Cut to scene in the clubhouse, moments later. Two players pour champagne over the head of 71-year-old club owner Gene Autry. Much whooping and hollering.

General Manager Fred Haney: "Now Gene, I don't want you to get your hopes up. It takes time to build a champion. Why, it might take us eight or 10 years before we can win a pennant."

Autry: "I'm a patient man."

Fade out. Camera slowly focuses on Anaheim Stadium. It is eight years later. George Brunet is on the mound at Anaheim Stadium. He throws a wild pitch.

Announcer: "Well, this has got to be an all-time low moment for the Angels. At different times this year they have set club records for the most home runs allowed in an inning, most hit batters in a game, and now most wild pitches in a season."

The Angels lose 95 games. It has taken eight years to build one of the worst losers in baseball.

Gene Autry is a lucky man.

Oh, you can point to all those losing years and awful records, and it DID take 19 years before Autry finally got a winner. But he's a lucky man, nonetheless.

You see, Autry has a way of taking a project he never really wanted in the first place and turning it into a bonanza.

For example, he never really wanted to record "Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer." His wife had to talk him into it. And that record became a classic.

When Autry boarded a plane on Dec. 6, 1960, bound for the American League expansion meeting in St. Louis, he had simpler motives.

He knew that Southern California might be getting a new baseball team, and Autry wanted to buy radio rights for his Golden West Broadcasting firm.

He returned from those meetings as principal owner of the Los Angeles Angels.

Fade in. Camera focuses on a room crowded with reporters and TV cameras. Rod Carew has just signed a contract with the Angels, and Autry is presiding over the press conference.

Reporter: "Mr. Autry, with Carew on the team, are you going to sleep a little easier now?"

Autry: "With baseball, I've always slept like a baby. I wake up and cry for a while, go back to sleep, then wake up and cry a little more."

Fade out. Camera slowly focuses on Wrigley Field in Los Angeles, where a fuzzy-cheeked, 18-year-old kid is working out at shortstop. It is September of 1961.

Manager Bill Rigney: Wait till you see this kid shortstop we drafted from the Boston organization. I really think he's going to be something. Name's Jim Fregosi."

Autry: "Jim Fregosi? Never heard of him."

Rigney: "No, not Fregosi. It's Fregosi. Fregosi."

Autry: "Never heard of him."

Fade out. It is June of 1978. Jim Fregosi is an aging utility infielder for the Pittsburgh Pirates. He is having drinks with a few teammates in a hotel room on the road when someone says

Bluebird Anxiety One Year Later

By STEVE MITCHELL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

It was going to be a "come as you were" party in Bluebird Canyon, but the victims of last year's devastating landslide in Laguna Beach decided that would be a bit much.

After all, the majority of the 114 residents who fled their homes in terror last Oct. 2 as 250,000 yards of earth crumbled around them, were wearing pajamas and bathrobes that morning.

So they'll be garbed more conventionally when they meet again Tuesday at 6 a.m. — a year to the day after the earth moved, changing the lives of 47 families in the 35 acre neighborhood.

It's a breakfast buffet on "The Hill" as the Bluebird Knolls victims have come to call the bleak, heavily-graded remnant of their former neighborhood.

The written invitations ask guests to "join us in remembering the anniversary of the landslide and to celebrate the progress we've made together."

And there has been progress in the year since groaning lumber and breaking windows jarred residents from their sleep.

But residents were more concerned about getting out of their homes than rebuilding them that morning.

"We saw one house tilt four feet and we ran like hell," said one resident that fateful day. "You could see wires snapping and sparking, but there was no fire. I could hear houses crashing, water running, gas hissing . . . and my heart beating very fast."

Miraculously, no one was seriously injured during the evacuation, as the 440-foot slide block moved at a rate of about 40 feet per hour.

One reason no one was hurt was the terrifying advance warning residents had that all was not well in Bluebird Knolls.

But much of the credit goes to police officers who arrived on the hill within moments of the slide, helping the elderly down the broken streets to Bluebird Canyon Road.

And several residents were instrumental in pulling their fellow neighbors from their crumbling homes, and herding them to safety below.

They even found time to write a message to police in lipstick on a car window, saying all had been evacuated from the area.

After the initial massive earth movement, the slide continued its downward journey at a rate of several inches per day.

But it didn't take long for city officials to determine that 22 homes were destroyed, with damage estimates placed at $15 million.

Owners of another 25 homes that escaped destruction were told they could not return to their residences, because of the possibility of renewed earth movement, disrupted utilities and a lack of access to their homes.

Mayor Jack McDowell declared a city-wide disaster, and three days later Gov. Jerry Brown proclaimed a state of emergency in the city. On Oct. 9, President Carter declared the city a major disaster area.

The president's action meant the city was

Pope Pleads for Irish Peace

DROGHEDA, Ireland (AP) — Pope John Paul II came to Ireland's tragic and pious isle Saturday "in the footsteps of St. Patrick," blessed a million Irishmen in a Dublin park and pleaded "on my knees" for an end to violence in a land long steeped in it.

Thousands wept openly among the vast crowd in Dublin's emerald-green Phoenix Park — 1.25 million people by church estimate, the greatest gathering in Irish history — as the first pope ever to visit Ireland celebrated Mass and paid tribute to the unbroken faith of the Irish through "poverty and persecution."

The congregation, one-third of the nation's population, exploded with joy at the end of the three-hour service on the park's playing fields, under a bright cloud-flecked sky.

Thousands held aloft babies, their hats or yellow-and-white Vatican flags, joined in singing Handel's "Hallelujah" chorus, and waved and cheered wildly as the smiling pontiff, arms extended wide, rode through the crowd to the helicopter that took him to Drogheda, a historic city 30 miles to the north.

At a Scripture reading here he made his strongest statement yet on Northern Ireland, where mostly Catholic guerrillas are fighting to end Protestant domination and British rule in SALT II, Cuba Linked?

Carter TV Talk Seen Key Toward Pact OK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate supporters of the strategic arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union are hoping, with no great optimism, that President Carter can defuse the Cuba controversy and get the pact back on the road toward ratification.

Despite repeated urgings that the fate of the treaty not be linked to the presence of a Soviet combat brigade in Cuba, many of SALT II's supporters say no action to ratify the pact is likely until the Cuban issue is resolved.

President Carter is to report to the nation in a televised address at 6 p.m. PDT Monday on the reportedly deadlocked negotiations on Cuba between Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

ABC-TV will delay broadcast of its Monday night pro football game, ABC News said Saturday.

The network plans to join the National Football League game between New England and Green Bay in progress. There was no advance word on the length of Carter's speech.

Val Pinchbeck, the NFL's director of broadcasting, said Saturday the league had no present plans to change the 6 p.m. PDT kickoff time in Green Bay, Wis. He said a review of the situation would be made on Monday.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia called on the president to use the speech to "clearly disconnect Cuba from the SALT treaty."

"I don't think it behooves a great nation to get a case of nervous delirium about 2,000 or 3,000 Soviet troops on an island on which the United States also has a military force numbering about the same," the majority leader said.

Byrd said he is inclined to vote for the treaty but is keeping his options open until he studies the Senate Intelligence Committee's report — to be issued soon — on whether the United States can verify Soviet compliance with the treaty.

Meanwhile, Byrd said he is trying to prevent the treaty from becoming embroiled in the 1980 political campaign and "to protect the treaty from being destroyed" by such side issues as Cuba.

There has been no indication Gromyko softened the Soviet position that Russian military personnel have been in Cuba for many years, that their mission is solely to train Cuban forces in the use of Russian weapons and that their status has not been changed.

Cuban President Fidel Castro held to that line in a personal attack on Carter, accusing the U.S. president of lying about the troop issue and of being "dishonest, insincere and immoral."

"He has been deceiving the world and U.S. public opinion by making them believe the Cubans and the Soviets have taken some new, irresponsible step and changed the status quo," Castro said of Carter.

Castro said that what the Americans have been calling a brigade is called a training center by the Cubans. He maintained it has been on the island for 17 years.

But U.S. senators who have seen the intelligence data produced last summer by U.S. spy satellites and reconnaissance aircraft say there is "hard evidence" of a Soviet combat force in Cuba quite separate from any training facility.

Talks Please

Border Pollution Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter and Jose Lopez Portillo agreed Saturday to give "a high priority" to discussions on air and water pollution that crosses the border between the United States and Mexico.

The pair agreed to try to negotiate an agreement that would "lessen or eliminate environmental damage in the future" from such sources as the Mexican oil well blowout, which created a huge oil slick in the Gulf of Mexico and tarred Texas beaches.

The discussions also will include U.S.-spawned pollution that crosses the border into Mexico, officials stressed.

It was uncertain, however, whether Carter administration negotiators would press Mexico to pay for damage caused to the U.S. shoreline by the recent oil well accident. Mexico has resisted such suggestions so far, and Carter has conceded publicly that no international agreement exists that would force Mexico to pay.

At the conclusion of two days of talks here, both Carter and Lopez Portillo were smiling and saying they were pleased with the outcome.

Their final, 90-minute session in the White House also covered the Middle East, Cuba, the U.S.-Soviet strategic arms limitation treaty, long-term prospects for U.S. purchase of Mexican oil and cross-border sales of electricity.

White House spokesman Jerrold Schecter said the two presidents spoke for less than 10 minutes about Cuba, but he refused to say whether Lopez Portillo had agreed with Carter's position that the presence of a Soviet combat brigade on the Caribbean island is unacceptable. The Mexicans are believed to be far less concerned about the matter than the Carter administration, however.

The closest thing to a solid agreement that came out of Lopez Portillo's visit, his second to the United States during Carter's presidency, was the anti-pollution accord.

A joint statement issued after the final session said the two leaders "agreed on the need for both countries to prevent actions on one side of the land or maritime boundary from degrading the environment on the other side. They also instructed their administrations to give a high priority to such questions."

Carter and Lopez Portillo asked their negotiators to report on whether an anti-pollution agreement "is possible or appropriate," the statement said.

There has been concern in the United States not only over the highly publicized oil spill, but also over such less familiar problems as the New River, a polluted stream which flows northward across the border.

POPE'S TOUR...

Speaking in heavily accented English, the Polish-born pope addressed a throng of some 250,000 in Drogheda, half of them Catholics who came down across the border from Northern Ireland, 30 miles away.

"On my knees I beg you to turn away from the paths of violence," he said in a plea to the terrorists on both sides of the bitter conflict.

"I appeal to young people who may have become caught up in organizations engaged in violence. I say to you, with all the love I have for you, with all the trust I have in young people, do not listen to voices which speak the language of hatred, revenge, retaliation. . .

"Do not believe in violence, do not support violence. It is not the Christian way. It is not the way of the Catholic Church."

Early today, a statement passed to the British Army in Belfast said the Irish Republican Army offered "the possibility of ending hostilities" in Northern Ireland in response to the pontiff's appeal. The statement said "the Irish struggle is a political one. However, if the Holy Father can offer the possibility of justice for Ireland without violence, we shall be glad to lay down our arms."

Ulster Protestant leaders were divided in their response to the pope's appeal for peace. "I repudiate everything he said," declared the Rev. Ian Paisley, who is a harsh critic of the Vatican. Harold McCusker, an Ulster legislator in the British Parliament, said: "I sincerely hope everyone will consider his words very carefully."

From Drogheda, the pope traveled by helicopter back to Dublin and rode in an evening motorcade through the heart of the Irish capital.

It was an emotion-filled start to a 10-day pilgrimage to Ireland and the United States, a tour the pope says he hopes will contribute to the cause of peace on this divided island and in the world. He leaves Monday for Boston to begin the week-long U.S. tour. (A sugar cane worker will be one of 10 common people to visit the pope in Iowa. Page A4.)

"You come as a messenger of peace to a troubled land," Ireland's Cardinal Tomas O'Fiaich, said in welcoming the pontiff at Dublin airport Saturday morning.

Yom Kippur Observed

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Orthodox Jews recited special prayers of expiation Saturday in preparation for Yom Kippur and Israelis prepared memorial services for soldiers killed in the war that broke out on the Day of Atonement in 1973.

Yom Kippur, the day when Jews ask forgiveness of their sins and begin the Jewish year with a clean slate, starts this evening. All public services will close down, the airports will shut and radio and television will not broadcast, in respect of the holy day.

Observant Jews filled synagogues for the special early morning supplement to the regular Sabbath prayers, which ask God's forgiveness for the year's transgressions. The Orthodox also perform a symbolic sacrifice of a chicken, as a sign of atonement.

Israelis will hold memorial services in settlements throughout the country for the 2,500 war dead of the 1973 Yom Kippur War. The Arab-Israeli war broke out Oct. 6, the day of Yom Kippur that year, but Israelis commemorate it according to the Jewish lunar calendar.

Body Found From Crash Near Isle

By The Associated Press

The body of a 33-year-old real estate salesman killed when an amphibious plane crashed into the water off Catalina Island nearly two weeks ago has been recovered, officials said.

Sheriff's divers found the body of John Gagnon of Rancho Palos Verdes pinned in the wreckage of the Catalina Airlines craft Friday as it was hoisted up from the ocean floor, said Deputy Brad Welker.

Welker termed earlier reports that the body had floated away "totally erroneous. It was still in the wreckage." An autopsy will be performed this week, officials said.

The twin-engine craft was lifted up through 300 feet of water, Paul Eggy of Briles Wing and Helicopter Inc. said Saturday. The airline also confirmed the recovery.

Gagnon was killed and another man injured when the craft went down shortly after takeoff from the island Sept. 17. It was the second fatal crash of one of the firm's Grumman Goose planes in five months.

A mini-submarine looped a cable around the tail of the plane and a boat hauled it to the surface, said Eggy.

Protesters Camp at Nuke Sites

By The Associated Press

Hundreds of anti-nuclear demonstrators, towing mock nuclear waste containers, camped Saturday on the doorstep of a federal nuclear complex in South Carolina as thousands protested in Illinois and New York.

All-day anti-nuclear rallies were held at a nuclear power plant in Zion, Ill., north of Chicago, and at a nuclear disposal site in West Valley, N.Y., south of Buffalo.

Anti-nuclear groups in Missouri said they would rally in Jefferson City, the state capital, today to press for a limit on the growth of nuclear power.

Protest leaders said anti-nuclear groups around the country were holding weekend training sessions in preparation for an occupation of the Seabrook, N.H., atomic power plant planned for a week from today.

The three-day anti-nuclear rally in Snelling, S.C., will end Monday when hundreds of activists plan to trespass on the boundaries of the federal Savannah River Project, a nuclear waste burial site operated by Chem-Nuclear Systems and Allied-General Nuclear Services.

Soviets Demand Cancelled U.S. Tour

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet authorities had demanded that the United States promise to return any musician who defected during a U.S. tour by the Soviet State Symphony Orchestra, Western diplomatic sources say.

The sources said the Soviet demand was impossible to meet and last Thursday the Soviets cancelled the six-week tour that was to have opened next Wednesday at Carnegie Hall in New York City.

The Soviet demand was made to the tour's U.S. organizers, Columbia Artists Management, after the recent defections of five prominent Soviet artists in a one-month period, the diplomats said last week.

They added that Columbia passed the demand to the U.S. Embassy which relayed it to Washington.

Columbia Artists had no way of guaranteeing anything "and the U.S. government certainly couldn't," one source said. "That's what made the whole thing so ludicrous."

Alexander Godunov, the Bolshoi Ballet star, was the first to make the leap when he left the troupe during its swing through New York on Aug. 23.

Three weeks later fellow Bolshoi dancers Leonid and Valentina Kozlov abandoned the dance company in Los Angeles. Then last week top Soviet figure skaters Ludmilla Belousova and Oleg Protopopov defected in Geneva, Switzerland.

Fires Fought At Aircraft Firm in NB

A pair of stubborn but minor fires at Hughes Aircraft Co. in Newport Beach kept firemen busy late Saturday night and early today.

They were first called to the plant at 500 Superior Ave. about 9 p.m. only to find the fire already had been doused by built-in sprinkler systems, authorities said.

However, as firemen were mopping up the mess in a second story room at the firm, the fire re-ignited in a narrow crawlspace about 11:30 p.m.

The second blaze was quickly extinguished, but firemen remained on the scene early today for additional cleanup chores. Firemen said no one was hurt.

No damage estimate was available, but firemen chopped a hole in a ceiling to get at the second blaze. The cause of the fires was unknown.

Laguna Car, Van Crash Injures 9

Nine people were injured Saturday in Emerald Bay when a sports car and a van carrying seven tourists from Tahiti collided on Pacific Coast Highway near McKnight Drive, Laguna Beach police said.

Three of the victims remained hospitalized today in good condition at South Coast Community Hospital. The others were treated and released following the 2 a.m. accident Saturday, police said.

One of the still-hospitalized drivers, 19-year-old Bret Burnhard of Corona del Mar, was arrested and charged with felony drunken driving, officers said.

Burnhard and a 17-year-old Newport Beach girl police refused to identify were driving southbound on Pacific Coast Highway when the sports car he was driving reportedly struck a van driven by 38-year-old Bernard Tabbia.

Also in the van were Tabbia's wife, 12-year-old son, and a second couple from Tahiti and their two children.

Tabbia, who reportedly suffered a broken leg and cuts, remained hospitalized as did his son. Burnhard suffered facial cuts and an apparent broken nose.

Other passengers in the van were treated for injuries ranging from small cuts and abrasions to a broken finger, police said.

Rites Date Corrected

A memorial service for murder victim Thomas Hilary Albritton will be held Monday in Costa Mesa, not San Diego as reported in Saturday's Daily Pilot.

Services will begin at 2 p.m. at Bell-Broadway Mortuary in Costa Mesa. A family ceremony will follow at Rosecrans National Cemetery in San Diego.

Albritton, father of former Newport Beach shotput champion Terry Albritton, was gunned down Sept. 21 in Huntington Beach while trying to settle a dispute.

County, Chicano Heart Ailments Low

By DAVID KUTZMANN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A research team has dusted off some old statistics which seem to indicate death due to heart disease and stroke is much less frequent in Orange County than the nation as a whole.

Of equal or perhaps greater interest, though, is the finding that Mexican-Americans had a lower death rate from coronary heart disease — in the figures for 1978 — than persons in any other ethnic group.

While the researchers involved in the study cautioned that "no firm conclusions" can yet be drawn from their work, they said in interviews they have made several key findings and observations.

Among these, said Dr. Robert Friis of the county Health Department, was the observation that Anglo males and females are more likely to be classified as heavy smokers than their Hispanic counterparts.

Heavy smoking is considered to be a contributing cause of heart disease, the county's and nation's No. 1 killer.

Dr. Friis said the study also showed Anglo males and females to be heavier coffee drinkers as well as being more likely to have what he called a "positive" family history of coronary disease, meaning it is more prevalent in their backgrounds.

Dr. Friis performed the study along with Dr. Tom Prendergast of the county Health Department's division of epidemiology and Dr. G. Nanjundappa, an associate professor of sociology at Cal State Fullerton. Assisting them was county computer analyst Michael Welsh.

Dr. Prendergast said he handled the first phase, which was to dig through vital statistics for the county from 1976 onward.

In his review of this mortality data, Dr. Prendergast noted that of the leading causes of death, complications arising from coronary heart disease as well as stroke and diabetes were much less frequent in Orange County than the nation as a whole.

Having discovered this, the doctors decided to look for a test population through which to study standard risk factors associated with onset of heart problems.

Friis said pre-employment physical examination data for county workers was used, although he and Prendergast noted that risk factors were not always distinguishable on these forms.

In moving to the second phase of the study, Friis said researchers focused on the Mexican-American community because other studies indicated they had a lower death rate from heart ailments.

While noted in other research projects, little else had been done to study this ethnic group which comprises such a major part of the Orange County, California and southwestern United States population, he said.

Because Mexican-Americans had been lumped in with Anglos for statistical purposes prior to 1978, no one had been able to study differences between the two ethnic groups.

But Friis said the two were coded separately in the vital statistics after 1978, permitting comparisons.

The doctors looked at information on the physical examination reports that pertained to habits associated with smoking, drinking, coffee consumption, work activity and blood pressure.

These and other factors, Friis said, are related to the incidence of heart disease.

While Anglo males and females were found to be heavier smokers and bigger coffee drinkers, the doctor said he also found that Hispanic males had a higher triglyceride and serum cholesterol level, the opposite of what researchers thought they would find.

Other studies have shown a correlation between high cholesterol and triglyceride levels in the body and the incidence of heart disease.

Stress factors also were measured. Questions on the physical examination reports pertained to job satisfaction in the past and sleeping habits, among other aspects.

The information gathered in this area seemed to indicate the Mexican-American workers had experienced less job-related stress in the past and that their families tended to be more supportive.

Friis and Prendergast cautioned that the population they studied is too small from which to draw any major conclusions.

Friis said some of the differences observed in the Anglo and Hispanic populations may be more significant if a larger group were to be examined.

For this initial study, the backgrounds of 460 county job applicants were used, 160 of them Mexican-American.

The researchers said a more representative sampling could be obtained in some other setting, where there would be a greater range of ages to look at as well as a broader socio-economic spectrum.

A practical application of this type of research, Friis said, could be to encourage people to exercise more, change their dietary habits, reduce on-the-job stress, stop or reduce smoking and cut back on excessive coffee drinking.

Storm Blackens Big Area

By The Associated Press

Tens of thousands of residents in Santa Barbara and Ventura counties were without power Saturday and one man was injured after lightning struck an oil platform where he was working during a spectacular electrical storm that hit offshore coastal areas in pre-dawn hours.

Widespread power outages were reported from Point Conception to Point Magu. Southern California Edison Co. officials estimated that as many as 75,000 of its customers were affected from about 3 a.m. to dawn when enormous lightning bolts struck repeatedly at power transformers and lines.

Ken Yearwood, of Santa Barbara radio station KTMS, was awakened by crashing early morning thunder and said, "It is the worst thunder and lightning storm I have ever seen here in six years. We were getting lightning bolts 10 to 30 seconds apart."

Burnt-out transformers and downed lines were wreaking havoc with Edison service as far inland as Ojai and service was expected to remain out in many areas until nightfall, according to Edison spokesmen Gary Bechtel and Oras Racicot.

The man believed struck by lightning was knocked from a platform into a water-filled ditch at the Continental Oil Lease in the Rincon Point area, 10 miles northwest of Ventura.

Ventura County General Hospital officials, who refused to identify the storm victim, said that he was in fair condition after being treated for concussion, burns and probable wounds suffered from a lightning strike.

Jordan Evidence Shaky

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles FBI agents haven't been able to substantiate reports that Hamilton Jordan, White House chief of staff, sniffed cocaine at parties here in 1977, it was reported Saturday.

The Los Angeles Times, in its Saturday edition, said Atty. Gen. Benjamin Giviletti might make a decision on the Jordan matter this week, sources told the newspaper.

Local FBI agents have not found any witnesses to corroborate the allegations and are expected to report to their superiors in Washington, D.C. that there appears to be no substance to the accusations, according to the paper.

Local investigators have interviewed all but two potential witnesses who were with Jordan at various Los Angeles social affairs, according to reports filed daily by Los Angeles FBI agents.

The Washington, D.C. source told the newspaper that "it appears that no one is going to be found to corroborate the allegation against Jordan" unless something unusual turns up.

The two witnesses who have not yet been interviewed are refusing to cooperate with authorities unless they are promised immunity from prosecution.

Mobile Homes Dispute Settled

The last of the 35 mobile homes that once nestled atop a bluff in south Huntington Beach will pull out Oct. 15, and houses will begin sprouting on the site.

The last three hold-outs in a battle against Mola Development Co. settled their grievances last Monday out of court. Each of the couples received $7,000 in compensation for any rights they may have gained in occupying space at Mesa Vue mobile home park.

The park will be leveled and 15 single-family homes erected, said Mola attorney Peter E. von Elten.

The last to go are William and Nancy Flanagan, Robert and Rosemarie Gorelik and Don and Carol Johnson.

Kenner Actkinson and Velma Lowry, originally involved in a suit to remain at the park, settled some 10 days earlier for $5,000, said Stuart M. Parker, Senior Citizens Advocacy attorney who handled the tenants' case against Mola.

The suit against Mola, which bought the park for part of a housing development at Adams Avenue and Beach Boulevard, contended that many park residents had added structures to their coaches and therefore had rights in addition to those as tenants.

Superior Court Judge Claude Owens denied the litigants a jury trial Sept. 13, according to Von Elten, and the three couples pressing the suit opted to settle out of court.

Park residents rose up in anger last year when ordered to vacate their home sites by June 1 of this year.

Attorney Parker noted that many of the residents were retired living on social security and that their older mobile homes would not be accepted in the few higher-priced mobile home parks scattered about the county.

"There are hundreds of these small, older parks across the state," Parker said at that time. "Five or six are for sale now. The problem results in widespread displacement of senior citizens."

Babysitter, Tot Sought

FBI Narrows Hunt in Apparent Abduction

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Authorities searched in four states for a 2-year-old asthmatic boy and his teen-age babysitter, while the youngster's embittered father said he regretted ever taking the suspected kidnapper into his home.

"I wouldn't help nobody no more," said Charles Mokshefski, the father of Jamie Mokshefski, who was last seen last Tuesday morning. "I just hope to hell she has enough sense to know if that kid gets sick she gets the kid to a doctor."

The FBI, which earlier issued a nationwide alert, said it narrowed its search for missing Jamie and Letha Rose Kingsbury, 15, alias Jo Ann Fergunson, 18, a runaway from Cheyenne, Wyo., to Colorado, Arizona, Texas and Wyoming, where the girl is known to have relatives.

She served 45 days in the El Paso County Jail under the alias for a prostitution conviction and was released Sept. 20, the day Mokshefski saw her wandering in a daze along Interstate 25.

Moved by the girl's tale of being homeless and orphaned, Mokshefski took her into his home to care for his ailing wife and their children in exchange for room and board.

The girl and Jamie were last seen when they left the Mokshefskis' rented trailer home on Colorado Springs' south side to go to a nearby market for candy.

Mokshefski and his wife, Vera, say the girl claimed she had had an abortion and told neighbors Jamie was the age her baby would have been.

"If in fact she did have an abortion, that might be a motive, the mother instinct," said Ron Hoverson, assistant special agent in charge of the Denver FBI office.

A kidnap warrant was issued for the girl by the El Paso County Sheriff's Department.

Mokshefski, who said he brings home $139 a week as a salvage yard worker, said he and his wife have received no ransom demand for the child.

"How in hell could a poor family pay a ransom," the distraught 35-year-old father of four said in an interview.

Mokshefski said he was taking Jamie and his sister, Billie, 5, to a root beer stand when he saw the girl walking along the highway "in kind of a daze."

After hearing her story, "I took her in on faith of her word. Seemed like a pretty nice person with the kids . . . but she didn't act like she was 18. And she couldn't cook. All she wanted to do was play with the kids."

His wife said if Jamie isn't given proper medication for his asthma when he gets a cold, "it can go into pneumonia as it has many, many times."

Mrs. Mokshefski also said Jamie had been on a strict, non-dairy diet and in the past had "bad, bad respiratory problems" when he drank regular milk.

Asked if she would take in another person in need, Jamie's mother said, "You bet your life I won't."

Pilot's Playoff

Staffer With Team in East

When the Angels open the American League playoffs Wednesday in Baltimore, the Daily Pilot's Dave Cunningham will be there to relay back a first-hand account of all the action.

Cunningham, the Daily Pilot's regular writer on the Angel beat, will cover both games in Baltimore, then jet home with the team for the action at Anaheim Stadium.

there is a long distance phone call for him in the other room.

Fregosi: "Hello."

Fregosi: "Just fine. What's on your mind?"

Bavasi: "Well, how'd you like to come over here and take over for us?"

Fregosi: (short pause) "I'd like that just fine."

Bavasi: "Good. Be on a plane in the morning."

Dissolve to a crowded, jubilant clubhouse. It is once again Sept. 25, 1979, and the Angels have clinched the Western Division title. Everyone is drenched in champagne.

Bobby Grich: "Jim Fregosi is the man who turned it around for us. He kept us intense and serious when we needed it, and he kept us loose when we needed that. He's a strong leader in every sense of the word."

Fade out.

Autry has no problem pronouncing Fregosi's name now.

As an Angel shortstop, Fregosi holds virtually every club batting record. He won the owner's trophy, symbolic of the Angels' MVP, three times.

His major league career spanned 18 seasons, and he compiled a .265 lifetime average. But an even longer and more prosperous career may be beginning now.

"The boy is a natural born manager," says Sparky Anderson, who has some knowledge on the subject, having managed world championship teams in Cincinnati twice.

"Some have it and some don't," Anderson says. "And that boy definitely has it."

Rigney, Fregosi's first major league manager, agrees.

"He has character and that's what it takes," Rigney says. "He has a quick mind, dedication and a good sense of humor. He's going to pick some brains but he's going to be is own man. You can bet on that."

VICTORY CELEBRATION REPLAY

Fade in. Camera focuses on the Angel clubhouse. It is the last game before the All-star break, 1979. The Angels are in first. Don Baylor is asked to analyze the club's success.

Baylor: "Jim Fregosi is the man who did it. He gave us leadership, told everybody what their job was and didn't mess around. We never had that kind of leadership before he got here."

Reporter: "We were trying to pick an MVP from this team. Maybe Baylor."

Fregosi: "You want to know who I'd pick? There's no contest. Brian Downing. That guy would run through a brick wall for me. He's beautiful."

Fade out.

Fregosi picked Downing as his personal MVP when Downing hit .255 and drove in 46 runs. This year Downing is hitting .323 and has 74 RBI. He's more valuable than ever, but Fregosi is conceding the MVP award to Baylor for 1979.

"He's played every day, he's driven in 138 runs, he's hit 35 homers, and he's hit around .300 all year. He's done everything you can ask of a man," Fregosi says. "In my mind, no one in the league is more deserving of the MVP than Don Baylor."

Camera slowly focuses on the mound at Anaheim Stadium. Yankee superstar Ron Guidry is on the mound. He is leading 4-3 with two out in the ninth. It is July 15, a balmy Sunday afternoon. With Tom Donohue on first, Bobby Grich is the batter.

Announcer Don Drysdale: "Guidry checks the runner, comes to the plate . . . and it's a high drive to right field. Jackson going back, still going back, to the wall . . . It's gone! A home run for Bobby Grich! And the Angels have swept the Yankees!"

Dissolve to scene in the dugout, just moments later. The sellout crowd is chanting for Grich to come out and take a bow. He does. A reporter corners Grich in the tunnel.

Reporter: "I think this is a team of destiny. What do you think?"

Feds Face Money Shortage

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sharply divided over pay raises and federal financing of abortions, Congress was bogged down Saturday with the Senate in session, the House on vacation and many federal departments in danger of running out of money.

The House and Senate are torn by the emotional questions of whether lawmakers should give themselves more money and to what extent the government should finance poor women's abortions.

The major casualty of a running feud between the two chambers was an emergency money bill, which became the vehicle for attempts by lawmakers to force a showdown on the pay raise and abortion issues.

When the House and Senate couldn't resolve their differences, and the House went on a Columbus Day vacation, the stopgap appropriations measure was killed.

BRIEFS

Canal Turnover Set

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Churchbells and fireworks will herald the end of 75 years of United States jurisdiction in the Canal Zone Monday as an estimated 250,000 Panamanians prepare to march into the zone and take possession.

Celebrations get under way today with the arrival of six Latin American heads of state invited to the ceremony.

Ex-ruler Executed

MADRID, Spain (AP) — The former dictator of Equatorial Guinea, Francisco Macias Nguema, and seven of his officials were executed Saturday a few hours after they were sentenced to death, the Spanish news agency, EFE, reported.

EFE said Macias, who was convicted of genocide, and his men, convicted of complicity, were executed in the jail in Malabo, the country's island capital. It was not immediately known how they were executed, EFE said. The report was not confirmed by official sources.

Balloon Stalled

BURDETT, Kan. (AP) — Four adventurers bound for the Atlantic Ocean in a balloon made little progress Saturday, drifting slowly over the prairies of southwestern Kansas while waiting for a favorable shift in winds.

Pete Leavitt, vice president of Weather Service Corp. of Bedford, Mass., said the helium-filled balloon was eight miles south of Burdett Saturday night, about where it had been all day. He said it was about 6,000 above the ground.

Arafat Eyes Talk

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Palestine guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat told a group of black Americans Saturday he would accept an invitation to meet U.S. officials about peace in the Middle East.

Arafat, relaxed and smiling, talked with the Americans in his living room for two hours Saturday night, insisting over the objections of his aides that reporters sit in on his rare English-language session with the 17-member delegation headed by the Rev. Jesse Jackson.

'Happy Time'

Field Worker to See Pope

NAPOLEONVILLE, La. (AP) — Gustave Rhodes, a Southern Baptist, has toiled for 32 years under the broiling Louisiana sun, scratching a living for his wife and seven children as a sugar cane field hand.

But Thursday, he will join nine other Americans and kneel before Pope John Paul II — the only non-Roman Catholic in an honored group.

"This is going to be one of the happiest moments of my life," Rhodes said. "When I was told, I wanted to celebrate, but I didn't know what to do. I ended up just talking to the wife all night.

"IT'S SOMETHING THAT one of the people, especially a cane-field worker, doesn't have the opportunity to do."

John Paul is visiting the United States on the third international voyage of his pontificate. He is to celebrate Communion in Des Moines, Iowa, on Thursday before a crowd expected to total half a million and will personally offer consecrated bread and wine to 10 ordinary citizens from throughout the country.

Rhodes will be one of them.

SINCE HE IS NOT Catholic, Rhodes will not take the sacraments, but he will step forward to kneel before the pope as a symbol of rural America.

It was through his work with Mutual Help that he was selected by the National Catholic Rural Life Conference as the symbol of non-Catholic country life in America.

"We felt if the group was to be truly respresentative of rural America — not just Catholic rural America — we wanted someone from another faith," said Stephen Bossi of Des Moines, a spokesman for the conference. "He filled that role."

Tritium Leak Revealed

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (AP) — An Army National Guard convoy carried 20 tons of radioactive tritium across central Arizona Saturday for burial at an ammunition depot, then technicians discovered a small leak in the lead-lined steel box holding the gas.

"Right now I can't answer what the potential hazard is," Darrell Warren of the Arizona Atomic Energy Commission said at a news conference after the convoy arrived at the Navajo Army Ammunition Depot.

He said the radiation level was "above background," the amount of radiation normally in the environment. Asked what the Army would do about the leaking tritium, he said, "Leave it."

Warren said the leak was discovered when guardsmen unloaded the steel box, which carried 38 drums that together held 6.4 million tiny steel tubes of tritium gas.

"Nothing was detected in transit," said Warren. "We found we had a slow leak in the container. It's so small we could barely detect it."

The tritium was seized from the American Atomics Corp. plant in Tucson and shipped to the depot. The commission closed the plant in June after tests showed the plant was leaking radiation.

Soviets Blasted

FAIRFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said Saturday that increasing Soviet-backed disruptions in the world are leading toward a "massive crisis" for the United States. Kissinger spoke at a Republican fund-raiser for former Texas Gov. John Connally after meeting in Washington with President Carter.

Eastern States Humid

Thundershowers Widely Scattered

U.S. Summary

Humidity settled over much of the Eastern United States Saturday. Thundershowers were scattered over Florida, and showers spread into the mid-Atlantic states and along the southern New England coast.

The National Weather Service forecast for today included more rain along the Atlantic Seaboard, with thundershowers scattered over Florida and showers through the mid-Atlantic states and rain in New England and New York.

The remainder of the nation was expected to have sunshine and mild temperatures, with readings in the 60s common in the upper Great Lakes region and New England.

