Mortgage Loan Rates Hiked

LOS ANGELES (AP) Major California savings and loan associations, which have often led the nation in mortgage rate increases, are raising mortgage loan rates to 11 percent or above, the highest rate in 4½ years.

Glendale Federal Savings said Wednesday it was raising its fixed-rate loans to 11¼ percent from the previous 10¾ percent to 11 percent.

The firm also raised its variable rate minimum ¼ percent to 10¾ percent.

Variable mortgage rates, legal in California and several other states, allow the interest rate to be changed within limits as other interest rates change over the life of the loan.

Meantime, Home Savings, the largest savings and loan in the nation, reported that it was "in the throes of considering a change" of rates in light of the industry movement toward the 11 percent mark.

Rates in California have frequently risen faster and higher than those of other areas because of demand for housing in the state.

But housing economists say mortgage rates across the country are under pressure because S&Ls must pay for mortgage funds for lending.

Recently, much of those funds have come from six-month money market certificates which have interest rates tied to Treasury bills. The latest rate allowed on the certificate was 9.3 percent.

The last time most California S&Ls charged 11 percent or more for home loans was in October 1974.

Death Clue Scrawled In Blood

Casey Jones scrawled the name "Roger" in blood on a neighbor's door, leading police to arrest his friend.

San Bernardino County sheriff's deputy Raul Bracmonte said Wednesday that after being shot Tuesday, Jones, 28, ran to a house before leaving the bloody clue.

Roger Buryl Howard, 34, was booked for investigation of murder Tuesday. He was being held in San Bernardino County Jail.

Bracmonte said the men, who had been friends about 10 years, were drinking together when an argument erupted Tuesday morning.

Bracmonte said Jones was found collapsed in the back yard of the residence. He was rushed to a hospital, where he later died.

Doctor's Trial Delayed

Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald of Huntington Harbour, the former Green Beret captain charged in the 1970 deaths of his wife and two daughters, has won a trial postponement.

The trial was to begin Monday, but MacDonald's attorneys last week asked U.S. District Judge Franklin Dupree Jr. to postpone the Raleigh, N.C., trial to give them more time for preparation.

The U.S. Supreme Court refused in March to interfere with the trial. MacDonald's attorneys argued that the trial would result in double jeopardy because a 1970 military investigation had ended in exoneration.

Now director of emergency medicine at St. Mary Medical Center, Long Beach, MacDonald was indicted by a federal grand jury in Raleigh in the deaths on Feb. 17, 1970 of his wife Colette and children Kimberly, 6, and Kristen, 3.

Military police who rushed to then-Green-Beret-Capt. MacDonald's quarters at Ft. Bragg, N.C., said the three had been bludgeoned to death and the captain was suffering a knife wound in the chest.

They said MacDonald told them that four drug-crazed hippies had forced their way into his home and attacked him and

Traffic Plan Announced For Air Show

Irvine police have announced their plans to cope with the massive traffic expected to be generated by the weeekend air show at El Toro Marine Corps Air Station.

From 3:15 to 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, traffic on roads leading from the base will be allowed to proceed in only a westbound direction, away from the station, said Sgt. Bob Kredel.

Affected roads are Trabuco Road between the El Toro main gate and Culver Drive and Irvine Boulevard from El Toro north gate to Jeffrey Road, Kredel said.

Also, in the Northwood village area, two eastbound lanes will be open between Culver and Myford Road for residents' use, Kredel said.

On Jeffrey Road, between Trabuco and Walnut Street, traffic will only be permitted to go southbound during the afternoon

Smoking 'Down'

3.5 Million Americans Kick Habit

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A government survey found that smoking among teen-agers has fallen by 25 percent since 1974, Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. said today.

Califano also disclosed that another HEW poll found an estimated 17 million Americans tried to quit smoking last year, and 3.5 million considered themselves successful in kicking the habit.

"Clearly, people are getting and responding to the public health message . . . that smoking is slow-motion suicide," he declared in a speech prepared for a meeting of the National Interagency Council on Smoking and Health.

Califano said the youth survey by HEW's National Institute of Education found that 3.3 million persons age 12 to 18, some 12 percent of that age group, are regular smokers.

The rate had been 12 percent in 1968, then jumped to 16 percent in a 1974 survey by another HEW agency, the National Clearinghouse on Smoking and Health.

Girl smokers outnumber boy smokers in this age group, 1.7 million to 1.6 million, Califano said.

Smoking by boys ages 17 and 18 has fallen from 31 percent a few years ago to 19 percent now, but the rate for girls in that age bracket has climbed from 19 percent in 1968 to past 26 percent, he said.

"While men are giving up cigarettes and fewer boys are starting women are apparently finding it harder to give up smoking, and girls are taking it up in increasing proportions," Califano said.

"Our statistical research has yielded another new and chilling fact: A boy who takes up smoking before age 15 and continues to smoke is only half as likely to live to age 75 as a boy who never smokes," he said.

The HEW secretary, an ex-smoker who launched a war against smoking 15 months ago, also issued a challenge to American cigarette companies to spend 10 percent of their $800 million advertising and promotion budgets on public service ads urging children, teen-agers and pregnant women not to smoke.

He said the tobacco companies insist they "consider smoking an adult habit," but declared: "The time has come to ask the cigarette manufacturers to put some of their advertising dollars where their rhetoric is."

Califano said a survey by HEW's National Center for Health Statistics came up with the estimate that 17 million persons, or 31 percent of the nation's 54 million smokers, tried to quit smoking last year. A past survey by HEW's National Clearinghouse on Smoking and Health estimated that 90 percent of smokers either tried to or would like to quit the habit.

A surgeon general's report released Jan. 11 said 30 million Americans have quit the habit since 1964, when the first surgeon general's report led to warnings on cigarette packages.

The overall percentage of adult smokers has fallen from 42 percent to 33 percent. The sharpest drop was among men, down from 51 percent in 1965 to 38 percent in 1978, while women's rate dipped from 33 percent to 30 percent.

The January report said 6 million youths age 13 to 19 were regular smokers, and 100,000 children under 13 also smoked regularly.

Pensions Up

Benefits Pay Increased

WASHINGTON (AP) — The average elderly Social Security beneficiary will find $25 extra in his government check in July and some will get up to $50 more as a result of the automatic 9.9 percent benefit increase announced today.

The record increase, which will cost the Social Security trust funds $10.2 billion, came automatically as a result of the rise in the Consumer Price Index in the first quarter of this year over the same period in 1978.

An estimated 35 million retired or disabled workers and their families and survivors will get the increase in their July checks. Benefits also will go up 9.9 percent for about 5 million Supplemental Security Income recipients at a cost of $415 million.

Last year's cost of living increase was 6.5 percent. This is the fifth annual automatic cost-of-living increase and exceeds the previous high of 8 percent in 1975.

Wayne Recovering At Newport Home

Actor John Wayne was up and about at his Newport Beach home today but was not prepared to offer any additions to scathing comments he made about the press when he left Hoag Memorial Hospital Wednesday.

"No, he feels he said what he had to say," secretary Pat Stacy said. "He's up now and he's feeling fine and he says he feels better for saying it."

Wayne, 71, accused unnamed news reporters of "trying to bribe people" to talk about his condition which was identified by the hospital as bronchitis.

And he told the press in a statement issued as he left the hospital: "I haven't lied to the press about anything but they will not take our reports as truthful.

"Reporters sneak around trying to bribe people to say something that won't coincide with the official report. I don't know why that is necessary but I guess it is modern day news methods.

"It used to be considered yellow journalism. Anyway, have a happy day."

Wayne issued the statement through spokeswoman Marcy Mobley. She and Miss Stacy have refused to identify the reporters who apparently have angered the veteran Western star.

Wayne was hospitalized for a month at UCLA Medical Center late last year and underwent surgery for removal of his cancerous stomach. His only public appearance since that surgery was at the Academy Awards ceremony April 9.

Profit Gains Continue For Oil Firms

NEW YORK (AP) — Reports from nation's major oil companies continued to show big profit gains in the firstquarter of the year largely because of sharp increases in world petroleum prices.

Several, including top-ranked Exxon, said the stronger dollar on currency exchange markets also helped improve profits.

Sun Oil Co. said today higher prices on foreign crude oil and related products on international markets helped it to a 43 percent gain in first quarter profits from a year ago.

Sun, the 11th-largest oil company, said earnings in the first three months of the year came to $120.3 million, or $2.24 a share, on revenue of $2.36 billion. In the comparison 1978 quarter, Sun reported earnings of $84.3 million, or $1.57 a share, on revenue of $1.7 billion.

Standard Oil of California, the fourth largest U.S. oil company, said Wednesday that its first quarter profits rose nearly 43 percent, to $347 million.

Smaller Amerada Hess Corp. showed earnings more than tripled from the year-ago period, to $115.6 million.

Standard Oil of Ohio, citing special circumstances, reported profits up 300 percent, to $167.5 million from a toubled 1978 comparison period, and Getty Oil said profits rose nearly 42 percent to $108.2 million.

Earlier in the week, top-ranked Exxon reported record profits of $955 millinon for the period, up 37 percent from a year ago. Third-ranked Texaco said profits rose 81 percent to $307 million in the first three months.

Mobil Oil, the second largest company, was due to release its earnings report later today.

The major companies cite tight supplies — a problem aggravated the revolution in Iran — as the major reason for sharply higher earnings because buyers competing for the smaller supplies have bid up prices.

"We'll have officers at the primary intersections. We expect no problems," he said. It is estimated that 100,000 people will attend the air show featuring the Blue Angels each day. That translates to about 30,000 cars, Kredel said.

He also pointed out that California Highway Patrol officers will be out in force to cite motorists who park along the San Diego, Santa Ana and Laguna freeways to watch the show. Unattended vehicles will be towed away, he added.

Huntington Suspect Held in Abduction

Arrested by Irvine police and turned over to Westminster officers was Thomas Kelley of 10411 Samoa Drive.

Kelley allegedly picked up Cynthia Anderson in his van on Beach Boulevard near McFadden Avenue at about 10 p.m., according to Orange County Sheriff's deputies.

Deputies said the woman jumped from Kelley's van when it stopped for a red light on El Toro Road at Jeronimo Road in El Toro. She spotted a sheriff's patrol car and flagged it down, deputies said.

Deputy Wayne Pieratt immediately radioed a description of the suspect's van. The broadcast was monitored by an Irvine officer who spotted the vehicle traveling north on the Santa Ana Freeway near Jeffrey Road.

Sheriff's officials said Kelley's van was stopped on the northbound Costa Mesa Freeway just north of the Santa Ana Freeway where the suspect was turned over to Westminster officers.

Carter's attempted compromise was outlined in a letter from White House aide Stuart E. Eizenstat.

He wrote to Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of a House Energy subcommittee, that the administration would double the allocation of gasoline coupons to states that felt they might have been treated unfairly under the president's original rationing plan.

The original plan called for Americans to receive coupons based on the number of cars they own.

That would mean, for example, that a person in Arizona who drove 50 miles to work would be able to purchase the same amount of gasoline as a New Jersey resident who drove 10 miles to his job.

Under the compromise, the governor of Arizona might receive enough additional gasoline coupons to make up the inequity.

Both the rationing plan and proposed weekend closing authority have received rocky receptions on Capitol Hill.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, predicted Congress will fashion some of its own standby mandatory conservation measures, and send others back to the White House for redrafting.

"The current rationing proposal is too cumbersome and not workable," Jackson said in an interview.

As the administration's standby plans were taking their lumps Wednesday, Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., were having a heated exchange over Carter's proposed "windfall profits" tax on half the additional revenues oil companies will receive after domestic crude oil prices are decontrolled later this year.

Four Coast Firms Form Energy Co-op

In what officials say is a unique experiment, four of the Orange Coast's biggest firms have formed an energy cooperative in an attempt to save four megawatts of electricity during the fiscal year beginning July 1.

The other members are the Irvine Company, the Fluor Corp. and South Coast Plaza.

Under the terms of the agreement signed today all four companies will be linked by a computer operated by Engineering Supervision Company (ESCO) that will monitor the firms' energy demands.

The cooperative is designed to reduce demand during the afternoon peak period at about 4 p.m.

Using the monitoring device, co-op president Bud Dobyns of Fluor said, will tell members when to defer use of some equipment.

John Phillips of ESCO said that won't mean a wholesale shutting off of lights and air conditioning, but a selective reduction in use of some machines. He said one pice of equipment among many, such as one of two or three elevators, might be closed down during the peak.

He described the plan as an energy budget, but one used in concert by the four firms, rather than on an individual basis.

C.E. Hathway, vice president of Southern California Edison, said the program has never been tried before in the United States.

He explained that the four companies paid for a feasibility study on the project.

With the approval of the state Public Utilities Commission and Edison, the cost of implementing the project, about $250,000, will be borne by Edison.

Dobyns said that end of the first year trial, if the co-op has worked as planned, the group will petition the PUC for institution of a special rate as an incentive to get more businesses to do the same thing.

He said that more Orange County firms are expected to join the co-op, but that the four were the companies that have worked on its formation for about a year.

Called the Orange County Energy Conservation Cooperative, the organization is a non-profit corporation.

Phillips said the project is ex-

Coastal Park Plan Backed

By KATHY CLANCY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Creation of an 18,000-acre urban national park that would stretch along the Irvine coast and through the hills surrounding Laguna Beach was endorsed Wednesday by Orange County supervisors.

The board unanimously adopted a resolution urging the National Park Service to create the park, taking in three-fourths of the 10,000-acre Irvine Coast south of Corona del Mar.

In addition, the park boundaries would include the Laguna Greenbelt, Laguna Beach's Sycamore Hills and open space lands in the future community of Aliso Viejo.

Supervisors also asked that the park include the Bonner and Shady Canyons in the city of Irvine, along with Los Trancos Canyon on the inland side of Pacific Coast Highway south of Corona del Mar.

The proposed Aliso Viejo park lands would include more than 3,000 acres of open space the Aliso Viejo Company already has pledged to donate for public use, along with about 700 acres now slated for development of up to 4,000 dwellings.

When supervisors recently adopted a land use plan for Aliso Viejo, they required that the additional property be made available for public purchase at the March, 1979, market price.

George Osborne, director of the county Environmental Management Agency (EMA), reported to supervisors that National Park Service administrators have found the area qualifies for development as a national park.

Their findings were based upon the presence of what were called significant natural resources, primarily the Irvine coastal land, along with the

State S&L Loan Rates Reach 11%

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Major California savings and loan associations, which have often led the nation in mortgage rate increases, are raising mortgage loan rates to 11 percent or above, the highest rate in 4½ years.

Glendale Federal Savings said Wednesday it was raising its fixed-rate loans to 11¼ percent from the previous 10¾ percent to 11 percent.

The firm also raised its variable rate minimum ¼ percent to 10¾ percent.

Variable mortgage rates, legal in California and several other states, allow the interest rate to be changed within limits as other interest rates change over the life of the loan.

Meantime, Home Savings, the largest savings and loan in the nation, reported that it was "in the throes of considering a change" of rates in light of the industry movement toward the 11 percent mark.

Rates in California have frequently risen faster and higher than those of other areas because of demand for housing in the state.

But housing economists say mortgage rates across the country are under pressure because S&Ls must pay for mortgage funds for lending.

Upper Bay Silt Study Bill Shelved

Assemblywoman Marian Bergeson, R-Newport Beach, has withdrawn her proposed legislation to finance a study of a device to halt siltation of Upper Newport Bay.

An aide to the legislator said Mrs. Bergeson's bill, AB 951, was removed from the legislative calendar because there is no factual data to back it.

Several agencies concerned with the siltation of the state-owned biological preserve sought the legislation which would be the first step toward getting a desilting basin built upstream of the bay in San Diego Creek.

But Julie Froberg, Mrs. Bergeson's adminsistrative assistant, said today there has been no research done which would support the contention that such a project would indeed halt the flow of mud into the bay.

Mrs. Bergeson's efforts instead will be directed at getting federal clean water funds for the study.

Such a step would require approval of the state Water Quality Control Board and the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

The regional water quality control board meets tonight at 7 o'clock in the Fullerton City Council Chambers.

Mrs. Bergeson will need a letter urging the board to put funds for the Upper Bay desilting pond study as a top priority.

In addition, the overall clean-

Marina Lease At Newport Transferred

The lease of the joint city-county Arches Marina in Newport Beach has been transferred to Allen M. Senall by Orange County supervisors.

Senall is a Newport Beach businessman and one of the partners who bought the Balboa Fun Zone and marina last year.

The Arches Marina, located on West Coast Highway at the Newport Boulevard overpass, was formerly leased to a limited partnership.

Under the joint ownership agreement, Orange County government is given the authority to administer the marina's lease for the city. A city spokesman noted that the city retained the authority to authorize the transfer of the marina's harbor permit.

He said the city isn't expected to block the transfer to Senall.

Terms of the lease stipulate that the county receives a percentage of the gross receipts from boat slip rentals, said county spokesman Terry Swindle.

The lease covers the 75-boat marina and an adjoining office building.

In related action, supervisors also approved a long-term sublease of the second floor of the marina's office building for use as a yacht club.

Awarded the sublease was Newport Bayview Management Co.

The contract with the county for the 3333 W. Coast Highway property offers the lessee rental options up to 29 years, Swindle said.

Writer's Ride With 'Angels' a Bit Scary

To a handful of men, it is as common an experience as a trip to the corner market.

For me, it was a fantasy come to life—a ride with the Blue Angels.

More precisely, it was a ride with Angel Seven, Lt. Jack Ekl. Wednesday he gave me a taste of the air show to be performed Saturday and Sunday at El Toro Marine Corps Air Station.

Ekl, 32, is cool, but not cocky. He wants me to know what I'm getting into so I can enjoy it.

"It's fun. It never gets boring, but it's like any other job. There are days when things are going really good and there are other days," Ekl explains

That tall sleek jet I'm going to get in is really nothing more than a standard trainer, he says.

Ekl's right hand man is AE1 Joe Berry, his crew chief. Berry puts me in an olive drab flight suit and straps me into the back seat of the fighter.

Berry's warnings abound; don't touch anything painted black and yellow; be sure to flip the intercom back to receive when you're done talking; don't try to get out of the plane at the end of the flight until the ejection seat is disarmed.

He points out the location of the "barf bag" and ducks down the ladder with a cheery "have a nice flight."

Officers Honor Slain Cop

By JACKIE HYMAN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Hundreds of police cars and motorcycles lined the streets today around St. Simon and Jude Church in Huntington Beach as more than 1,000 fellow peace officers paid tribute to slain Los Angeles Sheriff's Deputy George Barthel, 32, of Costa Mesa.

Interment for Mr. Barthel, who leaves a wife and two young children, was scheduled, following 11 a.m. services, at Good Shepherd Cemetery, also in Huntington Beach.

Los Angeles Sheriff's officials said today the Los Angeles County District Attorney apparently will seek the death penalty against two men accused in the slaying.

A spokesman said suspects James Leroy Noble, 24, and Clarence Robinson, 21, were arraigned in Compton Municipal Court on murder charges stemming from last week's tragedy.

The spokesman said the District Attorney's Office brought one count of murder coupled with special circumstances including being armed at the time of the slaying — that could lead to the death penalty.

The pair also face one count of felonious assault with intent to commit murder and one charge of felonious assault on a peace officer, the spokesman said.

A preliminary hearing has been set for May 8, also in Compton Municipal Court.

The spokesman said murder charges are pending against Raymond Howard, 24, of Inglewood. A fourth suspect in the case, Gary M. Hubbard, 20, of Los Angeles, faces allegations of possession of drugs but not of murder.

Jack Styers, Printing Shop Owner, Dies

Jack E. Styers of Irvine, owner and operator of Styers Print-O-Mat in Corona del Mar, died Wednesday at UC Los Angeles Medical Center. He was 58.

A native of Pennsylvania, Mr. Styers who lived in Irvine, graduated from Drexel College and worked as an engineer for TRW and Curtiss Wright Corp. before purchasing the offset print shop in 1970. He was a former Navy pilot.

Funeral services for Mr. Styers will be held at 3 p.m. Friday at Pacific View Chapel, Newport Beach, under the direction of Rev. Ron Allison of University Methodist Church. Burial will follow at Pacific View Memorial Park.

Mr. Styers is survived by his widow, Janet, of the family home, 5371 Strasbourg Ave.; two sons, James, of Seattle and Jeffery, of San Diego, and a granddaughter.

Harbor Sets 'Fair Lady'

Curtain time is 8 p.m. The production is the first musical produced by the high school students in four years.

POLICE PLAN BIG AUCTION

Fifty-nine bicycles, six cameras, a variety of typewriters and calculators and two motorcycles will be among the items auctioned off Saturday by the Newport Beach Police Department.

The sale gets under way at 9 a.m. in the department's parking lot at 870 Santa Barbara Drive in Newport Center.

allocation of gasoline coupons to states that felt they might have been treated unfairly under the president's original rationing plan.

The original plan called for Americans to receive coupons based on the number of cars they own.

That would mean, for example, that a person in Arizona who drove 50 miles to work would be able to purchase the same amount of gasoline as a New Jersey resident who drove 10 miles to his job.

Both the rationing plan and proposed weekend closing authority have received rocky receptions on Capitol Hill.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, predicted Congress will fashion some of its own standby mandatory conservation measures, and send others back to the White House for redrafting.

"The current rationing proposal is too cumbersome and not workable," Jackson said in an interview.

As the administration's standby plans were taking their lumps Wednesday, Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., were having a heated exchange over Carter's proposed "windfall profits" tax on half the additional revenues oil companies will receive after domestic crude oil prices are decontrolled later this year.

"Quite frankly, I think it's a charade," Kennedy said during a joint House-Senate subcommittee hearing.

"I want to thank the chairman (Kennedy) for his objective presentation," Schlesinger retorted sarcastically.

up plan for the Upper Bay, prepared by a consortium of governmental agencies called NIWA (Newport-Irvine Waste Management Agency) is also on the board's agenda.

That plan is the center of continuing controversy. Two members of NIWA, the city of Newport Beach and the State Department of Fish and Game say the proposed plan will merely allow the siltation to continue.

They were unsuccessful in getting NIWA to consider the study to support construction of a de-silting basin.

Monday, Newport Beach city councilmen approved a resolution to be presented tonight by Councilman Ray Williams urging rejection of NIWA's bay cleanup plan and adoption of the stricter controls advocated by the city and the Fish and Game department.

Ekl tries to chat. It's a one-way conversation since the multiple belts that hold me in place keep me from easily reaching the intercom switch.

Watching the struggle in a mirror, Ekl observes, "They didn't exactly design these things for small people."

The jet lifts gently off the ground, eases up in altitude as we clear the end of the runway and then becomes an elevator straight up.

I'd been warned repeatedly about Gs — the face-smashing gravitational pull from steep climbs. No one said anything about elevators.

It's not an especially clear day, yet from our 8,000-foot vantage point, we can see from Mt. Baldy to San Clemente Island, from Oceanside to Palos Verdes.

Every roll, climb and dive is explained in advance along with the acceleration and deceleration that it requires.

That doesn't stop me from closing my eyes on the first roll, a wing over wing maneuver called a production roll.

It was easy keeping them open after that through silky-smooth dips and curves that leave me looking out the roof at San Clemente Island or looking down only to see the wing where the ocean used to be. We go from a demonstration of Gs to one for weightlessness.

The engine noise, the bumps and the vibration I'd expected aren't there.

There's more noise from radio traffic than from the engine. Ekl plays with the plane, accelerating just often enough for me to realize he is flying very gently.

I close my eyes. "Hey, you gotta have your eyes open," he admonishes when we right ourselves, "try it again."

I compromised. One eye stays open.

"OK. I've got the plane back now." I hope he never really let go.

The half-hour flight is over too soon. We make one pass over the field and land.

As we taxi to the apron, Berry is waiting, at parade rest.

It takes very little time to find myself back on the ground. My legs are shaky and I'm glad to be where the earth stays under my feet and the sky stays over head.

Still, I wish I was in that wonderful machine that makes everything turn upside down so easily.

In addition, Osborne wrote in his report to supervisors, the federal administrators have argued the park likely would draw visitors from other regions.

The park study is now being processed through federal channels, Osborne said, and is expected to be submitted to congress by May 30.

Osborne warned the park administrators' findings may be altered before they reach congress.

And yet to be addressed in the park study are ways the federal government would acquire the park land, along with the drawing of precise boundaries and plans for park development.

More Oil Companies Report Big Profits

NEW YORK (AP) — Reports from nation's major oil companies continued to show big profit gains in the first quarter of the year largely because of sharp increases in world petroleum prices.

Several, including top-ranked Exxon, said the stronger dollar on currency exchange markets also helped improve profits.

Sun Oil Co. said today higher prices on foreign crude oil and related products on international markets helped it to a 43 percent gain in first quarter profits from a year ago.

Sun, the 11th-largest oil company, said earnings in the first three months of the year came to $120.3 million, or $2.24 a share, on revenue of $2.36 billion. In the comparison 1978 quarter, Sun reported earnings of $84.3 million, or $1.57 a share, on revenue of $1.7 billion.

Standard Oil of California, the fourth largest U.S. oil company, said Wednesday that its first quarter profits rose nearly 43 percent, to $347 million.

Smaller Amerada Hess Corp. showed earnings more than tripled from the year ago period, to $115.6 million.

Standard Oil of Ohio, citing special circumstances, reported profits up 300 percent, to $167.5 million from a toubled 1978 comparison period, and Getty Oil said profits rose nearly 42 percent to $108.2 million.

Earlier in the week, top-ranked Exxon reported record profits of $955 millinon for the period, up 37 percent from a year ago. Third-ranked Texaco said profits rose 81 percent to $307 million in the first three months.

Mobil Oil Corp., the nation's second-largest oil company, today also reported an 81 percent increase in first-quarter profits.

Mobil said earnings rose to $437 million in the first quarter, or $4.12 a share on revenue of $10.3 billion. In the 1978 first quarter earnings were $241 million or $2.28 a share on $8.7 billion in revenue.

The major companies cite tight supplies — a problem aggravated the revolution in Iran — as the major reason for sharply higher earnings because buyers competing for the smaller supplies have bid up prices.

Prices Up .9 Percent

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Paced by increases in the cost of gasoline and meat, consumer prices in the Los Angeles-Orange County area rose .9 percent last month, the U.S. Labor Department reported today.

The March increase was just a shade under the 1 percent cost-of-living increase for the month nationwide. (Related story, A4)

The increase means that goods and services that cost a dollar at the end of the month would have sold for 49.1 cents in 1967.

Baby's Death Related

By KATHY CLANCY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The physician who was with Dr. William Waddill's chief accuser the night police were told of an alleged infant slaying took the witness stand today in Waddill's murder retrial.

Dr. Thomas Ferguson told the Orange County Superior Court jury that he called a Westminster police acquaintance after Dr. Ronald Cornelsen alleged he saw Waddill "strangle and suffocate" a newborn infant in the aftermath of a saline abortion two years ago.

Ferguson testified Cornelsen came to his home late one night a few days after the alleged strangulation.

He said Cornelsen told him the baby "was born alive, was crying, moving and breathing independently" before she allegedly was choked to death.

And, Ferguson continued, those were the purported facts he relayed to police when he summoned them to his home that evening.

"After Dr. Cornelsen came over I became concerned about his involvement in the events and I was worried that he was exposing himself to something," Ferguson explained.

"At the late hour I thought I could call my lawyer in Long Beach and he talked to Dr. Cornelsen," Ferguson testified. "After that conversation and another one with the hospital administrator, Dr. Cornelsen told me he wanted to talk to police."

Defense attorney Charles Weedman asked Ferguson if he recalled telling police "you will have to protect my butt."

"I can't imagine what it could possibly be referring to," Ferguson replied. "I don't think it could have come from me."

Waddill, a 43-year-old Huntington Harbour obstetrician, is being tried a second time for the alleged murder of the two-pound, 15-ounce infant known as Baby Girl Weaver.

His first trial ended last May when jurors said they were deadlocked 7 to 5 in favor of acquittal.

Residents Nervous

Malibu Mountain Collapse Feared

MALIBU (AP) — Malibu residents, glancing nervously at a mountain of loose rock and dirt that rumbled threateningly above them, treaded softly across a section of Pacific Coast Highway today after warnings were issued that the entire slide area could collapse at any time.

Many residents were evacuated during the night, although some returned cautiously to their homes this morning.

Pedestrians were moved across the most dangerous stretch of road in convoys of 10 at a time so they could be warned should the shifting mountain start to collapse.

But California Highway Patrol Sgt. Terry Banner said that plan was abandoned because, "If something did happen, they would be running into each other trying to get out of the way."

After the noise readings of the creeping mountainside increased by three-fold Wednesday night, the road was closed and evacuations were ordered.

A team of geologists flew from Sacramento during the night, and decided at 4 a.m. that pedestrians could go into the area at their own risk.

California Department of Transportation spokesman Richard Stephens said the increase in the noises the earth was making during the night indicated much of the dirt will come tumbling down at any time.

But the geologists are monitoring the creeping noises every second and measuring the movement of heavy pikes sunk into the earth mass.

"They believe they can tell when it's about to go, and they would have sufficient time to warn anyone in the area to get out," Stephens said. "We're expecting a large mass to come down, but we don't know when, or where, or how much."

Los Angeles County engineers said as much as 10 million cubic yards of material could come crashing down over Pacific Coast Highway and into the ocean at any moment.

Residents of six expensive beachfront homes and a four-unit apartment building, most of whom have been toughing it out since CalTrans closed the coastal highway due to heavy slide action, evacuated after hearing the news.

Kidnap Suspect Dies in Hail of Police Bullets

Suspect identified by police as Newman Augustine Osebor, 22, leaps from a sports car armed Wednesday and is immediately cut down by police gunfire. He got off one shot at officers. Osebor was identified as a Nigerian student athlete who had previously threatened the lives of his victim's family. See story, Page A5 today.

Nude Beaches Issues Debated

SACRAMENTO (AP) The nudists said they were better adjusted because they take their clothes off, and the foes quoted Bible verses.

"Can you imagine the Civil War being fought in the nude?" said Lynn Hensley, president of the Clothing Optional Society. "Without the different colors of the uniforms, the men would not have known who the enemy was."

Proponents and oponents of nude beaches clashed Wednesday at the first of three public hearings on a state Department of Parks and Recreation proposal to designate eight clothing-optional beaches in the state park system.

The eight beaches are San Onofre in northern San Diego County, Pirate's Cove at Point Dume in Los Angeles County, Hazard Canyon at Montana de Oro in San Luis Obispo County, Andrew Molera beach in Monterey County, Pomponio beach in San Mateo County, Red Rock beach at Mount Tamalpais in Marin County, Lake Natomas in Sacramento County and Millerton Lake in Fresno and Madera Counties.

The idea of establishing clothing optional beaches was called "an attack on public decency" by state Sen. John Briggs.

"I would urge that if you decide to grant or effect clothing optional areas that you would come back to the Legislature for approval," the Fullerton Republican said.

But in case they don't, Briggs told officials of the state Department of Parks and Recreation — including Director Russell Cahill — that he drafted an amendment to block the use of public funds for clothing-optional beaches.

Irene Shannon, a nudist from Orange County, said she disagreed with several points made by Briggs.

"I am sure Sen. Briggs has never talked to a living, walking, talking nudist. I don't know of any who are on speaking terms with him," she said.

Jim Hensley, a spokesman for the Clothing Optional Society, said a major misunderstanding is the association of nudism with immorality.

"We find nudity and sex do not go together. In fact, just the opposite happens.

"He said women's clothes are designed to attract special attention to certain parts of the body while nudism eliminates phoniness.

Nudists are not asking taxpayers to support the clothing-optional beaches and parks, Hensley said. He said the society proposes a users' fee to support the areas.

"Happy" Jack Raab, an Orange County resident, told Cahill and his staff that wearing clothes is unnatural.

"We were designed and built to go naked and lived that way for millions of years."

He said "going naked helps us keep our feet on the ground."

Rattlesnake Tossed Into Struck Plant

By RAYMOND ESTRADA JR.
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Strike violence at Reeves Rubber Inc. gasket factory in San Clemente escalated today with reports of a live rattlesnake thrown into the plant and a tire-slashing, rock-throwing melee in a driveway today.

Details were sketchy about today's incident. One man was reportedly arrested after plant officials charged strikers with attempting to halt a delivery truck by slashing its tires.

Communications Workers of America union members had scheduled a rally today in front of the factory at 415 Ave. Pico.

Police Sgt. Bill Trudeau said today a snake was thrown through a plant window Wednesday afternoon. The snake was in a paper bag.

Plant manager Bill Krames charged that a striker tossed what he said was a rattlesnake onto a bench where a female worker shrieked as she realized what was in the bag. No one was hurt.

Plant workers disposed of the snake. No arrests have yet been made in connection with the snake incident, police said today.

Krames said violence "has heated up" this week as picketers are becoming frustrated about the lack of progress in the 17-day-old strike.

Krames charged that a picketer struck a plant supervisor several times in the head early Wednesday morning as the victim was leaving the factory.

One man has been arrested in connection with that incident but police said they have not filed charges.

HB Doctor Wins Slaying Trial Delay

Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald of Huntington Harbour, the former Green Beret captain charged in the 1970 deaths of his wife and two daughters, has won a trial postponement.

The trial was to begin Monday, but MacDonald's attorneys last week asked U.S. District Judge Franklin Dupree Jr. to postpone the Raleigh, N.C., trial to give them more time for preparation.

The U.S. Supreme Court refused in March to interfere with the trial. MacDonald's attorneys argued that the trial would result in double jeopardy because a 1970 military investigation had ended in exoneration.

Now director of emergency medicine at St. Mary Medical Center, Long Beach, MacDonald was indicted by a federal grand jury in Raleigh in the deaths on Feb. 17, 1970 of his wife Colette and children Kimberly, 6, and Kristen, 3.

Military police who rushed to then-Green-Beret-Capt. MacDonald's quarters at Ft. Bragg, N.C., said the three had been bludgeoned to death and the captain was suffering a knife wound in the chest.

They said MacDonald told them that four drug-crazed hippies had forced their way into his home and attacked him and his family.

MacDonald was not available for comment Wednesday. His secretary said he was on his way to San Francisco to meet with his attorney, Bernard Segal.

Hospital Beds Costly

Overbidding Hit for Medical Expense

By REBECCA HELM
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Excess hospital beds in Orange County are costing consumers and taxpayers $50 million yearly, a presidential aide said Wednesday.

Gross overbuilding of hospitals has created the expensive maintenance of 2,004 empty beds and boosted medical costs higher than anywhere else in the country, Health, Education and Welfare official Michael M. Murray told the County Board of Supervisors.

Local hospitals' costs are shooting upwards annually by more than 20 percent, compared to 13 percent nationally, he said.

With this growth rate, he added, the average daily cost of a stay in an Orange County hospital is predicted to rise from its present $420 to $928 in 1983.

The HEW officials came to Orange County to point out these statistics in an effort to drum up support for President Carter's proposed hospital cost control bill.

He said the bill would limit hospital care costs increases to 9.7 percent a year.

If passed, in one year's time it could save an estimated $1.7 billion federally, $2.2 billion for the private sector, and one-half billion at state and local levels, he said.

After passage, the bill allows one year for hospital officials to voluntarily comply with the federal cost control ceiling. Once in effect, however, the bill stipulates that any hospital's costs that rise above the 9.7 percent annual growth be taxed at 100 percent.

Some exceptions to the bill would be hospitals in states which already have cost controls, and hospitals in sparsely populated rural areas which have higher-cost-per-patient care, he said.

The HEW spokesman named the "tremendous building program" started several years ago in Orange County as the major culprit in soaring hospitalization costs locally. The link between supply and demand was lost, he said.

"I think it was a case of people looking for a profitable business," he said of the builders' motivations.

Carter's proposed cost control bill faces a tough battle, according to Murray. Medical associations have mounted strong opposition to the measure.

Refugees Trek Along Border

ARANYAPRATHET, Thailand (AP) Some 50,000 Cambodian civilians and troops still loyal to the ousted Pol Pot regime, trekked southward along the Thai-Cambodian border today on their way to link up with 20,000 more across the border.

Thai authorities said the horde of refugees was snaking its way through forested flatlands and the Ta Ngan mountain range toward the Pailin area.

Pensions Up

Benefits Pay Increased

WASHINGTON (AP) — The average elderly Social Security beneficiary will find $25 extra in his government check in July and some will get up to $50 more as a result of the automatic 9.9 percent benefit increase announced today.

The record increase, which will cost the Social Security trust funds $10.2 billion, came automatically as a result of the rise in the Consumer Price Index in the first quarter of this year over the same period in 1978.

An estimated 35 million retired or disabled workers and their families and survivors will get the increase in their July checks. Benefits also will go up 9.9 percent for about 5 million Supplemental Security Income recipients at a cost of $415 million.

Last year's cost of living increase was 6.5 percent. This is the fifth annual automatic cost-of-living increase and exceeds the previous high of 8 percent in 1975.

'Free' Booklets Charge OK'd

Two publications now given away free by Orange County's public information office will cost people $1.50 each as of May 1.

The Board of Supervisors approved the charge for the brochures "Complete Guide to Orange County," and "Your Orange County Government."

Free copies still will be given to cities in the county, libraries and schools, the supervisors stipulated.

Revenue from the new fees is expected to be $2,750, county spokesman Ronald Rubino said. It will be used to offset the $6,000 cost of the publications.

A Pocketbook Issue

PULLING THE PURSE STRINGS: Every time the populace gets an opportunity to vote on a money measure and soundly defeats it, some political poobah will come along and try to analyze what it means. Like me, for example.

The case in point happened just this week in San Clemente. There was an election. In addition to selecting three new city council members, voters were to decide the fate of a $26 million money issue.

Actually, the vote would only serve as an opinion poll and would be advisory to the city council.

THAT ASIDE, the issue involved some 2,600 acres of ranchlands within the city confines. Several developers are casting eyes on this open space on the Reeves, Visbeek and Forster ranches. It would appear that roughly 7,000 homes might pop up on this real estate.

So the question was if San Clementeans would prefer to buy up this open space and preserve it for recreation and blue sky.

Land Developer Comfortably Contemplating Vote Results

THE ISSUE HAS some similarity to the long-sought Laguna Greenbelt in the hills and dales behind Laguna Beach.

Anyway, having the issue Yea or Nay on the San Clemente ballot seemed to elevate the blood pressure of some developers who have been casting eyes on that section of open earth. They started spending money to get the open space measure defeated. They ended up spending an estimated $27,000 in an effort to turn out the "No" voters.

AND WHEN THE VOTES were counted up yonder, the Nays really had it. It was a landslide, if you'll pardon the expression. Strictly no contest. It ended with 3,473 voters saying No Deal. Only a scant 941 San Clementeans voted yes.

Now comes the interpretation. You might conclude all this means that San Clemente people agree with the developers. They don't want that 2,600 acres of open space. They want more houses, apartments and cul de sac streets.

You make that kind of interpretation of the vote and there is strong suspicion you might go down as the premier Wrong Thinker in this half of the century.

TO THE CONTRARY, the likelihood is that San Clemente people love open space just as much as the Laguna Greenbelters, the Upper Newport Bay Mudflat Savers or the Bolsa Chica Swamp Supporters.

Why then, the enormous No vote? Simple. Look at the money. It had a $26 million price tag.

You do not separate San Clemente people from $26 million very easily. When it comes to a buck, they know how to hang on like a bulldog with lockjaw.

So if the developers are smugly thinking they just won a great victory in San Clemente, they may have another think coming.

Lebanon Fighting Halted

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syrian air force jets patrolled the sky over Beirut today as a cease-fire arranged by the U.N. peacekeeping command silenced Israeli and Palestinian guns after four days of the heaviest fighting in Southern Lebanon in more than a year, U.N. and Palestinian spokesmen said.

Four Soviet-built MiG-21 fighters streaked over the city shortly after midday. Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization said the Syrians were flying "protective patrol missions, guarding against new enemy air strikes."

It was the second consecutive day Syrian jets appeared in the sky over the Lebanese capital. Israeli jets buzzed PLO headquarters in Beirut and refugee camps on the outskirst of the city on Wednesday, sparking the first fly-over of Syrian fighters.

Observers said the Syrian air patrols appeared to herald closer cooperation between Syria and the PLO, Israel's most militant foes.

A U.N. spokesman said the cease-fire went into effect Wednesday night and was holding today.

Israel agreed to stop air, naval and artillery attacks on guerrillas based in southern Lebanon in exchange for a cessation of cross-border Palestinian rocket attacks aimed at Jewish settlements in northern Israel, the U.N. spokesman said.

However, Palestinian sources said the Palestine Liberation Organization insisted it would continue operations by its members based inside Israel.

The Palestinian command said Israeli air, naval and artillery strikes killed 10 more Palestinians and Lebanese Wednesday, the fourth day of Israeli attacks against Palestinian positions.

The PLO said a total of 27 Palestinians were killed in the four days of Israeli attacks in retaliation for the deaths of four Israelis in a terrorist raid Sunday. Lebanese provincial authorities put the overall toll at about 60 Palestinians and Lebanese killed.

The PLO said most of Wednesday's casualties were in refugee camps around the southern Lebanese coastal city of Tyre, 50 miles south of Beirut, and in the guerrilla-controlled town of Nabatiyeh, 30 miles inland.

A PLO communique said Israeli jets pounded Tyre and refugee camps around it after Israeli gunboats shelled the city. Long-range artillery inside the Israeli frontier with Lebanon also hit Tyre and Nabatiyeh, the PLO said.

Consumer Prices Jump Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices increased another 1 percent in March, led by sharply higher prices for food, housing, clothing and gasoline, the government said today.

It said gasoline prices rose 3.8 percent, the largest monthly jump in nearly four years. Both housing and food costs were up by 1 percent.

The March increase in the Consumer Price Index, which followed a 1.2 percent rise in February, means that the nation's 35 million Social Security recipients will receive a 9.9 percent increase in benefits to offset the impact of inflation in the past year, officials said.

THE AVERAGE BENEFIT will be increased by $25, to $283 a month. Checks reflecting increases will go out beginning in July.

Although the increase in the Consumer Price Index was less than in February, it was still at a level that endangers the success of the Carter administration's anti-inflation program.

Prices during the first three months of 1979 increased at an annual rate of 13 percent, the highest quarterly rise in 4½ years and far above the administration's target for this year of 7.4 percent.

THE INCREASE FOR the 12-month period ending in March was 10.2 percent.

One of President Carter's top inflation advisers, Barry Bosworth, told The Associated Press Wednesday that if inflation does not begin to cool soon, it is likely to get much worse as workers demand steadily higher wages to keep pace with steadily rising prices.

In its report today, the Labor Department said workers' spendable earnings dropped another 0.1 percent in March because of rising inflation. That raised the total lost buying power of paychecks in the last year to an even 2 percent.

Get The Point?

Nuke Regulators Battle Dilemma

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal regulators are caught between staff recommendations to close eight atomic power plants because they pose an "undue risk" to public safety and warnings from utility officials that the closings could lead to blackouts.

While officials considered the dilemma, a presidential commission opened its first day of hearings into the accident at the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant near Harrisburg, Pa., which prompted new concern over reactor safety.

Senior staff members of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission strongly recommended Wednesday that the plants, all of which have reactors similar to the crippled Three Mile Island unit, be closed immediately.

THE FIVE NRC commissioners postponed a final decision until today after several said they wanted more time to digest the information.

Utility executives and officials from Babcock & Wilcox, the engineering firm which built the reactors, said a shutdown is not needed and warned that such a move would cause serious power shortages and sporadic blackouts during the peak summer months.

