Gunmen storm Mesa apartment

A Costa Mesa father and his two sons escaped injury Thursday when armed intruders kicked in their front door and fired several shots into their apartment. Lap Tran and his sons Lang and Luong said they fear the early morning violence may have been gang-

Lap Tran said he couldn't sleep after returning home from work late Wednesday. He laid in his bed waiting for the morning newspaper delivery.

Elderly Mesan has 60 days to leave mobile home park

By BOB VAN EYKEN

An elderly Costa Mesa woman has less than six weeks to vacate the mobile home she owns and has lived in for 36 years, under the terms of an eviction notice that a senior citizens' legal advocate said is probably illegal.

A representative of the property owner said he would try to resolve the matter, but said he could not specify what measures might be taken to help the woman.

Stella Butters, 90, said an agent for White Stone Properties, owner of the Aloha Palms Mobile Home Park presented her with the 60-day eviction notice and offered her $2,500 to move out of her small trailer.

Butters said an agent for the owners told residents they wanted to replace her unit and others in the park with new mobile homes.

Last Year, White Stone was ordered by a Harbor Municipal Court judge to perform repairs and reno-vations at Aloha Palms after a renters' strike and lawsuit drew attention to squalid conditions in many of the mobile homes there.

But Butters said the money she was offered is less than sums paid to other residents, many of them renters, as incentives to move. And, in any case, it is not enough

"I don't understand why they're treating some people differently from others," she said. "Their excuse is I've got an old trailer. Well, I'm not asking them to give me a new one. I just want them to find me another place to live.'

Ed Bensyl, a representative of White Stone, said he was not aware of the exact circumstances of Butters' eviction notice. He said there might have been other alternatives offered to her.

"What it smacks of is a mis-understanding," he said. "I don't have all the facts. But I know Mrs. Butter very well, and I'd like to see this resolved."

Bensyl said in a second phone conversation Thursday that he was certain Butters' would not be left out in the cold. Butters' daughter, Huntington

A staff attorney for the Senior Citizens' Advocacy Program of Or-ange County Legal Aid said he did not believe the property owner had followed correct procedure in issu-

"In order to do this, they have to give long-term notice, of a year or more, and they're only permitted to evict for certain restricted reasons. They seeminly won't follow the law.

Simon said his office was not representing Butters now, but would probably take up the case if White Stone were to try to evict her.

"I think it's very clear," he said. "I would enjoy pursuing this case, if it came to that.

Edison drug testing program's fame spreads

By ALEX WILLIAMS

A voluntary drug testing program spawned at Edison High School in Huntington Beach is spreading throughout the Orange Coast and beyond, partly because adminis-trators find its legality and confiden-tiality attractive, the program's founder said.

The nationally recognized program, so far available only to athletes and spirit leaders, may soon offer members of language clubs and student government a socially acceptable alternative to drug use, said Dr. Robert Belanger, Edison's team physician who, along with former Edison head football coach Bill offers voluntary drug testing to interested students, promising to disclose test results only to parents not to schools or police. Students, in return, receive an excuse not to use drugs. The everpresent threat of testing provides a shield against peer pressure and temptation, Belanger said.

Irvine's Woodbridge High School might become the next school to follow Edison's lead. Last Tuesday, Irvine Unified School District trustees discussed the possibility of importing Edison's system.

No decision will be made for two to three months, said Dean

Workman, developed the program. Waldfogel, the district's assistant superintendent in charge of instruction and curriculum.

The program may not be in place at Woodbridge until spring, if at all, Waldfogel said. But several in the district find the program attractive,

"We're always interested in helping kids make wise choices, aldfogel said.

If Woodbrige adopts the program, the school would follow not only Edison, but Westminster and Mission Viejo high schools in testing volunteers at random over the course of the school year.

Huntington Beach's Ocean View High School adopted the program last year, but discontinued it when volunteer funding from local high schools dried up.

Some Orange Coast school districts have looked at the program and decided against it - such as the Laguna Beach district - or not yet fully analyzed the program - such as the Newport-Mesa district.

But districts as near as Orange and as distant as Simi Valley, Arizona, Michigan and even New Zealand have either adopted the program or shown strong interest, Belanger said. What makes the program unique from other, more controversial experiments in high school drug testing is the word "voluntary," Belanger and Workman first decided to explore a testing program in the early 1980s, when studies revealed that Edison, even with its national champion football team of 1979, was not immune to the national epidemic of teen-age drug use, Belanger said. Reports began to trickle back from college that successful former Edison players were continuing drug use they began at Edison. It was time to ferret out the problem, the two de-

OC Medi-Cal crisis averted as 11th-hour pact reached

RANDA CARDWELL

In an 11th-hour agreement, Foun-ain Valley Regional Hospital and dedical Center officials Thursday d a contract to continue serving Medi-Cal patients.

The hospital was due to stop receiving Medi-Cal patients at mid-night but officials signed a one-year renewal agreement with the state edical insurance program, said spital Administrator George Hospital officials were barred om discussing the agreement, but observers said it represents a turning point for the Medi-Cal program.

"I don't think this is the end of the Medi-Cal crisis, but this is a good sign," said Anthony Abbate, senior vice president of the Hospital Council of Southern California.

The Fountain Valley hospital is one of the county's largest contrac-tors with Medi-Cal and ending the relationship would have burdened smaller area hospitals, Abbate said.

"This is the first place we've seen a breakthrough in the Orange County (Medi-Cal crisis,)" Abbate said. It really took a combination of the obstetrics crisis at UCI Medical Center and the real aggressive action of a couple of legislators to turn this thing around.'

Recently, UCI Medical Center decided to turn away women who weren't UCI patients when the hospital maternity and emergency wards were full. The decision concerned neighboring hospital officials who feared an influx of maternity patients who couldn't pay Abbate said Assemblywoman Doris Allen, R-Cypress, and Super-visor Harriett Wieder lobbied to keep Orange County from becoming like Los Angeles County, where there are several areas without hospitals to treat Medi-Cal patients.

"They got after California Medical Assistance Commission (which negotiates the Medi-Cal contracts) and Medi-Cal to become more realistic in their negotiations and it appears they have," Abbate said. The agreement means more money for the hospital, which has suffered significant financial losses in recent years because of low and slow state reimbursements for Medi-Cal patients, officials said.

Fog blamed for power outages to 10,000 homes

BY BOB VAN EYKEN

Heavy fog caused several power poles to spark and burst into flames, cutting off electricity to more than 10,000 Newport Beach homes and businesses Thursday morning, a Southern California Edison spokesman said. Most customers had their power restored in less than half an hour, but about 50 residents of Bay Isle were without electricity until late Thursday afternoon, said Edison area manager Jim Kennedy.

The power failure began at about 10 a.m. when fires broke out on poles at 47th Street and Superior Avenue, Anade Street and Bay Avenue and at Newport Boulevard and Coast Highway, Kennedy said.

"There was heavy fog near the beach this morning, and what some-times happens is the electricity white crack with the moisture. And sometimes it causes a fire," he said. "We have that problem from time to time, but it's unusual to have three in one morning.

Most of the Balboa Peninsula and the bay islands were affected by the power failure, Kennedy said. Service was restored to all but Bay Isle by 10:26 a.m., he said.

According to the report, which was made public Thursday and which the commission will consider at Monday's meeting. Cox provided "valuable feedback" to the com-

It concludes that Cox and his company, CBA Marketing, have been "a contributing factor" in gaining countywide support for the plan and recommends the final $10,000 be paid. Public information officer Tom Fortune said the commission has no record of how much time

Cox spent working on the proposal.

The 20-year plan, which requires voter approval of a half-cent countywide sales tax increase, has been approved by the commission, the board of supervisors and a majority of the cities representing 78 percent of the population. On Monday, the commission is expected to decide to place the proposal on the November ballot.

The staff report also considered the way the contract was approved. Since the work order was broken into two parts, Offelie needed only to consult with Chairman Riley before approving the expenditure. Initially, Riley did not remember approving the contract, although he later recalled the transaction.

Approval of the full commission is necessary only for purchase orders of more than $10,000. The plan was split in two parts because of the uncertain progress of the transportation plan, according to Jim Kenan, chief deputy director of the commission. The first part of the agreement rovided that Cox would be paid 5,000 per month for two months to present the tax plan to Orange County cities. The second phase involved another $5,000 per month agreement for two months. Phase two was scheduled to begin immediately following completion of phase

Since there is no county regulation regarding successive purchase orders, the report recommends the rules be changed to require commission approval when total payment to a single vendor or consultant exceeds $10,000 in a fiscal year.

in the downtown. The new plan, which received unanimous endorsement from City Council members Wednesday night. calls for office and retail buildings and restaurants in the first block between Main and Fifth streets and Pacific Coast Highway and Walnut

About 130 three- and four-story condominiums are planned in the second block between Fifth and Sixth streets and Pacific Coast Highway and Walnut Avenue.
The old buildings that currently dot the area were constructed in the 1920s and 30s. They're slated to be demolished early next year to make room for the new Mediterranean-style structures. Current business owners will retain ownership of the retail and office buildings. Griffin Related Properties will be the master developer and will develop the condominiums.

"This is real positive," Coun-cilman John Erskine said. "One of the reasons we ran for office in 1986 was to clean up the site and get rid of the head shops, biker bars and four stores. To be sensitive to the swners and to reach a consensus is real milestone."

City Administrator Paul Cook also disclosed Thursday that the Huntington Beach/Fountain Valley Board of Realtors wants to build a combination office building in the project area with a 10,000-squarefoot meeting room and a parking structure at Fifth and Walnut, the site of the old Terry Buick agency.

Cook said the Realtors organization, which has weekly meetings of 400 or so members, will bring "pro-fessional people" to downtown businesses in weekday hours.

The conceptual plan also scraps earlier intentions to close Fifth Street to through traffic in order to carve out more space for condominiums. Downtown owners strongly protested the street closure. claiming it would cut off their businesses from customers.

The plan also calls for keeping intact the historic Worthy building at Sixth and Walnut.

Jim Lane, a downtown business owner, said the new plan balances business and residential elements. "It's the best possible solution," he said. "It does lots of things. It provides a brand new retail area and it downscales the residential plan. It's much more in keeping with a village atmosphere."
Redevelopment projects have started across the street on the south side of Main Street. A four-story parking structure is going up on the second block inland of Pacific Coast highway and a 130-condominium unit and six-screen movie complex are being built at the site of the old Golden Bear nightclub at Pacific Coast Highway and Main Street.

dent athletes, and therefore were mired in civil liberties lawsuits that would eventually haul them down. Belanger said.

The Edison pair removed the 'mandatory' clause that civil liberties lawyers found odious. The Huntington Beach Union High School District provided three lawyers to craft legally acceptable language, and Belanger and Workman took their proposed policy before American Civil Liberties Union attorneys.

The attorneys were skeptical about so-called voluntary programs, but found nothing flatly objec-tionable in the proposal. Belanger

Five years later, California leads the nation in schools involved in voluntary testing. Belanger said, adding that all current programs around thestate were modeled on the Edison program.

The testing has become routine at Edison, he said.

Each year, out of about 200 Edison athletes, about 100 sign up, willingly entering themselves in the testing pool. Many of those who don't sign up are not so much admitting their drug problem as they are avoiding the required paperwork and the need to obtain the required signatures, Belanger said.

Drug traces are found in the urine of approximately 1 to 2 percent of the athletes each year, he said.

The drug is rarely alcohol, since alcohol vanishes from the bloodstream four to six hours after ingestion, Belanger said. Drugs most often found arc marijuana, cocaine, amphetamines and barbiturates. Belanger said the most common question about the program is why anyone is ever caught. After all, no student is required to sign up for

But Belanger said some youths sign up in the fall and forget their signature binds them for eight months of sobriety. Others do not realize they can be tested more than once each year, since the names of those tested are simply dropped back in the pool with those untested. At least half get tested twice in any given year, he said.

Sometimes, traces of permissible drugs, such as diet pills or over-thecounter antihistamines, turn up in frequently must inform parents he has detected codeine in their son's bloodstream and just as frequently learns the codeine is present for legitimate health reasons. The doctor, however, admits the program is no panacea for prevent-ng teen-age drug use. He says his efforts, made financially possible only through donations of local hospitals and clinics, would be of questionable value if they did not accompany drug education programs in schools, as well as other programs such as student telephone hotlines and alcohol-free graduation night parties.

Regardless, Belanger said his program should grow in the future because it offers the borderline drug users, if not the hardcore drug users, a reason to decline a smoke or a snort at their first high school parties.

"It's for the younger student, the 10th or 11th grader, to give them a little more reason to say no.' Belanger said. He heard of one young student who showed up at a party and declined to use drugs because the Edison drug test might uncover evidence that would incriminate her in the eyes of her parents.

The story would not be uncommon if it weren't for one small detail, Belanger said. "That girl didn't even go to Edison.

OC suicide survey results surprising

By EMILY ADAMS

Suicidal thoughts run higher in young adults than in any other age group in Orange County, according to preliminary findings from a UCI survey released

One researcher believes it may be because of downward mobility faced by many in the younger generation.

The $150,000 survey, in which 800 county households were interviewed over the course of eight months, found 8.2 percent of men and women in the 18-34 age group had considered suicide, while only 3 percent of adults in the 35-49 age bracket had contemplated killing them-

A total of 5.2 percent of all those interviewed said they had been "bothered with thoughts about taking their own life" within the past six months.

mean approximately 88,400 adults in had. That's a depressant." Orange County may be considering

But what surprised researchers was not the number of people who had thought of suicide, but the ages of those who most often answered in the affirmative.