Temperatures around the nation at noon PDT Saturday ranged from a low of 49 degrees at Limestone, Maine, to 100 degrees in Del Rio, Texas.

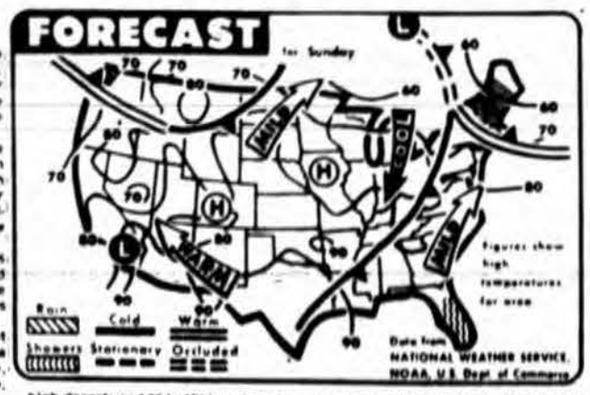
California

The weatherman is predicting variable cloudiness over Southern California through today with a chance of light showers or thundershowers.

Highs in Los Angeles will be in the upper 70s, with overnight lows in the mid 60s. The chance of measureable precipitation is 20 percent or less today.

In the mountains, more of that variable cloudiness and chance of showers and thunderstorms is predicted with highs 65 to 75 and lows tonight in 40s to mid 50s.

Deserts should be partly cloudy through today with chance of thundershowers at times. Highs 85 to 95 high deserts and 95 to 101 low deserts. Lows tonight 55 to 66 in high desert and 66 to 78 in low deserts.



Coastal Weather

Variable winds 5 to 10 knots this morning, becoming southwest 8 to 15 knots this afternoon and evening, but local gusty winds of 20 to 30 knots in vicinity of thundershowers. Wind waves 1 to 2 feet but up to 4 feet in gusty wind areas. Southwest swells 1 to 3 feet. Variable cloudiness through Monday. Chance of a few showers or thundershowers this afternoon and evening.

U.S. 'Tut-mania' Ceases

Smashing 2-Year Tour Draws to a Close

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "The Treasures of Tutankhamun," the show that sent a wave of "Tut-mania" across the nation, is ending its smash hit, two-year tour of the United States today and moving on to Canada.

The 55 gold and bejeweled relics taken from the tomb of Egypt's "Boy King" will have been viewed by 8¼ million people in seven American cities when it winds up a four-month run at San Francisco's M.H. De Young Memorial Museum. The priceless exhibit goes on to Toronto.

TUT MASK

THE SAN FRANCISCO show drew 1,361,000 visitors — more than recorded at earlier showings in Washington, New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, New Orleans and Seattle.

"It was a complete sellout — just amazing," said Charles Long, the De Young public information officer.

Tickets were distributed for specific days and times at the De Young, with visitors pouring through the exhibit at the rate of 800 to 900 an hour. The show was open from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. four days a week, and until midnight three days a week.

"People were prepared to be disappointed because of the advance buildup, but they were usually not disappointed — many were quite thrilled," Long said.

During the American tour, the host cities found themselves swept by a publicity barrage and commercial binge of souvenir-buying called "Tut-mania."

The local wax museum capitalized by building a copy of the entire Tut tomb, which contained 5,000 items. Stores sold reproductions of Tut objects and jewelry. The museum's Tut gift shop said its sales exceeded $3 million.

A STANFORD UNIVERSITY museum display titled "Tut, Tut" poked fun at the commercial aspects by displaying Tut items — some of them nearly 50 years old — ranging from T-shirts to whisky bottles.

San Francisco spent $2.5 million remodeling its museum, hiring workers and beefing up security for Tut.

The museum was sensitive about security, because a burglar had stolen several valuable paintings from the De Young last year, including a $1 million Rembrandt.

"THERE WERE NO security problems with the Tut exhibit," Long said. "But occasionally someone would set off an alarm by bumping into a display case."

Someone either stole or cut the anchor rope for several giant balloons floating outside to advertise the Tut show. And some visitors complained that thieves broke into their parked cars.

Selected items from the Tut tomb, which was discovered in 1922, were sent to the United States as a goodwill gesture arranged by former President Richard Nixon and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

The show will be in Toronto for two months, then it goes to West Germany before returning to the Cairo Museum, which will be paid an estimated $1 million for the San Francisco showing. The money will be spent to provide a more suitable display for all of the 5,000 items found in Tut's tomb.

Testimony Change Seen

Informant Marries Rape Suspect

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The wife of a former deputy sheriff facing arraignment in several rape cases may testify on his behalf despite the fact that prior to their marriage she supplied the information to authorities that led to his arrest.

STATE

Nancy B. Sperber, a former deputy district attorney who was asked to resign her position, married Paul Monty Jr. on Sept. 17, six hours before she was served with a subpoena to testify against him at a preliminary hearing.

Monty was ordered last week to appear in Superior Court on Oct. 17 for arraignment on 15 separate felony counts relating to attacks on six Toluca Lake women.

Workers Car Firebombed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — One woman was slightly injured when a carload of eight workers heading for a strikebound Sun Valley plant was firebombed early Saturday, police said.

Thuong Xuan Nguyen, 46, told police he had just picked up seven women coworkers on Union Place in Los Angeles when a car carrying four men pulled alongside the workers' station wagon.

Desert Trucks Crash Kills One

DESERT CENTER (AP) — Three persons were killed Saturday and one man is hospitalized in guarded condition following a collision between two pickup trucks on a desolate desert highway, authorities said.

In the pre-dawn accident on state Highway 177, 22 miles north of here, one of the trucks was totally burned and the Riverside County coroner's office was attempting to identify the two victims.

Slaying Linked to Gangs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Authorities are searching for two youths who killed an 18-year-old Artesia man Saturday in an apparent gang-related shooting, Sheriff's Deputy Tony Rodriguez said.

Ernie Navarete "was standing in front of his home in Artesia when a vehicle with two occupants drove up," Rodriquez said. "One of the two male Latins in the car asked if Navarete was a member of the 'Arta' gang. Navarete was shot when he answered he was not a member

INS Raids Need Clarification, Bite

A recent decision by federal Immigration and Naturalization Services authorities to conduct neighborhood raids to locate undocumented aliens has touched off a storm of protest in Orange County's Latin American community.

Members of the Orange County Human Relations Commission said last week they were "outraged" by the raids and allegations that persons detained included Mexican nationals legally in the United States and several U.S. citizens.

For its part, the INS has denied the charges and stands behind the view that the neighborhood raids are an effective means of apprehending large numbers of undocumented immigrants who have entered the country illegally.

While the residential raids undoubtedly are an effective enforcement device, their use has raised fundamental legal questions — questions that attorneys for the Latin American community say must be answered by a federal district court judge.

Lacking consistent direction from Washington, the INS always seems to wind up in a "no win" situation — criticized for not apprehending more illegal aliens, then criticized for whatever methods are used to try to apprehend them.

The propriety of the residential raids does merit the court's attention. And the proposed legal action could be a blessing if it clarifies the ground rules for such raids.

Treaty Handling Poor

In its last-minute muddling of Panama Canal treaty arrangements, the House of Representatives exhibited little talent for the foreign affairs matters it would so dearly love to handle.

The treaty, approved by the Senate as the Constitution requires, goes into effect Monday.

But legislation was necessary to arrange the details of United States control, with Panamanian participation, until the year 2000.

This includes establishment of the Panama Canal Commission which will operate the canal and be responsible for the welfare of Americans who will continue to be employed there.

Stirred up by a few misguided members who apparently were more interested in grandstanding than in continuing the smooth functioning of the canal, the House unexpectedly voted 203 to 192 to refer the needed legislation to a conference committee less than a week before the Oct. 1 deadline.

This could have resulted in immediate Panamanian operation of the canal — and a possible shutdown if the American workers held to their threat to walk out if their pay and working conditions were not properly established. With half a million barrels of oil passing through the canal each day this could have produced a pretty mess.

Some of the House hawks even used the occasion to dredge up the old pre-treaty orations about a canal "giveaway." Others said they wanted to express concern about Marxist influence in Latin America. A few even tried to use their votes as leverage for White House approval of issues concerning their home districts.

Fortunately, warnings by rational members and some intense White House lobbying succeeded in turning the vote around to 232 to 188 in favor of the needed legislation, just in time to meet the deadline.

The whole performance was a poor exhibition of irresponsibility in a foreign affairs issue of profound concern to the United States.

Work Ethic Costly?

Gov. Brown has signed into law a bill that will increase unemployment insurance benefits from the current $104 a week to $120 in 1980, $130 in 1981 and $136 in 1982.

While inflation may justify some increase in unemployment benefits, a recent study by the General Accounting Office seems to confirm the suspicion that some workers may prefer the subsidized leisure of unemployment to the tax-burdened chore of work.

The GAO study notes that when the program was put into effect in 1935, it was designed to provide unemployment benefits equal to 50 percent of a worker's gross pay.

But since then, increased local, state and federal income taxes and rising Social Security taxes have been taking a bigger and bigger chunk out of each pay check, widening the gap between gross pay and take-home pay.

Now, the GAO discovered, tax-free unemployment benefits replace 64 percent of the average take-home pay check. One-fourth of the recipients receive 75 percent of their take-home pay and 7 percent find their benefits exceed take-home pay. Obviously, this leaves little incentive to return to work.

To restore this incentive, the GAO proposes subjecting unemployment benefits to personal income tax.

An alternative work incentive would be reduction of overall tax rates so that everyone's take-home pay would look more attractive than an unemployment benefit check.

Until the difference is really meaningful, there'll always be those who prefer to get along on less money and enjoy freedom from work.

Boyd / Weapon Ban

By L.M. BOYD

The Pope so feared that the new weapon would wipe out western civilization that he issued a document forbidding the use of same in any Christian country. In A.D. 1139 that was. The weapon: the crossbow.

Q. "Has any U.S. President ever left the White House with fewer federal employees there than were there when he moved in?"

A. Only Herbert Hoover, none other.

Am asked how women followed the fashions in clothing before the fashion magazines came into being. Dolls were dressed in the latest styles and put on exhibit. Wagon loads of them were carried around the country.

That report that more people die annually of the cold in Miami than in Buffalo just doesn't hold up, evidently. A check with hospitals and the medical examiner's office in Miami indicates no more than a few fatal cases of chilling body temperatures turn up there each year.

'80 Ford Must Run Test Track

WASHINGTON — At his home in Palm Springs within the next 30 days, Gerald R. Ford will get this hard word from professional political advisers: If you want to be president again and if you want to keep Ronald Reagan from being nominated, you must become an active candidate — and soon.

That means running in the primaries, not waiting at the 19th hole for a plea from the Republican Party.

Ford's advisers will not recommend, only lay out options and probabilities. If he opens a campaign during the next two months, perhaps 50-50; if he awaits a draft, forget it.

SUCH BLUNT talk is intended to dispel the unrealistic aura developed around Ford by sycophants, especially former and present staffers. Ford has told friends that "you won't see me ploughing through the snows of New Hampshire this time;" yet he passionately wants to get back in the White House — or at least keep Reagan out.

At the forthcoming secret meeting in Palm Springs, he will be told he cannot have it both ways.

The need for Ford to face reality has been hastened by two interrelated developments. The first is that no active candidate has been able to break out of the pack against the front-running Reagan. The opinion of Ford's advisers that only the former president can stop Reagan is widely shared by influential Republican leaders.

THE SECOND is Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's prospect as the most likely Democratic nominee. Since the polls show Reagan beating President Carter but losing badly to Kennedy, the quest for an alternative has taken on new life.

The advent of Kennedy had nothing to do with making Jerry Ford the charter member of the anybody-but-Reagan club. Within weeks after leaving office in 1977, he confided he might run again if it appeared Reagan would be nominated by default.

Despite Reagan's peacemaking efforts, Ford's bitter language in his memoirs ("his (Reagan's) penchant for offering simplistic solutions to hideously complex problems") shows that he still believes the 1976 Reagan challenge made Jimmy Carter president.

BUT FORD has not spent the years out of power as an articulate voice carving out an opposition record. Instead, he has divided his time between the golf course and the lucrative podium, with scant time for politics.

While Ted Kennedy and other major figures addressed the National Urban League convention at Chicago in late July, Ford was in the same city talking to the Laundry and Dry Cleaning Institute's convention about Carter's Cabinet shake-up.

Passing up the Urban League for the dry cleaners is blamed by Ford's political supporters on his executive assistant, Maj. Robert E. Barrett.

A young infantry officer serving as President Ford's Army aide, Barrett resigned from the service after the 1976 election to go with the defeated candidate to Palm Springs. Since then, he has become Ford's most intimate adviser.

Like his boss, Barrett is unaware that primaries obviate a brokered convention. Consequently, he has told politicians, newsmen and Ford himself that the Detroit convention will turn to the former president.

Several of Ford's ex-staffers, possibly unenthusiastic about getting inducted into another relentless primary chase against Reagan, echo Barrett.

MANY PROMINENT Ford-for-president enthusiasts, such as Vermont's Gov. Richard Snelling, want him to run in the primaries but believe, against all evidence, that he can be nominated even if he does not. It will be the mission of the political pros at Palm Springs to persuade Ford that this is pure nonsense.

One such adviser will inform Ford that to return to the White House in 1981, he must endure those New Hampshire snows in 1980. The Boston Globe poll giving Ford an edge over Reagan among New Hampshire Republicans (who overwhelmingly favor Reagan over anybody else) convinced this insider.

While fund-raising would prove difficult this late and Ford's lackadaisical performance since 1976 has soured some erstwhile supporters, he could easily assemble a campaign organization.

Key professionals in his 1976 campaign — Stu Spencer, Bob Teeter and John Deardourff — have not joined any other campaign.

SOME OTHER prominent Republicans who would not join Ford still hope he decides to run, they reason that a renewed Reagan-Ford battle could unlock the process and open support for a third candidate.

Jerry Ford's political advisers are not the only Republicans who believe the alternative to his active candidacy is a Kennedy vs. Reagan race that they fervently want to avoid.

Who's on Guard Against the Outrageous?

Come back Henry, we need you! Henry L. Mencken, the scourge of the middle class. The collector of crudities of the booboisie.

How his China-blue eyes would glitter at some new example of folly and bad taste, how he would rub his hands in delight before eviscerating his victim in a "Prejudice." Fair? — Let us never accuse Mencken of being fair! He was merely devastating.

I THOUGHT of it last week as I came by the somber J. Edgar Hoover Building on Pennsylvania Avenue. What Mencken do we have now to drop acid on the outrageous and obscene?

J. Edgar Hoover is the man who helped drive Jean Seberg to suicide and he is honored by one of the most prominent buildings in town, in a spot inaugural parades pass. Nobody else has an official building named after him along the avenue; there is no movement to change its name so far as I know.

Hoover developed the counterintelligence program to throw radicals off balance. It included sending forged letters to Martin Luther King suggesting suicide.

ACTRESS JEAN Seberg supported the black nationalists so the FBI circulated false stories to barracuda-type gossip columnists that the baby she was having was fathered by a Black Panther.

The infant died after premature labor (induced, perhaps, by agitation over the story). Other sad details I omit.

Her husband, Romain Gary, says she threatened suicide on each anniversary of the tragedy of their child and was finally found dead. The FBI is tamed now, thank heavens, but there the formidable building stands, Washington's bastille, honoring J. Edgar Hoover for all of us.

Mencken might have excoriated, too, the anomalies of our protracted two-year presidential election.

IT INVOLVES individual duels and reminds me that he once wrote of a social altercation "conducted with bung starters." He would have enjoyed the political minuet of Carter and Kennedy.

Is our contest too long? The Japanese just started a national election campaign Sept. 17 that will culminate Oct. 7. It will be an intense struggle that will bring out three-quarters of the potential voters, if it follows the pattern of 1976.

Recent elections in Britain and Canada were short and snappy, too, and brought out, in each case, 76 percent of the eligibles. America's boring two-year election in 1976 brought out only 54 percent.

Mencken was not inspirational, I'm afraid. His attitude was to enjoy, not denounce, idiocies.

Carter's faltering presidency obviously needs a mandate; if the founding fathers had only given us the escape hatch of a vote-of-no-confidence-election, Carter could have gone to the polls and gotten a mandate, or somebody else would. We would know who's in charge. Now we don't.

Coolidge used to nap every afternoon. Even in 1970 Prof. S. E. Finer, University of Manchester, could write in his "Comparative Government"

"BUT IN THE United States, this situation, where government can grind to a halt and produce no action for a very long time, is not only tolerable but often even agreeable. I wonder how long people will relish no-government with rising inflation and unemployment?

Political scientist Aaron S. Klieman in Presidential Studies Quarterly says that America has been "preparing for the hour of need — the National Emergencies Act."

IF GOVERNMENT threatens to collapse, he reports, there is authority for the president to take extraordinary action.

Here are samples. Congress in 1861 passed the Food and Forage Act giving the executive powers when Congress wasn't in session.

Research by a Senate Committee in 1971 disclosed that the act was still in effect, also in effect was a national emergency declared in March 9, 1933, by FDR (to combat the Great Depression).

We were under three other national emergency laws — Truman's in 1950 at the Korean invasion, Nixon's on March 23, 1970, to handle a postal strike and Nixon again on Aug. 15, 1971, to meet balance of payment problems.

CONGRESS PASSED an almost unnoticed overall National Emergencies Act on Sept. 14, 1976. This, in effect, repealed the other emergencies.

So it is reassuring to know, Mencken might grimly observe, that if anything happens to Congress in this strange city the president can still carry on. The J. Edgar Hoover Building will probably survive, too.

'Unknown Geniuses' Stretched Our Grasp

As I expected it would, a recent statement of mine has brought down an avalanche of letters from readers who violently disagree with it. The statement was: "The greatest accomplishments of man are not those that only a few can do, but those that anyone can do after the first man has done it."

Typical is a letter from North Carolina castigating me for snubbing da Vinci and Michangelo, T.S. Eliot, Eugene O'Neill, Lewis Carroll and even the first persons who swam the English Channel or climbed Mt. Everest. Obviously, other people cannot paint or write or swim and climb as these persons could.

WHAT I MEANT by "the greatest accomplishments," however, were the advances made by anonymous men, achievements so basic that we hardly think of them at all. These accomplishments are what made all the rest possible.

The inventor of the alphabet, bringing order out of communicative chaos. The inventor of the wheel. The inventor of arithmetic, and then the Arabic numeral system — including the first person who used "zero" as a place and a number. Without these unknown geniuses, there would be no progress in literature or art or the sciences.

AND THE "greatness" of these achievements, as I suggested, lay in the fact that once the thing was done, everyone could do it. A child could learn to read and write and count. Vehicles could be constructed by any mechanic. Just as, after the first genius read the heavens correctly — for direction and not for portents — any mariner could use information to steer a steady course at night.

I was not derogating individual works of art or science, from da Vinci to Einstein, but simply pointing out that the seminal advances of humanity are debts we owe to unknown primitive geniuses who, in a flash of insight greater than Newton's, first showed all other men what they might do to distinguish themselves from the brutes around them.

Morally, too, there must have been someone long behind and beyond Hammurabi who first devised a code of law to replace vengeance and violence, turning a tribe into a civil society. The idea of law and equity (however imperfectly we practice it) goes back further than history can trace.

There are levels of greatness. Some men do what no others can, and we honor them for it. But can anyone doubt that the highest level is reached by those dim figures who showed all of us that man was more than a primate, and that each of us had infinity in his grasp?

Reappointing Ousted Judges Courts Disfavor

By MARTIN SMITH

Martin Smith is political editor of the Sacramento Bee, from which this column is reprinted.

Up until last year, Richard Hamilton of Laguna Beach had served almost a dozen years as a California trial judge. A 1966 appointee of former Gov. Pat Brown to the Orange County Municipal Court, Hamilton was promoted to the Superior Court by the present Gov. Brown.

It all seemed to end abruptly for Hamilton in the 1978 elections when he became one of 17 municipal and superior court judges swept out of office by the voters that year.

THIS MONTH, however, Hamilton had new life breathed into his judicial career. His benefactor once again was Jerry Brown who appointed Hamilton back onto the municipal court.

It was an unusual but no longer unique comeback. Eight of the judges defeated in 1978 were Jerry Brown appointees Hamilton became the fourth of those eight whose judicial careers were restored by further Brown appointments since January.

The governor can deny he has acted in direct defiance of the voters' wishes. Each of the four was given a municipal court appointment after having held a higher level post on the superior court.

EVEN SO, placing a judge back on the bench after he has been rejected by the voters is a politically risky business, even if the restoration is at a lower level. The Brown administration, well aware of this, did not take pains to point out the circumstances of the termination of the previous judicial services by two of those given new appointments.

Separate press releases announcing the appointments of Hamilton and of Fred Lucero of San Jose noted that they earlier had been superior court judges but failed to mention that their election bids had been defeated in 1978.

Still, those announcements were more informative than last January's press release which announced the simultaneous appointments of Bruce Thompson of Ventura County and Leonard Goldstein of Newport Beach to the municipal court.

THOMPSON WAS described as having been in private practice and also as having been Ojai city attorney and former district attorney. Goldstein's experience was listed as including service as a deputy attorney general and also in private practice.

Nothing was said of the fact that they also had been superior court judges until their election defeats in 1978.

The governor's legal affairs secretary, Anthony Kline, argues that despite the 1978 defeats suffered by the four new municipal court judges there was "truly overwhelming support" from within their communities for the appointments.

"IN EVERY case the appointment was well-received," said Kline.

On the face of it, that seems a puzzling assertion, considering the election results. Kline's statement, however, gets support from local editors and reporters who confirm that the appointments have had the backing of most of the legal establishment and many community leaders.

In two cases, even the men who defeated the judges in last year's superior court races added their voices to recommendations in support of restoring their opponents to the judiciary.

TO SOME EXTENT, support for the appointments may reflect a desire by the legal establishment to close ranks in the face recently of unprecedented opposition to the reelection of judges.

Last year was a particularly tough one for trial judges who, to some extent, were caught in the line of fire aimed at California Chief Justice Rose Bird. She was the target of two organized campaigns by conservatives who charged she lacked the qualifications for the job. She won her election but only by a close margin.

Even judges who were well-known, generally respected and had what seemed to be only token opposition found themselves re-elected by smaller-than-ever margins.

THE BIRD-LED state Supreme Court was accused of being overly liberal and too permissive in its views, a charge which many voters found persuasive.

Some candidates seeking to unseat trial judges were able to capitalize on this sentiment by waging aggressive campaigns with tough law-and-order themes. Goldstein, particularly, proved vulnerable to this sort of campaign.

All this adds plausibility to Kline's argument that the governor's action in placing the four men back on the bench was "not an act of arrogance but an act of real courage."

THAT MAY BE the case, and the public may prove to have been well-served by the appointments. Yet there is another aspect to the restoration which has to do with the confidence of the voters in government and in their ability to control events.

When Jerry Brown took office nearly five years ago, he noted that more than half of the persons eligible to cast ballots the previous November had refused to do so.

"In other words," said Brown, "the biggest vote of all in November was a vote of no confidence. So our first order of business is to regain the trust and confidence of the people we serve."

THE APPOINTMENTS run the risk of further undermining that trust and confidence by opening the administration to new charges that it practices an elitism that disregards the wishes of a majority of those Californians who still bother to go to the polls.

The appointments could not have been easy decisions no matter how able the four men.

See Silver Lining To Proposition 13

By JUDY ROSENER, Ph.D.

This article by Dr. Judy Rosener of Newport Beach is reprinted from the Graduate School of Administration Community Newsletter.

With the advent of Proposition 13 and the push for balanced budgets, it might seem likely that job prospects for students studying the administration of public sector organizations would be dim. Quite the contrary!

As the need to increase productivity, streamline government agencies, and trim and cut programs increases, those with public sector management skills will be in demand.

WHILE THERE ARE MANY similarities between the public and private sectors, there is one fundamental difference which distinguishes them — their goals. Private sector goals are primarily related to products, tangible "private goods" which can be packaged, marketed, bought and sold in a way that those paying for them are the prime beneficiaries.

This is not the case in public sector organizations. Here the goals are the providing of services, promotion of the "general welfare," the management of natural resources, the so called "public goods." These public sector goods are generally not tangible; they cannot be packaged and sold so that the line between those who pay and those who benefit can be drawn.

How does one pay for a piece of clear air or a strong national defense in a way which reveals the return? It is the ambiguous and difficult-to-evaluate nature of public sector organizations which makes them different from those in the private sector.

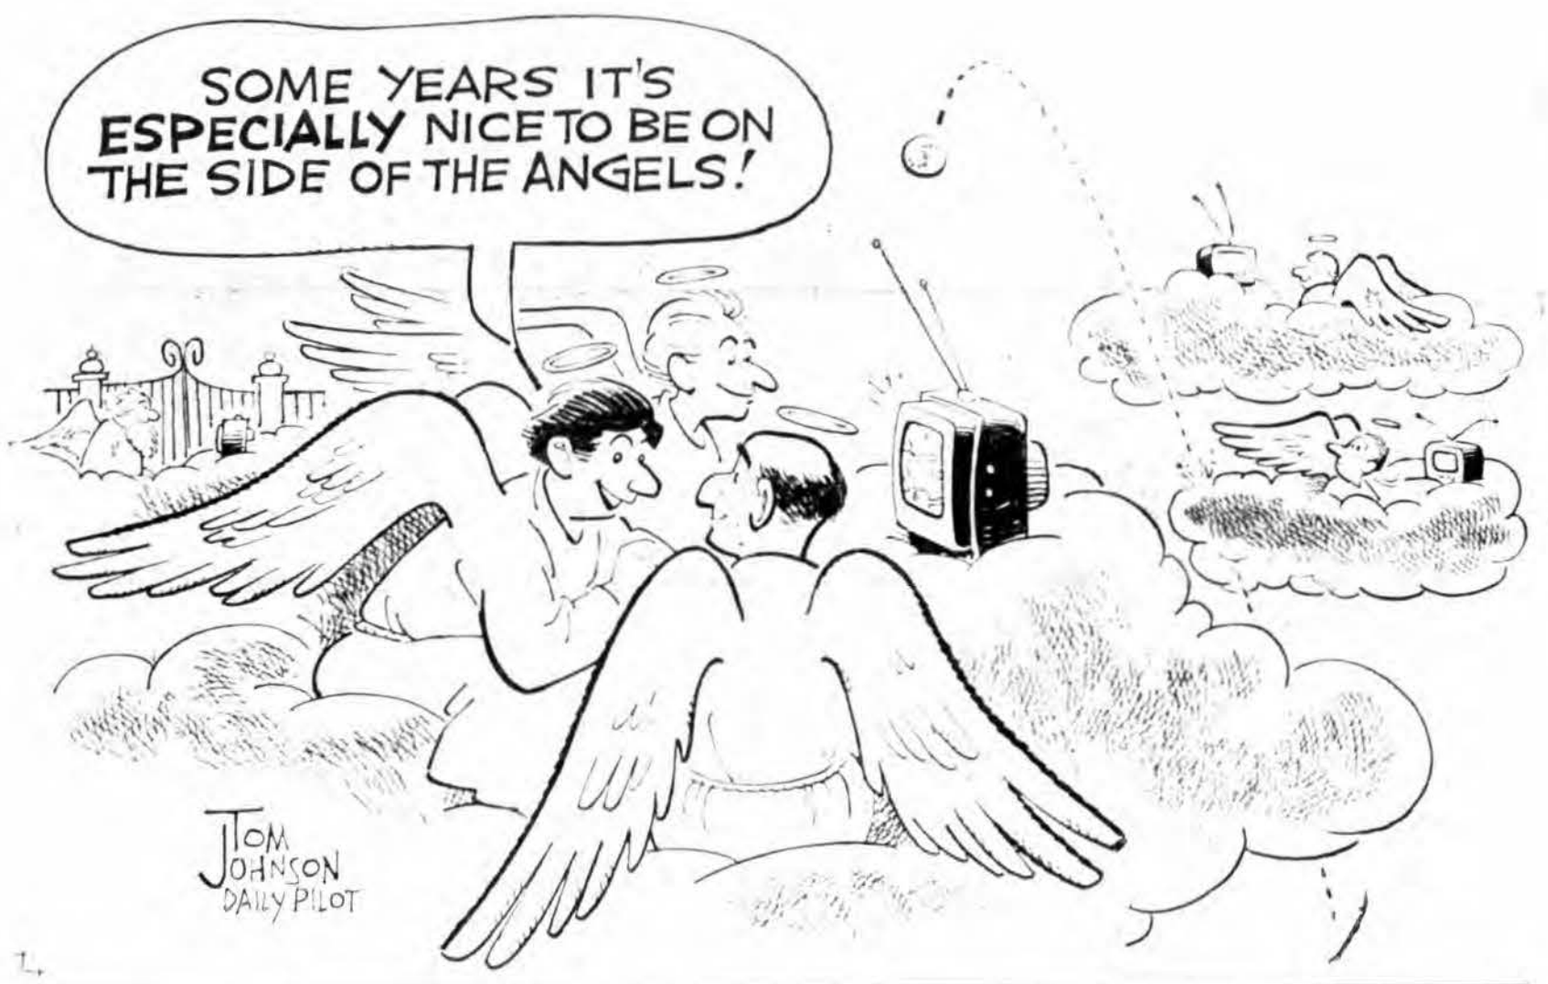
AS THE BATTLE FOR LIMITED resources continues, the need to resolve inherent conflicts between the demand for "private" and "public" goods will necessitate government managers who understand the complex political, economic, and social environment in which they operate. This will mean that marginal managers will give way to competent ones. It is here that the career opportunities will be found.

It is clear that Americans are not demanding the end of government; they are demanding better government services. A recent Fortune survey indicates that people across the country, regardless of their socio-economic status, are saying that while government is too powerful and spends too much, government services need to be maintained, and in many areas increased.

The current tax protest is based on the belief that government should do what it is doing, but that it should do it more efficiently and more effectively. In this sense, the protest is symbolic. Public officials are being told that they are not managing well.

Acknowledgment of the symbiotic relationship between government and business has resulted in new kinds of professional occupations. Most major businesses have offices of corporate responsibility, governmental liaisons, and retain consultants who keep executives current on the impact of governmental activities. The need for this kind of business-government interface points to the value of a public administration education.

The Proposition 13 cloud which hangs over the field of public administration has a silver lining just as most other clouds do. This silver lining is the reexamination of public sector organizations with the goal of making them more effective and efficient. This will necessitate a body of well-educated, trained, politically sensitive public managers.



Mailbox / $33 Million Swap Meet Contract Never Left County

To the Editor:

With respect to current negotiations between Tel-Phil Enterprises, Inc. and the 32nd District Agricultural Association (Daily Pilot, Sept. 23), the new contract for the "swap meet" that was approved by the fair board and later was voted for reconsideration by the fair board — that contract was not submitted to the Division of Fairs and Expositions so they had no opportunity to balk at endorsing the contract.

The proposed contract was reconsidered because several of the fair board members, after thinking over the action of the July board meeting, believed they had hastily approved a major change in the proposed contract, and that the contract was not equitable.

IT IS true that some members of the fair board were of the opinion that the Division of Fairs and Expositions in Sacramento would be reluctant to approve such a contract for the period of years of the proposed contract.

It is to the credit of the local fair board that they did vote to reconsider a contract with which they were not completely satisfied before they forwarded it on to Sacramento.

Tax System Unequal

To the Editor:

Inequity in any tax system is to the detriment of us all. I find it very unfair to my new neighbors to be paying less than my fair share in ad valorem taxes. In effect, my new neighbor is subsidizing me and my children's education and welfare. I grew up under the work ethic of getting something for nothing was welfare, no matter what label you put on it, or what name you attached to it, it still is welfare.

Poor sucker, he's paying his way and mine too. But he knew, going in, when he bought the new house that he would be paying on the selling price and I would be paying on a rolled back, 1975 value, plus 2 percent. Let's look down the road five or 10 years and see if things get better for my new neighbor. In five years I'll be paying on $66,000 full cash value and he will be paying on $192,000, assuming a 10 percent increase each year.

My subsidy gets bigger and better. Poor guy, I almost feel sorry for him. Hey, wait a minute, what if I want to buy a new house? You mean I have to pay three times more than the other guy! That's not right!

I CAN SEE the headlines now, Standard Oil on Welfare. Hold everything, that can't be right. How in the world can Standard Oil be on welfare? This is the era of a dollar a gallon for gasoline and excess profits. Gee, I never thought of it, but when is the last time Standard Oil sold property and was revaluated?

"In 1978, residential properties accounted for 64 percent of total real property value and commercial-industrial property 36 percent; this year we estimate residential property is 72 percent of the total and commercial-industrial only 28 percent.

"All property owners are very pleased with the lower tax bills brought about by Proposition 13. What may not be as well understood is the fact that the homeowner is bearing an ever-increasing share of property tax burden while business is, and will predictably continue to pay a smaller share. The primary explanation of this shift is very simple: Single family homes tend to be bought and sold at the same rate as before Proposition 13; business properties do not change hands as often and, therefore, do not get reappraised as often." News from the Assessor, Los Angeles County.

What ever happened to fair taxation? Let's be real, let's go back to a market approach, where all taxpayers are taxed equally, at a fair market value. Let's all pull together and get Standard Oil off welfare. Welfare you and I are paying for.

Loggers' Lament

To the Editor:

My husband Mike and I and our family moved to Coffman Cove on Prince of Wales Island in southeast Alaska in 1967 to establish a logging camp.

There were no trailer houses, no sewers, no electricity, no school, no movies, no scheduled weekly freight boat, no dock, no airplane float, no fuel storage, and only 12 miles of road. We worked very hard to develop a campsite and move in the men and their families and still put logs in the water that season.

IN THE YEARS we've spent here, all of our improvements have been made after regular working hours. Fulfilling our obligation as contract loggers always came first . . . comforts last. We are proud of our piquant community of 184 souls, of our profession and our state.

We work six days a week with Sunday off: our business must be handled by mail. ALL business. We have no TV, no telephones. Our sole connection with the outside world is radio.

Radio contact is often impossible and always public . . . something like having 100 people on one party line. When there is an emergency and you can't get ahold of the operator, it can be very painful. . . We lost a child once.

IT COSTS $80 round trip by seaplane to fly to Ketchikan (70 air miles) and the flight takes 45 minutes IF you go straight to town and aren't on a milk run. If you have your own boat it takes four hours . . . IF . . . weather permits. We are ISOLATED.

Because of government regulations, we are not allowed to build houses; we live in trailer houses. We have diligently complied with ALL regulations invented by the government . . . at the cost of many Sundays and dollars.

We would love to own land and homes right here in spite of the sacrifices . . . we love the wildness that is Alaska.

AT THIS moment, we live at the mercy of EVERY Congressman of EVERY state. We are allowed to reside here ONLY because of a timber sale contract, a contract initiated by the U.S. government.

We are just one of many camps faced with the very real threat of being done out of our jobs and homes by Congressional action.

I ask all users of wood and wood products . . . Is the price of ruling whole communities out of existence and never utilizing already overripe forests . . . worth the thrill someone might get out of seeing Alaska preserved forever as a National Museum in the name of wilderness?

AFTERMATH. . .

eligible for federal and state funding of emergency work, and housing assistance for the residents displaced by the slide.

Where city, state and federal officials came to loggerheads was in determining how much work would be done at state and federal expense.

The presidential disaster declaration was of a limited nature, making funds available only for emergency work necessary to protect the area from further sliding.

City officials, led by former City Manager Fred Solomon, contended construction of two earth buttresses would improve stability to the neighborhood and protect a drainage pipe at the bottom of Bluebird Canyon Road.

