Freeway work noise feared

Nighttime racket on 405 greater concern than diamond lanes

By TONY SAAVEDRA

Residents testifying Tuesday on a project to widen the San Diego Freeway through Orange County seemed more concerned about nighttime construction noise than the car pool lanes proposed for the 24-mile

Most of the people urged the State Department of Transportation to limit roadwork to daytime hours and to make sure sound attenuation walls are built before construction begins.

About 80 people attended the public hearing at TeWinkle Intermediate School in Costa Mesa on the project to add one lane in each direction on the congested San Diego (405) Freeway.

The widening would run between the San Gabriel River (605) Freeway and the Santa Ana (5) Freeway. traversing the cities of Seal Beach, Westminster, Garden Grove, Huntington Beach, Fountain Valley, Costa Mesa and Irvine.

Caltrans is considering reserving the extra lanes for cars carrying two or more passengers. The proposed "high occupancy vehicle" (HOV) lanes would be similar to the ill-fated "diamond lane" experiment on the Santa Monica Freewayduring the mid-1970s.

Caltrans engineer Bill Weldele said the lanes would be built along the freeway median, using the existing right-of-way.

The project would cost an esti-mated $44.3 million if the lanes are open to all traffic, or up to $50 million if they are reserved for car pools. State transportation officials attributed the extra costs to the additional designs and markers needed for the HOV

The Federal Highway Administration will foot 90 percent of the bill, with the remainder coming from state gasoline tax money.

Weldele said work could begin as early as January 1987 and would continue for about two years. But first the general widening plan must receive state and federal approvals.

Moreover, the lanes cannot be restricted to car pools without the blessing of the Orange County Transportation Commission, which has

Lion Country's new projects win OK from Irvine

By PHIL SNEIDERMAN

Irvine City Council members have unanimously overturned a planning department ruling that might have jeopardized plans to build water amusement rides at Lion Country

City planning officials had urged a three to four-month review be conducted before allowing construction of water slides and other amusements at the former wild animal park

But representatives of Lion Country and American Sportsworld, the Colton-based company seeking to build the rides, said construction must begin immediately to complete the amusements for next summer

They said the $45 million Lion Country project would be abandoned if the city imposed a further delay

Tuesday's council decision hinged on whether the businesses were required to obtain a new conditionaluse permit before building the water rides. Obtaining such a permit requires environmental traffic park-

Minarchen, a security guard employed by Guardsmark of Santa Ana, played the role of hero recently when he came to the rescue of a 10-year-old boy wedged in the wreckage of his

"I ran out there because I wanted to make sure everyone was all right," said Minarchen, who was pulling weekend guard duty at Kaiser Electroprecision in Irvine when the car accident occurred near the intersection of Von Karman Avenue and Michelson Drive

Minarchen said he remained with the boy until paramedics arrived and then went back to his patrol duties.

"I was a little worried because I'm actually not supposed to leave my post. I could get fired for that," said Minarchen, who relutantly told his boss about the incident the following him

But whatever concerns he had about were swept away when he got a call from Charles Ellison III, the 10vear-old's father.

The father, a Montreal entrepreneur who was visiting the Orange Coast with his family to scout out a location for a new business, said he was so appreciative of Minarchen's efforts that he wanted to

But he declared that "I do not see how it is possible to conclude that the preliminary agreement is a balanced one or in the national interest."

formed an advisory committee to explore the proposal. Weldele said the commission is expected to discuss the HOV lanes later this month. He added that Caltrans is hoping to receive all the necessary approvals by next spring.

Transportation officials will continue accepting written public comments until Oct. 10. pool lanes have become a key factor in Caltrans' efforts to unsnarl rush hour traffic crawling along Orange County and other Southern California freeways.

In fact, state transportation officials have scheduled a Sept. 19 hearing at Tustin City Hall on a plan to designate car pool lanes on the Costa Mesa (55) Freeway, which is being repayed and restriped to add another lane in each direction. The $8.5 million project is expected to conclude next spring.

On the San Diego Freeway, the average rush hour speed of 25 mph is expected to slow to 21 mph in the next six years, 15 mph in the next 20.

According to a Caltrans report, average speeds would jump considerably if the new lanes are opened to general traffic. However, travel would slowly begin to slow over the next two decades

If reserved for car pools, the HOV lane would maintain an average of 50 mph despite the increased traffic during the coming years.

The report also indicated that in one year the car pool lane would generate less traffic than a general lane, but carry the same amount of people, an estimated 2,300 motorists per hour.

Chuck Boyer, a state traffic operations engineer, pointed to a successful experiment using HOV lanes on an eight-mile portion of the Riverside-Artesia (91) Freeway in Los Angeles County.

We're not calling it an unqualified success, but thus far we are cautiously optimistic," said Boyer, noting that the car pool lane now carries about 11/2 times the number of people traveling in a regular lane during peak hours.

He said the infamous "diamond lane" experiment failed because it took away an existing lane and gave it to car poolers instead of adding another one. Furthermore, the lane was restricting to vehicles with a minimum of three passengers, in-

Contract hampering distribution of spare Burke School money

By ROBERT BARKER Of the Dully Pliot Staff

Officials of Huntington Beach parentteacher groups apparently have made little progress toward settling a clash over what to do with more than $8,000 raised last year by pupils at the defunct Burke Elementary School.

The clash developed after Burke PTO President Ed Zschoche and other board members stipulated that the money could be spent only on new projects not provided maximum dollar amount to the children. for the last three years and not currently he said. funded at any other school in the district.

Passenger traffic soars at Wayne Airport

By JEFF, ADLER Of the Daily Pilot Staff

As the number of flights has incresed at John Wayne Airport during 1985, to has passenger traffic at the airport, junping 10.4 percent during the first six moths of

Airport Manager Murry Cab: said Tuesday that between January an July, 1,855,727 passengers passed trough JWA's main terminal, up from the 1,680,717 travelers who used the county airport during the same period in 1984.

'It (the increase) is nothing more than a good market coupled with the flight increase," Cable explained. "That's what did it, going from 41 to 55 (flight per day)."

Supervisors voted early in the year to ncrease the number of daily departures from 41 to 55 beginning April 1, an 18.6 percent increase over previous years.

Because of the flight increase, Cable estimated that 3.5 million passengers will use the airport during 1985, up from 2.8 million last year.

Under terms of a compromise agreement worked out with Newport Beach city officials and two citizens' groups, the number of passengers permitted at JWA soon could increase to 4.75 million per year until a new terminal building is completed, around 1990

While commercial airline operations increased at JWA, the number of flights by air taxi operators declined by nearly 50 percent during the first six months of 1985 in comparison to

Cable attributed the decrease in commuter airline operations to the decision by several airlines not to serve JWA any longer and to the flagging financial fortunes of several others.

While the number of commercial airline passengers arriving at JWA jumped by 10.7 percent over the first six months of 1984, the number of departing passengers using JWA increased by 10.1 percent

W. German official guilty of spying, sent to prison

By the Associated Press

KOBLENZ, West Germany — A former high-ranking official in the Interior Ministry was convicted today of spying for communist East Germany and sentenced to 5½ years in prison, court officials said. The state supreme court in the Rhineland city of Koblenz said Arthur Roski had caused "considerable losses to the security" of West Germany during 13 years of spying. Roski, who handled political asylum cases, admitted the spy charges on the first day of his trial Aug. 27. But the 36-year-old defendant said he had agreed to spy only after East German officials threatened to punish him for violating currency regulations during a 1971 trip to East Germany.

WASHINGTON - President Reagan, saying he doesn't know if nuclear weapons can be abolished, stated that at least the Soviet Union "will know where we're coming from" after he meets with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in November. Reagan discussed the Nov. 11-12 summit meeting in closed-door sessions Tuesday with Danish Prime Minister Poul Schlueter and Senate Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd prior to a state dinner. Byrd, who recently headed a Senate delegation that met for 31/2 hours with Gorbachev in Moscow, said following Tuesday's meeting, "I have no doubt that Mr. Reagan will carry the day" when the two leaders meet in Geneva, Switzerland. WASHINGTON - The Reagan administration, saying the Treasury will run out of cash by Oct. 15 unless Congress increases the national debt limit, is seeking to boost borrowing authority beyond $2 trillion. But the Senate is unlikely to allow the hike without attaching strings, including language to hold back deficit spending that's adding $20 billion a month to the public debt. # Judge sentences LA draft resister to 'house arrest'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Due to a judge's unusual "house arrest" sentence devised during a sleepless night, draft resister David Wayte must spend six months confined to his grandmother's home and may not continue his public service work.

"I'm relieved that I'm not going to prison, although I'm facing a substantial penalty," Wayte, 24, said after U.S. District Judge Terry Hatter meted out the unique sentence. "It's been a lot of emotional drain, waiting and anticipating. It's a big relief to have it over.

He had faced up to 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine after pleading guilty June 13 to one count of failing to register for the draft. Wayte's grandmother and host for the next six months, Helen Wayte, was unable to comment on the sentencing.

"She's ill," Wayte said by telephone Tuesday afternoon from the Whittier home where he will be confined, except in emergencies, for the next half-year. "She's per-manently disabled and not able to talk on the phone."

Hatter, apparently moved by let-ters from Wayte's friends and family, said Tuesday that the unusual sentence keeps Wayte out of prison but punishes him substantially by banning public service. Wayte works

Daughter of Duarte kidnapped at campus

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) - Six heavily armed kidnappers seized the eldest daughter of President Jose Napoleon Duarte as she arrived for classes at a private university, wounding a bodyguard and killing her driver.

The kidnappers, dressed in civilian clothes, opened fire on the body-guards of Ines Guadelupe Duarte Duran, 35, dragged her from her car and forced her into a van Tuesday, a presidential adviser said. She was unharmed when last seen.

A somber Julio Adolfo Rey Prendes, Duarte's closest adviser and secretary of culture and communications, told reporters Tuesday night that there had been no contact with the kidnappers. No one claimed responsibility, but a presidential security captain at the scene said "certainly it was the guerrillas" who have been fighting the U.S.-backed government for the past

The evening broadcast of the leftist guerrillas' Radio Venceremos, five hours after the incident, made no mention of it.

Mrs. Duarte Duran, a divorced mother of three, was taking courses in advertising and public relations at the New San Salvador University on the west edge of the city. The director of her father's successful 1984 presidential campaign, she also directs San Salvador's Radio Liberty.

German POW surrenders after 40 years

LOS ANGELES (AP) - A World War II German soldier who said he lived in fear of capture for 40 years after fleeing a prisoner-of-war camp surrendered to federal authorities today, saying he was relieved the ordeal was over.

Georg Gaertner, 64, alias Dennis Whiles, author of a book which was published today called "Hitler's Last Soldier in America," wept as he described his 1945 escape from Fort Deming, N.M., and four decades as a fugitive.
Of the 2,000 prisoners of war who escaped American camps during the war, only 12 remained at large in 1946. By 1963, all but Gaertner had been captured. "During my freedom, I have lived my own version of the American dream," Gaertner, whose fate now rests with the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service in Denver, told a San Pedro news conference.

His wife of 21 years, Jean, had begun asking questions about missing links in his background.

"I want to stay in the United States with her," he said.

INS Western Regional Commissioner Harold Ezell said chances were that Gaertner could remain, because he is married to a U.S. citizen.

Ordinance revising zoning code for restaurants wins initial OK

A revised ordinance governing the zoning code for restaurants in New-port Beach was tentatively approved by the City Council Monday.

The ordinance was changed from a version approved by the Planning Commission May 23 following a review by the council, according to Newport Beach Planning Depart-ment spokeswoman Sheri Vander

Dussen The council passed the first reading of the revised ordinance, which would require new restaurants to pal Code, Vander Dussen said. Councilman John Cox cast a dissenting vote and council members Evelyn Hart and Ruthelyn Plummer were absent. The second reading is scheduled for Sept. 23.

Under the revised ordinance, new restaurants will have to seek city approval if they want to remain open after 12:30 a.m., Vander Dussen said. Existing establishments, however, will only be required to seek approval if they want to make drastic changes in entertainment or hours of oper-

In opposing the ordinance, Cox said the 2 a.m. closing time has been appropriate in the past, and to impose a 12:30 p.m. closing time on new restaurant owners would not be fair.

But Councilman Bill Agee said the revised ordinance represents a welcome compromise.

'We started out with a document that I think scared people to death, and ended up with one we could live with," Agee said.

Agee said that the revised ordinance represents an approach by the city to work with restaurant owners in the owners' "self-policing" of their establishments.

We would wish that everybody would just obey the law and be good neighbors," Agee said. He said that the city's independent restaurant association is working with the council to achieve that goal.

In other council action, the members continued to Sept. 23 an appeal by Ocean Front Wheelworks in Balboa to obtain a take-out restaurant permit. The Newport Beach Planning Commission denied the permit July 18 because of parking and other Also continued to Sept. 23 was the consideration of annexing the J.M. Peters Co. Bayview site in Santa Ana Heights to Newport Beach. The site would include a hotel, condominiums and a restaurant.

The council continued for two weeks a city request to amend the land use portion of the city's General Plan for the Brisa del Mar parcel, located at MacArther Boulevard and East Pacific Coast Highway.

A resolution authorizing Newport Beach Mayor Phil Maurer and the city clerk to execute new leases with existing tenants of the Marinapark Mobilehome Park was passed at the council meeting.

PALO ALTO (AP) — A motorboat ride in the Indian Ocean turned into a 21-day ordeal for two women who were reduced to "happy hour" meals of toothpaste and rainwater after their food ran out.

The women, Judith Gale Schwartz and Rickey Berkowitz, were back on nore substantial diets in a private home in Jakarta, Indonesia, on Tuesday.

"They're eating hamburgers and milkshakes," said Schwartz's sister, Wendy Fein, who talked to the women by telephone from Rancho Palos Verdes.

"They were supposed to be on a bland diet. It doesn't sound that bland to me," said Fein, who added that beer was also part of the fare.

