusual for individuals who make extensive public speeches, the secretary said.

A federal appeals court, in order to help purge the government of "its past lawlessness," unanimously upheld the conviction of James W. McCord Jr. for the Watergate break-in and bugging.

In a separate 6-1 opinion, the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia upheld the contempt sentence of bugging conspirator G. Gordon Liddy for failing to testify before the grand jury about the break-in following his conviction.

PEOPLE

McCord, security chief for President Nixon's 1972 campaign, and Liddy, counsel to the campaign finance committee, were convicted of the Watergate bugging Jan. 30, 1973, and both appealed.

*

Nightclub hypnotist Ronald Dante, once married to actress Lana Turner, will be sentenced next year unless a new trial is sought in his attempted murder case, a court spokesman said in Tucson.

Judge Alice Truman will hold a mitigation hearing Jan. 14, after which she will decide when Dante will be sentenced, the spokesman said.

Dante was accused of trying to hire someone to kill Michael Dean of La Jolla, Calif. But he hired an undercover agent posing as a "hit man."

Soyuz 16 cosmonauts Anatoly Filipchenko and Nikolai Rukavishnikov have been awarded the Order of Lenin for the second time each, according to Tass.

The award — Russia's highest honor — was bestowed on the pair as well as a gold star for the "successful accomplishment" of the space mission and "for courage and heroism," the Soviet news agency said.

Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau of Canada, has a new $80,000 limousine with armor plating, bullet proof windows and two telephones.

The silver-gray Cadillac replaces a similar black automobile that will be used as a spare and for touring dignitaries such as British royalty.

"It's not my idea, driving through life with an armored Caddy — like a tank — that I lend to the queen when she comes," Trudeau complained during a recent speech in Alberta.

Activist Minister Kills Self

LONDON (UPI) — The Rev. Anthony Hart-Synnot believed in carrying out the Lord's will his own way. It was a bit much for the Church of England.

Father Hart-Synnot, 57, thought he was only "doing unto others" when he filled his church-provided home with former convicts, drug addicts, homeless families and other lost souls.

THE CHURCH sold the building out from under him and refused to provide him with another, fearing that it, too, would become a refuge for the down and out.

His visits to strip shows sponsored by a local soccer club raised more than a few eyebrows. So did his attacks on aid to the church from "ungrateful foreigners."

WHAT DREW even more indignation was his advocacy of mercy killing. He announced that one of his aunts killed her mother, who had terminal cancer. Another, he said, killed two elderly persons suffering in a nursing home.

Friends remembered him saying, "If ever I reached the stage where I needed putting out of my misery, I don't think I would hesitate to do it myself, if I had the means."

THE POLICE had to force their way into St. Stephens. There, on the floor, they found him dead.

Christmas Story Set To Music

"Sing Noel," a Christmas story set to music, will be presented Dec. 15, 16 and 19 at the Capistrano Valley Christian Schools.

Joining the 200 member school choir will be the adult choir of the Capistrano Valley Baptist Church. Rev. Water Falkenberry will direct the production.

Performances are at 5:30 p.m. Dec. 15 and at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 16 and 19. Free tickets are available at the school office, 32032 Del Obispo in San Juan or call Rev. Falkenberry at 493-1940.

Chauvinist Sweet Dies

CONCORD (UPI) — Goodby Gingerbreadmen.

Those age-old holiday visitors went the way of chairmen, spokesmen and other male chauvinist relics at the Holbrook School Christmas Fair.

30 seconds isn't enough.

At a time when people are demanding more informative advertising, television and radio commercials are getting shorter.

The trend is to 30 second spots. Or time for about 50 words.

That's not enough time to tell everything consumers want to know these days: prices, colors, guarantees, where to find it, what it's made of and so much more.

Instead, advertise where you can tell a complete story without being a "fast talker."

In the Daily Pilot.

In a newspaper advertisement you can give the full details — in 30 seconds the average reader can absorb 250 words. That's five times as much information as can be gained by spending an equivalent amount of time watching television or listening to the radio.

And, newspapers let a consumer pause to evaluate, re-read and even clip your ad as a reminder.

Newspapers always have been the hardest working medium.

We think the future looks better than ever.

Nude Cleared -- Beaches Now Open?

Orange County's nude beachgoers may have been given a green light to put it together in the altogether.

Beachgoers who found going rough in the buff in recent months were vindicated late Thursday when South Orange County municipal court Judge John A. Griffin found Charles Anderson of Costa Mesa not guilty of multiple charges filed when he sunbathed in the nude at South Laguna's 9th Street Beach.

Anderson, 27, was found not guilty on charges of lewd conduct and disturbing the peace after defense attorney Bill Sheffield successfully argued that his client had disturbed no one and no sexual intent when he exposed his entire body to the sun.

Anderson is one more than 100 nude beachgoers who have been arrested by sheriff's officers in recent months on such charges.

His acquittal, Sheffield said today, may effectively bar the sheriff from any further arrests of that type.

Judge Griffin's ruling may also mean the end of the county ordinance which Anderson was said to have violated, Sheffield said.

Property owner Willard Cain had earlier argued for the prosecution that nude beachgoing near his cliff top home on South Coast Highway had reached the point that he could no longer invite his grandchildren to the house.

Cain is by far the most constant caller to the sheriff's office in all such instances of nudity on the beach.

Sheffield successfully argued that the ordinance under which Anderson also was prosecuted pertained more to nude and semi-nude entertainment than naked sunbathing on the beach.

"I look on this as a test case," the defense attorney said. "And I very much regret that many of the people who have been similarly arrested on these charges decided to plead guilty rather than take the issue to trial as Mr. Anderson did."

31-cent Hike

Export Nations Up Cost of Oil

VIENNA (UPI) — The world's major oil exporting nations decided today to increase the price of crude oil by 31 cents a barrel — 3 percent — on Jan. 1, Iran's Interior Minister Jamshouzegar said.

"The selling price of oil will be $10.46 a barrel effective Jan. 1," Amouzegar said after a two-day meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).

The new price will be frozen for the first nine months of 1975, he said.

The present average selling price of crude oil is $10.15 a 42-gallon barrel, oil industry officials said.

It was not immediately clear whether this would mean an increase in the price of gasoline because of the complicated oil pricing and royalty system which determine oil prices.

Larry Goldstein, a New York oil consultant, said the action by OPEC may not be an increase at all since $10.46 is the market price established last month by Saudi Arabia, Abu Dhabi and Qatar.

The action by OPEC, he said, is "nothing more than a confirmation that this is the market price for everybody."

But, he said, oil companies had been paying an average of $10.36 a barrel for that oil owned by the Arab nations and that owned by the companies. The set price of $10.46 for all OPEC oil, Goldstein said, means "an increase in cost to the companies of 10 cents a barrel."

The earlier increases imposed unilaterally by Saudi Arabia, Abu Dhabi and Qatar had already been passed on by the oil companies through their distributors and the latest action may not mean higher prices for consumers, he said.

Asked if gasoline and home heating oil prices would go up, Amouzegar said: "That depends on how much the oil companies can absorb from their profits."

Iran, he said, proposed limiting oil company profits to 50 cents a barrel. Present oil company profits are about 75 cents a barrel, OPEC officials said.

The increase of 31 cents in the selling price of a barrel of oil was decided by ministers of the 13 OPEC nations meeting in a Vienna hotel following two bomb threats against OPEC headquarters.

OPEC did away with the posted price system which maintained

No Accord For Irvine Plans Seen

The Irvine Company's efforts to please everybody with its plans for development of 10,000 acres between Corona del Mar and Laguna Beach are destined to be unsuccessful, company planner Larry Moore told a luncheon gathering Thursday.

But when the company responds to 22 groups who have taken part in planning the company's coastal sector, most of nearly 300 concerns will be satisfied, he said.

Speaking to nearly 150 members of the Orange County Coast Association at the Bahia Corinthian Yacht Club in Newport Beach Moore and Irvine Company President Raymond Watson detailed the history of The Irvine Company Multi-Agency Planning Program (TICMAP).

Composed of 22 public and private groups, the planning body is an Irvine Company effort to head off possible confrontations on its plans for the 10,000 acres which may come up during hearings before the coastal commission or the Orange County Planning Commission.

"There is no ideal solution. That plan can't be drawn," said Moore. "No matter what we come up with, there is going to be some group or agency out there that disagrees with us."

Company plans for the area include a 1,345-acre state park, homes for about 50,000 residents and two major resort areas.

The parkland sale, which was to be completed later this month, has been blocked by a preliminary injunction obtained by Joan Irvine Smith, who controls 22 percent of the company's stock.

She contended that the $7.6 million price on the 3.5 miles of beach and bluff and 1,100 acres in Moro Canyon intended for the park was too low.

In addition to the parkland, Moore said, other land in the area designated as open space is still in question. So far, no agency has offered to buy it, he said, and none has offered to maintain

Two Officers Round Up 30 Clemente Cows

Avenida Vaquero—a San Clemente street named for the Mexican cowboy— gave San Clemente police a chance to try their hand at the cow business Thursday afternoon.

Residents along the roadway leading along the edge of the Forster Ranch called officers after noticing 30 head of beef gathering along the street.

Sgt. Craig Steckler and Patrolman Rusty Rice served as herdsmen for a short time, chasing the steers back through a hole in the fence, then they waited for professionals from the ranch to take over.

Officers said that when they arrived, the herd was just starting to move toward the expensive residential area.

Charges in Assault On Lagunan Dropped

Criminal charges against a Los Angeles man accused of attacking a woman in Laguna Beach have been dismissed.

Judge Blair Barnette of South Orange County Municipal Court dismissed the assault and battery charges against Charles W. Roberts, 32, after a jury failed to reach a verdict Wednesday.

Roberts was arrested in Laguna Beach Oct. 19 along with another man, Franklin R. Maltman, 27, after a policeman said he saw a man argue with a woman and attempt to pull her into a car.

The men were booked on suspicion of attempted kidnap and assault with intent to commit rape.

Dormitory Blaze

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — An early morning fire in a dormitory at Brandywine College sent at least 14 students and one fireman to area hospitals for treatment of injuries.

However, the Orange County District Attorney's office refused to file charges against Maltman and filed only a misdemeanor charge of assault and battery against Roberts.

Chemical Firms Get Big Fines

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Eight of the nation's largest chemical firms, including E. I. duPont de Nemours, were handed fines ranging up to $50,000 today on price fixing charges.

DuPont and the Verona Corp. were fined $50,000, the maximum under current antitrust laws, by U.S. District Judge Lawrence A. Whipple.

The other fines were: Allied Chemical Co., American Cyanamid BASF-Wyandotte, all $43,500; CIBA-Geigy and GAF Corp., $45,000, and Crompton & Knowles Coro., $40,000 ...

Directors Back Administration Of Hospital

The South Coast Community Hospital board of directors Thursday approved a unanimous resolution of support for the hospital administration.

Board action came at a meeting at which it was told the hospital earned a $12,000 profit during November, a significant contrast to previous operation when the facility was running heavily in the red.

The hospital board also approved the appointment of Gerald Gilman as hospital controller. Gilman has been serving as interim controller for several months as an employe of consultants Herman Smith and Associates.

The board action was taken with new board members Dr. T. D. Mauro, Dr. Peter Bramwell and Bert Kampert in attendance.

The hospital board established the date for the annual membership meeting as Jan. 23.

Lose Choppers? Call the Police

Laguna Beach police today are holding a set of false-teeth uppers found Thursday by lifeguards along Bluebird Canyon Road near Bluebird Park.

Officers said the teeth appear to belong to a woman because of their small size. The owner may claim the choppers at the Laguna Beach Police station.

San Juan Meet Set for CUSD

Capistrano Unified School District's traveling school board meetings will stop at San Juan Elementary School in San Juan Capistrano Monday.

The meeting of the board of trustees will begin at 7:30 p.m. The school is located on the corner of El Camino Real and Spring Street.

The board hopes to settle on a permanent location at Monday's meeting. The Serra school auditorium was abandoned because the building has been declared unsafe.

Indicted Aides Not Suspended

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Orange County Assessor Jack Vallerga today announced that he has no intention of suspending or taking any type of disciplinary action against seven employes accused in a Grand Jury indictment.

Vallerga emerged from a 24-hour seclusion to condemn any such action as "quite inappropriate at this time.

"As of now they have simply been charged," Vallerga said. "I understand that the Grand Jury investigation is continuing and I see no reason to interfere with their duties at this early stage.

"I have every confidence in the system," Vallerga said. "And I have every confidence that these charges are going to be thrown out at a later stage of the game."

All seven employes and two former assessor's aides who are now retired will be arraigned later today in Superior Court on charges of grand theft, submitting false claims and violating government codes.

It is alleged that the nine drew county money in 1970 for time actually spent in working for what eventually was the election of then county assessor Andrew J. Hinshaw to the 40th District Congressional seat.

Hinshaw's secretary said the Congressman was in the House voting and will not be available to the press until later today.

Later, Hinshaw told the Daily Pilot in a telephone conversation that he is "making no comment at this time on

Trees of Christmas

First graders at Laguna Beach's El Morro School sing "My Christmas Tree" during school's annual Christmas program. Several hundred family members and other Christmas program fans turned out for the Thursday evening musicale. First graders were dressed as Christmas trees to help them get in the modd for their performance.

Capo Man Files Bid For CUSD

E. G. "Ted" Kopp, a Capistrano Beach building contractor, is the fourth person to pick up papers to run for the Capistrano Unified school board in March, but he said today he isn't sure he'll file.

He explained he thought he was in the trustee area now represented by George White, who is not seeking re-election, but "It turned out I live on the wrong side of the street."

Instead, if he files, Kopp will find himself pitted against incumbent William Enquist, who has already announced he will seek reelection.

Kopp, 40, has lived in the area 20 years and has two sons in Capistrano schools. He is a member of the San Juan Capistrano Rotary Club.

"I'm quite interested in the school system," he said as his reason for considering running.

So far, in addition to Enquist, incumbent Dr. Edward Westberg and newcomer G. "Ross" Roskamp have announced they will run, each in separate districts.

Board President Gordon Peterson has said he will not run again.

Four of the seven board positions will be up for election March 4. The deadline for candidates to file with the Orange County Registrar of Voters in Jan. 3.

No candidates have yet filed in the neighboring Laguna Beach Unified School District, in which two of five positions will be up for election.

it even if the land was a gift.

Regarding the planned open space, Moore said, "The Irvine Company can do other things with these canyons and will insist on being able to do things with these canyons unless some workable solution is arrived at."

The coastal commission or county planners cannot simply confiscate the land or deny the company the right to use it, he said.

Other problems in planning the area, Moore said, include transportation. Pacific Coast Highway is already overloaded, he said, and the cities of Newport Beach and Laguna Beach can be expected to oppose a plan which will mean more traffic through their jurisdictions.

The highway is the only access to the property at this time. Company plans, however, show two roads leading northeast into Irvine and an additional access which could be provided if the Corona del Mar Freeway was to be extended south.

San Clemente Agents Seize Drug Suspects

San Clemente narcotics agents and state investigators arrested four apartment dwellers late Thursday on charges related to a small-scale heroin sales case.

Besides Smith, agents booked Michaela Ann Ivy, 18; Kathleen A. Bickmore, 24, and John Robert Smith, 24. Those three arrestees were booked on charges of possession of heroin and narcotics paraphernalia.

The case stemmed from alleged small purchases of the drug which undercover agents had made in recent weeks.

Laguna Niguel Driver Held On Drug Count

A Laguna Niguel man initially halted by California Highway patrolmen after an alleged violation traffic violation was turned over to Orange County Sheriff's officers Thursday night and jailed on drug charges after marijuana allegedly was found in his car.

Deputies booked Jeffrey Michael Pintar, 23, of 24915 La Veta Road on charges of possessing marijuana and possessing narcotics paraphernalia after searching his vehicle near the intersection of Pacific Coast Highway and Crown Valley Parkway.

AMPH'S Chief Quitting Post

BURNETT, Wis. (AP) — John Butterbrodt says he has resigned as president of Associated Milk Producers, Inc., the dairy-cooperative caught up in a recent campaign contribution scandal.

Butterbrodt confirmed at his home here Thursday night that he and AMPI General Manager George Mehren of San Antonio, Tex., left the cooperative following a decision to decentralize the organization.

Both Butterbrodt and Mehern have been under investigation by the Watergate special prosecutor's office in connection with illegal campaign donations made by AMPI, which has pleaded guilty to making donations to both Democratic and Republican candidates. AMPI was fined the maximum $35,000.

artificially high prices, in favor of the unified system.

Amouzegar said OPEC had been forced to increase the price of oil because three members — Saudi Arabia, Abu Dhabi and Qatar — raised their prices at a meeting in Abu Dhabi last month.

"We had two choices — either to go back to the September price system, and this would mean the three Arab members reversing their decision, which they would not do, or adopt the Abu Dhabi price," he said.

"You can't have two prices from the same oil from the same spot (Middle East)."

He said would speak with his attorney again this afternoon to determine if some explanation of his role in the issue could be made.

Vallerga today confirmed that he and Hinshaw appeared before the Grand Jury during a five-month investigation that put 49 witnesses before the investigative panel.

The assessor also confirmed that he declined to testify before the Grand Jury — again like Hinshaw — but stressed that his attitude was dictated on the advice of his lawyer, John Cahill.

"From what I know, there is simply no substance to these charges," Vallerga said. "And, like I said, I have every confidence in the system."

Reinstate 3 Firemen, Unit Asks

The Laguna Beach Junior Woman's Club is urging the Laguna Beach City Council to reconsider the layoff of three city firemen and to consider providing emergency ambulance service through the fire department.

In a letter to the council, Mary Green, president of the organization, cited the actions of other cities in establishing municipal emergency services through the fire department.

"We want to see emergency service improved in Laguna. The retention of the three firemen to be laid off would solve two problems.

"We urge you to reconsider your original negative stand. Consider the welfare of the people in our community," Mrs. Green wrote.

The two problems Mrs. Green referred to are those of emergency transportation and low department strength for major blazes. Laguna Beach fire trucks now roll with two and three-man crews.

Three fireman positions were dropped and three men fired when the police department took over central radio dispatching for all public safety agencies.

Top Volleyball Teams Compete In Laguna Test

A men's volleyball tournament will be held starting at 10 a.m. Saturday in the boys' gym of Laguna Beach High School.

Thirteen teams from throughout Southern California are expected to compete. Team members include All Americans and nationally ranked volleyball players.

"This will be the first six-man volleyball tournament of importance ever held here. It will give the local fans something to watch and perhaps see the Olympic stars of tomorrow," Ian Gregory, tournament director, said.

The tournament championship game is expected to start at 8 p.m. The public is welcome to attend.

Other teams scheduled to participate are Cal State Fullerton, Cal State Los Angeles, Dana Point Outriggers, the West LA Volleyball Club, the Patriots of San Gabriel, The Hitmen from Lakewood, Edwards Air Force Base team, U.S. Marine Corps Santa Ana Air Station team.

Hayes Appoints Proxy for Post On Coast Panel

Los Angeles County Supervisor James Hayes — whose membership on the South Coast Regional commission has eaten deeply into his schedule — now has appointed a proxy to help him out.

Hayes, who was elected to chair the county board of supervisors recently, named a top aide to serve as an alternate on the coastal commission.

At the regional level, Hayes often has had to leave sessions before adjournment and before selecting Szabo, he ordered his secretary to monitor the session in his absence.

Laguna Land Map Rejected By Planners

A proposed land use policy map faces an uncertain fate after Laguna Beach Planning Commissioners Tuesday turned down motions to accept, postpone or reject it.

The map, which depicts the already adopted land use element of the city's general plan, will be sent to the city council with the indication that commissioners did not accept it, George Logan, city attorney, said.

Commissioner John McDowell introduced the motion to postpone approval of the map, saying it would quickly become obsolete. His motion was defeated 4-1.

SCAG Leaders Ready To Fight New Agency

Elected officials who serve as delegates to the powerful Southern California Association of Governments SCAG are gearing up to fight state proposals to create a new super agency to adminster California's coastal development.

In a session in Los Angeles Thursday, the SCAG executive committee has agreed to call a meeting of interested cities within the coastal sector of the Southland in order to coordinate a possible battle against a new element to the state coastal plan that would set up the superagency.

The Powers, Funding and Government element of the coastal land-use plan sets up the framework for a new state panel that would rule on all changes within five miles of the shoreline.

The present system of regional commissions affects changes only within 1,000 yards of the sea.

The Powers, Funding and Government element would expand land-use control to the entire five-mile planning area set up by the passage of the Coastal Initiative.

And South Coast Commission Member and SCAG delegate Ralph Diedrich was outspoken about the controversial plan element.

One-way Street Decision Firm For Clemente

San Clemente traffic and parking commissioners decided Thursday to stand by their recommendation to make Avenida San Gabriel and Avenida San Pablo one-way.

City councilmen had requested that commissioners come up with another solution to the traffic and safety problems in the area adjacent to the municipal golf course.

However, commissioners said they consulted a number of homeowners before making the decision last month and still believe their recommendation represents the desires of residents.

Town Hall Unit Hits 3 Issues

By PAMELA HALLAN
of the Daily Pilot Staff

An outspoken group which has followed closely the progress of the San Juan Capistrano General plan will launch a petition drive this weekend to protest City Council stands on three issues.

The Town Hall Association, whose members helped formulate the citizens' policies which became guidelines for the plan's development, disagree with recent council decisions on the treatment of agriculture, commercial centers and roadways.

"This is not an emotional issue," said president Barbara Davies during a press conference Thursday afternoon. "We've read the plan page-by-page. We've worked very hard."

Mrs. Davies said that unlike the council, her group favors the designation of permanent agriculture in the plan. She maintains that a residential designation for the property would preclude any serious attempt to maintain agriculture.

The council has proposed a residential designation for 200 acres earmarked for agricultural preservation until a study can be done to determine if permanent agriculture is feasible.

Mrs. Davies said her group also disagrees with council intent to designate 10 acres for neighborhood shopping centers. She believes they should be four to eight acres and should be built to serve neighborhood needs, not those of people outside the city.

The third point of contention is the size of major highways. Town Hall believes the highways should ultimately be no more than four lanes wide. A majority of the council now favors planning for six lanes.

"We thought the plan was to be designed to retain the qualities we now enjoy," said Mrs. Davies. "We believe the general public supports us."

Town Hall members will circulate the petition outside of Von's Market from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Mrs. Davies also urged residents who support her group's views to call or write a councilman before Wednesday's council meeting.

Reeve's Ranch Proposal Gets Another Delay

San Clemente planning commissioners agreed Wednesday to another delay on a recommendation on master-plan revisions for the major proposals to develop the 1,055-acre Reeve's Ranch.

Commissioners agreed that because an environmental impact statement had been submitted late Tuesday, there was not enough time for the staff and commission members to evaluate the large amount of data.

Further consideration of the proposals by John D. Lusk of Newport Beach will come in two weeks, the commission agreed.

Once the planners finish with the total master plan for a planned community on the former cattle spread, the city council will consider final approvals.

'Retrofit' Homes To Save on Fuel

By SYLVIA PORTER

One of the least expensive and simplest ways for you, a homeowner, to control your heating costs in this era of oppressively high fuel costs is through home "retrofitting" — or the installation of ceiling insulation, weather stripping and caulking.

And this almost surely will be among President Ford's proposals when he delivers his energy program to Congress next month.

THE PROGRAM will not be mandatory — but it is among the incentive measures urged by the Federal Energy Administration to induce you to cut back on your consumption of energy and simultaneously curb your fuel bills. In six months, these have risen 17 percent for gas and electricity and 22 percent for fuel oil and coal.

Yet, of the 70 million homes in the U.S., 20 million are inadequately insulated. If your house was built before 1940 — and 41 percent of all houses were — yours probably is among them.

By spending only $200 to retrofit your home, the FEA estimates you will save an average of $94 a year in fuel costs and thus, in about 26 months, your savings will have paid for your investment. And the $200 is an across-the-board approximation. By doing the retrofitting yourself, for instance, you can cut your initial outlay in half (or more than half).

As one illustration, a Midwest owner of a two-story house built before 1940 (when the Federal Housing Administration had no insulation standards for insured mortgage homes) saved about $54 a year with the installation of just six inches of ceiling insulation. This do-it-yourselfer spent $100 on materials, recouped his investment in 18 months.

TO ENCOURAGE you to invest in such thermal improvements, the FEA proposes that you be given a tax credit of 25 percent of the cost of your materials and installation. Your credit could be limited to $200 per taxpayer and you would have to act within a specified time period. The cost to the federal government would approach $500 million, but the potential energy saving would be 250,000 barrels of oil per day by 1980.

The FEA also is proposing that the Administration initiate a $60 million program to fund utilities (through state utility commissions) that offer loans to homeowners for retrofitting.

A financing program of this sort already has been in operation in Michigan for slightly over a year. To qualify, a customer must own his (or her) own home and be paid up on his gas bill. After a 20 percent down payment of the cost of retrofitting, the customer may decide either to pay off the balance within 90 days interest-free or pay in 36 monthly installments with an interest charge of one percent on the unpaid monthly balance.

IN A RELATED venture, the FEA is testing in several cities a program called "Project Conserve" — under which participants fill out a questionnaire stating their present heating and cooling costs, house dimensions and insulation devices. Then a computer analyzes the energy efficiency of the home, makes recommendations for improvements and estimates their cost as well as eventual saving in fuel bills. The computer service is now free; if it goes nationwide, you'll probably have to pay a processing fee of a few dollars.

But what if you're poor and the cost of any home improvement scheme is out of your reach? For you, the FEA proposes a federally funded plan to upgrade your estimated 5 million homes. This program would be modeled after the successful home winterization program piloted last winter in Maine.

THE GOVERNMENT would provide $100 per home for insulation materials; volunteer groups would do the installations. The cost of this one-shot operation: $500 million. The resulting savings in oil imports: $550 million a year.

"Project Independence" is being translated by deeply concerned citizens into realistic money and energy-saving measures.

New Fares For State Jets Told

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The State Public Utilities Commission has established new permanent air fares within California, some higher and some lower than previous fares.

Its action came in a final order covering applications by Pacific Southwest Airlines (PSA), Air California, Western Airlines and United Airlines dating back to October, 1973.

A number of interim increases had been granted since the original filings to offset increased fuel costs, the last a four percent boost on Sept. 4.

Under the order, PSA will get a 1.4 percent increase, which with previous interim boosts is expected to produce revenue amounting to $17.5 million. The new fares also will include reductions for flights between Fresno and Los Angeles and between Fresno and San Diego.

Air California does not get a fare increase under the latest order but was granted increases Sept. 4 which now are permanent.

United and Western, whose California passenger operations have been conducted at a loss, now may increase fares to match PSA and Air California fares on comparable routes.

Ford Sees No Way To Drop Car Costs

DETROIT (UPI) — Dwindling profits and climbing costs make a $200 to $400 auto price cut suggested by a dealers' group "inconceivable," Ford Motor Co. vice president John B. Naughton said Thursday.

Naughton, Ford vice president for sales, said Ford's profit per car already is less than $150, and inflation is driving up costs at the rate of $35 a month.

Edwin J. Mullane, a Ford dealer in Bergenfield, N.J., and president of the Ford Dealers Alliance, said Wednesday that Ford was being noncompetitive by holding to its 1975-model prices in the face of a steep sales slump. He said a price cut could provide priming to start the economy moving.

Mullane said that since dealers have virtually no control over price and production, "I pray they (Ford) break out of their noncompetitive intransigence and try a price experiment in the market place."

Ford boosted prices by $407 at the introduction of the 1975 models and boosted the price another $75 on Nov. 18 by making some options standard equipment and raising freight and antifreeze charges. Three days later, it cut $150 from the price of its cheapest car — the two-door subcompact Pinto — by knocking $66 off the base price and substituting cheaper tires.

New Chief At United

CHICAGO (UPI) — Edward E. Carlson Thursday was named board chairman of United Airlines and Richard J. Ferris president of the airline.

Ferris, 38, was associated with Western International Hotels, a subsidiary of UAL, Inc., until 1971 when he became president of the airline's Food Services Division.

Carlson has been United's president since December, 1970, after more than 30 years in the hotel industry.

Business Unit Sees Weak Times Ahead

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Business Council on Thursday forecast a significant improvement in the rate of inflation during the next six months, but said the economy will continue its weak performance.

The council, whose members include about 100 of the nation's top corporate executives, was slightly more optimistic about the unemployment picture in 1975 than the Ford administration has been.

