Cops seize man after HB shootout

About 40 residents of a Huntington Beach mobile home park were evacuated early today after a resident apparently went berserk, exchanged gunfire with police and barricaded himself in his home for three hours.

his home for three hours.

Huntington Beach police Lt.
Bruce Young said the gunman, identified as Kennard R. Warrick, 53, surrendered at about 3 a.m. after 45 minutes of telephone negotiations and two volleys of tear gas were used by SWAT officers who surrounded Warrick's home. He resides in the Huntington By-the-Sea travel trailer area, 21871 Newland St.

Warrick, who is employed by the city of Huntington Beach in the street cleaning division, was taken to the jail ward at UC Irvine Medical Center with a single bullet wound to the right inner thigh, apparently suffered in the exchange with officers.

Hospital officials said Warrick was in fair condition early today. Young said the man was extremely disoriented and appeared mentally 'disturbed'

when he finally surrendered to officers.

One police officer, Norman Evenson, required eye cleansing to remove fragments that struck him during the gunfire exchange with Warrick, Young said. But he said no other police officers or civilians were hurt during the incident.

In addition to the evacuation of park residents living near Warrick's home, officers closed off Pacific Coast Highway between Beach Boulevard and Magnolia Street because of the (See SHOOTOUT, Page A2)

American Airlines' hopes of beginning service from John Wayne Airport next month probably will be grounded indefinitely today as Orange County supervisors are expected to temporarily block any new air carriers from using the already overcrowded facility. The resolution supervisors are being asked to endorse by Supervisor Thomas Riley, whose district includes the airport, would block the entry of any new air carrier at John Wayne Airport until a new airport acc plan is enacted, now scheduled for June 1984.

One important provision of the resolution directs that any access plan, which allocates flights among the competing airlines, be based upon their daily noise performance at the airport. Preference in flight allocations would be given to the airline whose planes make the least noise on takeoff.

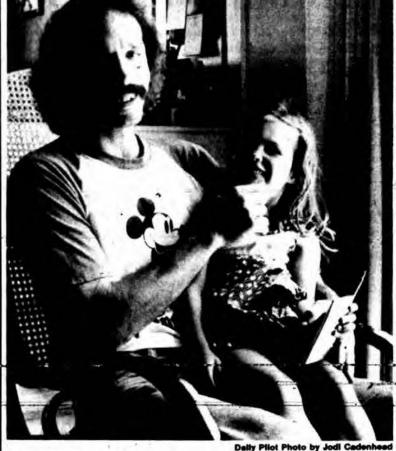

The measure also directs the airport manager to continue studying what impact the entrance of new air carriers would have on the airport and related airport facilities.

A spokesman for American Airlines, which announced amid much fanfare last week that it would begin service from JWA on June 9, said the airline would 'go forward" with its plans.

Riley said he certainly wouldn't be surprised if American took the county to court if the ban is enacted. "History certainly would indicate that," the supervisor commented.

Riley said he proposed the resolution because "it seemed we were at the point right now where we had to make a stand.

Things are looking a bit brighter for Paul Reins, the unemployed Costa Mesa man who called the Daily Pilot Friday after running out of hope and food for his family.

Two local companies, which asked not to be identified, said they would be willing to talk to Reins about a sales job. The 27-year-old father said he was grateful for the offers, but was just worried now about how he was going to pay his $535 rent this month. I'm just shocked that anyone called," said Reins. "I didn't

The board also ruled yesterday that six other facilities operated by Schuller should lose their property tax exemptions because

"Some students laugh and say 'but I like to drive drunk.' But most support us," says McManigal. "Peer pressure is so strong in high school that it's better the message is coming from fellow students.

Newport Beach police officer David Sens says he was surprised when the students called and asked him to talk at a school assembly.

"Normally the peer pressure in high school is to not conform, to screw up. This was a change a nice change," says Sens.

 Traditionally, Sens says, prom night is an accident waiting to happen. Last year, a Newport senior was killed in an alcohol-related accident after the prom and the year before a girl was killed in an accident before graduation ceremonies

"We're always on pins and needles this time of year," says Sens. "If not a fatality, there's usually some bad accident."

He says drunken driving statistics in Newport-Beach are scary. Last year, 1,701 people were arrested on suspicion of drunken driving and 260 accidents were blamed on intoxication. Figures, this year, are climbing at the same pace.

McManigal's interest in her crusade grew last year after viewing a television program on a Massachusetts-based program, Students Against Driving Drunk.

In preparing for the week-long drinking and driving crackdown, McManigal met with a victim of a drunken driver. The woman had lost a leg and now is confined to a wheelchair.

'I learned a lot from her. I learned that a lot of people don't care. The guy who hit her had been involved in five hit-and-run accidents. He didn't care.

"But," she adds, "I saw that it hadn't crushed her spirit or gotten her down. She got mad and fought back."

Earthquake could have been worse

Tremor of 6.5 magnitude seen causing deaths if it had hit San Francisco

COALINGA (AP) — Authorities examining the devastating Central Valley earthquake say there are a variety of reasons why the destruction wasn't worse including the small, rural nature of the town and its many one-story wooden buildings.

The quake left 47 injured among the population of 6,500 and many millions in damage, although a complete estimate has yet to be made. The preliminary estimate for the business district was $25 million.

The quake, which registered 6.5 on the Richter Scale, rumbled along a previously unmapped fault about five miles out of town, some 150 miles southeast of San Francisco.

If a quake of the same magnitude had struck San Francisco, the damage would have been much worse, said Dr. Bruce Bolt, director of the University of California seismology station at Berkeley

He said there are many tall masonry buildings in San Francisco similar to the ones that collapsed in Coalinga, where they were only one or two stories high.

Francisco from a quake of the same size, he said. "The chances of disaster are much higher in San Francisco," which also has a much larger population — 650,000.

Robert Iacopi, in his book "Earthquake Country," said the reason for devastation is that "buildings suffer during an earthquake the country has been been been as the country of the country of the country. primarily because horizontal forces are exerted against structural designs that often are meant to contend with only vertical stress.

"When the give-and-take of any structural element is unbalanced, the rigid, weaker elements are fractured and torn loose," he said.

Authorities said more than half the buildings in Coalinga were 40 years old or more, but had never been made earthquake-proof and hadn't been through a strong earthquake, according to Roger Scholl, technical director of the Earthquake Research Institute in San Francisco.

Still others note that the quake might have been worse if it happened at night when people are asleep rather than during the day when people can react more quickly.

Quake hit major oil facilities

COALINGA (AP) — Pumping facilities that handle 43 percent of Northern California's crude oil needs were knocked out by the big Coalinga earthquake; but oil company officials say the damage doesn't seem to be serious.

"We suffered some major damage, but no catastrophe," Claude Fiddler, Northern California drilling manager for Cheyron USA, said yesterday. The Monday quake, measured at 6.5 on the Richter scale, was centered in an oil field producing more than 30,000 barrels of heavy-grade crude daily. That's only about 2.6 percent of the total used by the state's

But pumping plants in Coalinga propel crude oil through major lines linking San Francisco Bay area refineries with fields as far south as Bakersfield. And those plants, handling about 43 percent of Northern California's need for crude, were stopped when the quake hit at 4:42 p.m. Monday. Getty Oil Co.'s 20-inch diameter pipe, which can carry 230,000 barrels a day, will be inactive until workers have a chance to inspect it for leaks for 50 or 60 miles on either side of the quake center, said Getty spokesman Frank Parisi.

A 150,000-barrel-a-day Chevron line wasn't damaged and resumed pumping on yesterday, company officials said.

Coalinga vows to rebuild

COALINGA (AP) — As Coalinga continued to surge with aftershocks, safety inspectors marched door-to-door today signing "death warrants" for scores of buildings as they assessed the cracks and rubble from a devastating earthquake.

"No part of the city is untouched," said
Mayor Keith Scrivner. But he added, "We can build again, and we will."

With hundreds of homes and offices fit only for the wrecker's ball, dazed inhabitants pitched tents on front lawns or slept outdoors on sofa beds.

Many homes "aren't livable any more, because our foundations, their roofs or their main bearing walls are completely wrecked," said city spokesman Robert Semple.

Some of Coalinga's 100 businesses may get the repair-or-rip-down decision today. A partial list may be posted of those destroyed or deemed unsafe, he said. But which of Coalinga's 2,600 houses would be condemned and which allowed to stand was not yet

At least 300 houses suffered major damage from Monday's earthquake, the initial inspection showed. The preliminary damage estimate remained at $25 million for the business area downtown alone.

'sign of progress' Andropov concession

MOSCOW (AP) — Communist Party chief Yuri V. Andropov is offering to count warheads as well as missiles in striking a balance between Soviet and NATO nuclear forces, but the possible concession was greeted warily in Washington.

The State Department said it welcomed Andropov's announcement as a "sign of progress" if he indeed was accepting the U.S.-endorsed basis for determining nuclear strength. But the department said there were ambiguities in Andropov's remarks that could represent "a hardening of the Soviet Andropov, during a banquet last night honoring East German leader Erich Honecker, said the Soviet Union "has stated readiness not to have in Europe a single missile and a single plane more than possessed today by NATO countries."

'In other words, we stand for the USSR to have no more missiles and warheads mounted on them than on the side of

In Washington, the State Department said U.S. negotiators would pursue Andropov's offer when arms talks resume in Geneva, Switzerland, on May 17. But the department's statement said the United States and its allies cannot accept Andropov's continued demand "for the right to maintain nuclear forces equal to all other states combined.'

Several Western observers saw Andropov's remarks as a softening of the Kremlin's position at the intermediaterange arms reduction talks in

But the British domestic news agency Press Association was suspicious. "Andropov may have made his new offer as part of the Soviet attempt to influence public opinion in the West," it cautioned today.
"By showing that the Russians are ready to negotiate, he may have been seeking to strengthen the role of Western anti-nuclear movements.'

Andropov said nothing in his speech about dismantling Moscow's highly mobile SS-20 going up again? De Beers Consolidated Mines.

the South African industrial firm which mines and sells most of the world's diamonds, has given the signal that diamond prices will be going up again. Because de Beers, through its Central Selling Organization, markets more than 80 percent of all diamonds sold, it has been able to raise the cost of uncut diamonds by 3.5 percent. This follows an increase of 2.5 percent last September. The increase came, says De Beers, because of increased demand by consumers in the U.S., Japan and West Germany. In other words, the ancient law of supply and demand is at work. The increased demand for diamonds might also be another indication of economic recovery. The market for gem-quality diamonds had tailed off last year, following a market peak in 1980. De Beers took action to keep diamond prices firm. They withheld some stones from the market. The diamond industry goes to special trouble to see that the value of diamond is protected. Historically, diamond prices have matched or outpaced the rate of inflation. The pricing system helps consumers by protecting the value of what they buy.

Cory, Fitzpatrick, McCardle named first inductees

Three Orange Coast College graduates who have attained prestigious positions in business and government became the first three inductees into the school's new Alumni Hall of Fame.

The honored graduates were Kenneth Cory, California state controller; Dennis Fitzpatrick, president and chief executive officer of Beverly Hills Savings and Loan; and Randall McCardle, an author, lecturer and founder of the Real Estaters.

Orange Coast College will always look upon these men as three very special people because these are our very first inductees," Bernard Luskin, OCC's president, told an audience of 300 civic leaders who gathered to honor the trio.

OCC officials say the school, located in Costa Mesa, is the nation's largest single-campus community college. More than 500,000 students have attended OCC during the past 35 years, college Honoree Fitzpatrick attended OCC from 1955 through 1957 and later graduated from UC Berkeley and USC. He played basketball at OCC.

"I think I know why you've selected Ken, Randy and myself into the Hall of Fame," he quipped during the ceremony. "In this era of fiscal difficulty, you probably figured you can go to Ken for money from the state. If that doesn't work, you can go to a private financial institution like Beverly Hills Savings and Loan for money. If that fails, Randy can sell your buildings."

Honoree McCardle attended OCC from 1953 Treeco Escrow, Inc., and is one of the founders of Citizens Bank of Costa Mesa.

'I love Orange Coast College," he said. The thing that most impressed me as a student was its warm atmosphere and collegiality. Teachers here have never treated students as inferiors."

Scientists studying change in climatic patterns

WASHINGTON - Farmers with parched fields from South Africa to Australia, Californians facing torrential storms and flooded South Americans are all victims of a flip-flop in Pacific Ocean-water temperatures.

That was the assessment of a panel of scientists who gathered yesterday to try to explain why odd things have been happening to the world's weather.

So far, the weather has resulted in more than 800 deaths and damage in excess of $7 billion, according to Joan Hock of the National Environmental

Skin disease patient survives

By MARCIA DUNN

PITTSBURGH - Surprising her doctors and family, Cleo Phillips is going home tomorrow after battling a rare, debilitating skin disease with a treatment that included wrapping her body in membranes that surround babies in the womb.

"I'm feeling pretty good. I'm so happy," said Phillips, 48, who was wrapped in the amniotic membranes to keep the disease from spreading.

She was very, very close to death. None of us really expected her to make it out of the hospital, yet in such good condition. We're all very surprised," said Dr. Fred Silverberg, who credited the membranes with helping save her life.

Phillips suffered from necrotizing fasciitis, an infectious disease which is contagious in its early stages. More than half of her body tissue had deteriorated because of the disease, leaving a reddened, depressed area stretching from her left knee to her breastbone.

Phillips, who is susceptible to severe infections because she suffers from diabetes, noticed in late February that a hair follicle had become infected. Within days, the infection had spread to her abdomen.

To temporarily control the spreading infection, Silverberg bandaged the diseased area with three amniotic membranes, which surround the baby in the mother's uterus.

It marked the first time that the "living dressing" had been used to treat the disease, which is so rare its exact incidence is not known, according to Silverberg. Such membranes previously have been used for burns and leg Satellite, Data and Information Service.

The cause of the water temperature change isn't clear but the study is continuing, said Eugene Rasmusson of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's Climate Analysis Center. Known as "El Nino" Spanish reference to the Christ Child because the phenomenon usually starts at about Christmastime - the ocean temperature change isn't really anything new. It changes wind and current patterns in the Pacific Ocean every eight years or so, the last time in 1976-77. But this is the most severe in nearly a century, Rasmusson said.

