Serving the Newport-Mesa community since 1907

newport-mesa 103 most influential children

A young-gun salute

Megan Faulkner, a senior at Estancia High School, definitely exemplifies strength, talent and charity. As Estancia's Associated Student Body president this year — and president of her class for the last three years — Megan gives her school, her community and her peers her best. She organized the school's blood drive, the canned-food drive and Spare Change Week, which helped raise money for Amanda Arthur, a Newport Harbor High School student who was severely injured in a car accident last May. But her sphere of influence reaches far beyond her school's boundaries. Megan has participated in city beautification programs, been a library volunteer, volunteered at SOS and at Beverly Manor Convalescent Hospital (pictured). Add to that her four years playing on Estancia's volleyball and soccer teams. And through it all, Megan has continued to maintain a 4.0 grade point average.

Newport-Mesa youth carry great influence

How did all this happen? It started in October, a few days after we published our annual "103 Most Influential People" edition. The list sparked an idea in the creative mind of Amy Christeson, a junior at Corona del Mar High (see story below).

Why don't you do something like this for Newport-Mesa kids, she asked.

Why not, we answered.

And so a new tradition was born.

For the past couple of months, we have asked — in the newspaper, at the schools and around town — who were some of the best, brightest and most benevolent children in Newport Beach and Costa Mesa? We were looking for 103 names.

We got 207.

And each was influential in his or her own way. One little boy saved his family from a fire, another girl delivers meals to shut-ins, and a high school senior made more than 50 rescues last summer as a beach lifeguard. The list was an impressive catalog of our youth, of our children; a wonderfully diverse highlight reel of accomplishment, enterprise and flat-out ability.

But when we tried to pare the list down to 103, we quickly got stuck. How could you leave any of these kids off the list? So we didn't. In our inaugural edition of the "Junior 103 Most Influential," we have 207 children. The math doesn't add up, but we think the logic does.

And even at 207, the list isn't complete. We know that. There are many more young people — some still in elementary school, others deep in their senior year — who have made an impact, inspired their peers or made a lasting difference. That's very comforting news.

We think after you take a look at all 207 nominees, you'll come away feeling just a little bit better about our community. It's in good hands.

The rest of the kids are inside. Enjoy.

—The editors

Jason Les, a sixth-grader at TeWinkle Middle School, knows more about computers than some of us may ever learn in a lifetime. Self-taught on HTML and Visual Basic, Jason designs and constructs web pages — he's even created a page for his Boy Scout troop (<http://members.aol.com/ANTScout/Troop339.html>). He also develops computer programs and games, and he serves as a chat room host and guide for America Online (keyword ANT).

And that's not all. In the past 10 months, Jason has earned five merit badges, and he participated in the Scouting for Food drive. He is active in his school, church and the Southern California Golf Tour.

You can visit him at his own web page: <http://members.aol.com/Cheatdude/>.

Above and beyond the call of duty

Amy Christeson, 16, a Corona del Mar junior and young editor extraordinaire, organized and wrote this entire special section. She, too, is one of Newport-Mesa's exceptional youth. Amy has excelled in academics and sports. She's an honor-roll student, enrolled in advanced placement classes in Spanish and history.

Amy also runs with her school's cross country and track teams, competing in sprints and pole vaulting.

But her accomplishments and interests don't end there. Outside of school, Amy has traveled to Mexico and Costa Rica through Mariners South Costa Church, where she helped organize vacation Bible schools and helped build a church. She's put in more than 400 hours of community service during the past four years.

Currently, she's serving as the National Charity League president for her grade level. And next year, she will serve as president of the Youth and Government program.

Carly Daniel, for more than three years, has been helping in the family business: wedding photography. In the past 2 1/2 years, she's photographed 58 weddings on her own — the ceremony, the reception, the whole thing.

And her work is anything but amateurish. "Her work is as good as more than half of the professionals whose film we develop," says photo lab owner Jon Croft.

You can check out the 13-year-old's web page at: www.fmdaniel.com/carlypg.cfm.

Key Club member for four years, this year as publicist and last year as commissioner ... Coached a 14-and-under volleyball team in the summer ... Girl's League and Assistance League.

Angela Apodaca, Estancia High ... An accomplished athlete and student who comes from a family that is learning English as a second language ... An over-achiever who works hard and puts effort into achieving her goals.

Tarun Bajaj, senior, Corona del Mar High ... president of the Key Club, where he has served his community through FISH, SOS, and other organizations ... ASB Commissioner of Community Service ... Member of CdM's track, cross-country, and tennis teams ... recipient of the Irvine Spectrum Award.

Michelle Beckerman, 11, Harbor Day School ... Raised $4,273 as the top fund-raiser for the Orange County Walk to cure diabetes and hopes that one day a cure will be found for her mother and the millions of other sufferers ... Talented singer and actress who has performed at the Orange County Performing Arts Center, including a two-week performance with the Broadway company of "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dream Coat."

Jon-Paul Bell, 18, Corona del Mar High ... As a Team California Ice Hockey member, he will represent the best ice hockey players in the state of California in the Chicago Showcase ... He has been playing hockey for nine years, practicing at 4 and 10:30 a.m.

Elizabeth Bennett, sophomore, Estancia High ... Newport Mesa Unified School District representative for Estancia High ... Attended California School Board Association Conference ... Organized Austrian Exchange program for 19 host families and students for two weeks ... Lady Eagles Basketball Team ... Semi-finalist in the Congress-Bundestag Study Abroad program to study in Germany next year.

Catherine Bissell, 12, Mariners Elementary ... Organized program in her neighborhood to collect toys for children at Hoag Hospital ... Campaigned to get help from Mariners students.

Amanda Bissonnette, 11, Mariners Elementary ... Arrives at school 45 minutes early to volunteer in the office, which she has done for two years ... Is a great help and could run the office herself ... Outstanding student.

Monica Bridle, senior, Newport Harbor High ... National champion kayaker and has been competing for six years at the Newport Aquatic Center ... Made the Junior World Kayak team in K-4 and raced in Poland and France ... Has also competed in outrigger canoe racing from Newport Beach to Catalina and in Hawaii ... Went to CIF with Newport Harbor's volleyball team ... Voted L.A. Times Sports Athlete of the Month.

Kaitlyn Bourgeois, senior, Newport Harbor High ... Co-captain of the Varsity Field Hockey team, honored on first and second team all-league ... High jumps for the track and field team and placed second in league and third in county last year ... As a student leader at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, she has fed homeless in Los Angeles and spent spring breaks in Mexico ... Selected as a college peer counselor at Newport Harbor High.

Michelle Burgner, 12, Corona del Mar High ... 4.0 grade point average and Outstanding Scholar Award recipient in science and English ... Club soccer player for the OCU Rush II and volleyball and softball player at CdM ... Well-traveled and gives her time freely to those who need it.

