

Mesa condo dream backfires

Builder defaults on construction loan; 'bargain hunters' may lose thousands

By TONY SAAVEDRA
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Kathleen Rose thought she had made a sweet deal when she plopped down $2,500 last October as a down payment of sorts on a new $149,000 town home in Costa Mesa.

In fact, developer Jimmy Bill

Brooks even offered to whack $10,000 off the selling price if she obtained a loan within a year to buy the three-story home.

Meanwhile, Rose could lease the condominium for a bargain $750 a month — well below the rent charged to other tenants.

But the deal soured after Brooks defaulted on a $1.8 million construction loan for the 20 town homes at 2200 Canyon Drive. Mechanics National Bank in Paramount foreclosed on the property last month, while Brooks filed for bankruptcy.

Now Rose is among the 19 tenants who stand to lose some $30,000 in security deposits and other payments to Brooks and his financially troubled development company. Individual losses ranged from $1,750 to $4,000.

Rose said at least one other tenant paid Brooks extra money for the option to buy a town home at a prearranged price. Other tenants reportedly gave him $750 as a security deposit, as well as $1,000 for the last month's rent on their condominiums.

They were notified Feb. 27 that Mechanics Bank would not recognize any lease-purchase agreements made between Brooks and the tenants. Furthermore, renters would again be charged for the deposits, which Brooks failed to turn over to the bank.

Confused and angry, the tenants have found themselves in a cross fire between a developer who is fighting for his financial life and a bank trying to protect a $2 million asset.

"It's all over but the crying at this point. We're in between the cracks and virtually powerless to do anything about it," lamented Rose, who said that she gave Brooks $1,225 two days before the foreclosure.

The bank has issued new lease contracts calling for $1,000 monthly, plus another $50 every month to replenish the deposits. Mechanics National has offered to match the deposit payments until $1,000 is accumulated for each tenant.

However, none of the renters have (Please see CONDO/A2)

School's not out during boycott

Burke protest leader says kids tutored by professional teachers

By ROBERT BARKER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Eight-year-old Mandi Forbes and about 79 of her classmates didn't go to school Wednesday. But they still had plenty of reading, writing and arithmetic to do.

They were part of a one-day boycott staged by their parents who are pulling out all the stops in their fight to keep Burke Elementary School in Huntington Beach open. Huntington Beach City School District trustees voted recently to close the school in June to save money.

"I like both of them," Mandi said when asked to compare her regular school with the day of alternate instruction arranged by boycott leaders at a private residence at 20891 Glencairn.

"This is kind of like a review," Mandi said. "I'd do anything to keep my school open."

Another second-grader, Eileen Opray, had time to polish her writing during a study session on English.

Sheriff says he'll accept jail health care responsibility

Study by Grand Jury discounts potential conflict of interest

By JEFF ADLER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Sheriff Brad Gates said Wednesday that the Orange County Grand Jury's recommendation to transfer all responsibility for jail medical and mental health services to the Sheriff's Department makes "good administrative sense."

Responding to a report issued by the Grand Jury earlier in the day, Gates said he was "glad" the panel had "the confidence in my staff to do the job."

The Grand Jury, in its first report concerning the much-troubled jail operation, suggested the Board of Supervisors transfer responsibility for jail medical services from the Health Care Agency to the Sheriff's Department.

The report pointed out that jail medical services in Los Angeles, Ventura and San Diego counties are administered by their local sheriffs.

"It's up to the board, but I certainly feel my staff can do it," Gates said, adding such a change would streamline the chain of command at the jail.

Interim Health Care Agency Director Robert Love said that although he agreed with the Grand Jury's suggestion that the county should hire a full-time health services administrator in the jail, the recommendation to transfer all responsibility to the Sheriff's Department had its "pluses and minuses."

Sheriff Brad Gates

Stringfellow acid waste to bypass Fountain Valley

From staff and wire reports

When treated hazardous materials from the Stringfellow acid pits in Riverside County begin arriving by sewer line in Orange County in May, they'll make a detour around Fountain Valley.

Orange County Sanitation officials, meeting Wednesday night in district headquarters in Fountain Valley, approved the change in plans to eliminate the possibility that the treated water could be injected into the ground water table and mix with the city's drinking water supply.

"I'm still not pleased it's coming through Orange County," Supervisor Roger Stanton said. But he called the decision a "major victory."

The Stringfellow waste, which will be treated to remove its toxicity, will be dumped five miles out to sea about between Huntington Beach and Newport Beach.

According to a plan drawn up by the Environmental Protection Agency and the state Department of Health Services, contaminated ground water from the acid pits in Riverside County will be pumped out of the ground, treated at the site and shipped to Orange County.

Officials say the treated water will meet all purification standards required of any industrial producer of toxic waste.

Under the plan rejected Wednesday, the water was to have been treated again at Orange County's (Please see WASTE/A2)

UCI student sues for $1M in beanball mishap

By JEFF ADLER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A former UC Irvine baseball star has sued the University of California regents and the makers of the school's batting helmets for more than $1 million, claiming his chances for playing professional baseball were ruined when he was struck by a fastball during a game in 1983.

Irvine resident Ronald Cummings, now 25, was struck by a fastball above the ear and knocked out during the eighth inning of an April 1983 game with UC Santa Barbara. Cummings' attorney said Wednesday.

Cummings was treated at the campus health center and was sent home. But he was admitted to Hoag Memorial Hospital in Newport Beach later that evening claiming he was having difficulty speaking and was suffering visual disturbances. Santa Ana attorney Joseph Bottom said.

Eventually, doctors determined the accident had caused a blood clot to form on Cummings' brain, the attorney said.

The Orange County Superior Court lawsuit alleges the senior right fielder, who had a respectable batting average of .325 when the accident occurred, was deprived of his chance to play professional baseball because the batting helmet, made by American Baseball Cap Inc. of Media, Pa., was defective and the campus health center subsequently failed to treat Cummings adequately.

"There was malpractice by the UCI health center and the product liability stems from the helmet not being of (Please see BEANBALL/A2)

'Donna Quixote' tilting at Republican windmills

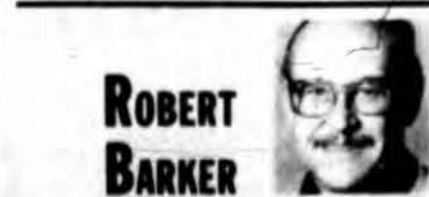

One thing about Sally Alexander — she doesn't seem to mind tackling a Goliath or two.

For nearly two years, she's battled city, county and federal officials, trying to get money to fix the sieve-like flood control system in her Huntington Beach neighborhood.

With her efforts probably playing a significant role, she's succeeded in getting the city to set aside $200,000 to finance repairs.

It was a significant achievement, but it may be only a drop in the bucket compared to what she'll attempt in her newest challenge.

It may be hard to believe, but she says there are actually Democrats out there — in Orange County.

Back taxes amnesty ends Friday

More than $66.3 million in delinquent taxes has been recovered so far by the state tax amnesty program, which ends Friday.

And Ernest Dronenburg Jr., chairman of the state Board of Equalization, made a last push through Orange County Wednesday urging tax evaders to take advantage of the state's one-time offer to waive all penalties and criminal prosecution for delinquent taxes.

The amnesty program, which began Dec. 10, allows people to clear their slate by paying the back taxes as well as interests.

Newport Beach police said they have recovered only a fraction of the property allegedly taken by the "wetsuit bandit" during break-ins of bayfront homes. Police said they recovered about $50,000 worth of property from Warren's Costa Mesa apartment but believe more than $700,000 was taken in the break-ins, which date back eight months. Warren, who is being held on $50,000 bail, faces three counts of burglary but police have asked that 18 more counts be filed.

closet and we hope to bring them out. They have to stand up, speak out and support Democratic ideals.

"We hope to field candidates. We want to flush them out, groom them and get them elected."

The West Orange County Democratic Club, formed about a year ago but disbanded around election time, according to Alexander, is supporting efforts to demand environmental studies before waste materials from the Stringfellow hazardous waste pits in Riverside County are shipped to the treatment facilities in Huntington Beach.

The Democratic organization has allied itself with the STOP (Stringfellow Treatment Opposition Party) in calling for full environmental public hearing and to produce an environmental impact report.

On a broader scale, Alexander, who formerly owned a public relations company in Los Angeles, criticizes President Reagan's leadership. The main defense of this country, she claims is economic and social health of the people.

"As a result of his actions, there have been too many cutbacks on health and education programs.

"And then we pick on little countries like Grenada and Nicaragua. It might make us feel strong to demolish little countries. But it really demeans the picture of what the United States should be. The country is belittling itself."

Alexander also fired a potshot at Rep. Robert Dornan, R-Buena Park, who has engaged in recent headline-making skirmishes in the halls of Congress.

"He seems to be mentally sick," Alexander said. "The more people know about it, it won't be difficult to defeat him," she declared.

Alexander said she's been an active Democrat since first voting for Franklin D. Roosevelt in the early 1930s. She's worked on the campaigns of George McGovern, Ted Kennedy and for Congressman George E. Brown, D-Colton, who, she said, has been re-elected by sticking to his guns as a Democrat.

She acknowledges that Democrats have "a lot of organizational tightening" to do after the Walter Mondale-Geraldine Ferraro drubbing last fall. "There's a lot of loose ends. We have a lot of work. But I'm 71 and I'm happy to be so involved."

Jaycees get their green beer for St. Pat's Day

By ROBERT HYNDMAN

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

What would a St. Patrick's Day be without a little Irish coffee and green beer to lubricate the celebrants' festive spirits?

Not much, agreed the members of the Newport Harbor Jaycees.

The business group nearly canceled its plans for an Irish celebration at Lido Marina Village after the Newport Beach City Council was set to deny its request last month for a temporary liquor permit.

But where there's a will, there's a way, and when the Jaycees weighed their options, they found a way around the City Council's denial.

"I think some members of the City Council really wanted to work with us to make sure this event would be a success," recalled Jaycees President Larry Lorenzi.

"But when it looked like they would deny it, one councilman suggested we seek the cooperation of one of the local restaurants to serve the alcohol."

Coming to the rescue was Burt Hixon, owner of the Warehouse Restaurant, who agreed to serve beer and wine on the restaurant's outdoor patio. Part of the proceeds will be given back to the Jaycees, who had counted on alcohol sales to make their fund-raiser a success.

While alcohol consumption will not be allowed on the main street of Lido Marina Village, the Saturday evening celebration will continue nonetheless.

Tickets for the event are $17. For more information, call Jaycees Vice President Bill Ennis at 673-5015.