The two women had left Carita on Aug. 17 for what they thought would be a "romantic" boat ride with two guides to a camping site at Unjung Kulon on the island of Java, a trip that was to take five to 10 hours. But the boat's 25-horsepower engine broke down and the foursome was left to drift.

The women reached safety on Sunday, four days after Indonesian authorities had called off the search.

The women suffered sunburn and dehydration, but were otherwise in good shape. The guides were ill, according to Fein.

Schwartz's mother, Ruth, returned to California on Saturday, thinking that authorities had "exhausted all possibilities." The family was told that no one could survive three weeks on a boat in the Indian Ocean.

But the hearty women, who had been vacationing in the South Pacific for two months before heading to Indonesia for their sea excursion, were lucky enough to encounter calm waters after their boat became dis-

They stretched their four-day ration of food to last a week, she said. "Judith said that every night they would have a 'happy hour' with Colgate" after the food ran out, Fein

Schwartz, a special eduction teacher who lives in Palo Alto, and Berkowitz, a hospital administrator in Rancho Palos Verdes, finally reached land when the 25-foot boat broke up Sunday. They and their guides swam to a beach on the southwestern tip of the island of

Prison melee not result of crowding

SOLEDAD (AP) - Soledad State were allowed to leave their cells for Prison officials say overcrowding wasn't the cause of a weekend melee that left 31 people injured, even though the prison was designed for about half the number of inmates it currently houses.

Prison spokesman Herb Matthews said prison officials believe the violence was sparked by a dispute between Hispanic inmates from Northern California and Southern California, which he said is a common source of fights in the prison.

Officials at the prison were investigating Monday to determine the exact cause of the Sunday night eruption. He said the prison would remain in lockdown status during the investigation to give inmates time to 'cool off.

It was quiet at the prison Monday, but Matthews said officials feared the violence would resume if inmates prison activities. He said the lockdown status would be lifted "as soon as possible," but added it probably would be a week before the investigation is completed.

Two of the prison's three units were locked down after the incident, the exception being a minimum security

The prison currently houses 5,865 inmates, Matthews said. He said the facility was designed to hold 2,981 prisoners.

Matthews said violence erupted about 9 p.m. Sunday in a three-tier wing housing about 350 inmates and continued for 20 minutes beforeguards armed with batons and guns brought the inmates under control. Matthews said prison officials would take disciplinary action against inmates determined to have been involved in the incident

American business leaving S. Africa

By WILLIAM M. WELCH

WASHINGTON - Many American businesses and banks are gradually but steadily pulling out of South Africa because, as one bank spokesman put it, they no long find that country "an attractive place to do business."

"The private market is sending a much stronger message than official sanctions have to the South African government that their policies are creating an economic climate that is unconducive for conducting business," says Jeffrey J. Schott, research associate at the Institute for International Economics.

"The compromise sanctions coming out of Congress pale by comparison to what the private sector is doing," Schott adds, referring to the House-passed bill that is now before the Senate. On Monday, President Reagan on his own put into effect most of the provisions of that measure.

Hundreds of millions of dollars in U.S. investments remain in South Africa. But government figures show an annual decline, except in private loans, since 1981. Some of the changes that are under way:

• Engelhard Corp., a big New Jersey manufacturer of chemical and metalurgical products, this year liquidated its wholly owned South African affiliate. The operation had $4.5 million in sales in 1983, 2 percent of the company's total.

• Phibro-Salomon Inc., an investment banking firm, announced last month a withdrawal from South African operations. The company's South African assets had been estimated at less than $420 million.

• The DoALL Co., a Des Plaines, Ill., machine tool maker, closed its South African sales office. Spokesman John Flink said the decision was mainly based on industry factors and that the company wants to remain in the South African market.

 Coca-Cola Co. announced sale of majority interest in its group of South African bottling plants to a South African company, though it will continue to hold a minority stake.

 West Point-Pepperall, a Georgiabased textile company, sold its min-ority interest in a South African affiliate to local managers for one rand - less than 40 cents.

But while officials of most companies withdrawing from South Africa said the decisions were based on dollars-and-cents business judgments, several acknowledged that political factors also came into play. In some cases, the decision to end business dealings with South Africa was prompted by laws discouraging ties with the apartheid regime. For example, Motorola Inc. dropped its sales of two-way radios to the South African police forces this year in response to a New York City ordinance barring purchases from firms dealing with South Africa, spokesman George Grimsrud said. The company had no choice if it wanted to sell radios to New York

Some companies say they are firm in their intention to remain in South Africa, however. "There's been no change, it's just business as usual," said Cameron Calder, vice president of international operations for American Cyanamide, the big chemical company. Its South African affiliates have 700 employees and had 1983 sales of $50 million.

Public schools achieving their goals handily

By DR. LAWRENCE KEMPER

The 1985 Gallup Poll of the Public's Attitudes Toward the Public Schools is very encouraging.

The overwhelming majority of public school parents endorse the job their local schools are doing for

You may have missed the news item. Criticism of public schools tends to get headlines, while praise gets less attention.

What makes the poll results so remarkable is the major mission of public schools in this country. Unlike most of the world, our major task has been to provide access for the largest possible number of youths.

More youths are enrolled as full-time students in the United States than in most other western nations.

Approximately 75 percent of our young people aged 15 to 19 are full-time students. Compare that with 51 percent in France and Germany, 44 percent in the United Kingdom and 40 percent in Italy.

Considerable progress has been made in the area of educational opportunity. In 1950, approximately 55 percent of white students graduated from high school, while 30 percent of black students graduated. Today, 85 percent of white students and 75 percent of black students are high school graduates.

This accomplishment is particularly remarkable when the matter of immigration is considered. During the 1970s alone, the U.S absorbed 12 million immigrants. This was the largest wave of immigration in our nation's history. Public schools have been the key to assimilating future citizens.

Handicapped youth in America have more education aimed at their special needs than is provided by any nation in the world. The result is productive and useful

While our public school systems are non-elitist, the facts show that the top 5 percent of the U.S. school population achieves as well as the top 5 percent from any nation in the world.

In 1970, 58,000 high school students sought advanced placement in college classes through testing. In 1981, the number had increased to 134,000.

Following high school, 65 percent to 70 percent of our young people go on to college. Fifty percent of them graduate. From 1966 to 1981, college enrollment rose from 6 million to 12 million.

The economic contributions of the public schools should be considered in any assessment. Some economists have estimated that between one-quarter and onehalf of the increase in the nation's GNP over the last two decades can be traced to the increased educational level of the workforce. As to the economic benefits of education to the individual, one need only refer to a recent issue of "U.S. News and World Report." The annual median income of heads of families who were at least 25 years of age were

Grade school graduates earned $17,169, while high school graduates made $26,528. College grads earned

Public schools are not perfect. Present improvements and reform are certainly increasing effectiveness. It is important to note, however, that — whether you use economic or educational indicators — the public schools have made a significant contribution to the health of our great nation.

Of equal importance is the fact that the life chances of young Americans are being significantly increased because of this educational advantage.

Dr. Lawrence Kemper is superintendent of the Huntington Beach City School District.

Northerner finds out that South isn't really so bad

The South understands what Burke called 'unbought grace of life,' the spirit of chivalry

WASHINGTON — My business takes me deeper and deeper into the South, most recently to Jackson, Miss. I had never been to Mississippi before. One of my hosts asked me how I had imagined it.

"Well," I said, "for my first 20 years I had the impression that you people spent most of your time whipping Negroes.

One of the reasons I don't trust the impressions of South Africa I get in the newspapers is that the American South used to be reported in just the same way. It was all Ku Klux Klan, fire hoses and police dogs. When I got older, I learned by my own experience what a lovely region the American South is. The North is prose; the South is poetry

The North has always had its own cherished image of the South, halfsentimental, half-cynical. Politically, of course, we have always put the South in the wrong. The South had slavery, and we had fought the Civil War (we told ourselves afterward) to free its slaves. Then it became necessary for us to step in again to destroy racial segregation, and everything we did toward that end, including taking some mighty fishy constitutional shortcuts, was "pro-

Renegade Southerners have always been able to make a good living by coming North and telling us how awful the South is. We Yankees have put many of our dollars into the pockets of Southern writers who give us what we like to think of as the lowdown on the South: racism, violence, sexual perversion. Tennessee Williams was the outstanding example - a twisted personality who presented a distorted picture of the South for Northern consumption. Blanche Dubois was his answer to Scarlett O'Hara.

Someone should write a book on the scalawags-in-exile who have come "north toward home," in Willie Morris' phrase, to make their fortunes at the expense of the South's reputation. And yet few Southerners ever entirely lose their affection for the South. At some point they feel compelled to defend the South against those who are crass enough to despise it. William Faulkner, a favorite of the North's liberal literati, created an uproar when he told an interviewer (after a few drinks) that he would take up a shotgun to protect the South from do-gooding North-

It is always risky to generalize about large numbers of people, but then again there are such things as national and cultural characteristics. There is of course a wide range of personality types in the South, as there is anywhere. Still, the whole atmosphere of the South is immediately distinctive. The North is intellectual, calculating, legalistic, bustling; the South is relaxed, in-tuitive, courteous. The Northerner tends to think in terms of what he can get away with. The Southerner has a stronger sense of honor, and he takes pride in applying it to new situations, subtle and elaborate, that the law doesn't cover. This makes him more generous, hospitable and sensitive than the Northerner. Northern legalism is literal-minded. Southern honor is metaphorical and expansive.

The South understands what Edmund Burke called the "unbought grace of life," the spirit of chivalry that Burke opposed to the age of sophisters, economists and calculators." I never cease to marvel at the Southerner's easy good manners, flowing without formality.

Of all the surprises I have had in my own experience of the South, the greatest is that the races get along far better in the South than in the North. This definitely wasn't in the script I read when I was growing up in Michigan. I was taught that we Northerners were the champions of the Negro. And in some respects we may have been.

But our legalistic equality had little to do with the social reality of separate black and white neighborhoods and the emotional distance between the races. We wanted to pretend we didn't notice when an individual "happened to be" black, as if blackness were an embarrassing deformity to which it would be insulting to allude. The situation is much better now than it was when I was a schoolboy, but I can't help feeling that we still have a lot to learn from the casual kindness and good humor of the South.

'poetry," I don't mean to imply that its outlook is unrealistic. On the contrary, there is some unfathomable connection between its realism and its romance. The South knows the needs of the human soul. It knows that people need love - including the modest kind of love that is expressed in common good manners. At the same time, it knows the limits of love, and doesn't try to force a false intimacy where it can't exist. Its friendliness coexists with a delicate respect for privacy.

But all this is perhaps a Northerner's gauche attempt to translate poetry into prose. It's best just to savor that poetry.

S. Africa lobbyists working overtime

Influential hired guns battle against Krugerrand ban

WASHINGTON - As the Senate debates economic sanctions against South Africa this week, a few highpowered lobbyists will be doing al they can to soften any action against what has become a symbol o apartheid: the Krugerrand. The coin is minted by the white-minority government from gold mined by politically powerless black miners.

The lobbyists, hired by both the South African government and the nation's gold mining industry, include a former campaign manager for Ronald Reagan, George Bush's former press secretary, a former Senate sergeant-at-arms and a number of former members of Congress.

Former Rep. Garry Brown, R-Mich., who is coordinating the lobbying effort to prevent a ban on trading in Krugerrands, concedes that it all may be an exercise in futility, as violence continues in South Africa. It's the Pretoria government's choice of response - reform or repression - that counts, he indicated.

"What we in Washington do is of little consequence," he told our associate Tony Capaccio, "but what the government does in South Africa is what's important. This recognition of reality hasn't stopped the lobbyists from doing their best, nor has it discouraged the South · Africans from laying out substantial sums to promote its interests on Capitol Hill.

For example, the South African government has paid former Reagan campaign manager John Sears $1.3 million in quarterly installments since April 1983. Among the issues Sears has been working on this year is the proposed ban on Krugerrand sales. He provided fact sheets to at least 63 members of Congress, arguing that a ban would throw thousands of black miners out of work. From January 1984 through March 1985, the Pretoria government paid the law firm headed by ex-Sen. George Smathers, D-Fla., $406,034. The firm has kept track of the progress of at least 18 congressional actions, including the proposal to ban the Krugerrand.

The South African gold industry's lobbying funds in this country are dispensed by its New York marketing arm, International Gold Corp. Ltd. A spokesman for the firm confirmed it had an operating budget of $11.3 million for the first five months of

Among International Gold's expenditures this year is $165,000 in retainer fees paid to the Washington law firm of Kirkpatrick & Lockhart. Since 1983, the firm has been paid a total of $247,857 by International Gold, to lobby against the Kruger-

At Brown's urging, Kirkpatrick & Lockhart in July hired Peter Teeley, Bush's former press secretary. An unspecified part of Teeley's $5,000 monthly retainer is for advice he is to provide to International Gold, which also hired lobbyist Howard Liebengood, the former Senate sergeant-at-arms, for $10,000 a Teeley, pointing out that his client was the law firm, not the South African gold industry, declined to say what kind of advice he is providing to International Gold. Liebengood called the proposed Krugerrand ban

'unfortunate and unfair."
Shortly after the firm hired Liebengood, but before it was getting any advice from Teeley, Inter-national Gold on June 21 donated $20,000 to the Conservative Caucus Foundation, a leading New Right

Brown himself has carried on a quiet lobbying campaign on behalf of the Krugerrand. It has included lobbying his one-time political oppo nent, Rep. Howard Wolpe, D-Mich. in February, and escorting an Inter-national Gold representative to meeting with a State Departmen official in June.

To the Editor.

It may seem strange, but I think this whole controversy involving Judge Bostrum and the Newport Beach Police Department is wonderful, especially for its widespread pub-

the power of the police, there are invariably abuses (as is also true with the judicial and legislative systems). This can be seen in any totalitarian or communist country. It can also be seen (it would seem) in Newport Beach, where the police can order

The beauty of our political system is that we can keep these abuses to a minimum through the "checks and balances" systems.