"In general, most surveys find elderly people considering suicide — those who are retired and have lived a full life." said Ray Catalano, a principal researcher in the survey and former UCI professor. What's peculiar here is that the 18- to 34-year-olds are far and away higher in Orange County.

The question, then, is why are younger people in Orange County more apt to consider suicide'

There's a lot of reasons for that, including economics," said Catalano, "If you've graduated from high school here. chances are that you're downwardly mobile. You're probably not going to be On a countywide scale, that would able to afford a house like your parents

Throughout the age groups, the survey also found women to have a higher incidence of self-destructive notions than men. But that was no surprise to

"Women traditionally report higher in these types of surveys," Catalano said. That may be due to cultural differences. however. Women tend to admit to depression and seek help easier than men Orange County's percentages are still much lower than, for instance, Los Angeles County's, Catalano said. In a series of 16 surveys conducted between 1978 and 1982 in Los Angeles, researchers found 8.5 percent of those interviewed had entertained suicidal thoughts.

concentration of suicidal thoughts appeared in the higher age brackets which, Catalano said, is more in line with national figures. The purpose of the survey, which is part of the Orange County Health Survey and funded by the private Irvine Health Foundation, is to gauge the need for preventative services and allow health organizations to anticipate demand. Knowing of a higher incidence of suicidal thoughts in the young means county and private health officials can gear suicide prevention programs to a more youthful audience.

Initial findings from this year's surveys - which include other issues such as depression, cancer, heart disease, smoking, drinking, family planning and job - will be available later this

Jail-break mastermind suspect denies charges

A suspected armed robber pleaded innocent Thursday to charges he masterminded the escape last year of five inmates from the Orange County Jail.

Michael Douglas Taylor, also known as Anthony Michael Gianetti, pleaded innocent to felony charges of escape, robbery and kidnap in connection with the jail

He and another escapee allegedly kidnapped a man a few blocks from the jail and then stole his car. Deputy District Attorney John Lett said.

Taylor, who was making his first Orange County court appearance since the jailbreak, stood with a book in front of his face to avoid news cameras.

Courtroom security was beefed up for Taylor's arraignment because of the "high risk" of escape. Orange County Sheriff's Lt. Richard Olson said.

Brush fires rage across state

CAMPO — Firefighters battled a series of brush fires Thursday across California, including a blaze near the Mexican border that scorched over 1,100 acres of steep and rocky canyons, authorities said. Over 1,000 firefighters were called to the Dog Patch fire, which broke out Wednesday 40 miles east of San Diego city. By Thursday, the fire was 100 percent surrounded and 50 percent controlled, said California Department of Forestry spokeswoman Carol Stein.

Seven firefighters suffered minor injuries combatting the blaze includbee stings, cuts and scratches and heat exhaustion, said Stein.

Valdez to get escort in San Diego

SAN DIEGO - The Coast Guard, intent on keeping the curious or the angry away from the Exxon Valdez, said Thursday the damaged tanker will receive a protective escort when it arrives Tuesday for repairs.

'We don't want to impede anyone's right to protest, but at the same time we've got to get that ship through the channel," Coast Guard Cmdr. Jack Scarborough said of the Valdez, the source of the nation's worst oil

The tanker was damaged March 24 when it struck a reef in Alaska's Prince William Sound. More than 11 million gallons of crude escaped into the sound, staining coastal areas, polluting the water and condemning countless animals to death.

NATIONAL BRIEFS Crack in jet's fuselage probed

SEATTLE — Boeing Co. engineers on Thursday were trying to determine why an aging United Airlines 727 developed a 20-inch crack in a part of its fuselage.

The split was in the same general area as the rupture in an Aloha Airlines 737 that lost part of its roof over Hawaii last year. However, both Boeing and the Federal Aviation Administration, said the cracking appeared entirely different from that in the Aloha plane.

The FAA ordered inspections and any necessary repairs of the 47 oldest 727s after the crack was discovered by United inspectors during a routine maintenance check June 26 at Denver's Stapleton International Airport.

High court rules for gay lover

ALBANY, N.Y. - New York's highest court ruled Thursday that a partner in a long-term homosexual relationship can take over the couple's rent-controlled apartment when the lover who signed the lease dies.

in a 4-2 ruling, the Court of Appeals ordered a lower court to reconsider its decision permitting the eviction of a New York City man from a rent-controlled apartment he shared for a decade with his lover, who died. In doing so, the court expanded the definition of a "family" as it applies to New York's rent-control laws. The word is crucial because state law says only "family members" may continue to live in rent-controlled apartments.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. - For three years, federal housing officials in Alabama lost track of $2 million in government money. It was supposed to help middle-income home buyers, but records indicate it went instead for a $50,000 Mercedes, an $18,000 speed boat, jewelry, furs and video Documents obtained from the Department of Housing and Urban Development by The Associated Press allege that Montgomery real estate broker Cy Walker hid the money with the help of blank forms that he apparently got from an unwitting First Alabama Bank employee.

Walker, who handled sales of HUD's foreclosed homes in the Montgomery area, put agency money from the sales closings into a First Alabama account that he alone controlled, according to HUD documents. Those records and AP interviews indicate that Walker appeared to underwrite a high-rolling lifestyle.

Blood tainted with AIDS not detected by standard tests

CHICAGO (AP) — Blood plasma tainted with the AIDS virus has been discovered in commercial supplies although a standard blood screening process failed to detect it.

researchers said. The discovery means blood contaminated by the human immunodeficiency virus, or HIV. could infect transfusion patients, said Dr. Jean Pierre Allain, an author of the study published in Friday's Journal of the American Medical Association. Allain, of Abbott Laboratories in North Chicago, and fellow re-searchers studied 35,000 blood plasma samples collected over two years at two plasma collection centers and found seven to be HIVinfected, a number he called "fairly

However, officials with the American Red Cross said although the threat of a transfusion recipient being infected by AIDS-contaminated blood plasma is real, the risk is small. "Of the 2,236 transfusion-associated cases of AIDS reported by the Centers for Disease Control in April 1989, only two cases resulted from transfusions given since the implementation of HIV-1 antibody screening in early 1985," said Roger Y. Dodd and Lewellys F. Barker, of the American Red Cross, in an accompanying editorial.

Acquired immune deficiency syndrome is caused by a virus that damages the body's immune system, leaving victims susceptible to infections and cancer. It is spread most often through sexual contact, needles or syringes shared by drug abusers, infected blood or blood products and from pregnant women to their offspring.

The current, licensed test cannot participated in the study.

detect the AIDS virus until the body's immune system has produced antibodies to fight the virus, usually about four weeks after infection, Allain said.

Allain said he and other researchers have developed a test that they say can cut the detection time in half. The test searches for viral particles known as antigens, which appear about two weeks after infec-

"At this stage, the HIV is highly infectious, higher than at any other stage," Allain said.

Beyond that point, the immune system produces antibodies that repress reproduction of the HIV virus,

The test currently is awaiting approval by the Food and Drug Administration.

The researchers said they knew of no deaths caused by HIV-contaminated blood plasma that had slipped through the screening pro-

Although the improved test works, it is not necessary because current safety procedures are good enough, Dodd said.

'We already have three levels of safety, choosing good donors, testing them before each donation and getting rid of whatever is left. Another level of safety wouldn't be necessary," Dodd said.

In addition to Abbott Laboratories, researchers from the University of Washington, the Central Public Health Laboratory in London and the University of California at Los Angeles School of Medicine

Poll: 50% opposed to abortion ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) - Fifty detailed results. percent of Americans surveyed in a. new poll say they oppose the Supreme Court decision making it easier for the states to regulate abortion. the newspaper USA Today said

Forty percent of the 662 adults polled by Gordon S. Black Corp. said they support the court's ruling.

The court ruled on Monday that Missouri could require certain medical tests of fetal viability and keep public hospitals from performing abortions. The justices said they would hear three cases next year that raise the possibility of even further narrowing or overturning of the 1973 Roe vs. Wade decision that legalized abortion in the United

The USA Today poll being published in Friday editions did not ask respondents their positions on Roe Vs. Wade. The announcement of results Thursday did not indicate why those opposing and supporting Monday's decision took the positions they did, and spokeswoman Sheila Gibbons said she did not know if that was tabulated in the reported they would be likely to base a voting decision on a candidate's stand on abortion. This was twice the percentage, 19 percent, that reported basing a past voting decision on abortion.

Asked what regulations they might support, 75 percent of the respondents said parents of those under 18 should be notified if their daughter seeks an abortion, 63 percent said husbands or partners should be notified when adults seek abortions and 44 percent said abortions should not be performed in public health facilities.

The Associated Press-Media Gen eral poll of 1,108 people in April reported that 53 percent favored Roe vs. Wade and 65 percent said a woman should be able to get an abortion if her doctor agrees to it. These responses cannot necessarily be compared with the USA Today results because the questions were different.

Hunting opponents kick off initiative drive

SACRAMENTO (AP) - With an 11-month-old cougar playing at their feet, environmental groups and three Democratic lawmakers announced an initiative campaign Thursday to ban mountain lion hunting.

Chelsey the cougar alternately purred, posed and playfully attacked microphones and one legislator's tie at a Capitol news conference as initiative backers outlined the proposal they said is needed to save her species from extinction.

However, state game officials said after the news conference that the hunt they have proposed unsuccessfully the past years would not threaten survival of the species.

The 90-pound cat at the news conference was born in captivity and lives at the Wild Things exotic animal compound in Salinas. But it would be game for sports hunters if it lived in the wild, said Bill Yeates, president of the Mountain Lion Coalition.

"Most likely, if this was one that was treed by hounds after relentlously being chased by a pack of hounds, it would be shot at point-blank range on the branch of a tree."
Yeates said. "We find this to be just a despicable sport and one that we think should be outlawed in the state of California."

Assemblyman Richard Katz, D-Panorama City, said a hunting ban is needed to prevent the decimation of cougars. Chelsey rolled on the desk in front of Katz, batted at microphones and lightly nipped Katz's tie before jumping to the floor, where the leashed cat stayed with her two handlers the remainder of the news conference.

"If we don't act to protect Chelsey and other California mountain lions today, then the California mountain lion may go the way of the California condor, which you can only find in the zoo, or the California grizzly bear, which you can only find on the California state flag," Katz said.

But after the news conference a state biologist accused the initative backers of playing on voters' emotions, ignoring biological studies and hindering Department of Fish and Game afforts to manage a course. of Fish and Game efforts to manage a cougar population he said is growing.

Terry Mansfield, a Fish and Game Department wildlife manager in Sacramento, said in an interview that limited hunts proposed by the agency pose no threat to the species survival. Fish and Game estimates there are over 5,000 cougars statewide, but environmentalists dispute that census as too

"The important thing to emphasize is that California has a large, healthy lion popu-lation and it's widely distributed." Mansfield

A 14-year moratorium on mountain lion hunting expired in 1986. Fish and Game tried in 1987 and 1988 to issue permits to allow up to 190 trophy hunters to use hounds to tree and shoot one lion each during a 79-day season. Lawsuits blocked the hunt both years.

Mansfield said no hunt is planned this year because of litigation.

The proposed California Wildlife Protection Act would ban the sport hunting of mountain lions and allocate $30 million a year for the next 30 years for preserving habitat for the wild cats, deer and endangered

A Romanian couple in the 81st hour of a hunger strike jumped for joy Thursday as immigration of-ficials announced the woman's widowed mother would be granted a special "humanitarian" -visa.

As reporters looked on, U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service Western Regional Commissioner Harold Ezell told Vasile Sofroni and his wife Lia, both 31, that her mother would be "paroled" into the United States.

Ezell said INS Commissioner Alan Nelson "had reviewed the case" in Washington.

"He felt there were humanitarian reasons why your mother-in-law could be paroled in," Ezell said. pleased to tell you that where most people maybe want to get rid of their motherin-law, you're going to get your mother-in-law here. The couple said they would eat "lots of pizza and hamburgers" when they got home.

Patricia Fanelli, a spokeswoman for Rep. Bob Dornan, R-Garden Grove, who had lobbied on Groza's behalf, said it could take some time before the woman gets to Southern California, because she must renew her Romanian passport.

The Sofronis, along with their two children, had been living in their cars in the INS parking in Westminster lot since 5 a.m. Monday. Their vehicles were covered with signs appealing for help and explaining the reason for their actions.

The couple, who have been in the United States four years, are legal residents but not yet citizens.

Government, citing cancer risk, bans asbestos use

By H. JOSEF HEBERT

WASHINGTON - The Environmental Protection Agency on Thursday ordered a ban on most remaining uses of cancer-causing asbestos, forbidding its use in hundreds of products from automobile brake parts to water pipes.

The prohibition will be phased in over the next seven years and apply only to new products. Asbestos-containing products already in use and not affected by previous restrictions - are not included because in some cases replacement might be more hazardous than a gradual phase-out, officials said.

The action, however, will end the use of asbestos by 1996 in all but a handful of commercial products guided missile liners, acetylene cylinders and some sealing tapes, for

How can you tell if you have what it takes to start your own business? You have to ask yourself at least one thing: Have you got the money? Here are some additional questions.

· How badly do you want it? "Entrepreneurs are people who have their self-esteem riding on their business idea," says Eric Jacobsen, presi-dent of RMA Consulting in Newport Beach. "If the business idea fails, their self-esteem suffers."

That's why successful business owners move heaven and earth to keep the business going. It's as if they are the business.

As part of his counseling service. Jacobsen helps high-level executives discover whether they have the right stuff. "If I'm looking at someone who has a high need to achieve but has an even stronger need to control others and to affiliate with others, I would be inclined to see them in a managerial role in an organization."

In short, it's not enough to want to be your own boss. As the roulette wheel turns, business owners are the folks with all their chips on the business itself.