After much wrangling, including lobbying by Bluebird residents in Washington, D.C., the federal disaster agency concurred the work was of an emergency nature, and by May of this year, more than $1.6 million in federal funds had been committed to the city for stabilizing the fragile knoll.

The controversy led to much anxiety by Bluebird residents, who feared they might never be able to rebuild their homes.

Ironically, the federally funded "emergency" work resulted in stabilizing the slide, making it possible for reconstruction of the neighborhood for homes.

Cost of reconnecting roads and utilities to the area was another obstacle tackled by the city and Bluebird residents.

That $300,000 project is already under way in Bluebird Canyon, with funding split between the city and the state's Office of Emergency Services. The city's portion will come from federal Housing and Community development funds, gas taxes and other sources, with the city picking up only about $13,000 of the total cost.

The work is expected to be completed by mid-December, which will mean the remaining 13 families in homes not destroyed in the slide will be able to return to their homes.

Another 11 families were expected to move back into their homes this week, but will have to use PortaPotties and temporary utilities until permanent installation of phone, gas, water and electrical niceties.

And while they'll be celebrating in the canyon Tuesday morning, the remaining homeless slide victims still face many problems before they even begin reconstruction.

For one thing, full rent subsidies through the federal Housing and Urban Development agency will run out Tuesday, and most residents, who are now renting homes, don't know how much they'll be getting in rent assistance after that date.

Steve and Judy Wander, who used to live at 948 Meadowlark Lane before their home was destroyed, have been renting a home in Laguna Beach for the past year.

They pay $650 a month for the house, and the federal rent assistance picks up $450 of that.

"We'll be getting partial assistance after this month, and even getting that was critical," said Judy Wander.

"HUD said at one time all subsidies would be cut off Tuesday.

Dick and Barbara Harley, who are currently renting a home in the Top of the World neighborhood, say their $550 monthly payments are covered by the rent subsidy through January, because they waited to apply for the assistance.

But it's not just the end to rent subsidies that have Bluebird Canyon victims worried.

Most received a year's moratorium from their lending instutions, and have not made house payments since the disaster.

"We're currently only paying interest on our loan," said Mrs. Wander, adding her family is one of the few making any payments to the bank.

"One problem we face is the banks haven't decided how they will help us, if they will help us."

She said she is hoping for some form of flexible financing, but fears some residents might have to make a full restitution for the months they did not pay the principal and interest on their homes.

Adding to the worries of the homeless victims, is recent action by the regional coastal commission.

Bluebird resident Dick Harley was the first to test the coastal commission waters earlier this month when he presented plans for his home before the panel in Huntington Beach.

The regional commission has imposed conditions on the project that require Harley to relinquish any rights to public disaster funds due to landslides.

The condition does not specify whether that means last year's earth movement, or future landslides, and the condition also says the property "must be free of prior encumbrances except for tax liens," before a permit is issued.

Harley says that would mean he has to pay off the mortgage on his destroyed home before he can rebuild on his former lot.

And although coastal commission officials say the clause was not intended to include trust deeds or taxes, Harley says a legal interpretation of the conditions will be necessary before he can get permits.

"Everytime you think you have things ironed out," he said, "something pops up — more bureaucratic surprises."

"The past year has been one of great achievement," said Mrs. Wander, "dotted with many setbacks.

"I was feeling a little cocky, but when the coastal commission set down their permanent conditions that make it practically impossible to rebuild, I once again realized I won't believe I'm back on the hill until I turn the key in the front door."

New Freedoms Spell Family Crisis

Therapist Emphasizes Action, What's Right Not Wrong

By JOHN BARBOUR

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — When that front door closes, it shuts the rest of the world out, and the American family in. What happens behind that door becomes the business of Dr. Rodney Shapiro of the University of Rochester.

His focus is the family, that makeshift amalgam of personalities reputed by many experts to be in deep personal trouble.

What goes on behind that front door is often unconscious, non-communicative behavior which erupts sometimes in anger, violence.

"AS MUCH AS WE are fascinated by what happens in families, there's a tremendous reluctance to interfere in any way," Dr. Shapiro says. "This is one of the problems with violence, by the way. People are reluctant to intrude on the family system. You see parents destroying their children, but nobody wants to raise a finger. They even had to write legislation to permit people to report child abuse."

The American family may be sacrosanct, but it is not protected from the new freedom, new realities, Dr. Shapiro says.

"By and large, the American family is still very comforming, very tied in, afraid of major changes — economic, sexual, divorce, anything. It will tolerate incredible unhappiness at times rather than face these issues."

For many, the old, extended family, living in the same neighborhood, establishing a family criteria for behavior, is gone.

IT'S ONE REASON for the increase in divorce. "People are just not willing to tolerate what they used to. Our parents and grandparents were willing to tolerate a great deal of deprivation in their marriages, and most were unhappy . . . .

"But most people never left their wives and husbands because it would not be tolerated by the extended family to whom they were accountable. They had five cousins living down the road, an uncle, grandfather, mother. They couldn't do that to them. We are no longer tied to the extended family. Most of us don't live near them, and that gives us more freedom."

Dr. Shapiro meets with families personally and as an observer behind one-way windows. He hears the hidden frustrations, hears them say things to one another that really mean something else.

"It's funny how often parents will say, I must have done something wrong, but I don't know what. How rarely they say, I must have done something right, but I don't know what."

His family clinic has a philosophy of what is wrong. He explains:

"The traditional psychiatric model is to view mental disorder as some kind of defect or illness in a person. The ways to treat that person varies from exploring the history of what went wrong to using behavior therapy or whatever. But the basic assumption is that there is something wrong with the person.

"Our approach is rather to see any kind of a mental disorder as a reflection of disordered relationships. We do not view an individual as sick, but as part of a sick relationship."

In the wing of the University of Rochester Medical Center where the family unit works, Dr. Shapiro and his fellow psychologists try to translate family members to each other by getting them to talk.

TALK — REAL TALK — is frequently a healing process for the family. The psychologist only interposes a question or two.

"Suddenly, there's a bridge that wasn't there before," Dr. Shapiro says. "They start talking to each other and in 10 minutes, there are tears and feelings flying in the room. People are making sense as human beings.

Most of the time, but not always. The psychotic family "will break your heart." What makes them psychotic; makes them impervious to any reason.

THERE ARE OTHER instances where families are totally violent. A separated father comes home without warning to see his kids. They have made other plans. He gets angry and beats them up. When he leaves, they beat each other up. The mother intervenes forcefully, and they beat her up.

Dr. Shapiro insists that everyone is the victim of violence. The violence comes out of the relationship.

In some families, a woman will tell the psychologist, "I know exactly when my husband is going to hit me."

"They know that guy better than they know themselves," Dr. Shapiro says, "and they feel driven at times to provoke him to that point."

Violence is generally defined as physical attack with intention to hurt. Dr. Shapiro thinks that in perhaps nine out of 10 marriages, someone, sometimes gets angry enough to lash out.

Violence is only one poorly defined element of family behavior. To help make sense out of a family, Dr. Shapiro and his coworkers create a kind of family crisis tree, labeling what happened to parents, grandparents, listing more current crises and milestones like courtship, first jobs, home purchase, births, deaths. Often themes emerge that the family is unaware of, yet which form a matrix of family behavior.

HIRING MILLIONS OF PEOPLE TO WORK ON UNITED WAY WOULD NOT BE EFFICIENT.

GETTING THEM TO WORK FOR NOTHING IS.

The big reason why United Way can do so much for so many is that a lot of big hearted Americans contribute countless millions of hours every year. Free of charge. Volunteers do everything from collecting money to deciding how it will be used in their local communities. So administrative costs are low, and more can be spent on needed services.
And that's how United Way works. And why.
United Way
Thanks to you it works. For all of us.

Philippine Stop Keeps Travelers in Stitches

By Stan Delaplane

MANILA—The tailored suits we got in Hong Kong for $50 are now $150. Maybe more. But — "Buy your fabrics in H.K. and stop over in Manila on your way home. Get your tailoring done there."

Friend of mine discovered this. (I've traveled with him all over the world. He's a demon shopper.)

"MANILA TAILORS DON'T mind if you bring in your own cloth. I had sports jackets made for $15 U.S. Slacks for $10. Bush jacket for $10. You can get silk in Hong Kong for $10 a yard that would cost you $30 in the U.S.

"Great hotels now in Manila. As always the weather would boil a lobster but the hotels are air-conditioned.

"Best tailoring shop for men is Chardin. They made jeans for me — cowboy slash pockets and all — for $7. They're denim. They make it in the Philippines. No matter what anybody tells you, denim shrinks. So have the waist made a half inch more than you measure.

"LEAVE THE BOTTOMS unhemmed. Wash them a few times when you get home. THEN have them hemmed to the right length."

We've both bought tailored shirts in H.K. "Don't do it again," he says. "At $25 to $[illegible] a shirt, I can do as well from a shirtmaker at home."

High rents push H.K. prices up. The Colony is crowded. Landowners have no mercy on the merchant tenant.

FORMER BRITISH P.R. about Japan: "Tourist bureaus in the Far East don't advertise it — (and probably will duck if you ask) — but these countries DON'T want black tourists. The half-black children of the Occupation have mostly gone to Brazil.

"For that matter, Japan doesn't care if it gets ANY tourists. They sell the rest of the world enough that we've all got big deficit balances.

"They've taken steel business away from Britain. After the war, they put in modern mills. The British steel mills are older and not as efficient.

"NOW THEY'RE GOING after the Americans with electronic products and cars.

He said: "Japanese really don't like to have ANY foreigners around. For example, they've taken 15 — ONLY 15 — of the boat people refugees. A token gesture."

UPDATE ON BAJA California. A news we're right on the Twin Dolphin. Costs $100 a day double, meals included. Swiss chef. OK beaches and fine pool. Best of all at the tip of the Baja peninsula.

"If the price sounds high, we paid $26 for a motel-like nest in Mazatlan. And it cost $50 a day to eat out. For $24 a day more, the extreme luxury of the Twin Dolphin turns out to be a good value.

"Most hotels are isolated. Taxis will break you. Car rentals at $20 a day plus mileage eat you alive. Nothing much to do in the two small towns anyway."

"LA PALOMA IS THE handicraft shop in San Lucas. Locally hand-carved ironwood sharks, eight inches long, cost $61 U.S. (!) (But it's art, baby.)

Cheapest hotel down here is Mar de Cortez at $16 a day. No meals. Caters to serious fishermen who only want a place to fall down after a day on the sea.

"Hotel Cabo San Lucas and Palmilla, the oldest luxury resorts, go $60, $70, $80 a day. The rich can rent one villa at Hotel Cabo for $700.

"The tourist board says they're starting construction of a big, big complex. Enough for 3,000 hotel rooms and 17 thousand inhabitants.

"There goes the neighborhood."

MEXICO TOURIST construction looks frightening on paper: On the island of Cozumel and mainland Quintana Roo, $125 million development by an Italian company.

In Punta Banda (north part of Baja) California money will build hotels, motels, golf courses and living rooms for 5,000 workers.

Railway Readies Repeat

Pacific Southwest Railway Museum Association's annual one-day rail trip to Puerto Penasco, Mexico, is scheduled for Saturday, Nov. 3.

This excursion is open to the public. Advanced reservations are required.

DIRECTOR Jim Lundquist said the special train will leave the Calexico-Mexicali International Border crossing at 8:30 a.m. and will return about 9 p.m.

Participants may either drive their automobiles directly to Calexico or may ride special connecting buses from San Diego, La Mesa or Escondido.

The chartered train for this trip will be run by the Ferrocarrel Sonora-Baja California, a railroad which connects Baja California and northwest Sonora with the Mexican mainland.

WHILE IN Puerto Penasco visitors may view waterfront activities, visit downtown shops and attend a reception at a downtown hotel. Free bus transportation will be available.

An information brochure may be obtained from PSRMA, P.O. Box 12096, San Diego, 92112 or by phoning (714) 224-4381.

Estimate Snowfall

Palm Springs Aerial Tramway's annual Snowfall Guessing contest begins Monday. Entrants are invited to guess the date of the first measurable inch of snow at the 8,516-foot mountain station.

The 10 correct entries with the earliest postmarks will win two of the Tram's Ride 'n Dine combinations.

Mail postcards only to Snowfall, Palm Springs Aerial Tramway, P.O. Drawer FF, Palm Springs, 92263. The first inch fell on Nov. 10 last year.

Law Cracking Down on Teens

Punishment Toughens As Violence Rises

NEW YORK (AP) — Until the mid-1850s, they sentenced 12-year-olds to death in England. In America, anyone older than 14 was tried as an adult. Before that, the Puritans labeled as criminals children who were rude or disobedient to their parents.

But as the western world moved into the 20th century, that Oliver Twist approach softened, gave way to new concepts of children's culpability. Laws were passed to mete out justice "in the best interests" of a miscreant child. They were tried in separate courts, sent to reformatories, placed in other remedial programs.

Now the pendulum is swinging back in the face of a series of violent and well-publicized crimes by teen-agers — a 13-year-old sitting on a Harlem stoop casually pulls out a pistol and casually guns down a 16-year-old passerby; a 15-year-old murders a policeman during a Maryland robbery; two teen-age inmates are murdered in a California Youth Authority reformatory. From coast to coast, more and more teen-agers commit heinous and senseless crimes.

SO NEW YORK, ONCE considered the nation's most liberal state, has a new law under which 13-year-olds can be tried as adults. Traditionally liberal Massachusetts is about to enact a law requiring juvenile repeaters to be tried as adults, and Illinois is also cracking down on multiple offenders.

California has increased the prison term for youthful murderers and gives prosecutors more leeway in prosecuting juveniles. Even relatively crime-free Iowa has a new criminal code with mandatory sentences for violent criminals that can be applied also to juveniles.

THE IRONY IS that juvenile crime appears to be decreasing after rising for nearly two decades. According to FBI crime statistics, arrests nationwide of children under 18 increased 283 percent between 1960 and 1975 — from less than 600,000 to almost 1.7 million. In 1977, the last year for which there are final reports, arrests were down to 1.24 million.

Criminologists attribute the drop to fewer teen-agers — children born during the postwar baby boom have reached adulthood. But they're at a loss to explain the upsurge in violence by teen-agers. The most recent FBI figures show that 48 percent of those arrested for violent crimes — murder, rape, assault — were youths under 18.

Some experts think the crackdown stems as much from the publicity given crime as from the crimes themselves.

Nonetheless, experts from the liberal to the hard-line have agreed for years that changes were needed in juvenile justice laws still operating from a base in early 20th century reform morality. For one thing, they say, many were too harsh and too lenient at the same time. Some kids literally were getting away with murder, while others were jailed for offenses that wouldn't be crimes if committed by an adult.

The old system was based on the premise that juvenile offenders were reformable. It was a revolving door — arrested youngsters came and went through a cycle of warnings, probation, foster homes, community care and reformatories.

A MAJORITY OF those arrested — 80 percent by some estimates — are what the system calls "status offenders." A kid is caught scrawling graffitti on a subway train; another's a petty thief, a truant, a runaway, a schoolhouse brawler, a beer drinker or a pot smoker. Often, the system had no provisions for separating them from the mugger or armed robber. Arrested, they'd be shipped off to juvenile detention centers until it was determined what to do with them. There, for a day or a week or a month, they were exposed to more serious offenders.

The new approach draws a sharp distinction between petty offenders and kids guilty of serious crimes, and it's more ready to separate the wheat from the chaff.

Variations in juvenile justice from state to state and locality to locality remain striking.

IN NEW YORK CITY, a 17-year-old arrested for mugging and killing an 81-year-old woman is promptly released on $500 bail. He fled, was caught in North Carolina and was eventually convicted of second-degree murder.

In southern New Jersey, a youth without prior record is sentenced to a year in prison for possession of marijuana. Locked up with adult convicts, he becomes schizophrenic, is transferred to a mental institution. The state supreme court overturns his conviction, two years too late.

In upstate New York, a 16-year-old gets 30 days in jail for stealing half a dozen apples from an orchard. It's his first offense.

In south central Los Angeles, one of that city's highest crime areas, a central Juvenile Justice Center processes all arrests. In a city where justice is often of the assembly line variety, it's more like a small town court. "Certain systems . . . preclude people from being human," says Judge David V. Kenyon. "This one doesn't."

FRANK JARECKI IN FLIGHT SUIT STANDS NEXT TO MIG FIGHTER

Defector a 'Hero'

Ex-Red Pilot Now U.S. Millionaire

ERIE, Pa. (AP) — Twenty-six years after he fled across the Iron Curtain in his MIG fighter, Frank Jarecki's life story still reads like a Cold War adventure tale.

Jarecki, honored as the top young flyer in Poland and entrusted with the most sophisticated Soviet aircraft of the day, abandoned career and country in 1953 in a 60-mile dash over the Baltic Sea to Denmark.

He became a hero of the Western world, feted by heads of state, photographed with Hollywood film stars, sought after by television and magazine interviewers and consulted by the U.S. Air Force.

"I WAS SPOILED," he reflects now. "I was making money from the magazines, from television, from people sending me money. I was making speeches. I used to travel. Everything was too good to believe."

His success on March 5, 1953, was a triumph of luck and nerve.

He only knew that the Danish island of Bornholm lay north across the Baltic from his air station. From a propaganda cartoon he once saw he surmised there was an American air base on the island.

"WHEN YOU'RE YOUNG, you don't think about things," he says. "Like what the hell you're going to do, how you're going to talk to those people, that you'd be lucky to to get a job sweeping the streets.

"I just wanted to do it, that's it. Without thinking of the consequences.

So, as he flew with his squadron on patrol toward the German border, Jarecki peeled off to the north.

"I had heard the day before that Stalin was sick, so I said, 'I'm going to get medicine for Papa Stalin,'" he says. "I heard in my radio, '731 escaping, 731 escaping.' And I could hear the Russian colonel back at the base screaming at me, 'Come back, come back.'"

Jarecki had no map as he streaked over the Baltic, dropping his extra fuel tanks for speed to outrace the chase planes he knew were already after him.

"I knew I'd never see my mother again. I'd never see my friends. I'd never see the land. I didn't know where the hell I was going. All those things come into your head," he recalls. "I remember looking at the clouds and saying, 'Well, that's it. I don't know if I will ever be able to come back and see Poland.'"

JARECKI HAS COME a long way since his defection. To many his life seems too good to believe. Communist society was paying him honors and a good living, capitalism has made him a millionaire.

A decade ago he opened a machine shop with $40,000 in savings and a lot of confidence. Last year Jarecki Industries had sales of more than $4 million, producing heavy precision valves for power plants, industry and the government. He also owns a fork lift distributorship and several warehouses. He has a pretty wife, kids, a house, and boats.

"The way my life has been planned," he says, "it's just like a dream."

His only serious regret is that he had to leave his mother behind in Poland. His father was killed in World War II, and he had no brothers or sisters. His mother is now his only living relative.

"After I left they put her in prison," he said. "She was there three years until the Hungarian revolution. Then there was a change in the government and they let her out."

But Polish authorities twice denied her petition to visit her son. Jarecki keeps in touch with his mother through friends and says she is in

HOW SPACE BASE ON MARTIAN MOON PHOBOS MAY LOOK

Soviets Gaining

Space Supremacy Race Tightens

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a series of record manned flights, the Russian space program has rebounded from the moon race setback and the Soviets are pushing it aggressively as a sign of national power.

For more than a year, cosmonauts have been almost constantly in space, establishing a strong military presence and building toward space stations, colonies, orbiting factories and a long stated dream of sending humans to the planets.

The push comes as the United States is wrestling with technical problems with its new space shuttle and the nation's future in space is clouded by money restraints.

THE SOVIETS seek to dominate again as they did in the first decade of the space age after Sputnik.

The United States, its technical pride bruised, then fought back with the Apollo program and landed the first man on the moon. The Russians lost out when the big lunar rocket they were developing failed repeatedly in tests, and they gave up.

America took charge in the late 1960s and the first half of this decade with six manned trips to the moon's surface and the Skylab space station. But America has not sent a man into space since 1975, while it has concentrated on readying the shuttle, still a year away from its first launch — nearly two years behind schedule.

SO, FOR four years, American astronauts have been on the sidelines while 26 Russian cosmonauts have vaulted into orbit and wrested away all the space endurance records that had been set in Skylab. More important, those cosmonauts have acquired a vast amount of experience in how to operate in space for military, scientific and practical purposes.

The most recent Russian cosmonaut crew returned to Earth Aug. 19 after a record 175 days — nearly six months — in the Salyut 6 space station.

Soviet cosmonauts now have logged a total of 35,775 hours in space. The Americans have 22,493 hours.

The Russians also have an active unmanned program. Last year they orbited 138 payloads, while the U.S. launched 41.

Lt. Gen. Thomas P. Stafford, the Air Force's deputy chief of staff for research and development, recently told Congress that America's military satellite systems are being challenged by an expanding Soviet space program that includes killer satellites.

He says the Russian effort is forcing the Air Force to perfect measures to protect U.S. spy and other military satellites from jamming, killer satellites and other attempts to render them useless.

"Their manned program is very impressive," says Dr. Charles S. Sheldon II of the Library of Congress, who for many years has analyzed the Soviet space program and advised Congress on its progress.

HE SAYS there is additional evidence that Russia is developing a reusable spaceship like the U.S. shuttle.

Other government sources said the Soviet shuttle development program trails that of the United States by several years, and in some technical areas it is a decade behind.

How does the Russian effort compare with that of the United States?

Although the United States has not launched men into space since 1975, it has put a major effort into developing the shuttle, which will take off like a rocket and land like a glider on an air strip. It will be capable of hundreds of roundtrips into space, and will be used for military applications and scientific missions.

National Aeronautics and Space Administration and Defense Department officials believe that once a full shuttle fleet of four or five vehicles is operational in 1983 or 1984, the United States will have a strong edge on the Soviets in space.

DEFECTOR 'HERO'. . .

good health at age 66 in Wieliczka and wants nothing more than to see him.

"Every time she writes, that's what she mentions," he says.

Jarecki's biggest problem was language, but he solved that with a stint at Alliance College near Erie, a small school owned by an association of Polish organizations. In 1957 he graduated from UCLA, and the hustling began.

"I WAS 12 YEARS selling. I ran a machine shop I made industrial soaps. I used to pull into gas stations and trade them whitewall tire cleaner to fill up my tank. I'd get out to show them how good it worked."

By 1969 he had saved $40,000, and friends were urging him to open his own machine shop.

"I was a little bit scared," he recalls. "I think to myself I wasn't born here. I'm going to have some tough competition."

With his savings and a loan, he bought out a small shop.

Today his business fills a large building, and Jarecki's reputation for precision work is good enough that he has no sales force. The orders come in by themselves, and he takes them personally.

SHORT, HANDSOME and still trim at 47, Jarecki spends much of his time among his craftsmen, many of them Polish, shouting bilingual instructions above the roar of the machinery.

On the walls of the rooms he uses for offices hang mementoes of Jarecki's days in the limelight, pictures of him with Groucho Marx, Clark Gable and Art Linkletter.

In one photo, Jarecki sits watching President Dwight Eisenhower sign a proclamation in his honor while Sen. John Kennedy and Rep. Gerald Ford look on with other dignitaries.

IN A DESK drawer somewhere is a movie contract offered by Howard Hughes and RKO studios. He never signed it.

"They were all fighting for a percentage," he says. "I met Hedda Hopper. She told me she would help me get into the movies. I told her I am going back to college. I am not a movie person. I cannot play a character. I like to do things."

Trojans Prove They're Only Human

Special to the Daily Pilot Staff

BATON ROUGE, La.—All season long, John Robinson has been saying the USC Trojans are nothing more than your basic college football powerhouse. And for the most part, his words went unheeded.

But Saturday, in a place nicknamed Death Valley, the Trojans proved him right.

LOSING TWO OF FIVE FUMBLES, throwing one interception and stopping several drives with untimely penalties, the Trojans looked anything but unbeatable. It took a last-minute drive covering 79 yards, capped by Paul McDonald's eight-yard touchdown pass to Kevin Williams with 32 seconds left, for the Trojans to turn back a charged-up LSU squad, 17-12.

"Don't put us on a pedestal; we still need to improve," Robinson said after surviving his first scare of the season.

Asked afterwards if USC had finally been challenged, he erupted. "My God, didn't you go to the game?" he asked in amazement. "This is as much of a test as I need to have. This was an equal football game.

"The tide seemed to slip back and forth 15 times. It was a war."

The winning pass needed no description other than game-winner.

"Let's just call it a 'when-you-want-a-touchdown' pass," he said. "USC has the heart of a champion. We came back in a very hostile environment. I was most impressed with the comeback."

LSU COACH CHARLIE McCLENDON, who is retiring after this season, couldn't have been prouder of his unheralded team.

"I couldn't have asked them to give me more than they did," he said. "LSU just played a very good football team tonight and we deserved to be in there with them to the end.

"But after this game, we serve notice that we're going to be ready for some people."

LSU certainly was ready Saturday night.

Through three quarters, the game belonged to the Tigers, spurred on by 78,322 screaming fans who did their best to disrupt USC's communication at the line of scrimmage.

THE NATION'S 20TH RANKED team which will undoubtedly move up in the polls despite the loss, LSU built a 12-3 lead on a 13-yard TD pass from Steve Ensminger to Leroid Jones and field goals of 32 and 28 yards by Don Barthel.

USC, which had racked up 111 points in its first three games, was held to a lone field goal through three quarters. In that span, the Trojans turned the ball over twice and missed a pair of field goals.

But Charles White, who would gain 185 yards on 31 carries, started the comeback with a four-yard TD run with 9:54 remaining.

With 5:52 to go, fullback Marcus Allen fumbled the ball away but USC got it right back less than two minutes later. From then on, it was vintage Trojan football.

QUARTERBACK PAUL McDONALD passed 14 yards to Vic Rakhshani, 15 yards to Dan Garcia and 17 yards to Hoby Brenner. Along with a face mask penalty on a crucial third down play, that moved the ball to the LSU 10-yard line.

Throughout the troubled night, White tried to provide USC with a calming influence. His 185-yard performance moved him up a notch into eighth place on the all-time NCAA rushing list with 4,172 yards.

OHIO STATE CORNERBACK MIKE GUESS TRIES TO STEAL A PASS FROM UCLA FLANKER WILLIE CURRAN.

Buckeyes Rally

Bruins Cut Off At Pass, 17-13

By ROGER CARLSON
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

LOS ANGELES Ohio State's Buckeyes, famed for their plodding, but usually effective ground-oriented style of football, survived UCLA's version of run, run, run Saturday and rallied to post a 17-13 victory.

Before a Coliseum crowd of 47,228 and a national television audience, the Buckeyes used 95 seconds in blitzing 80 yards for the winning touchdown with 46 seconds remaining to take their only lead of the game.

Quarterback Art Schlichter, a sophomore, completed passes of 3, 14, 11, 9 and 22 yards, along with a 15-yard face mask penalty to put the Buckeyes on the UCLA two-yard line.

OHIO STATE COACH Earle Bruce then elected to send tailback Calvin Murray through the line without the ball and Schlichter had an easy lob to tight end Paul Campbell for the winning touchdown.

Thus the Bruins fall to 2-2 with Stanford next week on tap for their Pac-10 opener despite dominating the second half in time-consuming (but fruitless) drives and a day of field position advantage.

"We controlled the ball—but we didn't come away with any points," said outside linebacker Larry Hall in his first ever start for the Bruins.

THAT ABOUT TOLD the story. The Bruins did control the issue. But they couldn't convert ball control into points.

The Bruins ran, ran, ran, but when it came time to produce points, the running game couldn't do it with the Buckeyes backed up against their own goal.

"Ohio State showed a lot of character to come back," said UCLA Coach Terry Donahue. "They had a long way to go and not much time to do it."

THEY ALSO SHOWED the willingness to put the ball in the air when it appeared a touchdown would be a smart thing to do, unlike UCLA after the first quarter.

The Bruins enjoyed a marked advantage in the first half, thanks to field position as they took possession on the Ohio State 49 and 13 and their own 45, 43, 40 and 20.

Ohio State, meanwhile, was forced to try to get a sustained drive going at least 70 yards away at all times.

QUARTERBACK RICK Rashore, an Edison High product and three-year starter for the Bruins, hit his first three pass attempts for 34 yards in the first quarter, including his eight-yard strike to Willie Curran deep in the end zone.

Billy Don Jackson had sacrificed his body by literally swallowing a Tom Orosz punt at the OSU 13 to set the Bruins up.

Rams Running Out of Patience, Excuses

By JOHN SEVANO
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

LOS ANGELES — Patience.

In the dictionary it's defined as "calm endurance."

Just how much more Los Angeles Rams fans will endure and how much longer they'll remain calm should be demonstrated quickly this afternoon (1 o'clock) when the Rams host the St. Louis Cardinals at the Coliseum.

TO SAY THE RAMS have been mediocre (2-2) thus far would be an understatement, and last Sunday in Tampa Bay it appeared their ineptness reached a peak.

Just what Coach Ray Malavasi is going to do to shake his team from its lethargic doldrums is hard to say. But something has to be done . . . and he knows it.

His new passing offense is a flop, and his alleged game-breakers are on the bench.

IT'S BECOME APPARENT Pat Haden is going to have to throw something more than two-yard passes, and Lawrence McCutcheon should be put out to pasture.

Despite their youth and inexperience, Elvis Peacock, Wendell Tyler, Eddie Hill and Preston Dennard have to see more action.

The Ram defense can't carry the load, as it has been the first four games of the year.

AND, TO MAKE THINGS tougher, the Rams are going to have their hands full with the Cardinals (1-3), who have suffered two heart-breaking losses.

Cardinal quarterback Jim Hart is throwing as well as ever, and rookie running back Ottis Anderson is pounding out yardage against every team he's faced thus far.

The last time these two teams met was in 1976 when Jim Bakken kicked a field goal with four seconds left to beat the Rams, 30-28. The Rams hold a 9-8-1 overall edge.

COMMENTARY

THE CARDINALS are currently in fourth place in the NFC's Central Division, although they've played well enough to be tied for first.

The only game the Cardinals were really lost in was last Sunday's defeat (17-7) to Washington. Otherwise, they played Dallas (22-21) and Pittsburgh (24-21) hard despite losing.

Unfortunately, the Rams can't say they've played anybody hard.

After going through an undefeated pre-season, the Rams lost badly to Oakland, barely survived Denver, squeaked past San Francisco and were embarrassed by Tampa Bay.

ONE THING the Rams can legitimately point to is injuries. Having already lost four players for the season, it was learned guard Dennis Harrah will be out two to six weeks with a fracture of the right fibula. And guard Doug Smith is definitely out of today's game with a knee sprain.

Others who are listed as probables are Larry Brooks (knee-ankle), Dennard (calf), Fred Dryer (neck), Eddie Hill (pinched nerve), Rod Perry (knee) and Sid Justin (thigh).

With the fans' patience running thin, today would be a good time for the Rams to show they're not looking to walk through the 1979 season living on past laurels.

But that's going to depend on how many points the Rams put on the board, and how they go about putting them there.

What it boils down to is things are not going to come easy for the Rams . . . but, then, when have they this season?

Bucs Keep Expos Alive

Pittsburgh Loss, Montreal Win Cuts Lead

From AP Dispatches

PITTSBURGH — Willie Stargell made the wild throw that made the difference as the Chicago Cubs beat the pennant-contending Pittsburgh Pirates, 7-6, in 13 innings Saturday.

But Stargell's teammates shrugged off the miscue and his game-ending strikeout. They saluted him — though the Pirates had their National League East lead reduced to one game over the Montreal Expos.

"Willie didn't do anything wrong today. He's still the most valuable player on our team," said Manager Chuck Tanner.

"Without 'Pops' we wouldn't be where we are today," said Dave Parker. "He'll be back tomorrow, and we'll be back tomorrow."

Second-place Montreal beat Philadelphia 3-2 earlier Saturday, so the Pirates' lead was cut to one game and their title-clinching magic number remained at two.

Expos 3, Phillies 2

MONTREAL — With their ninth-inning heroics out of the way in the frantic East division race, the Montreal Expos immediately turned their attention to more urgent matters.

"I'm so worried about this Pittsburgh game," said Ellis Valentine, cocking an ear to a radio in the clubhouse, "that I can't think of anything else right now. We need a Pittsburgh defeat real badly."

The Expos remained in the battle when pinch-hitter Dave Cash scored pinch-runner Tim Raines from third with a ninth-inning single, giving Montreal a 3-2 triumph over Philadelphia.

"A lot of credit for this victory goes to the other guys," said Cash. "Sure I got the last hit, but don't forget that Valentine got a hit to lead it off and Larry Parrish moved him over with a beautiful bunt.

"Bill Lee did a heck of a job before that to keep us in the game," Cash added, referring to Lee's nine-hit performance over the first 7⅔ innings.

Lee handed a 2-1 lead to reliever Elias Sosa, but the Phillies tied it in the top half of the ninth on a run-scoring single by pinch-hitter Tim McCarver.

Galloping Gittens

Arizona State's Willie Gittens, a graduate of Fountain Valley High, rambles for yardage in the Sun Devils' 45-0 rout over Oregon State Saturday.

Margerum Is Cards' Star

Michigan Needs Rally to Slip Past Cal

From AP Dispatches

STANFORD — Ken Margerum made three touchdown catches and set up a field goal with another reception to ignite Stanford's 500th football victory, a 33-14 triumph Saturday over Boston College.

John Elway, the Cardinals' freshman quarterback, threw the first touchdown passes of his college career, two to Margerum in the third period and a third to Gordon Banks late in the game.

Stanford evened its record for this season, the school's 85th, at 2-2, going into next Saturday's Pacific-10 opener against UCLA.

Margerum, a Fountain Valley High grad who led the Pac-10 in receiving last season, made a diving catch of a 33-yard pass from Turk Schonert in the second period, and Ken Naber kicked a 22-yard field goal soon after for the game's first points. Later in the quarter, Schonert hit Margerum with a four-yard touchdown pass.

Elway's scoring passes to Margerum covered 14 and 17 yards. The receiver totaled nine catches for 120 yards and his three touchdown catches tied a Stanford single-game record shared by Gene Washington and James Lofton.

Michigan 14, California 10

BERKELEY — Michael Harden recovered two key fumbles and John Wangler brought alive a sluggish Michigan offense as the 11th-ranked Wolverines came from behind to beat previously undefeated California, 14-10.

Harden's recovery of a California fumble on the second-half kickoff set up Michigan's first score, a three-yard run by Stan Edwards, which cut the Cal lead to 10-7.

Harden also recovered a fumble early in the fourth quarter which stopped a drive by Cal.

A third fumble recovery, this time by Ron Simpkins, helped preserve Michigan's lead after the Wolverines went ahead on another three-yard run late in the third quarter, this one by Lawrence Reid.

The loss was the first of the season for California, and left both teams with 3-1 records.

Michigan was unable to score more than the two touchdowns because its two placekickers, Ali Hagi-Sheikh and Bryan Virgil missed five field goal attempts.

Wangler, who hit only four of 13 passes in the first half while Michigan was being shut out, completed five of seven passes for 137 yards in the second half. He finished with more than 200 yards passing.

Purdue 13, Oregon 7

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. — Sophomore tailback Wally Jones rushed for a career-high 156 yards and scored twice on two-yard runs as 10-ranked Purdue edged Oregon, 13-7, in non-conference college football.

The Boilermakers, taking to the ground more than usual, lost the ball twice on fumbles inside the Oregon 10-yard line.

Jones, who had 30 carries for the day, scored the winning touchdown with 4:37 left, climaxing a 16-play, 94-yard drive during which Purdue converted three times on third-down plays to keep the push alive. A 14-yard pass interference play against the Ducks also helped move Purdue toward the winning score.