The shutdown order would involve nuclear plants in South Carolina, Florida, Ohio, Arkansas, Pennsylvania and California. Only the three Oconee reactors in South Carolina and the Rancho Seco unit in California are now operating; the others, including a sister unit to the Three Mile Island reactor that ran into trouble, are temporarily shut down already for refueling or safety checks.

In their recommendation, the NRC staff said there were design problems with the Babcock & Wilcox reactors — particularly in the cooling system and the integrated control system — which have a potential of resulting in an accident similar to the one at Three Mile Island.

Store Aides Get Fortune

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — An eccentric grocer has seen to it that two loyal employees won't have to work another 112-hour week for a long time.

Frederick Thacker and Robert Daniel are in line for at least $125,000 left by William Aubrey Wood, 57, who was found dead of natural causes in his home Friday. Piled high around him were literally bushels of coins and bills.

Attorney Orbin Carter said the two worked for Wood 16 hours a day, seven days a week and "were closer than anyone" to him.

U.S. Summary

Officials urged more people living along the flooding Red River to evacuate their homes today, as some of the earthen dikes — the last barrier of defense for thousands of Minnesota and North Dakota residents — became waterlogged from a week-long siege.

The low pressure zone that brought the rain to Florida on Wednesday moved through Georgia today, drenching the northern part of the state as well as South Carolina with up to 2 inches.

In Florida, Miami's 90-day drought ended in a big way with a record rainfall Wednesday.

A downpour accompanied by 55 mph winds forced Floridians in Dade and Broward counties to boat down flooded streets in some neighborhoods. Telephones didn't work, and electricity was off. Roads flooded and traffic snarled when the computer controlling many traffic lights went on the blink. Roofs leaked and some Miami-area schools closed.

The National Weather Service said 16.24 inches of rain fell at Miami International Airport from 7 a.m. Tuesday to 1 p.m. Wednesday. The 16.21 inches that fell in the 24-hour period ending Wednesday afternoon bettered the record of 15.1 inches on Nov. 29-30, 1925.

Carter's Nuclear Stand Hit

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., in a sharp assault on President Carter, is challenging the president to tell the nuclear industry that "enough is enough."

At a news conference Wednesday, Brown also said he hopes the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission will order temporary shut-downs of the eight nuclear plants built by Babcock & Wilcox.

HE SAID IF THIS happens, he will call upon Californians affected by the nearby Rancho Seco plant to curtail the use of their air conditioners on hot summer days.

The utilities said that would include customers from Bakersfield to Eureka.

The Democratic governor, who says he may run for president in 1980, repeatedly criticized Carter's pro-nuclear stance, saying other energy sources should be explored instead.

"IT'S RATHER CLEAR to me that the combination of risks, costs, safety problems, the problem of storage of waste, the prospect of proliferation and even the danger of sabotage all combine to make it imperative that this country now pursue a path of alternative energy sources," he said.

He said Carter, "far from encouraging a short-circuiting of the licensing process of nuclear reactors, should tell the American people and the nuclear industry quite simply: 'Enough is enough'."

REFUSING TO SAY he favored a total ban on existing plants, Brown instead focused on halting nuclear power expansion and building other, safer power sources in the future.

The 41-year-old governor said that recent events had made it very clear that "the days of nuclear power are indeed numbered."

Mom, Girl Slain; Cops Shoot Killer

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The bodies of a woman, stabbed through the heart with a kitchen knife, and her 4-year-old daughter, who had been strangled, were found in the home of a psychologist held hostage by a Nigerian exchange student, police said.

The student, Newman Augustine Osebor of Lagos, Nigeria, was shot and killed Thursday on an interstate highway after a 3½-hour standoff with police, authorities say.

"My life was for them," cried Alejo Punetes Wednesday after the bodies of his wife, Candalaria, and daughter, Norma were removed from the home of Richard E. Townsend. "They were the best, they were fantastic. How could anyone do this to a little girl and her mother?"

Mrs. Puentes, 24, had worked as a maid for Townsend, a criminal psychologist.

Police said Townsend was abducted Wednesday at gunpoint, forced to withdraw money from a bank and held hostage by Osebor.

The 22-year-old Osebor was fatally shot by police after holding Townsend hostage in the doctor's sports car on Interstate 8. Townsend was unhurt in the shooting.

Patty Denies Bar Brawl

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst Shaw denies that her police officer husband attended a bachelor party that ended in a raucous brawl at a lesbian bar the night before their wedding.

"It's really upsetting," said Mrs. Shaw Wednesday. "We don't have friends whose idea of having a good time is going out beating up women."

On the night before their wedding, her husband Bernard was not living it up with his pals but sitting with members of the wedding party at a local restaurant, she said. The couple were married April 1.

A number of police officers were reported to have been members of a bachelor party that barged into Peg's Place about midnight and harassed customers. Shaw's name had been linked to the party in stories published in the San Francisco Chronicle.

The district attorney's office and the police department are investigating the incident and two persons, policeman Daniel Marr, 25, and a civilian, Kevin Guerin, 24, have been charged with disturbing the peace and battery.

Auto Found

Inmate Flees Jail Facility

LOMPOC (AP) — The car authorities believe was used in the escape of George Jackson Brigade leader John Sherman, 36, has been found, but he and his wife remained free today.

City police said a green Pinto sedan was found early Wednesday, parked in a residential area of town.

Police said they believe the car, rented Tuesday from a local car-rental agency, was driven by Marianne Pulfer Sherman, 28, when her husband, serving a 30-year sentence, escaped Tuesday afternoon while visiting an eye doctor.

Medi-Cal Fraud Probed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Some nursing homes have collected Medi-Cal benefits for patients who had been dead for up to a year, says state Controller Ken Cory's office.

STATE

In response to a question, Deputy Controller Peter Pelkofer said Wednesday that auditors had found several such cases.

"We found in at least one case benefits being provided to a deceased person more than a year after death, Pelkofer said.

Shell Request Approved

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A jurisdictional battle over air quality standards has been defused, with the state approving a Shell Oil Co. request to build a pumping station but requiring the firm to clean up other sources of pollution.

The state Air Resources Board sidestepped a "smog war" Wednesday when it supported the operating permit issued for the oil station by the South Coast Air Quality Management District — but tacked on the cleanup requirements.

The district approved Shell's application on Jan. 3. However, the ARB threatened to cancel the okay because the district had not required "trade-off" agreements. Such agreements require Shell to clean up other sources of smog to offset polluants generated by the new facility.

Fonda Hits "Robot Jobs'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Academy award-winning actress and activist Jane Fonda has urged working women not to accept being "slotted into robot-like jobs that do not allow the development of management skills, dignity or self-worth."

Ms. Fonda spoke at a noon rally Wednesday at the Embaradero Center attended by several thousand persons. The gathering was one of 13 around the nation sponsored by the 800-member Women Organized for Employment, to commemorate National Secretaries' Day.

Organizers circulated statistics they said show 98 percent of the 3.5 million secretaries in the U.S. in 1976 were women. Although 60 percent of women support themselves or head families, they earn only about 57 percent of what the average man does, the group said.

Love Shooting Criticized

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A deputy police chief criticized two officers Wednesday for using "faulty judgment and poor tactics" in the fatal shooting of Eula Love last January.

The criticism by Deputy Chief Marshall L. Anderson came as the Police Commission opened hearings into the case.

Mrs. Love, a widowed mother of three, was shot to death Jan. 3 by two officers called to her South-Central Los Angeles home following a dispute over an unpaid $22.00 gas bill.

Developers Still Face Traffic Woe

Monday night, Newport Beach City Council members and the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Co. reached a reasonable compromise on the firm's plans to expand its Newport Center headquarters.

The company originally wanted to build 350,000 square feet of office space in addition to the approximately 300,000 it now occupies. The City Council was justifiably concerned about the traffic problems such an addition would cause.

The 288,000-square-foot project approved Monday is a sensible point at which both sides gave in a little. The credit for the compromise effort probably goes in large part to company officials who have worked so hard at making Pacific Mutual what they like to call a good corporate citizen in Newport Beach.

However, there is an obvious stumbling block in Pacific Mutual's plans, an obstacle that is likely to block the efforts of all developers interested in doing future work in Newport Beach.

There's one intersection — Bristol Street North and Campus Drive — that's going to be improved to its maximum and will still be more congested than the traffic phasing law allows when Pacific Mutual's new buildings are complete.

The company got around the roadblock on a technicality. But it looks as if future projects of any significant size are going to be brought to a halt until someone devises a plan to relieve that traffic-clogged intersection.

Perhaps its time the council — including traffic critic Ray Williams — took another and more favorable look at the now-abandoned University Drive extension as a potential source of relief.

Bridge Alternative?

There's a grim joke making the rounds in Newport Beach these days to the effect that motorists stranded in traffic on the Pacific Coast Highway bridge over Upper Newport Bay can now entertain themselves by watching the bay fill in with mud.

It might be funny if it weren't so true. In both situations — the traffic and the siltation — the people of Newport have been listening to state officials talk about solutions, but so far action on either front has been slow in materializing.

Not too long ago, in 1976, the bridge was going to be built for $4.4 million and it would be done by the end of this year.

It won't even get started — if the schedule holds — until mid-1980 and then it'll cost more than $6.5 million.

On the other hand there's the Upper Bay preserve, bought by the state in 1974. It got its first major influx of mud in the winter of 1968-69 and it's been getting more of the stuff every year. So far nothing has been done to remove the mud.

State officials, this winter, got the attorney general into the act in an attempt to force private and government agencies to take action to reduce muddy runoff into the bay and to eventually clean it out. But don't look for the dredgers tomorrow. The very best that can happen is that a "pilot" dredging project will get started next spring — maybe.

At this pace of activity on the part of the state government, Newport Beach won't need a new bridge. Commuters will be able to drive across the Upper Bay mudflats.

Gift of Gab Pays

The old saying that youngsters should be seen but not heard got a thrashing this month from Orange Coast students.

A team from Orange Coast College parlayed the gift of gab into a national championship in the National Community College Speech Tournament, a first for OCC.

The young people from Costa Mesa, Huntington Beach, Fountain Valley and Newport Beach swept the awards in everything from reader's theater to Lincoln-Douglas (one-to-one) debate).

It is a tribute to coaches Peg Taylor and Michael Leigh, who have led previous OCC teams to second place honors in the nationwide contest.

And another Costa Mesa youngster gifted in languages won a top award of his own — an eight-week trip to Paris, captured in the Alliance Francaise contest in French.

The linguistic skill of Estancia High School senior Eric Elliott — who also speaks German, Spanish, Welsh and Breton — is, in addition, a tribute to his teacher, Leonard McNutt.

Boyd/Humbug

By L. M. BOYD

English King James II used lead, pewter, copper, anything at hand, for his coinage. Such coins minted in Dublin were referred to by the Irish as "uim bog" pronounced "oombug" meaning soft metal. They felt the coins were phony without intrinsic value. And their word for soft metal was where we got our word "humbug."

Incredible as it may seem, the quality of aerial photography is now so good that the rank of a foot soldier can be seen from pictures taken at 100,000 feet. Or so the experts report.

You know that actor called Dirk Benedict on the TV series "Battlestar Galactica?" He found his stage name on a menu under "Eggs."

Please add to that list of tough tongue-twisters: "Blue broadloom rugs."

Q. "On which type of turf is a football player more likely to get hurt, natural or artificial?"

A. Artificial, no doubt about it. Consider this: Injury data collected over three NFL seasons shows that 10 of the 12 stadiums with the highest injury rates have artificial turf, and 10 of the 11 stadiums with the lowest injury rates have natural turf.

Pentagon's 'Iranian Fire Sale'

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon is rushing to the rescue of American manufacturers who got stuck with more than $10 billion worth of canceled arms contracts when their favorite customer, the shah of Iran, was overthrown.

If Congress approves the bailout, much of the armaments already in production will be purchased by the Defense Department, at an ultimate cost to the taxpayers of almost $2 billion.

The idea has the support of the defense industry's friends in Congress and of Administration officials who are reluctant to press contract claims with the new Iranian regime.

DUBBED BY insiders as "the great Iranian fire sale," the proposed purchase of weaponry intended for the shah would be at relatively bargain prices. But close scrutiny of the items involved shows that many are obsolete or unnecessary.

The most expensive and controversial are the four Spruance-class destroyers with which the shah had planned to modernize his navy. Testifying before the Senate Armed Services Committee, Navy Secretary Graham Claytor said it would be "criminal to let the opportunity (to buy the destroyers) go by." He noted that they carry "the same armament, the same guns, the same detection apparatus, the same everything" as the Navy's newest guided-missile cruisers.

It was a poor comparison to make; the committee vetoed further production of the cruisers back in 1975 because their anti-aircraft tracking systems were found to be obsolescent. The committee report on that decision called it "inappropriate to build any ship . . . with a weapons system that is clearly inadequate to meet the projected threat within a relatively short period of time after delivery of the ship."

THE FOUR destroyers would cost the Navy $1.3 billion, plus another $2 million or so to refit them from Iranian to U.S. specifications.

Despite the enormous cost and the dubious value of the ships, the Navy's purchase request sailed smoothly through the committee, headed by Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss. By no coincidence, the shipbuilder, Ingalls, a subsidiary of Litton Industries, is located in Mississippi.

"It's a bailout for Litton," said a congressional aide. "They're saving 1,500 jobs for $1.3 billion. Even by welfare standards that's pretty gross." At $866,666 per job, "gross" is an understatement.

Another Iranian Fire Sale bargain the Navy wants to grab up is 150 Phoenix missiles for $77.1 million. The missiles are carried by F-14s, and only Iran and the United States have them.

THE TROUBLE is, officials have admitted there's no way of knowing whether some of the Phoenix missiles or their operation manuals fell into Soviet hands after the shah's ouster. "We prudently have to assume that the Russians have them," one knowledgeable source told our associate Peter Grant.

Several congressmen feel the proper course is to develop a new Phoenix missile, instead of buying more of a model that may no longer be a secret to the Soviets. In fact, this is being done by the Hughes Aircraft Co., and 60 of the newer missiles are included in next year's budget.

The Pentagon's rescue effort for its friends in the munitions industry is encountering opposition on Capitol Hill.

Footnote: It's not just the manufacturers who will get off the hook under the purchase proposal. If it passes, the new Iranian government would actually get back much of the $500 million deposit the shah put down.

NOW, TELL THE COURT PRECISELY WHAT LIBELOUS THOUGHTS WERE IN YOUR MIND WHEN YOU WROTE THOSE NEWSPAPER ARTICLES.

There Are Alternatives to Police Chases

To the Editor:

It seems to me that there is arrogant disregard for human rights of the innocent when it comes to a police chase. The suspected offender must be caught at all cost, no matter what the cost.

The possibility that innocent people will be killed, maimed and emotionally scarred for life makes no difference, as long as justice is done by catching the suspected law breaker. In a recent case, Costa Mesa police were chasing a hit and run suspect down the Costa Mesa-Newport Freeway (55). In the attempt to apprehend the suspect there was a multi-car crash that would probably not have happened and involved a tragic situation for so many innocent people.

With just a tidbit of creativity and foresight this whole situation shouldn't have happened. Our tax dollars support a helicopter system that can track cars from above — day or night. If there is a fleeing suspect dangerously evading the police, why not follow him until it is safe to apprehend him without endangering innocent bystanders.

COULDN'T the CHP or police traffic control slow down traffic (similiar to accident procedures) until it stops safely, trapping the suspect in a traffic jam and then apprehend him? The attitude is "No, get him now, don't wait." It's not the quality of the catch, it is how fast you can catch the suspect — at all costs.

How many times have you seen the traffic investigation team "Racing Code 3" across town to a reported minor accident without injuries? How many people are cut off, almost rammed, and actually crashed into by these needless full-out races to be quick? How many times have you seen a traffic unit cut someone off, swerve radically in heavy traffic, just to give a ticket often to a less serious violation? In doing so and stopping carelessly, one or more lanes have been blocked in order for tickets to be written.

These situations must stop. The police serve an important function in our society. But public pressure must be brought to bear, because wrong is wrong no matter who is doing the wrongdoing.

The motto "To Serve and Protect" shouldn't be "to serve and inflict." Call and write your local police chief and sheriff and let them know you don't like their chase procedures. Raising your voice now might save your life later!

No Hassle

To the Editor:

I read Cheryl Romo's column with great enjoyment and have just caught up with last Friday's edition where she painted a vivid picture of fighting the freeway traffic etc. to the Music Center to hear the Los Angeles Philharmonic.

I can imagine her husband's feelings when the elegant, handsome Carlo Maria Giulini appeared on the podium to conduct the orchestra — and her "immediate conversion" to the wonders of classical music.

However, I wonder if Cheryl and her husband are aware that you do not have to go through any of those trials and tribulations in order to hear the orchestra. Giulini, Mehta and all the other greats of the music world?

You can hear them right here in Orange County at the historic Santa Ana High School, all red-carpeted, plenty of free parking, comfortable reserved seats, excellent acoustics and no traffic hassle!

In fact you can hear the great Giulini and the Los Angeles Philharmonic plus beautiful mezzo soprano Frederica von Stade this Saturday, April 28 in the Orange County Philharmonic Society's final concert of the season, right on your own doorstep in Orange County.

Not 'Business'

To the Editor:

A recent letter to the editor expressed disdain for the "bleeding heart do-gooders" who have shown — support for Richard England.

"In business", it said, "if you are insubordinate, you're fired." This business analogy syndrome is used to support the administrative position in the England case at Newport Harbor High School.

The reasoning goes like this: A corporate division chairman (teacher) differs in policy, and subsequently in personality, with the corporate executive (principal). The division chairman is dismissed. "It's as simple as that."

THERE IS, however, one flaw: schools are not businesses nor are they run like businesses.

Incompetence exists at all levels in the school system. If teachers are inadequate, unions cannot protect them . . . unless they are allowed to by incompetent administrators. If a supremely competent England can be up for dismissal, then dead weight is not "union safe and sound."

Parents and teachers have become increasingly concerned about incompetence at all levels, but administrators ("Go with the flow — we'll look into that" types) either have not acknowledged it or have done nothing to correct it, at least not at Harbor High and the district office.

BACK TO the business analogy. How long would a new corporate executive keep his job if he took 18 months to try to rectify a personnel matter and failed? How long would he last if he could not control his own staff in matters as rudimentary as taking roll and keeping students in class? How long would he last if he would not admit to incompetence on his own campus ("What is incompetence . . . " ad nauseum)? How long would the new executive last if he told one of his top division chairmen who had made the corporation great for years, that he will now determine how the chairman will run his division?

And how long would he remain employed if he had the chance to resolve that long-term personnel dispute, amicably and in house, but unilaterally refused because "It's gone too far"?

Perhaps school systems would be better if they were more like businesses. But, they currently are not. Before you business analogy enthusiasts condemn Richard England, be sure of your logic and be absolutely certain you know what is going on at all levels in the system.

Lights Needed

To the Editor:

I live in Corona Del Mar. I have lived here for five years. I think there should be more street lights in Corona Del Mar.

Sometimes my mother lets me go out to dinner at the Place Restaurant. When I go there it's so dark. There are lots of strangers in Corona Del Mar at night. Five years ago a young girl was killed at night by a man. So I think there should be more street lights here for the safety of the people.

Radiation Risk

To the Editor:

J. Corwin (Daily Pilot, April 8) obviously knows nothing about radiation. They key word is ionizing radiation which can come from the sun, or from a nuclear reaction or a sun lamp. They all affect people if the radiation is powerful enough.

But to say any level is very harmful is wrong. We get lots of this type of radiation every day. If you stand in the sun too long, you know it's harmful and a lot of Coast people will get cancer from the sun. But small amounts do not cause any harm. In fact, it is difficult to determine whether or not any harm to people will ever result from the Three Mile Plant accident, since the radiation was actually so small.

Pet Hazard

To the Editor:

I have just lost my pet, a very happy, healthy 7½-year-old German Shepherd, who I loved dearly, because of inadequate labeling on dry dog food packages. Let me recall the events:

Everything was normal one Sunday (March 25) until 2 a.m. Monday morning when my dog, Gar, came to my bed and whined. I noted that he was not feeling well and his stomach was slightly swollen — I wondered what was wrong. At 2:30 a.m., he again wakened me and I saw that his condition was much worse and decided that I should get him to the veterinarian as soon as possible in the morning.

At 5:30 a.m. I woke up and saw that Gar was very ill, swollen and unable to walk. I rushed to the telephone and after a number of calls, succeeded in getting an emergency veterinary clinic. But it was too late; Gar died while I was on the telephone.

I LEARNED from the clinic that Gar died of stomach bloat caused by eating a normal meal of dried dog food and drinking water. I had never heard of such a thing. In addition, the clinic said they encounter many such cases. Gar probably could have been saved if I had recognized the symptoms and gotten him to the clinic earlier.

I feel terribly distraught by the loss of Gar. However, there is a broader issue: protection of future users of dried dog food from a similar tragedy. Dried dog food should be labled prominently to warn dog owners: (1) to either moisten the food first or prevent the dog from drinking water after eating, (2) to be alert to the symptoms of stomach bloat, and (3) what to do if the symptoms occur.

Rhodesian Election Effort Merits Our Support

WASHINGTON — If the success of the Rhodesian elections doesn't clear the heads of some policy-makers in this town, what will? Some 64 percent of the electorate turned out. A black majority government will take over. Election observers from other countries were very impressed, and much of the Free World is giving Rhodesia a salute.

It was a struggle for Rhodesia to hold the elections at all. For many weeks, terrorists attacked villages in order to frighten people away from voting. On election days, terrorists from the Patriotic Front opened fire several times on voters at polling stations. Altogether, nine civilians were killed, according to reports, by land mines and rifles belonging to the terrorists.

Altogether, since the country was mobilized to prepare for the elections, 230 terrorists were killed, along with 21 members of Rhodesian security forces and civilians.

THE U.S. and British governments, officially cool toward this democratic enterprise by Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith, must now revise their thinking. If a Conservative government headed by Margaret Thatcher takes power, there will be a new, positive British-Rhodesian relationship which might stir the tired blood of the Englanders.

Here, a majority in Congress would like to see a new U.S. approach to Rhodesia. There is strong sentiment in both parties to lift the sanctions we have long imposed on Rhodesia.

Indeed, President Carter's hand might be forced by the Case-Javits bill's (now law) calling for an end to such sanctions providing Rhodesia "demonstrates its willingness to negotiate in good faith" with all parties (including guerrillas) and also conducts "free elections observed by impartial, internationally recognized observers."

THERE WERE at least six such election inspection teams in Rhodesia, the most credible being that from Freedom House, the New York based organization which keeps watch on the state of political freedom and civil liberties in the world.

There were two American blacks on the Freedom House team — Prof. Maurice Woodward of Howard University, and Bayard Rustin, a longtime civil rights leader. Rustin vowed that if the vote turnout was big, "I would work with a number of major organizations to try and get American policy reversed. I will certainly go to the President and Congress and present my report and do what lobbying I can do to bring about a change in policy."

Rustin, while noting the new Rhodesian constitution is not ideal, said "neither was the American constitution" when established (it excluded blacks, women and the poor from voting), and "did not contain a Bill of Rights."

Allard Lowenstein, who has worked the liberal-Democratic side of the American political street for many years as a reformer, and even dissident, was also a member of the Freedom House team. He remarked, "I don't think that anybody who's been here can doubt that a very large number of Africans wanted to be part of this process."

RHODESIAN blacks had the most to fear and the most to gain from the elections. Besides the threat from immediate assault by terrorists, there was also the vow of guerrilla leaders Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe, to one day punish those supporting the elections.

What Rhodesian blacks gain is a black-dominated government (whites keep 28 percent of the parliamentary seats), a black prime minister, a chance for a middle-way between totalitarianism of the kind the African Marxist-Leninist regimes practice and the old colonial system. By any measure, black Rhodesians will be far better off living under a government and in a society which is majority black, but with an important white influence.

THE PATRIOTIC Front terrorists offer no elections, only the Communist line, and totalitarianism. Mozambique and Zambia, the nations which host these killers, get the poorest marks from Freedom House for political rights and civil liberties. Rhodesia, no hotbed of democracy, is regarded on the upswing.

If President Carter sticks with the foolish, narrow approach to Africa which U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young espouses, then U.S. Policy is moribund indeed. Young is charmed by slick characters like Nkomo and Mugabe, just as CBS's Dan Rather was on Sixty Minutes' last week. Both should go out and see photos of the bodies of all the men, women and children these charming butchers have killed over the years.

The vast majority of these bodies are black, just as were the vast majority of those people who voted in last week's Rhodesian elections.

Help for Deposed Dictators

Another of the world's great injustices is about to be corrected. No longer will deposed dictators, cast aside like old shoes, be forced to wander the face of the earth, unwanted, unloved and underfoot.

Resorts International, Pfd., a Franco-Swiss combine, is now completing its long-awaited Hideaway Haven for Former Heads of State on the beautiful Caribbean island of Sainte Elba.

"We feel that we're performing a humanitarian service by providing care for life's rejects," said M. Homaire T. Pettibon, director of the project.

"Take the poor shah and his family. He gave Iran the best 38 years of his life and what thanks did he get? Do you realize that today he doesn't even have a home to call his own?

"OR GENERAL Somoza. Nicaragua has been in his family for generations. Yet now the Nicaraguans themselves want to throw him out and install another president. Who do they think they are, the CIA? Nor let us forget Idi Amin. The way it looks now, those ungrateful Ugandans aren's going to reward his decades of dedicated service to his country with so much as a gold watch."

Mr. Pettibon said brochures were already going out to potential residents. "One thing we don't have to worry about is a lack of clientele," he said. "If necessary, we could fill the place up with former South Vietnamese generals alone."

THE (palace-away-from-palace," as the brochures refer to it, provides the services one might expect from such an establishment.

"Surrounded by sparkling, blue, shark-infested waters," says the brochure, "The Haven offers its guests the safe and secure atmosphere they are accustomed to. 'Round the clock tank patrols are augmented by our small but highly effective air force so that you may relax in comfort. Direct lines have been installed to all Swiss banks and a team of highly-trained ghost writers will be standing by to help you with your memoirs and other ghost stories."

M. Pettibon said this last was of the utmost importance. "If Mr. Nixon could make $2 million writing about his petty, if sordid, misdeeds, think what Idi Amin's autobiography would sell for," he said. "After all, Mr. Nixon never chopped off a head in his life, not literally."

M. Pettibon added, however, that The Haven's main contribution would be in "psychological support services."

"We've found that most dictators suffer from severe post-partum depression on being booted out of office," he said. "We plan to greet them here with a large brass band and a big welcoming committee singing, 'For He's a Jolly Good Fellow' so that they'll feel wanted.

"FOR THE first month or so, we'll surround them with grovellers. Best of all, each dictator will be among his own kind. Can't you see the shah and Idi Amin reminiscing about excruciating methods of torture? Or Somoza and Thieu waxing nostalgic over the fine points of corruption? In no time, they'll be their old selves again."

Marriage Survives Law

No Divorce Ruled in Liquor License Flap

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Instead of getting a divorce over liquor, Phyllis and George Evans say they'll "have a great big party."

The state attorney general's office says they don't have to dissolve their marriage in order for Mrs. Evans to keep her state liquor license.

IN AN OPINION WRITTEN FOR the Washington State Liquor Control Board, Deputy Attorney General Philip Austin said Mrs. Evans won't lose the beer and wine license for her Allentown Superette south of Seattle just because her husband is a beer truck driver.

State liquor laws say no one with a financial interest in liquor wholesailing can have an interest in retail outlets and Austin's opinion came in the nick of time for the Evanses.

MRS EVANS

"Thank goodness!" said Mrs. Evans, 34. "We were going ahead with our divorce, thinking it would be several years before we got a ruling. Our divorce would have been final the first of June."

In his opinion, Austin said, "a mere salaried beer truck driver" has no direct financial interest in the wholesaling firm, Sid Eland Co.

EVANS DOES NOT MAKE COMMISSIONS and his paycheck does not amount to a wholesaler illegally giving money to a retailer, Austin said.

He also said a married couple could get around the liquor laws by drawing separate property agreements.

Austin said a couple from Burien is suing the board rather than seeking a divorce. Gerald Junt has an interest in a distributing company and his wife works in a meat department of a supermarket where beer and wine are sold.

A third case that has drawn publicity involves Patricia and Lowen Clausen of Seattle. Mrs. Clausen wants to open a Danish restaurant and serve beer and wine. But her husband is a Seattle policeman, and the board has denied her a license, saying her husband enforces liquor laws.

THE CLAUSENS SAYS THEY'LL divorce and live together in hopes of getting a license that way, like the Evanses had planned.

The latest attorney general's opinion does not solve either the Junt or Clausen situations.

"I was so against getting a divorce, even though we were going to keep on living together," Mrs. Evans said. "It isn't the same. It isn't easy to think about divorcing someone you love.

"I'd be giving up emotional security, plus I couldn't be on my husband's insurance policy anymore."

After the board said the Evanses appeared to be running afoul of state liquor laws, the couple began a year-long legal battle.

"I felt my rights were taken away," Mrs. Evans said. "I guess I should have gone down and asked the board whom I could marry."

Bergeson Measure

Coast Panel Curb Eyed

By O.C. HUSTINGS
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A bill designed by Assemblywoman Marian Bergeson to limit the scope of the California Coastal Commission is about to be considered by the Assembly Resources, Land Use and Energy Committee.

Mrs. Bergeson, R-Newport Beach, said the aim of her bill, AB 1188, is to reduce the commission's jurisdiction over permit applications for single family homes where city permits are already necessary.

"The efforts of approval are being duplicated," she said.

SHE SAID THE MEASURE would not allow the commission to deny a development permit to protect land for future public acquisition or for preservation for public purposes.

And, she said, the bill would not allow the commission to deny a development permit because of the form of ownership of the development.

In contrast, support for the commission has been announced by the newly formed Coastal Alliance II, a group of conservation and public interest groups who state their aim is "to organize grass support for coastal protection legislation."

HEADED BY DR. BRAD Lundborg, a recent chairman of the coastal commission, the group is dedicated to opposing what are described as "the many unwarranted attacks on the laws the people created to protect the coastline and its natural resources.

"Special interests are running Sacramento to undermine the basic principles of coastal protection," Lundborg said. "More than 40 bills designed to weaken existing coastal legislation have already been introduced."

ASSEMBLYWOMAN BERGESON will be the guest starter Saturday when the Capistrano Beach Chamber of Commerce holds its "Women's 10 KM Run" at 9 a.m.

The race, co-sponsored by San Diego Federal Savings, will start and end at Doheny Park Road and Victoria Street. Organizers expect about 300 participants in the race over the 6.2-mile course.

FORMER CALIFORNIA Rep. Mark Hannaford will be the featured speaker May 7 at the monthly luncheon of the World Trade Center Association of Orange County.

Hannaford will discuss "The National Export Policy" during the meeting scheduled for 12:45 p.m. at the Registry Hotel, Irvine.

STATE SEN. ALAN Robbins, D-Van Nuys, has withdrawn a bill that would have allowed a private Newport Beach disco club to serve liquor until 4 a.m.

Robbins said he has shelved SB 605 until next year. He said he had been asked to introduce the bill by Edward Martinez, operator of Tiffany's in Newport Beach, and by a dozen other disco club operators.

Liquor license holders at such establishments are presently required to stop selling liquor at 2 a.m.

STATE SEN. JOHN Briggs, R-Fullerton, has introduced a bill that would prohibit insurance companies from increasing premiums on auto policies in cases where the driver exceeded the 55 miles an hour speed limit but did not travel faster than 65 miles an hour. The bill is SB 1197.

Capretz To Head UCI Unit

James T. Capretz of Newport Beach has been appointed chairman of the UC Irvine Foundation's development committee, according to Richard A. Reese, president of the UCI Foundation.

The development committee has the responsibility for reviewing and monitoring the fund-raising policies and activities of the UCI Foundation and the university. The committee also assists in the implementation of fund-raising programs by obtaining and developing volunteer leadership and by recommending to the foundation an annual development plan.

New Road Approved

Orange County supervisors have cleared the way for construction of a $282,000 new, two-lane road with bike lanes for Saybrook Lane in Huntington Beach.

The board approved payment of half the cost of the short street. It runs between Edinger Avenue and Santa Barbara Lane.

Huntington Beach city officials are in charge of the project's design and construction and are ready to proceed, county staff said.

New Jersey 'Outraged' At Lowering Sex Age

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — New Jersey parents, concerned that 13-year-olds do not understand the ramifications of sex, are circulating petitions asking that 16 be the legal age of sexual consent.

The public is "outraged" by a provision of New Jersey's new penal code that lowers the age of sexual consent to 13, says Susan Grootenboer, who is coordinating the statewide petition drive.

"I DON'T THINK 13-year-olds, 14-year-olds or 15-year-olds are psychologically mature enough to make a decision about sex," said Joseph Delaney, a Paramus police lieutenant, the father of three and a key mover in the attempt to retain 16 as the age of sexual consent.

Signatures are being collected on petitions at shopping centers, churches and other places where people gather, Delaney said. The petitions will be sent to state legislators.

"I feel there is a moral issue here. I don't want to encourage our kids to be Romeos and Juliets at age 13," said Tay Miller, president of the parent-teacher organization at a Westfield junior high school. "We're talking about seventh graders. We're talking about little kids."

MRS. MILLER SAID the penal code would be discussed at the organization's meeting Monday. A course of action may be decided at that time, she added.

The code, which takes effect Sept. 1, allows 13-year-olds to consent to sexual intercourse, providing the partner is not a relative, guardian, or supervisor, such as an employer or a teacher.

The code also permits sexual activity between persons under 13 years old, as long as their partners are less than 4 years older.

Grocer Defends Gas Price Rationing

BENICIA, (AP) — Gasoline is being sold at 99.9 cents a gallon by a chain of 138 minimarkets in Nothern California and the Central Valley. Its president calls it a move to hold down sales and keep gas flowing.

The 99.9 cents a gallon for unleaded gas is in effect at only three or four of the company's outlets, said John Roscoe of the Shortstop chain headquartered here, which used to sell discount gas.

"WE ARE ABLE TO PURCHASE about two-thirds of the gasoline we could buy in January. To hold down sales, we've had to raise the price to discourage customers from making runs on our supplies," Roscoe said Wednesday.

"We operate stores and gasoline units that are open 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. People count on our stores to supply them with gasoline when other stations are closed.

"This policy of price rationing has been successful so that we generally have some gas available at most times, at most stores."

BUT ABOUT 40 SHORTSTOP stations ran out of gas last weekend, he said, commenting, "People don't care what they pay. All they want is the gas . . . We're just not in the volume gas business any more. We're in the emergency gas business."

The 15-year-old chain sells a variety of food items and gasoline in outlets from the San Mateo County coast to Rocklin, east of Sacramento, and from Redding to Visalia, said Roscoe, who resides in Walnut Creek.

He said Shortstop, like every other retail gas station, is operating under Energy Department allocations of about 90 percent of the amount of gas sold last year during the same month.

"NORMALLY OUR GAS IS CHEAPER than everyone else's," Roscoe said. "But when the other stations close because they have sold their allotment, we get a run on our stations. We've raised our prices to stop these runs."

He insisted the boost is legal under federal price regulations, because in the past he charged below the maximum rate, and is allowed to make up the difference now.

Information officer Tom Rohner of the California State Automobile Association, which conducts monthly gasoline price surveys among more than 400 stations, said he was aware of only two isolated stations which had taken advantage of the fuel crisis and charged $1 or more for gas. One is in Big Sur and the other is in a Southern California mountain area, he said.

ROHNER SAID THE LATEST SURVEY March 26 showed regular gas selling for an average of 77.6 cents per gallon in the state, up from 74.4 in February; unleaded at 81.5, up from 78.1 in February, and premium 83.0, up from 79.9 in February.

"The stuff has really shot up over the years, and more recently by the month," Rohner said. "If the trend continues, we will probably see gasoline selling for an average of $1 per gallon by the end of the summer."

Gasoline is selling for 99.9 cents per gallon in many New York stations. It is as high as $1.02 in Honolulu.

Kidco to Buy Town as Tax Shelter

RAMONA (AP) — The four San Diego kids who turned horse manure and dead gophers into a big money corporation called Kidco are making so much money they're buying a town — as a tax shelter.

That's not all. They've made a deal to sell the movie rights to their story for $150,000, plus a precentage of the profits, of course. The town they're buying for $750,000 is Gorda, 50 miles north of San Simeon.

"I TELL YOU THIS, THEY have a horrendous tax liability and Gorda is just the shelter," their father, Richard Cessna, said in a telephone interview.

"This never was just a bunch of kids catching gophers," said Cessna. "All of them have been taught to get out and hustle."

To Pacific Coast Highway travelers, Gorda is a 20-acre landmark and way-station near Big Sur about halfway between Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Two years ago, the Cessna kids — Dickie, 14, Bette, 13, June, 15, and Ne-Ne, 11 — found a good way to make extra money while helping their dad clean his horse stables, so they incorporated.

KIDCO LTD. VENTURES SOLD manure as fertilizer, did cleanup jobs for a local developer and killed an occasional gopher for their neighbors in San Diego Country Estates near here.

They once said they made $3,000 a month selling fertilizer. But Cessna said they "shy away from talking about their earnings these days."

At the time, state government bureaucrats in Sacramento, sniffing revenue in the Kidco manure empire, demanded an explanation as to why Kidco had not collected or paid sales tax on the fertilizer.

In late April 1977, a 12-year-old Dickie strolled into the State Board of Equalization tax office under the glare of television lights and reporters and Kidco came out smelling like a rose. The state decided not to press for the back taxes, and the kids didn't have to pay.

THE CESSNA KIDS THEN fought the Department of Food and Agriculture over the formula for their "secret" gopher pesticides. After agreeing not to use the recipe, agriculture officials said Kidco needed a pest control license. That battle is at a standstill.

Cessna said the Kidco fortunes have been boosted by the creation of a patented gopher trap, a forthcoming Warner Bros. movie about his children's trials and triumphs and a possible television series.

Surfer Seemed to Miss Wave

DEAR PAT: My son paid for a subscription to Surfer Magazine with his own money last August. He's only received one issue. He's called the magazine and so has my husband, but we can't seem to get anyone to start this subscription.

R.B., Balboa

This problem was referred to Magazine Action Line and followed up by AYS. The Capistrano Beach publisher's subscription spokeswoman says no action can be taken by the Orange County office because all subscriptions have been turned over to a subscription service, Publishers Aid, in San Diego. This changeover occurred in December, but apparently no one at the magazine bothered to tell you about it. AYS contacted the subscription service which reports that since one magazine has been returned as "undeliverable," a hold was put on the subscription. There was no explanation about why further contact with your son was not attempted. Publishers Aid promises to start the subscription again. Let AYS know what happens. At least in your case, it appears that both the publisher and the subscription service do not make any extra effort to follow up on a subscriber's complaint.

Outreach Gives Hand to Deaf

DEAR READERS: Orange County Outreach, a branch of the Greater Los Angeles Council on Deafness Inc. (GLAD), has opened a new office at 2024 N. Broadway, Suite 109, Santa Ana. GLAD provides information and referral, advocacy, community education, interpreting and other services as needed to hearing-impaired persons.

GLAD functions as an umbrella organization which coordinates its services with more than 35 member organizations to meet the needs and rights of the deaf community, according to spokesmen. Most services are free and available to all ages.

This office will assist people in making phone calls related to emergency situations, sick calls to work, job-related calls, medical appointments and similar situations. Skilled sign language interperters also are available to act as a link between the hearing employer and the deaf job applicant. Job placement and development assistance also are offered by the Orange County Outreach office, as is contact with the Southern California Center for law and the Deaf, a branch of GLAD which assists persons having legal problems involving discrimination due to deafness.

Lists of available sign language classes and educational facilities of all types and for all ages of deaf people are maintained. Referrals are made when appropriate.

Persons interested in these services are invited to stop at the office or phone 972-3925 (voice or Teletypewriters) from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

Rock Special Spot

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — As a boy' Clifford J. VanRyn spent hours each day dreaming on a granite boulder in a city park. He proposed to his wife there. Last week, he was found dead of a heart attack at the same spot.

"You could say his life began and ended at that rock," Frances VanRyn said of her 66-year-old husband.

AUTHORITIES SAY VanRyn suffered the attack while driving along Interstate 196 outside Highland Park. A medical examiner ruled VanRyn probably died at once.

But police report his 1970 auto crossed both traffic lanes and the interstate's median, plunged down an embankment, and did not stop until it reached the rock 30 feet below the roadway.

"He always called it 'our rock' and he'd occasionally drive by it so we could remember where we started," Mrs. VanRyn said. "He was a very romantic man."

SHE EXPLAINED THAT her husband as a boy "used to go to that rock whenever he was troubled and needed to clear his thoughts. He would spend hours sitting on top of that rock thinking and dreaming."

In 1931, VanRyn took her to the rock on the night before they eloped and were married.

"My husband never forgot about the rock'" she said. "It was his very special place."

Westminster Teachers Fear Students

By JERRY CLAUSEN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

With charges of assault, vandalism and chronic truancy still ringing in their board room, Huntington Beach Union High School District trustees ordered an administrative report on conditions at Westminster High School.

Teacher Kathy Iverson told trustees that Westminster's "teachers venture from their room or offices as little as possible.

"When they do go out, they often choose to look at the ground because if they see some rule violation and act to stop the problem they are run away from, ignored, verbally abused or their classrooms are disrupted or their cars and possessions threatened . . ."

Mrs. Iverson charged, "At Westminster High School, bikes are routinely stolen, 3,800 students have access to only three restrooms (others have been partially burned or otherwise vandalized), lockers are regularly broken into and/or set on fire, and students are chronically truant and tardy to class."

If teachers do act, said the science and math teacher, the same student is doing the same thing within days.

"Because there is no effective district direction or support in dealing with these problems and because the board has not given support to the expulsion of career discipline problems, the offending students are back on campus bragging about their behaviour and encouraging others to act as they."

She claimed that college youths and others who are hired for less than $5 an hour as campus supervisors are subjected to verbal abuse and physical threats.

"We can't keep them at Westminster High School."

Noting that she has "40 habitual truants in my classes alone," Mrs. Iverson told trustees that teachers and administrators fail to crack down on truancy because of the belief the board wants to find ways to graduate students despite their shortcomings.

"Yesterday, after 12 weeks of truancy, a counselor asked me what I could do to help a truant senior graduate," she said.

Glen Dysinger, assistant superintendent, took issue with claims that district students are not expelled after remedial actions are taken.

Dysinger said at least a half dozen have been kicked out of schools in the district over the past 15 years.

But another assistant superintendent, John Gyves, told trustees expulsion is difficult, that the American Civil Liberties Union "is there immediately" and the problems usually end up in difficult court cases.

Supt. Frank Abbott echoed Gyves, noting, "Laws and courts have very honestly not given us very many teeth."

Dysinger partially supported Mrs. Iverson's contention that Westminster teachers suffer abuse, noting that the district is pursuing one case in which a girl student allegedly attempted to run down an assistant counselor in a parking lot with a car.

Trustees Doris Allen, Stephen Smith and Brian Lake called for law and order on the campus, with the three urging that possible expulsions be brought before the board.

Evacuation Plan OK'd

Families to Vacate Capo Beach 'Slums'

Plans to move two dozen Capistrano Beach families from what has been described as some of Orange County's worst housing advanced a step this week before county supervisors.

The board approved plans to apply for the final $550,000 of a $2.2 million federal grant to build new subsidized homes for the Capistrano Beach families, homes they eventually may be able to purchase.

