20 DIE AS AIR FORCE PLANE RAMS MOUNTAIN

Bomb Plans Baffle Irvine Police

Military Flight

Crash Kills 20 on Plane

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — An Air Force plane slammed into a mountainside on a high security Army base, killing all 20 people aboard when it exploded on impact a half mile from a bunker containing fissionable material, authorities said.

The four-engine plane crashed on Manzano Base, where nuclear weapons are stored, three minutes after its takeoff from Kirtland Air Force Base at 11:45 p.m. Wednesday.

Kirtland base operations confirmed there were no survivors, said Walter Sprick of the Federal Aviation Administration.

"One big fireball and that was it," a nearby resident said.

Air Force crews using flares and helicopter spotlights recovered at least 15 bodies in a predawn search. Authorities said all those aboard were military personnel.

A spokesman at the plane's base said it was used frequently by high-ranking military personnel and American and foreign dignitaries.

Former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is among those who have used the plane, the spokesman said.

The aircraft, which was scattered over 10 acres after impact, was used as a model for modifications to Air Force One, the president's plane.

An air traffic controller said he tried to warn the pilot the plane was in trouble.

"The first indication we had he was in trouble was when the radar showed he was too close to the mountain and flying too low," said the controller.

"We hit him on the guard frequency and told him to turn right and climb... but he never did," he said.

The jet was a communications aircraft based at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base in Goldsboro, N.C. An Air Force spokesman said it was on a training mission and was on its way to Nellis Air Force base in Nevada. The EC135, described as a "modified 707," stopped in Albuquerque (See 29 DEAD, Page A2).

Employee Finds Copy

Irvine police were trying today to determine the authenticity of a Xerox copy of an apparent plan to make a bomb, discovered Wednesday by an Edwards Laboratories employee.

The diagram was found in the printout tray of the copying machine, located just inside the loading and shipping dock of the facility, at 1401 Alton Ave.

Personnel Manager Rick Barkley called police when an employee showed him the drawing.

Police said the drawing appeared to be plans for a radio-controlled bomb, which diagrammed blasting caps and three sticks of dynamite, with power booster, batteries and what appeared to be a television receiver.

The maker of the diagrams apparently was semi-literate. Several labeling words were misspelled.

Lance: 'Clear Conscience,' No Cover-up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Budget Director Bert Lance, appealing to the American people to be "the jury in this proceeding," told the Senate today that while he may have made mistakes running his Georgia banks he engaged in no wrongdoing and no cover-up.

"I am secure and comfortable knowing that my conscience is clear and that the people's verdict will be a fair and just one," the director of President Carter's Office of Management and Budget told the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee.

Drawing slowly and solemnly,

HOMETOWN RALLIES FOR BERT LANCE, A4

Lance told the two senior members of the committee to their face they have been unfair in their public statements before this, his day in court.

Speaking "more in sorrow than in anger," Lance told the senior Republican, Sen. Charles Percy, that his actions were "puzzling... regrettable."

Percy replied that he questioned the dates on some of Lance's personal checks and whether they were timed to help him obtain a tax deduction.

"It was wrong for me to even raise the possibility," Percy conceded.

Then, one by one, the President's longtime personal friend replied to allegations made in past weeks that his personal and bank dealings, most of them before he joined the Carter government, were marked by irregularities (See LANCE, Page A2).

Suspects Captured

WEST COVINA (AP) — Two men, one believed to be a federal prison escapee, were captured Wednesday by a West Covina police officer after a wild auto and foot chase and a bank hold-up.

Bandit Hero, But Briefly

NEW YORK (AP) — A Brooklyn man who bought drinks for his buddies at a local pub was a hero for about an hour Wednesday. Then he was nabbed for bank robbery.

Police said they arrested Thomas Schossig, 34, less than two hours after a man passed a note demanding money to a bank teller, then escaped with more than $2,000.

In their search, police entered a bar a short distance from the bank. There they found Schossig downing beer and buying rounds for his pals.

Hospital Holiday Hit in Baby Death

MIAMI (AP) — Michelle Pope's baby died at delivery because a base hospital was on a three-day holiday and the limited staff failed to give her "proper care and treatment."

The Air Force admits it was at fault. It has offered $15,000 in restitution.

But Mrs. Pope and her estranged husband, Army Sgt. James Pope, say it's not enough to make up for mental suffering and the breakup of their marriage.

"I never saw my baby. I had to ask if it was a boy or a girl. I wanted her to have her name, not just be a dead baby," Mrs. Pope testified Wednesday.

A federal judge set a final hearing for Friday to decide the government's liability. It was not known how much the Popes are asking.

Testimony showed Jessica Marie was alive and well in her mother's womb when the time for delivery arrived and passed but that labor should have been induced.

But the Homestead Air Force Base hospital staff failed to give Mrs. Pope needed tests when she arrived because no doctors were on duty during the 1975 Veterans Day holiday. The night duty nurses, the government added, were not certain of their ability to treat the woman.

"I knew what was going on, but I didn't want to know," Mrs. Pope testified Wednesday in a choked voice.

She said when the baby was delivered, the doctor would not speak to her or show her the baby.

"I looked over and the nurse was crying," Mrs. Pope recalled. "Then I knew."

She said her divorce one year later was caused by the mental anguish she and her husband suffered because of the baby's death (See BABY, Page A2).

FETE DELAYED BY NO MOON

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Millions of Pakistanis fasted an extra day today after religious committees throughout the country failed to sight the new moon to end the Muslim holy month of Ramadan.

Religious authorities postponed until Friday this Muslim country's most joyful holiday, celebrated like Christmas and New Year at once. This meant another day of shopping for food and sweets and for holiday gifts.

Gas on BBQ Sets Newport Garage Fire

Newport Beach firemen have estimated damage to an Irvine Terrace home at $30,000 after the home's garage was ignited in a mishap involving gasoline.

Department spokesman Art Morton said the blaze at the home of Michael Brawn, 2111 Kewamee Drive, was reported at about 8:30 p.m. Wednesday.

According to fire department reports, Brawn, 36, was having trouble getting his backyard barbecue started.

Morton said Brawn apparently became frustrated when attempts to ignite the barbecue with starter fluid failed, so he got a five-gallon can of gasoline from his garage.

Brawn reportedly poured some of the gas into a cup and tossed part of it on the smoldering brickettes.

According to Morton, the gas ignited, including the gas that remained in the cup.

Brawn dropped the flaming cup and backed away from the blaze, knocking over the uncapped five-gallon can, which also burst into flame, Morton said.

Morton said Brawn then apparently tried to kick the can away from the flames and in his haste sent it hurtling into the side of the garage, which also caught fire.

Radioactive Waste 'Threatens Power'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite decades of study, the United States still has not figured out how to get rid of dangerously radioactive waste from power plants and military weapons production, the General Accounting

Office reports.

Unless this problem is solved, the GAO says, the accumulation of nuclear wastes with hazardous radiation that lasts up to half a million years "threatens the future of nuclear power in the United States.

Robert W. Fri, acting administrator of the Energy Research and Development Administration, defended the waste-disposal program before a House government operations subcommittee.

He said that many of the GAO's observations are based on 1976 data and outdated. He said that his agency, which will be absorbed by the Department of Energy on Oct. 1 — is doing the best it can to deal with the problems.

Fri said that the Carter administration will shortly announce plans to deal with spent fuel at commercial reactors, a program under which the government would reportedly offer to take these wastes off the hands of commercial plants for a fee.

The Energy Research and Development Administration is planning to develop six locations for long-term or permanent burial of radioactive wastes by 1985. But the report by the investigative arm of Congress says that "ERDA may have promised more than it can deliver."

"There are, we believe, formidable social, geological and regulatory problems which must be solved," it continues. "Foremost among them is opposition of the public and some political leaders."

"ERDA may not be successful in gaining their acceptance unless it can convince people that it has a sound waste-management program and that geological disposal risks to man's environment are acceptably low," a difficult task, the report said.

"Some radioactive wastes will remain hazardous for hundreds of thousands of years," it said, meaning they must be permanently isolated from human contact and environmental influence.

"A program must be developed for present and future waste-disposal operations that will not create unwarranted public risk. Otherwise, nuclear power cannot continue to be a practical source of energy," it said.

ERDA is considering burial of radioactive wastes in underground salt formations that are stable, relatively free of circulating ground water and able to carry off heat from the radioactive wastes, block the escape of radiation about as effectively as concrete and stretch, rather than shatter, in an earthquake.

Mrs. Pope broke down on the stand and the testimony was recessed for 15 minutes to allow her to regain composure.

In taking responsibility for the death, the Air Force said: "The United States does not contest the allegation that if proper care and treatment were rendered to the patient, Michelle Pope, the baby would, based on a reasonable degree of medical certainty, have been delivered alive and healthy."

regularities and improprieties. When he finished reading his 1½-hour statement, he got a half minute of hearty applause from spectators in the hearing room.

Lance told the panel and a national television audience that his rights had "been treated in the most irresponsible and destructive manner" and allegations against him have been "erroneous... misrepresented... and exaggerated." Moreover, he said, "some are completely misunderstood because those making the charge do not have all the facts."

"I did not ask for this fight, but now that I am in it, I am fighting not only for myself but also for our system," Lance declared. "I was a successful businessman in my home state, and I thought I had an important contribution to make by coming into government service."

The budget director has said again and again he will not quit. His demeanor and his words appeared to underscore that determination.

But even as he spoke, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill told reporters that because of Lance's financial problems "the image of the President is going down a little bit."

Seated at a long table covered with green felt and emblazoned with a nameplate — "Mr. Lance" — the budget director told the committee: "The rights that I thought I possessed have gone, one by one, down the drain."

"Were my rights protected?" he asked. "We'll let the American people answer that."

LINING UP TO HEAR BERT LANCE TESTIFY
'The People's Verdict Will Be Fair, Just'

Lance 'Welcomes' Public as His Jury

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bert Lance struck back at his tormentors today, acting as if he considered himself Gulliver beset by Lilliputians.

He let it be known at the outset that his remarks were aimed at the American people, not the senators on the Governmental Affairs Committee.

"I WELCOME THEM AS THE jury in this proceeding," Lance said into the television cameras. "I am secure and comfortable knowing that my conscience is clear and that the people's verdict will be a fair and just one."

The setting was one of those big Senate Office Building hearing rooms that have become so familiar in movie and TV fictionalized accounts as well as in real life. The Senate Watergate hearings spring to mind, although they were in a different chamber.

Lance, the kind of big amiable fellow who looks as if he'd cry if he squashed a bug, came armed for the fight with a 49-page statement to read. And Sen. Abraham Ribicoff (D-Conn.), the chairman of the committee, said he'd get all the time he needed, if it takes a Saturday session.

That alone indicates a serious matter.

LANCE WALKED INTO THE hearing room 15 minutes early with his lawyer, Clark Clifford, who was described as urbane as long ago as Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman. Now he's described as white-haired and urbane.

"I don't feel lonely today at all," said Lance as he looked around the crowded room.

He had plenty of support. Wife LaBelle and son David, 22, sat in the front row, right behind the tables for reporters.

"Nervous this morning?" a reporter asked as Lance made his way to center stage.

"No," he said.

HE TOOD COMFORTABLY BEHIND the witness table as a horde of photographers, sandwiched between the senators at their semicircular bench, clicked away. Lance's hands were in his pockets. He looked unruffled.

The senators, meanwhile, looked lonely and ignored. Ribicoff called the hearing to order five minutes late and intoned that "we don't intend this to be a trial by ordeal."

AND SO IT WENT, LANCE'S first session of what he called his day in court.

One lesson he has learned, Lance told the senators in a Gulliver-to-Lilliputian tone of voice, "is to be mighty careful in the future when I am discussing basic human rights."

Doctor Held In Molesting

LA CRESCENTA (AP) — A Los Angeles County health department physician has been booked for investigation of molesting a 13-year-old boy at a picnic site Sept. 3, sheriff's deputies said.

Three rolls of pornographic movies, 55 boxes of slides and 100 rolls of undeveloped film were seized during the arrest of Dr. Dale Roger Scherer at his home, said Deputy Willey Burrow.

Black's Beach 'Failed Noble Experiment'?

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Turning over a public beach to nudism was "a noble experiment that failed," a newspaper said today in urging that Black's Beach be restricted to suit-wearing.

"Even its advocates now deplore the voyeurism, the occasional bizarre behavior, the body painting of unclothed children," said the San Diego Union in an editorial.

The municipal beach has been classified "swimsuit optional" for three years and is one of the most popular areas along the coast.

The newspaper, urging approval of an election issue before San Diegans on Tuesday, said it agreed with police that Black's Beach is "not a hotbed of crime."

A special study panel of inquiry was appointed today by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) to study why a rocket built in Huntington Beach failed in a Tuesday night launch from Cape Canaveral's Kennedy Space Center. (See picture, Page C5.)

The giant rocket hefting a European Space Agency (ESA) communications satellite into the heavens on an experimental mission was blown to bits like a $40 million firecracker.

Divers began to hunt wreckage at daybreak Wednesday along the sea floor in 65-foot depths of the Atlantic Ocean off the cape to reassemble in search of clues to the failure.

A NASA spokesman in Washington, D.C., said today it appears the rocket built by McDonnell Douglas Astronautics Company began to break up in flight.

Flight records of the first Delta since 1969, indicate the craft began to tumble and had to be destroyed aloft by remote control to prevent an accident on the ground — possibly involving inhabited areas.

A spokesman for the Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md., said Wednesday that onboard TV cameras monitoring the ship showed fire breaking out at the top of one engine just beforehand.

The onboard blaze and sudden erratic trajectory convinced a U.S. Air Force range safety officer it was time to press the red button and blow the missile to bits.

Major parts of the Delta plunged, fiery and hissing, into the sea from about five miles in the sky in a dazzling aerial display visible for miles over the southeastern United States.

Other portions fluttered lightly to earth on Cape Canaveral's tip.

The deliberate detonation and subsequent crash into the sea destroyed a $25 million ESA orbital test satellite built in a combined effort by 10 European nations.

A spokesman for McDonnell Douglas Astronautics Company said today that Associated Press reports that the rocket was insured were incorrect but taxpayers aren't out a dime.

Pat Wallace, assistant director, refused comment on Levine's allegations, saying "It's a matter between Dr. Levine and the state board."

Commission members were told by Levine that Fairview "bluffed its way through" an accreditation procedure by the Joint Commission on the Accreditation of Hospitals, according to a Sacramento Bee account of the hearing.

Nathan Shapell, head of the commission, has been urging the commission to turn Levine's allegations over to the state attorney general's office for further investigation.

Shapell said in a prepared opening statement that the hearing was targeted at finding out how much the department had responded to commission findings one year ago on state health programs.

New Sanity Trial Ordered For Allaway

Edward Charles Allaway, convicted of shooting to death seven persons on the Cal State Fullerton campus, was ordered today to face a new sanity trial Nov. 2.

Allaway, a 38-year-old ex-campus janitor, sat mute in the courtroom of Superior Court Judge Robert Kneeland as the judge scheduled the new trial, presumably by jury, on the sanity phase of the mass-murder case.

The jury which convicted Allaway last month was unable to reach a verdict on whether he was sane when he went on a shotgun-shooting binge July 12, 1976.

The custodian was apparently despondent over marital problems at the time.

Hoag to Host Fair to Note Anniversary

In celebration of its first 25 years service, Hoag Memorial Hospital will host a free health fair Saturday as the hospital's thank you gift to the community for its support. (See related story, Page A13.)

More than 30 health organizations will be on hand to provide information and demonstrations. The event opens at 10 a.m. in the hospital parking lot. Included will be the emergency medical service teams from the Costa Mesa and Newport Beach Fire Departments as well as a rescue helicopter from El Toro Marine Corps Air Station.

There will be continuous entertainment from 10:30 a.m. until 4 p.m. "Healthy" food will be available for 25 cents and there will be free cake and ice cream following a cake cutting ceremony at noon.

Included in the list of dignitaries expected to attend are Assemblyman Dennis Mangers (D-Huntington Beach), Assemblyman Ron Cordova (D-El Toro), Mayor Milan Dostal of Newport Beach, Mayor Ron Patinson of Huntington Beach and Mayor Bill Vardoulis of Irvine.

Entertainment will be provided by local Girl Scout troops, the Harbor Singers, the All Organic Low Calorie Kazoo Band, the Retrogressive Five and the singers from the Live Wire singing telegram agency.

Regents Eye UCI Design Center Issue

University of California regents, meeting in Los Angeles Friday, will be asked to okay a design for a previously approved $4 million University Center on the Irvine campus.

The design plan calls for a two-story, 30,000-square-foot concrete building, with a concrete and glass facade and heavy timber roof.

Estimated completion date is June, 1980.

The center will be located west of the campus administration building, within an area called the Gateway Quadrangle.

It will house student government offices, recreation areas, food service and a bookstore.

There will be lounges, music listening rooms, offices for clubs and organizations and conference rooms.

Coeds Guarded After Slaying

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Measures designed to assure the nighttime safety of students at San Francisco State have been adopted in the wake of the murder of a female student.

Among the steps is a university police plan to hire student security teams for special evening patrols of the campus.

The stabbed and bludgeoned body of Jenny Low Chang, 19, a dorm resident, was found this week in a campus library faculty reading room. No arrests have been made.

less it can convince people that is has a sound waste-management program and that geological disposal risks to man's environment are acceptably low," a difficult task, the report said.

"Some radioactive wastes will remain hazardous for hundreds of thousands of years," it said, meaning they must be permanently isolated from human contact and environmental influence.

"A program must be developed for present and future waste-disposal operations that will not create unwarranted public risk. Otherwise, nuclear power cannot continue to be a practical source of energy," it said.

ERDA is considering burial of radioactive wastes in underground salt formations that are stable, relatively free of circulating ground water and able to carry off heat from the radioactive wastes, block the escape of radiation about as effectively as concrete and stretch, rather than shatter, in an earthquake.

But the GAO pointed out that there remain some "major gas, salt and potash in the same regions and the possibility that ground water or brine might somehow leak into storage caverns."

The GAO said ERDA knows about the uncertainties and is studying them.

Coast Feels Quake From Anaheim Area

A Wednesday earthquake centered on a fault in Anaheim measured 2.7 on the Richter scale and was strong enough to be felt by residents as far away as Costa Mesa, Cal State Fullerton seismologists said today.

It was the first quake that could be detected without instruments in Orange County since Memorial Day, according to Christopher Buckley, assistant professor of earth sciences.

Buckley said the quake hit at 2:35 p.m. on an unnamed fault five miles south of the campus. The tremor caused no damage and apparently affected an area 15 miles from its point of origin.

THEIR AGES SOMETHING TO CHEER ABOUT
Pep Squad Members Keran and Perkins

Real Seniors Cheer Leaders 28 and 36

FRESNO (AP) — At ages 28 and 36, Marlene Keran and Inkan Perkins are practically senior citizens as members of the Fresno State pep squad.

Although other squad members range in age from their late teens to early 20s, Perkins and Miss Keran don't consider their ages a handicap. In many cases, they have used their years to their advantage.

"WE DON'T PULL ANY punches about our age," said Miss Keran, co-head pep girl. "In fact, we try to emphasize it with administrators. They listen more intently because we're not 18-year-olds they can shove in some corner."

Another use for that leverage of age is in recruiting fans to attend games.

"Our age is an advantage when we're talking to older students. At least we arouse their curiosity," she said. "And the younger kids on the squad look up to us. . . they listen to us, and they keep us young."

THE ONLY DISADVANTAGE THE pair feel is in physical limitations age brings.

"I have never worked that hard in my entire life," Perkins said of trying out for the squad.

"I had trouble sitting down and getting back up again," Miss Keran added.

PERKINS RETURNED TO school after a 10-year absence to study radio and television and Miss Keran is pursuing a degree in fine arts after a six-year absence.

They found it natural to get involved in cheerleading because that was an important part of their school days one and two decades ago.

Battered Women's Aid Nixed

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Feminists are seeking to dump a women's rights commission which has opposed abortion, the Equal Rights Amendment, and the "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" TV show while supporting the lady bug as the state insect.

The latest flap surrounding the New Hampshire Commission on the Status of Women occurred when the panel refused to act on a program to help women who have been beaten by their husbands.

Although there was no formal vote, nine of the 10 commissioners said they were against the program. Commissioners at Monday's meeting said they saw it as an intrusion of government into the personal problems of New Hampshire citizens.

"You can't legislate love in the home. The government isn't designed to interfere here," said commissioner Simone Mason of Salem.

Commission member Gloria Belzil of Nashua simply said of the program's defeat, "Some women libbers irritate the hell out of their husbands."

Dorothy Craigie, commission chairman, said the panel has not dismissed the wife-beating problem but plans to "study the problem and come up with a recommendation."

The dissenting member of the commission, Frances Drown, said she would continue to pursue the program to help battered women at a special conference of women's groups set next Wednesday.

The commission's record also includes support of prayer in the schools and opposition to the repeal of a law banning lesbian activities and to a federal family and child services program.

But the rejection of the battered wives plan outraged feminists groups and women legislators.

Republican Rep. Gale Morrison called on conservative Republican Gov. Meldrim Thomson, who appoints commission members, to remove those who voted against the program.

She said women legislators have banded together to try to abolish the commission because "we felt that the group did not represent any of the issues we stood for or were working for."

Killers in Indiana Inspired by Movie?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Vincent Bugliosi, who prosecuted Charles Manson and his family, says he is "terribly disturbed" over reports that an Indiana mass murder may have been inspired by a movie based on a book Bugliosi wrote about the Manson case.

"It's a terrible tragedy and I'm extremely upset about it," Bugliosi said Wednesday when told that one of the accused Indiana killers alluded to the movie "Helter Skelter" in court testimony.

Dan Stonebreaker, 20, and three others are accused of indiscriminately killing four brothers in a Valentine's Day rifle attack in Hollandsburg, Ind.

Stonebreaker, who has turned state's evidence, testified this week that he and another of the accused watched "Helter Skelter" on television two months before they walked into the mobile home of Mrs. Betty Spencer and opened fire.

"We talked about it (the movie)," Stonebreaker testified. "It was the movie of how Charles Manson killed people for no reason."

Stonebreaker said he, Roger Drollinger, 24, David Smith, 17, and Mike Wright, 21, picked the Spencer family at random. The attack killed 14-year-old Ralph Reese, his brothers, Reeve, 16, and Raymond, 17, and their half-brother, Gregory Brooks, 22.

Mrs. Spencer's wig was blown off the killers left her, apparently thinking she was dead, authorities said.

"This is the first indication I've ever received that anyone ever got any ideas from 'Helter Skelter,'" said Bugliosi, a private attorney in Beverly Hills. "People have asked me before if I was worried someone might get ideas from the book or the movie, but I said it has never happened. I'm terribly disturbed about it."

"I'm sure people will start saying that shows like 'Helter Skelter' shouldn't be aired, but that's an extreme, too," he said. "What's the alternative? Are we going to keep stories of tragedies off the air because some demented mind might try to parallel the act? I just can't believe that just watching a movie would turn someone into a cold-blooded killer."

Boy Kidnaps To Avenge Slain Mother

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — A youth kidnapped a taxi driver in order to be arrested and sent to the prison where the confessed murderer of his mother is being held, police said.

Kenneth Lynn Curry, 17, was arrested Wednesday and charged with kidnapping and robbery after allegedly kidnapping a 49-year-old taxi driver at knife-point and allegedly taking $50 from him.

Police said Curry told the taxi driver, Benny Dillary, that he wanted to go to prison to avenge the death of his mother, who was raped and murdered. Curry is the son of Venora Hyatt, one of three women whom Thomas Whisenant of Irvington confessed to killing last year.

Mexican-Americans Set Observance

Mexican-Americans in Orange County will join thousands of others in Southern California starting at about midnight tonight in marking 16 de Septiembre — Mexican Independence Day.

The celebrations begin with the traditional "El Grito," which literally means "The Yell" but is, in fact, a Mexican cry of freedom declaring independence from Spain.

Though there will no doubt be numerous private festivities in the Mexican-American communities of the county, few large activities have been planned to mark the day Father Miguel Hidalgo y Costilla aroused the revolt that began in 1810.

In Santa Ana, the county seat, Mexican-American leaders have prepared a special flag-raising ceremony at 9 a.m. Saturday in the Civic Center's "Plaza of the Flags."

After the ceremony, which will feature speeches by government leaders, a small parade will take place in the downtown area starting at noon.

In the parade will be a precision motorcycle team from Tijuana, high school marching bands, floats and other features.

The other large event planned in the county will take place in Placentia Saturday.

Casa Placentia and Amigos de Casa Placentia have planned a block party in the Atwood community. Santa Fe Street will be closed to vehicular traffic, according to organizers.

The event, which is public, will feature booths for food and games, live music and a queen crowning. It will run from noon to 9 p.m.

The actual day of Mexican independence is Friday but the celebration usually lasts several days.

Numerous events are taking place in Los Angeles, which has declared this week to be "Mexican Week." Tonight at the Los Angeles Sports Arena, there will be three and a half hours of Mexican entertainment, including mariachis, the Ballet Folklorico and the "El Grito" ceremonies at 11 p.m.

Black Marine Sentenced For Beatings

A black Marine must pay a fine of $650 and accept a reduction to lance corporal for participation in an assault by a group of blacks at Camp Pendleton on partying white Leathernecks last November.

The sentence was imposed Wednesday on Cpl. Clarence Capers Jr. of Edgewater Park, N.J., by a five-member court martial board that convicted him Tuesday.

Capers was tried on six counts of assault and one of conspiracy in the incident that sent six white Marines to the hospital.

The black Marines charged in the case have testified they were out to break up a Ku Klux Klan meeting but got the wrong barracks room.

The attack, however, brought to light the existence of a KKK cell on the nation's biggest Marine installation.

The Sand And Fury

BARE FACTS DEPT. — Downcoast in San Diego, voters will be going to the polls Tuesday to decide whether or not bare is beautiful. The issue on the ballot is Proposition D involving a place called Black's Beach.

This relatively secluded strand is the only place in our region where public beach nudity is tolerated. Now the practice has become an election issue.

The question has raised some temperatures in the San Diego area and newspapers of that region are filled with letters, pro and con. The question has triggered sermons, quips, puns, wisecracks and some pretty emotional blather on both sides.

ALAS, IN ALL the fervor, Black's Beach nakedness has drawn considerable attention in the news and not always with pinpoint accuracy.

As August began to wind down and the nude election month approached, a local television station fired the first loaded salvo by suggesting lifeguards were concerned about "an atmosphere of permissiveness" at Black's Beach.

From there, the papers began hyping the story, indicating police had established "a bikini patrol" to search for crime and sexual misconduct along the bathing suit-optional strand.

"Several arrests have been made, including one in which an adult male is charged with child molesting," a police spokesman was quoted as reporting.

THEN IT DEVELOPED that Al JaCoby, assistant to the editor of the San Diego Union, got suspicious of all these rather generalized reports. He went on an investigative spree of his own.

In his column on the editorial page, JaCoby characterized the escalating nude beach stories as "a media storm."

JaCoby discovered that

Despite the television hype about "permissiveness" along the strand, an actual police report got buried in the flurry. That report said, "Black's Beach has one-half to one-third the crime of other San Diego beaches."

There is no such thing as a "bikini patrol." Police had regular plainclothes patrols. The "bikini" name had been made up by a reporter.

As for the lone child molesting case, it had not occurred in the last few weeks. JaCoby pushed to find out when. He was given an "either April or May" answer.

He persisted in insisting that police give him the precise date of that arrest.

They finally supplied it — last Feb. 6, a 50-year-old man who was babysitting a 6-year-old girl.

JACOBY WAS RIGHT. San Diego had been swept by a media storm in which the news people didn't cover themselves with glory.

But that doesn't mean that the voters won't go ahead and cover Black's Beach.

Folks Back Lance

Hometown Rallies for 'Georgia Boy'

CALHOUN, Ga. (AP) — It was like an old-fashioned revival meeting as the hometown folks stomped their feet, prayed and cheered one of their own — Bert "Good Ole Georgia Boy" Lance.

About 1,500 people — more than one-fifth of Calhoun's population — turned out in a demonstration of support for the director of the federal Office of Management and Budget on the eve of his appearance before a Senate panel investigating his financial affairs.

THE CROWD gave a standing ovation as the high school band played "You'll Never Walk Alone" and "I Did It My Way."

They had placards saying "Calhoun for Bert" and "Bert's A Good Ole Georgia Boy." They used words like "love," "friendship," and "honesty" to describe Lance, who did not attend the rally.

"I'll tell you what kind of a guy he is," said Jack Purcell, who used to be the catcher on the softball team when Lance was pitcher.

"I called him up last year to come speak to the graduating class of the school where I was principal. And even though it rained and the loudspeakers didn't work, he came and he spoke. And when I sent him a check for speaking to the class, he sent the check back because he didn't do it for the money. That's the kind of guy Bert is."

A DOWNPOUR drove the crowd from the high school football field across the street to a gymnasium, but it didn't dampen their spirits.

Lance's minister, the Rev. Emory Brackman, told of the "very generous" contributions of time and money that Lance and his wife, LaBelle, made to the First Methodist Church. He recalled that Lance received "the highest honor" a United Methodist can receive when he was elected to the church's General Conference.

LT. GOV. Zell Miller, who shared a double desk with Lance in grammar school, accused the news media of distorting the Lance affair. He denied a statement in an article in a national magazine that quoted him as saying Lance was a poor arithmetic student.

"Powerful and ruthless forces" — whom he later identified as the federal bureaucracy — have attacked Lance, Miller said.

"To say that Bert Lance has done something wrong does not make it so," he said.

THEY WANTED to talk about the back-slapping, joke-telling Bert Lance who married his high school sweetheart and helped his neighbors as he rose from a 19-year-old bank teller to a 32-year-old bank president.

"He treated a man like a man wants to be treated," said John Houser, who carried a sign saying "Bert Lance Was Fair To Me . . . We Need Him In D.C." He said Lance helped him get back on his feet several years ago when he lost "a lot of money" investing in a mill.

"He went out of his way to help a lot of people in this town."

New SS Plan Hikes Limit For Retired

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retired people could earn up to $4,500 next year without losing Social Security benefits under a plan approved by a House subcommittee.

Its chairman says the current limit reduces some elderly persons to eating pet food.

RECIPIENTS WHO now earn more than $3,000 lose $1 in benefits for every $2 they bring in above the ceiling. That limitation, says Rep. James A. Burke (D-Mass.), means some retirees are "living on a diet of cat and dog food."

In a move experts say could affect a million people, the House Ways and Means subcommittee on Social Security Wednesday tentatively approved raising the allowance in 1978.

Under the proposal, recipients could earn $6,000 in 1979 without facing an aid cutback.

THE LIMIT on exempt earnings this year is $3,000. It is expected to go to $3,240 in 1978 and $3,480 in 1979 under a provision of the existing law that ties benefits to inflation.

The subcommittee's move, approved 9 to 3, was a compromise between proposals to abolish the limitation and others for a smaller or later increase. Republicans had suggested phasing out the limitation over three years.

AS PART OF the compromise, the subcommittee agreed that the whole subject would be considered again when the panel takes up long-range changes in Social Security, probably next year.

The subcommittee is now putting together legislation to keep the deficit-plagued Social Security system alive.

All the votes it is now taking are subject to later change or reversal. Burke, the panel chairman, predicted the move "wouldn't get 50 votes against it" if it reaches the House floor.

Partly offsetting the cost of raising the income lid, the subcommittee voted to remove from the law a quirk that allows a retired person to earn as much as he can in a month if he forfeits his benefits for that month.

Police Find Potted Plant Actually Pot

NEW YORK (AP) — A 19-year-old Bronx man was arrested when his neighbors discovered a 3 1/2-foot tall marijuana plant growing in his window.

Overlooking Jose Laboy's first-floor window was the second-floor office of the Youth Aid Office of the 40th Precinct.

"We couldn't believe it," officer Frank Henry said Wednesday. "We looked out the window and saw what looked like a marijuana plant in the window of the first floor of the building next door."

Report Says Breast X-rays Possible Cause of Cancer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A national breast cancer detection program should be continued, but its use of breast X rays should be restricted because of their potential for causing the disease in some women, a National Cancer Institute advisory group said today.

The report, presented today at a breast cancer screening meeting, said X-raying breasts, a process called mammography, effectively finds cancer that goes undetected by other methods.

BUT TOO MUCH is unknown about the possibility of radiation causing cancer for mammography to be used routinely on all women, particularly those under age 50, the study said.

Attending the meeting at the National Institutes of Health is a group of scientists, physicians and laypersons who hope to develop a consensus on whether the detection program should be continued and what it should include.

The report reviewed data from the $54 million Breast Cancer

Detection Demonstration Project, cosponsored by the National Cancer Institute and the American Cancer Society, in which up to 270,000 volunteer women aged 35 and older are being screened for five years.

The value of the project has been questioned not only because of mammography, but also because it is still unclear if early detection improves long-term survival, as many medical authorities believe.

'32 Million' Need Mental Health Care

WASHINGTON (AP) — Between 20 million and 32 million Americans need mental health care, a new report to the government says, but help is often unavailable because of inadequate community services, costs that are too high or the stigma of mental illness.

"The time has come for mental health care to become part of a broader effort to deal with human needs," concludes the preliminary report of the President's Commission on Mental Health, released today.

THE REPORT notes that 15 percent of the population needs some form of help, ranging from counseling to long-term care, not counting the six million who are mentally retarded.

At any one time, the report adds, about 25 percent of the country is under enough emotional stress that a doctor might diagnose such people as suffering from depression or anxiety.

CRIME & JUSTICE

COURSES BY NEWSPAPER

Since the Daily Pilot five years ago began offering Courses by Newspaper in cooperation with UC San Diego Extension and the National Endowment for the Humanities, 200 newspapers have joined us in presenting the weekly "lectures" read weekly by 15 million Americans.

This semester, Courses by Newspaper explores "Crime, Justice and Punishment in America" beginning Sept. 17 in the Daily Pilot and continuing for 15 consecutive Saturdays.

The series of 15 articles was prepared by Dr. Jerome Skolnick, director, Center for the Study of Law and Society at UC Berkeley. He and 13 noted legal scholars and writers contribute the articles which make up Courses by Newspaper.

The weekly articles may be read just for their interest value, but many readers also enroll to earn college credit from area colleges including Coastline and Santa Ana Community Colleges.

Dr. Howard E. Fradkin, nationally recognized adviser in corrections and sociology professor at Cal State University, Long Beach, is course instructor for students enrolling in the Coastline Community College. Completion of the blank below initiates enrollment. The colleges may require additional readings, one or two on-campus meetings and a final paper or examination.

The Daily Pilot offer Courses by Newspaper as a public service. Readers residing in the Saddleback Community College District must obtain a permit from that district prior to registering for credit in another district.

For convenience use the mail registration blank or call 963-0824 for further information.

Rich Bomb Target?

Blast Shatters Windows in SF

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco's wealthy were the apparent target of another bombing attack early today, in a raucous explosion that police said shattered windows in the city's plush Pacific Heights section but injured no one.

Responsibility for the explosion at about 2:45 a.m. was claimed by the Tom Hicks Unit, the New World Liberation Front, in a telephone call to the Associated Press early today.

THE ANONYMOUS FEMALE caller said "the bombing attack at Pacific Heights" was "to further press home our just demands for decent housing for all people in San Francisco."

She said an NWLF communique would be "available later."

Previous NWLF messages have said that attacks were to compel the city's rich to improve living conditions for the poor.

The attack was the sixth in about three weeks in the San Francisco Bay area claimed by the NWLF and its second within a week.

A blast early Friday at the San Francisco Opera House crumpled an aluminum awning outside the building and shattered windows but didn't delay the scheduled opening of the opera's 55th season Friday night.

"AS LONG AS POOR PEOPLE are forced to live in unsafe, unhealthy housing, ruling class functions will be threatened," said an NWLF communique to which the AP had been directed after the attack.

Police had difficulty finding the precise location of today's blast after reports of the noise flooded police switchboards, but authorities said the attack apparently centered near Broadway and Lyonstreets.

A six-foot hole was reportedly blown open in a gate at the U.S. Army base at the Presidio and windows shattered in the Pacific Heights neighborhood over a two-block radius.

Enclosed Areas

Petition to Ban Smoking Allowed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Supporters of a proposed initiative statute curbing smoking in enclosed areas have won the right to circulate petitions to get it on the California ballot.

Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger said Wednesday he had given the proposal submitted by the Clean Indoor Air Committee the title:

"Regulation of Smoking," and had approved a summary of it.

He said that did not mean he was for or against it.

His office said the measure would ban smoking in enclosed public places, places of employment and educational and health facilities, with specified exceptions, and require restaurants to establish nonsmoking sections. It would prohibit employment discrimination based on exercise of rights provided by the statute.

IT WOULD permit stricter local regulations, requiring posting of signs designating no-smoking areas, and set fines for violations.

The signs would cost the state up to an estimated $600,000, which could be offset by unknown income from fines. The measure might also result in savings because of reduced health expenditures, sick leave and disability payments to employees.

The measure also could result in reduction of state and local cigarette tax receipts, the attorney general said.

It takes the signatures of 312,404 registered voters to qualify it for the ballot.

Official Urges Ship Terminal For 2 Tankers

LONG BEACH (AP) — A proposal for an oil tanker terminal designed to accommodate two ships, rather than three as originally planned, was raised Wednesday at a meeting of the South Coast Air Quality Management District Board.

The board passed a motion by Orange County member Paul Raven ordering its staff to prepare a supplemental environmental impact statement on the effects of a two-berth facility. Standard Oil of Ohio (Sohio) has proposed a $45-million three-berth plan.

AN ENVIRONMENTAL impact statement has already been submitted on the three-berth, trestle-supported Sohio proposal, which would handle tanker shipments of up to 700,000 barrels a day of crude oil from Valdez, Alaska. The oil would be pumped through pipelines to Midland, Tex. for distribution to midwest refineries.

Raven's motion provides for public hearings within 30 days after the supplemental statement is released.

The statements include estimations of how much pollution the facility would create.

Severe Rape Law Sought

SACRAMENTO (AP) — People convicted more than once for rape would be punished with life imprisonment without parole, if a new bill in the Senate becomes law.

Sen. H.L. "Bill" Richardson (R-Arcadia), said Wednesday his bill, SB 1300, would be appropriate punishment for such repeat rapists as Sacramento's "east area rapist." Police say this person is responsible for more than 20 rapes.

Current law punishes forcible rape with three, four or five years in prison with three years added to the sentence for each prior violent felony, for a maximum total of five years.

Citing an automatic one-third sentence reduction for good behavior, Richardson said that "the longest a violent rapist can be kept behind bars for a repeat conviction is six years and eight months."

Aqueduct Repair Prolonged

Water Shutdown Imminent?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Northern San Diego County residents were facing imminent water shutoffs and 300 Riverside farmers had no relief for their parched crops as workmen discovered even more debris than expected clogging the vital Colorado River Aqueduct.

Sand, gravel and rock were found as far as 1,000 yards into the pipeline Wednesday, causing Metropolitan Water District Officials to estimate the water route won't be clear until next Tuesday, rather than Sunday as they had predicted.

The aqueduct, a major source of water for 11 million Southern Californians, was shut down when a flash flood tore away a 2,500-pound access hatch at a Desert Hot Springs transition structure last weekend, pushing mud and muck into the adjacent siphon and pipeline.

their homes — 55 percent tax credits.

The legislature Wednesday gave final passage to AB 1538 by Assemblyman Gary Hart (D-Santa Barbara). Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. has endorsed the concept and is expected to sign it. The votes were 74-0 in the Assembly and 25-4 in the Senate.