Jessica Butler, seventh grade, TeWinkle Middle School ... 4-H Club elected officer and wrote press releases to L.A. Times, Daily Pilot, Orange County Register and the Costa Mesa Breeze ... Student Council member for two years ... Best of Show Table Setting at Orange County Fair and blue and red ribbons for homemade vinegar ... Nature Academy Club member ... American Youth Soccer Organization player ... Advanced piano player for four years.

Chris Carpenter, 13, Corona del Mar High ... As seventh-year Boy Scout working toward an Eagle Scout, he has 18 merit badges and is the assistant senior patrol leader ... Singer in the Madrigal Singers at CdM and has starred in "The Sound of Music" and "Oliver" ... Recipient of numerous academic awards ... Leader in the junior high program at Mariners South Coast Church.

Dana Cassity, senior, Estancia High ... Senior class student government offices all four years ... Participated in the Ethnic Forum, French Club, Project Pals, Key Club, Pro-Chocettes ... Karate, weightlifting and member of the track and swim teams ... Recipient of the Principal's Leadership Award for the Herff-Jones Scholarship and wrote an essay on motivating students to volunteer.

Congratulations to the Junior Top 103!

Balboa Instruments is committed to the education of Costa Mesa's high school students. As a charter member of PEAC, "Partnering Education and Community," we are proud of the effort you have made to achieve this honor. The PEAC program introduces students to a working business environment and gives them a view of life after graduation. This unique experience motivates students to finish high school and gain a college degree. There is no better way to ensure the success of our community than to invest in the future of our youth. Our future rests in the hands of today's high school students.

Our future rests with you.

West Side grandmother honored

■ Maria Alvarez receives televised recognition for 'cleaning out' neighborhood once infested by drugs and gang violence.

By Tim Grenda, Daily Pilot

COSTA MESA — Maria Alvarez, the West Side grandmother who organized community efforts four years ago to drive gangs, drugs and criminals out of her neighborhood, will be honored Monday night for making a positive difference.

Alvarez is one of 12 Southland residents who will be recognized by KCBS-2 TV during a special awards show titled "What's Right With Southern California."

The 90-minute program, taped in part at recent ceremonies, is set to air right after the end of the NCAA basketball tournament championship game, around 8:30 p.m. Monday, officials said.

Alvarez will be honored with other community activists, including a Los Angeles taco stand owner who organized a relief campaign for victims of last year's hurricanes in Baja California, Mexico, and a Laguna Niguel couple who have adopted six physically disabled children.

Actor and director Rob Reiner will also be recognized for an innovative campaign he created to assist youth.

Alvarez, who emigrated from her native Guatemala 21 years ago and made a home in Costa Mesa, earned a spot in the show with her work to clean up the area around Shalimar Street, an area of town once infested with drug dealers, violent gang members and unsafe streets.

Four years ago, the Shalimar community mobilized and with the support of police, began cleaning up the graffiti and improving the area.

On the awards show, KCBS-2 reporter Dave Lopez praised Alvarez for her tireless dedication to Costa Mesa.

"She's too shy to say it herself, but this immigrant — this single mother from Guatemala — is a very special person," Lopez said.

Police Chief Dave Snowden and Shalimar Learning Center Director Kristina Wright also appear on the show.

After receiving her award to a standing ovation at the ceremonies, the soft-spoken Alvarez simply said: "Who said dreams don't come true?"

A night filled with stars

■ Actors Joe Mantegna, Samantha Mathis and Richard Kind turn out for kick-off of third annual film festival.

By Jenifer Ragland, Daily Pilot

NEWPORT BEACH — A crowd of more than 1,000 moviegoers, celebrities and filmmakers packed the Edwards Big Newport theater Thursday night to kick off the third annual Newport Beach International Film Festival.

Author Ray Bradbury and actors Joe Mantegna, Samantha Mathis, Bill Duke, Richard Kind, Tate Donovan and Kieu Chinh were among the celebrities spotted at the sold-out opening-night celebration, which premiered "The Wonderful Ice Cream Suit" and "Waiting for Woody."

"The Wonderful Ice Cream Suit" — produced by Roy Disney and Stuart Gordon, and starring Edward James Olmos and Mantegna — is based on an original story and screenplay by Bradbury.

Gordon said the independent film, which is centered around five young men who are down on their luck and buy a magical white suit that transforms their lives, is being considered by Disney Studios for the theatrical release.

"If it goes well at the Newport Beach festival, that can push it in the right direction," he said. "This is a very different kind of film for Disney, but the combination of the script by Ray Bradbury and the urging of Roy Disney made them do it."

Mantegna, who has starred in films such as "Godfather III" and "House of Games," said he enjoyed working on the smaller project. The premiere was also special for him because he acted in the "The Wonderful Ice Cream Suit" 25 years ago when it was a play directed by Gordon.

"This was kind of like 25 years in the making for me," Mantegna said as he walked down the makeshift red carpet leading into the Big Newport. "I love the film very much and just wanted to support it. Anything I can do, if it'll help the movie, I'm for it."

"Waiting for Woody" is a 30-minute short comedy written and directed by actor Grant Heslov, who also turned out for the premiere. The film starred Heslov and Mathis and featured cameo appearances by George Clooney and Jennifer Aniston.

Mathis and Kind, who appears in the television series "Mad About You" and "Spin City," said they did the film because Heslov is a longtime friend.

"It was a blast — all our friends were in it, from the actors to the crew," Mathis said. "This was a family production, so it was a really great experience."

Celebrities and special guests of the festival began arriving at about 6:30 p.m. to the sounds of Mariachi Sol de Mexico, an award-winning mariachi band that was featured in "Wonderful Ice Cream Suit."

Moviegoers in line at the theater said they were thrilled to have the film festival in Newport Beach and hoped to catch a glimpse of the stars.

"I got the last two tickets," said former Newport resident Jill Hochadel. "I'm really excited because I was never able to go before, and I love these kinds of films."

District managers face threat of cutback

■ Newport-Mesa board goes on record as opposing state initiative to reduce district administrative expenses to 5% of total budget.

By Husein Mashni, Daily Pilot

NEWPORT-MESA — If the so-called 95-5 state initiative passes, Newport-Mesa school district's choices will be simple: cut its administrative budget by 41% or just start sending $4 million a year to the Los Angeles Unified School District, officials said.

The California Educational Efficiency Initiative will appear on California ballots in June. Authored by the United Teachers of Los Angeles, the initiative requires that school districts devote 95% of their budgets to classrooms and 5% to administration.

The Newport-Mesa school board voted Tuesday night to oppose the initiative. If the measure passes, the district would probably have to cut about 30 positions from its administrative staff, which board members say is already down to "bare bones."

"We're talking massive layoffs and whole departments would have to be eliminated," said Mike Fine, the assistant superintendent of business services. "This initiative has nothing to do with improving education and everything to do with taking away local control and putting it elsewhere."

The Newport-Mesa school district spends about $8.6 million, or 8.3% of its budget, on

ALPHABETICAL BALLOT BALLET

■ Election officials use lottery and first letters of candidates' last names to decide where they go on the ballot in June.