COUNTY OFFICIALS said as early as four years ago that the families' rented homes in the area of Doheny Park Road and Las Vegas Avenue violate county health laws and must be vacated.

In addition, the owner of the property they rent has been hoping for Coastal Commission approval to develop the land.

Yet, approval has been withheld while provisions are made to relocate the lower-income families in nearby homes they could afford.

THE PLAN approved by supervisors this week calls upon the county to purchase two acres of land at Domingo Avenue and Doheny Park Road for development of 30 new homes for the displaced families.

The units would sell for $29,800 for a one-bedroom unit up to $48,355 for a four-bedroom unit, with monthly mortgage payments ranging from $234 to $385.

The condominium-type units would be managed by a professional firm for about five years, according to a report to supervisors, while residents are trained in details of home ownership.

IN ADDITION, a housing authority would control resale of the homes to make sure they continue to be owned by lower and moderate-income families.

Residents of the existing barrio known as Capistrano Beach Village now occupy trailers, cottages and so-called "bootleg homes," the report said, many of them without plumbing, adequate heating and kitchen facilities.

Because the families earn from $6,000 to $13,000 annually, they are unable to afford conventional homes in the adjacent area where prices average about $200,000, the report said.

COUNTY PLANNER Pete Major said it may be six months or more before county officials learn if the federal grant is approved and another two years before the housing project actually is built.

As designed now the homes would be constructed by Affordable Communities (AFCOM) of Long Beach, a firm which also is building a low-cost housing project in Seal Beach.

'Ridership Low'

Summer Bus Route Rejected by Irvine

The idea of operating a summer bus for Irvine youngsters may be worthy but its not worthy enough to be paid for with $17,000 from city coffers.

That was the consensus of an Irvine City Council majority Tuesday night in blocking Councilwoman Mary Ann Gaido's proposal that the city fund the service.

WITH LONG lines at the gasoline pumps and skyrocketing gasoline prices, Mrs. Gaido said it would make sense for the city to institute a summer transit system similar to the one operated in past years.

The buses could provide transit to city parks and recreation facilities, local beaches and shopping centers, she said.

In blocking the funding proposal, a council majority of Mayor Bill Vardoulis and Councilmen Arthur Anthony and David Sills suggested that private organizations such as the Irvine Company, industrial complex firms and area merchants could foot the bill.

MRS. GAIDO said that she is exploring those possibilities.

Several members of the audience spoke in favor of a summer bus system saying that it would provide an alternative to hitchhiking and help relieve traffic problems.

"Last year we had our best effort in publicizing the system, but ridership was very low and there were still kids hitchhiking," countered Anthony.

BOTH VARDOULIS and Sills said they kept a watchful eye on the buses last year and never saw more than a handful of riders at any one time.

"We should stick with it, not start it one summer and stop it the next," said Councilman Larry Agran, who sided with Mrs. Gaido in the vote.

Agran said following the decision that he'll place the matter back on the agenda at for a future council meeting.

Volleyball Teams Need Coed Players

Players are being sought for the Newport Beach Parks, Beaches and Recreation coed volleyball program that opened this week.

Teams for players in grades five through eight are being formed at West Newport Park, Balboa Pier Park, Newport Heights Elementary School, Mariners Park, Buffalo Hills Park, Eastbluff Park and the Community Youth Center in Corona del Mar.

Practices are held twice a week after school and games will be played on Saturdays.

The fee is $10, which includes a jersey. The fee for players who already have jerseys is $6.

Cable TV

Rate Increase Issue Tabled

Community Cablevision's request to raise cable television rates in Irvine was dealt another setback this week by the Irvine City Council.

Following lengthy discussion on the proposed increase, the council decided unanimously that more financial information was needed and deferred its decision to May 22.

THE CABLE television firm, wholly owned by the Irvine Company, wants to charge individual subscribers with one or two cable outlets $10 per month. The existing rate is $6 for a single outlet and $8 for two outlets.

It also is seeking to boost the bulk rate charged to homeowner associations from $4 to $6.70 per month and those charged apartment dwellers from $2 to $4.70.

Wayne Hauser, the company's president, claimed that Cablevision's current rates and its return on investment — roughly 7 percent this year — are "extremely low."

HE SAID THE company should receive a rate of return of 15 percent. He termed the figure an accepted industry standard.

Hauser said the firm has expanded its services to Irvine subscribers "in half the time allowed by the Federal Communications Commission, but have received very little allowance" for the expansion.

City staff aides recommended the individual monthly rate be increased to $6.40 per month for one outlet and $8 for two. They also proposed $4.25 monthly bulk and $4.25 apartment rates.

WHILE NOT IN favor of the staff's proposal, Hauser said, "if we must live with it we will."

Mayor Bill Vardoulis had his own rate proposals, suggesting a 10 percent across-the-board increase in rates.

The council agreed that Vardoulis' suggestion should be studied together with capital investments figures used by the firm in computing its rate of return. It also was agreed that streamlined procedures for future rate changes, study of increased public access to cable television facilities and compliance with President Carter's voluntary wage and price guidelines should be explored before a final decision is reached.

As with all meetings, the council's rate increase discussions were broadcast live on Cablevision's local channel.

DA's Office Awarded Red Light Funds

The ruling by Los Angeles County Superior Court Judge William P. Hogoboom assessed the building's owners $168,000 in lieu of closing the building for a year.

THE DECISION came after the district attorney's office won a case under the Red Light Abatement law, which provides for one-year closure of buildings involved in pornography.

But by the time the ruling was made, Milton Luros — who owned a multi-million dollar publishing enterprise housed in the building — had moved out.

LUROS' BUSINESS has been replaced by an electronics firm.

Deputy District Attorney James Ferruzzo said Wednesday the ruling was significant because it fines the operator of the pornography business.

"To close a building down with a legitimate firm in it would serve no purpose," he said.

Eastbluff School Plans Carnival

A carnival will be held from 4 to 8 p.m. May 11 at Eastbluff Elementary School, 2627 Vista del Oro, Newport Beach.

The carnival, to raise funds for school projects, will include games, body painting, sale of used books and other booths. The public is invited.

Estancia Student Gets Honor

Martin C. McElhiny, 17, a senior at Estancia High School in Costa Mesa, has been given the 1979 Youth Citizenship Award by the Newport Harbor chapter of Soroptimist International.

Rent Rebate Plan Nixed

ARCATA (AP) — Arcata voters have rejected a rent rebate initiative that would have rolled back rents in their city to their May levels of last year.

The ballot measure was defeated by a 388-vote margin out of 4,418 votes cast. An estimated 53 percent of registered voters turned out.

Ad Splurge a Gasser

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Nervous about a decline in tourism, the Las Vegas Convention and Visitors Authority has authorized spending $224,000 in advertisements to inform Southern Californians that gas is available along the route.

Some 260 radio spots will be broadcast in Southern California during the first week and several full page newspaper ads will be published each Thursday during the six-week emergency program.

The actiom came after tourism dropped 11 percent over the Easter weekend, a development that officials blamed on the gas shortage and the United Airlines strike.

However, a survey indicated that the visitors' totals were up substantially last weekend over a year ago.

Officials said more than 60 percent of the tourists who visit Las Vegas arrive by automobile.

Calendar Art Irks Residents

MENDOCINO (AP) — It didn't take long for the proud folk in Mendocino County to notice that a photo labeled "Carmel" on a 1979 calendar of Pacific coastal communities was actually their Mendocino.

But it took a few months of miffed but tongue-in-cheek letters between county officials and the Coast Federal Savings, which printed the calendar, before the matter was deemed settled.

County officials said the bank agreed to cosponsor with the county a contest to pay $100 for a prize-winning photo of Mendocino County that will be used in next year's calendar — if things go right.

Mendocino residents say they're not surprised about the goof. The calendar was printed in Los Angeles, about 550 miles south of Mendocino and 300 miles south of Carmel.

Sambo's License Ordered

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Selectmen in the Boston suburb of Reading must give Sambo's restaurant a license even though they object to the fast food chain's name, says Judge James L. Vallely.

He ruled in Superior Court that the name of the California-based chain is not deceptive and is covered by the firm's right to free speech.

In October, the selectmen denied Sambo's a license because the name offends some blacks.

Sambo is a character in an 1899 children's story about a boy in India whose courage turned tigers to butter. The chain says it derived the name from those of its founders, Sam Battistone and Newell Bohnett.

Size Hit

What's the Decision?

Newport Harbor's Chris Johnson was ruled safe by an umpire on this play at second base Wednesday. Huntington Beach's Mike Balliet appeared to have the ball in time but the umpire ruled he was not in contact with the base when he caught the ball. See story on page B3.

Angels Now Silent

Ryan Tries to Stop Skid Tonight

By DAVE CUNNINGHAM
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Clinging to first place by the narrowest of margins, the Angels are looking to Nolan Ryan tonight to be their stopper.

What they are asking Ryan to stop is a three-game losing streak, which the Baltimore Orioles kept alive by turning four double plays to snuff out every Angel rally Wednesday night at Anaheim Stadium.

THE 5-2 VICTORY lifts the Orioles' win streak to seven and keeps them 2½ games back in the American League East race. The Angels fall into a percentage tie with Texas in the West, but still maintain a half-game lead.

California should have known it was not to be its night from the first pitch.

Starter Frank Tanana pitched reasonably well but allowed two more runs in the sixth and was saddled with the loss, his third in five decisions.

"I THOUGHT FRANKIE threw pretty well," said Angel Manager Jim Fregosi, who removed his southpaw after six innings for the second straight outing.

Tanana's early departures, plus his comparative ineffectiveness, have fed speculation that he is still not the Tanana of old.

"As the season wears on, his arm will build up," Fregosi said, conceding that Tanana is not in midseason form. "I'm not worried about Frankie."

What he should be worried about are the Angel bats, which were so hot during a 10-game win streak earlier, but have since cooled off.

In the past two nights, California's 2-3-4 hitters in the lineup have gone 2-for-19, a .105 average from what is supposed to be the most productive part of the order.

ROD CAREW IS HITLESS in his last eight at-bats, having bounced into two double plays.

"Carew's gonna get his hits. There ain't no doubt about that," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver. "But we're doing what we think we should be doing against him.

"We've been making some pretty good pitches on him," Weaver continued. "But heck, we made some good pitches on him last year and he hit the (bleep) out of the ball."

The only Angel who hit the (bleep) out of the ball Wednesday was Don Baylor, who unloaded a solo home run in the seventh. In his other three trips to the plate, he walked.

"He didn't give me anything to hit. I had one swing in four at-bats," Baylor said. "That's all. One swing."

BAYLOR'S ONE SWING was more productive than the entire game for most of the other Angels. Their total of six hits is the lowest at home this year.

Another season-low was set in attendance, as 19,939 showed up and sat politely in the stands without making much noise.

Such is the effect of a losing streak.

"They're pitching pretty good, ya know," Fregosi said in defense of his hitters. "Steve Stone had a good curve working, and he's the type of pitcher who will always keep you in a ballgame."

Trying to follow up the back-to-back pitching victories of Stone and Jim Palmer tonight will be Dennis Martinez (0-1).

Ryan, on the other hand, will be following a pretty good act of his own. The fireballing right-hander has won three straight, and in his last outing he had a no-hitter for 7⅓ innings.

Ryan, who has carved four no-hitters in his career, carries a 3-1 record and 3.33 ERA into tonight's game. In 27 innings of work, he has struck out 33 and walked 20.

Of the Angels' four complete games, two belong to Ryan.

ANGEL NOTES The battle between Angels' management and Bill Spanos, self-appointed cheerleader for the club, is heating up. Spanos, for those who haven't seen him, parades around the stadium wearing an Angel jersey, pounding a drum and blowing a trumpet. "We get complaints about him every night," says Angel General Manager Buzzie Bavasi. "How would you like to sit next to that?" The club has had him forcibly ejected from the stadium, and prohibited him from picking up free tickets occasionally left for him by the players. In Spanos' defense, six girls have been circulating a petition at the ballpark, hoping to get enough signatures to persuade management to ease up on him. Bobby Grich played in his 1,000th major league game Wednesday, and celebrated by ...ipling to left field in his first at-bat. The Angels have knocked at least one pitcher out of the box in every game this season. No pitcher has gone the distance yet against them.

Sonics: Too Much Muscle, Defense, Noise

That's what carried the Seattle SuperSonics and buried the Los Angeles Lakers in their National Basketball Association playoff game Wednesday night in the Seattle Center Coliseum.

THE FINAL DEAFENING roar from a sellout crowd of 14,098 fans signified a 106-100 Seattle victory over Los Angeles that eliminated the Lakers in the best-of-seven Western Conference semifinal series 4-1.

The Sonics will defend their conference title against the winner of the other conference semifinal matchup between Phoenix and Kansas City. The Suns lead the series 3-1.

Wednesday night's game was won in the second half when the Sonics, buoyed by reserves Fred Brown, Dick Snyder, Dennis Awtrey and Paul Silas, combined with the noisy crowd to rattle the Lakers at both ends of the court.

"IN THE SECOND HALF we made some substitutions to give a different look," said Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens. "Paul, Dick, Fred and Dennis did a fantastic job.

"If you can't go to your bench, you're not in the game."

Brown, who broke a bone in his left hand three weeks ago and still plays with it heavily taped, and Snyder replaced starting guards Dennis Johnson and Gus Williams early in the third period with the Lakers ahead 69-59.

Brown roused the crowd and the Sonics by pumping in 10 points in the final eight minutes of the period. His short baseline jumper with 26 seconds left put Seattle ahead to stay 82-81 after three periods.

WILLIAMS, WHO LED all scorers with 30 points, returned in the fourth quarter and kept the Lakers at bay the rest of the way, scoring 10 of his 14 final-period points from the foul line.

Writers Ban Creates Furor In Arlington

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — A furor over the barring of women sports writers from the Texas Ranger clubhouse erupted into a shouting match Wednesday between team management and men writers also kept out of the dressing room by team policy.

Writers have not penetrated the Ranger door during a three-game series between Texas and the Toronto Blue Jays.

In an angry, cursing episode Wednesday night, the male writers confronted General Manager Eddie Robinson, a Ranger executive vice president, demanding that he open the doors.

The male writers have been banned from the dressing room because a woman reporter, Alison Gordon of the Toronto

LA Can't Buy Relief

From AP Dispatches

PHILADELPHIA — How do the Los Angeles Dodgers spell relief? Judging from the way they played here this week, the word isn't in their vocabulary.

For the third time in as many nights, the Philadelphia Phillies touched a Dodger reliever for the winning run in the bottom of the last inning. Unlike the first two games, decided in the 10th inning, the Phillies won Wednesday's game in the ninth, 5-4, on Pete Rose's RBI single off Rick Sutcliffe.

DODGER MANAGER Tom Lasorda, who was criticized for his strategy in Monday's 4-3 loss and ejected during Tuesday's 4-3 loss, barked when asked if he was concerned with his team's 8-12 start.

"What kind of a question is that?" asked Lasorda. "Do I look happy? Sure I'm concerned. What do you want me to say? I'm very concerned."

It was a different scene in the Phillies' locker room.

Rose won the game with a two-out, bottom-of-the-ninth single and as usual was inundated with media types frothing for quotes from the $3.2 million man.

UNSER PLAYED center field for the Phillies Wednesday night, although for a long while this winter and spring it appeared his baseball career had ended at the ripe old age of 34.

"I became a free agent after hitting a sizzling .196 last year," recalled Unser after his two hits helped the Phillies sweep the three-game series.

Pittsburgh, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Philadelphia, and Oakland all selected him in the draft. None offered him a thing, but it didn't shake Unser's faith in himself.

"NOBODY MADE ME an offer that would guarantee me for a season, so I elected to go through the second phase of the draft," he added, which made him available to any baseball team.

The Phillies invited Unser to spring training and signed him as a lefthand pinchhitter and utility outfielder — first baseman.

In the fifth with the Dodgers leading 1-0, Unser opened with a single. Another single by Manny Trillo and Bob Boone's two-run double gave the Phils a 2-1 lead.

UNSER OPENED the seventh with a single and eventually scored on Bake McBride's single that made it 3-1.

After the Dodgers rallied for three runs in the eighth on consecutive hits by Gary Thomasson, Steve Garvey, Ron Cey and Dusty Baker to go ahead 4-3, the Phillies won it in the ninth.

Trillo started the ninth with a single, reached second on a sacrifice bunt, and third when pinchhitter Greg Gross singled to left. Jose Cardenal bounced out, scoring Trillo with the tying run. Larry Bowa walked, and then Rose grounded his game winning single through the middle.

Ron Reed 2-1 in relief won for the second straight night over the Dodgers.

The Dodgers, of course, are playing without such stars as reliever Terry Forster, outfielders Reggie Smith and Rick Monday, and reliever Charlie Hough has been ineffective.

Giants Reject Japan Game

NEW YORK (AP) — The San Francisco Giants voted 16-9 Wednesday night to turn down a proposed trip to Japan with the San Diego Padres for the opening of the 1979 baseball season, apparently killed the plan.

The Padre players previously had approved the trip which was planned by Japanese baseball officials and had won approval of the managements of both major league teams.

The games in Tokyo were scheduled for March 28-30, 1980 with the teams playing two exhibition games in Hawaii March 22-23 before flying on to Japan.

One Big Obstacle for Orange County CIF

Third of a Four-part Series

By ROGER CARLSON
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Balboa resident J. Kenneth Fagans, who took the reins of the CIF Southern Section in 1954 with a typewriter and telephone and the responsibility of 260 schools, says the only real potential obstacle in the path of Orange County forming its own CIF section is convincing the CIF Southern Section to agree to the move.

"The CIF Southern Section would look at the formation of an Orange County section in a different way," says Fagans, the Southern Section's boss for 20 years.

"FIRST, WOULD IT HURT the Southern Section? I think there are a lot of people on the Southern Section executive committee who feel Orange County is the central power of the CIF Southern Section. They're all good drawing high schools with good athletic programs. To take out that 55, you might say the cream of the crop, and leave the Southern Section with what's left, they might be opposed to that.

"Whoever is formulating plans for an Orange County section would have to have a good justification.

"Without the Southern Section's approval, it could be overruled by the state CIF (of which the Southern Section has four seats on an 18-seat panel), and legal action could also be a factor, especially with the energy crunch."

SAN DIEGO COMMISSIONER Kendall Webb says a quality job rates an annual budget of $110,000. Fagans disagrees.

"It would seem to me Orange County could form its own section and probably not cost any more than what it now costs to belong to the Southern Section. If you select a commissioner who knows officiating, he could assign the officials through his office.

"It would mean a small geographic entity. Your meetings could be held at a central site and certainly there is free space available within the Orange County schools, especially with the continuing declining enrollment.

"WHEN DON CLARKSON took over the San Diego Section he continued as a

A Capsule Report From the World of Sports

From AP Dispatches

FRESNO — A new post-season football bowl game will be inaugurated here in December, 1980, if Fresno State University's new 30,000-seat stadium is completed in time.

The NCAA approved the matchup Wednesday between champions of the Pacific Coast Athletic Association and the Mid-American Conference.

The tentative schedule is to hold the first game on the second Saturday afternoon in December, 1980.

But if the stadium is not ready, the first game will be delayed until December, 1981, said former Congressman B.F. Sisk, head of a local group which agreed to underwrite $250,000 in costs in an appearance before NCAA officials Tuesday in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Construction bids for the stadium will be opened next week.

Football members of the PCAA, besides Fresno, are Cal State Fullerton, Long Beach State, San Jose State, University of Pacific and Utah State.

The Mid-American Conference is comprised of Ball State, Bowling Green, Central Michigan, Eastern Michigan, Kent State, Miami, Northern Illinois, Ohio, University of Toledo and Western Michigan.

Suns Shine Bright

Phoenix Takes 3-1 Lead

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — If the Kansas City Kings had their backs any closer to the wall, as the saying goes, they'd be standing behind it.

But even though his team faces a 3-1 deficit to the Phoenix Suns in the National Basketball Association playoffs, Kings Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons remains Mr. Optimism.

"PEOPLE WILL SAY, 'They'll throw in the towel now.' But I guarantee we won't," said Fitzsimmons Wednesday night after the Suns dealt the Midwest Division winners a crippling 108-94 homecourt loss.

Phoenix could wrap up the best-of-seven Western Conference semifinals with a victory over the Kings Friday night in Arizona.

Neither Fitzsimmons nor Suns Coach John MacLeod, however, is ready to count out the Kings, the most surprising team in the NBA this season.

"There were a lot of people who thought we would throw in the towel with five games to go in the season," said Fitzsimmons, whose team had to win its final five games to edge Denver for the division crown.

"WE DIDN'T THROW in the towel, and I ask you, 'Who are the Midwest Division champions'?"

The Suns rode a 26-point performance by Paul Westphal and solid overall shooting to down the Kings, who shot just 40 percent for the game and only 22 percent in the second quarter when Phoenix built a 52-45 lead. In their first two playoff losses, the Kings, 49 percent shooters all year, hit just 40 and 38 percent.

Kansas City, which was led by Scott Wedman's 21 points, closed the gap to 80-78 on Bob Nash's layup with 10:17 left in the game.

But after Phil Ford missed a shot that would have tied it, the Suns rattled off eight unanswered points — four by Westphal — and the Kings were never closer than eight points the rest of the way.

"EVEN IF THEY would have tied it or gone ahead," said Westphal, who had been held to just 12 points in the two previous games, "the fact that we outplayed them down the stretch was the key factor for us."

The Suns, who finished the game with 53 percent shooting, had 20 points from Garfield Heard and 17 each from Walter Davis and Alvan Adams.

Star, was also denied admission.

Robinson called the meeting with the writers before game time to explain the front office position.

"We had a meeting with the players in spring training in which I brought up how I felt we should do it," he said. "They quickly told me they had their rule and that was it."

That rule, he said, was no women in the clubhouse.

"We cannot tell our players what they can do in the clubhouse," Robinson insisted. "I talked to the American League office today and they said you can't tell them what they can do in there."

LAKERS OUSTED. . .

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

For the Lakers, who shot over 60 percent in the first half for a 59-53 lead, things began to fall apart in the third period and got worse in the fourth.

"The fourth quarter was one of those quarters you just don't want to play," said Jerry West, the Lakers' beleaguered coach. "The more noise the crowd generated, the more we lost our poise.

"I THINK AGAINST a good team sometimes you try to come back too quick, and that's what we were doing in the fourth quarter."

For the fifth time in five games the Sonics beat the Lakers on the boards, this time 50-37.

"They are very sound," West said of the Sonics. "They don't beat themselves. They've got all their strong people inside on the boards."

"They can afford to miss because they get more shots," said Lakers guard Lou Hudson. "They're much bigger than we are."

ABDUL-JABBAR, who led the Lakers with 25 points and 14 rebounds, said, "Their defense forced us to take bad shots" in the second half.

In the first half, the Sonics "weren't doing the things that got us into the playoffs," Brown said. "In the second half we got the ball moving and things started to happen."

Despite the lopsided series, West said, "I thought we had a good season, but sometimes that's not enough.

"I thought we played almost as well as we could play in this series. Seattle is a very good team. They should give most teams they face problems the rest of the way."

It was rumored weeks ago that West would resign as coach at the end of the current season.

"My plans for the future will be known in seven to 10 days," he said. "Otherwise, I have no comment on future plans."

ORANGE COUNTY CIF'S OBSTACLE. . .

teacher on a part-time basis to keep his retirement, medical and tenure going. They took almost all of their ideas from the Southern Section, but on a smaller scale. The CIF monthly bulletin is very fancy now. But the information could be done as a mimeographed item.

"When I started we used the Helms Foundation mimeograph machine and addressograph. I had taken a year's leave of absence as principal of Centennial High and a $3,000 cut in salary.

"At the start of the second year I really had a decision to make, to give up my teacher's retirement and tenure with no visible assets. But I looked at the playoffs and I knew the format would not raise revenue. So we started with the 1-A, 2-A and 3-A and developed from there.

"WHILE I WAS the CIF Southern Section commissioner, the San Diego Section and Central Coast started. They came to me and asked how they could do what we were doing. I can see the same thing happening in Orange County . . . if they want to form a section.

"You would have to design it to cut a few corners, but they could make it a success, with a budget of $50,000 a year."

Fagans cites a couple of advantages for Orange County. "For instance," says Fagans, "your individual sports like wrestling, track, swimming an Orange County section would derive a very good revenue from their activities in the playoffs. Right now, you get nothing. The Southern Section takes it all.

"THE ONLY REVENUE the schools share in the playoffs are team sports and now the Southern Section is asking 50 percent of all team sports, including the first round of the playoffs, which leaves each school with 25 percent apiece.

"Non-revenue sports, such as tennis and golf, would benefit because you would eliminate the long trips schools must pay for."

Fagans' monetary figures differ drastically from Webb's in San Diego and he explains: "In this day and age, you can do it with a ridiculously low figure, or you can do it with frills. Rent free facilities, using mimeograph materials and county mailing—those are things in an austere budget.

"San Diego's budget is $110,000, but they are doing fancier things, paying travel allowances, sending representatives to national conventions and state meetings and many other things of that nature.

"A budget of $50,000 is austere, but you could get by. You would probably make money on a $50,000 budget.

"AND THERE ARE a lot of other ways to get help, such as Dr. Pepper, which pays $30,000 a year for awards for the CIF Southern Section. There are dozens of ways to get help."

Dissenters of such a move can present many potential problems. But aside from the ultimate refusal of the Southern Section and state, Fagans says all others can be overcome.

"Take the case of the small schools. Maybe there are not enough in Orange County to have a playoff system. But there are not enough in San Diego, either, so you could put the two together," says Fagans.

IS THE CIF Southern Section too big, with 477 schools under its jurisdiction?

"It is probably getting too big," says Fagans. "It is larger than most states. With size, though, there are advantages that you have to consider. They may do a better job of serving all of the schools. Also, you have more divisions in the playoffs.

"There is no question it could be done (forming an Orange County section), it's now a question of whether or not the schools in Orange County want to do it. They'd have to check out the plusses and minuses, it comes down to that."

Friday: Is there justification?

Six Soccer Stars Accorded All-CIF

Six Orange Coast area soccer stars have been named All-CIF.

University High's Kevin Walder, John Glenn and Nader Redjaian, along with Mater Dei's Paul Kihm and San Clemente's Doug Sanchez and Ricky Garcia were chosen.

Walder is a first team choice, Glenn made the third team and Redjaian was selected to the third team after the Trojans advanced to the CIF championship game before falling to Mark Keppel.

Kihm was also a first team choice, while Sanchez earned second team honors and Garcia was a third team selection.

CdM Ranked Third

Corona del Mar High's Sea Kings, runaway leaders in the Sea View League baseball chase, are the only Orange Coast area prep team listed in the CIF Top 10 polls, with a No. 3 ranking in the 2-A classification.

STEALING SECOND Huntington Beach High's Mike Balliet steals second as Newport Beach's Brad Westcott takes the throw.

Sailors Upset HB

CdM Clinches Tie for Title

Newport Harbor High's Sailors erupted for seven runs in the fourth inning, highlighted by two-run doubles by John Altobelli and Don Selby to upset Sunset League baseball leader Huntington Beach Wednesday afternoon, 11-8, on the winner's field.

The Sailors continue to threaten for a CIF playoff berth with the victory, which was also aided by the pitching of junior knuckleballer John Culver, who had pitched three innings this season.

Culver went the distance in holding off the hard-hitting Oilers with his knuckler, although Huntington Beach didn't exactly go down without a fight.

The Oilers got two-run homers from Cory Funk and Kevin Asbra in the sixth and seventh before Culver put the lid on.

Elsewhere Wednesday:

Marina 5, Westminster 1

The Vikings cracked a tie for third place in the race for a CIF 4-A playoff berth with Westminster behind the five-hit pitching of Bob Judge, who struck out eight and walked four in the Sunset League skirmish.

Chuck Hines went three-for-four with two doubles and three RBI, while teammate Bob Grandstaff added three singles and an RBI in four trips to the plate.

Westminster's Alfredo Rodriguez had two hits and Westminster pitcher David Harris also struck out eight and walked four, but surrendered eight safeties to the winners.

Corona del Mar 3, Costa Mesa 0

Corona del Mar High's Sea Kings continued their mastery over Sea View League foes with a 3-0 decision over visiting Costa Mesa as pitcher Steve Leslie handcuffed the Mesans on two hits, his third shutout of the campaign.

The victory gives the Sea Kings no worse than a tie for the league championship — all that is necessary for the outright claim is one victory or one Estancia loss in the next three games.

Leslie struck out eight and walked only one batter in improving his league record to 6-1 and overall mark to 8-1.

Estancia 13, University 4

Estancia High's Eagles overcame a pair of home runs in the first inning by University's David Langmade (two-run shot) and Jim Gleason as they struck with an eight-run fourth-inning, keyed by Marty Kansriddle's grand slam homer.

The Eagles had scored twice in the third inning on an RBI single by Mike Williams and a run-scoring double by Bob Larimer before Kansriddle and mates turned the game inside out an inning later.

Williams finished with two hits, Kansriddle had five RBI and freshman Jim McCahill added an RBI double in the seventh frame in the Sea View League victory.

El Toro 11, Irvine 4

El Toro remains a game behind second-place Estancia in the Sea View League following its victory over Irvine.

El Toro was the recipient of 15 gifts in the form of eight walks and seven Irvine errors, and combined with eights hits of their own, the Chargers were never in trouble.

Ocean View 7, Kennedy 6

Ocean View's Seahawks pulled to within a half game of third place in Empire League action with a 7-6 victory over Kennedy at Glover Field in Anaheim.

The Seahawks, who had lost four one-run decisions earlier in league, pulled it out in the seventh inning as Doug Irvine singled and Eric Hungerle, who had doubled twice earlier, reached base via an error.

Dana Hills 1, San Clemente 0

Dana Hills continued to stay within reach of a CIF 2-A playoff berth as Brad Kinney stifled host San Clemente on two hits en route to the South Coast League triumph.

The winning margin came in the seventh inning as Bill Crowder singled and ended up on third base when he was hit by the ball in a double play attempt. The ball caromed into the outfield and he ended up on third. Then Gary Tovey singled to plate the winner.

Newport Nears Crown

Newport Harbor High's Sailors moved another notch closer to the Sunset League volleyball championship Wednesday night as they shoved host Huntington Beach aside in three games.

The Oilers were waiting for Newport Harbor's heralded outfit and a vocal crowd and the sterling play of Huntington Beach's Kenny Griest helped put the Sailors down by a 14-8 count in the first game.

But the Oilers netted the ball in trying for the winner, and the visitors responded by reeling off eight straight points with Kyle Slaughter serving. Slaughter had a pair of service aces in that span.

"I think that broke Huntington Beach's back," said Newport Harbor Coach Charlie Brande. "We got some great back court play from Ted Cox and Bruce Caldwell and Kyle really played well."

The Sailors went on to capture the first set, 16-14, then never trailed in recording two 15-10 verdicts.

Secrist Throws Two-hitter

Golden West College's women's softball team swept past host Santa Monica Wednesday afternoon, 2-0, behind the two-hit pitching of Cindee Secrist.

The Rustlers scored twice in the fifth inning when Secrist drove in Helen Gilligan with a sacrifice fly and Chris Stock scored on a Santa Monica error.

Secrist struck out three, walked two and allowed no one as far as third base. The Rustlers are now 25-6 for the season and 6-1 in Southern California Conference action.

On the high school level, Lisa Buccini pitched a one-hit shutout to give San Clemente a 3-0 South Coast League victory over Dana Hills. Also sparkling was the defensive play of third baseman Lisa Densmore.

El Toro stopped Irvine, 10-7, in Sea View League play, leaving both teams with 6-1 league records. Suzi Vargas had two doubles and a single in four trips to the plate for Irvine.

ERNIE CASTILLO

Into the Big Time

The women's basketball empire won't have UC Irvine to kick around anymore. Kept under wraps when they weren't being rapped, the Anteaters have finally taken that last big step into the big time.

They've gone recruiting.

Swept into history like dust under a rug are the days of 26-game losing streaks, winless conference campaigns, empty gyms and .250 shooting percentages.

GONE IS THE IMAGE of walk-ons from the intramural programs recruited by flyers posted on bulletin boards. Sealed are the scorebooks filled with 50 and 60-point defeats. Forgotten are the days of UCI centers looking up to opposing guards.

No longer will Irvine be a soft touch on the schedule, whipping girls to pad the stats against, fall gals to keep the subs happy. After four years of taking their lumps, the Anteaters are ready to start dishing them out.

Either that or Dean Andrea is going to be eating a lot of crow.

"Our goal is to be the best women's team on the west coach," says Andrea, diving head first into the pressure cooker. "Women's sports are just about here and we hope to lead the way."

ANDREA

Whether that is just hot air or cold facts remains to be seen but Andrea has been doing a masterful job of recruiting. Armed with only partial scholarships, confined by tight AIAW regulations and fighting the stigma of UCI's 9-39 record the last two years, Andrea landed six All-CIF blue chippers.

Still, it's tough to keep up with the Joneses and the Bruins.

"We don't have the funds to give full rides and we lost four girls to major universities when it came down to either us or them and they offered more money," says Andrea. "But we did get four really great players who turned down full scholarships to come here and it's them that we're going to build around."

In addition to his first-year duties as the school's third women's basketball coach in four years, Andrea also doubles as an assistant coach in the men's program where, naturally, his main duties are recruiting. But unlike the men's team, which is predominately from the San Francisco-Oakland area, Andrea didn't go far to recruit the women.

One of the first players Andrea landed was Newport Harbor's Jeanie Wolfe, a 5-8 guard-forward he likens to Michigan State's Ervin "Magic" Johnson. Then came 5-7 Mater Dei guard Karen Grams, 6-1 Long Beach Jordan center Catherine Hamilton and 6-0 Palm Springs center Andrea Ray.

"It's like the days in New York, when recruiters would come in and raid the city players," says Andrea, who hails from the Big Apple. "Now, recruiters are coming into California and raiding our back yard.

"Jeanie was one of the players we definitely had to have. She gave us credibility in our area. We're tired of seeing all the talent flood to UCLA. We're not going to lose to them anymore."

Andrea wasn't just talking about recruiting battles when he said that and he put himself out on a limb when he explained why.

"I've told everybody that if I can go out and get the players, we can turn this program around. I've seen Billie Moore coach and I don't think she's a better basketball coach than I am.

"I fear no one. We welcome the UCLA's, the Long Beach State's. Sure, I'm putting a lot of pressure on myself because I want to see if I'm as good a coach as I think I am. But I wouldn't be saying it if I didn't think we could do it."

There are several advantages to coaching women basketball players; the most important being the simple fact that women don't dream of playing in the NBA. But there are some problems. For instance:

Do you still call it a man-to-man defense?

Is an ace scorer a one-woman show?

Will there be scantily dressed, shrilly-voiced rah-rah guys jumping up and down the sidelines?

Will the team nickname be Anteaterettes?

Will there be fans in the stands?

Will male reporters fight to be admitted to the locker room?

Will anybody even care?

UCI Explodes At the Plate, In the Field

UC Irvine's new-found hitting power continued in force Wednesday as the Anteaters rapped out 15 base hits. Unfortunately, the opponent, Coach Gary Adams and his visiting UCLA Bruins, countered that with 20 hits of their own and parlayed it into a 14-11 non-conference collegiate baseball victory.

UCLA's winning margin came with three runs in the eighth inning, of which two were plated by one of four UCI miscues during the afternoon.

In the bottom of the ninth the hosts rallied to load the bases, but went down empty-handed. The Anteaters stranded a dozen runners, six in the last two innings.

Jim Dawson was three-for-four with a double and two singles, Mike Hirano was three-for-six and Mike Nagle had three hits in five trips to the plate for the Anteaters.

UCLA's Jim Auten homered twice, the first with two runners on in the first inning and a solo job in the sixth for his 22nd and 23rd four-baggers of the season.

Tars, Oilers Win Track Meets

The final day of Sunset League dual track and field meets Wednesday held few surprises but more than its normal share of multiple winners.

A triple by Steve Odgers and doubles by Mike Dotterer and Jon Butler kept Edison unbeaten in dual meets following Wednesday's 81-55 win over visiting Westminster.

Kevin Jefferies doubled in the weight events to lead Newport Harbor sweeps as the Sailors overcame a triple by Kevin Romine to beat Fountain Valley, 77-59.

AND DOUBLES by Tracy McDonald and Deron Linsacum of Huntington Beach overshadowed a brilliant distance double by Marina's Matt Blaty as the Oilers wound up the dual campaign 5-1 with an 88-48 triumph on the road.

Blaty won the mile in 4:25.2 and the two-mile in 9:42.2 to beat Huntington Beach's Gordon Duff easily in both events.

Linsacum long jumped 21-2½ and ran 52.7 in the 440 while McRoberts turned in throws of 44-11¼ in the shot put and 136-2 in the discus for the Oilers.

MARINA'S BOB MIYAOKA set a stadium record by going 43-6 in the triple jump.

Edison's Butler, a sophomore, went 4:49.7 in the mile but had a more impressive time in the two-mile (9:35.5). Dotterer won both sprints, the 100 in 10.0 and the 220 in 23.3, while Odgers tripled in the high jump (6-2), long jump (19-9½) and triple jump (42-9½).

The meet's top mark was turned in by Steve Davis, who went 14.4 in the 120 high hurdles for a non-winded season best.

FOUNTAIN VALLEY'S Romine did all he could, winning the 100 (10.1), 220 (23.5) and long jump (21-5). But Newport Harbor's Jefferies led Sailor sweeps in the shot put (52-4) and discus (147-7) and the Tars also swept the pole vault and low hurdles to up their league record to 3-2.

Scott McKay pole vaulted 14-0 for Newport while Rudy Jiminez took the 440 in 51.4 and Nowell Kay the lows in 40.3.

In a South Coast meet Dave Hancock of San Clemente doubled in the horizontal jumps (19-7, 44-11) and David Howard doubled in the distances (4:43.6, 9:58.0) to lead San Clemente past Laguna Beach, 80-55. Jay Thorson tripled and Norm Anderson doubled for the Artists.

YOU'RE A WINNER. DOES YOUR BODY SHOW IT?

You've invested years on your education. Then more long years on your career. Building, planning, learning, growing.

And now you've reached a plateau—time to look at yourself and the world around you.

You're a winner: Professionally, socially, to your family. But does your body reflect that?

A successful person should look like it, right? Solid, proportional body. Erect posture and a confident, energetic walk.

So, if your physique isn't showing success, invest a little time with us. We'll give you back a winning body.

Double(s) Trouble

Fedderly, Tomei Spark OCC

By JOHN SEVANO
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The Orange Coast College doubles tennis team of Mike Fedderly and Jeff Tomei should be booked for a one-week engagement in Las Vegas as a comedy duo.

They are amusing, funny, articulate and intelligent. Only their work on the court, in both singles and doubles, is taken seriously. The rest? Well, the rest is just downright humorous.

"Are you sure?" retorts his teammate Tomei with a grin, who is No. 2 on the squad.

Fedderly and Tomei have been at each other like this for the past two years. Prior, they were fierce competitors — Fedderly at Corona del Mar and Tomei at Estancia.

"We met once in high school," says the 5-9, 150-pound Tomei proudly. "I beat him easily. I think it was 6-2."

"YEAH, BUT WHICH school won the match," counters his curly-headed partner quickly. "Didn't we win the match 25-3?"

"Yes," answers Tomei with a smile, "but one of those three points was a Fedderly loss."

The two have gone on to improve remarkably since their prep days.

The 6-2, 170-pound Fedderly has lost but one match as OCC's No. 1 player. Tomei, on the other hand, can boast even better credentials as he has yet to lose at all.

AS FOR DOUBLES? Well, together they've lost two matches, but have played so well they figure to be the team to beat as OCC travels to the Ojai tournament this weekend with the conference and state championships to follow.

"We've worked together for a year and a half now and we communicate well," says Tomei in a more serious vein. "We compliment each other. Jeff is a big hitter and I don't have as much pace on the ball as he has."

"Neither one of us are big serve and volleyers in singles, but we are in doubles," comments Fedderly. "You have to serve and volley in doubles to be successful."

GEORGE MATTIAS, OCC's tennis coach, talks favorably about his tandem.

"They're as good as any two guys we've had at Coast," he says without hesitation. "They compare favorably to some of the best.

"But just how good are they? As they say, the proof will be in the pudding," says Mattias, referring to Ojai, the South Coast Conference championships and the state finals. "If they do well in Ojai, conference and state, then they have to be considered one of the top teams ever."

Fedderly and Tomei approach their matches on a very low key level, although both admit they'll do whatever it takes to win.

"YOUR OPPONENT has an advantage when he sees you're upset," says Fedderly, "so I try to keep my head screwed on right. I think it's much better that way."

"If I do get upset," adds Tomei, "Mike is always there to calm me down. But staying calm comes with maturity.

"A guy like John McEnroe gets anything he wants because all he cares about is winning, and so do we. Which would you rather be? A nice guy who loses, or a hot head who wins?"

BOTH FEDDERLY and Tomei realize the importance of their upcoming matches, not only as individuals, but from a team standpoint, too.

"We would like to do well because of all the coaches from the major universities that will be there to recruit," says Tomei, who also indicated that the two would like to pursue their careers at the same school.

"We're looking for a good Pacific-10 school," chimes in Fedderly, "because that's where you get the experience. You wouldn't be able to get that at a smaller school."

BUT AS WELL as Fedderly and Tomei would like to prosper in singles and doubles, their main objective is to the team.

"We play for the team and ourselves both," Fedderly adds.

As singles players, each is so strong in his own right they probably will be put in separate brackets during the next three tournaments, which suits them both just fine.

"I THINK THERE'S a chance we could meet each other in the finals," says the southpaw Tomei.

"I played you once already this year and beat you 7-5, 6-3," quips Fedderly. "It was a cakewalk."

"I'd pick at your back-hand and move you all over the court," answers Tomei, now revealing his strategy.

"That's impossible, because I get anything," laughs Fedderly.

And on it goes between the two. But at least one thing's for sure. When it comes to being on the same side of the net, they have but ONE objective in mind.

Pirates Now 16-1

Johnston, Meyers Lead OCC Women

By HOWARD L. HANDY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A future medical student and a bored swimmer are pacing the Orange Coast College women's tennis team this season and although neither has any ambitions to play professionally, both have found the game beneficial and a way of life that is helping them get a college education.

Jill Johnston plans a medical career and is the No. 1 player on the Orange Coast women's team. Julie Meyers became bored with swimming and turned to tennis at an early age. She is the No. 2 player for the Pirates.

Johnston, taking over the top singles spot for Coach Janice Maran's Pirates (16-1) this season with graduation of Lajla von Lutzow, is not the overpowering type of player, according to her coach.

"HER FOREHAND topspin is probably her strongest point," Maran says. "She's also good at short angle shots and is very aggressive from the backcourt. As much as you can be from that spot.

"While she has improved over last year, she doesn't go to the net as much as she could to make her a more aggressive player."

Johnston has been playing tennis for about six years, starting at the Newport Beach Tennis Club. She has been coached by Linda Christian and Robyn Ray along with her school coaches at OCC and Newport Harbor High.

"I have a scholarship to attend Cal Poly (San Luis Obispo) and I think I'll go there next year to study pre-medicine," Johnston says. "I took some classes here that made me interested in that field and I hope to pursue it as a career.

"I WANT TO KEEP playing tennis but I'm not making it my future."

She agrees with her coach that her best stroke is her forehand and her baseline game. She has a 13-4 record in singles this year and is currently teamed with Melinda Myers in doubles.

Julie Meyers was a swimmer for the Mesa Verde Country Club team before getting bored with that sport and turning to tennis at the suggestion of her mother.