• Are you an individualist? The people who say they want to be their own boss just might need a new boss. Or a vacation. Being your own boss can mean a loss, not a gain, of freedom. be viewed as an upside-down pyramid, with the business owner on the bottom. The business owner's creativity enables the employees to do their work. The employees' work keeps the customer on top of the pyramid from pyramid-hopping. Without the satisfied customer, the whole structure would topple. But it takes a strong individual to hold on. Jacobsen insists that business owners are so individualistic that there is nothing else you can say about the group as a whole. "There's no one quality you can pin on an entrepreneur. One woman helped by Jacobsen's firm developed "Mrs. Appletree's Muffins," a bakery product being sold at Nordstrom. Another started

 Can you hire a good management team? Campbell says he failed to do that in the early 1980s when he had his first business, a consulting firm. "I was just trying to do too much by myself. This time will be a lot different.

Entrepreneurs often find it harder to hire someone to help manage the business than to build a business from scratch. You have to pay your No. 2 man a great deal to lure him away from a company with perks. And many bosses decide to pick someone fresh from college: the inexperienced manager is easier to control. This can be a mistake if they end up without any real help.

•Can you make the most of a tight spot? Years after John Ehrlichman got out of prison, he wrote Ivan Boesky a few words of advice. The former lawyer of Watergate fame suggested to the insidertrading king that he hang a shingle out - within prison walls - offering legal services to fellow prisoners. "Never mind that you never prac-ticed criminal law," he told Boesky, "Where you are going you'll be Dr. Schweitzer among the lepers."

Do you know the market? In the 1950s, people invested large sums of money in a small furry creature about half the size of a rabbit, an animal whose native habitat was the snow-capped Andes Mountains of South America. The idea was to raise chinchillas domestically and make a killing on their coats. Too bad the market was zilch.

•Can you get along well with people? If not, it's no problem, insists Jacobsen, the RMA president. "Developing a product can be a very isolated process." The important thing is a committed employee group. "As long as there is that outside goal of achieving the business idea, they'll put up with one another for the sake of the goal. It's like any group of people. If there's an external threat that is bigger than their dislike of one another, they'll work together." Trump fights card firm over name

By MARC RICE

ATLANTA - Real estate magnate Donald J. Trump usually enjoys seeing his name on things, but he's fighting a small Georgia company over "Trump Cards," snazzy business cards the billionaire says infringe on his name.

Positive Concepts Ltd., the Lithia Springs company that makes the cards, contends it got the name from the term used for a suit in a card game that ranks above all others. The company's lawyers say the case has escalated into a battle over the limits of money and power.

"Donald Trump simply wants to own the word 'trump,' and anybody who wants anything to do with it will have to face Donald Trump," said Atlanta attorney Kevin L. Ward, "We care," eight want a word in the can't give up a word in the English language just because somebody has the power and money to do so. But Trump's attorneys say their client's name has become so well known that consumers are going to be confused into thinking the cards are backed by the man.

Last month, Trump won a federal court order temporarily barring a company from using the name "Trump Shuttle" for a moving and storage subsidiary in New York.

Trump renamed Eastern Air-lines' Washington-to-New York-to-Boston air shuttle the "Trump Shuttle" after buying it for $365 million this year.

Attorneys now are compiling depositions for the business card case, which ultimately will be considered by the federal Trademark and Patent Board in Washington.

At issue is PCL's line of business cards, which feature a photograph of the holder. The suburban Atlanta company has been making and distributing the cards since 1982, and currently has sales of about $2 million.

Company President Edward A. Zito said he adopted the name from a California company that also made the cards under the name "Trump Cards." Zito said the California company went out of business in 1982 and never obtained a trademark.

Zito said he was unfamiliar with Donald Trump at the time. Zito does not play cards, but said he decided to stick with the trump name after looking it up

American Stores — merger clear to go

By DENNIS ANDERSON Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES - American Stores says it will move to merge its Alpha Beta and Lucky supermarkets after the Ninth Court of Appeals rejected a challenge by the state attorney general. We are free after July 10 to integrate Lucky and Alpha Beta supermarkets," said Troy D'Ambrosio, a spokesman for American Stores, in a telephone interview from Salt Lake City. American Stores' purchase of the Dublin!

Calif.-based Lucky chain was blocked last September when Attorney General John Van de Kamp filed suit to stop the $2.5 billion merger. Van de Kamp contended the merger would harm consumers by reducing competition.

On March 31, the appeals court vacated a preliminary injunction that had blocked the merger. Van de Kamp petitioned for a rehearing. But the court rejected that petition on Monday, D'Ambrosio said.

We are not giving it up. We've expected all along that if necessary we would take this to the Supreme Court," said Michael Strumwasser, the special assistant attorney general.

While the merger can proceed, issues raised in the attorney general's lawsuit still must be settled or brought to trial, D'Ambrosio said. "Lifting the injunction doesn't drop the litigation," he said.

combining the two companies would drive up supermarket prices $400 million a year.

American Stores disputed the allegation, saying the merger would allow it to cut costs and save shoppers $78 million annually.

American Stores maintained some of the savings would be achieved by converting Alpha Beta stores to Lucky's discount pricing policy, American has 1,600 stores nationwide, including Jewel markets in Chicago, Acme on the eastern seaboard, Skaggs Alpha Beta and Buttery in the West and the 27-state Osco drugstore

Do bad bonds drive out the good?

Junk bonds scrutinized when used for leveraged buyouts

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK - Today, on the leading edge of modern, creative, nnovative financial and economic thinking, old Thomas Gresham isn't always listened to, although he shouts loudly from the grave.

His message is the same as it has been, "Bad money drives out good," and it applies today as it has since he stated it for the first time in the 16th century, when he was an adviser to Queen Elizabeth I.

But Gresham's law is, for the most part, ignored. Like bad money, a spate of experimental thinking, still unproved, has moved in where sound reasoning, demonstrated over the years, has departed.

Ignorance of the law, however, doesn't mean it has no significance.

Indeed, it's significance has been shown again as surely as it was in Queen Elizabeth's day, when debasement of the currency damaged

England's foreign trade.

For evidence of the modern application, you need only check what happens to the once-secure bonds of sound companies after newer, junk bonds are issued in a leveraged buyout — the value of the old bonds

James Creedon, president of Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., a major holder of existing RJR Nabisco bonds, can attest to their sudden decline in market value. The drop occurred when the company decided to undergo a junk bond-financed leveraged buyout last year. Metropolitan has sued, so far without success, for reimbursement.

Junk bonds are said by their supporters to be as good as any other even better. Their promoters claim that nobody can (as yet) demon-strate they are riskier. They pay very high yields to borrowers.

They are issued by borrowers often to raise funds for a leveraged buyout of a corporation or to take over another company. They carry high rates because those who issue them can't otherwise raise the money quickly.

In the RJR Nabisco deal, Creedon claims the issuance of junk bonds by companies that already have older, sounder bonds oustanding turns upside down some basic legal concepts governing the extension of credit.

One of the most fundamental principles of corporate law, he said in a recent speech, is that the claims of bondholders are superior to the claims of shareholders.

Thus, he said. "if a corporation is liquidated, the assets would be sold and the proceeds would be used to pay — first, the bondholders and other creditors, the bondholders and shareholders and lastly, if anything is remaining, the common share-

In the RJR Nabisco leveraged buyout, he continued, substantially all the company's net worth was paid out to its shareholders and the bondholders received nothing.

"The payment to shareholders was funded by enormous levels of new debt," he said, "In effect, the interests of shareholders were given priority over the interests of the bondholders."

Deals tying service to product outlawed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - A cellular telephone company cannot offer a discount on its products to those who buy its phone services, the state Public Utilities Commission declared Thursday.

The practice of "tying" the sale of phone equipment to the sale of cellular services violates a law requiring utilities to follow the rates hey file with the commission, the PUC said.

The PUC does not control the price of phone equipment, but regu-lates rates for phone services, and ilso governs utility practices that affect those rates. The commission said in a statement that a ban on "tying" discounts may appear to harm some customers in the short run, but would help customers in the long run by encouraging competition. The case that gave rise to the legal decision has not yet been resolved. It involved a complaint by the Cellular Resellers' Association that PacTel Cellular and two affiliates of Los Angeles SMSA Limited Partnership were installing cellular phones and antennas for free when customers bought cellular service from

A PUC hearing officer will hear more testimony on the facts of the case before deciding whether the companies offered illegal discounts.

From A7 of at least 200 cancer deaths, the agency estimated.

Asbestos over the years has had widespread industrial uses with an estimated 30 million tons of the mineral used in this country since the turn of the century, most of it since World War II. It has seemed ideal for insulation and frictionproduct uses because of its strength and resistance to heat.

But microscopic asbestos fibers can remain in the body for decades and have been blamed for a variety of illnesses including lung cancer; mesothelioma, an incurable cancer of the chest and abdominal membranes, and asbestosis, a chronic disease of the lungs that makes breathing progressively more difficult.

Reilly said the EPA - which first listed asbestos as a hazardous air pollutant in 1972 and urged its ban in 1979 — has taken too long to remove asbestos products from the marketplace, "The first question I had was why

EPA acton. In the mid-1980s, a congressional investigation concluded that the Office of Management and Budget held up proposal of a regulation for more than a year. That regulation was finally proposed in 1986, but no final action was taken until Thursday.

In recent years asbestos use has declined sharply because of concern about its health effects. There were 85,000 metric tons of asbestos used for a variety of products in 1987, compared with 240,000 metric tons three years earlier.

Two of the most widespread and continuing uses of asbestos is in the manufacturer of brake pads and linings for automobiles and trucks. Although automakers have been phasing out the use of asbestos, most new cars continue to have some asbestos brake products.

Asbestos also is part of the nation's water system. There are more than 400,000 miles of concreteasbestos pipe carrying drinking water to thousands of communities. The EPA said that while there is concern about health risks in the production and replacement of such pipes, there is no risk of contamination of drinking water.

"The bottom line is we're working as fast as we can to get there." Dunn said. Brake producers have long expected the ban and are gradually replacing asbestos with other products, said James Murray, president of Nuturn Corp., of Nashville, Tenn. Asbestos is used in only about 25 percent of the company's products. he said.

'If asbestos was banned tomorrow, we would continue to produce a product," he said. "It could be converted overnight.

Ilene Industries of Shelbyville, Tenn., no longer uses asbestos to manufacture brake linings and industrial gaskets, and this week the company is removing its remaining stock of asbestos sheet packing from its storeroom, vice president Ray Smith said.

Whether the switch from asbestos to other materials translates into sticker shock for some consumers remains an open question among industry officials.

Although he did not have precise figures, Bowditch said he did not believe the change would mean much steeper prices.

However, Ms. Simonetti, without providing exact figures, said the substitute material is "relatively more expensive. Reaction to the ban from other organizations was mixed. 'I'm pleased to see EPA has taken some action since that law has been in effect since 1976 and little has been done," said Peggy Seminario, associate director of the occupation safety and health department of the Seminario expressed the hope that the EPA will strictly regulate the asbestos substitutes used by manufacturers. "They may pose signifi-cant hazards as well," she said.

Dr. Sidney Wolfe of Public Citizen, consumer activist Ralph Nader's organization, said the ban is too far in the future," forcing Americans to live with a material that the scientific community has already labeled as dangerous.

Karen Florini, an attorney for the Environmental Defense Fund, said her organization was encouraged by the EPA's action.

"Finally EPA is preventing asbestos pollution by requiring people to switch to less dangerous materials," Florini said. "By banning asbestos products. EPA has stopped the entire cycle.'

Market ends with third straight gain

By CHET CURRIER

NEW YORK - The stock market eked out its third straight gain in another quiet session Thursday as traders awaited the latest monthly report on employment.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 5.88 to 2,462,44. bringing its gain since the start of the week to 22.38 points.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 9 to 5 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed stocks, with 965 up, 530 down and 503 unchanged.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board came to 140.45 million shares, against 127.70 million in the previous session. Nationwide, consolidated volume in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 166.37 million shares.

Analysts expect the figures to show growth at the rate of as much as 250,000 in nonfarm payroll employment, more than double the 101,000 preliminary increase reported for May.

But they also maintain that the June figure will be inflated by a quirk in the timing of surveys on which the data are based.

Thus, some argue, the latest evidence may not deter the Federal Reserve from relaxing its credit policy to cushion the impact of a slowdown in business activity.

Brokers added that a pickup in employment might be warmly received anyway in the financial world right now, by serving to calm the recession worries that began to flare up late last month.

Girl Scouts fund drive launched

By KAREN M. REED the Dally Pllot Staff

When you think Girl Scouts, do you think of cookies and calendars? Well, truth be known, those cookies and calendars have sustained the non-profit Girl Scout Council of Orange County for some 20 years. But right about now, they need just a little help from the

Such was the reason for a charming early evening gathering of council supporters at the Coto de Caza home of Gen. William and Willa Dean Lyon, as the fund-raising "cabinet" kicked off the drive to raise $1.5 million.

Funds raised will complete the development of Camp Scherman. the 700-acre camp in the San Jacinto mountains which has hosted some 8,000 Girl Scouts annually. While $1.5 million may seem like a lot. the original drive was for close to $4.5 million - but the Girl Scouts took care of nearly $3 million all by themselves.

"It is the 'camp that cookies built.' "said Ron Dominguez, chairman of the fund-raising campaign. in his welcome to the some 120 spread around the Lyons' pool and patio area. "This is the first time they (the Girl Scouts) have been out (to solicit funds) in 20 years. They have been self-sufficient from cookie and calendar sales.

According to Dominguez (who is executive vice president of Disneyland and took time away from the opening of the new Splash Mountain ride to assist in the fundraising effort), the campaign "just got rolling in the last two or three months. We'd like to wrap it up by Dan and Wendy Wheeler with Carol and Randy Harrel at fund drive kickoff.