By Tim Grenda, Daily Pilot

COSTA MESA — In politics, coming in first is everything — especially when you're talking about where your name will appear on the ballot.

In a pre-election race that is closely watched by campaign insiders but largely ignored by voters, most candidates quietly hope to be listed first on the ballot.

With many voters entirely uninformed about local issues and candidates, the coveted first position is worth several percentage points when voters go to the polls, regardless of who the candidate is, officials said.

Instead of making informed choices based on the issues, some NEWPORT BEACH — Voters here are putting their money where their philosophy is when it comes to the upcoming Orange County Board of Supervisors election.

Initial financial statements for the June 2 primary show that Jim Silva and John Hedges — the two candidates running on pro-El Toro airport platforms — received the bulk of their campaign contributions from Newport Beach residents and businesses.

The vast majority of Newport Beach supports converting the El Toro Marine base into a commercial airport as a way to prevent a future expansion at John Wayne Airport as Orange County air passenger demands increase.

According to the financial statements, Silva, the incumbent supervisor whose 2nd District doesn't even include Newport, has raised about $54,000 in the first three months of the year — almost half of which came from well-to-do Newport Beach donors. Silva's records show a total war chest of about $88,000.

Hedges, a Newport councilman who supports a commercial airport at El Toro, has received about $8,000 — all of which came from Newport Beach — since he declared his candidacy for 5th District supervisor March 4.

Journey to Japan without leaving home

Can't make it to the Far East for next month's cherry viewing? Sample the exotic flavors of Japanese culture with library resources — including many fine books given to the library by Okazaki, one of the sister cities of Newport Beach.

"To most Westerners Japan is a mysterious land of geisha girls and sumo wrestlers," explains the cover copy of "Japan," based on the PBS television series.

"These things still exist in modern Japan, but they are of little help in understanding the economic powerhouse that so dominates today's financial news."

Just how Japan rose from the catastrophe of World War II to become a world leader in industry and technology is the subject of this lavishly illustrated overview.

Additional insight into Japanese traditions, from tea ceremonies and Kabuki theater to flower arranging and martial arts, is in "Pictorial Encyclopedia of Japanese Culture."

Its companion volume, "Pictorial Encyclopedia of Japanese Life and Events," covers traditional observances, festivals and annual events. More than a thousand years of history have shaped Kyoto, Japan's ancient capital.

Review them in a virtual tour of its shrines, temples and gardens with "Introducing Kyoto." Continue your exploration of a city that embodies traditional Japan with "Kyoto."

Few elements are as synonymous with the Japanese aesthetic as gardens and tea houses. Contemplate the beauty and spirit of more than 60 ceremonial spaces, pictured in "The Tea Garden." View other enclaves where Japanese city-dwellers commune with nature in

"The Indoor Garden." Twenty centuries of theater, literature, religious and social ceremony is reflected in Japanese art. View 237 works that depict the rise and fall of dynasties, the sweep of political movements and the minutiae of royal and mundane daily life in "Japan, A History in Art."

Enter the homes and workshops of artisans who preserve Japan's creative traditions with "Living Treasures of Japan," a National Geographic video. Explore the importance of loyalty to family and company and the meaning of such ceremonies as the bathing ritual, with "Japan, the Electronic Tribe," a video hosted by Jane Seymour.

After all this research, you're probably hungry. Set the mood for a culinary adventure with "Song of the Seashore and Other Melodies of Japan," a CD featuring Irish flutist James Galway.

Then unravel the mysteries of Japanese cooking with "The Joy of Japanese Cooking," written for western cooks working in western kitchens with locally available foods and equipment.

A Sobering Experience

Newport Beach jailer documented a few days in the life of a man arrested 97 times for being drunk in public

By Christopher Goffard, Daily Pilot

There are only a few hard facts filmmaker David J. Sperling actually knows about the man with the wasted face and pleading eyes who is the subject of his documentary, "Drunk in Public: The Mark David Allen Story."

Sperling doesn't know where the booze-ridden man is from, what family he has, or what psychic trolls drove him to the bottle in the first place.

He isn't even certain where Allen is now: Maybe Hawaii. Maybe dead.

Yet, during Sperling's beginnings as a jailer at the Newport Beach Police Department about five years ago, Allen was a regular visitor who put the cops through a futile, seemingly endless ritual: Book him, dry him out, let him go, pick him up again.

Sperling said Allen racked up 97 local drunk-in-public arrests in all. The jailer's 18-minute film debut, which will play at this year's Newport Beach International Film Festival, chronicles a few days of that life in 1994.

What provides the pathos of the slurred, self-loathing soliloquies Sperling manages to elicit from his subject — naked cries for help on the drop shaft to hell: "Why don't you wake up, Mark? Why don't you look at God?"

A good-looking man in his early 30s, Allen is shown in two settings: the park in Newport Beach where he contemplated quitting booze and the jail house where he landed when his plan inevitably failed.

"On first watching it, your impulse is to say, 'Why doesn't someone help this guy?'" said Sperling, 29. "And by the end you realize that the only one that can help Mark David Allen is Mark David Allen. He wants to want to quit, but doesn't Quite want to quit." Sperling, who lives in Mission Viejo with a wife and daughter and continues to work as a civilian jailer, said he has written 10 scripts and had three options. He aspires to make movies.

MARC MARTIN / DAILY PILOT

Sperling said he spent between 15-20 hours with Allen and filmed four hours of VHS footage with a $1,000 camcorder, then spent six hours editing the film to its current length. Total budget: $300. "I was just kind of winging it," Sperling said.

Throughout the film, Allen speaks of attending Newport Harbor High School, of the metal plate doctors put in his skull, and alludes obliquely to his father drinking himself to death. The dearth of information about Allen's life outside the drunk tank gives the film a strange power, underscoring that the relevant fact of his existence; the viewer can imagine a thousand plausible back stories to account for how he got there.

"He's obviously got some void in his life he's trying to fill," Sperling said. "He can't cope. He can't get along. He's failed at that, and he's just sedating himself."

One day at the department, Sperling said Allen was last booked there in October 1994, a month in which he amassed nine public drunkenness arrests. He apparently went to Hawaii after his brother sent him a plane ticket, and Sperling hasn't heard from him since.

ling heard these words: "Mark David Allen is here again." "And it just kind of clicked," Sperling said. "It's just an amazing thing a guy can be arrested 97 times. What does it take to hit rock bottom?"

Jeffrey Conner, executive director of the upcoming film festival, said "Drunk in Public" was one of 107 films selected from more than 600 entries; he said it is the only video in the festival's three-year history.

Many entries were merely Generation X versions of "The Big Chill," Conner said.

"I don't think ["Drunk in Public"] is a typical story by any stretch of the imagination," Conner said. "Also, it was made by an independent filmmaker based in Newport Beach. We of course do whatever we can to support local filmmakers."