Indictment Quashed

INDIO (AP) — A Riverside Superior Court judge has quashed a grand jury indictment alleging that a Palm Springs psychiatrist tried to hire a police undercover agent to kill another doctor.

Judge Merrill Brown dismissed the indictment Wednesday, on grounds that the grand jury had issued it too hastily, without giving Dr. Mortin Kurland's attorney sufficient time to prepare a defense.

Fault Report Out

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — There is no guarantee that significant earthquake faults in the area of the Humboldt Bay nuclear power plant will remain inactive, a government report says.

The U.S. Geological Survey report was cited by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission in denying Pacific Gas and Electric Co. permission to resume operations at the plant.

Drugs, Death Tied

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The county coroner's office says it has found slight traces of a rare hallucinogenic drug similar to "angel dust" in the blood system of Ronald Burkholder, a nude man who has fatally shot by a Los Angeles police sergeant last month.

Earlier tests had shown no drugs in Burkholder's body, but the coroner's office said Wednesday that one one-thousandth of a milligram of a drug known as PHP was found in the dead man's blood and liver fluids.

County if we could have the property tax from the LNG plant," said Fletcher.

The board chairman said the facility will have little effect on residents. Asked if anyone would have to move because of the terminal, Fletcher replied, "Other than a couple of cows, no."

As for preservation of the scenic and nearly untouched area, Fletcher says of the facility, "Where it will be located, no one will see it."

Allen disagreed, citing the proposed mile-long pier and 13-story storage tanks.

"To say that it isn't going to be seen is just false," said Allen. "It's going to stand out like a terrible monstrosity."

LA Job Funds Okayed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles County has won federal approval for more than $4 million in public works projects designed to create jobs.

The Economic Development Administration notified William Leone, chief of the county's capital projects, that it had approved $3 million for construction of a sanitary sewer in East Los Angeles; $828,000 to build a gym at Del Aire Park in Hawthorne; and $644,100 for aircraft hangers at Brackett Field in El Monte and Compton Airport.

BUNDLE OF JOY CAUSES HEADACHE FOR LOS ANGELES COUPLE
Steve and Lois Wolfson Stand Outside Apartment With Adam, 2

Baby Brings Woe

Eviction Fight Could Be Landmark Case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Steve and Lois Wolfson's bundle of joy has caused them a peck of trouble ever since the landlord informed them their baby son would force their eviction from the apartment where they have lived for more than three years.

Culver City Municipal Court Judge Harold I. Chernes began hearing testimony today on the suit the Wolfsons filed to hold onto their $390-a-month home overlooking the yacht harbor at Marina del Rey.

They contend the apartment's ban on children violates state law. The case could have sweeping implications for millions of families with small children seeking rental housing.

MRS. WOLFSON BROUGHT her infant son, Adam, home from the hospital in September 1975, but nobody said a word about it for more than a year after he was born.

"We've never had any complaints about Adam," she said in an interview. "In fact, all of our neighbors have signed affidavits saying they like him and want him to stay in the building, and they're appearing in court on our behalf." A neighbor, Robert Smith, whose bedroom is directly over the Wolfsons' apartment, said: "We've never been awakened by Adam crying. The Wolfsons are very considerate people and have asked us on several occasions to be sure the child isn't bothering us."

IN NOVEMBER 1976, after the Wolfsons had signed their lease renewal, they got a letter from the corporation that acts as landlord, Marina Point Ltd., telling them they would have to leave because of the child.

Entrenched there since February 1974, they decided to fight rather than move.

"We love it here. It's a terrific buy, and we're pleased with it," Wolfson said. "There's a great view of the marina from both bedrooms."

Several other children already live in the apartment complex. They lived there before the ban on children was imposed.

"The children from adjacent buildings who came over to play in front of this one are a lot noisier than Adam's ever been," Smith said.

LNG Foes Refuse to Quit

POINT CONCEPTION (AP) — Opponents of a bill likely to initiate a liquefied natural gas terminal in this pristine coastal area say they're far from through trying to block construction of the facility.

Although the Senate sent the bill to Gov. Edmund G. Brown for his signature Tuesday, a lawyer for a group of ranch owners critical of the bill voiced optimism that the LNG facility would never be built here.

"We believe that when the true facts are available and out on the table — which we weren't able to do with the legislature — no one will want to put the facility here," Santa Barbara attorney George H. Allen said after the vote.

BUT IF IT WERE BUILT, Allen said, it would "destroy, in effect, the last coastal region in Southern California that is roadless and really a coastal wilderness."

In an effort to block the terminal, Allen, who represents the owners of a ranch which "wraps itself around the construction site," filed a petition Monday to intervene in Federal Power Commission hearings, which must approve Point Conception as a construction site.

ONE PERSON WHO WAS HAPPY with the outcome of the Senate vote was Santa Barbara County Supervisor Harrell Fletcher of Santa Maria. "I'm pleased. It would be a great boon for Santa Barbara

A New Credibility Gap in Washington

Even as Bert Lance was scheduled to have his say before the Senate Committee, two things became painfully obvious:

- Lance has to go.
- President Carter has bungled this one badly.

It is clear that Lance's record as a financial wheeler dealer and his lack of candor with the Senate during his confirmation hearings and since have destroyed his usefulness. He simply would not have the confidence of the Congress and probably not the confidence of the people at large.

This is too bad because Lance by all reports has a pretty fair degree of competence and has had the confidence of the business community as a voice for moderation among the sometimes zany economic theorists in other parts of the administration and in the departments.

We have commented before on the fact that the furor resulting from the progressively more damaging revelations about Lance has overshadowed other problems that need more attention from Carter and more public discussion — the Panama Canal Treaty, the defense picture, the Middle East, energy and the economy generally.

Now we have Carter's own credibility suffering from the question of how much he really knew about Lance's situation. If he knew little or nothing, the administration looks terribly inept. If he knew much or all of the story, his judgment and his Mr. Clean image both are in question.

Now comes another damaging development: Press Secretary Jody Powell's "leak" of information about the supposed use by Sen. Charles Percy, a Lance critic, of free airplane transportation and other favors from various corporations.

Apparently Powell's information was wrong. And this could happen to a new boy in town.

But there are two disturbing aspects:

It begins to smack of the old Ron Ziegler performance in the eagerness to harpoon a critic.

More important, it raises the question of Carter's involvement in the leak.

If we are to believe that Carter keeps a tight rein on the finer points of White House staff activities, it is hard to believe that Powell would have leaked the information without Carter's knowledge. Carter is too smart to let a press secretary jeopardize his relations with a key member of the Congress without knowing what's going on.

Mr. Carter better be preparing a full, frank explanation of all that has transpired, and he had better be ready to deliver it soon. And it better be good.

There is a man living in San Clemente who could tell Mr. Carter the perils of stonewalling and cover-up.

Wrong Target

Meanwhile, Sen. S. I. Hayakawa has weighed in with his share of foolishness in the Lance affair.

Rushing to defend Mr. Lance's "giving up a lot to accept the federal job," Hayakawa railed against the media for reporting (and in some cases digging out) the activities which now have Lance in trouble with the Senate.

Hayakawa apparently belongs to those who believe that nothing a public official does would be improper or illegal if the media did not report it.

Rather than "driving good men away from government," as Sen. Hayakawa seems to feel, the media exposure is about the only mechanism available to the American public for making sure that they get good men in the government.

Latins Eye Panama

It seems incredible that the U.S. distributes millions of dollars throughout the world in order to shed responsibilities, while in Panama, where the gringos would like to stay forever, a considerably smaller sum is offered. The South Koreans do not want the Americans to go, yet the U.S. pays the South Koreans so they can pull out. There is just no way to understand the gringos.

The agreement will make us a sort of sanctuary — similar to Switzerland. In fact the only threat to the canal's security is sabotage. Our people have proven over 70 years that they are capable and responsible enough to keep it functioning. The agreement seems to be right and proper for the Panamanian community's best interests.

—La Republica, Panama City (pro-government).

The agreement in principle between the U.S. and Panama, in addition to providing a solution to the problem of the canal, also restores one's faith in the possibility of negotiating the many disputes that exist between our continent and the whole world. It is also palpable evidence of a new North American political style.

—La Nacion, San Jose (independent).

The projected new treaty represents a triumph for the Panamanians and for all Latin Americans. On few other occasions has there been such a continental consensus. Why, one might ask, is there not a similar unanimity about the independence of Puerto Rico?

Korea Memo Paints Grim Picture

WASHINGTON — The same Carter administration document that contemplates losing one-third of West Germany to a Soviet attack contends that removing U.S. troops from South Korea gives Washington "flexibility" to determine whether or not to intervene against Communist invasion from the north.

PRM (Presidential Review Memorandum) 10, a top secret inter-agency study of U.S. force structures, also is gloomy about holding the South Korean capital of Seoul against invading North Koreans today. Even with U.S. air and naval intervention and U.S. troops still stationed in South Korea, the study suggests Seoul cannot be held.

All this contradicts President Carter's assurances that his decision to remove the 2nd U.S. Infantry Division does not undercut the U.S. commitment to South Korea. It also undermines current military doctrine based on the retention of Seoul as a necessity. Thus, South Koreans face the same problem as the West Germans: shall they believe public pronouncements of U.S. leaders or private documents of their staff experts?

The administration's claim that PRM-10 merely discusses options is simply untrue. Just as PRM-10 states that present allied forces could not hold one-third of Germany, its disturbing comments on Korea are based on conditions before and after the U.S. troop pullout, not on any option.

"ONCE THE U.S. land forces are out of Korea," says PRM-10, "the U.S. has transformed its presence in Asia from a land-based posture to an off-shore posture. This... provides the U.S. flexibility to determine at the time whether it should or should not get involved in a local war."

The document goes on to reveal an unpublicized reason for removing the 2nd Division: to give Washington the choice of whether or not to intervene. With the troops gone, says PRM-10, "the risk of automatic involvement (which was a major factor in removing land forces from Korea) is minimized. However, should the U.S. decide to intervene, military forces would be readily available."

Even with the 2nd Division still on station and the U.S. supplying "initial air and naval support at D-Day," PRM-10 spins a grim scenario: "If the North Koreans were to achieve tactical surprise, it is possible that they could at least temporarily attain their most likely major objective — the capture of Seoul."

While predicting North Korea could not win "a sustained combat," it predicates this on major U.S. help. "With the U.S. contributions of land and carrier based tactical air assets and material support, it would appear that the U.S. and ROK (Republic of Korea) would prevail against North Korea in the longer term, but with possible initial setbacks — including perhaps the fall of Seoul."

WITHOUT U.S. help, the situation is desperate, according to PRM-10: "The level of forces which could be brought to bear at the front on D-Day would generally favor North Korea over the ROK in all categories... The ROK has widely spread infantry forces with limited mobility and vulnerable stocks of war materiel."

The document implies a return to the old U.S. strategy of keeping allied troops away from the DMZ and instead falling back on Seoul. Now-retired Lt. Gen. James Hollingsworth changed that when he took command nearly four years ago, contending the North Koreans wanted to capture Seoul quickly and then start debilitating peace negotiations. So, allied strategy changed to a forward defense of Seoul.

Such a defense requires Korean confidence in U.S. readiness to supply indispensable airpower. South Korea long has worried that its defense pact with Washington provides a less automatic U.S. response to invasion than does the NATO treaty. President Carter's July 25 letter sought to reassure President Park Chung Hee that the U.S. troop pullout does not mean "any change whatsoever in our commitment."

PRM-10 undercuts all of South Korea's expectations. While emphasizing that only U.S. air and naval intervention could stop an invasion, it now makes that intervention a matter of choice rather than automatic response.

After our column reported the PRM-10 assessment of a Soviet attack in Central Europe, a senior West German army officer secretly visited Washington to find the truth. Interviews with 30 people, the general said, left "not the shadow of doubt in my mind" that the House was accurate despite White House denials. South Korea's generals may now begin a similar process with hopes that the answer will be more reassuring than the findings of their German colleague.

Red Carpet Treatment for a Communist

WASHINGTON — For 25 years, the State Dept. has been arbitrarily blocking selected Communists from entering the United States by invoking a law from the Red Scare days of Sen. Joseph McCarthy.

The McCarran Act, passed in 1952, established nearly 30 categories of people who could not visit the United States unless they were recommended for visa waivers by the State Dept. Among the undesirable were prostitutes, polygamists, paupers and advocates of the "international doctrines of world communism."

Now, thanks to a recent bill passed by Congress, the McCarran Act will soon be less restrictive. Over the years, nevertheless, the law has often been selectively applied. Out of some 19,000 waiver applications last year, for example, only about a thousand were denied.

During the Richard Nixon-Henry Kissinger era, Communist leaders from Western Europe were considered anathema, because official visits to the United States would give them credibility at home. In 1975, for instance, a prominent Italian Communist, Sergio Segre, was invited to speak at the New York Council on Foreign Relations. The waiver was denied and the conference had to be cancelled.

COMMUNISTS who were critical of U.S. allies were also considered verboten by the Nixon administration. One such case involved a prominent British citizen, Carmel Budiardjo, who wanted to lecture in the United States on human rights violations in Indonesia. Under pressure from the Indonesian government, the State Dept. temporarily withheld her visa on the grounds that she had previously lied about being a Communist from 1946 to 1948.

In contrast, Communists who have the State Dept. seal of approval are speedily granted visa waivers and are ushered in on a red carpet.

Take Vulkan Shopov, chief of agriculture for the Bulgarian Communist party. As an Eastern European Communist, in an era of détente, he is ardently courted by U.S. diplomats.

SHOPOV CAME to the United States in June at the invitation of the State Dept. The U.S. taxpayers footed the bill for his month-long visit, including travel expenses to and from Bulgaria.

In a May 9 cable to the State

Dept., the U.S. ambassador in Sofia, Martin Herz, was ecstatic about Shopov's pending tour. "Embassy strongly believes (Shopov) must be accorded VIP status as far as (expenses) and general treatment is concerned," exclaimed Herz.

The Communist leader, cabled the ambassador, should be taken to a "Southeastern agricultural region, including visit to Atlanta or other Southern city," the Great Plains wheat, corn and soybean region; and the Western states.

In general, wrote Herz, Shopov "would like to see most advanced forms of American agricultural technology. He has said he expects to work hard during the visit."

DESPITE the distinguished Bulgarian's announced intention to keep his nose to the grindstone, Herz suggested some lavish entertainment for the visitor:

"He would appreciate chance to see modern American dance (though we suspect anything too avant-garde would not go down well; believe American Ballet Theater, Alvin Ailey or Eliot Feld would be just about right), Broadway show (suggest, if possible, 'A Chorus Line' or 'Bubbling Brown Sugar'), Opera, or orchestral concerts. Shopov not interested in jazz or rock."

The ambassador added a "special note." In his talks with Shopov, wrote Herz, the Bulgarian made a "special point of saying he does not want to bump into correspondents from (Radio Free Europe) while in U.S., and does not wish to give interview to (Voice of America)." He asked that interpreter not be "political immigrant"...

Shopov had been assured, the ambassador stated, "that interpreter would be selected in such fashion as to assure there would be absolutely no political embarrassment."

WHEN HE finally arrived in the United States, Shopov was taken to the Smithsonian, the Kennedy Center, colonial Williamsburg, Va., and to other spots around the country.

But the scholarly Shopov, a State Dept. official told us, "squeezed in" the cultural sights only when he had spare time. The Bulgarian decided to forego Disneyland, which "disappointed" State Dept. officials.

Footnote: While Communists need waivers to visit the United States, leaders of repressive right-wing regimes such as Chile, South Korea and Argentina, can come and go as they wish.

'Romeo and Juliet' Wasn't Meant as Romance

Asked to name Shakespeare's "most romantic" play, ninety-nine persons out of 100 would promptly reply: "Romeo and Juliet." And they would be shocked and disbelieving to be told it is really an "anti-romantic" play.

In recalling the tale, it is easy to forget that Romeo was passionately in love with another girl in the first act. Her name was Rosaline, and Romeo is convinced no other woman exists for him — that is, until he spies Juliet, who is not yet 14. Then he is just as quickly convinced that he "never saw true beauty till this night."

Actually, Romeo and Juliet

knew nothing about each other. It is not only love at first sight, but first sight is nearly last sight. Their contacts are brief, furtive, and spasmodic; their mutual infatuation lasts only a few days, to be culminated in the double tragedy.

(Several playwrights — the funniest among them being W.S. Gilbert — have speculated on what the married life of Romeo and Juliet might have been like if they had not perished. The consensus is that they would have ended like most married couples, in a truce, comfortable or uneasy.)

IT IS NOT the enmity between the Montagues and Capulets that precipitates the tragedy, but the hastiness of the couple. They are slaves of passion, and Shakespeare consistently warns us that catastrophe awaits such people. ("O give me that man that is not passion's slave...")

It is interesting to note, further, that Shakespeare borrowed the story from a long poem by Arthur Brooke, in which the original Juliet is a "wily wench" who waxes merry over her successful deception of her mother. Brooke sees the death of the couple as "deserved punishment" for their rashness (Shakespeare goes even further by changing Brooke's months into days, so that Romeo and Juliet are virtually strangers to each other.)

EVERYTHING in the play is an unfortunate "accident," brought on by their headlong passion. It is accidental that Mercutio takes Romeo to the dance where he meets Juliet. It is an accident that brings him to the fateful duel between Tybalt and Mercutio. It is an accident that

Friar John is quarantined. And it is a fatal accident that Juliet awakens from her trance a moment too late to prevent Romeo taking poison.

It is not a play about "love" at all, but about romantic rashness. Everybody is overexcited, especially Romeo at each critical turning of the plot. The impetuosity of the Montagues and Capulets is reflected in the behavior of their children — and "Romeo and Juliet," rather than being a dramatic rebuke to the hatred between the houses, is an example of "the sins of the fathers being handed down to the children."

Shakespeare was for love, as no poet before or since; he was not for its callow counterfeits, or for passion out of control, lives lost by blind chance. This is what his "most romantic" play is all about.

Unions Balance Economy

WASHINGTON — The other day an intelligent young person asked me whether there were labor unions in the U.S. as early as the Twenties. I replied that there sure were, that unions have flourished since the last century and grew up with our industrial life.

I was only partly right. True, the International Typographical Union dates to 1852, but in 1648, long before this land had its Industrial Revolution, the shoemakers and barrel workers had formed a union in Boston. The urge for workers to organize to protect themselves is both deeply felt and universal, and goes back to at least the Middle Ages.

Perhaps my young friend, growing up in the television era, thinks of unions in terms of Cesar Chavez and the grape workers, or the disappearance of Jimmy Hoffa, or the murder of Jock Yablonski.

Unions are so integrated in our economic system that their role is often functionary. They splash in the press during strikes, or threats of them, or when Democratic aspirants are looking for money, or when good old Hubert Humphrey is pushing another full employment panacea.

TO MANY Americans, unions loom as powerful ogres, capable of crippling or even destroying our enterprise system. Frankly, unions are often a pain in the you-know-where. No baron of industry was ever more autocratic than some labor skates I have known. But the labor movement is an absolutely necessary balance wheel in our society — indeed, has essentially been a conservative influence in our national life.

Despite all the huffing and puffing at the national level, the labor movement these days is scarcely holding its own. Only 20 million of the 97 million employed Americans (20 percent of work force) belong to labor unions. Employment growth is in the government and service sectors and in the South. Labor unions make little headway in these areas.

Moreover, most union members would rather gape at TV than go to meetings, and yawn about their affiliation unless there is strike talk. The union movement is run from the aging top. AFL-CIO president George Meany, four score and three, isn't too much older than the rest of uniondom's brass.

In the Thirties, a collection of spirited, courageous young men organized the huge Basic Industries of America. That was adventure. But today, unions representing workers in autos, steel, rubber, aluminum, glass and mining have settled into efficient maintenance of their members' rights and welfare.

The growth is in associations representing government employees, say, civil workers or teachers. These associations like to think of themselves as "professional," though they talk, act and function like labor unions.

IF THERE is any question that labor leaders and their members are really middle-of-the-road to conservative in social and political outlook, flash back to the hard-hat movement during the Vietnamese war, or to the reality that the majority of union members voted for Richard Nixon, not George McGovern, in 1972.

Still, without labor unions, the American economic system could turn back to chaos. The lust for the buck is so strong in our society that avarice and exploitation would surely overwhelm, if there were no labor unions.

Unions serve a bourgeoisie, not revolutionary, purpose. They balance, and keep industry and business on notice not to get out of line, to put aside any lustful, greedy urges.

Though I am far from a liberal, I have never regretted belonging to labor unions (Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of America, Laborers and Hod Carriers International Union of North America, The Newspaper Guild and the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists). A seat belt or crash helmet may be uncomfortable, but they are necessary.

AND UNIONS can help keep industrial order as well as disturb it. One of the great industrial relations experts of our time is Lou Seaton, now retired as vice president of General Motors, in charge of personnel. He once told me, after a heated bargaining session with Walter Reuther:

"The UAW can drive you up the wall, but General Motors couldn't operate without it. Imagine having 50 different outfits in our plant system, all yipping or threatening to walk out. At least with the UAW we have some consistency and know where we are."

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion on the proposed Panama Canal treaty:

ARIZONA DAILY STAR — "By putting all its energies into the canal pact, the Carter administration has shown that its priorities are out of line. Just as the canal is an emotional issue that elicits pangs of patriotic fervor, limitation of strategic arms is more abstract, less likely to stir latent jingoism."

ALBUQUERQUE N.M. TRIBUNE — "Carter and the country have much to lose in a treaty defeat. His ability to conduct foreign affairs would be diminished. Other countries would hesitate to make agreements with us, even vital ones on limiting nuclear weapons, out of fear that the White House could not deliver congressional approval."

SEATTLE POST-INTELLIGENCER — "This nation, it must be admitted, was engaged in practices, 74 years ago when the treaty was written, that we now condemn in Soviet strategy when segments of the population in a country are induced to rebel against that nation's leadership."

NEW YORK DAILY NEWS — "Transferring ownership of the waterway to Panama would not impose any hardships on the U.S., or diminish its security. And doing so would be a mark of strength rather than, as treaty foes contend, a sign of weakness."

57 Coast Merit Students Qualify

Fifty-seven students from 16 Orange Coast area high schools are among 15,000 national scholars named semifinalists in the 23rd annual National Merit Scholarship Program.

They will compete for some 3,900 Merit Scholarships to be awarded in spring, 1978. More than a million students, from 17,500 high schools, entered the competition.

SEMIFINALISTS ARE THE highest-scoring students from each state who were tested with the 1976 Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test.

The semifinalists represent the top one-half of 1 percent who scored highest on the test.

Finalists are chosen after a second test and other requirements including endorsement by school principals and grade point averages.

MORE THAN 90 PERCENT of the semifinalists are expected to qualify as finalists.

Finalists will compete for at least 1,000 National Merit $1,000 scholarships. Other awards and grants associated with the program may bring a finalist's winnings to more than $1,500 in scholarships per undergraduate year.

The names of scholarship winners will be announced next April and May.

Local semifinalists are:
Costa Mesa High School: David C. Dawe, David Doyle and Donald D. O'Neal.

Privacy Bill Signed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A right-to-privacy bill banning secret government files and allowing persons to review most of the data the state keeps on them has been signed by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

The bill is SB 170 by Sen. David Roberti (D-Los Angeles). Brown vetoed similar bills in 1975 and 1976, contending they were too costly.

Last year the governor signed an executive order that was similar to the Roberti bill, but critics said it did not go far enough and could be revoked by another governor.

The bill, modeled after privacy legislation enacted by Congress in 1974, gives persons the right to inspect records kept on them by the state, except for some law enforcement data.

Moore Isolation Ends

ALDERSON, W.Va. (AP) — Sara Jane Moore was released from a special maximum security section of the women's federal prison here after nearly a week's punishment for her involvement in a dispute over what television program to watch.

Miss Moore, serving a life term for attempting to assassinate former President Ford, didn't want to watch the fourth episode of the ABC mini-series "Washington: Behind Closed Doors."

WARDEN CARSON Markley of the Federal Correctional Institution said four other women were placed in the special maximum security unit at the all-women federal prison after the fracas.

Markley explained that inmates in the unit take turns deciding which television shows they will watch each night.

He said they watched the first three segments of the program on presidential politics when Miss Moore decided Friday night to watch the "Miss Black America" beauty pageant instead of the fourth installment.

OTHER INMATES BECAME angry and the television set was thrown to the floor and broken.

No one was injured in the dispute, but Markley said he felt it necessary to isolate Miss Moore from the other inmates for her protection and pending an investigation.

Campus Signs Okayed

Disoriented students and perplexed visitors to Saddleback College will soon get relief from their wayward searches for buildings and facilities on the Mission Viejo campus.

College trustees unanimously have approved $30,490 for installation of campus signs identifying buildings and providing directions around the upper and lower campus areas.

"Nobody can find their way around this school," Trustee Donna Berry said. "We need signs saying where the different buildings are."

District officials told trustees the sign contract should resolve problems many people have experienced finding certain areas of the college.

The sign contract was awarded to Ampersand Contract Signing Group of Pasadena.

'JOHNS' FACE SEX ARRESTS

Kearns reported that 112 women and 70 male customers were arrested in August on charges related to prostitution.

Hiding Aliens Charged

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A Meran Air Force sergeant is free on his own recognition after being charged with transporting 17 illegal aliens in his camper truck.

A hearing for T. Sgt. Carl Metzger, 37, of Lompoc is scheduled Sept. 22. Metzger was arrested by U.S. Border Patrol agents near the Oak Grove immigration checkpoint on California 163 in northern San Diego County. A prosecutor said the aliens were in the camper.

Metzger, a 19-year veteran of the Air Force, said he is being transferred from Eglin AFB, Fla., to Hawaii.

Another Sweep in Cup?

Courageous Favord to Retain Trophy

By JOHN NELSON

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Predicting the outcome of the America's Cup is a little like predicting which planet will be closest to the sun on any given day.

It's almost that easy.

The only question left is whether skipper Noel Robins' 12-meter yacht Australia, the challenger from Perth, will be able to win a race in the best-of-seven series, which began Tuesday with a convincing victory for Courageous and skipper Ted Turner.

THE TWO BOATS continue the series today, if the weather permits, and it has come down to a race not so much of hull speed — which seems comparable — but of sails, rigging, tactics and crew work.

In fact, one of the reasons hull speed has been so comparable is that Australia is very similar in design to Courageous. A source inside Sparkman and Stephens of New York, which designed Courageous, said the firm strongly suspects the Australia syndicate had drawings of Courageous before building the new Aussie yacht. Other published reports have indicated the same.

"We're not making any predictions," said Bob McCullough, commodore of the sponsoring New York Yacht Club. "After all, we all know that Australia is a carbon copy of Courageous."

IN THE FIRST RACE, Australia's hull speed stood her in good stead . . . after dropping more than a minute behind on the first leg because of sail problems.

The experience behind the American defense, the 23rd since the schooner America won the trophy in 1851, is immense.

Two of the world's best-known and most successful sailmakers — Ted Hood of Marblehead, Mass., and Lowell North of San Diego — were skippers of defense candidates which Courageous eliminated. Courageous uses Hood sails. Australia uses North sails made in Australia. And both Sverige of Sweden and Australia's Gretel II, unsuccessful challengers, used foreign-made North sails.

Schedule Given For Harris Series

The California Yacht Club has announced the schedule of its annual Fred Harris Fall Series, a four-race offshore series on Santa Monica Bay commemorating the late Fred "Friendly" Harris.

Harris, one of the most well-known and competitive yachtsmen in Southern California, died a few years ago after a long bout with cancer. During the last year of his life he gained considerable publicity from his frequent visits to cancer patients throughout the Southwest, offering friendly encouragement. Despite knowing that his illness was terminal, he continued to compete in yacht races until the last.

The Harris Series is open to all yachts of the International Offshore Rule, Performance Handicap Racing Fleet, Midget Ocean Racing Fleet, Midget Ocean Racing Association, and Cruising Club of America rating rules.

First race of the series will be the Squirrel Bank Race, an 18-miler over a windward leeward course Sept. 17.

Other races will be the Inverted Enduro, Sept. 24; Lazy 8 Race, Oct. 1, and the Five O'clock Bell race, Oct. 15.

Sailing Courses Offered at College

Coastline Community College is offering two marine oriented courses this fall — one on ocean sportfishing and the other on the techniques of sailing and the design of sailcraft.

The fishing course will be held at the McGaugh Intermediate School Library, 1698 Bolsa Ave., Seal Beach. The first lecture will be held Monday night Sept. 19 from 7 to 10 p.m. and will continue each Monday night through Oct. 24. Lecturer will be Jack Main, a professional fisherman for over 50 years and co-owner-operator of a fleet sport and commercial fishing boats.

The sailing lectures will start Thursday, Sept. 29, and continue each Thursday through Nov. 3 at the Harbor View School Multipurpose Room, 900 Goldenrod Ave., Corona del Mar. Lecturer will be Al Nelson, a veteran sailor with more than 30 years experience in everything from Sabots to 12-meters.

There is no charge for either series. Registration will be at the first session. For additional information call Coastline, 963-0811, Ext. 255.

Classes Set Dana to Teach Novices

Novice sailors can learn basic boating skills in a 12-week course starting Monday, sponsored by the Dana Point chapter of the U.S. Power Squadron, a boating fraternity.

The free classes will meet Mondays at 7:30 p.m. at Dana Hills High School, 33333 St. of the Golden Lantern in Dana Point.

All family members can attend classes, which will feature discussions of marine safety, good seamanship, equipment maintenance, navigation and compass reading for both sail and power boatmen.

Additional information on the course is available by calling 496-6115.

OLIN STEPHENS OF Sparkman & Stephens began designing America's Cup boats in 1930 when he co-designed the cup defender Ranger, a J Class boat. He has designed every defending 12-meter yacht except Weatherly in 1962.

In the elimination series, Australia lost just once, while Courageous lost eight times. But the American boat and her crew, which has been intact since June, raced 32 times to 14 for Australia. Courageous' skipper and crew have had twice the number of races in which to test gear and improve teamwork.

"We've been through a lengthy program," said Turner, owner of baseball's Atlanta Braves and a millionaire Georgia radio-TV czar. "We've got a set pattern of operating as far as sails and crew work are concerned, and we don't intend to change."

ARY JOBSON, THE tactician aboard Courageous and Turner's alter-ego, hopes his boat can win in "four straight, but you never know. We're relying on using our same successful tactics against Australia and I'm pretty confident."

"We gonna get 'em as long as we cover when we're ahead and attack when behind," said Jobson.

"It will be four straight," Turner admitted, "but it could be the other way. What do you think I am—stupid? I'm not going to make any predictions."

Daily Pilot Staff Photo

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Rossi of Costa Mesa and their daughter, Jessica, admire 1911 National that was in the first two Indianapolis 500 races. The antique racer has a four-cylinder, 590-cubic-inch engine and still runs, according to its owners, who displayed it recently in connection with an antique car exhibit at a Newport Beach shopping center.

LA County Population Up

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The nation's most populous county, which saw a dip in the number of residents earlier in the decade, appears to be growing again, census statistics indicate.

Census Bureau figures released in Washington show that at least as many people are moving to Los Angeles County as are moving out.

FOR THE FIRST TIME since 1970, the county's population topped seven million. The provisional census statistics for mid-1976 recorded 7,004,400 people, less than the 1970 all-time high of 7,041,980, but more than the low point in 1974 of 6,930,000.

The amount of net out-migration from the county has been going down in the last few years, but Los Angeles grows more from natural increase than from immigration," said Walter Hollmann of the state Finance Department.

HOLLMANN AND LARRY LONG, a census bureau demographer, were cautious in predicting that the dip in out-migration in one year was setting a trend.

Census figures for the 1970-75 period show a net out-migration of 362,600 from the county. During the same period plus 1976, the figure dips to 356,200 persons, suggesting a small gain of 6,400 people.

The population dip in the early 1970s has been attributed to job losses in the aerospace industry and fears of earthquakes.

Zoning Restudy Urged

Newport Beach officials want county officials to reconsider a zoning case which could end up producing more than 600 apartment units in an island of county territory surrounded by the city.

"I think this is a little bit ridiculous," said Councilman Don McInnis. "I submit that the traffic generated will not recognize boundary lines on a map."

THE CASE THAT drew the ire of councilmen involved the triangle of county territory near Hoag Memorial Hospital. It has been zoned for a combination of light industry and apartments. County supervisors last week rezoned most of it for high density (about 23 units per acre).

The highest density allowed in Newport Beach is 12 units per acre. At Monday's council meeting, McInnis pointed out that the triangle includes one apartment complex that contains more than 40 units per acre.

Councilmen decided to ask supervisors to reconsider their decision, but differed on how to present the request.

McINNIS, WHO DESCRIBED the county Planning Commission as a kangaroo court, suggested a hard line, demanding that the case be reconsidered.

He was backed by Councilman Trudi Rogers who said she views the rezoning as "totally unacceptable. I think we should be forceful about this."

The city's community development director, Dick Hogan, suggested that some personnel lobbying by councilmen with supervisors might be a more effective way to get the case reheard.

Councilmen agreed to try both approaches simultaneously.

Army
Women

LEIPHEIM, West Germany (AP) — The U.S. Army is using NATO fall maneuvers in West Germany to test the performance of women in combat environment, an American general says.

"Results of the study will be used to determine whether more women will be added to the Army in the next few years," U.S. Army chief of staff Gen. Bernard Rogers said Wednesday.

HE ADDED "the Army is now a little over 5 percent women."

Rogers was on a two-day visit to this southwest German town near Ulm, headquarters for REFORGER 77, an annual exercise to test the readiness of NATO forces. REFORGER stands for REstationing of FORces to GERMANY.

ALTHOUGH women are barred from combat by law, they frequently face combat situations because they serve in combat support and combat service support units, Rogers told reporters. He doubted, however, whether the American public is ready to accept women in infantry and armor units.

"What we are talking about is a woman with a rifle and a bayonet out there with the responsibility of hand to hand combat or a tank crewman on a tank that has been destroyed crawling out of the escape hatch and being prepared to defend herself," Rogers said.

Committee Approves
Children's Porn Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Judiciary Committee has approved unanimously a bill to make it a federal crime to use a child under age 16 in the production of pornographic materials.

It also would prohibit the interstate transportation of any child, boy or girl, for the purposes of prostitution.

IN ADDITION, THE bill would sharply increase penalties for the sale or distribution of pornographic materials.

Sen. John C. Culver (D-Ind.), chairman of the committee's subcommittee on juvenile delinquency, said Wednesday the bill was designed to enable the federal government to take effective action against the sexual exploitation of children.

He said that testimony taken by the subcommittee showed that use of children in pornography and prostitution has become a highly organized, multimillion dollar business operating nationwide.

SIMILAR HEARINGS have been held by a House Judiciary subcommittee, but it has not acted on any legislation.

The Senate committee approved the bill without dissent after rejecting by a 9-4 vote an amendment by Sen. Or-

In South County
Two Projects
Win Funding

Orange County supervisors have agreed to fund two south county social programs, Retired Senior Volunteer Program of South Orange County and Color It Orange.

From federal revenue-sharing funds earmarked for use in social programs, supervisors agreed to direct $10,272 to the retired senior volunteer program.

THAT PROGRAM SEEKS "to generate volunteer opportunities for persons of retirement age and to assist them in finding volunteer service by matching their expertise with meaningful volunteer work within the community."

Color It Orange was given $11,000 by supervisors Tuesday.

The money will be directed to the Laguna Beach School of Art to cover salaries and benefits of the Color It Orange program director.

COLOR IT ORANGE IS a countywide youth art festival aimed at encouraging students throughout the county to submit art work for competitive judging.

Judged works will be hung in the Laguna Beach Museum of Art and certificates as well as scholarships will be awarded to the most promising young artists.

rin Hatch (R-Utah) to ban the sale or distribution of any obscene material depicting sexually explicit conduct by children.

Culver and Sen. Charles McC. Mathias (R-Md.), who introduced the bill, contended that Hatch's amendment was unnecessary and might imperil the constitutionality of the legislation by raising First Amendment questions about what is obscene under U.S. Supreme Court rulings.

THE FIRST AMENDMENT, among other things, bars Congress from making any law restricting freedom of speech or the press.

Hatch's amendment, in effect, would have broadened the legal definition of obscenity to cover anything depicting explicit sexual conduct by children. If a movie or a book or other material include something of this nature, it would be treated as obscene as a whole and thus banned from sale or distribution.

WHILE HATCH SAID that he believed that would be upheld as constitutional, Culver and Mathias argued it would lead to court tests that could drag on for three or four years while what they called the vicious exploitation of children continued.

Coastal Control a 'Victory'

Dana Point residents won a victory of sorts when the Dana Point area was excluded from being exempt from coastal commission control.

According to Sandra Boostrom of the Dana Point Citizens for Action, residents of the area need "all the help they can get" in controlling development.

AND, MRS. BOOSTROM SAID, leaving the area under coastal commission control will provide an added check to possible wayward development in the area.

As things stand, development in the coastal region must be cleared through the coastal commission as well as through the county bureaucracy.

Tuesday, the Board of Supervisors approved seeking exemption from coastal commission control of construction of single-family homes and duplexes in certain portions of Capistrano Beach, Emerald Bay, South Laguna, Sunset Beach and Laguna Niguel.

BUT DANA POINT WAS omitted from the exempt list as a result of Mrs. Boostrom's pleas.

Opposing the Dana Point exemption was Supervisor Laurence Schmit, a member of the coastal commission.

However, Supervisor Thomas Riley said he was anxious to respond to the wants of local residents and secured the support of three supervisors to give Dana Point the exemption.

Hoag Celebrates 25 Years of Service

By JOANNE REYNOLDS
Of The Daily Pilot Staff

It has been 25 years, 400 more beds, 300 more physicians and a vast array of medical technology since Hoag Memorial Hospital opened its doors.

On Sept. 15, 1952, eight patients were checked into the 75-bed hospital where they were the center of attention of the 68 physicians and 66 staff members.

THE HOSPITAL, CALLED IN those days the pink hotel on the hill, was the brainchild of the late Raymond Brahm, a Laguna Beach clergyman whose friend died on the long drive to St. Joseph hospital in Orange during the early 1940s.

The often-frustrating struggle to raise money to buy land and build the hospital lasted for nearly a decade, until the Hoag Foundation donated $500,000 to the hospital fund to get the project moving. Since then, the foundation has given nearly $6 million to the hospital.

George Hoag II, whose father, George Hoag Sr., established the foundation, recalled with irony that he was a patient at another hospital when work on the Orange Coast's first hospital was begun.

"IN AUGUST OF 1951," HE said, "I had my appendix out at St. Joseph Hospital at four o'clock in the morning, sat on the edge of the bed at eight o'clock, signed the contract with Means and Ulrich, contractors, and the hospital was physically started."

The original administrator, Robert Bacon, presided over the planning and construction, but, just before the hospital opened, he died of a stroke.

His wife, Winifred, took over and ran the hospital until her retirement in 1967. Before her death in 1975, she recalled looking around the hospital the night before it opened and discovering a few of the beds had been assembled backward.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS LATER, the hospital boasts some of the most advanced medical equipment available and a staff of 385 physicians who represent 22 medical specialties.

However, in its earlier days, life at Hoag was a little less sophisticated and there were times when supporters and staff had to rely on their wits.

For instance, Guy Claire, a member of the board of directors, recalls one of the early fundraising plays.

AN AD READING, "THIS IS your last chance to send $1 to P.O. Box 1234" was run in a local paper. He said more than $1,000 in donations were received.

While community members were scrambling for money, staff members were scrambling to keep on top of things at the hospital.

Hoag recalled one memorable evening, not long after the hospital opened, when the frogs kept in the lab for pregnancy tests escaped, sending doctors, nurses, aides, orderlies and anyone else handy in a mad dash after the hopping beasts.