And to prove that the Jaycees are no lushes, they're introducing bars along the village's main street which will serve non-alcoholic soft drinks, juices and liquor-free Irish coffee.

Coroner's deputies at the scene did not provide any clues to the identity, age or sex of the body found in the wooden shed at 34711 Calle Loma.

It also was unclear whether the person died as a result of the fire, which broke out at about 2 a.m.

County fire spokesman Joe Kerr said the fire ignited tree branches overhanging the shed, slowing firefighting efforts.

"There was some information that the body was found in a treehouse but it appears now it was a shed of some sort," Kerr said.

Bush optimistic after Moscow talks

Vice president takes 16-hour trip to Grenada following long chat with Soviet's Gorbachev

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (AP) — Vice President George Bush followed his Wednesday talks with the Soviet Union's new leader with an 8-hour trip today to Grenada.

After a brief welcoming ceremony at Point Saline International Airport — largely built by Cuba and completed by the United States after the 1983 invasion — Bush flew by helicopter to a beachfront hotel to rest.

He planned to meet later with members of Grenada's recently elected government and to address about 250 U.S. military personnel remaining on the island. The United States sent troops to Grenada in October 1983 after the Marxist leader was killed in a coup by a more radical group in his government. There were 1,000 U.S. citizens on the eastern Caribbean island.

The Air Force II jet arrived in Grenada at 4:33 a.m. PST, more than 16 hours after its departure from Moscow.

Bush talked with Mikhail S. Gorbachev for nearly 90 minutes

Wednesday, afterward declaring that "this is a good time" to work for better U.S.-Soviet relations.

Bush, accompanied by Secretary of State George P. Shultz, met with Gorbachev and Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko after the Red Square funeral of Soviet President Konstantin U. Chernenko.

The meeting with Gorbachev, the new general secretary of the Communist Party, was only a preliminary introduction. But it was nearly three times as long as those Bush held during his last two visits to Moscow.

Asked about reports that he was carrying an invitation from Reagan to Gorbachev to hold a summit meeting in Washington, Bush told reporters:

"I brought a letter. I will not discuss the contents of it, but I believe the president does feel a meeting would be useful."

Bush was also asked if Reagan envisioned an early summit, which would be the first meeting of U.S. and Soviet leaders since Jimmy Carter and Leonid I. Brezhnev met in Vienna in 1979.

"I think he'd be ready as soon as the Soviet leadership would be," Bush said.

Asked what Gorbachev's view on the issue was, Bush said, "I just couldn't tell you anything about that. But I have the very comfortable feeling, knowing the president as I do ... that it would be fruitful and good."

Bush was asked whether he got the impression that the U.S. Strategic Defense Initiative, Reagan's "Star Wars" research program into space-based missile defenses, was an "insurmountable" obstacle to better superpower relations.

He said again that he would not go into detail about his meeting in the Kremlin, but said, "We don't feel from the overall conversation that anything is insurmountable."

The official news agency Tass report on the meeting did not say anything about a possible summit.

Tass said Gorbachev "reiterated the Soviet Union's readiness, given the U.S. side was also ready, to work in practice to improve" relations.

Bush, the Soviet agency said, made "a general statement that the U.S. administration would like to have better relations with the Soviet Union."

Today's Soviet dailies carried accounts of most of the meetings between Gorbachev and visiting foreign leaders. The Bush-Gorbachev meeting was not reported in the papers, but was carried by the official government news agency, Tass. Western diplomats said it probably had occurred too late to make the newspapers' headlines.

In his last two meetings with Soviet leaders in Moscow, Bush also expressed optimism about improving U.S.-Soviet relations. But his assessment of the prospects of new leadership and the chances for a thaw in superpower relations was cooler.

Shultz accompanied Bush in November 1982 when they attended Brezhnev's funeral and spoke with his successor, Yuri V. Andropov. But Shultz did not come to meet Chernenko when he took power following Andropov's death in February 1984.

At that time, U.S.-Soviet relations had plunged to what some diplomats here called a post-war low, in part because of the break in the Geneva arms talks and the Soviet downing of a South Korean airliner with 269 people aboard.

Battering ram chasing away dealers

LOS ANGELES — Fearing that a controversial battering ram might burst into their heavily guarded "rock houses," some drug dealers have closed shop or have moved elsewhere to sell cocaine, police officials say. Dealers who continue to sell cocaine in solid rock form from fortified houses are operating more cautiously and relocating more often to keep a step ahead of police, high-ranking officials said after a closed discussion on "Entering Fortified Structures." Police officers used the ram, an armored car with a 14-foot boom mounted at the front, twice last month to break through the walls of suspected rock houses.

Spy suspect cites KGB infiltration

LOS ANGELES — Richard W. Miller's attorneys say the former FBI agent told a private investigator's assistant of a plan to infiltrate the Soviet KGB without his superiors' knowledge, and want him arrested as a material witness. Defense attorneys Joel Levine and Stanley Greenberg asked a federal judge to issue an arrest warrant for Lawrence Fred Grayson of Riverside, saying Grayson can support Miller's claim that he was trying to infiltrate Soviet intelligence. Miller was an FBI agent on Oct. 2 when he was arrested and charged with espionage for his alleged involvement with Soviet immigrants Svetlana and Nikolai Ogorodnikov, who are also charged with spying.

Flynt gets 60 days in jail

LOS ANGELES — Hustler magazine publisher Larry Flynt, apologizing for his behavior and saying it is now under control, was sentenced to 60 days in jail for an obscene outburst before the U.S. Supreme Court in 1983 and for unlawfully wearing a Purple Heart war medal. "My behavior is no longer unpredictable," Flynt, 44, told U.S. District Judge Consuelo Marshall on Wednesday. "The biggest thing I have to contend with now is the embarrassment it has caused me." Flynt, a paraplegic since a 1978 assassination attempt on him, was removed from the U.S. Supreme Court in his gold-plated wheelchair after he interrupted proceedings on Nov. 8, 1983, by shouting invectives at the justices.

Shades, headsets a no-no

LOS ANGELES — Everyone wants to escape freeway glare and noise, but the California Highway Patrol says it's illegal to wear stereo headsets or sunglasses with side-blinders to drive because they hamper hearing and sight. Reflector-lens glacier glasses with side panels and lanyards have become popular, especially among motorcyclists. CHP spokesman Dan Parker said Wednesday from Sacramento.

Cal State fees to stay the same

LONG BEACH — California State University trustees have voted to maintain current student fees to attend the university's 19 campuses. Students who take 6.1 or more units would continue to pay $573 a year and those who take 6 units or less would pay $333, the trustees announced Wednesday. That represents a slight difference from this year's fees which are $333 for students taking 5.9 units or less. That change would mean a reduction of $240 for students taking exactly 6 units, said a university spokesman who asked not to be named.

McMartin boy ends testimony

LOS ANGELES — A 9-year-old boy, the first witness to break down and cry on the stand, finished six days of testimony in the McMartin Pre-School child molestation case by drawing a picture of a bathroom where he said he was molested by defendant Ray Buckley. The third-grader testified Wednesday in the preliminary hearing that he was sodomized and forced to orally copulate Buckley, a teacher at the Manhattan Beach school, in the bathroom. Defense attorneys later contended that the drawing, which depicted several stalls, was fictitious. Attorney Dean Gits said outside court that the McMartin school has no multi-stall bathrooms and that each classroom has an individual bathroom next to it.

Arafat 'should have been killed'

PARIS — Ariel Sharon, the former Israeli defense minister, was quoted by a French magazine today as saying that Israel should have killed Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat when it had the chance in late 1983. "There was only one major error in Lebanon that we should never have made: allowed Arafat to escape when he was besieged by the Syrians," Sharon was quoted as saying. "We should have seen to it that he was killed. I say it clearly. We made a mistake in letting him live."

Five Mexican policemen arrested

MEXICO CITY — Five policemen, including a state police commander, have been arrested in connection with an investigation of drug dealing in Guadalajara and the killing of a U.S. narcotics agent, according to Mexican news reports. Televisa, Mexico's most prominent television network, and the news service of the leading Mexico City newspaper Excelsior both said Wednesday that the police commander and four homicide agents were under arrest in Guadalajara. Enrique Camarena Salazar, an agent of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration, was abducted in Guadalajara on Feb. 7. His badly beaten body was found in a plastic bag on a ranch east of Guadalajara last week. The body of Alfredo Zavala Avelar, a Mexican pilot who worked with Camarena, was found in another bag.

Iran cites Baghdad bombardment

Iran said it hit the Iraqi capital of Baghdad with a missile early today, and witnesses in the center of Baghdad said a huge explosion demolished most of the 12-story main branch of the government-owned Rafidain Bank. Iraq denied that Baghdad had been hit by a missile, and said the bank was damaged by a bomb planted by Iranian agents. An Interior Ministry source, speaking on Baghdad Radio, said some bank guards were injured slightly.

Cambodians flee Thailand

SURIN, Thailand — Thailand has expelled Cambodian guerrillas fleeing a Vietnamese assault on their headquarters and almost all of their pursuers, a senior Thai army commander said today. Lt. Gen. Pisit Hemabutr, commander of the Second Army Region, said only small Vietnamese units remained in the area of three strategic hills which Hanoi's forces had tried to seize on March 5.

License law would let candidate hide behind consultant

The ultimate buck-passer has got to be the state legislator who came up with the idea that we can curb unethical campaign practices by licensing political consultants.

It's a little like suggesting we can cut down on crime by licensing crooks. No, it's a lot like that.

Not only is this a foolish idea, it is morally incorrect. It is advanced by pious-sounding hypocrites who would like nothing better than an official, certified scapegoat to take the blame for dirty dealings. This licensing scheme is nothing more than a shield behind which office-seekers of less than respectable standards could hide while they shirked their responsibility.

It is the candidate who comes before the voters with his hat in hand, begging for public trust. When the campaign is mounted, it the candidate — not some hired hand — upon whom it reflects. It is the candidate who must take responsibility for the things that are said and the material that is distributed during a campaign.

EDITORIAL

No candidate should be able to duck that responsibility by having a conveniently licensed consultant whose lack of professionalism can be exploited to the other candidate's benefit in the aftermath of a political mudbath.

If it wouldn't impede the right of every American to seek public office, we might be tempted to suggest what history has shown us: we need more protection from politicians than their consultants.

Check fine print before drinking the champagne

To the Editor:

I read Bill Harvey's column in the Feb. 4 edition entitled, "Any Port in a Storm, etc." with the greatest of amusement because we had a similar experience at the same hotel.