Wrapping it up (and total funding) means an expansion of the facility to provide the camping experience to 3,500 annually. Guests enjoyed a short video illustrating the new facilities already under way. There are 22,000 Girl Scouts in Orange Coun-

"I think Camp Scherman and Girl Scouts are the best things the world ever created, "said Orange County executive director Mona Ware. "It (the camp) is a place for girls to learn new things ... a place where we can help to develop leadership."

Added Bernice Hird, president of the OC Girl Scout Council. "We're in the prevention business ... we can help them (the girls) to see there's a lot of fun in life and learn some things they're not aware of at the

"I spent many a night at the 'Mommy and Me' camp at Camp Scherman.' laughed original Mouseketeer Sherry Van Meter, a volunteer "mom" who supported Girl Scouts as a troop leader for six years and now serves with Dominguez on the fund-raising cabinet. Van Meter also presented Willa Dean Lyon with a giant chocolate chip cookie heart in appreciation for her support of the Girl Scouts. Two-younger Van Meters -Casey and Kelly — also participated in the program along with fellow scouts Jenny Brown, Amy Brown and Michelle Miller. To give supporters a "feel" of camp, the five young vocalists serenaded the group with a variety of camp songs, ably accompanied by "mom" Kay Brown on the autoharp.

"Please save your applause for the end." added Jenny Brown before they started - but no one did.

Gifts and pledges toward the $1.5 million have already exceeded $750,000, but just to spur a little more support, younger uniformed Brownies and Girl Scouts distributed pledge intention letters to those leaving the event.

"Give us your money," said one confident little fund-raiser as she handed out the scrolls.

Others serving on the campaign cabinet include Barbara and Robert Amstadter, Jim Warmington, Dan Wheeler, Elizabeth Stahr, Tom Nielsen. (who just happened to be attending a conference in London). and Jacque Schaar.

the rather unusual bid of four hearts, and met his just deserts. Afraid that East held five spades for his free bid, he won the opening spade lead with the ace, as East signalled enthusiastically with the king. (Holding up one round would have assured the contract as the cards lay.) A diamond finesse lost to the king and back came a spade.

East won the queen and jack and West had to find a discard. Most of us would discard our remaining diamond, but only an East with great peripheral vision would return a diamond, playing declarer to have suppressed four-card support. Some of us in the East seat would try to score a club as the setting trick, but that would not work.

Nobody wins with bogus sweepstakes

DEAR READERS: A while back I printed a letter from a woman who was having a terrible problem locating Robert R. Stone. That was the signature on the letter informing her that she was a winner in a $5,000 sweepstakes.

The letter instructed the woman to fill out the "winner's form" and mail it in. She would then be eligible for. the All-American $50,000 Sweepstakes. And, oh yes, it wasn't mandatory but since it was a charity for cancer research, it would be appreciated if she sent in a contribution of at least $5. The "charity" that would benefit, according to Stone, was the Cancer Fund of America.

Let the person who contracts out work beware

Until Helen Mason plunked down a deposit for a remodeling job on her Costa Mesa home, she had little in common with doctors, lawyers and some of the other affluent movers and shakers in Costa Mesa. Mason, 71, has lived in her home for 30 years and is not on the upper end of the income scale. She's also not very proud of her new status, shared by a growing number of homeowners cheated by phony contractors.

Mason's case is common, according to officials at the State Contractors License Board. She saved enough money for a remodeling project, found the name of a person to do the work, had him look at the job, got an estimate, put down a deposit and never saw the man again. Her $320 is gone, and even if the culprit is caught she may not get it back.

Homeowners have always been profitable targets for those who prey on the unsuspecting, and the Orange Coast is an area rich with opportunity for phony or unscrupulous contractors. High housing costs have provided a boom market for remodeling, but unfortunately, too many people overlook the age-old warning "let the buyer beware" when they hire someone to do the work.

The rules of the game are simple, but they do require a little investment in time.

Anyone who performs more than $300 worth of work is supposed to have a contractor's license, and a valid license number can be verified with a phone call to the State Contractors License Board in Santa Ana.

After the contractor's license has been checked, it's a good idea to ask for references. Better yet, talk to those past customers, and his suppliers or subcontractors. It's also a good idea to visit the contractor's past customers to inspect

Once you are satisfied the contractor is the person you want to hire, it's time for scheduling. You should get a detailed description in writing of the work to be done and a schedule of when it will be started and completed.

After the details of the project are worked out, homeowners should devote the same caution to deposits. It is illegal for a contractor to charge a deposit of more than $1,000 or 10 percent of the project's cost. State officials also advise homeowners to protect themselves when paying supply deposits. The best method is to make out the check to both the person selling the supplies and the contractor.

Reputable contractors should welcome your interest in this kind of detail because it helps eliminate misunderstandings and unsatisfied customers. They want good references and satisfied customers who will recommend their work.

State Contractor License Board officials say about 200 complaints are filed in Santa Ana each month. A third of those complaints involve poor workmanship or unlicensed contractors who don't finish the job. The problems most victims have in common include failing to check out the person they hired before handing over their money or failing to monitor the job. Doctors and lawyers are just as susceptible to this mistake as senior citizens.

Homeowners can go to small claims court to recover losses, but the best way to ensure a good job is to take care of the details before work begins and then make sure that the person hired lives up to that agreement.

Demands for large deposits or payment in advance should be a warning that something is not right.

The writing is on the wall: Poles want democracy now

In a previous column. I described how a meeting of Solidarity California in Huntington Beach led to a White House introduction for Polish activist Marian Jurczyk, and to his historic broadcast from Washington. D.C. to the Polish people since the Voice of America.

Since then, much has happened to encourage the supporters of Polish freedom here in Orange County and around the world. As George Bush prepares for his first presidential vist to Poland next week, conditions in that troubled country are more conducive to change than at any time during the last 47 years.

The June landslide electoral rout of the Communist Party, which I was privileged to observe as a member of an unofficial U.S. Congressional delegation, has stripped away all pretense of legitimacy of the ruling Communist party. Although opposition groups were allowed to compete for only 35 per cent of the seats in the Sejm, the lower house of the Polish parliament, they won every single race, most by landslides. 460 seats in the lower chamber only because these seats were off limits to real democracy. It is quite obvious they would have virtually none at all if the people of Poland had their say. In fact, in the less-powerful Senate where opposition groups were permitted to compete in all the races - that's precisely what occurred, as Solidarity-backed candidates won 99 of the 100 seats. Only the victory of an independent candidate, a wealthy private farmer who spent heavily on a lively campaign, prevented an unabated Solidarity sweep.

The Polish people's rejection of Communism is based largely on the stark reality that collectivism, central planning, and individual subservience to the state has left them impoverished. During his visit to Poland, therefore. President Bush may wish to draw attention to one especially important part of his latest speech on American policy toward Poland. The President quoted a modern French writer who observed that Communism is not another form of economics; rather, it is the death of economics.

Consumers in Poland would be quick to agree. Chronic shortages of even the basic necessities of life are so widespread that, in Warsaw during the recent elections, one Communist candidate sought to boost sagging attendance at a political rally by offering free toilet paper to par-ticipants. The response to the toilet paper was enthusiastic, but as a New York Times reporter noted, few stayed to listen to the Party's

From Warsaw, to Krakow, to Stalowa Wola - only 100 kilometers from the Soviet border our delegation found that support for the incentives of markets and spread. In meeting after meeting with Solidarity leaders and people from all walks of life - teachers and students, factory workers, bureaucrats - the message was the same. Poles are thirsting not just for democracy, but for free enterprise.

Unfortunately, free enterprise is not the only liberty that the Polish people lack. Just two weeks ago before our visit, workers and students who had joined together in a peaceful sit-in demonstration in front of the Soviet Consulate in Krakow were brutally repressed. Their activities were limited to chanting "Soviets go home" - a demand recently endorsed by President Bush, who has called for the withdrawal of all 50,000 Soviet troops from Poland. In addition to directly at the demonstrators. Durwould lose his eyesight have tried to intimidate the citizenry, the most important aspect of the solidarity electoral victory is not the votes it received, but the new sense of confidence it has given to the Polish opposition. President Bush's visit offers a critical opfidence. To do this, President Bush must make clear in his meetings with Gen. Jaruzelski and Gen. Kiszczak that the United States intends to deal with the Polish people directly

Simple solution won't fix complex traffic problems

tion for solving Orange County's traffic problems. My simple idea will never work.

The idea, as regular readers of this column know, is to have everyone live near where he or she works, or work near where he or she lives.

That way, people who work in Anaheim won't have to drive to Mission Viejo — they would merely move to Anaheim. Or they would move their jobs to the Irvine Spectrum or Pacific Park.

I have long believed that this simple solution would work well in Orange County because virtually every city in the county has a nice residential area and nearly every area has a strong employment base.

It has therefore bothered me when the head of a major firm in Newport Beach buys a home in Lemon Heights north of Tustin, or when a secretary living in Laguna Niguel finds a job in Huntington Beach.

But this lack of living near work or working near home will not bother me any longer. I have discovered that people are gluttons when it comes to commuting they must actually like it.

Three cases outside of Orange County illustrate the commuting dilemma extremely well - especially for those who claim that they would like to move out of growing, urbanizing Orange County and relocate to a smaller town where they can indeed live near where they work and do away with their daily commute.

The first case is my good friend, Peter, who recently took a job in Tucson. Now Tucson is a fine, gentle little cowboy town where a person can give up the rat race, forget about gridlock and enjoy the

So I went to Tucson to visit my friend. Peter is very high up in the management of a large electronics facility located adjacent to the Tucson airport. So one would think himself in one of the residential areas nearby. Ah, the possible dream a five minute commute.

Not so. Peter's workplace adjacent to the Tucson airport is in the extreme southern part of the city. But the housing that my friend and his wife have selected for themselves - a lovely home to be sure - is in the foothills at the extreme northern part of the city.

So what does Peter do? He drives through the city's bumper-to-bumper traffic for more than a half hour every morning and every night. A half hour bumper-to-bumper commute in Tucson? And that's a half hour now. When that city's economic slump is over, the time required will no doubt increase.

Alright, so you say that Tucson is hardly a small town? Then how about my new acquaintance. Jeff, who works at a major resort hotel on Maui, a tropical paradise in the Hawaiian Islands.

Now Maui is fairly laid back the place to relax and really enjoy life. So one pictures Jeff walking along Kanaapali Beach to work in the morning, the warm Hawaiian waters licking at his ankles. Wrong. Then does Jeff ride a bike along the beautifully landscaped drives to the hotel? Wrong. Jeff has decided to live in Kehei

- a city where a lot of the younger set enjoy life. Then perhaps Jeff is looking for a job in Kehei among the hotels, shopping centers and condo complexes? Wrong again. Jeff drives to work every morning from Kehei to Kanapaali - then back at night from Kanapaali to Kehei — a 30 to 40 minute drive with normal traffic. And then, because the two-lane roads are currently being worked on, there can be up to an extra half-hour delay.

These two commuter stories bring to mind the saga of my brother-inlaw Jack. Jack took a one-year as-signment in the idyllic college town of Princeton, New Jersey. Ah, a walk to work through the autumn leaves with the strains of the Princeton alma mater in the background. No. Jack decided to locate his family in the lovely seaside resort of Deal a one hour drive out of town. And that is why I give up. If my old friend Peter chooses to drive through traffic for one-half hour in Tucson to get to work, and if my new friend Jeff chooses to drive through traffic for one-half hour in Maui, of all places, to get to work; and if my favorite brother-in-law Jack chose to drive for one hour (longer in the winter snow) in New Jersey to get to work; then I cannot blame the thousands of Orange County commuters who drive from half an hour to an hour to get to

There is, of course, one difference. Peter in Tucson is not complaining about traffic. He accepts it, Jeff on Maui is not complaining about the traffic. He accepts it. And Jack in New Jersey did not complain about traffic. He accepted it.

But most of my commuting friends in Orange County complain about the traffic - they complain a lot as they vote against new develop-ment and vote against new roads. But good friends, don't leave Orange County to end you traffic concerns. I am certain that if you move anywhere in the world, your commuting habits will not change.

The writing is on the wall: Poles want democracy now

In a previous column, I described how a meeting of Solidarity California in Huntington Beach led to a White House introduction for Polish activist Marian Jurezyk, and to his historic broadcast from Washington. D.C. to the Polish people since the Voice of America

Since then, much has happened to encourage the supporters of Polish freedom here in Orange County and around the world. If that's the case why aren't the parents, the school board and the students getting rid of this group of students who do not care?

Please don't say, "There's no money for this extra help," because if these three groups really want the drugs off the campus they will find a way of getting the money or using volunteers to monitor the campus.

I find it a little hard to swallow. The district is one of the highest family income-earning cities in the United States. Why can't be done? The just saying "no" campaign is not enough.

My son has chosen not to start his semester at that school, and I support him 100 percent.

Simple solution won't fix complex traffic problems

tion for solving Orange County's traffic problems. My simple idea will never work

The idea, as regular readers of this column know, is to have everyone live near where he or she works, or work near where he or she lives.

That way, people who work in Anaheim won't have to drive to Mission Viejo — they would merely move to Anaheim. Or they would move their jobs to the Irvine Spectrum or Pacific Park. I have long believed that this simple solution would work well in Orange County because virtually every city in the county has a nice residential area and nearly every area has a strong employment base.

It has therefore bothered me when the head of a major firm in Newport Beach buys a home in Lemon Heights north of Tustin, or when a secretary living in Laguna Niguel finds a job in Huntington Beach.