"I like tennis but I'm not that serious about it. I had an offer to attend Cal Poly (Pomona) on a scholarship out of Estancia but I decided to come here first. I'm glad I did because I've met a lot of people and learned how to be competitive," Meyers says. Julie is 15-2 in singles this year and teams with Lisa Myers in doubles.

BOTH GIRLS AGREE that the OCC team that plays Golden West in a semifinal Southern California championship match Monday has good depth.

"I think we'll do as well as we did last year when we went to the SoCal finals before losing to Pierce," Jill says.

"We're not winning as easily as we did last year but we should do as well this year," Julie adds.

Both agree that Maran has helped them tremendously at Orange Coast.

"She does an outstanding job and we've been very successful under her," Meyers says.

"JULIE HAS IMPROVED her game tremendously this year," Maran says. "She can now move to the net, something she could not do last year without getting creamed. She's not afraid to move up and into the ball now."

Johnston, Meyers and Melinda Myers have switched around in singles play this season, all three having played in the No. 1 spot at one time. But the lineup is set now and they are 1-2-3.

"This is a different type team than we had last year," the coach adds. "We don't have the overpowering No. 1 player to rely on. It's a different type of strength in between, all the way down the ladder."

'Self-portrait'

Gene Tierney Reveals Woes

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The new movie books:

The cool beauty of Gene Tierney haunted Dana Andrews and millions of movie fans in "Laura" (1944). Now 58, and married to Houston oil man Howard Lee, she remains a beautiful woman.

In her autobiography, "Self-portrait," she discloses that the life of a movie star is "no bed of roses" (the title of Joan Fontaine's recent memoirs).

TIERNEY

Miss Tierney has endured more than her share of woes: Ruinous romances, failed marriage, family squabbles (her own father sued her), birth of a retarded child, mental breakdowns. With collaborator Mickey Herskowitz, she tells of such things as well as the joyful aspects of her life — with candor, perception and no hint of self-pity.

Much of the Tierney saga has been known. In her book, she discloses the details of her lengthy, doomed romance with John F. Kennedy.

They met in 1946 when he was a navy lieutenant visiting the set of "Dragonwyck." She was immediately struck by "the most perfect blue eyes I had ever seen on a man." They met again at a Sonja Henie party and on the dance floor he said, "I could dance like this for the rest of my life." Dinner dates followed, then meetings in New York. Kennedy was running for Congress for the first time, and told of his calm resolve to become the first Catholic president of the United States: "It wasn't what I had in mind, what I started out to do. But I had a commitment to Joe (his war casualty brother). And to my father."

KENNEDY

Miss Tierney writes that she declined an involvement with co-star Tyrone Power to continue with Kennedy, even though she was warned that he could never marry a divorced woman.

One day over a New York lunch with other people, Kennedy said "out of the blue" "You know, Gene, I can never marry you."

It was over. She saw him three times again in Paris at Maxim's, in New York at El Morocco, and in Washington at the White House.

Andrew Sinclair does not explain the curious genius of America's great film maker in "John Ford," but presents a well-rounded portrait of the man. Ford spent his working lifetime within the studio system but remained a rebel throughout.

Irving Thalberg, youthful production chief of MGM, sought Ford for a movie but made the mistake of allowing the director to wait an hour for an appointment. Ford departed and left a note: "Dear Irving, I'd save my money. See you later, Jack."

FORD

The book reveals that 20th Century-Fox chief Darryl Zanuck worried about the radical message of "Grapes of Wrath" and tried to recut the film. It was impossible. Ford had developed a method of cutting in the camera, not the editor's room, "limiting his footage and angles and struggling for the director's right to have all his chosen material included in the release print of an important film."

The inveterate movie fan, Rex Reed, has collected another parcel of his interviews in "Travolta to Keaton." He has an extraordinary knack for getting stars to reveal themselves, telling secrets they wouldn't disclose to bed companions.

Candice Bergen talked to Reed after working for Lina Wertmuller in the disaster literally movie. "The End of Our World in Our Usual Bed in a Night Full of Rain."

BERGEN

"It's impossible to be more flat-chested than I am," said Bergen, "but Lina decided to change everything from my eyebrows to the color of my hair to my bust. I wore a nightgown throughout most of the film, and I was perfectly willing to struggle by like the doorframe I am, but Lina said I wasn't sexy enough."

"So she had a nightgown constructed that was the most intricate piece of architecture. I'd like to rent it for the rest of my life."

Utility Slates Refunds

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Residents overcharged for electricity since the adoption of a special rate reduction in 1977 will be contacted by the San Diego Gas & Electric Co. and given full refunds, the Public Utilities Commission announced.

The commission said the programs agreed to by the utility ends a controversy over whether it adequately informed customers of the reduced rates.

Officials estimated 29,000 customers were overcharged as much as $2 million since rates were reduced for a basic amount of electricity (240 kilowatts a month) to cover lighting and household appliances.

Marketing Officers Elected

The South Coast Marketing Group has elected Mike Madigan (Tarbell, San Clemente) president.

Other officers are Jack Hill (Allstate, San Juan Capistrano) — vice president, Anne Christensen (Villa Associates, San Juan Capistrano) — secretary; Bill Morrison (Allstate, San Juan Capistrano) — treasurer.

The group meets Friday mornings in San Clemente to buy, sell and exchange properties in behalf of clients as well as their portfolios.

Sears To Reject Federal Pacts

CHICAGO (AP) Sears, Roebuck and Co., the nation's largest retailer, says it will accept no further federal contracts because of a "campaign of harassment" by federal investigators over Sears' hiring practices.

Company chairman Edward R. Telling said that Sears will honor existing government contracts but will not bid upon or accept contracts "for an indefinite time, beginning immediately."

Telling said Sears was taking the action because the Office of Federal Contract Compliance Programs had started what he said appears to be "a campaign of harassment, subterfuge or retaliation."

Companies that bid on government contracts must comply with federal civil rights and affirmative action laws and regulations.

OPEC Irks Latins

21 Nations Protest Price Hike

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A growing number of Latin American nations, angered by multiple increases in world oil prices, are talking about taking action against the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

TWENTY-ONE OTHER nations, including Mexico complain that higher oil prices are aggravating inflation, unemployment and fuel shortages in a continent of 335 million people already beset by difficult economic problems.

The majority of the nations have had to raise gasoline prices, some as much as 50 percent, and some have combined the rises with subsidies to soften the blow for consumers. Colombia, a nation of 26 million, is suffering an inflation rate of 25 percent this year instead of the projected 15 percent.

IN MARCH, OPEC raised average crude oil prices from $13.85 to $14.54 a barrel and authorized surcharges that in some cases raise the price to $19 and $20 a barrel on the "spot" market, where oil not sold under long-term contracts is auctioned to the highest bidder.

Mexico has the world's sixth largest proven oil reserves and is fast becoming a major exporter, but refuses to join OPEC.

It charges $17.10 a barrel for crude, but refuses to sell on the "spot" market. The state petroleum monopoly, PEMEX, sells only under long-term contracts and negotiates increases with clients every three months.

TO DETER SOME inflationary effects its new oil wealth is bringing, Mexico is holding crude oil production to 2.5 million barrels a day for the next three years although it says it could produce 4 million barrels a day.

Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo is quietly consulting other Latin American heads of state about calling a United Nations meeting to deal with the world oil energy crisis. He plans to outline his project before the U.N. General Assembly in September.

Costa Rican President Rodrigo Carazo, who endorsed the idea, last week organized an energy commission in Central America to study ways of taking common action against OPEC.

CARAZO AND LOPEZ Portillo have warned that the world energy crisis may spark ever greater outbursts of political violence, especially in poor nations that have no oil.

"The disorder in production, distribution and consumption of fuels already has humanity on the brink of collapse," Lopez Portillo said in a recent speech.

"Oil prices go up, the industrialized nations pass on these increases by raising prices of their manufactured goods," Carazo said last week. "But our countries cannot increase the prices of coffee, sugar, meat or other products they export."

Four Latin American presidents and Spanish Prime Minister Adolfo Suarez agreed to hold talks about offsetting future OPEC increases. A joint statement by Suarez and the presidents of Colombia, Bolivia, Costa Rica and the Dominican Republic called the increases "arbitrary," "constant" and "indiscriminate."

Earnings Decrease For Savings Firm

Downey Savings and Loan Association, headquartered in Costa Mesa, has reported net earnings of $2,831,000 or 90 cents per share for the first quarter.

This compares to the year earlier period when $2,979,000 or 95 cents per share was posted. First quarter results, while off 5 percent, represent the company's fourth best reporting quarter.

Maurice L. McAlister, president of Downey Savings, noted that record revenues were offset by the higher average rate paid on savings accounts and borrowed money.

"The rapid rise in money costs primarily reflects the high rates paid on money market certificates. Until such time as interest rates in general decrease, cost of money will determine the degree of profitability," he said.

Downey Savings, with assets of $1.08 billion, is operating statewide with 27 offices and has approval for new facilities in Yucca Valley, Escondido and San Marcos.

Federal Law

Fund Transfers Gain Security

By SYLVIA PORTER

If you discover one of your credit cards is missing and has been used, you are liable for no more than $50. If someone forges one of your checks, you bear no liability.

But if the plastic debit or access card you use with an electronic banking machine is lost or stolen, you must act fast. The longer you wait to report your loss, the more liability you assume.

UNDER CERTAIN SECTIONS OF the Electronic Funds Transfer Act, which took effect in February, you have two business days in which to report the loss of your card. If you notify the institution that issued the electronic banking card within that span of time, your loss is limited to $50.

But if you neglect to contact the issuing institution within two days of learning of your loss, you could be liable for as much as $500. Even this $500 ceiling on liability disappears after 60 days. Then your liability is unlimited.

If an unusual circumstance — travel or hospitalization — prevents you from contacting the institution, these time periods may be extended.

Before these federal regulations governing consumers' liability went into effect, most in stitutions offering electronic funds transfer services determined a customer's liability for losses on a case-by-case basis, according to a 1978 survey by the American Bankers Association.

THE EFT ACT ALSO ALLOWS institutions to issue unsolicited debit cards, but the cards cannot be used until you inform the issuer that you have received and accepted the card. The institution must also tell you:

How to dispose of the unsolicited card if you don't want it.

The telephone number and address to use to report the card lost or stolen.

The sort of electronic transactions that you may make by using the card — for instance, withdrawing money from your checking or savings account, moving funds from one type of account to another, making deposits and learning the balances in your accounts.

— WHAT CHARGES, IF ANY, you incur for these services and the limits, if any, on using them.

The circumstances under which the issuing institution might reveal information about your account to such third parties as credit bureaus or government agencies.

Other consumer safeguards governing EFT services go into effect in May 1980.

THESE WOULD REQUIRE FINANCIAL institutions to disclose whether the following rights are available to their EFT customers:

(1) To stop payment of pre-authorized trar fers and how to do so.

(2) To receive a recipt for any electronic fund transfers you have made.

(3) To resolve errors by obeying certain procedures.

(4) to assume the issuer will be liable for failing to make transfers that you have requested.

Gradually and extremely slowly the gaps in safeguards in the era of electronic funds transfers are being closed. It remains a fight, but we are winning the protections essential to financial security.

Stocks Lose Ground On Negative Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved lower today on nervousness over the future of nuclear power and on news that consumer prices rose by 1 percent in March.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 6.49 points to 860.97.

Refugees Look to U.S.

Tribesmen Feel Like 'Abandoned Luggage'

EDITOR'S NOTE: In another in a series of dispatches from refugee camps around the world, AP Special Correspondent Peter Arnett and Eddie Adams tell of the dilemma of the nomadic Hmong people who fought for the CIA in Laos and now regard themselves as abandoned luggage in America's lost war. The reporter-photographer team traveled 45,000 miles across four continents in search of the world's 10.5 million homeless.

AP Special Correspondent

NAN, Thailand — For centuries the nomadic and free-spirited Hmong tribesmen wandered the high places of southern Asia. Today they regard themselves as the abandoned luggage of a lost American war.

Their chieftain spoke quietly as he adjusted the red sash around his baggy pants. The silver bells on his embroidered jacket tinkled as he walked to a meeting with the tribal elders.

"OUR CHOICE WAS simple: death or flight," said Chomsy Chiengmala, once a major in a guerrilla army recruited in Laos by the American CIA, now a leader of 13,000 refugees huddled in the Ban Nam Yao camp in Thailand's Nan province.

Already, nearly 60,000 Hmong tribesmen have made the tortuous journey on foot out of Laos to northern Thailand. Like so many of the world's 10.5 million refugees, they look to the United States for their future.

Here in northern Thailand they live in thatched huts strung along hillsides perpetually wreathed in the blue smoke of cooking fires. Stocky women in black turbans and festooned with red pompons shuttle along the narrow pathways lugging water jars and kindling wood.

THEY HOPE IT'S but a stopover on their way to America, but chances for most are slim.

The Hmong migrated into Laos a century ago from southern China and settled high in the mountains above the malaria belt. Then, in the second half of the 20th century, they went to war.

They were recruited by the thousands by the CIA to battle in the Laos back country against the Pathet Lao and North Vietnamese armies. In a bitter and largely clandestine struggle, they gained a reputation for bravery and resilience.

THEIR CREED THEN, said Chomsy, was "kill or be killed." And for 13 years they denied much of northern Laos to the communist side.

But the cost was dear.

"From a population of around 200,000 we lost 10,000 dead and tens of thousands wounded," the chieftain said. "Our casualties were three times the rate of Americans in Vietnam."

Today, in flight, they reach the Thailand camp at the rate of a dozen or so a day. Some don't make it.

ON THIS DAY AT Pak Chong, a Mekong River anchorage wedged between red clay cliffs, 41 families were found sitting on the river bank shivering, their embroidered clothes hanging to dry. They had crossed from Laos earlier in the morning by tying their children to branches and pushing them through the swift-running water.

"The whole village of 301 people came," said headman Tsia Pao Yang to an interrogating Thai policeman. "We left because Vietnamese soldiers stole our rice and chickens and we feared death. Three of us were killed by Lao soldiers during our week on the trail."

U.N. officials estimate that one in four refmgees does not make it to Thailand, perishing on the jungle trails from exhaustion or the bullets of pursuing soldiers.

"SOMETIMES WE SEE their bodies floating down the Mekong River," said Larry Persons, an American missionary from nearby Nongkhai. "No one dares fish them out because of the danger of gunfire from the other side."

The Ban Nam Yao camp is three years old, but the population remains about constant. While about 50 leave each month for resettlement in another country, usually the United States, about the same number of babies are born.

Many here are widows. Zua Yang, 40, a baby at her breast, said her husband died while crossing the Mekong River, leaving her with six children.

The refugee life is altering the lifestyle of the free-spirited Hmongs, not accustomed to bureaucracy and regulations and sometimes given to smoking opium and taking an extra wife.

About 15 percent of the Hmong men have more than one wife.

One of them is Chue Dua Her, 30. A short, sturdy former battalion commander, Chue said he had admitted to American officials he had two wives, unintentionally disqualifying himself for resettlement in the United States.

"I HAVE KNOWN other men to lie about their wives, claiming the women were instead their sisters," he said, with his two wives and five children standing nearby. "And they are living happily in America."

Smoking opium is a traditional habit of the older Hmongs, but the American authorities frown on that, too.

Sua Tua, a gaunt 68, said he has smoked three pipes a day for years, financed from his son's earnings in the camp as a laborer. The habit cost him a ticket to America.

BACK IN LAOS, a wife brought a dowery of about $750. In the camp the price has plummeted to $200, with some marriages arranged on credit.

And the size of the Hmong family has diminished from a normal dozen children to only two or three.

Unless a Hmong soldier has served 4½ years in the U.S.-backed army he is not considered for resettlement.

"YET, 40 PERCENT OF those we deal with have served a full 3½ years," one American said.

About 8,000 Hmong have immigrated to the U.S. and 50,000 remain in Thailand. As many as 20,000 more are expected to flee from Laos.

Under the tightly defined American program, only those with "anchor" relatives in America — such as parents, children and single siblings — qualify for resettlement. Married brothers and sisters are not eligible to join a brother in the United States.

"YET SOVIET JEWS are allowed to go to the U.S. regardless of any tie or relationship," said one American who works with the refugees. "I think the Hmong who fought in our army should get similar treatment."

With the American withdrawal from Indochina in the early 1970s, the Hmong were left to fend for themselves.

Some continued to resist the communists and are known to be fighting still. But the unmarked U.S. planes that used to supply them have long since stopped flying.

OTHER HMONGS capitulated to the communists, with the men being sent to re-education camps and their families to communal farms.

But, according to United Nations and Thai officials, the majority decided to flee because they feared their past association with the Americans had tainted them in the eyes of the communists.

Gov. Brown's 'Safari' Given Poor Grade

By DENNIS McLELLAN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

All the eyes of the world seemingly were on Gov. Jerry Brown's recent trip to Africa with rock singer Linda Ronstadt, including those of one long-time Africa watcher who found little about the trip to commend.

"I found no redeeming qualities in his traipsing around there," said John Peer Nugent, a Newsweek Africa bureau chief who has spent nearly 20 years covering Africa.

"The biggest problem with somebody like Brown going there is a lack of planning, except to go and say he's going to do good things."

Nugent's comments were made at the Laguna-Newport Beach Assistance League sponsored Town Hall lecture series Monday at Edward's Cinema in Newport Beach.

THE HOUR-LONG TALK covered a multitude of the complexities that are Africa, a land of 54 countries, 400 million people and half the votes in the United Nations.

Few Americans really know much about Africa and its problems including, said Nugent, Jerry Brown.

Nugent noted that Brown told reporters at a press conference that he always wanted to go to "that country."

"Africa is not a country, it's a continent," said Nugent. "Mr. Brown apparently hasn't got ten that straight in his mind. He obviously went there to secure the black vote in America."

Nugent said Brown went to all the wrong countries: Liberia, "the Uncle Tom country of Africa," corrupt Kenya and Nigeria where no elections have been held since independence 25 years ago.

"HE WENT THERE (Nigeria) apparently to talk about solar energy," said Nugent, adding, "Africans are fairly sophisticated but they haven't gotten to solar energy."

He questioned the value of discussing solar energy in a country that must use dung not only for fuel but to build its huts because there is no wood. That, he said, shows how "pathetic" some African countries are.

"I'm glad to see Brown has returned," Nugent told the audience. "And most Africans share my enthusiasm."

If Nugent gives Brown poor marks for his knowledge of Africa, he rates Sen. S.I. Hayakawa as one Californian who is a serious student of African affairs.

Nugent, who often serves as consultant to senators and other government officials formulating opinions on Africa, accompanied Hayakawa to Africa last summer.

HE SAID HE WAS impressed by the 72-year-old senator's vitality and ability to "analyze the situation and do a decent job."

"If there is any one man in the United States who deserves credit for bringing about the elections in Rhodesia, it is Sen. Hayakawa," said Nugent. "He came to the conclusion that elections in Rhodesia may not be 'the' answer but it is an answer."

Newsman John Peer Nugent

Nugent doesn't view the black versus white conflict as the primary problem in Africa's future. The greatest danger, he believes, is going to be blacks versus blacks.

And that problem is nothing new to the continent.

"The tribal slaughter that is going on in Africa overwhelms one's mind," said Nugent. "Hundreds of thousands of blacks die every year."

NUGENT DESCRIBED AFRICA as "not an African place. It's a place of 2,000 tribes. They think along these lines, not nationhood."

To add to the problem, he said, there is a like number of languages and dialects.

Nugent said most Americans are not stirred by reports of slaughter unless whites are killed. He predicts the killing, a mixture of tribalism and holy wars, will continue.

"This is a crisis as far as I'm concerned," he said.

As for Uganda, Nugent said that just because dictator Idi Amin has been removed doesn't mean the country's problems have been eliminated.

The country, he said, will have to be rebuilt, a task that he feels probably will fall on the United States.

"UGANDA HAS BEEN denuded by Amin of much talent," said Nugent. "He pretty much slaughtered the intellectuals. There are few decision-making politicians who have the charisma to run the country because Amin has so cleaned out the place."

Despite the horror stories that came out of the country during Amin's bloody eight-year reign, the journalist described Amin as a "virgin in the woods" compared to past Ugandans.

"We in America don't have time to go back in history," he said. "Uganda has always been tremendously cruel. Amin was not a unique phenomenon of modern-day society."

Although Amin has fallen from power and disappeared, that doesn't necessarily mean "Big Daddy" is down and out for the final count.

"We're told Mr. Amin is finished," said Nugent. "But I learned long ago that until I see the autopsy report I'm not going to take it for granted. Many of these dictators are made of Indian rubber and bounce back in other places."

ALTHOUGH MANY AMERICANS express grave concern over the East-West (democracy versus Communism) conflict in Africa, Nugent describes the situation as "quite humorous."

It's often difficult to say who is on the side of the East and who is on the side of the West, he said. As an example, he cited Angola whose major source of income now comes from Gulf oil operations.

To keep the American operation running, he said, Angola sent in Cuban troops to protect it. On weekends, he noted, it's not uncommon for the Cuban soldiers and the "Texas roughnecks" running the operation to get together for Saturday night bashes.

"Some strange bedfellows pop up," Nugent observed wryly. "The cold war is indeed amusing to me. I, for one, am not frightened by the East-West conflict. I don't see Africa making a commitment either to the East or the West."

Nugent added that although "we are caught up in this thing called human rights, application of it in Africa is a waste of time."

THE REAL CONCERN of the United States (and other countries) is with Africa's mineral rights, he said. "If we were more honest about it, we would get along better with the African nations."

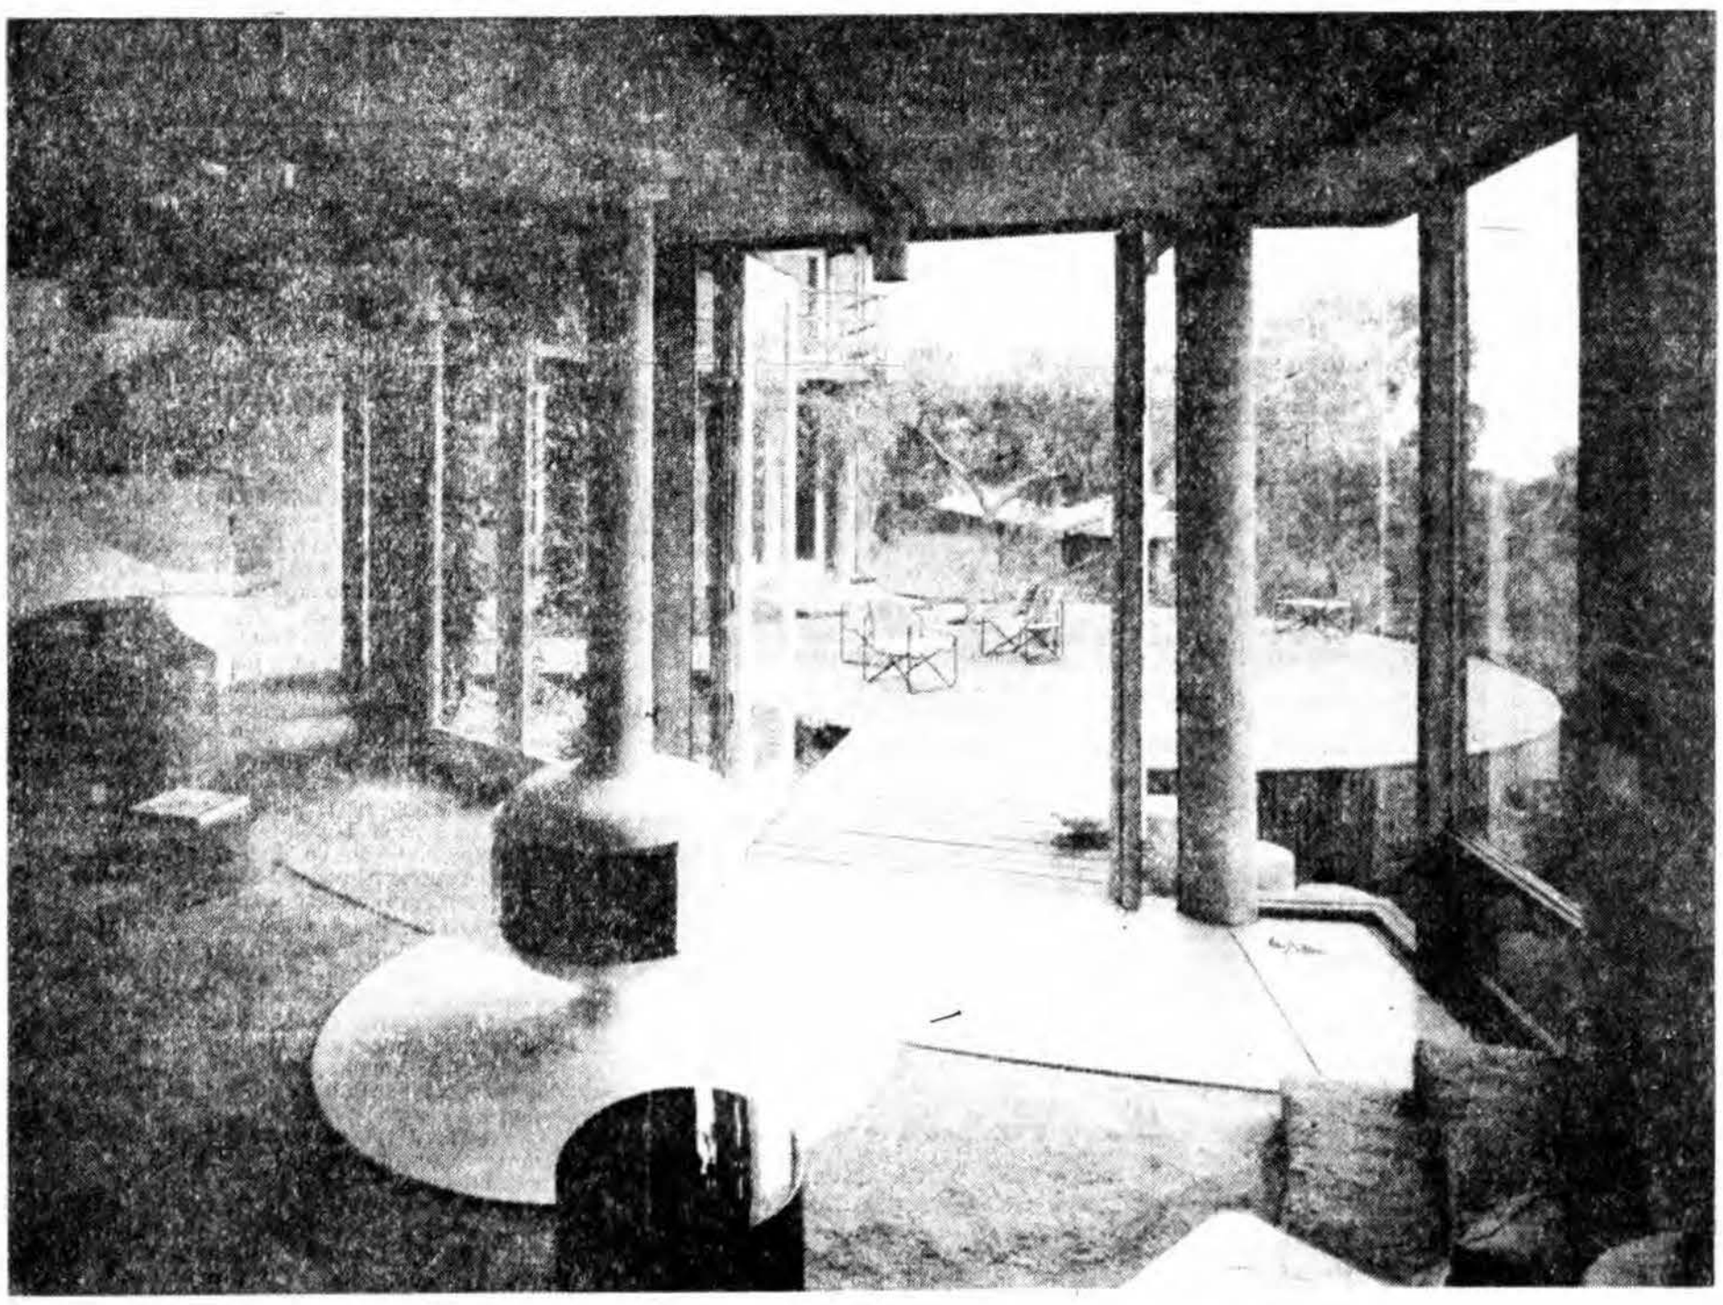
According to Nugent, the United States should forget about the Peace Corps, human rights and East-West ideology. The way to make inroads in Africa, he believes, is by helping build it.

The United States is in a strong position, he said, because African nations would love to get hold of American-made tractors and machinery.

"We're missing a major opportunity," he said. "We should show the business flag of America instead of talking about the Lincoln Gettysburg Address flag."

Talk of freedom, he said, falls on deaf ears in Africa. "Talk of freedom means nothing to people eating bark off trees."

Nugent said he is amazed when he visits American college campuses and hears well-fed students calling for the removal of American corporations in Africa. Without those jobs, Africans have told him, they will starve.



SUNSET—The Laguna Beach home of John Phelan will be the setting for a "Sunset of Chamber Music, cocktails and hors d'oeuvres, architectural stimulation and spectacular coastal views," according to a spokesperson for the Laguna Beach Summer Music Festival, which is sponsoring the fund-raising event. Scheduled for 5 p.m. Saturday, April 28, the affair will be highlighted by chamber music planned by festival music director/cellist Masatoshi Mitsumoto.

Getting Back to Basic Dirt

Cheryl Romo

I am currently suffering through the worst case of spring fever I've ever had.

Each morning I awake before the alarm goes off to the sounds of birds chirping outside and the warm sun streaming through the hole in my bedroom curtain.

I lull myself to sleep at night dreaming of tropical islands and the smell of suntan oil and floating on a raft and turning chocolate brown and doing nothing of any consequence.

When I drive to work each day I have this tremendous urge to point the nose of my wanton silver Alfa Romeo toward Coast Highway and let her take me where she will.

Ensenada is nice this time of year and so is San Diego and San Francisco and Monterey and Carmel and Santa Barbara and my backyard.

So, you say, what this woman needs is a vacation. Of course you're right. And that's why I have this almost terminal case of the fever.

I just had my vacation and, I fear, am still in the re-entry cycle. If there is one bit of advice I can offer: never take your vacation in the springtime. The consequences of your action will be felt until fall.

Spring fever makes me realize I am no longer able to do all the things I would like to do. It would take some clever contortions to be able to get a suntan while doing the laundry or typing a story and at the same time show up at the office every morning.

As I grow up (I may get old, but I will never completely grow up.), I am beginning to realize that we all have to learn to give up portions of our freedom in order to achieve our goals.

Whether we like it or not, something's got to twist and bend and peel.

Even someone as illustrious as President Kennedy, I am told, used to have dreadful cases of the springs and would sit in his cabinet meetings drawing doodles of sailboats.

I don't draw sailboats; I pout. And this weekend as I watched my daughter and her friends prepare for a beach party while I had to go to work, I righteously lusted in my heart for those adolescent and romantic spring days of so long ago.

Even my body is beginning to rebel. Now when I look at myself, I have a new understanding of cellulite on the thigh and not being able to see to find your glasses in the morning. And I don't like it.

In an effort to protest what is happening, I went to the local nursery on Sunday morning and bought a flat of yellow petunias.

It seemed like a million years since I last planted a flower or played in the dirt. And the idea of getting really grubby was strangely appealing.

Wearing a bathing suit that had obviously shrunk since last summer and an old pair of hiking boots with the laces missing, I became so deeply involved in this act of poetic expression that I hardly noticed the blisters developing on my hands and the sunburn on my body.

By Monday my spring fever had oversprung and was replaced by a spring cold and a headache. In some ways I was grateful.

For the first time in over a month, I thought, I will be able to concentrate on my responsibilities and on becoming a useful person. My spring had leaked.

Then this morning I woke to the sounds of a dove cooing and the sun made me feel glad to be alive and all I wanted to do was drive to Ensenada again.

Heavy Sleepers Up In Arms

Ann Landers

DEAR READERS: I believe I have heard from nearly every heavy sleeper in the North American continent — as well as their mothers, sisters, brothers, spouses, roommates or offspring. They are all suggesting various forms of punishment for me. (1) I should be hanged by my thumbs for a week. (2) Twenty lashes with a knotted-up bedsheet. (3) My eyes should be propped open with toothpicks for 48 hours.

It seems I enraged an awful lot of folks with my answer to the young woman whose 22-year-old brother simply couldn't get out of bed in the morning unless she dragged him out. I suggested the possibility that the guy might be a pot-head, on heavier drugs, boozed up or beered up. I also added, "Tell him that whatever he's been doing to knock himself unconscious at bedtime, he'd better stop."

FROM ABERDEEN S.D.: Dear Ann Landers: I am a 30-year-old wife and mother of four. I can sleep through an earthquake, a thunderstorm in a canvas-topped camper and three alarm clocks. I have never been on drugs, beer or booze, and an answer like yours in the newspaper sure didn't help me with my family. Thanks for the "klop in the chops" — a phrase I picked up from your column a few years back. — NO NAME PLEASE, I'VE HAD ENOUGH

FROM TULSA: Why did it have to be pot or pills or beer or booze that made Brother such a sound sleeper? Haven't you ever heard of irregular brain waves? This was the reason a member of our family could not get out of bed in the morning no matter how hard he tried. It always took special effort on the part of someone who cared enough to see that he got to work on time. I hope you are ashamed of yourself. — SEE A DOC, SIS

So, dear Readers, I am eating my words. Chomp. Chomp. Chomp. Heavy sleepers don't necessarily have to be beered up, boozed up, pot-heads, or pill poppers. They may have "irregular brain waves" or they could be naturally heavy sleepers. The advice I should have given in the first place comes from three separate sources I contacted regarding this problem. (I should have investigated more carefully before I put my foot in my mouth.)

Put the full responsibility on the sleeper to get himself out of bed in the morning. Don't let him or her put it on you. When a sound sleeper accepts the fact that he is strictly on his own, he WILL hear the alarm clock or the wake-up call — and get out of the sack. He may oversleep once or twice or even more, but when he finally realizes he has no one on whom to place the blame, he WILL shape up and conquer the problem.

Miss Personality Strikes Out

Erma Bombeck

A magazine recently surveyed a group of teenage girls in which 80 percent of them said that a pleasing personality and a sense of humor were the prime consideration in accepting a first date.

Oh sure, and I'll bet the boys said the same thing. They always do.

Being touted for a blind date by reassuring the blindee "she has a wonderful personality" is like being named Miss Congeniality in the Pillsbury Bake-off. It's a kiss-off. Who cares?

I'm no dummy. When I was in school I saw boys date girls with waists bigger than their IQs. I sat next to a girl once who had the personality of a leftover, but she was definitely assembled at the factory. She took the History of Russia course only because the class was at 9:30 a.m. and she got the morning sun on the right side of her body.

She had a date when she had her teeth cleaned.

Frankly, a pleasing personality and a good sense of humor bears too great a stigma to ever overcome. Mothers used to say that when they were trying to palm off a girl who breathed through her mouth and had a nice tooth.

Or when they were trying to set up a boy who raised earthworms and had a collection of Barbie dolls in his room.

In all the years I was in the dating marketplace, not once did I hear a boy or girl say, "Wow! Would you get a load of that pleasing personality and check out that sense of humor."

Worse, no one ever described a blind date as "really stacked and looks like a prom queen, but don't hang up underneath it all she has a pleasing personality and a sense of humor."

I'm skeptical. I think surveys reflect what the participants want to believe is true. Face it. Guys don't go out with a pleasant personality and a sense of humor.

They marry it though.

FRIDAY, APRIL 27
By SYDNEY OMARR

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Lunar cycle high — circumstances favor your efforts. You can be at right place at crucial moment.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You can get your way, but there will be delay. Know it, be ready for it — strive to imprint style, to reassure loved one.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Emphasis on friendship, realizing you are not alone. One who is selective — and who broods — shows you a different side.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Accent on customs, prestige, civic duties, law and order, responsibility, promotion, added recognition from superiors.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You complete project. One who is at a distance is interested. You'll know it. Aries, Libra persons figure prominently. Travel plans should be accelerated.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Stress originality, pioneering project, uniqueness, independence. Leo, Aquarius persons figure prominently.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Get second emotional wind. If you don't know what to do, do nothing. Accent on legal commitments, joint efforts, public responses, marriage. Go slow, lie low, let others do most of the talking.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Work procedures become more "pleasant." Pressures are relieved. One who opposed you could do a turnabout and become an ally.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You have opportunity to change routine — and it would be beneficial. Young person shares ideas, concerns. Member of opposite sex aids in boosting morale.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You get more "working room." Territorial rights are established. Gemini, Virgo and Sagittarius persons figure prominently. Protect interests. Stand tall for principles.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Relatives, home environment figure in scenario. Gifts, special messages, visits and reunions are part of busy scenario. You win through diplomacy. Know it and act accordingly.

NOTICE INVITING SEALED PROPOSALS (BIDS) FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OF MARGUERITE PARKWAY RESERVOIR TRANSMISSION MAIN RELOCATION CONTRACT NO. 3-17 FOR THE MOULTON-NIGUEL WATER DISTRICT ORANGE COUNTY, CALIFORNIA

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Board of Directors of said District invites and will receive sealed proposals (bids) up to the hour of 10 a.m. on the 11th day of May, 1979, for the furnishing to said District of all transportation, labor, materials, tools, equipment, services, permits, utilities, and other items necessary to construct said work. At said time, said proposals will be publicly opened and read aloud at the office of:

Boyle Engineering Corporation
1501 Quail Street, Newport Beach, California 92660

Bids shall conform to and be responsive to the contract documents for the work. Copies of the contract documents are on file and may be examined in the office of the District and in the office of Boyle Engineering Corporation, 1501 Quail Street, Newport Beach, California 92660.

Copies may be purchased at the office of Boyle Engineering Corporation by payment of $10.00 per set. Checks must be made payable to Moulton Niguel Water District.

Each bid shall be submitted on a form furnished as part of the contract documents, and must be accompanied by a cashier's check, a certified check, or a bidder's bond in an amount not less than 10% of the amount of the bid, made payable to the order of or for the benefit of the District. Each bid shall be sealed and delivered to the District at the location designated in this notice for the opening of proposals at or before the time in this notice provided. The check or bond shall be given as guarantee that the bidder will enter into a contract with the District and furnish the required payment and performance bonds and certificates of insurance and endorsements if awarded the work, and will be declared forfeited if the bidder refuses to timely enter into said contract or furnish the required bonds or certificates of insurance and endorsements if his bid is accepted.

The Board of Directors has obtained from the Director of the California Department of Industrial Relations a determination of the general prevailing rate of per diem wages and the general prevailing rate for legal holiday and overtime work in the locality in which said work is to be performed for each craft, classification, or type of worker needed. Not less than the determined rates shall be paid to all workers employed in the performance of the contract. Such rates of wages are on file with the Department of Industrial Relations and in the office of the District and are available to any interested party upon request.

The Board of Directors of the District reserves the right to select the schedule(s) under which the bids are to be compared and contract(s) awarded, to reject any and all bids, and to waive any and all irregularity in any bid.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO CIRCULATE RECALL PETITION

TO THE HONORABLE Betty Jo Bailey

Pursuant to Section 27020, California Elections Code, the undersigned, registered qualified voters of the Newport-Mesa Unified School District, State of California, hereby give notice that we are the proponents of a recall petition and that we intend to seek your recall and removal from the office of Trustee - Area 4, in the Newport-Mesa Unified School District, Orange County, California, and to demand election of successor in that office.

The grounds for the proposed recall are as follows:

This recall is based upon your participation as a member of the N.MUSD Board of Trustees in the conduct of District affairs with the frequent no discussion-consensus approvals of administration desires.

Said recall is sought on the following grounds:

Interfering with the education of our children.
Poor personnel management.
Demise in quality of education.
Lack of response to interests of taxpayers.
Disregard for community educational needs.
Irresponsible financial practices.
Disrespectful and condescending attitude toward parents, teachers and students.
Limiting public input at Board meetings with arbitrary rules.
Lack of judgment in planning for the future.
Improper use of executive sessions.
Virtual rubber-stamp approval of actions and decisions of Superintendent Dr. John Nicoll.

s/Cal M. Fuller, 20121 Bayview Ave., Santa Ana Hts., CA 92707; s/Bonnie Szyrajew, 2227 Holly Lane, Newport Beach, CA 92663; s/Louis E. Salvati, 2280 Santa Ana Ave., Costa Mesa, CA 92627; s/Clyde B. Fletcher, 499 Broadway, Costa Mesa, CA 92627; s/Mrs. Lucy A. Fletcher, 499 Broadway, Costa Mesa, CA 92627.

A copy of this notice and proof of service was filed with the County Clerk. Within 7 days of filing, you may file with the County Clerk an answer, in not more than 200 words, to the statement of the proponents. If an answer is filed, a copy of it must be served personally or by certified mail on one of the above proponents.

1. TO THE DEFENDANT: A civil complaint has been filed by the plaintiff against you. (See footnote*)

The object of the action, among other things, is to quiet title against you and all other persons unknown claiming any right, title, estate, lien or interest in the real property described in the complaint, as well as those particularly named in the summons. The legal description of the property involved in this action is:

Lot 3 in Block C of the "Seashore Colony Tract" as shown on a Map recorded in Book 7, Page 25, of Miscellaneous Maps, records of Orange County, California.

a. If you wish to defend this lawsuit, you must, within 30 days after this summons is served on you, file with this court a written pleading in response to the complaint. (If a Justice Court, you must file with the court a written pleading or cause an oral pleading to be entered in the docket.) Unless you do so, your default will be entered upon application of the plaintiff, and this court may enter a judgment against you for the relief demanded in the complaint, which could result in garnishment of wages, taking of money or property or other relief requested in the complaint.

b. If you wish to seek the advice of an attorney in this matter, you should do so promptly so that your written response, if any, must be filed on time.

'Perfect Couple'

Altman's New Film Engaging

By RON PENNINGTON
The Hollywood Reporter

Robert Altman, who is undoubtedly one of Hollywood's most prolific — and definitely most imaginative — filmmakers, has followed his vastly underrated "Quintet" with "A Perfect Couple," which is also a 20th Century-Fox release.

This latest effort — produced and directed by Altman, who also scripted with music producer Allen Nicholls — is an engaging little film about a romance between two people who get together in spite of conflicting life styles. As usual, Altman is making a statement about contemporary values, although this is somewhat subdued here and the film is far more accessible than some of his previous works.

MOVIE REVIEW

THE IDEA FOR "A Perfect Couple" (the title itself reflects Altman's sense of ironic humor) was reportedly inspired by the performances of Paul Dooley and Marta Heflin in "A Wedding." Here Dooley plays Alex Theodopoulos, a member of a very wealthy and stiffly cultured family, who meets Heflin, a member of a rock group, through a computer dating service.

The film traces their efforts to get together, with old society pitted against communal living in the conflicts created by their two "families." It's a simple, but affecting, story that is beautifully realized in the touching performances of Dooley and Heflin. These are tentative, insecure people whose need for each other helps them overcome the obvious obstacles, and Dooley and Heflin both fill their characters with compassionate understanding and a sense of aching loneliness.

MUSIC IS A VERY important part of the picture and it is naturally incorporated into the plot. The rock group of which Heflin is a member is Keepin' 'em Off the Streets (an actual group that was put together by Nicholls and which Altman produced at the Roxy several years ago), which performs a number of impressive original songs that add emotional texture and commentary to the accompanying action.