Usually, it is first noticed when the cold water off South America's west coast warms up, and fish supplies disappear. That occurred last fall, according to William Gordon of the National Marine Fisheries Service.

Rasmusson explained that the prevailing winds and currents generally push warm water west in the Pacific. But when El Nino known to scientists as the Southern Oscillation — occurs, those winds and currents die out.

The warm water sloshes back to the east, fish move, storms shift, the jet stream in the upper atmosphere gets stronger and more heat and moisture are transferred from the ocean to air.

Scientists are still assessing how the air and ocean interact, said John V. Byrne, head of

HAMBURG, West Germany (AP) - Adolf Hitler not only knew about Rudolph Hess' World War II parachute jump into Scotland in a quest for an early peace with Britain, but planned his reaction depending on the outcome, the latest installment of the Nazi dictator's purported diaries

The authenticity of the diaries, said to have been flown out of Berlin in the waning hours of World War II, has been challenged by numerous Stern magazine, owner of the disputed documents, said Hitler discussed the flight, in which Hess was to seek peace with Britain prior to the invasion of the Soviet Union, in one volume of the 60-book set.

The magazine, which goes on sale tomorrow, said Hitler wrote the following options: 1. Should the mission succeed and Hess is successful, he acted in agreement with me. "2. If Hess is arrested in England as a spy, then he informed me some time ago about his plan, but I

"3. Should his mission fail completely, I declare Hess acted in a fit of delusion," the magazine quoted Hitler as writing.

After the mission failed and Hess was arrested, Hitler decided to go with the third option, the magazine said. The magazine printed excerpts from a special volume which Hitler allegedly marked "The Hess Case" in black ink. The report said the volume ends with Hitler's signature and the date, May 16, 1941, six days after Hess made his jump.

Her talk is free and open to the public, with a special invitation to adult leaders of the YMCA Indian Guides and Maidens program.

The talk will be at the Irvine Historical Museum, 5 Rancho San Joaquin.

•"Remodeling: The Affordable Alternative" is the topic of a Coastline College seminar scheduled tomorrow at the Robinwood Learning Center, 5172 McFadden Ave., Huntington Beach.

The seminar will be held from 7 to 10 p.m. in Room 13. Registration fee is $10.

The program will focus on how to save construction costs, how to select and work with an architect and how to finance the remodeling. Abdul Assifi, former minister of mines and engineering in Afghanistan, will discuss the Soviet Union's invasion of his native country during a meeting Friday in Irvine of the South Coast Republican Forum. The meeting will begin with dinner at 7:45 p.m. at Progressive Savings & Loan Association, 4860 Irvine Blvd. Assifi's speech will start at 8:45 p.m.

For dinner reservations, call 831-7896.

They received their awards today at UCI's Campus Village Apartments. At that event, Gary Keller, editor of Eastern Michigan University's Bilingual Press, spoke on "Recent Trends in Chicano Poetry."

Lopez finished first for his short story, "The Boy Who Swam with the Dolphins." Castano won for his poetry work, "Bone Games." More than 200 entries were judged in the University High School students are urging community members to visit their campus Tuesday to donate blood to the American Red Cross.

The blood drive will run from 8:15 a.m. to 7 p.m. in the school's Multi-Purpose Rooms B and C. Interested people can call the school at 833-3644, ext. 38 or 42 to sign up for an appointment.

The only requirements, said student Chairman Dan Schvartzman, are that donors are at least 17 years old, weigh 110 pounds and that they have 30 minutes to spare.

Merit scholars selected

Several students from Orange Coast area high schools are among 2,000 recipients nationwide of college-sponsored four-year National Merit scholarships.

Winners will receive $1,000 to $8,000 over four years of undergraduate study at the college or university financing the awards. The scholarships are sponsored by 190 U.S. higher education institutions, both public and private. The college-sponsored scholarships, worth $9 million nationwide, were the last of three National Merit award announcements made for 1983.

Area winners included Paul Kevin Wood of Huntington Beach, Huntington Beach High School; Paul G. Floyd, Mission Viejo, Mission Viejo High School; Sharon K. Sprague of Los Alamitos, Los Alamitos High School; and Nora J. Perren of Santa Ana, Foothill High school.

OCC plans to borrow for payroll

Coast Community College District trustees have unanimously agreed to issue $5 million in short-term notes to eliminate a temporary shortage of funds anticipated during part of the coming school year.

The money will be used to meet payroll expenses. The notes will be paid off when the district receives the money it is entitled to from state education funding and tax revenues.

District officials said borrowing through short-term notes is a common practice among local school districts. The Coast district includes Orange Coast in Costa Mesa, Golden West in Huntington Beach and Coastline colleges.

The college district already has issued layoff notices to 114 fulltime teachers and administrators and is studying other means of erasing a $5.5 million deficit anticipated in next year's budget.

Personal time for national observance

Tomorrow, May 5th, will be our country's thirty-first consecutive National Day of Prayer.

Historically, such observances date back to 1775, when the Continental Congress declared the first one. Other such days followed for several years. Through the succeeding decades other national days of prayer were declared from time to time until 1952, when Congress established the custom of an annual prayer day.

But, unlike many of our national days of commemoration, there won't be any parades down main street. No three-day weekends. No backyard barbecues or topical greeting cards in

It is a public observance of a very private activity. Churches and synagogues and some public buildings are being asked to ring their bells at noon as a reminder of the call to united prayer.

Citizens are being asked to "take 5 at 12"... to pause for at least five minutes to contemplate and observe the National Day of Prayer in ways appropriate to their own tradition. And we are a nation of myriad traditions and diverse creeds.

That very fact is perhaps the best reason to take part in this observance.

We have much to be thankful for, including our freedom of religious choice. We have need for guidance and help in maintaining that and our other freedoms, as well. And we need spiritual and moral strength to face the many personal and social problems that confront us today.

It is often difficult, in the press and pace of everyday life, to make time for personal reflection. But our nation is only as strong and as wise and as firm in belief as each individual

Tomorrow we have the opportunity to personally and collectively reflect on our beliefs and our aspirations.

Tomorrow we join with you in a prayer for our country and ourselves in the year to come. .

To the Editor:

When Proposition Thirteen was passed, those of us who voted for it assumed that the many budget cuts to be made would be made in a responsible and sensible manner. Made in a way not to shortchange the academic pursuit of the classroom student. I now question the validity of that assumption.

California, in the past, has been known nationally for trying new and seemingly improved methods in many areas of our government, including education. Television teaching was one of these new areas in which we

It was applauded by many at its inception; however, I question the quality of education we are giving our students by maintaining our telecourses and eliminating the stimulation of classroom interaction. Are we "innovating" our students out of the national mainstream?

The status of the California high school graduate is far below many other states across the nation, according to representatives of major universities. Our students spend fewer days in the classroom and take more electives than most other states, and, now, we seem to be seeing the same trend taking place at the community college level. Our students (young and old) are being cheated out of an important growth-producing part of their education; face-to-face teaching, whether academic or vocational. In the money-savin step of laying off teachers and eliminating classes while maintaining our volume-reaching telecourses, are we turning out community college level as well? As a student at Orange Coast

College and the mother of prospective students, the goals and direction of our present leadership concern me greatly.

My vote in upcoming elections (both recall and regular) will certainly be influenced by the direction I feel our educational system should take.

Banks earn a bad image

WASHINGTON - The nation's banks have been getting some unwelcome criticism lately. President Reagan has publicly accused them of misleading the public on the interestwithholding law they're spending millions to repeal.

More bad publicity came in a recent study showing that the 20 biggest banks pay an average effective tax rate of 2.7 percent on their domestic income — less than the poor widows the bankers have been weeping-such crocodile tears over.

What's really shocking, though, is that some banks have been caught cheating their customers. Yet a network of federal laws and regulations protects the identity of the guilty

In 1978, the General Accounting Office — the investigative arm of Congress was given authority to monitor the government agencies that regulate banks. But the same law forbids the GAO from giving Congress and the public details of lax regulation, including the names of banks that have been caught ripping off their customers. FOR EXAMPLE the GAO recently issued a sketchy report which disclosed that during a six-month period in 1981-1982 the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. quietly excused 15 banks from paying back $1.2 million in credit insurance premiums improperly charged to thousands of customers. Credit insurance is the little-noticed but lucrative add-on that lenders charge so that loans will be paid off if the borrower dies. Obviously, it's a convenience for the banks, which don't have to go after a borrower's estate to get the balance due.

The 15 banks had tacked on credit insurance premiums in violation of the Truth-inLending Act. Under that law, a lender is required to do three things before charging for credit insurance:

 Inform the borrower in writing that the insurance is optional Disclose the total, lump-sum cost of the policy Obtain the borrower's signature on a request for credit

MY ASSOCIATE Tony Capaccio learned that 5,500 customers were cheated and that the average length of time the 15 banks were allowed to collect premiums in violation of the law was 28 months. Though both the FDIC and GAO refused to give Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., the names of the offending banks on request, internal FDIC files provide some of the shocking details:

 One bank failed to disclose the optional nature of the insurance for 21 months, while collecting $700,000 in illicit

 Seven banks, for an average of 32 months, not only failed to tell borrowers they didn't have to take the insurance, but also failed to get signatures on forms requesting the insurance. This cost 4,700 customers $421,700 in premiums for insurance they may not have wanted.

— One bank violated the law for 35 months, saddling 2,800 borrowers with $110,000 in tainted premiums.

Another milked borrowers for $95,000 in premiums that involved Truth-in-Lending violations over a four-year

FOOTNOTE: An FDIC spokesman insisted that the violations the GAO found were merely "technical," and did not constitute overcharges to customers. This may be true, since the borrowers (as well as the banks) were protected by the credit insurance. The question, of course, is whether the customers paid for protection they didn't

Hayden's boys get beat

By THOMAS D. ELIAS

in the municipal elections around California this spring was Democratic Assemblyman Tom Hayden of Santa Monica.

That's a big change from the situation just two years ago. Hayden didn't appear on any ballots then, either. But his Campaign for Economic Democracy won control of three city councils and emerged from that spring campaign with almost 60 of its members and allies in elective office.

Those results gave CED credibility as a major force in the state's Democratic Party and made it a prime target for Republican candidates, who last fall used the specter of Hayden's "radicalism" against almost any Democrat who had ever talked with Hayden.

Combined with Hayden's own victory last year in the most expensive legislative campaign in history, CED had won an aura of invincibility. The image was based on performance: Even when badly outspent, CED had shown an ability to out-organize all opponents in local elections, with massive get-out-the-vote drives its specialty.

BUT THIS spring's results showed CED to be far from invincible. They also showed that Californians still resent any effort at formation of a political machine like traditional Eastern models.

The Hayden organization had two aims in local elections this year: Take total control of city government in Santa Monica, its headquarters city, and take a firm grip on city government in Cautornia outpos.

CED failed in both efforts. And although the issues were different, voter behavior was In Santa Monica, an 80 percent tenant city where CED had made rent control the issue for three straight elections, suddenly CED and its allies were the issue.

With four CED members and allies assured of at least two more years on the seven-person city council, one incumbent CED activist called for election of three more Hayden allies to administer a "coup de grace" to the opposition. CED also ran slates aiming at absolute control over the local school and community college boards.

Assured of continued council control, CED was unable to convince voters that rent control was threatened. Meanwhile, opponents hammered at the of absolute control

THEY ALSO staged a more determined get-out-the-vote drive than CED and wound up with an election sweep, even knocking out Mayor Ruth Y. Goldway, leader of the local pro-CED forces.

In Chico, CED also was unable to make its old issue stick. The organization had used a development vs. open space conflict to arouse students from the local state college campus and win a narrow margin on the city council two years ago. But this year there was no such issue, so students didn't turn out. Meanwhile, local homeowners did - and only one CED candidate was elected, with council control now a thing of the

The lessons of the spring were clear to Hayden, who vowed on election night to work harder next time.

And in fact, evidence in the form of precinct-by-precinct voter turnouts indicates that CED and its allies simply didn't work as hard this year as they did in their earlier, winning efforts.

BUT THE group will also have to find new issues if it's to galvanize the kind of solid support it got in local elections two years ago.

Because that's not so easy to do, there's no guarantee even hard work will bring CED back to the stature it enjoyed before this spring. That's why Hayden is the big springtime loser. For his influence in party politics will last only as long as his organization remains a potent electoral force.

"One thing though is that you can't say, that Tip O'Neil isn't "behind" Reagan. Ha.

The second time around probably wouldn't improve

Many people are fond of reflecting that they would like a chance to live their lives over again, so that they could avoid the mistakes they made the first time. I have never been able to believe this would do much good.

In my opinion, most of us would need at least three lives, not two, in order to profit from our flaws and follies: the first in which to commit our initial errors, the second in which to commit exactly the opposite ones, and the third in which to strike a reasonable balance between these extremes.

MOST OF US, given the time and opportunity, learn only from our mistakes to go in the opposite direction: the person who is bruised by his naivete turns cynical the next time; the trusting person, once betrayed, turns unduly suspicious; the repressed person, once released, wallows in sensuality.

Poor people who suddenly strike it rich generally have no notion of how to handle their new wealth, and turn as profligate as they were formerly prudential. Egalitarians, when they assume the reins of authority, become more dictatorial than those they have ousted. (The French Revolution is only the most dramatic example in history.)

And, of course, the religious zealot who calls for "liberty of conscience" when he is persecuted has a notorious record of persecuting others when given the power and opportunity.

A second chance at life would not suffice for most of mankind. When we learn that something is wrong, we tend to assume that its opposite is right. We view circumstances in terms of "contradictions" instead of complementaries; we separate into rigid compartments those attitudes and approaches that must be blended and joined to obtain our optimum satisfaction. In social theory, for example, if "coddling" our convicts doesn't work, then we adopt harsh measures, ignoring the plain fact that neither kindness nor cruelty alone is an effectual treatment.

IF WORLD PEACE has thus far failed because we have not worked out a proper system of conflict-resolution, we arm ourselves to the teeth, making another global war nearly inevitable, because we have found no path between mutual defense and naked aggression. This, of course, is the ultimate folly of mankind.

No, I am afraid that two lives would not be sufficient to turn us into rational creatures. Three might just possibly do it, and then again might not. We are the victims of our emotions, endowed with the kind of intellect that persuades us to justify our gratification. It is not our animal passions that betray us as much as our mind itself, which caters to our impulses while pretending to control them.