And why does the law protect the guilty? Because it protects us all. In France, the accused must prove his/her innocence while here the state must prove the defendant guilty. That is to say, we are innocent until proven guilty. Our being arrested or accused of a crime does not mean that we are

Secret to making millions? Plenty eager to share theirs I'm going to be wealthy in spite of myself. company which was kind enough to let me in on this deal.

A few weeks ago, out of curiosity, I ordered a book that would give me the secret to instant riches. The ad in the paper said by following the directions in the book I would be making $8,000 every two days or my 10 would be refunded. That $10 put my name on The List.

I had no idea so many millionaires were willing to share their methods of making money. All they want, according to the literature I have been getting through the mail, is my faith in them and a small check to cover the cost and handling of the book that will put me on Forbes 400 Richest List.

The first millionaire to share his money-making discovery with me is guaranteeing only $1,000 the first five ays, and he wants $29 for this formula. He does assure me this will build very fast, that it is legal and does not involve real estate, coins, stamps or the stock market.

The second mailing is from a millionaire who claims his system has brought in $100,000 in one month and offers a $5,000 guarantee to anyone who can prove otherwise. He is right up front with his moneymaking technique - betting on the horses

You do not have to know anything about horses or even live near a race track to use this system. His book ($39) will teach you everything you need to know. Unfortunately, it will not work for dog racing. He has checked out many dog systems and theories and has not been able to come up with a sure thing. Maybe there are too many bushes alongside of the track. The third enticing offer I received was to become a distributor of books on — what else? — How to Get Rich.

For only $49 I can get a Distributor Kit and go into business for myself. There is no set figure here on how much I can earn — just the statement who answer the ads for these books each year..." Aha! Just what I thought all along. That's how they make their millions.

Apparently, anyone can write a book claiming to unlock the secret of instant wealth and sell copies to enough of those 40 millon people to bring in the big bucks. The book I was urged to sell cost $15; I can keep $7.50 of it and send the other $7.50 to the

that I can earn tens of thousands of dollars doing this on a part-time or full-time basis. I do not have to write, print, publish or mail these books, just take orders from the "...40 million people have to go to school at night.

Firewalk: A 10-foot head trip

By SUSAN MONAHAN

Before I was permitted to set foot near a hot coal, I had to sign a release. It said, in part: "...I agree to hold Anthony J. Robbins, Robbins Research Institute, Inc., all assistants and co-sponsors...harmless for any damage or injuries, physical or mental, which may occur to me as a result of my attempts to walk upon a bed of hot coals at: Sheraton Plaza La Reina...Los Angeles, California, on August 23, 1985.

And just in case I wasn't clear about the possible damages: "...I may, in fact, receive severe burns to my

My confidence soared.

Nonetheless, I signed, picked up my nametag and, feeling rather like a reluctant lemming, followed the crowd into the hotel conference room where "Fear Into Power: The Firewalk Experience" was about to begin.

I later found out that last-minute second thoughts are not uncommon and that about 20 percent of those who sign up never show up.

Of course, I already knew - and would be told many more times before the night was over - that firewalking is not the point, but is a metaphor for breaking through limiting belief systems. But the flashy means attracted me more than the practical ends.

I was also aware that the firewalk had been growing in popularity for the past year and a half and was somewhat comforted by the thought that other people had walked across wood coals that are said to be somewhere in the range of 1,200-2,000 degrees Fahrenheit. But past experience had taught me that

So when Robbins (the Anthony J. of the release) informed us that people had been severely injured and that some deaths had resulted from firewalking, I held my breath. Apparently, the approximately 300 other participants were doing the same thing, because there was a mass exhale when Robbins said, "The good news is that none of these people attended my seminar.

He said that he had brought 30,000 people across the coals in the last year and a half. The youngest "graduate" was three and a half at the time of the walk, the oldest 87, he added.

"But I can't give you any guaran-facial expressions, breathing patterns, etc.), you automatically change your

In other words, if we behaved as though we could walk on fire, we could walk on fire. A lot of the evening's exercises - jumping up and down, clapping our hands, giving and getting messages - were obviously meant to change our physiologies. Robbins had also told us that he tees, and wouldn't if I could," said Robbins, explaining that since the idea was to change fear into power, some risk was necessary.

Firewalking isn't new, but the accounts I had read on the subject gave the impression that it was shrouded in mystery and mysticism and certainly not a skill that could be picked up in a few hours. Robbins, however, assured us that we could get in state" in 10 minutes.

We were told that many of the techniques we would be using to reach this state were based on neurolinguistic programming (NLP). This is the science of how language verbal and non-verbal — affects the nervous system," said Robbins. Of special interest to us was a procedure called "modeling." Robbins said that it is possible to learn, how to duplicate any form of talent, skill or intelligence by finding out what they do in their brain and nervous system.' You do this, continued Robbins, by duplicating the belief systems, mental syntax (the way someone strings thoughts together) and physiology of the person you want to model. Which sounds a bit complicated, but Robbins said that "If you change your physiology (posture, eye movements, was giving us "embedded com-mands," many of which would go straight to our unconscious minds. I thought the exercises silly at first, but I eventually got into the spirit of things and jumped and shouted like everyone else. But I could not - and still can't - understand what this had to do with walking across 10 feet of hot coals without getting burned.

The one thing I was convinced of was that the coals were hot. At the beginning of the evening, we had watched Robbins Institute staffers set fire to nine piles of wood outside the hotel. They would eventually burn down and be raked into three paths of cruel red heat. Several times during the firewalk, Robbins would call for 'fresh coals" and wheelbarrows full of them would be dumped on the Robbins noted that the firewalk has been explained by the "mass hypnosis" theory - nobody has really walked across hot coals, they just think they have — and the "vapor lock" theory — perspiration from the feet forms steam which protects the walkers from burning.

I believe I walked across a 10-footlong bed of extremely hot coals without benefit of external protection. I hope I did - the seminar cost

over $100, not to mention parking

Before we started there were a few basic instructions. We were to walk normally, not spring. We were to look up, which would put us in a "visual state" rather than down, which would drop us into a "kinesthetic state." (Made sense to me, I sure didn't want to feel anything.) We were also to repeat a mantra, "cool moss," as we walked across the hot coals.

My turn came much too soon. I looked down at the coals, then up at Robbins. "Come on, Susan, you can do it," he said cheerfully. "I can?" He assured me that he would be watching me and I remembered that I had offered to write a first person account. And that's practically the last thing I remember. For less than an instant, I was aware that my right foot was in something extremely hot. Before my brain could register either panic or pain, I was on the other side, where cool water was splashed on my feet (Robbins warned that if we snapped out of the state and coals were clinging to our feet, we would get burned) and was greeted with hugs and cries of 'You made it!"

Four people opted not to walk, and a few of the walkers got blisters. Nine year old Martha Rocha of Los Angeles wasn't one of them. "It felt like marshmallows," she said. "It didn't burn.'

Her parents, Gloria and Miguel, also walked, and Mrs. Rocha said that she never thought her daughter would get burned. "I had faith in Tony," she said, adding that the firewalk was "a beautiful experience.' Since I went into a fugue state during my walk, I was glad that someone was able to give me a detailed account of it. The friend who attended with me (and refuses to allow me to use his name - some friend) paid special attention when it was my turn. "You stumbled a bit at first," he said. "But after that, you just strolled across.

I knew I could do it.

Anthony Robbins walking on hot coals.

Robbins says he's almost burned out on firewalk meets

By SUSAN MONAHAN

Anthony Robbins conducted his first firewalk in a backyard in Vancouver, Canada Two years and approximately 30,000 firewalkers later, Robbins is, if not exactly burned-out, at least ready to move on.

"I've got the seminar mastered and now I want to go on to something else that challenges me," explained Robbins during a recent interview at a Ramada Inn in Los Angeles.

The firewalk is only one area in what amounts to a human potential empire. It includes a four-day "Mind Revolution" seminar, an advanced 12-day workshop and a "Super Camp" for children. Then there is the Del Mar-based Robbins Research Institute which has programs in bioscience, accelerated learning, child development and neurolinguistics.

The 25-year-old, 6-foot-6 Robbins was dubbed "The Charismatic Kid" by one magazine, but he insists that he is not interested in being anybody's guru. "I believe that if anybody else can do it, so can I, and so can you," he says. Robbins means this quite literally He studied neuro-linguistic program-(NLP) under Richard Bandlet and John Grinder, who developed the psycho science. "NLP in the true sense is the process of modeling. explained Robbins. "The question is not 'why' but 'how.' if I can find out how you're doing it. I can do it

According to Robbins, obtaining new skills need not involve years of practice. He believes that the source (i.e. the person with the desired skill) can be tapped through the duplication of belief systems, thought patterns and physiology He is currently planning a course that will enable people to achieve basic comprehension of a foreign language within 50 hours. The 'model" for this program speaks 60

Speed does seem to be a Robbins hallmark. U.S. Olympic Team swimmer Michael O'Brien stated in writing that, after an hour and a half with Robbins, he felt sure he would win a gold medal. He proceded to do just that during the 1984 Olympics, and also beat the previous American record holder in the 1,500-meter freestyle by six seconds. Robbins is known as the "One-

Stop Therapist" because of his reputation for ridding clients of phobias, relationship problems and other limitations in a single one or two hour session (for which he charges $1,000 per hour). He says that the therapy is successful 99 percent of the time

Although NLP certainly figures prominently in his work. Robbins says that "NLP" is just a tool to add to my box of tools. It can create great limitations when you get hung up on one technology

He added that he does not simply consider himself an NLP practi-tioner "I use NLP as a metaphor — if it works. I call it NLP.

Robbins is already working on an alternative for the one percent who are not helped with NLP It involves identifying value conflicts which can create problems and Robbins says that by using the value criteria system as a guide. "I can create more congruency up front "While NLP can be a process of trial-and-error. 'the value criteria helps me know where to go first

Right now "I'm working every day with kids sports books he is the author of Unlimited Power Strategies for Personal Excellence: tapes private therapy

So he has decided that it is time to train others to lead the Mind Revolution although Robbins will still make an appearance via videotapes. He will continue to lead the firewalk - for a while answay That will be the last thing to be leveraged (delegated)," said Robbins

Overweight? Eat carbohydrates

overweight and have finally decided to dump that unwanted baggage. You start dieting, and ordering those "lo-cal" plates in the restaurants, usually a small steak with tomatoes and cottage cheese. You avoid all breads. pasta, potatoes, fruits, and other starchy foods because for years carbohydrates have been blamed for obesity.

Guess what, for years we have been wrong! If you shunned the steak and cottage cheese, and ate the breads, pasta, potatoes and fruits, you would likely lose weight more successfully and, more importantly, keep it off. It is the fat in our foods that cause obesity, not the

Countries that have significant obesity problems like the U.S. and western Europe generally eat a diet that is only 45 percent carbohydrate calories, and a whopping 40 percent fat calories. On the other hand, countries like Japan that have few obesity problems, eat food that is 75 percent carbohydrate calories and only 10 to 15 percent fat. However, when the Japanese come to this country and eat our high fat foods, they routinely become obese and suffer higher rates of heart disease and

The body handles carbohydrate and fat calories differently. Contrary to popular belief, carbohydrates are rarely turned into fat. Studies show that only 1 to 3 percent of the carbohydrate calories wind up as stored fat, even if you overeat. Excess carbohydrate calories are usually burned up in heat producing reactions that stimulate weight loss, not gain. Excess fat, however, is rapidly stored as fat, and since the

American diet is to fat rich, we routinely balloon outward Even when small amounts of carbohydrates are turned into fat and stored, it takes 23 percent of the ingested calories to do so. Fats, on the other hand are rapidly funneled into fat stores at a cost of only 3 percent of the ingested energy

The difficulty in putting the above realities to work for you is that getting rid of the fat in our diet is no small chore. Fat dominates American food. Salad dressing is almost all fat, and we routinely fatten baked goods with oils, butter, and eggs. Almost all animal protein foods are fat rich — many steaks are 65 to 75 percent fat, and we love to fry foods like potatoes, chicken, and shrimp that loads on the fat calories. that extra ten pounds, rid your diet of fatty foods and eat only the carbohydrates for one month. For instance a day's meals could be the Breakfast: Hot or cold cereal with fresh fruit, skim milk, toast with a low sugar fruit spread, and hot tea or decaffeinated coffee.

Lunch: A heaping salad of all varieties of vegetables (except avocado that is loaded with fat calories) dressed with lemon juice and eaten with an unbuttered roll. Dinner: A rice, barley, pasta, or other grain dish served with steamed vegetables (kernel corn blends particularly well), or a non-fat tomato or marinara sauce, eaten with bread, and with fresh fruit for Of course, variations of the above can be expected, but the trick is to keep the fat out.

Try it for a month. You have nothing to lose but your unwanted ten pounds.

Are burial procedures in harmony with way of life?

DEAR LANDERS: I have lived in Third World countries and experienced with families their births and deaths. Welcoming babies and saying farewell to the departed were reverent, awe-inspiring occasions.

Now I am settled in America and have experienced American obstetrical birth. So for my second baby I found a midwife and fulfilled God's wish that birth be sacred as well as

But this letter concerns death. Please, Ann, can you tell me what is allowed legally in preparing a loved one for the grave? I am filled with anxiety and sadness as I face the probable death of a child in the near future. Please find out:

If a child dies in the hospital, can a mother wrap that child in a blanket and take her home to wash and clothe her for burial? Must we use a funeral parlor and let strangers do for us what we wish to do as part of our acceptance of the loss? If a child dies at home, who must be told? Can the dead child be kept there for the wake? Can the father build a simple pine casket or must he buy a casket? It doesn't seem right that a family cannot orchestrate the burial of loved ones in harmony with the life they try to live. - A FRIEND IN OHIO

DEAR FRIEND: To effsure correct information I turned to my funeral maven, Jules Furth, a fifth-generation Chicago funeral director. This is his response

1. If a child dies in the hospital, can a mother wrap that child in a blanket and take it home to prepare for burial?

The letter writer was from Ohio, so I checked with the Ohio State Health Department. They said the child may be taken home and cared for by the parents. (State laws vary.)

