55 JWA flights take off today

But Santa Ana winds force planes to soar over Tustin instead of Newport

By STEVE MARBLE

April Fools', Newport Beach
April Fools', Tustin.
Thanks to gusting Santa Ana winds, John Wayne Airport pulled a switch today and Tustin — not Newport Beach — was beneath the takeoff path for the airport's inaugural of 55 commercial jet flights.

Three new airlines began service
today at John Wayne Airport as the daily commercial jet departure cap of 41 flights was officially raised to 55.

But winds meant that jets, which normally lift off over Santa Ana Heights and Newport Beach, took off over Tustin and approached the county airport from the coast instead.
The switch is standard procedure
during Santa Ana conditions.
Newport residents, who have fought expansion of the airport for more than a decade, were thus given a respite from the rattle and roar of departing jets.

In addition to boosting daily
takeoffs by 14 flights, America West, Continental and Jet America started
service from Orange County today.
The new airlines will offer multiple daily flights to Houston, Chicago and Phoenix. Also, incumbent carriers
AirCal and PSA are being awarded

more daily takeoffs.

The presence of Continental in Orange County also brought more than 100 striking pilots, airline attendants and mechanics to the airport.

Tom Russell, a 17-year veteran
Continental pilot from Los Angeles,
said travelers at John Wayne Airport
were the victims of an April Fools' joke by "Continental — a bankrupt

airline."

Unions representing pilots, attendants and mechanics are protesting the airline's 1983 bankruptcy which resulted in the rejection of all union
contracts by Continental.

Russell said protesters showed up to jeer Continental's inaugural flight
out of Orange County.

But in the spirit of the day, the flight

Coals ignite house blaze

Resident, 89, escapes
CdM home as firemen
save garage and roof

By LISA MAHONEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Smoldering coals from the previous night's barbecue were the apparent cause of a fire that forced an 89-year-old Corona del Mar man to flee his home this morning.

Floyd E. Buell of 1215 Surfline sat on a stool several doors from his four-bedroom home watching as Newport Beach firefighters brought his blazing garage and roof under control about 8:30 a.m.

Buell said the fire was probably started by live coals he dumped into a garage trash can following a cookout
Sunday night. He said he thought the coals were dead when he discarded them.

Buell was alone in the house having breakfast when he noticed smoke coming from the garage. He said he opened the door and found the two-car garage full of smoke. "I backed out

Easter vacation off to sunny start

Warm weather lures throngs of vacationing
students to beach during their spring break

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Sunny and warm weather marked
the beginning of Easter vacation week
today for Orange County students, and local beach officials were expecting many of these young people to spend their school break on the sands.

"I imagine we'll have pretty good crowds if the weather keeps up," said
Newport Beach Marine Safety Captain Bud Belshe. "Yesterday's turnout was a pretty good indication."

Belshe estimated that 80,000
people flocked to the beaches at Newport on Sunday, topping a turnout of 60,000 reported Saturday.

Inland temperatures were expected to peak in the mid-80s today, with mild but hot Santa Ana winds blowing. The conditions were expected to prompt many young people
to converge on the cooler oceanfront.
The sunny and warm weather and the Santa Ana winds are expected to continue through Tuesday.

A National Weather Service
spokesman said coastal cloudiness and slightly cooler temperatures are expected later in the week.

Bruce Baird, Laguna Beach chief of marine safety, said this year's holiday
weather is a switch from recent years.
"Generally, it's been overcast during Easter vacation," Baird said.
"This is the first time in a while that
it's been sunny."

Although lifeguard staffing is not yet up to summer vacation levels, the Laguna marine safety official said, "I have a fairly large skeleton crew working because people are arriving earlier and staying later."

Baird said the sands at Laguna drew about 32,000 visitors on Saturday, almost 40,000 on Sunday. He said only one serious medical aid incident was reported, a heart attack

suffered by an older beachgoer.

Beach officials said the cool ocean temperature, about 54 degrees, has been keeping most visitors out of the water, resulting in fewer rescue calls.

Huntington City Beach Lifeguard
Captain Bill Richardson said 45,000
visitors converged on the city beach
Sunday, with 30,000 reported on Saturday. But only three rescues were required over the weekend, he said, because most people opted for sunbathing over swimming.

Richardson said the windy conditions today might stir up the sand close to shore today and make the beaches less attractive to some visitors.

Capitol Hill enthusiastic over marina

Donn Hall said legislators on Capitol Hill reacted enthusiastically last week to his pitch for the federal approval necessary to begin study on the city's proposed marina.

House Subcommittee on Energy

More heists don't mean better ones

Southern California has most bank holdups,
but drugged robbers often botch their work

LOS ANGELES (AP) — For the
bank heist capital of the world,
Southern California doesn't always boast the most professional of jobs.

In fact, many local robbers are under the influence when they say
"stick 'em up," leading to some rather bizarre modus operandi.

"You have a bank on every corner,
you have an extensive freeway system which makes it very easy to come and go, and you have an abnormally high percentage of hypes (drug addicts) out here," explained Joseph Chelaflo, chief of one of the FBI's two bank robbery squads in Southern California.

In 1983, the FBI said, nearly one of every three U.S. bank robberies was committed in Southern California
area.

Often, said San Diego State University researcher Alan E. Omens, the robbers are young, from low-income levels and less sophisticated than other criminals.

"They want to get in and out as quickly as possible, and they're going to make mistakes," said William J.
Rehder, the FBI's bank robbery investigation coordinator in Los Angeles.

And the investigators have stories to prove it.

One San Diego bank robber — dressed in drag with elaborate make-up to throw off surveillance cameras
— became the only criminal the FBI
has positively identified by lip print.

He was in such a rush to leave the scene of the bank after a heist that he ran face-first into a glass door he thought was open.

One bandit was traced about 15 miles from a bank branch to his Los Angeles home by an unbroken string of witnesses.

Apparently didn't occur to the one-legged former basketball player that hopping down the street with the loot in one hand, his crutches in the other, was likely to attract attention.

"These guys are built up to a real fever pitch by the time they go in there," Rehder said. "And when something doesn't go exactly right,

they will panic occasionally."

Chelaflo recalls a first-time robber who for some reason provoked the anger of the bank's customers.

"He was beating it out the door just ahead of the customers who were chasing him," Chelaflo said. But the man's panicked getaway driver took off just as he reached the car door, and the robber didn't get inside until the driver hit a van.

They took off into the street with a motorcyclist in hot pursuit, but they couldn't shake him, Chelaflo said. "So the driver stops the car, the bad guy gets out and stands in the middle of the road," pistol leveled at the pursuing cyclist.

"Well the kid on the bike just guns

Redevelopment hassle: Build now, pay later

Fees waiver for $35 million HB project
triggers questions of special treatment

A 14-floor office tower is quickly
rising above the intersection of Warner Avenue and Beach Boulevard in Huntington Beach.

A parking structure, restaurant and health spa are also in varying degrees of completion, and a theater complex
is in the works.

And, while construction crews are putting the finishing touches on the exterior of the office tower's sixth floor, the developer of the $35 million dollar Charter Centre Project has paid only $33 in city fees for a foundation permit.

The most active developer in the city, Frank Mola's Mola Development Corp., hasn't paid any plan

check or building permit fees.

In fact, Mola doesn't even have a building permit — required of virtually everyone who builds anything
in the city.

The state Uniform Building Codes
and Huntington Beach Municipal Codes require fees and permits for a vast majority of projects.

But despite all the codes, despite the whispering rippling through the city about possible wrongdoing or favoritism and despite complaints
purportedly going to the district attorney's office, Mola and the city are acting perfectly legally, according to top administration officials —

unusually but legally.

What sets the project apart from
most of the others is that the complex is in a redevelopment area and governed by redevelopment laws.

And those laws, according to local officials, allow the Redevelopment
Agency, made up of the seven City Council members, to waive or defer fees.

In the case of Mola's project on Beach Boulevard and Warner Avenue, officials said the agency voted last June to defer the fees until Mola finishes the project. The deferral, say officials, is the result of a trade-off Mola is putting in some street and utility improvements "up front" that will be repaid by the agency when redevelopment money that's generated locally starts to flow. In return, the city (the redevelopment agency)

agreed that he wouldn't have to pay some $300,000 to $400,000 in permit
fees until the complex is finished —
then Mola will pay all the fees plus 11
percent interest, officials say.

"We're not playing any favorites and we're not playing any games. It's something for the overall long-range benefit to the city," says City Administrator Charles Thompson, who doubles as the city's executive director of the Redevelopment Agency.
"We want to allay any fears that something has been done in an underhanded way. Mola is a very active developer but we're not trying to single him out or to make things
any different for Mola or for anyone else."

However, City Councilman Bob
Mandic says he is "concerned."
Mandic said he received a packet
from an anonymous source in the mail Friday evening detailing alleged violations in the Mola project — no

Another gas leak at Union Carbide

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Gas leaked today from the Union Carbide plant in Bhopal, sending residents fleeing from the area in panic, the United News of India reported today. No casualties were reported. Residents were quoted as saying the gas smelled like chlorine.

of that in a hurry," he said. Fire Department spokesman Russell Cheek said flames inside the garage licked up into the attic and set the shingled roof afire. The garage and most of the roof were fire damaged while the rest of the house suffered water and smoke damage. A damage estimate was not available this morning.

Cheek said that firefighters were concerned that this morning's mild Santa Ana condition would fan the blaze into neighboring homes, but the fire was brought under control by 9 a.m. and no other homes were affected.

Marion Parker, who lives next door to Buell at 1207 Surfline, said everything happened so fast she didn't have time to notice the smoke coming from Buell's home. She said her husband, Steve, used a garden hose to water down their roof.

Addition of Continental at JWA was protested by striking airline workers.

was delayed more than two hours. "Typical," muttered Russell. Russell claimed that more than half of Continental's pilots are still on strike. He conceded that some have been forced back to work to make ends meet or to take advantage of medical insurance.

The 14-flight increase at John Wayne marks the first step in the county's airport master plan, which opens the doors for a maximum of 73 daily takeoffs by the early 1990s. Newport Beach successfully derailed a similar master plan several years ago.

Denis Horn, an airport administrator, said the increase in flights today created few of the problems that are expected to materialize as the busy weekend crush approaches.

Horn said airport officials are prepared to use portions of a new parking lot to the north of the airport if it's needed. The new lot was not expected to be opened for another month, Horn said.

The new airlines are sharing

Because of a new stipulation that no more than 12 departures will be permitted during any given hour, Horn said operations at peak morning hours will be "no worse than they have been."

Bill Martin, an official in the airport's noise abatement center, said the 14 new flights will be spread out during the course of the day.

for $250,000 to conduct a required feasibility study on the $100-million marina project.

The project has been stonewalled by an Army Corps of Engineers requirement that only federal funds be used for the study.

Hall ended his two-minute presentation by making an alternative request for legislators to waive the rule preventing local governments and businesses from raising the funds among themselves.

"When I got to that part, they all perked up. They seemed quite eager," said Hall, who returned Saturday from his second trip in as many years to Washington, D.C. on behalf of the 26-year-old marina proposal.

Last year, the request was denied after Hall went with his hat-in-hand to the nation's capital. This time he was prepared with a $9,500 economic report indicating the recreational marina would generate up to $18.5 million in sales, property and other taxes in the first 10 years.

The city-commissioned study also showed the man-made waterway would create a flood of jobs and bring more housing to Costa Mesa.

"I'm really just super-hyped about this trip," said Hall, who was also scheduled to testify before a Senate subcommittee in a hearing that was later canceled.

Local officials and private businesses are hoping to build a passage to the sea along the east bank of the Santa Ana River, from landlocked Costa Mesa through Newport Beach. But the dream has been stalled by the funding dilemma as well as concerns over an endangered bird species living in the wetlands.

BANK HOLDUPS...

it and — boom! — runs straight over him.... When we finally got him, he had a chain mark right up his chest."

The FBI says the average take in the area is a little more than $2,000. But one robber in Panorama City, wasn't so lucky when he handed a teller a note reading, "I have a gun. Give me all your 20s in this envelope."

The teller complied and he left, apparently satisfied, with $40.

Despite increasingly severe penalties — federal law now specifies up to 20 years in prison for an unarmed bank robbery, as long as 25 if the robber is armed — bank robberies are on the rise.

According to the FBI, there were only 109 bank robberies in the nation in 1950. But the crime mushroomed to 2,331 in 1970 and 6,515 in 1980.

But arrest rates are high — about 80 percent in Southern California. Investigators attribute that rate to millions of dollars spent on surveillance equipment.

BUILD NOW, PAY LATER IN HUNTINGTON...

From A1

fees, no permit. The packet also was reportedly sent to the other City Council members, the district attorney and the news media.

"I'm definitely going to get some kind of an explanation from the staff. It doesn't sound right and it appears that Mola is getting preferential treatment."

Mandic also said that he's concerned that the city has provided revenue bonds (about $30 million in low-interest loans) to Mola on another project.

And, Mandic said, there an item on tonight's City Council agenda calling for the approval of another $12 million in revenue bonds for a Mola housing project.

"He (Mola) has a helluva lot of projects going and we're in it with him, and it scares me."

"I think we've also made some trade-offs and have been short-changed," the councilman said.

Mandic said there currently is a surplus of office space in Huntington Beach and yet the city is subsidizing Mola to build more (in the 14-story office building) to the detriment of a developers who have office space that they haven't rented.

City Administrator Thompson defended the deferral of the fees as a redevelopment tool, saying it is needed to fatten the city's tax base to provide money for top-level municipal services.

The deferrals can also help perk up the city's sagging sales tax base through better facilities, according to Thompson, who said Huntington Beach residents have a higher-than-average per capita rate of income but spend their money at Costa Mesa's South Coast Plaza or at other areas outside the city.

Thompson said that the city's Redevelopment Agency can keep 1 percent of the value of the project for public improvements in the redevelopment district.

Mola's Charter Centre project's expected valuation of $35 million can be expected to bring about $350,000 annually to the agency, he said.

Director of Development Services James Palin, the man who allowed Mola to start construction without a permit, acknowledged that the procedure is "unusual."

But Palin said, he never would have let construction start without the payment of fees and a permit if it weren't for the redevelopment agreement with Mola.