It said unemployment is expected to reach 6.8 percent to 7 percent in the second and third quarters of next year, while administration economists have said the jobless rate may go over 7 percent.

The council held its quarterly meeting here this week. President Ford addressed the group Wednesday night, telling the business leaders his administration would have new economic programs to propose to Congress next month.

The council predicted that the nation's economic output as measured by the Gross National Product will be down one percent for all of 1975, but it said economic growth should resume after midyear.

It said that capital spending, although declining somewhat, "is holding up relatively well compared with past periods of economic contraction."

With respect to inflation the council said the rate of price increase should decline to about 6 percent in the final quarter of next year, about half of the current rate.

"A clear shift from a seller's to a buyer's market appears to have gathered momentum in the past month or so — shortages are easing and delivery times are shortening," it said.

Slaying Term

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Lavelle Keith, 21, was sentenced to prison for life for killing a restaurant owner during a robbery last spring.

Exchange Firm Gets SEC Delay

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — James Ray Houston, owner and founder of the Western Pacific Gold and Silver Exchange, has been granted a delay on a Federal Court hearing to determine if his firm should be barred permanently from doing interstate business.

The hearing, scheduled Thursday will now be conducted Jan. 30. Meanwhile, a temporary restraining order issued against Western Pacific Nov. 29 will remain in effect.

Attorneys for the Securities and Exchange Commission and attorneys for Houston Wednesday agreed to the delay on the hearing. U.S. District Judge Roger Foley signed the necessary papers.

The temporary restraining order prevents the Las Vegas-based silver company, which had more than 70 branch offices throughout the United States, from doing business interstate.

Chinese Food Recalled

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 9,500 large cans of Chinese vegetables have been ordered recalled by the Food and Drug Administration because of possible health hazards resulting from underprocessing.

No injuries or deaths have been reported, but the underprocessing may allow the growth of microorganisms that could be harmful, the FDA said.

The cans of bamboo shoots, bean sprouts and mixed vegetables were produced by the Great China Food Products Co., Chicago, last April and May in 19-ounce and six-pound, six-ounce cans and labeled under 41 different names.

The FDA said the cans should be returned to the supplier and not be opened. The FDA said the cans normally would have been purchased by institutions such as hospitals and restaurants.

Ritualistic Cattle Kil' Gets Probe

DENVER (UPI) — An official of the American Humane Association says the recent deaths of nine Colorado cattle in "ritualistic-style killings" were part of a series of such incidents being perpetrated across the country by members of a mysterious cult.

R. T. Phillips, AHA executive director, said it was believed "cults are involved in the bizarre slayings." He said the association was offering $500 rewards for arrests and convictions of the killers.

Phillips said eight cattle "were slain in 11 days near Glenwood Springs, Colo.," and a ninth, a 1,100-pound Hereford cow, was killed, drained of blood and had its sexual organs and one ear cut off near Wray, Colo.

"In Nebraska's Platte County, it was reported 44 such crimes occurred in the past month," he said.

Phillips said the latest reports of such slaughter came from Minnesota, where numerous cattle were slain and mutilated for no apparent reason.

Trio Get Probation

NEW YORK (AP) — Suspended sentences were given to two sons of noted newspaper figures and a friend, who admitted conspiring last April to sell cocaine to a man who turned out to be a federal agent.

U.S. District Court Judge Thomas P. Griesa suspended five-year sentences and decreed five years of probation, along with steady work or study, for Barry Considine, 32, son of columnist Bob Considine; Kerry A. Kollmar, 20, son of the late Dorothy Killgallen and the late Richard Kollmar, and Jonathan Cohen, 21, a student.

Viejo Petition Hits Castille Trailers

A petition signed by more than 100 residents of Mission Viejo will be presented to trustees of the Capistrano Unified School District Monday, asking them to remove portable classrooms from the Castille School site.

The petition, to be submitted at 7:30 p.m. at San Juan School, asks that the temporary classrooms be taken off the site "no later than July of 1975."

A permanent school is currently under construction and school district officials predict that it will be completed in March. The problem, however, is that the enrollment projected for the school is more than the campus can handle, according to Joe Wimer, director of administrative services.

The portables referred to by the petitioners form a "temporary school" built by the Mission Viejo Company on a park site which the district leases. One year is left on the three-year lease. The school district pays $1 a year rental.

Wimer said the length of time the temporary school will be needed will be determined by how quickly the area served by the school develops.

"The portable classrooms in their present location present an eyesore and we understood they would be removed as the new school was completed," states the petition.

"We, as local residents, have experienced difficulties ranging from noise pollution to the loss of appreciation in the value of our homes. We feel the inconvenience was worth the wait for the permanent structure to be completed. However, now that the date nears, we want to be reassured that they will be removed and the site returned to its former state."

Other items on the agenda, held over from the previous week, include:

—Naming of the third high school in Mission Viejo.

—Discussion of a permanent location for the district office, which the school board wants to remove from Serra School in Capistrano Beach.

Assessor Denies Charges

Tot Death Termed 'Murder'

Jabbing an accusing finger towards Jennifer Elizabeth Dabney, a furious Deputy District Attorney Pat Brian condemned the El Toro woman late Thursday as "the sadistic killer of a helpless baby.

"This was a classic case of murder by torture," Brian snarled as he demanded a verdict of first-degree murder against Mrs. Dabney, 24.

Brian reminded Orange County Superior Court Judge Kenneth Lae who will rule Monday on whether the degree of murder to be charged against Mrs. Dabney is first or second, that she beat both of her eight-month-old twin boys during the months before Robert died last June 1.

Brian said Mrs. Dabney had admitted subjecting the child to a "24-hour orgy of torture" before the baby died in Childrens Hospital in Orange of massive head injuries.

Brian said Mrs. Dabney repeatedly admitted in a taped conversation played back to the jury earlier Thursday that she had subjected baby Robert to a severe beating.

"She then dropped him face and belly down in three inches of water in the bathtub, left him like that for three minutes and then gave him another severe beating when she thought he might still be alive," Brian said.

Brian also reminded Judge Lae of Mrs. Dabney's own admission that she broke the arm of the other baby, John, by twisting it behind the child's back.

The angry Brian then focused on her husband, Marine Corps Sgt. Dennis Eugene Dabney, 24, and vigorously defended the charges of manslaughter filed against the serviceman in the same trial.

"If ever there was a case where a man should get the severest possible penalty for his criminal inaction, it is this one," Brian shouted while Dabney looked down at the counsel table.

Brian reminded Judge Lae that

Indicted Aides Not Suspended

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Orange County Assessor Jack Vallerga today announced that he has no intention of suspending or taking any type of disciplinary action against seven employes accused in a Grand Jury indictment.

Vallerga emerged from a 24-hour seclusion to condemn any such action as "quite inappropriate at this time.

"As of now they have simply been charged," Vallerga said. "I understand that the Grand Jury investigation is continuing and I see no reason to interfere with their duties at this early stage.

"I have every confidence in the system," Vallerga said. "And I have every confidence that these charges are going to be thrown out at a later stage of the game."

All seven employes and two former assessor's aides who are now retired will be arraigned later today in Superior Court on charges of grand theft, submitting false claims and violating government codes.

It is alleged that the nine drew county money in 1970 for time actually spent in working for what eventually was the election of then county assessor Andrew J. Hinshaw to the 40th District Congressional seat.

Hinshaw's secretary said the Congressman was in the House voting and will not be available to the press until later today.

Later, Hinshaw told the Daily Pilot in a telephone conversation that he is "making no comment at this time on the advice of my attorney."

He said would speak with his attorney again this afternoon to determine if some explanation of his role in the issue could be made.

Vallerga today confirmed that he and Hinshaw appeared before the Grand Jury during a five-month investigation that put 49 witnesses before the investigative panel.

The assessor also confirmed that he declined to testify before the Grand Jury — again like Hinshaw — but stressed that his attitude was dictated on the advice of his lawyer, John Cahill.

"From what I know, there is simply no substance to these charges," Vallerga said. "And, like I said, I have every confidence in the system."

Mission Viejo Council Maps Its Procedures

Yellow paint was still drying on the walls Thursday in new offices as the Mission Viejo Municipal Advisory Council met for its first work session.

The council met to review proposed bylaws for its operation.

A four-and-a-half page document outlining meeting days and times, procedural points, purposes and functions will be considered for adoption at 10 a.m. Saturday in a public meeting of the council.

The meeting will be in the multipurpose room of Mission Viejo High School.

Public comment will be invited on the proposed bylaws, including the follwowing items:

—A regular meeting date for the council of 7:30 p.m. on the second Monday of the month.

—Purposes and functions of the panel.

—Methods of filling vacancies.

The council also is expected to consider applications for a part-time clerk.

Oil Exporting Nations Hike Crude Price 3%

VIENNA (UPI) — The world's major oil exporting nations decided today to increase the price of crude oil by 31 cents a barrel — 3 percent — on Jan. 1, Iran's Interior Minister Jamshouzegar said.

"The selling price of oil will be $10.46 a barrel, effective Jan. 1," Amouzegar said after a two-day meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).

The new price will be frozen for the first nine months of 1975, he said.

The present average selling price of crude oil is $10.15 a 42-gallon barrel, oil industry officials said.

It was not immediately clear whether this would mean an increase in the price of gasoline because of the complicated oil pricing and royalty system which determine oil prices.

Larry Goldstein, a New York oil consultant, said the action by OPEC may not be an increase at all since $10.46 is the market price established last month by Saudi Arabia, Abu Dhabi and Qatar.

The action by OPEC, he said, is "nothing more than a confirmation that this is the market price for everybody."

But, he said, oil companies had been paying an average of $10.36 a barrel for that oil owned by the Arab nations and that owned by the companies. The set price of $10.46 for all OPEC oil, Goldstein said, means "an increase in cost to the companies of 10 cents a barrel."

The earlier increases imposed unilaterally by Saudi Arabia, Abu Dhabi and Qatar had already been passed on by the oil companies through their distributors and the latest action may not mean higher prices for consumers, he said.

Asked if gasoline and home heating oil prices would go up, Amouzegar said: "That depends on how much the oil companies can absorb from their profits."

Iran, he said, proposed limiting oil company profits to 50 cents a barrel. Present oil company profits are about 75 cents a barrel, OPEC officials said.

The increase of 31 cents in the selling price of a barrel of oil was decided by ministers of the 13 OPEC nations meeting in a Vienna hotel following two bomb threats against OPEC headquarters.

OPEC did away with the posted price system which maintained artificially high prices, in favor of the unified system.

Amouzegar said OPEC had been forced to increase the price of oil because three members — Saudi Arabia, Abu Dhabi and Qatar — raised their prices at a meeting in Abu Dhabi last month.

"We had two choices — either to go back to the September price system, and this would mean the three Arab members reversing their decision, which they would not do, or adopt the Abu Dhabi price," he said.

False Fire Alarm Cites Transients

Two transients alleged by Orange County Sheriff's deputies to be responsible for sending five Orange County fire engines roaring to a nonexistent fire in high-rise towers in Laguna Hills have been cited for the offense.

Deputies said Michael J. Preston, 18, and Mack Baker Pendroy, 24, have been charged with turning in a false fire alarm. They were arrested Wednesday.

It is alleged that the two men blew smoke from their cigarettes into the smoke detector placed by county fire authorities in the Rossmoor Towers at Laguna Hills Leisure World.

Deputies said the resulting alarm led authorities to dispatch five fire engines in the belief that a blaze of major proportions was ravaging the area.

LA File Branded

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The "Alpha File" — a secret report kept by police on "hoodlum"type" juveniles in south Los Angeles — was branded Thursday by the American Civil Liberties Union as a "clear racist intent to intimidate the black community." The ACLU filed a class action suit demanding that the Los Angeles Police Department destroy the file.

Burglar Rifles House at Base

Orange County Sheriff's officers are investigating the theft of jewelry, a radio and cash with a total value of $735 from one of the base homes at the El Toro Marine Corps Air Station.

Deputies said thieves smashed the front door lock to gain entry to the Namar Housing home of jet mechanic James Lawrence Robertson, 19, while he was absent on duty.

Many Mines Close

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Picketing mine construction workers closed virtually all coal mines in western Pennsylvania and a few in West Virginia early today, as negotiations resumed in Washington for a mine construction workers contract. Estimates by company officials indicated that about 22,000 miners were idle in western Pennsylvania and a smaller number in central West Virginia.

Teller Murdered

CHICAGO (UPI) — A pregnant teller in a South Side currency exchange was killed Thursday when a man entered the building with two cans of gasoline, apparently spread the liquid around the office, and then set a match to it, police said. A pair of explosions followed, killing Estelle Davenport, 24, a teller who was alone in the exchange when the incident happened, police said.

MAC Smokers Vote Together

Jeanne Gagnebin, one of the members of the Mission Viejo Municipal Advisory Council (MAC) just couldn't win.

"I think the first order of business of this MAC should be to ban smoking in the council chambers," she said at a work session Thursday in the council's office on La Paz Road.

She was voted down, four to one. Then her colleagues Kathleen Kelly, John Noble, Cal Neve, and Richard Lowcock lit cigarettes and the meeting went on.

Mesa Nude Cleared

County Judge Tosses Out Lewd Conduct Charge

Orange County's nude beachgoers may have been given a green light to put it together in the altogether.

Beachgoers who found going rough in the buff in recent months were vindicated late Thursday when South Orange County municipal court Judge John A. Griffin found Charles Anderson of Costa Mesa not guilty of multiple charges filed when he sunbathed in the nude at South Laguna's 9th Street Beach.

Anderson, 27, was found not guilty on charges of lewd conduct and disturbing the peace after defense attorney Bill Sheffield successfully argued that his client had disturbed no one and no sexual intent when he exposed his entire body to the sun.

Anderson is one more than 100 nude beachgoers who have been arrested by sheriff's officers in recent months on such charges.

His acquittal, Sheffield said today, may effectively bar the sheriff from any further arrests of that type.

Judge Griffin's ruling may also mean the end of the county ordinance which Anderson was said to have violated, Sheffield said.

Property owner Willard Cain had earlier argued for the prosecution that nude beachgoing near his cliff top home on South Coast Highway had reached the point that he could no longer invite his grandchildren to the house.

Cain is by far the most constant caller to the sheriff's office in all such instances of nudity on the beach.

Sheffield successfully argued that the ordinance under which Anderson also was prosecuted pertained more to nude and semi-nude entertainment than naked sunbathing on the beach.

"I look on this as a test case," the defense attorney said. "And I very much regret that many of the people who have been similarly arrested on these charges decided to plead guilty rather than take the issue to trial as Mr. Anderson did."

Orange Coast Weather

Mostly sunny Saturday with local gusty winds at times. Highs of 70 at the beaches reaching 76 inland, according to the weather service. Lows tonight 42 to 50.

Golf Game Critical

Time of Round Key to Mardian Defense

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The exact time when Richard Kleindienst played golf and his wife quit cleaning her kitchen cabinets to have lunch on Saturday, June 17, 1972, emerged as a vital issue today at the Watergate cover-up trial.

Such seemingly trivial events were at the heart of the defense of Robert C. Mardian, a sometime San Clemente resident, as he seeks to convince the jury he had no part in trying to hush up the scandal.

Five agents of then President Nixon's re-election campaign had been arrested at Democratic headquarters at 2 a.m. and the prosecution charges that Kleindienst, then attorney general, received an urgent message later that day while playing golf at Burning Tree Country Club. The message asked him to release the burglars from jail.

The request allegedly originated with defendant John M. Mitchell, then Nixon's campaign manager and now a cover-up defendant, and was relayed by Mardian on the telephone to Watergate mastermind G. Gordon Liddy, who in turn rushed to the country club to give it to Kleindienst.

Mardian, a former assistant attorney general and Nixon campaign operative, was with the campaign high command in California at the time. He contends that because of the time difference, he could not possibly have called Washington in advance of Liddy's trip to Burning Tree about noon Washington time.

Kleindienst's wife, Margaret, was called to the stand to testify about receiving what she called "a curious call" from Liddy shortly after noon that day.

"He said he was calling on behalf of the Committee to Re-elect the President, for Mr. Mitchell," Mrs. Kleindienst said. "He said it was a very sensitive and urgent matter and needed to contact my husband immediately."

She said she remembered the call came between noon and 12:30 p.m. EDT because she had been cleaning her kitchen cabinets and took a break to have lunch.

The prosecution contends that Liddy called her about 1 p.m. or 1:15 p.m. and that he got to Burning Tree about 1:30 p.m. to 1:45 p.m. — late enough to have received a 10 a.m. PDT call from California. It has been established earlier in the trial that Mardian and other campaign officials learned of the burglary about 10 a.m. PDT.

Mrs. Kleindienst said she remembered telling Liddy that her husband was playing golf and she then called the pro shop at the club to have him paged.

But she conceded on cross-examination that no one at the pro shop remembers talking with her that day and no such message ever was relayed to her husband. She also acknowledged her close friendship with Mardian and admitted she did not remember the timing of Liddy's call until after talking with Mardian about it after he was indicted last March.

Kleindienst testified Thursday about the visit from Liddy, recalling he was having lunch sometime after noon following a golf tournament.

Bullet Stays

Operation for Evidence Nixed

NEW YORK (AP) — A state Supreme Court justice has turned down a request by Queens authorities to force a man to undergo surgical removal of a bullet for possible evidence in the murder of a police lieutenant.

Justice Thomas S. Agresta ruled Thursday that to force John Smith, 26, to go through the operation would be unconstitutional and "offensive to fair play and decency and the American way of life."

He also said that removal of the bullet would "constitute a major intrusion into the body of the respondent that would involve trauma and pain and a possible risk of life."

Smith was arrested June 20 when he sought medical attention for a bullet wound of his left shoulder shortly after Lt. Henry Schmiemann was shot dead on a Queens street near his home. Detectives theorized that he was accosted by an armed robber while on his way to work at police headquarters.

Because Schmiemann fired one shot from his revolver before he died, authorities believe he might have wounded his assailant.

Betty Hutton Suffers 'Total Breakdown'

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Betty Hutton, the "Blonde Bombshell" of stage and screen who surfaced as a cook in a church rectory last spring after squandering her personal wealth, has been hospitalized for a "complete emotional breakdown."

The Rev. James Hamilton of St. Anthony's Church in Portsmouth said Miss Hutton, 53, was committed at Butler Hospital, a psychiatric facility, by her psychiatrist.

"She's been in since the beginning of the week. I guess they characterize it as complete emotional breakdown," the priest said.

A hospital spokeswoman said "we don't have anyone by that name here and we don't divulge any information on our patients to the press anyway."

Miss Hutton, leading lady of 1940s and 1950s movies and broadway musicals, took over cooking at St. Anthony's Rectory in February and converted to Catholicism.

Father Peter Maguire, the pastor, met her at a time when "she was hurt deeply, had gone through over $9 million, fame and fortune and everything else," as he described it at the time.

Word of her activities at the small, rural church brought a heavy volume of mail from people who remembered her performances, Hamilton said.

"She got 35,000 to 37,000 letters easily. When she would be feeling well, she would try and answer them but the bulk remains untouched."

When word of her arrival in Portsmouth got out last Easter, Miss Hutton was bubbling over with expressions of joy.

"It's a miracle that I'm alive," she said, adding it had been preceded by a time in which she "didn't want to live."

She admitted that the transition was difficult.

"Some days I cry and say 'This just won't work. It won't work.' But they say 'Don't cry Betty. Your eyelashes will come off'."

Hamilton said he did not expect her to return to Portsmouth, "because I don't think she can function here. I think it's something within herself."

She was hospitalized twice since her arrival, once for a medical checkup last spring and for shoulder surgery three months ago.

She responded warmly to the reception from townsfolk and some accompanied her on a bus trip to New York City last June for a tribute paid by old friends in the entertainment business.

500 Students Eye Catalina Dance Cruise

About 500 El Toro High School students are expected to turn out in formal holiday regalia Saturday for the annual Christmas Formal dance aboard a Catalina cruise boat in Long Beach Harbor.

The event is set for 8 p.m. Live music will be provided by two local bands.

Sponsored by the high school's Girls League Club, the evening will be highlighted by crowning the Christmas Belle and four princesses.

Ten senior girls have been nominated for the top honor. Five juniors and five sophomores are competing for princess.

The winner will be elected by those attending the ball.

Inouye Panel Pleads Guilty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A 1974 campaign committee for Sen. Daniel K. Inouye (D-Hawaii), a member of the Senate Watergate committee, pleaded guilty through an attorney today to failing to report a contribution which it received.

U.S. District Court Judge George Hart Jr. said the violation by the committee known as "DKI for '74," was technical and suspended sentence. The maximum penalty for the misdemeanor is a $1,000 fine.

Assistant Watergate prosecutor Thomas McBride said the committee failed to report either the receipt or the return of $5,650 from the American Shipbuilding Co. in the summer of 1973.

American Shipbuilding is headed by George M. Steinbrenner III, co-owner of the New York Yankees, who pleaded guilty in August to one count of conspiracy.

Senate Okays Ford's Choice Of Energy Aide

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate today rejected conflict of interests charges and confirmed President Ford's choice of a former Exxon official as assistant administrator of the Federal Energy Administration.

The nomination of Melvin A. Conant to be assistant administrator for international energy affairs was approved 55 to 35.

Conant had come under fire from Senate Democrats for acceptance of a $90,000 severance payment from Exxon after serving for 10 years as its senior government relations counselor for Europe, the Middle East and Asia.

"Why does this administration always have to look to the industry that is to be regulated for the man to regulate it?" Sen. John O. Pastore (D-R.I.), asked.

Sen. Clifford Hansen (R-Wyo.), responded by praising "the wisdom of calling upon people who know something about the (energy) problem and something about the industry we are trying to regulate."

The move to reject Conant was led by Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum (D-Ohio), who pointed out that an Exxon official testified during Senate Interior Committee hearings on the nomination that Conant would have received no severance pay if he had indicated disagreement with Exxon policies.

Three El Toro teenagers were arrested by Fountain Valley police Thursday afternoon in connection with a pre-noon market holdup that ended in gunfire.

Police reported one of the three said they chose a Fountain Valley market because "there isn't too many pigs in Fountain Valley."

Booked into Orange County Jail on an armed robbery charge was Layne Sweany, 18, of 22906 Leo Lane, El Toro. His 17-year-old girlfriend was released in custody of her mother, while a 17-year-old boy was taken to Juvenile Hall.

The two boys entered the Stop N Go market at Bushard Street and Clover Avenue at 11 a.m., police reported, leaving the girl as lookout at a phone booth outside.

Police said Sweany allegedly pointed a gun at the store owner, Leonard Gordon, while his companion opened the cash register, taking an undetermined amount of cash.

During the caper, the juvenile also allegedly struck Gordon on the head "with some hard object," leaving a gash that required four stitches to close.

The trio then fled, as Gordon chased them, firing several shots and yelling "freeze" as they ran. He missed all three.

A patrolman spotted the two boys three hours later, walking down a sidewalk a block from the market. Police said the pair matched the description given by witnesses. As the patrol car approached, Sweany ran behind a block wall, where the officer captured him a moment later. Both Sweany and the juvenile were arrested without incident.

The girl fled from the market to a neighboring apartment complex where the trio had left a car borrowed from Sweany's father. Police said she drove through the area for some time, searching for her companions, then returned home.

In the meantime, the two boys told police her name and address, and officers were waiting at her home in El Toro when she arrived.

Officers said none of the three had any of the money allegedly taken in the heist or the gun believed used, but they were searching the neighborhood today for both.

A youthful witness at the robbery scene told reporters she was in a telephone booth outside when the trio ran past.

When Gordon yelled "freeze," she said she ran across the street and hid behind a car.

"Then some lady runs up and says, 'there's one'," she said, and the woman pointed her out to Gordon.

"And he came out with a gun and pointed it at me and he looked pretty mad," the girl recalled.

Then she said she quickly explained, "I'm not one of them. I don't know anything."

The market reportedly has been robbed twice in the past year, four times since it was purchased by Gordon.

DABNEY...

Dabney came home on the day of the beating, gave the unconscious Robert mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and then went to bed for the night after apparently realizing that he could do no more for the child.

The jury trial will resume in Judge Lae's courtroom at 9:45 a.m. Monday.

IS JUDGE A RAT? HE BARS 'MICKEY'

NEW BRAUNFELS, Tex. (UPI) — District Judge Robert Pfeuffer has rejected a bid by backers of Mickey Mouse to have their votes count in the Comal County judge's race.

Pfeuffer overruled a motion for a recount of write-in votes to include those cast for the rodent.

Precinct officials argued that Mickey Mouse was not a bona fide candidate because he had not resided in Comal County for six months before the election. Pfeuffer upheld the contention on the mouse's residency.

Pill for Men 'Successful' In Lab Tests

LONDON (UPI) — A birth control pill for men that produces no loss in sex appetite has been successfully tested by two Australian biochemists, a British science magazine reported today.

Nature Magazine said the pill used in the controlled experiment was a combination of a female hormone, estrogen, and the male hormone androgen already marketed as a cure for bone disorders.

The report said men testing the drug stopped producing sperm after nine to 15 weeks without any visible side effects except for slight nausea at the start of the program.

Sperm cells returned after use of the pill was stopped.

The magazine said there was no known loss of desire on the part of the men being tested.

Several male birth control pills have been produced before, but in each case usage has been accompanied by a sharp decline in sexual desire and the adoption of some female characteristics.

The two Australian scientists, Dr. Michael and Dr. Maxine Briggs of Melbourne's Alfred Hospital, said no such developments occurred in their experiment, according to the magazine.

In the test, four of the five men stopped producing sperm within nine weeks. The fifth stopped in 15 weeks of treatment.

At the end of the test, the magazine said, it was 15 weeks before any of the men began producing sperm again and nine to 10 months before sperm production was back to normal.

San Juan Meet Set for CUSD

Capistrano Unified School District's traveling school board meetings will stop at San Juan Elementary School in San Juan Capistrano Monday.

The meeting of the board of trustees will begin at 7:30 p.m. The school is located on the corner of El Camino Real and Spring Street.

The board hopes to settle on a permanent location at Monday's meeting. The Serra school auditorium was abandoned because the building has been declared unsafe.

More Rains Seen

The series of rapidly moving weak storm fronts that have brought light rain to Northern California will continue through Saturday. The National Weather Service said the next storm will pelt the north coast tonight and provide a chance of showers southward to Monterey and Sacramento through Saturday.

Mick Taylor Quits 'Stones'

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) — Guitarist Mick Taylor is quitting the Rolling Stones rock group, Mick Jagger, the band's leader, said today.

Jagger said Taylor is leaving the group after 5½ years for "a change of scene." Taylor "wants the opportunity to try out some new initiatives. While we are all sorry he is going, we wish him great success," he said.

Taylor joined the group in 1969 to replace Brian Jones, who was found dead in his swimming pool.

Stick to the Issues

The terms of all trustees in both the Irvine and Saddleback Valley Unified School Districts are ending in March. Following the March 4 election, trustees will be elected on staggered terms, meaning the present possibility of a complete board turnover is unique.

This offers citizens of both districts a chance to change educational direction, a challenge that could produce both good and bad results. The possibility of a complete turnover could attract unpleasant and destructive political turmoil, or it could draw out constructive debate on vital issues.

In the Irvine district, charges are likely to be leveled at present trustees by those favoring more traditional or fundamental education. Issues probably will be in the realm of the cost of education and "liberal" educational practices.

In the Saddleback district, political debate seems to be moving in a more personal vein — with some charges in the air about the performance of Supt. William Zogg and bickering among present board members and their respective fan clubs.

However the campaigns proceed, they should be built on solid educational issues, and not petty gripes.

The opportunity at hand is to let the campaign be a forum for educational growth — and not to enhance egos.

Two-tier Government

Irvine City Council discussions of a two-tier form of charter city government have subtly moved from the theory to the implementation stage.

The most recent meeting focused on how a hierarchal system of village councils and a citywide council could be put into motion. The system, in which the village councils' relation to the central city council would approximate that of states to the federal government, seems to have received general support of council members.

But the change in city government form is hampered by existing state laws. Many of the powers the council wants delegated to a more local level cannot be dispersed under the city's present general law status.

A suggested interim solution would set up the village councils in an advisory role until state laws can be changed.

It would seem that if the advisory role was clearly described as a transition provision, such a half measure could provide a warmup period for the local bodies and a smooth change if state laws can be redrafted to suit Irvine's desires.