2. Must we use a funeral parlor and let strangers do for us what we wish to do as part of our acceptance of the

A funeral director is usually required to sign a death certificate and apply for a permit for final disposition, be it burial, cremation or whatever. There is no necessity to use the funeral parlor in any other

3. If a child dies at home, who must be told and can a dead child be kept there for a wake? When a child dies at home, notify the police or fire department, which in turn will call the medical examiner. The wake can be held at home. However, it is not wise to keep an unembalmed body around any length of time, especially if the child died of a contagious disease.

4. Can the father build a simple pine casket or must be buy a casket? The family may furnish whatever burial container they wish. Lastly and most important, it is my personal recommendation that funeral services for childen, whenever possible, be private for the family. Others can express their sympathy at another time.

Dear World

MY YOUNG SON starts to school this week . . It's all going to be sort of strange and new to him for awhile, and I wish you would sort of treat him gently.

You see, up to now he's been king of the roost . . . He's been boss of the backyard . . . His mother has always been near to soothe his wounds and repair his feelings.

But now things are going to be different.

He's going to walk down the front steps, wave his hand, and start out on the great adventure . . . It is an adventure that might take him across continents, across oceans ... It's an adventure that will probably include wars and tragedy and sorrow . . . To live his life in the world he will have to live in will require faith and love and courage.

So, World, I wish you would sort of look after him . . . Take him by the hand and teach him things he will have to know.

But do it gently, if you can.

He will have to learn, I know, that all men are not just, that all men are not true.

But teach him also that for every scoundrel there is a hero . . . that for every crooked politician there is a great and dedicated leader . . . Teach him that for every enemy, there is a Steer him away from envy, if you can . . . and teach him the secret of quiet laughter.

In school, World, teach him it is far more honorable to fail than to cheat . . . Teach him to have faith in his own ideas, even if everyone says they are wrong . . . Teach him to be gentle with gentle people and tough with tough people.

Try to give my son the strength not to follow the crowd when everyone is getting on the bandwagon . . . Teach him to listen to all men - but teach him also to filter all he hears on a screen of truth and take just the good that siphons through.

Teach him, if you can, how to laugh when he's sad . . . Teach him there is no shame in tears . . . Teach him there can be glory in failure and despair in success.

Treat him gently, World, if you can. But don't coddle him . . . Because only the test of fire makes fine steel . . . Let him have the courage to be impatient . . . Let him have the patience to be brave.

Let him be no man's man . . . Teach him always to have sublime faith in himself.

Because then he will always have sublime faith in mankind.

This is quite an order, World, but see what you can do ... He's such a nice little fellow,

'Follies' becomes concert

By MICHAEL KUCHWARA

NEW YORK - Some performances, by a unique mixture of cast, material and occasion, are transformed into extraordinary

That's what happened over the weekend at Lincoln Center's Avery Fisher Hall where "Follies," the Stephen Sondheim-James Goldman musical, was presented Friday and Saturday nights in a concert version that justifiably deserved the overused adjective of "all-star."

The parade of performers was as impressive as it was eclectic. The four leads were Barbara Cook, Mandy Patinkin, Lee Remick and George Hearn, supported by a cast that ranged from Licia Albanese to Carol Burnett. The orchestra was the New York Philharmonic under the direction of Paul Gemignani.

When "Follies" was first presented on Broadway in 1971, it provoked enormous debate. The show, despite its authors' obvious affection for the golden age of American musicals, is not an exercise in nostalgia. If Follies" comes to praise the past, it also comes to bury it in an unsentimental way.

Goldman's original book made that clear. Phyllis and Sally are among the ex-Follies girls attending a party at the theater where they once performed and which is now scheduled to be turned into a parking lot. Their husbands, Ben and Buddy, are there too. Also present are the ghosts and memories of their unfulfilled youth. Before the evening is over, past and present confront each other uncomfortably before the characters go off to ace an uncertain future.

It's no wonder many theatergoers were confused or disappointed. Although "Follies" ran for over a year on Broadway, the show was never a sellout, and because of its expense production, never returned much of its $800,000 investment.

"Follies" is one of Sondheim's most ambitious scores. There's genuine love for the melodies of such composers as Porter, Gershwin, Arlen and Kern, and yet a dissatisfaction and regret for the past in such poignant numbers as "The Road You Didn't Take," "The Right Girl" and Too Many Mornings.

The concert was presented with a minimum of new dialogue, supplied by Goldman, that would make the story difficult to follow if you didn't know it before walking in the door.

The four stars were all superb, but the evening's most special moments were supplied by Miss Cook whose soaring soprano illuminated her two "In Buddy's Eyes" and "Losing My Mind," a Harold Arlenstyled torch song. When will this woman be back on Broadway in a new musical all her own?

Much of "Follies" consists of speciality numbers, and the crowd roared its approval at every one of to bite that hand that feeds it as the band's latest "Brothers in Arms" LP has pushed its way to the top of the charts on the strength of its MTV diatribe.

Sunday night at the Pacific Amphitheater in Costa Mesa, Dire Straits celebrated its penchant for bucking the trendy tide of popular music with two hours of decidedly untrendy, straightforward music. The British band has always relied heavily on Mark Knopfler's clean, distinctive guitar work and powerful support by bassist John Illsley, drummer Terry Williams and a pair of keyboardists. The band was augmented onstage by a second guitarist and the fluent saxophonist, Chris White.

And on "Money for Nothing,"
"Sultans of Swing" and "Tunnel of Love," Knopfler ran through his tastefully controlled guitar solos that have always been the trademark of Straits albums.

Before a near-sellout crowd Sunday, the band drew heavily from its best record, the 1981 "Making Movies" LP, with sparkling renditions of "Expresso Love," "Romeo and Juliet," "Tunnel of Love" and the encore "Solid Rock."

While Dire Straits has a wealth of strong material culled from six records, they falter during live shows from a somewhat lethargic attitude toward performing. Knopfler is an unflashy performer whose vocals, while distinctive, show little range or

And while their keen musicianship often bails them out, the band has the maddening habit of following a thunderous number like "Sultans of Swing" with the mellow "Why Worry

Dire Straits' reluctance to follow the tried-and-true concert formula doesn't seem to hinder their popularity, however, as the band continues to build a growing and loyal following that, like the band, shuns the trendiness that popular music in the mid-'80s has become.

While MTV-generation bands worry themselves silly about their hairstyles, video image and other gimmicks, Dire Straits remains true to the sound that first thrust them before the public ear when they told the tale of the "Sultans of Swing.

As Knopfler aptly says, "That ain't working, that's the way you do it ...

I might have been trying too hard—Rose

SPORTS

CINCINNATI (AP) - The

In his first opportunity to break Ty Cobb's 57-year-old mark of 4,191 lifetime hits, Pete Rose came up empty Tuesday night. He went 0 for 4 against San Diego.

"I wasn't nervous," said Rose, the Cincinnati Reds player-manager. "I've made more outs than anyone. I wasn't nervous. I might have been trying too hard."

Rose tied Cobb last Sunday in Chicago, going 2 for 5. He did not play in the opener of a 10-game homestand Monday night against San Diego because the Padres threw a left-hander, Dave Dravecky.

But, on Tuesday night, before a packed house of 51,045 at Riverfront Stadium, Rose took his place in the lineup at first base against Padres right-hander LaMarr Hoyt.

Hoyt had not pitched since Aug. 18 because of arm trouble, but he got Rose out three times. And rookie right-hander Lance McCullers got him the final time in the game, in the eighth inning, when Rose lined out hard to the gap in left-center with a runner on

'The only time I swung the bat good was the last time I got up," Rose said. "If it had stayed straight, it might have been a base hit in the gap, but it hooked back toward the fielder and made it an

A classic returns

Edison-El Modena game also features classic hype

By ROGER CARLSON

Entering his 20th season at El Modena it's obvious Vanguards Coach Bob Lester has a very small list of opponents who hold the upper hand on him - but it's one which includes Edison, which has a 3-1 series advantage. In fact, the only victory for El Modena was a 28-27 verdict in what was (1) a major upset and (2) a spectacular game in 1979.

Now, after a three-year absence, one of Orange County's classic matchups is back with the two prep football powers colliding at Orange Coast College Friday

The game set aside, for a moment, it pits two of the more distinctive coaches against one another, and both are ready for the matchup.

Says Lester: • "I'll tell you right now, if we get beaten too badly I'm not above breaking our contract (for the following season). •"I think what I've got is a big pain in the wazoo with Edison. Every time I schedule them they're the world's •"The last time we played ... well, those guys are still playing professional football.

• "The only reason I scheduled him (Workman) in the first place is because I love to see his pregame warmups. They could put it to music and take it on the road. They're all on their knees and Billy comes along and blesses them. I'm going to get there early because I don't want to miss it."

Says Workman: "Lester's one of my favorites.

 "We don't run into anybody that doesn't feel it's special to beat us, and I don't think they run into anyone Don Gibbon, a 6-3, 255-pound two-way tackle. that doesn't feel it's special to beat El Mo. • "We don't deserve to be in anybody's Top 10, or Top

How the coaches see it

Bob Lester, El Modena: "I think what I've got is a big pain in the wazoo with Edison. Every time I schedule them they're the world's finest.

Bill Workman, Edison:

"Our children are not ready for El Modena's

Workman says he's not sure who his starter at tailback will be, but that Rich Lee, David Sherman and Kaleaph

Carter will all see action at the position. Carter is the sophomore subject who has kept Lester busy reading about, and Workman says his 190-pounder will also be in there defensively at linebacker in passing situations A major hole has been created in the offensive line with the absence of '84 starter Randy Goens, a 6-3, 253-pound tackle. Goens isn't expected to return for another three weeks because of a knee injury suffered in practice. "Kevin Fairman (6-1, 251), a backup to left tackle Chris Wickenkamp (6-2, 223); moves into Goens' spot.

"We're bigger than El Modena"," says Workman to the question "Not really They're a little bigger defensively. Up front we might be bigger, but they have a whole lot of 200-pounders.

"Actually." says Lester, "we're talking about a first game of the season and I have no idea where we are. Billy probably doesn't, either.

Within the framework of where both coaches finally agree, Workman states: "We're both out there to try to win the game, but we know at the same time we're playing a quality opponent. If we go out and play good, hard football that's probably the most important thing. Our team is not put together, we're not all in the right place yet. But I feel we can make progress.

El Modena's blue chip in the line is three-year starter

Lester is hopeful senior Chris Gallego, a 6-3, 180pound senior who did not play as a junior, can pick up where quarterback Brett Johnson left off.

"Chris throws awfully well," admits Lester. "But he hasn't played a varsity game." Also a potential thorn in Edison's side will be linebacker Ross Bauer, who is

Leibrant baffles Angels with a 3-hitter; Royals bid to hike lead to 21/2 tonight

By CHRIS MONAHAN

September is usually the time that all the new shows come out on television. Not so at Anaheim

If the Angels-Kansas City series was a show, the viewers would have turned the channel because Tuesday's game was an almostperfect re-run of Monday.

One night after John Candelaria and Doug Corbett two-hit Kansas City to move the Angels to within a half-game of the Royals, Charlie Leibrandt returned the favor.

Leibrandt (15-7) threw what he called "my best game of the year under the circumstances," a three-hit shutout, as the Royals rolled, 6-0, before 37,813 fans.

The victory pushed the Royals lead in the West back to 11/2 games and assures that they will leave Anaheim in first place.

'We were not looking at this series as a do-or-die confrontation. We're just looking to put some ground between us and the Angels," said George Brett. "Even after last night, we were laughing in the shower and everyone was loose. Or if they were a little nervous, they hid it very well."

"I'd say, under the circumstances, that was my best game of the year," said Leibrandt. "We're playing the team that we have to beat to win it and September is the time when everyone is looking." Royal Manager Dick Howser concurred with Leibrandt. 'Under the circumstances, after

Defense may take back seat

Newport Harbor High is ranked No. 10 in Orange County by the Daily Pilot, but Sailors football coach Mike Giddings isn't paying too much attention.

At least that's the look off his comments as the Sailors prepare for the 1985 season opener Friday night when Santa Ana High's Saints invade.

"I think it'll be a high-scoring game ... if it isn't, we're going to get our comeuppance," says Giddings. "We're nowhere near where our recent teams have been at this point. "But I'm not going to bemoan the fact we have to open with Santa Ana and I'm not going to panic (if Santa Ana wins). We have a definite plan for the season and I haven't really changed our practices for Santa Ana.

We're just going to go play."
For Giddings, it's a matchup with an old friend - Santa Ana's Dick

"He was at Downey High when my dad was the mayor of Downey," recalls Giddings. "I had a job coaching summer baseball, so I've known Dick Hill a long, long time. I know he came in late last year at the 11th hour and I know they'll be fired

Gamblers always looking for bettor systems

But even most-heralded formulas took beating in opening week of pro football

Now that football has returned to enhance our culture and refinement, horse racing has returned to second place in the area of betting handle.

In the opening week of the professionals, the house had it smooth and sweet. Such upsets as Minnesota over San Francisco and Houston over Miami upset the stomachs of the smartest players.

Systems also went down the drain. Possibly the most heralded formula for early season wagering is the 'unders" plan. This system is to be the unders on all games on the theory the defenses are far ahead of the offenses as the field comes out of the gate in early autumn.

That system failed nine times over the opening weekend

Another traditional and time honored system is the home underdog method. This formula scored only two times in all the contests on the first day of 85.

It goes without saying that most of the exotic bettors — the guys who play parlays and teasers and other wild wagers - had a bad weekend They always do.

Mrs. Weaver may coach Earl on his managing plans

From AP dispatches

BALTIMORE — It seems to be up to Edward Bennett Williams and Marianna Weaver to decide whether the Baltimore Orioles' manager will return next year.

Earl Weaver, who said he hedged on the question, indicated he would be interested in continuing as Baltimore skipper in 1986 if both his owner and his wife

Weaver was unsure of how long he would like his return engagement to be, or if anyone else would endorse the move, but implied that he would not be the one to stop it.