Purdue, 3-1, moved 64 yards in 12 plays taking a 7-0 advantage in the second quarter. Freshman tailback Jimmy Smith had six carries for 31 of those yards. Quarterback Mark Herrmann completed a 15-yard pass to Ray Smith, giving the Boilermakers a first-and-goal on the two. Jones scored on the next play.

Syracuse 52, Washington St. 25

BUFFALO, N.Y. — Quarterback Bill Hurley scored two touchdowns and passed for another and Joe Morris galloped for two TDs, including a 48-yard game-breaker, as Syracuse whipped Washington State, 52-25.

Morris, a sophomore tailback, gained 159 yards on 21 carries. He scored on a five-yard run in the first quarter, giving the Orangemen a 14-0 lead. His burst off tackle in the third period gave Syracuse a 30-18 advantage just after the Cougars had scored three straight times.

Syracuse took a 24-0 lead early in the second quarter on a 43-yard field goal by Gary Anderson, Morris's first touchdown and Hurley's five-yard run and 38-yard pass to Brian Ishman.

But the Cougars scored 11 points before halftime on a one-yard plunge by Tali Ena, who also rammed for two points on the conversion, and a 34-yard field goal by Mike De Santo.

Washington 49, Fresno St. 14

SEATTLE — Quarterback Tom Porras passed for one touchdown and ran for another in the opening half to lead the ninth-ranked Washington Huskies to a 49-14 romp over Fresno State.

The Huskies, 4-0, trailed the Bulldogs 14-7 after one period but reverted to form in the second quarter, exploding for 21 points, and led 28-14 at halftime.

Tailback Joe Steele, Washington's all-time career rushing leader, broke the contest wide open with a 69-yard touchdown run with just 1:20 gone in the second half.

Porras, who played only in the first half, completed 11 of 16 passes for 158 yards, including a 23-yard touchdown pass to Paul Skansi in the second quarter. He also scored on a 10-yard run in the opening period.

Arizona St. 45, Oregon St. 0

CORVALLIS, Ore. — Mark Malone ran for three touchdowns and passed for another Saturday as the Arizona State Sun Devils ripped Oregon State, 45-0, in a Pacific 10 Conference game.

The 6-4, 220-pound senior quarterback ran 29 yards for his final score to give the Sun Devils a 31-0 lead with 3:20 remaining in the third quarter.

Malone didn't play the rest of the game, after completing 10 of 18 passes for 138 yards and rushing for 81 yards in 13 carries.

Trailing 17-0, Oregon State drove from its own 31-yard line to the Arizona State 12, but the drive died and the Sun Devils sacked quarterback Scott Richardson on a fourth-down attempt.

On the next play, the Sun Devils' Arthur Lane burst up the middle for 24 yards and fullback Newton Williams followed off tackle for 15.

Arizona 38, San Jose St. 18

TUCSON — Arizona defenders intercepted four third quarter passes off of San Jose State's Ed Luther, setting up four touchdowns, including the three by Larry Heater, to score a 38-18 victory.

The interception string began with about one minute gone in the second half when Arizona safety Reggie Ware intercepted at the Arizona 48-yard line and returned it to the San Jose 27. Heater scored on a one-yard run five plays later and Bill Zivic's extra point tied it at 10-10.

Two plays after Arizona's kickoff safety Dave Liggins intercepted Luther at the San Jose 48 and returned it to the 21. In another five plays, Heater went in from three yards out.

Bristol Gets Thrown Out For Throwing Out Clothes

From AP Dispatches

SAN FRANCISCO — It was 20 minutes after the game, and San Francisco Manager Dave Bristol still was sitting in a chair minus his shoes, his hat, his uniform shirt and his undershirt.

In the seventh inning, he threw these items towards home plate from the dugout after being ejected by plate umpire Eric Gregg.

Bristol, upset over a pitch called a ball by Gregg, yelled a remark from the dugout.

"He said that I was showing him up," said Bristol. "I've done more than that, and didn't get thrown out."

According to league rules, a manager is subject to a $250 fine if ejected, plus $100 for each piece of equipment thrown.

The strip-tease act will cost Bristol around $750, depending on the report Gregg sends to the National League office. "I think my shoes ought to count as one — one pair," Bristol added.

Nebraska Romps

First Start Makes 'Husker QB a Hero

LINCOLN, Neb (AP) — Tim Hager, the Nebraska quarterback who started his first game and wound up engineering a 28-point scoring burst in the second quarter that proved too much for Penn State Saturday, said he was just happy to be on the field.

"I was just happy to get the opportunity to play," Hager said after a convincing 42-17 victory by the sixth-ranked Cornhuskers over No. 18 Penn State.

HAGER WAS PICKED by ABC television as the offensive player of the game in the regionally televised game in which Nebraska rolled up 530 offensive yards to Penn State's 183 yards.

The senior from Lincoln, Neb., a backup last season to Tom Sorley, found himself trailing 14-0 in the second quarter.

To make matters worse, the second Penn State touchdown came when Hager threw a pass to tight end Junior Miller. Miller bobbled the ball and Penn State's Tom Wise picked it off and ran 30 yards into the end zone.

When the second quarter opened, Hager again threw to Miller. This time, Miller caught the ball and carried it about a step into the end zone. Seven minutes later, Hager found Miller again wide open on the Penn State 28. Miller scampered into the end zone standing up to cap a play that covered 70 yards.

JUST 58 SECONDS later, wingback Kenny Brown scored on a 16-yard reverse. That touchdown was set up by a bad pitch in the Nittany Lions' backfield that wound up in the hands of Nebraska defensive end Derrie Nelson on the 15. Nebraska tried two plays before Brown found running room, gaining nothing on one and losing a yard on the other.

Penn State's two touchdown lead in the opening quarter came on a 19-yard pass and a 40-yard pass-run play.

Penn State opened the scoring when Brad Scovill caught a pass from quarterback Dayle Tate a step out of the end zone with 8:23 left in the quarter.

The Nittany Lions' second touchdown came on an interception by defensive halfback Tom Wise after Nebraska quarterback Hager passed to Miller. The Cornhuskers' tight end got his hands on the ball enough to tip it to Wise, who carried it 30 yards for the touchdown.

Richard Fans 11 Dodgers, Sets Record

LOS ANGELES (AP) — J.R. Richard struck out 11 Saturday, combining with Joe Sambito on a five-hitter as Houston defeated Los Angeles 3-0.

Richard, 18-13, lifted his season strikeout total to a career-high 313, to break his own National League record for most strikeouts by a right-hander. Jerry Reuss, 7-14, gave up 11 Houston hits to absorb the loss.

Rookie Tom Wiedenbauer collected three of the Astros' hits. A two-out grounder in the third inning by Jesus Alou was booted by Los Angeles short-stop Derrel Thomas, allowing Jeff Leonard to score with the winning run.

The Astros added another unearned run in the fifth on a throwing error by third baseman Mickey Hatcher and a run-scoring single by Art Howe. Houston's third run came in the seventh when Howe walked, Widenbaur singled and, after two were out, Luis Pujols singled.

The Dodgers got three runners to third against Richard, but to no avail. Thomas doubled to lead off the first and, after two were out, reached third on an errant pickoff throw by Richard. But he was stranded when Hatcher struck out.

Edison Discharged

El Modena Scores Stunning Upset

By ROGER CARLSON
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Edison High's Chargers proved a point a week ago with a rout of Canyon High's Comanches. Saturday night they proved another one — there's no such thing as an unbeatable.

El Modena High's once-beaten Vanguards shocked the Chargers, 28-27, before 6,500 on the winner's field with a 45-yard touchdown pass from reserve quarterback Rick Ledesma to Scott Buehler with 50 seconds left before a disbelieving Edison crowd and an ecstatic El Modena faithful.

IT WAS A RICHLY deserved victory for Coach Bob Lester's El Modena eleven as the Vanguards out-played Edison from start to finish. El Modena was victorious in the trenches, had no turnovers and refused to wilt under numerous Edison advantages.

Consider:

—The Chargers were No. 1 in the land, boasting speedy Kerwin Bell, rifle-armed Frank Seurer and a bevy of other stars who had glided past two foes with ease.

El Modena, a 23-point underdog, lost its starting quarterback moments before the half with a wrist injury.

—Edison's Seurer had the Vanguards pinned in a hole with his punting, averaging 43 yards on five punts, as opposed to a sorry 14 yards per punt by El Modena. Two of El Modena's punts were for nothing, setting Edison up on the Vanguards' 46 and 12.

BUT THE CHARGERS themselves negated those advantages. Wiped out by penalties were a 23-yard pass to Joe Manfre, a 52-yard touchdown run by Bell and possession of the ball when a clip on an El Modena punt kept the Vanguards in business.

In fact, on the next play after the clip the Vanguards connected on a flea-flicker for a 49-yard touchdown play. Of that gimmick, Edison Coach Bill Workman said: "We were asleep."

Edison had a 14-6 lead on touchdown passes to Bell (36 yards) and Mark Boyer (17 yards), but the flea-flicker and ensuing two-point pass tied it at 14.

PROBLEMS FOR EDISON? Not offensively. Bell ripped a 70-yard touchdown run on the next play from scrimmage and Edison was back in business. But the defense, including a porous secondary, wasn't.

El Modena charged back with a 90-yard scoring march as guard Dave Rozsa and the rest of the Vanguards' offensive line blew Edison away. Fourteen plays later Kurt Adams burst over and on the two-point try to go ahead, 22-21, it was Adams wrestling the ball away in a pileup after a fumble on the three ended in the end zone.

Again the Edison offense responded with Bell doing the work as his runs of 8, 14, 8, 13, 9 and 1 set up Seurer's one-yard scoring sneak with 1:53 left in the game.

But El Modena was not to be denied. Five plays and 63 seconds later the Vanguards had the winning margin. Edison had one more chance, but coughed away its only fumble of the night on the kickoff return.

"I LOVE IT," was Lester's reaction. "I'm glad we don't have to do that again."

Workman: "We had no pass rush and they ran on us. What can I say? They beat us. But we aren't done yet. We'll be back."

Bell had only 11 yards in the first half on six carries, but finished with 135 in 14 carries. Seurer was crisp, too.

Bucs Fall, 28-0

Gauchos Take OCC by Storm

By JOHN SEVANO
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

They say when it rains, it pours and, at least for the moment, Saddleback College is pouring out victories while Orange Coast is raining defeats.

The Gauchos romped to their third successive victory of the young football campaign, a 28-0 blanking over the Bucs Saturday night before 3,153 at Saddleback College.

THE VICTORY WASN'T flawless. The Gauchos fumbled five times, losing three and were penalized 13 times for 125 yards. Despite its lack of artistic value, it was a win nonetheless.

For the Pirates, it doesn't seem they can get any deeper in the hole than they are. The loss was their third straight and the whitewash extended their touchdown scoreless string to nine quarters. It was also the first time the Pirates had lost three in a row since 1966, and it was the first time in Coach Dick Tucker's 29-year history that it's ever happened at the beginning of the season.

"I can't put my finger on it," said Tucker. "I don't know why we're not better.

"I KEEP SAYING we can't be that bad . . . but maybe we are. It's a combination of everything. It's very disappointing."

Tucker's biggest disappointment is his team isn't moving the ball. With a running game (35 carries, 46 yards) almost totally non-existent, the Pirates have been forced to go to the air. And with the opposition knowing this, the aerial attack has had little, if any, success either.

Part of the problem appears to be time in executing a pass pattern. Quarterback Dave Jeranko was sacked three more times Saturday night, giving him 10 for the season.

A GOOD ILLUSTRATION of the Pirates' misfortunes could be shown by one particular play in the third quarter.

After Gaucho quarterback Tim O'Hara had given his team a 14-0 lead with runs of one and 11 yards, respectively, in the first half, the Pirates were moving the ball late in the third quarter and were faced with a fourth-and-two from the Gaucho 15.

Jeranko took the snap and rolled to his right, only to be dropped 12 yards behind the line of scrimmage by Bill Fairbrother on a blitz.

That appeared to be the turning point as the Gauchos took over possession and marched 73 yards on six plays, the TD coming on a O'Hara to John Jessup pass for 16 yards, to put the game on ice.

AND AS IF things weren't bad enough for the Pirates, Jeranko had to leave the game early in the fourth quarter with what's being speculated as a separated shoulder.

"We don't know anything yet," says Tucker. "We'll have to wait and see."

Saddleback Coach Ken Swearingen found it hard to get excited, too.

"We didn't play well at all. We made too many errors and there was no continuity," Swearingen said. "Despite all this, we still put 28 points on the board.

"The key was our defense, they did everything we asked."

Chaffey Blitzed

Rustlers Romp, Then Get Ripped

By HOWARD L. HANDY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

There was good news and there was bad news if you analyze Golden West College's 35-0 victory over the Chaffey Panthers Saturday night at Orange Coast College in the manner of Rustler Coach Ray Shackleford.

First, the good news. Golden West won and had two spectacular long runs to put in the record books. The first was by Thomas Morris who broke open a loosely played game with an 82-yard punt return for a touchdown. It is the third-longest punt return in Golden West history.

Then it was an even more spectacular scamper from scrimmage of 93 yards by Pete Del Duca. This one was a school record and it gave the fumbling, bumbling Rustlers breathing room and a 14-0 edge after the second conversion by Terry Lairson with 4:45 left in the third period.

NOW THE BAD NEWS. Golden West fumbled five times and lost the ball on each of the first four. The Rustlers also had 70 yards assessed in penalties including a crucial one at the Chaffey one-yard line that helped prevent an early score.

Shackleford wasn't pleased with his team's performance. Far from it.

"We played a very sloppy game tonight and I can't be too pleased despite the score," he said. "The score in misleading.

"Our defense played a really good game against their wild formations but we hurt ourselves with all those fumbles and penalties. If we make that many mistakes against Santa Monica next week, we won't win."

In the early going, it was fumble, fumble, who's got the football or a penalty to avert a GWC score.

GOLDEN WEST had two possible scores averted by penalties, once at the Chaffey one and again at the four. Fortunately, Chaffey entered into the spirit of the occasion and also fumbled five times, giving the ball up every time, once at the Rustler one.

In spite of the raggedness of the game, there were bright spots for the Rustlers, too, including the two elongated touchdown runs, that set the stage for the romp.

All five touchdowns were by different players with workhorse Leonard Altavilla scoring on a one-yard run; Duane Davis on a two-yard scamper and Mike Teregis from nine yards out. Lairson kicked four of the conversions and Garrett Bauck the other.

ALTAVILLA PICKED UP 104 yards rushing in 27 carries, his 10th game over 100 yards in the 12 he has started for the Rustlers.

Angels Dealt 6-3 Setback By Texas

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Jim Sundberg's two-out single in the fourth inning broke up a 3-3 tie and, with the strong relief pitching of Dave Rajsich, led the Texas Rangers to a 6-3 victory over the Angels Saturday night.

Sundberg's single followed a bases-loaded double play that let in the tying run for Texas. The hit came off Angel's starter Dave Frost (16-10).

Rajsich (1-3) relieved Texas starter Doc Medich in the fourth and pitched 5⅓ of two-hit relief, striking out five batters. Jim Kern got the last out for this 19th save.

Willie Montanez, was 3-for-3 for Texas, scored twice and hit a solo home run, his eighth of the season.

The Angels have now lost three straight since they clinched the American League Western Division title Tuesday night in Anaheim.

Chris Knapp is scheduled to start today's regular season finale in Texas. Since clinching the title, Manager Jim Fregosi has been giving his starters no more than five innings work, regardless of the score.

NOLAN RYAN, a loser two days ago, is set to open the playoffs in Baltimore Wednesday night. He'll be opposing either Mike Flanagan or Jim Palmer.

In either case, it shapes up as a pitchers duel—or so it would seem.

"When we're hitting, we can blast anybody," says Fregosi, indicating that he doesn't care who the Orioles put out on the mound.

The Angels have averaged nearly 10 hits and more than five runs per game this season, making it the most productive offensive machine in the club's 19-year history.

THE ANGELS will be without the services of three key players for the playoffs—outfielder Joe Rudi, designated hitter Willie Aikens and pitcher Jim Barr.

Aikens is on crutches following surgery on cartilage in his knee and Rudi has a strained Achilles tendon.

The Pittsburgh Pirates could wrap up the National League East divisional pennant with a victory and a Montreal loss today. Should the Pirates lose and Montreal win, Monday's doubleheader between the Expos and Atlanta could decide the winner in the East. If both teams win today, Montreal could tie with a double victory at Atlanta Monday and force a playoff Tuesday, delaying the National League playoffs one day.

1 p.m., Channel 2 ✓✓

GOLF: World Series of Golf.
Announcers: Vin Scully, Jack Whitaker and Ben Wright.

Tom Watson fired a five-under-par 65 and holds the lead going into today's final two rounds of the World Series of Golf at Firestone Country Club in Akron, Ohio. The double round was forced by rain on Friday.

1 p.m., Channel 4 ✓✓✓

NFL FOOTBALL: Denver at Oakland
Announcers: George Kunz and Merle Harmon.

Craig Morton rallied the Denver Broncos from a 34-10 deficit to win over Seattle, 37-34, last week. The Broncos are 3-1 for the year and are tied with San Diego for the American Conference West lead. Oakland has hit on hard times this season with Ken Stabler sacked six times last week against Kansas City. Denver is favored by 2½ over the Raiders in Oakland.

Mike Grier scored eight goals in the championship game, leading Newport Harbor to an 11-7 victory over Riverside Poly and top honors in the South Coast water polo tournament Saturday at Newport's pool.

In junior college action, Orange Coast avenged its only defeat of the season by beating Saddleback, 9-4, in the finals of the Mt. San Antonio College tournament.

Newport Harbor beat El Dorado in the semifinals Saturday, 12-3, riding on the momentum of Diggy Riley's four-goal performance.

Grier scored twice in that game, then came back to score eight times in the championship.

Bavasi Deserves Some Credit

One interesting scene in the jubilant Angel clubhouse Tuesday night was Willie Davis chasing General Manager Buzzie Bavasi with a bottle of champagne yelling, "This is for you, you son of a (bleep)."

Now, don't get the wrong impression. Davis is one of the few Angels who likes and gets along with Bavasi. Unfortunately, the same can't be said about the rest of the club.

"It's too bad," said one writer. "Buzzie should be enjoying this just like the rest of the team, but he isn't.

"He's just as responsible for this championship as anyone else. But because of some of the things he's done, he can't enjoy what's happening. What a shame."

GOLDEN WEST BASKETBALL COACH Jim Greenfield already has his players working out in preparation for the 1979-80 season.

It appears Greenfield has had a fine recruiting year—especially locally—landing talent like Marina High's Truiett Hatton and Randy Heidenreich, and Garden Grove's Mark Baker. Put those three with returning forward Walt Evans and the team should be very respectable this season . . . although probably still one year away from being a legitimate contender.

THE DEFENDING STATE basketball champion Pirates of Orange Coast, under head coach Tandy Gillis, start their workouts Oct. 1.

Three reserves return (Glen Garrity, Stu Van Horn, Jim Price) from last year. And the rest of the squad? Well, you're going to need a United States Road Atlas this season to know where they come from.

Potentially, this could be his best team ever with Kevin Magee, Randy Whieldon and Ed Patrick returning from the team that reached the championship finals against Coast last season. And, to no one's surprise, Mulligan has had another excellent recruiting season.

He knows the pressure is on, and rightfully so. This year's Gauchos could be the best JC team to ever come out of the state of California.

South Football

Another Tide Rip

From AP Dispatches

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Senior quarterback Steadman Shealy and junior running back Joe Jones scored two touchdowns apiece in leading No. 2-ranked Alabama to a 66-3 Southeastern Conference college football victory Saturday over Vanderbilt.

Shealy's first touchdown of the game came on Alabama's third offensive play when he kept the ball on an option and raced 64 yards through a paper-thin Commodore defense. Alan McElroy converted.

Later in the first quarter, Alabama's Bobby Scott recovered a fumble by Vanderbilt tight end Flavious Smith. Forty-two seconds later, Major Ogilvie ran it in from the eight on a sweep around left end. McElroy again kicked the conversion.

Vanderbilt scored its only points of the game early in the second period when sophomore kicker Mike Woodard capped a six-play, 61-yard drive with a 47-yard field goal.

South Carolina 27, Georgia 20

ATHENS, Ga. — South Carolina turned a pair of fourth quarter turnovers by Georgia into short touchdown runs by Garry Harper and Spencer Clark, triggering the Gamecocks to a 27-20 victory over the Bulldogs.

The Bulldogs, 0-3, off to their worst start since 1958, took a 20-12 halftime lead on a 66-yard scoring pass from Jeff Pyburn to Anthony Arnold, a one-yard scoring plunge by Carnie Norris and field goals of 40 and 41 yards by Rex Robinson before the Gamecocks, 3-1, came back in the final period.

Clark scored from seven yards out only 3:28 into the final quarter after defensive back Pat Bowen intercepted a pass by Georgia's Buck Belue and returned it 10 yards to the Bulldog 32.

Kentucky 14, Maryland 7

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Injury riddled Kentucky jumped ahead on scoring runs by quarterback Mike Shutt and tailback Chris Jones, then relied on a spirited defense to upset previously unbeaten Maryland, 14-7.

Shutt, forced into action despite a shoulder injury when starter Randy Jenkins suffered a broken leg, capped Kentucky's first possession with a three yard run. Jones scored in the second period on a one-yard run that finished off a 10-play, 52-yard surge by Kentucky, which won its first game in three starts. Maryland is 3-1.

Maryland scrambled back into contention midway in the final period when quarterback Mike Tice passed five yards to his brother, tight end John Tice.

Maryland, held to just four yards in the first quarter and denied a trip across midfield until only 6:54 remained, twice threatened in the fading minutes, but each time Kentucky rose to the occasion.

Tennessee 35, Auburn 17

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — Gary Moore returned the opening kickoff for a 98-yard touchdown and broke two tackles to score again in the second quarter, leading Tennessee to a 35-17 win over Auburn.

The game ended Auburn's three-year winning streak against the Volunteers in the Southeastern Conference rivalry and represented a plateau for Tennessee Coach Johnny Majors' three-year rebuilding program.

Georgia Tech 33, Will&Mary 7

ATLANTA — Mike Kelley hurled two touchdown passes and defensive end Rick Olive recovered a fumble in the end zone for another touchdown as Georgia Tech erupted for three third-quarter scores within six minutes to down William & Mary 33-7.

Kelley's 31-yard strike to Leon Chadwick with 9:14 left in the third quarter enabled the Jackets to erase a 7-6 William & Mary advantage.

Kelley came back just over five minutes later, hitting on four-of-six passes for 68 yards.

N. Caro. St. 17, Wake Forest 14

RALEIGH, N.C. — Nathan Ritter's 41-yard field goal with 5:13 remaining in the game short-circuited a fourth period comeback by Wake Forest and gave unbeaten North Carolina State a 17-14 victory Saturday and undisputed possession of first place in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Wake Forest quarterback Jay Venuto threw two touchdown passes and N.C. State quarterback Scott Smith ran for two scores earlier, setting the stage for Ritter's game-winning kick.

Virginia 30, Duke 12

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. — Virginia's Cavaliers, with Tommy Vigorito and Greg Taylor each rushing for more than 100 yards for the second week in a row, used a 17-point second quarter as the springboard to a 30-12 Atlantic Coast Conference victory over Duke's Blue Devils.

The second period explosion lifted the Cavaliers to a 20-3 half time advantage and gave them the cushion to withstand a nine-point Duke rally during the first five minutes of the third stanza.

Mississippi St. 24, Florida 10

JACKSON, Miss. — Quarterback Tony Black and a fired-up defense helped Mississippi State to a 24-10 Southeastern Conference win over Florida Saturday in a hectic battle of turnovers.

The Bulldogs, trailing 10-7 in the fourth quarter after frittering away two touchdown opportunities with fumbles, struck on two touchdowns and a field goal behind the smooth quarterbacking of Black.

State, which scored its first touchdown after a pass interception, pulled ahead on an 83-yard touchdown march that ended with fullback Donald Ray King diving the final yard.

Tulane 24, SMU 17

NEW ORLEANS — Tulane tailback Marvin Christian burst 19 yards up the middle with 1:22 left to give Tulane a 24-17 victory over 19th ranked SMU.

Christian also scored in the first half on a 14-yard run.

He carried 17 times for 108 yards, including the winning touchdown, which came after SMU had rallied from a 10-point halftime deficit to tie the score at 17.

Tulane appeared to be going in for the clinching touchdown early in the fourth quarter, but an interception and a 45-yard runback by linebacker Eric Ferguson put SMU in position for the tying score.

Super Sport Cleans Out Mailbox

Dear Super Sport: After watching Edison High football play its first two games, I feel I should get involved with government for the first time. The purpose of getting involved is to keep high school football fair. So I propose:

Proposition 4

Whereas Kerwin Bell of Edison High should be outlawed from high school football.

If outlawing him is out then a compromise of handcuffing his ankles, blindfoling him and making him hop backwards would suffice. This way the defense might touch him. One last request is to urge all football fans in Orange County to see Kerwin Bell run. He is the best back ever to play in this area that I've ever seen. I hate to be on the team that Edison High plays where Kerwin plays the whole game.

Sincerely, G.G., Huntington Beach

With the Angels in the American League playoffs, we thought this would be an appropriate time to answer a few of our baseball questions.

When Is Trip Not a Trip?

Don Kessinger was the player-manager for the Chicago White Sox earlier this year. I was wondering how many legal trips to the mound he can take during an inning while playing shortstop without the pitcher being required to leave the game?

Thanks, C.H., Irvine

Normally, a manager can make only two trips to the mound and upon the second the pitcher must be removed. This would still apply to Kessinger, but in his situation the American League has a special rule: Subject to the judgement of the umpire, any visit to the mound can be considered a "trip." The umpire must notify the playing manager and the opposing manager each time a trip is charged. As a shortstop Don may visit the mound several times during an inning and not be charged with a "trip." It is up to the umpire's good judgement and Don's good sense.

Does Hat Trick Make It Fair?

Larry Biittner of the Chicago Cubs lost a ball recently when he tried to make a shoe-string catch and it rolled under his hat. I have one for you. What would happen if there was a man on third and one out and a batter bunts toward first base, near the line, but in fair territory. The pitcher comes down off the mound to make the play, but just as he reaches for the ball his hat falls off. The ball hits the cap and rolls into foul territory. When he finally retrieves the ball, the batter is on first and the runner at third has touched home. Is the ball fair or foul? Alive or dead? Does the run count or not?

Good Luck, L.G., Costa Mesa

If the umpire judges that the hat hit the ball accidentally, the ball is ruled foul and everyone returns to their starting position with the count advanced one strike. If the umpire judges the hat to be intentionally used to deflect the ball, everybody is safe and the run scores.

Sailor Nears Title

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The U.S. defender moved one step closer Saturday to a successful defense of the American-Australian Cup, with U.S. skipper Tom Blackaller sailing his six meter yacht St. Francis VII to victory over Sweden's Patric Fredell at the helm of May Be XII.

The American yacht beat May Be XII by three minutes and 32 seconds.

San Francisco Bay winds above 20 knots and a short steep chop from strong counter currents created difficult sailing conditions. Much of the time difference between the two six meter yachts was attributable to better sail handling techniques on St. Francis VII.

Sun Devil on the Run

Mark Malone, a one-man wrecking crew for Arizona State, sheds a tackle by Oregon State's Craig Roussell in Saturday's Pac-10 laugher in Corvallis. Malone ran for three touchdowns and passed for another in a 45-0 rout.

49ers Win, 9-3

DEKALB, Ill. (AP) — Reserve quarterback Kevin Starkey plunged over from the one-yard line late in the third quarter for the game's only touchdown as Long Beach State notched a 9-3 victory Saturday night over Northern Illinois in a non-conference college football game.

Neither side generated much offense in the first half, and the 49ers built a 3-0 halftime lead on the strength of a 24-yard, first-quarter field goal by Ralph Petrosian.

Northern, 1-2, tied the game early in the third period when Rome Moga kicked a 39-yard field goal, but Starkey, who replaced starter Paul McGaffigan at the helm, brought Long Beach back after Moga's second attempt of the quarter fell short from the 44-yard line.

The 12-play, 73-yard drive was keyed by three draw plays by running back Ralph Perez, the longest going 21 yards, as the 49ers, now 2-1, marched to the NIU one-yard line before the Huskies' defense strengthened.

Starkey then called a quarterback sneak, but was stopped short of the goal line. His second attempt provided the winning margin as neither team scored in the fourth quarter.

Vagas Hits Irish Jackpot

Notre Dame Whips Michigan St., 27-3

From AP Dispatches

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — Vagas Ferguson bolted for touchdown runs of 24 and 48 yards and gained 167 yards in 28 carries Saturday to lead 15th-ranked Notre Dame to a 27-3 victory over seventh-ranked and previously undefeated Michigan State.

The loss ended a 10-game winning streak for the Spartans, whose last defeat was to Notre Dame a year ago.

Michigan State's vaunted passing game and chances went out with quarterback Bert Vaughn, who suffered a back injury and left the game in the first quarter.

The triumph was the second in three starts for the Irish, while Michigan State suffered its first loss after three straight victories.

Texas 21, Missouri 0

COLUMBIA, Mo. — John Goodson kicked four field goals and the quick, swarming Texas defense dominated Missouri's offense, leading the fourth-ranked Longhorns to a 21-0 victory over the previously unbeaten and fifth-ranked Tigers.

A record crowd of 75,136 watched Goodson, a 200-pound sophomore, tie a Texas record with field goals of 23, 50, 35 and 25 yards.

The Longhorns, 2-0, took an 8-0 lead in the first quarter on two Goodson field goals and a safety. Texas' first four scores followed Missouri turnovers or mistakes as the Tigers were unable to overcome miserable field position at the game's outset.

Navy 13, Illinois 12

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Bob Powers fired a touchdown pass to Dave Dent, Steve Fehr kicked two field goals and Navy's top-ranked defense held off Illinois for a 13-12 win.

The Midshipmen, undefeated in three games, held Illinois, 1-3, to just three first downs and 52 yards in the first half. But Illinois nearly pulled out the game in the final minutes.

Illinois scored on a 69-yard drive when Lawrence McCullough hit Lee Boeke with a 10-yard touchdown pass to make the score 13-12 with 3:51 to play. Illinois tried for the two-point conversion and McCullough pitched out to Mike Holmes. He tried to hit McCullough in the end zone but the pass was intercepted.

Kansas 37, N. Tex. St. 18

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Pass-minded Kansas, which had not moved the ball at all on the ground in season opening losses at Pittsburgh and Michigan, had its best rushing day in two years to defeat North Texas State 37-18.

The Jayhawks ground out 300 yards, most of it in second half drives of 65, 61, 67 and 89 yards that produced three touchdowns and a field goal.

Kansas had not exceeded 200 yards since beating Kansas State 29-21 in 1977, and had netted only eight yards on the ground on its first two games.

Iowa 30, Iowa St. 14

IOWA CITY, Iowa — Tailback Dennis Mosley ran for 229 yards and scored three touchdowns to lead Iowa to a 30-14 nonconference victory over Iowa State.

Mosley, who carried a school record 39 times, scored on runs of one and 18 yards and caught a nine-yard TD pass from Pete Gales to give Iowa its first victory in four starts.

Fullback Dean McKillip rambled 27 yards for a touchdown in the fourth quarter and freshman Reggie Roby added a 44-yard field goal to complete the Iowa scoring.

Tailback Victor Mack scored on a one-yard run to give Iowa State its first touchdown and tie the score 7-7 at the end of the first quarter.

Minnesota 38, Northwestern 8

MINNEAPOLIS — Minnesota parlayed the first-half running of tailback Marion Barber and the passing of Mark Carlson into a 38-8 Big Ten victory over Northwestern.

Barber, the Big Ten's 1978 rushing champion, ran for 143 yards and three touchdowns. The junior scored on runs of three, one and three yards before sitting out the second half.

Carlson completed seven of 13 passes for 104 yards and two touchdowns.

Colorado 17, Indiana 16

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Jesse Johnson's 30-yard interception return set up quarterback Bill Solomon with the tying touchdown and Tom Field's extra-point kick lifted Colorado past Indiana, 17-16, in an error-filled game.

Indiana trailed 10-7 at halftime after seven turnovers in a scoreless second period. The Hoosiers tied the game in the third quarter on a 23-yard field goal by Steve Straub.

Sooners Rout Rice; Houston, Hogs Win

From AP Dispatches

HOUSTON — Oklahoma's Billy Sims scored three first-quarter touchdowns and set up a fourth with a picture-perfect 40-yard run to start the third-ranked Sooners on a 63-21 rout of hapless Rice Saturday night.

Sims, the 1978 Heisman Trophy winner, scored on runs of eight, four and four yards on Oklahoma's first three possessions of the game and retired to the sideline before halftime with 103 yards on 12 carries.

Oklahoma, 3-0, scored on six of its eight first-half possessions to take a 42-0 lead at intermission.

Houston 49, W. Texas 10

HOUSTON — Backup fullback David Barrett scored three second-quarter touchdowns, including a 48-yard run on his first carry, to ignite eighth-ranked Houston to a 49-10 victory over outmanned West Texas State Saturday.

The Cougars, 3-0, scored on four of their six first half possessions, but didn't get cranked up until Barrett entered the game to start the second quarter. On his first carry, Barrett dashed 48 yards for a touchdown and later scored on runs of six and one yards as the Cougars took a 28-3 halftime lead.

Baylor 27, Tex. Tech 17

WACO, Texas — Quarterback Mickey Elam passed 22 yards for a touchdown to sophomore Dennis Gentry and rushed for over 100 yards Saturday, lifting the Baylor Bears to a come-from-behind 27-17 Southwest Conference victory over Texas Tech.

With temperatures reaching 102 degrees on the artificial floor of Baylor Stadium, the Bears overcame a 10-0 deficit.

A blocked punt by Max McGeary that Vic Vines recovered in the end zone for a touchdown tied the game at 10 in the second quarter and Elam took over with his determined runs off the Baylor option.

Arkansas 33, Tulsa 8

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. — Freshman quarterback Tom Jones, playing with poise beyond his years in his first college start, guided 13th-ranked Arkansas to a 33-8 win over Tulsa.

Jones threw a 38-yard scoring pass to Bobby Duckworth on the Razorback's fourth play of the game and then took Arkansas to touchdowns on two of its next three possessions.

Turnovers Help Titans Win First

STOCKTON — Cal State Fullerton took advantage of early turnovers to gain a lead it never gave up in a 17-7 upset of the University of the Pacific here Saturday in a PCAA contest.

The Titans turned two fumble recoveries into scores before the game was five minutes old. Although the defense allowed Pacific to gain more than 300 yards, the Titans allowed the Tigers only one touchdown and held on for the win.

Fullerton was led by the rushing of Andy Gray with 161 yards and Eric Bullock with 74 yards rushing and 72 yards passing.

Pacific was victimized by six turnovers, including four in the first half. The Tigers closed the gap to 10-7 on a Sander Markel touchdown pass in the third quarter, but Fullerton then drove 80 yards to score.

After the game — the first conference bout for each of the teams — the Titans are 1-2 overall, and Pacific is 1-3 overall.

Titan coach Jim Colletto said "I'm happy for the kids getting their first win but overall I was not pleased with our performance."

Mel Cook led the Tigers with 134 yards rushing.

TIGERS ROAR — USC quarterback Pual McDonald gets the pass off, but barely, as he finds himself facing LSU defensive end John Adams. Needless to say, the pass was incomplete.

came early in the second half. After Raymond Butler returned the kickoff 20 yards to the USC 25, White carried the ball on five straight plays to the LSU 36.