College Satellites

When Robert Lombardi took the reins as superintendent of Saddleback College three months ago, he promised immediate action to set up satellite campuses in surrounding communities.

He kept his word. Starting next month, classes will be held in Tustin, Irvine, Laguna Beach, Dana Point and San Clemente.

In all, 137 classes will be held away from the college's Mission Viejo campus. The new setup will allow students to register, buy textbooks and go to school without ever having to travel to Mission Viejo.

College officials predict the satellite campuses will be so popular that the normal fall to winter quarter enrollment drop-off will not occur this year.

A mid-year enrollment increase would be a telling sign. It would mean the college finally has found an answer to a problem it has faced since the district was formed: the relative isolation of the Mission Viejo campus from many of the communities it serves.

'Lovelock' Can't Match 'Wedlock'

SYDNEY HARRIS

In reply to a random query of mine some time ago— "What name should we apply to the many couples today who are living together though not married?"—I have received a number of both palatable and ribald suggestions. Two of the most frequent were "cohabs," and "lovelock" instead of "wedlock."

Interestingly enough, one of the reasons modern young people object to the term "wedlock" is the implication that the couple is manacled or handcuffed together in the institution of matrimony. They resent the idea of being "locked" together by a law.

BUT THIS is a misreading of the old Anglo-Saxon word: "wedlock" meant "marriage pledge," and the suffix "lock" had nothing at all to do with handcuffing people together. (It is like the word "sweetheart," where the "heart" part has nothing to do with that organ of the body, but was originally "sweetard," in the same form as "coward" and "dotard.")

Time and custom shape and distort words, and then the words themselves become a kind of tyranny, so that we respond to the distortion rather than to the basic meaning. Indeed, the very word "tyranny" is a perfect example of what happens to a word throughout history.

The earliest "tyrants" in ancient Greece were simply absolute rulers or monarchs, with no implication of cruelty. Both Pericles and Pisistratus were "tyrants," but they were model rulers of wisdom and tolerance. Gradually, however, the word began to assume its later connotation of harshness and oppression, and utterly lost its primal neutral meaning.

FOR COUPLES to live in "lovelock" rather than "wedlock" suggests they have pledged their love—but what value is such a pledge, if it can be withdrawn at the whim of either, with no lasting sense of commitment? The word "pledge" itself means a "guarantee"—but a guarantee is empty if you are not willing to make good on it.

It is my feeling that we have not yet, as a species, arrived at any finally satisfactory form of man-woman relations. The traditional form of matrimony is too filled with rigidities, injustices, and inconsistencies; yet the new "cohabs" have merely exchanged one set of difficulties for another, for without a deep sense of permanence and commitment the living-fabric is too fragile to sustain a family.

THE NUB of the problem is that the human infant, unlike all others, needs years of stable development before it is ready to cope with its physical and social environment. Without children, marriage might be unnecessary; with children, it may be a necessary evil, capable of being ameliorated, but not eliminated from the social structure.

GOP Survivors Alienated

Ford Absence Offends Governors

EVANS-NOVAK

ST. LOUIS — Unfairly or not, the thimbleful of Republican governors and governors-elect who survived the Democratic landslide of Nov. 5 were outraged that President Ford could not make a brief appearance at their midwinter conference here last week after his long journey to the Far East.

Indeed, intensive negotiations had started in mid-November with low-level White House aides to arrange a visit by Mr. Ford that would lend Presidential endorsement to party-rebuilding efforts. Yet, despite repeated telephone calls to the White House by host Gov. Christopher Bond of Missouri, presidential aides insisted Mr. Ford could not spare a couple of hours. Contact was never made with Dean Burch, Mr. Ford's political adviser until his resignation last week, who took no interest in the governors' appeal.

THIS non-appearance by a President who was sharply criticized for traveling to real estate conventions in Las Vegas added to the funereal gloom at the governors' conference. Even before they learned he would not appear, the governors were grumbling over Mr. Ford's performance as both party chief and national leader.

Their aggravation did not peak until word spread that even William Seidman, the highest White House aide scheduled to meet the governors, was going to back out on his scheduled appearance.

With tempers rising among the governors, White House aide James Falk, Mr. Ford's chief liaison with the governors, rushed to a pay phone here with an SOS to the White House. That firmed up Seidman's appearance and also brought Falk's boss, Domestic Council chief Ken Cole, to the session.

But it scarcely mitigated disappointment with Mr. Ford. One governor, reelected last month by a huge majority while other Republican candidates in his state were losing, told us: "This would have been the perfect place for Jerry Ford to come and show his interest, with the few of us who won, in trying to revive his party."

THE GOVERNORS' unhappiness with Mr. Ford goes beyond reviving the Republican party. They believe he is spending far too much time on foreign travel at a time of deepening recession and general economic crisis at home. The President's WIN — Whip Inflation Now — public relations campaign is ridiculed as outdated in the face of national unemployment expected to approach eight percent next summer.

Gov. William Milliken of Michigan, arguing that "mere rhetoric cannot save our free enterprise system," came here handing out lapel buttons of his own contradicting the White House WIN pins. His pins say BAC — Buy a Car.

Milliken's reelection by 114,000 votes against multiple adversity in the depression-threatened automobile state was a stunning offset to his party's national disaster, but not a single White House political aid has bothered to call him for a post-election analysis.

WORSE YET, Milliken's carefully considered economic program sent to Mr. Ford in a letter one week before the election has never been answered. He proposed a blend of tax reform, vastly more public service employment, extended unemployment compensation and public works. But Milliken's proposals were not considered important enough to warrant a reply.

Most criticism of Mr. Ford and what one governor called his "Nixon holdover" administration was private. But New Hampshire's Gov. Meldrim Thomson, the anti-tax crusader who is indisputably the most conservative of all Republican governors, felt no such scruples. He delivered an angry statement to what he called the "closetful" of Republican survivors (sitting around the huge horseshoe conference table with embarrassingly wide spaces between them) attacking Mr. Ford for "not caring enough" about the future of the Republican party "to help us set the course for the long climb back."

AN HOUR spent with the governors by Jerry Ford would scarcely make a dent on the staggering political problems of his defeated party. There was no such false hope here. "The GOP has a pinhead for a base and we're kidding ourselves if we think it can be turned around in anything like two or three years," Michigan state chairman William McLaughlin told us.

But that handful of Republican governors who survived last month would have been a good place to start. The fact that the President and his political staff didn't see it that way made a bad situation worse, alienating the governors at a time Mr. Ford needs every possible ally.

The Right to Bear Arms

Letters from readers are welcome. Normally, writers should convey their messages in 300 words or less. The right to condense letters to fit space or eliminate libel is reserved. All letters must include signature and mailing address but names may be withheld on request if sufficient reason is apparent. Poetry will not be published.

To the Editor:

I have received some literature from The Citizens Committee for the Right to Keep and Bear Arms.

Their letter urges me to write my local newspaper "to protest the anti-gun distortions of the news media." Contrary to their wish, I am writing you to support federal effort to get rid of handguns except for the possible needs of persons who may live in areas remote from law enforcement agencies.

THE EASE with which people may acquire handguns contributes to their unlawful use. Domestic arguments many times are "settled" with a handgun in a family's possession.

I believe that the "right to bear arms" may have been important in the early days of the growth of this nation, but not today. The lives of too many people are endangered. More strict law enforcement would not have prevented the killing of Bobby Kennedy, Martin Luther King, nor the attempt on George Wallace's life, although handguns alone were not used in all cases, including the killing of President Kennedy.

Agriculture

To the Editor

Your recent editorial regarding the preservation of agriculture in Irvine says that the council should make no decision on the phasing of New Culver Village until it has consciously and deliberately determined what role agriculture will play in Irvine's future.

It seems to me that the council has determined that there will be some agriculture in Irvine's future. The questions are: How much, where, and how to pay for it?

IN THAT regard, I feel that it doesn't belong in the Village of New Culver surrounded by industrial and residential development in the most congested part of our new city. Clearly, if we move forward with the Village, it will be a conscious and deliberate decision to put agriculture somewhere else.

Incidentally, I've also put forth a plan for the acquisition financing of the agricultural land. No one else has come up with another plan except for ones that would cost the taxpayers tremendous sums. Mine won't cost the taxpayers and I challenge anyone to find a flaw in the plan (you have reported it in your newspaper).

Age of Hostility

To the Editor

As a graduate of Orange Coast College and former student of Lee Bradley's Psychology 110 class, I find myself replying to an article in the Daily Pilot of Dec. 5.

IN AN AGE of hostility perpetrated by the high cost of sugar, oil, musing about Watergate and reading newspapers, any constructive class in human communication on a one-to-one basis or group level is beneficial. To touch or not to touch. Each man's separate choice. How? A word, pantomime or a light hand. In any attempt at encountering another person, the real threat of rejection is ever present. This tends to make us silent sieves, dumb and dormant.

The course offered at OCC on personal and human awareness was for me an experience of some magnitude. It was a heavy class and so explained at the beginning of the semester. As the class progressed, I become more circumspect in my outlook and actions as my shortcomings became more obvious.

THIS WAS followed by a true feeling of love for some of my classmates which at best is difficult to express. There also occurred feelings of resentment, anger, frustration and jealousy.

When an instructor with 15 years teaching experience attempts to convey methods of communication in this sensitive area, there will be criticism. If we hope to progress beyond the conversational level of "How are You? . . . "I am fine," then classes such as this must continue.

From an older and more experienced student.

Tax Relief Just an Illusion

EARL WATERS

By now it must be crystal clear to those who must face up to property tax payments, that the relief promised again and again by the Legislature is but an illusion.

Despite the increased aid given to local governments, and the schools, by the state and federal governments, despite the freeze on tax rates imposed on local governments at the insistence of Governor Reagan, the tax bills are higher than ever.

This erosion of homeowner property tax relief, intended by the state subsidized exemptions and the governor's freeze, comes about simply by increasing the assessed valuations. It is a subversion of the intent of the state and federal governments to bring relief to homeowners. For Californians this is the second time that the exemption approach to relief for homeowners has been completely eroded in short order by local governments. The first of $750 was wiped out within two years. The governor then sought an increase to $1750 and attempted to prevent the eroding of this by a freeze on tax rates.

FOR EVEN the hardest heads in the Legislature it should now be starkly obvious that there can be no homeowner relief without a freeze on both tax rates and assessed values. For the state to continue to pour funds into local governments as a means to relieving local property taxes, without first shutting the door tight on both rates and values, accomplishes nothing excepting to encourage more spending on the part of local officials.

And, encouragement is the last thing they need. The appetite for spending exhibited by local governments, especially the schools is insatiable.

In their zeal to tax and spend, spend and tax, and tax and spend, one is reminded of the lemmings. These small rodents, native to the Arctic, are possessed of a congenital desire for self destruction. They, too, have an insatiable appetite. They increase enormously in numbers, exhausting their food supplies. They move steadily across the countryside, regardless of all obstacles, committing devastation in their line of march. Always advancing in the same general direction they ultimately reach the sea where they plunge in and drown.

ONE CANNOT change nature but taxation is a political being, not a creature of nature. It can be changed.

The high property taxes cannot be excused by stating the assessor must increase the valuations because of state law. That would not matter if, on the rise of valuations, the tax rate went down accordingly. But it doesn't go down, despite the millions in additional revenues from state and federal sources. Local officials just don't seem to know how to stop spending.

THE FALLACY of the present system of home taxation is adjusting to current market values even though there is no intent to sell. One buys a home at $10,000, spends his life paying for it, only to find he is now living in a home valued at $40,000 which is beyond his means because of taxes. It's still the same home and it isn't appropriate to be taxed out of it on such a basis.

Assemblyman Gene Chappie, a farmer, is one who has recognized the injustice. He is proposing legislation which would freeze assessed home values. While the details of his proposal haven't been perfected, the aim is to treat homes for what they are, just homes and not speculative land purchases. Property taxes would remain constant until such time as a home is sold. If, at that time a profit has been realized on the sale, taxes would then be assessed on the sale.

Man Robs Navy Base Exchange

MOUNTAIN VIEW (AP) — A lone gunman robbed a Navy Exchange employe at the Moffett Field Naval Air Station and escaped with some $15,000 in cash and checks, a Navy spokesman said.

The Exchange worker had collected the day's receipts from outlying exchanges on the base Thursday evening and was about to deposit the money at the night window of the main exchange building when he was accosted by a man wearing a tan jacket and brandishing a large-caliber pistol, said John Shackleton, Navy information officer.

The gunman took 13 money bags from the man and fled on foot through very dense fog, Shackleton said.

Monterey County Sheriff Jack Davenport will "retire" Dec. 30 — for six days — before being sworn in for new four-year term, so he can collect $2,400 a month salary and $1,500 a month pension under the state's Public Employe Retirement System.

One 'Healthy'

SAN JOSE (UPI) — Mrs. Charlotte Lange held her fragile daughter Jolene, the healthiest of her three surviving sextuplets, in her arms for the first time Thursday.

Jolene is doing well at Valley Medical Center without respiratory support while her two surviving brothers, Brian and Jason, are in serious condition with continuing deterioration of their respiratory system.

Suit Declined

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Attorney General Evelle J. Younger has declined to file suit against former Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti accusing him of violating campaign disclosure laws.

People's Lobby, a political activist group, charged last month that Moretti failed to properly report campaign contributions and expenditures during his unsuccessful bid for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. The group asked Younger to file suit to force compliance with the disclosure law. Younger Thursday said an investigation by his office into the charges found "no willful, knowing, or grossly negligent violations" of the law to warrant a suit.

Act Challenged

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California bankers and a legislator have gone to court in an attempt to block implementation of a lobbyist-control provision of the newly enacted State Political Reform Act.

They insist that the law could require public disclosure of the most minute financial transaction of a state employe, official, or legislator and even members of their families.

The California Bankers Association asked Superior Court Thursday to either declare the challenged section illegal or delay its implementation.

No Body Found

Wife Murdered; Man Convicted

MERCED (AP) — A Contra Costa County gardener convicted Thursday of murdering his estranged wife whose body never was found admitted hours earlier that she is dead, the prosecutor said.

Timothy Bennett, 26, of Concord was convicted of first-degree murder in one of the state's few such guilty verdicts on record where a body never was located.

Mary Jo Bennett, 23, disappeared without a trace after leaving work at the Pacific Telephone Co. here on Oct. 18, 1972.

BENNETT MET with her mother, Ida May Kempel Wednesday night after the jury deliberations began, Dep. Dist. Atty. Robert Quall told newsmen after the verdict.

Quall quoted Bennett as telling his mother-in-law: "If it's any consolation to you, Mary Jo died a sudden and painless death."

BENNETT ALSO tried to commit suicide twice by hanging and slashing his wrists Wednesday night, Quall said.

He also admitted to Quall picking up a woman across from the telephone company and driving south to an overpass near Chowchilla, Quall added.

Bennett said that when he returned to Merced, "If he had killed her, the person he had been with was not with him as far as being alive," Quall said.

These revelations were kept from the jury which deliberated less than two days. Sentencing is scheduled Jan. 2.

THE PROSECUTION presented circumstantial evidence placing Bennett in the area near the time of his wife's disappearance. Bennett said he had a memory lapse for two hours during that period, which was shortly after he had been involved in a minor traffic accident.

The defense argued two hours was insufficient time for Bennett to have abducted, murdered and buried his wife, then plant notes the prosecution claimed he forced her to write.

Slayings Unrelated

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police investigators reported Thursday that viewing an episode of "Police Story" has not provided any clues to the murders of three Skid Row derelicts.

The investigators watched a rerun of the Nov. 26 episode of the NBC television show, which involved the slaying of five derelicts.

Lt. Charles Kilgo, who heads the investigation, said the only relationship between the TV show and the slayings is that all the victims were derelicts.

3 Convicts' Escape Try Discovered

FOLSOM (UPI) — Three convicts from Southern California attempted to cut their way out of the maximum security section of Folsom Prison by using hacksaw blades, prison officials reported Thursday.

The three include a man convicted of murdering four California highway patrolmen and another sentenced for stealing guns in a 1971 plot to free convicted mass-murderer Charles Manson.

3Charged In Grisly Slaying

Chief Deputy Sheriff Herbert Anderson said Thursday, "This is the most heinous crime in which I have been involved in the sheriff's department."

THE VICTIM was redheaded Mark V. Raiter, 25, who was last seen Nov. 25, 1973. His headless body was found floating in the Sacramento River in May, 1974, after apparently being stuffed into a weighted garbage can. His head is believed to have been delivered to someone in Oakland as proof he had been slain on a "contract," officers said.

Anderson said Victor George Pryor, 24, of 3115 Crandall Way, was arrested last week and charged with being an accessory to the disposal of Raiter's body.

Thursday, officers served murder warrants on Daniel Carl Fisk, 31, also known as Blosser, who is now in Folsom Prison on a later voluntary manslaughter conviction, and Harry Otto Daigh, 35, also known as "Fat Jack," who is in Cierra Conservation Center on conviction of illegal possession of firearms by an exconvict.

School Restructure Ordered by Court

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The State Board of Education turned to financing again today in an attempt to deal with a court-ordered restructuring which could cost billions of dollars.

Board members considered a $1.4 billion proposal to equalize the amount of money public school students receive in poor and rich districts.

The state's current school financing system was ruled unconstitutional by a Los Angeles Superior Court because of the educational tax rate disparities that result.

With inflation taken into consideration it could cost an additional $2 billion to bring the system in compliance with the court order by the 1980 deadline. The financing system relies heavily on property taxes.

Thursday, the board adopted a tough conflict-of-interest rule covering persons involved in the selection of millions of dollars worth of textbooks for California schools.

Art Plied By Inmate

SAN QUENTIN (UPI) — Inmates at San Quentin State Prison have been warned there is a counterfeiter among them.

Tickets for photographic service in the visiting room, sold for two packs of cigarettes, are fake, prison officials said.

The warning, published in the San Quentin News, advised inmates "against purchasing picture tickets for cigarettes until the present problem is resolved."

"How come my electric bill is so high? And we've been using less."

We know your electric bill is higher. A lot higher—even though you're conserving electricity. Why? Primarily because of the increased cost of oil.

It's our job to provide the electricity you, your family and your job require. And we must do so in a manner that meets all air pollution control regulations. This means burning foreign, low-sulfur oil in Edison generating plants. The price is set by foreign governments, and it more than tripled in the last 18 months. It could go even higher. Since January, 1972, the increasing costs of oil and the additional amounts we have had to buy are responsible for almost 90% of the increase in your electric bills.

So we won't always be so dependent on foreign oil, we're spending millions of dollars building coal and nuclear plants. We are also researching new ways to generate electricity—without foreign oil. Geothermal power. Solar power. Fuel cells. Fast breeder reactors. Nuclear fusion. Research is costly, but it will also help to reduce our reliance on foreign oil.

Projects related to the environment are expensive, too, and in 1974 will account for about 20% of our capital expenditures. In the past six years, $325 million were required to be spent for such projects. It looks like we will have to spend another $450 million for environmental purposes within the next four-year period.

On top of all this, inflation is eating into our budget—as it is yours. The cost of constructing new plants is 10 times higher than it was a few years ago, and borrowing costs have more than doubled.

Your electric bill will reflect these rising costs. What can you do to hold down your bill? Budget your use of electricity wisely. For ways to do this, send for our free booklet. Write: "Conservation," Edison, P.O. Box 800, Rosemead, CA 91770.

Irvine Moves Closer to Urban Study

By DOUGLAS FRITZSCHE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Irvinecouncil members will hold individual interviews with two consultant firms to decide which will draft a plan detailing the future appearance of the city.

The city and the Irvine Company plan to split the costs of a $50,000 urban design study. The study has been praised as a way to assure an attractive Irvine of the future.

It has also been condemned as a waste of tax money.

The main detractor has been former Irvine councilman Ray Quigley who has called the study a "ripoff" at two recent council sessions.

Council members, however, decided they liked the idea of having such a study at the Aug. 27 meeting and asked for proposals from consultants Sept. 17.

No final decision has been made on whether the study will actually be made, Mayor Gabrielle Pryor told Ray Quigley at this week's council session.

But the former councilman contended that a decision to award the study to one of two consultant firms has been made without any discussion on the merits of the study.

The city's share of the study would amount to $25,000, which Ray Quigley charged was "just another method of spending money to get the city committed to going along with the Irvine Company's urban design plan."

The urban plan is described in a seven-page city planning department report. City Planning Director William Livingstone acknowledges that the area of urban design is loaded with "buzz words," and one part of such a study would be a glossary containing definitions of such terms as streetscape, villagescape, seam, fabric, node and other planning terms.

At council meetings, the plan has been described as a detailed study of all the minutiae which, when assembled, form the city's appearance.

The plan would include descriptions of almost anything commonly seen on city streets. Fire plugs, bus benches, signs, fences, vegetation, the course of sidewalks and the shape of terrain.

Irvine Company officials, primarily planner Don Cameron, have pressed the city to take part in the study. Without city participation, Cameron said, the company probably would not finance the study alone.

George Kurilko, a former Irvine Company planner now with the Sasaki, Walker, Roberts consultant firm, has been considered the top contender for the study.

Two firms are left in the running for award of the bid. In addition to Kurilko's firm, Wallace, McHarg, Roberts and Todd are being considered to perform the study.

Councilman Henry Quigley promised a detailed discussion of the study at the council's Jan. 7 meeting.

Assessor Denies Charges

Tot Death Termed 'Murder'

Jabbing an accusing finger towards Jennifer Elizabeth Dabney, a furious Deputy District Attorney Pat Brian condemned the El Toro woman late Thursday as "the sadistic killer of a helpless baby.

"This was a classic case of murder by torture," Brian snarled as he demanded a verdict of first-degree murder against Mrs. Dabney, 24.

Brian reminded Orange County Superior Court Judge Kenneth Lae who will rule Monday on whether the degree of murder to be charged against Mrs. Dabney is first or second, that she beat both of her eight-month-old twin boys during the months before Robert died last June 1.

Brian said Mrs. Dabney had admitted subjecting the child to a "24-hour orgy of torture" before the baby died in Childrens Hospital in Orange of massive head injuries.

Brian said Mrs. Dabney repeatedly admitted in a taped conversation played back to the jury earlier Thursday that she had subjected baby Robert to a severe beating.

"She then dropped him face and belly down in three inches of water in the bathtub, left him like that for three minutes and then gave him another severe beating when she thought he might still be alive," Brian said.

Brian also reminded Judge Lae of Mrs. Dabney's own admission that she broke the arm of the other baby, John, by twisting it behind the child's back.

The angry Brian then focused on her husband, Marine Corps Sgt. Dennis Eugene Dabney, 24, and vigorously defended the charges of manslaughter filed against the serviceman in the same trial.

"If ever there was a case where a man should get the severest possible penalty for his criminal inaction, it is

Indicted Aides Not Suspended

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Orange County Assessor Jack Vallerga today announced that he has no intention of suspending or taking any type of disciplinary action against seven employes accused in a Grand Jury indictment.

Vallerga emerged from a 24-hour seclusion to condemn any such action as "quite inappropriate at this time.

"As of now they have simply been charged," Vallerga said. "I understand that the Grand Jury investigation is continuing and I see no reason to interfere with their duties at this early stage.

"I have every confidence in the system," Vallerga said. "And I have every confidence that these charges are going to be thrown out at a later stage of the game."

All seven employes and two former assessor's aides who are now retired will be arraigned later today in Superior Court on charges of grand theft, submitting false claims and violating government codes.

It is alleged that the nine drew county money in 1970 for time actually spent in working for what eventually was the election of then county assessor Andrew J. Hinshaw to the 40th District Congressional seat.

Hinshaw's secretary said the Congressman was in the House voting and will not be available to the press until later today.

Later, Hinshaw told the Daily Pilot in a telephone conversation that he is "making no comment at this time on the advice of my attorney."

He said would speak with his attorney again this afternoon to determine if some explanation of his role in the issue could be made.

Vallerga today confirmed that he and Hinshaw appeared before the Grand Jury during a five-month investigation that put 49 witnesses before the investigative panel.

The assessor also confirmed that he declined to testify before the Grand Jury — again like Hinshaw — but stressed that his attitude was dictated on the advice of his lawyer, John Cahill.

"From what I know, there is simply no substance to these charges," Vallerga said. "And, like I said, I have every confidence in the system."

No Accord For Irvine Plans Seen

The Irvine Company's efforts to please everybody with its plans for development of 10,000 acres between Corona del Mar and Laguna Beach are destined to be unsuccessful, company planner Larry Moore told a luncheon gathering Thursday.

But when the company responds to 22 groups who have taken part in planning the company's coastal sector, most of nearly 300 concerns will be satisfied, he said.

Speaking to nearly 150 members of the Orange County Coast Association at the Bahia Corinthian Yacht Club in Newport Beach Moore and Irvine Company President Raymond Watson detailed the history of The Irvine Company Multi-Agency Planning Program (TICMAP).

Composed of 22 public and private groups, the planning body is an Irvine Company effort to head off possible confrontations on its plans for the 10,000 acres which may come up during hearings before the coastal commission or the Orange County Planning Commission.

"There is no ideal solution. That plan can't be drawn," said Moore. "No matter what we come up with, there is going to be some group or agency out there that disagrees with us."

Oil Exporting Nations Hike Crude Price 3%

VIENNA (UPI) — The world's major oil exporting nations decided today to increase the price of crude oil by 31 cents a barrel — 3 percent — on Jan. 1, Iran's Interior Minister Jamshouzegar said.

"The selling price of oil will be $10.46 a barrel effective Jan. 1," Amouzegar said after a two-day meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).

The new price will be frozen for the first nine months of 1975, he said.

The present average selling price of crude oil is $10.15 a 42-gallon barrel, oil industry officials said.

It was not immediately clear whether this would mean an increase in the price of gasoline because of the complicated oil pricing and royalty system which determine oil prices.

Larry Goldstein, a New York oil consultant, said the action by OPEC may not be an increase at all since $10.46 is the market price established last month by Saudi Arabia, Abu Dhabi and Qatar.

The action by OPEC, he said, is "nothing more than a confirmation that this is the market price for everybody."

But, he said, oil companies had been paying an average of $10.36 a barrel for that oil owned by the Arab nations and that owned by the companies. The set price of $10.46 for all OPEC oil, Goldstein said, means "an increase in cost to the companies of 10 cents a barrel."

The earlier increases imposed unilaterally by Saudi Arabia, Abu Dhabi and Qatar had already been passed on by the oil companies through their distributors and the latest action may not mean higher prices for consumers, he said.

Asked if gasoline and home heating oil prices would go up, Amouzegar said: "That depends on how much the oil companies can absorb from their profits."

Iran, he said, proposed limiting oil company profits to 50 cents a barrel. Present oil company profits are about 75 cents a barrel, OPEC officials said.

The increase of 31 cents in the selling price of a barrel of oil was decided by ministers of the 13 OPEC nations meeting in a Vienna hotel following two bomb threats against OPEC headquarters.

OPEC did away with the posted price system which maintained artificially high prices, in favor of the unified system.

Amouzegar said OPEC had been forced to increase the price of oil because three members — Saudi

2nd College Gets Airing By Planners

Plans for Irvine's second higher education campus will be aired before the planning commission Monday night.

But due to environmental report delays, no action is expected on a conditional use permit requested by Christ College.

The 115-acre Lutheran college is proposed for a bowl-shaped area in the hilly terrain in the northwest part of the Turtle Rock area. The site is southeast of the intersection of University and Culver drives.

No roads lead to the site now, but college officials hope to hold a groundbreaking and begin grading the site early next year, according to college secretary Eve Carter.

If the building plans are not held up, she said, classes at Christ College will open in September of 1976.

A total of 18 buildings are planned for the campus, to be built over the next 16 years.

The first buildings, Mrs. Carter said, will include a library and classroom facility, called the Educational Resources Center, and on campus housing.

These buildings, according to college plans, will allow the campus

County Judge Tosses Out Lewd Conduct Charge

Orange County's nude beachgoers may have been given a green light to put it together in the altogether.

Beachgoers who found going rough in the buff in recent months were vindicated late Thursday when South Orange County municipal court Judge John A. Griffin found Charles Anderson of Costa Mesa not guilty of multiple charges filed when he sunbathed in the nude at South Laguna's 9th Street Beach.

Anderson, 27, was found not guilty on charges of lewd conduct and disturbing the peace after defense attorney Bill Sheffield successfully argued that his client had disturbed no one and no sexual intent when he exposed his entire body to the sun.