Allen apparently sat still for the camera because he believed it would help him kick his habit, and the filmmaker at first thought he might be filming the alcoholic's recovery. It didn't work out that way.

Newport Beach police records show Allen was last booked there in October 1994, a month in which he amassed nine public drunkenness arrests. He apparently went to Hawaii after his brother sent him a plane ticket, and Sperling hasn't heard from him since.

The filmmaker said he is curious what Allen's reaction would be if he ever saw the film.

"If he was sober he might find it fascinating, [and] if he was drunk he might find it threatening," Sperling said. "Of course, I'd love to tape that too."

"Drunk in Public: The Mark David Allen Story" will show at 6 p.m. on April 4 at the Orange County Museum of Art.

Crossing paths with Mr. Crossover

Uneasy with stardom, versatile Irish flutist James Galway wants the world to know: "I am a classical player."

By Gordon Holcombe, Jr.

James Galway, the Pavarotti of the flute, performs with the Tokyo String Quartet in a chamber recital on Monday at the Orange County Performing Arts Center. The concert is presented by the Philharmonic Society and begins at 8 p.m.

Like Pavarotti, Galway is a natural entertainer. Robust, dynamic, gregarious and charismatic — his personality infuses each performance. And he is known for entertaining audiences between numbers with his off-the-cuff, humorous banter delivered in a lilting Irish brogue.

Galway will perform three works with the quartet, including Mozart's Flute Quartet in D major, and the Quartet will perform Galway's String Quartet in D minor, No. 2, "Die Quinten."

Born in Belfast, Ireland, near the shipyard where the Titanic was built, and young James and friends played Galway was, by age 12, an accomplished, prize-winning flutist.

He studied at prestigious music conservatories in London and Paris and became the principal flutist for the Berlin Philharmonic in 1969. Six years later, his highly successful solo career began. Last year, he was named Musician of the Year by "Musical America."

Although the 54-year-old Galway made his a household name by crossing over from classical to pop — with recordings such as his chart-topping arrangement of John Denver's "Annie's Song," his rendition of "The Pink Panther," and covers of Paul Simon, Elton John, and Willie Nelson love songs — his discography is decidedly classical.

And he is quick to point that out. In a recent interview, he explained that the press often misclassifies his music.

"It somehow gets out in the press that I play jazz, or mostly pop, or this or that — I'm a classical player. I couldn't play a blues if my life depended on it."

So for those unfamiliar with Galway, Ireland's famous flutist and, by most accounts, the best and most popular flute player in the world, be advised: Don't come expecting a "leprechaun," a penny whistle-playing Irishman, a jazz/pop/new age purveyor — this man is a classical musician, and most critics agree, a classical musician with an eloquent, liquid, superb sound and technique.

But Galway has also been accused by some critics of being a less-than-serious artist because of his forays into popdom. He tells a story about wearing a green bow tie in Carnegie Hall the day before St. Patrick's Day, which elicited a response from a critic about the difficulty in taking seriously an Irish artist in a green bow tie.

"What a bunch of head cases" was Galway's assessment.

It's clear that Galway has wrestled with the push that commercial considerations exert on the classics and has questioned his place in that arena.

Although he acquired some of his fame by playing "classical" versions of popular tunes — and often plays "Danny Boy" as a concert encore — he stiffens at the mention of his work being represented by anything other than classical.

He rails against being classified as a "popular" flutist, yet readily acknowledges the compromises that music-for-hire requires.

For all his super-stardom, his crossover pop pinnings, the music still comes first for Galway. He has said he will let his name be used as a drawing card for an event, but usually with his insistence that he play a modern flute concerto.

But Galway stays active in the crossover field: He appeared with Irish pop star pianist Phil Coulter in Carnegie Hall on St. Patrick's Day, and in May, he and Coulter will perform in Belfast for the "Northern Lights" concert, a tribute to the artistic contributions of Northern Ireland people and benefit for Project Children. All participants are from Northern Ireland, and include Liam Neeson, Kenneth Branagh and Van Morrison.

"That concert is very important to me," Galway said. "It lies out the roots of the trouble of my home country."

SURF

Debris and runoff from this week's storms will probably keep the water brown today. There will be swell from both the northwest and the southwest, creating possible chest-to-shoulder-high (albeit dirty) conditions today. Saturday, another storm may be coming in — so surfing conditions over the weekend are iffy. Monday, if all goes well, the storm will take a hike, the water will clear up and the surf will improve.

Parading his affinity for Irish on St. Patrick's Day

Thank you. Thank you so much. No, really, you're too kind. Please, take your seats. Really, thank you. I know, I know. Five out of six Oscar picks. Put your thumbs up on that, Siskel & Ebert.

At any rate, the gold guy has been put away for another year and I did promise a report on my excellent St. Patrick's Day adventure in New York. Good golly, Miss Molly, it was a blast. All parades are fun, of course — the Fish Fry Parade, the Fourth of July Parade in Huntington Beach, whatever. But as with most things, when it's in New York, it's different.

First, some history. New York's St. Patrick's Day parade is the oldest annual parade in the world. This was the 214th, which means the first was held two years before the signing of the Declaration of Independence. It is the largest parade in the world, with some 200,000 marchers in recent years, taking five to seven hours from the first unit to the last.

I'd always assumed the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade was the big dog. But it is, in fact, dwarfed by the St. Patty's Day Parade, except for the mega-balloons, of course. (I always love it when a 17-story Barney elicits squeals of joy from the little kids, and then sends 4,000 people running for their lives as it starts to tip over.)

Anyway, at the appointed hour, I reported to my unit — the Gaelic Society of Fordham University — at 45th and Madison. This was the first test. Would an Italian-American from Costa Mesa "pass" or not? Fortunately, the other Fordham Prep School alumni there were much younger

or older than I am. To be safe, I introduced myself only as "Pete." Since both my parents were born in Sicily, I didn't want to lie to anyone. I was prepared to drag out the standard story I use at St. Patrick's Day parties. I tell people that my family came from a small fishing village south of Dublin. Way south. About 1,700 miles south, I'll mumble, if the music is loud enough. But this day, no one asked.

The first impression when you step out of Grand Central Station on St. Patty's Day is that whoever coined the phrase "sea of humanity" was stepping out of Grand Central Station on St. Patty's Day at the time. There are marchers, bands, pipers and folk dancers as far as the eye can see, which is about the end of your nose unless you're 6 feet, 8 inches.

But mostly, there are police officers, firefighters and sanitation workers. Are they working? No, silly, they're marching. There are some 55,000 police officers in New York (that's half the population of Costa Mesa) and God knows how many firefighters plus more sanitation workers (that's what they call them there) than anyone can count. It was a galaxy of uniformed men and women in dress blues and browns.

And of course, almost every police precinct, engine company and sanitation unit has its own bagpipe or drum corps. Between the drummers already on the parade route and those standing around practicing, it was an awesome, chest-thumping experience.