After being seated for the fabulous "champagne brunch," we were approached by the lovely young waitress who was carrying the customary bottle of champagne and asked if we desired champagne with our brunch. We naturally requested that our glasses be filled and, throughout the lunch, she reappeared with the same bottle and politely refilled our glasses several times.

When we did receive the check (also in the familiar brown leather folder), we were amazed to find that the brunch — posted at $22 per person — cost in excess of $50 per person. We made the same inspection of the bill that your port-imbibing friends had made and discovered that "lo and behold" each glass of champagne was charged for at the rate of $4.50 per glass. The pity of it was that it was not even vintage champagne.

We are now quite cautious whenever we see a bill of fare that says "champagne brunch" to inquire whether the champagne is included in the price or is it merely a brunch at which they will serve champagne.

I consistently enjoy reading Harvey's column and felt that this one required a further comment.

TV fare presents two extremes

To the Editor:

How opposite were the two choices the same week on TV, "Hollywood Wives" vs. "The Greatest Story Ever Told."

One offered an uplifting, pure, and spiritual story. The other, at the same hour, was a tale of activities in life which exemplified the lowest moral and spiritual attitudes. The Bible teaches us not to steal, not to commit adultery, not to kill, not to bear false witness. Jesus taught us to be pure. Where, in "Hollywood Wives," was there any message to live one's life in a dignified or moral way? With novels and TV fare such as "Hollywood Wives," we are choosing and giving our attention to entertainment with the lowest of human motives. The package presented had every kind of glitter that can be bought — fancy cars, glamorous clothes, rambling estates — all of which weigh nothing in one's spiritual growth... which, after all, is the "pearl of great price." We chose "The Greatest Story Ever Told."

On editorials, 'Gordo', et al

To the Editor:

Congratulations indeed on your award at San Francisco — moreover, on your editorials generally, a constant highlight of the paper.

On the award: It is a worthy and timely boost for a community perhaps ready for just such — in that our image, may we say, may be a smidgin or so below that of an intellectual haunt.

That Gus Arriola has hung up his spikes is, alas, a sadness. For Gordo is — and this is more than just my opinion — one of the all-time great cartoon strips. Fortunately, Bloom County, the replacement, comes on with high credentials. Bravo.

All things come to an end — the good as well as the bad. And there is no reason to believe that what lies ahead cannot be as good or better (or as bad and worse)... which is a wordy way of saying very little.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Fight brewing over U.S. aid to Saudi military

Congress worried about replay of Iran, legacy of hatred against United States

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration is quietly preparing a new arms package for Saudi Arabia, the premier Arab oil nation. This will likely provoke a major battle on Capitol Hill.

The State Department has already begun briefing members of Congress in secret, hoping to persuade them how important it is to bolster Saudi military power.

A crucial consideration is the stability of the imperial Saudi regime. Congress doesn't want a replay of Iran, where the shah was kept in power with the not-so-covert aid of the CIA. This embittered the populace against the United States.

When the shah was driven from the throne, he left behind a legacy of political extremism, hatred for America, economic disintegration and broken lives.

Congress will demand to know whether the Saudi royal family is more solidly entrenched and, therefore, a more dependable ally. The secret intelligence on this score does not square with the public assurances.

The royal rulers are vulnerable, for instance, to Shiite harassment. Shia fanatics respond to that wily old octopus, Ayatollah Khomeini.

What makes this all the more ominous is that the Shites are concentrated in the Saudi oil fields and constitute one-third of the work force of Aramco, the state-owned oil monopoly.

The Shites resent the years they have been treated as second-class citizens. Warns a secret, 100-page report obtained by my associate Lucette Lajudado: "One cannot totally reverse Shia antipathy toward the government, amounting in some cases to deep and abiding hatred for

Small business counts — but SBA's not necessary

98 percent of firms succeed without any help from SBA

John Sloan, president of the National Federation of Independent Business, says enactment of President Reagan's proposal to abolish the Small Business Administration "would send a signal to small business... that it doesn't really count." A signal? What is this, a government or a telegraph company?

The problem with symbolism like this is that it's not the signal the counts — it's the money. This particular message will cost Americans $1.3 billion in 1986. The administration's proposal would save $8.6 billion over the next five years.

I'll make Mr. Sloan a deal. If he'll go along with scrapping the SBA and its programs, I'll endorse a federal expenditure of $100 to erect a sign in front of the White House that says, "Small business really does count." Oh, what the hell — make it a thousand, and make it a neon sign.

That would make more sense than this nickel-and-dime welfare program. It's widely assumed that anything named the Small Business Administration must help small businesses. In fact, most small businessmen and women get about as much help from the SBA as they get from the Politburo.

At any given moment, roughly 99.8 percent of all small firms are limping along without any SBA assistance.

STEPHEN

Imagine that — surviving by satisfying customers! More than 98 percent of new small businesses get launched without federal money.

These companies not only get no help, but they are actually harmed by the SBA's loan programs. All the agency does for them is grant special breaks to their competitors. The hard-working entrepreneur who sinks his life's savings into a hardware store may find the government using his tax dollars to set up a rival across the street.

The agency's chief job is to provide direct loans and loan guarantees to small businesses that are deemed poor credit risks. In fact, you can't even qualify unless a bank won't touch you. The beneficiaries aren't regarded as bad risks for nothing: the default rate on these loans usually runs about 20 percent. This is money that otherwise might be invested in ventures that stand a reasonable chance of attracting customers and making a profit.

A lot of the recipients are what David Stockman calls "economic straphangers" — firms that keep coming back to the government for help. Ten percent of new SBA loans are used to pay off old SBA loans.

The NFIB's Sloan, in an interview with U.S. News and World Report, says that's fine, since "repeat borrowers generally are very good credit risks." Oh, yeah? Then how come nobody else will lend to them?

The lucky few businesses that qualify get a real bargain. Borrowers get loans and loan guarantees at interest rates below what they could get in the market. That can be a big advantage in a competitive environment.

The idea that this kind of help is essential to the emergence of new firms and the creation of new jobs is absurd. There are 600,000 new companies started every year in the U.S., and most of them succeed. Only a handful require government help. The rest get money the old-fashioned way — persuading investors and bankers that they have the stuff to succeed.

Sloan claims grandly that "as a banker in Tennessee, a capital-poor state, I was able — thanks to SBA guarantees — to bring in loan capital from rich states such as Florida and California." Capital-poor? Does he think that, without the SBA, investors in Florida would spurn profits rather than let their money cross the state line? Financial deregulation has done more for "capital-poor" states than the SBA could do in a hundred years.

A little fiscal responsibility in Washington would help too. Abolishing the SBA, despite the howls from small business lobbies, would promise a new commitment to make the federal government live within its means. That's the kind of signal small business really needs.

Number seven's special qualities

Seven appears to be a special number, sort of. Memory specialists say it's typical of the largest number most people can remember. Other experts say: You can tell at glance how many people are in a room without counting them, if there are seven or fewer. If more than seven, it's just a crowd.

If you want to melt an ice cube in a hurry, squeeze it with a pair of pliers. Watch this space for information needed daily by everyone.

Tomato juice was invented in 1917 in the little Indiana town of French Lick.

If you didn't already know, not likely you'd guess which state has the most horses per capita, New Jersey.

Q. How did the Arizona town of Flagstaff get its name?

A. In 1876, a party of scouts peeled a pine tree there and lashed an American flag to it in a frontier ceremony to note the nation's 100th anniversary. That peeled pine — a distinctive flagstaff — turned into a landmark of sorts.

JACK

the royal family, which years of neglect has bred.

Some Shites, roused by Khomeini's fulminations, will begin to associate their grievances with the United States, the report predicts.

The report was written by one of the State Department's leading Arab experts, David Long, in 1980. It emphasizes: "The consequences of possible Shia uprisings could be devastating to oil production," noting that the Shites, influenced by Iran, are in a perfect position to sabotage Saudi oil installations.

So vast and empty a space as Saudi Arabia would be difficult to defend. The imperial family relies on a small army of dubious loyalty and a haphazard security apparatus.

"There is real fear for the security of the regime over the loyalty of the military," declares the Long report. It tells of past military arrests "for subversive activities" and "Saudi distrust in a professional military establishment."

Fear of attack has driven the Saudi rulers to arm their defense forces with sophisticated American weapons. But suspicion of the military has caused them to withhold the where-withal. Notes the report: "Traditionally, the Saudi military has never been issued fuel and ammunition in large quantities or at the same time." How this arrangement would work in a crisis is anybody's guess.

"Royal family reluctance to trust too greatly in the loyalty of the military establishment," the report adds, has produced slowdowns and delays. "Military training and arms purchases are subject to several additional constraints."

Then the report offers this revelation, which might surprise members of Congress now being cajoled by the administration: "Due largely to Saudi ambivalence toward a modern military force, there is relatively little to show for nearly 30 years of U.S. military training."

The instability of the Saudi regime and the shortcomings of its military forces are detailed in a soon-to-be-published book, "The American House of Saud," by former congressional investigator Steve Emerson.

STRICTLY PERSONAL: Paul Comcowich of Humboldt, Kan., wrote to me recently after I reported on a Housing and Urban Development Department program that was supposed to repair homes, but destroyed some instead.

Comcowich claimed his home had suffered under a similar HUD program. After some checking I discovered he was right.

According to a HUD investigative report I obtained, Comcowich was promised $20,290 to rehabilitate his home but this was the result: "The Comcowich residence was in disarray and not habitable during cold weather because the heating system, plus other work, was not completed."

Substandard performance by the government-approved contractor included an improperly installed hot-water heater and toilet, poor foundation work and replacement of a sound roof with one that leaks. Other repairs were left unfinished, the HUD investigator found.

City officials have resisted HUD's recommendation that they pay for the needed repairs.

CHAIN REACTION: Farmers aren't the only ones who will be going broke this year in the Midwest breadbasket. Banks who made the loans that farmers can't repay will be plowed under as well. My sources estimate that as many as 150 banks in Iowa alone are in danger of going broke.

The economic chain reaction will also affect the many small businesses that supply goods and services to farmers. The sources are predicting that one-fourth or more of the small businesses in the Midwest could founder within two years. Small businesses nationwide are already failing at 90 percent of the 1983 rate — which was the highest in more than 40 years.

In quest of the perfect pen pal

'Talking' by letter provides a certain sense of abandon

By JOY DEE ANTHONY
Daily Pilot Correspondent

If we could always present ourselves on paper, without ever having to meet, there might be no war. Divorce too, would be nonexistent.

I have fallen in love on paper three or four times. In one case, hundreds of letters were exchanged before we met in the third dimension.