Anderson is one more than 100 nude beachgoers who have been arrested by sheriff's officers in recent months on such charges.

His acquittal, Sheffield said today, may effectively bar the sheriff from any further arrests of that type.

Judge Griffin's ruling may also mean the end of the county ordinance which Anderson was said to have violated, Sheffield said.

Property owner Willard Cain had earlier argued for the prosecution that nude beachgoing near his cliff top home on South Coast Highway had reached the point that he could no longer invite his grandchildren to the house

Cain is by far the most constant caller to the sheriff's office in all such instances of nudity on the beach.

Sheffield successfully argued that the ordinance under which Anderson also was prosecuted pertained more to nude and semi-nude entertainment than naked sunbathing on the beach.

"I look on this as a test case," the defense attorney said. "And I very much regret that many of the people who have been similarly arrested on these charges decided to plead guilty rather than take the issue to trial as Mr. Anderson did."

Mick Taylor Quits 'Stones'

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) — Guitarist Mick Taylor is quitting the Rolling Stones rock group, Mick Jagger, the band's leader, said today.

Jagger said Taylor is leaving the group after 5½ years for "a change of scene." Taylor "wants the opportunity to try out some new initiatives. While we are all sorry he is going, we wish him great success," he said.

Taylor joined the group in 1969 to replace Brian Jones, who was found dead in his swimming pool.

Irvine Works Office Supply Purchase Deal

The Irvine school district is the cheapest office supply store available, and city government plans to take advantage of 25 to 30 percent savings on the supplies needed to produce its reams of paperwork.

Under a cooperative purchase agreement, the city plans to buy about 75 common office supply items from the district warehouse.

City paperwork added to district paperwork means large district purchases and resulting low prices on each item.

Newport Explosion Guts Boat

By ALMON LOCKABEY
Boating Editor

A boat explosion rocked the Lido North apartment complex on Lido Peninsula with the force of a sonic boom Thursday night. The concussion and fire caused damage to boats in adjacent slips.

Gutted by the explosion and fire was a 35-foot cabin cruiser belonging to David Hreha, 19162 Constellation Lane, Huntington Beach. The boat had been berthed at the marina, 633 Lido Park Drive, with a "for sale" sign on it.

Cause of the explosion was not immediately known, according to James Upton, inspector for the Newport Beach Fire Department.

Occupants of boats in nearby slips were shaken up by the force of the explosion, but no one was injured.

Severely damaged by concussion and heat was the 63-foot Glissando, a converted military Vessel owned by Mark Armistad which was in the adjacent slip. Damage to the Glissando was estimated at $1,500.

A Tahiti ketch on the opposite side of the burned boat was backed into the bay by her owners, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Steele who were aboard another boat about three slips away. It was not immediately determined if the ketch was damaged.

Mr. and Mrs. K.C. Dawson were aboard their 42-foot Yankee ketch two slips away when the explosion occurred. They called the Fire and Harbor departments and attempted to quell the flames with fire extinguishers.

to open in 1976 with 440 students.

Additional housing, a mechanical facility, a gym, a fine arts center, auditorium, bookstore, an international center, a graduate center, science lecture hall, chapel and additional classroom buildings will be built in later years.

The college, Mrs. Carter said, is preparing to launch a fund-raising drive to help finance campus construction.

Most of the financing needed for the first buildings has been provided by the Lutheran Church Missouri Synod.

Requests for funding, she said, will go out to "anyone who wants to support a great college with an evangelical Christian approach."

According to Irvine Planning Director William Livingstone, environmental impact reports on the campus are being revised to reflect the comments of agencies which have reviewed the document.

No action may be taken on the college's application until the planning commission accepts a final environmental impact report.

Monthly Tour Of Upper Bay Set Saturday

The Friends of Upper Newport Bay will conduct their monthly guided tour of the upper bay Saturday morning.

Those who join the free tour will spend an hour and walk about a mile along the bay shore, stopping at eight stations along the way to hear brief lectures on features of the upper bay.

The tour's starting point is at the northwest corner of the intersection of Back Bay and Eastbluff drives. Group tours will leave from there at varying intervals between 9 and 11 a.m.

'CAN'T PLEASE EVERYBODY'
Irvine Company's Moore

Company plans for the area include a 1,345-acre state park, homes for about 50,000 residents and two major resort areas.

The parkland sale, which was to be completed later this month, has been blocked by a preliminary injunction obtained by Joan Irvine Smith, who controls 22 percent of the company's stock.

She contended that the $7.6 million price on the 3.5 miles of beach and bluff and 1,100 acres in Moro Canyon intended for the park was too low.

In addition to the parkland, Moore said, other land in the area designated as open space is still in question. So far, no agency has offered to buy it, he said, and none has offered to maintain it even if the land was a gift.

Regarding the planned open space, Moore said, "The Irvine Company can do other things with these canyons and will insist on being able to do things with these canyons unless some workable solution is arrived at."

The coastal commission or county planners cannot simply confiscate the land or deny the company the right to use it, he said.

Other problems in planning the area, Moore said, include transportation. Pacific Coast Highway is already overloaded, he said, and the cities of Newport Beach and Laguna Beach can be expected to oppose a plan which will mean more traffic through their jurisdictions.

The highway is the only access to the property at this time. Company plans, however, show two roads leading northeast into Irvine and an additional access which could be provided if the Corona del Mar Freeway was to be extended south.

The jury trial will resume in Judge Lae's courtroom at 9:45 a.m. Monday.

AEC Dump Hit By 3 States

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The three Western states that may end up with the Atomic Energy Commission's nuclear garbage dump are unanimous in their criticism of the groundwork for the facility.

Idaho, Nevada and Washington representatives appeared at an AEC public hearing Thursday to register objections to a draft environmental impact statement on setting up a temporary nuclear waste storage facility.

Idaho officials say they want no part of the dump. Nevada is wary, but interested, and Washington is receptive. Texas, which is not even under consideration, is skeptical.

Actress Suffers Setback

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Betty Hutton, the "Blonde Bombshell" of stage and screen who surfaced as a cook in a church rectory last spring after squandering her personal wealth, has been hospitalized for a "complete emotional breakdown."

The Rev. James Hamilton of St. Anthony's Church in Portsmouth said Miss Hutton, 53, was committed at Butler Hospital, a psychiatric facility, by her psychiatrist.

"She's been in since the beginning of the week. I guess they characterize it as complete emotional breakdown," the priest said.

A hospital spokeswoman said "we don't have anyone by that name here and we don't divulge any information on our patients to the press anyway."

Miss Hutton, leading lady of 1940s and 1950s movies and broadway musicals, took over cooking at St. Anthony's Rectory in February and converted to Catholicism.

Father Peter Maguire, the pastor, met her at a time when "she was hurt deeply, had gone through over $9 million, fame and fortune and everything else," as he described it at the time.

Word of her activities at the small, rural church brought a heavy volume of mail from people who remembered her performances, Hamilton said.

"She got 35,000 to 37,000 letters easily. When she would be feeling well, she would try and answer them but the bulk remains untouched."

When word of her arrival in Portsmouth got out last Easter, Miss Hutton was bubbling over with expressions of joy.

"It's a miracle that I'm alive," she said, adding it had been preceded by a time in which she "didn't want to live."

She admitted that the transition was difficult.

"Some days I cry and say 'This just won't work. It won't work.' But they say 'Don't cry Betty. Your eyelashes will come off'."

Hamilton said he did not expect her to return to Portsmouth, "because I don't think she can function here. I think it's something within herself."

She was hospitalized twice since her arrival, once for a medical checkup last spring and for shoulder surgery three months ago.

She responded warmly to the reception from townsfolk and some accompanied her on a bus trip to New York City last June for a tribute paid by old friends in the entertainment business.

Men Get Birth Pill With No Lack of Desire

LONDON (UPI) — A birth control pill for men that produces no loss in sex appetite has been successfully tested by two Australian biochemists, a British science magazine reported today.

Nature Magazine said the pill used in the controlled experiment was a combination of a female hormone, estrogen, and the male hormone androgen already marketed as a cure for bone disorders.

The report said men testing the drug stopped producing sperm after nine to 15 weeks without any visible side effects except for slight nausea at the start of the program.

Sperm cells returned after use of the pill was stopped.

The magazine said there was no known loss of desire on the part of the men being tested.

Several male birth control pills have been produced before, but in each case usage has been accompanied by a sharp decline in sexual desire and the adoption of some female characteristics.

The two Australian scientists, Dr. Michael and Dr. Maxine Briggs of Melbourne's Alfred Hospital, said no such developments occurred in their experiment, according to the magazine.

In the test, four of the five men stopped producing sperm within nine weeks. The fifth stopped in 15 weeks of treatment.

At the end of the test, the magazine said, it was 15 weeks before any of the men began producing sperm again and nine to 10 months before sperm production was back to normal.

Police Roundup Nets 32 on Drug Charges

By ARTHUR R. VINSEL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A sweep through Costa Mesa by teams of narcotics detectives Thursday and today has netted 32 among 42 suspected on-the-street drug dealers, many of them students at two high schools.

The age among those arrested so far ranges from 14 to 35, according to police and includes one diminutive adult, 18, who gave his occupation as race-horse jockey.

Arrest warrants naming most of the arrestees and others still on the streets were issued following a four-month investigation.

Vice and Narcotics Detail Detective Sgt. Gene "Mother" Norden said today it was coordinated with the Orange County Narcotics Task Force and aimed at cutting campus drug use.

"Only a few of the drug buys were conducted on local high school campuses. . .," he explained.

Some parallels exist to a recent mass Los Angeles County drug-dealing roundup in which 226 students from among 20 high schools were taken into custody.

Fourteen more arrests are expected.

No officers were actually enrolled at Costa Mesa or Estancia high schools to investigate the alleged drug trafficking, which he said mainly involved marijuana, hashish, cocaine and amphetamine stimulant tablets.

He said some undercover agents were active on campus, but posed as old hangers-on or dropout students during the four-month probe.

"We've found the trend tends to be more one of selling to close friends or persons they know well," said Sgt. Norden. He suggested this may indicate a growing fear of selling to police agents, due to many arrests in the past 18 months.

Mardian Defense: Timing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The exact time when Richard Kleindienst played golf and his wife quit cleaning her kitchen cabinets to have lunch on Saturday, June 17, 1972, emerged as a vital issue today at the Watergate cover-up trial.

Such seemingly trivial events were at the heart of the defense of Robert C. Mardian, a sometime San Clemente resident, as he seeks to convince the jury he had no part in trying to hush up the scandal.

Five agents of then President Nixon's re-election campaign had been arrested at Democratic headquarters at 2 a.m. and the prosecution charges that Kleindienst, then attorney general, received an urgent message later that day while playing golf at Burning Tree Country Club. The message asked him to release the burglars from jail.

The request allegedly originated with defendant John M. Mitchell, then Nixon's campaign manager and now a cover-up defendant, and was relayed by Mardian on the telephone to Watergate mastermind G. Gordon Liddy, who in turn rushed to the country club to give it to Kleindienst.

Mardian, a former assistant attorney general and Nixon campaign operative, was with the campaign high command in California at the time. He contends that because of the time difference, he could not possibly have called Washington in advance of Liddy's trip to Burning Tree about noon Washington time.

Kleindienst's wife, Margaret, was called to the stand to testify about receiving what she called "a curious call" from Liddy shortly after noon that day.

"He said he was calling on behalf of the Committee to Re-elect the President, for Mr. Mitchell," Mrs. Kleindienst said. "He said it was a very sensitive and urgent matter and needed to contact my husband immediately."

She said she remembered the call came between noon and 12:30 p.m. EDT because she had been cleaning her kitchen cabinets and took a break to have lunch.

The prosecution contends that Liddy called her about 1 p.m. or 1:15 p.m. and that he got to Burning Tree about 1:30 p.m. to 1:45 p.m. — late enough to have received a 10 a.m. PDT call from California. It has been established earlier in the trial that Mardian and other campaign officials learned of the burglary about 10 a.m. PDT.

Mrs. Kleindienst said she remembered telling Liddy that her husband was playing golf and she then called the pro shop at the club to have him paged.

But she conceded on cross-examination that no one at the pro shop remembers talking with her that day and no such message ever was relayed to her husband. She also acknowledged her close friendship with Mardian and admitted she did not remember the timing of Liddy's call until after talking with Mardian about it after he was indicted last March.

Kleindienst testified Thursday about the visit from Liddy, recalling he was having lunch sometime after noon following a golf tournament.

School Seats Attract 9 Candidates

Only nine persons so far have filed for candidacy or taken out the necessary papers to run for trustee in six West Orange County school districts, the county registrar of voters said Thursday.

An election March 5 will decide a total of 12 trusteeships, two each in the Ocean View, Fountain Valley, Seal Beach, Westminster, Huntington Beach City and Huntington Beach High School Districts.

William "Bill" Armstrong, 20522 Pierview Lane, Huntington Beach, is the first to file for a position on the high school district's governing board.

Incumbent Helen Ditte, 8762 Nightingale Ave., Fountain Valley, however, has taken out papers and indicated her intent to run. Dennis Mangers is the other high school board member up for reelection.

In the Huntington Beach City (elementary) School District, Donald A. MacAllister, 1121 Park St., Huntington Beach, has taken out papers.

City schools incumbents whose terms expire in March are Orville Hanson and Louis DaHarb. Both plan to run again.

The two Fountain Valley School District incumbents both have taken out papers and intend to file candidacy. They are Karen Ackley, 17303 Ash St., and Fred Voss, 18578 Cottonwood St., both in Fountain Valley.

Ocean View's incumbents Ralph Bauer and Robert Zinngrabe have said they will not seek reelection. The only person to file to fill their shoes is Marilyn Roberts, 8152 Blaylock Drive, Huntington Beach.

Seal Beach incumbents Ruth L. Calkins, 229 13th St., and Lloyd J. Patterson, 12220 Crestview Ave., both in Seal Beach, have filed, too.

The deadline for filing is Jan. 3 at 5 p.m.

Assessor Denies Charges

Indicted Aides Not Suspended

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Orange County Assessor Jack Vallerga today announced that he has no intention of suspending or taking any type of disciplinary action against seven employes accused in a Grand Jury indictment.

Vallerga emerged from a 24-hour seclusion to condemn any such action as "quite inappropriate at this time.

"As of now they have simply been charged," Vallerga said. "I understand that the Grand Jury investigation is continuing and I see no reason to interfere with their duties at this early stage.

"I have every confidence in the system," Vallerga said. "And I have every confidence that these charges are going to be thrown out at a later stage of the game."

All seven employes and two former assessor's aides who are now retired will be arraigned later today in Superior Court on charges of grand theft, submitting false claims and violating government codes.

It is alleged that the nine drew county money in 1970 for time actually spent in working for what eventually was the election of then county assessor Andrew J. Hinshaw to the 40th District Congressional seat.

Hinshaw's secretary said the Congressman was in the House voting and will not be available to the press until later today.

Later, Hinshaw told the Daily Pilot in a telephone conversation that he is "making no comment at this time on the advice of my attorney."

He said would speak with his attorney again this afternoon to determine if some explanation of his role in the issue could be made.

Vallerga today confirmed that he and Hinshaw appeared before the Grand Jury during a five-month investigation that put 49 witnesses before the investigative panel.

The assessor also confirmed that he declined to testify before the Grand Jury — again like Hinshaw — but stressed that his attitude was dictated on the advice of his lawyer, John Cahill.

"From what I know, there is simply no substance to these charges," Vallerga said. "And, like I said, I have every confidence in the system."

Girl Stabbed On Refusing $1 Change

A youth stabbed a 20-year-old woman in a downtown Huntington Beach phone booth Thursday after she refused him change for a dollar, police said today.

The wound inflicted was minor, and Mrs. Karen Dew, a downtown Huntington Beach resident, did not require immediate medical attention, according to police.

Mrs. Dew had been talking on the phone in a booth at Main Street and Orange Avenue about 5:30 p.m. when the suspect first approached her. Police said he asked for change for a dollar and she gave it to him.

He made a telephone call in an adjacent phone booth. Then, police said, he asked Mrs. Dew if she had change for another dollar. She said no.

Mrs. Dew told police the man pushed the door of the phone booth open and stabbed her.

Market Holdup

Valley Officers Seize 3 Youths

By KATHY CLANCY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Three El Toro teenagers were arrested by Fountain Valley police Thursday afternoon in connection with a pre-noon market holdup that ended in gunfire.

Police reported one of the three said they chose a Fountain Valley market because "there isn't too many pigs in Fountain Valley."

Booked into Orange County Jail on an armed robbery charge was Layne Sweany, 18, of 22906 Leo Lane, El Toro. His 17-year-old girlfriend was released in custody of her mother, while a 17-year-old boy was taken to Juvenile Hall.

The two boys entered the Stop N Go market at Bushard Street and Clover Avenue at 11 a.m., police reported, leaving the girl as lookout at a phone booth outside.

Police said Sweany allegedly pointed a gun at the store owner, Leonard Gordon, while his companion opened the cash register, taking an undetermined amount of cash.

During the caper, the juvenile also allegedly struck Gordon on the head "with some hard object," leaving a gash that required four stitches to close.

The trio then fled, as Gordon chased them, firing several shots and yelling "freeze" as they ran. He missed all three.

A patrolman spotted the two boys three hours later, walking down a sidewalk a block from the market. Police said the pair matched the description given by witnesses. As the patrol car approached, Sweany ran behind a block wall, where the officer captured him a moment later. Both Sweany and the juvenile were arrested without incident.

The girl fled from the market to a neighboring apartment complex where the trio had left a car borrowed from Sweany's father. Police said she drove through the area for some time, searching for her companions, then returned home.

In the meantime, the two boys told police her name and address, and officers were waiting at her home in El Toro when she arrived.

Officers said none of the three had any of the money allegedly taken in the heist or the gun believed used, but they were searching the neighborhood today for both.

A youthful witness at the robbery scene told reporters she was in a telephone booth outside when the trio ran past.

When Gordon yelled "freeze," she said she ran across the street and hid behind a car.

"Then some lady runs up and says, 'there's one'," she said, and the woman pointed her out to Gordon.

"And he came out with a gun and pointed it at me and he looked pretty mad," the girl recalled.

Then she said she quickly explained, "I'm not one of them. I don't know anything."

The market reportedly has been robbed twice in the past year, four times since it was purchased by Gordon.

Crude Price Hiked 3% By Exporters

VIENNA (UPI) — The world's major oil exporting nations decided today to increase the price of crude oil by 31 cents a barrel — 3 percent — on Jan. 1, Iran's Interior Minister Jamshouzegar said.

"The selling price of oil will be $10.46 a barrel effective Jan. 1," Amouzegar said after a two-day meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).

The new price will be frozen for the first nine months of 1975, he said.

The present average selling price of crude oil is $10.15 a 42-gallon barrel, oil industry officials said.

It was not immediately clear whether this would mean an increase in the price of gasoline because of the complicated oil pricing and royalty system which determine oil prices.

Larry Goldstein, a New York oil consultant, said the action by OPEC may not be an increase at all since $10.46 is the market price established last month by Saudi Arabia, Abu Dhabi and Qatar.

The action by OPEC, he said, is "nothing more than a confirmation that this is the market price for everybody."

But, he said, oil companies had been paying an average of $10.36 a

County to Take Over Harbour Patrol Duty

By TERRY COVILLE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A written agreement for the transfer of Huntington Harbour patrol duties from Huntington Beach to Orange County should be approved by both agencies next week.

The seven-page document is on Monday night's city council agenda and will go before county supervisors on Tuesday.

City Administrator Dave Rowlands said he expects the county to take over the harbor patrol duties Wednesday if both agencies sign the agreement.

"I think this agreement is very satisfactory," Rowlands said today. "We may actually get better service from the county because they have a 24-hour patrol. Our patrols only work two shifts."

The transfer is expected to save city taxpayers about $100,000 on this year's budget and a little more than $200,000 annually after that.

The Orange County Department of Harbors, Beaches and Parks will pick up the patrol of Huntington Harbour channels with little additional expense, according to county officials.

"Our city taxpayers already pay $900,000 a year to that district," Rowlands said, referring to the county tax for harbors, beaches and parks. "It seems silly to have the duplication."

When the transfer of patrol duties was first suggested, Vince Moorhouse, the city's director of harbors and beaches, complained the county could not provide the same quality of service as the city.

Rowlands, however, believes the written agreement guarantees high quality service and outlines the duties to be performed by county personnel.

It specifies that the county will en-

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Eight of the nation's largest chemical firms, including E. I. duPont de Nemours, were handed fines ranging up to $50,000 today on price fixing charges.

DuPont and the Verona Corp. were fined $50,000, the maximum under current antitrust laws, by U.S. District Judge Lawrence A. Whipple.

The other fines were: Allied Chemical Co., American Cyanamid BASF-Wyandotte, all $43,500; CIBA-Geigy and GAF Corp., $45,000, and Crompton & Knowles Coro., $40,000 ...

DOW OFF AGAIN; TRADE SLUGGISH

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials lost 4.46 points to 591.91, and losers outpaced gainers by about 9 to 5 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Robot Visitor Proves to Be Kidnap Victim

When Santa came to a Fountain Valley home Thursday night, the family called the cops.

And Fountain Valley police were glad they did, because the Santa was a 5-foot mechanical Kris Kringle "kidnaped" Thursday from the Crossroads Restaurant at Brookhurst Street and Talbert Avenues.

Today, Santa is back in the restaurant foyer, whirring and whizzing as he waves to the clientele.

A restaurant employe said the Fountain Valley family who discovered the jolly fellow, called police and said, "Hey, there's a Santa in my front yard."

The mechanical model was taken sometime early this morning.

Mick Taylor Quits 'Stones'

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) — Guitarist Mick Taylor is quitting the Rolling Stones rock group, Mick Jagger, the band's leader said today.

Jagger said Taylor is leaving the group after 5½ years for "a change of scene." Taylor "wants the opportunity to try out some new initiatives. While we are all sorry he is going, we wish him great success," he said.

Taylor joined the group in 1969 to replace Brian Jones, who was found dead in his swimming pool.

Plan Withdrawn

Residents Win Complex Fight

A group of Fountain Valley and Westminster residents has won a battle to head off a proposed 50-acre commercial and industrial project in their neighborhood.

But City Administrator Robert Huntley said today that doesn't necessarily mean the land will be developed for homes.

Golden West Equity Properties, Inc., this week withdrew its site plan for the industrial complex and announced plans to ask the area be rezoned for houses.

Huntley explained, however, that in the past the city has considered the 50-acre parcel as valuable for industrial development because of increased taxes derived from that use.

He said he didn't know if the Planning Commission and City Council would approve a request to rezone it residential.

Golden West's industrial project was to have been located in Westminster just across the Fountain Valley city border at the southwest corner of Magnolia Street and Edinger Avenue.

About 200 Westminster and Fountain Valley residents crowded into city hall Monday night for a hearing on the project's site plan, but Richard Stenton, vice president of Golden West, announced he was withdrawing the proposal.

In a letter to the Planning Commission, he listed "a substantial amount of protest" from residents as the reason. He added "in the near future" he would ask that the land be rezoned for homes.

A month ago more than 200 Fountain Valley and Westminster residents picketed the proposed industrial site, and they gathered more than 1,000 names on a petition opposing the project.

The site plan earlier had been approved by the Planning Commission and was before the City Council, when it was sent back to planning, because city officials had used last year's county assessment roles rather than current roles in notifying neighboring property owners.

As a result, 30 residents of 220 involved, were not notified.

SCAG Chiefs Will Oppose New Agency

Elected officials who serve as delegates to the powerful Southern California Association of Governments SCAG are gearing up to fight state proposals to create a new super agency to adminster California's coastal development.

In a session in Los Angeles Thursday, the SCAG executive committee has agreed to call a meeting of interested cities within the coastal sector of the Southland in order to coordinate a possible battle against a new element to the state coastal plan that would set up the superagency.

The Powers, Funding and Government element of the coastal land-use plan sets up the framework for a new state panel that would rule on all changes within five miles of the shoreline.

The present system of regional commissions affects changes only within 1,000 yards of the sea.

The Powers, Funding and Government element would expand land-use control to the entire five-mile planning area set up by the passage of the Coastal Initiative.

And South Coast Commission Member and SCAG delegate Ralph Diedrich was outspoken about the controversial plan element.

"There is going to be some strong language in there and it's going to cause some problems," the commissioner and Orange County Supervisor told fellow members of the SCAG Executive Committee.

The greatest concern about the plans for the successor agency on coastal land use is the total loss of local control over the destiny of the state coastline.

Diedrich said that if city and county officials are concerned about the dearth of control in the new system—and the concern already is welling—then the time is right to band together and effect major changes in the proposed planning element.

Hayes Appoints Proxy for Post On Coast Panel

Los Angeles County Supervisor James Hayes — whose membership on the South Coast Regional commission has eaten deeply into his schedule — now has appointed a proxy to help him out.

Hayes, who was elected to chair the county board of supervisors recently, named a top aide to serve as an alternate on the coastal commission.

At the regional level, Hayes often has had to leave sessions before adjournment and before selecting Szabo, he ordered his secretary to monitor the session in his absence.

Exact Time 'Vital Issue'

Trivial Events Noted in Mardian Defense

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The exact time when Richard Kleindienst played golf and his wife quit cleaning her kitchen cabinets to have lunch on Saturday, June 17, 1972, emerged as a vital issue today at the Watergate cover-up trial.

Such seemingly trivial events were at the heart of the defense of Robert C. Mardian, a sometime San Clemente resident, as he seeks to convince the jury he had no part in trying to hush up the scandal.

Five agents of then President Nixon's re-election campaign had been arrested at Democratic headquarters at 2 a.m. and the prosecution charges that Kleindienst, then attorney general, received an urgent message later that day while playing golf at Burning Tree Country Club. The message asked him to release the burglars from jail.

The request allegedly originated with defendant John M. Mitchell, then Nixon's campaign manager and now a cover-up defendant, and was relayed by Mardian on the telephone to Watergate mastermind G. Gordon Liddy, who in turn rushed to the country club to give it to Kleindienst.

Mardian, a former assistant attorney general and Nixon campaign operative, was with the campaign high command in California at the time. He contends that because of the time difference, he could not possibly have called Washington in advance of Liddy's trip to Burning Tree about noon Washington time.

Kleindienst's wife, Margaret, was called to the stand to testify about receiving what she called "a curious call" from Liddy shortly after noon that day.

"He said he was calling on behalf of the Committee to Re-elect the President, for Mr. Mitchell," Mrs. Kleindienst said. "He said it was a very sensitive and urgent matter and needed to contact my husband immediately."

She said she remembered the call came between noon and 12:30 p.m. EDT because she had been cleaning her kitchen cabinets and took a break to have lunch.

The prosecution contends that Liddy called her about 1 p.m. or 1:15 p.m. and that he got to Burning Tree about 1:30 p.m. to 1:45 p.m. — late enough to have received a 10 a.m. PDT call from California. It has been established earlier in the trial that Mardian and other campaign officials learned of the burglary about 10 a.m. PDT.

Mrs. Kleindienst said she remembered telling Liddy that her husband was playing golf and she then called the pro shop at the club to have him paged.

But she conceded on cross-examination that no one at the pro shop remembers talking with her that day and no such message ever was relayed to her husband. She also acknowledged her close friendship with Mardian and admitted she did not remember the timing of Liddy's call until after talking with Mardian about it after he was indicted last March.

Men's Birth Control Pill Held Successful

LONDON (UPI) — A birth control pill for men that produces no loss in sex appetite has been successfully tested by two Australian biochemists, a British science magazine reported today.

Nature Magazine said the pill used in the controlled experiment was a combination of a female hormone, estrogen, and the male hormone androgen already marketed as a cure for bone disorders.

The report said men testing the drug stopped producing sperm after nine to 15 weeks without any visible side effects except for slight nausea at the start of the program.

Sperm cells returned after use of the pill was stopped.

The magazine said there was no known loss of desire on the part of the men being tested.

Several male birth control pills have been produced before, but in each case usage has been accompanied by a sharp decline in sexual desire and the adoption of some female characteristics.

The two Australian scientists, Dr. Michael and Dr. Maxine Briggs of Melbourne's Alfred Hospital, said no such developments occurred in their experiment, according to the magazine.

In the test, four of the five men stopped producing sperm within nine weeks. The fifth stopped in 15 weeks of treatment.

At the end of the test, the magazine said, it was 15 weeks before any of the men began producing sperm again and nine to 10 months before sperm production was back to normal.