Palin said, "I'm totally confident with that set of plans, and I know they will comply with all uniform codes." Palin said a state-certified structural engineer who paid by Mola makes inspections and files reports on a regular basis, and a city inspector makes surveys of the construction at least once a week.

"If I'm not satisfied that the work is going as it should I'll shut it down," he said.

On behalf of those questioning the legality of the construction without fees being paid or a building permit being issued, Deputy City Attorney Arthur Folger said the provision making the procedure permissible appears in section 33220(d) of the Redevelopment Law, part of the state Health and Safety Code. It enables the Redevelopment Agency, Folger said, to make any legal exceptions from building regulations and ordinances.

Officials pointed out that the advantage in deferring permits fees is that the money can be borrowed at a much lower rate of interest to pay the fees after the structures are completed.

Mola was unavailable for comment, but Richard Harlow, his consultant, said everything has been done "above board" with the full knowledge of the staff and authorization by the City Council. "The City Council voted to defer the fees," he said.

Fees also have been deferred for a senior citizen housing project that was built by the William Lyon Co., according to City Administrator Thompson.

WEATHER

No fooling—sunny skies stay

The sunny and warm weather that highlighted the weekend is expected to continue through Tuesday with highs in the mid-80s, the National Weather Service said.

Above-normal temperatures are being caused by a very large high pressure system that is causing winds to flow off the land toward the ocean. The high will remain either over or near Southern California through Tuesday as it slowly moves east.

Along the Orange Coast it will be fair and warm Tuesday. Highs in the mid 70s along the coast to the mid to upper 80s in the inland valleys. Lows mostly 45 to 55.

From Point Conception to the Mexican Border — inner waters: Light and variable winds night and morning hours becoming west to southwest 8 to 14 knots in the afternoon Tuesday. Westerly swells 2 to 4 feet. Fair through Tuesday.

Mitchell died of head injuries, said coroner's supervising Deputy Richard Slaughter.

Holdup suspect followed by customer, held by cops

A man suspected of robbing a Costa Mesa hair styling shop was arrested Sunday after a customer followed him to a nearby motel.

Police said 26-year-old Steven Alan Dresner of Costa Mesa was getting his hair cut at the Hair Shop, 2180 Harbor Blvd., when he saw a "very unkept" bandit holding up the cashier around 3 p.m.

The robber, with both hands in his pockets, ordered the clerk to empty the cash register. According to police, the culprit stuffed $165 into his jacket pockets and ran from the store.

Dresner chased the robber through a shopping center parking lot and to the Tahiti Inn Motel, 450 Victoria St., removed the screen from a closed window, but could not pry the glass open.

Irvine

Police believe they've found some of the culprits responsible for a rash of bicycle thefts in the city. Officers arrested two 12-year-old boys from Santa Ana Saturday and rounded up three more youngsters in The Ranch neighborhood after residents there allegedly saw the pair trying to steal a bicycle from someone's garage. Police say the boys, all Cambodian refugees, apparently walk down a drainage channel that connects Santa Ana and Irvine, surface in residential neighborhoods and steal bikes. The boys would then ride the bicycles back to their own neighborhood where they sold them for $5 apiece, police said.

An Oval Road resident was arrested for assault after she hit her husband on the head with a drinking glass, lacerating his forehead. Kathlyne Kazem, 26, was booked at Orange County Jail following a family argument that resulted in the slight injury to her husband.

A burglar took $1,100 in stereo equipment from a Riverstone residence over the weekend.

A purse, keys and stereo were taken from a Willowrun home Saturday afternoon. A burglar entered the residence through an open patio door and took the items valued at $760.

DMV bogged down; drivers in paperwork traffic jam

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California motorists face delays of four months or more in obtaining vehicle registrations, driver's licenses and license plates because of a computer foulup at the state Department of Motor Vehicles, according to the Sacramento Bee.

The newspaper said the DMV has a current backlog of about 87,000 transactions, mainly in vehicle registrations, and that the backlog is growing at the rate of 20,000 transactions per month.

It said law enforcement agencies have been asked to delay citing commercial vehicles until 90 days after the old registration has expired.

The backlog is forcing the department to pull clerks off the windows and telephones in some field offices, causing some members of the motoring public to wait two or three weeks to get an appointment, the Bee found in a spot check of the offices.

One high-ranking state official blamed the problem in part on the breakup of AT&T.

Nancy Ordway, chief deputy state director of finance, told key state legislators in a March 15 letter that the DMV began planning a "massive, multi-phased automation effort" six years ago but that installation of data communication lines was disrupted by the breakup of AT&T.

She also said the department's original estimates of how long it would take employees to learn how to use the new computer system were "overly optimistic," and that the DMV also made unrealistically optimistic estimates of computer speeds and how much time the new system would be out of service.

"As a result, DMV is experiencing a vehicle registration document processing backlog that is increasing at the rate of over 20,000 items per month," Ordway wrote. "Turn-around times of registration documents, driver's licenses, license plates, etc., to customers are continuing to slow down," she wrote.

DMV already has received Finance Department permission to dip into its reserve fund for $785,000 to immediately hire 86 permanent employees and 42 temporary workers to attack the backlog.

The department also is seeking an additional $8.1 million over the next 15 months to finance system improvements and pay overtime to staff in an effort to catch up. About $4.8 million is for overtime alone.

News Analysis

Kennedy's back in Demo spotlight

But some liberals say he's creating a Republican replica SHEPHERDSTOWN, W. Va. (AP) — Teddy Kennedy is back.

After more than two years as a supporting actor on the political stage, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy moved forcefully this past weekend to claim a place at the table in the debate about the future of the Democratic Party.

From such a position, the Massachusetts Democrat obviously would be positioned to run for the party's presidential nomination in 1988. He didn't deny the possibility, calling his desire to be president "the least well-kept secret of public life." But such a decision, he said, is at least a year away.

In an interview with The Boston Globe, Kennedy said, "I will maintain my political committee and contacts and hopefully that is something that could be readily activated should any decision come."

But what may be more important for the party in the long run was that Kennedy, long the leading liberal spokesman within the partisan councils, made it clear that he understands the party is changing and that he is changing as well.

Since December 1982 — when he vowed not to seek the 1984 presidential nod — Kennedy had been out of the political spotlight, playing the role of faithful party soldier and senior senator from Massachusetts while others fought for the party leadership.

But that sideline role ended with a Friday speech in New York, in a remarkably impassioned talk to his Senate colleagues meeting here and in interviews with reporters as Kennedy sketched his views of the new Democratic Party and the challenge of the Reagan-led Republican party.

"The issues of the economic expansion that we have listened to (this weekend) belong to Democrats and have been stolen by the Republicans," Kennedy told his colleagues at their weekend meeting. "And, most of all, the issue of hope belongs to us. I think the real question is: How do we reclaim it?"

Kennedy said some of the cherished creations of liberal Democrats — public housing, public service jobs programs and the like — are failures and should be replaced. More government spending is not the solution for many problems, he declared, and a new program is not always the way to alleviate a social ill.

Turning to the party itself, Kennedy declared the party cannot be the captive of special interests. It can be the party of workers, but not the party of labor unions, he said; the party concerned about women, but not the women's party.

Such is not the expected rhetoric from liberal Democrats.

And it didn't excite totally positive reactions from some of Kennedy's fellow Democratic senators who gathered at the inn on a Potomac River bluff in the West Virginia town to talk about the party's future.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum of Ohio, for one, said he had nothing but the highest regard for Kennedy. But then he went on to question whether some Democrats are trying to make the Democrats into "a replica of the Republican Party."

U.S. pressuring Japan to open up trade market

WASHINGTON (AP) — With protectionist sentiment in Congress boiling, the Reagan administration is making last-ditch efforts to convince Japan to open its markets to U.S. goods.

President Reagan dispatched personal envoys over the weekend to urge Japanese Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone to help reduce growing U.S.-Japan trade tensions.

Meanwhile, a Japanese Foreign Ministry official quoted Nakasone as saying his government will announce a package of market-opening measures on April 9.

Today, Japan is, in effect, ending its government-owned telephone monopoly, and officials from both countries have been trying to negotiate regulations that would open the Japanese telecommunications market to American companies.

Administration officials, members of Congress and others have said the outcome of the telecommunications negotiations will be a standard by which to measure Japanese willingness to open its markets for other goods.

In addition, a five-year "voluntary" agreement that limited Japanese automobile exports to the United States expired Sunday and the Japanese have said they plan to boost those exports by 25 percent.

Before the agreement expired, Reagan had declined to ask Japan to renew those voluntary restraints that had limited annual auto shipments to the United States to 1.85 million cars.

Gaston Sigur, a National Security Council member specializing on Japanese issues, met Nakasone in Tokyo on Sunday and delivered a letter from Reagan to underline U.S. concern that Congress will enact stringent protectionist measures if Japan does not remove its obstacles to U.S. products. Sigur arrived in Tokyo Saturday night with Lionel H. Olmer, under secretary of commerce for international trade.

Last Thursday, the Senate voted 92-0 in favor of a non-binding resolution urging Reagan to impose quotas and tariffs if Japan does not lower trade barriers. Binding measures also have been introduced.

Sigur said "some progress was made toward solving problems."

Pan Am reaches accord

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiators for 6,000 Pan American World Airways flight attendants reached a tentative contract settlement with the airline today, a federal mediator said.

Walter C. Wallace of the National Mediation Board announced the settlement at 12:20 p.m. EST, saying it had come after 27 hours of negotiations.

Wallace said no details of the agreement would be disclosed pending ratification by the membership of the Independent Union of Flight Attendants.

"It is with great, tremendous relief to announce to you there has been a settlement in the dispute between Pan American and its union," Wallace said.

He refused to say if the agreement involved concessions by the flight attendants.

"I think it was a triumph for collective bargaining that we have an agreement," Wallace said.

The attendants had set a strike deadline for midnight Sunday, but Wallace emerged as the deadline passed and told reporters the two sides had agreed to a one-hour extension.

Shortly after 1 a.m. EST, he sent word from the scene of bargaining at board headquarters that the union and the airline had agreed to continue talks indefinitely.

On Sunday, Wallace had said there had "some encouraging results today so far, but it's a lot of hard work ... there's a long way to go."

He refused to say which issues had been settled and how many remained unresolved.

"The mood is ... good in the sense that both sides are certainly making it clear to me that they're anxious to reach an agreement," Wallace told a news conference.

The airline said last week that it would fly 65 percent of its normal flight load today regardless of any job action by the flight attendants.

Financially troubled Pan Am is seeking changes in work rules to make its employees more productive and to reduce labor costs. Attendants at top scale at Pan Am flying 75 hours a month are paid $28,895 a year after 14 years of service, the company says. Beginning attendants average $14,832 a year.

The union is concerned about job security.

Settlement near in fatal MGM Grand Hotel blaze

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A tentative $76 million settlement stemming from the MGM Grand Hotel fire has been reached, averting a trial which court officials say could be the costliest and most complex in history.

Dozens of attorneys representing 63 insurance companies are scheduled to meet Wednesday to review revisions by Nevada District Judge Paul Goldman and give final approval to the settlement, which was reached over the weekend.

Goldman, who criticized the attorneys' earlier for not settling out of court, estimated court costs and attorneys' fees have topped $50 million since the Nov. 21, 1980 fire in which 87 people died and hundreds were injured.

The hotel was suing the insurance companies for payment of a unique $170 million retroactive insurance policy purchased after the deadly fire. The insurance companies refused to pay, saying the hotel settled too early and for too much on 1,357 death and injury claims.

Goldman said the case represents "the best and the worst of our judicial system."

"The worst is that we have expended large sums of money and disrupted dozens of lives only to arrive at a point that should have been consummated months ago," Goldman said Sunday night.

"The best is that lawyers have placed their clients interests before their own and have settled without a long, bitter, costly trial."

Goldman had predicted that court costs and attorneys' fees for the trial would run $342,000 a day, and said the trial could run five to 14 months.

"I'm personally persuaded that had we not been ready to go to trial the attorneys would not have settled. Regrettably it's too often the case that matters are settled on the courthouse steps."

Goldman said the tentative settlement was "not the first attempt at a settlement, but hopefully it will be the last."

Alvin Benedict, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of MGM Grand Hotels Inc., said in a prepared statement that he was pleased by the tentative settlement.

Following the fire disaster the hotel found itself with only $30 million in insurance. Certain that claims would run much higher, the hotel purchased a unique $170 million retroactive insurance policy for $38 million.

High Court rules Texas A&M can't ban homosexual group

In other action, justices let stand ruling on sale of videotapes taken from TV broadcasts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today refused to let Texas A&M University ban from campus a homosexual student group.

The court, citing a lack of jurisdiction, let stand a ruling that officials of the state-supported university violated gay students' rights by not giving the group official recognition.

University officials say that official recognition of the organization, Gay Student Services, could lead to "increased overt homosexual activity and resulting physical, psychological and disease ramifications ... in the student body."

The university's appeal also said that when recognition initially was refused to the group in 1976, homosexual conduct was illegal in Texas.

In other key cases, the court: • Let stand a ruling that businesses selling videotapes of stories taken from television news broadcasts violate copyright law.

The justices, without comment, rejected an appeal of a broadcast monitor business in Atlanta, TV News Clips, which has been ordered to stop taping for sale stories aired on station WXIA-TV in Atlanta.

• Agreed to consider killing an old antitrust lawsuit in which Zenith Radio Corp. and another U.S. maker of electronic products seek billions of dollars from their Japanese competitors.

The court said it will review a decision that, if upheld, would force top Japanese manufacturers to defend themselves at trial against charges that they conspired to illegally "dump" products in this country at artificially lowered prices.

A federal judge in 1983 ruled that the Texas law banning homosexual behavior is unconstitutional.

Texas A&M officials also said that withholding recognition of Gay Student Services was in keeping with the university's ban on fraternities.

A federal judge, who upheld the ban against the homosexual organization, agreed with university officials that the group was not being singled out since Texas A&M did not recognize any fraternal organizations.

But the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said last August that the university withheld official recognition for Gay Student Services (GSS) because the group supported homosexuality.

"We think it clear from the facts that (Texas A&M) refused officially to recognize GSS based upon the homosexual content of the group's ideas," the appeals court said.

The 5th Circuit court noted that the group "sought recognition to provide services and information regarding gay issues to gay persons and to the general public."