The group is composed of Ted Neeley, Heather MacRae, Tomi-Lee Bradley and Steven Sharp (with Ren Woods joining in for the final concert sequence) and each has been given a definite characterization for the film.

'Battlestar' Grounded in ABC Shift

By PETER J. BOYER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In announcing ABC's fall schedule of prime-time programs, network programming chief Tony Thomopoulos said, "Our schedule changes are aggressive." But judging from the announced schedule, it appears that another philosophy prevailed; "If it ain't broke, don't fix it."

In the 31-week "regular season" this year, ABC finished first in the ratings 26 times, tied for first twice with CBS and finished second only three times. It shouldn't be surprising, then, that ABC's schedule for next season will retain 80 percent of this season's schedule.

ABC said its fall season would start Sept. 10. CBS and NBC have not said when their fall lineups will be announced.

THE AGGRESSIVE changes Thomopoulos referred to consist of the axing of six programs, the adding of four programs and the time-changing of five series.

Gone from ABC's schedule is the expensive "Battlestar Galactica," a "Star Wars" imitation that cost the network $750,000 an episode. That's big money for a hit, much less a bomb, which "Battlestar" was.

Also set loose were "Welcome Back, Kotter," "Makin' It," "Starsky and Hutch," "What's Happening" and "Delta House," suggesting that what's good for the movies isn't necessarily good for television.

"DELTA HOUSE" WAS an imitation of the popular film, "Animal House." "Welcome Back, Kotter" starred giant movie draw John Travolta. "Makin' It" was inspired by Travolta's hit, "Saturday Night Fever."

Each fared poorly in the ratings.

The shows that will be moved to new times: "Laverne and Shirley," a consistent ratings winner, will be moved from Tuesday at 8:30 p.m. to Thursday at 8. That spot was occupied by "Mork and Mindy," the biggest new hit of the season, which will move to Sunday at 8, where "Battlestar Galactica" once flew.

"Fantasy Island" Moves to Friday at 8 p.m., "The Ropers" moves to Saturday at 8 p.m. and "Angie" to Saturday at 8:30. The latter two series were successful beginners, introduced at midseason.

THOUGH ONLY SIX shows were axed, four are hanging on by a thread: "How the West Was Won," "Salvage 1," "Carter Country" and "The Osmond Family Hour," were said to be "in negotiation," and were not included in the fall lineup.

ABC said "Family" would return to the schedule at the conclusion of the "NFL Monday Night Football" season.

GOES IT ALONE
Carroll O'Connor

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "All in the Family," the sitcom that became a national institution, finally is no more. CBS intends to replace the series with a show likely to be called "Archie's Place," featuring the last remaining member of the original cast, Carroll O'Connor.

"All in the Family" was for nine years a breaker of new ground and, more important, CBS' most reliable hit. It survived imitation, the challenge of staying fresh and cast attrition with surprising ease. But the departure of co-star Jean Stapleton and the expiration of right to use the "All in the Family" title have finally brought an end to the show, at least as viewers have known it since 1971.

BUT "ALL IN THE Family" continued to rate strong with Jean Stapleton (Edith), O'Connor, and newcomer Danielle Brisebois as a young niece left with the Bunkers by her down-and-out father.

Then Jean Stapleton, the venerable "dingbat" Edith, announced she planned to leave after this season, leaving only Archie. O'Connor is apparently willing to stay with Tandem Productions, which owns the show, and CBS, but the new series will not be "All in the Family."

One reason is the obvious one there is no more family. But the title couldn't be used anyway, because it now belongs to Viscom Internationa, the syndication outfit that owns rights to the show's returns.

CBS, NATURALLY, WANTS to keep the "All in the Family" allure in its schedule this fall. So, a deal between the network, O'Connor, O'Connor's production company and Tandem is in the works that would bring Archie back for another searon. The business end of the deal is complete, leaving only some production details to be worked out between Tandem and O'Connor, says Robert A. Daly, president of CBS Entertainment.

Miss Stapleton will likely make a few appearances on the new show, Daly said, but the focus would not be on the Bunker household, as has been the history of the series, but on Archie and life in Archie's bar.

"It will not take place in the home anymore but at Archie's place, more or less," said Daly. In fact "Archie's Place" is a likely candidate for the show's title.

THE FUTURE OF YOUNG Miss Brisebois is unclear at the moment. She is a favorite of O'Connor's, but if the show is centered in Archie Bunker's bar, there wouldn't likely be a place for her in it.

Tandem spokeswoman Barbara Brogliati said the company was " hoping to have a show next season. . .I don't think the door is closed on 'All in the Family.'"

The production problems remaining to be worked out are apparently such things as where the show will be taped, at Metromedia Square, were Tandem is located, or at another set, where O'Connor's company is working on other projects.

Legal TV Show Set

A program designed to fully apprise defendants of their rights in court will be offered at 8 p.m., May 2, on Channel 50, KOCE-TV, Huntington Beach.

Sponsored by the Orange County Bar Association, the Lawyers Wives of Orange County and the Orange County Barristers, the program, "Legally Speaking", will feature a question and answer exchange.

Stars Signed

NEW YORK (AP) — Bruce Davison, Kevin Conway, Margaret Avery and Niki Flacks will star in "The Lathe of Heaven" for PBS next fall. The science fiction story by Ursula K. LeGuin will be produced by WNET-TV.

Saddleback Drama

'Night Watch' Uneven

Intermission
Tom Titus

Creating and maintaining the ominous atmosphere vital to a suspense drama such as "Night Watch" is a tricky enough task without being asked to overcome the antics of gremlins in the technical machinery.

Nevertheless, the cast of the Saddleback Valley Community Theater production was presented with such a predicament on opening night. And, to its credit the company was able to overcome the electronic setbacks and present a show which, if not memorable, was bolstered by superior performances from several individual cast members.

O'CONNELL

What director Michael Bielitz' production fails to overcome is a strange deficiency in ensemble effort which prevents the show from achieving its potential. But this, like the lighting problem, is a factor which should be alleviated with future performances this weekend and next.

EVEN WITH THE technical uneasiness, however, Susan O'Connell delivers a superb portrayal in the central role of a woman haunted by visions of death and facing commitment in a sanitarium. Miss O'Connell is called upon to open the play in full psychotic flight and sustain this state of mind throughout the evening — and this she does beautifully.

Robert Sax as her exasperated husband is less successful in his interpretation, counterbalancing moments of strength with sequences of apparent indecision. Carrie Mowery, playing Miss O'Connell's best friend and house guest, is effective, but comes across somewhat artifically, lacking the surface warmth required by her role.

Two supporting assignments are given first-rate treatment by Joan Sidell as the meddling maid and Ben Jutzi as a flighty neighbor. Miss Sidell grates on the audience, as well she should, and her German accent is quite credible. Jutzi contributes splendid comic relief in the showy role of an animated busybody who appears at the most inappropriate moments.

"NIGHT WATCH"
A play by Lucille Fletcher, directed by Michael Bielitz, set and lighting design by Michael Bright, stage manager Joyce Pridham, set decoration by Betsy Southworth, presented by the Saddleback Valley Community Theater Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m. and Sunday, April 29, at 2:30 p.m. in the Mission Viejo High School theater. Reservations 586-8342.

THE CAST

Elaine Wheeler	Susan O'Connell
John Wheeler	Robert Sax
Blanche Cooke	Carrie Mowery
Helga	Joan Sidell
Curtis Appleby	Ben Jutzi
Dr. Tracey Lake	Kathy Brothen
Vanelli	Joe Ritkes
Lieutenant Walker	Tom Shepherd
Sam Hoke	Joe Cordio

COMPLETING THE cast are Kathy Brothen as a psychiatrist, Tom Shepherd and Joe Ritkes as a pair of put-upon policemen and Joe Cordio in a splendid cameo as a surprise visitor.

Michael Bright's apartment room setting constricts the action and amplifies the paranoiac mode of the play, while Betsy Southworth's painted bookcase lends an air of unreality, both effective touches.

"Night Watch" continues for two more weekends, playing Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m. and this Sunday at 2:30 in the Mission Viejo High School theater.

Omar Sharif 'Mellows'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Having just turned 47, actor Omar Sharif readily admits that he has settled into middle age — comfortable and orderly.

The Egyptian-born star came here for one of his rare Hollywood-made movies. It's called "The Baltimore Bullet," a comedy-drama of the pool hustling world starring Sharif, James Coburn, Ronee Blakely and a dozen of the world's top cue artists, including Willie Mosconi. Sharif is well cast; among his other accomplishments, he shoots an excellent game, especially in three-cushion billiards.

Sharif seemed to be enjoying a period of well being, having recovered from a kidney stone operation six months ago "the greatest pain known to man" and his longtime addiction to gambling "a huge loss five or six years ago cured me".

A.P. Wirephoto
HUSTLING ALONG
Omar Sharif

"MY LIFE HAS become normalized," he commented. "I try to arrange it so that I work solidly for one year and then devote two years to the things I like to do."

This is his work year. He has already made two movies, "Bloodline" and "S.H.E.," the latter for CBS television.

"During my two years off, I live at home in Paris," he said. "I belong to a club, so I can see my friends regularly. I play in bridge tournaments, I breed racing horses on a farm in Normandy and I have a small racing stable of my own. I like to spend vacations with my son, Tareq, who is now 22. We are very good friends.

"HE THOUGHT HE wanted to be an actor, but what he really wanted to be was rich and famous. I tried to explain the overwhelming odds against success as an actor, the chances being that he would end up poor and starving. He agreed to study law at the University of Kent in England and he has passed all his examinations. He is going to try acting, but at least he will have something to fall back on."

Once married to Egyptian actress Faten Hamama, Sharif has had several famous romances over the years.

"Now my love life is void," he declared. "When you are young, you can adjust to changing patterns. But as you grow older, you become set in your habits. I don't like change.

"NOT BEING A kid anymore but a middle-aged man, I like my sort of loneliness. I like to be able to be alone and read at night, to listen to music without being interrupted. I have a lot of girlfriends and I like to take them out to dinner and enjoy their company, with no strings attached.

"Even if I find a woman who is beautiful, intelligent, with all the qualities I enjoy, after two or three days of living together I get restless. The best solution, I suppose, would be to live in two different houses. If you were in a good mood, you could date; if not, you could remain alone.

"Then you would never see her in curlers and she would never see you in striped pajamas."

'Scenes' Set

DON'T PAY TAXES
That's right, many of our clients don't pay taxes because they have more than adequate tax shelter from their real estate investments. Those who do pay taxes pay far less than those without real estate investments.

LOVE INFLATION
If you pay 20% down on a property and it increases in value 10% a year, you've recovered your investment in 2 years! Many of our clients have doubled the value of their property in from 2 to 5 years. They moved up to larger properties in a Tax Deferred IRS Section 1031 Exchange.

DO IT NOW
Unless you expect the price of gas, cars, food and wages to roll back don't expect that property prices will either.

JOIN OUR STAFF
We have a few openings on our sales staff for licensed experienced, full-time, professionals with a dedication to serving their clients and improving their technical expertise. Our clients did extremely well last year and so did our staff who made it happen by averaging $2 million in sales each. Call or write Pat Parkinson.

130 LISTINGS
As of this week we have 130 signed listings from condos and houses to multi-million dollar complexes in the office. Call today for an appointment with one of our highly trained sales staff of over 40. We can help put you on the right track to get your money doing what it should — working for you. Call 752-1920.

Kidnap Suspect Dies in Hail of Police Bullets

Suspect identified by police as Newman Augustine Osebor, 22, leaps from a sports car armed Wednesday and was immediately cut down by police gunfire. He got off one shot at officers. The shooting occurred on Interstate 8 near San Diego. Osebor was suspected of holding a San Diego psychiatrist hostage for more than three hours. Osebor was identified as a Nigerian student athlete who had previously threatened the lives of his victim's family. See story, Page A5 today.

Carter Fights for Gas Ration

By KATHY CLANCY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The physician who was with Dr. William Waddill's chief accuser the night police were told of an alleged infant slaying took the witness stand today in Waddill's murder retrial.

Dr. Thomas Ferguson told the Orange County Superior Court jury that he called a Westminster police acquaintance after Dr. Ronald Cornelsen alleged he saw Waddill "strangle and suffocate" a newborn infant in the aftermath of a saline abortion two years ago.

Ferguson testified Cornelsen came to his home late one night a few days after the alleged strangulation.

He said Cornelsen told him the baby "was born alive, was crying, moving and breathing independently" before she allegedly was choked to death.

And, Ferguson continued, those were the purported facts he relayed to police when he summoned them to his home that evening.

"After Dr. Cornelsen came over I became concerned about his involvement in the events and I was worried that he was exposing himself to something," Ferguson explained.

"At the late hour I thought I could call my lawyer in Long Beach and he talked to Dr. Cornelsen," Ferguson testified. "After that conversation and another one with the hospital administrator, Dr. Cornelsen told me he wanted to talk to police."

Defense attorney Charles Weedman asked Ferguson if he recalled telling police "you will have to protect my butt."

"I can't imagine what it could possibly be referring to," Ferguson replied. "I don't think it could have come from me."

More Time Needed

Doctor Wins Delay in Trial

Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald of Huntington Harbour, the former Green Beret captain charged in the 1970 deaths of his wife and two daughters, has won a trial postponement.

The trial was to begin Monday, but MacDonald's attorneys last week asked U.S. District Judge Franklin Dupree Jr. to postpone the Raleigh, N.C., trial to give them more time for preparation.

The U.S. Supreme Court refused in March to interfere with the trial. MacDonald's attorneys argued that the trial would result in double jeopardy because a 1970 military investigation had ended in exoneration.

Now director of emergency medicine at St. Mary Medical Center, Long Beach, MacDonald was indicted by a federal grand jury in Raleigh in the deaths on Feb. 17, 1970 of his wife Colette and children Kimberly, 6, and Kristen, 3.

Military police who rushed to then-Green-Beret-Capt. MacDonald's quarters at Ft. Bragg, N.C., said the three had been bludgeoned to death and the captain was suffering a knife wound in the chest.

They said MacDonald told them that four drug-crazed hippies had forced their way into his home and attacked him and his family.

MacDonald was not available for comment Wednesday. His secretary said he was on his way to San Francisco to meet with his attorney, Bernard Segal.

No date has been set for the postponed trial, she advised, but Dr. MacDonald and his attorneys believe it will get under way sometime this summer.

Mile Square Development Report Flayed

By MICHAEL PASKEVICH
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Fountain Valley planning commissioners and residents criticized a county environmental report on development impacts for the remaining 86 undeveloped acres of Mile Square Regional Park Wednesday.

A stream of citizens at city hall said they want no part of a development proposal by the VTN Corporation of Irvine that would mean:

—A 1.5-acre swim lake and beach area that could draw about 8,000 people per weekend.

—A 1,000-seat outdoor amphitheater about 300 yards from Edinger Avenue.

—Separate skateboard and bicycle motocross courses.

—Baseball diamonds and added tennis and raquetball courts.

—A 200-person capacity group picnic area and fast-food and video games stands.

Traffic and parking impacts, noise pollution, air quality and the demise of a flock of rare burrowing owls were among concerns aired by commissioners and citizens at the planning

Bill Defeated

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Labor unions, doctors and insurance companies joined forces with women's-rights groups Wednesday and defeated a bill to exclude abortion coverage from health insurance policies. AB 741 by Assemblyman Peter Chacon, D-Coronado, would have prohibited coverage for elective abortions on all types of disability health insurance.

Meeting Rejected By GOP

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter made a new effort today to save his beleaguered standby gasoline rationing plan from being killed by Congress.

With a critical Senate Energy Committee vote scheduled later in the day, the president offered to allocate more gasoline coupons to states where motorists drive greater distances to work.

99.9 CENTS PER GALLON 'RATIONING MOVE'—A11

21 NATIONS PROTEST OPEC OIL RATES—B6

It was not clear if the proposal would salvage the rationing proposal in the House or Senate.

The House Commerce Committee, which voted to reject the plan Wednesday, met again today so that Carter's supporters could make an attempt to revive it. But Republicans boycotted the meeting, and no new vote was taken.

Carter's supporters on the House committee said the White House compromise would have switched enough votes to reverse Wednesday's outcome.

The rationing plan will get another chance on the House floor.

Carter's attempted compromise was outlined in a letter from White House aide Stuart E. Eizenstat.

He wrote to Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of a House Energy subcommittee, that the administration would double the allocation of gasoline coupons to states that felt they might have been treated unfairly.

Jogger Fights Assault Try

A Fountain Valley woman, on a Wednesday evening jog through Huntington Beach, was attacked in a Central Park restroom but was able to fend off her assailant and escaped unharmed, police reported today.

Police said they are seeking a scruffy, shirtless man in connection with the reported rape attempt.

The victim, whose age was not available, said she was in the women's restroom at Central Park at about 6 p.m. when she was grabbed from behind.

Coast Firms to Save Energy

By JOANNE REYNOLDS
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

In what officials say is a unique experiment, four of the Orange Coast's biggest firms have formed an energy cooperative in an attempt to save four megawatts of electricity during the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Four megawatts of electricity is enough to supply energy to 3,000 homes for a year.

The other members are the Irvine Company, the Fluor Corp. and South Coast Plaza.

Under the terms of the agreement signed today all four companies will be linked by a computer operated by Engineering Supervision Company (ESCO) that will monitor the firms' energy demands.

The cooperative is designed to reduce demand during the afternoon peak period at about 4 p.m.

Using the monitoring device, co-op president Bud Dobyns of Fluor said, will tell members when to defer use of some equipment.

John Phillips of ESCO said that won't mean a wholesale shutting off of lights and air conditioning, but a selective reduction in use of some machines. He said one pice of equipment among many, such as one of two or three elevators, might be closed down during the peak.

He described the plan as an energy budget, but one used in concert by the four firms, rather than on an individual basis.

C.E. Hathway, vice president of Southern California Edison, said the program has never been tried before in the United States.

He explained that the four companies paid for a feasibility study on the project.

With the approval of the state Public Utilities Commission and Edison, the cost of implementing the project, about $250,000, will be borne by Edison.

Dobyns said that end of the first year trial, if the co-op has worked as planned, the group will petition the PUC for institution of a special rate as an incentive to get more businesses to do the same thing.

He said that more Orange County firms are expected to join the co-op, but that the four were the companies that have worked on its formation for about a year.

Called the Orange County Energy Conservation Cooperative, the organization is a non-profit corporation.

Phillips said the project is expected to save the firms money in reduced energy consumption and to aid the Edison Company by reducing peak demands.

Stressing that the co-op is a voluntary effort Phillips added that he hopes it will prove "we don't need any government-imposed mandates to regulate energy use in these buildings."

HB Man Dies of Burns

Twenty-five-year-old Joseph Lane died wednesday, five days after he was burned critically in a fire in his Huntington Beach apartment.

The victim suffered second and third degree burns over 90 percent of his body and had been reported in critical condition at UC Irvine Medical Center until his death.

Firemen are investigating the cause of the fire which caused $20,000 damages in Mr. Lane's apartment at 17074 B Street shortly after midnight Friday.

They say evidence gathered so far indicates that the blaze was accidental.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Rose Hills Memorial Park in Whittier.

Mr. Lane had lived in Huntington Beach two years and was employed as a carpenter in the Irwindale area, according to a brother. He was a graduate of Baldwin Park High School.

Survivors include his mother, Evelyn Purvis of Rosemead; a brother David of Costa Mesa and sister Deborah Lane of Hawaii.

Fire Captain Roger Hosmer says the death is the fifth fire fatality in Huntington Beach in the last 13 months.

"This is higher than it should be for a city our size. Four of the fatal fires were accidental and could have been prevented," Hosmer said.

Hosmer said four victims died in fires in their homes and one victim died in an automobile blaze.

Nude Beach Battle Bared

Dallas Travel Debated

A proposed trip to Dallas by City Councilman Ron Pattinson will come before the Huntington Beach City Council May 7 to see if it will fly.

Mayor Don MacAllister has authorized Pattinson's attendance at the Urban Land Institute Conference May 18 to 21 but said he didn't authorize the use of city funds.

"That's for the City Council to decide," he said.

Trips to conferences have long been a source of controversy in Huntington Beach.

One council faction says it believes the conferences provide valuable information for the operation of the city. Others view the trips as junkets and a waste of taxpayer money. They claim that information can be readily attained by other means.

Last week the City Council deleted money from the budget to pay for conference trips. Each trip now is being considered individually.

MacAllister estimated total costs for the Dallas conference to be about $600 including airplane fare and meals.

MacAllister said the city stands to gain a great deal of information at the conference, particularly in the area of revitalization of the downtown area.

Oil Firms Chalk Up Big Gains

NEW YORK (AP) — Reports from nation's major oil companies continued to show big profit gains in the firstquarter of the year largely because of sharp increases in world petroleum prices.

Several, including top-ranked Exxon, said the stronger dollar on currency exchange markets also helped improve profits.

Sun Oil Co. said today higher prices on foreign crude oil and related products on international markets helped it to a 43 percent gain in first quarter profits from a year ago.

Sun, the 11th largest oil company, said earnings in the first three months of the year came to $120.3 million, or $2.24 a share, on revenue of $2.36 billion. In the comparison 1978 quarter, Sun reported earnings of $84.3 million, or $1.57 a share, on revenue of $1.7 billion.

Standard Oil of California, the fourth largest U.S. oil company, said Wednesday that its first quarter profits rose nearly 43 percent, to $347 million.

Smaller Amerada Hess Corp. showed earnings more than tripled from the year-ago period, to $115.6 million.

Bolsa Chica Rental Stands Authorized

Five fast-food and beach equipment rental stands will be built along a three-mile stretch of Bolsa Chica State Beach in Huntington Beach, state officials said Wednesday.

Bids for the project are being solicited and the stands should spring up this year, but not in time to service this summer's beach crowds.

According to Tom Miller, area manager for the state Department of Parks and Recreation, the added stands have been part of development plans for Bolsa Chica for years.

There now is one food stand servicing Bolsa Chica beachgoers, he added.

The successful bidder will contruct the stands, paying the state a percentage of its income as a rental fee. Bids will be opened at the the department's headquarters in Sacramento in May. Miller said the stands would be evenly spaced along the stretch of shoreline.

WADDILL...

ington Harbour obstetrician, is being tried a second time for the alleged murder of the two-pound, 15-ounce infant known as Baby Girl Weaver.

His first trial ended last May when jurors said they were deadlocked 7 to 5 in favor of acquittal.

Weedman has denied his client strangled the baby but that Waddill wanted no "heroic" revival attempts because the infant was dead or irreversibly on the verge of death by the time the doctor examined her.

Dr. Bernard Towers, a UCLA professor of medicine, testified Wednesday that he agreed with Waddill's decision not to try and revive the baby girl.

After hearing the infant's clinical history, Towers testified the baby was incapable of surviving.

He told the five-man, seven-woman jury a newborn's heart can beat for up to 30 minutes after birth even though the baby is dying.

But that does not mean the infant has any hope for survival, Dr. Towers testified.

Huntington Suspect Held in Abduction

Arrested by Irvine police and turned over to Westminster officers was Thomas Kelley of 10411 Samoa Drive.

Kelley allegedly picked up Cynthia Anderson in his van on Beach Boulevard near McFadden Avenue at about 10 p.m., according to Orange County Sheriff's deputies.

Deputies said the woman jumped from Kelley's van when it stopped for a red light on El Toro Road at Jeronimo Road in El Toro. She spotted a sheriff's patrol car and flagged it down, deputies said.

Deputy Wayne Pieratt immediately radioed a description of the suspect's van. The broadcast was monitored by an Irvine officer who spotted the vehicle traveling north on the Santa Ana Freeway near Jeffrey Road.

Sheriff's officials said Kelley's van was stopped on the northbound Costa Mesa Freeway just north of the Santa Ana Freeway where the suspect was turned over to Westminster officers.

UMW Pulls Out

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United Mine Workers union is looking for another place to hold a fall convention after pulling out of Florida for its failure to ratify the proposed Equal Rights Amendment.

Wieder Names 4 to County Commissions

Four Huntington Beach residents were appointed by Orange County Supervisor Harriett Wieder Wednesday to county advisory commissions.

Mrs. Wieder, a former Huntington Beach mayor, reappointed J. Don Hartfelder, an architect, to the county Harbors, Beaches and Parks Commission.

William M. Lansdale, a marina owner and former FBI fingerprint expert, was named to the county Airport Commission, replacing Raymond Maggi of Cypress whose term expired.

Huntington Beach attorney Jerome Bame was Mrs. Wieder's appointment to the county Fish and Game Commission, filling the expired term of William Brown of Los Alamitos.

Insurance agent Jo S. Andrews was appointed to the county Scenic Highway Commission replacing Linda Moon of Huntington Beach whose term expired.

Prices Up .9 Percent

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Paced by increases in the cost of gasoline and meat, consumer prices in the Los Angeles-Orange County area rose .9 percent last month, the U.S. Labor Department reported today.

The March increase was just a shade under the 1 percent cost-of-living increase for the month nationwide. (Related story, A4)

The increase means that goods and services that cost a dollar at the end of the month would have sold for 49.1 cents in 1967.

MILE SQUARE...

When two hours of testimony ended, county planner Dave Marshall went away with "five to six pages" of notes and "probably 100 questions" he promised to answer before the county EIR is completed.

City officials and residents clearly supported their own planning staff proposal that calls for passive, non-commercial use of the acreage at the northwest corner of Mile Square Park.

The city wants to develop a youth camping area and picnic ground, but leave much of the acreage as natural wilderness or open space play area.

"I think the document (EIR) is highly slanted towards the VTN plan," charged commission Chairman John McKnight.

"As I read the document, the whole emphasis is economic," said commissioner Barbara Brown.

She and commissioner Dick Edwards led the verbal attack against the county EIR, which says the city's passive plan would cost $2.9 million to develop and lose $205,855 a year because of a lack of concession revenues.

The VTN proposal would cost about $5 million to build and turn a first year public profit of about $51,000, the EIR states.

The acreage is located near Brookhurst Street and Edinger Avenue, highways that the county claims are operating at 53 percent of capacity at present.

Wayne Osborne, city director of public works, said the percentage is closer to 60 percent, and commissioners were ruffled to hear county planners say traffic could increase eight to 12 times under the VTN plan.

By using the granite "interior triangle" area of the park, county planners said 2,600 parking spaces could be made available to handle peak usage for the new development.

The county is estimating that about 87,000 people could join the existing crowds at Mile Square Park when the development (VTN's) is completed.

Rosanne Greenfield and Dave Hall, young adults supporting the city passive park plan, said the VTN proposal could endanger the small flock (about 10) of burrowing owls that live in the center portion of the park.

School Plans Cultural Fest

Joseph R. Perry School is scheduling its Multicultural Festival from 5:30 to 8 p.m. today in the multipurpose room.

Students of the elementary school at 19321 Harding Lane, Huntington Beach, prepare art work, learn songs and dances and cook foods from other contries in their studies during the year.

Coins, clothing, books and artifacts from those countries are to go on display for the community and the evening highlight is the sampling of foreign dishes prepared by parents, a spokesman said.

Valley Industrial Building Looted

Burglars shattered a front window in a Fountain Valley industrial building early Wednesday to steal nearly $2,000 worth of equipment.

Hydra Tech, Inc. officials said the burglars who hit their business at 11165 Condor Ave. between 4:30 and 6 a.m. took two boxes filled with precision tools and an electric typewriter.

Pensions Up

Benefits Pay Increased

WASHINGTON (AP) — The average elderly Social Security beneficiary will find $25 extra in his government check in July and some will get up to $50 more as a result of the automatic 9.9 percent benefit increase announced today.

The record increase, which will cost the Social Security trust funds $10.2 billion, came automatically as a result of the rise in the Consumer Price Index in the first quarter of this year over the same period in 1978.

An estimated 35 million retired or disabled workers and their families and survivors will get the increase in their July checks. Benefits also will go up 9.9 percent for about 5 million Supplemental Security Income recipients at a cost of $415 million.

Last year's cost of living increase was 6.5 percent. This is the fifth annual automatic cost-of-living increase and exceeds the previous high of 8 percent in 1975.

Carter's Nuclear Stand Hit

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., in a sharp assault on President Carter, is challenging the president to tell the nuclear industry that "enough is enough."

At a news conference Wednesday, Brown also said he hopes the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission will order temporary shut-downs of the eight nuclear plants built by Babcock & Wilcox.

HE SAID IF THIS happens, he will call upon Californians affected by the nearby Rancho Seco plant to curtail the use of their air conditioners on hot summer days.

The utilities said that would include customers from Bakersfield to Eureka.

The Democratic governor, who says he may run for president in 1980, repeatedly criticized Carter's pro-nuclear stance, saying other energy sources should be explored instead.

"IT'S RATHER CLEAR to me that the combination of risks, costs, safety problems, the problem of storage of waste, the prospect of proliferation and even the danger of sabotage all combine to make it imperative that this country now pursue a path of alternative energy sources," he said.

He said Carter, "far from encouraging a short-circuiting of the licensing process of nuclear reactors, should tell the American people and the nuclear industry quite simply: 'Enough is enough'."

REFUSING TO SAY he favored a total ban on existing plants, Brown instead focused on halting nuclear power expansion and building other, safer power sources in the future.

The 41-year-old governor said that recent events had made it very clear that "the days of nuclear power are indeed numbered."

Mom, Girl Slain; Cops Shoot Killer

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The bodies of a woman, stabbed through the heart with a kitchen knife, and her 4 year-old daughter, who had been strangled, were found in the home of a psychologist held hostage by a Nigerian exchange student, police said.

The student, Newman Augustine Osebor of Lagos, Nigeria, was shot and killed Thursday on an interstate highway after a 3½-hour standoff with police, authorities say.

"My life was for them," cried Alejo Punetes Wednesday after the bodies of his wife, Candalaria, and daughter, Norma were removed from the home of Richard E. Townsend. "They were the best, they were fantastic. How could anyone do this to a little girl and her mother?"

Mrs. Puentes, 24, had worked as a maid for Townsend, a criminal psychologist.

Police said Townsend was abducted Wednesday at gunpoint, forced to withdraw money from a bank and held hostage by Osebor.

The 22-year-old Osebor was fatally shot by police after holding Townsend hostage in the doctor's sports car on Interstate 8. Townsend was unhurt in the shooting.

Patty Denies Bar Brawl

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst Shaw denies that her police officer husband attended a bachelor party that ended in a raucous brawl at a lesbian bar the night before their wedding.

"It's really upsetting," said Mrs. Shaw Wednesday. "We don't have friends whose idea of having a good time is going out beating up women."

On the night before their wedding, her husband Bernard was not living it up with his pals but sitting with members of the wedding party at a local restaurant, she said. The couple were married April 1.

A number of police officers were reported to have been members of a bachelor party that barged into Peg's Place about midnight and harassed customers. Shaw's name had been linked to the party in stories published in the San Francisco Chronicle.

The district attorney's office and the police department are investigating the incident and two persons, policeman Daniel Marr, 25, and a civilian, Kevin Guerin, 24, have been charged with disturbing the peace and battery.

Auto Found

Inmate Flees Jail Facility

LOMPOC (AP) — The car authorities believe was used in the escape of George Jackson Brigade leader John Sherman, 36, has been found, but he and his wife remained free today.

City police said a green Pinto sedan was found early Wednesday, parked in a residential area of town.

Police said they believe the car, rented Tuesday from a local car-rental agency, was driven by Marianne Pulfer Sherman, 28, when her husband, serving a 30-year sentence, escaped Tuesday afternoon while visiting an eye doctor.

Medi-Cal Fraud Probed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Some nursing homes have collected Medi-Cal benefits for patients who had been dead for up to a year, says state Controller Ken Cory's office.

STATE

In response to a question, Deputy Controller Peter Pelkofer said Wednesday that auditors had found several such cases.

"We found in at least one case benefits being provided to a deceased person more than a year after death, Pelkofer said.

Shell Request Approved

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A jurisdictional battle over air quality standards has been defused, with the state approving a Shell Oil Co. request to build a pumping station but requiring the firm to clean up other sources of pollution.

The state Air Resources Board sidestepped a "smog war" Wednesday when it supported the operating permit issued for the oil station by the South Coast Air Quality Management District but tacked on the cleanup requirements.

The district approved Shell's application on Jan. 3. However, the ARB threatened to cancel the okay because the district had not required "trade-off" agreements. Such agreements require Shell to clean up other sources of smog to offset polluants generated by the new facility.

Fonda Hits "Robot Jobs'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Academy award-winning actress and activist Jane Fonda has urged working women not to accept being "slotted into robot-like jobs that do not allow the development of management skills, dignity or self-worth."

Ms. Fonda spoke at a noon rally Wednesday at the Embaradero Center attended by several thousand persons. The gathering was one of 13 around the nation sponsored by the 800-member Women Organized for Employment, to commemorate National Secretaries' Day.

Organizers circulated statistics they said show 98 percent of the 3.5 million secretaries in the U.S. in 1976 were women. Although 60 percent of women support themselves or head families, they earn only about 57 percent of what the average man does, the group said.

Love Shooting Criticized

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A deputy police chief criticized two officers Wednesday for using "faulty judgment and poor tactics" in the fatal shooting of Eula Love last January.

The criticism by Deputy Chief Marshall L. Anderson came as the Police Commission opened hearings into the case.

Mrs. Love, a widowed mother of three, was shot to death Jan. 3 by two officers called to her South-Central Los Angeles home following a dispute over an unpaid $22.00 gas bill.

Hearing Process Demands Fairness

The firing of Deputy City Attorney John O'Connor has kicked up quite a ruckus in Huntington Beach.

But the city Personnel Commission apparently has taken steps to defuse the controversy this week and perhaps righted what could be construed to be a wrong.

The commission initially stepped in the middle of a controversy by selecting former Municipal Court Judge Paul Mast to hear O'Connor's appeal of his firing.

O'Connor raised objections that he might not receive an impartial hearing.

O'Connor claimed he was being railroaded and he cited as evidence:

The Personnel Commission chose Mast from a field of one — he was the only hearing officer recommended by city officials.

The hearings were scheduled to be held in Santa Ana, not Huntington Beach.

The commission made the selection of Mast in a five-minute meeting that was held behind locked doors in City Hall.

The session was supposed to be a public meeting but members of the community were unable to attend if they had wanted to.

The qualifications of Mast are not questioned here but the manner in which he was selected are.

Rather than holding to the hard line, commissioners this week reversed themselves and appointed attorney Joseph Gentile, not Mast, to preside over the hearing.

The reconsideration may have been late in coming but in the interests of fair play it was the right thing to do.

A Muddled Effort

The Huntington Beach City Council is caught up in a continuing quandary on how to fill a vacancy in its ranks.

When former Mayor Ron Shenkman stepped down last December, the council appointed Clancy Yoder to take his place after a great deal of grappling.

The council now is faced with filling the position vacated by Richard Siebert in March.

A major issue is whether the new official should be appointed or if he or she should be elected by voters in a special election.

Council members really muddled recently when they twice cast votes to reappoint Siebert to his old job after he so emphatically resigned a month earlier.

The vote failed, 3-3.

The dissenting council members then turned around and tried to appoint Ted Bartlett, who was defeated handily in last April's election, to the vacancy.

This move also died, 3-3.

If officials do choose to appoint a seventh member, they should do so only after appropriate deliberations.

To fill the spot with a councilman who resigned saying the pressures were too great or by another who was rejected by the voters is not the way to go about it.

Gift of Gab Pays

The old saying that youngsters should be seen but not heard got a thrashing this month from Orange Coast students.

A team from Orange Coast College parlayed the gift of gab into a national championship in the National Community College Speech Tournament, a first for OCC.

The young people from Costa Mesa, Huntington Beach, Fountain Valley and Newport Beach swept the awards in everything from reader's theater to Lincoln-Douglas (one-to-one) debate).

It is a tribute to coaches Peg Taylor and Michael Leigh, who have led previous OCC teams to second place honors in the nationwide contest.

And another Costa Mesa youngster gifted in languages won a top award of his own — an eight-week trip to Paris, captured in the Alliance Francaise contest in French.

The linguistic skill of Estancia High School senior Eric Elliott — who also speaks German, Spanish, Welsh and Breton — is, in addition, a tribute to his teacher, Leonard McNutt.

Boyd/Humbug

By L. M. BOYD

English King James II used lead, pewter, copper, anything at hand, for his coinage. Such coins minted in Dublin were referred to by the Irish as "uim bog" pronounced "oombug" meaning soft metal. They felt the coins were phony without intrinsic value. And their word for soft metal was where we got our word "humbug."

An inventive bunch, those musical showmen. For instance: Orchestra leader Fred Waring invented the famed Waring blender. And the operatic impressario Oscar Hammerstein invented the first practical cigar-rolling machine.

Would you agree that President Woodrow Wilson with his Ph.D. was the most scholarly of all our chief executives? It's noteworthy, I think, that he is said to have never missed an episode of the comic strip called "Krazy Kat."

Mating season for the marsupial moles of Australia covers about three days every June. Immediately

You know that actor called Dirk Benedict on the TV series "Battlestar Galactica?" He found his stage name on a menu under "Eggs."

Q. "On which type of turf is a football player more likely to get hurt, natural or artificial?"

A. Artificial, no doubt about it. Consider this: Injury data collected over three NFL seasons shows that 10 of the 12 stadiums with the highest injury rates have artificial turf, and 10 of the 11 stadiums with the lowest injury rates have natural turf.

Pentagon's 'Iranian Fire Sale'

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon is rushing to the rescue of American manufacturers who got stuck with more than $10 billion worth of canceled arms contracts when their favorite customer, the shah of Iran, was overthrown.

If Congress approves the bailout, much of the armaments already in production will be purchased by the Defense Department, at an ultimate cost to the taxpayers of almost $2 billion.

The idea has the support of the defense industry's friends in Congress and of Administration officials who are reluctant to press contract claims with the new Iranian regime.

DUBBED BY insiders as "the great Iranian fire sale," the proposed purchase of weaponry intended for the shah would be at relatively bargain prices. But close scrutiny of the items involved shows that many are obsolete or unnecessary.

The most expensive and controversial are the four Spruance-class destroyers with which the shah had planned to modernize his navy. Testifying before the Senate Armed Services Committee, Navy Secretary Graham Claytor said it would be "criminal to let the opportunity (to buy the destroyers) go by." He noted that they carry "the same armament, the same guns, the same detection apparatus, the same everything" as the Navy's newest guided-missile cruisers.

It was a poor comparison to make; the committee vetoed further production of the cruisers back in 1975 because their anti-aircraft tracking systems were found to be obsolescent. The committee report on that decision called it "inappropriate to build any ship . . . with a weapons system that is clearly inadequate to meet the projected threat within a relatively short period of time after delivery of the ship."

THE FOUR destroyers would cost the Navy $1.3 billion, plus another $2 million or so to refit them from Iranian to U.S. specifications.

Despite the enormous cost and the dubious value of the ships, the Navy's purchase request sailed smoothly through the committee, headed by Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss. By no coincidence, the shipbuilder, Ingalls, a subsidiary of Litton Industries, is located in Mississippi.

"It's a bailout for Litton," said a congressional aide. "They're saving 1,500 jobs for $1.3 billion. Even by welfare standards that's pretty gross." At $866,666 per job, "gross" is an understatement.

Another Iranian Fire Sale bargain the Navy wants to grab up is 150 Phoenix missiles for $77.1 million. The missiles are carried by F-14s, and only Iran and the United States have them.

THE TROUBLE is, officials have admitted there's no way of knowing whether some of the Phoenix missiles or their operation manuals fell into Soviet hands after the shah's ouster. "We prudently have to assume that the Russians have them," one knowledgeable source told our associate Peter Grant.

Several congressmen feel the proper course is to develop a new Phoenix missile, instead of buying more of a model that may no longer be a secret to the Soviets. In fact, this is being done by the Hughes Aircraft Co., and 60 of the newer missiles are included in next year's budget.

The Pentagon's rescue effort for its friends in the munitions industry is encountering opposition on Capitol Hill.

Footnote: It's not just the manufacturers who will get off the hook under the purchase proposal. If it passes, the new Iranian government would actually get back much of the $500 million deposit the shah put down.

There Are Alternatives to Police Chases

To the Editor:

It seems to me that there is arrogant disregard for human rights of the innocent when it comes to a police chase. The suspected offender must be caught at all cost, no matter what the cost.

The possibility that innocent people will be killed, maimed and emotionally scarred for life makes no difference, as long as justice is done by catching the suspected law breaker. In a recent case, Costa Mesa police were chasing a hit and run suspect down the Costa Mesa-Newport Freeway (55). In the attempt to apprehend the suspect there was a multi-car crash that would probably not have happened and involved a tragic situation for so many innocent people.

With just a tidbit of creativity and foresight this whole situation shouldn't have happened. Our tax dollars support a helicopter system that can track cars from above — day or night. If there is a fleeing suspect dangerously evading the police, why not follow him until it is safe to apprehend him without endangering innocent bystanders.

COULDN'T the CHP or police traffic control slow down traffic (similiar to accident procedures) until it stops safely, trapping the suspect in a traffic jam and then apprehend him? The attitude is "No, get him now, don't wait." It's not the quality of the catch, it is how fast you can catch the suspect at all costs.

How many times have you seen the traffic investigation team "Racing Code 3" across town to a reported minor accident without injuries? How many people are cut off, almost rammed, and actually crashed into by these needless full-out races to be quick? How many times have you seen a traffic unit cut someone off, swerve radically in heavy traffic, just to give a ticket often to a less serious violation? In doing so and stopping carelessly, one or more lanes have been blocked in order for tickets to be written.

These situations must stop. The police serve an important function in our society. But public pressure must be brought to bear, because wrong is wrong no matter who is doing the wrongdoing.

The motto "To Serve and Protect" shouldn't be "to serve and inflict." Call and write your local police chief and sheriff and let them know you don't like their chase procedures. Raising your voice now might save your life later!

No Hassle

To the Editor:

I read Cheryl Romo's column with great enjoyment and have just caught up with last Friday's edition where she painted a vivid picture of fighting the freeway traffic etc. to the Music Center to hear the Los Angeles Philharmonic.

I can imagine her husband's feelings when the elegant, handsome Carlo Maria Giulini appeared on the podium to conduct the orchestra and her "immediate conversion" to the wonders of classical music.

However, I wonder if Cheryl and her husband are aware that you do not have to go through any of those trials and tribulations in order to hear the orchestra, Giulini, Mehta and all the other greats of the music world?

You can hear them right here in Orange County at the historic Santa Ana High School, all red-carpeted, plenty of free parking, comfortable reserved seats, excellent acoustics and no traffic hassle!

In fact you can hear the great Giulini and the Los Angeles Philharmonic plus beautiful mezzo soprano Frederica von Stade this Saturday, April 28 in the Orange County Philharmonic Society's final concert of the season, right on your own doorstep in Orange County.

To Save 13

To the Editor:

Prop. 13 is going down the drain unless we stand on our hind feet and do something about it. According to a news article, county supervisors are urging county planners to add new taxes, called "user fees," to cover the cost of such things as libraries, fire protection, sewers, etc. Many of us opposed such taxes at public hearings, but we don't seem to have gotten the message across.

WE HAVE several choices of action: We can do nothing and let them pile all the taxes on us they like. Or we can attend hearings, every few weeks, and hope we can talk them out of some of these taxes. Or we can do some mass recalling of public officials. Or we can initiate an ordinance that will require voter approval of all new taxes and user fees, within the county. I believe the last choice will give us the best chance of retaining the benefits of Prop. 13.