THE STAFF SOMETIMES WAS stretched thin. Kelley Ludwig, now supervising nurse in pediatrics, remembered working as relief operator on the switchboard in between nursing duties.

Roberta Heath, now the senior surgical aide in the James Irvine Surgical Center, joined the staff less than a month after the hospital opened.

"The emergency room wasn't staffed when we opened, and when an ambulance called to tell us a patient was on the way, one nurse and an aide had to leave the ward to staff the Emergency Room," she explained.

ACCORDING TO HOAG, HOSPITAL officials and staff members also had to rely on their wits during one of the facility's first inspections by the state Joint Commission on Accreditation.

He said that, when inspectors arrived at the hospital, there were 94 patients in the 75-bed facility. "Everyone was wheeling those not critically ill up and down the halls, hoping they would never figure out the total," he recalled.

Apparently, the inspectors never added up the patients, and the hospital received accreditation, a hallmark of quality care, a year after opening. It has maintained its accreditation since then.

BECAUSE THE HOSPITAL HAD a chronic problem of having more patients than beds, the facility began to expand within a year of its opening.

Ludwig said the staff put patients "wherever we could stash them when it got crowded. We were so full at times we made patient rooms out of offices and put beds out in the halls with screens around them for privacy."

First patients were moved into existing facilities, by conversion of the solarium and Grace Hoag Home, a nurse's residence.

THE FIRST MAJOR ADDITION, A four-story main wing that held an additional 150 beds, a medical library, more laboratory space and the maternity facilities, was finished in 1959.

Forty-six more beds were added in 1968 when the pediatrics wing was built and in 1963 the hospital leased a nearby convalescent hospital, thus adding another 93 beds.

That addition proved to be too complicated to be practical and fundraising got under way for the 11-story tower that opened in 1974, bringing the hospital's bed count to 471.

A FEW OF THOSE BEDS COME with extra pampering. Patients who care to add an extra $55 a day to their normal $110-a-day hospital tab may rent themselves a room on the tower's tenth floor.

There, they find themselves in double-sized rooms equipped with sofa beds for overnight visitors and refrigerators for snacks.

Gourmet meals, served by the floor's hostess, are set on a linen-covered table.

TOP-FLOOR PATIENTS ALSO HAVE the use of a sauna and a beauty salon.

With the expansion of the hospital's ability to house patients has come an increase in staff size to 1,344 and improved technology, ranging from the James Irvine Surgical Center, an outpatient surgery clinic, to the critical-care units and the computerized diagnostic equipment.

Through the years, the surrounding communities has provided support in the form of donations and volunteers.

Carroll Beek, a 56-year resident of Balboa Island, recalls a luncheon at the Newport Harbor Yacht Club in 1945, during the fundraising days before construction, in which community members came up with $19,000 in donations in 45 minutes.

MRS. BEEK IS A PAST MEMBER of the hospital's board of directors and a longtime member of the hospital's auxiliary.

Dora Hill, Newport Beach's first woman mayor, was the first president of the auxiliary.

"When we organized in 1952, our uniforms were bright yellow smocks we made ourselves," she recalled.

"Then we learned we were supposed to be 'pink ladies' and we changed to that color."

In addition to helping in the hospital, the group raises money. It donated $65,000 to the hospital last year.

ANOTHER SUPPORT GROUP IS the 552 Club, a group of businessmen formed in 1966 to raise funds for a 552-bed hospital. That number has since been revised to 471, but the name stuck. There are now 125 members of the 552 Club.

One of the newest support groups at the hospital is the Sandpipers, organized in 1975.

It was founded to raise funds for the hospital's radiation therapy center when Corinne Elkouri, after undergoing a mastectomy, learned there was no radiation therapy center in the Harbor Area.

THE HOSPITAL IS STILL changing. Plans are in the works for construction of an interfaith spiritual center and remodeling of the obstetrics and orthopedic units.

Reflecting on the hospital's 25 years, Hoag noted, "We are still the 'pink hotel on the hill' to the majority of beach people and we hope to keep it that way."

Wild Horses Blamed for Range Damage

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — The former director of the Nevada Fish and Game Commission has a suggestion about what to do with the state's wild horses.

Frank Groves said we should eat them.

"We do it with cattle, don't we?" he said.

GROVES SAID THAT many mustangs adopted under the federal government's Wild Horse and Burro Act have "done untold damage to both humans and property and eventually have to be destroyed by the federal government."

Recently, Groves added, he sold a spoiled saddle horse for around 29 cents a pound "while at the same sale a fat holstein hereford cow only brought 23 and one-half cents. Yet we, as the American public, allow a valuable food source to be shot and buried."

"SINCE WHEN HAS our nation become so rich in natural resources that we can abuse our range forage in this way," Groves said.

"I am told that many of the people in India are dying of starvation. Yet due to religious beliefs the brahma cattle are allowed to eat the forage but cannot be slaughtered for human consumption. Are we headed in the same direction?"

GROVES SAID HE battled the late Velma Wild Horse Annie Johnston on the issue of wild horses "but that didn't do any good."

CRUELTY CHARGE
Sen. Talmadge

Senator's Divorce

Drunk, Cruelty Cited

McDONOUGH, Ga. (AP) — Sen. Herman Talmadge's wife, Betty, has accused him of being cruel and habitually drunk in a divorce petition.

A lawyer for the Georgia senator said the accusations were an effort to hurt him politically and to get more money.

THE COUPLE WERE divorced this year, but the state Supreme Court overturned the decree in May and ordered a jury trial, after Mrs. Talmadge appealed the settlement. Division of property has been the main issue in the divorce action. Talmadge, a 64-year-old Democrat, contends his wife improperly retained about $750,000 that resulted from the sale of his share of a tract of land. He said his share was placed in her name to prevent news stories on its purchase and to avoid controversy.

MRS. TALMADGE, 53, argues the property was a gift to her and that she was justified in keeping the money from its sale.

The cross-petition was filed in Henry County Superior Court.

TV 'Nag'

Role Opposite In Real Life

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Roni Stoneman doesn't nag her real-life husband like she does Gordy Tapp every week on the syndicated television show "Hee Haw."

Miss Stoneman is well-known to "Hee Haw" viewers as the gap-toothed wife with her hair in rags who's always nagging her husband.

"MY HUSBAND WOULDN'T TOLERATE nagging," said Miss Stoneman, 39, the wife of George Hemrick, who has a doctorate in English. "He runs our house."

"I can be mean when I get mad, but I'm not really a mean person," she said.

As "Hee Haw" enters its ninth season, here are other answers to questions about Miss Stoneman:

NASHVILLE SOUND

— THE GAP between her two middle upper teeth is natural.

— She is as nutty as she appears in other segments of the show.

— She is not ugly.

"I've had people come up to me on the road and say, 'Are you really as ugly as my wife says you are?'" she said. "And the state police stopped me once. They made me show them my teeth and they still gave me a ticket."

Nutty? Consider this:

SHE HAS A GRAY, OAK outhouse in her backyard.

"It's just a one-seater," She and George "Goober" Lindsey recently sang "Flush Me From The Bathroom Of Your Heart" while dining at a fashionable French restaurant in Los Angeles.

"I'm kinda screwy," she said. "But it's better than being sad."

In real life, she has seven children.

"Don't anybody tell me I'm not sexy," she said. But people persist.

VISITING THE HOME OF a "Hee Haw" executive for an audition, she was told: "You're just what we need. We've got all the pretty girls we want."

Then there's the matter of dressing rooms. She shares facilities with statuesque beauties like Barbi Benton and Lisa Todd.

"I could wear my bra backwards," she moans.

But she can be serious. Like when she talks about her 17-year-old daughter, a "special" child. Or about her struggle out of poverty with members of the country music pioneers, the Stoneman family.

"I HAD AN AGENT WHO TOLD me once to act like a star, said Miss Stoneman, a gifted banjo player. "I'd been hungry too long to act that way."

"I never had a dresser drawer until I got married. I always had to share. I never realized anybody lived different than we did until I went home with a girlfriend who had a bedroom."

"Sometimes I get quiet," she said. "There's a time for everything."

BUT MENTION "HEE HAW" and her mood brightens. Some behind-the-scenes activity:

Misty Rowe once accidentally knocked off the hairpiece of a fellow star.

Everybody gets along well.

"All the women chase Junior Samples."

Assembly OKs Bill

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. must sign or veto a measure allowing a transsexual to ask a court for a change of birth certificate after a sex-change operation.

By a 49-11 vote, the Assembly Wednesday concurred in Senate amendments to the bill, AB 385 by Assemblyman Willie Brown (D-San Francisco).

Merit Breakthrough Remains Unduplicated.

'Enriched Flavor' tobacco makes MERIT unique among low tar cigarettes.

Since the introduction of MERIT, a number of other low tar brands have come along. But MERIT remains unique—the only low tar cigarette with 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco.

MERIT delivers what others can only promise: the flavor of higher tar cigarettes. The kind of flavor made possible by a breakthrough in tobacco technology.

Here's how it was done:

By cracking cigarette smoke down into separate elements, researchers were able to isolate certain flavor-rich ingredients that delivered taste way out of proportion to tar.

These flavor essentials were then packed into MERIT, giving it extraordinary flavor.

Taste tests against a number of higher tar cigarettes proved it.

Overall, smokers reported they liked the taste of MERIT and MERIT 100's as much as the taste of the higher tar cigarettes tested. Cigarettes with up to 60% more tar!

Only one cigarette has 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco.

Vataha Not Bitter About Being Let Go

EX-GWC STAR RANDY VATAHA TO GREEN BAY.

By CRAIG SHEFF
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Randy Vataha, waived by the New England Patriots and then picked up immediately by the Green Bay Packers Tuesday, has no ill feelings about his former team.

In fact, Vataha had praise for the Patriots when contacted by the Daily Pilot at his Boston home.

"Yes, I was a bit surprised I was waived by the Patriots, but the team is very deep in a lot of positions. They have a lot of No. 1 picks and a lot of talent. It was a numbers game," says Vataha.

"Right now the Patriots have two wide receivers and two on the taxi squad. It was just a problem of numbers and my age (29) probably had something to do with it.

"Also we had the fifth best rushing record in NFL history last year. Our leading receiver only caught 30 passes.

"But I really enjoyed it here. This is now my home and I'll continue to live here. The Patriots were very good to me. I wish them a lot of luck. I played six more years than I had planned on," says the former Golden West College and Stanford University standout.

Vataha, who came to Golden West as a quarterback from Garden Grove's Rancho Alamitos High and was turned into a wide receiver by Rustlers coach Ray Shackelford, made a name for himself catching passes from Jim Plunkett.

He was Plunkett's chief receiver at Stanford and after being cut by the Rams in 1971 (he was the Rams' 17th round draft choice), he was picked up by the Patriots where he rejoined Plunkett.

He had an outstanding rookie year in '71, catching 51 passes. He caught 48 passes two seasons ago, but broke his cheekbone before the start of the '76 campaign and missed the first four regular season games. He lost his starting job and caught only 11 passes.

He'll report to Green Bay today and will be in uniform Sunday in the New Orleans Superdome when the Packers play the Saints.

"I had a chance to become a free agent, but Green Bay wanted me and I am satisfied with my contract. At the end of this year I'll see where my priorities lie and determine what I'll do," says Vataha.

Vataha and a business partner have been involved in constructing an $800,000 14-court racquetball facility.

"I've been running things here, so it's been a busy two days taking care of things before I go," says Vataha.

Seaver Shoots For 200th Win

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tom Seaver will be bearing down on a personal milestone tonight against the Los Angeles Dodgers. It's at 7:30 and will be broadcast on KABC (790).

The Cincinnati Reds' right-hander is going for the 200th victory of his career, a feat accomplished by only four other active major league pitchers: Ferguson Jenkins, Gaylord Perry, Jim Kaat and Catfish Hunter.

Meanwhile, the Reds' only battle left is for second place in the National League West.

But after coming from behind to defeat division-leading Los Angeles 9-8 Wednesday night, the Reds' Pete Rose looked on the victory as something of a consolation.

"At least," he said, "they can't clinch it here against us, and that means something."

The Dodgers' magic number remains at four for wrapping up the division crown after Cincinnati scored six runs in the last two innings to defeat Los Angeles ace Tommy John for the first time this season.

"Tommy John got the Dodgers where they are," said Rose. "He's the most valuable pitcher on their staff, maybe in the league. For us to score nine runs off him is really something."

The Dodgers had an 8-3 lead after the seventh inning with Dave Lopes, Steve Garvey and Steve Yeager slugging home runs.

But Cincinnati got within a run, scoring four times in the eighth inning—three of them on a home run by Cesar Geronimo. Ken Griffey's two-run homer in the ninth was the game winner.

Earlier, George Foster clouted his 48th homer, tops in the majors.

John started the ninth as the National League's leader in earned run average, at 2.48. After the Reds got through with him, the e.r.a. jumped to 2.73.

"When you're just starting out, you never really know how successful your career is going to be," Seaver said, "so the round numbers seem to take on significance. I can remember going for my 50th, then my 100th."

"It will be nice to get my 200th, whenever it comes. Then I can start thinking about 300 victories. That will become my new goal. Back in spring training this year, I remember saying to myself that I wanted to make sure I won at least 18 games so I could make it to 200 this season."

The 32-year-old Seaver has moved steadily toward his goal since joining the Reds in June. Ten of his 17 victories so far this year have come since he was traded to Cincinnati by the New York Mets.

He averaged 18 victories during his 10-year career with the Mets, and started the current season with a record of 18-10-7.

This has been a season of personal milestones for Seaver. On Aug. 31, he made Montreal's Del Unser his 2,500th strikeout victim, a total reached by only 10 other pitchers in major league history. He since has boosted that total to 2,509 and moved past Christy Mathewson into 10th place on the all-time list.

Seaver needs 25 strikeouts to reach the 200 mark for the 10th consecutive time. His string of nine is a major league record.

The three-time Cy Young Award winner also is hoping for his fifth 20-game season, needing three victories in possibly four starts.

His career high of 25 victories came in 1969. He won 20 in 1971, 21 in 1972 and 22 in 1975.

Bashore Recalls Start

Kansas Next Step for Ex-Edison Ace

By ROGER CARLSON
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Reserved and unassuming sophomore quarterback Rick Bashore of the UCLA Bruins is going about the business of preparing for invading Kansas Saturday night—still maintaining a low profile.

Bashore and the Bruins collide with Kansas in their second non-conference football game in six nights and the Bruins quarterback says (1) the Kansas defense is big and physical (2) he's assuming he'll be the starter again, although no one has told him directly.

Questioned about Bashore's status, UCLA drummer Vic Kelley almost came unglued. "Are you kidding? After Monday's performance? Of course he's our starter barring a disaster," says Kelley.

Reflecting on his efforts against Houston at the AstroDome Monday night before a national television audience, Bashore says, "I'm satisfied, but I need to improve a lot on my footwork and fundamentals. And I've got to learn to protect myself after handing the ball off. The refs weren't watching very closely."

The Bruins suffered a 17-13 defeat to Houston, keyed by the inability to punch the ball across after threatening three times in scoring territory during the second half.

"We were there three times and we didn't score," says Bashore. "It was kind of disheartening. We should have put it (scored) in there at least twice."

Bashore's starting nod was not made official until Monday, but he says he had an inkling the nod would go to him the past two weeks.

"I felt like I was ahead of the pace, especially a couple of days before the game," says Bashore, who prepped at Edison High (Huntington Beach) School.

Bashore appeared nervous at the outset with Houston and agrees that he was, "Yeah, a little," says Bashore. "But a couple of plays later things got going pretty quick. I felt a lot better as the game went on."

"And I was surprised that I played the entire game. I didn't expect that. But it helped me a lot. I learned to go the distance and it did a lot for me. I think the team is gaining confidence in me. I feel accepted by the team."

"I didn't think we'd throw nearly that much, but Houston was keying on the run so much, giving us the pass."

A sophomore starter at quarterback at a major university is not a common occurrence, but Bashore says that was his goal.

"When I decided to come to UCLA I looked ahead and felt the job would be open my sophomore year. It's something I've worked and prepared for. The option series is difficult to learn, but I feel I'll get better with each game."

"The coaches told me I played well for my first game, but they also told me there was room for improvement."

Bashore completed 12 of 27 passes for 245 yards and a 20-yard scoring pass. And he netted 33 yards on the ground, including a 25-yard scamper to the Houston 10.

"I thought I was going to score and I think I should have," says Bashore. "I thought we'd win the game."

HOUSTON (AP) — Top-seeded Bob Hewitt and Frew McMillan advanced to the second round of the $125,000 U.S. pro doubles tennis championships Wednesday with a 6-4, 6-1 victory over Rick Fisher and Russell Simpson.

Fourth-seeded Stan Smith and Bob Lutz of San Clemente also advanced, beating Mike Estep and John Whitlinger 6-2, 6-3.

Tennis Challenge

Laver, Gerulaitis Clash in Irvine

Vitas Gerulaitis will test Newport Beach's Rod Laver in the featured men's singles tennis match at the Irvine Racquet Club tonight (8) but an announced match between Tracy Austin and Lea Antonopolis has been canceled.

Austin, the 14-year-old Rolling Hills High School freshman, asked to be dismissed from the singles match Wednesday. Tentatively, she will play with Laver against Gerulaitis and Antonopolis in a doubles match at 6:30.

"Everything has been done to try and get Tracy to play a singles match," a spokesman for the charity matches said Wednesday. "But she and her parents requested that she play a doubles match instead because they feel she is too tired from her recent summer competition."

Gerulaitis, 22, is one of the bright young stars on the tennis horizon. He is ranked No. 2 behind Jimmy Connors in the U.S. and is seventh in the world.

He became the first American in 17 years to win the Italian Open earlier this season and pushed the world's top player, Bjorn Borg, to five sets before losing in the semifinals at Wimbledon. He is substituting for Borg against Laver here tonight after Borg suffered a shoulder injury and aggravated it at the U.S. Open in Forest Hills.

Laver, one of the all-time greats of tennis and a three-time triple crown winner, says he is excited about the match tonight. He was the one who originally set up the challenge with Borg and subsequently arranged for Gerulaitis to play.

The Harbor Day School of Newport Beach is the recipient of the proceeds of the match.

"I've had good success against Vitas," Laver says. "My game seems to fit right into the groove in playing him. I enjoy playing someone like Vitas who is aggressive rather than a slower type player."

In World Team Tennis where Gerulaitis plays for the Indiana Loves and Laver for the San Diego Friars, Laver was the master in four meetings.

While Laver has dominated Gerulaitis in individual meetings, tonight's match could be a turning point. When he lost to Borg at Wimbledon, the scores were 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, 3-6, 8-6.

Irvine Racquet Club is located on Culver Drive approximately one mile south of the San Diego Freeway at Sandburg Way in the city of Irvine.

Helpful Hint For LA: Build Swim Stadium

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The U.S. Olympic Committee has given the city a few helpful hints on how to be chosen to host the 1984 summer Olympics.

The trick is to build a $25-million covered swimming stadium, a separate diving pool and additional facilities for other water games, officials say.

Anton Calleia, Mayor Tom Bradley's liaison official for the Olympics, announced the privately made suggestions Wednesday.

He said city administrative officer C. Erwin Piper has estimated that building a covered stadium at the Sepulveda Basin site in the San Fernando Valley — instead of the planned open pool — would boost the capital outlay for the proposed project from $15 million to $40 million.

But even so, Calleia said the city would go along with the covered stadium providing that federal funds would be available to finance it as part of an expected federal subsidy for the games.

Dr. John A. Bogert, a member of the Olympic committee, explained the ideas were only suggestions made to the city. "This is not to say Los Angeles wouldn't get the support of the U.S. Olympic Committee or the International Olympic Committee without some of those things we were suggesting. We were only citing precedents."

Bogert reasoned that the final swimming events have been held at night since the 1960 Olympics in Rome. And recently, the national swimming championships in Mission Viejo were, at times, pretty chilly.

Kansas Invades

More Problems Confront Bruins

LOS ANGELES — UCLA had more than its share of difficulties in opening its college football season Monday night.

Houston overcame a 13-3 halftime deficit to hand the Bruins a 17-13 setback on national television. That was discouraging enough. But it was worse.

UCLA lost a pair of key players in the Astrodome and the team is now involved in a unique situation brought about by its schedule — the Bruins have little time to prepare for their next game.

That comes Saturday night when the Kansas visits the Coliseum in the Bruins' home opener.

"The problems of the game at Houston were difficult enough," said UCLA coach Terry Donahue Wednesday. "Now we've got to face the problems of this week's game with very little preparation."

"We're obviously two days behind," added Donahue. "We'll work harder Thursday and Friday than we normally do. We think we'll have enough time to rest after Friday with the game being Saturday night."

"We've never done this before."

Few teams have. And Donahue says Kansas is not an ordinary team in terms of preparation.

"Kansas is an excellent football team," said Donahue. "They present preparation problems for our defense because they run out of both the wishbone and I formations."

"We'll have our hands full trying to win Saturday night. I promise you that."

While the Bruins lost their top rusher of last year, running back Theotis Brown with a dislocated left elbow, and punter placekicker Frank Corral, who broke his jaw, all was not grim Monday night.

Edison High (Huntington Beach), who competed for the starting quarterback berth with junior Steve Bukich last spring and this fall and was a late choice of Donahue to start, had an extremely successful debut.

The 6-foot-1, 177-pounder from Fountain Valley, completed 12 of 27 passes for 245 yards and one touchdown.

"I anticipated playing both quarterbacks against Houston and I anticipate playing both against Kansas," added Donahue. "But the game might change those plans as it did Monday night."

Emerson, Martin Fall

Defending champion Billy Martin lost to host pro Randy Verdieck, 7-6, 6-4, and Newport Beach's Roy Emerson fell to Tom Leonard, 6-3, 6-3, in first round singles upsets Wednesday in the Laguna Niguel International tennis tournament at the Laguna Niguel Tennis Club.

Following his loss in singles play, Emerson withdrew from the tournament and will not play in doubles competition. George Hardie has replaced him and will team with Verdieck in doubles.

Martin, a quarterfinalist at Wimbledon this year, was upset by Verdieck in straight sets. He won the inaugural event at Laguna Niguel a year ago.

UCI Polo Outlook Still Flossy

With five starters returning, UC Irvine figures to have another banner water polo season in 1977 but Anteaters coach Ed Newland says the jury is still out. "I haven't the slightest idea how we'll do until we play someone," says Newland. "But we should be fairly good. We do have potential."

Newland will get a much better idea this weekend when UCI hosts its annual tourney at Newport Harbor High.

Leading the returnees for UCI is senior Gary Figueroa, called by Newland one of the best offensive players in the country. Figueroa scored 83 goals last year, leading the Anteaters to a third place finish in the NCAA tourney.

Other starters back include goalie Bob Malone, senior Simon Boughey and sophomores George Newland and George Hassett.

Other key players for the Anteaters include sophomore Manfred Lespier, a Puerto Rican who played for UCI last year; sophomore Mark O'Brien; freshman Dave Ritchie from Fullerton's Sunny Hills High and juniors Scott Becker and Pat Lyons.

Newland says he'll stress defense again this season and an important NCAA rule change figures to help the Anteaters.

Last season a team was awarded a penalty throw after 10 team fouls were assessed on the opposition in one quarter. But that rule has been thrown out by the NCAA.

Big Tourney

UC Irvine and UC Berkeley are co-favored to win the annual UCI water polo tourney, set Friday through Sunday at Newport Harbor High.

A total of 12 teams will participate in four divisions of the tourney with the top schools from each division advancing to the championship round Saturday and Sunday.

Other top teams in the tourney include UCLA, UC Santa Barbara and Arizona. UCLA was second in the NCAA tourney last year, with UCI finishing third.

The first game of the tourney matches UCI against Cal State (Long Beach) at 3 Friday.

No Pushing Around For Gauchos' Wade

A year ago, Ron Wade was just about set to play football at Orange Coast College.

A standout at San Clemente High School, Wade had become disenchanted living in the South Coast area.

But two things changed his mind and turned his future around.

"There were just too many guys out for football (over 100) at Orange Coast. And the Saddleback coaches had a real positive attitude when I talked to them, but they didn't put any pressure on me," says Wade, a linebacker.

The decision, says Wade, was one of the best he's ever made.

"I'm just super glad I came here. I like the school and I like the coaches. I couldn't have picked a better school," says Wade.

But he may have had some reservations after playing in his first game for the Gauchos last season.

"It was against Cypress and I really learned a lot that first game. I got pushed around quite a bit and I found out it's a lot tougher playing JC football," says Wade.

Wade doesn't figure to get pushed around this season — due primarily to the fact he's gained 30 pounds and added an inch to his height — he's now 6-3 and 205.

"I've just been skinny most of my life, but I started to gain weight last year. And I lifted a lot of weights," says the 19-year-old Wade.

At San Clemente High, Wade played both ways as a running back and a defensive end — and in his senior year helped the Tritons to a 10-1 record. But he prefers to play defense.

"I just prefer defense," says Wade. "I guess I just like the contact."

But he also adds that his working relationship with linebacker coach Don Butcher makes it that much easier.

"Butcher really has a positive attitude and it's made me positive. I really want to play well because of that. The coaches here make it fun to play football," says Wade.

Gauchos head coach Ken Swearingen thinks Wade is headed for a big season — and that was exemplified in the opening game last Saturday against College of the Desert when he was selected the top defensive star.

"Ron is really a team leader. He's an intelligent kid and he really gets guys going. He's a total player and a great prospect for the four-year schools," says Swearingen.

Perrys Win

Dan and Georgia Perry defeated Fred and Fran Hill 6-3, 6-0 to capture first place in the championship flight of the Mission Viejo Tennis Association husband and wife tournament last week.

In the second flight championship match, Joe and Gloria Byrnes downed Phil and Gean Lageste 6-3, 6-2. Bob and Judy Hale won the third flight title with a 6-4, 6-7, 6-1 victory over John and Mary Loy Coutlee.

Angels Trail By 20 With 19 Games Left

ARLINGTON, Tex. — The sagging California Angels were mathematically eliminated from the American League West title race Wednesday when they took a 2-1 loss from the Texas Rangers.

It also left the Halos five games under .500 in the win column.

Alexander, now the winningest Rangers pitcher with 15 victories, against 10 losses, retired the first 12 batters before Bobby Bonds lined a single in the fifth.

Texas' John Ellis drilled his third home run of the year in the third inning. A double by Ken Henderson, a single by Jim Sundberg and Toby Harrah's sacrifice fly provided the winning margin in the sixth inning against loser Ken Brett, 12-12.

The Angels scored a run in the seventh inning on Don Baylor's rbi single but Smith cut down Mario Guerrero at the plate trying to score from second on a single by Dave Chalk.

HB Rival Larger, Stronger

You can bet Huntington Beach High won't be fooled by the 1976 football record of Garden Grove High, who the Oilers open up against Friday night (7:30) in Garden Grove.

The Argonauts officially were 0-9 last year but that is more than a little misleading. On the week they were to enter the CIF playoffs, Garden Grove head coach Dick Campbell discovered that one of his players was 30 days past the age limit for high school players. The Argonauts not only missed the playoffs, but had to wipe out the slate on a 6-2-1 campaign.

A little wiser this year, Garden Grove is also a lot stronger. Only two of last year's offensive starters graduated and Campbell has 16 starters and 26 lettermen back overall.

The best of the lot could be quarterback Tim Golia (5-11, 185), an all-league pick destined for college greatness, according to Campbell. In addition, there is an offensive line which has just one starter under 200 pounds. Two are massive underclassmen who started as sophomores, all-league center Dan McKie (6-5, 240) and strong tackle Kevin Alexander (6-4, 235).

The guards are Roy Yoshida (6-0, 200) and Dennis Laughon (5-11, 180). David Hanzich (6-0, 200), a starter at tackle last year, is being challenged by another potential blue chipper in sophomore Terrance Rock (6-0, 205). The tight ends are Joe Ryan (6-1, 205) and Mike Clayton (6-3, 200). Clay Harris (6-2, 180) caught six touchdown passes as an all-league wide receiver.

The only vacancies on offense are at running back where Campbell says he has plenty of depth and speed but no clear cut starter.

Among the seven starters back on defense are end Ron Amendola (5-8, 155), nose guard Mike Malone (6-1, 200), linebackers Marv Rose (6-0, 200) and Bruce McGinley (5-8, 185) and tackle Steve Brill (6-2, 220). The giant on defense is the second nose guard, Dan Leonard (6-5, 270).

Campbell feels that Huntington Beach will be a lot stronger than last year when the Argonauts whipped the Oilers 14-0.

"Huntington Beach has some real good juniors and their quarterback (Marco Pagnanelli) looks like a real good one," he said. "They have a couple of good receivers and it looks like their defense is a lot more mobile than last year. I expect a good football game from them because they throw the football very well."

Los Amigos Has Vets On Offense

Los Amigos High (Fountain Valley) is a considerably different football team from the one that handed Dana Hills a 13-3 loss in the season opener last year.

Coach Al Calónico says his offense is much improved but his defense is much weaker. That diversification makes it difficult for Calónico to forecast how his '77 edition will fare.

Friday night's season opener against Dana Hills at San Clemente High (7:30) will be the third time the Dolphins and Lobos have met. They split their previous games.

Los Amigos has four returning starters on offense and three on defense. The most prominent returnee is all-league offensive tackle Randy Vasquez, a 6-4, 245-pound senior.

Joining him on the offensive line are two guards from last year's varsity — 5-11, 200-pound Dan Kirkland and 6-0, 185-pound Mike Sands.

Los Amigos has a speedster at wide receiver, 5-9, 155-pound Randy Lewis. Calónico says he runs the 40 in 4.7 seconds.

At quarterback, Calónico is still debating between two candidates for the starting job. Junior Art Wilcox is the better passer, but senior Ernie Fisher is the superior runner, a distinct advantage in Los Amigos' veer offense.

Calónico says he'll play both extensively during pre-league games. Fisher is also a starting cornerback and Calónico calls him the best athlete on the squad. "Our major concern is the defense," Calónico says. "We played poorly in our scrimmage. We weren't aggressive enough and we didn't seem sure of ourselves. I've got seven players in the defense who've never been in a varsity game before."

Los Amigos' outstanding defensive player so far has been nose guard Matt Shields (6-2, 185).

Calónico says he expects to encounter problems from Dana Hills' fondness of running around the ends on sweeps and rollouts.

Newport, Millikan Square Off

Newport Harbor High's edition of 1977 football will be unveiled tonight as the Long Beach Millikan High Rams invade the Sailors campus for an 8 o'clock non-league tiff.

As in most openers, tonight's clash involves a lot of unknowns. What is known about the Sailors of Newport Harbor coach Bill Pizzica is that they are the fastest in years.

What isn't known is how effective the passing game from quarterback Craig Lyons to receivers Wayne Kasperek, Jeff Bitetti and Larry Higby will be.

Nor has it been established that the Sailors' game is a weapon to be reckoned with. Pizzica has three standouts who will shuttle at fullback (Dave Thompson, Don Barker and Dana Wandrocke), but tailback Chris Corum is out with a knee injury.

Corum is the fastest on the team with the ability to run 40 yards in 4.5 seconds. "I've no idea when Corum will be back," says Pizzica. "It's a recurrence of an old knee injury and we're going to get it taken care of properly."

Pizzica is not overly concerned at tailback, however, with 170-pound Bryon Ward stepping into the starting berth.

"Ward is the best surprise we've had," says Pizzica. "He runs the 40 in 4.6 seconds. He's quick and has the moves." Ward is the Sunset League record holder in the frosh-soph high and low hurdles.

Newport's defense, with Barker and Bob Brown leading the way, should be up to par. The question is offense and Pizzica says: "Last year we had no offense."

Millikan marches in with an option offense, but the individual with the most potential is 170-pound halfback Fred Morre, who averaged 7.8 yards per carry in '76.

One Starter Back State JC Champs Regroup

Golden West College water polo coach Tom Hermstad figures the 1976 Rustlers record will be hard to top.

"It took us 11 years to win the state championship and we hope it doesn't take another 11. But last year's performance will be hard to top—especially with only one starter back," says Hermstad.

The '76 Rustlers fashioned a 34-1 record on the way to the state title—losing only to West Valley — a decision they later avenged.

The lone starter back is Jeff DeMott.

"After DeMott, I don't know who will start," says Hermstad, whose team begins action Tuesday against Grossmont.

"Potentially, we have a good group of freshmen, but we've looked good and bad at times. The key to the season is being able to stay in contention during the first half of conference play. We play all the contenders—Ventura, Glendale, Cypress and Santa Monica—in their pools," says the GWC coach.

Topping the list of freshmen are Marty White (Long Beach Jordan), goalie Jeff Walters (Garden Grove) and Tony Wooten (Huntington Beach).

And returning squad members Glen Lindenstadt, Tom Gentsch, goalie Ken Gallagher and Merrill Riley also figure to see quite a bit of action.

Others on the GWC roster include Chuck Conway (Newport Harbor), Jim Keefe (Huntington Beach), Eric Bauer (Marina, HB), Jeff Bowen (Los Amigos of Fountain Valley), Mike Allen (Edison, HB), Fred Walter, Jeff Smithson and Dan Smith (Garden Grove).

Two transfers—Steve Mitchell (San Diego State) and Mike Sayer (Cal State, Long Beach) will also play for GWC.

Norton Says Ali Won't Fight Him

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Ken Norton continues to wonder whether Muhammad Ali will ever fight him again.

"I'll believe it only when I climb into the ring with him," said the No. 1 challenger from Los Angeles, who beat Ali once and then lost two disputed decisions to the current heavyweight boxing champion.

Norton, 223, first has a date with Jimmy Young on Nov. 5, and the two tuned up with easy victories in nationally televised bouts at Caesar's Palace here Wednesday night.

Norton says Ali wants to avoid him, but the heavyweight champion — who has a title fight on Sept. 29 against Ernie Shavers — has gone on record saying he would put his title at stake against the Norton-Young winner.

Young, a 213-pound Philadelphia, started slowly but picked up speed and boxed his way to a one-sided 10-round verdict over Jody Ballard, 205, of Houston.

Norton started even slower and got tagged a couple of times. But at the end of the fifth round he knocked out No. 10-ranked Lorenzo Zanon, a awkward 207-pounder from Milan, Italy. There were only two seconds left in the stanza when a left hook started Zanon on the way out, so the time goes as 3:08, eight seconds after the round's scheduled end.

Neither Young nor Norton said he was impressed by each

Royals Nab 2; Streak Hits 14

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Dennis Leonard hurled an eight-hitter and Tom Poquette and John Mayberry each drove in two runs, propelling the sizzling Kansas City Royals to a 6-0 victory over the Oakland A's Wednesday night for a sweep of their doubleheader.

The sweep, which included a 5-2 opening-game triumph, stretched the Royals' winning streak to 14 games, a Kansas City club record and the longest in the major leagues this season. Philadelphia had a 13-game winning streak earlier this year.

Leonard, 17-11, struck out three, giving him 208 for the season, a Kansas City record and second best in the American League this year behind California's Nolan Ryan. The loss went to Oakland starter Matt Keough, 0-2, from Corona del Mar.

other's showing, but each made a point of watching the other.

"I hope Norton doesn't think he's going to do the same thing to me," said Young after watching the kayo on television.

Ron Lyle, the 220-pound No. 3 contender from Denver, said he suffered from the flu but barely outpointed little-known Stan Ward, a 236½-pound newcomer from Sacramento, Calif. One judge scored the bout even and the other two had Lyle just one point ahead.

Larry Holmes, the undefeated "Easton Assassin" from Pennsylvania, stopped Fred "Young Sanford" Houpe of Los Angeles for the first time in the latter's career.

The end came after 47 seconds of the seventh round, when both of Houpe's eyes were bruised to mere slits. Holmes, 211, knocked down Houpe, 199, a split-second after the third-round ended. When the referee stopped the fight, the ending went as a technical knockout.

Leroy Jones, the 271-pound gargantuan from Denver, took a unanimous decision from Greg Johnson, 207½, from New York.

Soccer Tiff Set

With three returning starters and a pair of experienced reserves, Southern California College soccer coach Ken Miller is optimistic the Vanguard will have a successful season.

SoCal opens play Saturday at 1, hosting LA Baptist College.

The top returnee for the Vanguard is goalie Gus Rivas, a senior who was selected to the District III NAIA second team last season.

Also back are starters Jim Brown and Ali Tavakoli. Brown was the Vanguard's most valuable player in '76 while Tavakoli earned All-District III second team honors.

Sophomores Tony Choi and Eric Tresfzer will also start for Miller's team.

The top incoming players are freshmen Jeff Campbell and Dan Berg and Fullerton College transfer Pete Robbins.

Right Decisions Is Holst's Forte

Ray Shackleford has had a lot of good quarterbacks in his 11 years as football coach at Golden West College — but his current QB, Bill Holst, is rated the best in the school's history.

"For the offense we're running right now, Bill runs it better than any quarterback we've had. There have been better runners and better passers, but none with his all-round ability," says Shackleford.

And the thing that sets him apart from the others, says the GWC coach, is the fact he makes the right decisions. And decision-making is very important in a veer offense.

"He just seems to make the right decisions on whether to keep the ball or pitch it. He's very quick, but he's not real fast and not very big. But he's quick and strong for his size," says Shackleford.

"And he is a hell of a leader. He's not a screamer, but everyone on the team likes him because he's such a nice kid. The team respects him and they play well behind him," adds the Golden West coach.

Holst, a 5-11, 175-pounder was a backup QB to Jim Andrus last year, but saw enough action to complete 29 of 58 passes for 343 yards and four touchdowns.

And although he only gained 46 yards passing and ran for 40 more against Santa Ana last week, he has the confidence to have a banner year.

"I only played about one half and we ran so well we didn't need to pass against Santa Ana. And after we scored on the first series of the second half (to make the score 38-0), I came out," says Holst.

Lakers Trim List

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers announced Wednesday that they have released guard Bo Lamar.

The Lakers acquired the 6-1 Lamar the day before the 1976-77 season started in trade with Detroit. Lamar, 27, appeared in 71 games for the Lakers, averaging 7.1 points and 2.5 assists.

The release of Lamar brings the number of players reporting to the Lakers' training camp which begins next Monday to 17. Included are eight guards, six forwards and three centers.

"But I'd like to get at least 1,000 yards passing this season," says the former Huntington Beach High standout who will lead GWC against rival Orange Coast Saturday night.

Holst has had little problem adapting to Golden West's veer offense since he was a veer quarterback at Huntington.

"Bill had a super high school coach in Roy Brummett. I really can't take the credit for teaching Bill the veer. Brummett was a very, very good high school coach and he had a solid understanding of the veer," says Shackleford.

As for Holst's future after Golden West, it will depend a great deal on what the Rustlers quarterback does this season.

"Bill is not a very big guy, so it will depend on what kind of year he has. If he has a big year, he should get quite a few scholarship offers. Option football is very prevalent now and there are a lot of quarterbacks skilled in the option, both in junior college and high school.

"So it will depend on how big a year he has."

But if he continues to play the way he has so far, there's little doubt the four-year coaches will be knocking on his door come December.

Costa Mesa Cross Country Loaded

The number is 64 and counting. That's how many dual meets Costa Mesa High's cross country team has won without a loss. The streak reaches back to 1968.

Coach Joe Fisher has guided the team since 1969 and he has yet to taste dual meet defeat. This season his Mustangs are favored to win the CIF 4-A crown, and if they do it will be back-to-back titles. Costa Mesa won the 3-A honors last year.

Only two of Costa Mesa's starting seven runners from last season have graduated and Fisher has an added secret weapon that should make his team unbeatable again.

The weapon is transfer student Mark Charkey, last year's Wyoming state prep cross country champion. He runs 1:56 in the 800 and could probably be the No. 1 cross country runner at almost any school except Costa Mesa.