But this lack of living near work or working near home will not bother me any longer. I have discovered that people are gluttons when it comes to commuting they must actually like it.

Three cases outside of Orange County illustrate the commuting dilemma extremely well -- especially for those who claim that they would like to move out of growing, urbanizing Orange County and relocate to a smaller town where they can indeed live near where they work and do away with their daily commute.

The first case is my good friend, Peter, who recently took a job in Tucson, Now Tucson is a fine, gentle little cowboy town where a person can give up the rat race, forget about gridlock and enjoy the

himself in one of the residential areas nearby. Ah, the possible dream a five minute commute.

Not so. Peter's workplace adjacent to the Tucson airport is in the extreme southern part of the city. But the housing that my friend and his wife have selected for themselves - a lovely home to be sure - is in the foothills at the extreme northern part of the city.

So what does Peter do? He drives through the city's bumper-to-bumper traffic for more than a half hour every morning and every night. A half hour bumper-to-bumper commute in Tucson? And that's a half hour now. When that city's economic slump is over, the time required will no doubt increase.

Alright, so you say that Tueson is hardly a small town? Then how about my new acquaintance, Jeff, who works at a major resort hotel on Maui, a tropical paradise in the Hawaiian Islands.

Now Maur is fairly laid back the place to relax and really enjoy life. So one pictures Jeff walking along Kanaapali Beach to work in the morning, the warm Hawaiian waters licking at his ankles. Wrong, Then does Jeff ride a bike along the beautifully landscaped drives to the hotel? Wrong.

Jeff has decided to live in Kehei

- a city where a lot of the younger set enjoy life. Then perhaps Jeff is looking for a job in Kehei among the hotels, shopping centers and condo complexes? Wrong again.

Jeff drives to work every morning from Kehei to Kanapaali - then back at night from Kanapaali to Kehei - a 30 to 40 minute drive with normal traffic. And then, because the two-lane roads are currently being worked on, there can be up to an extra half-hour delay. These two commuter stories bring to mind the saga of my brother-inlaw Jack. Jack took a one-year assignment in the idyllic college town

MARTIN BROWER of Princeton, New Jersey. Ah, a walk to work through the autumn leaves with the strains of the Princeton alma mater in the background. No. Jack decided to locate his family in the lovely seaside resort of Deal a one hour drive out of town.

And that is why I give up. If my old friend Peter chooses to drive through traffic for one-half hour in Tucson to get to work; and if my new friend Jeff chooses to drive through traffic for one-half hour in Maui, of all places, to get to work; and if my favorite brother-in-law Jack chose to drive for one hour (longer in the winter snow) in New Jersey to get to work; then I cannot blame the thousands of Orange County commuters who drive from half an hour to an hour to get to

There is, of course, one difference. Peter in Tucson is not complaining about traffic. He accepts it, Jeff on Maui is not complaining about the traffic. He accepts it. And Jack in New Jersey did not complain about traffic. He accepted it.

But most of my commuting friends in Orange County complain about the traffic — they complain a lot as they vote against new development and vote against new roads. But good friends, don't leave Orange County to end you traffic concerns. I am certain that if you move anywhere in the world, your commuting habits will not change.

WIMBLEDON, England - With a curtsy and a wistful wave, Chris Evert walked off Centre Court at Wimbledon on Thursday, probably for the last time.

Steffi Graf, who was 5 years old when Evert won her first Wimbledon title in 1974, routed the three-time champion, 6-2, 6-1, in the semifinals and set up a long-awaited rematch with Martina Navratilova.

Evert, 34, wilted under Graf's power and pressure on a day when temperatures on the court soared above 100 degrees.

"After a few of those long rallies, I thought, 'Boy, if I was 10 years younger,'" Evert said. "I was just a step slow.

Evert said she was almost certain was her final match at Wimbledon, where she has won more singles matches (96) than any other player. She is expected to retire at the end of this season.

"I'd be really shocked if I came back next year," Evert said. "It would take a transplant or something . . . a couple of different parts.'

Navratilova overcame a stomach ailment to beat unseeded Catarina Lindqvist of Sweden, 7-6, 6-2, in the other semifinal. Navratilova will try to win a record ninth Wimbledon singles title on Saturday when she plays Graf for the first time since losing last year's three-set final.

John McEnroe didn't play Thursday, but he remained in the news. The 20-year-old West German broke Evert in the opening game of the match and again for a 4-1 lead. Graf saved three break points in the next game and served out the set with three consecutive winners.

Evert, playing her 17th semifinal in 18 Wimbledon appearances, held serve to open the second set as Graf made a string of errors.

She had a break point in the second game, but netted a backhand and Graf held for I-I on a drop volley. Evert then dropped her serve on three straight errors and Graf saved two breaks points for a 3-1

Evert lost the next game on a double-fault. Graf held for 5-1 on her fourth ace and broke again on her third match point when Evert served her fifth double-fault.

There were a lot of close games, but I always managed to win the big points." Graf said. "That used to be Chris' strength. Now it's mine.

As Evert walked off the court to loud applause, she turned and gave a parting wave. Just before entering the locker room, a ball boy stopped Boris Becker in the other semifinal. signoff at Wimbledon.

Chris Evert, playing in probably her last Wimbledon, returns shot to Steffi Graf (left), then leaves Centre Court Thursday after suffering a 6-2, 6-1 defeat. Graf moved into a finals matchup against Martina Navratilova, who beat Catarina Lindqvist.

Ryan marks Anaheim return with 3-0 win

From The Associated Press

It's been nearly 10 years since Nolan Ryan pitched at Anaheim Stadium but you would never know the difference.

Well, he might be a little better. Ryan pitched a three-hitter for his 56th career shutout as Texas beat California, 3-0, Thursday night.

Ryan, 42, pitched for the Angels from 1972-1979, leading the American League in strikeouts seven times during that span. Earlier in the day. he was selected for the All-Star team for the seventh time.

"It all turned out pretty well," Ryan said. "These fans have always treated me special. It was a special feeling. I was really pumped up after that reception. A crowd of 37,867 gave Ryan a rousing ovation as he left the bullpen following his pregame warmups. Ryan, 10-4, walked two and struck out 12 in his fourth complete game and first shutout of the season. Ryan, who still holds most of the Angels' career pitching records, last pitched here on Sept. 24, 1979.

The 56 shutouts tie Ryan with Bob Gibson and Bert Blyleven for 12th place on the all-time list. It was the 189th time in his career that he struck out 10 or more batters. Ryan leads the majors with 148 strikeouts and now has 4,923 in his career, the all-time high.

"The key tonight was that I had the best curveball I've had all year."

Ryan said. "That made my fastball better later, because they started to look for the curve."

It was the right-hander's 28th career three-hitter. He has 19 twohitters, to go with five no-hitters and 11 one-hitters.

"He's really something," Angels Manager Doug Rader said. "It's wonderful to see him react like that to the circumstances."

The All-Star Game will be played in Anaheim next Tuesday night. "I look forward to coming back here for the All-Star game," Ryan "That'll be a special game for both me and my family. I look forward to that more than my other All-Star games, just because of the circumstances.

The loss dropped California out of the AL West.

Dodgers pounded by Cardinals, 14-2

Herzog has bemoaned his team's lack of punch most of the season but he had no complaints Thursday night after St. Louis routed Los Angeles, 14-2, to complete a threegame sweep of the Dodgers.

"I'd like to save some of those hits and runs for tomorrow." the Cardinals' manager said after his club pounded out 16 hits, including six doubles and a triple.

Vince Coleman, who had been in a recent slump, and Terry Pendleton, who still considers himself in one, sparked the Cardinals' offense with three RBI each. Coleman had three hits and Pendleton a triple and double.

"I'm trying not to pull every-thing," said Coleman, who was named to the NL All-Star team before Thursday's game. "Pulling the ball can get you in trouble." Pendleton said he's still not pleased with his hitting, particularly from the left side. "I'm still not satisfied," he said, "I got a big hit tonight and it's great that the team won, but I'm just not pleased with the way I'm handling

While Coleman is at the All-Star Game. Pendleton said he's "going to forget baseball for three days."

Dodgers Manager Tommy Lasorda, who will lead the NL team in Anaheim on Tuesday night was angry about his team's performance. "I'm very upset about the way we played," said Lasorda, who avoided reporters for about 30 minutes after the game.

The Dodgers have lost four in a row and have just 22 hits in that time. They are 1-7 against St. Louis this season. 0-6 at Busch Stadium. Ken Hill, 5-4, and Dan Quisenberry combined on a six-hitter for the

Randolph, Sax each selected as All-Star reserves

By JIM DONAGHY

NEW YORK - Willie Randolph and Steve Sax, second basemen who exchanged uniforms, were selected as All-Star reserves Thursday. Randolph, a five-time All-Star with the New York Yankees in the American League, signed as a free agent with the Los Angeles Dodgers and is hitting .289.

Sax, who helped the Dodgers to a world championship last season, signed with the Yankees and is hitting .324. While a member of the Dodgers, Sax was a member of the NL All-Star squad three times.

"I wasn't sure what to expect this season, but so far everything has worked out great for me." Sax said.

The league presidents and man-agers Tony La Russa of the American League and Tommy Lasorda of the National League filled out the remaining reserves and pitching staff for the All-Star Game at Anaheim Stadium next Tuesday.

The starting squad, selected by the fans, was announced on Wednesday. The Oakland A's and Texas Rangers will each send four players to the All-Star Game, while St. Louis and Los Angeles head the NL with four players each. Nolan Ryan of Texas, who leads the major leagues with 136 strikeouts, heads the AL pitching staff. For the 42-year-old Ryan, it's his seventh All-Star selection and first since 1985.

Joining Ryan on the AL staff is teammate Jeff Russell, one of four relievers on the squad. The other relievers chosen are Detroit's Mike Henneman, Cleveland's Doug Jones and Milwaukee's Dan Plesac.

Other pitchers on the team are to pitch Sunday.

Mike Moore and 13-game winner Dave Stewart of Oakland, Chuck Finley of the Angels, Mark Gubicza of Kansas City and Greg Swindell of Cleveland.

Not selected to the AL pitching staff was Boston's Roger Clemens. 8-6 with a 2.92 ERA, Minnesota's Frank Viola, last season's AL Cy oung winner, and Baltimore's Jeff Ballard, 10-3.

Mike Scott, 14-4, heads the NL pitching staff and is joined by starters Orel Hershiser of Los An-geles, Rick Reuschel of San Francisco and John Smoltz of Atlanta.

For his selection, Scott gets an additional $150,000. The righthander gets a $50,000 bonus and will have $50,000 added to his base contract for the next two seasons.

making it worth a guaranteed $2 million per year. Scott is scheduled "Everything has been going great for me so far this season," Scott said. The team is scoring runs for me and I hope it continues. You need some help.

Dwight Gooden, who started last season's All-Star Game in Cincinnati, is sidelined for a month with a muscle tear in his right shoulder. Gooden was 9-4 for the New York Mets at the time of the injury.

The NL staff has five relief pitchers: Tim Burke of Montreal, Mark Davis of San Diego, John Franco of Cincinnati, Jay Howell of Los Angeles and Mitch Williams of Chicago. Franco leads the majors with 22 saves. On the AL squad, 11 players were selected for their first All-Star Game. On the pitching staff, Finley, Henneman, Moore, Stewart and Swindell are going for the first time. Don Mattingly of the Yankees was selected to back up Oakland's Mark McGwire at first base. The other AL infield reserves are third basemen Kelly Gruber of Toronto and Gary Gaetti of Minnesota, and shortstop Tony Fernandez of the Blue Jays.

It's the first time since 1982 that the Yankees do not have a starter on the AL team.

Toronto first baseman Fred McGriff, who has 19 homers, and Scattle first baseman Alvin Davis, who is hitting .314, were not selected. In the outfield, Boston's Mike Greenwell, Chicago's Harold Baines, Texas' Ruben Sierra, Seattle's Jef-frey Leonard and California's Devon White were selected as reserves. Sierra is hitting .334 with 12 homers and 61 RBI.

Not selected was Seattle rookie Ken Griffey Jr., who is hitting .284 (Please see ALL-STARS/B3)

SPORTS BREAK

Bulls' strong post-season showing not enough to save Collins' job

From The Associated Press

CHICAGO - Not even success was enough to save Doug Collins' job. Collins, who led the Chicago Bulls to the conference finals last season for their best post-season showing in 14 years, unexpectedly was fired as coach Thursday.

We know this will be an unpopular decision, but we truly believe this will be in the best interests of all parties," team owner Jerry Reinsdorf said in a statement released by the club. Collins, who replaced Stan Albeck before the 1986-87 season, had one year remaining on his contract. He had a 137-109 record in regular-season play and was 13-17 in the playoffs, highlighted by this season's run that ended with a loss to eventual champion Detroit in the Eastern Conference

It was only the third time in Collins team history, and the first since 1975, that the Bulls had gotten as far as the conference finals.

"We appreciate the effort Doug has given over the past three years. However, through the years philosophical differences between management and Doug over the the direction the club was going grew to a point where the move was required," Reinsdorf said.

We wish Doug well in all his future endeavors."

The statement also said the Bulls hoped to be able to offer the job "to our first choice in the near future." Team officials declined to comment further on Collins' firing or plans for hiring a successor.

Collins, 37, was one of the youngest coaches in the NBA and his tenure on the bench reflected the fiery temperament that marked his playing career - first at Illinois State, then as a member of the U.S. Olympic team, and finally during an eight-year stint with the Philadelphia 76ers that included four All-Star selec-

But in a statement accompanying the one released by the Bulls, Collins said simply, "When hired three years ago, I willingly accepted the challenge of leading the Bulls back to the type of team this city richly

"I'm proud of the fact that each year the team has taken another step towards an NBA championship, and played with intense pride and determination . . . Words will not describe the void I will feel not being a part of the Chicago Stadium and this great team.