Law Day. • Students observe justice in action

Orange County high school students got an insider's look at the criminal justice system last Saturday at the Orange County Courthouse in Santa Ana.

The occasion was Law Day, an observance of the law and how it affects our lives, set up by the Orange County Bar Association.

Marina High School students Joy Herndon, 17, and Shawn Frilot, 16, were wired up to take a lie detector test at the court.

Theodore Ponticelli, of the National Academy of Lie Detection, conducted the polygraph tests with the equipment he uses to train law enforcement officers and security personnel

Ponticelli and his son, Theodore Penticelli. Jr., have introduced polygraph

The degree of accuracy, based on laboratory studies, indicates the test has 96 percent validity, Ponticelli said.

Nuns practice law

They leave old habits behind

EDITOR'S NOTE — Until recently, the number of women in the law profession was nominal. The number of nuns practicing law was virtually nonexistent. Two Roman Catholic sisters in Nebraska are helping to change all that.

By KATHY EYRE
Associated Press Writer
OMAHA. Neb.

OMAHA, Neb. — God's law certainly doesn't frown on nuns making man's laws their career, say two Roman Catholic sisters who are practicing attorneys in Nebraska. But they admit some people may dislike the idea.

Sister Timothy O'Roark and Sister Jean Ingrassia, who belong to the Sisters of Mercy, say they are the only nuns in the state who are lawyers and are among about 40 nuns in the nation who are attorneys.

Sister Ingrassia, who now writes decisions for the Social Security Administration's Omaha Bureau of Hearings and Appeals, received her law degree in 1976 from Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C.

Upon graduation, the Brooklyn, N.Y., native applied for a position with the office of a federal agency in New York City. The man who interviewed her was Catholic.

"He must have known by reading my resume that I was a nun, because when I walked in, he said, 'What shall I call you? I don't know what to call you — Ms., Miss, Sister. . . .' He says, 'I like my nuns in habits.'

"I certainly wasn't his nun, but because he was Catholic and I was a nun, he thought he owned me."

She didn't get the job.

Sister Ingrassia says there are many who only reluctantly accept nuns leaving their traditional habits behind them and entering non-traditional professions.

But Sister Ingrassia and Sister O'Roark say in the future people will accept nuns in a variety of jobs — from attorneys to psychiatrists to politicians.

"All service professions are going to be explored by religious women," Sister O'Roark says, "because people's concept of service is broader than it was before and the ways people can serve now size more diverse."

Sister Ingrassia says the most opposition she received on the road to becoming an attorney came from her mother general in Brooklyn.

She had entered the order in 1960, at a time when most nuns stayed in convents and were either teachers or nurses. Sister Ingrassia was a high school teacher when she decided her talents didn't fit the traditional mold.

Sister Timothy O'Roark (above) and Sister Jean Ingrassia, Roman Catholic nuns, are but two of a handful of nuns practicing law in the United States.

"I decided I wanted to do something more involved directly in working with poor people and in order to do that, I had to have certain skills," Sister Ingrassia says of her decision to leave teaching for law school.

The Sisters of Mercy is an order dedicated primarily to teaching and caring for the poor.

Sister Ingrassia approached her mother general about law school as a means of preparing to serve the poor.

"The mother general was not amenable to the idea. In fact, she was averse to it," Sister Ingrassia recalls. "She said, 'I don't approve of what you are doing but I'm not going to stand in your way."

Sister Ingrassia says the mother general allowed her to apply for law school but refused to give her money for tuition.

But Sister Ingrassia was determined. She applied for dozens of grants and scholarships. Working part time during law school and with a combination of several grants and scholarships, she became a lawyer.

Sister Ingrassia says not only was she one of the first nuns in the country to graduate from law school, but at age 40 she was one of the oldest members of her graduating class.

Sister O'Roark, the executive director of the Omaha Legal Aid Society, says she encountered much less opposition in making the transition from school teacher to attorney. Her religious community in Omaha gave her complete support when she enrolled at the University of Nebraska law school. The 36-year-old Kansas City, Mo., native has been working with Legal Aid since she graduated in 1977, becoming executive director a year ago.

Hypnosis can be helpful

DEAR DR. STEINCROHN: I have engaged an obstetrician who will be delivering my first baby. But, lately, people have been putting some doubts in my mind about how good he is. They say they don't trust any doctor who relies on hypnotism in his practice. But the doctor has left the choice up

He says I don't need to take advantage of hypnotism unless I want to. In fact, he is running classes for any of his patients who want the help of hypnosis. Is there any reason for me to question his ability? Frankly, as a "newcomer," I'm especially concerned. — MRS. T.

DEAR MRS. T.: You'll agree I can't pass on your doctor's capabilities from way back here. Your medical society and other sources will furnish that information. But, I think you (and many others) will be surprised to learn that as far back as 1958, the American Medical Association determined that the technique "has a recognized place in medicine." Since then, it has been used in several thousand

At a recent meeting in Denver, Simon W. Chiasson, M.D. of Youngstown, Ohio said (according to JAMA - 1/21/83) he begins hypnotic training at varying stages of pregnancy. Some obstetric patients (about 5 percent) can't be treated with hypnosis alone. He says he has used hypnosis in "18 Caesarean sections, in which no anesthesia wa necessary except for a little bit of local in a few reports and extensive personal experience demonstrate that hypnosis facilitates the mother's comfort in pregnancy, labor and delivery." Feel better about your doctor, — MRS. T.?

FOR MRS. J.: I agree we should be thankful for any new remedy that is helpful in treating severe acne. However, initial enthusiasm should be tempered when there is question of side reactions. You say your daughter's acne has improved greatly while taking "isotretinoin." Although recently approved by the Food and Drug Administration for treatment of recalcitrant cyctic acne, some cases have been reported in which it has produced "skeletal hyperostosis" (enlargement of bone). If your daughter has been on this medication for many weeks or months, better have her check with her doctor frequently to be sure there are no toxic reactions. It's a valuable remedy that requires supervision.

Dr. Steincrohn welcomes questions from readers. He cannot answer all individually but will include those of general interest in his column. Send your questions to him, in care of the Daily Pilot, P.O. Box 1560, Costa Mesa 92626.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I became furious when I read the letter to "The Wife" from "A Fool in Love." Since I am "The Wife," I feel I am entitled to equal time.

DEAR FOOL: Yes, I have his name, I bore his children, I live in his home and share his bed. He takes me to parties and on glamorous trips, but they look a lot more exciting to the observer than they actually are.

If you want the bum I can have his suitcase packed by the time you get here. I have begged him to get out of my life, but he keeps saying he loves me and the children and that I should be patient. Two years of therapy have helped me stay reasonably sane. I'm sure he doen't want to marry you, but he doesn't want to give you up either. What he really wants is ME for the main course and YOU for dessert.

So, if you can talk this "wonderful human being" into parking his shoes under your bed permanently, it's perfectly all right with me. I just want you to know — I KNOW THE SCORE IN

DEAR LOU: You asked only for "equal time," so I am offering no advice. Apparently you have asked youself that well-known Ann Landers question: "Would my life be better with him or without him?" The answer is obvious, so hang in

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I need to know about knuckle-cracking. For the last five years I have been cracking my knuckles (that started first), then my toes, ankles, knees, hips, back, elbows, wrists, fingers and neck.

A friend told me this can cause arthritis. When I mentioned it to my sister she said it was nonsense. So now I am turning to you for a medical opinion because I know you are in touch with the experts. Am I hurting myself? What about it, Ann? — SNAP CRACKLE POP IN SAN JOSE

DEAR POP: The only problem you may encounter is the wrath of those who don't like the sounds. In fact, it drives some people up the wall. My medical experts say there is no evidence that cracking knuckles, toes, ankles, hips, back, elbows, wrists, fingers or necks will cause arthritis. My only suggestion would be that you do

DEAR ANN: I hope you can solve a problem for a longtime reader and fan. Len and I have been married a few months. We both work and I cook for two. The problem: If a visitor drops in unexpectedly, in the middle of dinner, should that person be asked to join us?

Even though it is often awkward to try to stretch a meal for two to accommodate three, I say we should do it. My husband insists I am wrong. We have agreed to do whatever you say. — SPLIT DECISION IN YONKERS

DEAR YONK: As a longtime reader you should know how I feel about unexpected company. To drop in at mealtime is the absolute pits. If the clod is a close relative or dearly loved friend, of course you say, "Pull up a chair." Otherwise, suggest that he/she phone ahead next time and make no apologies.

A major difference be tween rubber bridge and duplicate is that, when you are playing for money, the safety of your contract becomes paramount.

Declarer paid no heed to this principle, and the cost was exorbitant.

After his partner opened the bidding. South had visions of a grand slam. But Blackwood revealed that there was a king missing so, since he could not be sure of the quality of North's suit, South was content to play a small slam. To protect against possible bad breaks, he wisely placed the final contract in no trump.

West led the top of his diamond sequence, and declarer went down swiftly. He won the queen, cashed the king of hearts, and crossed to dummy with the ace of clubs. He cashed the ace and queen of hearts, pitching a spade and a diamond from his hand. When that suit failed to break and the jack did not come down, declarer switched his attention to clubs. When that suit also behaved unkindly, declarer was forced to concede down one. Admittedly, South was unlucky to find that the hand with the long hearts also held four clubs, but his line of play was correct only had the contract been seven no trump. At six no trump, declarer could and should have taken a safety play to insure his contract.

Suppose that, at trick two, declarer cashes the king of hearts and then ducks a club! East would win and revert to diamonds, but declarer would be in charge. He would win in hand and cross to dummy with the ace of clubs. His losing diamond and spade would go on the high hearts. and declarer could return to his hand with a spade to run clubs and claim his slam.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? 'A Fine Romance" is unusual in another way. It's based on a successful British series, an import process that worked for Taffner's hits "Three's Company" and "Too Close for Comfort."

There's been some Americanization, what I call taking the "u" out of colour," says Taffner. "So instead of lorry, we now say truck. Instead of sausage, we say franks. The jokes are the same. It's very translatable because the subject is universal."

An American writer, Fred Barron, worked with the British creator-writer, Bob Larbey, "to ensure American sensibilities," says Kane.

Based on the pilot's taping, "A Fine Romance" is a first-rate sitcom. The humor is sophisticated, the main characters likable and their vulnerabilities real. Maybe that's what happens when a program

Jack Lemmon is a tough act to follow, but those who see the Huntington Beach Playhouse's version of "Tribute" probably will agree with the casting of Tom Klein in the central role of Bernard Slade's astringent comedy.

Scottie Templeton, the character being given the "tribute," is not your average, garden variety humanitarian being honored for years of unselfish devotion. He was a lousy husband and a lousier father, a job-hopping hedonist to whom responsibility is a four-letter word. But he's also got about six months to live.

He's also a charmer, and he needs all of that commodity at his command to re-establish communication with his grown son in the time allotted him. It's a difficult, many-faceted role, and Klein proves equal to the task. He doesn't attempt to imitate Lemmon, but endows Scottie with his own style and flair in a most watchable performance.

Director Ken Karp has created an overall aura of naturalness that only occasionally falters in this generally appealing production. The incorporation of a theater stage in the midst of the apartment scene works well once the audience is accustomed to

Aside from Klein's impressive performance, the Huntington Beach production is most notable for Nelson Gilmore's intense portrayal of his estranged son. Gilmore begins as almost a caricature, but imposes his embittered manner gradually on his audience until the depth of his character stands painfully revealed.

Sherry Starkey does a creditable job as Klein's ex-wife, while Jim Flynn is uneven in the role of his friend and agent. Teri Hamilton is bright and natural as the girl who breaks through Gilmore's

As Klein's concerned doctor, Kris Hagen conveys compassion blended with determination. Sharon Walker is less effective in the role of a

Singer takes work in opera seriously

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Opera star's Placido Domingo's name means "peaceful Sunday," but don't make fun of opera in his presence.

"I just won't allow it, you see," says the Spanish-born tenor, who stars in the movie version of "La Traviata."

'It's as if they were making fun of my family," he says. "If it happens, I get up and walk out. That's how seriously I take my work."

Domingo has been working hard to turn people into opera buffs. One recruit, Franco Zeffirelli, who made the "La Traviata" movie, thinks Domingo can become a box office attraction in other films.

'That's why I made that record with John Denver, 'Perhaps Love,' and that other record, 'My Life for a Song'," Domingo said. "Since those came out, I've had a lot of people come up to me and say, I wasn't a fan before. In fact, I hardly knew your name, but now I'm coming to see you in opera.'

Don Taffner, executive producer of "A Fine Romance," says taping the pilot episode in New York was not more expensive than a Hollywood shooting would have been. But if it goes to series, it would have more financial and logistical problems than a Hollywood-based show.

"That's why there's so little production here," says Kane. "For New York to grow in productions, its studio facilities have to grow. The city itself is the greatest back lot in the world."

Kane, who used to work in NBC's program department, says that when "Love Sidney" was taped here, "much of the staff had to be transported from Los Angeles and housed."

Security Pacific offers bill paying by telephone

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Beginning next month, writing checks for bills can become a thing of the past for Security Pacific National Bank checking accounts customers. Customers can instead pay their bills by

Set to begin June 1 for the bank's 1.9 million checking customers, users will be charged $4 a month for the service — the equivalent of 20 postage stamps. Shirley Gonzalez, who is heading the program, said people who use the service will become the base of the bank's future home-banking efforts in which customers will use computer terminals to transfer funds to creditors.

Mattel sues Atari over secrets

LOS ANGELES - Mattel Electronics and Mattel Inc. filed a $40 million dollar lawsuit against Atari Inc. and three former employees yesterday for allegedly stealing trade secrets involving home video cartridges. The lawsuit claimed the secrets allowed Atari to develop a better cartridge that can be used on Mattel equipment.