WHEN THE DRIVE stalled at the 15-yard line Eric Hipp missed a 32-yard field goal attempt.

Hipp, who opened the scoring with a 32-yard kick at 10:02 of the opening period, also had missed a 26-yard attempt on the final play of the opening half.

Ensminger couldn't help but get the partisan crowd riled up. A hometown boy, the senior replaced David Woodley late in the first period and directed a 60-yard drive by hitting Carlos Carson and Tracy Porter with 15-yard passes and handing off to Jude Hernandez for a 24-yard gain.

His TD toss to Jones in the end zone at 2:22 of the second quarter gave LSU a lead it held until the waning seconds.

yards, then Bashore went to the air with a perfect pass and Curran did likewise with his catch.

Bashore's completions to JoJo Townsell for 15 yards and Tim Wrightman for 11 yards keyed a 55-yard march, culminated by Peter Boermeester's 27-yard field goal to give the Bruins a 10-0 lead. But after that, the Bruins shelved the forward pass.

HALL, AN ESTANCIA HIGH and Orange Coast College product, batted away a third down pass in the second period, but blamed himself for Ohio State's first touchdown, a 34-yard run by Murray.

"I had containment and I lost it," said Hall. "It was my fault." In reality, Ohio State got crisp blocking and Murray put it to use with his speed for the touchdown.

Still, it seemed the Bruins had Ohio State's number with ball-control in the second half as the Bruins kept possession to the tune of 20:11 of playing time, compared to Ohio State's 9:39.

IN THE FOURTH QUARTER the Bruins took a 13-10 lead on a 39-yard Boermeester field goal and when Jackson leveled Murray on a third down play, the Bruins took over and consumed over seven minutes of playing time, but couldn't connect on the scoreboard. Boermeester missed a pair of field goal tries in the drive, the last one from a distance of only 23 yards.

"We knew we had to throw in the final two minutes," said the Ohio State quarterback.

"We didn't want to panic or make mistakes. UCLA played a different defense in the last two minutes — a sort of prevent defense."

Donahue said, "We didn't want to give up the big play."

Donahue may have missed what was going on because the Bruins gave up six "big plays" as Schlichter hit six straight, plus a couple of short runs.

The Buckeyes ran a two-minute offense as well as any of USC's last-minute drives that have frustrated Bruin fans.

Halda Rallies San Diego St. By Wisconsin

SAN DIEGO (AP) — San Diego State quarterback Mark Halda and flanker Steve Stapler connected on a dramatic 83-yard scoring play with 4:31 remaining Saturday night to give the Aztecs a 24-17 victory over the Wisconsin Badgers.

The fleet Stapler got a step behind the Badger defense, took the floating pass from Halda near midfield, then sped untouched into the end zone as San Diego State rallied from a 17-10 deficit in the final quarter.

Running back Charlie Crews plunged one yard to cap a 43-yard Aztec drive that tied the score at 17-17 early in the fourth period.

After both teams opened their scoring with field goals, Halda connected with Lonnie Moore for a 55-yard touchdown pass to give the Aztecs a 10-3 second-quarter lead.

Kevin Motl, who began the season as a fourth-string quarterback but was pressed into service earlier when Wisconsin's first three signal-callers were hurt, marched the Badgers 80 yards for a touchdown on the next series, scoring on a 28-yard pass to Tom Stauss to tie the game at 10-10 going into the intermission.

Powering up the middle for an 18-yard touchdown run, fullback Dave Mohapp put Wisconsin ahead 17-10 early in the third quarter.

Sullivan Still Leading

LONG BEACH — Mike Sullivan of Cala, Fla. fired a four-under-par 68 to hold a two-stroke lead in the Long Beach Queen Mary Open golf tournament after three rounds at El Dorado Golf Course Saturday.

Sullivan is 10 under par for the tournament and could break the record at El Dorado of 13 in today's final round. Steve Taylor of Sacramento is two back and defending champion Don Pooley is four back of the leader.

Ray Carrasco of Irvine, the first round leader with a 63, came back from a near-fatal 79 Friday with a one-under-par 71 to tie with six other players at 213 in sixth place.

Also at 213 are Lew Cooper, a resident of Newport Beach, and Mike Krantz who lives in Huntington Beach.

Year of the Suit

Professional models, special guests John Phillip Law and Bill Talmage and members of the Musical Theatre Guild of Newport Beach joined to present the fashion picture for fall and spring as I. Magnin sees it.

The guild, which meets the third Wednesday morning of each month at the Bahia Corinthian Yacht Club, supports all forms of the musical arts. It gives scholarships and donates to various artistic endeavors.

After musical entertainment by Joseph Gaudio, Roslyn Nehls, Tangie Velie and Jean Tandowsky, the fashion parade began.

According to I. Magnin, this is the year of the suit and the season of the clean and refined look (gloves are necessary here) and the pulled-together look for day.

Grey, red and black were favored colors along with the brights from last season.

Joseph Magnin Board Chairman Edward Gorman says the 1980s will bring a whole new look in retailing.

Fashion Exec Predicts Retailing Changes

By JUDITH OLSON
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

In just a few months the 1980s will be upon us. With them will come a whole new look in retailing, according to Edward Gorman, chairman and chief executive officer of Joseph Magnin.

According to Gorman, successful retail clothing stores of the future will have one thing in common: they will serve a specifically defined market and respond to that market's lifestyle.

Gorman, in Costa Mesa for the opening of the newly redesigned and refurbished South Coast Plaza store, talked about his challenge in the coming decade.

"We're living in a time when there are all kinds of forces acting to homogenize and plasticize us.

"Human beings have a natural rebellion against that. More and more people are seeking to express themselves as individuals.

"We're entering the age of 'me'."

WHAT THIS MEANS is that the retailer is going to have to search for more unusual things to lure his customer, Gorman explained.

But first he has to define his customer. For Joseph Magnin that person—specifically the woman buyer—is described in terms of her values and interests, not demographics.

Gorman said the Joseph Magnin woman is pictured as follows:

"She is a truly modern woman who has a high degree of awareness of what's going on in the world around her. She's eclectic.

"She has a higher than average awareness of fashion and a desire to participate. And, she has a higher than average ability to do so."

Gorman's challenge is "to go out and find the things we can offer her, to edit them from the totality of the marketplace, to offer those things that we think are appropriate."

RETAILING HAS changed in the last few years, Gorman believes, because of several additional reasons.

Customers have more financial resources at their disposal than ever before and there is a growing importance of the consumer in influencing retail change, he said.

And, there is greater flexibility in marketing and distribution of goods because of new technology.

Gorman believes a specialty store such as Joseph Magnin should be able to move instantaneously with fashion and offer what the customers want at the moment they want it.

So, the Costa Mesa store was redesigned by New York architect Massimo Vignelli to be completely portable inside. All display cases, counters and fitting rooms are on wheels and can be rearranged in minutes.

THE REMODELING included consolidating the store on one level by closing the large central stairwell connecting the two levels.

"We now have more selling square footage on one level than we had on two before," Gorman said.

Gorman, who has been with the store group 21 months, came from the J. C. Penney Co. where he was marketing assistant to the president, a seemingly unlikely move in the fashion world.

But Gorman contends that he is essentially doing the same kind of job for Joseph Magnin as he did for Penney.

"The fundamentals essentially are the same," he said. "It's the nuances that are different. It's just a change in emphasis rather than a change in direction."

At Penney he was assigned to the task of deciding what kind of image the store should have. He loved the challenge since he says he is "a student of retailing and a theorist."

"I HAVE SPENT a lot of time trying to understand the basic concepts of retailing."

He actually calls himself a "retail marketing person" rather than a retailer since he is more interested in the philosophy than the methodology.

He has taught at New York City's New School for Social Research, lectured at Cal Berkeley, Baylor and the New York Sales Executives Club so he knows his business well.

Gorman's definition of retailing is very simple, in actuality. It is "getting merchandise people want, telling them you have it and selling it to them when they come in."

He said each of these steps has many nuances and strategies and they are not as easy as they seem on paper.

But therein lies Gorman's challenge. He views the 1980s as a new problem to be solved with a whole new kind of customer to please.

On the House

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

From various sources come these bits of information of interest to the home owner:

Jay Janis, undersecretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, says the rising costs of housing can be attributed to the cost of regulation at all government levels; the cost of cycles in which the building industry is used as a fiscal yo-yo to boost or slow the economy; and the cost of indifference in which nobody gives a darn or takes a stand to halt the spiral.

As quoted in the Professional Builder, Janis thinks more stress must be placed on multi-family rental housing as well as smaller, more economical units than in the past.

THE WRITER of the "Opinion" column of the Long Island Builder believes that attacking over-regulation of construction by government is a gross over-simplification of a complex issue.

He says some developers candidly state that amenity-hungry home buyers are a big reason for the soaring cost of housing.

Cheryl Romo

It was mid-morning on a Wednesday and the supermarket was jammed with brimming grocery carts pushed by senior citizens and housewives with roaming children.

The store was quiet save for the rustling of discount coupons and people complaining about prices when a boy of about 4, with a shock of brilliant rooster-colored hair and freckles across his nose, pulled away from his mother.

He marched indignantly away from the meat department and toward the dairy section, pointed his finger at a handsome, dark-haired man, and shouted:

"How come they let you ride that in here!"

A half dozen people turned around to see the three-foot accuser glaring at the grown man sitting on a three-wheel bicycle.

"THEY LET ME ride," he replied, "because I can't walk."

Now the boy was furious and just as his mother hustled down the aisle to grab his arm, the boy yelled, "Well, you don't look that sick to me!"

The man smiled at the child and went back to his shopping. Using a basket on the rear of his vehicle, he was able to drop his groceries, in this case smashed cans of food from the discount section where they are often sold for half-price.

A woman who had been observing the situation with the child came closer. It was then that she noticed the man was having difficulty with some of the larger cans.

SHE ASKED IF she could be of assistance and once again she saw that understanding smile.

"Thank you, I can manage," he replied. "What are you looking for? I know this section and I'm pretty good about knowing what tastes best here."

So the woman who came to help was, as is true so many times, helped instead. And she loaded her cart with bargains of soup and cans of vegetables.

They shared names. His name was Jerry and he was 34 and lived nearby. Prior to an automobile accident 10 years ago on October 6, Jerry was a junior high school science teacher.

"You see, what happened is that my best friend, Barney, and I were going to celebrate Barney's birthday.

"We drank too much beer and Barney was driving and there was a crash and Barney died."

JERRY'S SPEECH was slow and deliberate as he explained he was in a coma for two months before awakening to find himself paralyzed from the waist down.

"I really don't feel bad about the accident anymore," he said, "because if it hadn't happened, I would never have known what to do with my life."

Today Jerry is something of a traveling preacher. He paints signs to put on the back of his large, three-wheeled bicycle and carries a Bible with him.

Jerry says he's found peace.

As he and the woman were going through the checkout stand, Jerry called across the aisle, "How tall are you?"

"Five-foot, four. How tall are you?"

"I'm six-foot, two. But I don't stand much anymore."

Outside in the parking lot, the woman pushed her shopping cart while Jerry navigated his vehicle with an aluminum crutch.

When they said goodbye, he reached out impulsively and hugged her shoulder.

She walked to her car, standing six-foot, two for him.

Double Sentencing, Then Double Wedding

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — There was a double sentencing and a double wedding in federal court Monday.

First, Keven Kelley, 20, and Joseph Cook, 20, were sentenced by U.S. Magistrate Richard Goldsmith to one year and to eight months, respectively, for misdemeanor theft of postal funds. Both men had pleaded guilty to taking money from a cash drawer.

With family members and U.S. Marshals looking on, each of the men then took a bride in ceremonies conducted by the Rev. W.L. Hicks of the Seed-Faith Church of San Francisco.

Kelley was married to Charlette Walker, 18, and Cook to Irinas Jones, also 18.

Rev. Hicks, who has a job as a postal foreman and also ministers to prison inmates, said: "May the Lord God bless you, keep you and help you get rid of this big mess you are in."

The marshals then led the grooms off to begin their sentences, with one youth telling his family "You'll know where I am Wednesday."

Common-law Vows Valid, Says Judge

MEDIA, Pa. (AP) — A Havertown woman has learned it doesn't pay to say "I do" if she really doesn't. Even if there are no witnesses.

A Delaware County judge has ruled that Rosalyn Kaminsky had indeed taken Leonard Grabel as a common-law husband when they exchanged private vows in November 1977 in the kitchen of her home.

The two met through a computer dating service and after they lived together eight months, Ms. Kaminsky turned Gravel out of the house. The 38-year-old widow later argued they were never married.

GRABEL, A 45-YEAR-OLD divorcee from Ventnor, N.J., said he hoped to patch things up with Ms. Kaminsky, and he filed suit late last year to have the marriage recognized. The case was brought to trial here last April.

Judge Robert Wright ruled a valid marriage had taken place between Ms. Kaminsky and Grabel when they "repeated words in the present tense that constituted a common-law marriage."

The judge concluded the pair had performed their own ceremony so there would be no record of it and so that Ms. Kaminsky could continue to draw $300 a month in Social Security benefits she would have lost if her re-marriage had been documented.

THE JUDGE CITED evidence presented during the trial that after November 1977 the two wore wedding bands, lived together at her home and represented themselves as husband and wife to friends and relatives. Ms. Kaminsky also signed such things as department store charge accounts and a joint checking account as "Roz Grabel."

Ms. Kaminsky testified she called off a formal wedding with Grabel because she did not trust him and feared he would not be able to support their children.

She said they had never exchanged vows and that she had thrown Grabel out of the house last June after he had refused to repay a loan of $1,000 and food and rent expenses of $675.

BUT WRIGHT RULED there was no evidence of a loan and that Grabel did not owe her any money.

Neither Ms. Kaminsky nor Grabel could be reached for comment on the verdict Wednesday. Ms. Kaminsky's attorney, Franklin Wurman, said no decision had been made about an appeal.

Last Bastion of Privacy Invaded

Erma Bombeck

Good news for all of you apartment dwellers who are short on space and long on imagination.

I have before me a magazine article in which a decorator, faced with a dinner party, makes what she calls an "amusing transformation."

The tub is covered with an upholstered, cushioned board which serves as buffet.

SHE ADDS A folding table, extra chairs, puts the champagne into the sink to chill (thank goodness, she didn't go for the cooler with the lid) and stores her glasses on the vanity shelf.

She covers each of the walls in a different flowery fabric and for accent, sets baskets of fresh fruits about with tangerines peeled and ready to eat as "a nice surprise for hungry guests."

The peeled tangerines would be the least of the surprises. Can you imagine for a moment herding your guests to the bathroom for dinner?

I DON'T EVEN WANT my guests to use the bathroom when we have dinner in the dining room.

I cannot imagine that the idea will catch on like wildfire. Our bathroom is entirely out of the question.

1. The dressing room IS my bathroom.
2. My menus can never be adapted to harsh lighting.
3. The bathroom door has not been open, or for that matter ajar, in 15 years.
4. I couldn't eat a bite facing a full-length mirror.
5. I couldn't relax in a chair that was bolted to the floor.

TO TELL YOU the truth, I hate to see the bathroom exploited as a room for entertaining.

To me, that sacred part of the house has been the last bastion of privacy for the American family:

The toddler who regards it as Disneyland with faucets; the teen-ager who barricades himself in there until puberty has passed; the father who seeks peace in his reading room.

But mostly, it is needed by the woman of the household as a haven from havoc . . . a port for post-natal depression . . . a refuge from reality . . . a retreat to regroup . . . a chapel in which to pray . . . a cloister in which to cry.

It's no place for peeled tangerines.

Love and Marriage

MERCED (AP) — A Modesto bride will get to ride in a horse and buggy to her wedding at Yosemite Lake near here thanks to a romantic streak among Merced County supervisors.

An ordinance barring animals at the lake seemed likely to keep Becky Hannah from realizing her dream of being driven in a horse and buggy when she weds Victor Taibi there Oct. 13.

Taibi appealed to the supervisors, and they waived the ban Tuesday, perhaps recalling this refrain from a popular song of a generation ago:

"Love and marriage. Love and marriage — go to together like a horse and carriage."

AP Laserphoto

AH TRADITION — The bride wore white and so did the groom, but in place of the traditional veil, it was a hard hat for Delores Wagoner, 45, as she wed Edward White, 55, in Detroit recently. The new Mrs. White works for a contractor and felt it would be unique to wear her coveralls. Said her new husband, "If this is what makes her happy, so let her do it."

Eye Catchers

These three eye-catching hairstyles were displayed recently at "Alan's" salon in Chelsea, England. Stylist Raymond Bird created these post-punk crops which include, from left: the Geometric, the Smiling Tiger, the Leopard. Bird has not only made a name for himself by judicious cutting and dying, he has also caused a few heads to turn. The models are unidentified.

Horoscope

MONDAY, OCTOBER 1
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): Popularity surges; more persons are interested in what you say and do. Some of your fondest hopes and wishes could become realities.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): You elevate position by display of versatility. Accent on dealings with superiors, ability to hurdle obstacles.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Good lunar aspect coincides now with communication, education, travel and fulfillment of aspirations.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Special agreement could result in major step towards prosperity. You are able to articulate feelings, emotions and gain via written word.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Hold back, pull your punches. Permit one close to you to have full share of spotlight. Plan ahead, plant seeds for future growth. Maintain low profile.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Go slow, define objectives. Maintain steady pace, keep resolutions concerning diet, nutrition and basic services.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Stick to principles, imprint style, realize a relationship is "serious." Nothing is apt to occur halfway — it now is hot or cold, all or nothing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Long-standing transaction can be completed. You have opportunity to gain greater distribution and display of product.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You receive news concerning recent "submission." Highlight independence, originality and creative touch.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Financial structure becomes more solid. Debts are paid and collected.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You'll have reason to celebrate. Cycle high, judgment and intuition are on target. Stress independence of thought and action.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): You could be visiting one confined to home or a hospital. There is no need for gloom. You're on brink of important discovery.

Taking the Steak

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A girl with whom several of us have lunch insists on stuffing all the leftovers in her purse — with or without a doggy bag. She says, "I'm taking this home to my husband." Then in go the rolls, chicken or steak, wrapped in a paper napkin, along with whatever else isn't eaten at the table.

"Weird Vera" is not exactly a welfare case. She and her husband both have excellent jobs. They have no children — not even a dog.

When there's a buffet, "Weird Vera" really goes to town. It's embarrassing to be in her company. What should we say to her? — Mortified Trio

DEAR TRIO: Stocking the home fridge with food from a buffet is pretty tacky, but taking home leftovers when dining out is no longer considered gauche. Since the price of food has gone out of sight, nobody bats an eye.

Your friend should ask for a doggy bag (or carry one) for her leftovers. It's stupid to risk ruining a good purse with 70 cents' worth of hamburger steak.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Why must you print the name of the city along with the signatures? You have put me in hot water because of this, and I'll bet a lot of other people, too. I wish you would cut it out.

A letter appeared in your column a few days ago about a guy who is running around on his wife. He admitted it, told you how much he cares for the other woman, but can't leave his wife because she has a heart condition.

That letter was signed with the man's initials. As if that wasn't bad enough, you added, "From Greenville." Well, my initials are the same as his, and I live in Greenville. Everyone in town must read your column, because our telephone hasn't stopped ringing. My wife is humiliated, and I'm in the doghouse. I have never cheated on my wife in my life. You owe us an apology in the paper. — INNOCENT VICTIM

DEAR INNOCENT: Sorry I created a problem for you, but according to the Postal Service directory, there are 26 Greenvilles in the United States. One each in Alabama, California, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Maine, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, New Jersey, New Hampshire, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Texas, Utah, Virginia, West Virginia and Wisconsin. I'm printing your letter but omitting the state. I don't think you want to hear any more about this matter.

Rogue Doesn't Mind Scene Stealer

Wagner Straightens 'Hart to Hart' Talk

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Robert Wagner steps into his motor home dressing room, flashes that patented grin, pulls off his dinner jacket, loosens his tie and drops onto a couch. Even slouched he looks elegant.

Wagner has made a career out of charm and charisma in a score of movies. He was the charming rogue and reformed cat burglar in ABC's "It Takes a Thief." He was the charming rogue and reformed con man in CBS' "Switch."

IN HIS NEW series, ABC's "Hart to Hart," he is not a rogue, but charm and a penchant for mischief and adventure cling to him like an expensive shaving cologne. His co-star and wife in the series is Stephanie Powers, who is as adept as Wagner at breathing life into fluff and making the trite seem fresh.

At the moment, Miss Powers is standing outside and tossing a ball to her dog. She is wearing a bright red Halston dress.

Wagner explains. "We decide to get dressed up to go out for dinner. Then a friend of ours gets into trouble and this whole situation develops. I play the whole show in a dinner jacket and Stephanie is in the Halston.

"We get shot at, cross a river, she rips my jacket in jail, I tear her dress. Hopefully, it will all have some wit and charm."

WIT AND CHARM. That, more or less, is what the series is all about. It's not a whodunnit, and Wagner says reports that he and Stephanie are private eyes are not true.

Wagner is Jonathan Hart, the self-made multi-millionaire head of a huge conglomerate. Stephanie is Jennifer Hart, a free-lance journalist and author.

"It's not always a crime show," says Wagner, who fixes himself a high-protein milk shake for lunch as he talks. "We will have lots of involvements in many areas.

"IT'S NOT A comedy, either. Our endeavors are quite serious, but they're dealt with in high style. Jonathan Hart uses his money to be adventurous instead of sitting around an office."

The series has been compared to "Mr. and Mrs. North" and to "The Thin Man."

Wagner says, "That's a nice comparison. It's very flattering, but really it wasn't designed for that. But the relationship in 'The Thin Man' worked and that's what this is about. The relationship."

ATTRACTED TO CHARMING CHARACTERS
Robert Wagner Aims for Wit, Charm

It is a hospital set, where the Harts' friend has been taken. With them is Lionel Stander, who also stars in the show as their butler, chauffeur and partner in adventure.

The development of "Hart to Hart" goes back a few years. Producers Aaron Spelling and Leonard Goldberg wanted Wagner and his wife, Natalie Wood, for a TV movie called "The Affair." Part of the inducement was an offer of partnership in a future series.

The future series was not "Hart to Hart," but "Charlie's Angels."

WAGNER WOULD say only that he has "a substantial piece" of it, but Spelling has said Wagner will make millions from the deal. Wagner is also involved in the development of other series.

Sidney Sheldon, author of "Bloodline" and a former Oscar-winning screenwriter, created "Hart to Hart" — and then it sat on a shelf for seven years until Wagner found it and resurrected it. It was retitled, Tom Mankiewicz rewrote it and directed the pilot.

Wagner says he sought out Stephanie and Stander for the series.

He is asked how he likes working with Stander, a gravel-voiced actor who could steal a scene from a baby and a dog at the same time.

HE SMILES. "I had Lionel in mind for the part. Character actors are the real arteries of our business. He's great. He's wonderful for that part. The better the people around you are, the better you are."

Long Run

'I Do' Said Offstage

CHANHASSEN, Minn. (AP) — A nice thing happened to Susan Goeppinger and David Anders as they sang "I Do! I Do!" to each other on the stage. They fell in love.

They said "I do" to each other in a real-life marriage and, like the couple they've portrayed on stage for nearly nine years, acquired a son and daughter.

SUSAN AND DAVID see themselves as "plain-folks" suburbanites, but seven times weekly, the Broadway transplant and the former Nebraska minister sing "I Do! I Do!" at the Chanhassen Dinner Theater in this small town 20 miles west of Minneapolis.

Since its opening Feb. 18, 1971, the musical has drawn more than 317,000 people to more than 3,170 performances.

When they're not acting, Susan and David clean their house together, shop for groceries and spend a lot of time golfing. They take turns getting up in the morning to care for the children.

"WE'RE AVERAGE type people and very family-oriented," says David, 42. "About the only way we're different from our neighbors is that our work schedules are unusual," says Susan, 37.

"I Do! I Do!," a musical version of "The Fourposter," portrays 40 years of love and marriage beginning with the wedding day of "Agnes" and "Michael." Chanhassen's producer-director, Gary Gisselman, sees it as a play that speaks to all ages and all levels of sophistication.

"It has an emotional quality that touches everyone in some stage of their lives," says Gisselman. "Frequently young people who see the show come back and bring their parents."

Susan and David married on July 16, 1972, after their 500th performance. Then they left on their honeymoon.

ASIDE FROM SIX weeks vacation a year and time off for Susan's pregnancies, they have continued their stage roles almost without letup. For part of one maternity leave, Susan took an appropriate role in another show — playing the pregnant chambermaid in "Flea in Her Ear."

The two are amused how their lives have mirrored those of "Agnes" and "Michael." Like the play's characters, the couple has a son, first-born, and one daughter. "We didn't plan it that way," Anders laughs.

Kristian David is 5; Erin is 2½. Their birth weights were nearly identical to those of the play characters' offspring. Kristian weighed 6 pounds, 15 ounces — only one ounce more than the son of "Agnes" and "Michael." The parallel is "almost spooky," acknowledges Susan.

MOMENT-BY-MOMENT PHILOSOPHY HELPS CAREERS
David and Susan Anders' Family Matches Stage Roles

The actors, "just for fun," substitute the birth weights of their own children when "Agnes" and "Michael" sing about their babies.

"I DO! I DO!" plays six nights a week and twice on Saturdays. The actors are rarely off stage during the show, and that helps Susan and David avoid boredom. Just sitting, waiting for an entrance, they say, is what bores actors the most.

Also, they've developed a helpful moment-by-moment philosophy.

"When we're on stage, we never think about the next scene, or about something in the next act, or how long we might continue to do the show, or what we'll do when the show closes," Anders says. "We think about only the moment we're involved in."

IT HELPS, TOO, that they've been playing opposite each other for so long. When David was laid up briefly with a torn ligament, a very fine actor filled in for "Michael" but it didn't seem quite right to Susan.

"I kept thinking it was so strange doing the show with another man," she recalls.

Gisselman says the fact that Susan and David married and had children of their own gives the play a special quality the audience savors. People want to see "that couple" and are disappointed, the producers say, when someone else fills in.

Actress Signed For Film

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Valerie Curtin, an actress and screenwriter, has been signed for a featured role in MGM's "Why Would I Lie?"

Treat Williams and Lisa Eichhorn star in the romantic comedy now in production in Spokane, Wash.

Miss Curtin, in such movies as "All the President's Men," "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore" and "Silver Streak," is co-author with Barry Levinson of " And Justice for All." She has also written numerous television episodes.

Pope's Tour: A Promoter's Dream

But Why Are His Major U.S. Appearances Going to Be Free?

By BOB GREENE

The rock music business, as you may have heard, is in serious trouble. Big-name acts are performing in half-empty arenas. Fans are thinking twice about buying tickets for even the most well-known performers. Established superstars are canceling their tours at the last minute, in the face of apathy from potential concertgoers.

But this month, one different type of national tour is causing such excitement and commotion that, suddenly, the whole world is talking about it.

THE POPE HAS scheduled a six-city American tour — Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Des Moines, Chicago and Washington. Millions of people are expected to show up to see him at each stop.

The pope's tour is a rock promotion man's dream. The pope is not a rock act, of course — but the rock promo men are the best in the world, and — frustrated because their talents are being underutilized in a down market — they would love to use their skills to help the pope tour. And I called one of the hottest young promo men in the rock business — John Sykes of CBS Records — to ask him how he would handle the tour if he was lucky enough to get the assignment.

"It would be an honor," Sykes said. "This is definitely the biggest tour of the year. Before it even starts, the pope is showing himself to be recession-, depression- or inflation-proof."

THE MAIN GOAL of a promo man for the pope, Sykes said, would be to convey an image of class to the public.

"We would have the pope's equipment travel from city to city in three spotless white tractor trailers," Sykes said.

"On the side of each trailer would be a simple but elegant slogan: 'THE POPE. FALL TOUR '79.' This tour logo would be on everything, from backstage passes to the paper drinking cups in the dressing room. Only the classiest tours use their own logos. The Bee Gees had their name on the plane.

"And those backstage passes — backstage is always a hectic place, and the passes help us figure out at a glance who really belongs there. We would have the passes color-coded. Local priests would get blue plastic ones. Cardinals would get red plastic ones. And the pope himself and his chief aides would get the white plastic ones."

SEVERAL THINGS about the upcoming tour are bothering the top thinkers in the rock promo world. One is the fact that all of the pope's appearances are going to be free.

"Free concerts are fine, but the pope is one of the few artists who can name his own ticket price, and get it," Sykes said.

"Most festivals charge between $15 and $20 a ticket. I think the pope could charge $30 and still attract just as many people as he will at his free appearances. Certain artists, people will pay anything to see. I put Frank Sinatra and the pope in that category.

"And another thing — the pope doesn't have any product in the stores. A major record label will usually discourage an act from touring unless there's a new record coming out. I can see why the pope might not want that — but at least I could set up some interviews. I would probably go for Phil Donahue, Us magazine, Merv Griffin. I'd keep him off 'Saturday Night Live' — the demographics are wrong."

EVEN THOUGH this is Pope John Paul II's first American tour, most experts agree that he will draw exceptionally well. And the rock promo men, while cautious, concur.

"We have to break down the pope's audience and look at it," Sykes said. "As long as he doesn't appear in a specific market too frequently, he should do fine. When you're appealing to an older demographic, as the pope is, you can't come around too often. Whereas an act that is appealing toward a younger demographic, i.e. Ted Nugent, can come in a lot and pull well anyway.

"This is a new pope. With most new artists, you usually have to try hard just to get them heard. Maybe put on a budget show with discount tickets. Tie it in with a radio station. But some acts — Boston, the Knack — are hot their first time through, and I think the pope will do very, very well."

Sykes is impressed with whoever is doing the pope's advance publicity.

"WHOEVER IT IS is doing an excellent job with television," he said. "We could never get Walter Cronkite or John Chancellor every night for one of our rock acts — without knowing who the person is, I'd have to say that whoever is handling TV for the pope has good contacts in New York."

Sykes is aware that some people may be offended by the very idea of a promo man working for the pope — but points out that, on a giant tour, certain problems often come up that only an experienced rock promo man is equipped to handle.

"Say we're backstage," Sykes said. "A man and his wife and kids come up, and say, 'I met the pope at the airport in Rome! He told me to come to any show!' You have to have an experienced man who can say, 'Mister, do you know how many "best friends" the pope has? If you're not on this list, you don't get in the dressing room.'

"AND THE PRESS. Someone has got to control them. They should be given special 'Backstage After Mass' passes, and be allowed to do their interviews only after the service is over."

Sykes is not worried by the argument that the pope is too big a personage for even the most hardened rock promo man to work for.

"We've handled Electric Light Orchestra," he said. "We can handle anyone."

Businesses Soar on Hornet's Wings

Coastal Subcontractors Feed Jet Fighter Project

By MICHAEL PASKEVICH
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Production of a highly-advanced jet fighter, the new U.S. Navy/Marine Corps F-18 Hornet, is providing a financial thrust to Orange Coast area businesses.

By the time El Toro Marine Corps Air Station takes delivery of the first F-18s, in 1983, county corporations will be in full flight of a boon that is expected to pump $566 million into the county economy by 1990.

AND MUCH of that money in subcontracts from Northrop Corporation (El Segundo) and McDonnell Aircraft Company (St. Louis) will be going to 11 Orange Coast businesses between Huntington Beach and San Juan Capistrano.

Local firms already have been awarded $30 million of the $34 million in Northrop contracts in Orange County so far.

"Products here along the coast are very much in demand," said Jim Lowes, director of air fuel and space systems marketing for Parker-Bertea Aerospace Group of Irvine.

"OUR MAJOR activity is with Northrop. We supply them with eight different fuel system components that are used 24 times on each aircraft," Lowes added.

Parker-Bertea also is providing engine air supply systems and an anti-icing removal unit for the F-18 windshield.

The Aeronutronic Division of Ford Aerospace and Communications in Newport Beach recently was awarded a $26.7 million contract from McDonnell Aircraft to produce what is known as the F/A-18 FLIR system.

THAT'S SHORT for Forward Looking Infrared imaging set, a component that is only 72 inches long and 13 inches in diameter.

Yet the system will provide 24-hour attack capability in any weather because of a television format display that allows the pilot to lock in on his target.

A Ford spokesman said the company is on schedule to deliver six FLIRs by the end of this year.

Six F-18s are undergoing flight tests at a naval station in Patuxent River, Md., and full scale production of the aircraft is under way.

THE NAVY has guaranteed purchase of 1,366 F-18s at a projected cost of $24 billion. Designed to carry 19,000 pounds of ordnance (weapons and ammunition), the F-18 Hornet will be three times more reliable than any existing Navy aircraft.

It will replace two Navy-Marine aircrafts — the F-4 and A-7 — and modified aircraft carrier and reconnaissance models are tentatively planned.

Chuck Alston, engineering manager of the aerospace and commercial fueling division for the J.C. Carter Company (ITT) of Costa Mesa, has heard of "an optimistic projection of 2,572 planes to be built over 15 years.

"WE PROVIDE the fuel and air disconnects which are built into the lower-surface wing and are used when external fuel tanks are installed," said Alston.

"The system costs about $2,500 per plane and we expect that to increase with inflation."

Beyond the initial order for the Navy, more Hornets may be built for sale to other countries.

THE FORECAST, he said, is for 150 Hornets for sale to Canada, 75 to Australia, 80 to Spain, 200 to Israel, 120 to Saudi Arabia, 120 to Italy, 80 to Korea and 100 Hornets each to Turkey and Greece.

The Navy contract alone is expected to create more than 2,500 new jobs in Orange County by the mid-'80s.

In California, the Navy Hornet program is expected to provide more than 31,000 jobs. According to representatives at Northrop, which is handling about 40 percent of the prime contracting, nearly $7 billion will be spent in the state over the life of the program.

E.A. SELZER & Associates of Huntington Beach, a distributor for power tools, has been awarded a Northrop contract to build the unique tools required to put the fuselage sections of the F-18 together in El Segundo.

Dave Poer, manager at Selzer, is another supporter of Orange Coast business potential. He said the firm moved from Burbank seven years ago to be able to sell to Orange and Los Angeles counties and as far south as San Diego.

Endevco, a Dynamic Instrument division based in San Juan Capistrano, is supplying systems that will measure structural vibration on F-18 test flights, said spokesman Tony Schnieder. The firm also will provide in-flight engine vibration systems on tactical models.

MICROELECTRONIC Products Division of Hughes Aircraft in Newport Beach is working on an advanced radar system, but company officials will not disclose the amount of the contract.

Among the other area firms contributing to the F-18 project are Shur Lok Corporation, Titanium Metals Corp. of America, and Symbolic Displays, Inc., all based in Irvine.