Returning are last year's No. 1 runner, Joe Young, and two other lettermen who will battle for the No. 2 position, John Gerhardt and Brian Thompson. All three are seniors.

Charkey is currently the No. 4 man, but some jockeying for position is certain to take place as the season progresses. In whatever order they are ranked, the top four are Young, Gerhardt, Thompson and Charkey.

Beyond them, the varsity candidates include senior Chris Tomlin and four juniors—Ted Evans, Brian Overholt, Alan Venable and Fred Lara.

Teams which have the best shot at thwarting Costa Mesa's drive to the CIF crown appear to be Eisenhower High (Rialto) and Palos Verdes High.

Cross Country Outlook

CV Foe Lacks Depth

Corona del Mar

If anyone can beat Costa Mesa High in cross country this season, it's probably Corona del Mar. The Sea Kings are loaded with talent.

Co-captain Dave Hunsaker is currently the No. 1 runner. Last year, before the distance was changed from two miles to three, Hunsaker had a 9:38 to his credit.

Corona del Mar coach Jim Tomlin says the longer distance should help a runner like Hunsaker. "He's matured a lot this summer and should be a great one," Tomlin says.

The other co-captain is Cam Douglass, a 9:48 two-miler who spent his summer running across the United States with last year's co-captain, Jeff Day.

Steve Chase, the No. 1 runner in 1976, also has a 9:48 two-mile under his belt. "Chase is a good solid kid who wants to win," Tomlin says.

Tom Spooner is No. 4 and is trying to come back from an injury that shortened his season in 1976. Other returning lettermen include Ashley Powell, Mitch Fuller, Mark Zaleski, Scott Winget, and Steve Brand.

El Toro

Winning isn't everything for El Toro High cross country coach Mike Waddell.

With just three varsity runners back from a team that went 1-6, Waddell feels it would be foolish to entertain thoughts of a championship campaign. So he had his Chargers set their sights on the next best thing: doing the best they can and improving as the season progresses.

"We're in a very tough league (the South Coast) and though we have a fairly good team, with the teams we have to run against we really don't have a chance," he admitted.

"I shoot just for improvement. I can't tell the kids 'Let's go out and beat Costa Mesa.' But if I see a kid improving from one race to another, that's an achievement. I don't preach winning, I just preach improvement."

Sean Flynn, the No. 4 man on last year's Chargers squad, is one of two seniors on the team. The other two returners are juniors, Bob Ring (No. 6) and Manny Grijalva (No. 7).

Waddell, in his third year as head coach, expects the rest of the varsity squad to be comprised of sophomores Gary Bass and Steve Gibbs, junior Dave Higgins and senior Mike Sachs.

Flynn is a 2:00 half miler while Ring has been clocked in 4:45 for the mile.

San Clemente

One thing new San Clemente High cross country coach John Balak has a lot of is question marks.

"We've got a few kids coming back but I really don't know what they can do," said Balak, who has been on the job for only a month. "A lot is undecided right now."

Balak, who took over when long-time Tritons coach Benner Cummings retired, said he is bringing his runners along slowly, concentrating on distance runs. "We're building a mileage base, trying to increase the amount of time they can run," he said. "Time and mileage have been a factor. It's just a matter of trying to bring them along slowly, getting to know the kids and what they can do."

There are 10 runners back from last year's team but nobody of significance so Balak refrained from signaling out any individuals. All of the runners, like the program, are starting from scratch, he said.

Currently, there are over 30 athletes running for San Clemente and Balak expects to field teams on each of the divisional levels: varsity, junior varsity, frosh-soph and girls. Last year

San Clemente lost all of its varsity dual meets, forfeited every jayvee race and had only moderate success on the frosh-soph and girls' levels.

Dana Hills

With only two varsity runners returning, Dana Hills High cross country coach Tim Butler has high hopes for this year's Dolphins squad.

Sixth place a year ago in the rugged South Coast League and never known as a cross country powerhouse, the Dolphins are counting on seniors Chip Maudezin and Kent Pelt plus four talented juniors to lift them into the first division.

"We hope to be in the top three but with the type of league we're in, it's just going to really be tough," Butler said. "But most of the kids are real dedicated and they're eager to win because we haven't had a winning tradition yet. I think we're ready to move up."

Maudezin, the team captain, was the No. 2 man on the Dolphins squad last year. A 9:47 two-miler, he finished 18th in the league finals. Pelt wound up the season as the No. 7 miler on the team.

The best of the junior quartet appears to be Mike Bruggeman, who was second in the CIF 3-A frosh-soph mile last year in 4:25. Rick Heferson, a 9:57 two-miler, Neal Harris and Don Reynolds are the other varsity hopefuls.

Butler expects over 30 teams to compete in the annual Dana Hills Invitational Sept. 24. The following week, the Dolphins will find out just where they stand in the South Coast League since they kick off league action against defending CIF 3-A champion Costa Mesa on the Mustangs course.

Fountain Valley

Fountain Valley High's Barons will be tough again in cross country with the entire varsity squad intact with the exception of No. 5 and No. 7 from the '76 crew.

Coach Bill Thompson has Brian Appell (9:26 in the two-mile and 4:21 credits in the mile), Kurt Buhler (9:35 two-mile), John Sprietzer (9:55 two-mile) and junior Rick Smoot in the fold.

And, juniors Steve Brown, Valens Hernandez and seniors Dennis Duddy and Gary Thibault are available.

But Thompson says it won't be a breeze in the Sunset League. "It's going to be the same type of fight as 1976," says Thompson. "Edison, Marina, Westminster and Huntington Beach are capable of challenging."

Brown is a 4:30 miler, Hernandez was the leading junior varsity runner in '76 and is running with the top five now, Duddy was No. 4 in '76 and Thibault was No. 3 on the junior varsity ladder.

Marina

Marina High (Huntington Beach) has a new cross country coach, but not much else has changed—the team is still expected to be a title contender and make a strong showing in CIF.

"Under coach Jack Rowan last year Marina took second in the Sunset League and fifth in CIF. Rowan has given way to coach Dave Lockman, a 1971 graduate of Marina, and Lockman predicts another fine season."

"We're losing only a few of our runners from last season and we have a lot of depth," Lockman says. "I don't want to say we're going to win league, but we're not shooting for second."

Senior Carl Anderson and junior Matt Blaty are vying for the No. 1 spot, and another junior is close behind, Luis Garcia. Greg Harris is another returning letterman, and Robert Lebovic will also be among Marina's top runners.

"We have about five or six people vying for the last two spots on the team," Lockman says. "I expect to have the team filled out in a week or two."

Huntington

Huntington Beach High has four runners coming back from a varsity cross country team which took seventh in CIF last season, and coach Paul Wood is looking forward to a stronger program overall this season.

"We're going to be all right, but whether we'll be good enough for the Sunset League remains to be seen," Wood says. "Fountain Valley is tough and Marina (Huntington Beach) looks like it's going to be strong, too."

Currently inserted in the No. 1 position for Huntington Beach is junior Gordon Duff, a 9:40 two-miler as a sophomore.

Mike Gifford, a senior with a 9:36 to his credit, could take the No. 2 spot if he recovers sufficiently from a sprained ankle.

Head coach not selected, information unavailable.

Edison

The Chargers of Edison (Huntington Beach) High cross country coach Gordon Fitzer have four returning starters but it still figures to be an uphill battle in Sunset League warfare.

"Fountain Valley, Westminster, Huntington Beach and Marina all figure to be tough," says Fitzer, who is counting on the return of seniors Mike Slobom, Billy Anderson and John Goldstein, along with junior Mike Lansdon, for the bulk of the Chargers' points. Sophomore Mark Sanders looms as the best prospect among non-returning starters.

Others who could help are seniors John Giltin, Hendrik Kirleis and Bob Smythe.

Injuries cut into Edison in '76 with Slobom and Goldstein hobbled. At UC Irvine the Chargers were at their best with Goldstein (9:43), Lansdon (9:47), Slobom (9:57) and Anderson (10:08) recording their best times (flat surface) in '76.

"At three miles, we'll be happy if we can get a few clockings under 15 minutes," says Fitzer.

Estancia

Estancia (Costa Mesa) High cross country coach Don Beatty figures Foothill (Tustin), Villa Park and Tustin will be the leading contenders for the Century League championship with his Eagles fighting for a berth in the upper half of the league.

Beatty has a quality runner in senior Mike McCaa, the league varsity mile champion (9:50), with seniors Craig Spraker and Kevin McCarthy backing him up.

Others in the fold include seniors Gary Demory and Richard Kupis and juniors Jeff Schott, Rollie Ward and David Poulter.

McCaa, Spraker and McCarthy are returning varsity lettermen and Beatty says the cross country work should be the impetus for bigger and better things for McCaa in track during the spring.

Laguna Beach

University

To say University (Irvine) High's cross country program is in a rebuilding year might be a bit of an understatement.

Not only did head coach Bob Messina lose nine of last year's seniors to graduation, he lost his four best juniors and two best sophomores for reasons varying from injuries to transfers to burn-outs.

Nobody on this year's squad has ever run in a varsity race before and half of the Trojans are sophomores. In addition, Messina says he doesn't have a front runner to compete with the top man on opposing teams in the always tough South Coast League. "A lot of teams will go 1-2 on us and that's going to hurt."

John Schiphorst (10:11) and Tony Powell (10:16.6) have been elected captains for this year. The other varsity candidates are seniors Lee Fredrickson and Rod Boyle, juniors Dale Beesmer, Bob Starich (10:18) and Sam Walling (10:38) and sophs Todd Andrews (10:18), Ralph Sutter and Tony Smith.

"We were third in CIF (3-A) last year and we won it the year before so we have a pretty good tradition," Messina said. "We want to live up to it but it will be pretty hard."

ELSINORE—Depth is a problem for Elsinore High School football coach Randy Haskin this season as he prepares his Tigers for an opening game with first-year Capistrano Valley High Friday night (7:30) here.

Going into the first game of the season, Haskin will have 22 players available for duty.

"We started with quite a few kids," Haskin says. "But a lot of them quit the team, moved or were injured."

"Our starting quarterback broke a finger in our scrimmage and we are going with a player who has never been at the position before."

Elsinore's woes are such that Haskin says: "If we can turn the ball over with our defense, we will kick a field goal on first down if we are close enough."

"Our kicker is Kenny Harcastle and he has a range of 40 yards," Harcastle is a senior.

Two running backs counted on by Haskin are no longer with the team. One moved to Colorado and the other, Kurt Ortiz who was an all-league player last season, is ineligible. Ortiz weighs 215 and was the team's top runner.

David Valle (5-6, 140, jr.) has been moved to quarterback. His coach says he isn't much of a passer but that the team has three good receivers including tight end Doug Hornkohl (5-10, 165). Hornkohl plays monster on defense and was an all-league selection last season.

At the running back positions are Tony Lewis (5-9, 160) and Isaac Greer (5-11, 160).

While Haskin isn't conceding the game to Capo Valley, he does look at it with reality.

"They will definitely overpower us," he says. "We are going to try and play defense and hold them down as much as we can. We will just run off tackle when we have the ball, but the only way we will stay in the game is with our defense."

Elsinore was 1-8 last season, winning from Perris.

Edison Rates Hiked

PUC Approves 7.2% Average Temporary Jump

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Southern California Edison has been granted temporary rate increases averaging 7.2 percent because of additional energy costs due to drought conditions, a State Public Utilities Commission spokeswoman said.

Carol Kretzer said the increases took effect immediately following the commission's approval this week of an application filed by the utility in June, and will remain in force until energy costs are reviewed again late this year.

"NONE OF THE increase will be passed on to residential usage of 300 kilowatt hours or less," Ms. Kretzer said.

Owners of homes using more than 300 kilowatt hours will pay

3.3 percent more on the excess.

A Southern California Edison spokesman said the increase would work out to about 73 cents on an average bill of $21.66 for a residence using 500 kilowatt hours a month.

OTHER INCREASES approved were 8.4 percent for agricultural use, 8.3 percent for commercial use, 10.6 percent for industries and 8.4 percent for public authorities.

Ms. Kretzer said that because of the drought, the utility was unable to purchase hydroelectric power from Northern California, Washington and Oregon this year and was forced to buy higher-priced fuel oil.

In its application for the increases, Edison asked that the new rates take effect Aug. 1.

THE UTILITY HAD expected to realize $39.4 million additional revenue from the increases over the three months ending Nov. 1 but because the commission did not act until this week the additional revenue for the period will be about half that figure, Ms. Kretzer said.

Car Sales Increase

DETROIT (AP) — The pace of domestic cars sales in early September was the highest for the period in 22 years, with the industry reporting a gain of 11 percent from the same period last year.

The four major car makers reported Wednesday that dealers delivered 180,725 cars in the Sept. 1-10 span, compared with 163,052 in the same period a year ago.

FORD MOTOR COMPANY SAID that during the period it sold a record number of cars, 55,945, for a 9.5 percent increase from 1976. The only manufacturer to show a decrease was troubled American Motors Corp., which said its sales fell 28 percent from a year ago to 3,338.

The industry's daily sales rate for the period was 22,591, the best early September since 1955, when a record 23,812 cars a day were sold. The latest rate was second-best for an early September. The daily rate is the industry's yardstick for comparing sales in periods which have a different number of business days.

HOW TO BLOW YOUR NOSE

Slowing Growth Due, Bank's Report Says

The nation won't face a recession in 1978, but economic growth will slow throughout the year and quite sluggish by year-end, according to an economic forecast by Security Pacific Bank.

In releasing some highlights of the quarterly economic report, economist and senior vice president, Dr. Robert T. Parry said the next year's growth pattern will help keep a lid on inflation.

"SLOWER GROWTH IN such key areas as retail sales, inventory management, personal income and employment will prevent inflation from escalating as it did a few years ago," Parry said.

"While the national rate of inflation will average around 6 percent next year, up very slightly from 1977's projected 5.7 percent, it will be well below the double-digit rates of 1974-1975, and should improve steadily throughout 1978," he said.

In turn, consumer price inflation should go down from this year's estimated 6.7 percent to 5.8 percent in 1978.

He said the expected slowdown in consumer prices will stem from only gradual rises in food prices for the consumer and a leveling off in energy price inflation from the sharp increases of recent years.

ON THE OUTLOOK for employment and the nation's jobless rate, the bank's latest forecast says the expected slower economic growth, plus an easing from the recent unsustainable surge in homebuilding, will affect job gains in 1978.

"This slowing of growth, coupled with the constantly growing workforce, will make it more difficult to cut our nation's jobless rate in 1978 much below an estimated 6.7 percent compared with 1977's projected rate of 7.2 percent," Parry said.

Turning to some of the administration's proposals and their potential impact on the economy, the bank forecast says some may face "tough sledding" in Congress, specifically those on energy and reforms of tax, welfare and social security programs. Parry said the administration's energy package probably will be modified extensively as it goes through Congress.

Quiet Meet Reflects Multinational Trend

By JOHN CUNIFF

A two-day conference is scheduled in Chicago later this month on the subject, "Terrorism and the American Corporation." No reporters will be permitted to attend. No registration list will be published.

This, said the sponsors, is in keeping with the best defense against terrorists: "To study them as they are studying you," and to make the company and executives inconspicuous if to do so won't hurt the company's fortunes.

"TERRORISTS RARELY strike at random," the advance literature relates. "They often research corporate targets in depth. They review annual reports and develop carefully constructed plans to exploit existing vulnerabilities."

Signs of the times: This is only one of a multitude of social, political, bureaucratic and other concerns facing today's multinational companies — only one of the issues on which companies such as Probe International depend upon for a living.

Probe is a tiny but influential intelligence concern operated out of Stamford, Conn., by Benjamin Weiner, a former foreign service officer in Southeast Asia, Europe and Washington, D.C., its main client is the multinational corporation.

CONCERNING POLITICAL issues, said Weiner, multinationals might be land-based but really "they are out at sea." They operate on assumptions and half-truths; they do not understand their countries. Through ignorance they blunder. This viewpoint is supported to some degree by a Conference Board study released this week showing American multinationals and their executives score poorly when tested on their knowledge of the countries in which they work.

The horror of it all, as Weiner views it, is that these misunderstandings often invite terrorism.

AN AMERICAN multinational in Ireland that never appreciated the depth of the religious conflict there found, belatedly, it had employed only Protestants in supervisory positions, and Catholics as underlings.

American companies operate in Canada without an understanding of the Quebec Separatist movement when, as Probe and some of its outside experts believe, the Separatists are gaining and civil war cannot be ruled out.

For multinationals, problems are multitudinous. Earlier conferences dealt with opportunities and difficulties in the Middle East, bribery and corruption, boycott and antiboycott, Eurocommunism and prospects in Vietnam (immediately: nil; long range: modest).

IN ALMOST ALL situations, the prospect for terrorism or disruption is inherent. And since the corporations know little about dealing with the problems, Probe has succeeded with its "trouble oriented meetings," once believed to be an anathema.

Its pre-emptive attack against terrorism begins with the thesis that there is nothing you can buy to protect yourself. There are no gadgets or guns or cages that can provide a seal of security. This being so, the best protection is said to be a low profile.

"DON'T MAKE A public personality of yourself if it doesn't advance your company," says Weiner. Newspaper ads featuring the chief executive are foolish from his point of view.

But the details we won't hear about, because terrorism is best combated by withholding information from potential terrorists, and in today's society, potential terrorists may not stand out. The rostrum of speakers does, however, give some hint of the issues.

J. Bowyer Bell, of the Institute of War and Peace Studies, Columbia University, is author of the forthcoming book, "The Democratic Response to Terrorism."

L. DEAN BROWN, president of the Middle East Institute, is former deputy undersecretary of state and was the President's special representative to Lebanon.

Miles Copeland was a senior official of the Central Intelligence Agency. Lt. Gen. Benjamin Davis, Jr. developed the U.S. antihijacking program. James Ingram is with the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

You get the idea. They're not the kind of men of whom you ask "how's business?" They've got other things on their minds.

Run Up Debts

By MILTON MOSKOWITZ

The key to successful selling is to make it easy for the customer to buy. Thanks to the credit card, banks have grasped that key. And as they turn it, they are well on their way to opening the door to bankruptcy—for us.

The messages banks direct at us, in their ads and other published materials, make it appear as if they are in the public service business. We're almost expected to respond "Thank you."

IN FACT, OF COURSE, banks are as much in business as an apparel company or food processor. They too have a product to sell. They, too, hope to sell that product at a profit.

The product banks have to sell is money. They buy it from you and me and others at one rate—say, in the form of savings accounts, the quarterly interest you receive being the price you're getting for your money. And then they loan it out at a higher interest rate.

The bulge between what they pay for their money and what they get for loaning it represents their profit margin.

Money Tree

Before the advent of the credit card, if you wanted to borrow money from a bank, you had to fill out a long application form. It was a cumbersome affair, and bankers were never famous for making the small borrower feel comfortable.

Today bankers have made it easy for us to become instant borrowers. Just go to a store or hotel or car rental agency or airline ticket counter, flash your card and— presto—you have the product or service you desire.

IF YOU PAY THE MONTHLY BILLING in full right away, it doesn't cost anything extra. But in practice two out of three cardholders cannot—or do not—pay in full. And what we don't pay immediately becomes a loan—at a 18 percent annual interest.

At first the bank credit card business proceeded along two tracks. There was one group that issued BankAmericard while another group issued MasterCard. Now, though, the business has taken a wild turn. Banks that issued BankAmericards (this name is being changed to Visa) can issue MasterCard cards. And MasterCard banks are free to issue Visa cards.

As a result, banks are hustling to get their cards into your hands. The nation's largest, Bank of America, has some 4.5 million Visa cardholders in California. On Feb. 13 it began issuing MasterCard cards as well. It has already issued 800,000 MasterCard cards.

MORE THAN 65 MILLION BANK credit cards are already in the possession of American consumers. The present drive by the banks to sign up cardholders can expand that total by two or three times. It's now easy for you to get your hands on two, three, four cards.

The banks don't care if you don't pay off the balances. They're quite willing to accept a minimum payment. The smaller the payment, the bigger the interest on the outstanding balance.

In their zeal to sell credit, the bankers will make deals of us all.

Market Slips Ahead As Report Awaited

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market moved ahead gradually today as traders awaited the Federal Reserve's weekly report on the money supply.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 2.08 points to 860.79.

Gainers held a 4-3 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Trading remained quiet. Big Board volume came to 18.23 million shares.

The market appeared to draw some support from a report by New York's Citibank that asserted that the economy was still showing solid signs of vitality.

But analysts noted that the main subject on investors' minds was the report on the money supply due to be issued by the Federal Reserve late today.

Before the advent of the credit card, if you wanted to borrow money from a bank, you had to fill out a long application form. It was a cumbersome affair, and bankers were never famous for making the small borrower feel comfortable.

Today bankers have made it easy for us to become instant borrowers. Just go to a store or hotel or car rental agency or airline ticket counter, flash your card and — presto — you have the product or service you desire.

IF YOU PAY THE MONTHLY BILLING in full right away, it doesn't cost anything extra. But in practice two out of three cardholders cannot — or do not — pay in full. And what we don't pay immediately becomes a loan — at 18 percent annual interest.

(two tracks. There was one group that issued BankAmericard while another group issued Master Charge. Now, though, the business has taken a wild turn. Banks that issued BankAmericards (this name is being changed to Visa) can issue Master Charge cards. And Master Charge banks are free to issue Visa cards.

MORE THAN 65 MILLION BANK credit cards are already in the possession of American consumers. The present drive by the banks to sign up cardholders can expand that total by two or three times. It's now easy for you

The banks don't care if you don't pay off the balances. They're quite willing to accept a minimum payment. The smaller the payment, the bigger the interest on the outstanding balance.

Market Slips Ahead As Report Awaited

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved ahead gradually today as traders awaited the Federal Reserve's weekly report on the money supply.

Gainers held a 4-3 lead over losers among New York

Trading remained quiet. Big Board volume came to 18.23 million shares.

The market appeared to draw some support from a report by New York's Citibank that asserted that the economy was still showing solid signs of vitality.

But analysts noted that the main subject on investors' minds was the report on the money supply due to be issued by the Federal Reserve at the NYSE close today.

Two New Cop Shows, Redd Foxx in Debuts

By JAY SHARBUTT

LOS ANGELES (AP)

Three new series wobble in tonight's

California Highway Patrol party called "CHIPS" on NBC, Channel 4 at 8, and ABC's "Carter Country" sitcom and Redd Foxx's new comedy, music and old-times hour on Channel 7.

We warn right off the bat that NBC's entry is a stone dog. Intended as action without gunfire, it is show without mind. It stars Larry Wilcox and Erik Estrada as two cheery motorcycle cops.

Wilcox is your basic All-American, awshucks boy. Estrada plays the lady killer,

"Ponch." He has a crooked smile, but straight teeth. Both are dashing young bachelors, Kawasaki Kids, if you will.

IN THEIR premiere hour, they roar about, grin, meet a pretty crash victim and bring a hot-car ring to justice. Ponch also gets to fall in a mess of spilled glue and emit such classic lines as:

"If I ever scope that turkey again, I'm gonna pull him out through his wind wing, seat belt attached."

ABC's "Carter Country" is about a young, New York-trained black cop (Kene Holliday) who is a sergeant on the small-town, once all-white Georgia constabulary of Victor French, who plays the police chief.

Tonight's premiere involves a presidential vis- it: French's fried chicken; a man-hungry, middle-aged secretary;

a low-key redneck in police blue and a mayor who fears only his mother and French.

IF THE show has a memorable line, I forgot it. It's just another

Hollywood attempt at Southern humor, with a few affirmative-action and mild racial gags tossed in to indicate progress.

The Redd Foxx hour on ABC has the only hope of success among tonight's new entries, and that hope is faint unless he relies more on improved skits and less on a friendly, laugh-at-anything studio audience.

He opens with a good bit involving two bogus world leaders, and follows with a passable monologue in which he notes ABC's censors "decided the only thing I could do from my night club act is smoke."

But things bog down with now-obligatory

Anita Bryant jokes; a skit on how a black named Yuma, Ariz., a massage parlor routine, and a scene from "The Wiz" we saw on H. Cosell's variety show two years ago.

STILL, THREE good moments are worth your time — a too-brief visit from Iron Jaw Wilson, an old Foxx pal; a surprisingly good reading of "Easy to Love" by Foxx, and a largely silent routine about inventors.

The last has Foxx and Byron Paul, executive producer of last year's Dick Van Dyke show on NBC, as inventors of identical and amazing mixing blenders. Had Foxx cut the dialogue

Theater Sets Carnival

One good carnival deserves another, and the Huntington Beach Playhouse is making plans for its second annual event in its continuing campaign to raise money for a permanent theater home.

This year the festivities will be held Sept. 23, 24 and 25 in the Seacrest Village Shopping Center at Main and Yorktown, just across the street from the site of the playhouse's first 12 years, the now-torn-down Barn.

Game booths, kiddie rides and other carnival events will be featured during the three-day event, with Ronald MacDonald on hand to entertain the youngsters on Saturday at 1 p.m.

AN ADDED FEATURE will be a men's leg contest, with a prize offered for the hairiest limb. Entrants should mail their applications to Liz Snyder, 175 N. Feldner #21, Orange 92668.

Volunteers also are needed for strolling entertainers—jugglers, mimes, barber shop or folk singers, clowns, etc. Those who can help out in this capacity can call Miss Snyder at 973-0380 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Hours of the playhouse carnival will be from 3 to midnight on Friday, 10 a.m. to midnight on Saturday and 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Sunday. Proceeds will be used to further the Huntington Beach Playhouse building fund.

COSTA MESA'S LAURA Black may be shooting for the local record for playing the same character in different productions of a play.

Laura already has had two shots at the part of Bobbi in Neil Simon's "Last of the Red Hot Lovers," the most recent one with the Lido Isle Players. And she'll play the role again next weekend when the La Mirada Playhouse opens the comedy for a two-weekend run.

"Lovers" will be staged in the new La Mirada Civic Theater, with reservations being taken at 994-6310. Westminster's Ralph Richmond is playing the leading role.

CALLBOARD — The Laguna Moulton Playhouse will hold readings Sunday at 6 p.m. for the Orange County premiere of Neil Simon's "God's Favorite." Jan Arvan, back for his fourth stint as guest director, will be looking for a cast of five men and three women for the show, which will open Nov. 1 for three weeks.

"Arsenic and Old Lace" will be the fall production of the Lido Isle Players with Randy Keene directing. . . . auditions are scheduled for Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Lido Isle Clubhouse, 701 Via Lido Sound, Newport Beach, for the large, predominantly male cast. . . . the venerable comedy will open Nov. 15 for five consecutive nights.

Orange Coast College will hold tryouts for two fall drama productions next Thursday and Friday. Auditions for "Equus" are slated for the OCC auditorium and readings for "A Streetcar Named Desire" will be held in the Drama Lab. . . . both shows will hold tryouts Thursday at 6 p.m. and Friday at 1 p.m.

Producer Douglas Gets Acting Role

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jane Fonda, Jack Lemmon and Michael Douglas will star in the action-suspense movie "China Syndrome," which Douglas will produce for Columbia Pictures.

It will be Douglas' first production since the Academy Award-winning "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest."

James Bridges will direct and write the screenplay for an original screenplay by T. S. Cook and Michael Gray.

'Worlds' Reunion

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The 25th anniversary of the 1953 H.G. Wells science fiction classic "The War of the Worlds" was celebrated by Paramount Pictures with a reunion and party.

The George Pal film, starring Gene Barry, Ann Robinson and Les Tremayne, is being re-released on a double bill with "When Worlds Collide."

For the party they rolled out the searchlights and red carpet and served champagne and cake to the celebrities and guests.

I TOOK A SHORT CUT THROUGH THE ONIONS—WHERE'S THE LETTUCE?

Carter Compact Cars Cartel Costly

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is giving the kiss of death to its fleet of fuel-hungry, luxury sedans.

Despite the switch to fuel-efficient compacts, the Carter administration — and the taxpayer — will wind up paying more money to lease them.

THOSE SLEEK CHRYSLER sedans still cruising through the White House gates at 14 miles to the gallon have been leased for $600 a year. But Chrysler intends to raise the basic rate to $900 per car even though the White House wants to switch to the economy-sized models.

That's a 50 percent increase in rates, though the smaller cars will save an undetermined amount of gasoline and further burn in the image of a down-home administration that pooh-poohs such trappings of power as fancy autos.

THE NEW LEASING contracts are still being negotiated so what kinds of cars the White House will get isn't definite. And that means no one knows just how much gasoline the move will save.

Cousin Hugh Carter, the presidential assistant in charge of cutting White House expenses, said he wasn't sure why the rates are going up so much.

In the old days, the Ford Motor Co. leased cars to the White House for $1 a year. And businesses and individuals that lease cars today pay anywhere from $115 to $700 a month.

CHRYSLER GETS a lot of publicity out of the deal as their cars flash across the TV screens during nightly newscasts.

"It's part of our exposure program," said a Chrysler spokesman. "It's the same general idea as Ford giving their cars to Starsky and Hutch," a popular television show. "You know, everybody except the bad guys drives a Ford."

After a year in the White House motorpool, a car is sold at auction to dealers, who often pass the word to prospective buyers that this was a car fit for a Carterite.

"WE DON'T FLAUNT it. We don't capitalize on it," said Ike Jarvis, government fleet coordinator for Chrysler, about the White House connection.

"But if someone wants to know where the cars are from, we tell them. I remember selling a car that Mrs. Nixon rode in once, and that seemed to mean a lot to the buyer."

Runaway Bus

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 46-year-old woman was killed when struck by a runaway bus in an Rapid Transit District bus yard, a police spokesman said. Maria Delores Fernandez, an RTD employee, was in the yard in central Los Angeles Wednesday when the incident occurred.

Letter Writing Loses to the Telephone

By JUDITH OLSON
Of The Daily Pilot Staff

How long has it been since you've gotten a newsy, folksy letter from someone back home? If you're an average American, the chances are it has been a long while. People are writing fewer and fewer personal letters each year. The main culprit, according to postal authorities and psychologists, is the telephone. "People are lazy," said Dr. Kenneth Fineman, a Huntington Beach psychiatrist. "They are getting lazier in terms of everything, from walking to the store to writing letters. If people can afford to telephone, they will." Even those who can't afford the long-distance charges will not hesitate to dial a friend or relative, Dr. Fineman added. He said he and his colleagues have all had patients who have racked up enormous bills without seeming able to control their habit.

"THESE CALLS are not important, either," Dr. Fineman added. "They're not about life-threatening matters."

He suggested that because writing skills aren't stressed much in school anymore, reading and writing have almost become a skill of the elite.

"People tend to jump on schools a lot but you can't believe how many people come out of high school without knowing how to write a good letter."

Some people are "totally unaware" of their lack of writing skills, the psychiatrist said, while others "have a gut feeling" that they aren't very good and consequently avoid writing letters, fearing that they will "make fools" of themselves.

A poll of Orange Coast residents found only a few people who enjoy writing letters.

Dolores Blanco, a Newport Beach resident, said she likes to write because she "talks" to her friends and relatives through letters. She writes two to three a week, two to four pages each, and gets letters in return.

ONE WOMAN reported that she writes eight to nine letters each week, two to three pages each, to various relatives and friends. "I like to write," she explained. "But my friends don't like to write back."

She admitted she sends many more letters than she gets, but she didn't seem to feel cheated. Why don't her friends write more often? "I guess it's laziness," she said.

Judging from responses, writing letters today is a woman's art. Most men stated bluntly that they don't like to write and won't do it.

"We usually talk on the phone," one man said. "My wife writes but not very often."

Dr. Fineman said that this sex difference is a "culturally reinforced thing."

"INTERPERSONAL communication has been given a non-masculine overtone. Men don't want to get involved. It's difficult to sit down and write a meaningful letter without expressing yourself," he added, "and men find that it's safer to back off."

"It would be interesting to see letter writing (See LETTERS, Page C2)

The Store Minder

By MARCIA FORSBERG
Of The Daily Pilot Staff

She's well-groomed, with a short, neat coiffure, and she's fashionably clad in a flowered skirt and stunning black blouse. She's minding the store in South Coast Plaza.

Karen Ohringer, at 31, is the youngest manager in the I. Magnin chain. She tends to all the details of operating the 23rd store, which opened here in August.

Mrs. Ohringer is one of many women managers employed by Magnin's, and she says that as she worked her way up she never once encountered discrimination because of her sex or her youth.

Sometimes, though, when she's introduced in public or to a customer as the store's manager, she senses vibes that say, "A little thing like you can't possibly do all this."

But the truth is, she can and she does. "I almost think that sometimes people put too much effort into worrying about getting ahead. To me, that's a negative attitude."

Her rise to the top began with a liberal arts education at Westminster College in Pennsylvania, where she majored in French and minored in business.

IN HER SENIOR year, Gimbel's department store did campus recruiting and hired her as an executive trainee. "At that time, they were very excited about having young people in the store, so I got three or four promotions rather quickly."

The man she was dating (now he's her husband) came to California and she followed. "It was the first time in my life that I had to read a want ad," she recalled.

She applied for a position as assistant buyer in I. Magnin's Beverly Hills store and "started out selling—that's their philosophy."

Mrs. Ohringer worked her way up to an assistant buyer, then department manager, then chain assistant buyer in American and European sportswear. She was promoted to store manager in Pasadena, and then to South Coast Plaza this summer.

"We started hiring our staff July 1." Of the 150 employees, Mrs. Ohringer had a hand in interviewing and screening most of them.

In an attempt to remain organized, she consults a detailed calendar book each morning so she can plan her day.

"Then I go through the store, checking areas and department managers. There are 10 million things to do in between, so it can take three or four hours," she said.

AFTER LUNCH, she's back on the floor "to see how the staff is servicing the customers" and to straighten displays. She works closely with the display department "to make sure the 83 mannequins tell a great fashion story."

Mrs. Ohringer doesn't do any actual buying of the store's merchandise, but she does "pass on to buyers what we feel the customers in our location want" as well as local trends.

The chain conducts fashion seminars at the beginning of each season which Mrs. Ohringer attends to keep up with the industry.

"Fashion is something you kind of feel. When you spend time in a store you pick it up. It's a sensitivity."

"You have to love the pace of the fashion business—and it's a fast pace—and if you love clothes and pure fabrics and appreciate what a designer has created, then you can commit yourself to the time it takes to be a merchant."

"It gets in your blood," says the Tustin resident who doesn't mind giving up a leisurely weekend to devote hours to her job.

"The busier I am, the more I accomplish."

Dorothy Jean, lupus victim, has helped set up an area chapter for those with the disease.

A Little-Known Disease

By CHERYL ROMO
Of The Daily Pilot Staff

Dorothy Jean, 40, was diagnosed as having lupus ten years ago. At the time, she says, she was given "only a year to live."

Through medical treatment and by following a sharply regimented lifestyle, she has been able to live an almost normal life.

Before proper diagnosis, she says with a shrug, she was treated for arthritis and "female problems" and was told to "see a psychiatrist for her chronic exhaustion."

Today, lupus is still a little known and often misdiagnosed disease that cripples and maims. Through ignorance and misdiagnosis it often kills its victims.

"Lupus is one of a large family of rheumatoid diseases and has been around for at least 150 years," says James G. Gitlin, M.D., a Huntington Beach specialist in arthritis and rheumatic diseases.

According to the Orange County Lupus Chapter, the disease generally strikes women between the ages of 15 and 35 and is responsible for 5,000 deaths a year in the country. More than 50,000 new cases are diagnosed annually.

The disease is not restricted to women; men and even children also can contract the disease, Dr. Gitlin says.

To stimulate public awareness, the President has declared the week of Sept. 18 to 24 as National Lupus Week.

Mrs. Jean and Stephen Steffins, both of Huntington Beach, have organized a local chapter for lupus sufferers. The group hopes to provide information on the disease through lectures from specialists and to offer support to each other through rap sessions.

According to Dr. Gitlin, lupus was at first "only recognized as a skin disease and then it was found that it could affect the internal organs as well." Today we recognize two forms of lupus, he says: One that affects only the skin called discoid (DLE) and another called systemic (SLE) which may affect the skin and may attack every internal organ.

Dr. Gitlin warns that every patient's symptoms are not the same. While the lungs, joints, kidneys and nervous system may suffer, the most common manifestations are joint pain, anemia, sun sensitivity, high fever, weight loss, chest pain and chronic fatigue.

The disease is frequently misdiagnosed as rheumatoid arthritis, he says. However, "with careful patient history, through physical examination and the proper blood tests, diagnosis today is much simpler," he says.

The cause of the disease is unknown. There are flareups and remissions, he says.

(See LUPUS, Page C2)

The first speaker will be Vincent Price, a personality known to motion picture, television and theater audiences as well as lovers of art and collectors of cook books.

Hugh Sidey, Time Magazine's Washington, D.C. bureau chief and weekly columnist on the presidency, will speak Feb. 27. Sidey is the author of four books, his most recent being "Portrait of a President," a work about Gerald Ford.

The Fighters Vs. the Switchers

Mark my word. The next group of militants to dominate the American scene will be the non-smokers. I've seen it coming for a couple of years now.

The face-off started out civil enough. First, the non-smokers displayed a small sign with, "THANK YOU FOR NOT SMOKING." The smokers retaliated with a polite, but stiff, "YOU'RE WELCOME."

The exchanges have continued to gain momentum and every day in this country a bumper sticker proclaiming, "I QUIT!" crashes into a bumper sticker maintaining, "I DIDN'T."

Airlines have become a battleground for the dissension. The segregation of smokers and non-smokers has divided wives and husbands, executives and clients, and has gotten some illicit weekends off to a shaky start.

Recently, on a guided tour, the sightseeing buses were divided into smoking and non-smoking. One day when a man boarded the non-smoking bus, someone noted he had a pack of cigarettes bulging in his shirt pocket. "He's one of them," cried a non-smoker. "We don't want your kind on this bus," he said. "Take your nicotine breath and your stained index finger back to your own group!" For a minute, I thought the poor man was going to be stoned as he made a hurried exit. "You shouldn't have he said, "but sometimes being cruel is a kindness."

The battle is going to get worse. There are evidences everyday. Little things. Like a Marlboro man rode his horse on the lawn of a non-smoker in Wyoming the other day and made do-do.

A sailor on one of the big ocean liners painted all the lifeboats

SMOKERS ONLY A smoker in New York daily goes around planting smoldering cigarettes on elevators and calling the N.Y. Times.

There is an underground movie being circulated showing that clean air causes bleeding gums.

Rumors have it that small fires are being started by militant smokers, but I don't for a minute buy that. I mean, have you ever known a smoker in your life who has a match on him?

...Letters

cross-culturally to see if men write more in other countries."

While the average person has virtually stopped sending letters, the famous seemingly have not, especially the literary notables.

In 18th Century England, letter writing actually was considered a literary form and was carefully done by such authors as Pope, Johnson and Lord Chesterfield.

Some modern writers, like Virginia Woolf and Sylvia Plath and the late philosopher Anais Nin, wrote so prolifically that their letters fill volume after volume.

Creative people, said Dr. Fineman, who have intelligence and sensitivity, "tend to have a need to communicate at a very basic, creative level."

THEY USUALLY also are aware that their letters will be published someday and they want to leave a representative body behind.

"To actually sit down and write something is a long-lasting way to communicate something to someone," Dr. Fineman said.

The doctor said he himself writes a lot (with the help of a dictating machine) and meets his communication needs through reports.

No one should know better what the letter writing situation is in America than the post office, and evidence there supports the disappearance of letters.

Bill Lang, customer service manager for the Newport Beach Post Office, said he has observed a change in his 25 years with the department.

"Fewer personal letters are going through the mail," he said, "and business mail has picked up."