The team's superstar, Michael Jordan, interviewed at a basketball clinic in his native North Carolina, said of the firing: "It's something between management and Doug Collins.

I don't know what happened and the reason for it, but my job is to perform on the basketball court and let of the rest of the guys do their jobs."

Rose bookie being checked

Baseball's investigators are looking into bets that Pete Rose reputedly placed with a New York bookmaker identified only by the nickname "Val," a baseball official said

A broadcast report Thursday identified "Val" as a Staten Island man awaiting trial on gambling charges as part of a massive ring cracked by authorities in New York last November.

Law enforcement authorities declined to say whether "Val" is Richard Troy, 33, identified by NBC as the code-named man who accepted bets on behalf of the Cincinnati Reds manager. Troy was one of 34 people indicted last October as part of a gambling operation that covered Staten Island, Brooklyn and Val's identity wasn't established in a report on Rose's gambling compiled by baseball special investigator John M. Dowd. Former Rose associate Paul Janszen told Dowd he placed bets for Rose with a New York bookmaker whose identity was unknown.

In other baseball news: New York first baseman Keith Hernandez, who has been on the disabled list since May 18 with a broken kneecap, will join the Mets' Class A Port St. Lucie club today as part of a 20-day rehabilitaion program. Hernandez is scheduled to play in the Florida State League through Monday and then join the Mets in Atlanta on Wednesday.

Hernandez is batting .282 with three home runs and 12 RBIs in 32 games. He broke the kneecap in a collision with Los Angeles shortstop Dave Anderson on

Big day for U.S. swimmers

KFAR MACCABIAH - American swimmers won 12 of 18 medals and broke four records Thursday at the Maccabiah

Rick Aronberg won the 200-meter freestyle, edging favored All-American John Witchel in a games-record 1 minute, 52:51 seconds at the Tel Aviv University

Witchel, who holds the short-course American record for the 200-freestyle and a double gold-medal winner at the Pan American Games in 1987 and the Goodwill Games in 1986, said he was using the Maccabiah Games as preparation for the U.S. National Championships in Los Angeles next month.

But Aronberg, who won four gold medals at the 12th Maccabiah Games, said training with Witchel helped him win Thursday.

'In the past two weeks he's been putting me through some heavy workouts, making me give my 100 percent. I guess today it paid off," he said.

American swimmers won five gold medals, two silvers and five bronze. Israel won a gold medal, three silver medals, and a bronze. Brazil's Particia Amorim took a silver in the women's 400-meter individual medley.

American Ruth Grodsky broke two Maccabiah records Thursday, including her own mark in the 200-meter breaststroke, set in 1985. She was timed Thursday in 2:40:29, 1.32 seconds better than her old mark. Grodsky also broke the record in the 400-meter individual medley with a time of 5:01:75. Joshua Mikeseld also set a record by winning the 100-meter backstroke in 58:08.

day's first round of the Greater Hartford Open.

Each shot a 6-under-par 65 on the short 6,786-yard course. Five players were tied at 66 and 11 more at 67.

The already easy Tournament Players Club of Connecticut layout was even less challenging than normal after showers Wednesday. Balls rarely rolled far from where they landed and golfers could putt aggressively with little fear of badly overshooting the cup.

The light breeze provided some relief from the high humidity but had little effect on shots.

PCL team: No pay, no play

The Vancouver Canadians, the Chicago White Sox's top farm team, refused to play in their scheduled Pacific Coast League game Thursday night because their paychecks didn't arrive, a team official said.

The players left the Albuquerque Sports Stadium about 90 minutes before the scheduled 7 p.m. MDT start and returned to their Albuquerque hotel, then went into a closed-door meeting.

"My understanding is the team didn't play tonight because their checks hadn't arrived," Canadians Vice President-General Manager Brent Imlach said Thursday night in a telephone interview from Vancouver. He said the mails evidently were delayed by the July 4 holiday. The umpiring crew forfeited the game to Albuquerque.

In other sports news Thursday: ■ NFL owners adjourned a meeting without selecting a new commissioner. A vote for selection of Jim Finks, president and general manager of the New Orleans Saints, to replace the retiring Pete Rozelle did not receive the necessary 19 votes from the 28 owners, who met for about six hours. Finks got 16 positive votes.

Jerry Jones, new owner of the Dallas Cowboys, said the 11 owners who did not vote for Finks were seeking more information and didn't cast their votes against Finks' candidacy.

■ All Pro strong safety Dave Duerson has requested to be traded from the Chicago Bears and probably will be dealt, a published report says. Ted Phillips, the NFL team's director of finance, said the Bears and Duerson are at "an impasse" in negotiations after months of talks. The sides are believed to be about $100,000 apart in annual salary figures, the Chicago Sun-Times reported.

Missouri basketball coach Norm Stewart, who had to step back after mid-season cancer surgery during one of the Tigers' finest seasons, will return in the fall, Athletic Director Dick Tamburo said.

Mike Schuler, fired Feb. 18 as coach of the Portland Trail Blazers, has agreed to join long-time friend and former boss Don Nelson as an assistant coach with the Golden State Warriors.

The decision on when and where to play the World Cup qualifier between the United States and El Salvador was postponed until July 25, the United States Soccer Federation said.

Oakland All-Stars ignite win

From The Associated Press

The Athletics' All-Star contingent lived up to its marquee billing Thursday night.

Three of Oakland's four American League All-Stars the injured Jose Canseco is a fifth but won't play shone in the twilight in a 3-1 victory over visiting Kansas City Thursday night. Mark McGwire and Terry Steinbach drove in the runs, but Mike Moore was the brightest star of the bunch. Moore, announced as a first-time All-Star barely two hours before the game, celebrated by allowing four hits in seven shutout innings and striking out a season-high 12. "I don't think you can give Mike Moore enough credit," said A's Manager Tony La Russa, whose team had allowed 22 runs the previous two nights to the

When you consider the heartbreaking (11-inning) loss Wednesday night, the fact we split the series with a win, and Kansas City knocking the tar out of the ball the last two games, this was very important."

Moore's performance, which dropped his ERA to 2.22, produced the most strikeouts for an A's pitcher since Dave Stewart — another newly named first-time All-Star — fanned 14 Minnesota Twins here on Aug. 1, 1987.

Elsewhere in the American League: Yankees 6, Tigers 5: Jesse Barfield tied the score with an 11th-inning homer and Steve Sax hit a sacrifice fly for the game-winning blow to lift New York at Yankee Stadium.

Lou Whitaker's 18th homer, on Eric Plunk's first pitch in the 11th, gave the Tigers a 5-4 lead, but Barfield hit All-Star Mike Henneman's fourth pitch for the tying homer in the bottom of the inning.

Blue Jays 4, Orioles 1: Fred McGriff, snubbed for the All-Star team, hit his 20th home run and the first to dead center field at the SkyDome to lead Toronto. McGriff, who has 51 RBI, hit a three-run homer in the third off Jeff Ballard, 10-4, to give the Blue Jays a 4-0 lead. Todd Stottlemyre, 1-4, allowed one run and four hits in six innings as the Blue Jays salvaged one of three games against the first-place Orioles. Duane Ward finished for his sixth save. Red Sox 5, Brewers 4: Mike Boddicker retired 15 straight batters before needing relief help in the sixth inning as Boston held on at Fenway Park. Boddicker.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Orders which are not properly addressed or payable are subject to delay. The EMA shall not accept responsibility for that delay.

There will be no refund for return of plans and special provisions, and return is not required.

Bidders wishing to obtain a list of plan holders shall notify EMA/Public Works at the address shown above, by mail and shall include a check payable to EMA/Public Works in the amount to cover copying costs of the list of plan holders. The copying costs may be determined by contacting the EMA by telephone at (714) 834-3459. Due to the complexity of EMA's projects and the typically large number of bidders encountered on each project, the EMA will make no attempt to read a list of plan holders to prospective bidders over the telephone. Bidders requesting lists of plan holders are advised that the list will be current as of the date of request and that the request should be timed as to allow for normal mail service.

The bidder's attention is directed to the provisions in Section A, "Proposal Requirements and Conditions." regarding the requirements and conditions which he must observe in the preparation of the proposal form and Questions on interpretation of the Plans and Special Provisions prior to the date scheduled for bid opening shall be addressed to SUE ARTERBURN (834-2599) Project Engineer, or to KEN E. SMITH (834-2319), Project Engineer's Engineering Supervisor.

The Legal Department at the Daily Pilot is pleased to announce a new service now available to new businesses. We will now SEARCH the name for you at no extra charge, and save you the time and the trip to the Court House in Santa Ana. Then, of course, after the search is completed we will file your fictitious business name statement with the County Clerk, publish once a week for four weeks as required by law and then file your proof of publication with the County Clerk.

Please stop by to file your fictitious business statement at the Daily Pilot Legal Depart-ment, 330 West Bay, Costa Mesa, California. If you can not stop by, please call us at (714) 642-4321, Extension 315 or 316 and we will make arrangements for you to handle this procedure by mail. If you should have any further questions, please call us and we will be more than glad to assist

Good luck in your new business!

Orange Country Fair

By EMILY ADAMS

Back in '49, the Orange County Fair's biggest draw was fresh tomataes, canned peaches and bawling hogs. This is where local farmers came to trade stories and inspect new equipment under the dusty Big Tent.

In those days, there were no skydivers, no Chinese acrobats, no daily parades. There was no pygmy goat show.

Despite the apparent lack of entertainment, a couple important things happened in '49. It was the Fair's first year on the grounds of the old Santa Ana Army Air Base, where it is today. And it was the first year Hazel Courreges entered her fruit preserves.

In those days, she and her husband Joe had 10 acres of land in Fountain Valley. They farmed, as his father had, a huge assortment of berries, fruits and vegetables. Whatever they didn't sell at their fruit stand on Talbert Avenue during the day, Courreges canned at night.

That first year, Courreges' canned berries won a first prize. She's been entering the fair ever since, usually as many as 40 different preserves and canned goods.

"Years and years ago, C&H Sugar would give away 100 pounds of sugar to their favorite entry," Courreges said. "I won that prize a few times. That was always exciting."

Why has Courreges consistently won top prizes — including the Home Arts
Sweepstakes prize a few times, most recently in 1987 — for her wares?

"I can with an open kettle method and not too many at a time," the 63-year-old Courreges said of her prize winning peaches, "you don't want them all mashed up. But when you've got a quart of my peaches, you've got a whole quart — not like the store where you've maybe got six halves floating in the juice."

The fair was always a lot of work for Courreges and her husband. First prize for the "Family Farm" competition was $50, but they would put $200 in fruits and vegetables into the displays which had to stay fresh in a hot tent during the three or four days of the fair.

For many people, winning a prize at the Orange County Fair means just that much.

This year's fair, which runs Wednesday, July 12 through Sunday, July 23, promises to diplay just as many, if not more, county residents dedicated to their particular craft.

The best handiwork, from sculptures and quilts to pigs and garlic, will be showcased throughout the fair and pinned with winning ribbons.

For those who want to see Courreges' homemade preserves: be forewarned. After 40 years gathering prizes at the fair, this year Courreges will be entering her final 24 mason jars for judging and saying goodbye.

"Forty years is enough," Courreges said, "after this I'm calling it quits."

After a glimpse at Courreges' winning samples, fairgoers in the Home Arts and Crafts Building can peruse the displays of embroidery, quilts, dolls and weaving.

While in the Home Arts Building, be sure to stop by and check out the winners of the "24-Carrot Cook-off" contest sponsored by The Daily Pilot. The culinary competition is for any adult or teen who pre-registers any carrot conscious recipe and will be held Saturday, July 15.

In the same building, the curious will also find daily crafts and cooking demonstrations — including presentations on how to cook a real delicacy: fresh rabbit, in honor of this year's mascot, Blossom the Bunny.

Blossom — who was chosen as mascot to go with this year's theme, "Stop And Smell The Flowers," a tribute to small animals, flowers and plants — is in no danger of being sauteed, however.

Instead, the six-foot fur and human contraption will be wandering the fairgrounds, greeting visitors. Or, if you want to see the real bunny Blossom, a White Flemish Giant rabbit, the new rather of 10 will be hanging out near the main entrance with the bunnies' proud father, Bud. (At least, (Please see FAIR/pg.4)

Cash, Carter add country flair to fair

By BOB VAN EYKEN Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Country superstar Johnny Cash tops the list of headline entertainers who will span the musical rainbow from rock to blues to nostalgia at the Arlington Theater on the Orange County Fairgrounds during the fair's annual 12-day run beginning July 12.

It will be the first appearance at the fair for Cash and officials are expecting seats at the 5,000-capacity arena to be at a premium.

"Shows are at 7 and 9 p.m. every day, and for the popular ones we'll have people waiting out there in the sun at 2 o'clock," fair spokeswoman Jill Lloyd said, "Johnny Cash is definitely the top act this year, and one of the biggest names we've had in a while."

A virtual one-man Who's Who of country music, Cash has been a top name in the genre for more than three decades.

As a measure of Cash's incredibly durable appeal, critics note that he and George Jones are the only country artists who have had number-one singles in each of the past four decades.

His deep baritone voice has belted out 48 hit songs, including 47 top-10 country singles. He has logged 31 albums on the pop charts and won four Gram-(Please see STARS/pg.5)

A LITTLE IS ENOUGH...... 8

"Honey, I Shrunk the Kids" may not be an earth-shaking cinematic classic, but it does offer good, clean family fun — and a Roger Rabbit cartoon, to boot — and that's good enough to win praise from our guest critics.