'At the end of the season," Weaver said, "I'll have to sit down with my wife and see if she was: (a) miserable, (b) happy, (c) upset with all my thoughts being on baseball the last 31/2 months, or (d) willing to put up with it another year, or longer."

"I told my wife years ago that baseball came first, that it had to be that way if you have a job in the major leagues," Weaver said. "So, that could be a topic of discussion."

I wouldn't want to take a job unless it would come first," Weaver said. "I think that on any job you have to put it above your wife and children at times if you want to support them.'

Young signs with Buccaneers

TAMPA, Fla. — Quarterback Steve Young left the United States Football League Tuesday and signed a multiyear contract with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers of the National Football League, attorney Leigh

Steinberg said. Coach Leeman Bennett said he doesn't expect Young to be a big help to the Bucs this year.

The contract puts Young "in the same category as the John Elways and the Bernie Kosars . . . in an extremely fair way, in a lucrative way. It's a happy day for him," Steinberg said in an interview with ABC-Radio Sports.

Asked how Young can help, Bennett replied: "Not a whole lot right now with him missing all of training camp and our first game. He is so far behind it would be difficult for him to catch up this year.

The former Brigham Young star signed a reported $40 million contract with the USFL's Los Angeles Express in March 1984, but had been trying to buy his way out of the deal claiming the pact was violated when the league assumed operation of the financially strapped franchise.

Watson turns his attention to polo

OCC's successful swim coach to try new sport this year

In the shadow of the championship squads at Golden West recently, the Orange Coast College water polo team has a new excitement as it enters the 1985 campaign.

Don Watson is OCC's new head coach this season and he has instilled new enthusiasm in the program this year. A former All-American poloist at Rio Hondo College and Long Beach State, Watson is not new to the Pirates' campus. He has had great success coaching Orange Coast's men's and women's swim teams the past five seasons.

His women have finished among the top five swim teams in the state the last four years and have claimed the state crown the last two seasons. His men have finished among the state's top 10 teams in each of his five

"My goal is to bring OCC back to the forefront of community college extremely crucial season for us because this is the year that we have to establish our credibility.

It took Watson only four years to take OCC's women's swim team to its first state championship. His goals for the water polo squad are similar.

"Perhaps it's unrealistic to expect that we can win a state title in four years — but it's something to shoot for," he said.

"We'll be very young this year, but we'll be competitive. We're not going to win all our games, but we'll be able to play with every single team we face on our schedule this year. I don't expect us to get blown out."

OCC's only returning sophomore is Rob Mirande, a field player who attended Costa Mesa High. The only other sophomore on the squad is goalie Mike Hinze, who was an All-American swimmer last spring for Watson, setting an OCC record in the 1,600 freestyle.

"Rob is a very fine player," said Watson, "he will be one of our leading scorers this year. Mike is an outstanding goalie and we'll be depending heavily upon him this season.

Another player Watson is relying

I'm sure many of the teams we face this year will have better individual athletes, but we'll play well as a team," said Watson.

"If we attempt to deviate from the team concept and play as individuals, we'll get killed."

Cross-town rivals premiere many new players

By SHARON FRUTOS

When Terry Henigan's Irvine High Vaqueros take the field Friday night against cross-town rival University, it will be a premiere of sorts in the nonleague football test.

The films have already been viewed, but Henigan believes there's still a

"We just saw last year's film (of University)," Henigan said. "You can't go scouting practice. Plus, you never know . . . they can change, we can change things. I think the first game we're more concerned with what your kids do.

And premiering at quarterback for Irvine is Jimmy Raye, a returning starter who'll be steering the offense for the first time.

Raye's seen time at defensive back, and has shown promise on the other end of the field. 'He performed better in practice,'

Henigan said of Raye. Brian Snoddy, also listed as a quarterback, will start at safety for the Vaqueros.

The Uni-Irvine series shows Irvine with a 4-3 edge.

"They've all been very close," Henigan said. "We've won the last three in a row. It's always a good game. I would expect this to be another close battle.

On the battlefield for Irvine are

"All three are doing quite well," Henigan said. 'In the opener you want to play well, you want to win of course.

Hopefully make as few mistakes as lot of kids. We're so inexperienced, we need to see a lot of kids play. There's a premier of sorts going on for the Trojans, too, inasmuch as Coach Rick Curtis has settled on Bart Silverman as his starter at quarterback.

"He's done a good job," says Curtis, "and off our scrimmage last eek he's won the job for right now. The Trojans will have junior Craig Belle at tailback and Brett Howard at

Vikes fight fatigue

Marina will face a fresh Esperanza team Friday night

Marina High's football team finds itself in a precarious position as it readies for Esperanza's beefy Aztecs Friday night at Westminster High.

The Vikes have an edge on ex-perience over Esperanza. Marina's got a 9-9 tie in Hawaii against St.

Louis High already under their belts. But whatever experience gained may be nullified by other factors such as an Esperanza scout viewing the contest in Hawaii. And, there is the fatigue factor, a week in Hawaii can take its toll especially coming up against a quality opponent.

"I know I'm tired," says Marina Coach Dave Thompson.

Marina didn't exactly run all over St. Louis, but Thompson says he was pleased with the effort.

"We'd like to improve our of-fensive execution," he says, "be a little more consistent. But St. Louis was a good football team and we shut their offense down. They could say the same for us, but we had our chances.

Marina's big ray of hope — defense - came to the forefront in several areas, including linebackers Preston Hayslette and Todd Destatte and Tyrone Youngblood at nose. Tackles Ron Larson and Ray Maples and corners Sean Barbosa and Dean Yoshiyama also give the Vikings reason to be optimistic.

"Our noseguard and tackles played exceptionally well," adds Thompson. - Hayslette was moved from tight end to linebacker to fill a vacancy created when Gary Thetford quit the

This is Marina's third game with Esperanza and the Vikes have yet to win — tying in 1983 (21-21) and losing a 26-14 decision a year ago.

"We can't let them control the ball," says Thompson. "And we have to take away some of the big plays they're capable of making with the quarterback going deep and with the screen to the fullback. That's something we didn't do last year.'

Defensively the Aztecs throw up a virtual eight-man front to take the run away in a 4-4 alignment.

Stargell, Madlock deny allegations

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Willie Stargell and Bill Madlock have denied allegations made in federal court by former Pittsburgh teammate Dale Berra that they illegally dispensed amphetamines, or "uppers," to the infielder and other Pirates.

Berra, now with the New York Yankees, testified Tuesday in the trial of a Philadelphia man accused of dealing cocaine to major league players that the use of the stimulants, or "greenies," was once common among the Pirates and other big league teams.

From whom did you get (amphetamines) in Pittsburgh?" Berra, the son of Hall of Famer Yogi Berra, was asked by defense attorney Adam O. Renfroe Jr.

"From Bill Madlock," Berra replied.

Who else, if anyone, did you get them from?" Renfroe asked.

"From Willie Stargell," Berra said. "Willie Stargell gave you amphetamines?" Renfroe asked. Yes, when he was playing for us,"

Berra said.

Amphetamines are stimulants that an produce a sense of self-confidence and increase energy, alertness and the ability to concentrate. Berra said he sometimes used the drug when injured because it "made me feel stronger."

Volleyball: FV, Warriors win

Jackie Cook had 17 kills and Christy Svalstad added 12 to pace Fountain Valley's girls volleyball team to a 15-8, 10-15, 15-3, 9-15, 15-6 win over host Capistrano Valley Tuesday night in the Barons' season

Kellie Bruce, a 6-1 junior middle blocker, contributed 10 service aces in the Baron win.

In other games: Woodbridge 3, San Clemente 0: The Warriors opened their preseason schedule with a straight-set 15-7, 15-2, 15-8 win over the host Tritons.

Senior Jill Daniels, a 5-11 left-side hitter, sparkled for the Warriors, as did junior middle blocker Mindee Adams and middle blocker Lura Calder.

Marina girls win

The Marina High girls tennis team opened its practice schedule with a 10-8 victory over Capistrano Valley Tuesday on the Vikings' courts.

Marina broke an 8-8 tie by winning the final two matches to claim the decision Eileen Robertson swept in singles and the team of Kim Robertson and Jennifer Liang did the same in doubles to pace the Vikings.

After a match against Long Beach Wilson today, Marina was scheduled to meet Woodbridge Thursday.

Dickerson reps throw Rams for loss

Negotiations between holdout Eric Dickerson and the Rams took a turn for the worse Tuesday, and Coach John Robinson described the situation as "extremely

The Rams, in a prepared statement, said team management met with the record-setting running back and his representatives for several hours Monday at Dickerson's request.

On Tuesday, according to the Rams' statement, Dickerson informed club owner Georgia Frontiere that, at the advice of his representatives, he would not report to the

"No progress was made. At this point, we're stalemated," David Epstein, Dickerson's attorney, said later Tuesday.

Although Robinson would not say the door was closed on the possibility of Dickerson's returning, he said in a telephone conference call from the club's offices in Anaheim, "It's an extremely negative situation at this point and we feel strongly that Eric is not receiving the kind of advice we'd hope for someone we care about ... It's tragic.

Epstein said the Rams coach was expected to attend Monday's meeting, but did not.

"We were advised at the last minute that John Robinson would not attend the meet-ing," Epstein said. "We decided to go ahead in the hopes that something could be accomplished without the catalyst. It didn't work out very well."

Robinson, however, said he had not planned to attend the meeting, commenting, I believe that's a complete untruth, I believe that's an attempt to manipulate us. At the meeting, Frontiere reconfirmed her previous offer to provide Dickerson with $2million of disability insurance for the remaining two years of his contract; not fine him for his 44-day absence, reinstate his $150,000 signing bonus; and agreed that the Rams would begin discussions about an extension of his current contract immediately upon his return to the team.

Dickerson is demanding a three-year, guaranteed extension to his contract, which currently runs for two more years at an average of some $550,000 annually

The Rams want him in the fold before they renegotiate his contract, while his advisers say they must have some definite parameters for the negotiations before he reports.

Dickerson, who broke O.J Simpson's National Football League single-season rushing record last year with 2,105 yards. stayed at home in Sealy, Texas, as the Rams went 3-1 during the preseason. He was still absent last Sunday, when they opened the regular season with a 20-16 victory over the Denver Broncos.

"I do feel that the Rams created an environment that was suitable for Eric, and that he certainly contributed to that environment," Robinson said. "I don't expect the people who negotiate for him to have any interest in the Rams ... I think it's tragic the number of people who are being hurt in this situation.

The situation is made gloomier for the Rams by the fact that Barry Redden, their No. 2 running back, is ailing with an ankle injury he suffered in the final preseason game. He played only the first half of the victory over the Broncos last Sunday, and Robinson said Redden's ankle was even more sore this week.

Cincy fans: They scream, moan and yearn for more

CINCINNATI (AP) - Pete Rose's family is finding it stressful enduring his drawn-out drive to break Ty Cobb's all-time career record for hits. But some fans of Rose's

Cincinnati Reds are enjoying the mounting suspense. They screamed, they moaned and they yearned for more Tuesday night as Rose made four hitless trips to home plate in a 3-2 loss to the San Diego Padres. In his final trip to the plate, the Reds' player-manager took his best shot at the elusive record-breaker when he hammered a line drive to left field that San Diego outfielder Carmelo Martinez caught. almost had a heart attack," mother, LaVerne Noeth, said after Rose's liner was caught. She said she hopes to return home to Thonotosassa, Fla., at week's end, but will stay to see Rose break Cobb's record of

"I'm a total wreck. I go crazy every time he gets up to bat," said Mrs. Noeth, whose last name changed when she remarried after her first husband, Harry, died. "When you know it's your kid up there, it's a lot different.

Rose's brother Dave, who strongly resembles Pete, agonized when Rose's liner became an out. But, he said. Rose has produced under extreme pressure before. when he hit in 44 consecutive games in 1978. "I'll be back tomorrow night if he doesn't get it tonight," said Dave Rose, of Cincinnati's

Blue Ash suburb. "He's been through this before ... Pete rises to the top in pressure situations."

Fans in the standing-room crowd of 52,000plys at Riverfront Stadium leaped to their feet, shot photographs of Rose and shouted each time he hit a ball, even when he popped it up. They roared when he took the field for pregame warmup tosses and cheered again when he was introduced in the lineup Rose's pursuit of Cobb's record has deminated Cincinnati's television and radio broadcasts for days, as well as countless lunch and dinner conversations. Hugh Hawkins of Cincinnati, a wheelchairbound fan who sat behind home plate to see the game, said he was drawn to the park for the excitement, not just to see Rose break the

"I came out because I knew there would be a crowd." Hawkins said. "I think the excitement's there

Neil Ahern, another Cincinnati fan, said he hopes Rose's pursuit of Cobb lasts longer. "I hope he doesn't get the hit all week and builds the excitement. I came to see the excitement." Ahern said.

Joe Stanton, a fan who has umpired semipro baseball games, said he wasn't disappointed, either.

"I umpired for 13 years," he said "You're going to see 54 outs, no matter what happens Fans began lining up after Tuesday night's game to buy tickets for Wednesday night's game in the red seats, in the fourth deck of the outfield section farthest from home plate.

'Racial reform at our pace'

Botha urges South Africans to find freedom, not as U.S., Russia direct

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) - President P.W. Botha today said South Africa's white-minority government would set its own pace toward racial reform, and not be swayed by pressure from the United States or the Soviet Union.

Botha called for "all well-meaning, reasonable and honest South Africans" to "take the road of renewal, reform and freedom as South Africans determine it and not as Russia or America wish to determine

In an address to the Orange Free State provincial congress of his ruling National Party, Botha also suggested some blacks might be able to regain the South African citizenship they lost when the white government created four independent black homelands.

As rioting against apartheid persisted, a funeral crowd near Cape Town mobbed a man thought to be a policeman, then kicked and stabbed him to death this morning, witnesses said. Police said he was of mixed racial ancestry but witnesses said he was white.

Police also said today that they shot and killed a 4-year-old black girl who was playing inside her house during township rioting.

In a separate development, Zenani Mandela, daughter of imprisoned black nationalist leader Nelson Mandela, said today her father has an enlarged prostate gland and cysts on his liver and right kidney, and doctors say he needs surgery.