Suit tries to halt Bekins sale

LOS ANGELES — Far West Financial Corp., run by Canada's wealthy Belzberg brothers, filed a $100 million lawsuit yesterday that seeks to stop Minneapolis investor Irwin L. Jacobs from buying the Bekins Co. moving and storage firm. The suit accuses Bekins Co. Chairman Stanley Hiller Jr. and other company officials of manipulating last month's bidding war over the Glendale-based firm to encourage speculation in Bekins stock that provoked a rapid hike

Don't rent a Hertz, buy it

BURBANK — RCA Corp, is strengthening its "core" electronics, communications and entertainment units and has no plans to unload its profitable, but ratings-shy, NBC television subsidiary, RCA Chairman Thornton F. Bradshaw told shareholders, but he added that such units as Hertz Corp, are still for

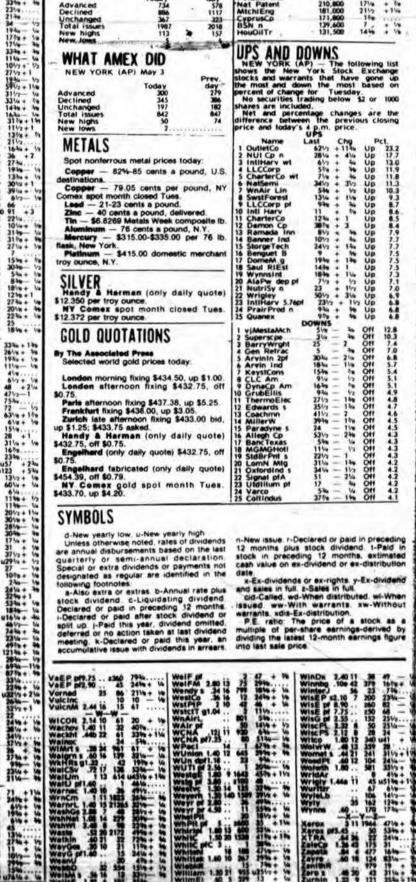

First Interstate 'loan sale'

SAN FRANCISCO - A "loan sale" featuring up to a 2 percent reduction on all consumer loans began yesterday and continues through June at First Interstate Bank of California.

Treat Mom to brunch

Nothing is too good for Mom, and nothing will put her in the pink faster on her day than a delightful, festive brunch prepared by someone else.

Focusing on easy entertaining, this buffet-style menu features make-ahead recipes.

Begin with eye-openers. Sunshine Fizz, for example, blends mellow brandy with cling peaches in juice. Make the blender drinks in advance. They can be frozen until ready to serve.

Then move to the main attraction — Orange Pancake Puff. This unusual recipe makes two large pancakes with original pancake mix, but instead of griddle cooking, you bake them in the oven.

The pancakes puff to a bowl shape as they bake, with a warm, crispy crust and a moist, tender interior. Even prepared an hour ahead, they hold their shape. Cut them in wedges and serve with warm or chilled fruit toppings.

The chilled Creamy Fruit Topping blends tangy sour cream and fruit cocktail, and warm Buttery Peach topping is rich with the flavor of orange, nutmeg and cling peaches.

Complement the meal with an array of breakfast meats — Canadian bacon, link sausage, crispy bacon strips — and scrambled eggs.

For dessert, nothing could be more quick and easy than Peach Custard Kuchen.

Sunshine Fizz

- 1 can (16 ounce) cling peach slices in juice ½ cup brandy
- 1/2 cup whipping cream
- 1 tablespoon Kirsch, Cointreau or orange flower

2 teaspoons lemon juice 1 cup cracked ice

Combine peach slices with all juice, brandy, cream, eggs, Kirsch and lemon juice in blender. Biend until smooth. Add ice and blend until combined. Put in pitcher in freezer until guests arrive. Pour into large stemmed glasses. If desired, add more cracked ice to serve. Makes 4 servings.

Orange Pancake Puff

- 1 cup water
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine
- ½ teaspoon grated fresh orange peel 1 cup original pancake mix

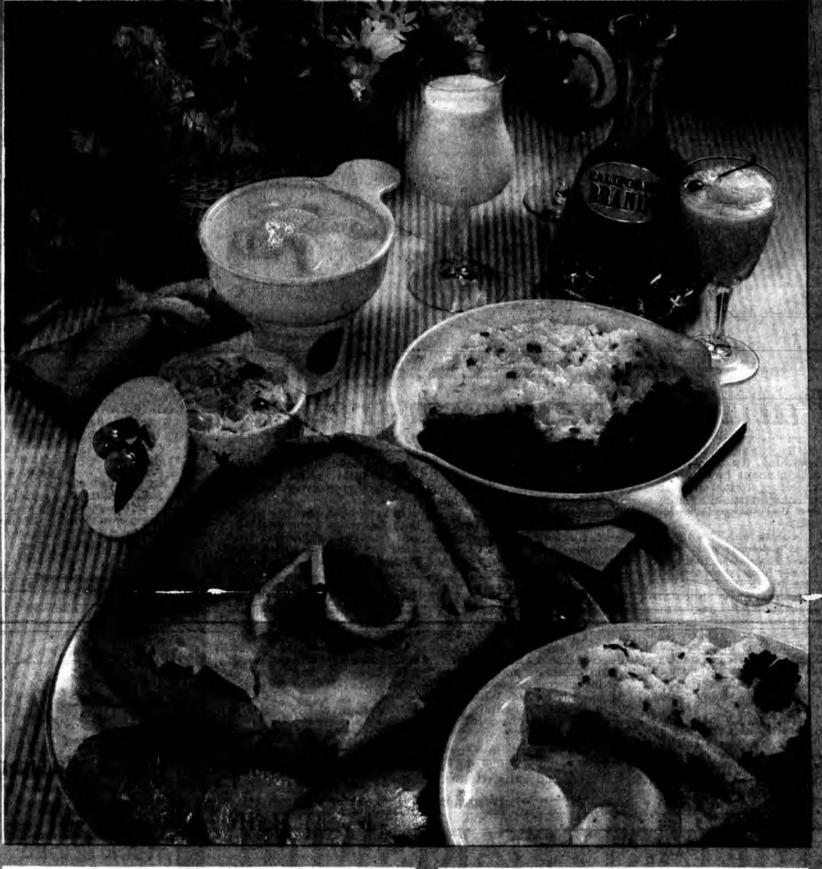

Heat oven to 400 degrees F. Bring water, butter and orange peel to a boil in a large saucepan. Add pancake mix, stirring vigorously until mixture leaves sides of pan and forms a ball. Remove from heat; add eggs one at a time, beating well after each Spread evenly onto bottom and sides of two generously greased 9-inch pie plates. Bake at 400 degrees F. for 15 minutes; reduce heat to 300 degrees F. Bake an additional 10 minutes or until golden brown. Cut into wedges. Serve with choice of sauce. Makes 8 servings.

Creamy Fruit Topping

- 1 can (16 ounce) fruit cocktail in light syrup
- cup dairy sour cream 1 tablespoon honey
- 1 teaspoon grated fresh orange peel 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon

Drain fruit cocktail, reserving syrup for later use. Combine sour cream, honey, orange peel and cinnamon. Fold in fruit cocktail. Chill well before serving over Orange Pancake Puff. Makes 8 servings.

Buttery Peach Topping

1 can (16 ounce) cling peach slices in extra light syrup

- tablespoons butter or margarine
- tablespoon fresh orange juice
- teaspoon grated fresh orange peel 2 teaspoons cornstarch 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg

Combine peaches with all syrup and remaining ingredients in a medium saucepan. Boil 2 minutes. Serve warm over Orange Pancake Puff. Makes 4 large servings, or 6 to 8 buffet servings.

Peach Custard Kuchen

- 1¼ cups all-purpose flour ½ cup granulated sugar 1/4 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup vegetable shortening % cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked

- 1 whole egg ½ cup plus 2 tablespoons milk 1 can (16 ounce) cling peach slices in extra light
- syrup, drained
 - 1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar
 - 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- 2 egg yolks Heat oven to 400 degrees F. Combine flour. granulated sugar, baking powder and Gut in shortening until mixture resembles starse crumbs. Stir in oats. Add whole egg and 2 tablespoons milk,

Pat mixture evenly onto bottom and sides of ungreased 9-inch square baking pan. Arrange peaches over dough. Combine brown sugar and cinnamon; sprinkle over peaches. Bake 15 minutes. Meanwhile, combine remaining 1/2 cup milk and egg yolks. Pour over peaches; continue baking 5 to 10 minutes or until custard is firm. Cool, cut into squares. Makes about 12 servings.

Harriet Rohrer peeling leeks

Her goal: Stirring up a cookbook

By BEA ANDERSON Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Whether Harriet Rohrer is preparing foods for hundreds or intimate at-home dinners, she is equally at ease.

The Costa Mesan says she's done a lot of both.

When she is not working she is experimenting with new recipes and inviting friends to enjoy the adventure.

When she is working it is in the field of food services, having operated her own restaurant and employee cafeterias.

Rohrer said her interest in food was stimulated by her mother, recalling the "wonderful aromas and flavors" of her homemade soups — the kind that take at least a half a day to make.

But her culinary passion developed after traveling in France where she discovered how "real omelets taste."

She said she learned what she could about making omelets while in that country, and when she returned home she began trying recipes until she was satisfied.

By then she was eager to try all kinds of dishes. She said she is blessed with an instinctive ability to read a recipe and know if it will be good.

As her reputation of an excellent cook spread, she said neighbors would bring food to her house and ask her to prepare their dishes. As she was not employed at the time, Rohrer said she had the time to do it and throroughly enjoyed her neighborly role.

She later operated the General Mess Restaurant in Cannery Village, Newport Beach, where she specialized in homemade soups and omelets.

She also has worked for several Newport restaurants and in-house cafeterias.

An English major at Cal State Fullerton, Rohrer hopes to fulfill a lifelong goal of combining writing skills with her cooking talents in a cookbook.

She said when she is not working or busy with homework she is researching one of her 800 cookbooks and trying new

"When I entertain," she said, "I always make something new." She offers recipes for an entree and vegetable. Both serve

Put the fingers on treat

With Mother's Day fast gelatine approaching, it's time to start thinking about how to make Mom feel appreciated on her day. Why not celebrate by creating a dessert that's as special as Mom

Chocolate a L'Orange for Mom is a delicate treat with a rich and creamy taste that is sure to let her know she's tops with her family.

This heavenly chocolateorange dessert starts with a simple base of unflavored gelatine mixed with eggs, sugar and milk. It is then combined with plenty of luscious chocolate, whipping cream and just the right amount of orange liqueur to create a taste sensation that's out of this world.

The attractive loaf look is achieved by lining a loaf pan with split ladyfingers and then turning the tasty chocolateorange mixture inside.

Rice dishes fit any family size

As families get smaller, cooking for reduced-size households can be difficult. Changing the shopping habits of a lifetime is easier said than done. For example: A bag of onions or just 4? A pint rather than half-gallon of ice cream? A whole chicken, or just the right number of pieces? How much food is wasted? Fortunately, some foods - like rice adapt readily to any situation. Rice keeps almost indefinitely on the shelf in a tightly-covered container. So it doesn't really matter how large a package is purchased.

Calcium needed daily

Eating calcium-rich foods every day can help prevent a common bonethinning disease that kills 15,000 to 20,000 Americans each year, according to the American Society for Bone and Mineral Research (SBMR).

Research indicates that osteoporosis, which strikes more than onefourth of all white women above the age of 60, can be avoided if specific dietary, physical and medical guidelines are followed from birth throughout life.

"Without sufficient amounts of calcium in the diet, bone mass can diminish year after year until only a fragile, lacy bone structure remains, says Frederick Singer, M.D., a bone and mineral School of Medicine.

The ASBMR recommends a daily calcium intake of 800 to 1,000 milligrams for children and young adults. Pregnant and lactating women require an additional 500 milligrams and postmenopausal women generally need 1,400 milligrams daily.

The most common sources of dietary calcium are milk, cheese, yogurt and other dairy foods. An eight-ounce glass of milk, for example, contains nearly 300 milligrams of calcium. Additional calcium-rich foods are almonds, shellfish, sardines, salmon, broccoli, kidney beans and spinach.

A balanced daily diet from each of the four food groups - milk, meat, vegetable-fruit. breads-cereals - is a manageable way to assure your body is supplied with enough calcium and other important nutrients.

Osteoporosis is called the "silent epidemic" because of its gradual, symptomless development over the course of 30 to 40 years. It is more prevalent in women, particularly those who have passed menopause. During this time, suddenly and without warning, fractures of the spine, hip and wrist can occur in response to mild trauma.

The causes and means of preventing osteoporosis and its complications are diverse and interrelated. The following preventive measures have been endorsed by ASBMR for all family members:

- Get plenty of exerise; daily running or brisk walking are beneficial.

- Avoid large amounts of vitamins A (greater than 5,000 units per day) or D (greater than 1,000 per day) unless prescribed by a physician; daily exposure to sunlight, a multi-vitamin tablet containing 400 units of vitamin D or a quart of milk provides adequate vitamin D intake.

- Avoid cigarette smoking.

- Take precautions to prevent falls especially for the frail and elderly; avoid unstable shoes, remove clutter from living space and ensure adequate lighting and install safety rails in bathrooms and stairways.

- Discuss the potential use of estrogen replacement therapy with your physician.

Sugar: It can make you sleepy

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — For those who grab a junk food snack for a quick jolt of energy. science has some bad news: Sugar makes people sleepy. Sugar is America's favorite food additive. People eat 128 pounds of it a year. They have lots of views about how it affects their behavior, even though scientists generally have shunned the subject.

But now psychiatrists, nutritionists and others have begun looking at how food influences the way people act.

A series of studies being published in the Journal of Psychiatric Research provides some surprising clues about the effects of sugar. It seems to make Arrange leeks in one layer, if possible, in a shallow stove-top baking dish or stainless steel pan. Add one inch of salted water, mixed with lemon juice. Rosemary, basil or thyme may be added, to taste. Distribute butter over leeks.

Bring to boil, cover, and boil slowly until leeks are tender about 15 to 20 minutes. Water will be almost evaporated.

children caim and grown-ups sleepy. And it may hinder concentration.

The findings cast doubt on the claims of some natural food advocates, who say ordinary sugar makes children hyperactive and prisoners aggressive.

The alleged ills of sweets have gained wide acceptance. In 1978, former San Francisco Supervisor Dan White invoked a "Twinkie defense" in his trial for the manslaughter of Mayor George Moscone and Supervisor Harvey Milk. He claimed that his mental capacity was diminished by an overdose of junk food.