Four Bicycles To Be Given Fund Winners

Four bicycles will be given away Saturday to the top fund-raisers during last summer's Bike-a-Thon, sponsored by the Huntington Beach-Fountain Valley YMCA.

The event brought in more than $4,000 to be used in renovating the YMCA's new headquarters.

Bike winners are: For five to eight year olds, Herbie Becher, 6551 Walt St., Westminster, and Bobby Frahm, 17452 Meer Circle, Huntington Beach; nine to 14 year olds, Bobby's brother, Gary, and in the adult age bracket, Dick Wilbur of 6432 Flint Drive, Huntington Beach.

The bicycles, as well as bike accessories given as second and third prizes, were donated by the Bicycle Baron, 15901 Golden West Street, Huntington Beach.

OIL. . .

barrel for that oil owned by the Arab nations and that owned by the companies. The set price of $10.46 for all OPEC oil, Goldstein said, means "an increase in cost to the companies of 10 cents a barrel."

The earlier increases imposed unilaterally by Saudi Arabia, Abu Dhabi and Qatar had already been passed on by the oil companies through their distributors and the latest action may not mean higher prices for consumers, he said.

Asked if gasoline and home heating oil prices would go up, Amouzegar said: "That depends on how much the oil companies can absorb from their profits."

Iran, he said, proposed limiting oil company profits to 50 cents a barrel. Present oil company profits are about 75 cents a barrel, OPEC officials said.

The increase of 31 cents in the selling price of a barrel of oil was decided by ministers of the 13 OPEC nations meeting in a Vienna hotel following two bomb threats against OPEC headquarters.

OPEC did away with the posted price system which maintained artificially high prices, in favor of the unified system.

Amouzegar said OPEC had been forced to increase the price of oil because three members — Saudi Arabia, Abu Dhabi and Qatar — raised their prices at a meeting in Abu Dhabi last month.

"We had two choices — either to go back to the September price system, and this would mean the three Arab members reversing their decision, which they would not do, or adopt the Abu Dhabi price," he said.

"We adopted the Abu Dhabi price, not a penny more.

"You can't have two prices from the same oil from the same spot (Middle East)."

force all navigational laws, handle water-oriented firefighting duties and keep the channels clear for navigation.

One of the key elements the city obtained is an agreement to allow county officers to be trained by the Huntington Beach Fire Department.

The city has agreed to keep one small boat to clean out rubbish periodically from some of the small inlets and dock areas.

Huntington Beach will maintain control of issuing permits for any land-connected structures, but the county will have the last word on dredging or channel work.

The agreement also lists specific standards for response times to fire calls, emergency medical runs and other special operations — an agreement which city personnel wanted.

It also lists several other minor areas of service standards city personnel had requested.

Nude Bather Cleared —Beaches Now Open?

Orange County's nude beachgoers may have been given a green light to put it together in the altogether.

Beachgoers who found going rough in the buff in recent months were vindicated late Thursday when South Orange County municipal court Judge John A. Griffin found Charles Anderson of Costa Mesa not guilty of multiple charges filed when he sunbathed in the nude at South Laguna's 9th Street Beach.

Anderson, 27, was found not guilty on charges of lewd conduct and disturbing the peace after defense attorney Bill Sheffield successfully argued that his client had disturbed no one and no sexual intent when he exposed his entire body to the sun.

Anderson is one more than 100 nude beachgoers who have been arrested by sheriff's officers in recent months on such charges.

His acquittal, Sheffield said today, may effectively bar the sheriff from any further arrests of that type.

Judge Griffin's ruling may also mean the end of the county ordinance which Anderson was said to have violated, Sheffield said.

Property owner Willard Cain had earlier argued for the prosecution that nude beachgoing near his cliff top home on South Coast Highway had reached the point that he could no longer invite his grandchildren to the house.

Cain is by far the most constant caller to the sheriff's office in all such instances of nudity on the beach.

Sheffield successfully argued that the ordinance under which Anderson also was prosecuted pertained more to nude and semi-nude entertainment than naked sunbathing on the beach.

"I look on this as a test case," the defense attorney said. "And I very much regret that many of the people who have been similarly arrested on these charges decided to plead guilty rather than take the issue to trial as Mr. Anderson did."

Tax Hike Sought March 4

Voters in the Fountain Valley School District will be asked March 4 to approve a tax increase of 67.4 cents instead of the 75 cents once planned. planned.

Assistant Superintendent Charles Woodfin explained the lower tax was the result of a projected 10 percent increase expected next year in assessed valuation.

The tax measure was designed to provide $975,000 in new revenue, Woodfin explained. Based on this year's assessed value, 75 cents would be necessary, but with an expected 10 percent increase next year, the 67.4 cents will produce the needed revenue.

The tax hike will cost the owner of a $50,000 home $84.25 a year. The district's current tax rate is $2.80 per $100 of assessed valuation.

Woodfin said the measure would increase district expenditure per student from $825 a year to $906.

Woodfin also explained that both the $2.80 tax rate and 67.4-cent override probably will be reduced each year.

He said that under provisions of Senate Bill 90, the state school financing measure, voters would not be approving an actual tax rate, but rather a dollar revenue amount.

As assessed valuation increases, at about 10 percent a year in Fountain Valley, the local rate would drop, Woodfin said.

The largest portion of the new revenue, $767,000, would go for salaries, benefits, and relieving large classes. An additional $104,000 would be used for guidance and counseling, $90,000 for educationally handicapped programs and $13,000 for speech programs.

Group to Give Findings on Overcrowding

The Citizens Committee for Better Schools Saturday will compile its recommendations on coping with overcrowding in the Huntington Beach Union High School District.

The committee will meet at 9 a.m. in the city council chambers at Huntington Beach Civic Center.

The high school district board of trustees has asked the committee for its advice on overcrowding, now that the tax override, which both supported, failed at the polls.

The committee hopes to hear from many people in the community, including those who opposed the tax override, before finalizing its recommendations to the school board, according to committee chairman and city council member Harriett Wieder.

Market Clerk Shoots Himself In Accident

A clerk going off duty at a Huntington Beach convenience market today pulled a gun from under the counter, put it in his waistband and shot himself in the leg.

Police said Vincent Calli, 57, of Westminster was about to leave the 7-Eleven store at Warner Avenue and Newland Street when the accident occurred at about 7:30 a.m.

Paramedics took Calli to Huntington Intercommunity Hospital where he received treatment before being transferred to the Veteran's Administration Hospital in Long Beach.

Calli told Huntington emergency room staff the gun was a .22 caliber. The bullet lodged in his thigh.

School Leadership

If ever west Orange County schools had a need for leadership and direction it is now. Times cry for talent and dedication to be applied to multi-layered educational problems.

The Huntington Beach Union High School District has 5,000 more students than its campuses were built to hold.

People of Fountain Valley, who want out of that district, are swimming in a sea of red tape and uncertainty.

Fountain Valley and Westminster School districts are asking voters for tax increases of 67 and 87 cents to content teachers and balance budgets.

Unification looms everywhere, as does all-out verbal warfare among districts like Ocean View and Huntington Beach which might be merged despite vastly different educational philosophies.

It is obvious that good leadership is essential in seemingly forever-troubled times of the school world.

We hope those who can provide that guiding light and feel the citizen's obligation to contribute to the community will meet the registrar of voters' Jan. 3 deadline and file their candidacy for 12 trusteeships to be open in six area school districts.

Practical Dream

On the surface, a request by the city of Huntington Beach for $1.7 million to build a 2,000-car parking lot next to the San Diego Freeway sounds like a far-fetched boondoggle.

But scratch a little deeper and you find the project has some far-reaching, rather than far-fetched, possibilities. The city wants to buy 32 acres north of Huntington Center to serve as a "multi-modal transportation center." The location is good for mass transit — by bus, rail, monorail, car pool, etc. — not only to local shopping centers, beaches and industrial zones, but also to downtown Los Angeles, Los Angeles International Airport, and the Irvine industrial complex.

If linked by monorail to a beachfront monorail system, it would serve in the summer as an excellent park-and-ride system for tourists to the local beaches, according to Public Works Director Bill Hartge.

Hartge admits the project is "just a dream" at present and does not stand a very good chance of attracting the federal funds this year. But it may be a dream worth pursuing

Good Example

Marge Schneider, a Fountain Valley housewife active in many community projects, was a wise choice for the first annual Citizen of the Year Award presented by the Fountain Valley Chamber of Commerce.

The mother of four said she decided to "get involved" at the suggestion of her husband after the family moved to Fountain Valley 12 years ago. As the city grew, so did Mrs. Schneider's community involvement.

She is serving this year as president of the Fountain Valley School District's Superintendent-Parent Council, is active in the Tamura School PTO, Little League, as well as in her church and in civic groups.

In presenting the award Tuesday night, Fred Roberson, chamber president, pointed out that even to be nominated for the award was an honor, and the selection committee had a difficult task.

We offer our congratulations to Mrs. Schneider. She exemplifies the ideal citizen of a primarily residential community, which places high emphasis on quality education, a spirit of community cooperation and enriched family living.

'Lovelock' Can't Match 'Wedlock'

SYDNEY HARRIS

In reply to a random query of mine some time ago— "What name should we apply to the many couples today who are living together though not married?"—I have received a number of both palatable and ribald suggestions. Two of the most frequent were "cohabs," and "lovelock" instead of "wedlock."

Interestingly enough, one of the reasons modern young people object to the term "wedlock" is the implication that the couple is manacled or handcuffed together in the institution of matrimony. They resent the idea of being "locked" together by a law.

BUT THIS is a misreading of the old Anglo-Saxon word: "wedlock" meant "marriage pledge," and the suffix "lock" had nothing at all to do with handcuffing people together. (It is like the word "sweetheart," where the "heart" part has nothing to do with that organ of the body, but was originally "sweetard," in the same form as "coward" and "dotard.")

Time and custom shape and distort words, and then the words themselves become a kind of tyranny, so that we respond to the distortion rather than to the basic meaning. Indeed, the very word "tyranny" is a perfect example of what happens to a word throughout history.

The earliest "tyrants" in ancient Greece were simply absolute rulers or monarchs, with no implication of cruelty. Both Pericles and Pisistratus were "tyrants," but they were model rulers of wisdom and tolerance. Gradually, however, the word began to assume its later connotation of harshness and oppression, and utterly lost its primal neutral meaning.

FOR COUPLES to live in "lovelock" rather than "wedlock" suggests they have pledged their love—but what value is such a pledge, if it can be withdrawn at the whim of either, with no lasting sense of commitment? The word "pledge" itself means a "guarantee"—but a guarantee is empty if you are not willing to make good on it.

It is my feeling that we have not yet, as a species, arrived at any finally satisfactory form of man-woman relations. The traditional form of matrimony is too filled with rigidities, injustices, and inconsistencies; yet the new "cohabs" have merely exchanged one set of difficulties for another, for without a deep sense of permanence and commitment the living-fabric is too fragile to sustain a family.

THE NUB of the problem is that the human infant, unlike all others, needs years of stable development before it is ready to cope with its physical and social environment. Without children, marriage might be unnecessary; with children, it may be a necessary evil, capable of being ameliorated, but not eliminated from the social structure.

GOP Survivors Alienated

Ford Absence Offends Governors

EVANS-NOVAK

ST. LOUIS — Unfairly or not, the thimbleful of Republican governors and governors-elect who survived the Democratic landslide of Nov. 5 were outraged that President Ford could not make a brief appearance at their midwinter conference here last week after his long journey to the Far East.

Indeed, intensive negotiations had started in mid-November with low-level White House aides to arrange a visit by Mr. Ford that would lend Presidential endorsement to party-rebuilding efforts. Yet, despite repeated telephone calls to the White House by host Gov. Christopher Bond of Missouri, presidential aides insisted Mr. Ford could not spare a couple of hours. Contact was never made with Dean Burch, Mr. Ford's political adviser until his resignation last week, who took no interest in the governors' appeal.

THIS non-appearance by a President who was sharply criticized for traveling to real estate conventions in Las Vegas added to the funereal gloom at the governors' conference. Even before they learned he would not appear, the governors were grumbling over Mr. Ford's performance as both party chief and national leader.

Their aggravation did not peak until word spread that even William Seidman, the highest White House aide scheduled to meet the governors, was going to back out on his scheduled appearance.

With tempers rising among the governors, White House aide James Falk, Mr. Ford's chief liaison with the governors, rushed to a pay phone here with an SOS to the White House. That firmed up Seidman's appearance and also brought Falk's boss, Domestic Council chief Ken Cole, to the session.

But it scarcely mitigated disappointment with Mr. Ford. One governor, reelected last month by a huge majority while other Republican candidates in his state were losing, told us: "This would have been the perfect place for Jerry Ford to come and show his interest, with the few of us who won, in trying to revive his party."

THE GOVERNORS' unhappiness with Mr. Ford goes beyond reviving the Republican party. They believe he is spending far too much time on foreign travel at a time of deepening recession and general economic crisis at home. The President's WIN — Whip Inflation Now — public relations campaign is ridiculed as outdated in the face of national unemployment expected to approach eight percent next summer.

Gov. William Milliken of Michigan, arguing that "mere rhetoric cannot save our free enterprise system," came here handing out lapel buttons of his own contradicting the White House WIN pins. His pins say BAC — Buy a Car.

Milliken's reelection by 114,000 votes against multiple adversity in the depression-threatened automobile state was a stunning offset to his party's national disaster, but not a single White House political aid has bothered to call him for a post-election analysis.

WORSE YET, Milliken's carefully considered economic program sent to Mr. Ford in a letter one week before the election has never been answered. He proposed a blend of tax reform, vastly more public service employment, extended unemployment compensation and public works. But Milliken's proposals were not considered important enough to warrant a reply.

Most criticism of Mr. Ford and what one governor called his "Nixon holdover" administration was private. But New Hampshire's Gov. Meldrim Thomson, the anti-tax crusader who is indisputably the most conservative of all Republican governors, felt no such scruples. He delivered an angry statement to what he called the "closetful" of Republican survivors (sitting around the huge horseshoe conference table with embarrassingly wide spaces between them) attacking Mr. Ford for "not caring enough" about the future of the Republican party "to help us set the course for the long climb back."

AN HOUR spent with the governors by Jerry Ford would scarcely make a dent on the staggering political problems of his defeated party. There was no such false hope here. "The GOP has a pinhead for a base and we're kidding ourselves if we think it can be turned around in anything like two or three years," Michigan state chairman William McLaughlin told us.

But that handful of Republican governors who survived last month would have been a good place to start. The fact that the President and his political staff didn't see it that way made a bad situation worse, alienating the governors at a time Mr. Ford needs every possible ally.

The Right to Bear Arms

MAILBOX

Letters from readers are welcome. Normally, writers should convey their messages in 300 words or less. The right to condense letters to fit space or eliminate libel is reserved. All letters must include signature and mailing address but names may be withheld on request if sufficient reason is apparent. Poetry will not be published.

To the Editor:

I have received some literature from The Citizens Committee for the Right to Keep and Bear Arms.

Their letter urges me to write my local newspaper "to protest the anti-gun distortions of the news media." Contrary to their wish, I am writing you to support federal effort to get rid of handguns except for the possible needs of persons who may live in areas remote from law enforcement agencies.

THE EASE with which people may acquire handguns contributes to their unlawful use. Domestic arguments many times are "settled" with a handgun in a family's possession.

I believe that the "right to bear arms" may have been important in the early days of the growth of this nation, but not today. The lives of too many people are endangered. More strict law enforcement would not have prevented the killing of Bobby Kennedy, Martin Luther King, nor the attempt on George Wallace's life, although handguns alone were not used in all cases, including the killing of President Kennedy.

CARTER McDONALD

Incident

To the Editor:

I would like to relate a minor incident that happened to me and my 13-year-old son when we went to a basketball game at Marina High School in Huntington Beach. The incident made me angry, and in spite of the fact that I know better, I felt anger toward all school administrators, even those who had nothing to do with what happened.

MY SON was refused admittance to the game for the student price because we could not prove that he was my son. We had not been asked for identification at a game earlier in the week. I don't normally carry his birth certificate with me. The average 13 year-old does not have a driver's license or draft card. He has a social security card but doesn't carry it. He didn't even have a wallet with him because I was going to buy his ticket. The result was that I refused to pay the extra dollar even though I could have afforded it. I simply felt that it was not just for us to have to pay it.

The reason that I am relating this is that I think it is the exact opposite of what I have noticed is happening in many places. People are beginning to be nicer to one another. I attribute this to the depression and the fact that people are fearing for their jobs. They probably perceive that a lot of people are in trouble and there is no need to add to their problems without reason. What hurts me personally is that I will never again feel so kindly toward the fine Marina High School, and all because some employe was only doing his duty as it was set forth for him.

Age of Hostility

To the Editor

As a graduate of Orange Coast College and former student of Lee Bradley's Psychology 110 class, I find myself replying to an article in the Daily Pilot of Dec. 5.

IN AN AGE of hostility perpetrated by the high cost of sugar, oil, musing about Watergate and reading newspapers, any constructive class in human communication on a one-to-one basis or group level is beneficial. To touch or not to touch. Each man's separate choice. How? A word, pantomine or a light hand. In any attempt at encountering another person, the real threat of rejection is ever present. This tends to make us silent sieves, dumb and dormant.

The course offered at OCC on personal and human awareness was for me an experience of some magnitude. It was a heavy class and so explained at the beginning of the semester. As the class progressed, I become more circumspect in my outlook and actions as my shortcomings became more obvious.

THIS WAS followed by a true feeling of love for some of my classmates which at best is difficult to express. There also occurred feelings of resentment, anger, frustration and jealousy.

When an instructor with 15 years teaching experience attempts to convey methods of communication in this sensitive area, there will be criticism. If we hope to progress beyond the conversational level of "How are You? . . . "I am fine," then classes such as this must continue.

CHUCK FIELD

Tax Relief Just an Illusion

EARL WATERS

By now it must be crystal clear to those who must face up to property tax payments, that the relief promised again and again by the Legislature is but an illusion.

Despite the increased aid given to local governments, and the schools, by the state and federal governments, despite the freeze on tax rates imposed on local governments at the insistence of Governor Reagan, the tax bills are higher than ever.

This erosion of homeowner property tax relief, intended by the state subsidized exemptions and the governor's freeze, comes about simply by increasing the assessed valuations. It is a subversion of the intent of the state and federal governments to bring relief to homeowners. For Californians this is the second time that the exemption approach to relief for homeowners has been completely eroded in short order by local governments. The first of $750 was wiped out within two years. The governor then sought an increase to $1750 and attempted to prevent the eroding of this by a freeze on tax rates.

FOR EVEN the hardest heads in the Legislature it should now be starkly obvious that there can be no homeowner relief without a freeze on both tax rates and assessed values. For the state to continue to pour funds into local governments as a means to relieving local property taxes, without first shutting the door tight on both rates and values, accomplishes nothing excepting to encourage more spending on the part of local officials.

And, encouragement is the last thing they need. The appetite for spending exhibited by local governments, especially the schools is insatiable.

In their zeal to tax and spend, spend and tax, and tax and spend, one is reminded of the lemmings. These small rodents, native to the Arctic, are possessed of a congenital desire for self destruction. They, too, have an insatiable appetite. They increase enormously in numbers, exhausting their food supplies. They move steadily across the countryside, regardless of all obstacles, committing devastation in their line of march. Always advancing in the same general direction they ultimately reach the sea where they plunge in and drown.

ONE CANNOT change nature but taxation is a political being, not a creature of nature. It can be changed.

The high property taxes cannot be excused by stating the assessor must increase the valuations because of state law. That would not matter if, on the rise of valuations, the tax rate went down accordingly. But it doesn't go down, despite the millions in additional revenues from state and federal sources. Local officials just don't seem to know how to stop spending.

THE FALLACY of the present system of home taxation is adjusting to current market values even though there is no intent to sell. One buys a home at $10,000, spends his life paying for it, only to find he is now living in a home valued at $40,000 which is beyond his means because of taxes. It's still the same home and it isn't appropriate to be taxed out of it on such a basis.

Assemblyman Gene Chappie, a farmer, is one who has recognized the injustice. He is proposing legislation which would freeze assessed home values. While the details of his proposal haven't been perfected, the aim is to treat homes for what they are, just homes and not speculative land purchases. Property taxes would remain constant until such time as a home is sold. If, at that time a profit has been realized on the sale, taxes would then be assessed on the sale.

Man Robs Navy Base Exchange

MOUNTAIN VIEW (AP) — A lone gunman robbed a Navy Exchange employe at the Moffett Field Naval Air Station and escaped with some $15,000 in cash and checks, a Navy spokesman said.

The Exchange worker had collected the day's receipts from outlying exchanges on the base Thursday evening and was about to deposit the money at the night window of the main exchange building when he was accosted by a man wearing a tan jacket and brandishing a large-caliber pistol, said John Shackleton, Navy information officer.

The gunman took 13 money bags from the man and fled on foot through very dense fog, Shackleton said.

Jolene is doing well at Valley Medical Center without respiratory support while her two surviving brothers, Brian and Jason, are in serious condition with continuing deterioration of their respiratory system.

Suit Declined

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Attorney General Evelle J. Younger has declined to file suit against former Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti accusing him of violating campaign disclosure laws.

People's Lobby, a political activist group, charged last month that Moretti failed to properly report campaign contributions and expenditures during his unsuccessful bid for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. The group asked Younger to file suit to force compliance with the disclosure law. Younger Thursday said an investigation by his office into the charges found "no willful, knowing, or grossly negligent violations" of the law to warrant a suit.

Act Challenged

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California bankers and a legislator have gone to court in an attempt to block implementation of a lobbyist-control provision of the newly enacted State Political Reform Act.

They insist that the law could require public disclosure of the most minute financial transaction of a state employe, official, or legislator and even members of their families.

The California Bankers Association asked Superior Court Thursday to either declare the challenged section illegal or delay its implementation.

No Body Found

Wife Murdered; Man Convicted

MERCED (AP) — A Contra Costa County gardener convicted Thursday of murdering his estranged wife whose body never was found admitted hours earlier that she is dead, the prosecutor said.

Timothy Bennett, 26, of Concord was convicted of first-degree murder in one of the state's few such guilty verdicts on record where a body never was located.

Mary Jo Bennett, 23, disappeared without a trace after leaving work at the Pacific Telephone Co. here on Oct. 18, 1972.

BENNETT MET with her mother, Ida May Kempel Wednesday night after the jury deliberations began, Dep. Dist. Atty. Robert Quall told newsmen after the verdict.

Quall quoted Bennett as telling his mother-in-law: "If it's any consolation to you, Mary Jo died a sudden and painless death."

BENNETT ALSO tried to commit suicide twice by hanging and slashing his wrists Wednesday night, Quall said.

He also admitted to Quall picking up a woman across from the telephone company and driving south to an overpass near Chowchilla, Quall added.

Bennett said that when he returned to Merced, "If he had killed her, the person he had been with was not with him as far as being alive," Quall said.

These revelations were kept from the jury which deliberated less than two days. Sentencing is scheduled Jan. 2.

THE PROSECUTION presented circumstantial evidence placing Bennett in the area near the time of his wife's disappearance. Bennett said he had a memory lapse for two hours during that period, which was shortly after he had been involved in a minor traffic accident.

The defense argued two hours was insufficient time for Bennett to have abducted, murdered and buried his wife, then plant notes the prosecution claimed he forced her to write.

Slayings Unrelated

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police investigators reported Thursday that viewing an episode of "Police Story" has not provided any clues to the murders of three Skid Row derelicts.

The investigators watched a rerun of the Nov. 26 episode of the NBC television show, which involved the slaying of five derelicts.

Lt. Charles Kilgo, who heads the investigation, said the only relationship between the TV show and the slayings is that all the victims were derelicts.

3 Convicts' Escape Try Discovered

FOLSOM (UPI) — Three convicts from Southern California attempted to cut their way out of the maximum security section of Folsom Prison by using hacksaw blades, prison officials reported Thursday.

The three include a man convicted of murdering four California highway patrolmen and another sentenced for stealing guns in a 1971 plot to free convicted mass-murderer Charles Manson.

3Charged In Grisly Slaying

Chief Deputy Sheriff Herbert Anderson said Thursday, "This is the most heinous crime in which I have been involved in the sheriff's department."

THE VICTIM was redheaded Mark V. Raiter, 25, who was last seen Nov. 25, 1973. His headless body was found floating in the Sacramento River in May, 1974, after apparently being stuffed into a weighted garbage can. His head is believed to have been delivered to someone in Oakland as proof he had been slain on a "contract," officers said.

Anderson said Victor George Pryor, 24, of 3115 Crandall Way, was arrested last week and charged with being an accessory to the disposal of Raiter's body.

Thursday, officers served murder warrants on Daniel Carl Fisk, 31, also known as Blosser, who is now in Folsom Prison on a later voluntary manslaughter conviction, and Harry Otto Daigh, 35, also known as "Fat Jack," who is in Cierra Conservation Center on conviction of illegal possession of firearms by an exconvict.

School Restructure Ordered by Court

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The State Board of Education turned to financing again today in an attempt to deal with a court-ordered restructuring which could cost billions of dollars.

Board members considered a $1.4 billion proposal to equalize the amount of money public school students receive in poor and rich districts.

The state's current school financing system was ruled unconstitutional by a Los Angeles Superior Court because of the educational tax rate disparities that result.

With inflation taken into consideration it could cost an additional $2 billion to bring the system in compliance with the court order by the 1980 deadline. The financing system relies heavily on property taxes.

Thursday, the board adopted a tough conflict-of-interest rule covering persons involved in the selection of millions of dollars worth of textbooks for California schools.

"How come my electric bill is so high? And we've been using less."

We know your electric bill is higher. A lot higher—even though you're conserving electricity. Why? Primarily because of the increased cost of oil.

It's our job to provide the electricity you, your family and your job require. And we must do so in a manner that meets all air pollution control regulations. This means burning foreign, low-sulfur oil in Edison generating plants. The price is set by foreign governments, and it more than tripled in the last 18 months. It could go even higher. Since January, 1972, the increasing costs of oil and the additional amounts we have had to buy are responsible for almost 90% of the increase in your electric bills.

So we won't always be so dependent on foreign oil, we're spending millions of dollars building coal and nuclear plants. We are also researching new ways to generate electricity—without foreign oil. Geothermal power. Solar power. Fuel cells. Fast breeder reactors. Nuclear fusion. Research is costly, but it will also help to reduce our reliance on foreign oil.

Projects related to the environment are expensive, too, and in 1974 will account for about 20% of our capital expenditures. In the past six years, $325 million were required to be spent for such projects. It looks like we will have to spend another $450 million for environmental purposes within the next four-year period.

On top of all this, inflation is eating into our budget—as it is yours. The cost of constructing new plants is 10 times higher than it was a few years ago, and borrowing costs have more than doubled.

Your electric bill will reflect these rising costs. What can you do to hold down your bill? Budget your use of electricity wisely. For ways to do this, send for our free booklet. Write: "Conservation," Edison, P.O. Box 800, Rosemead, CA 91770.

Nude Cleared -- Beaches Now Open?

Orange County's nude beachgoers may have been given a green light to put it together in the altogether.

Beachgoers who found going rough in the buff in recent months were vindicated late Thursday when South Orange County municipal court Judge John A. Griffin found Charles Anderson of Costa Mesa not guilty of multiple charges filed when he sunbathed in the nude at South Laguna's 9th Street Beach.

Anderson, 27, was found not guilty on charges of lewd conduct and disturbing the peace after defense attorney Bill Sheffield successfully argued that his client had disturbed no one and no sexual intent when he exposed his entire body to the sun.

Anderson is one more than 100 nude beachgoers who have been arrested by sheriff's officers in recent months on such charges.

His acquittal, Sheffield said today, may effectively bar the sheriff from any further arrests of that type.

Judge Griffin's ruling may also mean the end of the county ordinance which Anderson was said to have violated, Sheffield said.

Property owner Willard Cain had earlier argued for the prosecution that nude beachgoing near his cliff top home on South Coast Highway had reached the point that he could no longer invite his grandchildren to the house.

Cain is by far the most constant caller to the sheriff's office in all such instances of nudity on the beach.

Sheffield successfully argued that the ordinance under which Anderson also was prosecuted pertained more to nude and semi-nude entertainment than naked sunbathing on the beach.

"I look on this as a test case," the defense attorney said. "And I very much regret that many of the people who have been similarly arrested on these charges decided to plead guilty rather than take the issue to trial as Mr. Anderson did."