When our turn finally came, we stepped smartly onto Fifth Avenue and headed north. That was the moment that sticks in the mind. It was a bright, crisp spring day with a deep blue sky and satin white clouds. And the people! An estimated 1.5 million of them along Fifth Avenue — 15 to 20 rows deep along the street, peering down from office windows and the adventurous few perched on street lights and trees. It was unnerving in a way.

Everywhere you looked, there were thousands upon thousands of faces — cheering, waving Irish and American flags, screaming and that (some of which you could understand, some you couldn't) almost all of it positive.

There were also a few pickets and protesters along the way — "Down With This," "Up With That," "Save the Whatzis," "Get Outta Here With the Whatzis" — most of them drowned out by the people around them. Some of the most, um, pointed banners were about England and the Royals (of London, not Kansas City) and the queen would definitely not have been amused.

Keep in mind, a good number of these folks have been celebrating St. Patrick's Day since St. Valentine's Day. Things were a bit more subdued near the reviewing stand, which is the steps of St. Patrick's Cathedral — where John Cardinal O'Connor presides, waving to each unit as it passes.

That night, I was a guest at the 212th annual Friendly Sons of Ireland Dinner (a lot of "Hello, I'm Pete" again.) It's a black tie, men-only affair — 2,200 hundred men, to be exact — in a ballroom about the size of Balboa Island. Part of the tradition is pushing through the protesters (mostly the same "Down With, Up With" people from the parade) outside the hotel. Could there be anything more politically incorrect? I don't think so. Throughout the dinner, we were constantly being asked to stand and toast everything and everyone under the sun, except her majesty the queen, of course.

The two guest speakers were my former headmaster from Fordham Prep, the Rev. Eugene O'Brien, and the Lord Mayor of Dublin who — in a wonderful bit of irony — is Jewish. The head table included Cardinal O'Connor, Cardinal Daly from Dublin, New York Gov. George Pataki and Mayor Rudy Giuliani.

I had a nice chat with Giuliani, who was surprisingly knowledgeable about Costa Mesa and Newport Beach. I told him I was sure we were the only two Italian mayors in the room. He said he was sure we were the only two Italians in the room. "Right you are, Mr. Mayor," I said, "and this one's gotta go."

Police arrest 15th suspect in drug ring

A Costa Mesa man was taken into custody Thursday morning on drug charges, marking the 15th arrest stemming from a yearlong undercover investigation that cracked what police call a local bookmaking and drug-trafficking ring.

Joseph Anthony Ferraro, 55, was stopped by police around 2:35 a.m. at 17th Street and Santa Ana Avenue after he sped away from a restaurant in his car, Newport Beach police Lt. Rich Long said.

Ferraro was arrested on suspicion of driving under the influence. On Tuesday, Harbor Municipal Court Judge Margaret Anderson signed an arrest warrant charging him with two counts of transporting, selling and giving away narcotics, Long said.

Detective Steve Koudelka, who helped supervise the police investigation, said Ferraro offered cocaine to the undercover officer who spent a year of his life posing as a marijuana cultivator from Northern California and whose work netted 14 arrests in November.

The arrests were linked to an alleged criminal ring that police said had been operating out of local bayfront bars and restaurants for years.

As those cases move toward an April 3 preliminary hearing, all but one of the suspects — Michael Kent Hancock, 45, of Fountain Valley — have been released on bail. Hancock has been charged with conspiracy to sell narcotics and remains at Orange County Jail in lieu of a $1 million bail.

"The investigation is continuing, and we anticipate additional arrests will be made," Long said.

Ferraro is being held on $12,500 bail at the Newport Beach Jail and is expected to be arraigned on drug-trafficking and driving-under-the-influence charges early next week, Long said.

Newport-Mesa schools begin new state testing Monday

By Husein Mashni, Daily Pilot

NEWPORT-MESA — State-mandated standardized tests will be administered to students here beginning Monday morning.

Under new state regulations, all students, regardless of how well they speak and write English, are required to take the Stanford Achievement Test.

Newport-Mesa school district officials said they have no intention of following the lead of the state's larger school districts, which are opposed to the state mandate. Those districts — including Los Angeles, San Diego and San Francisco — contend their rankings in the state will be artificially depressed because of their high percentage of limited-English-speaking students.

Los Angeles school officials have reportedly sent parents letters encouraging them to exempt their children from taking the test.

Newport-Mesa school officials have also sent a letter to parents. The letter describes the test and informs parents of the dates the tests will be administered.

The letter also said, "Students whose parents provide a written request to the principal that their children not be tested shall be exempted from taking the test."

Interim Superintendent Bob Francy said the letter is not intended to encourage parents to exempt their children from taking the test.

"If a child reads no English, it would be better that they not simply fill out bubbles just to be doing something," Francy said. "It'll affect the results. It's hard to speculate whether kids do that."

Francy said he believes parents whose children don't speak English should exempt their children from taking the test.

"But that's my personal belief," he said. "That's a decision they'll have to make for themselves."

The letter and accompanying question-and-answer sheet about the test are to help parents prepare their children and to make sure they attend school on their test days, Francy said.

Although he fails to see the relevance of testing students that don't speak English, school board President Jim Ferryman said the district is not trying to encourage parents to exempt their children from taking the test.

"It's the law that parents do have that option," Ferryman said. "I don't see the value of testing kids who don't speak English. It's like me taking a test in Egyptian."

voters simply check off the first name they see listed.

This week, the County Registrar of Voters released the ballot order in the unofficial name lottery.

The first name chosen in the race for 2nd District county supervisor was former Costa Mesa Mayor Sandy Genis, who will be listed ahead of two other challengers and incumbent Jim Silva.

Genis beat out Huntington Beach City Councilman Dave Sullivan, Silva and Huntington Beach resident Ralph Silva, who will be listed on the ballot in that order.

When she heard about her prime position on the ballot, Genis said she was pleased but conceded that in a race with only four candidates, it may not mean that much.

"It's nice, but I don't think it's as significant as it would be if there were 12 people running," she said. "In a big race like that, it's easy for your name to get lost in the pack."

The process of selecting the order in which candidate names will appear on the June 2 primary election ballot starts in Sacramento. State officials randomly pick each letter of the alphabet to determine a new order. Then, using the first letter of the last name of each candidate, the names are put in order according to that randomly selected alphabet.

If two candidates have last names beginning with the same letter, the first letter of the candidates' first names determines which candidate is listed first, officials said.

The order the candidates' names will appear on the ballot:

2ND DISTRICT SUPERVISOR

- ◆ Sandra Genis
- ◆ Dave Sullivan
- ◆ Jim Silva (incumbent)
- ◆ Ralph Silva

5TH DISTRICT SUPERVISOR

- ◆ Tom Wilson (incumbent)

Supervisor Tom Wilson, who has raised about $59,000 so far this year — $4,850 of which came from Newport. A staunch El Toro airport foe, Wilson has received more than 90% of his contributions this year from South County and other anti-airport cities. Documents show that Wilson so far has about $67,000 to spend on the campaign.