The appeals court also said that it was only speculation by university officials that recognition of the group would lead to "dire consequences," and that banning the organization from campus would protect public health.

The public health argument is not enough to overcome the right to free expression, the appeals court added.

Gay Student Services, in asking for official recognition, said it wanted to provide a referral service for students seeking counseling, to provide information on gays to the general public, and to line up speakers and provide a forum on gay issues.

The appeals court decision allowing the group to function on campus was not implemented while the university's appeal to the Supreme Court has been pending.

Jobless benefits debated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Working against deadline pressure and the will of President Reagan, House Democrats will try this week to save federal unemployment benefits for 339,000 jobless workers.

On Tuesday, the House Ways and Means Committee is scheduled to consider a $270 million proposal to extend the program through June 30. An alternative that several House Republicans support would cost $100 million and phase out the program to allow people already on the federal rolls to collect their full benefits.

The federal supplemental compensation program, which was set up by Congress in 1982 as a recession stopgap, provides up to 14 weeks of payments to jobless workers who have exhausted their 26 weeks of state benefits.

President Reagan opposes any extension of the program, citing federal statistics that show the growing economy is creating 300,000 new jobs a month.

"The place now for people who are having problems is our job-training program, particularly job training directed at those who have to be relocated because something has happened to the industries that they formerly worked in," Reagan said at his last news conference.

San Diego officer murdered

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A San Diego police officer — whose brother-in-law was one of two officers shot and killed in San Diego last September — was shot and killed by a gunman who authorities say also shot his partner and a passenger in the patrol car.

Sgt. Bob Nunley of the San Diego Police Department said the assailant fled in the officers' car after the shootings and abandoned it about three miles from the scene before being driven to police headquarters Sunday night by a relative believed to be his grandfather.

Police spokesman Bill Maheu identified the man as Sagon Penn, 23. He was in County Jail after being booked on one count of murder and two counts of attempted murder.

The dead officer was identified as Agent Thomas Edward Riggs, 27, who had been on the force since 1979. He is survived by his wife, Colleen, and a son.

Deputy Chief Ken O'Brien said Riggs was the brother-in-law of Timothy Ruopp, who was shot and killed in Balboa Park on Sept. 14 along with officer Kimberly Sue Tonahill. Riggs' sister was married to Ruopp. He is the first San Diego officer to be killed since the Balboa Park shooting. His father, Charles Riggs, is a retired San Diego police sergeant.

Nothing boring about Mesa's new councilman

It's guys like Costa Mesa City Councilman Dave Wheeler who make politics interesting.

Most politicians are boring; they never step out of line for fear of tripping over their carefully cultivated images.

Not Dave.

Most politicians are careful to play by the rules. They seem to like nothing better than being singled out publicly as a good example.

Not Dave.

And most politicians, especially the newly elected ones, are terribly solicitous of their constituents. They worry about things like re-election.

What, Dave worry?

Instead of chasing votes, Dave Wheeler spent an hour one recent evening chasing a fellow Costa Mesa resident through the streets of their fair city, waving a badge and impersonating a police officer, according to a police report.

Of course, from the beginning of his political career, Dave Wheeler has been, well, unconventional. As a candidate for student government at UC Irvine, Wheeler campaigned on a platform of "drugs, sex and activism." Specifically, he was an advocate of revising the nation's marijuana laws and showing the X-rated film "Deep Throat" on the university campus.

Well, boys will be boys. And Wheeler had more than a little support at UCI. He won a seat on the Associated Students Council.

But he's 29 now and an attorney with a practice in Newport Beach. Surely, he's grown into a mature, responsible adult. His election to the Costa Mesa City Council should signify that. Shouldn't it?

Since he took office in November, Wheeler has:

- Been evicted from his apartment for irregular rent payments and keeping a junk car in the parking lot;

- Accused a prominent businessman of orchestrating his eviction, only to learn he had confused the businessman's partner with his landlord;

- And been hauled off a citizen's front lawn by Costa Mesa police after an automobile pursuit along the San Diego Freeway and Harbor Boulevard during which he allegedly impersonated a police officer. By way of explanation, police reported, Wheeler told them he had been drinking. They drove him home.

No, Dave Wheeler is not a typical politician. He stomps all over his image; nobody's mama is saying "Eat your spinach so you can grow up to be just like Councilman Wheeler," and his disregard for the opinion his constituents hold of him seems bottomless.

But at least he's not boring. His political opponents might even say he's the life of the party.

LETTERS

Commercial encroachment ruining Art Colony's image

To the Editor:

Since the Laguna Beach City Council always has the last say in any open forum public discussion, this letter is in response to the council's closing accusations (March 19th) that the Laguna Beach Taxpayers' Association is anti-artists and against the basic concept of the "temporary" project at 577 South Coast Highway known as "Laguna Village."

Unlike another local community organization, the LB Taxpayers' Association has always held a posture of support for business in general and has encouraged any community art promotion for Laguna.

The original designated use of the bluffside project was to provide artists and artisans with an opportunity to display their work and to visually educate visitors in the working methods of their craft.

Over the last four years, seemingly innocuous improvement permits have been granted by the city, which, when reviewed in total, show remarkable "fudging" of the rules, and radical expansionism. Understandably, several members of the Design Review Board, which passed these modifications, now sit on the City Council and are defensive.

Unfortunately, "Laguna Village" has become an aberration of the artist workshop concept. The emphasis has been placed on the non-artistic commercial aspects on site. These commercial businesses now include a 7-11 type market with an off site liquor license and a restaurant with license to sell beer and wine for on site consumption. Most of the visitors totally ignore the art activities and instead enjoy food and beverages in the oceanfront setting or make purchases at the take-out market.

The City Council's attitude regarding this project is even more confusing when you consider the extraordinary lengths they recently went to in preventing a similar take-out market from opening in the former site of Aaron Brothers.

The LB Taxpayers' Association's position is simply that all commercial operations in our community should comply with city codes and that an even application of law or restrictions should exist. It is unfair to allow special privileges to be given, in the name of a "temporary operation" (10 years has a true ring of permanence), and under a smoke screen of "art encouragement" public service. Those restaurants and markets that are competitive with "Laguna Village," for the tourist and local dollar, have had to rigidly comply with very costly building, operating codes, and higher taxes from property improvements...an obvious inequity.

The Taxpayers seek that the city abandon the temporary status for the market and restaurant and require total building and operating compliance consistent with all current law for permanent structures. Only the art/artisan booths should be allowed temporary status and privileges of the lower cost of operations.

'Innovative landscaping'

To the Editor:

Kudos to the Irvine Company for their latest attempt at innovative landscaping in Newport Center. They chopped down all those lovely sycamore trees with all their spring foliage, and planted telephone poles.

Social soirees create conflict

Gridiron functions avoidable flights of self-importance

WASHINGTON — One of the wonders of Washington is the way it affords grown men and women the chance to feel like the captains of the cheerleaders just before prom time. All you need is a position of power and/or influence and Washington journalists, in this the season of the Gridiron and other dinners, will fall all over you. They all need a date.

It must be wonderful to be, say, a James Baker — once of the White House, now of Treasury. It's a good chance that every news organization in town was after him to be its guest at one dinner or the other — anything from the recent Gridiron (where he was a guest of the club) to the White House Correspondents dinner or, just maybe, the equally lavish and just as silly Radio and Television Correspondents dinner.

Anyone who has ever been to one of these dinners can tell you that you are judged by your guest. At these affairs, the guest, not the clothes, make the man. The more important they are, the more important you are. In fact, it would be wonderful if journalists and their guests came as couples and were announced as such at the door: The bureau chief from a farm-state paper and the under-secretary of grain.

Now you may ask whether there isn't some conflict — at least the appearance of one — between asking someone to dress up in a tux and be your guest for the night and aggressively reporting the next day how that person does his job. You may ask whether it after having told his publisher, say, that George Shultz will be his guest, a reporter will then do a story that will compel the secretary of state to have other plans for the evening — leaving an empty chair and a publisher with no stories to tell at the club back home.

The fact of the matter is that these dinners are testimonials to conflicts of interest. Not only are they sometimes off the record, but they have an us-against-them quality to them — the us being government and the press, the them being you, the people. Here we all sit down several times a year and pretend — ha, ha — that we're all in this together. Thus, it is somehow funny for reporters to dress up as toilet seats (I kid you not) and make fun of Pentagon procurement policies. Everyone laughs, including Cap Weinberger, proving, if anything, that the joke's on you.

But the dinners are anything but funny. They are, in fact, a continuation of business under the guise of pleasure. For the Gridiron, Geraldine Ferraro used at least two ghostwriters for her dinner remarks and must have been just a wee bit nervous. After all, she was attempting to repair her image, recently soiled when she spilled a can of Diet Pepsi on it. As for Baker, he is reported to have used at least three gag writers. With that kind of help, Margaret Thatcher could be another Joan Rivers. Parliament, can we talk?

Washington is tough on grudges. The place is small, so involved in what amounts to one industry, that it decided long ago that passion and fervor are out of place — especially in the evenings. Fine. I can understand that. I am nevertheless surprised when people I recently skewered do not deck me when we meet. Political, governmental, Washington could hardly function if we were all at each other's throats all the time.

The trouble is that Washington is no different than any other place. Familiarity does not breed contempt, but its very opposite — empathy. In less than 15 minutes, any public official with a minimum competency in the English language can convince me that he is misunderstood, over-worked and getting a raw deal from the press. If he mentions his kids, I am a goner. This erosion of both objectivity and worse indignation is an inescapable occurrence in Washington. Sometimes you just get to like the people you cover. Sometimes, as a result, you get to see things their way.

The Gridiron and other dinners, though, are hardly inescapable. They're avoidable celebrations of self-importance, examples of Washington journalists doing their strut, wearing high-powered guests as plumage and, in some cases, sidling up to the very people they're supposed to cover.

In one way, journalism is not all that different from high school. You're still nobody without a date for the prom.

What this country needs is a good, strong hugging

I read an article in my Pilot the other day, about a man who has started a club. The fact that this man has started a club is not, of itself, newsworthy. Clubs are started nearly every day. Some of them make it, and some of them don't. I have no way of foreseeing the future, but I certainly hope that this particular club becomes a national phenomenon.

The club has, I believe, a 10 dollar initiation fee. It also offers T-shirts and bumper stickers for sale. These items bear the club's motto, a truly controversial statement:

"Dare to hug."

The club is dedicated to the promotion and encouragement of a nearly forgotten human activity, hugging.

I say nearly forgotten, because there are other clubs dedicated to the same premise. I belong to Mensa, and Mensa has several sub-groups called SIGs. SIG is an acronym for Special Interest Group. One of these special interest groups is known as SIGH, which is an acronym for Special Interest Group, Hugging. All of the members of this particular SIGH have a small yellow button that has SIGH emblazoned upon it, and anyone wearing one of these buttons can be counted upon to administer a warm hug to anyone who needs one.

A good warm hug is a unique human gesture, and it's a damn shame that it's fallen by the wayside, apparently unnoticed and forgotten, during the climb that we have made to our current state of society and culture. Two gestures that have survived are the military salute and the handshake. The first of these is believed to have originated with knights in suits of armor. Raising the right hand to lift the visor of your helmet in order to indicate that you were not prepared to do battle with the person you were confronting, in effect making yourself vulnerable to the other person, evolved into the current military salute.

The handshake evolved along much the same lines. By offering your right hand, you were indicating that you had no weapon in your hand, and no intention of grabbing one when the other guy wasn't looking. By taking your hand in his, the other guy indicated the same thing. True, sometimes the handshake seems to become a contest in itself, wherein the two participants attempt to see which can successfully pulverize the other's knuckles, but for the most part, almost nothing conveys a feeling of friendship and camaraderie (as well as a willingness to become friends) like a good, firm handshake. I say almost nothing, because there is one thing better.

A hug. In our culture, the hug is used almost exclusively by husbands and wives, or by lovers. I'm positive that this state exists because of our cultural obsession with sex. If I hug a woman friend, does it mean that I want to go to bed with her? If she allows the hug, does it mean that she's willing. If I hug another man, does it mean the same thing?

In my opinion, this is a very sad state of affairs. There are times in the life of everyone when it seems as if the bottom of our world has fallen out, and there's very little hope for the future. At times such as these, we tend to turn to our friends for consolation and understanding. If our friend salutes, or offers a handshake, we know that he isn't going to attack us, but we need much more than an assurance of non-aggression.

If our friend hugs us, it means considerably more.

It's a sort of attempt to transmit courage and good feelings, or at the very least, an attempt to absorb some of the bad feelings, through bodily contact. It's a sharing of warmth, a physical support, a psychological shoring-up. A good firm hug is an indication of the willingness to lend a shoulder to cry on or a strong body to lean on.

Want an example of what a hug can accomplish? Okay, I get my hair cut at a beauty shop. Sometimes I'm the only man in there, but the woman who cuts my hair does an incredibly good job, and I've been going to her for about seven years. Sometime during the first year, we started to confer a hug upon each other after the job was done. It's become somewhat of a tradition.

One day, after our ritual hug, I was confronted by one of the women who worked there. She looked terrible. She looked as if she hadn't slept in three days, she was very depressed, and her eyes were filled with sadness. In short, she had had way too much unhappiness and grief dumped on her in a very short period of time. Even the strongest of us tend to buckle under a load like that.

She looked up at me, and in a small little voice asked "Can I have one of those?"

Absolutely. As I took her into my arms, she responded with the desperation of someone who was clinging to a floating log after a shipwreck. We held that hug for a long time. There was absolutely nothing sexual about it. She was a woman and I was a man, but during that hug we were merely two human beings, one in need and the other trying to help.

After we finished hugging, she was a different woman. There was a sparkle in her eyes, and she was actually smiling. All that she said was "Thank you."

Unless you've experienced what I did that day, you may find it hard to believe that something as simple as a hug could accomplish so much in such a short period of time. But, you see, to her, it was much more than a hug. It was a learning experience.

She learned that in the vast, uncaring world, there was at least one other person who cared what happened to her.

And that person wanted to help.