He estimates that 80 percent of the mail now is business-oriented, while 15 percent is third class. Only five percent is personal communications he said.

"But this isn't published fact. It's just my opinion. I think more people are using the telephone."

From C1

...Lupus

Steffins, 52, suffers from both DLE and SLE. "Look at the scars on my face," he says. "Some people lose their noses or other parts of their flesh. Psychologically, it's devastating."

He is on disability and has been unable to work for more than two years because of chronic fatigue.

"I hope and pray for a cure every day. I'm fortunate in a way — it (lupus) hasn't hit my internal organs severely." Then he points to Mrs. Jean and says, "But this little girl... you wouldn't believe the pain she's been through."

Mrs. Jean has spent three Christmases in a row in the hospital. Because she suffers from extreme photosensitivity she has never been able to take her five children to the beach or on a camping trip.

The first meeting of the Orange Coast Chapter will be at 7 p.m., Tuesday, Sept. 27, at the Del Mar Mobile Estates, 19251 Brookhurst Street, Huntington Beach. For information, contact Mrs. Jean at 957-1234 or 962-1668.

Says Dr. Gitlin: "With proper treatment, the outcome of the disease is much brighter than in the past; especially since the introduction of modern ways for early detection."

"But there are no two lupus patients alike — treatment must be tailored to the individual."

Battle With Grief Renewed

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Six years ago, my only son, a bright, handsome 17-year-old died as the result of someone else's reckless driving. He lived several weeks with severe brain damage and a broken body. My battle with grief has been tremendous.

Last year someone I knew had a young child who was killed in an auto accident. I went to the home to express my sympathy. The woman began to phone me almost immediately after my visit. "Just to talk," then she started to drop in unexpectedly at all hours because I had "been through the same thing and was the only one who understood what she was going through."

I prayed for strength to help her. I felt as if a drowning person had grabbed on to me and was pulling me down to the bottom of the sea with her. Now I feel guilty for resenting the way she has insinuated herself into my life. At the same time I know I must get rid of her or I'll crack up. What should I do?

SINKING: You do not owe the woman emotional support at the expense of your mental health. There is something sick (maybe even punitive) about the way she has glommed on to you.

Be perfectly candid. Tell her you cannot allow your old wounds to be reopened and her presence does just that. Suggest she work through her grief with a professional therapist. Then ring off.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Quite a while ago you printed a letter from a girl whose boyfriend was constantly tickling her. Your reply made reference to the fact that tickling was once a method of torture. A bet is riding on this. Please reprint that letter and settle it. —VITALLY INTERESTED

DIG BACK TWO: I had to dig back two-and-a-half years but here it is:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You have printed several letters about relatives who tickle children "All in fun." May I comment?

As a student of Oriental history and Far Eastern culture, I can tell you that tickling was a form of torture several centuries back. Any pediatrician will verify the fact that prolonged tickling can cause hysterics and even convulsions. The expression "ticked to death" is more than just a phrase. —VALLEJO, CAL.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a few words for that Waitress in South Dakota who chastised women for being "stingy tippers." She said she would rather wait on men any day. I have had to endure many waitresses who ignored my presence, except to slap some food in front of me while they are asking me husband if he'd like more water, more coffee, or "Was the food O.K.?"

If waitresses gave women the same attention and courtesy they give men, the tips might be bigger. —IRATE IN OKLAHOMA

DEAR OKLA: I received dozens of letters from women who wrote to express the same sentiments. The volume of mail and the intensity of their wrath convinced me that there's something to it. Here's got to be a lesson in there someplace.

CONFIDENTIAL To Afraid To Leave The House For Fear Of Panic: Get Dr. Claire Weekes latest book. (She authored "Peace From Nervous Suffering"). It's "Agoraphobia" published by Hawthorne, $6.95. This remarkable woman has helped so many people. I recommend her books highly.

It's not always easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Acquaint yourself with the guidelines. Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Love or Sex and How to Tell the Difference." For a copy, mail 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

HAIR BEAT

HAIR CONDITIONERS

ANSWER: Are hair conditioners really necessary?

Mrs. T. L. Npr, Bk.

ANSWER: Yes, hair conditioners are necessary if you want to keep your hair looking like hair, and in some cases, to keep it on your head, period. Unless you can replace it with with.

Question: Are there some conditioners better than others?

Mrs. W. T., Newport

ANSWER: Yes, just like there are some husbands better than others. Some conditioners are lightweight, merely coat the hair and are washed out the following shampoo. Others are like a good man, no amount of shampoo will get it out of your hair completely.

The Marengo Experience

You are pampered from the moment you walk in the door at institute Marengo. The abundance of free hanging plants, wood beams and natural lighting in the three story institute make it both relaxing and unique.

After a few minutes wait while given time to adapt to this plush environment, I was ushered to see Mr. Marengo in his office where four beauty makers looked me over, analysed my hair, skin, and after they consulted for a few minutes, they came with what Mr. Marengo stated a "sophisticated-sensual" look.

My first step was a quiet facial room, an atmosphere so relaxing, you would only find asleep. My skin was thoroughly cleaned, taken upstairs, refreshed, relaxed and the cleanest face in town.

After an intense analysis that would put a surgeon to shame, my hair stylist decided on the best look for my face and lifestyle. This was followed by shampoo's, conditioning, cutting, shaping, styling and blow drying.

Back down to the first floor again for my first turn with Marlens, one of the makeup artists. Marlens spent close to one hour applying and explaining what she was doing. The makeup lesson was most enlightening and the result was a dewy, glowing look, glamorous yet casual.

THE FAMILY CIRCUS By Bill Keane

"Hi, Mommy! I didn't want to bother you."

Level of Noise Rated by EPA

WASHINGTON (AP) — Is your vacuum cleaner deafening? Does your hair dryer leave your ears ringing? Tell the government about it.

The Environmental Protection Agency is seeking comments on its plan for providing noise labels on appliances and wants to hear what bothers you.

THE DEADLINE FOR SENDING IN comments is Tuesday and the address is Director, Standards and Regulations Division, Office of Noise Abatement and Control (AW-471), Environmental Protection Agency, Washington, D.C., 20460. Docket number 77-5.

The EPA is proposing a labeling system for all sorts of appliances to tell how much noise the items make when in use so consumers can compare products before buying.

Products expected to be among the first in the system include vacuum cleaners, air conditioners, shop tools, dishwashers and powered lawn and garden equipment.

CONSUMER

AMONG THE MATTERS UNDER consideration are whether to use a numbering system, or letters or symbols on the labels, and which products should get top priority in noise labeling.

Products which reduce noise also will be labeled, according to how efficient they are, and the first item to be included is ear protectors. These will be rated from zero to 31 according to effectiveness.

"If consumers make it plain they want quieter products, the marketplace will in all likelihood respond," said EPA Administrator Douglas M. Costle.

Arthritis Affects Entire Lifestyle

By WILLIAM HODGE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

While almost everyone suffers from some form of arthritis — an inflammation of the joints — few people realize the disease can abruptly shatter someone's entire lifestyle.

"The cost of medical care alone can devastate someone's financial security," Karen Schmid, arthritis Foundation social worker, told a gathering at Saddleback Community Hospital.

"FOR MANY, EVEN IF THEY'RE not totally disabled, their physical condition is changed so that they cannot continue their present job," Miss Schmid said.

And the necessity of changing jobs or quitting work altogether can have deep psychological implications for the arthritis sufferer.

"Some of these people have avoided life's problems through dedication to their jobs and all of a sudden their ability to do this is impaired," Miss Schmid explained.

"The most common emotional reaction to this situation is depression," she said.

That further complicates the problem, according to Miss Schmid, since many people are frightened of psychotherapy.

"PSYCHOTHERAPY CAN be a very painful experience," she said. "But so can the depression itself."

"A psychotherapist will help people explore other ways of coping with their problems and some of these ways of dealing with stress are very productive," she explained.

Miss Schmid cited techniques like self-hypnosis that train people to help themselves relax. She said classes in "progressive relaxation" are held at local community colleges and will teach people self-hypnosis techniques.

RELAXATION IS particularly important to arthritis sufferers because of the disorder's nature.

"When you're uptight and tense, your muscles and joints are going to hurt that much more," Miss Schmid said.

Her job with the Arthritis Foundation in Santa Ana and the UC Irvine Medical Center deals with the social problems related to the disease.

Miss Schmid said the social problems are centered in six areas including finances, vocational changes, housing, management of the household, transportation and isolation.

"Many people discover the house they've been living in for years is becoming less and less practical," she explained. "I can help them find other forms of housing that is better suited to their present physical condition."

SHE ENCOURAGED people to consult a doctor when they begin to experience aches and pains in their joints.

"People can tolerate the little aches and pains so they don't go to a doctor," she said. "That's not good because the disease could be chronic and early treatment could stop it from progressing."

Miss Schmid also cautioned people against exercising in the hopes the pain would go away.

"There are a lot of misconceptions about how exercising can help people with arthritis," she said. "Actually, in some cases, exercising can do more damage than help to the disease."

Along with bus driver Ed Ray, Jennifer Brown, 10, Jodie Hefington, 11, Becky Reynolds, 10, and Cindy Van Hoff, 8, are alleged to have suffered physical or emotional harm in the kidnapping.

Ray and the children were hijacked at gunpoint on their way home from summer school, taken by van 100 miles to a Livermore rock quarry owned by Woods' father and entombed in a buried moving van for 18 hours before escaping.

A TRIAL BEFORE a judge is scheduled Nov. 1 on the five counts, which carry a mandatory sentence of life imprisonment without parole if convicted.

Woods, Schoenfeld and his older brother, James Schoenfeld, have confessed to kidnapping the 26 children and their bus driver in a scheme for ransom. But they have contested the five counts of kidnapping with bodily harm.

A RULING ON the request made by attorneys for Richard Schoenfeld and Fred Woods is expected to be made Monday by Judge Leo Deegan in Alameda Superior Court.

Attorneys for two of the three confessed kidnapers filed motions asking court-ordered psychiatric examinations of four children the state contends suffered physical and emotional harm in the July 15, 1976 abduction.

'Battered' Bill Signed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Legislation to protect battered spouses from their mates has won the signature of Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

Called "the battered wives bill" by some, AB 1019 by Assemblyman Vic Fazio (D-Sacramento) gives a spouse the right to obtain a temporary restraining order without first filing for divorce or separation.

It goes into effect Jan. 1, 1978.

Victims' Testing Pushed

OAKLAND (AP) — The defense in the mass Chowchilla kidnapping case has asked that four victims of the hijacking be tested by a psychiatrist to determine if they suffered emotional harm in the ordeal, court documents disclose.

Attorneys for two of the three confessed kidnapers filed motions asking court-ordered psychiatric examinations of four children the state contends suffered physical and emotional harm in the July 15, 1976 abduction.

Utah Liquor Laws Stir Controversy

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Drinkers complain that Utah liquor laws — designed under Mormon influence to discourage the consumption of spirits — are harassing and degrading.

But the same laws make it so the weakest cocktail served in Utah is 1.6 ounces, one of the strongest drinks served in any American bistro.

LIQUOR HAS BEEN a point of controversy in Utah since the formation of the Utah Liquor Control Commission in 1935 with the end of Prohibition.

The latest squabble pits restaurant owners against commissioners who propose to interpret the law to mean that a restaurant patron cannot purchase a drink until he is seated and has ordered his meal.

Another recent commission ruling — closing state liquor stores at 7 p.m. — was promptly changed because derelicts began hanging around the fancier hotels, where state liquor sales were allowed until 10 p.m.

LAW ENFORCEMENT officials complain the laws have increased the numbers of drunk drivers because any drink sold in Utah comes from 1.6 and 1.75-ounce minibottles. A normal drink is one ounce.

"We serve the biggest drink in the country — liquor by the drunk," said Michael D. Gallivan, director of the state's tourism development agency.

"Tourists think twice about coming back," he said, because of the confusion and inconvenience they experience as a result of the laws.

IN ALL BUT a select few restaurants, you have to bring your own booze with you in a bag. Then you have to drink it all, because it is illegal to have an open bottle in your car.

At restaurants authorized by the state to sell mini-bottles, you have to wait across the room, buy the mini-bottle, then return to your table to pour the drink yourself. Your waitress could be arrested if she handled the alcohol.

If you decide to purchase a temporary guest membership at one of Utah's 149 private clubs, another proposed regulation would prohibit all but your spouse from accompanying you. And he or she would have to prove it by showing a marriage license.

A UTAH RESIDENT must submit an application, with references, to the governing board of a club to gain membership and wait a minimum of seven days for approval.

You can't buy a glass of wine in Utah. If you want red wine and your date wants white, you must order two bottles of wine.

"The laws are an absolute joke," said James W. Gilson, attorney for Benihana's Japanese restaurant. "It simply isn't hospitable to be made to feel that if you drink liquor you're a substandard citizen."

THE CHURCH OF Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon) successfully rallied opposition to liquor-by-the-drink in a 1968 referendum. Legislators then passed the mini-bottle law.

The church, which bans drinking by members, supports the state monopoly of liquor and opposes any changes that would encourage more liquor consumption, a spokesman said. Former state Sen. Hughes Brockbank says the church supported the mini-bottle bill after it opposed one he sponsored.

The state's latest attempt to stifle alcohol consumption is a printed sign that must be displayed anywhere liquor is sold: "The consumption of alcoholic beverages purchased in this establishment may be hazardous to your health and the safety of others."

BUT BOB HUTCHINS, vice president for food and beverage at Snowbird, a resort with a dozen food concessions, said the signs increased sales because they tell people booze may be purchased in places where they didn't know it was available.

Hutchins said Snowbird, a ski resort during winter months, has difficulty competing with large Colorado and Idaho ski resorts because of the liquor laws.

"We spend a lot of time at the front desk alienating guests" trying to explain how and where alcohol can be purchased, he said.

DENNIS R. KELLEN, acting operations manager of the liquor commission, said all private clubs in Utah must be registered as non-profit organizations.

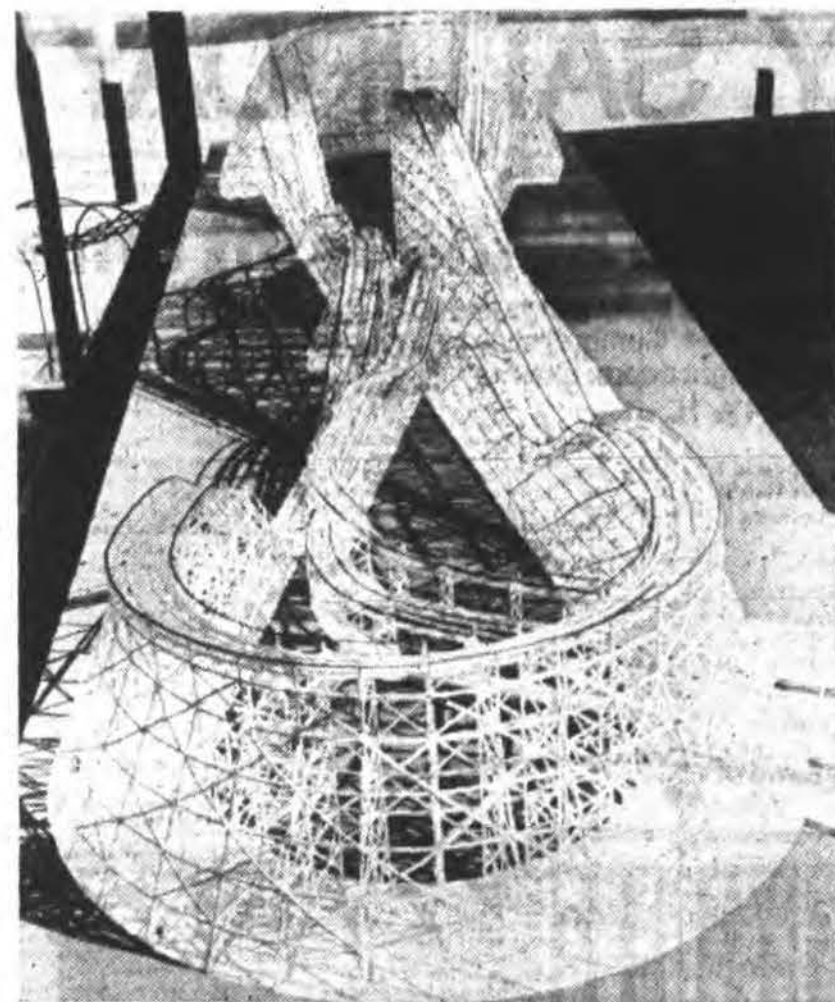

But he said "almost all" get around that ruling by setting up two corporations — one to lease or rent facilities to the other company, which runs the business and is listed as non-profit.

Kellen said commissioners are hiring auditors to monitor leases and transfer of money from one company to another.

ANOTHER REQUIREMENT, that all private clubs maintain lockers for patrons to store liquor in, is archaic, he said. A spot check of local clubs revealed lockers sit unused in back rooms gathering dust. The law refers to all clubs as "locker clubs."

Kellen said the commission, with a full-time staff of 230, will spend $3.8 million this year administering liquor laws. He said the state grossed $36.2 million in liquor sales last year.

Utah ranks lowest in its annual per-capita consumption of alcohol among the 18 states where alcohol is controlled. Utahns and visitors drank 97 gallons of alcohol per capita last year as compared to No. 1 New Hampshire where drinkers consumed 5.45 gallons per person, Kellen said.

The Colossus, billed as the longest, highest and fastest roller coaster in the world, will open next spring at Magic Mountain. It's a two-track racing coaster shooting its cars over 60 miles an hour with two 100-foot drops.

Council May Hike LB Parking Fines

Laguna Beach motorists who fail to plunk dimes into city parking meters in time to avoid a ticket, might be paying larger fines for their tardiness in the future.

Councilmen are mulling an increase from the current $3 fine to $5 for parking violations on city streets.

BUT FIRST, they wanted to wait and see what the Parking, Transportation and Circulation Committee's recommendation on the fine fee hike would be.

Councilman John McDowell said he would also like time for citizen comments on the proposed increase before voting on the resolution.

Although they will wait until the Sept. 21 meeting to vote on the resolution, it is apparent what the outcome will be, based on council comments last week.

LAGUNA'S BUILT-IN parking woes were a major factor in the proposal for fine increases, and Vice Mayor Sally Bellerue said the current $3 rate is too low.

"It's very clear to me that $3 is what people expect to pay when they come down to the beach and park."

She said many people accept the fine as a parking fee.

"BUT A $5 FINE might make them think twice about parking illegally," she said, adding that raising the fine will have an effect on those motorists.

Other council members said they had no sympathy for motorists who block fire access routes in the city, or those who block private driveways and business entrances.

Alternate School

Director Selected For Dana Program

Gerald Mays has been named director of the Capistrano Unified School District's Crossroads program, an alternative school located on the Dana Hills High School campus.

Mays, 41, has worked for the Torrance Unified School District since 1959. His most recent position there was counselor.

Gerald Mays has been named director of the Capistrano Unified School District's Crossroads program, an alternative school located on the Dana Hills High School campus.

Mays, 41, has worked for the Torrance Unified School District since 1959. His most recent position there was counselor.

CAPISTRANO UNIFIED trustees approved a new job description this week for the Crossroads administrator, who is to be called an "alternative school resource specialist."

His annual salary will be $22,600.

MAYS SUCCEEDS John Porter, who resigned as Crossroads director to accept an administrative position in a San Bernardino County School district.

Porter came to the Capistrano school district in 1972 as a special education teacher and spent three years convincing the district to establish an alternative high school program, which it did in September, 1975.

Health Course Scheduled at Laguna High

A 12-session course exploring the options available to the health consumer is being offered this fall at Laguna Beach High School.

Alternatives in nutrition, medicine and approaches to exercise will be outlined by instructor Mira Hoenig, who has taught nutrition in Los Angeles schools before moving to South Laguna.

Classes meet at 7 p.m. in room 32 at the high school beginning Sept. 21.

A one-time fee of $5 allows students to take as many adult education classes as they wish.

For more information, call Mrs. Hoenig at 499-4283 or the Laguna Beach Unified School District at 494-8546.

Three-man Basketball Loop Forming

The Saddleback Valley Unified School District's Recreation Department now is accepting applications for three-man basketball leagues.

League games will be played on Sundays from 5 to 9 p.m., beginning Oct. 2, in El Toro High School. For competition, leagues will be classified according to age and height.

A $20 entry fee is required. However, $10 will be returned if no forfeits occur.

Entry forms may be obtained from the department office at 25631 Diseno Dr., Mission Viejo, or by calling 768-0981 or 586-1234.

Street Work Foes to Meet

The Dana-Niguel Defense League, a group of homeowners opposed to the extension and widening of Golden Lantern and Chaparral Avenue to Moulton Parkway, are holding a fund raising art auction Sept. 30.

Money raised from the auction will support action against the Orange County supervisors, who plan to widen Chaparral from four to six lanes.

League spokesman Jim Richardson said the auction will be held at 6:30 p.m. at the San Clemente Clubhouse, 100 N. Calle Seville. For more information, call Richardson at 495-5395.

CdM Club Playing For High Steaks

The Corona del Mar High School Touchdown Club will host a steak fry Saturday to raise funds to support the school's athletic teams.

The dinner begins at 5 p.m. in the school's quad. Tickets cost $5 each. Entertainment will include performances by the drill team, songleaders and band.

Newport Tract

Street Opened Up At Condominium

Angrily declaring they would not be used by anybody, Newport Beach city councilmen have killed a plan they said would have brought $10,000 to the Newport Terrace Condominium Homeowners Association.

Instead, councilmen took advantage of a three-year-old offer and made one of the association's private streets a public street in a decision that ultimately will benefit the building firm of Welton and Company.

THE BUILDER AND homeowners have been at odds the past year over use of Sundance Drive as an access to a 12-home development Welton wants to build adjacent to the Newport Terrace condominiums overlooking the Santa Ana River.

Newport Terrace is built on the site of the old city dump at an extension of Costa Mesa's 19th Street.

Welton's land-locked parcel actually lies in Costa Mesa.

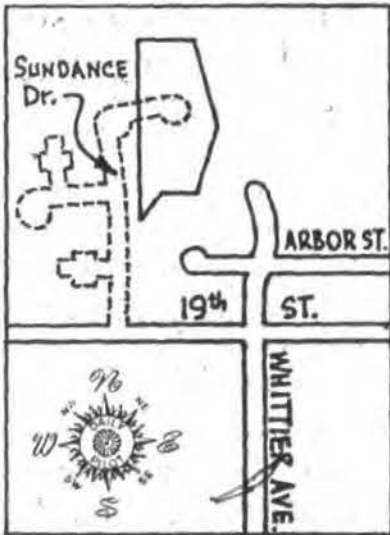

A representative of the builder told councilmen the only financially feasible access is from Sundance.

THREE YEARS AGO when the condominiums were built, the builder, Landmark Homes, offered to dedicate all the streets to the city, but city officials declined to act on the offer at that time.

Last year, Welton came to the city asking that Sundance be made a public street to provide access to his project. Homeowners objected, asking that the council vacate the offer made by Landmark.

Councilmen declined to do either but asked the two sides to negotiate a settlement.

AFTER A YEAR OF negotiating, Welton offered to widen the 32-foot wide street to 40 feet for a distance of 150 feet, from where the Welton project would begin.

The developer also was going to pay homeowners $10,000 and have residents of the 12 homes become dues-paying members of the Newport Terrace homeowners association.

But homeowners rejected that offer and the rejection clearly angered councilmen.

Councilman Don McInnis noted that in 1976 homeowners complained about potential safety problems if Sundance were to become a public street.

"THAT PROBLEM SEEMS to have been answered," he said of the company's offer to widen the street. "But it has now become a matter of dollars."

"I get the impression that if Welton had been willing to pony up $50,000, everything would be just fine."

Mean Thieves

Victim's House Looted

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Ellen Mayo says thieves broke into her home while she was taking her 69-year-old husband to a hospital with an emphysema attack.

The Mayo returned an hour later to find $1,257 in cash gone along with jewelry.

"They even drank some of our fruit juices in the refrigerator, took a half-dozen eggs, carrots and a package of chocolate drink," Mrs. Mayo complained Wednesday.

HB Wins Delay in Bolsa Discussions

By GARY GRANVILLE

At the city's request, the Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFC) agreed Wednesday to put off consideration of a Huntington Beach bid to annex 327 acres of Bolsa Chica bluff land until early next March.

Initially, Huntington Beach sought to annex the entire 1,603-acre Bolsa Chica area southeast of Warner Avenue and inland from Pacific Coast Highway.

But the city council decided instead to reduce the proposed annexation to the 327 acres between Warner Avenue and the Wintersburg Flood Control Channel. That decision was based on a state move to buy 927 Bolsa Chica wetlands acres. That move was engineered by Assemblyman Dennis Mangers (D-Huntington Beach).

Earlier, the Orange County Board of Supervisors agreed to a county purchase of another 314 Bolsa Chica acres to serve as a link between a city park and the Bolsa Chica marsh lowlands.

As a result of the state and county planned acquisitions, the city's interest in annexation dwindled to the 327 acres scheduled for discussion by LAFC Wednesday.

However, an LAFC staff report said Huntington Beach needed time to revise the map and legal description of the affected acreage.

Furthermore, the staff report continued, the city wants to prepare a revised environmental impact report covering only the 327 acres included in the revised annexation overture.

"The lengthy period for the continuance (until March 8) is requested in order to permit enough time to prepare and receive comments on a new environmental impact report for the reduced project," city administrator Floyd Belsito said in a letter to the LAFC commissioners.

Without comment the commissioners agreed to the requested delay.

Military Flight

Crash Kills 20 on Plane

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — An Air Force plane slammed into a mountainside on a high security Army base, killing all 20 people aboard when it exploded on impact a half mile from a bunker containing fissionable material, authorities said.

The four-engine plane crashed on Manzano Base, where nuclear weapons are stored, three minutes after its takeoff from Kirtland Air Force Base at 11:45 p.m. Wednesday.

Kirtland base operations confirmed there were no survivors, said Walter Sprick of the Federal Aviation Administration. "One big fireball and that was it," a nearby resident said.

Air Force crews using flares and helicopter spotlights recovered at least 15 bodies in a predawn search. Authorities said all those aboard were military personnel.

A spokesman at the plane's base said it was used frequently by high-ranking military personnel and American and foreign dignitaries.

Former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is among those who have used the plane, the spokesman said.

The aircraft, which was scattered over 10 acres after impact, was used as a model for modifications to Air Force One, the president's plane.

An air traffic controller said he tried to warn the pilot the plane was in trouble.

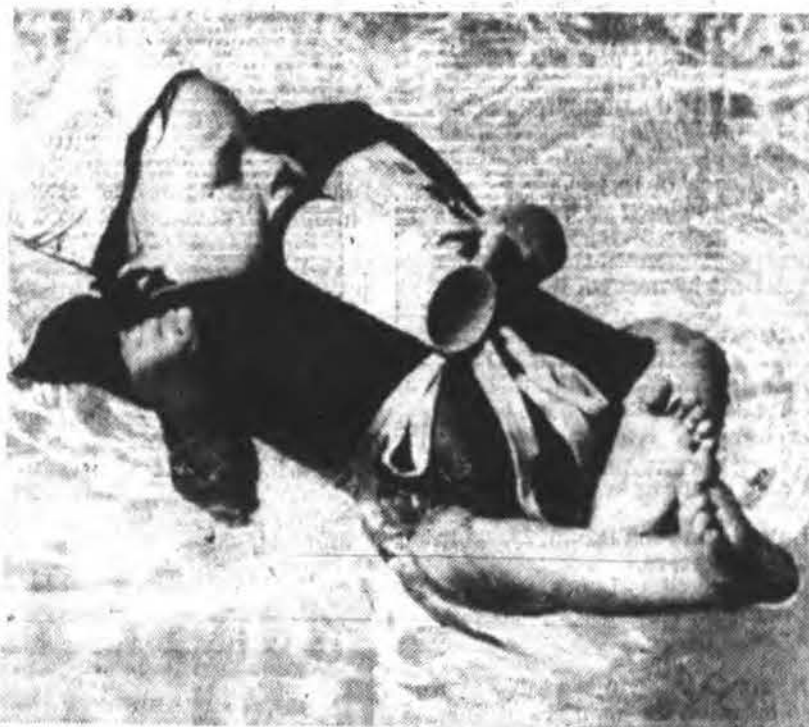

"The first indication we had he was in trouble was when the radar showed he was too close to the mountain and flying too low," said the controller.

"We hit him on the guard frequency and told him to turn right and climb... but he never did," he said.

The jet was a communications aircraft based at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base in Goldsboro, N.C. An Air Force spokesman said it was on a training mission and was on its way to Nellis Air Force Base in Nevada.

The EC135, described as a "modified 707," stopped in Albuquerque to refuel, the spokesman said.

A spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration said the pilot made what was probably a routine attempt to contact departure control just after takeoff. The tower responded, but the pilot didn't return the communication.

Huntington to Air Charter Changes

Proposed changes in the Huntington Beach city charter will get their first public test tonight after nearly a year of discussion and debate.

A 45-year-old Huntington Beach father has been arrested in connection with the shooting of his 16-year-old daughter's boyfriend early today, police reported.

William Kazuo Tomita, of 17091 St. Andrews Lane, was booked into Huntington Beach jail on charges of assault with a deadly weapon, Lt. John Foster said.

Foster said Tomita allegedly shot Brandon Eugene Arakaki, 18, of 6372 Newbury Drive, Huntington Beach, at 7 a.m. at Tomita's home.

Arakaki underwent surgery at Huntington Intercommunity Hospital this morning for removal of a .38-caliber slug from his left leg above the kneecap, officials said.

dents can give their feelings, pro or con, on the first draft of recommended changes will be held at 7:30 p.m. in council chambers.

A second public hearing is scheduled for 9 a.m. Sept. 19, also in council chambers.

The charter, which hasn't been substantially changed since 1966, serves as the constitution for the city and outlines the scope and power of city government.

The nine-member charter revision committee has made a number of recommendations that already have sparked some controversy.

Some of the major recommendations include keeping the position of city attorney elective instead of making it appointive, elimination of the office of city treasurer in favor of an elected city auditor and removal of top officials and department directors from the personnel system.

The recommended changes inspired a letter from treasurer Warren Hall who would see his job eliminated if the recommendations are carried out.

Hall wrote the letter to the citizens of the city, the city charter revision committee, the mayor and city council this week, asking for a close look at

People Asked To Judge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Budget Director Bert Lance, appealing to the American people to be "the jury in this proceeding," told the Senate today that while he may have made mistakes running his Georgia banks he engaged in no wrongdoing and no cover-up.

"I am secure and comfortable knowing that my conscience is clear and that the people's verdict will be a fair and just one," the director of President Carter's Office of Management and Budget told the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee.

Drawing slowly and solemnly,

HOMETOWN RALLIES FOR BERT LANCE, A4

Lance told the two senior members of the committee to their face they have been unfair in their public statements before this, his day in court.

Speaking "more in sorrow than in anger," Lance told the senior Republican, Sen. Charles Percy, that his actions were "puzzling... regrettable."

Percy replied that he questioned the dates on some of Lance's personal checks and whether they were timed to help him obtain a tax deduction.

"It was wrong for me to even raise the possibility," Percy conceded.

Then, one by one, the President's longtime personal friend replied to allegations made in past weeks that his personal and bank dealings, most of them before he joined the Carter government, were marked by irregularities and improprieties. When he finished reading his 1 1/2-hour statement, he got a half minute of hearty applause from spectators in the hearing room.

Lance told the panel and a national television audience that his rights had "been treated in the most irresponsible and destructive manner" and allegations against him have been "erroneous... misrepresented... and exaggerated."

Moreover, he said, "some are completely misunderstood because those making the charge do not have all the facts."

"I did not ask for this fight, but now that I am in it, I am fighting not only for myself but also for our system," Lance declared. "I was a successful businessman in my home state, and I thought I had an important contribution to make by coming into government service."

The budget director has said again and again he will not quit. His demeanor and his words appeared to underscore that determination.

But even as he spoke, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill told reporters that because of Lance's financial problems "the image of the President is going down a little bit."

Seated at a long table covered with green felt and emblazoned with a nameplate — "Mr. Lance" — the budget director told the committee: "The rights that I thought I possessed have gone, one by one, down the drain."

"Were my rights protected?" he asked. "We'll let the American people answer that."

He declined to "contend that I made no mistakes" when he ran the Calhoun First National Bank of Calhoun, Ga., of which he was board chairman, and the National Bank of Georgia, in Atlanta, which he served as president.

But to accept the assertion that I could not even manage a small country bank, one must ignore the objective facts," he told the committee.

Planners Restrict Antenna

By RAYMOND ESTRADA JR.

Despite the protests of amateur and Citizens' Band (CB) radio operators, the Fountain Valley Planning Commission Wednesday night voted 4 to 1 in favor of a proposed 45-foot vertical antenna height limit.

The city council is expected to hold a public hearing within six weeks on the proposed law.

Alternate Commissioner John Night voted against the proposed antenna height law.

"I can't conceive of this ordinance ever being enforced," said Night.

"It's not the authority of the city to regulate personal property like this," he added.

"We are overstepping our boundaries by trying to control esthetics," said Night.

"I think we have overreacted," he added.

No one in the audience Wednesday night spoke in favor of the height restriction.

"If you take away my antenna height, you take away my value to REACT," said Donna Molina, a member of the Santiago Radio Emergency Associated Team (REACT).

Radio operators said the law would greatly limit their broadcasting range.

Federal Communications Commission regulations allow CB radio operators' antennas 60 feet high.

The proposed law allows a single vertical antenna element to extend as high as 45 feet.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — If Richard Pryor's first TV variety show is to appear on television screens in Grand Rapids and three other cities, it will be late at night.

A Wednesday earthquake centered on a fault in Anaheim measured 2.7 on the Richter scale and was strong enough to be felt by residents as far away as Costa Mesa, Cal State Fullerton seismologists said today.

It was the first quake that could be detected without instruments in Orange County since Memorial Day, according to Christopher Buckley, assistant professor of earth sciences.

Buckley said the quake hit at 2:35 p.m. on an unnamed fault five miles south of the campus. The tremor caused no damage and apparently affected an area 15 miles from its point of origin.

HB Man Trapped In Auto

A 34-year-old Huntington Beach man was reported in stable condition today after suffering injuries in a three-car collision Tuesday evening.

Emerson John Ransome Jr. of 403 7th St. was cut from his smashed car by Huntington Beach firemen.

Ransome's compact sedan collided with a van at Edwards Street and Slater Avenue about 6:40 p.m.

Ransome was rushed to Huntington Intercommunity Hospital where he remained today in the intensive care unit.

The van was driven by Eugene Fuentes Prado, 22, Los Alamitos. Prado, a paraplegic, was treated for injuries at Pacifica Hospital and UC Irvine Medical Center, but wasn't hospitalized, authorities said.

Ransome's vehicle struck a third car during the crash. The third car driver and passenger were not seriously injured, said police.

Man Arrested In Newport Break-in Try

A Sunset Beach man, who police allege was prowling through West Newport, was in custody today on a charge of burglary.

Police arrested Richard Michael Feldt, 34, of 16344 Pacific Coast Highway Wednesday after allegedly watching him break into a storage room at 116 41st St.

Feldt is being held in lieu of $10,000 bail.

Officers Joseph Saunders and Dan DiSanto said they were patrolling the Seashore Drive area at about 11 a.m. when they assertedly saw Feldt going door-to-door, trying door knobs.

When he made the alleged break-in, they arrested him.

Ravin, deputy director of the Senior Aides' Employment Program of the National Council of Senior Citizens headquartered in Washington, D.C., will speak at the city's Senior Center.

He is expected to speak to the group gathered at the facility at 17th Street and Orange Avenue about 1:45 p.m.

Treaty Draft Opens Talks?

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan left Israel today with a draft peace treaty which he said Arab foreign ministers probably would reject in New York.

"I don't really think they know the plan, I but I think they will not accept it anyway," Dayan told a news conference at Ben-Gurion International Airport. He said it would be a basis for negotiation, even if not fully accepted by the Arabs.

The Israeli proposals reportedly differ little from terms that previous Israeli governments were prepared to offer the Arabs and that Arab leaders have repeatedly rejected. The Arabs demand that Israel withdraw from all territory it occupied in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

LINING UP TO HEAR BERT LANCE TESTIFY
'The People's Verdict Will Be Fair, Just'

Lance 'Welcomes' Public as His Jury

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bert Lance struck back at his tormentors today, acting as if he considered himself Gulliver beset by Lilliputians.

He let it be known at the outset that his remarks were aimed at the American people, not the senators on the Governmental Affairs Committee.

"I WELCOME THEM AS THE jury in this proceeding," Lance said into the television cameras. "I am secure and comfortable knowing that my conscience is clear and that the people's verdict will be a fair and just one."

The setting was one of those big Senate Office Building hearing rooms that have become so familiar in movie and TV fictionalized accounts as well as in real life. The Senate Watergate hearings spring to mind, although they were in a different chamber.

Lance, the kind of big amiable fellow who looks as if he'd cry if he squashed a bug, came armed for the fight with a 49-page statement to read. And Sen. Abraham Ribicoff (D-Conn.), the chairman of the committee, said he'd get all the time he needed, if it takes a Saturday session.

That alone indicates a serious matter.

LANCE WALKED INTO the hearing room 15 minutes early with his lawyer, Clark Clifford, who was described as urbane as long ago as Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman. Now he's described as white-haired and urbane.

"I don't feel lonely today at all," said Lance as he looked around the crowded room.

He had plenty of support. Wife LaBelle and son David, 22, sat in the front row, right behind the tables for reporters.

"Nervous this morning?" a reporter asked as Lance made his way to center stage.

"No," he said.

HE STOOD COMFORTABLY BEHIND the witness table as a horde of photographers, sandwiched between the senators at their semicircular bench, clicked away. Lance's hands were in his pockets. He looked unruffled.

The senators, meanwhile, looked lonely and ignored.

Ribicoff called the hearing to order five minutes late and intoned that "we don't intend this to be a trial by ordeal."

AND SO IT WENT, LANCE'S first session of what he called his day in court.

One lesson he has learned, Lance told the senators in a Gulliver-to-Lilliputian tone of voice, "is to be mighty careful in the future when I am discussing basic human rights."

Committee Lists Recommendations

The following are some of the major recommendations made by the Huntington Beach Charter Revision Committee.

—Council terms: The committee is recommending a limit of two four-year terms. Anyone elected to fill an unexpired term of two years or longer would be limited to a single additional term.

—Councilmanic districts: The recommendation is against dividing the city into districts.

—Council pay: A pay scale for council members ranging from $400 to $600 per month, depending on population, is recommended. The mayor would receive an additional $100. (Present pay is $175 per month plus $125 for expenses plus reimbursements for actual expenses such as travel.)

—Meetings outside the city: The council would be allowed to hold meetings such as retreats within a 100-mile radius of the city, but no official action could be taken and no executive sessions could be held. In addition, emergency meetings could be called without 24-hour press notice if emergency concerned the public peace, health or safety.

—Elected mayor: The panel recommends against a directly elected mayor, preferring the present method of having the mayor elected by fellow council members.

—City attorney: Committee recommends retaining a directly elected city attorney.

—Treasurer: The elimination of office of city treasurer is advised. An elected city auditor to be a "watchdog" over internal operations of the city would be substituted for the office of Treasurer.

—City clerk: The recommendation is to change the city clerk position from elective to appointive.

—Personnel system: The committee recommends removing city administrator, assistant city administrator, city clerk and other department heads from the personnel system. In addition, the council would have authority to remove from the personnel system departments, employees and officers as desired.

—Legal notices: A recommendation would allow the city to do its advertising in any newspaper circulated in the city and not be restricted to one actually printed here.