The race between Hedges and Wilson should prove to be interesting, as the 5th District voters are polarized on the issue of converting the El Toro Marine base into a commercial airport.

Sandra Genis, former mayor of Costa Mesa, and Huntington

Beach City Councilman Dave Sullivan — both running against Silva — had yet to file their financial statements on Thursday.

According to the Orange County Registrar's Office, candidates who failed to meet the March 23 filing deadline will be given a grace period to turn in the statements late, but will then be fined $10 for every day the paperwork is late.

Grand jury indicts alleged mail bomber

A federal grand jury returned a four-count indictment this week against a Costa Mesa man who allegedly built and sent a mail bomb that injured the Santa Ana man who opened it, authorities said.

Darryl Anthony Carr, 34, could face between 40 to 60 years in federal prison if convicted of charges related to the Feb. 6 explosion.

The indictment, returned Tuesday, alleges that Carr sent the bomb Feb. 5 to a woman named Martha Galindo at her Santa Ana address. The woman's roommate, Peter Marshall, opened the package and suffered severe abdominal injuries, authorities said.

Marshall has only recently emerged from a coma at Western Medical Center in Santa Ana, according to the United States Attorney's office.

Carr, who lived in the 2900 block of Pepper Tree Lane, will face charges of making a destructive device, using explosives during the commission of a felony, mailing an explosive device and using it with the intent to injure or kill.

He is scheduled to be arraigned Monday in U.S. District Court in Los Angeles.

Feds give Back Bay dredging $1.5 million

A bill granting $1.5 million in disaster relief funds to the city of Newport Beach for the dredging of Upper Newport Bay was passed by the U.S. Senate on Thursday, Sen. Barbara Boxer's office announced Thursday.

Rain runoff from San Diego Creek dumped at least 100,000 cubic yards of additional sediment into the Back Bay the past few months.

City officials estimate the Back Bay dredging will cost $5.4 million.

"Congressman [Christopher] Cox should be complimented as well as Supervisor [Tom] Wilson as well as Sen. Boxer for pushing this through," Mayor Tom Edwards said.

The bill, which the House of Representatives had already passed, will go to a joint committee of the House and Senate. The committee will make final changes.

administration, Fine said. To comply with the initiative, the district would need to cut about $3.5 million, he said.

School districts that don't comply with the 95-5 ratio must pay a fine of 5% of their budget to the state, Fine said.

For Newport-Mesa, the fine would be about $4.1 million.

The money would go to the state and be redistributed to districts that do comply with the 95-5 ratio. District officials said the districts that would be able to comply are the larger districts such as Los Angeles.

"They're the only winners in this," Fine said.

Sponsors of the initiative said the average California school district spends 9% of its budget on administration, compared with the nationwide average of 4.8%.

"Whenever you start talking change, they start coming up with all these horror stories," said John Perez, a spokesman for the initiative. "What we're asking is that the money be shifted to people who directly benefit the children."

Perez said the initiative seems to be enjoying a 2-to-1 margin of voter support in California.

Without giving assent to the initiative, Newport-Mesa Federation of Teacher President Linda Mook said school districts need to overhaul their budgets to increase efficiency, which Newport-Mesa is doing.

"I don't think it's a question of whether we need a change but whether 95-5 is the way to do it," she said.

Among the Orange County school districts, Newport-Mesa is second only to Laguna Beach in the percentage of its budget that goes to administration, Mook said. Among districts of comparable size in California, Newport-Mesa is the fifth in administrative spending, she added.

Listed below are the 1995-96 administrative spending levels for Orange County unified school districts.

Commenting on the school board's opposition of the measure, Mook said, "It's too easy to take cheap shots at a school board sitting in that new administrative building and voting not to curb administrative spending while they are surrounded by schools in the district that need an estimated $100 million in repairs."

But school board President Jim Ferryman has a different perspective.

"This is about local control of the schools," he said. "We're trying to get as lean and mean as we can and we don't need the interference."

'Bare Boat Charter' is taken to an extreme

■ This sort of treatment is usually reserved for houses of bamboo.

Had I known, I could have saved some money. I mean, why would I buy new ones just to go to a used boat show? It's silly when you think about it, in fact, it actually waters me off! What are they for if you can't wear them on a boat for God's sake?

"I'm sorry sir, but you can't enter without first taking them off. You must be bare while you take a look through the vessel."

These used boat broker folks want everybody to "Full Monty" their feet before taking a step on the boats.

I understand the theory but why then do all the brokers wear shoes? Are their soles better than mine? Cleaner, maybe?

Nay say I and in fact, every boat I stepped on had runner carpets or canvas covering the decks. I mean really, these are used boats. Oh well, the Sperry Topsider people are $65 ahead because of me!

My new shoes attended the 25th annual Newport Used Boat Show last weekend held at the Lido Marina Village with boats, brokers and buyers plentiful.

The Sunday sun added to the ambiance turning prospective buyers into believers that boating is dry, warm, fun, friendly and inexpensive, too!

Yeah, right. As my friend Dave and I strolled the mega-dollar dock demons, I became perplexed when I noticed a boat I'd previously seen advertised for only $299,000, now inflated to the "Boat Show Special," only $329,500!

I guess when you negotiate the broker down to $310,000 you think you got a deal. Most of the boats looked great, but the lack of good pricing seems to justify a stronger economy.

I entered a companion way of a boat (bare foot of course) and my eyes adjusted to the darkness. As I began to focus I noticed before me a woman broker behemoth resembling a land mass with a perm.

"Sixty-eight thousand and it's yours," she went on to say.

Now I don't know everything there is to know about boats, but I do know that rust, blisters and stress fractures are not good - oh, I'm not describing the boat. I'm describing the broker!

Actually the sales people were wonderful, friendly and very informative. I strongly suggest to anyone considering buying a boat, that this is the perfect way to learn.

Go to every show, ask every broker questions, look below decks, look in the bilge, discuss equipment with the manufacturer, read magazines, especially our own local corporate headquartered product, Sea Magazine.

Duncan McIntosh, the successful producer of the show should be commended as he's done a very credible job with limited space.

His two shows are now the largest of their kind in the western United States.

This weekend, you can view more than 50 acres of new and current model powerboats at the Newport Dunes Marina. A 17,000-square foot tent will enclose vendors willing to educate you on electronics, accessories, gear and boat-related services.

I'm looking forward to this week's powerboat show.

CdM catcher Mark Hatfield makes the tag at the plate to snuff out a Vaqueror, but it was an overall 9-3 disaster for the Sea Kings.

Ouch

■ Defending league champion Irvine drops Corona del Mar, 9-3.

By Richard Dunn, Daily Pilot

IRVINE - In a wide display of contrasting baseball styles, one team showed how to play defense, the other didn't.

The team with the best gloves, as in most cases, won.

"They can catch the ball and throw the ball," Corona del Mar High Coach John Emme said of Irvine's Vaqueros. "They're a solid defensive team, and obviously we're not." Couldn't get more plain and simple than that.