Orange County Fair

By EMILY ADAMS

Back in '49, the Orange County Fair's biggest draw was fresh tomatoes, canned peaches and bawling hogs. This is where local farmers came to trade stories and inspect new equipment under the dusty Big Tent.

In those days, there were no skydivers, no Chinese acrobats, no daily parades. There was no pygmy goat show.

Despite the apparent lack of entertainment, a couple important things happened in '49. It was the Fair's first year on the grounds of the old Santa Ana Army Air Base, where it is today. And it was the first year Hazel Courreges entered her fruit preserves.

In those days, she and her husband Joe had 10 acres of land in Fountain Valley. They farmed, as his father had, a huge assortment of berries, fruits and vegetables. Whatever they didn't sell at their fruit stand on Talbert Avenue during the day, Courreges canned at night.

That first year, Courreges, canned berries won a first prize. She's been entering the fair ever since, usually as many as 40 different preserves and canned goods.

"Years and years ago, C&H Sugar would give away 100 pounds of sugar to their favorite entry," Courreges said. "I won that prize a few times. That was always exciting."

Why has Courreges consistently won top prizes — including the Home Arts
Sweepstakes prize a few times, most recently in 1987 — for her wares?

"I can with an open kettle method and not too many at a time," the 63-year-old Courreges said of her prize winning peaches, "you don't want them all mashed up. But when you've got a quart of my peaches, you've got a whole quart — not like the store where you've maybe got six halves floating in the juice."

The fair was always a lot of work for Courreges and her husband. First prize for the "Family Farm" competition was $50, but they would put $200 in fruits and vegetables into the displays which had to stay fresh in a hot tent during the three or four days of the fair.

For many people, winning a prize at the Orange County Fair means just that much.

This year's fair, which runs Wednesday, July 12 through Sunday, July 23, promises to diplay just as many, if not more, county residents dedicated to their particular craft.

The best handiwork, from sculptures and quilts to pigs and garlic, will be showcased throughout the fair and pinned with winning ribbons.

For those who want to see Courreges' go with this year's homemade preserves: be forewarned. After 40 years gathering prizes at the fair, this year flowers and plants Courreges will be entering her final 24 mason jars for judging and saying goodbye.

Instead, the six-f

"Forty years is enough," Courreges said, "after this I'm calling it quits."

After a glimpse at Courreges' winning samples, fairgoers in the Home Arts and Crafts Building can peruse the displays of embroidery, quilts, dolls and weaving.

While in the Home Arts Building, be sure to stop by and check out the winners of the "24-Carrot Cook-off" contest sponsored by The Daily Pilot. The culinary competition is for any adult or teen who pre-registers any carrot conscious recipe and will be held Saturday, July 15.

In the same building, the curious will also find daily crafts and cooking demonstrations — including presentations on how to cook a real delicacy: fresh rabbit, in honor of this year's mascot, Blossom the Bunny.

Blossom — who was chosen as mascat to go with this year's theme, "Stop And Smell The Flowers," a tribute to small animals, flowers and plants — is in no danger of being sauteed, however.

Instead, the six-foot fur and human contraption will be wandering the fairgrounds, greeting visitors. Or, if you want to see the real bunny Blossom, a White Flemish Giant rabbit, the new ripther of 10 will be hanging out near the main entrance with the bunnies' proud father, Bud. In 1969, Cash won five Country Music Association Awards, a feat that has never been equaled.

Cash's career has also brought him 23 Broadcast Music Inc. Awards for songs such as "Folsom Prison Blues," "I Walk the Line," "Big River," "Don't Take Your Guns to Town," Understand Your Man," and "Get Rhythm.

Cash also lent his support early to the country-rock crossover phenomenon with his appearance on Bob Dylan's "Nashville Skyline" album in the duet "Girl From the North Country."

Johnny Cash will appear July 20 with his wife, June Carter, a country star in her own right, and the Carter Family

Country music fans won't have to settle for just one top-rated performer at this year's county fair. Also making his first apperance at the fair this year will be two-time Country Music Male Vocalist of the Year Lee Greenwood.

Greenwood, whose style crosses over to rhythm and blues as well as other forms, is best known for his patriotic "God Bless the USA," which was voted Song of the Year by the Country Music Association in 1985. The tune also won the Music City News Award for best country single released that year.

Greenwood has amassed four gold albums in the past seven years. Very much a part of the contemporary music scene; he has releaded two albums in the past 14 months; "This is My Country," (May, 1988) and "If Only for One Night," (May, 1989).

Greenwood will get the fair off to a rocking start on opening night, July 12. As with all other musical acts, there will be two shows, at 7 and 9 p.m.

Rita Coolidge, another artist of broad range and perspective takes the stage July 13 for two shows featuring rock, reggae, ballads and

The strains of Coolidge's distinctive, sultry voice can be heard on the albums of Eric Clapton, Stephen Stills, Leon Russell, Delaney and Bonnie and other rock legends.

Coolidge herself was catapulted to superstardom in 1977 with her platinum album "Anytime, Anywhere

Formerly married to country singer Kris Kristofferson, Coolidge recorded three country duet albums with her erstwhile partner. The couple won two Grammies for best country duct.

The rock temperature rises Friday, July 14 with the Blasters, one of Southern California's hottest roots rock groups.

Vocalist and rhythm guitarist Phil Alvin teams with drummer Bill Bateman, bassist John Baxx and lead guitarist Greg Hormel to kick start an aggressively American style of rock nurtured in the biker bars of Downey and other Southern California towns.

The group's hits include "American Music," "Marie Marie," and "Long White Cadillac." The Blaster's down-to-earth sound can also be heard in the sound tracks of the movies "Bull Durham" and "So Long Baby Goodbye."

Rock and roll memories will be rekindled July 15 when Hall of Famer Bo Diddly teams with The Tokens and The Penguins.

Diddly can be expected to sample from his storehouse of hits, including "Say Man," and "I'm a Man."

The Tokens are primarily remembered for their early 1970s hit "The Lion Sleeps Tonight," while the Penguins still spark fond memories with their hit "Earth Angel," still one of the most requested songs on classic rock radio

Eddie Rabbit is next on July 16 with his mix of country and pophits, including "I Love a Rainy Night," "Driving My Life Away" and "Drinking My Baby Off My Mind," as well as ballads such as "Step By Step" and "Someone Could Lose a Heart Tonight."

Rock fans for whom the music

Rock fans for whom the music died in 1969 with the break-up of the Beatles can get a dose of the old magic medicine July 17 with Rain — A Tribute to the Beatles.

Skeptics who think nothing could approach the real thing should take note of the comments of one critic who assessed Rain's physical and musical resmblance to the Fab Four

The group has honed its live sound over the past decade and contributed to such Beatles retrospectives as Dick Clark's "Birth of the Beatles" and "Letting Go."

Another major voice in rock reemerges July 18 with an appearance by Gary Puckett, whose hits "Young Girl," "Lady Willpower," and "This Girl is a Woman Now" elevated his group, Union Gap, to rock domi-nance. In 1968 the group was the biggest-selling recording act in the U.S.

July 19 brings a repeat performance by Three Dog Night. another vintage rock group that has become an Orange County Fair Fans will remember the group's 1970s gold record hits "Joy to the World," "One," "Easy to Be Hard." "One," "Easy to Be Hard." "Mama Told Me Not to Come," and "Eli's Coming.

July 21 will bring the country rock sound of Southern Pacific to fairgoing audiences. Named Billboard magazine's Top New country Act of 1985, Southern Pacific has earned top spots on the country music charts with singles such as "A New Shade of Blue," Midnight Highway," and "Wheels on the Line

Larry Gatlin and the Gatlin Brothers, who played to standingroom-only audiences at last year's Orange County Fair will harmonize again this year.

Winners of a Grammy Award in 1976, the trio has remained at the forefront of country music for more than a decade with hits such as "I Don't Want to Cry," "She Used to Be Somebody's Baby," "Talkin' to the Moon," and "All the Gold in California

Tony Orlando and Dawn will close out the fair's entertainment schedule on July 23.

The group's hit "Tie a Yellow Ribbon" was recently recognized by Broadcast Music Inc. as the most performed song of all time.

A shopping getaway to ... San Diego?

By DONNA AND RAY OTT

Some of San Diego's attractions, such as the zoo and Sea World, are known the world over. Perhaps not widely known is the fact that California's second largest city is a shopper's dream come true.

Over the last several years, modern city center has been gradually replacing some of what was once dubbed "The Stingaree" — San Diego's infamous red light district. About 12 acres of what used to be bars, bordellos and gambling houses since the turn of the century have been or are being transformed into new or renovated properties.

Horton Plaza, centerpiece of the rebuilding effort, has become the city's premiere shopping center. You can easily spend half a day or longer exploring this huge, tri-level complex, which occupies seven city blocks.

Woven together by escalators, bridges, and winding walkways within the intriguing, maze-like structure are four major retail stores (Robinson's, Mervyn's, The Broad-way, and Nordstrom's), plus 150 smaller ones that include specialty shops such as Kite Country, Leather Station, The Nature Company, and The Original 60 Minute Photo.

There are also five art galleries, two performing arts theaters, and a seven-screen cinema. If you're hungry, there are several restaurants and a variety of snack shops, serving everything from Aussie food to Horton Plaza is located between Broadway and G streets, 1st and 4th avenues, downtown. The Plaza has two seven-level parking garages, and there is ample street parking as well.

On the east side of Horton Plaza is the city's Gaslamp Quarter. Dating back to the close of the Civil War, this 16-block National Historic District stretchs from Broadway to

OLD TOWN Shops are situated in a historical setting at Old Town State Historic Park, a six-block area of preserved adobes and other structures that were originally part of the first European settlement in California.

Shopping plazas here include Bazaar del Mundo, Presidio Plaza, Old Town Mercado, and Squibob Square, and they carry an international assortment of art, jewelry, home accessories, books, fashions, pottery, plants, and, of course, souvenirs. Some of the one-of-akind stores are Silver Sea (scrimshaw, shells, and gifts); The Guatemala Shop (folk art and crafts), Gallerita (handcrafted gold and silver jewelry); and Spice of Life (coffees, teas, and spices).

There are also several moderatelypriced Mexican restaurants, plus a number of snack shops.

Just east of Old Town, within easy walking distance, is Heritage Park, consisting of a group of restored Victorian homes which house various businesses, including a gift shop and a doll shop.

Old Town and Heritage Park are just east of Interstate 5 and just south of Interstate 8. Exit Old Town Avenue from 1-5, or Taylor Street from I-8, and follow the signs. You will find parking lots, mostly free, around the perimeter of both parks. SEAPORT VILLAGE

The children's adventures in the backyard, where each blade of grass is like a tree to their tiny figures, is thought-provoking and fun to watch. My grandson's favorite part was the fight between an ant and a scorpion both of prehistoric monster size to the children. My choice was the ride on a hairy bee that zooms around the backyard. The relationship of the children as large and small people is also well represented. The two younger boys gain an understanding of how well they can face danger and survive. And the two teenagers learn you can fall in love no matter how tall you are and offer some pretty good morals in the process.

As a tagalong, we saw a Roger Rabbit cartoon. It was such fun to see a cartoon in the theater again. Nowadays we only get seemingly endless preveiws. From 'Batman' to 'Star Trek,' what's hot and what's not

By SOREN ANDERSEN

Here are some capsule reviews of current motion

BATMAN. Call it dark. Call it brooding. Call it visually spectacular. Call it "The Joker." As The Joker. the world's "first homicidal artist," Jack Nicholson gives the performance of a lifetime, a portrayal of gleeful, lethal evil that is always over the top but never out of control. By contrast, Michael Keaton, swaddled in the big, black armored Batsuit, seems constricted and ill at ease. In superhero disguise he's something of a stiff, but he manages to redeem the part when playing Batman's monied alter ego, Bruce Wayne. Haunted by the memory of the murder of his parents. Wayne is in pain, but thanks to Keaton's skillful underplaying, he does a masterful job of masking it. The most intriguing character of all is not an actor but a place: Gotham City. Director Tim Burton and production designer Anton Furst have imagined it as a sinkhole of urban crime with a skyline crammed with impossibly high, impossibly forbidding towers. Clearly the product of visionaries, "Batman" is a true original, a standout in a summer of clones and sequels. (PG-13)

DEAD POETS SOCIETY. The time is the tail end of the '50s. The place is an exclusive New England prep school. The plot has to do with a group of schoolboys learning to spread their intellectual and emotional wings with the encouragement and guidance of a charismatic English teacher played by Robin Williams. But this is no ordinary coming-of-age picture. It's an allegory about the free-thinking, tradition-toppling '60s struggling to break free of the complacent, reactionary '50s, the latter symbolized by a rigid schoolmaster who makes the teacher the object of a McCarthyesque witch hunt. Under the direction of Peter Weir("Witness"). the unknown young actors who play the kids do inspired work. (PG)

DO THE RIGHT THING. Spike Lee proves, finally and definitively, that his coterie of vocal supporters among critics and in the film industry had it right all along. He is the pre-eminent black filmmaker working in America today. "Do the Right Thing." about a racially mixed Brooklyn neighborhood simmering toward a midsummer flash point, is a provocative picture whose message is that America the melting pot is a myth. The races co-exist uneasily with one another on the block of the Bedford-Stuyvesant neighborhood in Brooklyn that serves as Lee's microcosm of the United States. On the hottest day of the year, it won't take much to set them at one another's throats. Lee sees racism as being as American as apple pie, and almost no one in the picture — black, white, Asian or Hispanic — is free of its taint. It puts viewers on the spotano forces them to examine their own attitudes toward race. For that reason "Do the Right Thing" is sure to make many people very uncomfortable. (R)