Assessor Denies Charges

Indicted Aides Not Suspended

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Orange County Assessor Jack Vallerga today announced that he has no intention of suspending or taking any type of disciplinary action against seven employes accused in a Grand Jury indictment.

Vallerga emerged from a 24-hour seclusion to condemn any such action as "quite inappropriate at this time."

"As of now they have simply been charged," Vallerga said. "I understand that the Grand Jury investigation is continuing and I see no reason to interfere with their duties at this early stage.

"I have every confidence in the system," Vallerga said. "And I have every confidence that these charges are going to be thrown out at a later stage of the game."

All seven employes and two former assessor's aides who are now retired will be arraigned later today in Superior Court on charges of grand theft, submitting false claims and violating government codes.

It is alleged that the nine drew county money in 1970 for time actually spent in working for what eventually was the election of then county assessor Andrew J. Hinshaw to the 40th District Congressional seat.

Hinshaw's secretary said the Congressman was in the House voting and will not be available to the press until later today.

Later, Hinshaw told the Daily Pilot in a telephone conversation that he is "making no comment at this time on the advice of my attorney.

Newport Explosion Guts Boat

By ALMON LOCKABEY
Boating Editor

A boat explosion rocked the Lido North apartment complex on Lido Peninsula with the force of a sonic boom Thursday night. The concussion and fire caused damage to boats in adjacent slips.

Gutted by the explosion and fire was a 35-foot cabin cruiser belonging to David Hreha, 19162 Constellation Lane, Huntington Beach. The boat had been berthed at the marina, 633 Lido Park Drive, with a "for sale" sign on it.

Cause of the explosion was not immediately known, according to James Upton, inspector for the Newport Beach Fire Department.

Occupants of boats in nearby slips were shaken up by the force of the explosion, but no one was injured.

Severely damaged by concussion and heat was the 63-foot Glissando, a converted military Vessel owned by Mark Armistad which was in the ad-

Irvine Co. Gets Input From 22 Organizations

The Irvine Company's efforts to please everybody with its plans for development of 10,000 acres between Corona del Mar and Laguna Beach are destined to be unsuccessful, company planner Larry Moore told a luncheon gathering Thursday.

But when the company responds to 22 groups who have taken part in planning the company's coastal sector, most of nearly 300 concerns will be satisfied, he said.

Speaking to nearly 150 members of the Orange County Coast Association at the Bahia Corinthian Yacht Club in Newport Beach Moore and Irvine Company President Raymond Watson detailed the history of The Irvine Company Multi-Agency Planning Program (TICMAP).

Composed of 22 public and private groups, the planning body is an Irvine Company effort to head off possible confrontations on its plans for the 10,000 acres which may come up during hearings before the coastal commission or the Orange County Planning Commission.

"There is no ideal solution. That plan can't be drawn," said Moore. "No matter what we come up with, there is going to be some group or agency out there that disagrees with us."

Company plans for the area include a 1,345-acre state park, homes for about 50,000 residents and two major resort areas.

The parkland sale, which was to be completed later this month, has been blocked by a preliminary injunction obtained by Joan Irvine Smith, who controls 22 percent of the company's stock.

She contended that the $7.6 million price on the 3.5 miles of beach and bluff and 1,100 acres in Moro Canyon intended for the park was too low.

In addition to the parkland, Moore said, other land in the area designated as open space is still in question. So far, no agency has offered to buy it, he said, and none has offered to maintain it even if the land was a gift.

Regarding the planned open space, Moore said, "The Irvine Company can do other things with these canyons and will insist on being able to do things with these canyons unless some workable solution is arrived at."

The coastal commission or county planners cannot simply confiscate the land or deny the company the right to use it, he said.

Other problems in planning the area, Moore said, include transportation. Pacific Coast Highway is already overloaded, he said, and the cities of Newport Beach and Laguna Beach can be expected to oppose a plan which will mean more traffic through their jurisdictions.

The highway is the only access to the property at this time. Company plans, however, show two roads leading northeast into Irvine and an additional access which could be provided if the Corona del Mar Freeway was to be extended south.

Narco Raids Sweep Mesa; 32 Arrested

By ARTHUR R. VINSEL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A sweep through Costa Mesa by teams of narcotics detectives Thursday and today has netted 32 among 42 suspected on-the-street drug dealers, many of them students at two high schools.

The age among those arrested so far ranges from 14 to 35, according to police and includes one diminutive adult, 18, who gave his occupation as race-horse jockey.

Arrest warrants naming most of the arrestees and others still on the streets were issued following a four-month investigation.

Vice and Narcotics Detail Detective Sgt. Gene "Mother" Norden said today it was coordinated with the Orange County Narcotics Task Force and aimed at cutting campus drug use.

"Only a few of the drug buys were conducted on local high school campuses. . .," he explained.

Some parallels exist to a recent mass Los Angeles County drug-dealing roundup in which 226 students from among 20 high schools were taken into custody.

Fourteen more arrests are expected.

No officers were actually enrolled at Costa Mesa or Estancia high schools to investigate the alleged drug trafficking, which he said mainly involved marijuana, hashish, cocaine and amphetamine stimulant tablets.

He said some undercover agents were active on campus, but posed as old hangers-on or dropout students during the four-month probe.

"We've found the trend tends to be more one of selling to close friends or persons they know well," said Sgt. Norden. He suggested this may indicate a growing fear of selling to police agents, due to many arrests in the past 18 months.

By this morning the tally of those in custody included 25 juveniles — all but five of whom were booked into Juvenile Hall on charges of drug sales — and seven adults.

The five juveniles released to their parents were arrested incidentally to the main thrust of the drug roundup, according to Sgt. Norden. They are charged with only possession, not sales.

Adult arrestees captured during the sweep, which was suspended at 10 p.m., pending resumption today, include:

Exporters Hike Cost of Crude By 3 Percent

VIENNA (UPI) — The world's major oil exporting nations decided today to increase the price of crude oil by 31 cents a barrel — 3 percent — on Jan. 1, Iran's Interior Minister Jamshouzegar said.

"The selling price of oil will be $10.46 a barrel effective Jan. 1," Amouzegar said after a two-day meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).

The new price will be frozen for the first nine months of 1975, he said.

The present average selling price of crude oil is $10.15 a 42-gallon barrel, oil industry officials said.

It was not immediately clear whether this would mean an increase in the price of gasoline because of the complicated oil pricing and royalty system which determine oil prices.

Larry Goldstein, a New York oil consultant, said the action by OPEC may not be an increase at all since $10.46 is the market price established last month by Saudi Arabia, Abu Dhabi and Qatar.

The action by OPEC, he said, is "nothing more than a confirmation that this is the market price for everybody."

But, he said, oil companies had been paying an average of $10.36 a barrel for that oil owned by the Arab nations and that owned by the companies. The set price of $10.46 for all OPEC oil, Goldstein said, means "an increase in cost to the companies of 10 cents a barrel."

The earlier increases imposed un-

Costa Mesa Hits Delays In Park Buys

By ALAN DIRKIN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Fifteen months after Costa Mesa voters approved a $3.9 million park bond issue for acquisition and development of 70 acres of parks, the city has purchased 42 acres.

It appears that the city will fall about 10 acres short of the announced goal of 70 acres when all purchases are complete.

Director of Leisure Services Keith Van Holt today agreed that the city is behind schedule in acquisition and that the city will be able to buy fewer acres than planned.

"I didn't appreciate the amount of meetings and arguing over prices that would be involved," Van Holt said.

All of the park sites acquired so far were school sites, which the city bought from the Newport-Mesa Unified School District. No private property has yet been purchased.

Van Holt reported that negotiations are under way or appraisals are being made on another 15 to 20 acres of private land. The announced target for that category of acquisition was 25 acres.

"We will end up with fewer acres," Van Holt acknowledged, pointing out that land prices had risen. He said some of the parcels the city had planned to buy were sold even before the bond election was passed in September, 1973.

Joan Margol, one of the citizen leaders for the bond issue, today said that she considered the progress "barely satisfactory."

"We are sorry it has not gone faster, but we are not sure it could have gone faster," she added.

Mrs. Margol said that she understood the city had sold the park bonds and was collecting interest

Monthly Tour Of Upper Bay Set Saturday

The Friends of Upper Newport Bay will conduct their monthly guided tour of the upper bay Saturday morning.

Those who join the free tour will spend an hour and walk about a mile along the bay shore, stopping at eight stations along the way to hear brief lectures on features of the upper bay.

The tour's starting point is at the northwest corner of the intersection of Back Bay and Eastbluff drives. Group tours will leave from there at varying intervals between 9 and 11 a.m.

Retired Judge Harold Collins Funeral Held

Catholic funeral rites were held Thursday and today for retired Los Angeles County Superior Court Judge Harold F. Collins, a summertime Balboa Island resident who died Tuesday.

The veteran jurist, 72, had maintained a Harbor Area retreat for 20 years and had many friends and relatives locally, but lived at 810 Rubio St., Altadena.

Graveside rites were held today at Resurrection Cemetery, South San Gabriel, following Rosary Thursday at St. Elizabeth's Church in Altadena.

His legislative and law career began in 1927 when he was admitted to the California Bar, but after seven years in private practice he became a special assistant to the U.S. Attorney General's office in Los Angeles.

He left again for private practice in 1944, and 18 years later Gov. Edmund G. "Pat" Brown appointed him to the bench where he served 10 years before retiring.

Judge Collins most recently was appointed hearing officer for the Los Angeles County Civil Service Commission by the board of supervisors and held it until his death.

Survivors include his wife Julia; sons Thomas, of Pasadena, and Charles, of Temple City; daughters Julia of Altadena and Mrs. Clare Marquardt, of Sierra Madre, plus nine grandchildren, three brothers and three sisters.

Timing Issue

Watergate Jury Zeroes on Golf

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The exact time when Richard Kleindienst played golf and his wife quit cleaning her kitchen cabinets to have lunch on Saturday, June 17, 1972, emerged as a vital issue today at the Watergate cover-up trial.

Such seemingly trivial events were at the heart of the defense of Robert C. Mardian, a sometime San Clemente resident, as he seeks to convince the jury he had no part in trying to hush up the scandal.

Five agents of then President Nixon's re-election campaign had been arrested at Democratic headquarters at 2 a.m. and the prosecution charges that Kleindienst, then attorney general, received an urgent message later that day while playing golf at Burning Tree Country Club. The message asked him to release the burglars from jail.

The request allegedly originated with defendant John M. Mitchell, then Nixon's campaign manager and now a cover-up defendant, and was relayed by Mardian on the telephone to Watergate mastermind G. Gordon Liddy, who in turn rushed to the country club to give it to Kleindienst.

Mardian, a former assistant attorney general and Nixon campaign operative, was with the campaign high command in California at the time. He contends that because of the time difference, he could not possibly have called Washington in advance of Liddy's trip to Burning Tree about noon Washington time.

"but that was not the purpose of the vote. The intent was to develop parks."

Mrs. Margol said that the citizens committee was aware that acquiring private property would be the hardest step. "We knew there would be a lot of dickering," she said.

Of the $3.9 million approved by voters, $2.6 million was for acquisition and $1.3 million for development.

Van Holt reported that so far, $1,470,000 had been spent on acquisition and $300,000 committed for development.

Of the delays, Van Holt said that he expected to have the school properties in March, but did not gain them until July because of the length of the negotiations.

Van Holt pointed out that although these lands were already in the public domain, they would have been sold to private developers if the city had not acted.

As for land that is presently private, the leisure services director said that negotiations on prices are under way on the three parcels, and appraisals have begun on two other sites.

"On the last two sites, the owners said our appraisal was low and they are now having their own done," Van Holt said. "It's a long process."

Van Holt said that in some instances owners had sold out before the city could even begin negotiations. "Also if a private owner doesn't want to sell to the city all we can do is condemn the property, but we have been trying to avoid that," Van Holt explained.

Van Holt noted that the city has been trying to maintain the criteria of locating parks within walking distance of all homes in a neighborhood and locating sites that are visible.

The minimum park size the city likes to consider is 2.5 acres but these are "getting harder to find."

Communications Gap Claimed On Energy Issue

The American people are not fully aware of "the magnitude and seriousness" of the energy crisis, a Newport Beach business executive said in a speech this week.

Phillip J. Stevens, president of Ultrasystems, Inc., went on to call for government to take the necessary actions to close the energy communications gap.

Stevens' remarks were made at a luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Corona del Mar.

Optimistically, he said the U.S. has the science and technology resources available to solve the energy problems.

However, Stevens added, those resources must be "wisely directed, strongly supported and directed by proper government leadership.

Stevens predicted that the energy crisis will mean changes in the nation's life styles that have already begun, such as reducing the highway speed limit to 55 miles per hour.

It will also mean expanded effort to extract synthetic gas from coal, the growth of conservation oriented industries and offshore oil drilling, according to the Newport Beach businessman.

Stevens concluded his luncheon talk by expressing his "great confidence" in the ability of the American people to "solve such monumental problems" as the nation's energy needs.

ilaterally by Saudi Arabia, Abu Dhabi and Qatar had already been passed on by the oil companies through their distributors and the latest action may not mean higher prices for consumers, he said.

Asked if gasoline and home heating oil prices would go up, Amouzegar said: "That depends on how much the oil companies can absorb from their profits."

Iran, he said, proposed limiting oil company profits to 50 cents a barrel. Present oil company profits are about 75 cents a barrel, OPEC officials said.

The increase of 31 cents in the selling price of a barrel of oil was decided by ministers of the 13 OPEC nations meeting in a Vienna hotel following two bomb threats against OPEC headquarters.

OPEC did away with the posted price system which maintained artificially high prices, in favor of the unified system.

Amouzegar said OPEC had been forced to increase the price of oil because three members — Saudi Arabia, Abu Dhabi and Qatar — raised their prices at a meeting in Abu Dhabi last month.

"We had two choices — either to go back to the September price system, and this would mean the three Arab members reversing their decision, which they would not do, or adopt the Abu Dhabi price," he said.

"We adopted the Abu Dhabi price, not a penny more.

"You can't have two prices from the same oil from the same spot (Middle East)."

SCAG Panel Readies Fight On Land Use

Elected officials who serve as delegates to the powerful Southern California Association of Governments SCAG are gearing up to fight state proposals to create a new super agency to adminster California's coastal development.

In a session in Los Angeles Thursday, the SCAG executive committee has agreed to call a meeting of interested cities within the coastal sector of the Southland in order to coordinate a possible battle against a new element to the state coastal plan that would set up the superagency.

The Powers, Funding and Government element of the coastal land-use plan sets up the framework for a new state panel that would rule on all changes within five miles of the shoreline.

The present system of regional commissions affects changes only within 1,000 yards of the sea.

The Powers, Funding and Government element would expand land-use control to the entire five-mile planning area set up by the passage of the Coastal Initiative.

Regional coastal commissions are responsible for drafting elements to the total plan for the area.

And South Coast Commission Member and SCAG delegate Ralph Diedrich was outspoken about the controversial plan element.

"There is going to be some strong language in there and it's going to cause some problems," the commissioner and Orange County Supervisor told fellow members of the SCAG Executive Committee.

The greatest concern about the plans for the successor agency on coastal land use is the total loss of local control over the destiny of the state coastline.

Diedrich said that if city and county officials are concerned about the dearth of control in the new system—and the concern already is welling—then the time is right to band together and effect major changes in the proposed planning element.

The formative meeting has not yet been set for a possible mobilization of opposition.

But the committee for SCAG suggested that some sort of consensus should be ready in time for its next session on Jan. 9.

Andy Kirk Succumbs After Long Illness

William "Andy" Kirk, longtime resident of Balboa, died Thursday night at Long Beach Memorial Hospital after a long illness.

Mr. Kirk was admitted to the hospital the day after Thanksgiving after suffering a stroke. He never regained consciousness.

An avid yachtsman, Mr. Kirk, 76, came to the Newport area in the early 1930s and purchased his present home at 1208 E. Balboa Blvd. He joined Newport Harbor Yacht Club in 1937 and started sailing small boats. He later became involved in offshore racing as a crewman on some of the best known yachts on the West Coast.

He sailed in three Transpac races on the famed Morning Star when it was owned by his friend, the late Richard Rheem. He also crewed on the 67-foot yawl Chubasco with the late William Stewart and with the late Humphrey Bogart on the 50-foot yawl Santana. He once sailed the rugged Fastnet race off England with Henry DuPont in a 46-ft. PCC sloop.

Mr. Kirk's own boat, which he campaigned locally for many years, was an Island Clipper named Frolic. In recent years he devoted his yachting activity to his powerboat, Buccaneer.

He was widely known in yachting circles throughout the world and was a charter member of the western contingent of the prestigious Cruising Club of America.

Until his illness nearly two years ago, Mr. Kirk was active in civic affairs. In the 1930s he was appointed to the Newport Beach City Council to fill an unexpired term by the late Mayor Clyan Hall.

Although he has always maintained the Balboa Peninsula home on the bayfront, Mr. Kirk and his wife, Dorothy, had spent much of their time recently at a ranch they owned at 17005 Santiago Canyon Rd.

Mr. Kirk was the last of the independent oil producers. He was the founder and president of the California Southern Oil Co. until he sold out to a major oil company and retired.

In addition to his widow, Dorothy, Mr. Kirk leaves a son, William A. Jr. of Los Angeles; a daughter, Mrs. Clary (Katherine) Staaf, Newport Beach; a foster-daughter, Mrs. Grace Gaylord of Reno; six grandchildren, and four great-grandchildren.

Funeral services are pending with Pacific View Mortuary.

Food Handling Laws

Before it adopts a proposed uniform food handling ordinance, the Newport Beach City Council ordered the ordinance's "summary closing" section changed.

Under the uniform ordinance, county health inspectors have the right to immediately close eating establishments where conditions exist that constitute "an immediate and substantial hazard" to public health.

There's nothing new about that section of the code. Twenty-three of Orange County's 26 cities, including Newport Beach, have operated under summary closing provision for the past 22 years.

However, under Newport Beach's revised proposal, health inspectors can only order the offending establishment closed. Its operator is free to keep the restaurant open at "his own peril" until a "court of competent jurisdiction" orders it closed.

It was at the prodding of a handful of restaurant owners that the council ordered the change made in the proposed ordinance.

The owners argued that vesting closing power in health inspectors could lead to abuses and threaten due process rights.

That's a strong argument. However, health department records don't support it.

In the past two years, for example, countywide there have been only two eating places forcibly closed. Descriptions of conditions in those two eateries at the time of their forced closures are appalling.

In the same two-year period, according to health department officials, an unknown number of restaurants have voluntarily closed temporarily rather than face the stigma of a forced closing.

The owners of those restaurants obviously felt it was in their best interest as well as the public's to close down until "an immediate and substantial hazard" to public health was ended.

Therefore, it is apparent that the summary closing power vested in health inspectors serves the public interest. And the Newport Beach City Council should give it more thought before dropping it from the city's proposed food handling ordinance.

Cable TV Service

The Newport Beach city council this week gave one of the city's two cable television companies until February to prove it is capable of providing service called for in its franchise.

The TV firm, Teleprompter of Newport Beach, has failed to meet two requirements called for in its contract with the city.

First, the company has failed to deliver cable service in two major sections of the city.

Teleprompter has also failed in its commitment to furnish cable service to some public buildings as it agreed to do.

Surprisingly, the company's slowness in meeting its service obligations apparently have not drawn a reaction from the public it seeks to serve.

Consequently, the council was right in giving the company until February to spell out its plan for meeting its contractual obligations.

But that certainly is sufficient time for Teleprompter to produce what it has pledged to produce. If it can't, the city has no course other than cancelling the contract.

'I said take two of these aspirin and come back to see me next year!'

N

'Lovelock' Can't Match 'Wedlock'

SYDNEY HARRIS

In reply to a random query of mine some time ago—"What name should we apply to the many couples today who are living together though not married?"—I have received a number of both palatable and ribald suggestions. Two of the most frequent were "cohabs," and "lovelock" instead of "wedlock."

Interestingly enough, one of the reasons modern young people object to the term "wedlock" is the implication that the couple is manacled or handcuffed together in the institution of matrimony. They resent the idea of being "locked" together by a law.

BUT THIS is a misreading of the old Anglo-Saxon word: "wedlock" meant "marriage pledge," and the suffix "lock" had nothing at all to do with handcuffing people together. (It is like the word "sweetheart," where the "heart" part has nothing to do with that organ of the body, but was originally "sweetard," in the same form as "coward" and "dotard.")

Time and custom shape and distort words, and then the words themselves become a kind of tyranny, so that we respond to the distortion rather than to the basic meaning. Indeed, the very word "tyranny" is a perfect example of what happens to a word throughout history.

The earliest "tyrants" in ancient Greece were simply absolute rulers or monarchs, with no implication of cruelty. Both Pericles and Pisistratus were "tyrants," but they were model rulers of wisdom and tolerance. Gradually, however, the word began to assume its later connotation of harshness and oppression, and utterly lost its primal neutral meaning.

FOR COUPLES to live in "lovelock" rather than "wedlock" suggests they have pledged their love—but what value is such a pledge, if it can be withdrawn at the whim of either, with no lasting sense of commitment? The word "pledge" itself means a "guarantee"—but a guarantee is empty if you are not willing to make good on it.

It is my feeling that we have not yet, as a species, arrived at any finally satisfactory form of man-woman relations. The traditional form of matrimony is too filled with rigidities, injustices, and inconsistencies; yet the new "cohabs" have merely exchanged one set of difficulties for another, for without a deep sense of permanence and commitment the living-fabric is too fragile to sustain a family.

THE NUB of the problem is that the human infant, unlike all others, needs years of stable development before it is ready to cope with its physical and social environment. Without children, marriage might be unnecessary; with children, it may be a necessary evil, capable of being ameliorated, but not eliminated from the social structure.

Ford Absence Offends Governors

EVANS-NOVAK

ST. LOUIS — Unfairly or not, the thimbleful of Republican governors and governors-elect who survived the Democratic landslide of Nov. 5 were outraged that President Ford could not make a brief appearance at their midwinter conference here last week after his long journey to the Far East.

Indeed, intensive negotiations had started in mid-November with low-level White House aides to arrange a visit by Mr. Ford that would lend Presidential endorsement to party-rebuilding efforts. Yet, despite repeated telephone calls to the White House by host Gov. Christopher Bond of Missouri, presidential aides insisted Mr. Ford could not spare a couple of hours. Contact was never made with Dean Burch, Mr. Ford's political adviser until his resignation last week, who took no interest in the governors' appeal.

THIS non-appearance by a President who was sharply criticized for traveling to real estate conventions in Las Vegas added to the funereal gloom at the governors' conference. Even before they learned he would not appear, the governors were grumbling over Mr. Ford's performance as both party chief and national leader.

Their aggravation did not peak until word spread that even William Seidman, the highest White House aide scheduled to meet the governors, was going to back out on his scheduled appearance.

With tempers rising among the governors, White House aide James Falk, Mr. Ford's chief liaison with the governors, rushed to a pay phone here with an SOS to the White House. That firmed up Seidman's appearance and also brought Falk's boss, Domestic Council chief Ken Cole, to the session.

But it scarcely mitigated disappointment with Mr. Ford. One governor, reelected last month by a huge majority while other Republican candidates in his state were losing, told us: "This would have been the perfect place for Jerry Ford to come and show his interest, with the few of us who won, in trying to revive his party."

THE GOVERNORS' unhappiness with Mr. Ford goes beyond reviving the Republican party. They believe he is spending far too much time on foreign travel at a time of deepening recession and general economic crisis at home. The President's WIN — Whip Inflation Now — public relations campaign is ridiculed as outdated in the face of national unemployment expected to approach eight percent next summer.

Gov. William Milliken of Michigan, arguing that "mere rhetoric cannot save our free enterprise system," came here handing out lapel buttons of his own contradicting the White House WIN pins. His pins say BAC — Buy a Car.

Milliken's reelection by 114,000 votes against multiple adversity in the depression-threatened automobile state was a stunning offset to his party's national disaster, but not a single White House political aid has bothered to call him for a post-election analysis.

WORSE YET, Milliken's carefully considered economic program sent to Mr. Ford in a letter one week before the election has never been answered. He proposed a blend of tax reform, vastly more public service employment, extended unemployment compensation and public works. But Milliken's proposals were not considered important enough to warrant a reply.

Most criticism of Mr. Ford and what one governor called his "Nixon holdover" administration was private. But New Hampshire's Gov. Meldrim Thomson, the anti-tax crusader who is indisputably the most conservative of all Republican governors, felt no such scruples. He delivered an angry statement to what he called the "closetful" of Republican survivors (sitting around the huge horseshoe conference table with embarrassingly wide spaces between them) attacking Mr. Ford for "not caring enough" about the future of the Republican party "to help us set the course for the long climb back."

AN HOUR spent with the governors by Jerry Ford would scarcely make a dent on the staggering political problems of his defeated party. There was no such false hope here. "The GOP has a pinhead for a base and we're kidding ourselves if we think it can be turned around in anything like two or three years," Michigan state chairman William McLaughlin told us.

But that handful of Republican governors who survived last month would have been a good place to start. The fact that the President and his political staff didn't see it that way made a bad situation worse, alienating the governors at a time Mr. Ford needs every possible ally.

Tax Relief Just an Illusion

EARL WATERS

By now it must be crystal clear to those who must face up to property tax payments, that the relief promised again and again by the Legislature is but an illusion.

Despite the increased aid given to local governments, and the schools, by the state and federal governments, despite the freeze on tax rates imposed on local governments at the insistence of Governor Reagan, the tax bills are higher than ever.

This erosion of homeowner property tax relief, intended by the state subsidized exemptions and the governor's freeze, comes about simply by increasing the assessed valuations. It is a subversion of the intent of the state and federal governments to bring relief to homeowners. For Californians this is the second time that the exemption approach to relief for homeowners has been completely eroded in short order by local governments. The first of $750 was wiped out within two years. The governor then sought an increase to $1750 and attempted to prevent the eroding of this by a freeze on tax rates.

FOR EVEN the hardest heads in the Legislature it should now be starkly obvious that there can be no homeowner relief without a freeze on both tax rates and assessed values. For the state to continue to pour funds into local governments as a means to relieving local property taxes, without first shutting the door tight on both rates and values, accomplishes nothing excepting to encourage more spending on the part of local officials.

And, encouragement is the last thing they need. The appetite for spending exhibited by local governments, especially the schools is insatiable.

In their zeal to tax and spend, spend and tax, and tax and spend, one is reminded of the lemmings. These small rodents, native to the Arctic, are possessed of a congenital desire for self destruction. They, too, have an insatiable appetite. They increase enormously in numbers, exhausting their food supplies. They move steadily across the countryside, regardless of all obstacles, committing devastation in their line of march. Always advancing in the same general direction they ultimately reach the sea where they plunge in and drown.

ONE CANNOT change nature but taxation is a political being, not a creature of nature. It can be changed.

The high property taxes cannot be excused by stating the assessor must increase the valuations because of state law. That would not matter if, on the rise of valuations, the tax rate went down accordingly. But it doesn't go down, despite the millions in additional revenues from state and federal sources. Local officials just don't seem to know how to stop spending.

THE FALLACY of the present system of home taxation is adjusting to current market values even though there is no intent to sell. One buys a home at $10,000, spends his life paying for it, only to find he is now living in a home valued at $40,000 which is beyond his means because of taxes. It's still the same home and it isn't appropriate to be taxed out of it on such a basis.

Assemblyman Gene Chappie, a farmer, is one who has recognized the injustice. He is proposing legislation which would freeze assessed home values. While the details of his proposal haven't been perfected, the aim is to treat homes for what they are, just homes and not speculative land purchases. Property taxes would remain constant until such time as a home is sold. If, at that time a profit has been realized on the sale, taxes would then be assessed on the sale.

To the Editor:

I have received some literature from The Citizens Committee for the Right to Keep and Bear Arms.

Their letter urges me to write my local newspaper "to protest the anti-gun distortions of the news media." Contrary to their wish, I am writing you to support federal effort to get rid of handguns except for the possible needs of persons who may live in areas remote from law enforcement agencies.

THE EASE with which people may acquire handguns contributes to their unlawful use. Domestic arguments many times are "settled" with a handgun in a family's possession.

I believe that the "right to bear arms" may have been important in the early days of the growth of this nation, but not today. The lives of too many people are endangered. More strict law enforcement would not have prevented the killing of Bobby Kennedy, Martin Luther King, nor the attempt on George Wallace's life, although handguns alone were not used in all cases, including the killing of President Kennedy.