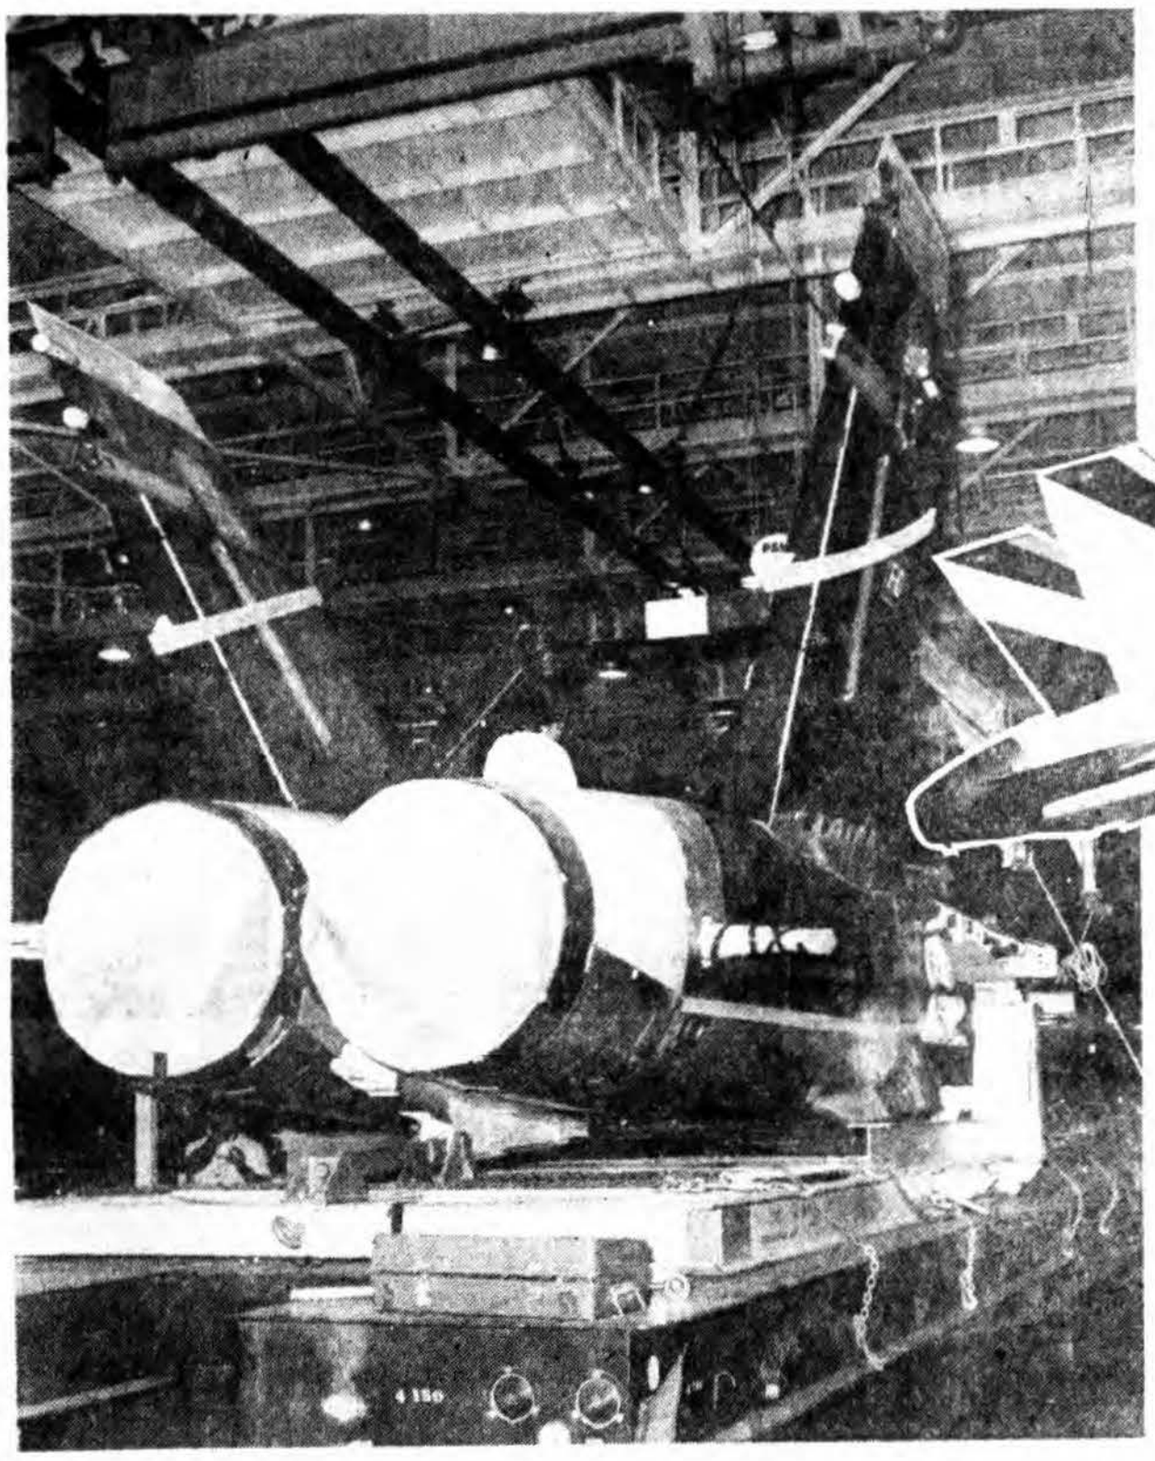
That's where Len Harvill arrived 11 years ago to build Rockford Aerospace Products, Inc.

Noting that one acre of land in Irvine's Industrial Park went for $33,000 and is now fetching nearly $230,000, Harvill has watched the area become "the Cadillac of the business world."

HARVILL, president and general manager of Rockford, said his firm is supplying fasteners to McDonnell for the F-18s.

"We help hold them together," he said. And although fasteners may be considered a minor part, Harvill said they often add up to 15 percent of an aircraft's overall production cost. Some fasteners for space shuttles cost $200 each.

"We consider this area Disneyland and fastener land," said Harvill, estimating that his contract for the Hornet will bring in $30,000 per year for as long as the program lasts.



Air pressure valve from Parker Bertea of Irvine is sent to Northrop Corp. in El Segundo where center and aft fuselage sections (left) for F-18 Hornet jet fighter start shipment to St. Louis where Navy and Marine planes are finished.

Fired Syndrome

Most OK After Few Months

By DELORES BROOKS IRWIN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

They're people, unemployed people.

But unlike those who have been caught up in a general layoff or who stopped work by choice, they have a special cross to bear.

THEY'VE BEEN fired.

And, according to the professionals who deal with them, the experience can be so devastating for the recently fired that they can't function, can't think.

Worst of all, they can't make it back onto the job market.

"They're way out in space, really out of it," said Jerry Ackerman.

HE DIRECTS Experience Unlimited, an organization designed to help unemployed persons find their way back to a normal working life.

"Unemployment is an illness. If it continues too long, the sickness eats the heart and soul out of a person."

The depression resulting from being fired can lead to thoughts of suicide, according to county mental health psychologist Douglas Schiebel.

DESCRIBING THE plight of a Newport Beach professional man who suddenly lost his job, he said:

"He was so agitated he wanted to take his own life.

"He decided he would starve himself to death, that he would make himself suffer in front of his family as a way to atone for his sins.

"It was a way for him to die gradually and without doing violence to himself."

Personnel experts say the number of persons fired from their jobs has dwindled in recent years; most employers have found new ways to get rid of unwanted employees.

Instead of firing them, they simply ask them to resign.

"Outright termination is not a frequent thing," said Sarra Berk, of Sarra Berk Employment Agency in Irvine.

"Instead of being terminated, employers more often give the employee the option of quitting. But even that's a big blow to the employee's ego.

"THE IMMEDIATELY rush out and try to find another job. Usually they don't interview well."

And industry personnel managers agree that firing is far less common today, especially with employers' increased sensitivity to discrimination issues.

Representatives from both Fluor Corporation and Irvine Company said the number of persons fired every year is small, perhaps one in 100.

But they add that workers are moving on, one way or another.

BOTH COMPANIES have complicated policies requiring extensive counseling sessions between boss and subordinate before firing can take place.

In addition, written summaries of the talks as well as letters detailing the employees' errant behavior must be included in personnel files.

That lengthy process usually leads to a mutual agreement between employee and company to part ways, according to Soft, Tough or Thick?

Decision Can't Be Swept Under the Carpet

By PAT DUNN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The smart carpet buyer begins to make a selection before going near a store. First, consider severity of expected wear and the length of time the carpet must last.

Carpet durability and looks are influenced by three factors: fiber, texture and, most importantly density. Regardless of texture or fiber, the more pile packed into a carpet's surface, the better it will wear.

WHEN YOU ARE shopping, the easiest way to check the pile density is to bend the carpet sample and look closely at how much carpet backing shows between the fibers. The less backing you see, the better the density.

The fiber you choose will influence the carpet's resistance to soil, wear and crushing. It also determines the ease of cleaning — an important factor when your installed carpet begins to lose its new look.

Texture is primarily a question of looks. Most are satisfactory, but only if the carpet is dense enough. It's important to know that some textures require more care than others.

SINCE MOST CONSUMER purchases are trade-offs between what can be afforded and is practical compared to what is most appealing or top quality, carpet shoppers should accept the fact that they face hard choices.

In general, choose the heaviest density affordable, even if it means going to a less expensive fiber.

Wool, which has long been considered the fiber of choice in terms of looks, is now too expensive for most carpet buyers.

Manmade fibers such as nylon, polyester, and acrylic have been substantially improved. A wise shopper can now choose these formerly less desired fibers with more confidence.

NYLON IS MOST widely used in carpets today. Its outstanding characteristic is abrasion resistance. As a result, nylon takes dye well and resists stains.

Drawbacks include the buildup of static electricity, which also attracts dirt, and a tendency toward pilling, which occurs when tiny, fuzzy balls of fiber become wedged between the carpet tufts.

Some nylon carpets are being marketed which resist these faults, but careful shopping and comparison of claims and guarantees is necessary to locate these improved brands.

ACRYLIC CARPET, usually more expensive than nylon, resembles wool in appearance, texture and performance. Acrylic also resists soil quite well, is resilient and durable.

Polyester fibers, relative newcomers to the carpet field, are valued for their softness and luxurious looks. Problems, as with nylon, include pilling and static electricity.

Polypropylene or olefin fiber is used extensively as a carpet backing and the material for indoor-outdoor carpet.

consumer CLOSE-UP

While fiber considerations are based on cost and durability, texture choice is often a question of style.

AT PRESENT, PLUSH, velvety smoothness is highly popular. Plush carpets feel good underfoot and are available in most fibers in a wide range of prices.

Some people object to the shading which occurs when plush carpets are stepped on and the pile leans in different directions. For them, the new Saxony plush texture which lessens the degree of shading would be preferable.

Twist textures which were once known as "friezes" are regaining popularity because they conceal tracking and shading. By combining slightly twisted yarns with bulkier ones, designers have been able to create interesting style and pattern effects.

(See RUG BUYS, Page C2)

Martin Brower of Irvine Company.

"You have to be fairly desperate to stay with a company after all that," Brower said.

Likewise, Dutch Willwater of Fluor Corp. thinks those who stick around long enough to be fired aren't shocked at that final confrontation.

"MOST PEOPLE fired for cause accept it. Once in a while the person believes he has been totally wronged," Willwater said.

"But if you do the right job in talking with the employee along the way, it's not that difficult."

Those who deal with unemployed persons don't agree.

In fact, most professionals say they believe that those who quit or are laid off experience the same torment as those who are fired.

"I THINK people laid off have just as much trauma," said Dick Johnson of the state Employment Development Department.

Johnson said job loss for formerly high-ranking employees was especially difficult. They have been successful and expect to be so again.

So, because of pride, they will use up all their savings rather than file for unemployment benefits, Johnson said. When they're still out of work a month later, the situation has become desperate.

And high level management people are likely to be eased out of their positions today more than ever, according to a representative from a Newport Beach employment agency.

"THERE HAS been no real seniority system for some time," said Glenn Olson of Executive Search. "Managers are judged only by their accomplishments and ability to perform, not the number of years with the company."

Wicks

"You missed the news. More fighting somewhere - Gold is up - Carter fired Rosalynn - "

For these people, especially the successful ones, losing a job not only denies them income, but strips away their social status, psychologist Schiebel said.

"It's more than losing money. Work is still central to our society. One's job and success often equals personal worth."

But the unemployment illness can be cured, Schiebel said.

IN MANY cases it is simply a matter of putting things back in perspective.

"Sometimes we attribute too much significance to a job. We have to teach them to learn from their experience and sometimes to realize their own limitations," Schiebel said.

And many people can turn themselves and their unhappy lives around quickly, the psychologist said.

"The unemployed person is one of our most rewarding clients," he said. "They come in looking awful and in a couple of months they are OK again."

Soft Drink Rivalry Firms Up

By MILTON MOSKOWITZ

Put together pizza, tacos, potato chips, corn chips and tortilla chips and what do you have? A mountain of junk food, someone might say. A very thirsty gullet, someone else might say. In which case you could slake that thirst by downing some Pepsi-Cola or Mountain Dew.

Put together all those snack foods and soft drinks, and you have a corporation: PepsiCo Inc., named for its most famous product.

WE MUNCH and guzzle so much of the stuff that PepsiCo has risen to become the 60th largest industrial corporation in the land. At the start of this decade it was lodged in 119th place.

PepsiCo with Pepsi and Mountain Dew ranks second to Coca-Cola in the soft drink business. In snack foods, however, no one puts a glove on it.

It owns Frito-Lay, which markets Lay's potato chips, Fritos corn chips and Doritos tortilla chips. PepsiCo racks up annual sales of $1 billion in these snack items. No other company can make that claim.

PEPSICO MOVED into the pizza business in 1977 when it acquired the Pizza Hut chain. It became a taco seller last year when it acquired Taco Bell.

It also owns Wilson Sporting Goods and North American Van Lines, but these subsidiaries don't come close to producing the kind of profits generated by potato, corn and tortilla chips.

Donald Kendall, who runs PepsiCo, would like nothing better than to surpass the company's longtime rival, Coca-Cola — and 1979 may be the year it will happen, on one level anyway.

THERE'S NO chance that Pepsi-Cola will overcome the strong lead Coke has in soft drinks. But thanks to all the acquisitions it has made, PepsiCo probably will edge ahead of Coca-Cola this year in total sales volume.

At the end of 1978 the two were neck and neck as follows:

	1978 Sales
Coca-Cola	$4,337,900,000
PepsiCo	$4,300,000,000

PepsiCo's sales this year are running far ahead of its 1978 pace. They may very well break the $5 billion barrier — and Coca-Cola is not likely to reach that mark.

IF IT COMES to pass, that will be the first time PepsiCo has ever outsold Coca-Cola. On the other hand, Kendall has a long way to go to catch up on the profit side. Coke earned $374 million after taxes last year. Pepsi's earnings were $225 million.

In short: Coca-Cola is a far more profitable company.

It has diversified too — but not to the same extent as PepsiCo. In Coke's larder today are Minute Maid and Snow Crop juices, Maryland Club and Butternut coffees.

If you had to choose which way to go — wines or fast food — which would you opt for? PepsiCo used to have a flourishing wine subsidiary, Monsieur Henri. But it got rid of it so that it could pursue its fast food adventures.

Coca-Cola went the other way. It resisted all overtures to enter the fast food business — and as PepsiCo was departing from the wine market, it bought, in rapid succession, the big Taylor winery in New York and two California vintners, Sterling and Monterey Vineyards.

Those are wines not likely to be served at Pizza Huts.

Check Realty Firm

DEAR BOB: My son has been advised to liquidate his common stock investments and put his money into realty. His adviser suggests investing with a company that buys land, builds apartment houses, and then sells the property and divides the profits among the investors. How can he check out this company to see if they are honest?

Mildred R.

DEAR MILDRED: Ask for the firm's latest financial report, including banking and business references. More importantly, ask for the names of at least three current or previous investors. Phone to ask if they would invest with the firm again. Check the firm's past success record as that is the best indication of how they will do in the future. If possible, ask your banker to check on the firm's business background too.

Don't Count Gains

DEAR BOB: I am 66 and about to retire to Florida or Arizona. Would you advise the purchase of a mobile home in a nice park there or would renting an apartment be better? Do mobile homes appreciate in value as much as permanent homes?

Walter K.

DEAR WALTER: Until the last few years, mobile homes did not go up in value. Rather, they depreciated and lost value. But the shortage of affordable housing has resulted in mobile homes sustaining value and even going up in value in some areas. But don't count on that continuing.

You may wish to temporarily rent an apartment in your new area until you become familiar with it. Never buy in haste. Take your time.

Damage Covers Defect

DEAR BOB: The house we bought had two gas leaks, a broken stove, leaky roof, leaking plumbing, and late-paying tenants. What remedy?

Sue R.

DEAR SUE: Did you buy the house "as is" or was it represented as being in excellent condition? Even if you bought it "as is," the seller should have disclosed any known defects.

The two usual remedies for defective property purchases are rescission of the sale or monetary damages. Talk it over with your lawyer to see if you should pursue your legal remedies. But you can't blame the seller for the late-paying tenant unless his timely rent payments were guaranteed.

Insurance Plans Differ

DEAR BOB: When we bought our new home we got a mortgage for 95 percent of the purchase price. The lender calls it a PMI mortgage. Shortly after we closed the purchase, several salesmen contacted us about buying "mortgage insurance." Isn't that what we already have?

Crane M.

DEAR CRANE: No. PMI means "private mortgage insurance." If you default on your mortgage, the private mortgage insurance company will pay any loss suffered by your lender on the top, riskiest part of the loan. For this coverage, you are paying an extra cost as part of your mortgage payment.

The insurance salesmen wants you to buy a life insurance policy so that if you die or become disabled, the mortgage will be paid. Don't confuse mortgage insurance with life insurance to pay off the mortgage.

RUG BUYS...

Other types of textures include looped-pile designs, a dense, tight construction very useful in high traffic areas, and cut and looped textures.

Carpet is a "high ticket" item, and it makes sense to check out a retailer's reputation before making this significant investment.

Beware of the dealer whose price is substantially lower. Also watch out for extra charges at delivery. Carpet bills should clearly state whether removal of the old carpet, installation of metal threshold stripping and padding are included.

CARPET MAY BE sold with a "standard" padding included, but be sure you understand its quality and consider upgrading. If you plan to stay in your home for a "lifetime," get the best padding and carpet you can afford. If not, plan and buy accordingly.

Some guarantees are better than others. If you know your carpet will be exposed to sunlight, stay away from bright or extremely dark colors. They will fade, and manufacturers seldom guarantee against color change due to sun-fade.

Also consider the frequency of cleaning. It may be true that light colors make an area appear to be larger than it is, but cleaning bills may dull your enthusiasm for high-style appearance when years of maintenance are considered.

The key to smart carpet buying is to remember that you will live with your choice for years. Take enough time to shop so you won't regret your decision.

Stock Market 'Hangs Tough' Despite Chaos

NEW YORK (AP) Record gold prices, a falling dollar, higher interest rates and jitters about what the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries will do next are never the ingredients for a healthy stock market.

All of those factors were present this past week, and stock prices, as might have been expected, declined. But analysts said the damage was not nearly as great as it might have been.

The number of theories about why the market absorbed many of the shocks with relatively little damage is roughly the same as the number of analysts on Wall Street. Yet the experts agreed that the market is showing an impressive ability to, as one put it, "hang tough."

WHEN THE WEEK was over, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial issues, with small gains in midweek not nearly offsetting big drops on Monday and Friday, stood at 878.58, down 15.36.

The Big Board's volume averaged 34.62 million shares daily.

DESPITE THE BIG declines at the beginning and end of the week, the market seemed to ignore a great deal of bad news.

Gold prices, setting records almost daily and climbing over the $400 mark for the first time at week's end, seemed to have little effect on the market, possibly because it has already seen a doubling in gold prices in the past year.

"It's just amazing the market has held up the way it has, considering the enormous rise in gold prices," said Eldon Grimm, an analyst at Birr, Wilson & Co.

IT ALSO TOOK pretty much in stride the falling dollar, rumors of an increase in the price of Nigerian oil, the rise of the prime interest rate to a record 13½ percent and reports that OPEC, meeting in Vienna, was considering turning from the dollar to a combination of the dollar and British pound as the cartel's official currency.

There was some good news, as well, including a drop in the latest money supply statistics and several oil discoveries. And the rapid run-up in the price of gold and other metals boosted stocks of metal-producing companies.

Real Estate Questions/Comment

What is an easy-to-use method for keeping track of homeowner costs? We just came from our accountant's office and I am sure we are not taking advantage of all the deductions we should. Also, it would be helpful to know exactly how much money we have invested in our home. What items are usually deductible?

C.S., Costa Mesa

Very few homeowners keep proper records of what their homes actually cost them. The result is that years later, when the house is sold, the owner ends up "guesstimating" the amount of the profit on the sale.

Here is a simple, yet effective method that some taxpayers use. They keep their records in a hard-cover notebook, with envelopes attached to the inside front cover to hold copies of important documents, such as closing statements, mortgages, deeds, etc. After entering the initial purchase cost, they bring the cost up to date once a year when their checks and records are analyzed for preparing their income tax return.

In determining the total cost of your house for tax purposes, you should add to the basic cost the cost of permanent improvements (not repairs or upkeep) and other expenditures that are required to be "capitalized." Here are some examples of such additions to the basic cost:

- Title costs
- Revenue stamps on deeds
- Adding or enlarging a garage
- Adding a patio cover
- Adding new rooms or a new wing
- Adding or enlarging a driveway
- Renovations (beyond ordinary repair)
- Putting in a lawn
- Planting trees and shrubs
- Fences
- Termite proofing
- Water proofing
- New furnace
- Paneling
- Shelving
- Screen windows
- Lighting fixtures
- Air conditioners
- Humidifier and/or dehumidifier
- Wall-to-wall carpeting
- Antennas
- Realtor's fees

As you can see, these costs can add up to a substantial amount. If you fail to add them to the basic cost of your house, you may end up paying a greater tax than is actually due when you sell your home at a profit. (Note: under certain circumstances, however, tax on the gain from the sale of a residence may be deferred. We'll talk about this at another time).

This will help get you started, but I suggest that you see your accountant for complete detailed information.

Seminar On Tax At OCC

A four-hour seminar that examines real estate taxation will be offered Saturday at Orange Coast College.

The seminar, which runs from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., in OCC's Fine Arts Hall 116, is the second of four "Saturday Tax Seminars" being offered by OCC this fall. The seminars are free to the public, and persons may register at the door.

A pair of seminars on corporate taxation are slated for Nov. 3 and 17.

Series lecturer is Richard A. Brown, a member of the Newport Beach law firm of Howser, Gertner and Brown. Brown is a specialist in tax and business law, and is a member of the tax committee of the American Bar Association.

Lecture topics for the Oct. 6 seminar include "Capital Gains and Losses," "Depreciation," "Installment Sales," "Sale of Residence," and "Tax-Free Exchanges."

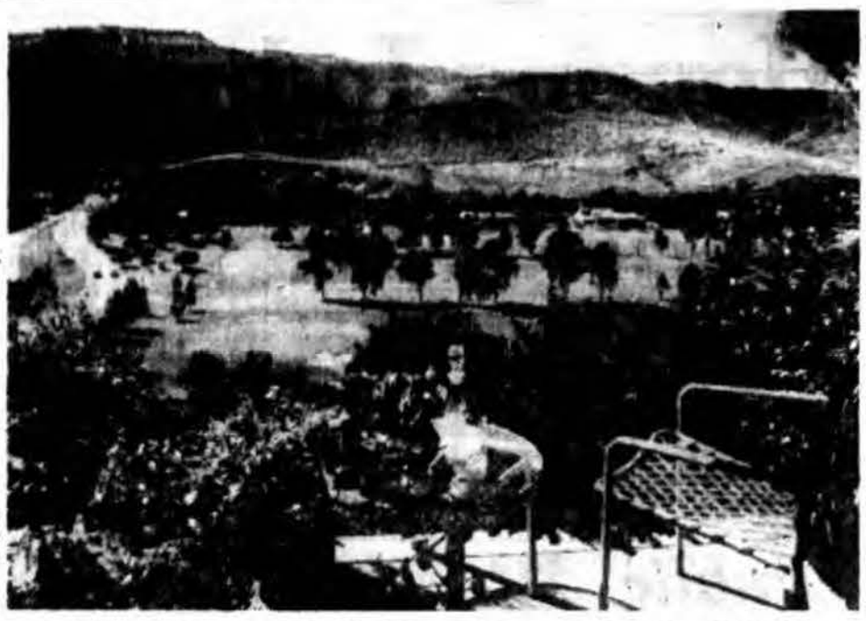
For information about the seminar, phone 556-5880.

Talk Set On Rent Control

Foster Kinney, program chairman for the Orange County Association of Real Estate Investment Brokers has announced that Monday's meeting will feature a speech on rent control by Carolyn Ewing of the Huntington Beach Board of Realtors.

This will be followed by a discussion period of the two propositions appearing on the state ballot concerning rent control.

The meeting will be held at the Moose Lodge in Santa Ana, 717 South Lyon at 8 a.m.



PANORAMIC VIEW OF GOLF COURSE AT EL NIGUEL HEIGHTS

El Niguel Heights

Homes Offer Variety

Broadmoor Homes' El Niguel Heights single-family community in Laguna Niguel is now offering a wide selection of floor plans and choice viewsites, according to Ray Wolford, director of sales.

Sales have been successful since last year's opening of the exclusive community. The large luxury homes have had special appeal to professional families desiring to move up to a larger home in a country locale close to outdoor recreation.

PRICES AT THE hilltop community range from $223,000 to $278,000, effective September 21. Homes sold subsequent to this date however, may result in the unavailability of any or all price levels, Wolford said.

The selection of residences includes four floor plans. Offering from 2,040 to 2,945 square feet of living area, various one and two-story homes feature three or four bedrooms with two-and-one-half and three baths.

The Broadmoor homes are enhanced by areas for formal and informal entertaining, an abundance of glass for indoor/outdoor pleasures and secluded bedroom wings for family privacy.

Master suites provide an ideal "adult retreat." Vaulted ceilings, sliding glass patio doors in most plans, dressing areas with mirrored wardrobes and compartmented baths are among among the elegant features.

THE LIST OF appointments at El Niguel Heights includes wall-to-wall carpeting, double-door entries in most homes, indoor laundry rooms, clerestory windows in select plans and a variety of handsome exteriors with cedar shake roofs, detailing of brick and wood and three-car garages in most homes.

The sales office and model homes are open daily at the development from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and by appointment.

To reach the Broadmoor homes, take the San Diego Freeway to Crown Valley Parkway and west to Clubhouse Drive in Laguna Niguel.

New Realty Office Formed

George L. Argyros and E. Justin Wilson III have announced the formation of the Urban Group, an Irvine-based company established to develop joint venture projects with various builders throughout California as well as other states.

Wilson, formerly with Union Bank, will serve as president of the new company. Argyros, a veteran Southern California apartment and commercial center developer, will be chairman of the board.

Wilson's 10-year association with Union Bank included a variety of real estate related activities. For the past five years, he has been vice president and manager of the Orange County real estate loan center covering the Orange County, Long Beach and South Bay areas.

Survey Shows

Land Buyers Change Minds

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you buy land in another state the law gives you three days to change your mind, and thousands of people are taking advantage of this.

The Departmenf of Housing and Urban Development conducted a survey and it reports that one out of five lot buyers is likely to cancel the sales contract during the cooling-off period.

OF MORE THAN 20,000 prospects covered in the survey, 9,020 signed contracts to buy land and of those 1,725 canceled the contract in the three-day period.

Patricia Worthy, administrator of the department's Office of Interstate Land Sales Registration, credited the cooling-off period and required property report with saving consumers millions of dollars.

Under the law most developers are required to provide potential buyers with a property report before the sale.

THESE REPORTS CONTAIN information about the land being offered, any development plans and any costs associated with living on the land.

She offered these tips to those considering purchasing land:

— Don't buy land you haven't seen.

— Ask for and read a property report before signino anything.

— DON'T LET YOURSELF be rushed into signing a contract.

— Be sure all promises are made in writing.

— Don't be afraid to cancel in the three-day cooling-off period if you want to. You don't have to give a reason.

Insulation Credit Move Wins Plaudit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee was praised for its decision to increase the maximum tax credit for people who weatherproof their homes.

Jack Carlson, executive vice president of the National Association of Realtors, said the action "is welcome news for the 55 million homeowners who face 50 percent higher home heating costs this winter."

But Carlson added that "the effective date should be immediately to provide relief this winter, and not be delayed until next June."

The Finance Committee had voted to increase the tax credit from the current $300 to $1,000, effective June 1, 1980.

Water-oriented Project Planned

Foxx Development Corp. has announced plans for Mill Stream, a water-oriented condominium community in Huntington Beach.

The new community will offer a recreational lifestyle with tennis court, pool and spa located on-site. Lakes, running streams and densely landscaped grounds will provide a lush background for the 129-home project.

Groundbreaking for the project is scheduled for November, with a summer completion date anticipated. The majority of homes are not expected to exceed $100,000.

INVESTING IN LAND

One of the nice things about investing in land is that it rarely presents management problems. However, since it will produce no income, it should be bought only if you are financially able to carry the debt.

For the typical investment, you have to put down cash amounting to 25% to 50% of the total cost of the land, with regular payments on the remainder until the entire debt is paid. But if you prefer to pay taxes on a long-term capital gain, rather than ordinary income, then land can be an attractive investment.

The key to good land investment is predicting land needs of the future. Here is where the experience of a good, local Realtor comes in. He has intimate knowledge of community needs, and can forecast, far better than the layman, what will be required for future land use and the best areas for growth potential.

Moving Up In Real Estate

TOM HOVER has been named vice president in charge of marketing for the J. M. Peters Company of Newport Beach. He will be responsible for developing new marketing programs, product development and merchandising for the firm.

Prior to joining the Peters organization, Tom Hover was director of marketing for the Southern California Division of Kaufman and Broad, involved in residential development in Orange, Los Angeles, Riverside and San Bernardino Counties.

HOVER

Hover will be replacing Greg Erickson who has been with J.M. Peters Company since its founding in 1975. Erickson is leaving to establish a new homebuilding firm in Northern California which will specialize in single family homes.

SERGIO ALVAREZ has joined Irvine Pacific and will serve as a project manager for the home building division of the Irvine Company.

Alvarez will assume responsiblility for development of Irvine Pacific's prestigious Harbor Ridge community, in addition to beginning several of the company's new products in the Village of Woodbridge.

A graduate of Cal Poly San Luis Obispo, the new project manager holds degrees in architecture and construction engineering. He also earned his MBA at Cal Poly and is a licensed real estate broker.

STEVE SCARBOROUGH of Mission Viejo has been promoted to director of project development for the Akins Company.

Scarborough's responsibilities will include design, processing and development of all residential projects for the company.

SCARBOROUGH

Prior to his association with the Akins Company, Scarborough was project manager with Irvine Pacific Development Company and senior associate with Market Profiles. He was also director of project planning with Grant Corporation.

Scarborough, a graduate of USC, also obtained his masters degree in business administration from USC.

MARION C. BUIE has been appointed president of Macnab-Irvine Realty Company, a subsidiary of the Irvine Company. BRUCE B. BARSAMIAN has been named senior vice president.

Buie succeeds John Macnab, founder of the firm, who will become a consultant to the realty firm which operates offices in Newport Beach and Irvine.

Buie has been with Coldwell Banker Residential Brokerage Company since 1970, the first seven years in the firm's Newport Beach office. During that period, he rose from a salesperson to sales manager and then to vice president and resident manager of the Newport Beach office.

Barsamian had been vice president of Macnab Irvine. Following a career as sales manager for C. J. Seibert Realty, Inc., he joined Macnab Irvine as general sales manager in 1972.

He attended UCLA and graduated from California State University, Fresno.

ROBERT C. MISTER has been promoted to senior vice president in charge of sales and marketing for Warmington Development Inc., an Irvine-based homebuilding firm.

MISTER

Mister, 36, is a graduate of the University of Maryland with a degree in finance. He joined Warmington in 1975 as a sales representative and became vice president of sales and marketing in 1976.

Under Mister's direction, Warmington has sold over 3,000 homes valued at more than $280 million during the past two years. The company currently has 17 single family home and condominium communities throughout California.

Builders Reslate Meet for Atlanta

WASHINGTON — The 119,000-member National Association of Home Builders has rescheduled its fall board of directors meeting for Oct. 11-14 in Atlanta.

The meeting, originally scheduled to begin late last week in Biloxi, Miss., was postponed and moved to Atlanta because of damage inflicted by Hurricane Frederic along the Gulf Coast.

The 1,500 directors expected to attend the Atlanta meeting will focus on ways to meet today's relentless demand for new housing created by the post World War II baby boom. During the 1970s, about 32 million Americans reached the age of 30, a 39 percent increase over the 1960s, and another 42 million will reach age 30 during the 1980s.

Housing Industry's Future Clouded?

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — With the purchase, financing and operating costs of its product continuing to rise, the housing industry is growing more worried about its future than the sales charts might indicate.

Those charts still show houses selling at a pretty good clip, although down from the pace of last spring. But with prices, mortgage rates and heating costs rising to startling levels, the future is getting cloudy.

The clouds do not necessarily suggest a storm that blows the industry away, as happened in so many other tight money periods, but they make visibility a lot worse than industry forecasters are used to.

AND SO THE INDUSTRY is counterattacking, with its main efforts falling into the categories of propaganda, legislation and service.

In the first of these remember, "propaganda" merely means the dissemenation of information and ideas favorable to a certain position is a recent statement by Joseph T. Benedict, a top financial executive.

American home buyers, said Benedict, president of the U.S. League of Savings Associations, pay less to borrow than to blue chip companies. That is, he said, mortgage rates are lower than prime rates.

THE STATEMENT IS correct. The prime lending rate is at least 12.5 percent. While some 12 percent home mortgage rates exist, the national average in August was 11.02 percent for new homes and 11.14 for used.

One reason for this is the existence of state and federal regulations that artificially restrain mortgage rates. Corporate lending rates are market rates, unrestrained by social legislation.

The National Association of Realtors is also doing its utmost. Its new executive vice president, Jack Carlson, recently stated that now is the best time to buy because prices will continue to soar.

"BY ALL MEANS BUY now," said Carlson. "It makes particularly good sense to invest in real estate during period of inflation. It's a matter of watching your capital grow or erode."

Carlson, an economist in several presidential administrations and formerly chief economist of the National Chamber of Commerce, expects price increases of 8 percent to 14 percent in the next year.

By waiting, he claims, a potential homebuyer could lose $6,000 by next August. Today's $60,000 house, he explains, will cost between $64,800 and $68,000, whereas interest rates may drop by only a single point.

THE SAME MESSAGE is being circulated by Robert Levenstein, president of Kaufman and Broad, Inc., which describes itself as the country's leading multinational housing producer.

He maintains that "over the years a new home has provided a steady and greater appreciation than certificates of deposit, savings accounts, stocks, bond or the majority of other forms of investment.

While the statements are intended to sell houses, they are motivated as much by fear. Potential homebuyers have been holding back of late, unnerved by costs, and the industry is trying to get some action.

It has other worries too. As free market rates soar, lending institutions, whose interest rates are regulated, find it increasingly difficult to attract new depositors and to hold old ones.

STILL, MANY LENDING institutions, as contrasted with commercial banks, want those regulations. For one thing, regulation permits them to offer one-quarter of one percent more interest than banks.

They are pressing for something more as well, the freeing of at least $100 of interest earned from federal income taxes, a benefit that stock market investors already enjoy. Favorable action is expected this year.

Meanwhile, the industry is attempting to deliver better service. The National Association of Realtors has approved plans that protect buyer and seller from defects in basic structural and functional elements.

LARGE REAL ESTATE firms and franchisers are seeking to raise the level of expertise through training programs. And new types of mortgages, including the variable rate mortgage whose cost rises or falls with the economy, also being offered nationally.

Public Service Fee Hit

WASHINGTON — Requiring developers to pay for public facilities that benefit the entire community is increasing new home prices by thousands of dollars, according to Bernard J. Frieden of the Harvard-MIT Joint Center for Urban Affairs.

In a study titled "Allocating the Public Service costs of New Housing," Frieden said that this shift of costs from local governments to private developers raises important economic, social and political issues that pit the desires of existing residents against the aspirations of future home buyers.