Besides the pleasures of exchanging one's deepest thoughts, letter writing has always seemed a good way of retaining continuity in the face of changing addresses and career goals. I attended four colleges and changed majors five times before returning to graduate from college No. 2 with major No. 5. Yet a friend wrote to me in my sophomore year (college No. 3, major No. 3): "You are the most consistent person I have ever known." Perhaps it was continuing to communicate with friends like her that made me feel consistent.

Being the type who frequents book shops more than bars, presses books upon unwitting friends, and likes snuggling up to a good novel on a rainy night, I have had endless satisfaction from a club called "Single Booklovers," where people like myself meet or write letters based on shared literary preferences.

You read someone's two-line sketch in the monthly newsletter, then send for a "profile sheet" with an address, or they send for yours and write you first. Besides learning someone's five favorite books, you find out what changes in society please them most, and what displeases them, not to mention their feelings for religion, music, sports and theatre.

One fellow I considered writing to had the interesting last name of Cashdollar. Since I was an economics graduate student by that time, I hoped to win after-marriage fame as Economist Cashdollar.

My best pen pal (not counting a physicist who convinced me to take my first full-time job), was a medical student who hated the very term "pen pal." If I used it too frequently, he'd thunder back a letter about the "pits of pen pal-dom." Out of jealousy, he referred to my physicist friend as "W.H.N." (what's his name).

Writing a letter to him during a solitary lunch was as good as being there. Better, perhaps. There was no restraint on either side.

Once a missive I sent seemed destined to last in our hearts forever. He named it "the mustard letter" for the sake of future references. I'd been eating a sandwich with gobs of French's as I penned it. One page had a dab or two.

"I would like to dance with you a waltz in the middle of a clearing in a forest, with no music but the birds and the sunshine and our laughter, whirling round and round," he once wrote.

In another letter he offered his hand. I had already given him mine. Like the one I sent, his was a photocopy on which I placed my own for size comparison. Though we'd exchanged more than 100 letters apiece, we hadn't yet met.

We met on Christmas Day at Los Angeles International Airport. I was waiting for a man in a hat, and followed an older for a few paces before he turned around. That night, my pen pal and I had a Christmas Day picnic on a homemade quilt in front of the fireplace.

We didn't marry, though we did keep writing for a time after he did, until it got too sticky with his wife and all.

But my quest for the perfect pen pal is not over. No logic could deter my perusal of the personals columns in "National Review." In addition, just yesterday I received a letter from a would-be Single Booklover correspondent who drives a forklift and reads Tolstoy in his spare time.

I might be tempted, but I already have a satisfying correspondence with two men I met at political conferences. Life in the second dimension is forever.

Congressional Cup protests runneth over

In eyeballing 20 years of the Congressional Cup, I've witnessed the best and worst of match racing by some of the world's best — including America's Cup challengers and defenders.

Long Beach Yacht Club has touted the Cong Cup as the No. 2 match racing event in the States — second only to the America's Cup. But now that "the auld mug" is in Australia, perhaps LBYC can lay claim to the best.

In fact, four skippers in this year's Congressional Cup will be honing skills in hopes of returning the America's Cup to this country in 1987.

I recall a bit of skepticism when the late Clark Sweet, a Newport Beach yacht broker, touted such LBYC dignitaries as staff commodores Bill Dalessi and Bob Pearce that a match racing series of this unique format could attract the top sailors on the West Coast if not the U.S.

Clark was a great salesman. He and the LBYC group convinced then-Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel and Rep. Craig Hosmer that such an event would become a feather in their political hats if they would dedicate a trophy in the name of the U.S. Congress.

What type of boat would be used? Why the hottest 40-foot sloops of the day, the Cal-40, designed by Newport Beach naval architect C. William Lapworth and produced by Jensen Marine. The Cal-40 was as near a one-design boat as a 40-footer could be that was designed primarily for offshore racing. Besides, they were winning virtually every race and regatta they entered.

The Congressional Cup format was as different from the America's Cup as night and day. It called for 10 invited skippers to meet each other once in a series of 10-mile, windward-leeward races that would result in three sets of five matches (15 each day) or 45 during the three days. Skippers would draw for boats loaned by Cal-40 owners.

That first series took on a national flavor when someone convinced Arthur Knapp Jr. of New York, who had unsuccessfully skipped the 12-meter Weatherly in the 1961 America's Cup trials to compete. Artie then spread the word among Eastern skippers who started clamoring for invitations.

But that first Congressional Cup was primarily a West Coast lineup.

and to no one's great surprise, the winner with a perfect score of nine wins was Gerry Driscoll of San Diego. The next year he became the first skipper to win two Congressional Cups in a row with a perfect score.

By the third year, word got to Ted Turner of Atlanta, Ga. that the Congressional Cup might lead to his dream of defending the America's Cup — which it eventually did, after about seven unsuccessful tries in Long Beach.

Also in that third series was Bob Bavier who was to defend the America's the following year, and of course, Artie Knapp who was to become a perennial contender and the greatest booster of the Congressional Cup. He still comes but no longer sails.

The series hasn't always been sweetness and light, creating some of the thorniest protest hearings in yachting history. Daring match racing maneuvers lend themselves to some hair-raising incidents.

One of the most controversial protests came the year Dennis Conner of San Diego and America's Cup fame won his first Cong Cup by a judges' decision that is still remembered by the four contestants involved. The 1973 scenario went something like this:

For the first time, the series wound up in a four-way tie that appeared to be unsolvable without a sail-off. Conner, Henry Schofield of Long Beach, Tim Hogan, Newport Beach, and Graham Hall, Larchmont N.Y., all had 6-3 records.

How to break a four-way tie? The race committee headed by Downie Muir III of Newport Beach knew a sail-off among the four skippers would have involved three more match races.

Muir looked at it this way: Conner had beaten Hogan and Hall in their regular matches; Schofield had beaten Conner and Hogan; Hogan had defeated Hall, and Hall had defeated Schofield.

Since Conner and Schofield had the

Ragtime re-enters the fray

Two-time Transpac winner getting extensive remodeling

By ALMON LOCKABEY

Daily Pilot Boating Writer

The famous 62-foot New Zealand-built yacht Ragtime, twice line honors winner in the Transpac race, will be back in the sailing wars this year with a complete new look.

Ragtime has been purchased by Pat Farrah, an Atlanta, Ga. industrialist, who has commissioned three Southern California firms to make her competitive under the International Offshore Rule (IOR) maximum 70 rating.

Extensive remodeling of the yacht is being done by the Long Beach Marina Shipyard; a new mast and rig are being designed by Sparcraft of Newport Beach, and Dick Deaver of North Sails, Seal Beach is designing a new sail plan of high-tech materials.

Bud Tretter, owner of the Long Beach Shipyard said hull rejuvenation will include a new rudder that will be moved four feet aft, a new keel, new cockpit and other changes to make her even lighter than her original weight.

First major outing of the born-again Ragtime will be in this year's Transpac from Los Angeles to Honolulu with Deaver as skipper.

"Our objective will be to lead the fleet for the first three days (mostly to windward) and to remain competitive for the remainder of the race," said Deaver.

Deaver was a crew member when Ragtime was first to finish in the 1973 Transpac, beating the famed Windward Passage by four minutes over the 2,225-mile course with an elapsed time of 10 days, 14 hours. She was also first to finish in 1975 with an elapsed time of 9 days, 23 hours, 54 minutes.

Ragtime also claimed line honors in several other long distance races, including the Los Angeles-to-Mazatlan race.

Ragtime was built in 1964 from a design by John Spencer of New Zealand. Her first American owner was John Hall of Newport Harbor Yacht Club who campaigned her successfully in numerous offshore races in Southern California.

Hall sold the boat to a Long Beach syndicate composed of Mort Haskell, Bill Dalessi, Chuck Kober, Jack Queen, Barney Flam and Stan Miller.

The next owners, Bill White and Bill Pasquini of Long Beach Yacht Club, also campaigned her for several years. Later she was chartered for offshore racing.

Ragtime did not show up in the 1977 Transpac, but came back in 1979 to finish second, 15½ hours behind Drifter, a new ULDB (ultra-light displacement boat).

How she will fare in this year's Transpac against a fleet of new 68-70-foot ULDBs is anybody's guess, but Deaver's guess is that "we will be competitive."

Will luck win regatta?

Blackjack, caviar and a great band ... what more could one ask for, especially if it's all in the name of charity.

Some 200 National Charity League, Juniors and guests of Newport Beach, assembled for a glamorous black-tie Monte Carlo evening at the Hotel Meridien. Winning at the blackjack table were Sheri and Jim Murphy. "I'm having a great time. I have about $100 here in chips," said Sheri.

"Have you paid for my daughter's education yet?" interrupted Carl Willgeroth (with wife Beverly). "We're old fraternity brothers from USC. I gave him all my chips. He looked down and out and looked like he needed it."

"This is a fun group," said Kathy Schwarz, mingling with husband Ken near the game tables. "We were just discussing Trivial Pursuit with Chris McKinley and Hazel West."

"I've been to a horse show in Huntington Beach all day with my daughter," said McKinley. "We had a wonderful time together getting terribly dirty. I wanted to name her horse 'Mom's Mink Coat' (which Mom would have had had she not bought the horse), but she named her Doubles Stuff."

"I'm still hot from Tahoe; we just got back," mused Kathy Schwarz. "We don't want the IRS coming," interjected her husband, who wouldn't reveal their winnings.

Some guests took time out from the craps tables and roulette wheel to sample the buffet fare — shrimp, roast beef, turkey, ham, smoked salmon, steak tartar and egg rolls. Later a French pastry table with international coffees was presented to the delight of Fred and Cricket McBride, sitting with Michael and Steve Powers.

The dining slowed down a bit when Gregg Elliott's band stepped up the pace with "Johnny Be Good." Jitterbuggers included Gary and Marcia Fudge, (who were chatting about buying the Inn at the Opera in San Francisco — "a small, upper class Victorian hotel that's being renovated.") John and Donna Kilde, Dave and Kathy Grant and Hazel and Barry West.

Event chairperson Judy Mahaffa and board of directors advisor Judy Coyne agreed. "It's a wonderful evening, exciting and very thought out ... due to a lot of people's efforts."

The Ways and Means Committee included Cecilia Berry, Betsy Hawkins, Aviva Forster (who wore a green bow tie to the black-tie/green-tie optional event in salute to St. Patrick's Day), Judy Weightman and Mahaffa.

When Carol Brown said, "We were talking about the ladies' dresses," Forster joked, "Actually, we were

Grocery shopping feeds frustration

My family has never understood what the "big deal" is about grocery shopping.

How hard can it be? You just go in, get a cart, throw things in it and check it out.