She made the announcement after visiting the 67-year-old Mandela at Cape Town's Pollsmoor Prison. Mandela, president of the outlawed African National Congress, has been in prison for 23 years on charges of high treason, sabotage and conspiracy to overthrow the government.

The prison service announced last week that Mandela had been seen by a urologist. His daughter did not give any indication today when Mandela might undergo surgery. The 4-year-old girl, Mita Ngobeni, was killed in Atteridgeville.

State Senate: 'Divest'

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Rejecting a Republican's plea for a delay, the state Senate has voted to bar future investments of state funds in most companies that do business in South Africa.

The upper house, by a 25-12 vote Tuesday, approved an anti-apartheid bill by Assemblywoman Maxine Waters, D-Los Angeles, that would impose the ban starting Jan. 1, 1987.

It went back to the Assembly for a vote on Senate amendments.

"What we are looking at is another chapter in the march of man from the dregs of serfdom and slavery to freedom," said one supporter, Sen. Nicholas Petris, D-Oakland.

But critics said the bill was premature or would hurt American foreign policy interests by weakening a friendly regime. I'm asking us to be a little bit more reasonable about these things," said Sen. H.L. Richardson, R-Glendale, who contended that South Africa had "complicated problems" that prevent an immediate end to the country's system of racial segregation.

I hope we will show the same vigor to countries that are infinitely more totaliarian," Richardson said. Senate Minority Leader Jim Nielsen, R-Woodland, urged Democrats to delay a vote on the bill, saying Republican Gov. George Deukmejian has "strong concerns about it in this form."

Botha also quoted a turn-of-the century Afrikaner leader's description of black aspirations in an address to the Orange Free State provincial congress of his ruling National Party, saying: "They do not want the vote. They want our country.

Botha said some blacks stripped of citizenship by the creation of tribal homelands may be able to regain citizenship in the white-ruled The president emphasized that he was not scrapping the homelands policy, which is a keystone of apartheid. That policy reserves 13 percent of South Africa for the 24 million blacks, setting aside the rest for the 5 million whites. Botha said the government was prepared to negotiate on restoration of citizenship to blacks considered citizens of the so-called independent homelands of Bophuthatswana, Transkei, Venda and

He said many black citizens of the homelands were not born there, did not live within homelands, and did not exercise other

Botha at one point indicated that only blacks from the four townships who permanently resided outside the homelands could regain South African citizenship.

Ramirez home combed for eyes of Night Stalker victim

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Authorities investigating the "Night Stalker" case searched in Texas for a pair of brown eyes gouged from a woman during the rash of serial killings and attacks that terrorized

The eyes were among items listed in a warrant served during a search of the El Paso home of the sister of defendant Richard Ramirez, court documents say.

Investigators found more than 300 items allegedly stolen by Ramirez, 25, and hidden in the home of his sister, Rosa Flores, police say. The items included rings, necklaces and brooches.

But the eyes, cut from a middleaged woman shot and stabbed to death March 27 in Whittier, about 18 miles southeast of downtown Los Angeles, were not found. The search for them continues, authorities said Tuesday

Capt. Robert Grimm, commander of the Los Angeles County sheriff's homicide bureau, said the eyes were included in the warrant because other items were sent to El Paso.

'We searched the (murder) scene thoroughly and they weren't dis-covered," Grimm said. "We had information that stolen property had been sent to El Paso, and the eyes were still outstanding, and that's the rationale."

It was the first official confirmation that the Night Stalker mutilated victims during more than 30 attacks Grimm said Los Angeles authorities that included at least 14 killings. News reports earlier said eyes may have been gouged from victims and satanic rituals may have taken place at crime scenes.

Authorities have attributed the Night Stalker attacks to a lone intruder who attacked people in Southern California and the San Francisco area, entering homes at night through unlocked doors and windows.

The affidavit said investigators were searching for satanic materials such as writings or drawings that Ramirez may have mailed to rela-

Despite the discovery of allegedly stolen articles in Flores' house,

"At this point, there is nothing to indicate that she violated California law, which says that you have to know the items that you're accepting have been stolen," Grimm said. The home of Ramirez' father, Julian Ramirez Sr., was also searched last week, court records show.

Investigators also searched for handguns, knives, double-edged daggers, handcuffs and bloody clothing, the affidavit said.

In the search warrant affidavit filed last week in El Paso County Court, authorities disclosed that two informants in California had confirmed that Ramirez was sending stolen articles to El Paso. One of those informants, Donna

Myers of San Pablo, Calif., reportedly received stolen jewelry from Ramirez, said Bill Moody, an assistant district attorney in El Paso. A San Francisco-area man, Armando Rodriguez, also told authorities that Ramirez was dealing in stolen property, Moody said.

Authorities hoped to find bloodstained clothing, tape recordings, videotapes or photographs of victims, he said.

None of those items was found during searches last Wednesday by three El Paso policemen and two Los Angeles County sheriff's deputies. Municipal Court Judge Elva Soper has delayed taking a plea to murder and other counts from Ramirez until Richard Ramirez

Salads simply sensational

Toss a little imagination with an array of produce

Whether you have a green thumb or do all your gardening via the local supermarket, this is the best time of year for fresh produce. Thanks to the abundant supply, many people are on the lookout for new ways to serve their favorite fruits and vegetables.

One great vegetable dish is the everpopular salad. Salads give the perfect opportunity to combine freshness, nutrition, taste and texture all in one entree:

All you need to invent a sensational salad is a little imagination. For example, plain lettuce takes on new life simply by adding fresh vegetables like mushrooms, onions and tomatoes. Then, for some extra crunch, top the salad with a handful of toasted walnuts. Salads don't necessarily have to begin with lettuce. Many favorites start with potatoes or fruit.

To dress up ordinary greens, add fresh mushroom caps stuffed with a blue cheesesour cream mixture, then top with Mushroom Dijon Dressing. Or, serve Mushroom Blue Caps and Garden Greens without the dressing for an elegant appetizer. For a French version of an American favorite, try Country French Potato Salad. Tender potatoes and peas are topped with chicken and seasoned in a mint dressing. For more flavor, toss the potatoes and mint dressing while the potatoes are still warm. This hearty salad makes a delightful warm-weather

Walnuts are the crowning glory in Walnut Grove Salad Bowls. Just fill melon shells with assorted fruits, top with crunchy walnuts then drizzle with a tangy orange walnut dressing. For a single serving, use small cantaloupe halves. For a larger crowd, substitute a hollowed watermelon half. Walnut Grove Salad Bowls can also be served as a light and

Refrigerate in covered jars. Bring to room temperature before serving in antipasto salads or tossed green salads, using some of the strained marinade for dressing.

• MUSHROOM CURRY CAPS — In medium skillet stir 2 teaspoons curry powder over low heat for 1 minute. Stir in 3 tablespoons vegetable oil. Add 8 ounces mushrooms. Toss over medium-high heat just until tender, 3 to 4 minutes. Add salt, to taste. Cool. Toss with mixed green salad or rice salad 1 tablespoon dried mint, crumbled) and salt, moistened with lemony dressing.

• POTATO SALAD SCOOP — Leftover mashed potatoes make tasty salads. Mix in some mayonnaise or salad dressing, sieved hard-cooked eggs and chopped herbs. Chill; serve little scoops on lettuce with sandwiches, or fill hollowed-out tomatoes and serve on beds of watercress.

• SPUDWICH SALADS - Halve cooked baked potatoes and spread cut sides with mayonnaise or mustard. Sandwich your choice of thinly sliced tomatoes, meats and cheese, and a ruffle of lettuce between the halves. Wrap snugly in foil for a picnic

 SALAD WALNUGGETS — Beat together'l package (3 ounces) softened cream cheese, 4 cup shredded Cheddar cheese and 4/8 teaspoon hot pepper sauce. Mix in 1/2 cup finely chopped walnuts. Roll into 1-inch balls.

Celebrate Jewish new year

Jewish cookery is a delicious mixture of foods from around the world. All families can readily enjoy this cuisine, with its sophisticated yet comforting taste of good home cooking.

Among the many fall and winter specialties are a savory potato pudding and harvest pot roast, both often served for Rosh Hashana (Jewish new year - Sept. 16) or Succoth (Feast of Booths - Sept.

Holiday Potato Kugel, affectionately called "Potato Nick," is a modern version of a popular side dish.

The colorful addition of carrots, a traditional new year ingredient that symbolizes the wish for prosperity, enhances this pudding. So, too, does Tabasco sauce, which heightens and adds depth to the delicate flavors of the vegetable ingredients. The kugel has a unique airy texture in keeping with contemporary preferences for light meals. If a food processor is not available, grate the potato and carrots by hand. Avoid using a blender which will produce an unsatisfactory kugel with too fine a texture. Kugel is best served warm. Fruited Pot Roast incorporates fruits and sweetness, elements essential to the Succoth meal that celebrates the bounty of the harvest. Taditionally, meals were eaten in a booth decorated with ripe apples, ears of corn, pumpkins, squashes and other produce to recall the temporary shelters of the Israelites as they wandered in the wilderness. In this recipe, prunes and apricots represent the natural abundance that is the focus of the eight-day observance. To sample some of the most typical of Jewish festival foods, try these dishes that have been passed down for generations by discerning Jewish cooks. A simple green vegetable, a fruit pastry such as apple strudel and tea or coffee are all that would be necessary to complete the meal.

HOLIDAY POTATO KUGEL 5 large potatoes, cut in pieces 3 medium carrots, cut in pieces 1 large onion, cut in pieces 1/2 cup matzoh meal

(Please see FESTIVAL/C4) Fruits and sweet spices flavor this delicious pot roast.

SENSIBLE EATING

Vegan diet takes careful planning

By PAT REMMELL, M.S.

Youngsters can grow well on a healthy strict vegetarian, or vegan, diet but parents must be well informed and careful about planning meals to insure that the diet is adequate

Vegans, who eat no animal foods at all - not even eggs or dairy products, must know how to combine plant foods that are necessary to supply all nuitrients that nonvegetarians get when they eat dairy foods, meat and eggs. Vegan children having diets lacking in variety and balance of foods are at risk of rickets, slower growth and multiple nutrient

A well-designed vegan diet that includes variety and enough calories contains enough protein for adults. But pound for pound, children have a greater need for protein, and require a special plan that includes the use of protein supplements Since the vegan child gets no milk products, other toods such as the amount that can be offered to infants, but they should be included in the diets of older children For infants who are not breastfed and for older children who have been weaned, there are nutritionally adequate commercial formulas made of soy protein. Available under the brand names such as Soyalac, ProSobe, Nursoy and Isomil, these formulas are fortified with vitamins D and B-12, calcium and one - nutrients that may be inadequate in diets of vegan children Homemade soy milks, consisting of ground soy beans soaked and filtered, are not a substitute for commercial soy formulas.

By including a variety of plant proteins the quality and adequacy of the protein in the diet can be improved. This calls for a good variety of legumes and grains, with some nuts and seeds.

Tofu and tempeh (soy-based products) texturized vegetable protein, spreads made of nuts or seeds and fortified dried sox-milk powder that may be added to casseroles, soups and desserts are additional protein sources for the toddler and preschooler

To achieve a good complement of amino acids derived from plant protein foods, include legumes - soybeans, lentils, black beans, garbanzos, black-eyed peas, split peas, pinto beans — should be combined with grains - barley, millet, brown rice, oats, rye, wheat berries, shredded wheat or wheat flakes and bulgur. Or, legumes should be matched with nuts and seeds - almond. cashew, pecan, walnut, peanut, pumpkin, pine, pistachio, sesame,

Because many plant foods are low in calones, total calones for the day are generally limited in the vegan diet. Ways to add calories to meet a child's energy need for growth and activity are necessary.

The provision of between-meal finger foods made with legumes and legume spreads of all types, nut butters, sesamechickpea butter (tahini), avocado, dried fruit spreads and other calone-nutrient-dense items helps children, whose stomach capacity is small, to consume sufficient calories.

The risk of poor growth and health is greatest when extremely limited vegan diets of only a few foods are provided especially when the infant or child is not kept under the care of a pediatrician.

A qualified nutritionist can help develop necessary dietary plans without disrupting the vegan family's food ways.

So for appetizer or dessert plates that take advantage of late summer and early fall harvests, serve a colorful array with a Tangy Blue Cheese Whip.

Blue Cheese has an affinity for both fruits and vegetables that's softened and mellowed with whipping cream, herbs and crunchy, nutritious diced almonds.

Lightly roasted almonds add flavor as well as vegetable protein, riboflavin, vitamin E and an array of essential minerals including magnesium, potassium and copper.

This airy flavorful dunk is equally good with apples and pears, as it is with the melons and soft fruits, or beans, squash, peppers and pea pods, it's a versatile whip you'll enjoy as a special topper on cooked vegetables, too.

Renee's Seafood Fra Diavolo judged best in garlic competition

Sauce "from the devil" was judged the best in the Great Garlic Recipe Contest and Cookoff, a highlight of the annual Gilroy

Renee Norine Telese of Saugus, a former restaurant manager and cooking teacher, won $200 for her original recipe, Renee's Seafood Fra Diavolo.

Fra Diavolo, she said, means 'from the devil" in Italian, which refers to the red hot sauce. Telese said she developed the dish of rich seafood to please her husband who is of Italian descent.

Here is her recipe.

RENEE'S SEAFOOD FRA DIAVOLO 1/2 cup chopped fresh garlic

1/4 cap olive oil

1 small lobster in the shell, about 1 pound, cleaned, small claws and antennae removed

HAS COME

POPS IN THE BAG

6 large shrimp, cleaned and

1/4 pound fresh mushrooms,

1 small onion, chopped 5 leaves each fresh mint, fresh basil and fresh oregano, chopped 1/4 to 1/2 teaspoon crushed dried red pepper 1 teaspoon clam or chicken soup base (paste or granulated)

1 cup dry white or red wine 1 can (28 ounces) whole Italian tomatoes with basil, including

3 large mussels, scrubbed 6 large clams, scrubbed

1/4 cup chopped fresh parsley 1 pound thin spaghetti or vermicellai, cooked and drained

In 14-inch skillet, cook ¼ cup garlic in hot oil over high heat for 2 to 3 minutes; do not burn. Add lobster and shrimp; cook on high heat 3 to 4 minutes, until lobsert turns pink. Remove seafood and set aside.