While the host Vaqueros, defending Sea View League champions, robbed CdM of a home run, grabbed an over-the-shoulder pop up and scooped up several tough infield plays, the Sea Kings threw the ball around in a 9-3 Irvine win on Thursday.

Corona del Mar (3-4, 0-2 in league), with a team many feel has a chance to earn a playoff spot this season for the first time since 1992, came apart at the seams in the third and fourth innings, allowing Irvine (3-6, 2-0) to score eight runs.

With the bases loaded in the third, Irvine cleanup hitter Chris Davis grounded a two-run single to right field against CdM southpaw Ryan Lewis, 1-1. Evan Little moved to third on the play for Irvine, which scored twice more in the inning on two errors - both throwing mistakes.

In the same inning, Irvine's James Whitted struck out looking with a runner on third and one out, but he redeemed himself by robbing CdM's Matt Larson of a home run to open the next inning.

"He'd just struck out in a crucial situation, looking at strike three, then he made that play - which justifies what we tell them all the time," said Irvine Coach Bob Flint, who preaches to his players about not taking a negative experience at the plate onto the field.

On the ensuing play in the fourth, Irvine third baseman Scott Zicarelli charged a high chopper near the bag, made a clean basket catch, then fired a bullet to first base.

Later, Irvine first baseman Evan Little nabbed a pop up on the edge of the outfield with his back turned to home plate.

But in the bottom of the fourth, Irvine scored four more runs, thanks to some interesting defense by the Sea Kings. "There were errors," Emme said. "Flat out errors."

Still, CdM struggled to read Irvine starter (and finisher) Devon Benter, a bulldog right-hander who had a three-hitter going with one more out to record in the seventh. But the Sea Kings put together two bloopers and two infield singles to score twice.

"They had a rough game," Flint said of the Sea Kings, "but they'll be better than that ... if they play catch, they will."

Ty Harper and Mark Hatfield had RBI singles in the seventh for CdM, while lead-off man Ryan Achterberg (3 for 4) drove in the game's first run when he singled home Tim Thurman in the second inning on a grounder up the middle. Achterberg also reached on an infield single in the fifth and on a Texas Leaguer in the seventh.

Tars' Flamson, Fredriksen, CdM's Vogele All-Sea View

■ Local trio earn first-team berths; four others are honored on second team.

Newport Harbor High juniors Jordan Fredriksen and Brooke Flamson were first-team selections for the second straight season to highlight seven Back Bay standouts named to the coaches' All-Sea View League girls soccer squad.

Fredriksen, a goalie, was also a second-team choice as a freshman, making this her third all-league laurel.

Flamson, the Sailors' sweeper, was also joined on the first team by Corona del Mar freshman goalkeeper Britta Vogele.

Sea King teammates Meghan Bryan and Julia Livingston were second-team honorees, as were Newport Harbor standouts Janelle Doyle and Cary Morrell.

Livingston, a sophomore who played both midfield and on the back line for the Tars, earned honorable mention last season.

Bryan, a Sea King junior, played forward, as did Doyle, a junior at Newport.

Morrell, another junior, was a midfielder for Harbor.

Newport's Jennifer Orr received honorable mention for a second straight year, while CdM's Kate Simon and Molly O'Meara also received honorable mention.

El Toro's Lauren Orlando was named MVP.

ESTANCIA'S GARCIA NAMED PCL CO-MVP

■ Five locals earn first-team laurels from coaches' selections.

Estancia High senior Ramon Garcia, who capped a four-year varsity career by leading the Eagles to the CIF Southern Section Division IV quarterfinals, was named Pacific Coast League Co-MVP by the circuit's coaches.

Garcia, a four-time all-league performer who added four goals and six assists to his stellar work on the back line as the Eagles' sweeper, is one of five locals tabbed first-team All-PCL.

Costa Mesa junior sweeper David Tran was an additional first-team choice, while Estancia's seniors Noe Estrada and Jose Quintana, as well as Eagle sophomore Cesar Terrones garnered similar honors.

Terrones, a forward, was the Eagles' leading scorer, while Quintana was also a forward and Estrada a fullback.

Costa Mesa junior midfielder Grant Nelson, as well as Estancia sophomore midfielder Irving Islas were second-team picks.

Six local players received honorable mention, including Estancia senior Brad Wayman, sophomore teammates Stuart Moncada and Esaul Mendoza, as well as Costa Mesa senior Christian Alvarez and Mustang juniors Matt Dunn and Arturo Olmos.

Junior forward Ryan Johnson, who led Laguna Hills to the league title, was the other MVP.

CdM rolls, 17-1

COTO DE CAZA - CORONA TENNIS
 del Mar High junior Sameer Chopra rallied from a 4-2 deficit to claim a 7-5 win en route to a singles sweep and several other Sea Kings also took care of business Thursday to help the visitors claim a 17-1 Sea View League-opening triumph over Santa Margarita at Coto de Caza.

CdM Coach Tim Mang also singled out the doubles tandem of junior Chris Jensen and freshman Randy Myers, which disposed of its Eagle foes, 6-2, 6-0, 6-3 in the No. 3 spot.

CdM, top-ranked in CIF Southern Section Division I and Orange County, improved to 8-0.

SEA VIEW LEAGUE

Sailors challenge Eagles

COTO DE CAZA - Newport Harbor High's boys golf team had its best collective performance in years at Coto de Caza Thursday, according to Coach Jim Warren, and gave Orange County's top-ranked Santa Margarita a severe test before falling, 194-201 in a Sea View League nine-hole match.

"We had a great day," Warren said of his young squad, which was paced by junior Zak LaFada, who broke 40 for the first time with a 3-over 39.

Sailors Mitch Johns and Traighe Concannon both shot 40, while teammates Kevin Olson and Scott Tippett carded 41 to shave nearly 20 strokes off the Tars' typical Coto de Caza team score.

Newport fell to 1-3, 1-1 in league.

Wallick sparkles, again

IRVINE - Corona del Mar High senior Max Wallick fashioned his second straight sub-par effort Thursday in leading the Sea Kings' boys golf team to a 184-198 nine-hole decision over Irvine's Vaqueros at Oak Creek Golf Club.

Wallick has a 1-under 35, and he had plenty of help as the Sea Kings improved to 5-1 overall, 2-0 in Sea View League play with Craig Brooks (36), Chad Towersey (37), Innes MacDonald (37) and Jeff Bemis (39). The Sea Kings host Woodbridge Tuesday at Newport Beach CC.

Eagles whip Mesa

COSTA MESA - Senior Casey Busch led an Estancia High assault on cross-town rival Costa Mesa Thursday in a par 35 over nine holes at Costa Mesa Golf & Country Club's Mesa Linda Course to lead the way for a 198-231 victory to improve to 2-3 overall, 2-0 in league play.

Busch was backed up by Andy Thomson (38), Pete Anderson (40), Tom Rausch (42) and Greg Rausch (43).