Hoover nixed book on JFK

WASHINGTON — One of history's strangest attempts at literary collaboration is described in an internal FBI memo that tells how President Lyndon Johnson tried to get FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover to write a book on the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

The time was October 1966, three years after the assassination in Dallas. Every conspiracy theorist in the country seemed to have a scenario contradicting the Warren Commission's conclusion that the accused assassin, Lee Harvey Oswald, had acted alone.

Johnson was dismayed at the public's fascination with the Kennedy assassination and the persisting conspiracy theories. He had tried to close the door on the conspiracy idea by appointing a bipartisan commission of prominent, credible public figures to investigate the assassination.

Yet I later learned from sources close to Johnson that he had his own suspicions about a conspiracy.

From his earliest intelligence briefings on the assassination, he privately suspected that Cuban President Fidel Castro may have ordered it. He feared that if the American people learned of this, they would demand military reprisal against Cuba, and this could lead to a dangerous confrontation with the Soviet Union.

To prevent this, Johnson appointed the Warren Commission. I don't know whether he tried to influence its deliberations, but he was clearly distressed that the commission's verdict was still under attack three years later.

Johnson wanted to do something to re-establish the commission's credibility and lay to rest the conspiracy talk. He decided that Hoover, then still a formidable figure, had the credibility to persuade the American people, once and for all, that Oswald was the lone assassin.

So LBJ, using his best behind-the-scenes technique, got his close friend, Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas, to approach Hoover. Fortas was skeptical but made the overture through Hoover's trusted assistant, Cartha D. DeLoach.

DeLoach conferred with Hoover, who rejected the book idea as Fortas had expected. According to an internal memo that DeLoach wrote on Oct. 10, 1966, he broke the news to Fortas and explained "the many reasons why the director could not accede to the president's and Justice Fortas' request."

Fortas then confided, states the memo, that "he had argued with the president that it was not logical for the director to prepare this book inasmuch as the director in doing so would necessarily have to substantiate the investigative efforts of many other agencies."

But Johnson had a fallback position, which Fortas then presented. He asked that Hoover at least issue a statement on one point: the crimes had raised the discrepancies between FBI reports and the Warren Commission concerning the Kennedy autopsy.

DeLoach told Fortas he "felt certain" Hoover would agree to this modest proposal and immediately set to work drafting such a statement. The files contain a handwritten note from Hoover about the statement, saying simply "Let me see it, H."

DeLoach now retired, told my associate Les Whitten that the matter was resolved by issuing the Hoover-approved statement in response to an inquiry from The Washington Star.

As DeLoach remembered it, the statement reiterated the FBI's view that Oswald acted alone.

REVIEW

A trial before murder

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES — There is little that you can say about Levinson and Link's latest murder mystery, "Guilty Conscience" on CBS Tuesday night, without revealing a clue.

You can say that it's another dazzling twist by Richard Levinson and William Link, television's foremost mystery writers. You can also say it's a puzzle within a puzzle within a puzzle that will keep you guessing until the end.

"CBS ran an ad the other day and they gave away five important twists in the plot," said Levinson. "Guilty Conscience" stars Anthony Hopkins, Blythe Danner and Swoosie Kurtz. David Greene directed.

Hopkins stars as Arthur Jamison, a prominent criminal attorney who plans to kill his wife (Danner) because he is being pressured for a divorce by his mistress (Kurtz). He figures a divorce would be too costly. Too bad for Jamison, because his wife doesn't plan on becoming a victim.

"This is the third in a trilogy of highly stylized mystery thrillers," said Levinson. "The first was 'Murder by Natural Causes,' with Hal Holbrook, Katharine Ross and Barry Bostwick. It was about magic and illusion. The second was 'Rehearsal for Murder,' with Robert Preston, Jeff Goldblum and Lynn Redgrave. It was done within the context of the theater.

"Guilty Conscience" is within the context of the legal system. The law. That's all we want to say about that since the whole purpose of the piece is to play a game with the viewer, which is, wouldn't it be interesting if you could have your trial before you committed the crime?"

Levinson and Link are co-creators with Peter Fischer of CBS' "Murder She Wrote," the only closed mystery (the viewer doesn't know who did it until the end) on the air today. Angela Lansbury plays a mystery novelist with a knack for turning up just in time for a murder and staying around to solve it.

"What pleases us about the show, which the critics missed, is that this is one of the few dramas with a woman as the star," said Levinson. "Police Woman" had a woman star but she was always rescued in the third act by her male co-stars. The Bionic Woman was a spinoff. There are a lot of situation comedies that have women leads. But this is a woman of a certain age who is in a mystery without any car chases."

Levinson and Link have been fascinated by mysteries all their lives. They grew up together in Philadelphia and were drawn together because they had the same interests. Both are amateur magicians, a talent they used several years ago to write the Broadway play "Merlin."

They adapted "My Sweet Charlie" for television and helped pave the way for TV movies. They also wrote some movies as "That Certain Summer," "The Execution of Private Slovik" and "Prototype." But they're probably most famous for "Columbo," the mystery series starring Peter Falk as the tenacious raincoat-clad detective.

"Columbo" was an inverted mystery because you knew who did it from the beginning," said Levinson. "NBC was worried that no one would watch if they knew who the killer was."

"It's interesting that Alfred Hitchcock only did one whodunit in his career. 'Murder' in 1930," said Link. "The characters take you along in drama, but in a mystery you have to maneuver the characters where you want them to go. It's much more difficult. We always tell young writers at symposiums to read mysteries to learn how to write. They always have a strong spine (plot)."

"The only problem for us is not to become typed as mystery writers," said Levinson. "Most of our movies have been drama."

They are at work on their second book about the television industry. The first was "Stay Tuned," a personal account of their experiences. The new book will be a collection of interviews with the actors, writers, directors, producers and others who make television. They wanted to call it "Talking Heads" but found there was a rock group with that name.

The two are also collaborating with Peter Fischer on another series for NBC called "Black's Magic." It is, of course, about a magician.

Director now into suspense

By MATT WOLF
Associated Press Writer

LONDON — Director John Frankenheimer, who adapts one best seller after another for the screen, is now in his suspense phase.

"This is a time in my life when I want to be busy, when I've decided on the type of movie I want to make — the suspense thriller," said the veteran 54-year-old director of "The Manchurian Candidate," "Birdman of Alcatraz" and "All Fall Down."

Frankenheimer has just finished adapting Robert Ludlum's 1978 novel, "The Holcroft Covenant." This August, he will begin filming Frederick Forsyth's best seller, "The Fourth Protocol." Both films star Michael Caine, and both see their director on the rebound in a career marked by periods of inaction.

"Anybody who's been a movie director as long as I have — 29 years — has cycles. There are times when you're busy, times when you're not as busy as you'd like to be, and times when you really don't want to be busy," Frankenheimer said in an interview at his rented apartment in London's fashionable Belgrave.

"The Holcroft Covenant" casts Caine as a foreign-born New York architect who inherits $4.5 billion from the father he never knew — a Nazi general. Frankenheimer said he was drawn to the project because of his admiration for Ludlum.

"I love Ludlum. I'm a great fan of Ludlum. I buy Ludlum's books. I mean, I pay bookstore prices for Ludlum," said the silver-haired New Yorker.

Frankenheimer also is a Michael Caine fan. "As far as I'm concerned, he is probably the best actor I've ever worked with — certainly the best actor I've ever worked with who gets the girl," Frankenheimer said.

Caine and Forsyth brought in Frankenheimer to direct the "Fourth Protocol," a thriller about the smuggling of a Soviet atomic device into England.

Despite its backdrop of nuclear war and East-West power politics, the novel is "not a political book," said Frankenheimer.

"Forsyth takes a premise and goes from there to figure out how this premise would be made possible," he said.

The 1970s marked a difficult period for Frankenheimer. His 1973 "Impossible Object" was never commercially released in the United States. "Black Sunday," based on the best seller by Thomas Harris, did well but not as spectacularly as its subject matter about terrorist snipings at the Super Bowl had suggested. The 1975 "French Connection II" was dogged by the popular and critical success of its Oscar-winning predecessor.

With one new film just finished, a second set to roll and a third about race cars set for the future, Frankenheimer said he is now trying to engineer his own films more than he's ever done in the past.

Frankenheimer regards his film of Eugene O'Neill's "The Iceman Cometh" as probably the best movie he's ever done. He said the film, produced for the American Film Theater and starring Lee Marvin, Fredric March and Jeff Bridges, proves that he is capable of "something more personal" than just being an "action picture director."

Grapevine's tapped by volunteers

Cheers, salud, "here's to you" — wine connoisseurs, gourmet food-lovers and Newport locals took part in an elegant wine auction — "A Toast from the Heart" — to benefit the Volunteer Center of South Orange County.

About 450 volunteers and supporters attended the lavish event co-sponsored by the Irvine Ranch Market and Westin-South Coast Plaza Hotel.

Carol South, Center president, said, "It's just really spectacular. I've been to a lot of these events, but this one stands out among the best."

Event chairman Jim Ripp agreed adding, "The turnout is bigger than (the 300) we expected."

Among the prestigious restaurant "biggies" contributing to the event were The Ritz, Alfredo's, Nicole's Grill, The Arches, Jades and C'est La Vie Cafe.

"This is very impressive. The restaurants are just outdoing each other. It's really fun to see so many represented," said volunteer supporter Carol Little.

Equally impressed were Newport Beach Mayor Phil Maurer and his wife Pat. "She's having fun. All she's doing is eating. This is great... definitely one of the best fund-raisers I've ever been to," Maurer said.

Some folks saving their calories for the wine, sampled fine vint from Mondavi, Champagne Elyse Ballard Canyon, Chateau St. Jean, Iron Horse Vineyards, Jordan Vineyard and Trethien.

Gene Ashwill (Ashwill Hawkins) was discussing selection of good red wines — "through taste, sight and balance" — with Hank Adler of Irvine and Cathy Grant of Newport Beach. Ashwill (who has his own wine cellar) boasts he can close his eyes and distinguish wines.

Sipping the vino and talking together in the corner were vintner sorority sisters Johan Morrison, Penny McManigal (owner of C'est La Vie) and Carol Blanchard. "We're the high powered, long-time volunteers of Newport," Blanchard said.

McManigal (wife of Ford Aerospace exec Dr. Paul McManigal) said their daughter was a U.C. LA French exchange student in Bordeaux.

"She lived with the family of one of the world's top vintners at Chateau Margaux. And we have been invited to their son's wedding this June in Durfort, France. We hope to go and our daughter has plans to study in Cambridge University in London."

One of the highlights of the evening was the offering of liqueur-flavored truffles from C'est La Vie Cafe. Also presented were Marlmar, pastel petit fours and "fabulous chocolate chip cookies."

Pamela Mattos (Irvine Co.) said, "the truffles are bad (meaning too good)... one of life's sinful pleasures."

Not nibbling, but bidding on the fine wines were Bob and Brenda Currie who bought a special 1938 Clos des Lambrays for $140 and six bottles of Opus One for $350. On what special occasion would they break open the bubbly? Currie replied, "When we're in the Jacuzzi."

An undaunted wine enthusiast Ed McFarland (and friend of the Currie's) said, "I have a wine rack that will hold 12 bottles. I'm happy if that's full."

He wore a special tie with a pattern of little bicycles, reminiscent of his biking trip to Holland and France. "Five of the six couples on the trip are here tonight."

The Volunteer Center founded in 1958 benefits more than 650 non-profit groups by providing volunteers, furniture, equipment, technical training and assistance to the programs.

Others enjoying the event were Nancy and Andy Carlson, Jon and Donna Brownell, Clifford and Dina Frieden, James Dale, Pat and Don Yoder and Barbara and Alan Wiener.

Please mention plus side, Mom

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please print something that a lot of teens will understand. It's a message to my mother.

Yes, Mom I know my "little disappointments" are no big deal. I'm just a kid. What problems could I possibly have? When I'm an adult I'll find out what real trouble is. This is what you keep telling me.

But I really do have problems — serious ones that bug me a lot. Why don't you understand? They may be petty to you but they are very important to me.

You say you had a miserable childhood and that by comparison mine is easy. Yours was harder physically maybe, but not emotionally.

You say I am ungrateful that I take everything for granted and don't appreciate anything. You keep telling me how much you sacrificed for me. I'm sure you don't realize how hard I try to please you.

When you come home from work tired you feel you have a right to be demanding and nasty-tempered. You tell me to shut up when I start to talk about my day. When you are in a rotten mood, you expect me to cater to you.

I feel like crying when you don't notice any of the things I did to please you. Instead you beef about the work that isn't done and complain because I didn't set the table right or the vegetables are a little overcooked.

You tell me these are supposed to be the best years of my life. Don't you remember that the change from adolescence to adulthood can be very rough? It's hard for me to believe you were young once. Give me a break, Mom. I want to get along with you. Please meet me halfway — I AM YOUR DAUGHTER.

my answer. I ask only that you read it again.

I suggested that when couples with varying appetites and incomes eat out together they arrange in ADVANCE for separate checks. That way nobody feels taken advantage of and goes home mad.

If no such arrangements are made before the ordering takes place, it is embarrassing (as the woman's husband pointed out) to take out a pettil and pad and ask around the table, "Who had lobster? Who had chopped sirloin? How many scotches did you and Mary have, Joe? Did Bill and Mabel order salad?"

I repeat: If money is scarce, and you are dining with people whose tastes run to champagne and quail, arrange in advance for separate checks. It will keep the blood pressure down and save wear and tear on friendships.

DEAR DAUGHTER: I wonder how many teen-agers you spoke for today. In behalf of all of them I want to thank you for a very good letter.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I didn't care for your response to the woman who complained because her husband agreed to split the dinner check evenly with the eight other couples. (Some had lobsters and drinks, while they ordered chopped steak and drank club soda.)