Some prison systems have begun limiting the amounts of sweets that inmates can eat.

 In the Los Angeles County jail system, for instance, officials have drastically reduced the sugar content of prisoners' food, and candy machines have been removed from juvenile halls.
"I think it's fair to say that the scientific community in general has not been convinced that either sugar causes hyperactivity or that diet can convincingly be used to control the behavior of prisoners," said Dr. Harris Lieberman of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Most of the studies being published in the psychiatric journal were presented at a scientific conference at MIT. Several scientists looked at the effects of carbohydrates, which can be either sugar or starch.

"A carbohydrate meal will, by causing insulin to be secreted, change the proportions of certain amino acids in the blood," said Richard J. Wurtman, who organized the MIT meeting. "There's good preliminary evidence that this will tend to make you sleepy, diminish your sensitivity to pain and very definitely suppress your desire for carbohydrates."

Sugar does not affect everyone the same way. Dr. Bonnie Spring, a Harvard psychiatrist, found that older people are more apt to notice its effects.

She compared the effects of a high-carbohydrate meal — a dish of sherbet — or a high-protein meal — a plate of turkey breast.

Women said they felt sleepier after the carbohydrate meal than after the protein. And men said they felt calmer after the

People over 40 complained that they felt more tension and anger after the protein food. And when they had sherbet, the older people had more trouble concentrating when asked to repeat words broadcast through headphones.

"I studied a single, ordinary meal, and the fact that it could have effects of that magnitude is surprising," said Spring.

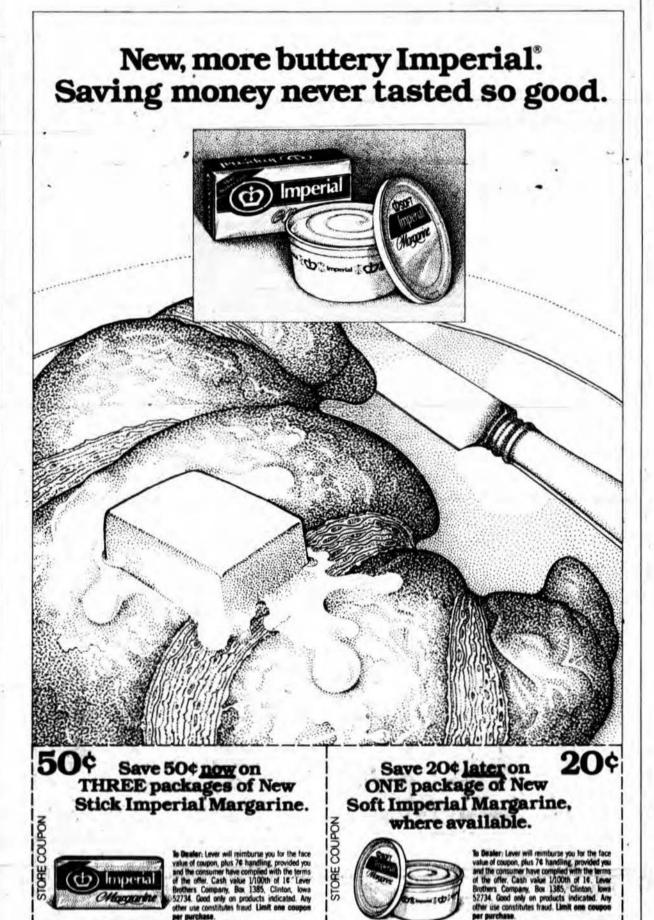

Many people worry about the effects of sugar on youngsters. There is no doubt that it can cause cavities, but Dr. Judith Rapoport, chief of the Section on Child Psychiatry at the National Institute of Mental Health, says there is no scientific evidence to show that it makes children hyperactive.

To test the idea, she recruited children whose parents thought sugar was causing behavior problems. She gave 10-year-old boys lemon-flavored ice laced with either sugar or saccharin, then watched and tested them for five hours.

When it was over, she found that the boys were significantly less active after sugar than saccharin.

Like it or not, consumers adapting to more scanners

By DOROTHY WENCK

The major shares of marketing costs go to sing - 30 percent and retailing - 21 percent. The other costs are wholesaling - 9 percent - and transportation - 6 percent.

You can see that if retailing costs can be reduced, food costs could be significantly lower too. At the retail level, about half of a supermarket's total expenses are related to labor costs involved in checkout, product handling and price marking.

As a step to reduce labor costs, many supermarkets are using computerized checkout stands where laser scanners "read" the universal product code on labels and a computer supplies the price information.

The computerproduced printed tape gives you information about the kind or brand of product, amount or size of package, and price. While you might question whether this checkout method is any faster for you than the old method of clerks keying in the price of each product, a benefit to you would be greater accuracy (although there's still the potential for a price error being made in the computer program). Where the time saving comes in for the market is in less time spent marking prices on packages, inventory control, and the accounting process of tracking sales, sales tax,

Studies indicate that 20-30 percent of the labor saving from scanners comes from elimination of item pricing. Another potential saving is the speed in which prices for products can be changed simply by making a new computer program.

Hewever, a 1981 California law requires markets that use automatic scanners to mark prices on 85 percent of packaged products sold — both food and nonfood. Of the remaining 15 percent of packaged products that can be sold without an item price, some can be at the grocer's discretion. They're likely to be labor intensive items - in other words products that are sold in large volume.

Some items are exempt from the pricing requirement such as those costing less than 40 cents, very small items, products that are on sale, and anything not itempriced on Jan. 1, 1977.

A list of unpriced items must be posted in the store, and usually prices are found on the shelf where the items. are on display.

If you are a person who likes to compare prices on an ongoing basis — for example, on similar items from different stores, or to observe price changes over time - the lack of prices on containers can be frustrating.

One way to handle the problem is to write prices on containers with a marking pencil either while you're shopping or after you get home using the printed tape. Another idea is to save the tapes for future comparisons, although it may not be very convenient to have to search through a pile of tapes for a particular

. A. Pure frozen concentrated orange juice does not have sugar added. If sugar is added this must be noted on the label. Also, some products sold in frozen form in containers not real orange juice. They are labeled "imitation" orange juice, and sugar is added to these, sometimes in rather large amounts. Read labels Q. I made some jelly with less sugar than the usual jelly recipe

Aromat flavors omelet

Try Swiss Cheese Omelet from Le Cervin, a Swiss restaurant in New York City's Greenwich Village, where delicious Swiss specialties are bringing patrons back for more.

Proprietor Edouard Mutter, a Swiss from Sion, says: "Cream makes the omelet fluffier and the Aromat gives it a little surprise taste". Aromat is a seasoning that can be purchased in your supermarket or specialty store and, like the Emmentaler cheese. comes from Switzerland.

and Saffron (optional)
In a deep bowl, mix eggs and seasoning with a wire whisk. Whisk in cream and stir in grated cheese. Melt butter in a 6 or 7 inch pan over moderate heat. Pour egg-cheese mixture into pan and let cook slowly.

When edge of omelet sets, run spatula around side and tilt pan so uncooked liquid portion runs down under loosened rim. When bottom has browned slightly and omelet is puffy, fold over. add shredded cheese in starshape to top of omelet and let melt.

Slide omelet warmed plate, add a bit of saffron to center of star and sprig of parsley for garnish. Serves 1.

SWISS CHEESE OMELET RATATOUILLE

4 large eggs 1/2 teaspoon salt Dash pepper

¼ cup milk 2 tablespoons butter or margarine 11/2 cups grated

Emmentaler cheese (about 5 ounces) 1 cup each: sliced

broccoli, zucchini, tomatoes 2 tablespoons butter or margarine In a deep bowl, mix eggs, salt and pepper lightly with wire whisk. Whisk in milk and stir in grated cheese. Melt half of the butter in a 6-7 inch omelet pan or heavy skillet over moderate heat. Pour half of the egg mixture into pan. Let cook slowly.

Meanwhile, in another pan, lightly saute broccoli, zucchini and tomato slices in rest of butter or margarine until al dente, about 7-8 minutes. When edge of omelet sets, run spatula around side and tilt pan so uncooked liquid portion runs down under loosened rim. Cover pan with a lid to let top and bottom of omelet cook slowly until bottom has browned and omelet is puffy. When bottom has browned, add half of the vegetables, fold over omelet and add half of the shredded cheese to top.

Stir-fry pork hot, spicy

Szechwan cuisine has been steadily growing throughout the country over recent years. It's hot and spicy recipes make generous use of red peppers, garlic and leek.

The secret is to use just enough red pepper to stimulate the palate so it becomes more sensitive and can appreciate a number of flavors simultaneously. Szechwan Pork Stir-Fry achieves the perfect balance of hot and spicy by seasoning thin strips of boneless pork with crushed red peppers and bottled teriyaki barbecue marinade and sauce.

Stir-frying, an excellent method of preparing meals that are low in calories, calls for using numerous fresh vegetables and less meat per serving. Szechwan Pork Stir-Fry serves four and calls for julienned zucchini, sliced radishes, chunks of onion and only a half pound of lean pork.

This stir-fry dish takes only minutes to cook, so before you begin be sure to have all the vegetables ready and in separate bowls. It is served on a bed of shredded lettuce and is virtually a onedish meal. With its zesty color and taste, no one would ever guess it only has 323 calories a serving.

Contest opens

If your kind of contest is one in which you can cook your way to riches, one of the hundreds of recipe contests held each year could be for you. Officials at Uncle Ben's Inc., for example, is looking for innovative rice recipes for a contest they have planned as part of their 40th anniversary celebration. The "Cook & Tell" Recipe Contest opens May 15 and runs until midnight Sept. 1. Enter as often as you wish. However, each recipe must be mailed in a separate envelope.

Recipes will be judged on taste, appetizing appearance, ease and convenience of preparation, originality and the appropriate use of the product. If the contest judges select your recipe as "best-of-contest," you'll win the $5,000 grand prize. Other prizes will include three first prizes of $1,000 each — one per category — and 200 decorative, reusable canisters with coupons.

Juice-packed fruits handy for quick desserts

fruit is so expensive you figure it must have flown here first class. That's when canned fruit begins to seem more appealing. Not the sugar-saturated stuff packed in heavy syrup, however.

What you want is the natural kind, packed in its own juice.

Small cans of juice-packed fruit are handy for breakfast or to pack for lunch-time dessert or afternoon snacks. Juicepacked fruit is also a pantry-handy ingredient for spur-of-the-moment Slim Gourmet desserts.

PEAR MOUSSE

16-ounce can juicepacked pears, undrained 1 envelope plain gelatine

1/2 cup boiling water 4 tablespoons partskim ricotta cheese

salt Optional: pinch of 8 teaspoons sugar

(or 4 packets sugar substitute) For fastest setting, have the pears chilled. In the bottom of blender container, combine 3 tablespoons of the pear juice with the gelatine. Wait I minute until the gelatine is softened, then add the boiling water.

Cover and process on high speed until gelatine granules are dissolved. Add the ricotta; cover and process smooth. Add the pears, remaining pear juice, salt if desired and sweetener. Cover and blend smooth. Pour into 4 custard cups; chill until set. Makes four servings, 115 calories each (85 calories each with sugar substitute). FROZEN PEAR

MOUSSE: Cover and freeze firm. Transfer custard cups from the freezer to the refrigerator 1 hour before serving.

Wine judging policy revised at Sonoma Fair

The directors of the Sonoma Harvest Fair have eliminated a rule that has plagued the credibility of the fair's annual wine judging. The new policy will allow wines produced from Sonoma County grapes and bearing a Sonoma appellation to be entered, even if the producing winery is located elsewhere in the

This rule makes ense because a Sonoma judging should be about promoting the region. What could be better promotion than drawing attention to the fact that wineries in Napa, Monterey and elsewhere are making great wines from the local fruit?

Until this year, only wines produced by Sonoma wineries were eligible.

Of the remaining rules that need to be changed, one permits any wine produced by a Sonoma winery to be entered, no were grown. This creates a situation whereby a wine made from Napa grapes by a Sonoma winery might win the grand prize as best overall wine at the Sonoma Fair. The other disturbing rule limits each winery to entering one wine in each varietal category. The idea of a judging is to determine the best wines available. With wineries producing same grape variety, but from different vineyard designations, such a limitation denies consumers the because all the best wines are not able to compete. It forces the wineries to second guess the judges in selecting

RESTAURANT TIP If you're traveling to or from wine country via the Golden Gate Bridge, or happen to live in Marin County, you should know about a super Italian - Continental restaurant called La Trattoria. The homemade pasta and milk-fed veal are reason enough to stop, but for wine lovers it's the wine list that will be the major reasonably priced, too.

Not only is the selection good, but the prices are reasonable and affordable. Pricing policy is a maximum twice wholesale, which often works out to little over retail. Wine steward Cheri Tombaugh had to fight for the pricing policy, so make sure you let management know

Foster Farms, introduces:

M

Presenting Foster Farms boneless turkey breasts. They're better They come deliciously roasted to full flavor, so they're ready anytime you are. To slice up for sandwiches. Or cook up for dinner. And because our turkey breasts are boneless, you can enjoy every bit of them. Try our natural oven roasted. Or our barbecued breasts. Or hickory smoked. Foster Farms better turkey.

The better turkey to have on hand.

Foster Farms turkey ham. It's the better ham, made from 100% fresh, lean turkey meat, which means it has less fat and more protein than most hams. And it's seasoned just right for the delicious taste of ham everyone loves. Cook it up with eggs for breakfast, slice it thick for lunch or serve it ringed with pineapple for dinner. No matter how you slice it, Foster Farms turkey ham is the better ham.

Your family will love Foster Farms turkey pastrami. It's better because it's delightfully flavorful and spiced just right. It's the better pastrami to serve too, because it's made from 100% fresh turkey meat, so it has less fat and more protein than most pastramis. It costs less, too. So whether you're serving hot pastrami on rye or packing pastrami sandwiches for lunch, you'll be serving something better

Foster Farms better pastrami.

WHO ELSE WANTS TO LOOK YOUNGER WITHOUT GOING TO A DOCTOR?

Amazing New Formula From Beverly Hills Lets You Take Up To 10 Years Off Your Face Without The Scars And Expense Of Plastic Surgery

Have you ever thought about having a face lift?