—Tax measures: The committee recommends a requirement for five affirmative council votes to approve revenue measures. At present, six votes are required.

proposals.

He said changes in the personnel system could bring an era of patronage and bossism to the city.

"Employees singly or in groups with four council votes to pass an ordinance can be taken out of the personnel system, fired and new people hired at will," he said.

"This is a classic method used to create a controlled city government with controlled city employees," he added.

Half added that the charter changes don't make sense.

"I wonder if the committee really ever looked at the end effect of its work and understands what it is proposing," he said.

Charter Revision Committee Chairman Harold Bauman said earlier that recommendations may be modified in response to the public's wishes.

A final draft of proposed charter revisions is scheduled to go to the city council before the end of the year.

Residents are expected to vote on the changes either in April or June after formal action by the council.

Radioactive Waste 'Threatens Power'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite decades of study, the United States still has not figured out how to get rid of dangerously radioactive waste from power plants and military-weapons production, the General Accounting Office reports.

Unless this problem is solved, the GAO says, the accumulation of nuclear wastes with hazardous radiation that lasts up to half a million years "threatens the future of nuclear power in the United States."

Robert W. Fri, acting administrator of the Energy Research and Development Administration, defended the waste-disposal program before a House government operations subcommittee.

He said that many of the GAO's observations are based on 1976 data and outdated. He said that his agency, which will be absorbed by the Department of Energy on Oct. 1 — is doing the best it can to deal with the problems.

Fri said that the Carter administration will shortly announce plans to deal with spent fuel at commercial reactors, a program under which the government would reportedly offer to take these wastes off the hands of commercial plants for a fee.

The Energy Research and Development Administration is planning to develop six locations for long-term or permanent burial of radioactive wastes by 1985. But the report by the investigative arm of Congress says that "ERDA may have promised more than it can deliver."

"There are, we believe, formidable social, geological and regulatory problems which must be solved," it continues.

"Foremost among them is opposition of the public and some political leaders."

"ERDA may not be successful in gaining their acceptance unless it can convince people that it has a sound waste-management program and that geological disposal risks to man's environment are acceptably low," a difficult task, the report said.

"Some radioactive wastes will remain hazardous for hundreds of thousands of years," it said, meaning they must be permanently isolated from human contact and environmental influence.

Launch Failure

Inquiry Panel Sets HB Rocket Study

By ARTHUR R. VINSEL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A special study panel of inquiry was appointed today by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) to study why a rocket built in Huntington Beach failed in a Tuesday night launch from Cape Canaveral's Kennedy Space Center. (See picture, Page C5.)

The giant rocket hefting a European Space Agency (ESA) communications satellite into the heavens on an experimental mission was blown to bits like a $40 million firecracker.

Divers began to hunt wreckage at daybreak Wednesday along the sea floor in 65-foot depths of the Atlantic Ocean off the cape to reassemble in search of clues to the failure.

A NASA spokesman in Washington, D.C. said today it appears the rocket built by McDonnell Douglas Astronautics Company began to break up in flight.

Flight records of the first Delta since 1969, indicate the craft began to tumble and had to be destroyed aloft by remote control to prevent an accident on the ground — possibly involving inhabited areas.

A spokesman for the Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md., said Wednesday that onboard TV cameras monitoring the ship showed fire breaking out at the top of one engine just beforehand.

The onboard blaze and sudden erratic trajectory convinced a U.S. Air Force range safety officer it was time to press the red button and blow the missile to bits.

Major parts of the Delta plunged, fiery and hissing, into the sea from about five miles in the sky in a dazzling aerial display visible for miles over the southeastern United States.

Other portions fluttered lightly to earth on Cape Canaveral's tip.

George B. Harding, of the Marshall Space Center in Alabama, will head the investigative team, NASA officials said today.

The deliberate detonation and subsequent crash into the sea destroyed a $25 million ESA orbital test satellite built in a combined effort by 10 European nations.

Parents Win: Venado Kids Get Buses

Reacting to the pleas of two dozen angry parents, Irvine Unified School District trustees ordered Wednesday that school buses be provided for Venado Middle School students from the College Park and Colony areas.

Parents claimed it is unsafe for the 11 to 13-year-old students to cross railroad tracks and Culver Drive to get to school.

Busing was provided last year but was canceled this year because the residential areas are less than two miles from the school. By board policy, two miles has been the cutoff point for eligibility for busing.

Stan Corey, superintendent of schools, and Gene Hartline, business administrator, argued that junior high school children ought to be able to, in Corey's words, "learn some of the survival skills of the 20th Century — deciding when to cross the street and how to watch for a train."

The administrators contended the district would be required to bus students from other areas of lesser distances from school, if the board gave in to the College Park and Colony cases.

But Trustee Frank Hurd said he doesn't share Corey's opinion that seventh and eighth grade children should have the responsibilities of adults.

"Joy and enthusiasm," he said, might find them thinking of things other than safety while on the way to school.

"The fact of the matter is," Hurd said, "there have been three kids killed on Culver already (although not necessarily on their way to school)."

On Hurd's motion, the board unanimously ordered that district staff prepare a report on costs and alternatives for providing permanent busing for the College Park and Colony students of Venado Middle School.

Beginning Monday, the board decreed, interim busing will begin until a further decision is made. The staff report is due Sept. 28.

Hartline had told the board that full busing of the approximately 170 extra students to Venado would require three buses at a cost of $53,000 per year.

Posting crossing guards at the railroad crossing at Culver Drive, and at two other Culver Drive intersections—at Acacia Street and Deerfield Avenue, would cost $9,300 a year, he said.

Crash Kills 20 on Plane

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — An Air Force plane slammed into a mountainside on a high security Army base, killing all 20 people aboard when it exploded on impact a half mile from a bunker containing fissionable material, authorities said.

The four-engine plane crashed on Manzano Base, where nuclear weapons are stored, three minutes after its takeoff from Kirtland Air Force Base at 11:45 p.m. Wednesday.

Kirtland base operations confirmed there were no survivors, said Walter Sprick of the Federal Aviation Administration.

"One big fireball and that was it," a nearby resident said.

Air Force crews using flares and helicopter spotlights recovered at least 15 bodies in a predawn search. Authorities said all those aboard were military personnel.

A spokesman at the plane's base said it was used frequently by high-ranking military personnel and American and foreign dignitaries.

Former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is among those who have used the plane, the spokesman said.

The aircraft, which was scattered over 10 acres after impact, was used as a model for modifications to Air Force One, the president's plane.

An air traffic controller said he tried to warn the pilot the plane was in trouble.

"The first indication we had he was in trouble was when the radar showed he was too close to the mountain and flying too low."

Police Probe Copy of Bomb Plan in Irvine

Irvine police were trying today to determine the authenticity of a Xerox copy of an apparent plan to make a bomb, discovered Wednesday by an Edwards Laboratories employee.

The diagram was found in the printout of the copying machine, located just inside the loading and shipping dock of the facility, at 1401 Alton Ave.

Personnel Manager Rick Barkley called police when an employee showed him the drawing.

Police said the drawing appeared to be plans for a radio-controlled bomb, which diagrammed bombing caps and three sticks of dynamite, with power booster, batteries and what appeared to be a television receiver.

The maker of the diagrams apparently was semi-literate. Several labeling words were misspelled.

Lights Go Out Irvine Loses 70 Minutes

Electric power was cut to 2,500 Edison Co. customers in Irvine early today, causing hundreds of residents to report late to work and school children to be stranded at bus stops.

Power was out for an hour and 10 minutes. Edison officials said there was no apparent reason for the 3:30 a.m. malfunction in an underground equipment vault.

Affected were homes and businesses in the vicinity of Main Street and Jamboree Boulevard.

Work crews rerouted electronic circuitry to restore power while the underground transformers could be fixed.

Transportation supervisors for the Irvine Unified School District reported that several buses traveled to school with short loads of students, the drivers—and most of the missing students—unaware there had been an electrical failure.

They said several of the buses were sent back to pick up stragglers.

Hospital Holiday Hit in Baby Death

MIAMI (AP) — Michelle Pope's baby died at delivery because a base hospital was on a three-day holiday and the limited staff failed to give her "proper care and treatment."

The Air Force admits it was at fault. It has offered $15,000 in restitution.

But Mrs. Pope and her estranged husband, Army Sgt. James Pope, say it's not enough to make up for mental suffering and the breakup of their marriage.

"I never saw my baby. I had to ask if it was a boy or a girl. I wanted her to have her name, not just be a dead baby," Mrs. Pope testified Wednesday.

A federal judge set a final hearing for Friday to decide the government's liability. It was not known how much the Popes are asking.

Testimony showed Jessica Marie was alive and well in her mother's womb when the time for delivery arrived and passed but that labor should have been induced.

But the Homestead Air Force Base hospital staff failed to give Mrs. Pope needed tests when she arrived because no doctors were on duty during the 1975 Veterans Day holiday. The night duty nurses, the government added, were not certain of their ability to treat the woman.

"I knew what was going on, but I didn't want to know," Mrs. Pope testified Wednesday in a choked voice.

She said when the baby was delivered, the doctor would not speak to her or show her the baby.

"I looked over and the nurse was crying," Mrs. Pope recalled. "Then I knew."

She said her divorce one year later was caused by the mental anguish she and her husband suffered because of the baby's death.

Mrs. Pope broke down on the stand and the testimony was recessed for 15 minutes to allow her to regain composure.

In taking responsibility for the death, the Air Force said: "The United States does not contest the allegation that if proper care and treatment were rendered to the patient, Michelle Pope, the baby would, based on a reasonable degree of medical certainty, have been delivered alive and healthy."

Flood Death Toll Now 24

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The death toll in the Kansas City flash flood rose to 24 today while the damage estimate climbed to $50 million.

Twenty-three bodies were found in Kansas City. The 24th body was found in Leavenworth, Kan., about 35 miles to the northwest.

City and county officials estimated that about 1,000 persons were still homeless because of the 12 inches of rain that fell in a 24-hour period.

Irvine Panel May Resolve Land Usage

The Irvine City Council is expected tonight to resolve land use issues concerning the so-called Village 14, agricultural land on which the Irvine Company wants to build apartments and condominiums.

The city's community services, transportation and planning commissions all have voted in favor of the development plans. However, some protesting citizens say the land should remain in agricultural preserve.

Village 14 is the area bounded by Culver Drive on the east, the San Diego Freeway on the south, San Diego Creek and Peters Canyon Wash on the north and Irvine Center Drive on the west.

The latest plan for Village 14 was a collaborative effort of city planning staff, council members Gabrielle Pryor and John Burton, the Irvine Company and the U.S. Marine Corps.

It calls for almost strictly residential building in the area bounded by Harvard Avenue and Culver Drive to the west and east, and by Irvine Center Drive and the San Diego Freeway to the north and south.

Densities would range from five to 25 dwelling units per acre. Some 10,000 units could be built.

The residential area would be divided by amusement and sport commercial uses, as would the land west of Harvard Avenue.

Black's Beach 'Failed Noble Experiment'?

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Turning over a public beach to nudism was "a noble experiment that failed," a newspaper said today in urging that Black's Beach be restricted to suit-wearing.

"Even its advocates now deplore the voyeurism, the occasional bizarre behavior, the body painting of unclothed children," said the San Diego Union in an editorial.

The municipal beach has been classified "swimsuit optional" for three years and is one of the most popular areas along the coast.

The newspaper, urging approval of an election issue before San Diegans on Tuesday, said it agreed with police that Black's Beach is "not a hotbed of crime."

But it is "the only area of its kind in the entire country — it is the kind of attraction we don't need and don't want," the Union said.

'Conscience Clear'

Lance 'Armed' For Hearings

WASHINGTON (AP)—Bert Lance struck back at his tormentors today, acting as if he considered himself Gulliver beset by Lilliputians.

He let it be known at the outset that his remarks were aimed at the American people, not the senators on the Governmental Affairs Committee.

"I WELCOME THEM AS THE jury in this proceeding," Lance said into the television cameras. "I am secure and comfortable knowing that my conscience is clear and that the people's verdict will be a fair and just one."

The setting was one of those big Senate Office Building hearing rooms that have become so familiar in movie and TV fictionalized accounts as well as in real life. The Senate Watergate hearings spring to mind, although they were in a different chamber.

Lance, the kind of big amiable fellow who looks as if he'd cry if he squashed a bug, came armed for the fight with a 49-page statement to read. And Sen. Abraham Ribicoff (D-Conn.), the chairman of the committee, said he'd get all the time he needed, if it takes a Saturday session.

That alone indicates a serious matter.

LANCE WALKED INTO THE hearing room 15 minutes early with his lawyer, Clark Clifford, who was described as urbane as long ago as Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman. Now he's described as white-haired and urbane.

"I don't feel lonely today at all," said Lance as he looked around the crowded room.

He had plenty of support. Wife LaBelle and son David, 22, sat in the front row, right behind the tables for reporters.

"Nervous this morning?" a reporter asked as Lance made his way to center stage.

"No," he said.

HE STOOD COMFORTABLY BEHIND the witness table as a horde of photographers, sandwiched between the senators at their semicircular bench, clicked away. Lance's hands were in his pockets. He looked unruffled.

The senators, meanwhile, looked lonely and ignored.

Ribicoff called the hearing to order five minutes late and intoned that "we don't intend this to be a trial by ordeal."

AND SO IT WENT, LANCE'S first session of what he called his day in court.

One lesson he has learned, Lance told the senators in a Gulliver-to-Lilliputian tone of voice, "is to be mighty careful in the future when I am discussing basic human rights."

tional television audience that his rights had "been treated in the most irresponsible and destructive manner" and allegations against him have been "erroneous... misrepresented... and exaggerated." Moreover, he said, "some are completely misunderstood because those making the charge do not have all the facts."

"I did not ask for this fight, but now that I am in it, I am fighting not only for myself but also for our system," Lance declared. "I was a successful businessman in my home state, and I thought I had an important contribution to make by coming into government service."

The budget director has said again and again he will not quit. His demeanor and his words appeared to underscore that determination.

But even as he spoke, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill told reporters that because of Lance's financial problems "the image of the President is going down a little bit."

Seated at a long table covered with green felt and emblazoned with a nameplate — "Mr. Lance" — the budget director told the committee: "The rights that I thought I possessed have gone, one by one, down the drain."

"Were my rights protected?" he asked. "We'll let the American people answer that."

He declined to "contend that I made no mistakes" when he ran the Calhoun First National Bank of Calhoun, Ga., of which he was board chairman, and the National Bank of Georgia, in Atlanta, which he served as president.

"But to accept the assertion that I could not even manage a small country bank, one must ignore the objective facts," he told the committee, which recommended his confirmation as the nation's budget maker last January.

Lance told the panel he answered questions from members and from its staff fully and accurately in January and withheld nothing.

Newport Theft

'Pigeon' Gives Money, Rings

Newport Beach police are looking for the two young women who bilked an elderly woman out of $2,200 in cash and her wedding rings in what one detective described as "a textbook case of pigeon drop."

Pigeon drop is the name of a bunco scheme practiced usually on elderly women, like the 74-year-old Santa Ana resident who was victimized Wednesday afternoon.

Police said the woman was shopping at South Coast Plaza in Costa Mesa when a woman in her mid-twenties stopped her in the mall and pretended to be an acquaintance. They chatted for a while and the young woman related she had a friend who had found a bag containing $45,000 in cash and some pornographic photos.

The young woman told her elderly companion that the friend was afraid to turn the money in to police, but didn't know what to do with it.

At this point, the friend joined the two women and the first young woman suggested she talk to her boss to see what should be done.

While the pair waited, the young woman disappeared, allegedly to see her employer, and returned with the following advice:

"They could keep the cash, since it was probably illicitly gained and they could divide it up between them, provided they didn't spend any for 90 days."

New Sanity Trial Ordered For Allaway

Edward Charles Allaway, convicted of shooting to death seven persons on the Cal State Fullerton campus, was ordered today to face a new sanity trial Nov. 2.

Allaway, a 38-year-old ex-campus janitor, sat mute in the courtroom of Superior Court Judge Robert Kneeland as the judge scheduled the new trial, presumably by jury, on the sanity phase of the mass-murder case.

The jury which convicted Allaway last month was unable to reach a verdict on whether he was sane when he went on a shotgun-shooting binge July 12, 1976.

The custodian was apparently despondent over marital problems at the time.

U.S. Stymied By Nuclear Plant Waste

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite decades of study, the United States still has not figured out how to get rid of dangerously radioactive waste from power plants and military weapons production, the General Accounting Office reports.

Unless this problem is solved, the GAO says, the accumulation of nuclear wastes with hazardous radiation that lasts up to half a million years "threatens the future of nuclear power in the United States."

Robert W. Fri, acting administrator of the Energy Research and Development Administration, defended the waste-disposal program before a House government operations subcommittee.

He said that many of the GAO's observations are based on 1976 data and outdated. He said that his agency, which will be absorbed by the Department of Energy on Oct. 1 — is doing the best it can to deal with the problems.

Fri said that the Carter administration will shortly announce plans to deal with spent fuel at commercial reactors, a program under which the government would reportedly offer to take these wastes off the hands of commercial plants for a fee.

The Energy Research and Development Administration is planning to develop six locations for long-term or permanent burial of radioactive wastes by 1985. But the report by the investigative arm of Congress says that "ERDA may have promised more than it can deliver."

"There are, we believe, formidable social, geological and regulatory problems which must be solved," it continues. "Foremost among them is opposition of the public and some political leaders."

Inquiry Panel Sets HB Rocket Study

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A special study panel of inquiry was appointed today by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) to study why a rocket built in Huntington Beach failed in a Tuesday night launch from Cape Canaveral's Kennedy Space Center.

The giant rocket hefting a European Space Agency (ESA) communications satellite into the heavens on an experimental mission was blown to bits like a $40 million firecracker.

Divers began to hunt wreckage at daybreak Wednesday along the sea floor in 65-foot depths of the Atlantic Ocean off the cape to reassemble in search of clues to the failure

A NASA spokesman in Washington, D.C., said today it appears the rocket built by McDonnell Douglas Astronautics Company began to break up in flight.

Flight records of the first Delta since 1969, indicate the craft began to tumble and had to be destroyed aloft by remote control to prevent an accident on the ground — possibly involving inhabited areas.

A spokesman for the Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md., said Wednesday that onboard TV cameras monitoring the ship showed fire breaking out at the top of one engine just beforehand.

The onboard blaze and sudden erratic trajectory convinced a U.S. Air Force range safety officer it was time to press the red button and blow the missile to bits.

Major parts of the Delta plunged, fiery and hissing, into the sea from about five miles in the sky in a dazzling aerial display visible for miles over the southeastern United States.

Other portions fluttered lightly to earth on Cape Canaveral's tip.

VENADO...

But 12-year-old Ricky Glenn, one of two Venado students who stood to face Hartline before an audience of 50 and cable television cameras, disputed the claim that three buses are needed.

"Mr. Hartline," he addressed the administrator. "You say it will take three buses to take us to Venado. Can you tell us, then, why last year it only took two buses?"

The parents cheered the boy as Hartline said, almost under his breath, "There are more students now."

Venado Middle School Principal Don Erger, who compiled the estimated attendance from the two housing tracts, said today there are about the same number attending this year as last.

Overall, however, attendance in the Irvine Unified School District was up this year by 12.7 percent.

Young Glenn was joined in his argument by another Venado student, Robert Akers, who presented a petition for busing signed by about three dozen Venado students.

Akers said of the two-mile walk, "We dread it when the rain comes and it turns cold."

Trustee R. Dean Olson was unsympathetic to the boys'—and several parents'—complaints about the long walk.

"It's a rather sad commentary to society," he said, "when I hear our kids can't walk two miles to school."

Air Force Plane Crashes; 20 Killed

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — An Air Force plane slammed into a mountainside on a high security Army base, killing all 20 people aboard when it exploded on impact a half mile from a bunker containing fissionable material, authorities said.

The four-engine plane crashed on Manzano Base, where nuclear weapons are stored, three minutes after its takeoff from Kirtland Air Force Base at 11:45 p.m. Wednesday.

Kirtland base operations confirmed there were no survivors, said Walter Sprick of the Federal Aviation Administration.

"One big fireball and that was it," a nearby resident said.

Air Force crews using flares and helicopter spotlights recovered at least 15 bodies in a predawn search. Authorities said all those aboard were military personnel.

A spokesman at the plane's base said it was used frequently by high-ranking military personnel and American and foreign dignitaries.

Former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is among those who have used the plane, the spokesman said.

The aircraft, which was scattered over 10 acres after impact, was used as a model for modifications to Air Force One, the president's plane.

An air traffic controller said he tried to warn the pilot the plane was in trouble.

"The first indication we had he was in trouble was when the radar showed he was too close to the mountain and flying too low," said the controller.

"We hit him on the guard frequency and told him to turn right and climb... but he never did," he said.

The jet was a communications aircraft based at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base in Goldsboro, N.C. An Air Force spokesman said it was on a training mission and was on its way to Nellis Air Force base in Nevada.

The EC135, described as a

"modified 707," stopped in Albuquerque to refuel, the spokesman said.

A spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration said the pilot made what was probably a routine attempt to contact departure control just after takeoff. The tower responded, but the pilot didn't return the communication.

Clemente 'Parlors'

Council Adopts Regulations

San Clemente city councilmen unanimously voted to adopt an ordinance Wednesday to regulate massage parlors and massage parlors in the city.

The ordinance, which will take effect in 30 days, specifies the procedure for establishing a massage business and licensing massage "technicians."

Massage is defined in the ordinance as "any method of pressure on, or friction against, or stroking, kneading, rubbing, tapping, pounding, vibrating, or stimulating the external parts of the human body with the hands or with the aid of any mechanical electrical apparatus."

A massage "technician" is "any person who administers massages, baths or health treatments involving massages, baths or health treatments as the principal functions to another person for any consideration whatsoever."

The new ordinance requires licensing of massage parlors. The license costs $250, which is non-refundable and is to be used to pay for a mandatory police investigation of the applicant's background.

Massage "technicians" are also required to apply for a city license and pay a fee of $100 to cover the costs of a police investigation and report.

Applicants must be at least 18 years old and must hold certificates from "recognized schools," according to the ordinance.

They must also supply proof from a physician that they have been examined within 30 days prior to their application and are "found to be free of any contagious or communicable disease."

San Clemente currently has no massage parlors or sauna baths. A city spokesman said the ordinance was adopted to assure that such businesses which might locate in the city will meet certain minimum health and safety standards.

2 Suspects Nabbed at LB Eatery

Two burglary suspects were captured by Laguna Beach police at a fast food restaurant Tuesday night, just one hour after they allegedly broke into another eatery, fleeing with $200.

Investigator Ron Lister said Jon Robert Hawthorn, 20, and Kirk Steven Moore, 18, both transients, were arrested at the Taco Bell at 690 South Coast Highway at about 11 p.m. Tuesday.

The pair were suspected of breaking into Whipples Healthy Foods, 263 Forest Ave. earlier in the evening, taking about $200 from the cash register.

Lister said police recovered most of the loot from the two men, and about $80 buried in the sand after one of the men pointed out the location to officers.

Both men were lodged in Orange County Jail with bail set at $5,000. They face charges of suspicion of burglary.

Flood Death Toll Now 23

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The death toll in the Kansas City flash flood rose to 23 today while the damage estimate climbed to $50 million.

Twenty-two bodies were found in Kansas City. The 23rd body was found in Leavenworth, Kan., about 35 miles to the northwest.

City and county officials estimated that about 1,000 persons were still homeless because of the 12 inches of rain that fell in a 24-hour period Monday. The torrential rain caused the Brush Creek to overflow its banks along the exclusive Country Club Plaza shopping center and pour into the Blue River.

Cooling His Heels

Nine-month-old Scott Phillips was quite content in this Montreal pool when the temperature hit 104 degrees. The tot had a bottle and his grandmother within reach.

Bond Issue Okayed By Laguna Council

Laguna Beach councilmen voted unanimously Wednesday night to authorize the Aliso Water Management Agency to issue up to $5 million in revenue bonds for the city's share of a $36 million wastewater treatment and disposal system.

The first reading to the city ordinance seeks a revenue bond to provide money to construct the North Coast Interceptor sewer pipeline and pumping stations for the ANMA, as well as outfall facilities for the project.

City Manager Al Thiel said he believes the city's portion of those costs will be approximately $13.8 million. He estimates federal and state grants to be received by Laguna Beach will amount to $11.3 million.

That would leave approximately $2.4 million to be put up by the city after the grants, but a maximum construction deposit of about $4 million is required to be advanced by the city, according to city officials.

When the AWMA project is completed, the city will have $1.6 million in surplus funds on hand, which might go to call or repurchase the bonds, apply to the principal and interest or transfer to the general fund.

The second reading of the revenue bond ordinance will be held Sept. 21.

Thiel said councilmen have already raised local waste treatment rates to reflect the bond issue, and said he does not see any reason why those rates would go up again until after the $36 million project is completed, sometime in 1981.

"At that time we will be shutting down our local pumping station and a readjustment in the rates to taxpayers may be necessary," he said. "But that shouldn't be for several years."

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. has called for a presidential disaster declaration for Imperial County where heavy rains and flooding last month caused $28.5 million in damage.

Baby Died

Base Holiday Limits Care

MIAMI (AP) — Michelle Pope's baby died at delivery because a base hospital was on a three-day holiday and the limited staff failed to give her "proper care and treatment."

The Air Force admits it was at fault. It has offered $15,000 in restitution.

But Mrs. Pope and her estranged husband, Army Sgt. James Pope, say it's not enough to make up for mental suffering and the breakup of their marriage.

"I never saw my baby. I had to ask if it was a boy or a girl. I wanted her to have her name, not just be a dead baby," Mrs. Pope testified Wednesday.

A federal judge set a final hearing for Friday to decide the government's liability. It was not known how much the Popes are asking.

Testimony showed Jessica Marie was alive and well in her mother's womb when the time for delivery arrived and passed but that labor should have been induced.

But the Homestead Air Force Base hospital staff failed to give Mrs. Pope needed tests when she arrived because no doctors were on duty during the 1975 Veterans Day holiday. The night duty nurses, the government added, were not certain of their ability to Lance told the two senior members of the committee to their face they have been unfair in their public statements before this, his day in court.

Speaking "more in sorrow than in anger," Lance told the senior Republican, Sen. Charles Percy, that his actions were "puzzling, regrettable."

Percy replied that he questioned the dates on some of Lance's personal checks and whether they were timed to help him obtain a tax deduction.

"It was wrong for me to even raise the possibility," Percy conceded.

Then, one by one, the President's longtime personal friend replied to allegations made in past weeks that his personal and bank dealings, most of them before he joined the Carter government, were marked by irregularities and improprieties. When he finished reading his 1½-hour statement, he got a half minute of hearty applause from spectators in the hearing room.

Lance told the panel and a national television audience that his rights had "been treated in the most irresponsible and

Clemente Billing Accepted for Signs

"San Clemente — Home of La Cristianita Festival" will soon be posted along roads at city boundaries. City councilmen approved the slogan Wednesday, over the objections of Councilman Pat Lane.

"I think we ought to keep the welcome signs simple — something like 'Welcome to San Clemente,'" Lane said.

"I take a different view," said Councilman Tony DiGiovanni. "I think it's really something to be in the area of the first baptism."

The La Cristianita pageant has been performed the past two summers by community volunteers in an outdoor amphitheater in the San Clemente foothills. The play is a re-enactment of a 1769 baptism of an Indian child by Spanish padres, said to have taken place near San Clemente.

Councilman William Walker said adopting the slogan would be a good gesture, which would solve the problem of what to call the city's parade, carnival, ocean games and other summertime events.

"Maybe we should add an asterisk to let people know the christening really occurred at Camp Pendleton," said Lane.

Mrs. Wilkinson said the situation is no different from celebrating the Fourth of July, when the Declaration of Independence was really signed on July 6.

"And what's more, we celebrate Easter," she said, "and there's no Easter Bunny."

Clemente Youth Hurt on Mo-ped

A 15-year-old San Clemente youth was injured Wednesday when his mo-ped collided with a car at 1533 N. El Camino Real.

Jon Bruce Hoech, of 2710 Via Montezuma, was transported by city firemen to San Clemente General Hospital, where he was treated for a bump on the head and sent home.

Bandit Hero, But Briefly

NEW YORK (AP) — A Brooklyn man who bought drinks for his buddies at a local pub was a hero for about an hour Wednesday. Then he was nabbed for bank robbery.

Police said they arrested Thomas Schossig, 34, less than two hours after a man passed a note demanding money to a bank teller, then escaped with more than $2,000.

In their search, police entered a bar a short distance from the bank. There they found Schossig downing beer and buying rounds for his pals.

Seated at a long table covered with green felt and emblazoned with a nameplate — "Mr. Lance" — the budget director told the committee: "The rights that I thought I possessed have gone, one by one, down the drain..."

"Were my rights protected?" he asked. "We'll let the American people answer that."

He declined to "contend that I made no mistakes" when he ran the Calhoun First National Bank of Calhoun, Ga., of which he was board chairman, and the National Bank of Georgia, in Atlanta, which he served as president.

"But to accept the assertion that I could not even manage a small country bank, one must ignore the objective facts," he told the committee.

Coast Feels Quake From Anaheim Area

A Wednesday earthquake centered on a fault in Anaheim measured 2.7 on the Richter scale and was strong enough to be felt by residents as far away as Costa Mesa, Cal State Fullerton seismologists said today.

It was the first quake that could be detected without instruments in Orange County since Memorial Day, according to Christopher Buckley, assistant professor of earth sciences.

Buckley said the quake hit at 2:35 p.m. on an unnamed fault five miles south of the campus. The tremor caused no damage and apparently affected an area 15 miles from its point of origin.

Coeds Guarded After Slaying

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Measures designed to assure the nighttime safety of students at San Francisco State have been adopted in the wake of the murder of a female student.

Among the steps is a university police plan to hire student security teams for special evening patrols of the campus.

The stabbed and bludgeoned body of Jenny Low Chang, 19, a dorm resident, was found this week in a campus library faculty reading room. No arrests have been made.

Clinic Plans Fund Dance

A third annual dinner dance to raise funds for the Laguna Beach Free Clinic will be held at the Festival of Arts outdoor restaurant Friday beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Live dance music arranged by Robby Whalley and the Guitar Shoppe will be performed. No host bar, dining, entertainment and dancing under the stars will round out the fund-raising event.

For information, call Marli Martin, 546-3715.

LB Seniors Get Discount

Officials of the Senior Citizens' Club of Laguna Beach say 45 city merchants are now members of the club's Senior Citizen discount program.

Merchants participating in the program offer discounts from five to 25 percent on merchandise in their stores. Discount cards are available for older residents at the Council on Aging Office, 515 Forest Ave., as well as a list of the participating merchants.

For information, call Bob Porter at 497-2441.

Employee Injured

CANOGA PARK (AP) — A fast-food service company employee was reported in good condition today at West Park Hospital after he fell into a tomato paste storage tank while cleaning it.

Cops Eye Bomb Diagram

Irvine police were trying today to determine the authenticity of a Xerox copy of an apparent plan to make a bomb, discovered Wednesday by an Edwards Laboratories employee.

The diagram was found in the printout tray of the copying machine, located just inside the loading and shipping dock of the facility, at 1401 Alton Ave.

Personnel Manager Rick Barkley called police when an employee showed him the drawing.

Police said the drawing appeared to be plans for a radio-controlled bomb, which diagrammed blasting caps and three sticks of dynamite, with power booster, batteries and what appeared to be a television receiver.

The maker of the diagrams apparently was semi-literate. Several labeling words were misspelled.

Mark Rudd Visits Home

MAPLEWOOD, N.J. (AP) — Mark Rudd returned to his parents' home here for the first time in seven years Wednesday night, soon after he surrendered to authorities in New York to face charges in connection with the student takeover of Columbia University buildings in 1968.

The 30-year-old former leader of the Weather Underground apparently slipped through a back door at the family home in a quiet upper middle class neighborhood, eluding a bevy of reporters and photographers in the front yard.

A witness said Rudd's father, retired Army Lt. Col. Jacob L. Rudd, 67, told the crowd about 9:45 p.m.: "Look guys, Mark's in here and he's going to bed. He's not coming out."

Clemente Parking Rejected

San Clemente city councilmen have rejected a proposal to study the possibility of providing overnight parking for recreational vehicles at North Beach.

Mayor Donna Wilkinson and Councilman William Walker voted Wednesday in favor of sending the proposal to the city planning commission for a full review.

Councilmen Thomas O'Keefe, Patrick Lane and Tony DiGiovanni opposed it.

"We have one of the best facilities now for recreational vehicle overnight parking — San Clemente State Park," said DiGiovanni. "Why should we compete with the state?"

Walker and Mrs. Wilkinson said families visiting San Clemente in recreational vehicles are currently parking in supermarket parking lots or on the street, creating a policing problem.

"This is a tourist-oriented town," Walker said. "Residents have said they don't want a lot of industrial development, and the tourist business is probably the cleanest industry we can have."

"It is only wise to provide a place for visiting families to stay."

"I doubt that self-contained units will spend all that much money," said Lane.

"I disagree," said Mrs. Wilkinson. "We have a self-contained unit, and when we use it, we eat out very often."

O'Keefe said he opposed the proposal on the ground that a private property owner, rather than the city, should provide overnight recreational vehicle parking, if it is feasible.

The Sand And Fury

BARE FACTS DEPT. — Downcast in San Diego, voters will be going to the polls Tuesday to decide whether or not bare is beautiful. The issue on the ballot is Proposition D involving a place called Black's Beach.

This relatively secluded strand is the only place in our region where public beach nudity is tolerated. Now the practice has become an election issue.

The question has raised some temperatures in the San Diego area and newspapers of that region are filled with letters, pro and con. The question has triggered sermons, quips, puns, wisecracks and some pretty emotional blather on both sides.

ALAS, IN ALL the fervor, Black's Beach nakedness has drawn considerable attention in the news and not always with pinpoint accuracy.

As August began to wind down and the nude election month approached, a local television station fired the first loaded salvo by suggesting lifeguards were concerned about "an atmosphere of permissiveness" at Black's Beach.

From there, the papers began hyping the story, indicating police had established "a bikini patrol" to search for crime and sexual misconduct along the bathing suit-optional strand.

Several arrests have been made, including one in which an adult male is charged with child molesting, a police spokesman was quoted as reporting.

THEN IT DEVELOPED that Al JaCoby, assistant to the editor of the San Diego Union, got suspicious of all these rather generalized reports. He went on an investigative spree of his own.

In his column on the editorial page, JaCoby characterized the escalating nude beach stories as "a media storm."

JaCoby discovered that:

Despite the television hype about "permissiveness" along the strand, an actual police report got buried in the flurry. That report said, "Black's Beach has one-half to one-third the crime of other San Diego beaches."

There is no such thing as a "bikini patrol." Police had regular plainclothes patrols. The "bikini" name had been made up by a reporter.

As for the lone child molesting case, it had not occurred in the last few weeks. JaCoby pushed to find out when. He was given an "either April or May" answer.

He persisted in insisting that police give him the precise date of that arrest.

They finally supplied it — last Feb. 6, a 50-year-old man who was babysitting a 6-year-old girl.

JACOBY WAS RIGHT. San Diego had been swept by a media storm in which the news people didn't cover themselves with glory.

But that doesn't mean that the voters won't go ahead and cover Black's Beach.

Folks Back Lance

Hometown Rallies for 'Georgia Boy'

CALHOUN, Ga. (AP) — It was like an old-fashioned revival meeting as the hometown folks stomped their feet, prayed and cheered one of their own — Bert "Good Ole Georgia Boy" Lance.

About 1,500 people — more than one-fifth of Calhoun's population — turned out in a demonstration of support for the director of the Federal Office of Management and Budget on the eve of his appearance before a Senate panel investigating his financial affairs.

THE CROWD gave a standing ovation as the high school band played "You'll Never Walk Alone" and "I Did It My Way."

They had placards saying "Calhoun for Bert" and "Bert's A Good Ole Georgia Boy." They used words like "love," "friendship," and "honesty" to describe Lance, who did not attend the rally.

"I'll tell you what kind of a guy he is," said Jack Purcell, who used to be the catcher on the softball team when Lance was pitcher.

"I called him up last year to come speak to the graduating class of the school where I was principal. And even though it rained and the loudspeakers didn't work, he came and he spoke. And when I sent him a check for speaking to the class, he sent the check back because he didn't do it for the money. That's the kind of guy Bert is."

A DOWNPOUR drove the crowd from the high school football field across the street to a gymnasium, but it didn't dampen their spirits.

Lance's minister, the Rev. Emory Brackman, told of the "very generous" contributions of time and money that Lance and his wife, LaBelle, made to the First Methodist Church. He recalled that Lance received "the highest honor" a United Methodist can receive when he was elected to the church's General Conference.

LT. GOV. Zell Miller, who shared a double desk with Lance in grammar school, accused the news media of distorting the Lance affair. He denied a statement in an article in a national magazine that quoted him as saying Lance was a poor arithmetic student.

"Powerful and ruthless forces" — whom he later identified as the federal bureaucracy — have attacked Lance, Miller said.

"To say that Bert Lance has done something wrong does not make it so," he said.

THEY WANTED to talk about the back-slapping, joke-telling Bert Lance who married his high school sweetheart and helped his neighbors as he rose from a 19-year-old bank teller to a 32-year-old bank president.

"He treated a man like a man wants to be treated," said John Houser, who carried a sign saying "Bert Lance Was Fair To Me . . . We Need Him In D.C." He said Lance helped him get back on his feet several years ago when he lost "a lot of money" investing in a mill.

"He went out of his way to help a lot of people in this town."

New SS Plan Hikes Limit For Retired

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retired people could earn up to $4,500 next year without losing Social Security benefits under a plan approved by a House subcommittee.

Its chairman says the current limit reduces some elderly persons to eating pet food.

RECIPIENTS WHO now earn more than $3,000 lose $1 in benefits for every $2 they bring in above the ceiling. That limitation, says Rep. James A. Burke (D-Mass.), means some retirees are "living on a diet of cat and dog food."

In a move experts say could affect a million people, the House Ways and Means subcommittee on Social Security Wednesday tentatively approved raising the allowance in 1978.

Under the proposal, recipients could earn $6,000 in 1979 without facing an aid cutback.

THE LIMIT ON exempt earnings this year is $3,000. It is expected to go to $3,240 in 1978 and $3,480 in 1979 under a provision of the existing law that ties benefits to inflation.

The subcommittee's move, approved 9 to 3, was a compromise between proposals to abolish the limitation and others for a smaller or later increase. Republicans had suggested phasing out the limitation over three years.

AS PART OF the compromise, the subcommittee agreed that the whole subject would be considered again when the panel takes up long-range changes in Social Security, probably next year.

The subcommittee is now putting together legislation to keep the deficit-plagued Social Security system alive.

All the votes it is now taking are subject to later change or reversal. Burke, the panel chairman, predicted the move "wouldn't get 50 votes against it" if it reaches the House floor.

Partly offsetting the cost of raising the income lid, the subcommittee voted to remove from the law a quirk that allows a retired person to earn as much as he can in a month if he forfeits his benefits for that month.

Police Find Potted Plant Actually Pot

NEW YORK (AP) — A 19-year-old Bronx man was arrested when his neighbors discovered a 3½-foot tall marijuana plant growing in his window.

Overlooking Jose Laboy's first-floor window was the second-floor office of the Youth Aid Office of the 40th Precinct.

"We couldn't believe it," officer Frank Henry said Wednesday. "We looked out the window and saw what looked like a marijuana plant in the window of the first floor of the building next door."

Report Says Breast X-rays Possible Cause of Cancer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A national breast cancer detection program should be continued, but its use of breast X rays should be restricted because of their potential for causing the disease in some women, a National Cancer Institute advisory group said today.