Why should people who are watching their money subsidize the high livers? Your answer didn't make any sense. — L.I. DOWN IN N.J.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AK1093 ♥8 ♦54 ♣Q9832
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
2 ♦ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—You have a hand rich in trick-taking possibilities, so we would not blame you if leaped right to four spades. However, if you are more scientifically inclined you should make the trial bid of three clubs, asking partner to evaluate his holding in that suit for game purposes.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K10765 ♥93 ♦85 ♣A984
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♥ 2 ♦ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—Had partner been interested in your spade suit, he could have made a takeout double. While he should have a reasonable hand for his vulnerable overcall, the fact you don't have a good fit makes any action on your part risky. Pass.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q ♥K105 ♦J76 ♣Q98732
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♥ Dble Pass 2 ♦ Pass 3 ♦ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—Your two club response to the takeout double promised nothing. By raising to three clubs, partner has shown a useful hand in the 16-18 range. You should have fair play for three no trump, so go ahead and bid it.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠72 ♥95 ♦Q10954 ♣AKQ3
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
4 ♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—With the equivalent of an opening bid facing a partner who has opened and jumped raised, you are in the slam zone. But you can't do anything precipitate because of your weakness in the major suits. Cue-bid five clubs and see if that inspires partner to seize the initiative.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠63 ♥8762 ♦A952 ♣764
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass Pass 1 ♦ Dble Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—Since you have not yet bid, partner's double is for takeout. You could hardly have more than you hold and still pass one heart. Therefore, a simple preference to two hearts now would be a gross understatement of your values. Jump to three hearts.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠A5 ♥Q76 ♦KQ10532 ♣K6
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass Pass 1 ♦ Dble Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—Since you have not yet bid, partner's double is for takeout. You could hardly have more than you hold and still pass one heart. Therefore, a simple preference to two hearts now would be a gross understatement of your values. Jump to three hearts.

San Jose State infielder John Capuzelo gets a point across to UC Irvine baserunner Steve Morgan after making tag.

UC Irvine drilled by San Jose

After dropping a doubleheader Saturday to UC Irvine, visiting San Jose State extracted a measure of revenge Sunday, handing the Anteaters a 12-3 shellacking at UCI.

The loss cost the Anteaters an opportunity to move into first place in the PCAA baseball standings.

The Spartans sprayed 17 hits around, only one of which was of the extra-base variety. San Jose started quickly, scoring three in the first inning, one coming in on a wild pitch, another on a double by Earl Boles and the third on Ron Rooker's single.

Boles, who homered in the second game of Saturday's doubleheader, went 5 for 6 with 2 RBI and scored twice.

The Spartans manufactured a 6-0 lead before UCI could dent the scoreboard in the bottom of the fifth inning.

The Anteaters managed to halve the deficit by scoring their three runs. With one out, Steve Morgan was hit by a pitch and took second on a balk. Ed Clark and Mike Sugar each reached base on successive errors, allowing Morgan to score.

Doug Irvine then one-hopped the center field wall for a triple, scoring Clark and Sugar.

San Jose retaliated in the ninth, parlaying six singles, two UCI errors, a walk and a hit batsmen into a six-run inning.

After scoring their runs, the Anteaters could never mount an attack against San Jose starter Terry Adams, who received eighth-inning help from Anthony Telford.

The loss dropped the Anteaters to 5-3 in the PCAA and 16-13-1 overall.

UCI's Steve Morgan grimaces in pain after being hit by a pitch Sunday. Anteaters lost to San Jose State, 12-3.

Slow tempo doesn't slow Lakers

Suns' new tactic results in old story — LA victory

INGLEWOOD (AP) — The injury-riddled Phoenix Suns tried a new tactic against the Los Angeles Lakers, and it worked for a little while. Then, the roof fell in.

In the first period of Sunday night's National Basketball Association game between the teams, the Suns slowed the tempo when they had the ball, almost always taking the full 24 seconds before putting up a shot.

The clubs were deadlocked 26-all after the opening quarter. But the Lakers scored the first 12 points of the second period and, for all intents and purposes, the game was over.

It was 64-40 at halftime and the Lakers weren't threatened thereafter in rolling to a 123-98 triumph.

"We played our best defensive effort in the second quarter," said Coach Pat Riley, referring to the 12-minute segment where the Lakers outscored the Suns, 38-14. "It was our best quarter all season."

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Byron Scott scored 20 points apiece to lead a balanced Los Angeles attack. Reserves Larry Spriggs and Mike McGee added 16 points each for the Lakers, who have won three games in a row and finished the month of March with a 13-1 record after going 11-2 in February.

The next two weeks we'll try to keep our intensity," Riley said. "We want to keep on playing well. We are still trying to pick up the best record in the league."

The Lakers, 55-19, are four games behind the Boston Celtics, who are 59-15, in the battle for the NBA's best record. Each team has eight games remaining.

Phoenix center Alvan Adams led all scorers with 27 points, 17 of them in the first six minutes of the third quarter. However, it didn't prevent the Suns from losing their fifth straight game and ninth of their last 10 outings.

The Suns, 32-43, played without Larry Nance, Walter Davis and James Edwards, all of whom are usually starters but are currently sidelined because of injuries.

Earvin "Magic" Johnson scored only eight points for the Lakers but was credited with a game-high 14 assists. Spriggs pulled down a game-high nine rebounds, which was also a career high.

"They're a tough team," Phoenix Coach John MacLeod said when asked about the Lakers. "You can't say anything but good things about a team that's 55-19. They've got outstanding individual talent and they play an unselfish brand of basketball."

Lute Olson no longer Kentucky candidate

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — University of Arizona basketball coach Lute Olson announced Sunday night that he was no longer a candidate for the head coach's position at the University of Kentucky.

"I feel honored to have been given an opportunity to visit with University of Kentucky officials regarding their vacancy, but have decided to withdraw my name from the list of those being considered," Olson said in a statement released through Dr. Allan Biegel, Arizona's vice president for university relations and development.

Earlier reports indicated Olson was going to be the man chosen to replace Joe B. Hall at Kentucky. But Olson said he had never been selected.

"Contrary to some published reports, I was never more than one of several people under consideration and the position was never offered to me," Olson said. "I look forward to continuing my rewarding relationship with our team, the University of Arizona and the people of Tucson and the state."

Witt on the beam in Angel victory

He hurls 6 shutout innings vs. Cubs in 2-1 victory

PALM SPRINGS (AP) — Right-hander Mike Witt blanked Chicago for six innings Sunday as the Angels posted a 2-1 exhibition baseball victory over the Cubs.

Witt, the Angels' likely opening-day starter, allowed four hits while walking two and striking out five.

Luis Sanchez went the final three innings for the Angels, losing the shutout when Thad Bosley singled to drive in an unearned run with two outs in the top of the ninth.

The Angels improved their exhibition record to 11-8 while the Cubs fell to 13-12.

Witt, who took a spring earned run average of 4.85 into the game, looked sharp in his next-to-last exhibition outing.

"It's nice to approach the season on a good note," he said. "Actually, I usually have good springs, but I've been doing a couple of things wrong."

Witt saved his best pitches for a sixth-inning jam. The Cubs loaded the bases with one out on Davey Lopes' single, Ryne Sandberg's double and a walk to Gary Matthews.

But Witt struck out Leon Durham and got Keith Moreland on a grounder to second.

Chicago left-hander Steve Trout nearly matched Witt for six innings, but surrendered a first-inning run on Doug DeCinces' RBI single and another in the sixth on an infield out by Darrell Miller.

The Angels came within one out of their fifth shutout win of the spring. There were two outs in the ninth when third baseman Jack Howell erred on Brian Davett's grounder.

Bosley followed with a single to score Chris Speier, who had led off the inning with a single.

Juan Beniquez started at first base for the Angels, his first appearance since he suffered a severe groin muscle pull on March 16.

"During that time," said Angels Manager Gerie Mauch, "he developed a weight problem. He couldn't wait to get a hit."

His first time up, Beniquez singled sharply to center.

Jackson victim of assault

PALM SPRINGS (AP) — Reggie Jackson of the Angels says he had to wrestle a tire iron away from a man who had raised it as if to strike him in front of the Gene Autry Hotel over the weekend.

Tim Williams, 20, of Glendora, was booked by Palm Springs police on a felony charge of assault with a deadly weapon in connection with the alleged incident early Saturday morning. Bail was set at $10,000.

Arthur Duim, 23, of Temple City, a friend of Williams, was charged with disturbing the peace. He was released on a promise he would appear when called.

The alleged incident happened only 10 days after Jackson, 38, was involved in a parking-lot altercation with a heckler following an exhibition game at Tucson.

Jackson said he was walking toward the restaurant at the hotel owned by the owner of the Angels to have breakfast when he became aware of a car being driven recklessly across the lawns and pedestrian paths. He said there were two men in the car drinking beer.

Jackson said he warned the men to leave before they got in trouble and told them he would call the police. One of the men then made a racial slur, Jackson said.

Jackson said he walked back to the car at that point, where one of (Please see REGGIE/B3)

No Young, so Express blitzed, 30-6

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Oakland quarterback Bobby Hebert had a lot of fun in helping the Raiders overwhelm Los Angeles in a United States Football League game. Meanwhile, quarterback Steve Young of the Express had a miserable time.

Hebert threw three touchdown passes Sunday, two of them to wide receiver Anthony Carter, to lead the Raiders to a convincing 30-6 over the punchless Express.

The win was the third in a row for the Raiders, who raised their overall record to 4-1-1. The Express, playing without Young, who is sidelined with a hyperextended left knee, fell to 1-5.

Young's replacement, Edison High product Frank Seurer, completed only 11 of his 24 throws for 122 yards and was intercepted four times. Los Angeles managed only a pair of Tony Zendejas field goals, of 48 and 43 yards.

"Them not having Steve Young, of course, had to hurt them," said Hebert, who completed 15 of his 26 passes for 221 yards. "I thought it was important for us to go out and grab the lead early."

"If they would have jumped on top, they might have gotten a little confidence and been tough. As it was, we were able to come up with some big plays early."

Express quarterback Frank Seurer watches flight of pass while Oakland linebacker David Shaw gets set to dump him.

First title for Lady Monarchs

Old Dominion rallies to beat Georgia, 70-65

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — All-America Medina Dixon and Tracy Claxton rallied Old Dominion's Lady Monarchs to the 1985 NCAA Women's Basketball Championship Sunday with a come-from-behind 70-65 victory over Georgia's Lady Bulldogs.

No. 4 ranked Old Dominion, 31-3, overcame a nine-point deficit to earn its first NCAA title after taking two AIAW championships in 1979 and 1980.

Dixon scored 18 points and Claxton added 17 points as the Lady Monarchs of the Sun Belt Conference shook off a rash of turnovers to defeat the No. 8 ranked Southeastern Conference champions, who finished 29-5.

Traci Waites came off the bench to be the offensive catalyst for Georgia with 19 points. 13 of them in the second half. Lisa O'Connor also had 10 points, all of them in the second half.

The Lady Bulldogs suffered a double blow when Olympian Janet Edwards fouled out with 8:10 to play and Katrina McClain went out three minutes later. Edwards finished 11 points and McClain added eight.

Georgia led 31-30 at halftime but Old Dominion scored the last eight points with Dixon on the bench with three fouls.

The Lady Monarchs scored the first four points of the second half to take a brief lead that see-sawed back and forth from shot to shot.

With the score tied 59-all, Old Dominion scored six straight points, as Marie Christian took charge. She scored eight of the Lady Monarchs' last 12 points and finished with 11 for the game.

Claxton was voted the most outstanding player of the tournament.

A crowd of 7,597 fans watched in the Super Dome as the two teams met for the first time.

Georgia advanced to the final by beating Western Kentucky, 91-78, while ODI knocked off North-eastern Louisiana, 57-47.

Schrempf leads West All-Stars

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Washington forward Detlef Schrempf scored 16 points to lead the West to a 97-90 victory over the East Saturday in the 23rd Annual All-America basketball game at Memorial Coliseum.

The West used a balanced attack to offset a 19-point, seven-rebound effort for the East by Most Valuable Player Lorenzo Charles of North Carolina State.

The victory was the sixth in a row for the West and the 13th time the West has won in the 23-game series.

The East held three early two-point leads, but fell behind for good at 8-6 on a dunk by Iowa center Greg Stokes.

Stokes and Schrempf each scored 10 points in the opening half as the West enjoyed a 14-point edge on three occasions.

The East, keyed by Boston College guard Michael Adams, ran off eight straight points late in the half to pull within 45-44 and trailed 51-45 at the intermission.

The East cut its deficit to 68-67 with 9:50 remaining in the game on a jumper by Alfredrick Hughes of Loyola of Illinois.

But a jumper by McNeese State's Joe Dumars and a 3-point play by Tulsa's Steve Harris put the West back in charge 73-67 with 9:06 to go.

SPORTS BREAK

'Wrestlemania' puts hammerlock on eager public

From AP dispatches

NEW YORK — Professional wrestling bodyslammed its way to the peak of chic on Sunday, yanking the likes of Liberace, Billy Martin, singer Cyndi Lauper, TV's Mr. T and Muhammad Ali into its newfound hammerlock on hype.

The ballyhooed event was "Wrestlemania," an extravaganza of head-bashing at Madison Square Garden that was broadcast via closed-circuit television to 200 locations across the country, reaching an audience estimated at 1 million.

"We billed it as the single greatest sports entertainment presentation of all time," said Rex Jones, spokesman for the World Wrestling Federation, which has presided over wrestling's boom. "And we firmly believe that to be true."

If Jones' words were grandiose, so was the scene: large, sweaty performers heaving one another across the ring, staging brutal kicks and stomps as fans pelted them with paper cups and yelled good-naturedly for gore.

"It's rough out there," panted television's Mr. T, who joined good-guy wrestling champion Hulk Hogan in stomping two heels in a tag-team grudge match. "It's not for no wimps, wasslin'."

The result is a heady mix of brutality, glamour, flying giants, screaming fans — and lots of money. Ringside tickets to the 21,000-seat Garden show cost $100 each, and scalpers squeezed latecoming fans for far more.

Promoters also sold 5,000 tickets for a closed-circuit television broadcast in the adjoining Felt Forum, and publicist John Bailey said the Nassau Coliseum, the Boston Garden and the Philadelphia Spectrum were sold out for the broadcast.

Quote of the day

Dick Enberg, announcer, on the competitiveness of Al McGuire, a frequent partner of Enberg's as an analyst for college basketball telecasts: "At the Notre Dame bookstore, I got $50 worth of T-shirts and souvenirs. Al McGuire bought was shaving cream and a razor, but at the cash register he asked, 'What's the clerk's rate?' He was excited, because he got 38 cents off."

Winnipeg, Calgary skate to tie

Winnipeg right wing Scott Arniel converted his own rebound at 12:49 of the third period Sunday to give the Jets a 4-4 National Hockey League tie with Calgary.