If so, perhaps you should wait. Surgery, as you know, is very expensive, and many people feel it should only be used as a last resort. Not only that, there is now a new product on the market that lets you take up to 10 years off your face without the expense and trouble of going to a doctor.

This product was developed by Mrs. Ernest Borgnine and many of the top stars in Hollywood absolutely swear by it. In fact, Jessica Walters, Brenda Vaccaro, Connie Stevens, Maureen Dean, Jed Allen, Debbie Reynolds, Tommy and Jo Lasorda and Jayne Meadows are just a few of the important celebrities who use and enthusiastically endorse this product.

And what about Ernest Borgnine? Did you see him a few weeks ago fighting with fascinating. It is a mysterious formula that comes from the roots of a very rare cactus plant that was first discovered by the Aztec Indians hundreds of years ago. And, until now, this remarkable look-young treatment was only available in certain very remote sections of Mexico.

This, formula is certainly not cheap but the stars who use it say it works like magic. The entire process takes only half an hour and insiders say there is nothing like it for anybody who wants to look years younger than their actual calendar age.

It is easy to use. All you do is apply the formula to your face and wait. "The cream is pink when you apply it, and gradually turns white," says Try it turns white it should be removed. One of the great things about it is that there is no guess work. It 'knows' what to do by itself!"

"... Actually, he looks so good many of his co-stars have accused him of having a face lift! . . . "

Tom Selleck on Magnum, P.I.? If you did see him you probably noticed that he looks younger now than he did 10 years ago. Actually, he looks so good many of his co-stars have accused him of having a face lift!

But Ernie swears it is not true and, at a recent press conference, he stated that the only reason he looks younger today than he did 10 years ago is because of what his wife has discovered.

What has Mrs. Borgnine discovered? The answer is

"But the best thing of all," says Mrs. Borgnine, "is the way it makes you look years and years younger with just one application. In fact," she says, "this is what I call a 'no excuse' product that is backed up 100% by mypersonal guarantee."

Would you like to try this remarkable discovery? Would you like to have the beauty of youth without the scars and expense of surgery? If so, here's how you can try this amazing formula without any risk at all: Sim-

Kwolek KO's Lions; FV falls

Edison High pitcher Jeff Kwolek lost no-hit bid in the seventh inning yesterday, but in an even more heartbreaking incident, Fountain Valley dropped its Sunset League baseball game on a two-run error in the bottom of the eighth inning to host Ocean View.

Kwolek's strong performance, culminating in an easy 9-1 victory over host Westminster, combined with the Barons' 4-3 defeat puts the Chargers atop the Sunset League standings.

Here's what took place:

Edison, 9-1

Kwolek gave up his only hit of the game with one out, when after two straight errors by the Charger defense, Westminster's Ron Hanson singled in the Lions' lone run of the game.

Edison pitchers have not allowed an earned run in the last 28 innings for Coach Ron LaRuffa's Chargers. Kwolek, meanwhile, improved his record to 5-1. Chip Demato led Edison's 11-hit attack with three hits and three RBI, while Todd Nash and Steve Overeem added two singles apiece.

The Chargers (10-4, 17-6-1 overall) return to action on Saturday night at Mile Square Park against Ocean View.

A win would assure Edison of at least at tie for the Sunset League championship, pending the results of Huntington Beach's final two games.

Ocean View, 4-3

The Barons broke on top in the first extra inning, 3-2, with the help of three walks and a wild pitch which scored

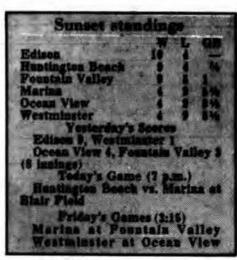

Kevin Empting from third. But Fountain Valley's bubble burst in the bottom of the frame, when after one out, Ocean View's Ted Gaulin walked and went to second on a single by Keith

After another out, Rob Gibbs' fly ball to center field was misplayed, allowing Gaulin and Mullally to score, and gave the Seahawks the victory.

Ocean View pitcher Dean Douty recorded the complete-game win and struck out nine. The junior right-hander allowed only four hits.

Fountain Valley's Kelly Romine was 2-for-4 with a double, while Mullally was 2-for-3 for the Seahawks, now 4-9 in Sunset play.

The loss drops the Barons out of a three-way tie for first with a 9-5 record.

But in the case of Tina Kyler, the only assistance required from older sister Melannie was a successful formula for making a pitch rise or drop. Up until this year, Melannie Kyler was generally regarded as one of the best, if not the best, softball pitcher to come out of these parts. She fastballed opposing hitters into submission for two years at Golden West College (1975-76).

But in some respects, Melannie's success on the mound left younger sister Tina in somewhat of a quandary. How do you compete with a sister who became a legend seven years

The initial answer was easy in The initial answer was easy in Tina's mind — play first base.

Sunset: No upsets

By ROGER CARLSON Of the Delly Pilot Staff

Marina High's Chip Rish, Westminster's Kyle Morton, and hurdlers Rick Nichols of Fountain Valley and Danny Thompson of Huntington Beach set themselves up as the runners to beat tomorrow night at the Sunset League track and field finals.

They recorded some sharp qualifying times in yesterday's prelims at Huntington Beach High.

Tomorrow's finals begin at 7 for the first field event and 7:30 for the first running finals with the top three in each varsity event qualifying for the CIF 4-A prelims at El Modena High May 13.

The prelims berths at CIF and individual titles are all that are at stake — Huntington Beach's Oilers already own their second straight team title by virtue of sweeping the dual meet season.

Rish turned in the effort of the meet with his clockings of 10.7, 21.9 and 52.2 in the 100, 200 and 400 meters, an easy winner in each of his heats.

His closest competition, by comparing prelims times is Fountain Valley's Julian Harry in the 100 (10.9) and Huntington Beach's Thompson in the 200 decaye first half as the Lakers eliminated the Trail Blazers 4-1 in their best-of-seven NBA Western Conference semifinal playoff series.

The Lakers, who are attempting to become the first NBA team to win back-to-back championships since the Boston Celtics did it in 1967-68 and 1968-69, next face the winner of the San Antonio-Denver series for the Western Conference title,

The best-of-seven final series will begin at the Forum either Sunday afternoon or next Tuesday night.

While Nixon was making 17 of his 25 field goal attempts, veteran Los Angeles center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar contributed 21 points and 11 rebounds. The 7-2 superstar averaged 33.3 points in the first four games of the series.

"I thought it was critical for me to have a strong game tonight from a shooting standpoint," said Nixon, who made only five of 13 floor shots in scoring 10 points as Portland won the fourth game 108-95 last Sunday. "It was great that I was able to come out and hit my first few shots. That sets my tempo.

Actually, Nixon missed his first field goal attempt. But the six-year NBA veteran made his next 10 as Los Angeles stormed to a 66-42 halftime lead.

The Lakers made 65.3 percent of their field goal attempts in the first quarter.

Golden West yesterday.

The victory, coupled with Fullerton's 6-4 setback to host Mt. San Antonio, moved the Rustlers into second place, 11/2 games behind the conference-leading Hornets. Each team has three games remaining, and the Hornets also have an earlyseason tie with Mt. San Antonio in hand which could be made up if it has a bearing on the final outcome. In another South Coast Conference contest, Orange Coast held on for a 3-2 victory over host Cerritos. Here's what

Golden West, 22-4

The Rustlers owned a 12-4 lead entering the bottom of the eighth inning but sent 14 men to the plate in that frame, and 10 of them scored in a laugher which moved the Dons two games out of first place.

Third baseman Bob Grandstaff ripped a grand slam, knocked in five runs and scored three times, while Mike Wagner went 3-for-4 and had seven RBI for the

Other big offensive contributors for Golden West included Kevin Elster

(3-for-6, four runs scored), David Applezoller (3-for-6, three runs scored, one RBI) and John Altobelli (2-for-6, two runs scored, three RBI).

Believe it or not, the explosion was not the Rustlers' biggest offensive output of the season. Two games earlier, Golden West ripped Compton, 26-3 on 22 hits.

In both cases, pitcher Lanny DeRose was the beneficiary of the run production. Yesterday, DeRose relieved starter Ericomehlschau in the fourth inning and picked up the victory.

DeRose allowed just two Santa Ana hits while striking out four over the final six innings. Golden West scored four runs in the first, second and sixth innings in roughing up five Don pitchers. Orange Coast, 3-2

Sal D'Alessandro belted a two-run homer in the fourth inning and Dave Tinoco scored on a wild pitch in the sixth inning, and OCC starter Rich Sorenson made the runs stand up as the Pirates nipped the Falcons.

D'Alessandro finished the day with a 4-for-4 outing and Jeff Gardner was 3-for-5 to pace OCC's 11-hit attack. Sorenson, meanwhile, scattered eight overall record is 31-9, which means the Rustlers are 5-4 when she isn't on the mound. In the process, she has overcome the proverbial problem of pitching in the shadows of a

"It still gets to me, but I've had a lot of encouragement," Kyler says of following in her sister's footsteps, "People say I don't have the speed Melannie had, but I have a few more pitches than she did."

And Kyler pitches a lot. She has now thrown 339 innings, allowing 88 hits, 16 runs (12 earned) while striking out 209. "I'd rather be pitching than sitting on the bench," she says.

Here's a typical Kyler effort: A few weeks ago, in the three-day, double-elimination Golden West Invitational Tournament, she worked 32 innings without allowing an earned run. In the process, she pitched-the Rustlers to the tourney title, one-hitting Cerritos in a 7-0 victory for the championship.

"She has so many pitches," praised Davis. "She has a nice rise, a beautiful curve and a great drop. She doesn't throw with blinding speed, though."

Davis spotted Kyler when she was a senior at Marina, pitching in a game against Edison. Sitting not far away was Arizona State softball coach Mary Littlewood.

Kyler chose Golden West, but now that she's at the end of her community college career, the four-year schools are watching her moves all the more closely.

Kyler is keeping her options open, but Florida State and Chapman have to be considered the early favorites. Both have offered scholarships.

Ironically, Melannie is now married and lives in Florida. Florida State, incidentally, has won the national slow pitch softball championship the last two years and will be embarking on its first-ever fast pitch season

"They're accustomed to winning," says Davis. "They want to be contenders right

Kyler, meanwhile, still has some unsettled business to attend to, namely helping Golden West contend for the state softball championship.

The league-leading Rustlers boast a 13-3 record in South Coast Conference play as the regular season concludes this week.

LA PAZ — Bob Nordskog's dream of celebrating his 70th birthday by setting a non-stop elapsed time power boat record on the Sea of Cortez from San Felipe and La Paz was blown out of the water at about the halfway point yesterday.

High winds and rough seas that threatened to swamp his 38-foot Power Boat Magazine Special forced him to put in at Mulege halfway down the Baja, California peninsula.

"The seas got so high that we were able to make only 30 miles in an hour and a half," said Nordskog who had planned to make the run down the Sea of Cortez in 10 hours.

"The seas were as calm as milk on a platter when we left San Felipe at 6 a.m. and we were averaging about 60 miles per hour. But it got rougher and rougher after about two hours."

Nordskog and his crew put in at Mulege at 12:59.56 to establish a record at that point. "But all is not lost," Nordskog told a crowd of La Paz and Baja, California officials at a welcoming party at the Department of Tourism last night. We plan to continue the run against the clock at 9 a.m. Wednesday (today) and wind up with three records.

"We already have a record run from San Felipe to Mulege and we also expect to set another record from Mulege to La Paz#That will give us a new accumulated elapsed time record from San Felipe to La Paz."

The present elapsed time record of 12:45.00 is held by Betty Cook of Newport Beach, who made the run three years ago with three fuel stocks.

Nordskog's crew is Norm Teague of Van Nuys, mechanic and Guillermo Dominguez San Millan of Mexico City, navigator. Nordskog said he expected to finish at La Paz "about noonish" today which would give him an accumulated elapsed time of about 10 hours.

Dougherty grabs lead

Kathy Dougherty of Lomas Santa Fe Country Club took the first round lead yesterday in the tournament at Cosar mesa Country Cino:

The final round of the 2-day, 36-hole tournament was played today, with Dougherty entering the last 18 holes with a score of 73. She has a three stroke lead over Mary Cushing of Carmel Valley Ranch.

Kim Eaton of Monterey CC and Julie Lynd of Industry Hills are four strokes behind Dougherty as

UC Irvine dominates Artists edge San Clemente PCAA tennis finals

FV ties Edison for first

SALT LAKE CITY - To say that the UC Irvine tennis team dominated the PCAA Championships here would be a big understatement.

The Anteaters captured eight of nine individual final flights. winning five of six in singles and all three doubles to earn 52 of 54 ossible team points and tie a PCAA record for most points.

"We've got to rank as one of the toughest teams in PCAA history," said UCI Coach Greg Patton, who was named the conference's Coach of the Year. "We just missed perfection."

The only singles loss came when Steve Schultz knocked off

Stephen Aniston, 6-2, 6-3, in the No. 5 singles. Other than that, it was all UCI. In the No. 1 singles, Jim Snyder came from behind to hand Phil Agassi only his fourth setback of the season. After dropping the first set, 1-6,

Snyder took the second, 7-5, then finished with a flourish to capture the deciding set, 6-3, after falling behind, 3-1. For Snyder, the obvious choice singles match in three sets, 6-2, 4-6, 6-4, and teamed with Ruben Perczek for a doubles title, it was his second and third crowns. He won in singles last year.

Perczek and Nelson were involved in possibly the tightest matchup of the afternoon, winning 6-2, 4-6, 7-6, recovering from match point in the process.

For Eric Quade, a winner in No. 3 singles and No. 1 doubles with Snyder, it marked his first singles title and second doubles championship.

Laguna Beach High used a pair of solo home runs and some fine seventh-inning defensive work from Skip Crowl to pull out a 2-1 victory over host San Clemente yesterday in a South Coast League baseball game. Senior second baseman John

Ramsey gets start Saturday

LOS ANGELES (AP) -Rookie quarterback Tom Ramsey will replace Los Angeles Express starter Mike Rae beginning with Saturday's game against the Boston Breakers, the United States Football League team announced yesterday.

Rae, an 8-year veteran of the National Football League who has a 4-5 record in the Express' first nine games, will assume Ramsey's former backup role, Express Coach Hugh Campbell said.