The supermarket not only has kept me, but thousands of other women, from becoming the mature, stable, confident women of the '80s we were meant to be. To most of us in the suburbs in the '70s, it was the final examination to see if we were ready to move on to greatness or serve another five years of domesticity.

The test is divided into four parts: Commitment, Decision-Making Under Pressure, Dexterity and Rejection.

Commitment is a toughie. It begins at the front door when you see a line of shopping carts welded together as one. Your first impulse is to grab one that is being emptied at the check-out, but that's not what grocery shopping is all about. You must stand on the end cart and using your feet as leverage, push against all the others to release your cart. The one you release will always have a piece of brown lettuce flapping from the seat and four wheels going in opposite directions.

Do you trade it in and try your luck at another one? Did Lee Iacocca give up on Chrysler? You stick with that cart even if it runs you into a pyramid of baked goods or runs backward over your foot every time you stop.

Decision-making under pressure is never easy. It takes strength to sample five pieces of pizza, three cheese balls and a cup of natural fruit juice and not buy it. But your family will know if you succumbed and it won't look good for you.

You must pass up "SPECIAL," "GET ONE FREE," "IMPROVED," "NEW," "REVOLUTIONARY," "SALE," "BONUS COUPON," "FRESH TODAY," "JUST ARRIVED," and "SAVE ON FAMILY SIZE" and get out alive.

Just when you think you might make it, along comes the Dexterity test. This usually occurs in the produce department where you are forced to rip off a plastic bag from a roll and open it.

The plastic bag is hermetically sealed from both ends. How do you do it? Some blow into it, others in desperation slash at it with their ballpoint pen. The patient ones actually lick their fingers and rub it back and forth between their thumb and forefinger trying to see some air between it. I saw a Ph.D. once crumple it up, throw it on the floor and toss the entire pound of green beans into her cart.

If you're still in the game, the big test is ahead. Rejection. It's when you go home after spending $136 and four hours shopping and the family sniffs and says, "There's never anything to eat in this house."

discussing the federal deficit. "We jog together every morning at 6:30. We solve the problems of the world. And it balances all the chocolate we eat all day long."

Acting President Chrys Vollmer said "It's my husband's 40th birthday, so I rented a Model T Ford tonight. Actually he'd rather be sitting in it right now, but he's having fun gambling."

Others enjoying the party were Dr. Dee and John Parker, Marie and Scott Schock (Schock Boats), Janice and James Stonebreaker, Dianne and David Walden, Linda and John Alshuler, Gail and Robert Cimino, Barbara and John English, Patty Sue and Phil Glasgow, Cynthia and John Hollern, Barbara and Paul Johnson, Arleen and Dale Simbro (Village Investments) and Hazel and Barry West (Newport Stationers).

Proceeds for the event (estimated at $10,000) will benefit High Hopes and C.O.P.E.S. High Hopes is a service and support facility in Costa Mesa for persons suffering major brain trauma. C.O.P.E.S. (Child or Parent Emergency Services) provides a home-like atmosphere for children under 6 who may have been abused or neglected.

"I feel like King Henry VIII," said Board Chairman Joyce Reaume, referring to the Cuisine Fantasy II hosted by the Irvine Philharmonic Committee and the Las Cancones Committee at South Coast Plaza.

More than 350 attended the elegant evening—a true epicurean bash, with 18 gourmet restaurants offering their specialties.

Event co-chair Colleen Evers of Irvine said, "Last year's fantasy went so well, we thought we'd present an encore this year. The restaurants are serving the finest they have to offer."

Cindy Brauer, president of the Irvine Philharmonic Committee, added, "Everybody was excited to come back. We have good food, good music and good people. And South Coast Plaza really helped us put it all together."

Participating restaurants were: Hemingway's, Le Chardonnay, Alfredo's, Copa de Oro, Gandhi's, Meyerhof's, Forty Carrots, Piret's, Salmagundi's, Gemmell's, T.G.I. Fridays, Back Bay Rowing and Running Club, Pronto Ristorante, Francois, Leatherby's, A Sweet Piece, Mrs. Field's and Chagall Chocolatier.

Some of the offerings included duck and pheasant pate, gazpacho, fettuccini with shrimp, Mousseline de coquille, seafood thermidor, assorted Mexican entrees, chocolate-dipped strawberries and cherries, truffles, cheese cake and ice cream "creations."

Plus six California wineries offered some of their finest for the $30-per-person, sold-out fundraiser for the Orange County Philharmonic Society.

"I'm sampling everything," said Henry Brandon, pops musical director. "Every thing has been absolutely delicious. But, my wife is keeping after me and counting my calories. We also love the Dixieland music by the Lemon Street Stompers."

Not counting their calories that evening were (membership chair/hostess) Mitzi and Yutaka Tonai dining with Debbie Snyder and Betty and John Middleton, who said, "I've been to similar affairs, and this is the best yet."

"I was the first one in line to hit Chagall's," boasted Union Oil research chemist Carol Hemming. "Then I ate my chocolate sundae while I was waiting in line for the entrees." She was chatting with B and Linda Lukaszewicz, Pat and Gary Dewalt and Mary Ellen Rit (cable TV producer).

As the Dixieland sound was replaced by the more danceable California Sound, Trisha and Stai Freese (Disneyland talent exec) commented, "This is terrific music and we're seeing a lot of old friends."

Others enjoying the music were Bob and Diane Healey, Marcia and Warren Coy, Elaine Dines, Kristopher Cox, John and Karen Odum, Peggy and Joe Caves, Eric Vollmer and Michael and Britt Ascher.

best records against the other two, they were chosen to sail off for first place and Hogan and Hall were to sail off for third place.

The contestants themselves wanted a three-race sail-off for first place—two match races sailed simultaneously, and a third between the winners of those two. Hogan and Hall asked for redress and were told that the decision already had been made by the committee. It was referred to the judges who concurred with the race committee.

Signals were hoisted for the match between Conner and Schofield and they got away in a brisk, cool breeze.

Five minutes later the signals were hoisted for Hogan and Hall's race, but they were nowhere around. They were motoring up the course to watch Conner vs. Schofield.

The press boat pulled alongside the two non-racing boats and newsmen asked the obvious, "Why?" The replies were various.

"There is no third place in this series."

"It's a hummer."

"It's a farce. Schofield has already beaten Conner and should be the winner."

A close look at the records showed the latter to be true. As long as it was a two-boat sail-off, there appeared to be no reason for it. Schofield had already beaten Conner during the series.

To complicate matters, Conner soundly beat Schofield in the sudden-death sail-off. That made 10 races each had sailed, and each had beaten the other. Schofield was bitter.

What was all that fuss about the Dempsey-Tunney long count?

To those who say watching a yacht race is like watching grass grow—or paint dry—I say try on the Congressional Cup for size.

Herpes victim anxious for a cure

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing about a problem that is shared by millions of readers. Genital herpes.

I found out I had it two years ago and almost lost the man I love because I was not honest with him. It still causes problems when I get an outbreak, but he is much more understanding. No, he does not have it and I will see to it that he never gets it, at least not from me.

I heard on a TV news update several weeks ago that a possible cure in capsule form has been developed. I was elated. But nothing more has been said about it and I have searched the newspapers regularly.

Since you have access to the top medical authorities, will you find out if a cure for genital herpes has been discovered? If so, why is it not available to the public?—FINGERS X'D IN D.C.

DEAR X'D: I checked with several dermatologists as well as with Dr. Mary Guinan at the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga.

Dr. Guinan said that at this time there is no known cure for Herpes Simplex II (genital herpes). The salve acyclovir sold under the trade name Zovorax has been produced in capsule form and was recently approved by the Federal Trade Commission. While this capsule will not cure Herpes Simplex II it may reduce the frequency and intensity of the attacks. For those who suffer with this disease, it is viewed as a blessing.

Dr. Robert Stolar, a Washington, D.C., dermatologist and one of my principal consultants, said many doctors use steroids, ether, or chloroform applications, give antibiotics by mouth or recommend acyclovir ointment. He noted that several scientists are at work on a vaccine which, if proven successful, could immunize people, as was done with smallpox.

I would like to remind my reader that genital herpes can be contracted without having sexual intercourse. For example, if a person has an active cold sore lesion on his lip (this is a herpes infection) touch the cold sore and then touches the genitals, that person may give himself genital herpes.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please find space for my letter to my boyfriend's next sweetheart. Maybe she and others will be saved from the hell I have suffered.

Dear Successor: I know you are very much like me, a nice girl (he called you sweet), a bit insecure, quite dependent and that you love him. He seems so strong—a protective wall between you and the cold, hard world.

He has many good qualities, but his temper is frightening. When he gets angry he hits things—or you. He swears he doesn't know why he does and promises he will never do it again. He says he loves you and that he will change. You want to believe him because you are afraid of being alone. Ten days later he hits you again. When you go to the hospital for X-rays of your jaw, you tell the doctor you fell.

Don't kid yourself. You aren't the first woman he has hit and you won't be the last. The man is violent. Go out before he beats you senseless and destroys your self-respect. FINITO IN BUFFALO

DEAR FIN: Your letter packed wallop. I hope you've given a few thousand abused women the strength to cut loose.

REVIEW

'Last Polka' jabs rock music epics

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK — You just can't find enough good polka music today, and now that the Schmenge Brothers have played their last beerhall and bowling alley, the void may never be filled.

The Schmenges (John Candy and Eugene Levy) have jolted the entertainment world by leaving at the peak of their mediocrity. Who would have believed it?

But it's all there in gloriously clashing plaid and checks tonight when Home Box Office presents "The Last Polka," which chronicles the never-told story of how Yash and Stan Schmenge picked themselves up from their muddy bootstraps and became the toast of the accordion set.

This award-deserving documentary, complete with blackouts and a voice-of-doom narration (by comedian Dave Thomas) that would be the envy of NFL Films, also includes some electrifying concert performances by the fab two, the Schmenges.

As you've probably guessed by now, "The Last Polka" is a rousing, rocking spoof of those somber-toned, somber-toned documentaries — with apologies to The Band's farewell concert tour immortalized in the film "The Last Waltz."

Candy and Levy, who co-starred in "Splash" as the older brother and the crazed oceanographer, wrote the special, starred in it and served as its executive producers. "The Last Polka" is delightfully inventive humor on the edge, a one-joke theme that is non-stop hilarious.

The Schmenges (creations of Candy and Levy from their "SCTV" days on NBC) hail from Leutonia, the hotbed of polka and cabbage. Leutonians are easily identifiable by the wart-like beauty marks dotting their faces.

"The more you have on your face, the more prestige you have in your neighborhood," said Stan.