If enough of us work together, we can force local politicians to abide by the intent of Prop. 13. We will need a few people, including at least one attorney, to draw up a county ordinance. We will need enough money to pay for a notice in the newspaper and for the printing of petitions. We will need one or two people in each city as headquarters for supplying circulators with petitions. We will need some telephoners. We will need about 63,000 valid signatures, so it will take quite a few circulators.

It is time government officials learn that Prop. 13 meant for them to cut expenses and not for them to pile new taxes on us.

Radiation Risk

To the Editor:

J. Corwin (Daily Pilot, April 8) obviously knows nothing about radiation. They key word is ionizing radiation which can come from the sun, or from a nuclear reaction or a sun lamp. They all affect people if the radiation is powerful enough.

But to say any level is very harmful is wrong. We get lots of this type of radiation every day. If you stand in the sun too long, you know it's harmful and a lot of Coast people will get cancer from the sun. But small amounts do not cause any harm. In fact, it is difficult to determine whether or not any harm to people will ever result from the Three Mile Plant accident, since the radiation was actually so small.

Pet Hazard

To the Editor:

I have just lost my pet, a very happy, healthy 7½-year-old German Shepherd, who I loved dearly, because of inadequate labeling on dry dog food packages. Let me recall the events:

Everything was normal one Sunday (March 25) until 2 a.m. Monday morning when my dog, Gar, came to my bed and whined. I noted that he was not feeling well and his stomach was slightly swollen. I wondered what was wrong. At 2:30 a.m., he again wakened me and I saw that his condition was much worse and decided that I should get him to the veterinarian as soon as possible in the morning.

At 5:30 a.m. I woke up and saw that Gar was very ill, swollen and unable to walk. I rushed to the telephone and after a number of calls, succeeded in getting an emergency veterinary clinic. But it was too late; Gar died while I was on the telephone.

I LEARNED from the clinic that Gar died of stomach bloat caused by eating a normal meal of dried dog food and drinking water. I had never heard of such a thing. In addition, the clinic said they encounter many such cases. Gar probably could have been saved if I had recognized the symptoms and gotten him to the clinic earlier.

I feel terribly distraught by the loss of Gar. However, there is a broader issue: protection of future users of dried dog food from a similar tragedy. Dried dog food should be labled prominently to warn dog owners: (1) to either moisten the food first or prevent the dog from drinking water after eating, (2) to be alert to the symptoms of stomach bloat, and (3) what to do if the symptoms occur.

Surfer Seemed to Miss Wave

DEAR PAT: My son paid for a subscription to Surfer Magazine with his own money last August. He's only received one issue. He's called the magazine and so has my husband, but we can't seem to get anyone to start this subscription.

R.B., Balboa

This problem was referred to Magazine Action Line and followed up by AYS. The Capistrano Beach publisher's subscription spokeswoman says no action can be taken by the Orange County office because all subscriptions have been turned over to a subscription service, Publishers Aid, in San Diego. This changeover occurred in December, but apparently no one at the magazine bothered to tell you about it. AYS contacted the subscription service which reports that since one magazine has been returned as "undeliverable," a hold was put on the subscription. There was no explanation about why further contact with your son was not attempted. Publishers Aid promises to start the subscription again. Let AYS know what happens. At least in your case, it appears that both the publisher and the subscription service do not make any extra effort to follow up on a subscriber's complaint.

Outreach Gives Hand to Deaf

DEAR READERS: Orange County Outreach, a branch of the Greater Los Angeles Council on Deafness Inc. (GLAD), has opened a new office at 2024 N. Broadway, Suite 109, Santa Ana. GLAD provides information and referral, advocacy, community education, interpreting and other services as needed to hearing-impaired persons.

GLAD functions as an umbrella organization which coordinates its services with more than 35 member organizations to meet the needs and rights of the deaf community, according to spokesmen. Most services are free and available to all ages.

This office will assist people in making phone calls related to emergency situations, sick calls to work, job-related calls, medical appointments and similar situations. Skilled sign language interperters also are available to act as a link between the hearing employer and the deaf job applicant. Job placement and development assistance also are offered by the Orange County Outreach office, as is contact with the Southern California Center for law and the Deaf, a branch of GLAD which assists persons having legal problems involving discrimination due to deafness.

Lists of available sign language classes and educational facilities of all types and for all ages of deaf people are maintained. Referrals are made when appropriate.

Persons interested in these services are invited to stop at the office or phone 972-3925 (voice or Teletypewriters) from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

Rock Special Spot

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) As a boy' Clifford J. VanRyn spent hours each day dreaming on a granite boulder in a city park. He proposed to his wife there. Last week, he was found dead of a heart attack at the same spot.

"You could say his life began and ended at that rock," Frances VanRyn said of her 66-year-old husband.

AUTHORITIES SAY VanRyn suffered the attack while driving along Interstate 196 outside Highland Park. A medical examiner ruled VanRyn probably died at once.

But police report his 1970 auto crossed both traffic lanes and the interstate's median, plunged down an embankment, and did not stop until it reached the rock 30 feet below the roadway.

"He always called it 'our rock' and he'd occasionally drive by it so we could remember where we started," Mrs. VanRyn said. "He was a very romantic man."

SHE EXPLAINED THAT her husband as a boy "used to go to that rock whenever he was troubled and needed to clear his thoughts. He would spend hours sitting on top of that rock thinking and dreaming."

In 1931, VanRyn took her to the rock on the night before they eloped and were married.

"My husband never forgot about the rock'" she said. "It was his very special place."

Valley Complex

$8 Million Project Set

An $8 million industrial office complex in Fountain Valley's industrial redevelopment area is expected to be under construction by August.

The complex, which will include some commercial shops, will be built by the Stewart Development Co. of Tustin on nine acres on Newhope Street near Warner Avenue.

PLANS SUBMITTED TO THE City Council in its dual role as city redevelopment agency were approved unanimously.

Developers hope to have the complex completed by March, 1980.

A SECOND PHASE 8.5 ACRE development on Warner Avenue, worth an estimated $7 million, is under consideration.

Developers say they will submit plans for the second half of the complex later this year. The second phase proposal will include five restaurants, a financial firm and other commercial uses, developers said.

Staff Elected At Pacifica

Dr. Frank R. Law has been elected chief of staff of Pacifica Community Hospital, succeeding Dr. Paul Flanagan.

Dr. Law has served on the staff of the Huntington Beach facility since 1971 and on the executive committee since 1974.

LAW

Dr. Law, a general practitioner, received his medical degree at the California College of Medicine, and interned at Los Angeles County General Hospital.

He is co-director of the Pacifica Community Hospital emergency department, fleet surgeon for the Huntington Harbor Anglers, a director of Pacifica Community Hospital and the Pacifica Medical Group.

He is married, has four children, and resides in Huntington Beach.

Supervisors Push Irvine Coast Park

By KATHY CLANCY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Creation of an 18,000-acre urban national park that would stretch along the Irvine coast and through the hills surrounding Laguna Beach was endorsed Wednesday by Orange County supervisors.

The board unanimously adopted a resolution urging the National Park Service to create the park, taking in three-fourths of the 10,000-acre Irvine Coast south of Corona del Mar.

In addition, the park boundaries would include the Laguna Greenbelt, Laguna Beach's Sycamore Hills and open space lands in the future community of Aliso Viejo.

Supervisors also asked that the park include the Bonner and Shady Canyons in the city of Irvine, along with Los Trancos Canyon on the inland side of Pacific Coast Highway south of Corona del Mar.

The proposed Aliso Viejo park lands would include more than 3,000 acres of open space the Aliso Viejo Company already has pledged to donate for public use, along with about 700 acres now slated for development of up to 4,000 dwellings.

When supervisors recently adopted a land use plan for Aliso Viejo, they required that the additional property be made available for public purchase at the March, 1979, market price.

George Osborne, director of the county Environmental Management Agency (EMA), reported to supervisors that National Park Service administrators have found the area qualifies for development as a national park.

Their findings were based upon the presence of what were called significant natural resources, primarily the Irvine coastal land, along with the area's proximity to major population centers.

In addition, Osborne wrote in his report to supervisors, the federal administrators have argued the park likely would draw visitors from other regions.

The park study is now being processed through federal channels, Osborne said, and is expected to be submitted to congress by May 30.

Osborne warned the park administrators' findings may be altered before they reach congress.

And yet to be addressed in the park study are ways the federal government would acquire the park land, along with the drawing of precise boundaries and plans for park development.

IRVINE POLICE INVESTIGATORS STUDY MOTORCYCLE FROM MacARTHUR WRECK
Rider, Wearing Only Swimming Trunks, Was Critically Injured

Cyclist Hurt in Crash

Swimming Trunk-clad Man Badly Skinned

A Yorba Linda man clad only in swimming trunks suffered critical skin losses Wednesday when he lost control of his motorcycle and skidded 350 feet down busy MacArthur Boulevard at Bonita Canyon Road in Irvine.

The 4:20 p.m. accident strangled commuter traffic and forced diversion of southbound travelers to Jamboree Boulevard where two unrelated non-injury accidents later occurred.

Injured was Frank E. Zigan, 35, who, according to police, was traveling northbound on MacArthur when he hit one of the small reflectors on the pavement dividing line and lost control of his high-powered bike.

One traffic investigator said portions of Zigan's face and body were literally ground to the bone as he slid across the pavement.

"Investigation also revealed that Mr Zigan had a jacket and motorcycle helmet attached to the back of the motorcycle, but was not wearing them," said Sgt. Bob Kredel, of the Irvine Police Department.

Zigan was listed in critical but stable condition today at Kaiser Permanente Hospital, Bellflower. He was transferred there from Hoag Memorial Hospital after receiving extensive on-the-scene emergency treatment from Orange County Paramedics.

Kredel said the 800-pound motorcycle collided with a vehicle driven by Pamela A. Harris, 48, of El Toro. She was not injured.

It took police and firemen more than two hours to clean the highway of debris left by the accident and restore normal traffic flow, Kredel noted.

In one odd coincidence, Kredel said, Zigan's wife passed by the accident scene, recognized the motorcycle and identified the injured man as her husband.

Investigation to determine the motorcyclist's actions immediately prior to the accident is continuing, Kredel said.

Energy Target

Coast Firms Join to Conserve

In what officials say is a unique experiment, four of the Orange Coast's biggest firms have formed an energy cooperative in an attempt to save four megawatts of electricity during the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Four megawatts of electricity is enough to supply energy to 3,000 homes for a year.

The other members are the Irvine Company, the Fluor Corp. and South Coast Plaza.

Under the terms of the agreement signed today all four companies will be linked by a computer operated by Engineering Supervision Company (ESCO) that will monitor the firms' energy demands.

The cooperative is designed to reduce demand during the afternoon peak period at about 4 p.m.

Using the monitoring device, co-op president Bud Dobyns of Fluor said, will tell members when to defer use of some equipment.

John Phillips of ESCO said that won't mean a wholesale shutting off of lights and air conditioning, but a selective reduction in use of some machines. He said one pice of equipment among many, such as one of two or three elevators, might be closed down during the peak.

He described the plan as an energy budget, but one used in concert by the four firms, rather than on an individual basis.

C.E. Hathway, vice president of Southern California Edison, said the program has never been tried before in the United States.

He explained that the four companies paid for a feasibility study on the project.

With the approval of the state Public Utilities Commission and Edison, the cost of implementing the project, about $250,000 will be borne by Edison.

Dobyns said that end of the first year trial, if the co-op has worked as planned, the group will petition the PUC for institution of a special rate as an incentive to get more businesses to do the same thing.

He said that more Orange County firms are expected to join the co-op, but that the four were the companies that have worked on its formation for about a year.

Called the Orange County Energy Conservation Cooperative, the organization is a non-profit corporation.

Phillips said the project is expected to save the firms money in reduced energy consumption and to aid the Edison Company

Ecstasy Ride

Writer Flies With Blue Angels

By JOANNE REYNOLDS
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

It's a ride in an elevator gone berserk and a dance across the clouds.

Moments of breathtaking ecstasy are punctuated by stomach-wrenching vertigo.

To a handful of men, it is as common an experience as a trip to the corner market.

For me, it was a fantasy come to life—a ride with the Blue Angels.

More precisely, it was a ride with Angel Seven, Lt. Jack Ekl. Wednesday he gave me a taste of the air show to be performed Saturday and Sunday at El Toro Marine Corps Air Station.

Ekl, 32, is cool, but not cocky. He wants me to know what I'm getting into so I can enjoy it.

"It's fun. It never gets boring, but it's like any other job. There are days when things are going really good and there are other days," Ekl explains.

That tall sleek jet I'm going to get in is really nothing more than a standard trainer, he says.

Ekl's right hand man is AE1 Joe Berry, his crew chief. Berry puts me in an olive drab flight suit and straps me into the back seat of the fighter.

Berry's warnings abound; don't touch anything painted black and yellow; be sure to flip the intercom back to receive when you're done talking; don't try to get out of the plane at the end of the flight until the ejection seat is disarmed.

He points out the location of the "barf bag" and ducks down the ladder with a cheery "have a nice flight.

Waiting for takeoff clearance, Ekl tries to chat. It's a one-way conversation since the multiple belts that hold me in place keep me from easily reaching the intercom switch.

Proposed Irvine Complex

Theater $6.5 Million?

A proposed performing arts theater for the city of Irvine could cost up to $6.5 million according to preliminary cost estimates released this week by the project's architect.

Current plans, based on direction to the architect from the city's Performing Arts Theater Committee, call for a 750-seat facility that would include a hydraulically movable stage, dressing rooms, rehearsal hall and balcony seating.

Members of the committee have stressed that the plans are "purely preliminary" and may be changed.

The city currently has $1.6 million in 1974 bond money sitting in the bank that are earmarked for a performing arts theater.

That money, however, is under attack from Mayor Bill Vardoulis who wants to use it instead for expansion of the city's athletic fields.

And Vardoulis wants tne city to hold an election to see if voters want to come up with the extra millions that would be needed to build the theater.

In a letter to the city, Larry Cannon of Wurster, Bernardi and Emmons, architects in San Francisco, said the project could be scaled down and the estimated cost reduced to $4.5 million.

Cannon said in the letter that other deletions could be possible, but that they would result "in a very different type of facility currently envisioned by the city."

The City Council is scheduled to consider the cost estimates and theater design May 8 during an overall review of the performing arts theater and athletic field expansion concerns.

Police Flock To Rites for Slain Officer

Hundreds of police cars and motorcycles lined the streets today around St. Simon and Jude Church in Huntington Beach as more than 1,000 fellow peace officers paid tribute to slain Los Angeles Sheriff's Deputy George Barthel, 32, of Costa Mesa.

Interment for Mr. Barthel, who leaves a wife and two young children, was scheduled, following 11 a.m. services, at Good Shepherd Cemetery, also in Huntington Beach.

Los Angeles Sheriff's officials said today the Los Angeles County District Attorney apparently will seek the death penalty against two men accused in the slaying.

A spokesman said suspects James Leroy Noble, 24, and Clarence Robinson, 21, were arraigned in Compton Municipal Court on murder charges stemming from last week's tragedy.

The spokesman said the District Attorney's Office brought one count of murder coupled with special circumstances — including being armed at the time of the slaying — that could

Italian Loses In Roulette

ROME (AP) — A 30-year-old goldsmith killed himself while "re-creating" the Russian roulette scene from the award-winning film "The Deer Hunter," police reported.

Police sources said Enrico D'Andrea asked three male employees in his jewelry shop to stay on after work for "some excitement."

While they watched, he put one bullet in a .38-caliber revolver, spun the cylinder, put the gun to his head and pulled the trigger.

El Toro Traffic Curbed

Irvine police have announced their plans to cope with the massive traffic expected to be generated by the weeekend air show at El Toro Marine Corps Air Station.

From 3:15 to 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, traffic on roads leading from the base will be allowed to proceed in only a westbound direction, away from the station, said Sgt. Bob Kredel.

Affected roads are Trabuco Road between the El Toro main gate and Culver Drive and Irvine Boulevard from El Toro north gate to Jeffrey Road, Kredel said.

Also, in the Northwood village area, two eastbound lanes will be open between Culver and Myford Road for residents' use, Kredel said.

On Jeffrey Road, between Trabuco and Walnut Street, traffic will only be permitted to go southbound during the afternoon periods, he added.

Kredel said Northwood residents should use Culver and Bryan Avenue to get in and out of their neighborhood.

"We'll have officers at the primary intersections. We expect no problems," he said. It is estimated that 100,000 people will attend the air show featuring the Blue Angels each day. That translates to about 30,000 cars, Kredel said.

He also pointed out that California Highway Patrol officers will be out in force to cite motorists who park along the San Diego, Santa Ana and Laguna freeways to watch the show. Unattended vehicles will be towed away, he added.

Boy Critical After LA Police Shooting

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 15-year-old boy who fled when police spotted him and two other boys pushing a car down a darkened street early today was shot and critically wounded by a police officer, authorities said.

The shooting came on the same morning the county coroner conducted an inquest into February's fatal shooting of another teen-ager by sheriff's deputies.

It also came amid a rising controversy over police shooting policy sparked by the death of Eula Love last January. (Related story, A5.)

The Van Nuys boy who was shot this morning was not immediately identified. He was listed in "very critical" condition at Sherman Oaks Community Hospital.

Police Lt. Charles Higbie said officer John R. Holland, 30, a 10-year veteran of the force, ordered the boy to "freeze" when he tried to climb a fence after officers spotted the three boys pushing a car down Hartsook Street in Van Nuys during predawn hours.

Higbie said the boys were pushing one of their parents' cars, allegedly to get quietly away from the area so their parents wouldn't know they had taken the car.

Holland was part of a special team in the area to protect a witness in a murder case whose life had been threatened, Higbie said. The witness was to testify in the January 1969 murder of Julius Petro at Los Angeles International Airport, he said.

Meanwhile, coroner's hearing officer Frederic Lacey conducted an inquest today into the February death of Abel Gill, 17, which followed a high-speed freeway chase that ended in gunfire downtown.

Lost Refugees Reunited With Their Family

Trinh Tran, 22, and her brother, Tanh Tran, 14, were found in a park about 10 miles away from their new home some 48 hours after their absence was noted.

"We're still trying to piece together the story of what happened while they were gone," explained Mrs. Jon Hermes, wife of the minister at the Geneva Presbyterian Church, Laguna Hills.

"But we're satisfied that it was simply their confusion that led to their absence," she said. "They are perfectly happy today and glad to be back with their foster family."

Prices Up .9 Percent

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Paced by increases in the cost of gasoline and meat, consumer prices in the Los Angeles-Orange County area rose .9 percent last month, the U.S. Labor Department reported today.

The March increase was just a shade under the 1 percent cost-of-living increase for the month nationwide. (Related story, A4)

The increase means that goods and services that cost a dollar at the end of the month would have sold for 49.1 cents in 1967.

Baby's Death Related

By KATHY CLANCY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The physician who was with Dr. William Waddill's chief accuser the night police were told of an alleged infant slaying took the witness stand today in Waddill's murder retrial.

Dr. Thomas Ferguson told the Orange County Superior Court jury that he called a Westminster police acquaintance after Dr. Ronald Cornelsen alleged he saw Waddill "strangle and suffocate" a newborn infant in the aftermath of a saline abortion two years ago.

Ferguson testified Cornelsen came to his home late one night a few days after the alleged strangulation.

He said Cornelsen told him the baby "was born alive, was crying, moving and breathing independently" before she allegedly was choked to death.

And, Ferguson continued, those were the purported facts he relayed to police when he summoned them to his home that evening.

"After Dr. Cornelsen came over I became concerned about his involvement in the events and I was worried that he was exposing himself to something," Ferguson explained.

"At the late hour I thought I could call my lawyer in Long Beach and he talked to Dr. Cornelsen," Ferguson testified. "After that conversation and another one with the hospital administrator, Dr. Cornelsen told me he wanted to talk to police."

Defense attorney Charles Weedman asked Ferguson if he recalled telling police "you will have to protect my butt."

"I can't imagine what it could possibly be referring to," Ferguson replied. "I don't think it could have come from me."

Waddill, a 43-year-old Huntington Harbour obstetrician, is being tried a second time for the alleged murder of the two-pound, 15-ounce infant known as Baby Girl Weaver.

His first trial ended last May when jurors said they were deadlocked 7 to 5 in favor of acquittal.

Weedman has denied his client strangled the baby but that Waddill wanted no "heroic" revival attempts because the infant was dead or irreversibly on the verge of death by the time the doctor examined her.

Jack Styers, Printing Shop Owner, Dies

Jack E. Styers of Irvine, owner and operator of Styers Print-O-Mat in Corona del Mar, died Wednesday at UC Los Angeles Medical Center. He was 58.

A native of Pennsylvania, Mr. Styers who lived in Irvine, graduated from Drexel College and worked as an engineer for TRW and Curtiss Wright Corp. before purchasing the offset print shop in 1970. He was a former Navy pilot.

Funeral services for Mr. Styers will be held at 3 p.m. Friday at Pacific View Chapel, Newport Beach, under the direction of Rev. Ron Allison of University Methodist Church. Burial will follow at Pacific View Memorial Park.

Mr. Styers is survived by his widow, Janet, of the family home, 5371 Strasbourg Ave.; two sons, James, of Seattle and Jeffery, of San Diego, and a granddaughter.

lead to the death penalty.

The pair also face one count of felonious assault with intent to commit murder and one charge of felonious assault on a peace officer, the spokesman said.

A preliminary hearing has been set for May 8, also in Compton Municipal Court.

The spokesman said murder charges are pending against Raymond Howard, 24, of Inglewood. A fourth suspect in the case, Gary M. Hubbard, 20, of Los Angeles, faces allegations of possession of drugs but not of murder.

Barthel and Deputy Jimmy Hollingsworth, 30, of Anaheim, were shot while questioning a group of men near a Watts housing complex.

Hollingsworth, who was shot in the head, has been released from the hospital and is in good condition, the spokesman said.

Pot Search Costs $7,500

NEW YORK (AP) — A Queens high school girl has received $7,500 in damages because she was forced by school authorities to partially disrobe during a "degrading search" for marijuana.

No marijuana was found and U.S. District Judge John Dooling on Wednesday awarded the money for "mental and emotional pain" inflicted on the girl, identified only as "M.M." He recommended she use the money for psychiatric counseling.

Last year, a jury sided with two Bayside High School officials. However, Dooling set aside the verdict for lack of evidence.

State S&L Loan Rates To Hit 11%

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Major California savings and loan associations, which have often led the nation in mortgage rate increases, are raising mortgage loan rates to 11 percent or above, the highest rate in 4½ years.

Glendale Federal Savings said Wednesday it was raising its fixed-rate loans to 11¼ percent from the previous 10¾ percent to 11 percent.

The firm also raised its variable rate minimum ¼ percent to 10¾ percent.

Variable mortgage rates, legal in California and several other states, allow the interest rate to be changed within limits as other interest rates change over the life of the loan.

Meantime, Home Savings, the largest savings and loan in the nation, reported that it was "in the throes of considering a change" of rates in light of the industry movement toward the 11 percent mark.

Rates in California have frequently risen faster and higher than those of other areas because of demand for housing in the state.

But housing economists say mortgage rates across the country are under pressure because S&Ls must pay for mortgage funds for lending.

Recently, much of those funds have come from six-month money market certificates which have interest rates tied to Treasury bills. The latest rate allowed on the certificate was 9.3 percent.

ANGELS...

Watching the struggle in a mirror, Ekl observes, "They didn't exactly design these things for small people."

The jet lifts gently off the ground, eases up in altitude as we clear the end of the runway and then becomes an elevator straight up.

I'd been warned repeatedly about Gs—the face-smashing gravitational pull from steep climbs. No one said anything about elevators.

It's not an especially clear day, yet from our 8,000-foot vantage point, we can see from Mt. Baldy to San Clemente Island, from Oceanside to Palos Verdes.

Every roll, climb and dive is explained in advance along with the acceleration and deceleration that it requires.

That doesn't stop me from closing my eyes on the first roll, a wing over wing maneuver called a production roll.

It was easy keeping them open after that through silky-smooth dips and curves that leave me looking out the roof at San Clemente Island or looking down only to see the wing where the ocean used to be. We go from a demonstration of Gs to one for weightlessness.

The engine noise, the bumps and the vibration I'd expected aren't there.

There's more noise from radio traffic than from the engine. Ekl plays with the plane, accelerating just often enough for me to realize he is flying very gently.

I close my eyes. "Hey, you gotta have your eyes open," he admonishes when we right ourselves, "try it again."

I compromised. One eye stays open.

"OK. I've got the plane back now." I hope he never really let go.

The half-hour flight is over too soon. We make one pass over the field and land.

It takes very little time to find myself back on the ground. My legs are shaky and I'm glad to be where the earth stays under my feet and the sky stays overhead.

Still, I wish I was in that wonderful machine that makes everything turn upside down so easily.

Wayne Recovering At Newport Home

Actor John Wayne was up and about at his Newport Beach home today but was not prepared to offer any additions to scathing comments he made about the press when he left Hoag Memorial Hospital Wednesday.

"No, he feels he said what he had to say," secretary Pat Stacy said. "He's up now and he's feeling fine and he says he feels better for saying it."

Wayne, 71, accused unnamed news reporters of "trying to bribe people" to talk about his condition which was identified by the hospital as bronchitis.

And he told the press in a statement issued as he left the hospital: "I haven't lied to the press about anything but they will not take our reports as truthful.

"Reporters speak around trying to bribe people to say something that won't coincide with the official report. I don't know why that is necessary but I guess it is modern day news methods.

Wayne issued the statement through spokeswoman Marcy Mobley. She and Miss Stacy have refused to identify the reporters who apparently have angered the veteran Western star.

Wayne was hospitalized for a month at UCLA Medical Center late last year and underwent surgery for removal of his cancerous stomach. His only public appearance since that surgery was at the Academy Awards ceremony April 9.

Carter's Nuclear Stand Hit

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., in a sharp assault on President Carter, is challenging the president to tell the nuclear industry that "enough is enough."

At a news conference Wednesday, Brown also said he hopes the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission will order temporary shut-downs of the eight nuclear plants built by Babcock & Wilcox.

HE SAID IF THIS happens, he will call upon Californians affected by the nearby Rancho Seco plant to curtail the use of their air conditioners on hot summer days.

The utilities said that would include customers from Bakersfield to Eureka.

The Democratic governor, who says he may run for president in 1980, repeatedly criticized Carter's pro-nuclear stance, saying other energy sources should be explored instead.

"IT'S RATHER CLEAR to me that the combination of risks, costs, safety problems, the problem of storage of waste, the prospect of proliferation and even the danger of sabotage all combine to make it imperative that this country now pursue a path of alternative energy sources," he said.

He said Carter, "far from encouraging a short-circuiting of the licensing process of nuclear reactors, should tell the American people and the nuclear industry quite simply: 'Enough is enough'."

REFUSING TO SAY he favored a total ban on existing plants, Brown instead focused on halting nuclear power expansion and building other, safer power sources in the future.

The 41-year-old governor said that recent events had made it very clear that "the days of nuclear power are indeed numbered."

Mom, Girl Slain; Cops Shoot Killer

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The bodies of a woman, stabbed through the heart with a kitchen knife, and her 4-year-old daughter, who had been strangled, were found in the home of a psychologist held hostage by a Nigerian exchange student, police said.

The student, Newman Augustine Osebor of Lagos, Nigeria, was shot and killed Thursday on an interstate highway after a 3½-hour standoff with police, authorities say.

"My life was for them," cried Alejo Punetes Wednesday after the bodies of his wife, Candalaria, and daughter, Norma were removed from the home of Richard E. Townsend. "They were the best, they were fantastic. How could anyone do this to a little girl and her mother?"

Mrs. Puentes, 24, had worked as a maid for Townsend, a criminal psychologist.

Police said Townsend was abducted Wednesday at gunpoint, forced to withdraw money from a bank and held hostage by Osebor.

The 22-year-old Osebor was fatally shot by police after holding Townsend hostage in the doctor's sports car on Interstate 8. Townsend was unhurt in the shooting.

Patty Denies Bar Brawl

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst Shaw denies that her police officer husband attended a bachelor party that ended in a raucous brawl at a lesbian bar the night before their wedding.

"It's really upsetting," said Mrs. Shaw Wednesday. "We don't have friends whose idea of having a good time is going out beating up women."

On the night before their wedding, her husband Bernard was not living it up with his pals but sitting with members of the wedding party at a local restaurant, she said. The couple were married April 1.

A number of police officers were reported to have been members of a bachelor party that barged into Peg's Place about midnight and harassed customers. Shaw's name had been linked to the party in stories published in the San Francisco Chronicle.

The district attorney's office and the police department are investigating the incident and two persons, policeman Daniel Marr, 25, and a civilian, Kevin Guerin, 24, have been charged with disturbing the peace and battery.

Inmate Flees Jail Facility

LOMPOC (AP) — The car authorities believe was used in the escape of George Jackson Brigade leader John Sherman, 36, has been found, but he and his wife remained free today.

City police said a green Pinto sedan was found early Wednesday, parked in a residential area of town.

Police said they believe the car, rented Tuesday from a local car-rental agency, was driven by Marianne Pulfer Sherman, 28, when her husband, serving a 30-year sentence, escaped Tuesday afternoon while visiting an eye doctor.

Medi-Cal Fraud Probed

In response to a question, Deputy Controller Peter Pelkofer said Wednesday that auditors had found several such cases.

"We found in at least one case benefits being provided to a deceased person more than a year after death, Pelkofer said.

Shell Request Approved

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A jurisdictional battle over air quality standards has been defused, with the state approving a Shell Oil Co. request to build a pumping station but requiring the firm to clean up other sources of pollution.

The state Air Resources Board sidestepped a "smog war" Wednesday when it supported the operating permit issued for the oil station by the South Coast Air Quality Management District — but tacked on the cleanup requirements.

The district approved Shell's application on Jan. 3. However, the ARB threatened to cancel the okay because the district had not required "trade-off" agreements. Such agreements require Shell to clean up other sources of smog to offset polluants generated by the new facility.

Fonda Hits "Robot Jobs'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Academy award-winning actress and activist Jane Fonda has urged working women not to accept being "slotted into robot-like jobs that do not allow the development of management skills, dignity or self-worth."

Ms. Fonda spoke at a noon rally Wednesday at the Embaradero Center attended by several thousand persons. The gathering was one of 13 around the nation sponsored by the 800-member Women Organized for Employment, to commemorate National Secretaries' Day.

Organizers circulated statistics they said show 98 percent of the 3.5 million secretaries in the U.S. in 1976 were women. Although 60 percent of women support themselves or head families, they earn only about 57 percent of what the average man does, the group said.

Love Shooting Criticized

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A deputy police chief criticized two officers Wednesday for using "faulty judgment and poor tactics" in the fatal shooting of Eula Love last January.

The criticism by Deputy Chief Marshall L. Anderson came as the Police Commission opened hearings into the case.

Mrs. Love, a widowed mother of three, was shot to death Jan. 3 by two officers called to her South-Central Los Angeles home following a dispute over an unpaid $22.00 gas bill.

Civilian Police Help Sensible

Last year, the city of Irvine launched what became a highly successful program in which non-sworn, civilian personnel investigate traffic accidents.

Irvine patterned its program after one that operated also with success in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Now, Irvine Police Chief Leo Peart wants to see his city take the lead in use of civilians in the police department.

The chief is proposing that civilians with proper training collect reports on minor crimes and handle routine chores in the detective bureau.

He also wants to employ civilians in the department's "support services" division. It handles all the business aspects that must be taken care of, even if they don't have a lot to do with direct law enforcement.

The chief's ideas make sense. Civilians cost less than sworn personnel, a factor that cannot be ignored in post-Proposition 13 times.

And, more importantly, transfer of less critical functions to civilians gets the police officer back into the field where he is needed.

Centers Fill Need

One issue drawing attention these days in Irvine particularly the village of Woodbridge is whether neighborhood adults should be allowed to operate small day care centers.

The Woodbridge tempest started several months ago when neighbors complained about noise and traffic surrounding one home where a resident was looking after several children of working parents.

At the time, the complaints probably were justified. Today, however, the home is state licensed and, thus, enrollment is now limited to six children. The complaints have ceased.

Given the number of working parents in Irvine, there's little question the centers are needed and should be permitted as a legitimate residential use.

If problems develop, they should be handled on a case-by-case basis at the community association level, or with the state licensing agency, if necessary.

With such systems to handle problems, there is no need for abolition of the centers as some have proposed.

Untimely Decision

It was shortly after 1 a.m. Wednesday morning when the Irvine City Council took up item No. 25 on a weighty 100-plus page agenda.

Except for three diehards, the only ones left in the audience were members of an Orange County task force who had waited patiently to give the council a full presentation on an environmental impact report. It concerned a county landfill dump proposed for development in the Bee and Round canyons area northeast of the city.

But because of the late hour, the task force essentially decided to make no presentation. The council was left with making an uninformed, hasty decision on matters that will have major future effects on Irvine's roads and neighborhoods.

None of it should have happened. The council, for all its expressed concern about maximum public exposure of its activities, should not have been considering the report or anything else, for that matter at 1 a.m.

What appears to be in order is a council policy that would limit the length of meetings or provide for an adjourned additional session if sufficient urgent business still remains to be considered after brains and energy are drained.

Boyd/Humbug

By L. M. BOYD

English King James II used lead, pewter, copper, anything at hand, for his coinage. Such coins minted in Dublin were referred to by the Irish as "uim bog" pronounced "oombug" meaning soft metal. They felt the coins were phony without intrinsic value. And their word for soft metal was where we got our word "humbug."

Would you agree that President Woodrow Wilson with his Ph.D. was the most scholarly of all our chief executives? It's noteworthy, I think, that he is said to have never missed an episode of the comic strip called "Krazy Kat."

Not everybody realizes that what "bovine" is to cattle, "ovine" is to sheep.

Mating season for the marsupial moles of Australia covers about three days every June. Immediately thereafter, all the male moles that have mated drop dead. The ain't-nature-wonderful folk say this is dandy because it leaves more food for the females and their offspring. Scientists have discovered it's the mating itself, not the time of year, that causes hormonal changes which kill the male. What price glory!

An inventive bunch, those musical showmen. For instance: Orchestra leader Fred Waring invented the famed Waring blender. And the operatic impressario Oscar Hammerstein invented the first practical cigar-rolling machine.

Incredible as it may seem, the quality of aerial photography is now so good that the rank of a foot soldier can be seen from pictures taken at 100,000 feet. Or so the experts report.

You know that actor called Dirk Benedict on the TV series "Battlestar Galactica?" He found his stage name on a menu under "Eggs."

Q. "On which type of turf is a football player more likely to get hurt, natural or artificial?"

A. Artificial, no doubt about it. Consider this: Injury data collected over three NFL seasons shows that 10 of the 12 stadiums with the highest injury rates have artificial turf, and 10 of the 11 stadiums with the lowest injury rates have natural turf.

Pentagon's 'Iranian Fire Sale'

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon is rushing to the rescue of American manufacturers who got stuck with more than $10 billion worth of canceled arms contracts when their favorite customer, the shah of Iran, was overthrown.

If Congress approves the bailout, much of the armaments already in production will be purchased by the Defense Department, at an ultimate cost to the taxpayers of almost $2 billion.

The idea has the support of the defense industry's friends in Congress and of Administration officials who are reluctant to press contract claims with the new Iranian regime.

DUBBED BY insiders as "the great Iranian fire sale," the proposed purchase of weaponry intended for the shah would be at relatively bargain prices. But close scrutiny of the items involved shows that many are obsolete or unnecessary.

The most expensive and controversial are the four Spruance-class destroyers with which the shah had planned to modernize his navy. Testifying before the Senate Armed Services Committee, Navy Secretary Graham Claytor said it would be "criminal to let the opportunity (to buy the destroyers) go by." He noted that they carry "the same armament, the same guns, the same detection apparatus, the same everything" as the Navy's newest guided-missile cruisers.

It was a poor comparison to make; the committee vetoed further production of the cruisers back in 1975 because their anti-aircraft tracking systems were found to be obsolescent. The committee report on that decision called it "inappropriate to build any ship . . . with a weapons system that is clearly inadequate to meet the projected threat within a relatively short period of time after delivery of the ship."

THE FOUR destroyers would cost the Navy $1.3 billion, plus another $2 million or so to refit them from Iranian to U.S. specifications.

Despite the enormous cost and the dubious value of the ships, the Navy's purchase request sailed smoothly through the committee, headed by Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss. By no coincidence, the shipbuilder, Ingalls, a subsidiary of Litton Industries, is located in Mississippi.

"It's a bailout for Litton," said a congressional aide. "They're saving 1,500 jobs for $1.3 billion. Even by welfare standards that's pretty gross." At $866,666 per job, "gross" is an understatement.

Another Iranian Fire Sale bargain the Navy wants to grab up is 150 Phoenix missiles for $77.1 million. The missiles are carried by F-14s, and only Iran and the United States have them.

THE TROUBLE is, officials have admitted there's no way of knowing whether some of the Phoenix missiles or their operation manuals fell into Soviet hands after the shah's ouster. "We prudently have to assume that the Russians have them," one knowledgeable source told our associate Peter Grant.

Several congressmen feel the proper course is to develop a new Phoenix missile, instead of buying more of a model that may no longer be a secret to the Soviets. In fact, this is being done by the Hughes Aircraft Co., and 60 of the newer missiles are included in next year's budget.

The Pentagon's rescue effort for its friends in the munitions industry is encountering opposition on Capitol Hill.

Footnote: It's not just the manufacturers who will get off the hook under the purchase proposal. If it passes, the new Iranian government would actually get back much of the $500 million deposit the shah put down.

There Are Alternatives to Police Chases

To the Editor:

It seems to me that there is arrogant disregard for human rights of the innocent when it comes to a police chase. The suspected offender must be caught at all cost, no matter what the cost.

The possibility that innocent people will be killed, maimed and emotionally scarred for life makes no difference, as long as justice is done by catching the suspected law breaker. In a recent case, Costa Mesa police were chasing a hit and run suspect down the Costa Mesa-Newport Freeway (55). In the attempt to apprehend the suspect there was a multi-car crash that would probably not have happened and involved a tragic situation for so many innocent people.

With just a tidbit of creativity and foresight this whole situation shouldn't have happened. Our tax dollars support a helicopter system that can track cars from above day or night. If there is a fleeing suspect dangerously evading the police, why not follow him until it is safe to apprehend him without endangering innocent bystanders.

COULDN'T the CHP or police traffic control slow down traffic (similiar to accident procedures) until it stops safely, trapping the suspect in a traffic jam and then apprehend him? The attitude is "No, get him now, don't wait." It's not the quality of the catch, it is how fast you can catch the suspect - at all costs.

How many times have you seen the traffic investigation team "Racing Code 3" across town to a reported minor accident without injuries? How many people are cut off, almost rammed, and actually crashed into by these needless full-out races to be quick? How many times have you seen a traffic unit cut someone off, swerve radically in heavy traffic, just to give a ticket often to a less serious violation? In doing so and stopping carelessly, one or more lanes have been blocked in order for tickets to be written.

These situations must stop. The police serve an important function in our society. But public pressure must be brought to bear, because wrong is wrong no matter who is doing the wrongdoing.

The motto "To Serve and Protect" shouldn't be "to serve and inflict." Call and write your local police chief and sheriff and let them know you don't like their chase procedures. Raising your voice now might save your life later!

No Hassle

To the Editor:

I read Cheryl Romo's column with great enjoyment and have just caught up with last Friday's edition where she painted a vivid picture of fighting the freeway traffic etc. to the Music Center to hear the Los Angeles Philharmonic.

I can imagine her husband's feelings when the elegant, handsome Carlo Maria Giulini appeared on the podium to conduct the orchestra and her "immediate conversion" to the wonders of classical music.

However, I wonder if Cheryl and her husband are aware that you do not have to go through any of those trials and tribulations in order to hear the orchestra, Giulini, Mehta and all the other greats of the music world?

You can hear them right here in Orange County at the historic Santa Ana High School, all red-carpeted, plenty of free parking, comfortable reserved seats, excellent acoustics and no traffic hassle!

In fact you can hear the great Giulini and the Los Angeles Philharmonic plus beautiful mezzo soprano Frederica von Stade this Saturday, April 28 in the Orange County Philharmonic Society's final concert of the season, right on your own doorstep in Orange County.

To Save 13

To the Editor:

Prop. 13 is going down the drain unless we stand on our hind feet and do something about it. According to a news article, county supervisors are urging county planners to add new taxes, called "user fees," to cover the cost of such things as libraries, fire protection, sewers, etc. Many of us opposed such taxes at public hearings, but we don't seem to have gotten the message across.

WE HAVE several choices of action: We can do nothing and let them pile all the taxes on us they like. Or we can attend hearings, every few weeks, and hope we can talk them out of some of these taxes. Or we can do some mass recalling of public officials. Or we can initiate an ordinance that will require voter approval of all new taxes and user fees, within the county. I believe the last choice will give us the best chance of retaining the benefits of Prop. 13.

If enough of us work together, we can force local politicians to abide by the intent of Prop. 13. We will need a few people, including at least one attorney, to draw up a county ordinance. We will need enough money to pay for a notice in the newspaper and for the printing of petitions. We will need one or two people in each city as headquarters for supplying circulators with petitions. We will need some telephoners. We will need about 63,000 valid signatures, so it will take quite a few circulators.

It is time government officials learn that Prop. 13 meant for them to cut expenses and not for them to pile new taxes on us.

Radiation Risk

To the Editor:

J. Corwin (Daily Pilot, April 8) obviously knows nothing about radiation. They key word is ionizing radiation which can come from the sun, or from a nuclear reaction or a sun lamp. They all affect people if the radiation is powerful enough.

But to say any level is very harmful is wrong. We get lots of this type of radiation every day. If you stand in the sun too long, you know it's harmful and a lot of Coast people will get cancer from the sun. But small amounts do not cause any harm. In fact, it is difficult to determine whether or not any harm to people will ever result from the Three Mile Plant accident, since the radiation was actually so small.

Pet Hazard

To the Editor:

I have just lost my pet, a very happy, healthy 7½-year-old German Shepherd, who I loved dearly, because of inadequate labeling on dry dog food packages. Let me recall the events:

Everything was normal one Sunday (March 25) until 2 a.m. Monday morning when my dog, Gar, came to my bed and whined. I noted that he was not feeling well and his stomach was slightly swollen I wondered what was wrong. At 2:30 a.m., he again wakened me and I saw that his condition was much worse and decided that I should get him to the veterinarian as soon as possible in the morning.

At 5:30 a.m. I woke up and saw that Gar was very ill, swollen and unable to walk. I rushed to the telephone and after a number of calls, succeeded in getting an emergency veterinary clinic. But it was too late; Gar died while I was on the telephone.

I LEARNED from the clinic that Gar died of stomach bloat caused by eating a normal meal of dried dog food and drinking water. I had never heard of such a thing. In addition, the clinic said they encounter many such cases. Gar probably could have been saved if I had recognized the symptoms and gotten him to the clinic earlier.

I feel terribly distraught by the loss of Gar. However, there is a broader issue: protection of future users of dried dog food from a similar tragedy. Dried dog food should be labled prominently to warn dog owners: (1) to either moisten the food first or prevent the dog from drinking water after eating, (2) to be alert to the symptoms of stomach bloat, and (3) what to do if the symptoms occur.

Supervisors Push Irvine Coast Park

By KATHY CLANCY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Creation of an 18,000-acre urban national park that would stretch along the Irvine coast and through the hills surrounding Laguna Beach was endorsed Wednesday by Orange County supervisors.