Innocent Victims

To the Editor:

Now is very much the right time for all good citizens to come to the aid of their purchasing power and each other.

There is no single way or magic answers to live within our means and have the means required to live, according to varying standards.

ECONOMIC predictions are up and down—leaving us to believe that up-and-down may very well be the cycle confronting us.

Between the cycle of life and death are many cycles of economic nature that reflect genuine shortages/oversupply — as are included many cycles of contrived and/or controlled shortages/oversupply.

We, the innocent victims, must consider and decide which is which—or suffer the outrageous misfortune that following each cycle, real or otherwise, may lead us.

THERE ARE many examples of abuse, such as witnessing two, three and four price changes on food market merchandise, clearly indicating increases not warranted for merchandise acquired at lower prices.

Daily Pilot readers should contribute ideas or observations of ways and means to help us all stay within our means.

Christmas Club accounts, longtime favorites of banks and tellers, surely deserve to be compared with other ways of saving for better interest returns.

Let's hear it in favor of we, the people, to get the most from our money under current and predictable ups and downs.

Age of Hostility

To the Editor

As a graduate of Orange Coast College and former student of Lee Bradley's Psychology 110 class, I find myself replying to an article in the Daily Pilot of Dec. 5.

IN AN AGE of hostility perpetrated by the high cost of sugar, oil, musing about Watergate and reading newspapers, any constructive class in human communication on a one-to-one basis or group level is beneficial. To touch or not to touch. Each man's separate choice. How? A word, pantomine or a light hand. In any attempt at encountering another person, the real threat of rejection ever present. This tends to make us silent sieves, dumb and dormant.

The course offered at OCC on personal and human awareness was for me an experience of some magnitude. It was a heavy class and so explained at the beginning of the semester. As the class progressed, I become more circumspect in my outlook and actions as my shortcomings became more obvious.

THIS WAS followed by a true feeling of love for some of my classmates which at best is difficult to express. There also occurred feelings of resentment, anger, frustration and jealousy.

When an instructor with 15 years teaching experience attempts to convey methods of communication in this sensitive area, there will be criticism. If we hope to progress beyond the conversational level of "How are You?" "I am fine," then classes such as this must continue.

From an older and more experienced student.

Man Robs Navy Base Exchange

MOUNTAIN VIEW (AP) — A lone gunman robbed a Navy Exchange employe at the Moffett Field Naval Air Station and escaped with some $15,000 in cash and checks, a Navy spokesman said.

The Exchange worker had collected the day's receipts from outlying exchanges on the base Thursday evening and was about to deposit the money at the night window of the main exchange building when he was accosted by a man wearing a tan jacket and brandishing a large-caliber pistol, said John Shackleton, Navy information officer.

The gunman took 13 money bags from the man and fled on foot through very dense fog, Shackleton said.

SAN JOSE (UPI) — Mrs. Charlotte Lange held her fragile daughter Jolene, the healthiest of her three surviving sextuplets, in her arms for the first time Thursday.

Jolene is doing well at Valley Medical Center without respiratory support while her two surviving brothers, Brian and Jason, are in serious condition with continuing deterioration of their respiratory system.

Suit Declined

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Attorney General Evelle J. Younger has declined to file suit against former Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti accusing him of violating campaign disclosure laws.

People's Lobby, a political activist group, charged last month that Moretti failed to properly report campaign contributions and expenditures during his unsuccessful bid for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. The group asked Younger to file suit to force compliance with the disclosure law. Younger Thursday said an investigation by his office into the charges found "no willful, knowing, or grossly negligent violations" of the law to warrant a suit.

Act Challenged

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California bankers and a legislator have gone to court in an attempt to block implementation of a lobbyist-control provision of the newly enacted State Political Reform Act.

They insist that the law could require public disclosure of the most minute financial transaction of a state employe, official, or legislator and even members of their families.

The California Bankers Association asked Superior Court Thursday to either declare the challenged section illegal or delay its implementation.

No Body Found

Wife Murdered; Man Convicted

MERCED (AP) — A Contra Costa County gardener convicted Thursday of murdering his estranged wife whose body never was found admitted hours earlier that she is dead, the prosecutor said.

Timothy Bennett, 26, of Concord was convicted of first-degree murder in one of the state's few such guilty verdicts on record where a body never was located.

Mary Jo Bennett, 23, disappeared without a trace after leaving work at the Pacific Telephone Co. here on Oct. 18, 1972.

BENNETT MET with her mother, Ida May Kempel Wednesday night after the jury deliberations began, Dep. Dist. Atty. Robert Quall told newsmen after the verdict.

Quall quoted Bennett as telling his mother-in-law: "If it's any consolation to you, Mary Jo died a sudden and painless death."

BENNETT ALSO tried to commit suicide twice by hanging and slashing his wrists Wednesday night, Quall said.

He also admitted to Quall picking up a woman across from the telephone company and driving south to an overpass near Chowchilla, Quall added.

Bennett said that when he returned to Merced, "If he had killed her, the person he had been with was not with him as far as being alive," Quall said.

These revelations were kept from the jury which deliberated less than two days. Sentencing is scheduled Jan. 2.

THE PROSECUTION presented circumstantial evidence placing Bennett in the area near the time of his wife's disappearance. Bennett said he had a memory lapse for two hours during that period, which was shortly after he had been involved in a minor traffic accident.

The defense argued two hours was insufficient time for Bennett to have abducted, murdered and buried his wife, then plant notes the prosecution claimed he forced her to write.

Slayings Unrelated

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police investigators reported Thursday that viewing an episode of "Police Story" has not provided any clues to the murders of three Skid Row derelicts.

The investigators watched a rerun of the Nov. 26 episode of the NBC television show, which involved the slaying of five derelicts.

Lt. Charles Kilgo, who heads the investigation, said the only relationship between the TV show and the slayings is that all the victims were derelicts.

3 Convicts' Escape Try Discovered

FOLSOM (UPI) — Three convicts from Southern California attempted to cut their way out of the maximum security section of Folsom Prison by using hacksaw blades, prison officials reported Thursday.

The three include a man convicted of murdering four California highway patrolmen and another sentenced for stealing guns in a 1971 plot to free convicted mass-murderer Charles Manson.

3Charged In Grisly Slaying

Chief Deputy Sheriff Herbert Anderson said Thursday, "This is the most heinous crime in which I have been involved in the sheriff's department."

THE VICTIM was redheaded Mark V. Raiter, 25, who was last seen Nov. 25, 1973. His headless body was found floating in the Sacramento River in May, 1974, after apparently being stuffed into a weighted garbage can. His head is believed to have been delivered to someone in Oakland as proof he had been slain on a "contract," officers said.

Anderson said Victor George Pryor, 24, of 3115 Crandall Way, was arrested last week and charged with being an accessory to the disposal of Raiter's body.

Thursday, officers served murder warrants on Daniel Carl Fisk, 31, also known as Blosser, who is now in Folsom Prison on a later voluntary manslaughter conviction, and Harry Otto Daigh, 35, also known as "Fat Jack," who is in Cierra Conservation Center on conviction of illegal possession of firearms by an exconvict.

School Restructure Ordered by Court

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The State Board of Education turned to financing again today in an attempt to deal with a court-ordered restructuring which could cost billions of dollars.

Board members considered a $1.4 billion proposal to equalize the amount of money public school students receive in poor and rich districts.

The state's current school financing system was ruled unconstitutional by a Los Angeles Superior Court because of the educational tax rate disparities that result.

With inflation taken into consideration it could cost an additional $2 billion to bring the system in compliance with the court order by the 1980 deadline. The financing system relies heavily on property taxes.

Thursday, the board adopted a tough conflict-of-interest rule covering persons involved in the selection of millions of dollars worth of textbooks for California schools.

"How come my electric bill is so high? And we've been using less."

We know your electric bill is higher. A lot higher—even though you're conserving electricity. Why? Primarily because of the increased cost of oil.

It's our job to provide the electricity you, your family and your job require. And we must do so in a manner that meets all air pollution control regulations. This means burning foreign, low-sulfur oil in Edison generating plants. The price is set by foreign governments, and it more than tripled in the last 18 months. It could go even higher. Since January, 1972, the increasing costs of oil and the additional amounts we have had to buy are responsible for almost 90% of the increase in your electric bills.

So we won't always be so dependent on foreign oil, we're spending millions of dollars building coal and nuclear plants. We are also researching new ways to generate electricity—without foreign oil. Geothermal power. Solar power. Fuel cells. Fast breeder reactors. Nuclear fusion. Research is costly, but it will also help to reduce our reliance on foreign oil.

Projects related to the environment are expensive, too, and in 1974 will account for about 20% of our capital expenditures. In the past six years, $325 million were required to be spent for such projects. It looks like we will have to spend another $450 million for environmental purposes within the next four-year period.

On top of all this, inflation is eating into our budget—as it is yours. The cost of constructing new plants is 10 times higher than it was a few years ago, and borrowing costs have more than doubled.

Your electric bill will reflect these rising costs. What can you do to hold down your bill? Budget your use of electricity wisely. For ways to do this, send for our free booklet. Write: "Conservation," Edison, P.O. Box 800, Rosemead, CA 91770.

'Retrofit' Homes To Save on Fuel

By SYLVIA PORTER

Money's Worth

One of the least expensive and simplest ways for you, a homeowner, to control your heating costs in this era of oppressively high fuel costs is through home "retrofitting" — or the installation of ceiling insulation, weather stripping and caulking.

And this almost surely will be among President Ford's proposals when he delivers his energy program to Congress next month.

THE PROGRAM will not be mandatory — but it is among the incentive measures urged by the Federal Energy Administration to induce you to cut back on your consumption of energy and simultaneously curb your fuel bills. In six months, these have risen 17 percent for gas and electricity and 22 percent for fuel oil and coal.

Yet, of the 70 million homes in the U.S., 20 million are inadequately insulated. If your house was built before 1940 — and 41 percent of all houses were — yours probably is among them.

By spending only $200 to retrofit your home, the FEA estimates you will save an average of $94 a year in fuel costs and thus, in about 26 months, your savings will have paid for your investment. And the $200 is an across-the-board approximation. By doing the retrofitting yourself, for instance, you can cut your initial outlay in half (or more than half).

As one illustration, a Midwest owner of a two-story house built before 1940 (when the Federal Housing Administration had no insulation standards for insured mortgage homes) saved about $54 a year with the installation of just six inches of ceiling insulation. This do-it-yourselfer spent $100 on materials, recouped his investment in 18 months.

TO ENCOURAGE you to invest in such thermal improvements, the FEA proposes that you be given a tax credit of 25 percent of the cost of your materials and installation. Your credit could be limited to $200 per taxpayer and you would have to act within a specified time period. The cost to the federal government would approach $500 million, but the potential energy saving would be 250,000 barrels of oil per day by 1980.

The FEA also is proposing that the Administration initiate a $60 million program to fund utilities (through state utility commissions) that offer loans to homeowners for retrofitting.

A financing program of this sort already has been in operation in Michigan for slightly over a year. To qualify, a customer must own his (or her) own home and be paid up on his gas bill. After a 20 percent down payment of the cost of retrofitting, the customer may decide either to pay off the balance within 90 days interest-free or pay in 36 monthly installments with an interest charge of one percent on the unpaid monthly balance.

IN A RELATED venture, the FEA is testing in several cities a program called "Project Conserve" — under which participants fill out a questionnaire stating their present heating and cooling costs, house dimensions and insulation devices. Then a computer analyzes the energy efficiency of the home, makes recommendations for improvements and estimates their cost as well as eventual saving in fuel bills. The computer service is now free; if it goes nationwide, you'll probably have to pay a processing fee of a few dollars.

But what if you're poor and the cost of any home improvement scheme is out of your reach? For you, the FEA proposes a federally funded plan to upgrade your estimated 5 million homes. This program would be modeled after the successful home winterization program piloted last winter in Maine.

THE GOVERNMENT would provide $100 per home for insulation materials; volunteer groups would do the installations. The cost of this one-shot operation: $500 million. The resulting savings in oil imports: $550 million a year.

"Project Independence" is being translated by deeply concerned citizens into realistic money and energy-saving measures.

New Fares For State Jets Told

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The State Public Utilities Commission has established new permanent air fares within California, some higher and some lower than previous fares.

Its action came in a final order covering applications by Pacific Southwest Airlines (PSA), Air California, Western Airlines and United Airlines dating back to October, 1973.

A number of interim increases had been granted since the original filings to offset increased fuel costs, the last a four percent boost on Sept. 4.

Under the order, PSA will get a 1.4 percent increase, which with previous interim boosts is expected to produce revenue amounting to $17.5 million. The new fares also will include reductions for flights between Fresno and Los Angeles and between Fresno and San Diego.

Air California does not get a fare increase under the latest order but was granted increases Sept. 4 which now are permanent.

United and Western, whose California passenger operations have been conducted at a loss, now may increase fares to match PSA and Air California fares on comparable routes.

Ford Sees No Way To Drop Car Costs

DETROIT (UPI) — Dwindling profits and climbing costs make a $200 to $400 auto price cut suggested by a dealers' group "inconceivable," Ford Motor Co. vice president John B. Naughton said Thursday.

Naughton, Ford vice president for sales, said Ford's profit per car already is less than $150, and inflation is driving up costs at the rate of $35 a month.

Edwin J. Mullane, a Ford dealer in Bergenfield, N.J., and president of the Ford Dealers Alliance, said Wednesday that Ford was being noncompetitive by holding to its 1975-model prices in the face of a steep sales slump. He said a price cut could provide priming to start the economy moving.

Mullane said that since dealers have virtually no control over price and production, "I pray they (Ford) break out of their noncompetitive intransigence and try a price experiment in the market place."

Ford boosted prices by $407 at the introduction of the 1975 models and boosted the price another $75 on Nov. 18 by making some options standard equipment and raising freight and antifreeze charges. Three days later, it cut $150 from the price of its cheapest car — the two-door subcompact Pinto — by knocking $66 off the base price and substituting cheaper tires.

New Chief At United

CHICAGO (UPI) — Edward E. Carlson Thursday was named board chairman of United Airlines and Richard J. Ferris president of the airline.

Ferris, 38, was associated with Western International Hotels, a subsidiary of UAL, Inc., until 1971 when he became president of the airline's Food Services Division.

Carlson has been United's president since December, 1970, after more than 30 years in the hotel industry.

"I ALWAYS SEEM TO BE ON THE WRONG SIDE OF THE DOOR!"

Chinese Food Recalled

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 9,500 large cans of Chinese vegetables have been ordered recalled by the Food and Drug Administration because of possible health hazards resulting from underprocessing.

No injuries or deaths have been reported, but the underprocessing may allow the growth of microorganisms that could be harmful, the FDA said.

The cans of bamboo shoots, bean sprouts and mixed vegetables were produced by the Great China Food Products Co., Chicago, last April and May in 19-ounce and six-pound, six-ounce cans and labeled under 41 different names.

The FDA said the cans should be returned to the supplier and not be opened. The FDA said the cans normally would have been purchased by institutions such as hospitals and restaurants.

Ritualistic Cattle Kill Gets Probe

DENVER (UPI) — An official of the American Humane Association says the recent deaths of nine Colorado cattle in "ritualistic-style killings" were part of a series of such incidents being perpetrated across the country by members of a mysterious cult.

R. T. Phillips, AHA executive director, said it was believed "cults are involved in the bizarre slayings." He said the association was offering $500 rewards for arrests and convictions of the killers.

Phillips said eight cattle "were slain in 11 days near Glenwood Springs, Colo.," and a ninth, a 1,100-pound Hereford cow, was killed, drained of blood and had its sexual organs and one ear cut off near Wray, Colo.

"In Nebraska's Platte County, it was reported 44 such crimes occurred in the past month," he said.

Phillips said the latest reports of such slaughter came from Minnesota, where numerous cattle were slain and mutilated for no apparent reason.

Trio Get Probation

NEW YORK (AP) — Suspended sentences were given to two sons of noted newspaper figures and a friend, who admitted conspiring last April to sell cocaine to a man who turned out to be a federal agent.

U.S. District Court Judge Thomas P. Griesa suspended five-year sentences and decreed five years of probation, along with steady work or study, for Barry Considine, 32, son of columnist Bob Considine; Kerry A. Kollmar, 20, son of the late Dorothy Killgallen and the late Richard Kollmar, and Jonathan Cohen, 21, a student.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

If it wasn't for Winston, I wouldn't smoke.

Winston

...aste isn't everything. It's the only thing.
I smoke for pleasure. That's spelled T-A-S-T-E.
That means Winston. Winston won't give you a new image.
All Winston will ever give me is taste.
A taste that's very real. If a cigarette isn't real,
it isn't anything. Winston is for real.

Nude Cleared -- Beaches Now Open?

Orange County's nude beachgoers may have been given a green light to put it together in the altogether.

Beachgoers who found going rough in the buff in recent months were vindicated late Thursday when South Orange County municipal court Judge John A. Griffin found Charles Anderson of Costa Mesa not guilty of multiple charges filed when he sunbathed in the nude at South Laguna's 9th Street Beach.

Anderson, 27, was found not guilty on charges of lewd conduct and disturbing the peace after defense attorney Bill Sheffield successfully argued that his client had disturbed no one and no sexual intent when he exposed his entire body to the sun.

Anderson is one more than 100 nude beachgoers who have been arrested by sheriff's officers in recent months on such charges.

His acquittal, Sheffield said today, may effectively bar the sheriff from any further arrests of that type.

Judge Griffin's ruling may also mean the end of the county ordinance which Anderson was said to have violated, Sheffield said.

Property owner Willard Cain had earlier argued for the prosecution that nude beachgoing near his cliff top home on South Coast Highway had reached the point that he could no longer invite his grandchildren to the house.

Cain is by far the most constant caller to the sheriff's office in all such instances of nudity on the beach.

Sheffield successfully argued that the ordinance under which Anderson also was prosecuted pertained more to nude and semi-nude entertainment than naked sunbathing on the beach.

"I look on this as a test case," the defense attorney said. "And I very much regret that many of the people who have been similarly arrested on these charges decided to plead guilty rather than take the issue to trial as Mr. Anderson did."

Newport Explosion Guts Boat

By ALMON LOCKABEY
Boating Editor

A boat explosion rocked the Lido North apartment complex on Lido Peninsula with the force of a sonic boom Thursday night. The concussion and fire caused damage to boats in adjacent slips.

Gutted by the explosion and fire was a 35-foot cabin cruiser belonging to David Hreha, 19162 Constellation Lane, Huntington Beach. The boat had been berthed at the marina, 633 Lido Park Drive, with a "for sale" sign on it.

Cause of the explosion was not immediately known, according to James Upton, inspector for the Newport Beach Fire Department.

Occupants of boats in nearby slips were shaken up by the force of the explosion, but no one was injured.

Severely damaged by concussion and heat was the 63-foot Glissando, a converted military Vessel owned by Mark Armistad which was in the ad-

Indicted Aides Not Suspended

By TOM BARLEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Orange County Assessor Jack Vallerga today announced that he has no intention of suspending or taking any type of disciplinary action against seven employes accused in a Grand Jury indictment.

Vallerga emerged from a 24-hour seclusion to condemn any such action as "quite inappropriate at this time.

"As of now they have simply been charged," Vallerga said. "I understand that the Grand Jury investigation is continuing and I see no reason to interfere with their duties at this early stage.

"I have every confidence in the system," Vallerga said. "And I have every confidence that these charges are going to be thrown out at a later stage of the game."

All seven employes and two former assessor's aides who are now retired will be arraigned later today in Superior Court on charges of grand theft, submitting false claims and violating government codes.

It is alleged that the nine drew county money in 1970 for time actually spent in working for what eventually was the election of then county assessor Andrew J. Hinshaw to the 40th District Congressional seat.

Hinshaw's secretary said the Congressman was in the House voting and will not be available to the press until later today.

Later, Hinshaw told the Daily Pilot in a telephone conversation that he is "making no comment at this time on the advice of my attorney."

He said would speak with his attorney again this afternoon to de-

DOW OFF AGAIN; TRADE SLUGGISH

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials lost 3.60 points to 592.77, and losers outpaced gainers by about 9 to 5 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Irvine Co. Gets Input From 22 Organizations

The Irvine Company's efforts to please everybody with its plans for development of 10,000 acres between Corona del Mar and Laguna Beach are destined to be unsuccessful, company planner Larry Moore told a luncheon gathering Thursday.

But when the company responds to 22 groups who have taken part in planning the company's coastal sector, most of nearly 300 concerns will be satisfied, he said.

Speaking to nearly 150 members of the Orange County Coast Association at the Bahia Corinthian Yacht Club in Newport Beach Moore and Irvine Company President Raymond Watson detailed the history of The Irvine Company Multi-Agency Planning Program (TICMAP).

Composed of 22 public and private groups, the planning body is an Irvine Company effort to head off possible confrontations on its plans for the 10,000 acres which may come up during hearings before the coastal commission or the Orange County Planning Commission.

"There is no ideal solution. That plan can't be drawn," said Moore. "No matter what we come up with, there is going to be some group or agency out there that disagrees with us."

Company plans for the area include a 1,345-acre state park, homes for about 50,000 residents and two major resort areas.

The parkland sale, which was to be completed later this month, has been blocked by a preliminary injunction obtained by Joan Irvine Smith, who controls 22 percent of the company's stock.

She contended that the $7.6 million price on the 3.5 miles of beach and bluff and 1,100 acres in Moro Canyon intended for the park was too low.

In addition to the parkland, Moore said, other land in the area designated as open space is still in question. So far, no agency has offered to buy it, he said, and none has offered to maintain it even if the land was a gift.

Regarding the planned open space, Moore said, "The Irvine Company can do other things with these canyons and will insist on being able to do things with these canyons unless some workable solution is arrived at."

The coastal commission or county planners cannot simply confiscate the land or deny the company the right to use it, he said.

Other problems in planning the area, Moore said, include transportation. Pacific Coast Highway is already overloaded, he said, and the cities of Newport Beach and Laguna Beach can be expected to oppose a plan which will mean more traffic through their jurisdictions.

The highway is the only access to the property at this time. Company plans, however, show two roads leading northeast into Irvine and an additional access which could be provided if the Corona del Mar Freeway was to be extended south.

Narco Raids Sweep Mesa; 32 Arrested

By ARTHUR R. VINSEL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A sweep through Costa Mesa by teams of narcotics detectives Thursday and today has netted 32 among 42 suspected on-the-street drug dealers, many of them students at two high schools.

The age among those arrested so far ranges from 14 to 35, according to police and includes one diminutive adult, 18, who gave his occupation as race-horse jockey.

Arrest warrants naming most of the arrestees and others still on the streets were issued following a four-month investigation.

Vice and Narcotics Detail Detective Sgt. Gene "Mother" Norden said today it was coordinated with the Orange County Narcotics Task Force and aimed at cutting campus drug use.

"Only a few of the drug buys were conducted on local high school campuses. . .," he explained.

Some parallels exist to a recent mass Los Angeles County drug-dealing roundup in which 226 students from among 20 high schools were taken into custody.

Fourteen more arrests are expected.

No officers were actually enrolled at Costa Mesa or Estancia high schools to investigate the alleged drug trafficking, which he said mainly involved marijuana, hashish, cocaine and amphetamine stimulant tablets.

He said some undercover agents were active on campus, but posed as old hangers-on or dropout students during the four-month probe.

"We've found the trend tends to be more one of selling to close friends or persons they know well," said Sgt. Norden. He suggested this may indicate a growing fear of selling to police agents, due to many arrests in the past 18 months.

By this morning the tally of those in custody included 25 juveniles — all but five of whom were booked into Juvenile Hall on charges of drug sales — and seven adults.

The five juveniles released to their parents were arrested incidentally to the main thrust of the drug roundup, according to Sgt. Norden. They are charged with only possession, not sales.

Adult arrestees captured during the sweep, which was suspended at 10 p.m., pending resumption today, include:

Exporters Hike Cost of Crude By 3 Percent

VIENNA (UPI) — The world's major oil exporting nations decided today to increase the price of crude oil by 31 cents a barrel — 3 percent — on Jan. 1. Iran's Interior Minister Jamshouzegar said.

"The selling price of oil will be $10.46 a barrel effective Jan. 1," Amouzegar said after a two-day meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).

The new price will be frozen for the first nine months of 1975, he said.

The present average selling price of crude oil is $10.15 a 42-gallon barrel, oil industry officials said.

It was not immediately clear whether this would mean an increase in the price of gasoline because of the complicated oil pricing and royalty system which determine oil prices.

Larry Goldstein, a New York oil consultant, said the action by OPEC may not be an increase at all since $10.46 is the market price established last month by Saudi Arabia, Abu Dhabi and Qatar.

The action by OPEC, he said, is "nothing more than a confirmation that this is the market price for everybody."

But, he said, oil companies had been paying an average of $10.36 a barrel for that oil owned by the Arab nations and that owned by the companies. The set price of $10.46 for all OPEC oil, Goldstein said, means "an increase in cost to the companies of 10 cents a barrel."

The earlier increases imposed un-

Costa Mesa Hits Delays In Park Buys

By ALAN DIRKIN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Fifteen months after Costa Mesa voters approved a $3.9 million park bond issue for acquisition and development of 70 acres of parks, the city has purchased 42 acres.

It appears that the city will fall about 10 acres short of the announced goal of 70 acres when all purchases are complete.

Director of Leisure Services Keith Van Holt today agreed that the city is behind schedule in acquisition and that the city will be able to buy fewer acres than planned.

"I didn't appreciate the amount of meetings and arguing over prices that would be involved," Van Holt said.

All of the park sites acquired so far were school sites, which the city bought from the Newport-Mesa Unified School District. No private property has yet been purchased.

Van Holt reported that negotiations are under way or appraisals are being made on another 15 to 20 acres of private land. The announced target for that category of acquisition was 25 acres.

"We will end up with fewer acres," Van Holt acknowledged, pointing out that land prices had risen. He said some of the parcels the city had planned to buy were sold even before the bond election was passed in September, 1973.

Joan Margol, one of the citizen leaders for the bond issue, today said that she considered the progress "barely satisfactory."

"We are sorry it has not gone faster, but we are not sure it could have gone faster," she added.

Mrs. Margol said that she understood the city had sold the park bonds and was collecting interest

Retired Judge Harold Collins Funeral Held

Catholic funeral rites were held Thursday and today for retired Los Angeles County Superior Court Judge Harold F. Collins, a summertime Balboa Island resident who died Tuesday.

The veteran jurist, 72, had maintained a Harbor Area retreat for 20 years and had many friends and relatives locally, but lived at 810 Rubio St., Altadena.

Graveside rites were held today at Resurrection Cemetery, South San Gabriel, following Rosary Thursday at St. Elizabeth's Church in Altadena.

His legislative and law career began in 1927 when he was admitted to the California Bar, but after seven years in private practice he became a special assistant to the U.S. Attorney General's office in Los Angeles.

He left again for private practice in 1944, and 18 years later Gov. Edmund G. "Pat" Brown appointed him to the bench where he served 10 years before retiring.

Judge Collins most recently was appointed hearing officer for the Los Angeles County Civil Service Commission by the board of supervisors and held it until his death.

Survivors include his wife Julia; sons Thomas, of Pasadena, and Charles, of Temple City; daughters Julia of Altadena and Mrs. Clare Marquardt, of Sierra Madre, plus nine grandchildren, three brothers and three sisters.

Timing Issue

Watergate Jury Zeroes on Golf

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The exact time when Richard Kleindienst played golf and his wife quit cleaning her kitchen cabinets to have lunch on Saturday, June 17, 1972, emerged as a vital issue today at the Watergate cover-up trial.

Such seemingly trivial events were at the heart of the defense of Robert C. Mardian, a sometime San Clemente resident, as he seeks to convince the jury he had no part in trying to hush up the scandal.

Five agents of then President Nixon's re-election campaign had been arrested at Democratic headquarters at 2 a.m. and the prosecution charges that Kleindienst, then attorney general, received an urgent message later that day while playing golf at Burning Tree Country Club. The message asked him to release the burglars from jail.

The request allegedly originated with defendant John M. Mitchell, then Nixon's campaign manager and now a cover-up defendant, and was relayed by Mardian on the telephone to Watergate mastermind G. Gordon Liddy, who in turn rushed to the country club to give it to Kleindienst.