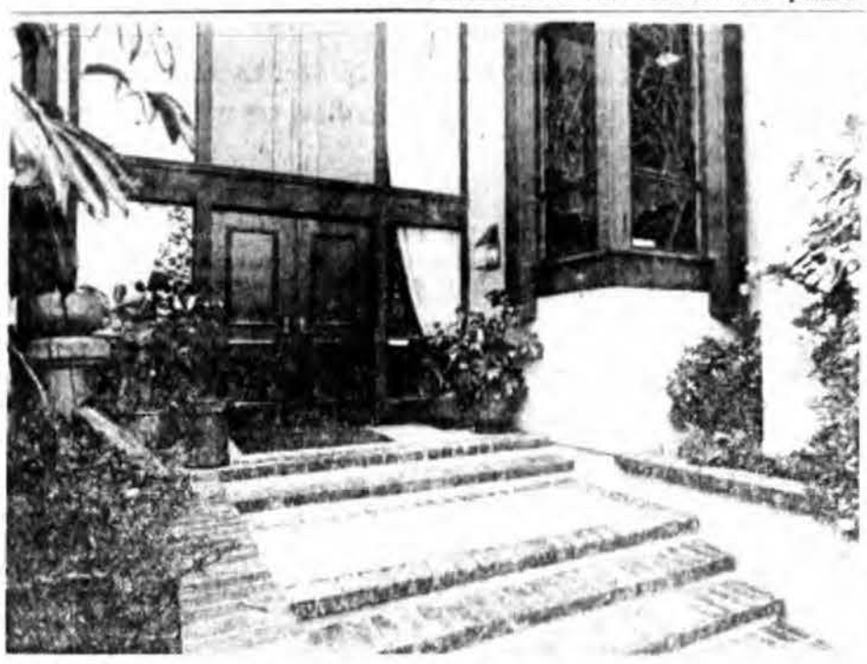
BY THE MID 1970s local streets, water and sewer lines and storm drainage collectors installed by developers represented more than 15 percent of the cost of a typical single family home, he said. That cost could be justified because those facilities served only home buyers who lived in the new subdivisions, he added.

"Recently, however, many local governments have also begun to require developers to provide or pay for public facilities that serve other residents as well as new home buyers," said Frieden, who described this trend as an "unfair use of regulatory power."

Frieden examined this trend in numerous cities, including Livermore, Calif., which was confronting problems with classroom space, water supply and sewage treatment capacity as its population more than doubled from 16,000 in 1960 to 38,000 in 1970.

FOLLOWING AN unsuccessful attempt to impose a moratorium on new construction, the city adopted a residential construction tax, a school fee of $850 per new house, a park fee and a set of fees for water and sewer connections and storm drains. The fees totaled $4,400 per house, not counting the costs of providing off-site vacilities including wells, bridges and roads.

A 1976 survey showed that 63 percent of the municipalities polled required developers to dedicate land for recreation, schools or other public facilities. Another survey showed that sewer and water tap fees ranged from a nominal charge to several thousand dollars.



Entrancing Entrance

Private entry to each Turtle Rock Vista townhome is highlighted by a decorator sidewalk and ample planter area. Wrought iron gates guard the entrances, giving each home a single-family look. Four of five plans are still available, ranging in size from 2,147 to 2,855 square feet and priced from $186,900.

Housing Forecast Set

For the 10th consecutive year, Dr. Anthony Downs, one of the nation's leading real estate economists, will forecast real estate and financial trends in the coming year for realtors who attend the 75th annual convention of the California Association of Realtors, Oct. 10-13, at the Disneyland Hotel in Anaheim.

Dr. Downs will be the featured speaker at the closing session of CAR's Diamond Jubilee Convention on Saturday, Oct. 13, beginning at 10 a.m.

Dr. Downs will describe the real estate outlook for 1980 in terms of his forecasts for the national and international real estate and financial markets.

For the first time attendees at a CAR convention will have the option of registering for the entire convention program or for the "Sales Day" and "Specialty Day" programs.

Registration for the entire convention is $35. For $20 attendees may register for either the Sales Day (Wednesday evening, Oct. 10, and all day Thursday, Oct. 11) or Specialty Day (all day Friday, Oct. 12, and Saturday morning, Oct. 13) programs. The Specialty Day registration includes Dr. Downs' address.

'DISCO' DAN FORD, RIGHTFIELDER, SCORES IN FIFTH INNING OF CINCHER GAME

Winning's Wonderful

A divisional title that's taken 19 years to achieve is worth celebrating for a long time which Angel players, fans and management did Tuesday night.

The 4-1 victory over the Kansas City Royals meant the Angels had topped the American League West and would play the Baltimore Orioles in the playoffs, starting Wednesday.

But no one was looking that far ahead in the clubhouse at Anaheim Stadium. The moment was to be enjoyed with cheers, hugs, champagne and slaps on the back.

OLD TOMBS UNCOVERED

TOKYO (AP) — Chinese scientists have found 260 tombs with more than 3,300 historical relics, dating back 1,800 to 2,200 years, in southern and central Hunan province, Peking's Xinhua (Hsinhua) news agency reported.

It said the tombs were discovered under funeral mounds. Xinhua said funerary objects including pottery vessels, spears, knives and coins were found.

SONOMA (AP) — Construction could begin next fall on a multi-million dollar, 500-seat theater arts building at Sonoma State University, the state University and Colleges Board of Trustees approved the building, which is estimated to cost $3.3 million.

Reverse Habits

Bus Strikes Scare Riders

By THOMAS D. ELIAS

Public employee strikes are generally annoying, but usually have little or no lasting impact.

When garbage workers in New York go out, garbage piles up. But it gets picked up later. The same for blue flu and even for most mass transit strikes.

BUT TWO TRANSIT WALKOUTS THAT hit California this month are different, chiefly because of their timing.

The strikes hit both Los Angeles and San Francisco, affecting 1.5 million riders in Southern California and almost a million in the north. And these strikes promise to have a lasting impact.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA FOCUS

For both came just a few months after the massive gas crunch of last spring, which forced many Californians to change habits that had been with them for decades.

"We're told to ride buses," one angry transit patron wrote to a Southern California newspaper. "But how can you depend on them if some union can shut them down on a whim? Why change your way of doing things if you can't depend on the alternative?"

THE MOST SPECTACULAR RESULT of the strikes against both the Southern California and Bay Area rapid transit districts was smog. In the Southland, the brown haze was heavier than it had been in five years. And for several days during a brief heat wave, a similar brown haze hung over the San Francisco Bay"

But smog is something Californians expect. And when several hundred thousand cars are added to normal traffic loads during the peak smog season, heavier air pollution is to be expected.

More important is the potential long-term impact of the transit strikes. They are reversing the habits started during the gas crunch.

One statistic tells much of the story: traffic volume on Southern California freeways during August was more than 5 per cent lower than a year earlier. But in early September, preliminary estimates indicate traffic was up substantially from 1978 levels. Bridge authorities in Northern California report similar patterns.

THIS IS TRUE DESPITE THE many impromptu carpools formed when the buses and trains stopped running in California's two largest mass transit systems. And it's true despite activation during the Southland smog crisis of carpooling plans at 2,600 companies with more than 100 employees.

It means that many of the drivers forced from their cars during the gas crunch are back behind the wheel. Many enjoyed the bus and train rides and will return. But for others, mass transit will seem insufficiently reliable.

So it's an unknown whether transit ridership will soon return to pre-strike levels. Riding mass transit in California is different from riding the subways of New York. It is not the habit of a lifetime, easily resumed after a break.

FOR MANY CALIFORNIANS, THE switch to mass transit was a conscious effort, involving sacrifice of both time and mobility. They did it to save money and, primarily, the time wasted in gasoline lines.

But there are no more gas lines, only higher prices. And no transit planner is ready to assume that ridership will easily return to pre-strike levels.

"It may take another crisis like the gas crunch," said one Los Angeles transport official.

The test will come a week or so after the two big mass transit systems resume operations. If the riders come back, it will be clear that the gas crunch had a permanent impact. If not, the strikes will have undone what little good the gas lines did.

Smuggler Sentenced

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — A man who identified himself as an official of Zaire's embassy in Washington has been sentenced to two years in prison after being found guilty of smuggling 1,799 Swiss-made watches into Nepal.

Lukawa Khawauji, 43, was sentenced to the jail term for failure to pay a fine of $18,700.

Smoking Expected To Drop

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cigarette smoking on a per-capita basis is expected to decline in 1979 for the sixth straight year to the lowest level in 22 years, the Agriculture Department says.

But production is gaining slightly and exports of cigarettes are brisk, the department's outlook board said.

"HOWEVER, THE smoking and health controversy, coupled with further price increases may bring the smoking rate per person in calendar 1979 down about 2 percent from last year's 198 packs per capita," the report said.

That would be the lowest since 1957, it said.

Per-capita smoking rates include persons 18 years and older and non-smokers as well as smokers. It is a statistical measure rather than a true gauge of American smoking habits.

THIS YEAR, the report said, per capita "consumption" of cigarettes is estimated at 3,900 — 195 packs of 20 each — against 3,970 or 198.5 packs in 1978. The rate has declined annually since 1973 when the per capita smoking rate was 4,148 cigarettes, or 207.4 packs.

In a related report, the department announced that federal price supports for 1979-crop tobacco grown by farmers will average 6.9 percent higher than in 1978. The price supports are mandatory under law.

Never Too Late

Job Switches Eyed

CAREERS

Dear Joyce: I'm a manager in my mid-40s and would like to make a career change. Realistically, I wonder if it's too late.

Why grind out the next 20 years in a career you no longer enjoy? asks Kent Haskell. Don't be afraid to change at any age.

Haskell has monitored the career movements of thousands of executives. He is president of MSL International Consultants Ltd., an international executive search firm headquartered in New York City.

MANY DISSATISFIED employees are immobolized by worry over accumulated benefits, Haskell reports. He advises dealing with these apprehensions by realizing that compensation and benefits are nogitiable and can often be improved.

But Haskell offers several cautions. The first is to distinguish between your desire for a career or job change. To decide if what you really need is a job change, ask:

Am I unhappy with my job location? Does traveling bother me? Do I lack psychic income? Am I getting full recognition? Am I using my skills to full potential? Do I lack in accomplishments? Is my progress slowing down and do I know why?

BEFORE JOB HUNTING, Haskell advises, define your objectives and goals, know your worth and the extent of your market potential. Eschew a horizontal move — it must be vertical so the potential employer sees you as an achiever.

If you find you're seriously contemplating a new career direction, rather than a different job, realize that wanting to change a career often stems from other changes in your life.

"There is an association between the two factors," Haskell says.

And he notes soul-searching questions to pin down the connection:

WHY DO I WANT TO CHANGE? What am I running away from — or to? Am I the type of person who aggressively will study the direction I want to take? Will I make sacrifices? Will I take risks? Will my spouse and family support me? If I fail in my new venture, can I go back?

While Haskell certainly does not advocate impetuous change, he does warn against shutting yourself out of what you deem to be more meaningful work because you're scared to examine the alternatives.

Obviously you must have the skills and knowledge, or be able to acquire them, that are required in your new career. But, as Haskell points out, many of your skills can be transferred to different careers as well as to different jobs — "good managers can work anywhere."

Just after you've been terminated is the worst possible time to change careers, Haskell says.

Village of Woodbridge – Irvine

People who live at Woodbridge Meadows have one thing in common... none would settle for less

Unique and exciting—Woodbridge Meadows offers cosmopolitan living in a country setting. Conveniently located, close to work, shopping and leisure activities.

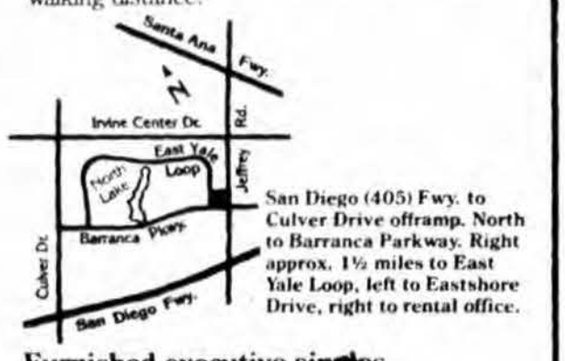
A GREAT LOCATION

San Diego Freeway	1.1 miles
Santa Ana Freeway	2.3 miles
Parkview Village Center	1.9 miles
Irvine Industrial Center	4.0 miles
Orange County Airport	7.1 miles
South Coast Plaza	8.9 miles

Woodbridge Meadows' environment and atmosphere, its "personality" is gently reminiscent of an old-fashioned neighborhood. Master-planned landscaping features towering eucalyptus, flowering ground cover and rustic bridges spanning gently flowing streams.

Architectural highlights include wood-burning fireplaces, private patios or balconies, air conditioning, smoke detectors, full draperies, plush carpets, refrigerators and, in most units, dishwashers are standard features.

Recreation facilities include an exercise room, swimming and therapy pools. Residents are members of the Woodbridge Village Association and enjoy full privileges at North Lake Beach and Tennis Club and Stone Creek Swim Club—all within easy walking distance.



San Diego (405) Fwy. to Culver Drive offramp. North to Barranca Parkway. Right approx. 1½ miles to East Yale Loop, left to Eastshore Drive, right to rental office.

Furnished executive singles, unfurnished one, two and three bedrooms.

A Salute
TO WOMEN IN BUSINESS
COMING Sunday, October 14, 1979
in the Daily Pilot

A TRIBUTE TO THE ORANGE COAST'S SUCCESSFUL WOMEN IN BUSINESS

THIS IS THE ACTUAL SIZE AD

For best reproduction, a clear black and white photo of any size can be used. Your message will accompany the picture in this space. If you choose not to publish a picture, fill the space with your message.

National Women in Business Week is October 14 through 20. To honor area women in business, industry and commerce, the Daily Pilot will publish a special tribute in its October 14 edition.

Our Salute to Business and Professional Women is an exceptional opportunity to introduce a new or longtime associate to the people of the Orange Coast, or to honor awards, achievements or contributions.

Businesswomen Salute notices will be two column by two inches each, with a photo you provide. The cost of each notice is only $20.

Don't miss being part of this special advertising opportunity. Deadline for reserving space is October 10. Call today!

RIGHT. NOBODY ON THE SQUAD IS FAST ENOUGH.
COACH

IRA'S FAST. HOW ABOUT HIM?
HE'S A SISSY, BUT I'LL ASK HIM...
COACH

SAY, IRA, SINCE YOU'RE THE FASTEST KID IN THE SCHOOL, HOW'D YOU LIKE TO JOIN THE FOOTBALL TEAM?
AND BE THE STAR RECEIVER?

ALL YOU'D HAVE TO DO IS CATCH THE BALL, AND RUN WITH IT!
I SEE. WHAT DOES THE OTHER TEAM DO?
COACH

WELL, THEY NATURALLY TRY TO STOP YOU...
HOW?

UH, BY SORT OF TACKLING YOU...
DO I FALL DOWN?

WELL, SURE, A LITTLE.
DO THEY LAND ON TOP OF ME?

KIND OF, BUT, UH, BUT...
BUT WHAT?

WELL, YOU'VE CHECKMATED ME ONCE AGAIN— BUT IT DOESN'T HURT A BIT!

I'M WRITING A PAPER ABOUT THE EARLY DAYS OF THE AMERICAN PIONEERS...
DID YOU KNOW THAT THEY HAD NONE OF OUR MODERN CONVENIENCES, LIKE STOVES - FREEZERS?

The early settlers had a rough time gathering food for their families

BOOM

But whatever they were lucky enough to trap or shoot was what they ate.

It's the same today with freezers...

● NUMBERS GAME! Spelled out, the English word for the number _ has three times as many letters as its value; number _ has half as many letters as its value; number _ has the same number of letters as its value. Fill blanks. P.S.: Each number is less than 10.

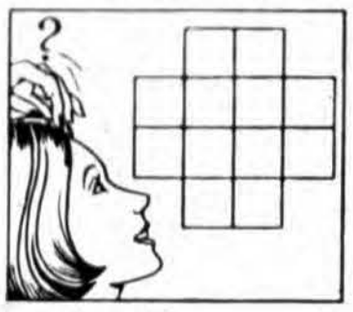
One, six and four, respectively.



● End's in Sight! Add missing letters to complete words as defined: 1._____END; to rely. 2._____END; to broaden. 3._____END; to protect.

1. Depend. 3. Extend. 3. Defend.

● To your age, add 7; double the result, add 16, double again, divide by 4 and subtract 15. Answer's your age. Give it a try.

● How's That Again? How did the cat know the clock struck one? By word of mouse. How did the pioneers ship cigars? In Conestoga wagons.

EYE-CUE TESTER!

The simple geometric design above is composed of a number of straight lines which intersect to form an assortment of rectangles. Rectangles, of course, are four-sided figures with four right angles and equal opposite sides. All four of a rectangle's sides may be equal, as in squares, or one set of sides may be one length and the other pair another length.

Now then, how many rectangles of various sizes can you find in this design?

There are fifty-one rectangles in all.

FOR RUSTY YOUNG, floral designer at the White House

What kind of decorations are used at state dinners; how many people prepare them; and what's their fate after the event is over? — F.J., Anchorage, Alaska

● Components of floral arrangements at formal White House dinners in the Carter Administration are chosen to reflect a special interest of the honored guest or to carry out a theme for the event. For example, for a dinner in honor of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, the table was centered with exotic cacti to reflect President Sadat's penchant for American "Westerns." Crepe myrtle was featured at a dinner for West Germany's Chancellor and Mrs. Helmut Schmidt, since that flower is the favorite of Mrs. Schmidt. All of us in the flower shop, along with the help of volunteers (this varies), prepare arrangements, and the flowers are used over again in routine work.

FOR THE "ASK" EDITOR

Is it true that Margot Kidder's portrayal of Kathleen Lutz in The Amityville Horror (film of the book about a haunted house) made Mrs. Lutz unhappy? —L.S., Danville, Ill.

● Kathy and George Lutz feel American International Pictures did a fine job of the difficult task of reducing the events of 28 days to two hours. You must be referring to the scene which caused critics to express amusement, instead of sympathy or horror (near the end, when George declares, "I'm going out of my mind," and she replies, "George, are you all right?") "What else could I say?" asked Kathy, defensively. "If someone falls down, what's a normal, natural reaction? 'Are you all right?' are the first words that come to mind." She feels part of the problem lies with Margot Kidder's perfect enunciation. "Perhaps the words should have come out faster, in a nervous way, not so measured."

FOR GILDA RADNER, co-star of NBC-TV's Saturday Night Live

When did you first get the urge to be a comedienne? —S.M., Tupelo, Miss.

● When I was a little girl in Detroit. When we went to the theater, my parents always got seats up front so I could get a good view of the stage. When I looked up at the actors, I thought that was the most wonderful thing in the world — to be on a stage where the whole world admired you. I couldn't wait to get up there.

FOR MAC DAVIS, co-star of North Dallas Forty

Is it true you were always picking fights when you were younger? —R.C., Florence, S.C.

● Yes, until I was 18. That's when I got into a brawl — over a girl — with a guy who happened to be a karate expert. He hit me so hard, he broke my nose, and I was blinded from tears of pain. I managed to get up and swing wildly but missed him and struck a stone pillar, instead. I got a busted hand as well as a battered nose. The girl got hysterical with laughter. Naturally, I never saw her again. The beating I took cured me.

FOR DAVID LEARY, co-star of Broadway's Da

Were you kidding when you said you wanted to die owing a million dollars? —R. Jeffries, Trenton, N.J.

● No, I was deadly serious. I've always lived way beyond my means. I suppose you could call it the little-boy mentality. I have no desire to own anything and love the idea of renting. I spend most of my money in restaurants and big bookstores. If things get to the point where I can't support myself, I'll go off, like Gaugin, to Polynesia and wander around the sand dunes forevermore.

FOR CARLY SIMON, recording star

Most of your album covers show you as a sex symbol. Is that the way you see yourself? —A.R., Green Bay, Wis.

● No. That's the way other people see me, but it doesn't bother me. As long as I can balance my (sexy) pop-star image with my real role as wife of James Taylor and mother of his two kids, I don't mind what people think. In the privacy of my home, my image changes according to how I feel physically. Some days I get up and think, hey, I'm beautiful and I'm going to sock it to 'em. Other days, I'm just a nice girl.

FOR JOYCE HAWKINS, editor, the Oxford paperback Dictionary

What do you consider to be the 10 most beautiful words in the English language? —E.L., Muncie, Ind.

● Some words — such as home, river, lake, valley, countryside — are beautiful because of their associations or because of the picture they conjure up. Others — such as lily, lilting, linger, mellow, melody — because of their sound. Most people like the sound of words including the letters "l" and "m" better than those with hard-sounding letters.

FOR DR. WILLIAM G. CROOK, author of Your Child & Allergy

My son is allergic to chocolate. I try to keep it away from him, but I'm sure he sneaks some behind my back. How can I deal with this? He's only 5. —N.C., Bangor, Maine

● Here are suggestions: Try making candy out of carob, which looks like and tastes like chocolate to a reasonable degree or feed him quantities of chocolate and say, "Chocolate makes you ill. You'll have to decide about the joy of eating it and feeling ill."

PRO AND CON

Should The SALT II Treaty Be Ratified As Now Written?

PRO Senator John C. Culver, (D., Iowa) member, Armed Services Committee

The Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT), painstakingly negotiated over seven years, caps the nuclear arms race and requires the Soviet Union to dismantle 10 percent of its currently deployed strategic forces, while placing no practical restraints on planned U.S. modernization programs. If this bipartisan agreement is altered by killer amendments, we face the prospect of a costly no-win arms race and a greater danger of nuclear war. Without SALT the Russians could add several hundred missiles and bombers with thousands more nuclear weapons, and they would conceal and camouflage their activities from us. I favor Senate approval to strengthen our national security and prospects for peace.

CON Senator Jake Garn (R., Utah), member, Appropriations Committee

The SALT II treaty, as negotiated, would undermine U.S. security and threaten world peace. Contrary to claims by treaty proponents, SALT II is not an arms-control agreement: it would merely legalize the Soviet Union's massive nuclear arms buildup and place unfair constraints on the U.S. Under the treaty, the Soviets would be able to double or triple the number of nuclear warheads in their arsenal; build 308 "heavy" blockbuster missiles (the U.S. could have none); and deploy 35 "back-fire" bombers, capable of reaching U.S. territory. Abetted by SALT II, the Soviets could achieve clear nuclear superiority by the mid 1980's and use that advantage to increase their peace-threatening activities.

Is Being Gifted Really a Gift?

Bettmann Archive

Bettmann Archive

Two famous gifted children: Mozart (above), who was composing by age 5, and Norbert Wiener (right), a college graduate at 14

More and more public schools have begun to offer enrichment programs for gifted kids. The one shown above is at New York City's P.S. 276

By Carrie Carmichael

Noah started to read the newspaper when he was 2 years old. Casey talked at 10 months. At 5, Jennifer picked out songs by ear on the piano and added a second hand for harmony. By the age of 3, David took clocks and radios apart to see what made them work.

These children are among the three to five million gifted and talented youngsters between the ages of 3 and 18 in this country. They are the kids who are so bright they shine. But like shining metal, they don't stay bright without attention and polishing. One of the great myths about gifted children is that they need no help, that they will make it on their own. Without the proper nurturing, the brilliant preschooler can become the smart 7-year-old who turns into the undistinguished teen-ager and adult. Sometimes gifted children become troubled adolescents. Reports indicate that one out of every five high-school dropouts may be a gifted child who's bored.

Educators say it doesn't have to be that way. According to Dr. Harold C. Lyon Jr., director of the National Office of the Gifted and Talented, these children are a great national resource and we are wasting them. "With all the crises our nation is faced with," he says, "this is a pivotal time for us to do something for the gifted."

Gifted and talented children of the past have changed the way we live. Mozart, for instance, started his musical composing before his fifth birthday. Norbert Wiener, the father of cybernetics — computer science — was graduated from Tufts University at 14. Along with the list of child wonders whose gifts were recognized early, however, are the classic examples of achievers whose excellence surfaced later in life. Einstein didn't talk until he was 3. Louisa May Alcott was told she had no talent for writing, and Winston Churchill failed the sixth grade.

What is rare about these last superachievers is not just their brilliance but that they overcame the early, negative messages which said they were part of the pack, or even below average. Today's educators fear that brilliance fades in too many potentially great children because their gifts are not identified and developed early enough. If a child is bright and nobody sees it, is the child bright? Answer: In some cases, not for long.

There are three classifications of bright children. The first group — who make up one percent of the population — are the geniuses with superhigh I.Q.'s (over 180). Researchers believe that their level of intelligence is biologically determined.

Carrie Carmichael is a journalist and the author of Non-Sexist Childraising (Beacon Press)

The next category is the "talented," children who very early excel in art, music or athletics. These prodigies are not necessarily highly intelligent, although they can be. The third group are the so-called "gifted" children with I.Q.'s from 125 to 155. Most of our leaders come from this last category.

What does a bright child look like? How do you know if you have one? The old definition of a gifted child was one who scored about 125 I.Q. on such standardized intelligence tests as the Stanford-Binet, which are administered by educational testing specialists, psychologists and schools. Now the definitions of giftedness are broader, and standardized tests aren't relied on as heavily. One reason for this is the opposition from various ethnic groups. They feel the tests are weighted in favor of children in the dominant culture, and against minorities. Some of the tests also are out of date.

Therefore, to assist parents and educators, the National Office of the Gifted and Talented has put together a list of characteristics of these special children. Few gifted children will have them all.

Typically, gifted children learn to read earlier and better than their peers, sometimes before they go to school. They develop a large vocabulary and use it easily, often with humor. (One 4-year-old recently smiled and announced, "I relish my hot dog with relish.") And they take less for granted. Not willing to settle for simple answers, they constantly ask "how?" and "why?" Gifted children can also work well alone and for long periods of time at one task. Their interests are very often intense and disparate.

Darlene Freeman, who teaches kindergarten and first grade at Hunter College Elementary School, a special laboratory school for gifted children in New York City, says she and other teachers often get a gut feeling that identifies gifted children. Many parents describe their feelings the same way.

If you are a parent who thinks your child is gifted, a blanket statement to the teacher probably won't be convincing; you need to have specific examples of your child's brightness. The best thing to do is keep track in a notebook of all the things your child does that you think are special or exceptional for his or her age. Include the date and even the place.

You have a better chance of getting a good response from your local schools than you did a decade ago, but even now, only 4 percent of the gifted children get the right kind of education. The situation is improving, however. In 1971 the United States Commissioner of Education, Dr. Sidney Marlin, held regional hearings to find out what was being done for our gifted youngsters. Not much, it turned out. More than half the educators surveyed didn't think the gifted should have special treatment. So, with a budget of $2.5 million, the National Office of the Gifted and Talented then began to train doctoral-level leaders at universities around the country. Now there are gifted specialists in 40 state departments of education and a growing movement to provide enriched education.

This movement is fueled by Federal money provided by new legislation. But there is a condition to meet before a school district can qualify. Half the money must be spent to help the "disadvantaged gifted."

Giftedness cuts across all ethnic, economic and sex lines, and the disadvantaged gifted often go unrecognized. "Proportionately there are just as many gifted and talented youngsters in the ghettoes as there are in the suburbs," says Dr. Lyon. "We need to identify and nurture them."

Once your child is certified gifted or talented, the kind of education he or she receives can depend on where you live. There are few schools for the gifted, such as the Hunter College Campus Schools in New York, the Mirman School for the Gifted in Los Angeles and the Luther Burbank Elementary School in Chicago.

In traditional schools, the old method of zipping a bright child through school by skipping grades has not died. But it is fading. Because of the growing interest in educating the gifted, more and more schools are developing enrichment programs. In these, gifted children are taken from their regular classrooms and grouped together for a couple of hours, or a couple of sessions a week. They explore whatever topic they're interested in, and they get a chance to relax with kids like themselves. They don't have to be afraid of asking questions that may seem obnoxious or being called "weirdo" or "whiz kid," or any label that means "different."

Even though there are now more programs for the gifted, parents of gifted children say there are not nearly enough. Some parents have organized and pressured schools districts to make a difference. The California Association for the Gifted, made up largely of parents, numbers more than 5,000.

In addition to seeing that a gifted child gets the right education at school, parents can play a crucial role at home. They can help their child develop her or his giftedness in a healthy, pressure free home.

The time to start is early. Early training and environment can make the difference. Harvard's Dr. Burton White says a child's creative capacity is developed between the ages of 8 and 22 months, a time when gates usually spring up and hands are slapped to keep a child away from dangers. To nurture a gifted child, parents must be willing to offer their time and attention. Here are suggestions from psychologists and educators.

- Answer you child's questions with enthusiasm.
- Take your child to the library, museum, art galleries, concerts, the theater, the ballet or any point of interest that will expand her/his cultural horizons.
- Plan activities at which your child can succeed and that will increase her/his feeling of self-worth.
- Don't put too many restrictions on your child. Instead, encourage responsibility. Help her/him make decisions, but don't take over that job.
- Avoid comparing your child with others. Offer specific praise rather than a sweeping commendation.
- Provide a wide range of learning materials: toys, books, games, any equipment that will stimulate learning.
- Give your child enough time for dreaming and planning.

Until more school programs are developed parents will have the responsibility of helping the gifted child. But with more parents pressuring state and local educators for programs, the quality is bound to improve, and so will the adult lives of people who were gifted children. And tapping these national treasures can only pay off for us all. FW

QUIPS & QUOTES

NO SLOTH, THE MOTH

I have a moth hole all must note,
It's front and center in my coat.
The moth that chewed, bite after bite,
No doubt had quite an appetite.

No map, no guide, it somehow found
Its sure, unerring way around,
Past buttons, underneath lapels,
To where its psyche sounded bells.

Now gone, it left this hole behind it.
Proud moth, it must make sure I'd find it.

Here is a timely question: Did you ever get the uncomfortable feeling that perhaps your gray hair isn't premature?
—Henry Leabo

Skid Row: A woman was waiting for a traffic light to change when an ambulance bumped her car from behind. The lady (we presume) calmly got out of her car and walked back to talk to the ambulance driver. "Tell me something. I'm curious. How do you stop when I'm not here?"
—Dorothea Kent

"Experience?" opined the bearded man. "Why, that's the wonderful knowledge that enables us to recognize a mistake when we make it again." —Lucille Goodyear

THROUGH A CHILD'S EYES

My little son hadn't seen his favorite aunt for some months. He tried very hard to express his joy by hugging and kissing her. But that wasn't enough. "I love you, Aunt Aggie," he said. "You're just like home-made."

An Ohio Shrine for Saturday's Heroes

By Bill Schrader

The gray-haired man from South Bend, Ind., was obviously moved as he listened to the words of Knute Rockne through a lifelike "talking figure". Rockne was depicted giving his famous "win one for the Gipper" speech. A big smile flashed across the face of a youngster from Minnesota when recorded crowd noise cheered as he kicked a simulated 30-yard field goal.

These were just two of the nearly half-million people who have visited the National Football Foundation's College Football Hall of Fame since it opened in August 1978. Located at King's Island Amusement Park outside Cincinnati, the Hall of Fame is not a stuffy old museum but a place that transforms visitors into participants in college football's fascinating history. Dramatic moments of the game are offered through lively exhibits and multimedia presentations.

Most of all the Hall of Fame is a buoyant celebration of America's love affair with college football. Within the Georgian brick building — designed to resemble a typical college campus structure — is an inviting interior that enhances a marvelous collection of college football memorabilia and exciting electronic gadgetry. In two hours the visitor can move through a century of college football history.

Entering the main hall of the 33,000 square-foot building, visitors are directed to a staircase that leads to the lower level exhibition floor. The focal point here is the "Time Tunnel" that takes them on a 30-minute trip through the development of football from ancient Greece to the modern era. One section is devoted to Walter Camp, who played for Yale as a 17-year-old in 1875, and later became known as the father of American football. There also are areas featuring Jim Thorpe, the Four Horsemen of Notre Dame and many other individuals and teams.

The College Football Hall of Fame pays particular attention to detail in its exhibits, as its Astroturfed main lobby indicates.

In the actual Hall of Fame room on the upper level of the exhibition hall, the 453 players and coaches enshrined from 1961 through 1978 are honored with photographs. New inductees are noted in a special display.

The room's design is strikingly simple — no cumbersome biographical material accompanies the exhibits. Such information is available at any one of four data-retrieval video display terminals. A 250-word sketch on any of the Hall of Fame members can be "called up" and projected on a screen.

The $700,000 computer used to store the extensive biographical data is also used as the brain for a "strategy" game in which the skills of visitors in calling plays and defenses can be tested against decisions made by coaches in actual situations. Here's how it works.

In 1935 Notre Dame is playing Ohio State. It's OSU 13, Notre Dame 12. Only seconds remain and the Irish have the ball on the Ohio State 19, second down and 10. The armchair quarterbacks are given four options, one of which Coach Elmer Layden called to produce the winning touchdown.

Matching wits with Hall of Fame coaches is just one of several computer games that can be played. Five different quizzes are available, each with a different degree of difficulty.

Visitors get a chance to try their physical prowess, too, with a unique test of field goal kicking accuracy. There also are four theaters that provide cinematic insights into college football.

The idea of a College Football Hall of Fame was conceived 30 years ago by sportswriter Grantland Rice and World War II hero and football enthusiast Admiral Will (Bull) Halsey. The first plans were modest, and it was 10 years before any meaningful progress was made, with the formation of the National Football Foundation.

The Foundation set up the procedure for election of Hall of Fame members and started an annual banquet to honor members, but it became evident to Hall of Fame Chairman Vincent de Paul Draddy and President Dick Kazmaier that only a permanent Hall could focus adequate attention on the heroes of college football. The man selected to put the package together was Jack Wyant, a 33-year-old Hamilton, Ohio, native and assistant marketing director at King's Island.

"We wanted something that was educational and interesting, with the emphasis on family entertainment and participation," Wyant says.

First a history of football was prepared. Then Wyant went to Bob Taylor, set designer for Broadway plays, to make the written history come to life. Wyant traveled across the country collecting memorabilia — including everything from the football that was punted 115 yards in a Wake Forest game by Harry Rabenhorst to the equipment worn by Red Grange. The $6 millon spent on the facility makes it the most expensive sports museum in the country.

"We've tried to capture the total college football experience," Wyant adds. "We want to recreate that electric feeling — the bonfires, the rallies, the big games — that has captured the nation's imagination for decades." FW

A Different Generation Sleep Aid

Unisom is a unique and remarkably effective sleep aid for people who have occasional problems sleeping. In fact, we believe it's the biggest step taken in years in the development of sleep aids. The secret behind Unisom's effectiveness is our unique use of the ingredient, Doxylamine.

Fall asleep faster and sleep better all night.

More specifically, Unisom was proven to help people fall asleep an average of 23 minutes faster.

Fewer wake-ups during the night with Unisom.

Once you get to sleep, the next major obstacle is staying asleep. After all, a few wake-ups during the night can make you feel like you haven't slept at all.

As this chart shows, people in these clinical tests who took Unisom experienced an average of half as many wake-ups as those who took a control tablet without Doxylamine.

All you need is one.

Unlike the two leading sleep aids, all you take is just one Unisom, it's that convenient and effective. With the others, you take a two tablet dose.

Doxylamine vs. Methapyrilene.

You will be glad to know that Unisom does not—and never has contained Methapyrilene, the ingredient which has been banned from all sleep aids.

You should know that Unisom is the first sleep aid with Doxylamine, and the only sleep aid with this ingredient. It is non narcotic and non-habit forming.

Proven effective and safe.

You don't have to worry about the effectiveness and safety of new Unisom. In three separate clinical studies, doctors measured the effectiveness of Unisom against a tablet without Doxylamine. Unisom was proven effective and safe when taken as directed.