The board unanimously adopted a resolution urging the National Park Service to create the park, taking in three-fourths of the 10,000-acre Irvine Coast south of Corona del Mar.

In addition, the park boundaries would include the Laguna Greenbelt, Laguna Beach's Sycamore Hills and open space lands in the future community of Aliso Viejo.

Supervisors also asked that the park include the Bonner and Shady Canyons in the city of Irvine, along with Los Trancos Canyon on the inland side of Pacific Coast Highway south of Corona del Mar.

The proposed Aliso Viejo park lands would include more than 3,000 acres of open space the Aliso Viejo Company already has pledged to donate for public use, along with about 700 acres now slated for development of up to 4,000 dwellings.

When supervisors recently adopted a land use plan for Aliso Viejo, they required that the additional property be made available for public purchase at the March, 1979, market price.

George Osborne, director of the county Environmental Management Agency (EMA), reported to supervisors that National Park Service administrators have found the area qualifies for development as a national park.

Their findings were based upon the presence of what were called significant natural resources, primarily the Irvine coastal land, along with the area's proximity to major population centers.

In addition, Osborne wrote in his report to supervisors, the federal administrators have argued the park likely would draw visitors from other regions.

The park study is now being processed through federal channels, Osborne said, and is expected to be submitted to congress by May 30.

Osborne warned the park administrators' findings may be altered before they reach congress.

And yet to be addressed in the park study are ways the federal government would acquire the park land, along with the drawing of precise boundaries and plans for park development.

Snake Tossed in Strike

Other Violence Mounts at SC Plant

By RAYMOND ESTRADA JR.
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Strike violence at Reeves Rubber Inc. gasket factory in San Clemente escalated today with reports of a live rattlesnake thrown into the plant and a tire-slashing, rock-throwing melee in a driveway today.

Details were sketchy about today's incident. One man was reportedly arrested after plant officials charged strikers with attempting to halt a delivery truck by slashing its tires.

Communications Workers of America union members had scheduled a rally today in front of the factory at 415 Ave. Pico.

Police Sgt. Bill Trudeau said today a snake was thrown through a plant window Wednesday afternoon. The snake was in a paper bag.

Plant manager Bill Krames charged that a striker tossed what he said was a rattlesnake onto a bench where a female worker shrieked as she realized what was in the bag. No one was hurt.

Plant workers disposed of the snake. No arrests have yet been made in connection with the snake incident, police said today.

Krames said violence "has heated up" this week as picketers are becoming frustrated about the lack of progress in the 17-day-old strike.

Krames charged that a picketer struck a plant supervisor several times in the head early Wednesday morning as the victim was leaving the factory.

One man has been arrested in connection with that incident but police said they have not filed charges.

The strike began with an April 9 walkout by some of the plant workers who are protesting alleged "harassment and bad faith bargaining" by management.

Union officials have filed three unfair labor practice charges with the National Labor Relations Board. Management has denied the harassment and bad bargaining charges.

Strikers and management officials still say they plan to reopen negotiation through a federal mediator May 3.

Lagunan Cheers Century Birthday

By STEVE MITCHELL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

It's been more than three decades since Horace Plummer retired as planning director for the city of Portland, Ore.

But he still has his opinions about planning, zoning laws and politicians, and the Laguna Beach resident is not the least bit shy when he reminisces about the old days.

There's a lot for Horace Plummer to reminisce about. He celebrated his 100th birthday Easter Sunday.

Plummer received a nice plaque from the County Board of Supervisors, a note from Jimmy and Rosalynn Carter and a huge card signed by fellow parishioners at the local Community Presbyterian Church.

Plummer says he never expected to reach the century mark, and claims he owes it all to religion, good living, daily exercise "and I take a can of beer at lunch."

Years of battling crooked commissioners, inept planners and politicians probably contributed to his lively spirit, which remains intact even today.

He recalls the goings-on in Portland, Ore., where he arrived in 1905 on a cut-rate "Homeseekers" train ticket. The reduced fare was to induce Americans to settle along the tracks in the West.

He lined up a job as a structural engineer with the Portland planning department, at a time when that agency was comprised of five city employees.

During his tenure, he recalls that he fought with commissioners who sought favors for friends from the planning department, lectured ignorant city employees and put up with "fussy" council members.

When he left 39 years later, he

Rationing Proposal Altered

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter made a new effort today to save his beleaguered standby gasoline rationing plan from being killed by Congress.

With a critical Senate Energy Committee vote scheduled later in the day, the president offered to allocate more gasoline coupons to states where motorists drive greater distances to work.

It was not clear if the proposal would salvage the rationing proposal in the House or Senate.

Megawatts Savings?

Companies Form Energy Effort

By JOANNE REYNOLDS
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

In what officials say is a unique experiment, four of the Orange Coast's biggest firms have formed an energy cooperative in an attempt to save four megawatts of electricity during the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Four megawatts of electricity is enough to supply energy to 3,000 homes for a year.

The other members are the Irvine Company, the Fluor Corp. and South Coast Plaza.

Under the terms of the agreement signed today all four companies will be linked by a computer operated by Engineering Supervision Company (ESCO) that will monitor the firms' energy demands.

The cooperative is designed to reduce demand during the afternoon peak period at about 4 p.m.

Using the monitoring device, co-op president Bud Dobyns of Fluor said, will tell members when to defer use of some equipment.

John Phillips of ESCO said that won't mean a wholesale shutting off of lights and air conditioning, but a selective reduction in use of some machines. He said one pice of equipment among many, such as one of two or three elevators, might be closed down during the peak.

He described the plan as an energy budget, but one used in concert by the four firms, rather than on an individual basis.

C.E. Hathway, vice president of Southern California Edison, said the program has never been tried before in the United States.

He explained that the four companies paid for a feasibility study on the project.

With the approval of the state Public Utilities Commission and Edison, the cost of implementing the project, about $250,000, will be borne by Edison.

Dobyns said that end of the first year trial, if the co-op has worked as planned, the group will petition the PUC for institution of a special rate as an incentive to get more businesses to do the same thing.

He said that more Orange County firms are expected to join the co-op, but that the four were the companies that have worked on its formation for about a year.

Called the Orange County Energy Conservation Cooperative, the organization is a non-profit corporation.

Phillips said the project is expected to save the firms money in reduced energy consumption and to aid the Edison Company

Ecstasy Ride

Writer Flies With Blue Angels

By JOANNE REYNOLDS
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

It's a ride in an elevator gone berserk and a dance across the clouds.

Moments of breathtaking ecstasy are punctuated by stomach-wrenching vertigo.

To a handful of men, it is as common an experience as a trip to the corner market.

For me, it was a fantasy come to life—a ride with the Blue Angels.

More precisely, it was a ride with Angel Seven, Lt. Jack Ekl. Wednesday he gave me a taste of the air show to be performed Saturday and Sunday at El Toro Marine Corps Air Station.

Ekl, 32, is cool, but not cocky. He wants me to know what I'm getting into so I can enjoy it.

"It's fun. It never gets boring, but it's like any other job. There are days when things are going really good and there are other days," Ekl explains.

That tall sleek jet I'm going to get in is really nothing more than a standard trainer, he says.

Ekl's right hand man is AE1 Joe Berry, his crew chief. Berry puts me in an olive drab flight suit and straps me into the back seat of the fighter.

Berry's warnings abound; don't touch anything painted black and yellow; be sure to flip the intercom back to receive when you're done talking; don't

State S&L Loan Rates To Hit 11%

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Major California savings and loan associations, which have often led the nation in mortgage rate increases, are raising mortgage loan rates to 11 percent or above, the highest rate in 4½ years.

Glendale Federal Savings said Wednesday it was raising its fixed-rate loans to 11¼ percent from the previous 10¾ percent to 11 percent.

The firm also raised its variable rate minimum ¼ percent to 10¾ percent.

Variable mortgage rates, legal in California and several other states, allow the interest rate to be changed within limits as other interest rates change over the life of the loan.

Meantime, Home Savings, the largest savings and loan in the nation, reported that it was "in the throes of considering a change" of rates in light of the industry movement toward the 11 percent mark.

Rates in California have frequently risen faster and higher than those of other areas because of demand for housing in the state.

But housing economists say mortgage rates across the country are under pressure because S&Ls must pay for mortgage funds for lending.

Recently, much of those funds have come from six-month money market certificates which have interest rates tied to Treasury bills. The latest rate allowed on the certificate was 9.3 percent.

The last time most California S&Ls charged 11 percent or more for home loans was in October 1974.

Park Project Approved in Laguna Beach

A lighted mini-park, complete with wood decking, benches and plants should be completed by July at the base of Oak Street in Laguna Beach.

Municipal Services Director Terry Brandt said D.W. Contracting Company of Laguna Beach was the low bidder for the park project among three firms seeking the job with an offer to do the work for $24,948.

In addition to the base bid, the firm will do additional bid items such as installing an irrigation system, soil preparation and planting, paving and catch basins at additional cost, thus bringing the price tag up to $36,348.

The Oak Stree Minipark will be funded by city development taxes, Brandt said, and should be completed in time for the summer season.

Pensions Up

Benefits Pay Increased

WASHINGTON (AP) — The average elderly Social Security beneficiary will find $25 extra in his government check in July and some will get up to $50 more as a result of the automatic 9.9 percent benefit increase announced today.

The record increase, which will cost the Social Security trust funds $10.2 billion, came automatically as a result of the rise in the Consumer Price Index in the first quarter of this year over the same period in 1978.

An estimated 35 million retired or disabled workers and their families and survivors will get the increase in their July checks. Benefits also will go up 9.9 percent for about 5 million Supplemental Security Income recipients at a cost of $415 million.

Last year's cost of living increase was 6.5 percent. This is the fifth annual automatic cost-of-living increase and exceeds the previous high of 8 percent in 1975.

Baby's Death Related

By KATHY CLANCY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The physician who was with Dr. William Waddill's chief accuser the night police were told of an alleged infant slaying took the witness stand today in Waddill's murder retrial.

Dr. Thomas Ferguson told the Orange County Superior Court jury that he called a Westminster police acquaintance after Dr. Ronald Cornelsen alleged he saw Waddill "strangle and suffocate" a newborn infant in the aftermath of a saline abortion two years ago.

Ferguson testified Cornelsen came to his home late one night a few days after the alleged strangulation.

He said Cornelsen told him the baby "was born alive, was crying, moving and breathing independently" before she allegedly was choked to death.

And, Ferguson continued, those were the purported facts he relayed to police when he summoned them to his home that evening.

"After Dr. Cornelsen came over I became concerned about his involvement in the events and I was worried that he was exposing himself to something," Ferguson explained.

"At the late hour I thought I could call my lawyer in Long Beach and he talked to Dr. Cornelsen," Ferguson testified. "After that conversation and another one with the hospital administrator, Dr. Cornelsen told me he wanted to talk to police."

GAS. . .

The House Commerce Committee, which voted to reject the plan Wednesday, met again today so that Carter's supporters could make an attempt to revive it. But Republicans boycotted the meeting, and no new vote was taken.

Carter's supporters on the House committee said the White House compromise would have switched enough votes to reverse Wednesday's outcome.

The rationing plan will get another chance on the House floor.

Carter's attempted compromise was outlined in a letter from White House aide Stuart E. Eizenstat.

He wrote to Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of a House Energy subcommittee, that the administration would double the allocation of gasoline coupons to states that felt they might have been treated unfairly under the president's original rationing plan.

The original plan called for Americans to receive coupons based on the number of cars they own.

That would mean, for example, that a person in Arizona who drove 50 miles to work would be able to purchase the same amount of gasoline as a New Jersey resident who drove 10 miles to his job.

Laguna Sets Parent Meet

Discipline skills, education and drug awareness will be the topics of a parent education program at the Boys Club of Laguna Beach beginning May 2.

Lagunan Set For Meeting In Washington

Long-time Lagunan O.W. Price will fly to Washington D.C. next week to participate in a meeting of the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped.

PRICE

The 83-year-old former Veterans' Administration executive received the invitation to attend the meeting May 3 and 4 from Bernard Posner, director of the Washington panel.

Price is still active in veteran affairs and problems of the handicapped, and was recognized as "Citizen of the Year," earlier this year at the Laguna Beach patriot's Day Parade.

He has lived in Laguna Beach for more than 18 years.

Brass Rubbing Workshop Set

A Brass Rubbing Worksop will take place in San Juan Capistrano May 12 from 1 to 4 p.m. in the Hot Springs Dance Hall, 32506 Paseo Adelanto.

The popular art form employs special paper placed over replicas of English memorial monuments from the 13th and 14th centuries. Silver, gold or copper wax is then rubbed over the monuments to produce an impression of the character depicted.

Brasses are available for King Henry VIII and William Shakespeare.

by reducing peak demands.

Stressing that the co-op is a voluntary effort Phillips added that he hopes it will prove "we don't need any government-imposed mandates to regulate energy use in these buildings."

Author Plans Laguna Talk

Michael Medved, author of the best-selling book "What Really Happened to the Class of '65?" will speak about the "New Jewish Generation," May 10 at the Surf and Sand Hotel in Laguna Beach.

Medved, a 1969 Yale graduate, political speaker and writer, is being sponsored by the South Coast Communities Jewish Center at the hotel beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Tickets are $2 for members and $3 for non-members. For reservations, call the center at 497-2070.

He points out the location of the "barf bag" and ducks down the ladder with a cheery "have a nice flight."

Waiting for takeoff clearance, Ekl tries to chat. It's a one-way conversation since the multiple belts that bind me in place keep me from easily reaching the intercom switch.

Watching the struggle in a mirror, Ekl observes, "They didn't exactly design these things for small people."

The jet lifts gently off the ground, eases up in altitude as we clear the end of the runway and then becomes an elevator straight up.

I'd been warned repeatedly about Gs the face-smashing gravitational pull from steep climbs. No one said anything about elevators.

It's not an especially clear day, yet from our 8,000-foot vantage point, we can see from Mt. Baldy to San Clemente Island, from Oceanside to Palos Verdes.

Every roll, climb and dive is explained in advance along with the acceleration and deceleration that it requires.

That doesn't stop me from closing my eyes on the first roll, a wing over wing maneuver called a production roll.

It was easy keeping them open after that through silky-smooth dips and curves that leave me looking out the roof at San Clemente Island or looking down only to see the wing where the ocean used to be. We go from a demonstration of Gs to one for weightlessness.

The engine noise, the bumps and the vibration I'd expected aren't there.

There's more noise from radio traffic than from the engine. Ekl plays with the plane, accelerating just often enough for me to realize he is flying very gently.

I close my eyes. "Hey, you gotta have your eyes open," he admonishes when we right ourselves, "try it again."

I compromised. One eye stays open.

"OK. I've got the plane back now." I hope he never really let go.

The half-hour flight is over too soon. We make one pass over the field and land.

It takes very little time to find myself back on the ground. My legs are shaky and I'm glad to be where the earth stays under my feet and the sky stays overhead.

Still, I wish I was in that wonderful machine that makes everything turn upside down so easily.

Pair Win Bonds

Thurston Junior High School student Brian Freitag has won a $100 savings bond for his first place essay on private property in a Laguna Beach Board of Realtors contest. Lisa Ansell, also a Thurston student, won a $50 bond in the contest.

More Time Needed

Doctor Wins Delay in Trial

Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald of Huntington Harbour, the former Green Beret captain charged in the 1970 deaths of his wife and two daughters, has won a trial postponement.

The trial was to begin Monday, but MacDonald's attorneys last week asked U.S. District Judge Franklin Dupree Jr. to postpone the Raleigh, N.C., trial to give them more time for preparation.

The U.S. Supreme Court refused in March to interfere with the trial. MacDonald's attorneys argued that the trial would result in double jeopardy because a 1970 military investigation had ended in exoneration.

Now director of emergency medicine at St. Mary Medical Center, Long Beach, MacDonald was indicted by a federal grand jury in Raleigh in the deaths on Feb. 17, 1970 of his wife Colette and children Kimberly, 6, and Kristen, 3.

Military police who rushed to then-Green Beret Capt. MacDonald's quarters at Ft. Bragg, N.C., said the three had been bludgeoned to death and the captain was suffering a knife wound in the chest.

They said MacDonald told them that four drug-crazed hippies had forced their way into his home and attacked him and his family.

MacDonald was not available for comment Wednesday. His secretary said he was on his way to San Francisco to meet with his attorney, Bernard Segal.

No date has been set for the postponed trial, she advised, but Dr. MacDonald and his attorneys believe it will get under way sometime this summer.

Lost Refugees Reunited With Their Family

Two Vietnamese refugees have been reunited with their foster family in Laguna Hills after a two day excursion that left the pair hungry and footsore but otherwise unharmed.

Trinh Tran, 22, and her brother, Tanh Tran, 14, were found in a park about 10 miles away from their new home some 48 hours after their absence was noted.

"We're still trying to piece together the story of what happened while they were gone," explained Mrs. Jon Hermes, wife of the minister at the Geneva Presbyterian Church, Laguna Hills.

"But we're satisfied that it was simply their confusion that led to their absence," she said. "They are perfectly happy today and glad to be back with their foster family."

Cops Seek Laguna Runaway

Laguna Beach police are seeking an 11-year-old boy who apparently ran away from home Friday afternoon.

Donnell Guy was last seen at Top of the World Elementary School shortly after 2 p.m. Friday, when he announced to a teacher he was running away.

Police investigator Alex Jimenez said officers scoured caves in Laguna Beach, friends' homes and the beaches in an effort to find the boy.

The officer said Donnell was spotted at a track meet in Huntington Beach this weekend by his father, but fled before the man could catch up with the youth.

The boy is described as standing four feet tall, and was last seen wearing a pair of rust-colored trousers, a T-shirt, blue jacket and deck shoes.

The sandy-haired youngster had only $2 in his wallet when he was last seen, his mother said.

Any one with information about the boy should call Alex Jimenez at the Laguna Beach Police Department, 497-3311.

Prices Up .9 Percent

LOS ANGELES (AP) Paced by increases in the cost of gasoline and meat, consumer prices in the Los Angeles-Orange County area rose .9 percent last month, the U.S. Labor Department reported today.

The March increase was just a shade under the 1 percent cost-of-living increase for the month nationwide. (Related story, A4) was supervisor of a department of 75, and Portland had grown from what he termed a village to a large city.

The increase means that goods and services that cost a dollar at the end of the month would have sold for 49.1 cents in 1967.

And although his only experience with planning since retirement was a short stint as a Laguna Beach Planning Commissioner, Plummer still has opinions about the planning of a city.

"Zoning laws are too fussy today," he says, sliding his fingers across his well-trimmed white moustache.

Plummer was the author of nearly 20 zoning ordinances and building codes in Portland, saying codes "should interact well."

He said planning definitions get mixed up in the volumes of ordinances put out by cities, and leave citizens confused as to the intent of the law.

"They should be well indexed and conform to make it easy for the public to do business with the city," he advises.

The long-time Lagunan keeps up on current affairs by subscribing to — and reading — magazines such as Newsweek and Forbes, as well as newspapers.

He also has bookcases full of volumes on religion, philosophy and fiction, all of which he enjoys reading.

"I used to read a lot of fiction, but not much anymore," he says. "The old literature I used to read, like Walter Scott's novels, spent too much time describing the scenery and getting things started.

"But I really like Robert L. Stevenson. His style is very appealing."

When he's not reading in the cluttered living room of the home he's lived in for more than 20 years, Plummer can be found gardening or exercising.

"The world has changed in a lot of ways," he says. "Kids today have a lot more to learn, and most of us don't use more than 2 percent of our brains."

He thinks a lot of politicians don't even use that much brainpower.

"Look at some of the buildings they approved around here," he says, pointing out his front window. "Some should have required improvements, they look rotten," he groused.

"I don't think the city folks used their authority wisely in approving them."

But then, the century man admits to being a bit opionated.

"I never would have been a good politician," he smiles. "I'm a poor salesman."

Carter's Nuclear Stand Hit

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., in a sharp assault on President Carter, is challenging the president to tell the nuclear industry that "enough is enough."

At a news conference Wednesday, Brown also said he hopes the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission will order temporary shut-downs of the eight nuclear plants built by Babcock & Wilcox.

HE SAID IF THIS happens, he will call upon Californians affected by the nearby Rancho Seco plant to curtail the use of their air conditioners on hot summer days.

The utilities said that would include customers from Bakersfield to Eureka.

The Democratic governor, who says he may run for president in 1980, repeatedly criticized Carter's pro-nuclear stance, saying other energy sources should be explored instead.

"IT'S RATHER CLEAR to me that the combination of risks, costs, safety problems, the problem of storage of waste, the prospect of proliferation and even the danger of sabotage all combine to make it imperative that this country now pursue a path of alternative energy sources," he said.

He said Carter, "far from encouraging a short-circuiting of the licensing process of nuclear reactors, should tell the American people and the nuclear industry quite simply: 'Enough is enough'."

REFUSING TO SAY he favored a total ban on existing plants, Brown instead focused on halting nuclear power expansion and building other, safer power sources in the future.

The 41-year-old governor said that recent events had made it very clear that "the days of nuclear power are indeed numbered."

Mom, Girl Slain; Cops Shoot Killer

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The bodies of a woman, stabbed through the heart with a kitchen knife, and her 4-year-old daughter, who had been strangled, were found in the home of a psychologist held hostage by a Nigerian exchange student, police said.

The student, Newman Augustine Osebor of Lagos, Nigeria, was shot and killed Thursday on an interstate highway after a 3½-hour standoff with police, authorities say.

"My life was for them," cried Alejo Punetes Wednesday after the bodies of his wife, Candalaria, and daughter, Norma were removed from the home of Richard E. Townsend. "They were the best, they were fantastic. How could anyone do this to a little girl and her mother?"

Mrs. Puentes, 24, had worked as a maid for Townsend, a criminal psychologist.

Police said Townsend was abducted Wednesday at gunpoint, forced to withdraw money from a bank and held hostage by Osebor.

The 22-year-old Osebor was fatally shot by police after holding Townsend hostage in the doctor's sports car on Interstate 8. Townsend was unhurt in the shooting.

Patty Denies Bar Brawl

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst Shaw denies that her police officer husband attended a bachelor party that ended in a raucous brawl at a lesbian bar the night before their wedding.

"It's really upsetting," said Mrs. Shaw Wednesday. "We don't have friends whose idea of having a good time is going out beating up women."

On the night before their wedding, her husband Bernard was not living it up with his pals but sitting with members of the wedding party at a local restaurant, she said. The couple were married April 1.

A number of police officers were reported to have been members of a bachelor party that barged into Peg's Place about midnight and harassed customers. Shaw's name had been linked to the party in stories published in the San Francisco Chronicle.

The district attorney's office and the police department are investigating the incident and two persons, policeman Daniel Marr, 25, and a civilian, Kevin Guerin, 24, have been charged with disturbing the peace and battery.

Auto Found

Inmate Flees Jail Facility

LOMPOC (AP) — The car authorities believe was used in the escape of George Jackson Brigade leader John Sherman, 36, has been found, but he and his wife remained free today.

City police said a green Pinto sedan was found early Wednesday, parked in a residential area of town.

Police said they believe the car, rented Tuesday from a local car-rental agency, was driven by Marianne Pulfer Sherman, 28, when her husband, serving a 30-year sentence, escaped Tuesday afternoon while visiting an eye doctor.

Medi-Cal Fraud Probed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Some nursing homes have collected Medi-Cal benefits for patients who had been dead for up to a year, says state Controller Ken Cory's office.

In response to a question, Deputy Controller Peter Pelkofer said Wednesday that auditors had found several such cases.

"We found in at least one case benefits being provided to a deceased person more than a year after death, Pelkofer said.

Shell Request Approved

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A jurisdictional battle over air quality standards has been defused, with the state approving a Shell Oil Co. request to build a pumping station but requiring the firm to clean up other sources of pollution.

The state Air Resources Board sidestepped a "smog war" Wednesday when it supported the operating permit issued for the oil station by the South Coast Air Quality Management District — but tacked on the cleanup requirements.

The district approved Shell's application on Jan. 3. However, the ARB threatened to cancel the okay because the district had not required "trade-off" agreements. Such agreements require Shell to clean up other sources of smog to offset polluants generated by the new facility.

Fonda Hits "Robot Jobs'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Academy award-winning actress and activist Jane Fonda has urged working women not to accept being "slotted into robot-like jobs that do not allow the development of management skills, dignity or self-worth."

Ms. Fonda spoke at a noon rally Wednesday at the Embaradero Center attended by several thousand persons. The gathering was one of 13 around the nation sponsored by the 800-member Women Organized for Employment, to commemorate National Secretaries' Day.

Organizers circulated statistics they said show 98 percent of the 3.5 million secretaries in the U.S. in 1976 were women. Although 60 percent of women support themselves or head families, they earn only about 57 percent of what the average man does, the group said.

Love Shooting Criticized

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A deputy police chief criticized two officers Wednesday for using "faulty judgment and poor tactics" in the fatal shooting of Eula Love last January.

The criticism by Deputy Chief Marshall L. Anderson came as the Police Commission opened hearings into the case.

Mrs. Love, a widowed mother of three, was shot to death Jan. 3 by two officers called to her South-Central Los Angeles home following a dispute over an unpaid $22.00 gas bill.

High School Plan Looks to Future

Laguna Beach school trustees last week approved a $26,300 study outlining improvements for the 50-year-old campus that could become necessary if enrollment increases.

At first look, the necessity of the new master plan for facilities might be viewed as unnecessary since the Laguna Beach school district is going through a period of declining enrollment.

But Laguna, unlike school districts to the north in built-out communities, still has much undeveloped land within school district boundaries.

The proposed 53,000-resident Aliso Viejo community, which lies partially within the district, and the Sycamore Hills property are two examples.

The master plan sets the maximum student capacity at the high school at 1,400, slightly more than 300 above current enrollment figures at the campus.

The plan also lists improvements that would be necessary to accommodate those additional students and sets up timetables and locations to best use the land available.

The document also is a necessity for applications by school officials for various grants and money available from state and federal agencies to support construction at the high school.

While planning for increases in the short term might seem a bit frivolous, the long term view dictates that a plan be available.

A Fresh Start

San Clemente has the opportunity to begin anew, with a fresh council voted into office Tuesday night.

It is time for a new spirit among the five council members, in a city beleaguered with bickering and nonprogress the past year.

The voters turned out in large numbers for the January recall election to "toss the rascals out," and Tuesday they voted in a new council whose members have promised to end the year-long battle.

Congratulations to winners Karoline Koester, Ed Kalsched and Richard Ahlman. And congratulations to the other 33 candidates who showed civic spirit by being available to run for public office, attending coffee klatches, candidate's forums and other functions on the hustings.

The new council should strive for harmony, dignity, and consideration by members for each other.

San Clemente voters also had the wisdom Tuesday to overwhelmingly defeat a straw ballot measure that could have forced taxpayers to pick up the tab for purchase of 2,600 acres of ranchland at an estimated cost of $26 million.

Voters saw the advisory measure for what it was — a farce — and many did not even give the ballot measure enough credibility to vote for it.

Some Still Care

San Clementean Klass Hoekstra and Laguna Hills resident Gary Makar received well-deserved commendations from Orange County Supervisor Thomas Riley and Sheriff Brad Gates last week for their action in assisting two young girls troubled by a child molester.

During the March 12 incident in a field adjacent to Pacific Coast Highway near Crown Valley Parkway, Hoekstra stopped his telephone company truck to aid a six-year-old girl who was trying to flag down traffic.

It turned out that the girl's nine-year-old companion was being held in a field by a strange man. Hoekstra grabbed the younger girl and they managed to find her companion.

Hoekstra then flagged down motorcyclist Gary Makar to look for the suspect while he phoned sheriff's deputies.

Disregarding his personal safety, Makar located and subdued the suspect, who was heading for his car where a gun was located.

The only sad part of this heroic story is that Hoekstra and Makar were the only two citizens concerned enough to stop. Hoekstra said it took him five minutes to turn around on Coast Highway and drive back to where the six-year-old was madly waving her arms at passing motorists.

Why didn't people get involved when so young a girl was obviously in distress?

The quality of our society was improved upon greatly by the actions of Hoekstra and Makar. They saw someone in trouble and took it upon themselves to help.

Boyd/Humbug

By L. M. BOYD

English King James II used lead, pewter, copper, anything at hand, for his coinage. Such coins minted in Dublin were referred to by the Irish as "uim bog" pronounced "oombug" meaning soft metal. They felt the coins were phony without intrinsic value. And their word for soft metal was where we got our word "humbug."

Would you agree that President Woodrow Wilson with his Ph.D. was the most scholarly of all our chief executives? It's noteworthy, I think, that he is said to have never missed an episode of the comic strip called "Krazy Kat."

Mating season for the marsupial moles of Australia covers about three days every June. Immediately

You know that actor called Dirk Benedict on the TV series "Battlestar Galactica?" He found his stage name on a menu under "Eggs."

Q. "On which type of turf is a football player more likely to get hurt, natural or artificial?"

A. Artificial, no doubt about it. Consider this: Injury data collected over three NFL seasons shows that 10 of the 12 stadiums with the highest injury rates have artificial turf, and 10 of the 11 stadiums with the lowest injury rates have natural turf.

Dear Gloomy Gus

Was it a typo or the truth in the Daily Pilot story about two young suspects arrested for allegedly "faking $10 at gunpoint"? With inflation what it is, that's all a body can do these days. Fake it.

Pentagon's 'Iranian Fire Sale'

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon is rushing to the rescue of American manufacturers who got stuck with more than $10 billion worth of canceled arms contracts when their favorite customer, the shah of Iran, was overthrown.

If Congress approves the bailout, much of the armaments already in production will be purchased by the Defense Department, at an ultimate cost to the taxpayers of almost $2 billion.

The idea has the support of the defense industry's friends in Congress and of Administration officials who are reluctant to press contract claims with the new Iranian regime.

DUBBED BY insiders as "the great Iranian fire sale," the proposed purchase of weaponry intended for the shah would be at relatively bargain prices. But close scrutiny of the items involved shows that many are obsolete or unnecessary.

The most expensive and controversial are the four Spruance-class destroyers with which the shah had planned to modernize his navy. Testifying before the Senate Armed Services Committee, Navy Secretary Graham Claytor said it would be "criminal to let the opportunity (to buy the destroyers) go by." He noted that they carry "the same armament, the same guns, the same detection apparatus, the same everything" as the Navy's newest guided-missile cruisers.

It was a poor comparison to make; the committee vetoed further production of the cruisers back in 1975 because their anti-aircraft tracking systems were found to be obsolescent. The committee report on that decision called it "inappropriate to build any ship . . . with a weapons system that is clearly inadequate to meet the projected threat within a relatively short period of time after delivery of the ship."

THE FOUR destroyers would cost the Navy $1.3 billion, plus another $2 million or so to refit them from Iranian to U.S. specifications.

Despite the enormous cost and the dubious value of the ships, the Navy's purchase request sailed smoothly through the committee, headed by Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss. By no coincidence, the shipbuilder, Ingalls, a subsidiary of Litton Industries, is located in Mississippi.

"It's a bailout for Litton," said a congressional aide. "They're saving 1,500 jobs for $1.3 billion. Even by welfare standards that's pretty gross." At $866,666 per job, "gross" is an understatement.

Another Iranian Fire Sale bargain the Navy wants to grab up is 150 Phoenix missiles for $77.1 million. The missiles are carried by F-14s, and only Iran and the United States have them.

THE TROUBLE is, officials have admitted there's no way of knowing whether some of the Phoenix missiles or their operation manuals fell into Soviet hands after the shah's ouster. "We prudently have to assume that the Russians have them," one knowledgeable source told our associate Peter Grant.

Several congressmen feel the proper course is to develop a new Phoenix missile, instead of buying more of a model that may no longer be a secret to the Soviets. In fact, this is being done by the Hughes Aircraft Co., and 60 of the newer missiles are included in next year's budget.

The Pentagon's rescue effort for its friends in the munitions industry is encountering opposition on Capitol Hill.

Footnote: It's not just the manufacturers who will get off the hook under the purchase proposal. If it passes, the new Iranian government would actually get back much of the $500 million deposit the shah put down.

"NOW, TELL THE COURT PRECISELY WHAT LIBELOUS THOUGHTS WERE IN YOUR MIND WHEN YOU WROTE THOSE NEWSPAPER ARTICLES."

There Are Alternatives to Police Chases

To the Editor:

It seems to me that there is arrogant disregard for human rights of the innocent when it comes to a police chase. The suspected offender must be caught at all cost, no matter what the cost.

The possibility that innocent people will be killed, maimed and emotionally scarred for life makes no difference, as long as justice is done by catching the suspected law breaker. In a recent case, Costa Mesa police were chasing a hit and run suspect down the Costa Mesa-Newport Freeway (55). In the attempt to apprehend the suspect there was a multi-car crash that would probably not have happened and involved a tragic situation for so many innocent people.

With just a tidbit of creativity and foresight this whole situation shouldn't have happened. Our tax dollars support a helicopter system that can track cars from above — day or night. If there is a fleeing suspect dangerously evading the police, why not follow him until it is safe to apprehend him without endangering innocent bystanders.

COULDN'T the CHP or police traffic control slow down traffic (similiar to accident procedures) until it stops safely, trapping the suspect in a traffic jam and then apprehend him? The attitude is "No, get him now, don't wait." It's not the quality of the catch, it is how fast you can catch the suspect — at all costs.

How many times have you seen the traffic investigation team "Racing Code 3" across town to a reported minor accident without injuries? How many people are cut off, almost rammed, and actually crashed into by these needless full-out races to be quick? How many times have you seen a traffic unit cut someone off, swerve radically in heavy traffic, just to give a ticket often to a less serious violation? In doing so and stopping carelessly, one or more lanes have been blocked in order for tickets to be written.

These situations must stop. The police serve an important function in our society. But public pressure must be brought to bear, because wrong is wrong no matter who is doing the wrongdoing.

The motto "To Serve and Protect" shouldn't be "to serve and inflict." Call and write your local police chief and sheriff and let them know you don't like their chase procedures. Raising your voice now might save your life later!

No Hassle

To the Editor:

I read Cheryl Romo's column with great enjoyment and have just caught up with last Friday's edition where she painted a vivid picture of fighting the freeway traffic etc. to the Music Center to hear the Los Angeles Philharmonic.

I can imagine her husband's feelings when the elegant, handsome Carlo Maria Giulini appeared on the podium to conduct the orchestra — and her "immediate conversion" to the wonders of classical music.

However, I wonder if Cheryl and her husband are aware that you do not have to go through any of those trials and tribulations in order to hear the orchestra, Giulini, Mehta and all the other greats of the music world?

You can hear them right here in Orange County at the historic Santa Ana High School, all red-carpeted, plenty of free parking, comfortable reserved seats, excellent acoustics and no traffic hassle!

In fact you can hear the great Giulini and the Los Angeles Philharmonic plus beautiful mezzo soprano Frederica von Stade this Saturday, April 28 in the Orange County Philharmonic Society's final concert of the season, right on your own doorstep in Orange County.

To Save 13

To the Editor:

Prop. 13 is going down the drain unless we stand on our hind feet and do something about it. According to a news article, county supervisors are urging county planners to add new taxes, called "user fees," to cover the cost of such things as libraries, fire protection, sewers, etc. Many of us opposed such taxes at public hearings, but we don't seem to have gotten the message across.

WE HAVE several choices of action: We can do nothing and let them pile all the taxes on us they like. Or we can attend hearings, every few weeks, and hope we can talk them out of some of these taxes. Or we can do some mass recalling of public officials. Or we can initiate an ordinance that will require voter approval of all new taxes and user fees, within the county. I believe the last choice will give us the best chance of retaining the benefits of Prop. 13.

If enough of us work together, we can force local politicians to abide by the intent of Prop. 13. We will need a few people, including at least one attorney, to draw up a county ordinance. We will need enough money to pay for a notice in the newspaper and for the printing of petitions. We will need one or two people in each city as headquarters for supplying circulators with petitions. We will need some telephoners. We will need about 63,000 valid signatures, so it will take quite a few circulators.

It is time government officials learn that Prop. 13 meant for them to cut expenses and not for them to pile new taxes on us.

Radiation Risk

To the Editor:

J. Corwin (Daily Pilot, April 8) obviously knows nothing about radiation. They key word is ionizing radiation which can come from the sun, or from a nuclear reaction or a sun lamp. They all affect people if the radiation is powerful enough.

But to say any level is very harmful is wrong. We get lots of this type of radiation every day. If you stand in the sun too long, you know it's harmful and a lot of Coast people will get cancer from the sun. But small amounts do not cause any harm. In fact, it is difficult to determine whether or not any harm to people will ever result from the Three Mile Plant accident, since the radiation was actually so small.

Pet Hazard

To the Editor:

I have just lost my pet, a very happy, healthy 7½-year-old German Shepherd, who I loved dearly, because of inadequate labeling on dry dog food packages. Let me recall the events.

Everything was normal one Sunday (March 25) until 2 a.m. Monday morning when my dog, Gar, came to my bed and whined. I noted that he was not feeling well and his stomach was slightly swollen. I wondered what was wrong. At 2:30 a.m., he again wakened me and I saw that his condition was much worse and decided that I should get him to the veterinarian as soon as possible in the morning.

At 5:30 a.m. I woke up and saw that Gar was very ill, swollen and unable to walk. I rushed to the telephone and after a number of calls, succeeded in getting an emergency veterinary clinic. But it was too late; Gar died while I was on the telephone.

I LEARNED from the clinic that Gar died of stomach bloat caused by eating a normal meal of dried dog food and drinking water. I had never heard of such a thing. In addition, the clinic said they encounter many such cases. Gar probably could have been saved if I had recognized the symptoms and gotten him to the clinic earlier.

I feel terribly distraught by the loss of Gar. However, there is a broader issue: protection of future users of dried dog food from a similar tragedy. Dried dog food should be labled prominently to warn dog owners: (1) to either moisten the food first or prevent the dog from drinking water after eating, (2) to be alert to the symptoms of stomach bloat, and (3) what to do if the symptoms occur.

Surfer Seemed to Miss Wave

DEAR PAT: My son paid for a subscription to Surfer Magazine with his own money last August. He's only received one issue. He's called the magazine and so has my husband, but we can't seem to get anyone to start this subscription.

R.B., Balboa

This problem was referred to Magazine Action Line and followed up by AYS. The Capistrano Beach publisher's subscription spokeswoman says no action can be taken by the Orange County office because all subscriptions have been turned over to a subscription service, Publishers Aid, in San Diego. This changeover occurred in December, but apparently no one at the magazine bothered to tell you about it. AYS contacted the subscription service which reports that since one magazine has been returned as "undeliverable," a hold was put on the subscription. There was no explanation about why further contact with your son was not attempted. Publishers Aid promises to start the subscription again. Let AYS know what happens. At least in your case, it appears that both the publisher and the subscription service do not make any extra effort to follow up on a subscriber's complaint.

Outreach Gives Hand to Deaf

DEAR READERS: Orange County Outreach, a branch of the Greater Los Angeles Council on Deafness Inc. (GLAD), has opened a new office at 2024 N. Broadway, Suite 109, Santa Ana. GLAD provides information and referral, advocacy, community education, interpreting and other services as needed to hearing-impaired persons.

GLAD functions as an umbrella organization which coordinates its services with more than 35 member organizations to meet the needs and rights of the deaf community, according to spokesmen. Most services are free and available to all ages.

This office will assist people in making phone calls related to emergency situations, sick calls to work, job-related calls, medical appointments and similar situations. Skilled sign language interperters also are available to act as a link between the hearing employer and the deaf job applicant. Job placement and development assistance also are offered by the Orange County Outreach office, as is contact with the Southern California Center for law and the Deaf, a branch of GLAD which assists persons having legal problems involving discrimination due to deafness.

Lists of available sign language classes and educational facilities of all types and for all ages of deaf people are maintained. Referrals are made when appropriate.

Persons interested in these services are invited to stop at the office or phone 972-3925 (voice or Teletypewriters) from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

Rock Special Spot

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) As a boy' Clifford J. VanRyn spent hours each day dreaming on a granite boulder in a city park. He proposed to his wife there. Last week, he was found dead of a heart attack at the same spot.

"You could say his life began and ended at that rock," Frances VanRyn said of her 66-year-old husband.

AUTHORITIES SAY VanRyn suffered the attack while driving along Interstate 196 outside Highland Park. A medical examiner ruled VanRyn probably died at once.

But police report his 1970 auto crossed both traffic lanes and the interstate's median, plunged down an embankment, and did not stop until it reached the rock 30 feet below the roadway.

"He always called it 'our rock' and he'd occasionally drive by it so we could remember where we started," Mrs. VanRyn said. "He was a very romantic man."

SHE EXPLAINED THAT her husband as a boy "used to go to that rock whenever he was troubled and needed to clear his thoughts. He would spend hours sitting on top of that rock thinking and dreaming."

In 1931, VanRyn took her to the rock on the night before they eloped and were married.

"My husband never forgot about the rock"" she said. "It was his very special place."

NEW SWEEPER IS VIRTUALLY A GARBAGE GOBBLER
Cleaner Trails Are Expected For Irvine Bicyclists

Bikers Gain a Friend

Debris Sweeper Cleans Trails in Jiffy

The $14,000 diesel-powered sweeper, manufactured by the Advance Machine Co., can clean a 56-inch swath at a speed of 10 mph.

BIKE TRAILS HAVE been maintained either by hand sweeping or brooming with a tractor-pulled brush.

Development of bridges in the city's bike trails system has made the old methods impractical, according to city aides.

BIKE TRAILS WILL BE cleaned on a biweekly schedule.

Areas in need of immediate attention, however, may be pointed out by bicyclists who call the city maintenance division at 754-3876.

Art Workshop Accents Music

The last of three fine arts workshops for parents and their children will take place Sunday at Saddleback College's north campus in Irvine.

The program, "Happenings: Art Affairs for the Family," will focus on an exploration of music as an art form.

FEATURED IN THE 3 to 5 p.m. workshop will be the Northridge Wind Quintet and Columbia Artists musician and entertainer Bob Kay.

Youngsters will participate in instruction demonstration and performances with the chamber ensemble. Adults will join in a lecture and demonstration conducted by audition winners and contestants in the metropolitan Opera competition.

THE PROGRAM WILL take place in building 100 on the north campus at Irvine Center Drive and Jeffrey Road.

The fee for the program is $2.50 for individuals and families.

Film Course Features Old Classics

Film buffs will see some of the greatest motion pictures ever made when Saddleback College offers a three-unit film appreciation class.

Movies lined up for the course include D.W. Griffith's "Birth of a Nation," the Marx Brothers' "Horsefeathers," Woody Allen's "Play It Again, Sam" and Bogart's "Casablanca."

The course will be offered on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 6 to 10 p.m. beginning May 29. The class runs through July 5 at the Mission Viejo campus.

For information, contact the Office of Admissions and Records at 831-2840 or 495-1000.

Marshall Memorial Event Set

A social evening will take place May 4 as the kickoff event in a drive to create a scholarship in memory of former Saddleback College Trustee James W. Marshall.

Marshall, a Leisure World resident, died while serving as a college board member. Before becoming a trustee, Marshall served on the college's Community Advisory Committee.

The 7:30 p.m. event at Leisure World's Clubhouse Three will feature entertainment by the Saddleback College choir groups.

Donations to the scholarship fund can be made at the event or mailed in later. Donations will be used to set up a scholarship fund, the interest from which will be awarded annually in Marshall's name.

For further information, phone 831-7454.

Firm Offers Film On Stress Dangers

A San Juan Capistrano-based firm is offering a film entitled "The Sound of Danger" for schools, industrial companies and technical institutions.