"As a staff, we've decided to reverse their roles," said Campbell. "We've felt all along that Tom would be our quarterback of the future, and we want to see how he reacts in a starting role."

Ramsey, a former UCLA quarterback, passed for 196 yards and completed 14 of 25 passes against Chicago last weekend. On the season, Ramsey has completed 58 of 130 attempts for 662 yards and eight touchdowns.

Rae has completed 77 of 141 passes for 912 yards and five touchdowns this season in guiding the Express to a firstplace tie with Arizona, Denver and Oakland in the USFL's Pacific Division.

"I'm happy, of course," said

Will Lasorda have to swallow words?

By WILL GRIMSLEY

The Dodgers' Tom Lasorda, in one of his brasher moods during the spring, threw down the gauntlet to the defending champions in National Hinting that the Braves, who jumped off with a 13-game winning streak last season, were an accident, the ebullient Papa Dodger boldly predicted: "You can bet the Braves won't win the division this year — no way. I guarantee it."

Lasorda, who has a propensity for melon and prosciutto and rich spaghetti sauce, may have to stir in some of these Italian delicacies in order to swallow his words. Going into the second month of the campaign, the Braves are matching their 1982 pace in a nose-to-nose struggle with the Dodgers for first place.

They look like anything but an accident. "We're a better team than last year," said Manager Joe Torre, blowing a puff of cigar smoke into the humid New York air. "We have matured a lot. The addition of Terry Forster and Pete Falcone has given our pitching staff the left-handed strength we lacked a year ago.

"Although Tom has as good pitching as there is in the league, I wouldn't swap rosters with him."

Torre and his onrushing Braves departed Shea Stadium Sunday with a 15-5 record and a halfgame edge over the Dodgers with the closest pursuer, the Cincinnati Reds, another four games in arrears. The division is stacking up as a grudge battle between the revamped Dodger Blue and Torre's "America's Team," so called because of the 50-state exposure given them by owner Ted Turner's TV network.

There was a touch of irony in last weekend's Mets-Braves series. In one dugout, the swarthy Torre, a product of Brooklyn streets returning to face a team that in five years between 1977 and 1981 he never got higher than fourth in the standings and that in the second half of the strike-split 1981 campaign. Across the field sat George Bamberger, once the highly successful manager of the Milwaukee Brewers but suffering with another cellar-bound Mets club.

The scene accented one of baseball's stoutest truths: The manager, first to get the axe when things go wrong, is powerless if he doesn't have "the horses.

A good manager can make a good team great. A great manager cannot make a bad team good. A great team can win with a buffoon in the dugout. But a great team also can flounder because of Joe Torre intangibles.

Jim Palmer has been placed on the 21-day disabled list because of a back ailment that has the Baltimore Orioles last start Sunday against the Seattle Mariners, visited Boston orthopedic specialist Dr. Arthur Pappaş on Monday. Pappas told the 37-year-old hurler he needed 10 days to two weeks of extensive therapy to cure an ailing muscle in the lower right side of his back. Palmer will not throw for two to three weeks while undergoing treatment, which should alleviate the problem. The pitcher has maintained that his arm feels fine, and hopes the rest will return him to his 15-5 form of last year.

Palmer skipped two starts at the beginning of this season in a bid to cure the problem, then returned to pitch well in his next two outings. But he was ineffective in his third start.

Volunteers changing; they're no longer all married, unworking

By GINNY OLSON DAVIES
Daily Pilot Correspondent
"Today's woman volunteer has changed dramatically," according to Bernie Kautz, director of the Community Volunteer Program for the Volunteer Center of South

Orange County.
"This volunteer used to be Caucasian, usually married, not working, had two children and began to volunteer when her children entered school. Today, she is usually working, comes from different ethnic backgrounds, is often a single parent, and has been joined by an increasing number of male volunteers."

Thousands of Orange County women have been doing good deeds for decades. The heartbeat of voluntarism is the Volunteer Center of South Osens County doors

Carol Stone, executive director, s a staff of two dozen employees and volunteers who placed over 4,500 volunteers in South Orange County in 1982. This represented a 156 percent increase since 1979. The staff serves 17 cities and 650 non-profit agencies. Their outreach also provides desks for interviewing volunteers at Irvine City Hall, both volunteers at Irvine City Hall, both Saddleback College campuses, Laguna Federal near Leisure World and in the Rea Community Center in Costa Mesa. Hundreds of other Orange countians apply directly to the agency of their choice.

Exemplifying this volunteer spirit are Pauline Campbell of Costa Mesa, who has devoted over 14,000 hours to Friendly Visiting among the lonely and the ill, and Beverly Cox who has served over 17,000 hours at Hoag Memorial Hospital in Newport

Orange County has many volunteers who have given many hours to serving their communities. A few are Julia Ramirez, TLC (Transportation, Lunch and Counseling for seniors); Cora Jean Martin, the Bower's Museum in

Day care centers fill growing need

By KAREN E. KLEIN

Ellen Jones remembers the morning she got a phone call from a frantic father.

"He called up and said his wife had walked out on him the night before and left him with the kids. He had to go to work and didn't have the vaguest idea what he was supposed to do," she says.

The scene is becoming increasingly familiar: not only with frantic fathers, but working mothers, couples who are in school and parents who must be away from home on an emergency. The common denominator is they all need adequate child care

Jones, of the Orange County
Children's Home Society Day Care Program, says her office fields more than 1,600 calls a month from parents either looking for or wishing to provide child care

"We get more calls from women than men, about half from single pagents and half married counles."

The need has increased, she says, especially in recent years, with the economy sagging and the "echo baby boom," (the children of adults born during the post-World War II baby boom) taking its toll.

But, while more day care facilities are opening, quality control is harder to enforce and prices are often restrictive.

In the Orange Coast area, day care prices are generally higher than they are in Santa Ana, or Anaheim, where the need is greater, Jones says.
"In Santa Ana, you can still get preschool care for about $45 a week," she says, "while if you're looking in Irvine, you'd probably have to pay about $55 or $60 a

The most prevalent form of child care is not the preschool center, but family home care, Jones says

Most of the good facilities have waiting lists, even though many profit-making centers have seen enrollment drop along with the recession.

The real crunch comes in the availability of subsidized, lowincome centers, according to Jones. Providing care for children whose parents are in low-income categories is increasingly difficult.

And cheap, quality day care is nearly non-existent, says Rita

"We have a waiting list of 200 to 300," she says. Top-of-the-line day care facilities are often expensive, and many will not take infants — a day care dilemma of its own.

"Many preschools hire the

"Many preschools hire the bottom of the line — the teachers don't have degrees, and the turnover is incredible," Jones says.

She advises expectant parents to begin looking at possible day care facilities early — before the need is

"Write up a list of expectations, decide what is important to you in terms of day care," she says. "Then talk to somebody that has experience with day care facilities and see if your expectations are realistic." She cites the case of the man who wanted a preschool teacher to teach his 9-month-old daughter to read by using flashcards.

"I had to tell him that just wasn't possible," she says. The most important thing to keep in mind when selecting day care facilities, she says, is to go by your gut instincts. "Nine times out of ten, you won't be wrong."

Women gaining in financial world

By LYNN KAHN

Great opportunities are in the future for women in the savings and loan and commercial banking industry, because government deregulation is leading to more diversified jobs," according to Ruthe Dillon, who started out as a teller and is now a vice president with Great American Federal Savings and Loan.

A resident of Newport Beach,
Dillon said that just 12 years ago
there weren't any women managers at Great American, but today the company, which has 138 branches, employs women as managers at 68 percent of their locations.

In fact, the vice chairman of the board is Lorna Mills, who merged her Laguna Federal Savings offices with Great

Column and the American a few years ago. An assistant vice president, Bonnie Parker, who also is manager of Newport, is the incoming president of the Orange County chapter of the Savings & Loan League, a national organization for both men and women.

Managerial posts at three Bank of America branches in Newport now are held by women, including Dee Mallot, Corona del Mar; Kathy Meany, Newport Hills; and Millie Wright, Balboa. The first woman to hold a division level managerial position at Pacific Telephone is from Orange County. She is Diane Dailacis of Fullerton who is customer service manager for three Southern California

Sandy McMullen and Joe Ann Grewelle are the service bureau supervisors for Orange County at Southern California Gas Company. McMullen said, "the company is very interested in affirmative action and encourages women by offering training in both traditional and non-traditional roles."

At the Irvine Company, Joan Irvine Smith is a stockholder and a member of the board of directors. They also have two women who are vice presidents. Muriel Kaylin Mabry likes to tell other women how she became the chief executive officer of a company before she even knew what the title really meant.

It's a story that illustrates Mabry's own determination and shows how women can climb the corporate ladder if they're willing to first take a risk.

After 23 years as a secretary, Mabry finally managed to convince her employer to let her tackle sales. She was good, so good that another career counseling company hired her for a marketing manager position.

She landed the top spot at another small company after persuading the president to make her CEO if she sold $5,000 the first month. She would work for free, she said. "I was shaking. I didn't even know what a CEO was," said Mabry, having only seen the term on a chart.

Glamorous as the title sounded, the pay was not terrific, she said. Convinced that she had found the key to success she started her own company in 1976 called Woman's World International, now valued at $500,000.

Most of the women who walk into the Santa Ana company for career advice believe they are underpaid and undervalued at their current job.

"If a person comes to us, they're looking for ways to use their talent," said Mabry. "What they're really asking for is permission to go

In her book, "The Woman's Key to the Executive Washroom" and through her seminars and counseling Mabry has come up with what she calls "eight keys to

1) Crisis: We don't move without

2) New goals and dreams: It's okay to start over and say goodbye.

3) Drive: You need tenacity.
4) Resilience: You have to be

Cunning: Put your emotions aside and look at alternatives.

Facing courage: Faith in yourself, God and in your convictions.

7) Risk: Nothing happens until

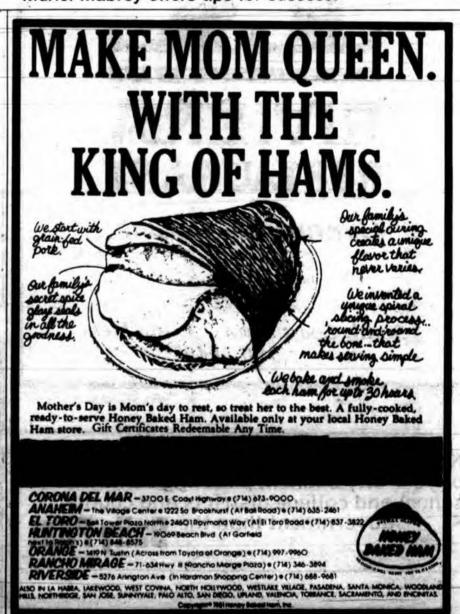

8) Love: Without love no one will listen to you.

Men looking for the key to the executive washroom now make up 10 percent of the clients at Woman's World.

Intercommunity Hospital; Nelly Allen of Laguna Beach, art teacher in the schools; Sema Levinson, Chairman of the Advisory Council of R.S.V.P. (Retired Seniors Volunteer Program) and founding president of the Orange County Chapter of Older Women's League; Dora Gatlin, Doctor's Hospital of Santa Ana; and Helen Lyons, South Coast Medical Center in South Laguna Beach.

Last year 31 percent of the volunteers were placed in social services, 28 percent in health services, and 12 percent in education. However, 28 percent of all requests received were for business administration, clerical and computer skills.

The need for these skills is acute. In spite of this discrepancy between applicants and requests from the non-profit agencies, Kautz said "When volunteers come to our office wanting to do something for which there is no request, we become creative in developing volunteer jobs by calling these agencies and describing their abilities."

With many volunteers now in paid employment, it has become necessary for the Volunteer Center staff to encourage non-profit agencies to consider flex hours in order to utilize the working woman who also wants to volunteer.

Another development on the volunteer scene is the placement of the older woman wishing to return to the work force: "By starting as a volunteer," said Kautz, "she gains self-esteem, invaluable training and finds herself back in the networking of the job market."

Orange County women also volunteer in activities related to church, recreation, political and community action, the arts, culture and justice.

After a full day of work, probably the last thing most people feel like doing is more work — especially the doing is more work - is my way of getting energy and keeping mentally alert," said Sharon Baylies, 40, of Laguna Baylies is a mother who works fulltime as an advanced placement English teacher at Mission Viejo High School. She runs about 50 miles a week, mostly in the early morning hours before work. After work, she teaches several aerobic es at Nautilus in Northwood.

"All this takes a lot of discipline, but I've found as we get older we have to make personal fitness our number one priority. It's the one activity that makes all your other efforts fall into place. Also, at a time in my life when I could be adding on a few pounds, I'm actually losing pounds each year," she said. Aerobics combines the health and figure benefits of jogging with the fun and vigor of dancing. It tones, trims and firms the body, according to aerobic expert Jackie Sorenson.

Classes are offered through most local community or recreational services, through private clubs and area colleges and universities. Fees run from about $30 to $60 depending on the length of the program. Community colleges charge only for parking and a small health fee.

Sally Stanton combines dancing and aerobics in her dance fitness programs for Newport Beach and Corona del Mar's recreation department. The emphasis here is on dance rather than floor exercises.

"We have women who are doctors, lawyers, mothers, anywhere from 20 to 80 years old. They come to look good and release tension," said Stanton.

She also offers dance fitness classes for full figures. In fact, it's a requirement to be at least 25 pounds overweight to get in the class. It isn't so fast moving, so it isn't so discouraging, she said. Soon this class will be offered by Laguna Beach's remaining the same services.

There's 'lite' beer, 'lite' cigarettes and now there's 'fitness lite," a program Stanton designed for elderly people or those who haven't exercised for a while and prefer a "liter" workout.

Most of her classes are relatively small — about 20 people — so she's able to give more personalized attention, which, she said, motivates people to come back each week.

The cost for Stanton's classes is $1.85 per session.

Local colleges and universities such as University of California, Irvine, Saddleback Community College and Orange Coast College have a wide array of classes for the hope-to-be fit.

Orange Coast offers a computerized personal fitness class worthy of an Olympic contender's training program.

For $15, your body's weaknesses, strengths and trouble spots are tested by computers. Then, experts put the student on a personalized fitness program.