The report, presented today at a breast cancer screening meeting, said X-raying breasts, a process called mammography, effectively finds cancer that goes undetected by other methods.

BUT TOO MUCH is unknown about the possibility of radiation causing cancer for mammography to be used routinely on all women, particularly those under age 50, the study said.

Attending the meeting at the National Institutes of Health is a group of scientists, physicians and laypersons who hope to develop a consensus on whether the detection program should be continued and what it should include.

The report reviewed data from the $54 million Breast Cancer

Detection Demonstration Project, cosponsored by the National Cancer Institute and the American Cancer Society, in which up to 270,000 volunteer women aged 35 and older are being screened for five years.

The value of the project has been questioned not only because of mammography, but also because it is still unclear if early detection improves long-term survival, as many medical authorities believe.

'32 Million' Need Mental Health Care

WASHINGTON (AP) — Between 20 million and 32 million Americans need mental health care, a new report to the government says, but help is often unavailable because of inadequate community services, costs that are too high or the stigma of mental illness.

"The time has come for mental health care to become part of a broader effort to deal with human needs," concludes the preliminary report of the President's Commission on Mental Health, released today.

THE REPORT notes that 15 percent of the population needs some form of help, ranging from counseling to long-term care, not counting the six million who are mentally retarded.

At any one time, the report adds, about 25 percent of the country is under enough emotional stress that a doctor might diagnose such people as suffering from depression or anxiety.

THEIR AGES SOMETHING TO CHEER ABOUT
Pep Squad Members Keran and Perkins

Real Seniors Cheer Leaders 28 and 36

FRESNO (AP) — At ages 28 and 36, Marlene Keran and Inkan Perkins are practically senior citizens as members of the Fresno State pep squad.

Although other squad members range in age from their late teens to early 20s, Perkins and Miss Keran don't consider their ages a handicap. In many cases, they have used their years to their advantage.

"WE DON'T PULL ANY punches about our age," said Miss Keran, co-head pep girl. "In fact, we try to emphasize it with administrators. They listen more intently because we're not 18-year-olds they can shove in some corner."

Another use for that leverage of age is in recruiting fans to attend games.

"Our age is an advantage when we're talking to older students. At least we arouse their curiosity," she said. "And the younger kids on the squad look up to us. . . they listen to us, and they keep us young."

THE ONLY DISADVANTAGE THE pair feel is in physical limitations age brings.

"I have never worked that hard in my entire life," Perkins said of trying out for the squad.

"I had trouble sitting down and getting back up again," Miss Keran added.

PERKINS RETURNED TO school after a 10-year absence to study radio and television and Miss Keran is pursuing a degree in fine arts after a six-year absence.

They found it natural to get involved in cheerleading because that was an important part of their school days one and two decades ago.

Battered Women's Aid Nixed

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Feminists are seeking to dump a women's rights commission which has opposed abortion, the Equal Rights Amendment, and the "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" TV show while supporting the lady bug as the state insect.

The latest flap surrounding the New Hampshire Commission on the Status of Women occurred when the panel refused to act on a program to help women who have been beaten by their husbands.

Although there was no formal vote, nine of the 10 commissioners said they were against the program. Commissioners at Monday's meeting said they saw it as an intrusion of government into the personal problems of New Hampshire citizens.

"You can't legislate love in the home. The government isn't designed to interfere here," said commissioner Simone Mason of Salem.

Commission member Gloria Belzil of Nashua simply said of the program's defeat, "Some women libbers irritate the hell out of their husbands."

Dorothy Craigie, commission chairman, said the panel has not dismissed the wife-beating problem but plans to "study the problem and come up with a recommendation."

The dissenting member of the commission, Frances Drown, said she would continue to pursue the program to help battered women at a special conference of women's groups set next Wednesday.

The commission's record also includes support of prayer in the schools and opposition to the repeal of a law banning lesbian activities and to a federal family and child services program.

But the rejection of the battered wives plan outraged feminists groups and women legislators.

Republican Rep. Gale Morrison called on conservative Republican Gov. Meldrim Thomson, who appoints commission members, to remove those who voted against the program.

She said women legislators have banded together to try to abolish the commission because "we felt that the group did not represent any of the issues we stood for or were working for."

Killers in Indiana Inspired by Movie?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Vincent Bugliosi, who prosecuted Charles Manson and his family, says he is "terribly disturbed" over reports that an Indiana mass murder may have been inspired by a movie based on a book Bugliosi wrote about the Manson case.

"It's a terrible tragedy and I'm extremely upset about it," Bugliosi said Wednesday when told that one of the accused Indiana killers alluded to the movie "Helter Skelter" in court testimony.

Dan Stonebreaker, 20, and three others are accused of indiscriminately killing four brothers in a Valentine's Day rifle attack in Hollandburg, Ind.

Stonebreaker, who has turned state's evidence, testified this week that he and another of the accused watched "Helter Skelter" on television two months before they walked into the mobile home of Mrs. Betty Spencer and opened fire.

"We talked about it (the movie)," Stonebreaker testified. "It was the movie of how Charles Manson killed people for no reason."

Stonebreaker said he, Roger Drollinger, 24, David Smith, 17, and Mike Wright, 21, picked the Spencer family at random. The attack killed 14-year-old Ralph Reese, his brothers, Reeve, 16, and Raymond, 17, and their half-brother, Gregory Brooks, 22.

Mrs. Spencer's wig was blown off and the killers left her, apparently thinking she was dead, authorities said.

"This is the first indication I've ever received that anyone ever got any ideas from 'Helter Skelter,'" said Bugliosi, a private attorney in Beverly Hills. "People have asked me before if I was worried someone might get ideas from the book or the movie, but I said it has never happened. I'm terribly disturbed about it."

"I'm sure people will start saying that shows like 'Helter Skelter' shouldn't be aired, but that's an extreme, too," he said. "What's the alternative? Are we going to keep stories of tragedies off the air because some demented mind might try to parallel the act? I just can't believe that just watching a movie would turn someone into a cold-blooded killer."

Boy Kidnaps To Avenge Slain Mother

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — A youth kidnaped a taxi driver in order to be arrested and sent to the prison where the confessed murderer of his mother is being held, police said.

Kenneth Lynn Curry, 17, was arrested Wednesday and charged with kidnaping and robbery after allegedly kidnaping a 49-year-old taxi driver at knife-point and allegedly taking $50 from him.

Police said Curry told the taxi driver, Benny Dillary, that he wanted to go to prison to avenge the death of his mother, who was raped and murdered. Curry is the son of Venora Hyatt, one of three women whom Thomas Whisenant of Irvington confessed to killing last year.

Mexican-Americans Set Observance

Mexican-Americans in Orange County will join thousands of others in Southern California starting at about midnight tonight in marking 16 de Septiembre — Mexican Independence Day.

The celebrations begin with the traditional "El Grito," which literally means "The Yell" but is, in fact, a Mexican cry of freedom declaring independence from Spain.

Though there will no doubt be numerous private festivities in the Mexican-American communities of the county, few large activities have been planned to mark the day Father Miguel Hidalgo y Costilla aroused the revolt that began in 1810.

In Santa Ana, the county seat, Mexican-American leaders have prepared a special flag-raising ceremony at 9 a.m. Saturday in the Civic Center's "Plaza of the Flags."

After the ceremony, which will feature speeches by government leaders, a small parade will take place in the downtown area starting at noon.

In the parade will be a precision motorcycle team from Tijuana, high school marching bands, floats and other features.

The other large event planned in the county will take place in Placentia Saturday.

Casa Placentia and Amigos de Casa Placentia have planned a block party in the Atwood community. Santa Fe Street will be closed to vehicular traffic, according to organizers.

The event, which is public, will feature booths for food and games, live music and a queen crowning. It will run from noon to 9 p.m.

The actual day of Mexican independence is Friday but the celebration usually lasts several days.

Numerous events are taking place in Los Angeles, which has declared this week to be "Mexico Week." Tonight at the Los Angeles Sports Arena, there will be three and a half hours of Mexican entertainment, including mariachis, the Ballet Folklórico and the "El Grito" ceremonies at 11 p.m.

Black Marine Sentenced For Beatings

A black Marine must pay a fine of $650 and accept a reduction to lance corporal for participation in an assault by a group of blacks at Camp Pendleton on partying white Leathernecks last November.

The sentence was imposed Wednesday on Cpl. Clarence Capers Jr. of Edgewater Park, N.J., by a five-member court martial board that convicted him Tuesday.

Capers was tried on six counts of assault and one of conspiracy in the incident that sent six white Marines to the hospital.

The black Marines charged in the case have testified they were out to break up a Ku Klux Klan meeting but got the wrong barracks room.

The attack, however, brought to light the existence of a KKK cell on the nation's biggest Marine installation.

Rich Bomb Target?

Blast Shatters Windows in SF

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco's wealthy were the apparent target of another bombing attack early today, in a raucous explosion that police said shattered windows in the city's plush Pacific Heights section but injured no one.

Responsibility for the explosion at about 2:45 a.m. was claimed by the Tom Hicks Unit, the New World Liberation Front, in a telephone call to the Associated Press early today.

THE ANONYMOUS FEMALE caller said "the bombing attack at Pacific Heights" was "to further press home our just demands for decent housing for all people in San Francisco."

She said an NWLF communique would be "available later."

Previous NWLF messages have said that attacks were to compel the city's rich to improve living conditions for the poor.

The attack was the sixth in about three weeks in the San Francisco Bay area claimed by the NWLF and its second within a week.

A blast early Friday at the San Francisco Opera House crumpled an aluminum awning outside the building and shattered windows but didn't delay the scheduled opening of the opera's 55th season Friday night.

"AS LONG AS POOR PEOPLE are forced to live in unsafe, unhealthy housing, ruling class functions will be threatened," said an NWLF communique to which the AP had been directed after the attack.

Police had difficulty finding the precise location of today's blast after reports of the noise flooded police switchboards, but authorities said the attack apparently centered near Broadway and Lyonstreets.

A six-foot hole was reportedly blown open in a gate at the U.S. Army base at the Presidio and windows shattered in the Pacific Heights neighborhood over a two-block radius.

Petition to Ban Smoking Allowed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Supporters of a proposed initiative statute curbing smoking in enclosed areas have won the right to circulate petitions to get it on the California ballot.

Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger said Wednesday he had given the proposal submitted by the Clean Indoor Air Committee the title:

"Regulation of Smoking," and had approved a summary of it.

He said that did not mean he was for or against it.

His office said the measure would ban smoking in enclosed public places, places of employment and educational and health facilities, with specified exceptions, and require restaurants to establish nonsmoking sections. It would prohibit employment discrimination based on exercise of rights provided by the statute.

IT WOULD permit stricter local regulations, requiring posting of signs designating nonsmoking areas, and set fines for violations.

The signs would cost the state up to an estimated $600,000, which could be offset by unknown income from fines. The measure might also result in savings because of reduced health expenditures, sick leave and disability payments to employees.

The measure also could result in reduction of state and local cigarette tax receipts, the attorney general said.

It takes the signatures of 312,404 registered voters to qualify it for the ballot.

Official Urges Ship Terminal For 2 Tankers

LONG BEACH (AP) — A proposal for an oil tanker terminal designed to accommodate two ships, rather than three as originally planned, was raised Wednesday at a meeting of the South Coast Air Quality Management District Board.

The board passed a motion by Orange County member Paul Raven ordering its staff to prepare a supplemental environmental impact statement on the effects of a two-berth facility. Standard Oil of Ohio (Sohio) has proposed a $45-million three-berth plan.

AN ENVIRONMENTAL impact statement has already been submitted on the three-berth, trestle-supported Sohio proposal, which would handle tanker shipments of up to 700,000 barrels a day of crude oil from Valdez, Alaska. The oil would be pumped through pipelines to Midland, Tex. for distribution to midwest refineries.

Raven's motion provides for public hearings within 30 days after the supplemental statement is released.

The statements include estimations of how much pollution the facility would create.

BUNDLE OF JOY CAUSES HEADACHE FOR LOS ANGELES COUPLE Steve and Lois Wolfson Stand Outside Apartment With Adam, 2

Baby Brings Woe

Eviction Fight Could Be Landmark Case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Steve and Lois Wolfson's bundle of joy has caused them a peck of trouble ever since the landlord informed them their baby son would force their eviction from the apartment where they have lived for more than three years.

Culver City Municipal Court Judge Harold I. Chernes began hearing testimony today on the suit the Wolfsons filed to hold onto their $390-a-month home overlooking the yacht harbor at Marina del Rey.

They contend the apartment's ban on children violates state law. The case could have sweeping implications for millions of families with small children seeking rental housing.

MRS. WOLFSON BROUGHT her infant son, Adam, home from the hospital in September 1975, but nobody said a word about it for more than a year after he was born.

"We've never had any complaints about Adam," she said in an interview. "In fact, all of our neighbors have signed affidavits saying they like him and want him to stay in the building, and they're appearing in court on our behalf."

A neighbor, Robert Smith, whose bedroom is directly over the Wolfsons' apartment, said: "We've never been awakened by Adam crying. The Wolfsons are very considerate people and have asked us on several occasions to be sure the child isn't bothering us."

IN NOVEMBER 1976, after the Wolfsons had signed their lease renewal, they got a letter from the corporation that acts as landlord, Marina Point Ltd., telling them they would have to leave because of the child.

Entrenched there since February 1974, they decided to fight rather than move.

"We love it here. It's a terrific buy, and we're pleased with it," Wolfson said. "There's a great view of the marina from both bedrooms."

Several other children already live in the apartment complex. They lived there before the ban on children was imposed.

"The children from adjacent buildings who came over to play in front of this one are a lot noisier than Adam's ever been," Smith said.

Battered Women's Aid Nixed

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Feminists are seeking to dump a women's rights commission which has opposed abortion, the Equal Rights Amendment, and the "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" TV show while supporting the lady bug as the state insect.

The latest flap surrounding the New Hampshire Commission on the Status of Women occurred when the panel refused to act on a program to help women who have been beaten by their husbands.

Although there was no formal vote, nine of the 10 commissioners said they were against the program. Commissioners at Monday's meeting said they saw it as an intrusion of government into the personal problems of New Hampshire citizens.

"You can't legislate love in the home. The government isn't designed to interfere here," said commissioner Simone Mason of Salem.

Commission member Gloria Belzil of Nashua simply said of the program's defeat, "Some women libbers irritate the hell out of their husbands."

Dorothy Craigie, commission chairman, said the panel has not dismissed the wife-beating problem but plans to "study the problem and come up with a recommendation."

The dissenting member of the commission, Frances Drown, said she would continue to pursue the program to help battered women at a special conference of women's groups set next Wednesday.

The commission's record also includes support of prayer in the schools and opposition to the repeal of a law banning lesbian activities and to a federal family and child services program.

But the rejection of the battered wives plan outraged feminists groups and women legislators.

Republican Rep. Gale Morrison called on conservative Republican Gov. Meldrim Thomson, who appoints commission members, to remove those who voted against the program.

She said women legislators have banded together to try to abolish the commission because "we felt that the group did not represent any of the issues we stood for or were working for."

Black Marine Sentenced For Beatings

A black Marine must pay a fine of $650 and accept a reduction to lance corporal for participation in an assault by a group of blacks at Camp Pendleton on partying white Leathernecks last November.

The sentence was imposed Wednesday on Cpl. Clarence Capers Jr. of Edgewater Park, N.J., by a five-member court martial board that convicted him Tuesday.

Capers was tried on six counts of assault and one of conspiracy in the incident that sent six white Marines to the hospital.

The black Marines charged in the case have testified they were out to break up a Ku Klux Klan meeting but got the wrong barracks room.

The attack, however, brought to light the existence of a KKK cell on the nation's biggest Marine installation.

THEIR AGES SOMETHING TO CHEER ABOUT
Pep Squad Members Keran and Perkins

Real Seniors Cheer Leaders 28 and 36

FRESNO (AP) — At ages 28 and 36, Marlene Keran and Inkan Perkins are practically senior citizens as members of the Fresno State pep squad.

Although other squad members range in age from their late teens to early 20s, Perkins and Miss Keran don't consider their ages a handicap. In many cases, they have used their years to their advantage.

"WE DON'T PULL ANY punches about our age," said Miss Keran, co-head pep girl. "In fact, we try to emphasize it with administrators. They listen more intently because we're not 18-year-olds they can shove in some corner."

Another use for that leverage of age is in recruiting fans to attend games.

"Our age is an advantage when we're talking to older students. At least we arouse their curiosity," she said. "And the younger kids on the squad look up to us. . . they listen to us, and they keep us young."

THE ONLY DISADVANTAGE THE pair feel is in physical limitations age brings.

"I have never worked that hard in my entire life," Perkins said of trying out for the squad.

"I had trouble sitting down and getting back up again," Miss Keran added.

PERKINS RETURNED TO school after a 10-year absence to study radio and television and Miss Keran is pursuing a degree in fine arts after a six-year absence.

They found it natural to get involved in cheerleading because that was an important part of their school days one and two decades ago.

Killers in Indiana Inspired by Movie?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Vincent Bugliosi, who prosecuted Charles Manson and his family, says he is "terribly disturbed" over reports that an Indiana mass murder may have been inspired by a movie based on a book Bugliosi wrote about the Manson case.

"It's a terrible tragedy and I'm extremely upset about it," Bugliosi said Wednesday when told that one of the accused Indiana killers alluded to the movie "Helter Skelter" in court testimony.

Dan Stonebreaker, 20, and three others are accused of indiscriminately killing four brothers in a Valentine's Day rifle attack in Hollandsburg, Ind.

Stonebreaker, who has turned state's evidence, testified this week that he and another of the accused watched "Helter Skelter" on television two months before they walked into the mobile home of Mrs. Betty Spencer and opened fire.

"We talked about it (the movie)," Stonebreaker testified. "It was the movie of how Charles Manson killed people for no reason."

Stonebreaker said he, Roger Drollinger, 24, David Smith, 17, and Mike Wright, 21, picked the Spencer family at random. The attack killed 14-year-old Ralph Reese, his brothers, Reeve, 16, and Raymond, 17, and their half-brother, Gregory Brooks, 22.

Mrs. Spencer's wig was blown off and the killers left her, apparently thinking she was dead, authorities said.

"This is the first indication I've ever received that anyone ever got any ideas from 'Helter Skelter,'" said Bugliosi, a private attorney in Beverly Hills. "People have asked me before if I was worried someone might get ideas from the book or the movie, but I said it has never happened. I'm terribly disturbed about it."

"I'm sure people will start saying that shows like 'Helter Skelter' shouldn't be aired, but that's an extreme, too," he said. "What's the alternative? Are we going to keep stories of tragedies off the air because some demented mind might try to parallel the act? I just can't believe that just watching a movie would turn someone into a cold-blooded killer."

Boy Kidnaps To Avenge Slain Mother

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — A youth kidnapped a taxi driver in order to be arrested and sent to the prison where the confessed murderer of his mother is being held, police said.

Kenneth Lynn Curry, 17, was arrested Wednesday and charged with kidnapping and robbery after allegedly kidnapping a 49-year-old taxi driver at knife-point and allegedly taking $50 from him.

Police said Curry told the taxi driver, Benny Dillary, that he wanted to go to prison to avenge the death of his mother, who was raped and murdered. Curry is the son of Venora Hyatt, one of three women whom Thomas Whisenant of Irvington confessed to killing last year.

Mexican-Americans Set Observance

Mexican-Americans in Orange County will join thousands of others in Southern California starting at about midnight tonight in marking 16 de Septiembre — Mexican Independence Day.

The celebrations begin with the traditional "El Grito," which literally means "The Yell" but is, in fact, a Mexican cry of freedom declaring independence from Spain.

Though there will no doubt be numerous private festivities in the Mexican-American communities of the county, few large activities have been planned to mark the day Father Miguel Hidalgo y Costilla aroused the revolt that began in 1810.

In Santa Ana, the county seat, Mexican-American leaders have prepared a special flag-raising ceremony at 9 a.m. Saturday in the Civic Center's "Plaza of the Flags."

After the ceremony, which will feature speeches by government leaders, a small parade will take place in the downtown area starting at noon.

In the parade will be a precision motorcycle team from Tijuana, high school marching bands, floats and other features.

The other large event planned in the county will take place in Placentia Saturday.

Casa Placentia and Amigos de Casa Placentia have planned a block party in the Atwood community. Santa Fe Street will be closed to vehicular traffic, according to organizers.

The event, which is public, will feature booths for food and games, live music and a queen crowning. It will run from noon to 9 p.m.

The actual day of Mexican independence is Friday but the celebration usually lasts several days.

Numerous events are taking place in Los Angeles, which has declared this week to be "Mexico Week." Tonight at the Los Angeles Sports Arena, there will be three and a half hours of Mexican entertainment, including mariachis, the Ballet Folklorico and the "El Grito" ceremonies at 11 p.m.

The Sand And Fury

BARE FACTS DEPT. — Downcast in San Diego, voters will be going to the polls Tuesday to decide whether or not bare is beautiful. The issue on the ballot is Proposition D involving a place called Black's Beach.

This relatively secluded strand is the only place in our region where public beach nudity is tolerated. Now the practice has become an election issue.

The question has raised some temperatures in the San Diego area and newspapers of that region are filled with letters, pro and anti-naked. The question has triggered sermons, quips, puns, wisecracks and some pretty emotional blather on both sides.

ALAS, IN ALL the fervor, Black's Beach nakedness has drawn considerable attention in the news and not always with pinpoint accuracy.

As August began to wind down and the nude election month approached, a local television station fired the first loaded salvo by suggesting lifeguards were concerned about "an atmosphere of permissiveness" at Black's Beach.

From there, the papers began hyping the story, indicating police had established "a bikini patrol" to search for crime and sexual misconduct along the bathing suit-optional strand.

"Several arrests have been made, including one in which an adult male is charged with child molesting," a police spokesman was quoted as reporting.

THEN IT DEVELOPED that Al JaCoby, assistant to the editor of the San Diego Union, got suspicious of all these rather generalized reports. He went on an investigative spree of his own.

In his column on the editorial page, JaCoby characterized the escalating nude beach stories as "a media storm."

JaCoby discovered that: Despite the television hype about "permissiveness" along the strand, an actual police report got buried in the flurry. That report said, "Black's Beach has one-half to one-third the crime of other San Diego beaches."

—There is no such thing as a "bikini patrol." Police had regular plainclothes patrols. The "bikini" name had been made up by a reporter.

—As for the lone child molesting case, it had not occurred in the last few weeks. JaCoby pushed to find out when. He was given an "either April or May" answer.

He persisted in insisting that police give him the precise date of that arrest.

They finally supplied it — last Feb. 6, a 50-year-old man who was babysitting a 6-year-old girl.

JACOBY WAS RIGHT. San Diego had been swept by a media storm in which the news people didn't cover themselves with glory.

But that doesn't mean that the voters won't go ahead and cover Black's Beach.

Folks Back Lance

Hometown Rallies for 'Georgia Boy'

CALHOUN, Ga. (AP) — It was like an old-fashioned revival meeting as the hometown folks stomped their feet, prayed and cheered one of their own — Bert "Good Ole Georgia Boy" Lance.

About 1,500 people — more than one-fifth of Calhoun's population — turned out in a demonstration of support for the director of the federal Office of Management and Budget on the eve of his appearance before a Senate panel investigating his financial affairs.

THE CROWD gave a standing ovation as the high school band played "You'll Never Walk Alone" and "I Did It My Way."

They had placards saying "Calhoun for Bert" and "Bert's A Good Ole Georgia Boy." They used words like "love," "friendship," and "honesty" to describe Lance, who did not attend the rally.

"I'll tell you what kind of a guy he is," said Jack Purcell, who used to be the catcher on the softball team when Lance was pitcher.

"I called him up last year to come speak to the graduating class of the school where I was principal. And even though it rained and the loudspeakers didn't work, he came and he spoke. And when I sent him a check for speaking to the class, he sent the check back because he didn't do it for the money. That's the kind of guy Bert is."

A DOWNPOUR drove the crowd from the high school football field across the street to a gymnasium, but it didn't dampen their spirits.

Lance's minister, the Rev. Emory Brackman, told of the "very generous" contributions of time and money that Lance and his wife, LaBelle, made to the First Methodist Church. He recalled that Lance received "the highest honor" a United Methodist can receive when he was elected to the church's General Conference.

LT. GOV. Zell Miller, who shared a double desk with Lance in grammar school, accused the news media of distorting the Lance affair. He denied a statement in an article in a national magazine that quoted him as saying Lance was a poor arithmetic student.

"Powerful and ruthless forces" — whom he later identified as the federal bureaucracy — have attacked Lance, Miller said.

"To say that Bert Lance has done something wrong does not make it so," he said.

THEY WANTED to talk about the backslapping, joke-telling Bert Lance who married his high school sweetheart and helped his neighbors as he rose from a 19-year-old bank teller to a 32-year-old bank president.

"He treated a man like a man wants to be treated," said John Houser, who carried a sign saying "Bert Lance Was Fair To Me . . . We Need Him In D.C." He said Lance helped him get back on his feet several years ago when he lost "a lot of money" investing in a mill.

"He went out of his way to help a lot of people in this town."

New SS Plan Hikes Limit For Retired

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retired people could earn up to $4,500 next year without losing Social Security benefits under a plan approved by a House subcommittee.

Its chairman says the current limit reduces some elderly persons to eating pet food.

RECIPIENTS WHO now earn more than $3,000 lose $1 in benefits for every $2 they bring in above the ceiling. That limitation, says Rep. James A. Burke (D-Mass.), means some retirees are "living on a diet of cat and dog food."

In a move experts say could affect a million people, the House Ways and Means subcommittee on Social Security Wednesday tentatively approved raising the allowance in 1978.

Under the proposal, recipients could earn $6,000 in 1979 without facing an aid cutback.

THE LIMIT ON exempt earnings this year is $3,000. It is expected to go to $3,240 in 1978 and $3,480 in 1979 under a provision of the existing law that ties benefits to inflation.

The subcommittee's move, approved 9 to 3, was a compromise between proposals to abolish the limitation and others for a smaller or later increase. Republicans had suggested phasing out the limitation over three years.

AS PART OF the compromise, the subcommittee agreed that the whole subject would be considered again when the panel takes up long-range changes in Social Security, probably next year.

The subcommittee is now putting together legislation to keep the deficit-plagued Social Security system alive. All the votes it is now taking are subject to later change or reversal. Burke, the panel chairman, predicted the move "wouldn't get 50 votes against it" if it reaches the House floor.

Partly offsetting the cost of raising the income lid, the subcommittee voted to remove from the law a quirk that allows a retired person to earn as much as he can in a month if he forfeits his benefits for that month.

Police Find Potted Plant Actually Pot

NEW YORK (AP) — A 19-year-old Bronx man was arrested when his neighbors discovered a 3½-foot tall marijuana plant growing in his window.

Overlooking Jose Laboy's first-floor window was the second-floor office of the Youth Aid Office of the 40th Precinct.

"We couldn't believe it," officer Frank Henry said Wednesday. "We looked out the window and saw what looked like a marijuana plant in the window of the first floor of the building next door."

Report Says Breast X-rays Possible Cause of Cancer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A national breast cancer detection program should be continued, but its use of breast X rays should be restricted because of their potential for causing the disease in some women, a National Cancer Institute advisory group said today.

The report, presented today at a breast cancer screening meeting, said X-raying breasts, a process called mammography, effectively finds cancer that goes undetected by other methods.

BUT TOO MUCH is unknown about the possibility of radiation causing cancer for mammography to be used routinely on all women, particularly those under age 50, the study said.

Attending the meeting at the National Institutes of Health is a group of scientists, physicians and laypersons who hope to develop a consensus on whether the detection program should be continued and what it should include.

The report reviewed data from the $54 million "Breast Cancer

Detection Demonstration Project, cosponsored by the National Cancer Institute and the American Cancer Society, in which up to 270,000 volunteer women aged 35 and older are being screened for five years.

The value of the project has been questioned not only because of mammography, but also because it is still unclear if early detection improves long-term survival, as many medical authorities believe.

'32 Million' Need Mental Health Care

WASHINGTON (AP) — Between 20 million and 32 million Americans need mental health care, a new report to the government says, but help is often unavailable because of inadequate community services, costs that are too high or the stigma of mental illness.

"The time has come for mental health care to become part of a broader effort to deal with human needs," concludes the preliminary report of the President's Commission on Mental Health, released today.

THE REPORT notes that 15 percent of the population needs some form of help, ranging from counseling to long-term care, not counting the six million who are mentally retarded.

At any one time, the report adds, about 25 percent of the country is under enough emotional stress that a doctor might diagnose such people as suffering from depression or anxiety.

Rich Bomb Target?

Blast Shatters Windows in SF

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco's wealthy were the apparent target of another bombing attack early today, in a raucous explosion that police said shattered windows in the city's plush Pacific Heights section but injured no one.

Responsibility for the explosion at about 2:45 a.m. was claimed by the Tom Hicks Unit, the New World Liberation Front, in a telephone call to the Associated Press early today.

THE ANONYMOUS FEMALE caller said "the bombing attack at Pacific Heights" was "to further press home our just demands for decent housing for all people in San Francisco."

She said an NWLF communique would be "available later."

Previous NWLF messages have said that attacks were to compel the city's rich to improve living conditions for the poor.

The attack was the sixth in about three weeks in the San Francisco Bay area claimed by the NWLF and its second within a week.

A blast early Friday at the San Francisco Opera House crumpled an aluminum awning outside the building and shattered windows but didn't delay the scheduled opening of the opera's 55th season Friday night.

"AS LONG AS POOR PEOPLE are forced to live in unsafe, unhealthy housing, ruling class functions will be threatened," said an NWLF communique to which the AP had been directed after the attack.

Police had difficulty finding the precise location of today's blast after reports of the noise flooded police switchboards, but authorities said the attack apparently centered near Broadway and Lyon streets.

A six-foot hole was reportedly blown open in a gate at the U.S. Army base at the Presidio and windows shattered in the Pacific Heights neighborhood over a two-block radius.

Petition to Ban Smoking Allowed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Supporters of a proposed initiative statute curbing smoking in enclosed areas have won the right to circulate petitions to get it on the California ballot.

Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger said Wednesday he had given the proposal submitted by the Clean Indoor Air Committee the title: "Regulation of Smoking," and had approved a summary of it.

Severe Rape Law Sought

SACRAMENTO (AP) — People convicted more than once for rape would be punished with life imprisonment without parole, if a new bill in the Senate becomes law.

Sen. H.L. "Bill" Richardson (R-Arcadia), said Wednesday his bill, SB 1300, would be appropriate punishment for such repeat rapists as Sacramento's "east area rapist." Police say this person is responsible for more than 20 rapes.

Current law punishes forcible rape with three, four or five years in prison with three years added to the sentence for each prior violent felony, for a maximum total of five years.

Citing an automatic one-third sentence reduction for good behavior, Richardson said that "the longest a violent rapist can be kept behind bars for a repeat conviction is six years and eight months."

His office said the measure would ban smoking in enclosed public places, places of employment and educational and health facilities, with specified exceptions, and require restaurants to establish nonsmoking sections. It would prohibit employment discrimination based on exercise of rights provided by the statute.

IT WOULD permit stricter local regulations, requiring posting of signs designating nonsmoking areas, and set fines for violations.

The signs would cost the state up to an estimated $600,000, which could be offset by unknown income from fines. The measure might also result in savings because of reduced health expenditures, sick leave and disability payments to employees.

The measure also could result in reduction of state and local cigarette tax receipts, the attorney general said.

Official Urges Ship Terminal For 2 Tankers

LONG BEACH (AP) — A proposal for an oil tanker terminal designed to accommodate two ships, rather than three as originally planned, was raised Wednesday at a meeting of the South Coast Air Quality Management District Board.

The board passed a motion by Orange County member Paul Raven ordering its staff to prepare a supplemental environmental impact statement on the effects of a two-berth facility. Standard Oil of Ohio (Sohio) has proposed a $45-million three-berth plan.

AN ENVIRONMENTAL impact statement has already been submitted on the three-berth, trestle-supported Sohio proposal, which would handle tanker shipments of up to 700,000 barrels a day of crude oil from Valdez, Alaska. The oil would be pumped through pipelines to Midland, Tex. for distribution to midwest refineries.

Raven's motion provides for public hearings within 30 days after the supplemental statement is released.

The statements include estimations of how much pollution the facility would create.

BUNDLE OF JOY CAUSES HEADACHE FOR LOS ANGELES COUPLE
Steve and Lois Wolfson Stand Outside Apartment With Adam, 2

Baby Brings Woe

Eviction Fight Could Be Landmark Case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Steve and Lois Wolfson's bundle of joy has caused them a peck of trouble ever since the landlord informed them their baby son would force their eviction from the apartment where they have lived for more than three years.

Culver City Municipal Court Judge Harold I. Chernes began hearing testimony today on the suit the Wolfsons filed to hold onto their $390-a-month home overlooking the yacht harbor at Marina del Rey.

They contend the apartment's ban on children violates state law. The case could have sweeping implications for millions of families with small children seeking rental housing.

MRS. WOLFSON BROUGHT her infant son, Adam, home from the hospital in September 1975, but nobody said a word about it for more than a year after he was born.

"We've never had any complaints about Adam," she said in an interview. "In fact, all of our neighbors have signed affidavits saying they like him and want him to stay in the building, and they're appearing in court on our behalf."

A neighbor, Robert Smith, whose bedroom is directly over the Wolfsons' apartment, said: "We've never been awakened by Adam crying. The Wolfsons are very considerate people and have asked us on several occasions to be sure the child isn't bothering us."

IN NOVEMBER 1976, after the Wolfsons had signed their lease renewal, they got a letter from the corporation that acts as landlord, Marina Point Ltd., telling them they would have to leave because of the child.

Entrenched there since February 1974, they decided to fight rather than move.

"We love it here. It's a terrific buy, and we're pleased with it," Wolfson said. "There's a great view of the marina from both bedrooms."

Several other children already live in the apartment complex. They lived there before the ban on children was imposed.

"The children from adjacent buildings who came over to play in front of this one are a lot noisier than Adam's ever been," Smith said.

A New Credibility Gap in Washington

Even as Bert Lance was scheduled to have his say before the Senate Committee, two things became painfully obvious:

—Lance has to go.

—President Carter has bungled this one badly.

It is clear that Lance's record as a financial wheeler dealer and his lack of candor with the Senate during his confirmation hearings and since have destroyed his usefulness. He simply would not have the confidence of the Congress and probably not the confidence of the people at large.

This is too bad because Lance by all reports has a pretty fair degree of competence and has had the confidence of the business community as a voice for moderation among the sometimes zany economic theorists in other parts of the administration and in the departments.

We have commented before on the fact that the furor resulting from the progressively more damaging revelations about Lance has overshadowed other problems that need more attention from Carter and more public discussion — the Panama Canal Treaty, the defense picture, the Middle East, energy and the economy generally.

Now we have Carter's own credibility suffering from the question of how much he really knew about Lance's situation. If he knew little or nothing, the administration looks terribly inept. If he knew much or all of the story, his judgment and his Mr. Clean image both are in question.

Now comes another damaging development: Press Secretary Jody Powell's "leak" of information about the supposed use by Sen. Charles Percy, a Lance critic, of free airplane transportation and other favors from various corporations.

Apparently Powell's information was wrong. And this could happen to a new boy in town.

But there are two disturbing aspects:

It begins to smack of the old Ron Ziegler performance in the eagerness to harpoon a critic.

More important, it raises the question of Carter's involvement in the leak.

If we are to believe that Carter keeps a tight rein on the finer points of White House staff activities, it is hard to believe that Powell would have leaked the information without Carter's knowledge. Carter is too smart to let a press secretary jeopardize his relations with a key member of the Congress without knowing what's going on.

Mr. Carter better be preparing a full, frank explanation of all that has transpired, and he had better be ready to deliver it soon. And it better be good.

There is a man living in San Clemente who could tell Mr. Carter the perils of stonewalling and cover-up.

Wrong Target

Meanwhile, Sen. S. I. Hayakawa has weighed in with his share of foolishness in the Lance affair.

Rushing to defend Mr. Lance's "giving up a lot to accept the federal job," Hayakawa railed against the media for reporting (and in some cases digging out) the activities which now have Lance in trouble with the Senate.

Hayakawa apparently belongs to those who believe that nothing a public official does would be improper or illegal if the media did not report it.

Rather than "driving good men away from government," as Sen. Hayakawa seems to feel, the media exposure is about the only mechanism available to the American public for making sure that they get good men in the government.

Latins Eye Panama

It seems incredible that the U.S. distributes millions of dollars throughout the world in order to shed responsibilities, while in Panama, where the gringos would like to stay forever, a considerably smaller sum is offered. The South Koreans do not want the Americans to go, yet the U.S. pays the South Koreans so they can pull out. There is just no way to understand the gringos.

The agreement will make us a sort of sanctuary — similar to Switzerland. In fact the only threat to the canal's security is sabotage. Our people have proven over 70 years that they are capable and responsible enough to keep it functioning. The agreement seems to be right and proper for the Panamanian community's best interests.

—La Republica, Panama City (pro-government).

The agreement in principle between the U.S. and Panama, in addition to providing a solution to the problem of the canal, also restores one's faith in the possibility of negotiating the many disputes that exist between our continent and the whole world. It is also palpable evidence of a new North American political style.

—La Nacion, San Jose (independent).

The projected new treaty represents a triumph for the Panamanians and for all Latin Americans. On few other occasions has there been such a continental consensus. Why, one might ask, is there not a similar unanimity about the independence of Puerto Rico?

Korea Memo Paints Grim Picture

WASHINGTON — The same Carter administration document that contemplates losing one-third of West Germany to a Soviet attack contends that removing U.S. troops from South Korea gives Washington "flexibility" to determine whether or not to intervene against Communist invasion from the north.

PRM (Presidential Review Memorandum) 10, a top secret inter-agency study of U.S. force structures, also is gloomy about holding the South Korean capital of Seoul against invading North Koreans today. Even with U.S. air and naval intervention and U.S. troops still stationed in South Korea, the study suggests Seoul cannot be held.

All this contradicts President Carter's assurances that his decision to remove the 2nd U.S. Infantry Division does not undercut the U.S. commitment to South Korea. It also undermines current military doctrine based on the retention of Seoul as a necessity. Thus, South Koreans face the same problem as the West Germans: shall they believe public pronouncements of U.S. leaders or private documents of their staff experts?

The administration's claim that PRM-10 merely discusses options is simply untrue. Just as PRM-10 states that present allied forces could not hold one-third of Germany, its disturbing comments on Korea are based on conditions before and after the U.S. troop pullout, not on any option.

"ONCE THE U.S. land forces are out of Korea," says PRM-10, "the U.S. has transformed its presence in Asia from a land-based posture to an off-shore posture. This... provides the U.S. flexibility to determine at the time whether it should or should not get involved in a local war."

The document goes on to reveal an unpublicized reason for removing the 2nd Division: to give Washington the choice of whether or not to intervene. With the troops gone, says PRM-10, "the risk of automatic involvement (which was a major factor in removing land forces from Korea) is minimized. However, should the U.S. decide to intervene, military forces would be readily available."

Even with the 2nd Division still on station and the U.S. supplying "initial air and naval support at D-Day," PRM-10 spins a grim scenario: "If the North Koreans were to achieve tactical surprise, it is possible that they could at least temporarily attain their most likely major objective — the capture of Seoul."

While predicting North Korea could not win "a sustained combat," it predicates this on major U.S. help. "With the U.S. contributions of land and carrier based tactical air assets and material support, it would appear that the U.S. and ROK (Republic of Korea) would prevail against North Korea in the longer term, but with possible initial setbacks — including perhaps the fall of Seoul."