The movie covers how high frequency sounds can be detected to identify potential stress problems in materials, assemblies and equipment.

The 21-minute film uses animation and documentary footage to demonstrate how even buried structures, such as oil pipelines, can be tested and measured for possible structural weaknesses.

Dunegan / Endevco, Inc., makers of the film, manufactures measuring equipment to test for structural weakness. Some of the firm's equipment is used in airplanes to detect weakness in wings. For further information on the film, phone 831-9131.

Irvine individuals who would like to share their cultural heritage with University High School students are being sought by the school's Planning Committee for Multicultural Education.

'Media Fair' In Irvine Sets Records

The Irvine Unified School District's "Media Fair '79" has attracted 254 entries — double last year's number — and 1,131 participants, also a record.

The fair, open to students, residents and employees of the district will feature photographs, filmstrips, slides and multimedia presentations.

Following judging next week, awards will be presented at 7 p.m. May 10 at Venado Middle School, 1 Deerfield.

SC Kiwanis Participant In Bikethon

The San Clemente Kiwanis Club is one of the sponsors of the third annual bikethon set May 12 to benefit the Orange County March of Dimes chapter.

Registration will be held from 8 to 11 a.m. at Concordia School 3120 Ave. Del Presidente, San Clemente, the day of the race.

The ride will take bikers past the San Onofre nuclear power plant, through the nearby state park and back to the school.

Riders are asked to find sponsors to donate money for their ride to the March of Dimes to aid in medical research for the prevention of birth defects in babies.

Sponsor forms are available at McDonald's Hamburger stands in San Clemente and San Juan Capistrano. For information, call 979-2270.

Trip Planned To Pageant

Tickets are available for a San Juan Capistrano Recreation Department-sponsored trip to the Ramona Pageant on May 12.

The $17 fee includes transportation and seating at the play, which is based on the love story of Ramona and Alessandro.

The bus will leave city hall at 9:30 a.m. with a stop in Hemet Park for a no-host picnic.

Four Coast Firms Form Energy Co-op

In what officials say is a unique experiment, four of the Orange Coast's biggest firms have formed an energy cooperative in an attempt to save four megawatts of electricity during the fiscal year beginning July 1.

The other members are the Irvine Company, the Fluor Corp. and South Coast Plaza.

Under the terms of the agreement signed today all four companies will be linked by a computer operated by Engineering Supervision Company (ESCO) that will monitor the firms' energy demands.

The cooperative is designed to reduce demand during the afternoon peak period at about 4 p.m.

Using the monitoring device, co-op president Bud Dobyns of Fluor said, will tell members when to defer use of some equipment.

John Phillips of ESCO said that won't mean a wholesale shutting off of lights and air conditioning, but a selective reduction in use of some machines. He said one pice of equipment among many, such as one of two or three elevators, might be closed down during the peak.

He described the plan as an energy budget, but one used in concert by the four firms, rather than on an individual basis.

C.E. Hathway, vice president of Southern California Edison, said the program has never been tried before in the United States.

He explained that the four companies paid for a feasibility study on the project.

With the approval of the state Public Utilities Commission and Edison, the cost of implementing the project, about $250,000, will be borne by Edison.

Dobyns said that end of the first year trial, if the co-op has worked as planned, the group will petition the PUC for institution of a special rate as an incentive to get more businesses to do the same thing.

He said that more Orange County firms are expected to join the co-op, but that the four were the companies that have worked on its formation for about a year.

Called the Orange County Energy Conservation Cooperative, the organization is a non-profit corporation.

Phillips said the project is ex-

Carter Fights for Gas Ration

Meeting Rejected By GOP

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter made a new effort today to save his beleaguered standby gasoline rationing plan from being killed by Congress.

With a critical Senate Energy Committee vote scheduled later in the day, the president offered to allocate more gasoline coupons to states where motorists drive greater distances to work.

It was not clear if the proposal would salvage the rationing proposal in the House or Senate.

The House Commerce Committee, which voted to reject the plan Wednesday, met again today so that Carter's supporters could make an attempt to revive it. But Republicans boycotted the meeting, and no new vote was taken.

Carter's supporters on the House committee said the White House compromise would have switched enough votes to reverse Wednesday's outcome.

Officers Pay Final Tribute

By JACKIE HYMAN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Hundreds of police cars and motorcycles lined the streets today around St. Simon and Jude Church in Huntington Beach as more than 1,000 fellow peace officers paid tribute to slain Los Angeles Sheriff's Deputy George Barthel, 32, of Costa Mesa.

Interment for Mr. Barthel, who leaves a wife and two young children, was scheduled, following 11 a.m. services, at Good Shepherd Cemetery, also in Huntington Beach.

Los Angeles Sheriff's officials said today the Los Angeles County District Attorney apparently will seek the death penalty against two men accused in the slaying.

A spokesman said suspects James Leroy Noble, 24, and Clarence Robinson, 21, were arraigned in Compton Municipal Court on murder charges stemming from last week's tragedy.

The spokesman said the District Attorney's Office brought one count of murder coupled with special circumstances — including being armed at the time of the slaying — that could lead to the death penalty.

The pair also face one count of felonious assault with intent to commit murder and one charge of felonious assault on a peace officer, the spokesman said.

A preliminary hearing has been set for May 8, also in Compton Municipal Court.

The spokesman said murder charges are pending against Raymond Howard, 24, of Inglewood. A fourth suspect in the case, Gary M. Hubbard, 20, of Los Angeles, faces allegations of possession of drugs but not of murder.

Barthel and Deputy Jimmy Hollingsworth, 30, of Anaheim, were shot while questioning a group of men near a Watts housing complex.

Hollingsworth, who was shot in the head, has been released from the hospital and is in good condition, the spokesman said.

Man Jailed On Kidnap Suspicion

Arrested by Irvine police and turned over to Westminster officers was Thomas Kelley of 10411 Samoa Drive.

Kelley allegedly picked up Cynthia Anderson in his van on Beach Boulevard near McFadden Avenue at about 10 p.m., according to Orange County Sheriff's deputies.

Deputies said the woman jumped from Kelley's van when it stopped for a red light on El Toro Road at Jeronimo Road in El Toro. She spotted a sheriff's patrol car and flagged it down, deputies aaid.

Deputy Wayne Pieratt immediately radioed a description of the suspect's van. The broadcast was monitored by an Irvine officer who spotted the vehicle traveling north on the Santa Ana Freeway near Jeffrey Road.

Sheriff's officials said Kelley's van was stopped on the northbound Costa Mesa Freeway just north of the Santa Ana Freeway where the suspect was turned over to Westminster officers.

Two Injured, Child Unhurt In Collision

Two women were injured Wednesday but a 2-year-old boy escaped unharmed despite being flung into a dashboard when three cars collided in Costa Mesa, police said today.

They said the rear-end mishap occurred at 2:20 p.m. on Harbor Boulevard at the intersection with Merrimac Way after a car driven by Maxine Eva Tubb, 63, of Santa Ana, stalled at the signal light.

Mrs. Tubb, who complained of dizziness and head pain, sought private medical treatment, police said.

Colliding with the rear of her car was an auto reportedly driven by Mona Frances Bruce, 30, of 114 E. 23rd St., Costa Mesa. Her 2-year-old son, Kealiikai Bruce, was thrown into the dashboard but not injured, police said.

Mrs. Bruce suffered head and neck pain and said she would see her own doctor, police said.

Her car was involved in a rear-end collision with an auto driven by Ruth Edna Reed, 52, of 3030 Madeira Ave., Costa Mesa, police said. She reportedly was not injured.

Police said they received conflicting testimony as to which collision occurred first.

'Dance Across Clouds'

Writer's Ride With 'Angels' a Bit Scary

By JOANNE REYNOLDS
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

It's a ride in an elevator gone berserk and a dance across the clouds.

Moments of breathtaking ecstasy are punctuated by stomach-wrenching vertigo.

To a handful of men, it is as common an experience as a trip to the corner market.

For me, it was a fantasy come to life—a ride with the Blue Angels.

More precisely, it was a ride with Angel Seven, Lt. Jack Ekl. Wednesday he gave me a taste of the air show to be performed Saturday and Sunday at El Toro Marine Corps Air Station.

Ekl, 32, is cool, but not cocky. He wants me to know what I'm getting into so I can enjoy it.

"It's fun. It never gets boring, but it's like any other job. There are days when things are going really good and there are other days," Ekl explains.

That tall sleek jet I'm going to get in is really nothing more than a standard trainer, he says.

Ekl's right hand man is AE1 Joe Berry, his crew chief. Berry puts me in an olive drab flight suit and straps me into the back seat of the fighter.

Berry's warnings abound; don't touch anything painted black and yellow; be sure to flip the intercom back to receive when you're done talking; don't try to get out of the plane at the end of the flight until the ejection seat is disarmed.

He points out the location of the "barf bag" and ducks down the ladder with a cheery "have a nice flight.

Cyclist Badly Injured in Irvine Crash

A Yorba Linda man clad only in swimming trunks suffered critical skin losses Wednesday when he lost control of his motorcycle and skidded 350 feet down busy MacArthur Boulevard at Bonita Canyon Road in Irvine.

The 4:20 p.m. accident strangled commuter traffic and forced diversion of southbound travelers to Jamboree Boulevard where two unrelated non-injury accidents later occurred.

Injured was Frank E. Zigan, 35, who, according to police, was traveling northbound on MacArthur when he hit one of the small reflectors on the pavement dividing line and lost control of his high-powered bike.

One traffic investigator said portions of Zigan's face and body were literally ground to the bone as he slid across the pavement.

"Investigation also revealed that Mr. Zigan had a jacket and motorcycle helmet attached to the back of the motorcycle, but was not wearing them," said Sgt. Bob Kredel, of the Irvine Police Department.

Zigan was listed in critical but stable condition today at Kaiser Permanente Hospital, Bellflower.

Back Bay Measure Removed

Assemblywoman Marian Bergeson, R-Newport Beach, has withdrawn her proposed legislation to finance a study of a device to halt siltation of Upper Newport Bay.

An aide to the legislator said Mrs. Bergeson's bill, AB 951, was removed from the legislative calendar because there is no factual data to back it.

Several agencies concerned with the siltation of the state-owned biological preserve sought the legislation which would be the first step toward getting a desilting basin built upstream of the bay in San Diego Creek.

But Julie Froberg, Mrs. Bergeson's adminsistrative assistant, said today there has been no research done which would support the contention that such a project would indeed halt the flow of mud into the bay.

Mrs. Bergeson's efforts instead will be directed at getting federal clean water funds for the study.

Such a step would require approval of the state Water Quality Control Board and the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

The regional water quality control board meets tonight at 7 o'clock in the Fullerton City Council Chambers.

Mrs. Bergeson will need a letter urging the board to put funds for the Upper Bay desilting pond study as a top priority.

In addition, the overall clean-up plan for the Upper Bay, prepared by a consortium of governmental agencies called NIWA (Newport-Irvine Waste Management Agency) is also on the board's agenda.

Death Clue Scrawled In Blood

Casey Jones scrawled the name "Roger" in blood on a neighbor's door, leading police to arrest his friend.

San Bernardino County sheriff's deputy Raul Bracmonte said Wednesday that after being shot Tuesday, Jones, 28, ran to a house before leaving the bloody clue.

Roger Buryl Howard, 34, was booked for investigation of murder Tuesday. He was being held in San Bernardino County Jail.

Bracmonte said the men, who had been friends about 10 years, were drinking together when an argument erupted Tuesday morning.

Bracmonte said Jones was found collapsed in the back yard of the residence. He was rushed to a hospital, where he later died.

Harbor Sets 'Fair Lady'

Curtain time is 8 p.m. The production is the first musical produced by the high school students in four years.

Mortgage Rate Increased 11 Percent

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Major California savings and loan associations, which have often led the nation in mortgage rate increases, are raising mortgage loan rates to 11 percent or above, the highest rate in 4½ years.

Glendale Federal Savings said Wednesday it was raising its fixed-rate loans to 11¼ percent from the previous 10¾ percent to 11 percent.

The firm also raised its variable rate minimum ¼ percent to 10¾ percent.

Variable mortgage rates, legal in California and several other states, allow the interest rate to be changed within limits as other interest rates change over the life of the loan.

Meantime, Home Savings, the largest savings and loan in the nation, reported that it was "in the throes of considering a change" of rates in light of the industry movement toward the 11 percent mark.

Rates in California have frequently risen faster and higher than those of other areas because of demand for housing in the state.

But housing economists say mortgage rates across the country are under pressure because S&Ls must pay for mortgage funds for lending.

ANGELS. . .

Ekl tries to chat. It's a one-way conversation since the multiple belts that hold me in place keep me from easily reaching the intercom switch.

Watching the struggle in a mirror, Ekl observes, "They didn't exactly design these things for small people."

The jet lifts gently off the ground, eases up in altitude as we clear the end of the runway and then becomes an elevator straight up.

I'd been warned repeatedly about Gs—the face-smashing gravitational pull from steep climbs. No one said anything about elevators.

It's not an especially clear day, yet from our 8,000-foot vantage point, we can see from Mt. Baldy to San Clemente Island, from Oceanside to Palos Verdes.

Every roll, climb and dive is explained in advance along with the acceleration and deceleration that it requires.

That doesn't stop me from closing my eyes on the first roll, a wing over wing maneuver called a production roll.

It was easy keeping them open after that through silky-smooth dips and curves that leave me looking out the roof at San Clemente Island or looking down only to see the wing where the ocean used to be. We go from a demonstration of Gs to one for weightlessness.

The engine noise, the bumps and the vibration I'd expected aren't there.

There's more noise from radio traffic than from the engine. Ekl plays with the plane, accelerating just often enough for me to realize he is flying very gently.

I close my eyes. "Hey, you gotta have your eyes open," he admonishes when we right ourselves, "try it again."

I compromised. One eye stays open.

"OK. I've got the plane back now." I hope he never really let go.

The half-hour flight is over too soon. We make one pass over the field and land.

It takes very little time to find myself back on the ground. My legs are shaky and I'm glad to be where the earth stays under my feet and the sky stays overhead.

Still, I wish I was in that wonderful machine that makes everything turn upside down so easily.

GAS. . .

promise was outlined in a letter from White House aide Stuart E. Eizenstat.

He wrote to Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of a House Energy subcommittee, that the administration would double the allocation of gasoline coupons to states that felt they might have been treated unfairly under the president's original rationing plan.

The original plan called for Americans to receive coupons based on the number of cars they own.

That would mean, for example, that a person in Arizona who drove 50 miles to work would be able to purchase the same amount of gasoline as a New Jersey resident who drove 10 miles to his job.

More Oil Companies Report Big Profits

NEW YORK (AP) — Reports from nation's major oil companies continued to show big profit gains in the firstquarter of the year largely because of sharp increases in world petroleum prices.

Several, including top-ranked Exxon, said the stronger dollar on currency exchange markets also helped improve profits.

Sun Oil Co. said today higher prices on foreign crude oil and related products on international markets helped it to a 43 percent gain in first quarter profits from a year ago.

Sun, the 11th-largest oil company, said earnings in the first three months of the year came to $120.3 million, or $2.24 a share, on revenue of $2.36 billion. In the comparison 1978 quarter, Sun reported earnings of $84.3 million, or $1.57 a share, on revenue of $1.7 billion.

Standard Oil of California, the fourth largest U.S. oil company, said Wednesday that its first quarter profits rose nearly 43 percent, to $347 million.

Smaller Amerada Hess Corp. showed earnings more than tripled from the year-ago period, to $115.6 million.

Standard Oil of Ohio, citing special circumstances, reported profits up 300 percent, to $167.5 million from a toubled 1978 comparison period, and Getty Oil said profits rose nearly 42 percent to $108.2 million.

Earlier in the week, top-ranked Exxon reported record profits of $955 millinon for the period, up 37 percent from a year ago. Third-ranked Texaco said profits rose 81 percent to $307 million in the first three months.

Mobil Oil Corp., the nation's second-largest oil company, today also reported an 81 percent increase in first-quarter profits.

Mobil said earnings rose to $437 million in the first quarter, or $4.12 a share on revenue of $10.3 billion. In the 1978 first quarter earnings were $241 million or $2.28 a share on $8.7 billion in revenue.

The major companies cite tight supplies — a problem aggravated the revolution in Iran as the major reason for sharply higher earnings because buyers competing for the smaller supplies have bid up prices.

Prices Up .9 Percent

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Paced by increases in the cost of gasoline and meat, consumer prices in the Los Angeles-Orange County area rose .9 percent last month, the U.S. Labor Department reported today.

The March increase was just a shade under the 1 percent cost-of-living increase for the month nationwide. (Related story, A4)

The increase means that goods and services that cost a dollar at the end of the month would have sold for 49.1 cents in 1967.

Baby's Death Related

By KATHY CLANCY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The physician who was with Dr. William Waddill's chief accuser the night police were told of an alleged infant slaying took the witness stand today in Waddill's murder retrial.

Dr. Thomas Ferguson told the Orange County Superior Court jury that he called a Westminster police acquaintance after Dr. Ronald Cornelsen alleged he saw Waddill "strangle and suffocate" a newborn infant in the aftermath of a saline abortion two years ago.

Ferguson testified Cornelsen came to his home late one night a few days after the alleged strangulation.

He said Cornelsen told him the baby "was born alive, was crying, moving and breathing independently" before she allegedly was choked to death.

And, Ferguson continued, those were the purported facts he relayed to police when he summoned them to his home that evening.

"After Dr. Cornelsen came over I became concerned about his involvement in the events and I was worried that he was exposing himself to something," Ferguson explained.

"At the late hour I thought I could call my lawyer in Long Beach and he talked to Dr. Cornelsen," Ferguson testified. "After that conversation and another one with the hospital administrator, Dr. Cornelsen told me he wanted to talk to police."

Defense attorney Charles Weedman asked Ferguson if he recalled telling police "you will have to protect my butt."

"I can't imagine what it could possibly be referring to," Ferguson replied. "I don't think it could have come from me."

Waddill, a 43-year-old Huntington Harbour obstetrician, is being tried a second time for the alleged murder of the two-pound, 15-ounce infant known as Baby Girl Weaver.

His first trial ended last May when jurors said they were deadlocked 7 to 5 in favor of acquittal.

Mesa's James Asper

Economic Director For County Dies

Funeral services will be held Friday for James Emerson Asper of Costa Mesa, who was director of the economic development program for Orange County at the time of his death. He died Tuesday at the age of 58.

Mr. Asper had a long career with the American Embassies in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, and Mexico City, having served as information officer, technical aids coordinator and science officer from 1952 until 1967.

He later served as a staff research consultant at the University of Southern California, directed economic development and education programs for the Lane Council of Governments in Eugene, Ore. and taught public administration at Cal State Long Beach.

Mr. Asper published numerous articles on health, science and economic development in technical journals and won several awards.

They included the 1956 Meritorious Service Award from the American Embassy in Rio, a National Science Foundation Commendation in 1966 and the Brazilian Service Cross in 1946 and 1966, as well as a Resolution of Commendation by the Orange County Board of Supervisors last January.

Mr. Asper was a member of the Harbor Racquet Club, Phi Delta Theta Fraternity, the Brazilian and American Institute, the American Society of Public Administration and the California Economic Development Council.

He had worked for Orange County since 1973.

Visitation was scheduled from 4 to 8:30 p.m. today at Bell Broadway Mortuary in Costa Mesa.

Funeral services are scheduled at 11 a.m. Friday at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, 2775 Estancia Drive, Costa Mesa, with interment at 3 p.m. at Riverside National Cemetery.

Mr. Asper leaves his wife, Vera Asper, of Costa Mesa; his daughters, Cathrine Asper of Los Angeles and Joan McIntosh of Oklahoma, and two grandchildren.

Memorial donations may be made to the American Cancer Society.

Carter's Nuclear Stand Hit

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., in a sharp assault on President Carter, is challenging the president to tell the nuclear industry that "enough is enough."

At a news conference Wednesday, Brown also said he hopes the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission will order temporary shut-downs of the eight nuclear plants built by Babcock & Wilcox.

HE SAID IF THIS happens, he will call upon Californians affected by the nearby Rancho Seco plant to curtail the use of their air conditioners on hot summer days.

The utilities said that would include customers from Bakersfield to Eureka.

The Democratic governor, who says he may run for president in 1980, repeatedly criticized Carter's pro-nuclear stance, saying other energy sources should be explored instead.

"IT'S RATHER CLEAR to me that the combination of risks, costs, safety problems, the problem of storage of waste, the prospect of proliferation and even the danger of sabotage all combine to make it imperative that this country now pursue a path of alternative energy sources," he said.

He said Carter, "far from encouraging a short-circuiting of the licensing process of nuclear reactors, should tell the American people and the nuclear industry quite simply: 'Enough is enough'."

REFUSING TO SAY he favored a total ban on existing plants, Brown instead focused on halting nuclear power expansion and building other, safer power sources in the future.

The 41-year-old governor said that recent events had made it very clear that "the days of nuclear power are indeed numbered."

Mom, Girl Slain; Cops Shoot Killer

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The bodies of a woman, stabbed through the heart with a kitchen knife, and her 4-year-old daughter, who had been strangled, were found in the home of a psychologist held hostage by a Nigerian exchange student, police said.

The student, Newman Augustine Osebor of Lagos, Nigeria, was shot and killed Thursday on an interstate highway after a 3½-hour standoff with police, authorities say.

"My life was for them," cried Alejo Punetes Wednesday after the bodies of his wife, Candalaria, and daughter, Norma were removed from the home of Richard E. Townsend. "They were the best, they were fantastic. How could anyone do this to a little girl and her mother?"

Mrs. Puentes, 24, had worked as a maid for Townsend, a criminal psychologist.

Police said Townsend was abducted Wednesday at gunpoint, forced to withdraw money from a bank and held hostage by Osebor.

The 22-year-old Osebor was fatally shot by police after holding Townsend hostage in the doctor's sports car on Interstate 8. Townsend was unhurt in the shooting.

Patty Denies Bar Brawl

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst Shaw denies that her police officer husband attended a bachelor party that ended in a raucous brawl at a lesbian bar the night before their wedding.

"It's really upsetting," said Mrs. Shaw Wednesday. "We don't have friends whose idea of having a good time is going out beating up women."

On the night before their wedding, her husband Bernard was not living it up with his pals but sitting with members of the wedding party at a local restaurant, she said. The couple were married April 1.

A number of police officers were reported to have been members of a bachelor party that barged into Peg's Place about midnight and harassed customers. Shaw's name had been linked to the party in stories published in the San Francisco Chronicle.

The district attorney's office and the police department are investigating the incident and two persons, policeman Daniel Marr, 25, and a civilian, Kevin Guerin, 24, have been charged with disturbing the peace and battery.

Auto Found

Inmate Flees Jail Facility

LOMPOC (AP) — The car authorities believe was used in the escape of George Jackson Brigade leader John Sherman, 36, has been found, but he and his wife remained free today.

City police said a green Pinto sedan was found early Wednesday, parked in a residential area of town.

Police said they believe the car, rented Tuesday from a local car-rental agency, was driven by Marianne Pulfer Sherman, 28, when her husband, serving a 30-year sentence, escaped Tuesday afternoon while visiting an eye doctor.

Medi-Cal Fraud Probed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Some nursing homes have collected Medi-Cal benefits for patients who had been dead for up to a year, says state Controller Ken Cory's office.

STATE

In response to a question, Deputy Controller Peter Pelkofer said Wednesday that auditors had found several such cases.

"We found in at least one case benefits being provided to a deceased person more than a year after death, Pelkofer said.

Shell Request Approved

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A jurisdictional battle over air quality standards has been defused, with the state approving a Shell Oil Co. request to build a pumping station but requiring the firm to clean up other sources of pollution.

The state Air Resources Board sidestepped a "smog war" Wednesday when it supported the operating permit issued for the oil station by the South Coast Air Quality Management District — but tacked on the cleanup requirements.

The district approved Shell's application on Jan. 3. However, the ARB threatened to cancel the okay because the district had not required "trade-off" agreements. Such agreements require Shell to clean up other sources of smog to offset polluants generated by the new facility.

Fonda Hits "Robot Jobs'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Academy award-winning actress and activist Jane Fonda has urged working women not to accept being "slotted into robot-like jobs that do not allow the development of management skills, dignity or self-worth."

Ms. Fonda spoke at a noon rally Wednesday at the Embaradero Center attended by several thousand persons. The gathering was one of 13 around the nation sponsored by the 800-member Women Organized for Employment, to commemorate National Secretaries' Day.

Organizers circulated statistics they said show 98 percent of the 3.5 million secretaries in the U.S. in 1976 were women. Although 60 percent of women support themselves or head families, they earn only about 57 percent of what the average man does, the group said.

Love Shooting Criticized

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A deputy police chief criticized two officers Wednesday for using "faulty judgment and poor tactics" in the fatal shooting of Eula Love last January.

The criticism by Deputy Chief Marshall L. Anderson came as the Police Commission opened hearings into the case.

Mrs. Love, a widowed mother of three, was shot to death Jan. 3 by two officers called to her South-Central Los Angeles home following a dispute over an unpaid $22.00 gas bill.

Traffic Planning Takes Foresight

If you've ever fought the Christmas traffic to go shopping in South Coast Plaza, you'll understand the concern of city officials at some traffic projections for that area.

It is estimated that, when South Coast Plaza is completed, the jams on Bristol Street will be as bad every day as they are now during the peak Christmas season.

And that's pretty bad indeed.

This week, the Costa Mesa Planning Commission faced up to that hard reality by requiring South Coast Plaza to prepare a traffic management program for two 15-story office buildings planned for the area across Anton Boulevard from the South Coast Plaza Hotel.

The plan will look at such possibilities as staggered work hours, four-day work weeks, car pooling and improvements to streets and traffic signals.

Such plans will probably be required of all major projects in the future. Among these is a proposal for an unrelated development on a 150-acre site east of South Coast Plaza, where permission is sought for office buildings, industrial buildings and high-density residential use.

That site, currently a beanfield, was originally eyed for residential development only.

Costa Mesa has reached the point where it must pick up on Newport Beach's idea of requiring traffic mitigation measures for new projects, although it should be hoped Costa Mesa can deal with the problem more effectively and with less fuss.

Planning commissioners made a wise decision in requiring the traffic management plan. Without some relief, the South Coast Plaza area could someday become so congested that prospective customers would take their business elsewhere.

Shoplifting No Lark

In spring, young people's thoughts naturally turn to summer vacation, having fun and acquiring a new wardrobe.

Unfortunately, every year some of them find out the hard way that one easy way to get new clothes can land them in a lot of trouble.

In the last few weeks, a glance at the Costa Mesa police blotter has shown as many as a dozen shoplifting arrests a day at South Coast Plaza alone.

Not all shoplifters are ill-advised youngsters, of course; others are known to police by the technical term of "crooks."

But while the threat of arrest doesn't deter habitual criminals, teen-agers should be aware that the stores in South Coast Plaza employ security forces and prosecute all shoplifters they catch.

The jail term for anyone 18 or over convicted of theft is up to six months in jail and or up to a $1,000 fine, plus the humiliation of being arrested, handcuffed and jailed. Younger offenders are turned over to juvenile authorities.

In addition, if it can be proved that the suspect entered a store intending to commit a crime, he or she faces a charge of commercial burglary.

While it may be tempting to add to one's wardrobe a new shirt or bikini taken without benefit of payment, youngsters should be reminded that shoplifting isn't a joke — and the Costa Mesa police and merchants don't treat it as one.

Gift of Gab Pays

A team from Orange Coast College parlayed the gift of gab into a national championship in the National Community College Speech Tournament, a first for OCC.

The young people from Costa Mesa, Huntington Beach, Fountain Valley and Newport Beach swept the awards in everything from reader's theater to Lincoln-Douglas (one-to-one) debate).

It is a tribute to coaches Peg Taylor and Michael Leigh, who have led previous OCC teams to second place honors in the nationwide contest.

And another Costa Mesa youngster gifted in languages won a top award of his own — an eight-week trip to Paris, captured in the Alliance Francaise contest in French.

The linguistic skill of Estancia High School senior Eric Elliott — who also speaks German, Spanish, Welsh and Breton — is, in addition, a tribute to his teacher, Leonard McNutt.

Boyd/Humbug

By L. M. BOYD

English King James II used lead, pewter, copper, anything at hand, for his coinage. Such coins minted in Dublin were referred to by the Irish as "uim bog" pronounced "oombug" meaning soft metal. They felt the coins were phony without intrinsic value. And their word for soft metal was where we got our word "humbug."

Incredible as it may seem, the quality of aerial photography is now so good that the rank of a foot soldier can be seen from pictures taken at 100,000 feet. Or so the experts report.

You know that actor called Dirk Benedict on the TV series "Battlestar Galactica?" He found his stage name on a menu under "Eggs."

Q. "On which type of turf is a football player more likely to get hurt, natural or artificial?"

A. Artificial, no doubt about it. Consider this: Injury data collected over three NFL seasons shows that 10 of the 12 stadiums with the highest injury rates have artificial turf, and 10 of the 11 stadiums with the lowest injury rates have natural turf.

Pentagon's 'Iranian Fire Sale'

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon is rushing to the rescue of American manufacturers who got stuck with more than $10 billion worth of canceled arms contracts when their favorite customer, the shah of Iran, was overthrown.

If Congress approves the bailout, much of the armaments already in production will be purchased by the Defense Department, at an ultimate cost to the taxpayers of almost $2 billion.

The idea has the support of the defense industry's friends in Congress and of Administration officials who are reluctant to press contract claims with the new Iranian regime.

DUBBED BY insiders as "the great Iranian fire sale," the proposed purchase of weaponry intended for the shah would be at relatively bargain prices. But close scrutiny of the items involved shows that many are obsolete or unnecessary.

The most expensive and controversial are the four Spruance-class destroyers with which the shah had planned to modernize his navy. Testifying before the Senate Armed Services Committee, Navy Secretary Graham Claytor said it would be "criminal to let the opportunity (to buy the destroyers) go by." He noted that they carry "the same armament, the same guns, the same detection apparatus, the same everything" as the Navy's newest guided-missile cruisers.

It was a poor comparison to make; the committee vetoed further production of the cruisers back in 1975 because their anti-aircraft tracking systems were found to be obsolescent. The committee report on that decision called it "inappropriate to build any ship . . . with a weapons system that is clearly inadequate to meet the projected threat within a relatively short period of time after delivery of the ship."

THE FOUR destroyers would cost the Navy $1.3 billion, plus another $2 million or so to refit them from Iranian to U.S. specifications.

Despite the enormous cost and the dubious value of the ships, the Navy's purchase request sailed smoothly through the committee, headed by Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss. By no coincidence, the shipbuilder, Ingalls, a subsidiary of Litton Industries, is located in Mississippi.

"It's a bailout for Litton," said a congressional aide. "They're saving 1,500 jobs for $1.3 billion. Even by welfare standards that's pretty gross." At $866,666 per job, "gross" is an understatement.

Another Iranian Fire Sale bargain the Navy wants to grab up is 150 Phoenix missiles for $77.1 million. The missiles are carried by F-14s, and only Iran and the United States have them.

NOW TELL ME JUST PRECISELY WHAT LIBELOUS THOUGHTS WERE IN YOUR MIND WHEN YOU WROTE THOSE NEWSPAPER ARTICLES.

THE TROUBLE is, officials have admitted there's no way of knowing whether some of the Phoenix missiles or their operation manuals fell into Soviet hands after the shah's ouster. "We prudently have to assume that the Russians have them," one knowledgeable source told our associate Peter Grant.

Several congressmen feel the proper course is to develop a new Phoenix missile, instead of buying more of a model that may no longer be a secret to the Soviets. In fact, this is being done by the Hughes Aircraft Co., and 60 of the newer missiles are included in next year's budget.

The Pentagon's rescue effort for its friends in the munitions industry is encountering opposition on Capitol Hill.

Footnote: It's not just the manufacturers who will get off the hook under the purchase proposal. If it passes, the new Iranian government would actually get back much of the $500 million deposit the shah put down.

There Are Alternatives to Police Chases

To the Editor:

It seems to me that there is arrogant disregard for human rights of the innocent when it comes to a police chase. The suspected offender must be caught at all cost, no matter what the cost.

The possibility that innocent people will be killed, maimed and emotionally scarred for life makes no difference, as long as justice is done by catching the suspected law breaker. In a recent case, Costa Mesa police were chasing a hit and run suspect down the Costa Mesa-Newport Freeway (55). In the attempt to apprehend the suspect there was a multi-car crash that would probably not have happened and involved a tragic situation for so many innocent people.

With just a tidbit of creativity and foresight this whole situation shouldn't have happened. Our tax dollars support a helicopter system that can track cars from above — day or night. If there is a fleeing suspect dangerously evading the police, why not follow him until it is safe to apprehend him without endangering innocent bystanders.

COULDN'T the CHP or police traffic control slow down traffic (similiar to accident procedures) until it stops safely, trapping the suspect in a traffic jam and then apprehend him? The attitude is "No, get him now, don't wait." It's not the quality of the catch, it is how fast you can catch the suspect at all costs.

How many times have you seen the traffic investigation team "Racing Code 3" across town to a reported minor accident without injuries? How many people are cut off, almost rammed, and actually crashed into by these needless full-out races to be quick? How many times have you seen a traffic unit cut someone off, swerve radically in heavy traffic, just to give a ticket often to a less serious violation? In doing so and stopping carelessly, one or more lanes have been blocked in order for tickets to be written.

These situations must stop. The police serve an important function in our society. But public pressure must be brought to bear, because wrong is wrong no matter who is doing the wrongdoing.

The motto "To Serve and Protect" shouldn't be "to serve and inflict." Call and write your local police chief and sheriff and let them know you don't like their chase procedures. Raising your voice now might save your life later!

No Hassle

To the Editor:

I read Cheryl Romo's column with great enjoyment and have just caught up with last Friday's edition where she painted a vivid picture of fighting the freeway traffic etc. to the Music Center to hear the Los Angeles Philharmonic.

I can imagine her husband's feelings when the elegant, handsome Carlo Maria Giulini appeared on the podium to conduct the orchestra — and her "immediate conversion" to the wonders of classical music.

However, I wonder if Cheryl and her husband are aware that you do not have to go through any of those trials and tribulations in order to hear the orchestra, Giulini, Mehta and all the other greats of the music world.

You can hear them right here in Orange County at the historic Santa Ana High School, all red-carpeted, plenty of free parking, comfortable reserved seats, excellent acoustics and no traffic hassle!

In fact you can hear the great Giulini and the Los Angeles Philharmonic plus beautiful mezzo soprano Frederica von Stade this Saturday, April 28 in the Orange County Philharmonic Society's final concert of the season, right on your own doorstep in Orange County.

Not 'Business'

To the Editor:

A recent letter to the editor expressed disdain for the "bleeding heart do-gooders" who have shown support for Richard England.

"In business", it said, "if you are insubordinate, you're fired." This business analogy syndrome is used to support the administrative position in the England case at Newport Harbor High School.

The reasoning goes like this: A corporate division chairman (teacher) differs in policy, and subsequently in personality, with the corporate executive (principal). The division chairman is dismissed. "It's as simple as that."

THERE IS, however, one flaw: schools are not businesses nor are they run like businesses.

Incompetence exists at all levels in the school system. If teachers are inadequate, unions cannot protect them . . . unless they are allowed to by incompetent administrators. If a supremely competent England can be up for dismissal, then dead weight is not "union safe and sound."

Parents and teachers have become increasingly concerned about incompetence at all levels, but administrators ("Go with the flow — we'll look into that types) either have not acknowledged it or have done nothing to correct it, at least not at Harbor High and the district office.

BACK TO the business analogy. How long would a new corporate executive keep his job if he took 18 months to try to rectify a personnel matter and failed? How long would he last if he could not control his own staff in matters as rudimentary as taking roll and keeping students in class? How long would he last if he would not admit to incompetence on his own campus ("What is incompetence ad nauseum")? How long would the new executive last if he told one of his top division chairmen who had made the corporation great for years, that he will now determine how the chairman will run his division?

And how long would he remain employed if he had the chance to resolve that long-term personnel dispute, amicably and in house, but unilaterally refused because "It's gone too far"?

Perhaps school systems would be better if they were more like businesses. But, they currently are not. Before you business analogy enthusiasts condemn Richard England, be sure of your logic and be absolutely certain you know what is going on at all levels in the system.

Radiation Risk

To the Editor:

J. Corwin (Daily Pilot, April 8) obviously knows nothing about radiation. They key word is ionizing radiation which can come from the sun, or from a nuclear reaction or a sun lamp. They all affect people if the radiation is powerful enough.

But to say any level is very harmful is wrong. We get lots of this type of radiation every day. If you stand in the sun too long, you know it's harmful and a lot of Coast people will get cancer from the sun. But small amounts do not cause any harm. In fact, it is difficult to determine whether or not any harm to people will ever result from the Three Mile Plant accident, since the radiation was actually so small.

Pet Hazard

To the Editor:

I have just lost my pet, a very happy, healthy 7½-year-old German Shepherd, who I loved dearly, because of inadequate labeling on dry dog food packages. Let me recall the events:

Everything was normal one Sunday (March 25) until 2 a.m. Monday morning when my dog, Gar, came to my bed and whined. I noted that he was not feeling well and his stomach was slightly swollen. I wondered what was wrong. At 2:30 a.m., he again wakened me and I saw that his condition was much worse and decided that I should get him to the veterinarian as soon as possible in the morning.

At 5:30 a.m. I woke up and saw that Gar was very ill, swollen and unable to walk. I rushed to the telephone and after a number of calls, succeeded in getting an emergency veterinary clinic. But it was too late; Gar died while I was on the telephone.

I LEARNED from the clinic that Gar died of stomach bloat caused by eating a normal meal of dried dog food and drinking water. I had never heard of such a thing. In addition, the clinic said they encounter many such cases. Gar probably could have been saved if I had recognized the symptoms and gotten him to the clinic earlier.

I feel terribly distraught by the loss of Gar. However, there is a broader issue: protection of future users of dried dog food from a similar tragedy. Dried dog food should be labled prominently to warn dog owners: (1) to either moisten the food first or prevent the dog from drinking water after eating, (2) to be alert to the symptoms of stomach bloat, and (3) what to do if the symptoms occur.

Refugees Look to U.S.

Tribesmen Feel Like 'Abandoned Luggage'

EDITOR'S NOTE: In another in a series of dispatches from refugee camps around the world, AP Special Correspondent Peter Arnett and Eddie Adams tell of the dilemma of the nomadic Hmong people who fought for the CIA in Laos and now regard themselves as abandoned luggage in America's lost war. The reporter-photographer team traveled 45,000 miles across four continents in search of the world's 10.5 million homeless.

NAN, Thailand — For centuries the nomadic and free-spirited Hmong tribesmen wandered the high places of southern Asia. Today they regard themselves as the abandoned luggage of a lost American war.

Their chieftain spoke quietly as he adjusted the red sash around his baggy pants. The silver bells on his embroidered jacket tinkled as he walked to a meeting with the tribal elders.

"OUR CHOICE WAS simple: death or flight," said Chomsy Chiengmala, once a major in a guerrilla army recruited in Laos by the American CIA, now a leader of 13,000 refugees huddled in the Ban Nam Yao camp in Thailand's Nan province.

Already, nearly 60,000 Hmong tribesmen have made the tortuous journey on foot out of Laos to northern Thailand. Like so many of the world's 10.5 million refugees, they look to the United States for their future.

Here in northern Thailand they live in thatched huts strung along hillsides perpetually wreathed in the blue smoke of cooking fires. Stocky women in black turbans and festooned with red pompons shuttle along the narrow pathways lugging water jars and kindling wood.

THEY HOPE IT'S but a stopover on their way to America, but chances for most are slim.

The Hmong migrated into Laos a century ago from southern China and settled high in the mountains above the malaria belt. Then, in the second half of the 20th century, they went to war.

They were recruited by the thousands by the CIA to battle in the Laos back country against the Pathet Lao and North Vietnamese armies. In a bitter and largely clandestine struggle, they gained a reputation for bravery and resilience.

THEIR CREED THEN, said Chomsy, was "kill or be killed." And for 13 years they denied much of northern Laos to the communist side.

But the cost was dear.

"From a population of around 200,000 we lost 10,000 dead and tens of thousands wounded," the chieftain said. "Our casualties were three times the rate of Americans in Vietnam."

Today, in flight, they reach the Thailand camp at the rate of a dozen or so a day. Some don't make it.

ON THIS DAY AT Pak Chong, a Mekong River anchorage wedged between red clay cliffs, 41 families were found sitting on the river bank shivering, their embroidered clothes hanging to dry. They had crossed from Laos earlier in the morning by tying their children to branches and pushing them through the swift-running water.

"The whole village of 301 people came," said headman Tsia Pao Yang to an interrogating Thai policeman. "We left because Vietnamese soldiers stole our rice and chickens and we feared death. Three of us were killed by Lao soldiers during our week on the trail."

U.N. officials estimate that one in four refmgees does not make it to Thailand, perishing on the jungle trails from exhaustion or the bullets of pursuing soldiers.

"SOMETIMES WE SEE their bodies floating down the Mekong River," said Larry Persons, an American missionary from nearby Nongkhai. "No one dares fish them out because of the danger of gunfire from the other side."

The Ban Nam Yao camp is three years old, but the population remains about constant. While about 50 leave each month for resettlement in another country, usually the United States, about the same number of babies are born.

Many here are widows. Zua Yang, 40, a baby at her breast, said her husband died while crossing the Mekong River, leaving her with six children.

The refugee life is altering the lifestyle of the free-spirited Hmongs, not accustomed to bureaucracy and regulations and sometimes given to smoking opium and taking an extra wife.

About 15 percent of the Hmong men have more than one wife.

One of them is Chue Dua Her, 30. A short, sturdy former battalion commander, Chue said he had admitted to American officials he had two wives, unintentionally disqualifying himself for resettlement in the United States.

"I HAVE KNOWN other men to lie about their wives, claiming the women were instead their sisters," he said, with his two wives and five children standing nearby. "And they are living happily in America."

Smoking opium is a traditional habit of the older Hmongs, but the American authorities frown on that, too.

Sua Tua, a gaunt 68, said he has smoked three pipes a day for years, financed from his son's earnings in the camp as a laborer. The habit cost him a ticket to America.

BACK IN LAOS, a wife brought a dowery of about $750. In the camp the price has plummeted to $200, with some marriages arranged on credit.

And the size of the Hmong family has diminished from a normal dozen children to only two or three.

Unless a Hmong soldier has served 4½ years in the U.S.-backed army he is not considered for resettlement.

"YET, 40 PERCENT OF those we deal with have served a full 3½ years," one American said.

About 8,000 Hmong have immigrated to the U.S. and 50,000 remain in Thailand. As many as 20,000 more are expected to flee from Laos.

Under the tightly defined American program, only those with "anchor" relatives in America — such as parents, children and single siblings — qualify for resettlement. Married brothers and sisters are not eligible to join a brother in the United States.

"YET SOVIET JEWS are allowed to go to the U.S. regardless of any tie or relationship," said one American who works with the refugees. "I think the Hmong who fought in our army should get similar treatment."

With the American withdrawal from Indochina in the early 1970s, the Hmong were left to fend for themselves.

Some continued to resist the communists and are known to be fighting still. But the unmarked U.S. planes that used to supply them have long since stopped flying.

OTHER HMONGS capitulated to the communists, with the men being sent to re-education camps and their families to communal farms.

But, according to United Nations and Thai officials, the majority decided to flee because they feared their past association with the Americans had tainted them in the eyes of the communists.