Evidently, the perils of superstardom are everywhere. On their final "victory" tour, the Schmenges alienated some fans when they tried to cash in on another pop-music craze. Looking to broaden their appeal beyond pensioners, the polka-playing brothers offered a tribute to Michael Jackson in Kansas City.

So what if "Beat It" with a Bavarian beat didn't stir the masses? You're nowhere musically if you don't take chances. Even in failure, the Schmenges broke the sound barrier, as the vanguard of heavy-metal polka.

And who else in the polka world would have dared salute the music of Jim Morrison and the Doors? "Touch Me Babe" was just another oldie until Stan made it sing on his accordion.

Let's hope the Schmenges don't leave the fast track forever. Heaven knows there aren't enough tuba solos in rock 'n' roll anymore.

Cosby tops, but CBS wins the week

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK — Led by the front-running "Cosby Show," five of the Top Ten shows last week were comedies, confirming that contemporary humor is alive and well on network television.

"The Cosby Show," "Family Ties," "Cheers," "Kate & Allie" and "Newhart," labeled "classy comedies" by a network research executive, all cracked the elite ratings tier, according to figures for the week of March 4-10 released by the A.C. Nielsen Co.

CBS won another week, despite NBC placing four shows in the first five. CBS averaged a 16.2 rating to NBC's 15.8 and ABC's 14.5. Season to date, CBS has a 17.2 rating to NBC's 16.4 and ABC's 15.6.

NBC's "Cosby Show" has become so successful that it took the top spot last week with a repeat program. The episode drew a 28.0 rating against an original of "Magnum, P.I." on CBS and the theatrical movie "Buddy Buddy" on ABC.

NBC's "Family Ties" was the No. 2 show, followed by ABC's "Dynasty," NBC's "The A-Team," NBC's "Cheers," CBS' "Dallas," CBS' "Simon & Simon" and "60 Minutes" (tied for seventh), CBS' "Kate & Allie" and CBS' "Newhart."

With six weeks left in the prime-time campaign, the five popular comedies also were among the Top Twenty shows in the season-long rankings. "Cosby" was third, "Family Ties" seventh, "Cheers" 15th, and "Kate & Allie" and "Newhart," tied for 17th.

Last week's other highlights included Robert Blake's return to prime time as an unorthodox inner-city priest in "Helltown." The two-hour movie ranked 15th. CBS' movie, "Kids Don't Tell," which was about child abuse, was 16th.

Clint Eastwood movies continued to do better than most theatrical films. A repeat of "The Enforcer" on NBC ranked 18th, tying it with ABC's "Night of 100 Stars."

In the evening news competition, CBS widened its one-point lead from two weeks ago, which was the narrowest margin since last November. Last week, the "CBS Evening News" averaged a 13.5 rating. The "NBC Nightly News" had an 11.8 and ABC's "World News Tonight" had a 10.8.

Here are the Top 20-rated television programs as compiled by the A.C. Nielsen Co. for the week of March 4-10. Listings include the week's ranking, with season-to-date ranking in parentheses, rating for the week, and total homes. An "X" in parentheses denotes one-time-only

Telly's eyes on Broadway

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If things go according to plan, Telly Savalas may soon be hobbling around as Long John Silver in a Broadway musical version of "Treasure Island."

Savalas hasn't signed yet for the show, which would be his Broadway debut. It all depends on whether CBS decides to bring back "Kojak" as a series. He recently revived the character for a TV movie.

Savalas will also make a cameo appearance as the Cheshire Cat in Irwin Allen's miniseries for CBS, "Alice in Wonderland."

The musical version of Robert Louis Stevenson's classic tale of a young boy's encounter with pirates was written by Sherman Yellen. The lyrics and music are by Gary William Friedman and Will Holt.

Yellen said Savalas would be able to perform the role of the peg-legged pirate with both feet on the stage. "One of his own legs will actually fit into the peg," he said. "It works so well that he'll even be able to do a one-legged jig."

'Streamlined Fluor heads for watershed year'

By PHIL SNEIDERMAN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Fluor Corp. Chairman David S. Tappan Jr. made upbeat predictions to his shareholders Tuesday, telling them 1984 will be dubbed "a watershed year" as a streamlined Fluor emerges from a lengthy business slump triggered by a worldwide slowdown in heavy construction.

Tappan, conducting his first annual meeting since the death last September of Chairman J. Robert Fluor, painted an optimistic picture as he outlined the corporation's strategy as an international engineering, construction and natural resources firm.

"We are not waiting for a favorable wind," Tappan said. "We know where we're going."

He addressed about 800 stockholders gathered in a vacant hall at the company's Irvine headquarters. Tappan told the audience he would have preferred to have the space occupied by engineers working on "mega-projects" instead of using it for a "mega-meeting."

Fluor recently announced a net loss for the first quarter of 1985, ending Jan. 31, of $32.6 million or 41 cents per share.

On the positive side, however, Tappan told the stockholders that engineering and construction orders for the first quarter were $2 billion, the highest quarterly bookings in three-and-a-half years and nearly double last year's level.

Fluor's turnaround strategy, Tappan said, involves paying increased attention to the company's two key fields, engineering and construction, and natural resources. He said Fluor will also "accentuate" the company's skills as managers of natural resource projects.

Another part of the turnaround involves the sale of fixed assets, such as real estate. Tappan told shareholders about Fluor's sale of its corporate headquarters property in Irvine for $340 million to Dallas-based developer Trammel Crow Co.

He said the deal includes lease-back arrangements allowing Fluor to remain at the site. In addition, he said,

'We're not waiting for a favorable wind. We know where we're going'

—David Tappan

Fluor will share in the revenues from developing this property into hotels, office buildings and other facilities.

In recent weeks, the Fluor-Trammel Crow building plans have drawn criticism from some city officials and business leaders. Tappan told stockholders some other local business leaders believe their projects have a high priority than Fluor's.

During a news conference, Tappan said, "I can tell you this property is going to be developed."

He said Fluor employees and shareholder have been encouraged to express their views on the development plan to the Irvine City Council, which will review it on Monday. But he added, "This is no gigantic lobbying program."

Tappan also faced questions concerning a demonstration outside the shareholders meeting that accused Fluor of supporting racial discrimination policies through its business dealings in South Africa. The protest was organized by the United Workers of America union.

During the shareholders meeting, Dave Michel, a mine worker representative, told Tappan the union will press federal, state and local governments to cease any business dealing with Fluor because of work in South Africa.

"Fluor is about to become light rod for the anti-apartheid movement in this country," Michel said, that could cost the shareholders money.

Tappan, however, claimed Fluor "a force for both economic and constructive social change in South Africa." He said Fluor trained more than 20,000 non-workers and said all of its facilities desegregated.

He questioned the motives of United Mine Workers and said does not anticipate any problem result from the government lobby pressure by the union.

Want a loan? Know what the banker needs

Most business people have had one or more frustrating experiences in trying to secure a bank loan.

Much of the frustration could be avoided if the one requesting the loan understood better what the banker needs.

Most bank loans are made only if the collateral is satisfactory. This means that you're going to have to offer inventory, plant and equipment, accounts receivable, or real estate that the bank figures is adequate to warrant the loan you're requesting. Depending on the nature of the assets offered, the stability of your company, and your personal integrity, the bank loan value of particular collateral items could range anywhere from 25 to 80 percent.

Most business people value their assets in terms of replacement cost. A banker will look at an asset in terms of what it would bring on a quick sale. This fact explains why bankers are not too excited about lending on accounts receivable, inventories, and certain specialty equipment. On the other hand, commonly used equipment and local real estate can be more readily disposed of should the banker have to take it for payment of his loan.

It's little wonder then that most bankers would like to have the Small Business Administration (S.B.A.) guarantee payment of the loan. This eliminates the banker's concern for ending up with a white elephant due to improperly valued assets or changes in economic conditions.

If your accountant will be assisting with the loan application, the two of you should have a brief meeting with your banker to determine what he wants included in the loan application. Such a meeting should keep you from spending valuable time and money preparing information that will not help secure your loan.

As a defender, your main object is to defeat the contract. If you can see that, with normal play, declarer must make his contract, try to present him with a losing alternative. Note the effect of West's four spade preempt. After a heart lead and a right view in trumps, declarer can come to nine tricks with the opponents cold for four hearts. The icing on the cake was that he made life very difficult for North. Since the North-South hands could easily produce slam, North asked for aces. He settled at the uncomfortable five-level when he learned an ace was missing, because he feared there might be a trump loser as well.

necessary risk. The "sure trick" line appeared to be to win the ace of spades, pick up the queen of trumps via a finesse, and then claim the rest of the tricks since the table's diamonds would take care of declarer's two black-suit losers. We have a great deal of sym-

Against five hearts West attacked with his singleton diamond. Declarer won in dummy and led a trump to the eight. West could see that, if he won the queen and shifted to a spade, declarer would have to run that to the queen, a card he almost surely had for his opening bid. Instead, he painted a false picture of the hand by winning the first trump with the ace. Then he shifted to the jack of spades. Now let's look at the position from declarer's point of view. It seemed certain that East held the queen of trumps. Therefore, to run the spade to the queen was an unpathy for South, who chose to adopt this plan. Since this is a family column, we cannot repeat what he said when West won the queen and cashed the king of spades for down one. ## Sloppy or not, Lakers take it

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Lakers' Coach Pat Riley said it was probably the "sloppiest game of the year for both teams," but the 120-105 victory over Utah brought Los Angeles within one game of clinching its fourth straight National Basketball Association Pacific Division title.

The Lakers can win the division pennant Friday night when they host San Antonio.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar poured in 27 points and foul-plagued Earvin "Magic" Johnson got off the bench to help the Lakers over a rough spot in the fourth quarter.

The Jazz, who fell 123-108 to the Lakers at Los Angeles Tuesday, scored the first seven points of the fourth quarter to pull within 92-91 on a three-point basket by Darrell Griffith with 10:25 remaining.

But the Lakers scored 10 consecutive points, the last two on a jumper by Johnson, to make it 102-91.

Johnson picked up his fourth foul 56 seconds into the third quarter and spent most of the second half on the bench.

He went in after the Jazz had narrowed it to one, and after Bob McAdoo hit a foul-line jumper, Johnson hit a left-side jumper.

Utah's Fred Roberts, guarded by Johnson, missed a couple and Johnson hit McAdoo for a solo layup on what Riley called "one of the greatest passes I've ever seen."

After a Jazz timeout, Johnson stole a Rich Kelley pass, resulting in a jumper by Mike McGee, followed in 30 seconds by a left-angle jumper by Johnson.

The Lakers went on for their 16th win in their last 18 games.