Add remaining garlic, mushrooms, onion, mint, basil, oregano and red pepper. Cook over medium heat 8 minutes, stirring frequently. Pour mixture into blender or food processor. Add soup base, wine and tomatoes; puree. Pour puree into 3quart saucepan and cook over medium-high heat, adding mussels and clams when mixture begins to

Note: This recipe may be made without the lobster and canned clams and mussels may be substituted if fresh seafood is not available or to reduce cost of the

Have a fiesta on Mexican holiday

Mexican Independence Day provides a great "excuse" for hosting a party with south-of-the-border flair. A national holiday in Mexico, tradition calls for fun and feasting.

Because the holiday falls next Monday, fast-to-fix fiestas will be the order of the day for busy northof-the-border party hosts. In honor of the festivities here are two Mexican-style party recipes that can be prepared in short order.

Tex-Mex Tostada Soup boasts serape-bright colors and the temperature, texture and color contrasts that make soup a year 'round menu staple in Mexico. Prepared with ground meat, pinto beans, tomatoes and picante sauce in the cook's choice of mild, medium or hot, the soup is served with an assortment of toppings.

For casual fiesta fun, ladle the soup into bowls at the table and let | everyone help themselves to addons of tortilla chips, cheese, shredded lettuce, sour cream and additional picante sauce.

If enchiladas are familiar favorites, go adventurous and serve guests Picadillo Enchiladas. Picadillo (pee-kah-DEE-yo) means "minced meat" or "meat and vegetable hash" in Spanish. Although popular in Mexico as a filling for tortillas and a topping for rice, picadillo is largely unknown to Mexican food fans north of the Rio Grande.

The spicy ground meat and vegetable mixture is flavored with the sweet, mellow additions of raisins, nuts and a hint of cinnamon, with picante sauce providing the authentic Mexican flavor.

TEX-MEX TOSTADA SOUP 5 pound ground pork or beef 1 cup chopped onion

- 1 16-ounce can tomatoes 1 16-ounce can pinto beans, drained
- 1 8-ounce can tomato sauce 1 cup water
- % to 1 cup picante sauce, as desired
- 1/4 teaspoon ground cumin Tortilla or corn chips, coarsely crushed

Sparkling wine from Spain worth waiting for

has been associated with Spain for so long that it seems Spanish to most of us. Most famous for its production of fine sherry, especially that wonderful fino "La Ina," Domecq is also a major brandy producer, both in Spain and Mexico, and, in the past decade, became a vintner of the wines of Rioja.

Between now and the holiday season, Domecq is going to acquire a new renown, this time for sparkling wine, perhaps the best you've ever tasted produced in Spain.

My meeting with the American representatives of Domecq to preview this product a month or so ago had a humorous note. We met in a restaurant where the owner was an old friend I hadn't seen in a while, who was too busy with a private party to get over right away.

Since the reservation was in the name of Domecq, he assumed we were there to talk or taste sherry. As a small kindness, he sent a bottle of a famous French Champagne with apologies for his absence.

He couldn't have known that we were about to taste an inexpensive Spanish sparkler, nor could he have known that Domecq's press release brags, "Compare it with the best you have from any country. It is a truly world-class sparkling wine, and we produced it with that goal in mind.

With the French Champagne already on the table, it was only natural to compare the two products, and was the restaurateur ever red-faced when he finally got by the table and discovered the difficult situation he had created for the Domecq people: Here they are trying to court a wine writer's favor for a product that will sell for $6 or less, and he's setting up a comparative tasting with a competitive product that sells for more than twice as much.

"Lembey" is the name of the new Domecq sparkling wine, and it is produced in that part of Spain, near Barcelona, where all the best Spanish sparklers are made. The wine it was tasted against was Laurent-Perrier non-vintage Brut.

It would make a much better story if I could tell you I liked Lembey better, but such is not the case, but the story isn't over either.

In deference to the less expensive product, I tasted it first, so as not to be prejudiced by the Champagne. I was impressed. Lembey is the best Spanish sparkler I've ever tasted, which is a strong statement because I enjoy a number of such wines and have consistently recommended them as being good values. But Lembey has several things going for it. The carbonation is as fine as you'll find in any sparkling wine produced anywhere in the world, and in this instance, it appeared to have an even smaller "bead" than the Champagne. It is not only produced by the "methode expensive Champenoise" (bottle fermented). but spent two full years on the yeast undergoing the secondary fermentation that creates the bubbles.

Whether it is the time on the yeast, or some other factor such as grape selection or choice of yeast strain, I cannot say, but Lembey has that rich, toasty, almost yeasty character that Champagne-lovers covet, and that is so often missing in other Spanish sparklers.

Spanish sparkling wines usualy tend toward straightforward, austere fruit, which can be its own kind of charm, but they rarely approach Lembey's level of complexity.

Lembey is rich in the mouth without being heavy, and a deft hand was employed in the dosage, meaning that the wine is truly in the brut range, finishing dry and crisp but not acidic.

You can look for 1982 Lembey to begin appearing on retailer shelves nationally anytime from now through the holidays. You'll recognize it by its deep green and gold label and the handsome gift box of the same colors in which it is

Oh, the Laurent-Perrier. It was more delicate, more elegant, and the aftertaste stayed around considerably longer. Without taking price into consideration, I'll take the Champagne every time. When I have to reach in my wallet, though, I'll probably buy Lembey more often than not, because this product held its own with the French Champagne and was in no way embarrassed by the comparison.

OTHER WINE COUNTRY -All of California wine country is not north of San Francisco, a great deal of it is to the south, and much of it is to the east. Napa, Sonoma, Mendocino and Lake counties are all wonderful, but don't forget Santa Clara, Santa Cruz, Monterey, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara and even Riverside and San Diego counties

If San Francisco is your starting base, one of the closest wine countries is the historic Livermore Valley, home to Wente Bros., Concannon and several other excellent producers. For a free map and guide to the area, send a selfaddressed, stamped envelope to: Livermore Wine Country, P.O. Box 2052, Livermore 94550

HARVEST PROMISING — The harvest for 1985 is in full swing as you read this, having actually started some weeks ago. Grapes for sparkling wines started hitting the crushers even longer ago as they are usually picked for low sugar and correspondingly high acid.

It is a little early to predict the overall quality of the vintage in California, and there is always some differences between regions to complicate things, but I can tell you that everything I've heard, even from the pessimists, is that 1985 is going to be one very fine vintage. With many of the white grapes already harvested, one can almost safely predict an exceptional vintage for white wines and champagnes.

The reds look good, too, but every farmer knows that there is still time for early rains, scorching heat spells or some other vagary of nature to change things virtually I'll keep you posted on any changes, and as you read this I'll be in France having a look at things over there. Reports are that heavy frosts last winter did very bad things to Champagne and Burgundy, which could mean small yields and increasing prices. I'll let you know whether to start hoarding Dom Perignon and Romanee-Conti when I return.

East, West agree on dish: Sukiyaki's simply super

You might be surprised to know that beef has only been featured in Japanese cuisine for the last 100 years. It wasn't unitl the late 1900s that the Japanese became infatuated with Western culture and began incorporating foods such as beef into their cuisine.

But rather than preparing it as we might a steak or roast, they adapted it into their lifestyle and eating habits. The beef was sliced very thin and cooked with vegetables and tofu; the seasoning was soy sauce, and they called this dish sukiyaki.

Accommodating today's hectic lifestyles is Simply table. Ground beef has been substituted for economy Add yellow onion; cook I minute. and ease of preparation, and vegetables that are available in our markets.

Chocolate diet the only way for her to grow

By MARLENE AIG

NEW YORK - For as long as Lora Brody can remember, chocolate has been a way of life.

When other kids were eating pizza, she was feasting on fudge

When other adults were mastering the art of cooking main courses, she was perfecting chocolate-laced

Now, at the suggestion of a fellow chocoholic, she has concocted a book about her favorite subject.

Just as she whips chocolate into tortes, ice cream, pies, fondues and coverings for bananas, she whipped autobiographical sketches and recipes into the book, "Growing Up on the Chocolate Diet," which she hopes will help put one of her three sons through college.

"I hooked up the food processor to the word processor," Brody, 39, explained in an interview.

The food of the gods — which is what the word chocolate means has been her "main ingredient, passion, love" all her life, she says.

"Maybe to you the word diet means cottage cheese and Melba toast," she writes. "To me it means chocolate layer cake, fudge brownies and egg creams. While other kids were growing up on pizza and Coke, chili dogs and cheeseburgers, I was eating choc-

Eating chocolate was easy, but learning to cook and bake - not just with chocolate - was more difficult.

Her husband, David, agrees that as a bride his wife took no prizes as a chef, but time, effort, determination and imagination turned Lora Brody into a woman who made her first money selling cookies to Bloomingdale's.

Moving from cookies and cakes to catering, she helped found the Women's Culinary Guild. Part of the thanks for her success goes to her husband and friends. who serve as her "research and development" department, she "My friends are honest, although they do like to eat," says Brody, a Hartford, Conn., native who now lives in a Boston suburb.

She also has taught baking classes, lambasting the "thin ladies" who are interested in learning, but not eating, for fear that they will gain an ounce. Brody herself has never been fat; in fact, she was always thin.

"I'm real compulsive about my weight," admits the woman who works only with high-caloric ingredients. "But I work all the time. I run around being a mother. I do watch what I eat. And then, for one week a year. I get away from food."

She retreats to an old house in upstate New York, a health resort. where all she does is "drink water. rest, walk in the country. It's like someone took a big toothbrush and scrubbed you out. It's invigorat-

She concedes that many of the recipes in her book are timeconsuming and complex for the average baker, but she insists they can be done

Cooking the spareribs first in boiling water gets rid of the fat, a bonus for those interested in lowering the fat content of foods they eat. The two racks of cooked ribs are then stuffed with a deliciously seasoned dressing based on a handy package of herb seasoned stuffing

The stuffing mix is then endowed with sweet Italian sausage, chopped zucchini, celery, onions, tomato and a minced clove of garlic. Once blended, the dressing is spooned between the two racks of ribs and all

The accompanying salad is a veritable garden of crisp greens, endive and cucumber tossed in a honey-based salad dressing of your own making. Toasted walnuts and a sprinkling of Sour Cream and Chive Croutons adds a delightful counterpoint of texture and flavor.

PASTRYPEAR-FECT

There is more than one way to eat fresh California Bartlett pear. The first and most obvious way is to take it hand to mouth and bite.

A second and far less usual way is to blend it into a cold and luscious Pear-Raspberry Pie.

PEAR-RASPBERRY PIE 1 envelope plain gelatin 1/4 cup water 3 egg yolks 1/3 cup sugar 1/2 cup light corn syrup 1/2 pound fresh Bartlett pear, pared, cut into chunks (1 large, 1

raspberries, broken into chunks 2 cups whipping cream Crumb Crust

Stir gelatin and water in small saucepan over low heat until dissolved; set aside. Place egg yolks and sugar in blender; cover and process until thick and lemon colored. Bring corn syrup to full boil in saucepan.

While blender is processing, remove lid and gradually pour hot corn syrup into egg yolks. Blend until light yellow colored and slightly thickened. Add pear chunks, raspberries and gelatin

1 package (10 ounces) frozen mixture; cover and blend smooth. Chill until mixture mounds.

Whip cream in large bowl until thick; fold in chilled pear mixture. Place in freezer 5 to 10 minutes to allow to firm up before turning into prepared Crumb Crust. Freeze at least 3 or 4 hours, until firm. Garnish with extra raspberries and pear slices, if desired. Makes 1 pie.

Crumb Crust: Combine 14 cups graham cracker crumbs, 4 cup sugar and ¼ cup melted butter in bowl. Lightly press against bottom and sides of 9-inch pie plate. Bake in 375-degree oven 8 to 10 minutes, until crust begins to brown.

Look for quality seafood

"Most people are aware that eating seafood is healthful, but have very little confidence in what to look for when buying it," states Joe Fesler, president of the California Fisheries Association.

'As a result, they consume their seafood in restaurants and miss out on some great culinary ex-periences." Fesler believes that by following a few basic guidelines, buying quality seafood can be easy.

First, seafood is broken down into two categories; shellfish and finfish. Shellfish include shrimp, crab, lobster, oysters, mussels, scallops and clams. Finfish encompass all other varieties and are either round or flat.

Both shellfish and finfish come fresh, frozen, smoked or canned. When buying fresh finfish fillets or steaks, check for an ocean-fresh odor, firm elastic flesh and appeal-

If buying whole fish, they should have bright, clear eyes. Never buy pre-packaged product that has iquid in the tray and looks dried

Live shellfish, like lobster and crab should be moving immediately before cooking, while oysters, clams and mussels are best when they have tight shells. Quality frozen seafood should be solid, free of ice crystals, have a pleasant sea odor and if visible, an appetizing appearance.

Once knowledgeable in what to look for in the market, the next step is the fun of deciding just which variety of seafood to buy. Nothing could be more simple this September. From Pacific waters come Petrale, Rex and Dover sole, flounder, sand dabs, halibut, Pacific snapper, albacore tuna and mackerel. Swordfish is particularly prevalent now with prices that should be at the year's lowest level.

Dungeness crab, Pacific perch, ting and true cod are available as well. The salmon family including chinook (king), caho (silver), chum and sockeye are in good supply, as is thresher shark. Hamburger

From the East Coast, monk fish, scrod, dab sole, Eastern fluke, swordfish, haddock, cod, squid, mackerel and pollock are plentiful finfish coming in daily. Also, varieties of shellfish such as mussels, clams, oysters, live Maine lobster and sea and bay scallops are arriving fresh. Imported species like sea bass, orange roughy and John Dory are available. Frozen shrimp is arriving from all over the world and salmon from Norway can also be found.