Try new Unisom the next time you need to fall asleep faster and sleep better.

KEEP THAT "SHOWROOM SHINE" FOR 3-YEARS AND NEVER WAX, POLISH or BUFF AGAIN!

POLYMER GLASS
MIRACLE SEALANT
APPLIES IN LESS THAN 1 HOUR!

PROTECT NEW OR USED CAR PAINT AND BRIGHTWORK AGAINST ALL THESE HAZARDS!

SNOW	SMOG & POLLUTION	BUGS	MUD
RAIN	OCEAN SPRAY	TREE SAP	ROAD

— EVEN VANDALISM FROM MARKING PENS!

Not a wax! Not a polish! A miracle of modern chemistry!

You simply wipe it on to "wrap" your car in a protective glass-smooth surface! Just as acrylic finishes revolutionized the paint industry . . . just as epoxy adhesives made ordinary glues obsolete overnight . . . now a breakthrough in chemical science has produced an incredibly hard, super glossy, non-stick "polymer glass" sealant that can "glass in your car's showroom shine" virtually for its lifetime!

The Famous "Shock Test" Dealers Use

Dealers who have been charging an arm and a leg for this fabulous treatment have a standard sales pitch. They wipe a bit of this amazing formula on your car and then, while you're watching, deface it with a marking pen. Almost before you can scream in protest, they simply wipe it clean again! And while you're still speechless, they sell you a complete "glassing" for anywhere from $85 to $200 — whatever they think they can get!

The Secret is Simple — The Magic is in the Product

Glasscote's polymer glass formula literally fuses itself to the finish of your car by "molecular bonding". And it contains a formulation similar to that used to make those "non-stick" frying pans, so it's so glossy smooth that practically nothing will stick to it! Even bird droppings and crushed insects simply slide off with the touch of a damp cloth.

It takes less than 60 minutes to Glasscote your car

Now you can get the identical protection for your car with Glasscote, and all you need do is all the dealer does — wipe it on, let it dry, and wipe it off! So why pay somebody $85-$200 an hour to do it for you? Why not buy Glasscote direct-by-mail for only $5.98 — enough for three years treatment for a small car — more than enough to Glasscote even the biggest Mercedes, Rolls, or Cadillac for 12 full months! Simply wipe it on once a year and forget about all that waxing, polishing, and buffing forever! A simple soap and water washing or a wipe with a damp cloth restores the gloss!

Even if your used car is already dingy looking from oxidation, Glasscote helps remove it and restore a brighter color and more glossy shine.

Once you seal your car in Glasscote, its finish and chrome is immune to the worst conditions nature or man can devise! You're protected against:

- . . . oxidation that can fade or change paint color
- . . . corrosive smog, acid precipitation, industrial pollution, oily airborne soot
- . . . road tar stains and smudges
- . . . sticky tree sap, crushed insects, bird droppings
- . . . salt sea air or road salt splashes that can pit, corrode and destroy chrome.

Save Gasoline — Add Resale Value to your Car

Experts say the smoother your car's finish, the less wind resistance it has, which means it can go farther on a gallon of fuel. And when you come to sell your car, you know what a difference appearance makes. A car with "showroom gloss" three, four, or five years old is bound to bring hundreds of dollars more than the same car with dingy, oxidized finish. So release yourself forever from the bondage of constant waxing and polishing, and insure yourself of top dollar on your trade in years from now! Mail coupon now!

3 YEAR GUARANTEE!

Simply use Glasscote as directed. If its "showroom shine" is not maintained for a period of 36 months, if the Glasscote surface doesn't totally and completely please you, its glossy, dirt-repellent qualities are not instantly apparent and noticeably superior, if you're not delighted in every way, return the unused portion to National Home Products, Customer Service, 60 Wilton Road, Westport, CT 06880. Our refund check for the full purchase price (except postage & handling) will promptly be sent to you!

With new Flavor-Intensified™ Triumph, the taste comes through abundantly, the smoke reaches you smoothly, pack after pack.

If you've tried one of the very low tar cigarettes, and found you just couldn't stay with it, you'll understand why Triumph is quite an achievement. The first cigarette that gives you satisfying taste at only 3 mg. tar.

Smooth, easy draw.

With Triumph, even the draw is a surprise. There's none of the struggle you may have experienced in other very low tar brands. You don't have to pull—you just puff on Triumph. The pleasure is effortless.

No gimmicks, no miracles.

The crux of it: Instead of searching for some yet unimagined answer, Lorillard scientists decided to take a more sensible tack.

Why not, they said, take everything we've learned about cigarettes, and push that technology further than we've ever pushed it before.

Delivering taste, limiting tar.

We found that combining two types of filter fiber produces the best combination of taste and draw. That tiny "vents" in the rim of the filter work to smooth the taste. That lower-leaf tobaccos tend to be milder and lower in tar than those at the top of the plant.

In short, everything we could find that might intensify flavor at 3 mg. tar, was built into Triumph.

Taste you can stay with.

What it all comes down to is this: Triumph, at only 3 mg. tar, gives you a taste so satisfying, we believe you'll never want to go back to your old cigarette.

TRIUMPH.®

One of the lowest tar cigarettes you can smoke.

PEOPLE QUIZ/By John E. Gibson

What Do Your Verbal Slips Mean?

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. "Slips of the tongue" often give away innermost feelings that you may not even be consciously aware of.

2. How good you are at verbally expressing your own feelings is likely to depend on how good you are at understanding the feelings of others.

3. The manner in which you speak is more important than the words you use.

4. Social status can be indicated by your speech.

5. Women talk more than men but say less that is meaningful and leave both their thoughts and their sentences unfinished much of the time.

6. The "strong silent type" of male has a special fascination for women and has it over his more vocal brother when it comes to making points with a member of the opposite sex.

ANSWERS

1. True. In a study of the "slip-of-the-tongue" phenomenon at Bowling Green State University (Ohio), a team of behavioral scientists analyzed hundreds of actual slips committed by those whom the investigators observed. It was found that though some slips of the tongue may have nonpsychodynamic explanations, a slip in a specific situation may be significant. For instance, the stock broker who refers to his concerns with "stocks and blondes — uh I mean bonds . . ." may be revealing more about his personal affairs than he intends.

2. True. Studies at the University of Pittsburgh have demonstrated that people who are able to empathize also are adept at expressing their own feelings. The person who says, "I can't explain how I feel," isn't likely to understand how the other person feels, either.

3. True. The message conveyed by any word you speak depends entirely on the way you say it. For example, studies at the University of London show that "Much of the communication involved in speech goes on at a nonverbal level: how it is said rather than what is said. To take an extreme case: 'Yes' can be voiced to mean 'No'. . . Emotional tone is one of the most primitive aspects of speech: Animals convey their emotions by sounds, and so, in effect, do humans."

4. True. The ability of observers to judge social status of subjects accurately from speech qualities alone was evaluated by investigators from Brigham Young University and McGill University. Results: The judgments were found to be accurate in the majority of cases. The study demonstrated a marked ability of judges to discriminate white-collar workers as a group from blue-collar workers. Telltale speech characteristics included consonant articulation, sentence structure and the degree of sophistication of vocabulary. The investigators concluded: "It may well be that the reason blue-collar workers sound different from white-collar workers is that they want to, that they are aware of the other mode (of speaking) but prefer their own."

5. False. University of Melbourne studies, comparing the characteristics of male and female speech, show no support for the popular notion that women talk more, talk faster, leave more sentences unfinished or speak less rationally than men. Other investigations match these findings.

6. False. Purdue University researchers studied the reactions of women to two types of males: the taciturn, doesn't-say-much, Gary Cooper-style speaker, and the talkative type who lets the adjectives do the spade work for him. Results: The women showed a marked preference for the more voluble variety of male who puts his thoughts and feelings about the lady he's with into words — even if he's a bit clumsy at it.

Facts and Fiction About Low Blood Sugar

By Gloria Hochman

For six years, Elaine, a 34-year-old bookkeeper, was troubled by a number of physical problems: blinding headaches, fatigue, irritability, pains in her joints, heart palpitations and severe mood swings. During this time she consulted with 19 physicians. She was checked for allergies, ulcers, arthritis, cancer, lupus and arteriosclerosis. She had two brain scans and X-ray examinations of her chest, esophagus, kidneys, gallbladder and stomach.

After all the tests and examinations were completed, her doctors concluded that Elaine had no real physical problems. They referred her to a psychiatrist whom she visited weekly for a year. Still, her symptoms persisted.

Then, when Elaine was feeling totally discouraged, a friend suggested that she see her doctor for a glucose-tolerance test (a six-hour blood study that measures sugar levels). Results of the test revealed that Elaine was a victim of hypoglycemia (low blood sugar). The doctor felt that correction of this condition — which would involve a change in diet — could relieve her curious and troubling symptoms. Moreover, the doctor told her that millions of Americans are suffering from the same disorder, without knowing it.

Hypoglycemia, is a highly controversial medical condition. Some physicians, such as Herman Goodman of New York, who co-wrote (with nutrition expert Carlton Fredericks) the book, Low Blood Sugar and You, agree with Elaine's present doctor. They hold that this is a common condition, though one that's often misdiagnosed and mistreated. Hypoglycemia, Goodman believes, is responsible "for many patients being horizontal on psychiatric couches when they should be vertical at lunch counters."

Other doctors — perhaps a majority — disagree. They acknowledge that hypoglycemia exists but insist that it is not common. Dr. Stanley N. Cohen, associate clinical professor of medicine and specialist in endocrinology at Philadelphia's Thomas Jefferson University Hospital, sums up the general feeling among this group: "A cult has grown up around the belief that many people have hypoglycemia and that it has been unrecognized or missed by physicians. Some clinics have taken it up as their pet project. But, actually, we don't see it very often."

What is hypoglycemia? Simply put, functional hypoglycemia (a case not produced by a serious organic problem, such as a tumor, an adrenal gland dysfunction or the taking of drugs like insulin) means that there is too little sugar in the blood. When a person ingests a meal too rich in sugars or starches (which convert to sugar), he or she experiences symptoms similar to those described by Elaine. Many physicians believe that the condition occurs because the pancreas is overresponsive to sugar and, as a result, produces too much insulin (as opposed to diabetes, a disease in which too little is produced). Insulin, released into the bloodstream, lowers blood sugar levels. Other doctors maintain that the cause of hypoglycemia is, in fact, uncertain.

Regardless of the exact cause, it is easy to determine whether a person is suffering from this disorder. In fact, Dr. Cohen says that people can generally get an idea themselves if they have it by eating a meal high in carbohydrates and sugar and noting whether symptoms (such as Elaine's, as well as dizziness, cold sweats, trembling) appear one-and-a-half to three hours later (the time it would take for the blood-sugar level to drop below normal). The symptoms last about 15 or 20 minutes, and, while the person may feel faint, he or she never loses consciousness.

A glucose tolerance test can usually confirm the diagnosis. The test works this way: For three days, the patient eats a high-carbohydrate diet. On the fourth day (while the subject is in a fasting state), a blood sample is taken, and the sugar level is tested. Then, the patient drinks a high-sugar liquid. Every hour thereafter, for five or six hours, blood samples are drawn and checked for sugar levels. In the hypoglycemic patient, the blood sugar does not increase at the normal rate, and sometimes the initial rise (after swallowing the high-sugar liquid) is followed by a fall to below-fasting levels.

If the test indicates that the patient suffers from hypoglycemia, the treatment is simple — a change in diet. Though it might seem that the logical way to raise low blood sugar would be to eat more sugars and starches, this is actually the most damaging thing a person with hypoglycemia can do. Ingestion of sugars or starches may trigger the pancreas to produce more insulin which will then depress blood sugar even more.

Proper treatment calls for a diet low in sugar and starch and high in fats and proteins. Lean meat, fish, poultry, fruit and vegetables such as string beans, lettuce, tomatoes and asparagus are permissible. Starchy and sugary foods, such as candy, cake, pie, crackers, pastas and canned fruits loaded with sugar must be avoided. So must alcoholic beverages, soft drinks and other drinks made with corn syrup or glucose. Hypoglycemia cannot be treated with drugs or injections.

Doctors do warn that people not jump to any conclusions about symptoms. "The problem with all this publicity about hypoglycemia," says Dr. Cohen, "is that many people who feel fatigued, nervous, irritable and jumpy think they have it. Most of them do not. Their problems may be caused by other reasons relating to unhappiness with their lifestyle." If you think you may have hypoglycemia, you should consult with your physician. FW

With Ann Landers for a Mother-In-Law, and a Hit TV Show, Ken Howard Has No Problems

By Nina Norman

Not everyone will agree, but Ken Howard believes he married into the ideal family. His mother-in-law is Ann Landers. Her twin, Abigail Van Buren, also gives advice. But Howard has not sought counsel from either since his marriage two-and-a-half years ago to Ann's daughter, Margo.

There has been no need. Howard is the 6' 6" blond basketball coach on CBS's The White Shadow series. If one is seeking a totally happy individual, here he is. To be sure, his is a newfound happiness: It began with this, his second marriage; it was compounded with the start and success of the TV series last winter. Now he says, "About the only thing I'm not happy with these days is driving the freeway to work. I haven't always been the happiest actor in the world. I am now, and if all I have to complain about is a freeway, I'm pretty lucky."

Now 35, he never "starved" while waiting for fame and fortune, but he admits to weeping in his dressing room due to frustration with some of the parts he's played. Considering the odds against a TV series becoming successful, Howard is superbly appreciative of his state in life.

"I used to fantasize about what would make me happy. Finally, one dream came true — this," he gestures around the cavernous stage 17 at the CBS Studio Center. "See this basketball court? It cost $50,000 to build. It's an exact copy of the one at North Hollywood High School, where we shot the pilot."

A basketball star in high school, Howard conceived the series' idea along with his close friend, Bruce Paltrow, who is married to actress Blythe Danner (with whom Howard has starred in films and TV). Paltrow is officially credited with originating and developing the series. He is now its executive producer. "Bruce and I have known each other for 20 years; we went to rival high schools. I brought the idea of a high-school basketball coach to Bruce, and he created the world of Carver High.

CBS

Ken Howard: These days he has a lot to shout about.

"We worked out all the details for the series on the back of a napkin at a restaurant in Williamsport, Mass., and when the deals were being worked out with MTM Productions and CBS, Bruce would quietly and stubbornly say, 'I can't make those changes. That wasn't what we wrote on the back of the napkin.'"

Howard makes it sound funny. It wasn't. Both men had worked in TV long enough to spot danger signs in compromises. "MTM and CBS have been creatively supportive," he says, "but we knew between ourselves that we'd have to be quite stubborn."

To begin with, they had to sell the concept of the show. "Everybody told us that sports shows hadn't worked on TV because nobody believed the sport. It was always rinkydink. Because I understand basketball, I knew this show would be right for television. And having said that, we should now hold our breath," he adds.

"Critically, I feel the show is awfully good. We're serving as role models for kids in their teens. When Margo and I travel around the country, we get lots of recognition. I'm told by people, 'Keep it up. We really like it.' "And yes," he continues, "all the kids are athletic."

The kids to whom he refers are the young actors on the team at Carver High School, the fictional school in the series, which supposedly has 5,000 students from Los Angeles' inner city. It is racially mixed, with all the pressures inherent in today's schools. The show's format, however, provides for some funny moments as well as the telling of truths.

Howard genuinely loves all the kids on the team. How did they win their parts? Another story he delights in telling:

"Bruce would audition kids, and then we'd go play basketball." The youngsters' prowess at the game was as important as their acting ability. But all of them came to the series with good backgrounds.

So did Howard. He was born in El Centro, Calif., near San Diego, while his father was stationed there during World War II. His parents later returned home to Long Island, where Ken grew up. Show business was a part of his life ever since he can remember.

"My parents and I sang in the church choir of the Congregational Church of Manhasset. I appeared in school plays. I studied pre-med at Amherst College, then I thought I'd be a lawyer. But when I got a fellowship to the Yale Drama School, it seemed like an itch I ought to scratch. I never looked back."

There was first a walk-on part in the Broadway musical, Promises, Promises. He then starred as Thomas Jefferson in 1776, for which he won a Theatre World award. His first movie was with Liza Minnelli: Tell Me That You Love Me, Junie Moon. In 1970 he won a Tony award for his supporting role in Child's Play. Four years later, he and Blythe Danner co-starred in the short-lived TV series, Adam's Rib. Other credits include the movies Such Good Friends and 1776, and the hit Broadway show, Seesaw.

His personal life wasn't always equally rewarding. "I'd been married for a couple of years to an actress, Louise Sorel. It didn't work, so we divorced. I went into therapy and that worked. There was a period of being alone, of self-analysis. It was a growing-up time; it came late — I was 30."

Then when he was in Chicago appearing in the play Equus, things began to change. "A columnist from the Chicago Daily News came to interview me," says Howard. "We started talking, we started dating and then we got married!"

With Margo came her ready-made family of three kids from a previous marriage: daughter Abra, now 16, Adam, 13, and daughter Cricket, 12. They live happily in a home not far from the beach. The children delight in their stepfather's success.

What are Ken Howard's plans for the future? He has suggested some story lines for the series. He wants to direct, but not himself. "I'm too self-involved, I think. In about 20 years I'll produce. I've started that process now with this show. I have my foot in the door, and I learn each day. Eventually I'd like to teach a course in show business.

"But right now, this is my dream role. I have no desire to play Hamlet. My dream house is the one we're living in. I'll stay with this series as long as it lasts. That's what life is all about — staying with it as long as it lasts." FW

Right Now — we're using our huge buying power to prove that you don't have to be rich to own magnificent Emeralds, Rubies, and Sapphires

Stop and think what is being offered to you for as little as $5.00

GENUINE EMERALDS — The gleaming favorite of Cleopatra, symbol of immortality and faith. Rarest and most highly prized of all gems.

GENUINE RUBIES — The lord of gems — ancients believed it could melt wax — even kindle flame! Often more prized than diamonds.

GENUINE SAPPHIRES — The gem of the soul — believed in ancient times to attract divine favor. Mysterious in its depth of color and glittering in its history.

How can we offer these precious gems at an incredible $5.00 per carat! Because we eliminate the middlemen regular jewelers must go through! And our savings are passed on to you!

Remember, these are not man-made imitations. These fully faceted Emeralds, Rubies, and Sapphires are certified authentic by a famous international gem expert and leading fully licensed gemologist.

So order whatever you wish now — while our supply lasts — from 1 to 5 carats in size. Then transform them into an exclusively personal jewelry collection. Your jeweler can easily mount them into any setting you desire — rings, pendants, earrings! (These gems set in jewelry sell for over $100.) Or buy our gems as valuable collector's items. Shop and compare! You'll discover what a truly fantastic value these genuine Emeralds, Rubies, and Sapphires are at only $5.00 per carat.

Plain and Fancy Ways with Fall Fruits

Apples, pears, grapes and plums are in our markets now for you to enjoy out of hand or in a cooked dish, adding their own particular color and flavor to a fall dinner.

By Marilyn Hansen

FRESH APPLE BUTTER

6 lbs. tart apples or pears
3 cups water
Sugar
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground cloves

1. Cut apples into quarters. Do not core, peel or seed. Cover and cook in water 30 to 45 minutes or until tender.

2. Put apples and liquid through sieve or food mill. Measure apple pulp. For each cup of apple pulp, mix in ½ cup sugar. Mix in cinnamon and cloves.

3. Turn into kettle or Dutch oven. Cook and stir over medium heat until sugar dissolves.

4. Cook, uncovered, over low heat, stirring occasionally, until mixture is thick and smooth when a little is spooned onto a cold plate. Cooking time is approximately 1½ to 2 hours.

5. Ladle into hot, clean canning jars to within ¼ inch of tops. Wipe jar rim and threads clean. Adjust caps securely.

6. Place jars on rack in canner. Process 10 minutes in boiling water bath with boiling water 2 inches above jar caps.

7. Remove jars from canner onto newspapers or towels. Store in a cool, dark place. Great with cream cheese on whole wheat bread. Makes 5 pints

1-inch fully cooked smoked ham slice (1½ lbs.)
1 cup water
½ cup golden rum
¼ cup honey
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
¼ teaspoon ground allspice
2 cups halved and seeded Ribier or Tokay grapes or seedless Flame grapes
1 tablespoon cornstarch
2 tablespoons lemon juice

1. Place ham steak in baking dish; pierce in several places with a fork.

2. Combine water, rum, honey, salt, pepper and allspice; stir in grapes. Pour over ham. Bake in 350°F. oven for 45 minutes, basting frequently with sauce.

3. Remove ham from baking dish. Pour sauce into saucepan. Blend cornstarch with lemon juice; stir into sauce and cook, stirring constantly, until sauce thickens and comes to a boil. Serve with ham.

Makes 6 servings

Editor's note: May also be made in an electric skillet to save energy.

CHICKEN VERONIQUE

1 broiler-fryer chicken (2½ to 3 lbs.) cut into serving pieces
¼ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground white pepper
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 cup chopped onion
1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
½ cup dry white wine
½ cup chicken broth
½ cup sour cream
2 cups seedless green grapes
Few twists freshly ground black pepper

1. Coat chicken with flour, salt and pepper in a small bag; reserve remaining flour.

2. Heat butter in skillet; add chicken and brown on all sides. Remove chicken from skillet and set aside.

3. Add onion and mushrooms to skillet; cook until tender. Stir in reserved seasoned flour; add wine and chicken broth; cook until thickened. Return chicken pieces.

4. Cover all and simmer 20 minutes or until chicken is tender. Remove chicken to serving platter.

5. Add sour cream to sauce in skillet; heat but do not boil. Add grapes and pepper; warm slightly and pour over chicken pieces. Makes 4 servings

PORK CHOPS WITH FRESH PLUM SAUCE

4 pork chops (2½ lbs.)
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
Salt
Freshly ground black pepper
2 cups sliced fresh plums
2 tablespoons honey
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon soy sauce
1 clove garlic, crushed

1. Brown pork chops in skillet in hot oil. When chops are brown on both sides, arrange in a shallow baking dish. Sprinkle chops with ¼ teaspoon salt and a few twists freshly ground black pepper.

2. Bake in preheated 350°F. oven for 30 minutes.

3. In small saucepan, combine plums, honey, lemon juice, soy sauce and garlic. Cook over low heat, stirring until mixture boils. Reduce heat and simmer 3 minutes, uncovered.

4. Pour sauce over pork chops and continue baking for 15 to 20 minutes longer or until chops are tender. Nice served with hot, cooked brown rice. Makes 4 servings

Editor's note: May also be made in an electric skillet to save energy.

WHAT IN THE WORLD

Curing Your Cold

Colds send most of us to the doctor at least once a year, but a little common sense and reassurance are often the best antidotes to those familiar symptoms, as a program at the University of Massachusetts Health Center in Amherst is proving.

Because so many of the 500 or so walk-in patients who arrive at the facility daily have nothing more than colds, the Health Center began a Cold Self-Care Center to help their patients determine whether they need professional care, and if not, what they can do to help themselves. The patient looks up his or her symptoms on a checklist and, if those symptoms are judged serious, proceeds to see a nurse practitioner. If the symptoms aren't serious, home remedies and over-the-counter medications are listed.

"We want people to be able to care for themselves," says Barry Averill, the Health Service's executive director. "If a person wants to talk his problem over with a professional, if he wants reassurance, he can certainly check in. But this way, you know you won't have to wait, and you get satisfaction out of knowing that you can pinpoint your own symptoms. Next time you can treat yourself without having to make a trip."

Buying Knowledge

Once upon a time, in 1531 to be exact, the encyclopedia was a book intended to "render superfluous the need to consult any other books." Life has indeed changed since Sir Thomas Elyot wrote the first English encyclopedic work, so much so that encyclopedia publishers must be a bit more modest about their goals. Consequently, some encyclopedias and their subject matter differ greatly.

If you're considering investing in an encyclopedia, you might take a look at "Purchasing an Encyclopedia: 12 Points to Consider," a 38-page booklet that surveys 20 encyclopedias and judges them in 12 areas. The booklet is available by sending two dollars by check or money order to the Order Department, Dept. F, American Library Association, 50 East Huron St., Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Making Connections

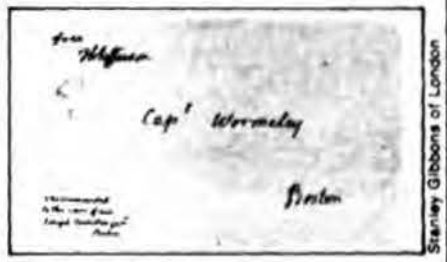
Thomas Edison is generally credited with inventing the light bulb, and James Watt has gone down in history for having given us the steam engine. "However," as James Burke points out in Connections, a Public Broadcasting System series beginning on Sept. 30, "most people who are credited with inventing things didn't. When you invent something you've got to use materials that already exist, so great people have always relied on the inventions of the little guy. All that the greats have done is fit bits and pieces together."

An articulate Englishman, Burke, who admits that he loves "teaching people," spent nearly two years researching Connections. Both the television series and the recently issued book of the same name explore the relationship of culture, science and technology in the lives of ordinary people. Each program traces the unexpected and sometimes bizarre chain of discoveries and inventions that have paved the way to such modern necessities as the telephone, the airplane and television.

For those who grumble that technology has altered our lives for the worse, Burke replies that "I'm not a starry-eyed idealist, but the technology we live with every day is really a life-support system. Most of us wouldn't survive long if we went back to the stick plow. Science and technology make the mechanics of life easier and release us to become more responsible individuals."

Burke sees the series and the book as new tools for teaching history. "I'd love the book to be used as a textbook," he says. "Students often have a hard time seeing the links between science and art because history is taught as if it went in a straight line. Believe me, it doesn't."

Discovering Philately



Stamp-collecting is no longer just child's play; big money changes hands when stamps are bought and sold these days. Recently Stanley Gibbons International, a firm of stamp dealers based in London, paid more than $10 million for a collection of U.S. stamps and covers. (Covers are what stamp collectors call envelopes or folded letters with stamps on them.) Included in the collection was the cover above, signed by Thomas Jefferson. It features, only a postmark because the President does not have pay for postage.

However, stamp-collecting, or philately, as those who do it call it, doesn't necessarily require that you have money to burn. "Stamps are going through a boom period, but money isn't really necessary to start a stamp collection," stresses Richard Debney, a Gibbons representative and a philatelist himself. "You can buy stamps or covers with cancellations on them for $5 or $10. Keep in mind that the quality of the engraving and the stamp's rarity, charm and age all combine to make it valuable."

Since stamps are a fairly recent invention, classic period stamps, those issued between 1840 and 1870, are usually the most sought after. But stamps can be just plain fun to collect, whatever their worth. According to U.S. Post Office estimates, there are 20,000,000 philatelists in this country. Want to join the crowd?

Lifestyles

Medicine. Scientists in China recently reported that gossypol, an extract from the roots, stems and seeds of the cotton plant, has some potential as a contraceptive for men. According to a report in the New England Journal of Medicine, gossypol suppresses sperm count to below contraceptive levels, and it's 99.89 percent effective. Why gossypol works is still under investigation, but apparently it doesn't alter hormone levels and its contraceptive effect seems to be reversible.

Pain. If fall means a lot of lifting chores, you are probably well acquainted with lower back pain. In many cases, says orthopedist Jack Andrish in the Physician and Sportsmedicine, stopping the activity will end the pain. It may be severe enough to warrant seeing a doctor, but usually bed rest combined with an ice pack, analgesics or antiinflammatory drugs will take care of the problem.

Television. One Oct. 1, Musical Comedy Tonight, a 90-minute overview of the history of American musical comedy will air on Public Broadcasting System stations. Written, produced and hosted by Sylvia Fine Kaye, the show stars Ethel Merman, Carol Burnett, Sandy Duncan, Richard Chamberlain and Rock Hudson in scenes from Good News, Anything Goes, Oklahoma and Company. Check local listings for the correct time.

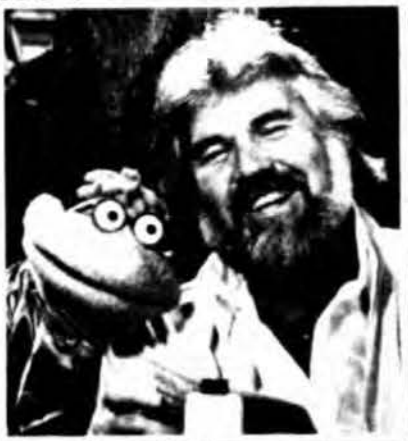
FROM "PIGALETTO" TO "GROCERY BLUES"

The Muppet Show



Country western star Kenny Rogers, humorist and pianist Victor Borge, folk-rock singer Arlo Guthrie and opera diva Beverly Sills join the great stars this season on The Muppet Show, airing Mondays at 7:30PM on CBS.

Kenny Rogers, country and western idol, in addition to singing his two hit songs "The Gambler" and "Love Lifted Me," also gets caught up in delightful Muppetmania. The country western singing star is witness to an accident prone Kermit who winds up in the Veterinarian's Hospital.

Victor Borge, the "Great Dane" of the keyboard and of laughter, plays a duet with the Muppet resident pianist, Rowlf. Liszt's "Hungarian Rhapsody" is the number they perform.

Folk-rock artist Arlo Guthrie amid chaotic merry madcap Muppetmania manages to sing "Grocery Blues" among other tunes.

The Emmy Award-winning series is aired throughout the United States and 106 countries throughout the world.

Actress Susannah York co-stars as Sister Benecia with David Janssen in the lead role as Det. Sergeant Paul Silver, in "The Golden Gate Murders," Wednesday at 9PM on CBS. The pair join forces in an effort to prove a priest's death resulting from a fall off the Golden Gate Bridge was murder instead of the official verdict of suicide.

MUSICAL COMEDY TONIGHT

M[illegible] Monday on K[illegible] at 8PM and on KOCE [illegible] PM [illegible] entertain and explore historic aspects of American musical comedy. Sylvia Fine Kaye, creator [illegible] brought together an exciting cast [illegible] sing and dance their way through production numbers from four original Broadway shows. Starring are Carol Burnett, Richard Chamberlain, John Davidson, Agnes DeMille, Sandy Duncan, Rock Hudson, Ethel Merman, Bernadette Peters, and Bobby Van.

The first of the musicals highlighted is "Good News" (1927) which Sylvia considers to be "the first mass audience musical." Set during the football craze in America during the 1920s, "Good News" captures the spirit of college life.

Next, Sylvia explores Cole Porter's "Anything Goes" (1934), a unique musical "in that Porter brought to Broadway a sophistication about sex and high society that had never been there before," comments Sylvia. Ethel Merman, who starred in the original cast as Reno Sweeney, is back to sing "I Get a Kick Out of You," "You're the Top" and "Anything Goes."

"Oklahoma!" (1943) is the next musical Sylvia explores. "For the first time," Sylvia explains, "the songs were an essential part of the plot. Also 'Oklahoma!' was the first musical in which classical American ballet was used."

Finally, but with a spirited and lively pace, "Musical Comedy Tonight" highlights "Company" (1970) which, apart from its score, "is important because instead of telling a story, it is about a situation, about lonely people." Sylvia offers. The musical numbers from "Company" are "Barcelona," performed by Richard Chamberlain and Bernadette Peters, "Another Hundred People," sung by Sandy Duncan, "Ladies Who Lunch," sung by Carol Burnett, "What Would We Do Without You" and "Side by Side," sung by Richard Chamberlain.

11-YEAR-OLD ACTING GENIUS

Gary Coleman, young star of NBC's hit new series stars with Tab Hunter, Robert Guillaume, Bernie K... Ed McMahon (tonight). In a O'Neill and Gary C...

The Kid from Left Field is a drama about a young boy who owns the San Diego Padres from a disastrous season and helps them to win the World Series. Sunday night at 8.30 on NBC.

Coleman plays Jackie Robinson Cooper (Cooper, the 9-year-old son of Larry Cooper (Guillaume), has been recruited by Jason for the Padres, who currently are doing better than anyone expected — including the Jackie. The father and son have baseball. The older Cooper teaches his son all he knows and he knows the game thoroughly.

J.R. gets to know Fred Walker (McMahon), boss of the Padres, a man that boy despite the fact the is not a baseball fan. But soon after the kid's with the team, he secretly passes his father's strategy on to the players and they think the kid is either a genius or a good luck charm. Either way they begin to win something they never did with the former (Hunter) managing them.

Player Pete Sloan (Coleman) takes a particular interest in J.R. and J.R. is fond of him, too, even though his father despises the young third baseman. J.R. is bent on getting his father to like Pete.

Meanwhile, social worker Marion Fowler (Silver) tries to take J.R. from Larry, who she deems an unfit father and places him in a foster home. Taking J.R. from his father also means taking him from the Padres, who desperately need him to win their games.

Gary Coleman could be typical of many who have met Ed McMahon and Robert Guillaume are no exceptions. McMahon met Gary when he appeared on The Tonight Show several months before. But I was still impressed with his incredible energy," said McMahon. "One night we were at Padre Stadium (San Diego) at 10 o'clock at night. He was running around getting into everything, driving those little carts. You'd think he'd be asleep, or somebody's arms.

But McMahon says he was tough with Gary. "When it was time to work I'd say, 'Get over here and get on your mark.' then I'd give him a meaningful look. He'd give me the exact same look, but he'd turn immediately from little boy to the genius actor we all know. They used all those facial expressions in the film."

By [illegible] ... Gary ... He was feeling ... was trying to make ... Was to work ... Coleman said. "I knew you'd be great. We soon became friends.

Coleman said a highlight for him was ... Yes, tonight me a lot about acting. Gary taking ... replied. Yep. I hope ... Bye. O.K. And ... Bye.

For the 11-year-old genius actor ... director Adell ... goes and loved.

ED McMAHON LOOKS BACK

On Monday at 9PM, NBC's The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson celebrates its 17th anniversary with a special two hour prime time presentation, The 17th Anniversary: The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson.

[illegible] there have been almost 4,000 shows since Johnny took over. Ed McMahon reminisces: "There are certain things you remember. I remember Barbra Streisand sitting on a stool with three mirrors in the background. I think she sang a song called 'When a Bee Has Sleeping in the Palm of Your Hand.' When she finished there was a silence, a hush, then a tremendous ovation.

"But my selection [illegible] think of some of the little things as well, and how they got started. Like my transition [illegible] goes from a real subject to our special material and I say something like 'Everything you ever wanted to know about this is right here, etc.' It just happened one show, it worked and we kept it in. When I introduce Johnny with 'Heeeeeeere's Johnny,' that too just developed on the first show.

"And the Carnac routine seems well known to the audiences. They laugh or Boo at the proper time and when I tell them I'm holding the last envelope in my hand, they automatically cheer. And the lines 'How hot was it?' or 'How cold is it?' are part of our vocabulary now.

Ed is aware of just how long 17 years can be for a TV show. Put it in perspective this way," he says. "When we started out, a 13 year old girl might have asked her mother if she could stay up to watch our show. That girl is now 30 and might have an 11 year old daughter who is asking the same question."

One of the reasons Ed feels Tonight has been so successful has been the show's continued same format. There is a Pennsylvania Dutch expression which applies: "If it ain't broke, don't fix it!"

KALEIDOSCOPE

We know that color coordinating is the primary target when buying carpet. Quality is usually second in line, and because we have such a vast selection of qualities, it is easy to coordinate color and quality to each individual's taste.

However, we know that a volume of samples looking at you can seem very confusing — but we feel that showing just a few samples is not a fair representation of the carpet business. Our huge selection gives our salespeople every possible option in working with people, helping them to find the perfect choice.

So if you are in the market to select your carpeting — select Alden's to help you, that's what we're here for! ! ! !