The win kept Winnipeg three points ahead of the Flames in the battle for second place in the Smythe Division. The Jets have two games remaining, while Calgary has three.

In other NHL games, rookie Petri Skriko snapped a 2-2 tie at 5:54 of the third period to give Vancouver a 3-2 victory over Minnesota. Veterans Stan Smyl and Peter McNab also scored for the Canucks, who ended a three-game winless streak.

Mats Naslund, Chris Chelios and Ron Flockhart scored first-period goals to help Montreal to a 4-2 victory over Pittsburgh. The Canadiens' fourth straight win. Gilles Harrel scored what proved to be the winning goal and Buffalo got two more goals on the power play to beat Adams Division rival Quebec, 3-1.

Mike Rogers scored two goals, including the 20th of his career, and set up two others as the New York Rangers downed Toronto, 7-5. The victory gave the Rangers a seven-point lead over New Jersey in the battle for the final Patrick Division playoff berth.

Dodgersman Paul Coffey knocked in three goals and Wayne Gretzky reached the 200-point mark for the third time with his 425th career goal as Edmonton topped Chicago, 7-3. The Oilers pounded in five goals in the final period to break a 2-2 tie.

Seniors Classic to Thomson

LOS ANGELES — Australian Peter Thomson rolled in a five-foot par-saving putt on the final hole Sunday to hold off fast-charging Don January for a one-stroke victory in the Seniors Classic at Mountaingeat Country Club.

The 55-year-old Thomson, who started the day with a three-stroke lead, was up by four shots with only five holes to play, but lost his lead by the time the pair reached the 18th hole.

McEnroe now 4 for 4 this year

Top-seeded John McEnroe, the undisputed No. 1 tennis star in the world, trounced second-seeded Anders Jarryd of Sweden, 6-4, 6-1, Sunday in the final of the Fila Indoor Trophy Tournament in Milan, Italy, to post his fourth victory in as many events this year.

The triumph at the Lido Sports Palace enabled the American to collect $60,000 and boosted his season's prize money to $283,000. The 26-year-old New Yorker, who had been idled by an aching wrist for three weeks before the Milan tournament, displayed an overwhelming superiority throughout the match and made short work of his 23-year-old opponent. The match only lasted 66 minutes.

In Fort Myers, Fla., Ivan Lendl served eight aces to defeat Jimmy Connors, 6-3, 6-2. It was second-seeded Lendl's third consecutive victory over the top-seeded Connors.

Third-seeded Kathy Horvath beat unseeded Petra Delhees-Jauch, 3-6, 6-3, 6-3 in the singles final of the Challenge Round women's tournament at Palm Beach Gardens, Fla. to advance to the Challenge Cup.

Reds' Soto rocked by Mets

The New York Mets scored 11 runs off Cincinnati ace Mario Soto in six innings Sunday and went on to an easy 15-2 exhibition baseball victory, the Reds' ninth loss in the last 12 games. Soto, who gave up 14 hits, including a second-inning home run by Clint Hurdle, saw his earned run average climb to 8.00 in 18 innings. Soto is scheduled to pitch the National League opener in Cincinnati against Montreal April 8.

In other games, Glenn Hubbard's bases-loaded double in the second inning staked an Atlanta split squad to a three-run lead in a 4-2 win over Baltimore.

Kevin Gross belted a two-run homer and pitched long enough to get the victory as Philadelphia edged Pittsburgh, 6-5.

Jack Clark hit his second home run of the spring and scored two runs to lead St. Louis to a 5-3 victory over Montreal.

Jerry Hairston's eighth-inning sacrifice fly scored Scott Fletcher to help the Chicago White Sox play the Toronto Blue Jays to a 2-2 tie in a game stopped after 13 innings by mutual agreement of the managers.

Mark Ryal cracked a bases-empty home run in the ninth inning to lift the other White Sox team over Kansas City, 4-2.

Detroit downed Minnesota as Mike Laga and Nelson Simmons each drove in a pair of runs with singles to lead the Tigers.

Butch Wynegar's grand slam capped a six-run rally in the fifth inning, boosting the New York Yankees over the Boston, 8-6.

A three-run triple by Curtis Wilkerson helped Texas to a four-run outburst in the third inning, leading the Rangers over Houston, 11-8.

Ken Phelps homered and Jim Presley drove in three runs to pace Seattle to a 9-4 triumph over Cleveland.

A throwing error by Milwaukee right fielder Ben Oglivie allowed San Diego to score the tying and winning runs in the bottom of the ninth inning as the Padres came back from a 3-2 deficit to nip Milwaukee, 4-3.

Bob Brenly belted two doubles, drove in two runs and scored twice in San Francisco's 6-4 victory over Oakland.

Bartow seeking Kentucky job?

LEXINGTON, Ky. — A newspaper reported Sunday that Alabama-Birmingham Coach Gene Bartow has changed his mind and is interested in the head coaching position at Kentucky.

The Lexington Herald-Leader quoted sources as saying that Bartow, who after being interviewed by the Kentucky selection committee earlier this week said he no longer wanted to be considered, now is in the running for the position.

Clippers' comeback falls short

LOS ANGELES — Forward Mike Mitchell scored 32 points Sunday night as the San Antonio Spurs beat the Los Angeles Clippers 126-115 to reach the 500 level and clinch a berth in the National Basketball Association playoffs.

The Spurs, 38-38 with six games remaining in the regular season, survived a late scare after leading 111-94 with eight minutes left to play.

Detroit halts Boston's streak

Iqiah Thomas scored 26 points to lead Detroit to a come-from-behind 113-105 victory over Boston in National Basketball Association action Sunday as the Pistons snapped the Celtics' 10-game winning streak for the second time this season.

Detroit trailed 85-84 going into the final quarter. But two straight baskets and a free throw by reserve forward Terry Tyler gave the Pistons the lead for good, 89-85, with 10:46 remaining.

In another NBA game Sunday, Gus Williams scored a game-high 26 points and Jeff Malone added 23, including the go-ahead basket with 2:05 remaining, as Washington handed Indiana its 10th consecutive loss, 111-105.

The Pacers carried a five-point advantage into the fourth quarter, 87-82, but the Bullets started chipping away at the lead behind the play of Malone and Williams, and two free throws from Darren Day tied the score at 95-95 with 5:49 remaining.

Houston dealt first USFL loss

Quarterback Chuck Fusina passed for 310 yards and the Baltimore Stars converted two second-half Jim Kelly turnovers into touchdowns to hand the previously undefeated Houston Gamblers a 27-14 loss in United States Football League action Sunday.

Kelly, the USFL's leading passer, threw for two third-quarter interceptions and lost a fumble and an interception in the fourth period as the Baltimore defense applied pressure to Houston's pass-oriented offense.

In other USFL action, quarterback Vince Evans passed for two second-half touchdowns and rushed for another as the Denver Gold overcame a lethargic first half to hand the Orlando Renegades their sixth straight loss, 21-17.

The Gold victory, before only 10,217 spectators — the smallest home crowd in Gold history — was Denver's fourth of the season against two defeats. The Renegades have yet to win.

Methodical win for steady Peete

TPC winner calls it 'best round ever' after 3-shot win

PONTE VEDRA, Fla. (AP) — Calvin Peete had to make a decision on one of those so very rare occasions when he hit the ball off line.

He found himself in the woods with a restricted swing on the 10th hole at the Players Club at Sawgrass on Sunday.

"I had a shot, but I was afraid I was going to hit a limb and break my club or break my wrist. I figured $162,000 was worth breaking either of them, so I went ahead and hit the shot."

The only thing he broke was D.A. Weibring's heart.

He pulled off the shot, got his par and went on to the best round of his life and the most important victory of his remarkable, rags-to-riches career, a three-stroke triumph in the Tournament Players Championship.

"The man's a machine," said Weibring, who chased Peete to the annual championship of golf's touring pros.

"I figured if I played the back nine one or two under par, I had a chance," Weibring said. "I played it in (4-under-par) 32. And I lost by three."

"I'm pretty disappointed. I was trying to achieve something. I was trying to win the golf tournament. But it wasn't to be."

Peete never gave him a chance.

He, too, played the back in 32, reeling off a string of three consecutive birdies at one point and finishing with a 6-under-par 66 and a course record 274 total, 14 shots

Calvin Peete

under par on the Players Club at Sawgrass.

"Under the circumstances, my best round ever," said Peete, 41, the first black player to win this event.

Peete, one of 19 children and once a peddler or jewelry to migrant farm workers is the embodiment of one of the game's most remarkable rags-to-riches stories.

He did not take up the game until he was in his 20s. Since joining the Tour, he has made a habit of leading the game in the statistical categories denoting accuracy, last year won the Vardon Trophy for the low scoring average, has won more titles than any other player since 1982, nine, and has collected more than $1.5 million in winnings.

Oberkfell slams door on Dodgers

Inside-the-park homer difference in Braves' 5-3 win

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Ken Oberkfell slugged an inside-the-park grand slam homer and Paul Runge tripled and had two singles to lead a split squad of Atlanta Braves to a 5-3 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers in exhibition baseball Sunday.

Pedro Guerrero hit a two-run home run for Los Angeles, 13-8. The Braves, who also defeated Baltimore, 4-2, in West Palm Beach, are 13-10.

Craig McMurry gave up one run on six hits through six innings to earn the win. Fernando Valenzuela, who gave up five runs on six hits in seven innings, absorbed the loss, his fifth in six spring decisions.

After the Braves took a 1-0 lead in the second inning when Bruce Benedict singled home Oberkfell, Atlanta filled the bases in the third. Oberkfell drove a long drive to right-center that eluded center fielder Ken Landreaux and right fielder Mike Marshall and rolled to the scoreboard. By the time Marshall retrieved the ball, Oberkfell had rounded the bases.

Los Angeles scored its first run in the fifth when Bill Russell led off the inning with a triple. Valenzuela brought him home with an infield out.

In Valenzuela's six starts, the Dodgers have supported him with only 10 runs.

Steve Howe was scheduled to make his spring debut, but he is now questionable. Howe, who was suspended all of 1984 for his drug problems and then had elbow surgery in January, was absent from camp on Sunday because of a stomach virus.

18 players may testify in drug probe

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Eighteen major-league baseball players are expected to be called before a federal grand jury investigating cocaine sales, it was reported Sunday.

The grand jury is targeting dealers, not ballplayers, and the witnesses are Pirates, former Pirates and National League players, the newspaper said.

Lee Lacy, a former member of the Pittsburgh Pirates, is one of eight players who already have testified, his attorney said.

Leonard Milstein, Lacy's Los Angeles attorney, said Lacy testified before spring training began.

"All I know is that he was there to testify and testified," Milstein said. "I don't know why or what he said. I know they are trying to clean up baseball."

Sam Reich, a criminal lawyer who has represented several players who have testified here, would not comment on whether Lacy was his client.

"Lee Lacy is definitely not a target of the grand jury," Reich said.

Hit man: Hoffa's body ground up, put in drum

By the Associated Press

RICHMOND, Va. — A former mob hit man has repeated in a newspaper interview his contention that former Teamsters union leader Jimmy Hoffa was slain and his body ground up and stuffed into a steel drum which was dumped in the Florida Everglades. Hoffa was last seen leaving a suburban Detroit restaurant in the summer of 1975. Charlie Allen, who says he acted as Hoffa's bodyguard while they were both in prison, reiterated his version of Hoffa's death in a copyright interview published Sunday by The Richmond Times-Dispatch. Federal authorities say crime bosses have put a $50,000 price tag on Allen's head. He is now living under another identity provided by the federal witness protection program, the newspaper reported.

Neo-Nazi may be quizzed

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. — Police in Denver say they haven't decided whether to send officers to North Carolina to question neo-Nazi David Lane about the machine gun-slaying of radio talk show host Alan Berg last June. Lane, 46, a self-avowed white supremacist and former Denver resident, was being held in the Forsyth County jail Sunday pending a court appearance today on a counterfeiting charge. Berg, a Jew, often argued with neo-Nazi members, including Lane, on his call-in show. Denver police said. Last August, Lane wrote to the Denver media denying he had participated in Berg's killing.

Husband held in church killings

EVANSBURG, Pa. — A man accused of shooting his estranged wife and two daughters to death outside a church had just attended a Palm Sunday service where he took communion with one of the girls, the pastor said. Leon Moser, 42, of Collegeville, who was charged with three counts of murder, was already facing assault charges for an alleged attack on his wife five months ago. Lower Providence Township Police Chief Thomas P. Rogers said. Moser, after arguing with his wife, Linda, 35, in the church after the service, pulled a .30-06 hunting rifle out of his car and shot her in the back, Rogers said. He then shot the children, Joanne, 10, who was in his car, and Donna, 14, who was standing nearby, striking both in the head.

Bus plunge injures 20 aboard

HOT SULPHUR SPRINGS, Colo. — A Trailways bus plunged down a 12-foot embankment on icy, snowpacked U.S. 40 west of Hot Sulphur Springs Sunday, injuring 20 people aboard. The bus went out of control on the windblown, snow-pelted stretch of mountain road and slid down the embankment about 4:15 a.m. Grand County deputies said. The accident occurred during the sixth consecutive day of heavy snowfall in Colorado's high country.

4.6 quake rattles Montana

WASHINGTON — An earthquake with a preliminary magnitude of 4.6 on the Richter scale hit west central Montana early today, the U.S. Geological Survey said. The tremor was centered about 70 miles northwest of the Montana capital of Helena and was felt in Helena, Great Falls, Missoula and Kalispell. USGS spokesman Don Finley said. Finley said he did not know if there had been any damages from the quake. Scientists at the USGS National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo., said the tremor occurred at 2:13 a.m. MST.

Devil cult feared at McMartin

MANHATTAN BEACH — Parents of children who were allegedly molested and shown animal sacrifices at a preschool now say they believe the only explanation for the bizarre accounts is a devil worship cult. "I believe it's a big cult, and it's a lot bigger than we think," said the mother of John Doe No. 9, who testified about alleged devil worship at the preliminary hearing for seven staff members of the McMartin Pre-School. "Oh absolutely, beyond any doubt, I know it." In an interview with The Daily Breeze, she said her son, now 10 years old, told him the devil was trying to control his life.