Jeff Montoya led Costa Mesa's game with 38 as Mesa fell to 0-3 in league.

Newport edges Los Al

LONG BEACH GIRLS - Newport Harbor High sophomore Erin Haller shot 33 over nine holes Thursday to pace the Sailors to a 112-115 non-league girls golf victory over host Los Alamitos at the Heartwell Golf Course.

Shannon Backus (39), Joy St. Dennis (40) and Marissa Nix (45) also contributed for the Tars.

CdM girls strong at the CIF Relays prelims

BELMONT SHORE - Corona del Mar High girls swimmers sparkled Thursday at the preliminaries of the CIF Relays at Belmont Plaza pool, as the Sea Kings qualified one championship finalist and four consolation finalists for Saturday's finals.

Michelle Dahn, Melinda Tucker, Hilary Hoeven, Meagan Hardt, Karen Dahn and Lauren combined to qualify eighth in the 6x50-yard freestyle relay to give CdM a chance at the title Saturday.

The Sea Kings qualified 11th in the 4x50 breaststroke, 13th in the 4x100 freestyle, 14th in the 4x100 medley and 15th in the 4x50 butterfly. CdM is also the first alternate in the 4x50 medley.

"To have that many teams coming back Saturday is real nice for our team," Coach Doug Volding said.

COLLEGES

Vanguards fall, 3-2

SAN DIEGO BASEBALL
 - Southern California College pitcher Bryce Primm's went the distance for the visiting Vanguards, yielding only five hits, but didn't get enough support in a 3-2 loss to Golden State Athletic Conference host Point Loma Nazarene Thursday.

Greg Schreiber had an RBI single to pace the seven-hit attack for the Vanguards (17-14).

Point Loma, which got 7 2/3 strong innings from starter and winner Dustin Love, improved to 16-16.

However, last week's used show had its redeeming moments. One would be hard pressed not to buy a boat from the angelic broker Tari Soderling of Art Brooks Brokerage. Standing tall, tanned, buffed and beautiful aboard a 42-foot sloop, no one really cared about the asking price. As prescribed, her feet were encased in Gucci tennies and mine, of course, were Full Monty!

Saturday and Sunday the Newport Dunes Resort Marina Boat Show will display 200 new vessels from 26- to 80-foot in length. Trailerable boats under 28 feet will be featured shoreside. Show times are from 11-6 today with starting times at 10 a.m. Saturday and Sunday. Admission is $8, children under 12 are free.

SCHEDULE

TODAY

- Baseball - Woodbridge at Corona del Mar, 3:15 p.m.; Estancia at Aliso Niguel, 3:15 p.m.; Newport at El Toro, 3:15 p.m.; University at Costa Mesa, 3:15 p.m. Volleyball - Community college men - Long Beach CC at Orange Coast, 7 p.m. High school boys - Newport Harbor at Huntington Beach, 6:45 p.m. Softball - Community college - Orange Coast at Irvine Valley, 3 p.m. High school - Newport Harbor at Aliso Niguel, 3:15 p.m.

Santa Ana Valley tops Costa Mesa, 5-2

SANTA ANA - The Costa Mesa High softball team stranded eight base runners Thursday and committed five errors to help host Santa Ana Valley claim a 5-2 nonleague victory. Kelly Daub and Krissy Genet each had RBI singles for the Mustangs (0-4), while Julie Collett and Christy Errico rounded out the four-hit attack. Daub, a sophomore, reached base 3 of 4 plate appearances, but, like several of her teammates, was stalled on her journey home.

The Falcons, who managed just four hits off senior hurler Kristin Chisholm, had two unearned runs. But Mesa could have squelched Valley's three-run fifth-inning rally by executing a play that was not scored an error, according to Mesa Coach Jim Weeks. SANTA ANA VALLEY 5, COSTA MESA 2 Costa Mesa 010 000 1-2-4-4-5 Santa Ana Valley 002 030 x-5 4 2 Chisholm and Christensen, r/a. L-Chisholm, 0-4, 2B-Kendrick (SAV).

BADMINTON

CdM loses, 17-2

WESTMINSTER - Savanna King won in girls singles and Mikuto Fukada and Brian Katusian captured a win in boys doubles for Corona del Mar High, but host La Quinta defeated the Sea Kings, 17-2, in Garden Grove League badminton action Thursday. CdM (2-3, 0-3 in GGL) travels to Marina on Tuesday.

He always saw the good in people and brightened the lives of those he touched by always lending a helping hand. Hank was an active member of The Newport Beach Elks, Costa Mesa Morning Lions Club and seasonal member of the Infamous "Tar Pit Gang" at the Newport Harbor High School football games. Always interested and concerned with children, Hank started the California Elwyn Institute as Beginning Director, was the Director of the Orange County Retarded Citizen's Association and active in the Boys and Girls Club for many years. Hank is survived by his loving wife Peggy, daughter Stacy Sloan, son and daughter-in-law Mike and Bonnie Jarboe, sister Kathy Collins and brother Tom Jarboe. Donations may be made in Hank's name to: In Memory of Hank Jarboe, Children's Hospital Foundation of Orange County, 455 S. Main St., Orange, 92668. A Memorial service will be held on Saturday, March 28 at 11:00 am at Newport Mesa Christian Center, 2599 Newport Blvd., Costa Mesa, CA 92627.

OTHER RELIEF: DECLARATION OF BARRY L. FRIEDBERG I, Barry Friedberg, declare as follows: I am over the age of 18 and have personal knowledge of the facts stated herein. If called, I could and would competently testify thereto. A judgment for dissolution was entered between myself and my ex-wife on February 23, 1998. Attached to these papers as "Exhibit A" is a copy of this judgment. The portion of the judgment that I am seeking modification of relates to the payment at my children's age of 25 of any funds remaining that were held in trust for my children's education. My children are Jon David Friedberg, born March 31, 1978, and Ingrid Sabrina Friedberg, born April 3, 1985. The modification that I request is that the funds that are remaining when my children reach age 25 revert back to myself as opposed to my children. The facts that I have as to the changed circumstances are substantial in relation to child visitation. I obtained, and the court records will substantiate, the contempt order against my ex-wife for visitation problems that I have encountered over the years. I have not seen nor talked to my children since the summer of 1997 and do not even know their whereabouts. They apparently for a portion of this time were in Norway and do not currently reside in California as best as I know. I am not requesting that my obligation to pay for my children's higher education be modified as I do agree to pay for that education if and when either of my children avail themselves of this opportunity. Opening lead: Ace of ♠
 The mathematics of the problem were clear enough on this hand from a U.S. — China World Championship match some years ago. Declarer was simply looking for some confirmation.

South's two-club rebid might seem pusillanimous to some, but the possibility of a misfit because of the spade void had to be taken into consideration. When North showed a good hand by next cue-bidding hearts, South wasted no time in getting to the slam level, and North's diamond preference ended the auction.