WITHOUT U.S. help, the situation is desperate, according to PRM-10: "The level of forces which could be brought to bear at the front on D-Day would generally favor North Korea over the ROK in all categories. . . The ROK has widely spread infantry forces with limited mobility and vulnerable stocks of war materiel."

The document implies a return to the old U.S. strategy of keeping allied troops away from the DMZ and instead falling back on Seoul. Now-retired Lt. Gen. James Hollingsworth changed that when he took command nearly four years ago, contending the North Koreans wanted to capture Seoul quickly and then start debilitating peace negotiations. So, allied strategy changed to a forward defense of Seoul.

Such a defense requires Korean confidence in U.S. readiness to supply indispensable airpower. South Korea long has worried that its defense pact with Washington provides a less automatic U.S. response to invasion than does the NATO treaty. President Carter's July 25 letter sought to reassure President Park Chung Hee that the U.S. troop pullout does not mean "any change whatsoever in our commitment."

PRM-10 undercuts all of South Korea's expectations. While emphasizing that only U.S. air and naval intervention could stop an invasion, it now makes that intervention a matter of choice rather than automatic response.

After our column reported the PRM-10 assessment of a Soviet attack in Central Europe, a senior West German army officer secretly visited Washington to find the truth. Interviews with 30 people, the general said, left "not the shadow of doubt in my mind" that the column was accurate despite White House denials. South Korea's generals may now begin a similar process with hopes that the answer will be more reassuring than the findings of their German colleague.

Red Carpet Treatment for a Communist

WASHINGTON — For 25 years, the State Dept. has been arbitrarily blocking selected Communists from entering the United States by invoking a law from the Red Scare days of Sen. Joseph McCarthy.

The McCarran Act, passed in 1952, established nearly 30 categories of people who could not visit the United States unless they were recommended for visa waivers by the State Dept. Among the undesirable were prostitutes, polygamists, paupers and advocates of the "international doctrines of world communism."

Now, thanks to a recent bill passed by Congress, the McCarran Act will soon be less restrictive. Over the years, nevertheless, the law has often been selectively applied. Out of some 19,000 waiver applications last year, for example, only about a thousand were denied.

During the Richard Nixon-Henry Kissinger era, Communist leaders from Western Europe were considered anathema, because official visits to the United States would give them credibility at home. In 1975, for instance, a prominent Italian Communist, Sergio Segre, was invited to speak at the New York Council on Foreign Relations. The waiver was denied and the conference had to be cancelled.

COMMUNISTS who were critical of U.S. allies were also considered verboten by the Nixon administration. One such case involved a prominent British citizen, Carmel Budiardjo, who wanted to lecture in the United States on human rights violations in Indonesia. Under pressure from the Indonesian government, the State Dept. temporarily withheld her visa on the grounds that she had previously lied about being a Communist from 1946 to 1948.

In contrast, Communists who have the State Dept. seal of approval are speedily granted visa waivers and are ushered in on a red carpet.

Take Vulkan Shopov, chief of agriculture for the Bulgarian Communist party. As an Eastern European Communist, in an era of détente, he is ardently courted by U.S. diplomats.

SHOPOV CAME to the United States in June at the invitation of the State Dept. The U.S. taxpayers footed the bill for his month-long visit, including travel expenses to and from Bulgaria.

In a May 9 cable to the State

Dept., the U.S. ambassador in Sofia, Martin Herz, was ecstatic about Shopov's pending tour. "Embassy strongly believes (Shopov) must be accorded VIP status as far as (expenses) and general treatment is concerned," exclaimed Herz.

The Communist leader, cabled to the ambassador, should be taken to a "Southeastern agricultural region, including visit to Atlanta or other Southern city; the Great Plains wheat, corn and soybean region; and the Western states."

In general, wrote Herz, Shopov "would like to see most advanced forms of American agricultural technology. He has said he expects to work hard during the visit."

DESPITE the distinguished Bulgarian's announced intention to keep his nose to the grindstone, Herz suggested some lavish entertainment for the visitor:

"He would appreciate chance to see modern American dance (though we suspect anything too avant-garde would not go down well; believe American Ballet Theater, Alvin Ailey or Eliot Feld would be just about right). Broadway show (suggest, if possible, 'A Chorus Line' or 'Bubbling Brown Sugar'). Opera, or orchestral concerts. Shopov not interested in jazz or rock."

The ambassador added a "special note." In his talks with Shopov, wrote Herz, the Bulgarian made a "special point of saying he does not want to bump into correspondents from (Radio Free Europe) while in U.S., and does not wish to give interview to (Voice of America). . . He asked that interpreter not be 'political immigrant' . . ."

Shopov had been assured, the ambassador stated, "that interpreter would be selected in such fashion as to assure there would be absolutely no political embarrassment."

WHEN HE finally arrived in the United States, Shopov was taken to the Smithsonian, the Kennedy Center, colonial Williamsburg, Va., and to other spots around the country.

But the scholarly Shopov, a State Dept. official told us, "squeezed in" the cultural sights only when he had spare time. The Bulgarian decided to forego Disneyland, which "disappointed" State Dept. officials.

Footnote: While Communists need waivers to visit the United States, leaders of repressive right-wing regimes such as Chile, South Korea and Argentina, can come and go as they wish.

'Romeo and Juliet' Wasn't Meant as Romance

Asked to name Shakespeare's "most romantic" play, ninety-nine persons out of 100 would promptly reply: "Romeo and Juliet." And they would be shocked and disbelieving to be told it is really an "anti-romantic" play.

In recalling the tale, it is easy to forget that Romeo was passionately in love with another girl in the first act. Her name was Rosaline, and Romeo is convinced no other woman exists for him — that is, until he spies Juliet, who is not yet 14. Then he is just as quickly convinced that he "never saw true beauty till this night."

knew nothing about each other. It is not only love at first sight, but first sight is nearly last sight. Their contacts are brief, furtive, and spasmodic; their mutual infatuation lasts only a few days, to be culminated in the double tragedy.

Several playwrights — the funniest among them being W.S. Gilbert — have speculated on what the married life of Romeo and Juliet might have been like if they had not perished. The consensus is that they would have ended like most married couples, in a true, comfortable or uneasy.

IT IS NOT the enmity between the Montagues and Capulets that precipitates the tragedy, but the hastiness of the couple. They are slaves of passion, and Shakespeare consistently warns us that catastrophe awaits such people. ("O give me that

It is interesting to note, further, that Shakespeare borrowed the story from a long poem by Arthur Brooke, in which the original Juliet is a "wily wench" who waxes merry over her successful deception of her mother. Brooke sees the death of the couple as "deserved punishment" for their rashness (Shakespeare goes even further by changing Brooke's months into days, so that Romeo and Juliet are virtually strangers to each other.)

EVERYTHING in the play is an unfortunate "accident," brought on by their headlong passion. It is accidental that Mercutio takes Romeo to the dance where he meets Juliet. It is an accident that brings him to the fateful duel between Tybalt and Mercutio. It is an accident that

Friar John is quarantined. And it is a fatal accident that Juliet awakens from her trance a moment too late to prevent Romeo taking poison.

It is not a play about "love" at all, but about romantic rashness. Everybody is overexcited, especially Romeo at each critical turning of the plot. The impetuosity of the Montagues and Capulets is reflected in the behavior of their children — and "Romeo and Juliet," rather than being a dramatic rebuke to the hatred between the houses, is an example of "the sins of the fathers being handed down to the children."

Shakespeare was for love, as no poet before or since; he was not for its callow counterfeits, or for passion out of control, lives lost by blind chance. This is what his "most romantic" play is all about.

Lance Claims 'Conscience Clear'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Budget Director Bert Lance told the American public "my conscience is clear" today and made a point-by-point defense of his personal loans and overdrafts as a Georgia banker.

Lance, one of President Carter's closest aides, said at Senate hearings into his financial affairs that published allegations have caused him "profound shock and disappointment." "I did not ask for this fight but now that I am in it, I am fighting not only for myself and for my family but also for our system," he said.

Lance, who has said he will not resign, declared, "Is it part of our American system that a man can be drummed out of government by a series of false charges, half truths, misrepresentations, innuendos and the like?"

He asked the nationwide television and radio audience to be the jury "for I am secure and comfortable knowing that my conscience is clear and that the people's verdict will be a fair and just one."

Lance had been saving his point-by-point rebuttal for the committee hearing, which supporters have referred to as "his day in court." Some arguments had been made previously by Lance or his assistants, but he saved his most comprehensive defense for his appearance before the committee and the cameras.

At one point, Lance made a face-to-face challenge to Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois, the committee's senior Republican, who previously asked whether Lance may have backdated checks to take advantage of income tax deductions.

Lance said he found Percy's statements "puzzling . . . regrettable" and offered an explanation that led Percy to concede: "It was wrong for me to even raise the possibility."

With his wife, LaBelle, and guests from Georgia in the audience, Lance said his family's overdrafts did no harm to the Calhoun First National Bank while he was its chairman.

"The bank for years followed a liberal policy with respect to overdrafts," Lance said. "I make no apology for this practice. It was believed by the bank's management that a liberal overdraft policy was a valuable tool for the bank to use in attracting and retaining customers."

"Despite the characterization of the bank as my personal toy, members of the Lance family were not accorded special favors regarding overdrafts. The liberal overdraft policy of the bank was available to all depositors," Lance said.

Comptroller of the Currency John Heimann said in a report Aug. 18 that "the overdrafts permitted to bank directors, officers and their families (including Mr. Lance) by Calhoun constituted unsafe and unsound banking practices."

The comptroller's office found the overdrafts to be excessive and in December 1975, reached an agreement with the bank to prevent them from continuing.

Speedy Barbeque Backfires

Newport Beach firemen have estimated damage to an Irvine Terrace home at $30,000 after the home's garage was ignited in a mishap involving gasoline.

Department spokesman Art Morton said the blaze at the home of Michael Brawn, 2111 Kewamee Drive, was reported at about 8:30 p.m. Wednesday.

According to fire department reports, Brawn, 36, was having trouble getting his backyard barbecue started.

Morton said Brawn apparently became frustrated when attempts to ignite the barbecue with starter fluid failed, so he got a five-gallon can of gasoline from his garage.

Brawn reportedly poured some of the gas into a cup and tossed part of it on the smoldering brickettes.

According to Morton, the gas ignited, including the gas that remained in the cup.

Brawn dropped the flaming cup and backed away from the blaze, knocking over the uncapped five-gallon can, which also burst into flame, Morton said.

Morton said Brawn then apparently tried to kick the can away from the flames and in his haste sent it hurtling into the side of the garage, which also caught fire.

Air Force Plane Crash Kills 20

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — An Air Force plane slammed into a mountainside on a high security Army base, killing all 20 people aboard when it exploded on impact a half mile from a bunker containing fissionable material, authorities said.

The four-engine plane crashed on Manzano Base, where nuclear weapons are stored, three minutes after its takeoff from Kirtland Air Force Base at 11:45 p.m. Wednesday.

Kirtland base operations confirmed there were no survivors, said Walter Sprick of the Federal Aviation Administration.

"One big fireball and that was it," a nearby resident said.

Air Force crews using flares and helicopter spotlights recovered at least 15 bodies in a predawn search. Authorities said all those aboard were military personnel.

A spokesman at the plane's base said it was used frequently by high-ranking military personnel and American and foreign dignitaries.

Former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is among those who have used the plane, the spokesman said.

The aircraft, which was scattered over 10 acres after impact, was used as a model for modifications to Air Force One, the president's plane.

An air traffic controller said he tried to warn the pilot the plane was in trouble.

"The first indication we had he was in trouble was when the radar showed he was too close to the mountain and flying too low," said the controller.

"We hit him on the guard frequency and told him to turn right and climb . . . but he never did," he said.

The jet was a communications aircraft based at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base in Goldsboro, N.C. An Air Force spokesman said it was on a training mission and was on its way to Nellis Air Force base in Nevada.

The EC135, described as a "modified 707," stopped in Albuquerque to refuel, the spokesman said.

NB Plea Falls Flat Realtors Polite to Councilman Ryckoff

By JOANNE REYNOLDS
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Conceding that he "probably won't change your minds at all," Newport Beach City Councilman Paul Ryckoff took his case for a building moratorium to the Newport Harbor-Costa Mesa Board of Realtors this morning.

The 50 real estate agents and brokers who attended the breakfast session at the Marriott Hotel were polite, but apparently unimpressed with Ryckoff's proposal. They gave a colleague a rousing ovation when he urged the councilman to leave the moratorium issue alone and move ahead with road construction instead.

Ryckoff has twice this year failed to get his fellow councilmen to approve a moratorium he says would only last four months in order to give the city time to lower building densities on the city's remaining open land.

Ryckoff said this morning that, if his next bid — which comes before the council Monday — fails, he will support a citizens group which is planning to launch an initiative drive to get the issue on next April's ballot.

The councilman acknowledged that there is merit in the arguments of the pro-development faction as well as the pro-moratorium faction, but said he believes most of the residents of Newport Beach favor a moratorium.

He also said he believes most of the city's residents want the city to move quickly on road improvement projects such as the widening of Pacific Coast Highway, MacArthur Boulevard and Jamboree Road to six lanes. He pledged to work on expediting those projects.

But Ryckoff said that divergent opinions on the extension of University Drive and the completion of Fifth Avenue in Corona del Mar means those projects are not likely to be undertaken.

He said he doesn't believe a moratorium would force housing prices up, but he noted that a subsequent lowering of allowable densities would probably increase property values in the city by reducing the future supply of housing.

"I feel no personal obligation to provide low cost housing in Newport Beach," he added.

Ryckoff said the proposed moratorium, "might not cover all of Newport Beach" and cited West Newport as an example of an area that might be excluded.

He said he was particularly concerned with proposed residential development at the Castaways adjacent to Dover Drive and at the Newporter North site, saying that proposed densities of eight dwelling units per acre need to be reduced.

Ryckoff also said he is backing the moratorium because of proposed commercial projects such as the 450,000-square foot Prudential high rise planned for Newport Center.

McDonald's Gets Break

Newport Beach planning commissioners think McDonald's deserves a break for being the cleanest commercial establishment in the city.

The hamburger restaurant at 700 W. Coast Highway, the subject of controversy when it was built in 1972, won a special award at the conclusion of the city's Litter Awareness Week.

Planning commissioners were enlisted as judges to view each of the city's commercial and residential neighborhoods before the week began and repeated their tour at the conclusion of the week.

Commissioners handed out prizes for the cleanest, most improved and last place (dirtiest) neighborhoods.

Commission chairman Jackie Heather said the group decided to do something extra for McDonald's because the eatery was remarkably free of litter all the time.

Mrs. Heather said the restaurant's operators have kept it one of the cleanest places in town.

Commissioners also cited all of Mariners Mile from the Arches at Newport Boulevard to Dover Drive as the city's cleanest commercial area. The residential award went to The Bluffs.

Most improved areas were the commercial and residential neighborhoods on Balboa Island.

Last place in both categories went to West Newport.

Woman Bilked of $2,200

Newport Beach police are looking for the two young women who bilked an elderly woman out of $2,200 in cash and her wedding rings in what one detective described as "a textbook case of pigeon drop."

Pigeon drop is the name of a bunco scheme practiced usually on elderly women, like the 74-year-old Santa Ana resident who was victimized Wednesday afternoon.

Police said the woman was shopping at South Coast Plaza in Costa Mesa when a woman in her mid-twenties stopped her in the mall and pretended to be an acquaintance. They chatted for a while and the young woman related she had a friend who had found a bag containing $45,000 in cash and some pornographic photos.

The young woman told her elderly companion that the friend was afraid to turn the money in to police, but didn't know what to do with it.

At this point, the friend joined the two women and the first young woman suggested she talk to her boss to see what should be done.

While the pair waited, the young woman disappeared, allegedly to see her employer, and returned with the following advice: They could keep the cash, since it was probably illicitly gained and they could divide it up between them, provided they didn't spend any for 90 days.

In order to qualify for their share, each of the three women would have to show an attorney, a Mr. Stouts, they had enough cash to live on for the 90-day waiting period.

The two young women took the older woman to her home where she got the money and the rings then drove to the attorney's office in Newport Beach.

One woman went up to the lawyer's office with the woman's funds and with the found money, returning moments later apparently empty-handed.

The older woman was then sent upstairs to talk to the lawyer and collect her cash, but when she got there, there was no lawyer's office, no cash and by then, the two young women had departed.

New Sanity Trial Ordered For Allaway

Edward Charles Allaway, convicted of shooting to death seven persons on the Cal State Fullerton campus, was ordered today to face a new sanity trial Nov. 2.

Allaway, a 38-year-old ex-campus janitor, sat mute in the courtroom of Superior Court Judge Robert Kneeland as the judge scheduled the new trial, presumably by jury, on the sanity phase of the mass-murder case.

The jury which convicted Allaway last month was unable to reach a verdict on whether he was sane when he went on a shotgun-shooting binge July 12, 1976.

The custodian was apparently despondent over marital problems at the time.

Coast Feels Quake From Anaheim Area

A Wednesday earthquake centered on a fault in Anaheim measured 2.7 on the Richter scale and was strong enough to be felt by residents as far away as Costa Mesa, Cal State Fullerton seismologists said today.

It was the first quake that could be detected without instruments in Orange County since Memorial Day, according to Christopher Buckley, assistant professor of earth sciences.

Buckley said the quake hit at 2:35 p.m. on an unnamed fault five miles south of the campus. The tremor caused no damage and apparently affected an area 15 miles from its point of origin.

Baby Died Base Holiday Limited Care

MIAMI (AP) — Michelle Pope's baby died at delivery because a base hospital was on a three-day holiday and the limited staff failed to give her "proper care and treatment."

The Air Force admits it was at fault. It has offered $15,000 in restitution.

But Mrs. Pope and her estranged husband, Army Sgt. James Pope, say it's not enough to make up for mental suffering and the breakup of their marriage.

"I never saw my baby. I had to ask if it was a boy or a girl. I wanted her to have her name, not just a dead baby," Mrs. Pope testified Wednesday.

A federal judge set a final hearing for Friday to decide the government's liability. It was not known how much the Papes are asking.

Testimony showed Jessica Marie was alive and well in her mother's womb when the time for delivery arrived and passed but that labor should have been induced.

But the Homestead Air Force Base hospital staff failed to give Mrs. Pope needed tests when she arrived because no doctors were on duty during the 1975 Veterans Day holiday. The night duty nurses, the government added, were not certain of their ability to treat the woman.

"I knew what was going on, but I didn't want to know," Mrs. Pope testified Wednesday in a choked voice.

Black's Beach 'Failed Noble Experiment'?

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Turning over a public beach to nudism was "a noble experiment that failed," a newspaper said today in urging that Black's Beach be restricted to suit-wearing.

"Even its advocates now deplore the voyeurism, the occasional bizarre behavior, the body painting of unclothed children," said the San Diego Union in an editorial.

The municipal beach has been classified "swimsuit optional" for three years and is one of the most popular areas along the coast.

The newspaper, urging approval of an election issue before San Diegans on Tuesday, said it agreed with police that Black's Beach is "not a hotbed of crime."

But it is "the only area of its kind in the entire country — it is the kind of attraction we don't need and don't want," the Union said.

15 Watches Taken From NB Shop

Someone walked off Wednesday with 15 watches from Antiques and nauticals, 430 W. Coast Highway, Newport Beach police reported today.

A shop employee said the watches, valued at $2,150, were last seen in a display case about 3:15 p.m. They were gone when the case was checked at 4:30 p.m.

Doctor Held In Molesting

LA CRESCENTA (AP) — A Los Angeles County health department physician has been booked for investigation of molesting a 13-year-old boy at a picnic site Sept. 3, sheriff's deputies said.

Three rolls of pornographic movies, 55 boxes of slides and 100 rolls of undeveloped film were seized during the arrest of Dr. Dale Roger Scharer at his home, said Deputy Willey Burrow.

In taking responsibility for the death, the Air Force said: "The United States does not contest the allegation that if proper care and treatment were rendered to the patient, Michelle Pope, the baby would, based on a reasonable degree of medical certainty, have been delivered alive and healthy."

speaking to her or show her the baby.

"I looked over and the nurse was crying," Mrs. Pope recalled. "Then I knew."

She said her divorce one year later was caused by the mental anguish she and her husband suffered because of the baby's death.

Mrs. Pope broke down on the stand and the testimony was recessed for 15 minutes to allow her to regain composure.

Radioactive Waste 'Threatens Power'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite decades of study, the United States still has not figured out how to get rid of dangerously radioactive waste from power plants and military-weapons production, the General Accounting Office reports.

Unless this problem is solved, the GAO says, the accumulation of nuclear wastes with hazardous radiation that lasts up to half a million years "threatens the future of nuclear power in the United States."

Robert W. Fri, acting administrator of the Energy Research and Development Administration, defended the waste-disposal program before a House government operations subcommittee.

He said that many of the GAO's observations are based on 1976 data and outdated. He said that his agency, which will be absorbed by the Department of Energy on Oct. 1 — is doing the best it can to deal with the problems.

Fri said that the Carter administration will shortly announce plans to deal with spent fuel at commercial reactors, a program under which the government would reportedly offer to take these wastes off the hands of commercial plants for a fee.

The Energy Research and Development Administration is planning to develop six locations for long-term or permanent burial of radioactive wastes by 1985. But the report by the investigative arm of Congress says that "ERDA may have promised more than it can deliver."

"There are, we believe, formidable social, geological and regulatory problems which must be solved," it continues. "Foremost among them is opposition of the public and some political leaders."

"ERDA may not be successful in gaining their acceptance unless it can convince people that it has a sound waste-management program and that geological disposal risks to man's environment are acceptably low," a difficult task, the report said.

"Some radioactive wastes will remain hazardous for hundreds of thousands of years," it said, meaning they must be permanently isolated from human contact and environmental influence.

"A program must be developed for present and future waste-disposal operations that will not create unwarranted public risk. Otherwise, nuclear power cannot continue to be a practical source of energy," it said.

ERDA is considering burial of radioactive wastes in underground salt formations that are stable, relatively free of circulating ground water and able to carry off heat from the radioactive wastes, block the escape of radiation about as effectively as concrete and stretch, rather than shatter, in an earthquake.

Hoag to Host Fair to Note Anniversary

In celebration of its first 25 years service, Hoag Memorial Hospital will host a free health fair Saturday as the hospital's thank you gift to the community for its support. (See related story, Page A13.)

More than 30 health organizations will be on hand to provide information and demonstrations. The event opens at 10 a.m. in the hospital parking lot. Included will be the emergency medical service teams from the Costa Mesa and Newport Beach Fire Departments as well as a rescue helicopter from El Toro Marine Corps Air Station.

There will be continuous entertainment from 10:30 a.m. until 4 p.m. "Healthy" food will be available for 25 cents and there will be free cake and ice cream following a cake cutting ceremony at noon.

Included in the list of dignitaries expected to attend are Assemblyman Dennis Mangers (D-Huntington Beach), Assemblyman Ron Cordova (D-El Toro), Mayor Milan Dostal of Newport Beach, Mayor Ron Patterson of Huntington Beach and Mayor Bill Vardoulis of Irvine.

Entertainment will be provided by local Girl Scout troops, the Harbor Singers, the All Organic Low Calorie Kazoo Band, the Retrogressive Five and the singers from the Live Wire singing telegram agency.

Air Force Plane Crashes; 20 Killed

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — An Air Force plane slammed into a mountainside on a high security Army base, killing all 20 people aboard when it exploded on impact a half mile from a bunker containing fissionable material, authorities said.

The four-engine plane crashed on Manzano Base, where nuclear weapons are stored, three minutes after its takeoff from Kirtland Air Force Base at 11:45 p.m. Wednesday.

Kirtland base operations confirmed there were no survivors, said Walter Sprick of the Federal Aviation Administration.

"One big fireball and that was it," a nearby resident said.

Air Force crews using flares and helicopter spotlights recovered at least 15 bodies in a predawn search. Authorities said all those aboard were military personnel.

A spokesman at the plane's base said it was used frequently by high-ranking military personnel and American and foreign dignitaries.

Former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is among those who have used the plane, the spokesman said.

The aircraft, which was scattered over 10 acres after impact, was used as a model for modifications to Air Force One, the president's plane.

An air traffic controller said he tried to warn the pilot the plane was in trouble.

"The first indication we had he was in trouble was when the radar showed he was too close to the mountain and flying too low," said the controller.

"We hit him on the guard frequency and told him to turn right and climb... but he never did," he said.

The jet was a communications aircraft based at Seymour Johnson Air Force Base in Goldsboro, N.C. An Air Force spokesman said it was on a training mission and was on its way to Nellis Air Force base in Nevada.

The EC135, described as a

"modified 707," stopped in Albuquerque to refuel, the spokesman said.

A spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration said the pilot made what was probably a routine attempt to contact departure control just after takeoff. The tower responded, but the pilot didn't return the communication.

Plans Dumped

Viejo Loses 3 Highways

Three proposed highways in Plano Trabuco in the Mission Viejo area were deleted from a county highway plan approved Wednesday by the Orange County Board of Supervisors.

The deleted roads were sought by the Mission Viejo Company and endorsed by the county planning commission.

But supervisors decided approval of the highways would be an infringement of south county population growth goals approved in 1976.

It was on a motion made by Supervisor Ralph Diedrich that the board voted unanimously to delete the roadways most planners felt would open the area to development.

Earlier, the Board of Supervisors asked the planning commission to reconsider its endorsement of the three highways.

But when the amendment to the county's circulation element was returned to the board it still bore the commission's stamp of approval.

The plan approved by supervisors deleted establishment of Live Oak Canyon Road as a secondary arterial highway.

A staff report pointed out the road was "designated as a nature corridor" and therefore not eligible for widening beyond its existing two lanes.

In general the circulation element covering the south county area approved by supervisors was consistent with the population growth needs adopted by the board in mid-1976.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Judiciary Committee approved today, by a 9-8 vote, a proposed constitutional amendment to provide for the election of the president by direct popular vote.

Also rejected was a proposed amendment to retain the electoral college system of electing the president but to allot each state's electoral votes to the candidates in proportion to their popular vote in the state. This lost 8 to 7.

New Theater Group Starting in Viejo

An organizational meeting for the new Mission Viejo Repertory Theater will begin at 7:30 tonight in Mission Viejo High School's Little Theater.

All people who are interested in becoming involved in the group or who support the idea of a serious theater in the community are invited to attend the meeting.

The group will be the second community theater organization in the area. The Saddleback Valley Community Theater formed little more than two years ago.

"I hope the area can support the two groups," said Pat Cyllem, one of the organizers of the new group. She explained that her group envisions more professional productions, including possibly a Shakespearean festival and a summer music fair.

Eventually, she said, they hope to bring in people from the outside "and really make it something big."

Organizers will announce their play schedule and the name of their first production during the meeting this evening.

Capo Board, MAC Support Park Plan

The Capistrano Unified School District and Mission Viejo's Municipal Advisory Council have endorsed a proposed county-school district joint use and development plan for 90-acre Oso Viejo Community Park.

The park site is located in the heart of Mission Viejo along Oso Creek between Jeronimo and La Paz Roads. Part of the land is planned by CUSD as an elementary school site.

The MAC and school district both acted on the joint development plan at their meetings Monday night.

Orange County supervisors transferred $250,000 this week from the general fund to the Oso Viejo project — the first funding set aside for development of the acreage.

As it now stands, the school district would use 10 acres of the site to build its school and develop another 10 acres for recreational use by both the school district and the community.

The remaining land would be developed by the county with a trail system along the creek, practice fields, four soccer fields, seven softball fields, a baseball field, a running track, open space and parking lots.

'Conscience Clear'

Lance 'Armed' For Hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bert Lance struck back at his tormentors today, acting as if he considered himself Gulliver beset by Lilliputians.

He let it be known at the outset that his remarks were aimed at the American people, not the senators on the Governmental Affairs Committee.

"I WELCOME THEM AS THE jury in this proceeding," Lance said into the television cameras. "I am secure and comfortable knowing that my conscience is clear and that the people's verdict will be a fair and just one."

The setting was one of those big Senate Office Building hearing rooms that have become so familiar in movie and TV fictionalized accounts as well as in real life. The Senate Watergate hearings spring to mind, although they were in a different chamber.

Lance, the kind of big amiable fellow who looks as if he'd cry if he squashed a bug, came armed for the fight with a 49-page statement to read. And Sen. Abraham Ribicoff (D-Conn.), the chairman of the committee, said he'd get all the time he needed, if it takes a Saturday session.

That alone indicates a serious matter.

LANCE WALKED INTO THE hearing room 15 minutes early with his lawyer, Clark Clifford, who was described as urbane as long ago as Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman. Now he's described as white-haired and urbane.

"I don't feel lonely today at all," said Lance as he looked around the crowded room.

He had plenty of support. Wife LaBelle and son David, 22, sat in the front row, right behind the tables for reporters.

"Nervous this morning?" a reporter asked as Lance made his way to center stage.

"No," he said.

HE STOOD COMFORTABLY BEHIND the witness table as a horde of photographers, sandwiched between the senators at their semicircular bench, clicked away. Lance's hands were in his pockets. He looked unruffled.

The senators, meanwhile, looked lonely and ignored. Ribicoff called the hearing to order five minutes late and intoned that "we don't intend this to be a trial by ordeal."

AND SO IT WENT, LANCE'S first session of what he called his day in court.

One lesson he has learned, Lance told the senators in a Gulliver-to-Lilliputian tone of voice, "is to be mighty careful in the future when I am discussing basic human rights."

Inquiry Panel Sets HB Rocket Study

By ARTHUR R. VINSEL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A special study panel of inquiry was appointed today by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) to study why a rocket built in Huntington Beach failed in a Tuesday night launch from Cape Canaveral's Kennedy Space Center.

The giant rocket hefting a European Space Agency (ESA) communications satellite into the heavens on an experimental mission was blown to bits like a $40 million firecracker.

Divers began to hunt wreckage at daybreak Wednesday along the sea floor in 65-foot depths of the Atlantic Ocean off the cape to reassemble in search of clues to the failure.

A NASA spokesman in Washington, D.C. said today it appears the rocket built by McDonnell Douglas Astronautics Company began to break up in flight.

Flight records of the first Delta since 1969, indicate the craft began to tumble and had to be destroyed aloft by remote control to prevent an accident on the ground — possibly involving inhabited areas.

A spokesman for the Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md., said Wednesday that onboard TV cameras monitoring the ship showed fire breaking out at the top of one engine just beforehand.

The onboard blaze and sudden erratic trajectory convinced a U.S. Air Force range safety officer it was time to press the red button and blow the missile to bits.

Major parts of the Delta plunged, fiery and hissing, into the sea from about five miles in the sky in a dazzling aerial display visible for miles over the southeastern United States.

Other portions fluttered lightly to earth on Cape Canaveral's tip.

Police Probe Copy of Bomb Plan in Irvine

Irvine police were trying today to determine the authenticity of a Xerox copy of an apparent plan to make a bomb, discovered Wednesday by an Edwards Laboratories employee.

The diagram was found in the printout tray of the copying machine, located just inside the loading and shipping dock of the facility, at 1401 Alton Ave.

Personnel Manager Rick Barkley called police when an employee showed him the drawing.

Police said the drawing appeared to be plans for a radio-controlled bomb, which diagrammed blasting caps and three sticks of dynamite, with power booster, batteries and what appeared to be a television receiver.

The maker of the diagrams apparently was semi-literate. Several labeling words were misspelled.

Newport Theft

'Pigeon' Gives Money, Rings

Newport Beach police are looking for the two young women who bilked an elderly woman out of $2,200 in cash and her wedding rings in what one detective described as "a textbook case of pigeon drop."

Pigeon drop is the name of a bunco scheme practiced usually on elderly women, like the 74-year-old Santa Ana resident who was victimized Wednesday afternoon.

Police said the woman was shopping at South Coast Plaza in Costa Mesa when a woman in her mid-twenties stopped her in the mall and pretended to be an acquaintance. They chatted for a while and the young woman related she had a friend who had found a bag containing $45,000 in cash and some pornographic photos.

The young woman told her elderly companion that the friend was afraid to turn the money in to police, but didn't know what to do with it.

At this point, the friend joined the two women and the first young woman suggested she talk to her boss to see what should be done.

While the pair waited, the young woman disappeared, allegedly to see her employer, and returned with the following advice:

They could keep the cash, since it was probably illicitly gained and they could divide it up between them, provided they didn't spend any for 90 days.

In order to qualify for their share, each of the three women would have to show an attorney, a Mr. Stouts, they had enough cash to live on for the 90-day waiting period.

The two young women took the older woman to her home where she got the money and the rings then drove to the attorney's office in Newport Beach.

One woman went up to the lawyer's office with the woman's funds and with the found money, returning moments later apparently empty-handed.

The older woman was then sent upstairs to talk to the lawyer and collect her cash, but when she got there, there was no lawyer's office, no cash and by then, the two young women had departed.

tions against him have been "erroneous... misrepresented... and exaggerated." Moreover, he said, "some are completely misunderstood because those making the charge do not have all the facts."

"I did not ask for this fight, but now that I am in it, I am fighting not only for myself but also for our system," Lance declared. "I was a successful businessman in my home state, and I thought I had an important contribution to make by coming into government service."

The budget director has said again and again he will not quit. His demeanor and his words appeared to underscore that determination.

But even as he spoke, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill told reporters that because of Lance's financial problems "the image of the President is going down a little bit."

Seated at a long table covered with green felt and emblazoned with a nameplate — "Mr. Lance" — the budget director told the committee: "The rights that I thought I possessed have gone, one by one, down the drain..."

"Were my rights protected?" he asked. "We'll let the American people answer that."

He declined to "contend that I made no mistakes" when he ran the Calhoun First National Bank of Calhoun, Ga., of which he was board chairman, and the National Bank of Georgia, in Atlanta, which he served as president.

"But to accept the assertion that I could not even manage a small country bank, one must ignore the objective facts," he told the committee, which recommended his confirmation as the nation's budget maker last January.

Lance told the panel he answered questions from members and from its staff fully and accurately in January and withheld nothing.

In regard to personal loans he received from banks with which his own banks had special relationships, he said, "In no instance was there a finding that the terms of my loans were more favorable" because of the business ties.

Lance vigorously denied he had backdated any checks to allow him to take income tax deductions for 1976, a possibility suggested by Percy Friday. Lance also made it clear that he did not take any improper deductions.

"I deeply regret that Sen. Percy saw fit to act in this regrettable manner in making a charge which has no merit whatsoever," Lance declared.

Two New Cop Shows, Redd Foxx in Debuts

By JAY SHARBUTT
 LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three new series wobble in tonight — a California Highway Patrol parody called "CHIPS" on NBC, Channel 4 at 8, and ABC's "Carter Country" sitcom and Redd Foxx' new comedy, music and old-times hour on Channel 7.
 We warn right off the bat that NBC's entry is a stone dog. Intended as action without gunfire, it is show without mind. It stars Larry Wilcox and Erik Estrada as two cheery motorcycle cops.
 Wilcox is your basic All-American, aw-shucks boy. Estrada plays the lady killer, "Ponch." He has a crooked smile, but straight teeth. Both are dashing young bachelors, Kawasaki Kids, if you will.

IN THEIR premiere hour, they roar about, grin, meet a pretty crash victim and bring a hot-car ring to justice. Ponch also gets to fall in a mess of spilled glue and emit such classic lines as:
 "If I ever scope that turkey again, I'm gonna pull him out through his wind wing, seat belt attached."
 ABC's "Carter Country" is about a young, New York-trained black cop (Kene Holliday) who is a sergeant on the small-town, once all-white Georgia constabulary of Victor French, who plays the police chief.
 Tonight's premiere involves a presidential visit: French's fried chicken; a man-hungry, middle-aged secretary; a low-key redneck in police blue and a mayor who fears only his mother and French.
 IF THE show has a memorable line, I forgot it. It's just another Hollywood attempt at Southern humor, with a few affirmative-action and mild racial gags tossed in to indicate progress.

 The Redd Foxx hour on ABC has the only hope of success among tonight's new entries, and that hope is faint unless he relies more on improved skits and less on a friendly, laugh-at-anthing studio audience.
 He opens with a good bit involving two bogus world leaders, and follows with a passable monologue in which he notes ABC's censors "decided the only thing I could do from my night club act is smoke."
 But things bog down with now-obligatory

Anita Bryant jokes; a skit on how a black named Yuma, Ariz.; a massage parlor routine, and a scene from "The Wiz" we saw on H. Cosell's variety show two years ago.

STILL, THREE good moments are worth your time — a too-brief visit from Ippon Jaw Wilson, an old Foxx pal, a surprisingly good reading of "Easy to Love" by Foxx, and a largely spent routine about inventors.
 The last has Foxx and Byron Paul, executive producer of last year's Dick Van Dyke show on NBC, as inventors of identical and amazing mixing blenders. Had Foxx cut the dialogue, shortened the beginning and end, the routine would equal Ernie Kovacs' best.

Tonight's TV Highlights

NBC 8:00 — Chips. The only new cop show of the season, this one follows a pair of California Highway Patrol motorcycle officers (Larry Wilcox and Erik Estrada) on their rounds.

ABC 8:00 — Welcome Back, Kotter. Gabe and Julie start off the new season by producing twins in this hour-long opening segment. Gabriel Kaplan stars.

NBC 9:00 — Rock Music Awards. Pop stars turn out at the Palladium in Hollywood for this third annual event, hosted by Peter Frampton and Olivia Newton-John.

ABC 9:30 — Carter Country. It's "In the Heart of the Night" with laughs as a black policeman (Kene Holliday) joins the staff of a Southern-fried sheriff (Victor French) in this season premiere.

'Barth' Plays Rocker

Martin Mull, who is Barth Gimble on "Fernwood Tonight," will play a rock superstar on "Wonder Woman." Dean Jones and Paul Sand will star in "Once Upon a Brothers Grimm," a two-hour CBS Thanksgiving special.
 Illya Baskin and George Pusep, Jewish immigrant actor who were film stars in the Soviet Union, will play Russians in ABC's "The San Pedro Beach Bums." David Gerber, executive producer of "Police Story," will participate in a workshop panel on television violence at the 84th annual Conference of the International Association of Chiefs of Police in Los Angeles on Oct. 5. Phil Bruns, who was the father of TV's Mary Hartman, will play a shady gas station operator in MGM's "Stingray."

VD Abundant Among Gays

DENVER (AP) — Sexually active homosexuals have a 33 percent chance of contracting gonorrhea in a gay bath house, a local study by public health officials has shown.

The finding, published in the American Journal of Public Health, was contained in a study conducted between January and October 1976 by the Denver Metro Health Clinic and paid for by the state health department.

THE STUDY FOUND THAT more than 11 percent of the patrons of three Denver steam baths catering to homosexuals had gonorrhea.

Dr. Richard Rothenberg, acting head of the state venereal disease program, said the figure is "fairly high" and probably indicates that 2½ times as many homosexuals as non-homosexuals from similar categories of age, race and sexual activity have gonorrhea.

HE SAID THE DENVER study "compares reasonably with other cities in which gay populations have been analyzed. It does confirm that VD is more common among gay men."

Denver's deputy manager of medical affairs, Dr. John Sbarbaro, said the VD screening was the "first in the country done in gay baths."

"Most public health departments tend to shy away from anything that has to do with moralistic values," said Sbarbaro. "The Denver Metro clinic took the view that there is no morality involved in disease."

IN FACT, HE SAID, a secondary aim of the study was to convince gay persons that they can be treated fairly in the city's public clinics.

The clinic director, Dr. Franklyn N. Judson, speculated in the article that the higher gonorrhea rate among homosexuals "may be a function of homosexual acts, greater promiscuity, and lesser utilization of the health care facilities."