Byron Scott scored 23 points and Johnson contributed 11 assists as the Lakers improved to 47-18.

Abdul-Jabbar said he has learned how to play against Utah's 7-4 center, Mark Eaton, "but its tough because every time you see him he has improved over the last time. I need to do a few things to make sure he doesn't take over the game like he is capable of doing."

Utah's Fred Roberts, his head nearly touching the net, deflects pass of Laker Ronnie Lester (12) Wednesday night.

Sunset gears for openers

Vikings triumph, Oilers tripped in final tuneups

With Sunset League baseball openers on the agenda later this week, Marina and Huntington Beach highs took on non-league opponents Wednesday with differing results.

The Vikings' final tuneup was a success against Warren, but the Oilers were stifled by Laguna Hills.

Sunset League action gets under way Friday afternoon with a single game (Ocean View at Fountain Valley), followed by Saturday's venue which finds Westminster at Edison at noon and Marina at Huntington Beach at 1.

It promises to be a dogfight for the top echelon of the league standings with Edison (7-3), Fountain Valley (7-2), Huntington Beach (5-3) and Ocean View (6-1) in the hunt.

Marina (3-2) and Westminster also figure to provide some ups and downs in league action, which is a three-round setup.

Here's what took place Wednesday:

Marina 4, Warren 3: The Vikings tuned up for league play with a solid effort against the visiting Bears, using three pitchers to record their third victory in five starts. Mike Huyler and Mike Dee got things started for Marina in the third inning with free passes and after Tom McNamara singled to load the bases, Dave Emmons slapped a two-run single to give starter Dan Jensen a 2-0 cushion.

Jensen was staked to a 3-0 lead in the fourth inning when James Buchneri slugged a one-out double and scored on Matt Hattabaugh's two-out single.

Jensen, who struck out one and allowed just one hit in four innings of work, was relieved in the fifth, and Warren struck for a pair of runs in the sixth to narrow the deficit to 3-2.

The Vikings kept the pressure on with a run in the sixth frame as Steve Blokdyk led off with a double and scored when Greg Knuff followed with a single.

Rob Hanson and Mark Guedea mopped up in relief for the Vikings.

Laguna Hills 6, Huntington Beach 1: The Oilers self-destructed with five errors, as the Hawks scored four times in the third inning to seal the victory at Laguna Hills.

Huntington Beach's only run came in the top of the seventh when Cary Pont doubled and worked his way around on a Laguna Hills error.

The Oilers were limited to three hits by the Hawks' junior right-hander Wayne Helm, who struck out 11.

team title, but Mission Viejo and Marina are expected to give the Sea Kings a run for the team title.

The first varsity final is scheduled for 11 a.m. with the 330 intermediate hurdles, along with the pole vault, triple jump, high jump and shot put.

The majority of the meet begins at 12:50 p.m.

The field consists of Corona del Mar, Costa Mesa, Edison, Estancia, Fountain Valley, Huntington Beach, Irvine, Marina, Ocean View, University, Westminster, Woodbridge, Capistrano Valley, Dana Hills, El Toro, Laguna Hills, Mission Viejo and the host Sailors.

The relays appear to be the most competitive races of the meet with Corona del Mar, Edison, Woodbridge and Marina involved and a great deal of the determination for the team title could come from the big efforts in these events.

Sunset contenders open with victories

Edison, FV, Vikes, roll past foes; Rustlers win again

Contenders Edison, Marina and Fountain Valley got off on the right foot in Sunset League competition Wednesday night at the expense of Westminster, Huntington Beach and Ocean View in boys volleyball action. And, in a community college match, Golden West continued its winning ways by easing past Mt. San Antonio.

Here's how it went:
Edison 3, Westminster 0: Coach Dan Glenn's Chargers rolled to a 15-4, 15-3, 15-2 victory over the Lions in a match that took little more than an hour to complete.

Senior setter Tom Prow was among the standouts for Edison, 2-1 overall. Other top performances were turned in by junior outside hitter Steve Titus, who had 10 kills and senior middle blocker Grayson DuBose, who notched 16 kills.

Marina 3, Huntington Beach 1: With three players on the bench due to disciplinary reasons, the Vikings still had enough firepower to turn back the Oilers, 15-4, 7-15, 15-6, 15-8, at Huntington Beach.

Senior Randy Smith did an excellent job in the middle for Marina with nine kills and five blocks. The Vikings also got boosts from junior setter Bill Craft and the serving of senior setter Robbie Rosenblatt, who was credited with four aces.

Tom Rumbin, an outside hitter, played well for Huntington Beach.

Fountain Valley 3, Ocean View 0: Junior outside hitter Tim Johnson came off the bench to record 10 kills, sparking the Barons to a 15-3, 15-8, 16-14 triumph.

Senior setter Carlos Briceno was credited with seven service aces, as Fountain Valley rallied from a 13-11 deficit in the third game.

For Ocean View, setter Robbie Sherry was the standout.

In community college action:
Golden West 3, Mt. San Antonio 0: The Rustlers remained unbeaten both overall (5-0) and in South Coast Conference competition (3-0) with the 15-1, 16-14, 15-8 win in Walnut. Two freshmen middle blockers — Terry Fresenius (six kills, five blocks) and Scott Garman (five kills, four blocks) — sparked Golden West, which plays at Pierce Friday.

Forsch sharp; Angels romp

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Mark McLemore hit a three-run triple and Gary Pettis added an RBI triple and single Wednesday to lead the Angels to a 9-3 exhibition win over Seattle as pitcher Ken Forsch threw three no-hit innings.

The Angels had a pair of three-run innings, the seventh and eighth. McLemore's pinch-hit triple came in the eighth for a 9-1 lead. Pettis' triple came in a two-run fourth.

Forsch, in his first appearance since a shoulder injury last April 7, didn't have a strikeout and walked two batters, one of which led to a Seattle run.

Kings settle for tie, but find a 'Tiger'

New acquisition gives team some much-needed punch

INGLEWOOD (AP) — The Los Angeles Kings may have let a win get away, but they were encouraged by the added punch their newest player provided.

Dave "Tiger" Williams, who is known for his rough style of play, scored the second of Kings' three goals at 6:26 of the third period in National Hockey League game against the Hartford Whalers Wednesday night.

"If you don't have the ingredients to play a physical game, then you have to acquire that," said Kings' Coach Pat Quinn. "Tiger has the proven ability to play that type of game."

But Williams debut was soured when Kevin Dineen scored a goal from five feet out with 11 seconds remaining in regulation play to lead the Whalers to a come-from-behind 3-3 tie with the Kings.

Dineen's goal came after the Whalers pulled goalie Mike Liut to add an extra attacker with one minute remaining. Dineen took a pass from Jack Brownschilde and beat King Goalie Bob Janecyk to throw the game into overtime.

The Kings' Marcel Dionne opened the night's scoring, netting his 40th goal of the year. Dionne hit a 15-footer on a two-on-one break during a powerplay at 6:33 of the first period to set an NHL record. It was the 10th time Dionne has scored 40 or more goals in a season.

Hartford tied the game, 1-1, when Dave Tippet took a pass from Brownschilde and fired the puck between the pads of Janecyk at 16:43 of the second period.

Williams gave the Kings a 2-1 lead when he picked up the rebound of a shot by Garry Galley and stuffed it between the pads of Liut.

Williams, who began the season with the Detroit Red Wings, had been sent down to Detroit's farm club on Feb. 19.

The Kings rescued him from the minors by making a deal with Detroit just before the noon trading deadline Tuesday. Williams was acquired to help strengthen the Kings for the playoff drive.

Bernie Nicholls put the Kings up 3-1 with a powerplay goal at 12:19 of the third period.

Harbor alumni needs players

Newport Harbor High's baseball team will play a contingent of former Harbor players Saturday, and the alumni is looking for a few more good men for the noon start.

Harbor Coach Wayne Heck says any former Newport Harbor baseball players interested should contact Jeff Praskowski at 786-7656.

A picnic will follow the game.

UC Irvine rips Oklahoma City

The UC Irvine baseball team showed no ill effects from a one-week layoff Wednesday, lashing out 16 hits in crushing visiting Oklahoma City University, 13-3.

UCI, which had been idle because of the postponements of three games in Stockton against the University of Pacific, improved to 11-9-1 overall as Tom Baine, Adam Ging and Paul Hammond collected three hits apiece.

Up 3-2 in the bottom of the fifth, Baine's RBI triple scored, one run and Baine himself came home on a fielder's choice to make it 5-2. The Anteaters added four in the sixth and three in the seventh to make it a romp.

Besides getting three hits apiece, Baine, Hammond and Ging each scored three runs for UCI.

The Anteaters employed four pitchers, with Kevin Kandalafi the most effective.

BYU's Edwards featured speaker at awards banquet

LaVell Edwards, who coached Brigham Young University to an undefeated season and the No. 1 spot in the national football polls, will be the featured speaker at the 16th annual South Coast Plaza Player of the Year awards banquet April 9 at the South Coast Plaza Hotel in Costa Mesa.

Edwards, the most requested college coach in the nation for National Football League clinics because of his expertise in the passing game, coached the Cougars to a 13-0 record in 1984.

The banquet features players of the year from all 55 Orange County high schools for the first time.

The awards banquet, a brainchild of Newport Beach resident Werner Escher, began with a handful of Orange Coast area schools and featured three players from each school until finally blossoming into an all-Orange County affair.

Among past speakers have been Georgia's Vince Dooley, Notre Dame's Gerry Faust, John Robinson of the Rams, Terry Donahue of UCLA and Grant Teaff of Baylor.

Conner, Koliuss assume Congressional Cup lead

By ALMON LOCKABEY

LONG BEACH — Dennis Conner and John Koliuss, two America's Cup hopefuls, jumped to early leads in the Congressional Cup match racing series Wednesday, winning their first two matches.

Conner, of the San Diego Yacht Club, defeated Rod Davis, Newport Yacht Club's America's Cup skipper in the first match and won by default over Ted Turner of Atlanta. Turner lost his genoa jib soon after the start and abandoned the race.

Koliuss, of the New York Yacht Club, won his matches, defeating Dave Perry of Yale Corinthian Yacht Club of Fairfield, Conn., by 17 seconds in the first race. In the second match, he beat John Gobbell of Huntington Harbour by 1:23.

The first day of racing was delayed an hour and a half because of shifting wind. The scheduled third race was called off when westerly winds hit speeds exceeding 18 knots.

Davis lost his first race to Conner and won the second over Harold Cudmore of the Royal Cork Yacht Club of Ireland. In the first race he was outmaneuvered by Conner at the start, had a spinnaker wrap at the first weather mark, and still lost by only 36 seconds.