Mardian, a former assistant attorney general and Nixon campaign operative, was with the campaign high command in California at the time. He contends that because of the time difference, he could not possibly have called Washington in advance of Liddy's trip to Burning Tree about noon Washington time.

"but that was not the purpose of the vote. The intent was to develop parks."

Mrs. Margol said that the citizens committee was aware that acquiring private property would be the hardest step. "We knew there would be a lot of dickering," she said.

Of the $3.9 million approved by voters, $2.6 million was for acquisition and $1.3 million for development.

Van Holt reported that so far, $1,470,000 had been spent on acquisition and $300,000 committed for development.

Of the delays, Van Holt said that he expected to have the school properties in March, but did not gain them until July because of the length of the negotiations.

Van Holt pointed out that although these lands were already in the public domain, they would have been sold to private developers if the city had not acted.

As for land that is presently private, the leisure services director said that negotiations on prices are under way on the three parcels, and appraisals have begun on two other sites.

"On the last two sites, the owners said our appraisal was low and they are now having their own done," Van Holt said. "It's a long process."

Van Holt said that in some instances owners had sold out before the city could even begin negotiations. "Also if a private owner doesn't want to sell to the city all we can do is condemn the property, but we have been trying to avoid that," Van Holt explained.

Van Holt noted that the city has been trying to maintain the criteria of locating parks within walking distance of all homes in a neighborhood and locating sites that are visible.

The minimum park size the city likes to consider is 2.5 acres but these are "getting harder to find."

Communications Gap Claimed On Energy Issue

The American people are not fully aware of "the magnitude and seriousness" of the energy crisis, a Newport Beach business executive said in a speech this week.

Phillip J. Stevens, president of Ultrasystems, Inc., went on to call for government to take the necessary actions to close the energy communications gap.

Stevens' remarks were made at a luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Corona del Mar.

Optimistically, he said the U.S. has the science and technology resources available to solve the energy problems.

However, Stevens added, those resources must be "wisely directed, strongly supported and directed by proper government leadership.

Stevens predicted that the energy crisis will mean changes in the nation's life styles that have already begun, such as reducing the highway speed limit to 55 miles per hour.

It will also mean expanded effort to extract synthetic gas from coal, the growth of conservation oriented industries and offshore oil drilling, according to the Newport Beach businessman.

Stevens concluded his luncheon talk by expressing his "great confidence" in the ability of the American people to "solve such monumental problems" as the nation's energy needs.

ilaterally by Saudi Arabia, Abu Dhabi and Qatar had already been passed on by the oil companies through their distributors and the latest action may not mean higher prices for consumers, he said.

Asked if gasoline and home heating oil prices would go up, Amouzegar said: "That depends on how much the oil companies can absorb from their profits."

Iran, he said, proposed limiting oil company profits to 50 cents a barrel. Present oil company profits are about 75 cents a barrel, OPEC officials said.

The increase of 31 cents in the selling price of a barrel of oil was decided by ministers of the 13 OPEC nations meeting in a Vienna hotel following two bomb threats against OPEC headquarters.

OPEC did away with the posted price system which maintained artificially high prices, in favor of the unified system.

Amouzegar said OPEC had been forced to increase the price of oil because three members — Saudi Arabia, Abu Dhabi and Qatar — raised their prices at a meeting in Abu Dhabi last month.

"We had two choices — either to go back to the September price system, and this would mean the three Arab members reversing their decision, which they would not do, or adopt the Abu Dhabi price," he said.

"You can't have two prices from the same oil from the same spot (Middle East),"

SCAG Panel Readies Fight On Land Use

Elected officials who serve as delegates to the powerful Southern California Association of Governments SCAG are gearing up to fight state proposals to create a new super agency to adminster California's coastal development.

In a session in Los Angeles Thursday, the SCAG executive committee has agreed to call a meeting of interested cities within the coastal sector of the Southland in order to coordinate a possible battle against a new element to the state coastal plan that would set up the superagency.

The Powers, Funding and Government element of the coastal land-use plan sets up the framework for a new state panel that would rule on all changes within five miles of the shoreline.

The present system of regional commissions affects changes only within 1,000 yards of the sea.

The Powers, Funding and Government element would expand land-use control to the entire five-mile planning area set up by the passage of the Coastal Initiative.

And South Coast Commission Member and SCAG delegate Ralph Diedrich was outspoken about the controversial plan element.

"There is going to be some strong language in there and it's going to cause some problems," the commissioner and Orange County Supervisor told fellow members of the SCAG Executive Committee.

The greatest concern about the plans for the successor agency on coastal land use is the total loss of local control over the destiny of the state coastline.

Diedrich said that if city and county officials are concerned about the dearth of control in the new system—and the concern already is welling—then the time is right to band together and effect major changes in the proposed planning element.

The formative meeting has not yet been set for a possible mobilization of opposition.

But the committee for SCAG suggested that some sort of consensus should be ready in time for its next session on Jan. 9.

Andy Kirk Succumbs After Long Illness

William "Andy" Kirk, longtime resident of Balboa, died Thursday night at Long Beach Memorial Hospital after a long illness.

Mr. Kirk was admitted to the hospital the day after Thanksgiving after suffering a stroke. He never regained consciousness.

An avid yachtsman, Mr. Kirk, 76, came to the Newport area in the early 1930s and purchased his present home at 1208 E. Balboa Blvd. He joined Newport Harbor Yacht Club in 1937 and started sailing small boats. He later became involved in offshore racing as a crewman on some of the best known yachts on the West Coast.

He sailed in three Transpac races on the famed Morning Star when it was owned by his friend, the late Richard Rheem. He also crewed on the 67-foot yawl Chubasco with the late William Stewart and with the late Humphrey Bogart on the 50-foot yawl Santana. He once sailed the rugged Fastnet race off England with Henry DuPont in a 46-ft. PCC sloop.

Mr. Kirk's own boat, which he campaigned locally for many years, was an Island Clipper named Frolic. In recent years he devoted his yachting activity to his powerboat, Buccaneer.

He was widely known in yachting circles throughout the world and was a charter member of the western contingent of the prestigious Cruising Club of America.

Until his illness nearly two years ago, Mr. Kirk was active in civic affairs. In the 1930s he was appointed to the Newport Beach City Council to fill an unexpired term by the late Mayor Clyan Hall.

Although he has always maintained the Balboa Peninsula home on the bayfront, Mr. Kirk and his wife, Dorothy, had spent much of their time recently at a ranch they owned at 17005 Santiago Canyon Rd.

Mr. Kirk was the last of the independent oil producers. He was the founder and president of the California Southern Oil Co. until he sold out to a major oil company and retired.

In addition to his widow, Dorothy, Mr. Kirk leaves a son, William A. Jr. of Los Angeles; a daughter, Mrs. Clary (Katherine) Staaf, Newport Beach; a foster-daughter, Mrs. Grace Gaylord of Reno; six grandchildren, and four great-grandchildren.

Aid for Mesa Housing

Costa Mesa has an opportunity to gain $4.2 million in federal funds over six years to improve housing conditions and quality of life for those on moderate or low incomes.

It's come under the name of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, a measure designed to reduce slums and blight, and to prevent a deterioration in the nation's housing supply. It also was enacted by Congress to take the housing problem from the federal government and hand it to the local authorities.

Most Costa Mesa councilmen have indicated they are in favor of pursuing the funds, which would not start to come in until April, 1975.

The interest is there for several reasons. First, because the money has already been allocated by the federal government. That means no grantsmanship is required to get it. Second, because the money can be spent in many different ways, acquiring blighted property and refurbishing it, beautification projects, preserving open space and recreational opportunities, code enforcement in rundown areas, and public works facilities such as streets, gutters and community centers.

But the main reason for interest is the need. Much of the city's housing is substandard and is deteriorating further. The 1970 federal census, on which the allocation of funds to Costa Mesa is based, found that many people in Costa Mesa can't afford the homes they are living in. In 1969, 39 percent of homeowners and 47 percent of renters were paying more than the recommended limit of 25 percent of monthly income for their homes.

So far, there's only one catch to the fund application, and surprisingly it's a welcome one. The federal government is insisting that there be broad citizen involvement in establising policies on how the money is spent. This means people from all economic levels, all age levels, minorities, both renters and homeowners, and residents from all sectors of the city.

For this reason, city officials are appealing to residents to apply for membership on an 11-member committee that will determine housing needs. Subcommittees of citizens may be set up under the main body so officials are hoping for a large number and wide variety of applicants. The deadline for applications is Dec. 20.

Some might feel that Costa Mesa officials have been slow to deal with housing problems. The city has refused to join the Orange County Housing Authority or set up one of its own. No funds have been committed in the past toward improving housing.

But the availability of these federal monies, disbursed only on the grounds of need, is an opportunity that should not be missed. Citizens, too, should not miss the opportunity to come forward and play a part in setting policy.

Fairgrounds Water

Costa Mesans will be glad to hear an old problem on the Orange County Fairgrounds is being corrected.

The inadequate water system, that has existed since World War II, is being replaced with a new eight-inch line that will bring the system up to the city's pressure standards. The job, which will cost $151,000, began this week and will be completed in five months.

Costa Mesans should be glad because they may benefit from the improvement. The new line will give the fairgrounds greater fire protection, and this increased protection may result in a better fire insurance rating for the city and lower policies for homeowners and businessmen.

The project also will end a dispute between the Costa Mesa Water District and the fair board. The district once threatened to turn off the water supply in an attempt to get the system replaced.

'Lovelock' Can't Match 'Wedlock'

SYDNEY HARRIS

In reply to a random query of mine some time ago— "What name should we apply to the many couples today who are living together though not married?"—I have received a number of both palatable and ribald suggestions. Two of the most frequent were "cohabs," and "lovelock" instead of "wedlock."

Interestingly enough, one of the reasons modern young people object to the term "wedlock" is the implication that the couple is manacled or handcuffed together in the institution of matrimony. They resent the idea of being "locked" together by a law.

BUT THIS is a misreading of the old Anglo-Saxon word: "wedlock" meant "marriage pledge," and the suffix "lock" had nothing at all to do with handcuffing people together. (It is like the word "sweetheart," where the "heart" part has nothing to do with that organ of the body, but was originally "sweetard," in the same form as "coward" and "dotard.")

Time and custom shape and distort words, and then the words themselves become a kind of tyranny, so that we respond to the distortion rather than to the basic meaning. Indeed, the very word "tyranny" is a perfect example of what happens to a word throughout history.

The earliest "tyrants" in ancient Greece were simply absolute rulers or monarchs, with no implication of cruelty. Both Pericles and Pisistratus were "tyrants," but they were model rulers of wisdom and tolerance. Gradually, however, the word began to assume its later connotation of harshness and oppression, and utterly lost its primal neutral meaning.

FOR COUPLES to live in "lovelock" rather than "wedlock" suggests they have pledged their love—but what value is such a pledge, if it can be withdrawn at the whim of either, with no lasting sense of commitment? The word "pledge" itself means a "guarantee" —but a guarantee is empty if you are not willing to make good on it.

It is my feeling that we have not yet, as a species, arrived at any finally satisfactory form of man-woman relations. The traditional form of matrimony is too filled with rigidities, injustices, and inconsistencies; yet the new "cohabs" have merely exchanged one set of difficulties for another, for without a deep sense of permanence and commitment the living-fabric is too fragile to sustain a family.

THE NUB of the problem is that the human infant, unlike all others, needs years of stable development before it is ready to cope with its physical and social environment. Without children, marriage might be unnecessary; with children, it may be a necessary evil, capable of being ameliorated, but not eliminated from the social structure.

GOP Survivors Alienated

Ford Absence Offends Governors

EVANS-NOVAK

ST. LOUIS — Unfairly or not, the thimbleful of Republican governors and governors-elect who survived the Democratic landslide of Nov. 5 were outraged that President Ford could not make a brief appearance at their midwinter conference here last week after his long journey to the Far East.

Indeed, intensive negotiations had started in mid-November with low-level White House aides to arrange a visit by Mr. Ford that would lend Presidential endorsement to party-rebuilding efforts. Yet, despite repeated telephone calls to the White House by host Gov. Christopher Bond of Missouri, presidential aides insisted Mr. Ford could not spare a couple of hours. Contact was never made with Dean Burch, Mr. Ford's political adviser until his resignation last week, who took no interest in the governors' appeal.

THIS non-appearance by a President who was sharply criticized for traveling to real estate conventions in Las Vegas added to the funereal gloom at the governors' conference. Even before they learned he would not appear, the governors were grumbling over Mr. Ford's performance as both party chief and national leader.

Their aggravation did not peak until word spread that even William Seidman, the highest White House aide scheduled to meet the governors, was going to back out on his scheduled appearance.

With tempers rising among the governors, White House aide James Falk, Mr. Ford's chief liaison with the governors, rushed to a pay phone here with an SOS to the White House. That firmed up Seidman's appearance and also brought Falk's boss, Domestic Council chief Ken Cole, to the session.

But it scarcely mitigated disappointment with Mr. Ford. One governor, reelected last month by a huge majority while other Republican candidates in his state were losing, told us: "This would have been the perfect place for Jerry Ford to come and show his interest, with the few of us who won, in trying to revive his party."

THE GOVERNORS' unhappiness with Mr. Ford goes beyond reviving the Republican party. They believe he is spending far too much time on foreign travel at a time of deepening recession and general economic crisis at home. The President's WIN — Whip Inflation Now — public relations campaign is ridiculed as outdated in the face of national unemployment expected to approach eight percent next summer.

Gov. William Milliken of Michigan, arguing that "mere rhetoric cannot save our free enterprise system," came here handing out lapel buttons of his own contradicting the White House WIN pins. His pins say BAC — Buy a Car.

Milliken's reelection by 114,000 votes against multiple adversity in the depression-threatened automobile state was a stunning offset to his party's national disaster, but not a single White House political aid has bothered to call him for a post-election analysis.

WORSE YET, Milliken's carefully considered economic program sent to Mr. Ford in a letter one week before the election has never been answered. He proposed a blend of tax reform, vastly more public service employment, extended unemployment compensation and public works. But Milliken's proposals were not considered important enough to warrant a reply.

Most criticism of Mr. Ford and what one governor called his "Nixon holdover" administration was private. But New Hampshire's Gov. Meldrim Thomson, the anti-tax crusader who is indisputably the most conservative of all Republican governors, felt no such scruples. He delivered an angry statement to what he called the "closetful" of Republican survivors (sitting around the huge horseshoe conference table with embarrassingly wide spaces between them) attacking Mr. Ford for "not caring enough" about the future of the Republican party "to help us set the course for the long climb back."

AN HOUR spent with the governors by Jerry Ford would scarcely make a dent on the staggering political problems of his defeated party. There was no such false hope here. "The GOP has a pinhead for a base and we're kidding ourselves if we think it can be turned around in anything like two or three years," Michigan state chairman William McLaughlin told us.

But that handful of Republican governors who survived last month would have been a good place to start. The fact that the President and his political staff didn't see it that way made a bad situation worse, alienating the governors at a time Mr. Ford needs every possible ally.

The Right to Bear Arms

MAILBOX

Letters from readers are welcome. Normally, writers should convey their messages in 300 words or less. The right to condense letters to fit space or eliminate libel is reserved. All letters must include signature and mailing address but names may be withheld on request if sufficient reason is apparent. Poetry will not be published.

To the Editor:

I have received some literature from The Citizens Committee for the Right to Keep and Bear Arms.

Their letter urges me to write my local newspaper "to protest the anti-gun distortions of the news media." Contrary to their wish, I am writing you to support federal effort to get rid of handguns except for the possible needs of persons who may live in areas remote from law enforcement agencies.

THE EASE with which people may acquire handguns contributes to their unlawful use. Domestic arguments many times are "settled" with a handgun in a family's possession.

I believe that the "right to bear arms" may have been important in the early days of the growth of this nation, but not today. The lives of too many people are endangered. More strict law enforcement would not have prevented the killing of Bobby Kennedy, Martin Luther King, nor the attempt on George Wallace's life, although handguns alone were not used in all cases, including the killing of President Kennedy.

CARTER McDONALD

Anybody Care?

To the Editor:

You live in a neighborhood — do you watch it quickly (or slowly) deteriorate or do you get up in arms about it? And I don't mean shooting that councilman.

I've lived in Costa Mesa a short time and it disgusts and saddens me. The nightly robberies, murders, rapes and burglaries. That's all for us to see. The trash, filth on streets, alleys, gutters and sidewalks, are we so used to that? The garish profusion of signs and advertisements up and down Harbor Boulevard — that's just Costa Mesa? That's just Harbor? The incessant screams and growls of the motorcycles careening down just about every street. Set aside a place for motorcyclists to do their speedy and noisy thing.

POLLUTION now or later? Noise and chemicals. Occasionally a chugging car leaving a trail of those fumes goes by. Anybody else see around here, anybody else care around here?

I walk a lot. I really enjoy it. An average day in the afternoon I got my introduction to casual obscenity. A woman the plaything and object for certain drivers? The finger. I was horrified and shocked. Taken for granted?

No, we don't argue and angrily charge and point at the different city departments. It's us. You and me. An individual; a family; friends living somewhere in Costa Mesa either ignore, laugh at or take notice and act.

IT'S OLD HAT I guess to think of Costa Mesa this way, filth and dirt, gaudiness. But this is a city of people: men, women, children growing and living, not just car salesmen and other businesses. Freshness, sweetness, where are you? Life, cleanliness and beauty, have you deserted us?

I guess I forgot to mention the arrogant dogs who stroll around away from their homes scaring you with their impudent stares and making you step over their droppings sometimes as you walk.

Age of Hostility

To the Editor:

As a graduate of Orange Coast College and former student of Lee Bradley's Psychology 110 class, I find myself replying to an article in the Daily Pilot of Dec. 5.

IN AN AGE of hostility perpetrated by the high cost of sugar, oil, musing about Watergate and reading newspapers, any constructive class in human communication on a one-to-one basis or group level is beneficial. To touch or not to touch. Each man's separate choice. How? A word, pantomine or a light hand. In any attempt at encountering another person, the real threat of rejection is ever present. This tends to make us silent sieves, dumb and dormant.

The course offered at OCC on personal and human awareness was for me an experience of some magnitude. It was a heavy class and so explained at the beginning of the semester. As the class progressed, I become more circumspect in my outlook and actions as my shortcomings became more obvious.

THIS WAS followed by a true feeling of love for some of my classmates which at best is difficult to express. There also occurred feelings of resentment, anger, frustration and jealousy.

When an instructor with 15 years teaching experience attempts to convey methods of communication in this sensitive area, there will be criticism. If we hope to progress beyond the conversational level of "How are You?" . . . "I am fine," then classes such as this must continue.

From an older and more experienced student.

Tax Relief Just an Illusion

EARL WATERS

By now it must be crystal clear to those who must face up to property tax payments, that the relief promised again and again by the Legislature is but an illusion.

Despite the increased aid given to local governments, and the schools, by the state and federal governments, despite the freeze on tax rates imposed on local governments at the insistence of Governor Reagan, the tax bills are higher than ever.

This erosion of homeowner property tax relief, intended by the state subsidized exemptions and the governor's freeze, comes about simply by increasing the assessed valuations. It is a subversion of the intent of the state and federal governments to bring relief to homeowners. For Californians this is the second time that the exemption approach to relief for homeowners has been completely eroded in short order by local governments. The first of $750 was wiped out within two years. The governor then sought an increase to $1750 and attempted to prevent the eroding of this by a freeze on tax rates.

FOR EVEN the hardest heads in the Legislature it should now be starkly obvious that there can be no homeowner relief without a freeze on both tax rates and assessed values. For the state to continue to pour funds into local governments as a means to relieving local property taxes, without first shutting the door tight on both rates and values, accomplishes nothing excepting to encourage more spending on the part of local officials.

And, encouragement is the last thing they need. The appetite for spending exhibited by local governments, especially the schools is insatiable.

In their zeal to tax and spend, spend and tax, and tax and spend, one is reminded of the lemmings. These small rodents, native to the Arctic, are possessed of a congenital desire for self destruction. They, too, have an insatiable appetite. They increase enormously in numbers, exhausting their food supplies. They move steadily across the countryside, regardless of all obstacles, committing devastation in their line of march. Always advancing in the same general direction they ultimately reach the sea where they plunge in and drown.

ONE CANNOT change nature but taxation is a political being, not a creature of nature. It can be changed.

The high property taxes cannot be excused by stating the assessor must increase the valuations because of state law. That would not matter if, on the rise of valuations, the tax rate went down accordingly. But it doesn't go down, despite the millions in additional revenues from state and federal sources. Local officials just don't seem to know how to stop spending.

THE FALLACY of the present system of home taxation is adjusting to current market values even though there is no intent to sell. One buys a home at $10,000, spends his life paying for it, only to find he is now living in a home valued at $40,000 which is beyond his means because of taxes. It's still the same home and it isn't appropriate to be taxed out of it on such a basis.

Assemblyman Gene Chappie, a farmer, is one who has recognized the injustice. He is proposing legislation which would freeze assessed home values. While the details of his proposal haven't been perfected, the aim is to treat homes for what they are, just homes and not speculative land purchases. Property taxes would remain constant until such time as a home is sold. If, at that time a profit has been realized on the sale, taxes would then be assessed on the sale.

Man Robs Navy Base Exchange

MOUNTAIN VIEW (AP) — A lone gunman robbed a Navy Exchange employe at the Moffett Field Naval Air Station and escaped with some $15,000 in cash and checks, a Navy spokesman said.

The Exchange worker had collected the day's receipts from outlying exchanges on the base Thursday evening and was about to deposit the money at the night window of the main exchange building when he was accosted by a man wearing a tan jacket and brandishing a large-caliber pistol, said John Shackleton, Navy information officer.

The gunman took 13 money bags from the man and fled on foot through very dense fog, Shackleton said.

No Body Found

Wife Murdered; Man Convicted

MERCED (AP) — A Contra Costa County gardener convicted Thursday of murdering his estranged wife whose body never was found admitted hours earlier that she is dead, the prosecutor said.

Timothy Bennett, 26, of Concord was convicted of first-degree murder in one of the state's few such guilty verdicts on record where a body never was located.

Mary Jo Bennett, 23, disappeared without a trace after leaving work at the Pacific Telephone Co. here on Oct. 18, 1972.

BENNETT MET with her mother, Ida May Kempel Wednesday night after the jury deliberations began, Dep. Dist. Atty. Robert Quall told newsmen after the verdict.

Quall quoted Bennett as telling his mother-in-law: "If it's any consolation to you, Mary Jo died a sudden and painless death."

BENNETT ALSO tried to commit suicide twice by hanging and slashing his wrists Wednesday night, Quall said.

He also admitted to Quall picking up a woman across from the telephone company and driving south to an overpass near Chowchilla, Quall added.

Bennett said that when he returned to Merced, "If he had killed her, the person he had been with was not with him as far as being alive," Quall said.

These revelations were kept from the jury which deliberated less than two days. Sentencing is scheduled Jan. 2.

THE PROSECUTION presented circumstantial evidence placing Bennett in the area near the time of his wife's disappearance. Bennett said he had a memory lapse for two hours during that period, which was shortly after he had been involved in a minor traffic accident.

The defense argued two hours was insufficient time for Bennett to have abducted, murdered and buried his wife, then plant notes the prosecution claimed he forced her to write.

Slayings Unrelated

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police investigators reported Thursday that viewing an episode of "Police Story" has not provided any clues to the murders of three Skid Row derelicts.

The investigators watched a rerun of the Nov. 26 episode of the NBC television show, which involved the slaying of five derelicts.

Lt. Charles Kilgo, who heads the investigation, said the only relationship between the TV show and the slayings is that all the victims were derelicts.

3 Convicts' Escape Try Discovered

FOLSOM (UPI) — Three convicts from Southern California attempted to cut their way out of the maximum security section of Folsom Prison by using hacksaw blades, prison officials reported Thursday.

The three include a man convicted of murdering four California highway patrolmen and another sentenced for stealing guns in a 1971 plot to free convicted mass-murderer Charles Manson.

3Charged In Grisly Slaying

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Three men are charged in connection with what officers call one of Sacramento County's most grisly slayings in recent years

Chief Deputy Sheriff Herbert Anderson said Thursday, "This is the most heinous crime in which I have been involved in the sheriff's department."

THE VICTIM was redheaded Mark V. Raiter, 25, who was last seen Nov. 25, 1973. His headless body was found floating in the Sacramento River in May, 1974, after apparently being stuffed into a weighted garbage can. His head is believed to have been delivered to someone in Oakland as proof he had been slain on a "contract," officers said.

Anderson said Victor George Pryor, 24, of 3115 Crandall Way, was arrested last week and charged with being an accessory to the disposal of Raiter's body.

Thursday, officers served murder warrants on Daniel Carl Fisk, 31, also known as Blosser, who is now in Folsom Prison on a later voluntary manslaughter conviction, and Harry Otto Daigh, 35, also known as "Fat Jack," who is in Cierra Conservation Center on conviction of illegal possession of firearms by an exconvict.

SAN JOSE (UPI) — Mrs. Charlotte Lange held her fragile daughter Jolene, the healthiest of her three surviving sextuplets, in her arms for the first time Thursday.

Jolene is doing well at Valley Medical Center without respiratory support while her two surviving brothers, Brian and Jason, are in serious condition with continuing deterioration of their respiratory system.

Suit Declined

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Attorney General Evelle J. Younger has declined to file suit against former Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti accusing him of violating campaign disclosure laws.

People's Lobby, a political activist group, charged last month that Moretti failed to properly report campaign contributions and expenditures during his unsuccessful bid for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. The group asked Younger to file suit to force compliance with the disclosure law. Younger Thursday said an investigation by his office into the charges found "no willful, knowing, or grossly negligent violations" of the law to warrant a suit.

Act Challenged

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California bankers and a legislator have gone to court in an attempt to block implementation of a lobbyist-control provision of the newly enacted State Political Reform Act.

They insist that the law could require public disclosure of the most minute financial transaction of a state employe, official, or legislator and even members of their families.

The California Bankers Association asked Superior Court Thursday to either declare the challenged section illegal or delay its implementation.

School Restructure Ordered by Court

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The State Board of Education turned to financing again today in an attempt to deal with a court-ordered restructuring which could cost billions of dollars.

Board members considered a $1.4 billion proposal to equalize the amount of money public school students receive in poor and rich districts.

The state's current school financing system was ruled unconstitutional by a Los Angeles Superior Court because of the educational tax rate disparities that result.

With inflation taken into consideration it could cost an additional $2 billion to bring the system in compliance with the court order by the 1980 deadline. The financing system relies heavily on property taxes.

Thursday, the board adopted a tough conflict-of-interest rule covering persons involved in the selection of millions of dollars worth of textbooks for California schools.

Art Plied By Inmate

SAN QUENTIN (UPI) — Inmates at San Quentin State Prison have been warned there is a counterfeiter among them.

Tickets for photographic service in the visiting room, sold for two packs of cigarettes, are fake, prison officials said.

The warning, published in the San Quentin News, advised inmates "against purchasing picture tickets for cigarettes until the present problem is resolved."

"How come my electric bill is so high? And we've been using less."

We know your electric bill is higher. A lot higher—even though you're conserving electricity. Why? Primarily because of the increased cost of oil.

It's our job to provide the electricity you, your family and your job require. And we must do so in a manner that meets all air pollution control regulations. This means burning foreign, low-sulfur oil in Edison generating plants. The price is set by foreign governments, and it more than tripled in the last 18 months. It could go even higher. Since January, 1972, the increasing costs of oil and the additional amounts we have had to buy are responsible for almost 90% of the increase in your electric bills.

So we won't always be so dependent on foreign oil, we're spending millions of dollars building coal and nuclear plants. We are also researching new ways to generate electricity—without foreign oil. Geothermal power. Solar power. Fuel cells. Fast breeder reactors. Nuclear fusion. Research is costly, but it will also help to reduce our reliance on foreign oil.

Projects related to the environment are expensive, too, and in 1974 will account for about 20% of our capital expenditures. In the past six years, $325 million were required to be spent for such projects. It looks like we will have to spend another $450 million for environmental purposes within the next four-year period.

On top of all this, inflation is eating into our budget—as it is yours. The cost of constructing new plants is 10 times higher than it was a few years ago, and borrowing costs have more than doubled.

Your electric bill will reflect these rising costs. What can you do to hold down your bill? Budget your use of electricity wisely. For ways to do this, send for our free booklet. Write: "Conservation," Edison, P.O. Box 800, Rosemead, CA 91770.