FIELD OF DREAMS. The field of the title is a baseball park constructed in an Iowa cornfield by a just-folks farmer (Kevin Costner) in response to the urgings of a mystery voice. To his field come the ghosts of the disgraced 1919 Black Sox, retrieved from limbo to play the game they loved but from which they have been barred for so long. To the field too comes a disillusioned writer (James Earl Jones) and an old man (Burt Lancaster) who had a brush with glory in the major leagues long ago. The field allows dreams to be fulfilled, revives tattered spirits, and allows all who come in contact with it to achieve some measure of personal redemption. To a large degree, it's a caseof subject matter triumphing over execution, but for whatever reason "Field of Dreams" will leave you deeply touched. (PG)

GHOSTBUSTERS II. There's a lot more slime but considerably less charm in this sequel to the the highest-grossing comedy in movie history. This time the boys are battling a river of bad Big Apple vibes coursing slimily beneath the streets of Manhattan, but truth to tell they don't seem to be battling very hard. Almost everyone in the cast seems to be cruising through this picture on the strength of reputations they built up in the first one. Bill Murray is still a hoot as the ghostbusting quartet's smarmmeister extraordinare (no one ever played insincerity with more conviction). but he's clearly not pushing himself very hard. The characters played by Dan Aykroyd and Ernie Hudson barely have any personality at all, and Sigourney Weaver looks very ill at ease trying to play straight man to all these ostensible funny men. Only Harold Ramis, Spike Lee and Danny Alello star in Lee's sharp examination of racism in America, "Do the Right Thing."

wearing a deadpan expression and a two-story high pompadour, brings a sly sense of fun to the picture as technerd Egon Spengler. More Ramis and less high-tech glop would have made "Ghostbusters II" a far better

GREAT BALLS OF FIRE! With wild eyes, wild hair and wild manner. Dennis Quaid certainly looks the part of wild-man protorocker Jerry Lee Lewis. But the performance turns out to be little more than a compilation of mannerisms. Whatever drove Lewis to make "devil's music," as his cousin Jimmy Swaggart (Alec Baldwin) and a large chunk of U.S. adults of the time called it, and to make it with a crazed intensity matched by few others, is never revealed. In addition the picture never makes credible his passion for his 13year-old second cousin, Myra Gale Brown (Winona Ryder), a passion that drove him to marry the girl and ruin his career. Flawed it may be, but "Great Balls of Fire!" is still great fun, thanks in no small measure to a sound track overflowing with '50s hits, including all the best of the Lewis songbook. The real Jerry Lee does the vocals on "Great Balls of Fire," "Whole Lotta Shakin' Goin' On," and "High School Confidential" (among others), singing like a man possessed. That voice on the sound track cuts through the picture's slickness and puts you in touch with the true downand-dirty heart of rock 'n' roll. (PG-13)

THE KARATE KID PART III. Brutes whip the stuffing out of Karate Kid Daniel LaRusso (Ralph Macchio) not once, not twice, but a whole bunch of times until he and his mentor Mr. Miyagi (Noriyuki "Pat" Morita) finally can't take it any more. They straighten their spines, put on their game faces, and kick some serious rump. Question: Haven't we seen this somewhere before? Answer. You bet. In "Karate Kids I" and "II" is where. The old formula is really showing its mileage, and "III" is by far the worst picture in the series. With three slavering sadists for illains, characters so broadly drawn that they ought to be wearing Shidely Whiplash pencil-thin mustaches, and with the "Kid" looking like anything but one (not surprising; Macchio is 27), "III" is a crudely drawn cartoon. In this picture, the kick is gone, and only the studio's profit motive, nakedly exposed, remains. (PG)

STAR TREK V: THE FINAL FRONTIER. The fifth meeting of the Intergalactic Debating Society will come to order. Topics to be discussed during this session will include the joys of companionship, the psychological origins of pain, the lure of messianic figures, the location of God and last but by no means least, the Meaning of It All. And here you thought you were just going to see another "Star Trek" movie. These and other weighty issues are lengthily and ponderously discussed in this latest "Trek," in which the Enterprise crew battles a messianic Vulcan (played by Laurence Luckinbill) searching for God at the center of the universe, William Shatner directed and Shatneras-director lacks the light touch and sure sense of pacing that fellow "Trek" star Leonard Nimoy brought to the previous two movies in the series. Shatner's action scenes are so listless they almost seem like afterthoughts, and his sense of humor runs to the broad sight gag rather than to the sort of sly-poke-in-the-ribs okes found in the previous film in the series. Dance Invitational set in Laguna

By RICHARD DUREE

For the second year, the Laguna Beach Dance Invitational will bring noted individual dance artists from across the country to Orange County. This unique event features solo dance performances at Laguna Beach High School's Artists' Theater, followed by master classes with the performer the following day.

Featured this year will be Sally Hess of New York, a dancer known for her solo dance performed to her own spoken poetry, and two dancers from Austin, Texas, Dee McCandless and Lynn Rairdon, who use ethnic dance movements in their modern dance choreogrpahy.

"I want this to be a celebration of move-ment," said Mark Sharon, organizer and producer of the event. "I wanted dancers who have gone beyond the mere performance of technique to create their own unique dance form. These artists have been particularly successful. They're very unique."

The 33-year-old former Joffrey dancer feels that Laguna Beach is the ideal location for the Dance Invitational, identified as it is with the

"I lost money on it last year," he said, "but I'm going to do it again, anyway, and I'll probably do it again next year."

Sharon produces the event with no assistance from either public or private funds, paying the performers and the facility rental out of his own pocket.

Hess' performance will be Sunday, July 9 at 7:30 p.m., followed by her master class the following morning at 8 a.m. at the Laguna Beach Recreation Department, 515 Forrest. McCand-less' and Rairdon's performance will be on Wednesday, July 12 at 7:30 p.m., the master class again the next morning at 8 a.m. Tickets for the concerts are $10; master classes are $5 and are two hours.

For information, call Mark Sharon at 494-8505.

Heated answers to burning questions

By JOHN ROOS

This week's column introduces the rock 'n' roll prince of sarcasm. skepticism, and speculation - the Pop Music Answer Man. So without further ado, let's move on to the questions:

Q: Tell me, Answer Man, is it true that the noise problems plaguing the Pacific Amphitheatre and its neighbors will be resolved because of a recent U.S. Supreme Court decision allowing New York City to have its own sound engineer at outdoor rock concerts to lower the volume?

A: You betcha. So far the noise dispute has involved the state, county and city (the case is scheduled to be heard July 14 in Orange County Superior Court). Toss in a few lawyers, politicians and businessmen and you can see why so many have done so little for so long. While individuals with their own self-serving interests continue to benefit from the costly delays and appeals, it's the community that must keep raising enough funds to battle these hucksters. Honestly, if the Supreme Court decision prompts a speedier resolution to this mess, I promise to watch every rerun of Perry Mason.

Q: Reports reveal that the Who's Pete Townshend has been relegated to rhythm guitarist on their current stadium tour due to tinnitus. Do you think this will diminish their presentation in any way?

A: Not in the least. In the age of specialization, rock 'n' roll is in-corporating "designated players," similar to baseball's designated hitters. Pinch-hitting for Pete (no, not Rose) is axegrinder Steve Bolton, who will undoubtedly be terrific. Just because Keith Moon has passed away and Townshend has become a mere shadow of his former self, who says this group isn't the real Who? (Never mind that Townsend himself publicly admits that that Who hasn't really existed for years.)

Q: Has Graham Parker's "Soul Corruption" video been banned on MTV because it's racist?

A: Yeah, right, "Soul Corruption" is about as racist as Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was. MTV executives object to Parker's use of the word "nigger" during the tune. However, taken in its context, the word is part of a stinging attack against high places: "They'll never let any nigger in/Why do you think they call it the White House/Soul Corruption." Leave it to MTV to ban Parker's thought-provoking video while Sam Kinison's degrad-ingly sexist "Wild Thing" played for months in heavy rotation. Figure that one out.

The Who's Pete Townshend, suffering from tinnitis, is now playing rhythm guitar almost exclusively on the group's current tour. Will we notice?

Fine food in a clubby atmosphere

One of the best seafood restaurants in Orange County doesn't have an ocean view: It's not even near the water.

Straight out of the heart of the Northwest via Portland, Oregon, McCormick and Schmick's has a menu that's guaranteed to knock your socks off.

Although the facade of the freestanding building in which McCormick and Schmick's might be seen as a bit strange (it leans towards a posthumous tribute to some '60s and '70s recording artists), inside there's the old-shoe comfort of a mellow East Coast men's club. For a new restaurant, the decor exudes the charm of a more well-broken-in place, one that's been around for-

Finally, it would seem, the Main Street area of Irvine has captured its fair share of office occupancy: McCormick and Schmick's is usually rather busy. Of course, it's the "new kid" on the block, which always helps to draw a crowd.

If the food continues to be as good as it is now, the crowd might even stay put, instead of moving on to the "hot" new restaurant

As one might expect from owners who also own a wholesale fish business, McCormick and Schmick's offers abundant diversity. The menu changes every day and often in-cludes some 20-odd super-fresh of-

Oysters are superb here, especially the quilcene, kumamoto, golden mantle and olympia varieties ($7.65 to $9.25).

Eclectic appetizers include baked garlic, rock shrimp popcorn, chilled asparagus, smoked mussels, steamed clams and grilled crab cakes ($2.75

In addition to the fish chowder, unexpected soups turn up, like chilled cucumber citrus concoction; salads are made with marvelously fresh baby lettuces and interesting textures in the form of anchovies, blue cheese, walnuts and red peppers. Good dressings, too: sesame, lime dill, mustard dill and more enliven poached salmon, scallops, tuna or jumbo prawns. Soups and salads are in the $2 to $9 range.

This is a restaurant that delights in offering its customers a wealth of choices. You can do the grazing number and have a couple of the very satisfying appetizers — or you can opt for one of the entrees, which run the gamut from extremely light to quite satisfying. You can also choose an appropriate setting from several available. There's a sprawling bar, set up in a way that reminds me of the old oyster bar at New York's Grand Central Station. A steam table with an adjacent counter is perfect for people who are alone and want to get lunch or dinner quickly. Several dining rooms offer a more leisurely pace.

Wherever you sit, don't miss the whole dungeness crab, served hot or cold, or the pan-fried trout with dill buerre blanc. The crab cakes with jalapeno hollandaise are also a must, as is the cornmeal catfish, especially when topped with jalapeno relish. These are often — but not always — on the menu. Entrees range from $9.75 to about $17.

A fat cheeseburger is usually available - and the chef hasn't neglected to come up with some enticing sandwiches, like smoked turkey with. cranberries or chilled barbecued chicken (all $4.95 to $7.85).

More bases are covered, too: there's always a man-pleasing selec-tion of steaks on the day's listing. Try the broiled filet mignon, served with sauteed mushrooms ($15.95).

A more-than-adequate selection of wine is available by the glass, and at reasonable prices (Robert Mondavi) 86 cabernet sauvignon goes for $3.50, for instance.

Two truffle cakes are made on the premises; other desserts are obtained from commercial sources.

Service at present is enthusiastic and needs but a little fine tuning to become excellent. Certainly, McCormick and Schmick's, with its dedication to a superior produce comprised of im-peccably fresh fish from all over the globe, will be able to avoid the kind of employee turnover that plagues many restaurants and get all of its waiters and waitresses up to top speed quickly.

Hanging Chinese firecrackers against red and yellow walls give Danny K's a happy. festive air in which to serve its specialty -Mandarin and Szechwan cuisine.

Located in Corona del Mar for the last five months, the restaurant offers a large selection of contemporary Chinese food at reasonable prices.

'We keep our prices lower than most other comparable restaurants, while still offering customers quality food that is consistantly good in taste," Danny Kuo, owner of the restaurant, said. Kuo is also a partner in the China Town restaurant in Irvine.

Serving both lunch and dinner, Danny K's luncheon menu consists of such favorites as Assorted Vegetable Deluxe; Mu Shu Pork; Three Ingredient Taste; and Aromatic Shrimp. With 18 items served with soup, rice and an egg roll, diners will have a complete meal starting at $4.50. Lunch is served from 11:30 a.m to 3 p.m.

Dinner can be enjoyed at Danny K's with the restaurant's daily specials starting at 55; or with house specialties from the extensive menu.

"We have several customer favorites on our menu," Kuo said. Some of those favorites include Rolling Lettuce Chicken Iminced white meat of chicken, water chestnuts and mushrooms in oyster sauce and rolled in a crisp lettuce leaf); Firecracker Lamb (lamb sauted in spicy Hunan sauce); Heaven, Sea and Earth (chicken, lobster and roast pork with Chinese vegetables); Crispy Garlic Prawns; and Danny K's Pan Fried Noodles. Also available on the menu are soup and appetizers; pork, beef, fowl and seafood dishes — including the ever-popular chow mein and low mein dishes. Vegetables and assorted fried rice is also available to complement entrees.

With 10 years experience, Danny K's chef will prepare foods to order.

'We will make foods the way our customers want — if they have a suggestion as to what they want, for example mild or spicy, we will do it," Kuo said. He added that all their food is fresh and that MSG is not used in any of their dishes.

With 14 years in the business, Kuo feels that the Corona del Mar location is a good

"We are close to Fashion Island where we get a lot of business, and there is really not any other local Chinese restaurant around us," he explained.

Open seven days a week, Danny K's serves dinner until 9:30 p.m. during the week and until 10:30 p.m. on weekends. Reservations are accepted and take out is available. "We can also cater private parties and business luncheons," Kuo said.

Danny K's is located at 3050 E. Coast Highway in Corona del Mar. For more information or reservations, call 721-9000. MasterCard, VISA and American Express cards are accepted.