Chris Dickson, New Zealand's America's Cup skipper, wound up with one win and one loss. He won the first match over Gobbell and lost to Perry.

12 perish in copter wreckage

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — Heat from the wreckage of a $4.8 million Blackhawk helicopter that crashed during an exercise prevented crews from removing the bodies of all 12 paratroopers killed aboard the aircraft, an Army spokesman said.

The UH-60 Blackhawk, designed to ferry weapons and soldiers to combat zones, crashed in a cluster of trees about 12:40 p.m. Wednesday while flying with two other Blackhaws in a 100-mph training formation, officials said.

"The main body of the helicopter was in one heap and... still smoldering" and the rest was in "dozens of pieces," said Capt. Pete Eschbach of Fort Bragg Joint Public Affairs. "We've been unable to remove them (the passengers and crew) because it's too hot."

They likely would be removed today, Eschbach said late Wednesday. Military investigators from Fort Rucker, Ala., also were expected to arrive today.

"There is nothing identifiable at the crash scene as a helicopter," said Col. James D. Strachan, a Fort Bragg spokesman at the wreckage site.

The crash occurred "in a rolling, sand hills area with brush and scrub pine," said Fort Bragg spokesman Maj. Douglas Frey. "It's one of several training areas on the post."

Frey said the crash occurred about 20 miles west of the main post, near the Nymegen Drop Zone on the 200-square-mile Army base.

Four of the victims were crew members and the other eight were passengers, officials said.

No-new-tax plan backed by panelists

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prodded by a presidential taunt, the Senate Budget Committee is backing a no-new-taxes plan for reducing federal deficits by $55 billion next year that includes a freeze on Social Security benefits and hefty cutbacks in the nation's military buildup.

The impasse-breaking proposal was approved by the Republican-controlled panel late Wednesday on a party-line 11-9 vote.

The committee endorsed a freeze on most government spending at current levels while agreeing to a number of deeper cuts it had previously rejected — including sharp cuts in funds for Amtrak, student loans, mass transit and urban development programs.

Democrats on the panel expressed skepticism with the plan, put together in a three-hour dinner caucus of Republicans, claiming higher taxes might still be needed to meet deficit-reduction goals.

"It's a fraud — a game you're playing," declared Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C. "You know you can't do it without some (increased tax) revenues."

But Republicans hailed it as a breakthrough, coming only hours after the committee seemed hopelessly deadlocked as it rejected one plan after another.

Armistalks timetable arranged

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — U.S. and Soviet negotiators met for nearly two hours today and to set up a timetable for their talks on searching for an agreement limiting nuclear weapons.

Bound by their own rule of "confidentiality," they made no statements about their discussions to reporters. Victor P. Karpov, head of the Soviet delegation, said they would meet again March 19.

"It's only the second meeting," Karpov said with a smile and a wave of the hand. The talks formally opened Tuesday after a 15-month stalemate over the basing of new U.S. nuclear weapons in Western Europe.

On the table are strategic bombers, intercontinental missiles and nuclear submarines, the intermediate-range weapons both sides have in Europe, and defense systems, including President Reagan's research program on anti-missile shields.

Max M. Kampelman, the chief U.S. negotiator, greeted Karpov as the two delegations took their places in an eighth floor meeting room at the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

Stringfellow waste to miss FV

Treated materials will be transported through county, pumped into the sea

From staff and wire reports

When treated hazardous materials from the Stringfellow acid pits in Riverside County begin arriving by sewer line in Orange County in May, they'll make a detour around Fountain Valley.

Orange County Sanitation officials, meeting Wednesday night in district headquarters in Fountain Valley, approved the change in plans to eliminate the possibility that the treated water could be injected into the ground water table and mix with the city's drinking water supply.

"I'm still not pleased it's coming through Orange County," Supervisor Roger Stanton said. But he called the decision a "major victory."

The Stringfellow waste, which will be treated to remove its toxicity, will be dumped five miles out to sea about between Huntington Beach and Newport Beach.

According to a plan drawn up by the Environmental Protection Agency and the state Department of Health Services, contaminated ground water from the acid pits in Riverside County will be pumped out of the ground, treated at the site and shipped to Orange County.

Officials say the treated water will meet all purification standards required of any industrial producer of toxic waste.

Under the plan rejected Wednesday, the water was to have been treated again at Orange County's Fountain Valley plant where some of it would be pumped into the underground drinking water supply in a program designed to prevent salt water from intruding into the drinking water supply.

Rerouting the water to Huntington Beach will cost the county about $50,000 for four new pumps, according to Sanitation District officials.

In May, Orange County will start receiving water from Stringfellow, a toxic waste dump closed in 1972, said an official of the Santa Ana Watershed Project Authority, which is overseeing the plan.

School's not out during boycott

Burke protest leader says kids tutored by professional teachers

By ROBERT BARKER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Eight-year-old Mandi Forbes and about 79 of her classmates didn't go to school Wednesday. But they still had plenty of reading, writing and arithmetic to do.

They were part of a one-day boycott staged by their parents who are pulling out all the stops in their fight to keep Burke Elementary School in Huntington Beach open. Huntington Beach City School District trustees voted recently to close the school in June to save money.

"I like both of them," Mandi said when asked to compare her regular school with the day of alternate instruction arranged by boycott leaders at a private residence at 20891 Glencairn.

"This is kind of like a review," Mandi said. "I'd do anything to keep my school open."

Another second-grader, Eileen Opray, had time to polish her writing during a study session on English.

Sheriff says he'll accept jail health care responsibility

Study by Grand Jury discounts potential conflict of interest

By JEFF ADLER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Sheriff Brad Gates said Wednesday that the Orange County Grand Jury's recommendation to transfer all responsibility for jail medical and mental health services to the Sheriff's Department makes "good administrative sense."

Responding to a report issued by the Grand Jury earlier in the day, Gates said he was "glad" the panel had "the confidence in my staff to do the job."

The Grand Jury, in its first report concerning the much-troubled jail operation, suggested the Board of Supervisors transfer responsibility for jail medical services from the Health Care Agency to the Sheriff's Department.

The report pointed out that jail medical services in Los Angeles, Ventura and San Diego counties are administered by their local sheriffs.

"It's up to the board, but I certainly feel my staff can do it," Gates said, adding such a change would streamline the chain of command at the jail.

Interim Health Care Agency Director Robert Love said that although he agreed with the Grand Jury's sugges-

Sheriff Brad Gates

Bingo ordinance compromise OK'd for Irvine players

By PHIL SNEIDERMAN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Bingo sponsors and Irvine city officials have reached a compromise regarding a request for longer game hours and increased prize money.

City Council members unanimously agreed Tuesday to permit bingo groups to increase their playing time from three to four-and-a-half hours, but held the line at the current $200 individual prize limit per game. Game sponsors originally asked that the limit be raised to the $250 permitted by state law.

But council members and police representatives expressed concern that a prize increase could make Irvine an attractive location for "organized bingo fraud groups" that currently operate in other cities.

The bingo law changes were requested by Fred Gahm, a local parent who helped organize the fund-raising bingo games now sponsored by the athletic and music booster groups of Irvine and University high schools. The groups sponsor two nights of bingo each week to raise money for items such as band uniforms athletic equipment.

In a letter to Mayor David Sills, Gahm wrote, "We have held games for four months and have met with reasonable success in that we have paid for all equipment and had a small balance at the end of December."

"The games have been well accepted by those who come, but nearly

UCI student sues for $1M in beanball mishap

By JEFF ADLER

A former UC Irvine baseball star has sued the University of California regents and the makers of the school's batting helmets for more than $1 million, claiming his chances for playing professional baseball were ruined when he was struck by a fastball during a game in 1983.

Irvine resident Ronald Cummings, now 25, was struck by a fastball above the ear and knocked out during the eighth inning of an April 1983 game with UC Santa Barbara. Cummings' attorney said Wednesday.

Cummings was treated at the campus health center and was sent home. But he was admitted to Hoag Memorial Hospital in Newport Beach later that evening claiming he was having difficulty speaking and was suffering visual disturbances. Santa Ana attorney Joseph Bottom said.

Eventually, doctors determined the accident had caused a blood clot to form on Cummings' brain, the attorney said.

The Orange County Superior Court lawsuit alleges the senior right fielder, who had a respectable batting average of .325 when the accident occurred, was deprived of his chance to play professional baseball because the batting helmet, made by American Baseball Cap Inc. of Media, Pa., was defective and the campus health center subsequently failed to treat Cummings adequately.

"There was malpractice by the UCI health center and the product liability stems from the helmet not being of

'Donna Quixote' tilting at Republican windmills

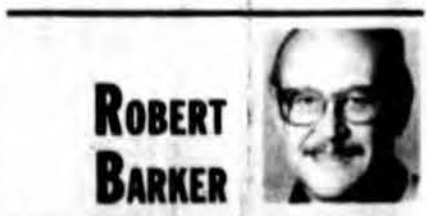

One thing about Sally Alexander — she doesn't seem to mind tackling a Goliath or two.

For nearly two years, she's battled city, county and federal officials, trying to get money to fix the sieve-like flood control system in her Huntington Beach neighborhood.

With her efforts probably playing a significant role, she's succeeded in getting the city to set aside $200,000 to finance repairs.

Back taxes amnesty ends Friday

More than $66.3 million in delinquent taxes has been recovered so far by the state tax amnesty program, which ends Friday.

And Ernest Dronenburg Jr., chairman of the state Board of Equalization, made a last push through Orange County Wednesday urging tax evaders to take advantage of the state's one-time offer to waive all penalties and criminal prosecution for delinquent taxes.

The amnesty program, which began Dec. 10, allows people to clear their slate by paying the back taxes as well as interests.

No identification yet on body found inside old Capo Beach shed

County firefighters discovered a body inside the charred rubble of a shed that caught fire early today in Capistrano Beach, authorities reported.

Coroner's deputies at the scene did not provide any clues to the identity, age or sex of the body found in the wooden shed at 34711 Calle Loma.

It also was unclear whether the person died as a result of the fire, which broke out at about 2 a.m.

County Fire spokesman Joe Kerr said the fire ignited tree branches overhanging the shed, slowing fire-fighting efforts.

"There was some information that the body was found in a treehouse but it appears now it was a shed of some sort," Kerr said.

City Council members unanimously agreed Tuesday to permit bingo groups to increase their playing time from three to four-and-a-half hours, but held the line at the current $200 individual prize limit per game. "The games have been well accepted by those who come, but nearly all of the players state that the attendance is not larger due to what we can pay out each game. The amount of time authorized for playing limits the number of games, and the players have repeatedly asked why we don't play more games."