'Great Gildersleeve' dead at 76

TORRANCE — Harold Peary, the actor whose booming vibrato, livened the character of the Great Gildersleeve during radio's golden age, has died at age 76. Peary died Saturday at Torrance Memorial Hospital, said a spokeswoman who declined to be identified. The son of a Portuguese immigrant, Peary was born Harold Jose Pereira de Faria and became best known for his portrayal of Throckmorton P. Gildersleeve, the next-door neighbor of Fibber McGee.

USA for Africa album released

LOS ANGELES — With nearly $9 million already raised for famine relief through the hit single "We Are the World," organizers, who brought together top American music stars for a unique charity recording session are hoping to raise millions more with release of the USA for Africa Album. The album, which includes the song "We Are the World" and contributions by Prince, Bruce Springsteen and others, was to go on sale today. Sales from the "We Are the World" single, plus rights to a video, cash donations and merchandise such as sweatshirts have already raised $8.7 million in funds, said Ken Kragen, executive director of USA for Africa Foundation. The album, which has 10 songs, will sell for $9.98 a copy.

Jet ski enthusiast killed

LONG BEACH — A 13-year-old boy aboard a motorized "jet ski" tried to cut behind a power boat and was decapitated by a water skier's tow line, police said. The accident occurred Saturday afternoon near the mouth of the Los Angeles River, police Sgt. William Swanson said. The teen-ager, identified by Los Angeles County coroner's investigator Edward Murrell as Christopher Tachman of the Los Angeles area, was southbound on the scooter-like ski near the Ocean Street bridge. The boat was northbound, Swanson said.

Duarte claims easy victory

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — President Jose Napoleon Duarte's Christian Democrats claimed they wrested control of the National Assembly from a right-wing coalition in elections conducted in a festive atmosphere and marred by only scattered violence. An independent broadcasting company said an exit poll it commissioned backed the Christian Democrats' claim. However, the conservative opposition said it had won a large majority in Sunday's balloting for 60 members of the assembly and 262 mayors. Western observers doubted the accuracy of both claims of victory. Actual results of the election were not expected until mid-week.

Officer testifies in S. Africa hearing

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — A police officer testified today he saw one stone thrown by an approaching crowd of black marchers before he ordered his men to open fire, killing 19 people. Lt. Johan William Fouché's testimony at an inquiry into the March 21 shootings appeared to contradict the white-minority government's version that police opened fire only after they were surrounded and pelted with stones and gasoline bombs. However, Fouché defended his action. "I believe my men and I would definitely be overrun and killed if I didn't give the order to fire," he said.

Iraq jets attack Tehran

BAGHDAD, Iraq — Iraq said its jet fighters raided the Iranian capital today — the second attack in seven hours. The Iranian military command confirmed both raids and said 15 people were killed and 50 others wounded. A Baghdad military spokesman said Iraqi warplanes also struck a "large naval target" in the Persian Gulf south of Iran's Kharg Island oil terminal. Marine salvage executives along the gulf region said they had no confirmation of the attack. The Iraqis use the term "large naval target" to refer to supertankers. The Baghdad spokesman said the raid in the gulf was in line with the Iraqi policy of trying to cut Iran's oil export income.

French Embassy worker released

BEIRUT, Lebanon — French Embassy employee Danielle Perez, abducted in mostly Moslem west Beirut nine days earlier, was freed unharmed. However, the leader of Beirut's Jewish community was abducted — the fourth Jew kidnapped in four days. Police said 65-year-old Ishaq Sassoun, leader of the Jewish community in Beirut, was kidnapped Sunday near his home in west Beirut by three gunmen. There was no claim of responsibility for his kidnapping, or the three previous kidnappings of Jews. Perez was the third Westerner whose release was foretold by a mysterious group calling itself the Khaibar Brigades. There was no word on six other Westerners who have been kidnapped since March 14.

HOROSCOPE

SYDNEY OMARR

Tuesday, April 2
ARIES (March 21-April 19): Diversify, check with individuals who previously expressed interest in your "challenge." Emphasis on curiosity, travel, humor, added social activity. You'll receive numerous comments on your weight, appearance.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You'll be surprised, perhaps delighted, by attention paid you by member of opposite sex. Scenario highlights adventure, attraction and a unique relationship. Funding will be made available.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20): By asking questions you receive answers. Means come out of shell, make contacts, do some personal detective work. For you, knowledge is power. Know it, act accordingly. Virgo plays top role.
CANCER (June 21-July 22): Emphasis on relatives, domestic adjustment, changes in the home, reunion with loved one. You'll be invited to "try" some tasty morsels. Remember there is no "free lunch." There is a motive!
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Money picture could be deceptive. Be aware, alert, willing to trim "fat." Cycle remains high, spotlight on finances, income potential. Pisces-Virgo natives figure prominently. Define terms.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Lunar, numerical cycles point to power, authority, responsibility and a "strong" relationship. Scenario highlights money and love, advancement, ability to take charge of your own destiny. You emerge victorious!
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Study Virgo message. Realize sky is limit. Someone backstage works in your behalf. You'll gain wider audience, more persons will seek your counsel. Project is completed, don't stay too long at the fair.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Wish comes true and you may wonder, "Why did I ask for it?" Get ready for new start, added independence, green light for creative endeavor. Love plays major role - Leo figures prominently.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Follow through on hunch, realize you do have power, you are not without allies. One authority wants you to succeed, will prove it. You're being pulled in two directions - move towards family.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Lunar numerical aspects highlight travel, education, special studies, activities related to publishing. Spiritual values are part of scenario, you could feel "transformed." Keep eye on Gemini!
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): It's time to tear down for ultimate purpose of rebuilding on more suitable structure. You'll learn more about financial resources of one who makes "big promises." Scorpio, Taurus persons play outstanding roles.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Go slow, check legal rights and permissions. Be aware of license requirements, tax obligations. Member of opposite sex talks about a more permanent arrangement. For now, discretion is best policy.

If April 2 is your birthday many feel you are so fond of adventure that you cannot settle down. But the "real you" is drawn to family, home, security and you also have innate understanding of food, shelter and the basic elements of life, including love. Cancer, Capricorn persons play important roles in your life. You are sensitive, emotional, loyal, present and have special success in dealing with women. If single, you marry this year. If married, there could be an addition to family. June will prove memorable.

55 JWA flights take off today

But Santa Ana winds force planes to soar over Tustin instead of Newport

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

April Fools', Newport Beach
April Fools', Tustin.
Thanks to gusting Santa Ana
winds, John Wayne Airport pulled a

switch today and Tustin — not Newport Beach — was beneath the
takeoff path for the airport's inaugural of 55 commercial jet flights.
Three new airlines began service
today at John Wayne Airport as the

daily commercial jet departure cap of 41 flights was officially raised to 55.

But winds meant that jets, which normally lift off over Santa Ana Heights and Newport Beach, took off
over Tustin and approached the
county airport from the coast instead.
The switch is standard procedure
during Santa Ana conditions.

Newport residents, who have fought expansion of the airport for more than a decade, were thus given a respite from the rattle and roar of departing jets.

In addition to boosting daily
takeoffs by 14 flights, America West,
Continental and Jet America started
service from Orange County today.

The new airlines will offer multiple daily flights to Houston, Chicago and Phoenix. Also, incumbent carriers

more daily takeoffs.

The presence of Continental in Orange County also brought more than 100 striking pilots, airline attendants and mechanics to the airport.

Continental pilot from Los Angeles,
said travelers at John Wayne Airport
were the victims of an April Fools'
joke by "Continental — a bankrupt

airline."

Unions representing pilots, attendants and mechanics are protesting the
airline's 1983 bankruptcy which resulted in the rejection of all union
contracts by Continental.

Russell said protesters showed up
to jeer Continental's inaugural flight
out of Orange County.

But in the spirit of the day, the flight

Coals ignite house blaze

Resident, 89, escapes
CdM home as firemen
save garage and roof

By LISA MAHONEY
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Smoldering coals from the previous night's barbecue were the apparent cause of a fire that forced an 89-year-old Corona del Mar man to flee his home this morning.

Floyd E. Buell of 1215 Surfline sat
on a stool several doors from his four-bedroom home watching as Newport
Beach firefighters brought his blazing garage and roof under control about 8:30 a.m.

Buell said the fire was probably started by live coals he dumped into a garage trash can following a cookout
Sunday night. He said he thought the coals were dead when he discarded them.

Buell was alone in the house having breakfast when he noticed smoke
opened the door and found the two-
car garage full of smoke. "I backed out

Easter vacation off to sunny start

students to beach during their spring break

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Sunny and warm weather marked
the beginning of Easter vacation week
today for Orange County students,
and local beach officials were expecting many of these young people to spend their school break on the sands.

"I imagine we'll have pretty good crowds if the weather keeps up," said
Newport Beach Marine Safety Captain Bud Belshe. "Yesterday's turnout was a pretty good indication."

Belshe estimated that 80,000
people flocked to the beaches at Newport on Sunday, topping a turnout of 60,000 reported Saturday.

Inland temperatures were expected to peak in the mid-80s today, with mild but hot Santa Ana winds
blowing. The conditions were expected to prompt many young people
to converge on the cooler oceanfront.
The sunny and warm weather and the Santa Ana winds are expected to continue through Tuesday.

A National Weather Service
spokesman said coastal cloudiness
and slightly cooler temperatures are

Bruce Baird, Laguna Beach chief of marine safety, said this year's holiday
weather is a switch from recent years.
"Generally, it's been overcast during Easter vacation," Baird said.
"This is the first time in a while that
it's been sunny."

Although lifeguard staffing is not yet up to summer vacation levels, the Laguna marine safety official said, "I have a fairly large skeleton crew working because people are arriving
earlier and staying later."

Baird said the sands at Laguna drew about 32,000 visitors on Saturday, almost 40,000 on Sunday. He said only one serious medical aid

incident was reported, a heart attack
suffered by an older beachgoer.

Beach officials said the cool ocean
temperature, about 54 degrees, has been keeping most visitors out of the water, resulting in fewer rescue calls.

Huntington City Beach Lifeguard
Captain Bill Richardson said 45,000
visitors converged on the city beach
Sunday, with 30,000 reported on Saturday. But only three rescues were required over the weekend, he said,
because most people opted for sunbathing over swimming.

Richardson said the windy conditions today might stir up the sand close to shore today and make the beaches less attractive to some visitors.

Bandits beat victim, get $3,000 cash

More heists don't mean better ones

Southern California has most bank holdups,
but drugged robbers often botch their work

LOS ANGELES (AP) — For the
bank heist capital of the world,
Southern California doesn't always
boast the most professional of jobs.

In fact, many local robbers are
under the influence when they say
"stick 'em up," leading to some rather bizarre modus operandi.

"You have a bank on every corner,
you have an extensive freeway system
which makes it very easy to come and go, and you have an abnormally high percentage of hypes (drug addicts) out here," explained Joseph Chetalo,
chief of one of the FBI's two bank
robbery squads in Southern California.

In 1983, the FBI said, nearly one of every three U.S. bank robberies was committed in Southern California

Often, said San Diego State University researcher Alan E. Omens, the robbers are young, from low-income
levels and less sophisticated than
other criminals.

"They want to get in and out as quickly as possible, and they're going to make mistakes," said William J.
Rehder, the FBI's bank robbery investigation coordinator in Los Angeles.

And the investigators have stories
to prove it.

One San Diego bank robber —
dressed in drag with elaborate make-
up to throw off surveillance cameras
— became the only criminal the FBI
has positively identified by lip print.

He was in such a rush to leave the scene of the bank after a heist that he ran face-first into a glass door he thought was open.

One bandit was traced about 15
miles from a bank branch to his Los Angeles home by an unbroken string
of witnesses.

It apparently didn't occur to the one-legged former basketball player
that hopping down the street with the foot in one hand, his crutches in the other, was likely to attract attention.

"These guys are built up to a real
fever pitch by the time they go in there," Rehder said. "And, when

something doesn't go exactly right,
they will panic occasionally."

Chetalo recalls a first-time robber
who for some reason provoked the
anger of the bank's customers.

"He was beating it out the door just ahead of the customers who were chasing him," Chetalo said. But the man's panicked getaway driver took off just as he reached the car door, and the robber didn't get inside until the driver hit a van.

They took off into the street with a motorcyclist in hot pursuit, but they couldn't shake him, Chetalo said. "So
the driver stops the car, the bad guy
gets out and stands in the middle of the road," pistol leveled at the pursuing cyclist.

"Well, the kid on the bike just guns

Redevelopment hassle: Build now, pay later

Fees waiver for $35 million HB project
triggers questions of special treatment

A 14-floor office tower is quickly
rising above the intersection of Warner Avenue and Beach Boulevard in Huntington Beach.

A parking structure, restaurant and
health spa are also in varying degrees
of completion, and a theater complex
is in the works.

And, while construction crews are putting the finishing touches on the exterior of the office tower's sixth floor, the developer of the $35 million dollar Charter Centre Project has paid only $33 in city fees, for a foundation permit.

The most active developer in the city, Frank Mola's Mola Development Corp., hasn't paid any plan

check or building permit fees.

In fact, Mola doesn't even have a building permit — required of virtually everyone who builds anything
in the city.

The state Uniform Building Codes
and Huntington Beach Municipal Codes require fees and permits for a vast majority of projects.

But despite all the codes, despite the whispers rippling through the city about possible wrongdoing or favoritism and despite complaints
purportedly going to the district
attorney's office, Mola and the city
are acting perfectly legally, according to top administration officials —

unusually but legally.

What sets the project apart from
most of the others is that the complex
is in aredevelopment area and governed by redevelopment laws.

And those laws, according to local officials, allow the Redevelopment
Agency, made up of the seven City Council members, to waive or defer
fees.

In the case of Mola's project on Beach Boulevard and Warner Avenue, officials said the agency voted
last June to defer the fees until Mola
finishes the project. The deferral, say
officials, is the result of a trade-off.
Mola is putting in some street and utility improvements "up front," that will be repaid by the agency when atead locally starts to flow. In return, the city (the redevelopment agency)

agreed that he wouldn't have to pay
some $300,000 to $400,000 in permit
fees until the complex is finished —
then Mola will pay all the fees plus 11
percent interest, officials say.

The deferral is defended as an incentive offered to developers to get projects started in depressed areas.