Our Great Lakes are supplying whitefish, perch and lake trout while farm-raised rainbow trout and catfish are plentiful.

With this abundant supply of seafood products available and new-found knowledge of how to judge its quality, September could be the beginning of an exciting and healthier way of life.

Unscrambling the nutritional values of eggs

By DOROTHY WENCK

How many eggs do you eat a year? If you're average you eat about 265 - not all of them as "eggs." number will be incorporated in other foods such as baked goods.
According to U.S. Department of Agriculture statistics, the per capita consumption of eggs dropped from over 300 per year in the early 1970s. The reason is attributed to the publicity about the high cholesterol content of egg yolks. One egg yolk has 250 milligrams of cholesterol.

Scientists are still debating the question of whether cutting down omically unwise. on cholesterol in the diet will help Eggs are our love everyone reduce the risk of clogged arteries and coronary heart disease. But even though research has shown that the amount of cholesterol eaten in foods has a variable and small effect on the amount of cholesterol in the blood, some people have decided to eat fewer eggs.

For persons with atherosclerosis clogged arteries) and high blood cholesterol levels, this may be a wise choice. But for the average healthy person, the decision to eat fewer eggs may be unnecessary and possibly nutritionally and econ-

Eggs are our lowest-priced source of high quality, "complete" animal protein. Looking at the Consumer Price Index (CPI), you see that the cost of eggs has risen less than that of any other animal food. Compared to the base year (1967) CPI of 100, the first quarter 1985 index was 267 for beef and veal, 258 for pork, 218 for poultry, and just 168 for eggs. The overall 1984 index for meat, poultry, fish, and eggs was 267 while it was 209 for eggs.

Besides being our "best buy" in animal protein, eggs are a good source of iron and zinc, vitamins A, thiamin and riboflavin, and they have a higher protein-to-fat ratio (more protein, less fat) than other meats. And while their water content is higher than that of most other protein foods (74 percent), eggs have very little waste.

Another plus is that eggs are so versatile and easy to prepare in so many different ways. In many recipes eggs help to bind other ingredients or form the protein structure. As persons who are allergic to eggs have found, it's hard to cook without eggs! to cook without eggs!

In hot weather eggs have another virtue. Hard-cooked, with shells intact - not cracked or crazed, eggs are protected from the invasion of food poisonir : bacteria. So unpeeled cooked eggs make good picnic foods. They're also handy to have on hand in the refrigerator in hot weather for protein food when you don't feel like cooking.

The shell is nature's way of protecting the egg. Thus, fresh eggs have excellent keeping quality. When properly refrigerated, clean eggs, free of cracks will keep for months. Thus, you don't need to worry about the safety of refrigerated eggs that are older than the 'pull date" stamped on the carton.

Since egg shells have very small pores, eggs can pick up odors from foods stored next to them in the refrigerator. For this reason, and also to protect eggs from breaking, they should be stored in the carton rather than in uncovered egg containers built in the refrigerator.

QUESTIONS WE ARE ASKED:

Q. At one market where I shop some of the eggs are labeled "organic" and cost quite a bit more than other eggs. What are organic eggs? Are they worth the extra

A. This is difficult to answer since the California Department of Food and Agriculture does not have a definition for the term "organic.

In most cases, 'organic' may be used to describe eggs laid by hens that are maintained on the floor or free range instead of in cages and/or those hens housed with cocks, or male chickens.

This type of management system, floor vs. cage, is normally determined by the size and age of the poultry farm. Small, older ranches may have their birds on the floor.

Most newer ranches have their birds in cages. This allows for better utilization of space, better labor efficiency and also improves disease prevention and results in cleaner eggs.

The "organic" label also has been applied to eggs produced by hens that are consuming diets that do not contain any drugs or hormones. By this definition, most eggs in the supermarket are "organic." In other instances the term may be applied to eggs produced from feed which does not contain meat byproducts such as meat, fish, and bone meal.

Thus, "organic" means different things to different people. How-ever, the type of management system does not affect the quality of eggs, their nutritional value, or wholesomeness. So paying a higher price for them is of questionable

Q: At the store where I shop they claim that the fertile eggs they sell are more nutritious than infertile eggs sold at supermarkets. Is this true?

A. No. A hen will ovulate and form eggs without ever being in contact with a cock. If the two sexes are maintained together, fertile eggs will be produced. This is both desirable and necessary if the eggs are to be incubated for the production of chicks.

But in terms of eggs produced for human consumption, there's no reason to produce fertile eggs. The difference between an unincubated fertile egg and an unfertile egg is so small as to be indistinguishable and has no effect on the nutritional value of the eggs.

Q. I have a friend who doesn't eat eggs because she's afraid the hormones they feed chickens to make them lay more eggs might be harmful. Is this something to be concerned about?

A. No! No hormones are used in egg or poultry production. The poultry producer provides the hen with a balanced diet that meets all of her needs for body maintenance and egg production.

In fact, more is known about the nutrition of the chicken than about any other animal, including man. The diet is predomiantly a corn and soybean mixture, but also contains vitamins and minerals, and may contain other grains and by-product feeds such as fish, meat, or cottonseed meal. Even with sound poultry management practices, the laying hen may be subject to disease, so in some cases a low level of antibiotic may be added to the ration, but there is no carry-over of this material into the egg.

Lion Country gets green light for new rides

By PHIL SNEIDERMAN

Irvine City Council members have unanimously overturned a planning department ruling that might have reopardized plans to build water amusement rides at Lion Country

City planning officials had urged a three to four-month review be conducted before allowing construction of water slides and other amusements at the former wild animal park

But representatives of Lion Coun-

They said the $4.5 million Lion Country project would be abandoned if the city imposed a further delay Tuesday's council decision hinged on whether the businesses were required to obtain a new conditional use permit before constructing the water rides. Obtaining such a permit requires environmental, traffic, parkalso have to be reviewed by the city's transportation and planning com-

The developers argued that Lion Country's existing permit, issued in 1973, was sufficient. They said it allows the proposed amusement

The 1973 document lists park rides, themed amusement rides, shallow lakes, ponds and waterfalls as permitted uses in Lion Country's entertainment area

But Par Haley a city planning staff member, said water slide amusement centers are a relatively new form of entertainment not envisioned when the original permit was issued.

Attorneys for the developers said the 15 water rides proposed for Lion Country would not create a new parkbut would be additions form existing entertaiment center. They said a 40 foot mound would be constructed for the water slides, but that most of the present landscaping and many exist ing buildings would be preserved.

Kidnapper gets 34 years in acid assault, rape of teen

SAN BERNARDINO (AP) - A 65-year-old maintenance man who kidnapped, sexually assaulted and poured acid over a teen-age girl, blinding and disfiguring her, was sentenced today to 34 years in prison.

Superior Court Judge Don A. Turner sentenced Jack Oscar King to the maximum term allowable under the law - the term requested by Deputy District Attorney Dwight Moore, who has said: "I will be astonished if the judge does not give him a long term.

The sentence included no probation for King.

The victim of King's attack last October, Cheryl Bess, 16, was absent today because of a medical appoint-

King was convicted Aug. 14 of kidnapping, attempted murder, attempted rape, attack with a harmful substance and forced oral copulation.

"I submitted a memorandum indicating the maximum sentence is 34 years and I urged the court to give him every second of those 34 years," the prosecutor said.

The girl's mother, Norma Bess, said recently that she thinks King deserves the death penalty, but would be satisfied if he received a term in a grim, maximum security prison such as San Quentin.

Cheryl Bess was a 15-year-old San Bernardino High School student when she was blinded and disfigured before being left for dead last Oct. 24 in the Mojave Desert, 65 miles east of Los Angeles.

She testified at King's trial about how she was sexually attacked and then doused with sulfuric acid. She feigned death and King left, the girl testified, describing how she wandered through the desert for help as her clothing disintegrated.

A paramedic testified during the trial that parts of the girl's face washed away as he rinsed her, and then the acid began blistering the paint on the pickup truck belonging to the man who spotted her in the desert and rescued her.

Bess has undergone a series of reconstructive plastic surgeries and receives therapy three times a week. Treatment will continue for years.

Since the attack, the girl and her mother moved from San Bernardino to Orange to be near the UC Irvine Medical Center, where reconstructive operations have been performed by Dr. Bruce Achauer, a nationally known surgeon.

Since the attack, the most emotionally painful moment for the girl was being called to testify, her mother has said.

The prosecutor said Bess' testiwhich lasted about an hour and 45 minutes, was vital in convict-

Death plunge cancels tour of Japanese dance troupe

SEATTLE (AP) — The Japanese dance troupe Sankai Juku has canceled its seven-city U.S. tour after one of its members plummeted six stories to his death before a horrified crowd in the group's first American performance.

Yoshiyuki Takada, 31, died at Harborview Medical Center Tuesday of "multiple trauma and head injuries" shortly after he fell in a noontime show to promote the group's performances here.

Takada plunged to his death just after he and three other performers, attached at their ankles to ropes, began to be lowered separately from the roof of the building in a performance described as a "dance of birth and death.

Mark Murphy, a publicist for On the Boards, the Seattle organization presenting Sankai Juku's local performances, said the rope did not come unfastened, but appeared to have "Apparently, as soon as they came over the top (of the building), the rope broke or one person came unhooked and came six stories down to the sidewalk," said police Sgt. John Wilton. "There was already quite a crowd there for the lunch hour to watch this performance."

The accident occurred shortly after noon at the Mutual Life Building in Jean Colman, who was standing across the street, said that after the man fell, the crowd was stunned to silence. She said she expected a rope to catch him, "but he just kept

Murphy said three performances scheduled this week at the University of Washington and the remainder of the national tour had been canceled by the surviving four members of the

"They have performed the outdoor performance over 100 times around the world, and incidents like this never occurred," he said.

After Takada was taken to the hospital, the thick rope was taken away by police for examination. The rope belonged to the troupe.

Murphy said plans are under way for a memorial to Takada, whose parents are considering a trip to the United States as part of a Japanese custom in which the place of death is honored in some way.

Hours after the accident, a small mound of flowers had been placed by individuals on the sidewalk where the Weldele said the commission is expected to discuss the HOV lanes later this month. He added that Caltrans is hoping to receive all the necessary approvals by next spring.

Transportation officials will continue accepting written public comments until Oct. 10. Car pool lanes have become a key factor in Caltrans' efforts to unsnarl rush hour traffic crawling along Orange County and other Southern California freeways. In fact, state transportation officials have scheduled a Sept. 19 hearing at Tustin City Hall on a plan to designate car pool lanes on the Costa Mesa (55) Freeway, which is being repaved and restriped to add another lane in each direction. The $8.5 million project is expected to conclude next spring

On the San Diego Freeway, the average rush hour speed of 25 mph is expected to slow to 21 mph in the next six years, 15 mph in the next 20.

According to a Caltrans report, average speeds would jump considerably if the new lanes are opened to general traffic. However, travel would slowly begin to slow over the next two decades.

If reserved for car pools, the HOV lane would maintain an average of 50 mph despite the increased traffic during the coming years. The report also indicated that in one year the car pool lane would generate less traffic than a general lane, but carry the same amount of

FREE CLINIC AILING FINANCIALLY...

If the clinic cannot raise at least that much to tide it over through the New Year, some services will have to be eliminated, she said. The free clinic opened its doors in October 1970 to care for the transients who thronged the resort city during the days of flower power and These days, most clinic users are the working poor - those at or near the poverty level who cannot afford a regular physician for themselves or their children, Hetrick said. In 1983, the clinic provided medical, legal, dental and psychological services to nearly 23,000 people, most from south Orange County. Today's clinics operate at capacity and there is more demand for some services like prenatal care — than the clinic can satisfy, she said.

About half of the clinic's $417,000 budget comes from grants. The health facility is a United Way agency and receives state funding for family planning and rape prevention ac-

But clinic fund-raising efforts targeted at individual and corporate donations have not been successful this year and longer than usual delays in receiving state money have made for a serious cash flow problem, Hetrick said.

In previous years, the clinic would have had about $60,000 stockpiled in September to get it through periods when grant funds are traditionally delayed, she said. Without that cushion this year, the clinic will have difficulty paying its bills, Hetrick

"We're hoping the community might give us some support...we're hoping we might be able to have a save-the-clinic effort," she said.

The Laguna Beach Free Clinic is the only such facility operating in south Orange County. Aside from county services available in Santa Ana, the clinic offers the area's only free pre-natal care and counseling.

Volunteer physicians and aides run four evening medical clinics a week. Birth control, prenatal and senior clinics operate during the day.

Legal and psychological counseling services are available by appoint-

Vulnerable people - those with the least financial resources - will be hurt if the clinic must cut services or close, Hetrick said. If one of the evening clinics were stopped, the free clinic would have to set up a quota system to handle the overflow on other nights, she said.

"We would be, in essence, turning away people in need of medical services. There is no other place for them to go," Hetrick said.

The clinic has scheduled a fundraising dinner Sept. 22 at the Broadway Bar and Grill. Tickets are available through the clinic.

Those wishing to make a donation, may call clinic volunteers at 494-0761 or contact Jan Ballister at the Laguna Bank, 494-9474.

ment to negotiate in good faith," she Hodel's decision got support from an industry group, the American Petroleum Institute, which said that stifling exploration could contribute to a future energy crisis. "It would be folly to close off 98 percent of oil properties off California shore, as initially proposed, or any substantial amount - by moratorium, negotiated agreement or any other means," said spokesman Gus

"California's coastal areas are perhaps the most important ones left in the country from a petroleum standpoint," he said.

Panetta, chief House negotiator, said the majority of the delegation offered to make minor changes in the 150 tracts to get the deal through Congress, but Hodel insisted on major changes. The secretary previously said the 150 tracts in the agreement represented only 5 percent to 10 percent of the state's potential offshore petroleum resources. He said that was insufficient, and the oil industry

Congress, fearing environmental damage, has imposed a moratorium annually since 1981 to forbid new exploratory drilling along about three-fourths of the California coast.