"We're not playing any favorites
and we're not playing any games. It's something for the overall long-range
benefit to the city," says City Administrator Charles Thompson, who doubles as the city's executive director of the Redevelopment Agency.
"We want to allay any fears that something has been done in an underhanded way. Mola is a very active developer but we're not trying to single him out or to make things
any different for Mola or for anyone else."

However, City Councilman Bob
Mandic says he is "concerned."
Mandic said he received a packet
from an anonymous source in the mail Friday evening detailing alleged violations in the Mola project — no

Another gas leak at Union Carbide

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Gas leaked today from the Union Carbide plant in Bhopal, sending residents fleeing from the area in panic, the United News of India reported today. No casualties were reported. Residents were quoted as saying the gas smelled like chlorine.

of that in a hurry," he said.
Fire Department spokesman Russell Cheek said flames inside the garage licked up into the attic and set the shingled roof afire. The garage and most of the roof were fire damaged while the rest of the house suffered water and smoke damage. A damage estimate was not available this morning.

From A1
was delayed more than two hours. "Typical," muttered Russell. Russell claimed that more than half of Continental's pilots are still on strike. He conceded that some have been forced back to work to make ends meet or to take advantage of medical insurance.
The 14-flight increase at John Wayne marks the first step in the county's airport master plan, which opens the doors for a maximum of 73 daily takeoffs by the early 1990s. Newport Beach successfully derailed a similar master plan several years ago.

Denis Horn, an airport administrator, said the increase in flights today created few of the problems that are expected to materialize as the busy weekend crush approaches.
Horn said airport officials are prepared to use portions of a new parking lot to the north of the airport if it's needed. The new lot was not expected to be opened for another month, Horn said.
The new airlines are sharing

Because of a new stipulation that no more than 12 departures will be permitted during any given hour, Horn said operations at peak morning hours will be "no worse than they have been."
Bill Martin, an official in the airport's noise abatement center, said the 14 new flights will be spread out during the course of the day.

The two men rode with the victim in his car as a third member of the holdup group followed behind in a light-colored compact auto.
Upon their arrival, the bandits encountered a technician repairing video machines inside the restaurant. They grabbed the technician, spun him around and fired a .45-caliber pistol near his head, apparently with the intention of showing him they meant business, according to a police spokeswoman.

The police spokesman said the two desperadoes apparently saw the night manager leaving Chuck E. Cheese's and assumed that he was making a night deposit.
Actually, the man was cashing a personal check at the bank's ready teller window when accosted by one of the suspects who had a black silk scarf over part of his face and wore a black leather glove over his gun hand. After forcing the manager into his car, the two assailants roughed him up and threatened "to blow his head off" in the harrowing ride back to the restaurant.

Neither victim was hospitalized, according to the police spokeswoman.

it and — boom! — runs straight over him. When we finally got him, he had a chain mark right up his chest."
The FBI says the average take in the area is a little more than $2,000. But one robber in Panorama City, wasn't so lucky, when he handed a teller a note reading, "I have a gun. Give me all your 20s in this envelope."
The teller complied and he left apparently satisfied, with $40.
Despite increasingly severe penalties — federal law now specifies up to 20 years in prison for an unarmed bank robbery, as long as 25 if the robber is armed — bank robberies are on the rise.

According to the FBI, there were only 100 bank robberies in the nation in 1950. But the crime mushroomed to 2,331 in 1970 and 6,515 in 1980.
But arrest rates are high — about 80 percent in Southern California. Investigators attribute that rate to millions of dollars spent on surveillance equipment.

BUILD NOW, PAY LATER IN HUNTINGTON...

From A1
fees, no permit. The packet also was reportedly sent to the other City Council members, the district attorney and the news media.
"I'm definitely going to get some kind of an explanation from the staff. It doesn't sound right and it appears that Mola is getting preferential treatment."
Mandic also said that he's concerned that the city has provided revenue bonds (about $30 million in low-interest loans) to Mola on another project.
And, Mandic said, there an item on tonight's City Council agenda calling for the approval of another $12 million in revenue bonds for a Mola housing project.
"He (Mola) has a helluva lot of projects going and we're in it with him, and it scares me."
"I think we've also made some trade-offs and have been short-changed," the councilman said.
Mandic said there currently is a surplus of office space in Huntington Beach and yet the city is subsidizing Mola to build more (in the 14-story office building) to the detriment of a developers who have office space that they haven't rented.
City Administrator Thompson defended the deferral of the fees as a redevelopment tool, saying it is needed to fatten the city's tax base to provide money for top-level municipal services.

The deferrals also help perk up the city's sagging sales tax base through better facilities, according to Thompson, who said Huntington Beach residents have a higher-than-average per capita rate of income but spend their money at Costa Mesa's South Coast Plaza or at other areas outside the city.
Thompson said that the city's Redevelopment Agency can keep 1 percent of the value of the project for public improvements in the redevelopment district.
Mola's Charter Centre project's expected valuation of $35 million can be expected to bring about $350,000 annually to the agency, he said.
Director of Development Services James Palin, the man who allowed Mola to start construction without a permit, acknowledged that the procedure is "unusual."
But Palin said, he never would have let construction start without the payment of fees and a permit if it weren't for the redevelopment agreement with Mola.
Palin said, "I'm totally confident with that set of plans, and I know they will comply with all uniform codes." Palin said a state-certified structural engineer who paid by Mola makes inspections and files reports on a regular basis, and a city inspector makes surveys of the construction at least once a week.

"I'm not satisfied that the work is going as it should. I'll shut it down," he said.
On behalf of those questioning the legality of the construction without fees being paid or a building permit being issued, Deputy City Attorney Arthur Folger said the provision making the procedure permissible appears in section 33220(d) of the Redevelopment Law, part of the state Health and Safety Code. It enables the Redevelopment Agency, Folger said, to make any legal exceptions from building regulations and ordinances.
Officials pointed out that the advantage in deferring permits fees is that the money can be borrowed at a much lower rate of interest to pay the fees after the structures are completed.
Mola was unavailable for comment, but Richard Harlow, his consultant, said everything has been done "above board" with the full knowledge of the staff and authorization by the City Council.
"The City Council voted to defer the fees," he said.
Fees also have been deferred for a senior citizen housing project that was built by the William Lyon Co., according to City Administrator Thompson.

WEATHER

No fooling — sunny skies stay

The sunny and warm weather that highlighted the weekend is expected to continue through Tuesday with highs in the mid-80s, the National Weather Service said.
Above-normal temperatures are being caused by a very large high pressure system that is causing winds to flow off the land toward the ocean. The high will remain either over or near Southern California through Tuesday as it slowly moves east.
Along the Orange Coast it will be fair and warm Tuesday. Highs in the mid 70s along the coast to the mid to upper 80s in the inland valleys. Lows mostly 45 to 55.
From Point Conception to the Mexican Border, — Inner waters: Light and variable winds night and morning hours becoming west to southwest 8 to 14 knots in the afternoon Tuesday. Westerly swells 2 to 4 feet. Fair through Tuesday.

April Fool's, Newport Beach April Fool's, Tustin. Thanks to gusting Santa Ana winds, John Wayne Airport pulled a switch today and Tustin — not Newport Beach — was beneath the flight path for the airport's inaugural 55 commercial jet flights. Three new airlines began service today at John Wayne as the daily flight cap of 41 flights was officially raised to 55.

Blast on boat burns 2 at Dana

Doctor and son seriously injured in gas explosion

By TONY SAAVEDRA
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Gasoline fumes apparently triggered an explosion and fire Sunday night aboard a cabin cruiser in Dana Point Harbor, severely burning a Mission Viejo doctor and his son, fire officials said today.

Thomas Shaver, 48, and his son Steven, 16, were listed in serious condition this morning with second and third-degree burns in the intensive care unit at Mission Community Hospital. The elder Shaver suffered burns over his upper torso, while the son was burned on his arms and legs, a hospital spokesman said.

The spokesman said Thomas Shaver is employed as a surgeon in the hospital's trauma center.

Orange County fire investigators said the explosion was apparently set off at 9:30 p.m. by a buildup of gasoline fumes in the engine compartment of the 28-foot cabin cruiser.

The father and son reportedly ignited the fumes by turning on the bilge pump to remove some water.

Easter vacation off to sunny start

Warm weather lures throngs of vacationing students to beach during their spring break

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Sunny and warm weather marked the beginning of Easter vacation week today for Orange County students, and local beach officials were expecting many of these young people to spend their school break on the sands.

"I imagine we'll have pretty good crowds if the weather keeps up," said Newport Beach Marine Safety Captain Bud Belshe. "Yesterday's turnout was a pretty good indication."

Belshe estimated that 80,000 people flocked to the beaches at Newport on Sunday, topping a turnout of 60,000 reported Saturday.

Inland temperatures were expected to peak in the mid-80s today, with mild but hot Santa Ana winds blowing. The conditions were expected to prompt many young people to converge on the cooler oceanfront. The sunny and warm weather and the Santa Ana winds are expected to continue through Tuesday.

A National Weather Service spokesman said coastal cloudiness and slightly cooler temperatures are expected later in the week.

Bruce Baird, Laguna Beach chief of marine safety, said this year's holiday weather is a switch from recent years. "Generally, it's been overcast during Easter vacation," Baird said. "This is the first time in a while that it's been sunny."

Although lifeguard staffing is not yet up to summer vacation levels, the Laguna marine safety official said, "I have a fairly large skeleton crew working because people are arriving earlier and staying later."

Baird said the sands at Laguna drew about 32,000 visitors on Saturday, almost 40,000 on Sunday. He said today, one serious medical incident was reported, a heart attack suffered by an older beachgoer.

Beach officials said the cool ocean temperature, about 54 degrees, has been keeping most visitors out of the water, resulting in fewer rescue calls.

Huntington City Beach Lifeguard Captain Bill Richardson said 45,000 visitors converged on the city beach Sunday, with 30,000 reported on Saturday. But only three rescues were required over the weekend, he said, because most people opted for sunning over swimming.

Richardson said the windy conditions today might stir up the sand close to shore today and make the beaches less attractive to some visitors.

Bandits beat victim, get $5,000 cash

Two desperadoes pistol-whipped and kicked a bound employee and then fled with about $5,000 they grabbed from the safe at the Chuck E. Cheese's Pizza Time Theater early this morning in Huntington Beach.

Two gunmen in their early 20s apparently waylaid a company employee at the rear of the Bank of America building at Springdale Street and Edinger Avenue and forced him to drive back to Chuck E. Cheese site at 15511 Edwards St.

More heists don't mean better ones

Southern California has most bank holdups, but drugged robbers often botch their work

LOS ANGELES (AP) — For the bank heist capital of the world, Southern California doesn't always boast the most professional of jobs.

In fact, many local robbers are under the influence when they say "stick 'em up," leading to some rather bizarre modus operandi.

"You have a bank on every corner you have an extensive freeway system which makes it very easy to come and go, and you have an abnormally high percentage of hypes (drug addicts) out here," explained Joseph Chetalo, chief of one of the FBI's two bank robbery squads in Southern California.

In 1983, the FBI said, nearly one of every three U.S. bank robberies was committed in Southern California area.

"Often, said San Diego State University researcher Alan I. Omens, the robbers are young, from low-income levels and less sophisticated than other criminals.

"They want to get in and out as quickly as possible, and they're going to make mistakes," said William J. Rehder, the FBI's bank robbery investigation coordinator in Los Angeles.

And the investigators have stories to prove it.

One San Diego bank robbery, dressed in drag with elaborate make-up to throw off surveillance cameras — became the only criminal the FBI has positively identified by lip print.

He was in such a rush to leave the scene of the bank after a heist that he ran face-first into a glass door he thought was open.

One bandit was traced about 18 miles from a bank branch in his Los Angeles home by an unbroken string of witnesses.

It apparently didn't occur to the one-legged former basketball player that hopping down the street with the loot in one hand and crutches in the other was likely to attract attention.

"These guys are bent up to a real fever pitch by the time they go in there," Rehder said. "And when something doesn't go exactly right, they will panic, occasionally."

Chetalo recalls a first-time robber who for some reason provoked the anger of the bank's customers.

"He was beating it out the door just ahead of the customers who were chasing him," Chetalo said. But the man's panicked getaway driver took off just as he reached the car door, and the robber didn't get inside until the driver hit a van.

"They took off into the street with a motorcyclist in hot pursuit, but they couldn't shake him," Chetalo said. "So the driver stops the car, the bad guy gets out and stands in the middle of the road, pistol leveled at the pursuing cyclist."

Redevelopment hassle: Build now, pay later

Fees waiver for $35 million HB project triggers questions of special treatment

A 14-floor office tower is quickly rising above the intersection of Warner Avenue and Beach Boulevard in Huntington Beach.

A parking structure, restaurant and health spa are also in varying degrees of completion, and a theater complex is in the works.

And, while construction crews are putting the finishing touches on the exterior of the office tower's sixth floor, the developer of the $35 million dollar Charter Centre Project has paid only $33 in city fees, for a foundation permit.

The most active developer in the city, Frank Mola's Mola Development Corp., hasn't paid any plan check or building permit fees.

In fact, Mola doesn't even have a building permit — required of virtually everyone who builds anything in the city.

The state Uniform Building Codes and Huntington Beach Municipal Codes require fees and permits for a vast majority of projects.

But despite all the codes, despite the whispers rippling through the city about possible wrongdoing or favoritism and despite complaints purportedly going to the district attorney's office, Mola and the city are acting perfectly legally, according to top administration officials — unusually but legally.

What sets the project apart from most of the others is that the complex is in a redevelopment area and governed by redevelopment laws.

And those laws, according to local officials, allow the Redevelopment Agency, made up of the seven city councilmembers, to waive or defer fees.

In the case of Mola's project on Beach Boulevard and Warner Avenue, officials said the agency voted last June to defer the fees until Mola finishes the project. The deferral says officials is the result of a trade-off: Mola is putting in some street and utility improvements "up front" that will be repaid by the agency when redevelopment money that's generated locally starts to flow. In return, the city (the redevelopment agency) agreed that he wouldn't have to pay some $300,000 to $400,000 in permit fees until the complex is finished — then Mola will pay the fees plus 11 percent interest, officials say.

The deferral was defended as an inducement offered to developers to get projects started in depressed areas.