"You have to do the workouts because you're monitored by instructors. It's also worth two credits if you follow the regimen," said Sue Brown, dean of the division of health and physical education.

the last few years.

"Women used to think if they exercised — or especially lifted weights — they'd get big muscles like men. But that's genetically not possible. It's been a gradual process of education to change this myth," said Brown.

Orange Coast also offers aqua calisthenics — a series of exercises done to music in the shallow end of a pool.

Women picking up check more easily

Executives offer ways to avoid embarrassment

By JOY DEE ANTHONY

It used to be that a woman never paid for a restaurant meal unless she passed the money under the table.

Today many female executives consider it their prerogative. And they offer advice on how to avoid potential awkwardness, both in picking up the tab and in conducting the luncheon.

"Awkwardness occurs when the person loses command of the situation," says Barbara Luther, a Newport Beach resident and a regulatory affairs consultant for the Food and Drug Administration who often entertains medical manufacturers in a restaurant

A simple phrase such as "I'd like you to be my guest" quickly establishes who will be entertaining and who will be entertained.

She believes in being "firm, not coquettish. Most men relate to that." If necessary she tells them, "let's not have any arm wrestling over the check." Then when the bill arrives, "draw plastic when ready." Like many others, she feels that credit cards are the most convenient (See WOMEN, Page 10)

Judithe Goldberg advises, 'The waiter knows who will be paying the check.'

On the other hand, Goldberg doesn't press the issue. She feels no "need to pay" if her client wishes to treat, "It's the same as two men going out on a business meeting. It her credit card number over the phone to make things easier. When you do handle financial arrangements at the table, she advises not deliberating over the tip or writing down the purpose and cost of the lunch there and then.

Perhaps the policy at Ambrosia typifies what will most likely be found in all restaurants of the future. "The person who makes the reservation, whether male or female, gets the check, the price list and the menu," says James Conway, a manager there.

The purpose of entertaining out varies with the person. Most do not see it merely as a means of getting acquainted.

Marsha Biritz, national product and services administrator at Coldwell Banker, a real estate firm in Newport Beach, sees it as a time of "laying the groundwork," though she adds, "there is a certain social quality to it." Oftentimes she may be taking out prospective employees. "I like to see how they handle themselves in a social situation," she explains.

Kenworthy, in her executive recruiting duties, finds that "business is best taken care of prior to the luncheon." You don't use entertaining as a way to get a client. She feels that people who think that to get a charge at The Ritz, if possible," Kenworthy says. "Talk to the secretary of the person you're entertaining to find out what kind of place would be special."

Luther likes the Balboa Bay Club, Cano's and Le Biarritz, all in Newport Beach. Goldberg prefers Rothschild's, Ambrosia or the University Athletic Men's Club where she has special privileges in the "men only" dining room. Sometimes she entertains out in Europe or Mammoth, where she enjoys skiing with clients.

Drinks may be more important to some clients. Bono recalls a client who suggested: "Let's drink our lunch." If this should happen she

"The person who makes the reservation, whether male or female, gets the check, the

"misguided."

What makes a good setting for a business lunch? Most point out the benefits of a quiet place and one which is likely to impress the client.

"If a person does a lot of entertaining, I would suggest trying advises "don't try to keep the pace. Let them do whatever they want."

Luther believes that you should "plan your business social entertaining the same way you would plan your business presentation."

It's a guarantee of success.

Masked officers enter tear-gassed home today.

Police capture HB man in trailer park shootout

By PHIL SNEIDERMAN And ROBERT BARKER of the Daily Pilot Staff

About 40 residents of a Huntington Beach mobile home park were evacuated early today after a resident apparently went berserk, exchanged gunfire with police and barricaded himself in his home for three hours.

Huntington Beach police Lt. Bruce Young said the gunman, identified as Kennard R. Warrick, 53, surrendered at about 3 a.m. after 45 minutes of telephone negotiations and two volleys of tear gas were used by

SWAT officers who surrounded Warrick's home. He resides in the Huntington By-the-Sea travel

Warrick, who is employed by the city of Huntington Beach in the street cleaning division, was taken to the jail ward at UC Irvine Medical Center with a single bullet wound to the right single bullet wound to the right inner thigh, apparently suffered in the exchange with officers. Hospital officials said Warrick was in fair condition early today. Young said the man was "extremely disoriented and appeared mentally disturbed"

when he finally surrendered to officers.

One police officer, Norman Evenson, required eye cleansing to remove fragments that struck him during the gunfire exchange with Warrick, Young said. But he said no other police officers or civilians were hurt during the

In addition to the evacuation of park residents living near Warrick's home, officers closed off Pacific Coast Highway between Beach Boulevard and Magnolia Street because of the fear stray gunfire might reach the traffic lanes.

The drama began at about 11:30 p.m. yesterday when residents called police to complain that Warrick had apparently "flipped out," according to Young.

Park manager Lloyd Usrey, 68, said he was called out when Warrick allegedly began scuffling with other residents.

"He has a mother in Whittier. And I understand from people in the park that he had some problems earlier in the day."

Young said four officers surrounded Warrick's home.

County rejects American Airlines

By JEFF ADLER

American Airlines' hopes of beginning service from John Wayne Airport next month were grounded today as Orange County supervisors voted to temporarily block any new airlines from joining existing carriers at the already overcrowded facility.

The three supervisors present at the morning meeting — Thomas Riley, Harriett Wieder and Roger Stanton — voted unanimously to adopt such a ban, placing the board on a path that seems headed for a courtroom showdown.

Shortly before the supervisors convened to consider the resolution, which surfaced only late yesterday afternoon, American Airlines spokesman Al Becker vowed, "If need be, we, will pursue legal actions."

The resolution, drafted at the insistence of Riley, blocks the entry of any new air carrier at-JWA until a new airport access plan is enacted, now scheduled or June 1984.

One important provision of the resolution directs that any new access plan, which allocates flights among competing airlines. be based upon an airline's daily airport noise performance. Preference in flight allocations would be given to the airlines with the quietest takeofferecord.

Laguna antenna defeated

By STEVE MITCHELL Of the Daily Pilot Staff

There goes the neighborhood. That pretty much sums up the opinion of two dozen Top of the World residents who showed up at City Hall last night to oppose installation of a microwave antenna in their hilltop Laguna Beach community.

And, at the end of the len hearing, the residents gained the Council, which urged Storer Cable TV to find another location for its tower and bowl-shaped antenna.

Storer TV sought permission to install a tower containing a microwave antenna, as well as four other radio wave antennas on water district property near Cresta Way on Alta Laguna Boulevard

Neighbors cited a variety of reasons why they did not want the 25-foot tower in the community, including obstruction of views, devaluation of properties and health hazards they associate with microwave radiation.

Armed with photographs of the proposed site, the residents used pen and ink to show how tall the tower and antennas would be.

And, despite a report from an engineer declaring the microwave antennas safe in proximity to humans, the residents said they had their

Council members told Storer officials to find another location for their tower, suggesting nonpopulated areas, such as an emergency access road between Top of the World and Arch Beach Heights.

New kindergarten program popular

From the long line of what Americans are willing to wait for comes a new one kindergarten.

Preventing prom tragedy

By STEVE MARBLE

Prom night is three days away and Lisa McManigal is worried.

She knows students and she knows that prom night often ends in tragedy.

Along with other seniors at Corona del Mar High School, she has launched a crusade against drinking and driving.

"We want people to have fun," she says, "but we want them to live to tell about it."

Signs like "Drink + Drive = Death" and "Friends Don't Let Friends Drive Drunk" have gone up at the campus. Contracts promising no drunken driving have been mailed to parents and students.

The idea comes without pressure from administrators, teachers or parents. In fact, students claim some faculty members have been less than encouraging.

Newport Beach police officer David Sens

says he was surprised when the students called and asked him to talk at a school assembly.

'Normally the peer pressure in high school is to not conform, to screw up. This was a change a nice change," says Sens.

Traditionally, Sens says, prom night is an accident waiting to happen. Last year, a Newport senior was killed in an alcohol-related accident after the prom and the year before a girl was killed in an accident before graduation

He says drunken driving statistics in Newport Beach are scary. Last year, 1,701 people were arrested on suspicion of drunken driving and 260 accidents were blamed on intoxication. Figures, this year, are climbing at the same pace.

In preparing for the week-long drinking and driving crackdown, McManigal met with a victim of a drunken driver. The woman had lost a leg and now is confined to a wheelchair.

"I learned a lot from her. I learned that a lot of people don't care. The guy who hit her had been involved in five hit-and-run accidents. He didn't care.

'But," she adds, "I saw that it hadn't crushed her spirit or gotten her down. She got mad and fought back."

Laguna entrance on hold

Laguna Beach City Council members made it clear last night they want more citizen participation before moving ahead with a consultant's plan for sprucing up the Laguna Canyon entrance to town.

At issue is proposed uses for a combined 4.5-acre parcel adjacent to the Festival of Arts, which currently is under multiple public and private ownership.

The study area includes a sewage treatment plant, a city parking lot and storage yard, a power substation, an uncovered flood control channel, and some undeveloped private parcels.

The city is considering combining the properties to create a "Village Entrance" that would enhance the rather drab canyon entrance to the town.

Alternatives suggested by a city-hired consultant have included commercial uses, such as hotels, restaurants and shops, multi-level parking structures, and demolition of the halfcentury-old sewer treatment

Alberta "Birdie" Moore considered herself an animal lover, but police called to her Costa Mesa home this week found it shoe deep in animal droppings, dead flies and trash.

The 53-year-old woman, who was cited last June for keeping 14 dogs, cats and rabbits, was evicted Monday after allegedly failing to make a single payment on her two-story home at 251 Flower Ave.

Animal control officer Mike Doyle said it was one of the worst scenes he has seen in his nine years on the job.

"There were a half inch of dead flies in the window," he said. "The stench from the dog urine and fecal matter was enough to knock you out. It was something to behold."

Real estate broker Scotti Ward said Moore allegedly left behind boxes of animal fecal matter piled to the ceiling, rotten food, papers and two cats.

'The house was destroyed," said Ward. "She demolished the place in less than one year.

Doyle said Moore apparently piled her animal brood in her car and took off, telling no one where she was headed.

Judges looking for help

Faced with ever more crowded courtrooms and burgeoning criminal and civil caseloads, Orange County's judges are looking for a little extra help.

The Board of Surpervisors agreed yesterday that the county's jurists need some extra assistance and agreed to ask the state Legislature to add six new judges to the county bench four in Superior Court and two in Municipal Court.

The new Municipal Court judges would be assigned to the South County and Harbor divisions of the court.

For the Superior Court positions, the board's action was contingent on the state's agreeing to provide block-grant monies to help pay for court operations. The state currently is paying about $1.2 million per year for the court operations of 20 judges.

Last year, the county withdrew its request for three additional Superior Court judgeships when the state declined to provide the blockgrant funding for them, according to Janice Robinson, a county analyst.

The recommendation to ask for the additional judges was made by the county's Legal-Judicial Systems Committee, composed of supervisors, judges and law enforcement officials.

If the positions are approved by the state, the new judges would begin their terms on the bench Jan. 1, 1984, Robinson

By GLENN SCOTT of the Daily Pilot Staff

UC Irvine medical researchers are hoping a new drug they're testing today with rats may turn out to revolutionize the way major burn victims receive skin grafts.

The drug, Cyclosporine, reduces the body's immune system so new skin, or other body parts, aren't immediately rejected. At the UCI Medical Center Burn Unit, Director Bruce Achauer said the drug may mean burn victims who now must undergo a series of skin grafts could get new layers with much less surgery and with less chance of bacterial infection.

'We're very close to giving it a try in a lot of severe burn cases where we know there is a high mortality rate," he said.

So far, researchers, including David Furnas, Charles Hewitt, Kirby Black and Achauer, have worked strictly with rats by successfully transplanting legs from brown Norway rats onto white Lewis rats.

The rats treated for 20 days prior to the transplant have functioned normally for three months after the surgery without more drug treatment. Rats not given the drug have had the on relocated

Earthquake could have been worse

Tremor of 6.5 magnitude seen causing deaths if it had hit San Francisco

COALINGA (AP) — Authorities examining the devastating Central Valley earthquake say there are a variety of reasons why the destruction wasn't worse including the small, rural nature of the town and its many one-story wooden buildings.

The quake left 47 injured among the population of 6,500 and many millions in damage, although a complete estimate has yet to be made. The preliminary estimate for the business district was $25 million.

The quake, which registered 6.5 on the Richter Scale, rumbled along a previously unmapped fault about five miles out of town, some 150 miles southeast of San Francisco.

If a quake of the same magnitude had struck San Francisco, the damage would have been much worse, said Dr. Bruce Bolt, director of the University of California seismology station at Berkeley.

He said there are many tall masonry buildings in San Francisco similar to the ones that collapsed in Coalinga, where they were only one or two stories high.

"I think there may be fatalities" in San

Francisco from a quake of the same size, he said. "The chances of disaster are much higher in San Francisco," which also has a much larger population — 650,000.

Robert Iacopi, in his book "Earthquake Country," said the reason for devastation is that "buildings suffer during an earthquake primarily because horizontal forces are exerted against structural designs that often are meant to contend with only vertical stress.

"When the give-and-take of any structural element is unbalanced, the rigid, weaker elements are fractured and torn loose," he said.

Authorities said more than half the buildings in Coalinga were 40 years old or more, but had never been made earthquake-proof and hadn't been through a strong earthquake, according to Roger Scholl, technical director of the Earthquake Research Institute in San Francisco.

Still others note that the quake might have been worse if it happened at night when people are asleep rather than during the day when people can react more quickly.

Quake hit major oil facilities

COALINGA (AP) — Pumping facilities that handle 43 percent of Northern California's crude oil needs were knocked out by the big Coalinga earthquake, but oil company officials say the damage doesn't seem to be serious.

'We suffered some major damage, but no catastrophe," Claude Fiddler, Northern California drilling manager for Chevron USA, said yesterday.

The Monday quake, measured at 6.5 on the Richter scale, was centered in an oil field producing more than 30,000 barrels of heavy-grade crude daily. That's only about 2.6 percent of the total used by the state's

But pumping plants in Coalinga propel crude oil through major lines linking San Francisco Bay area refineries with fields as far south as Bakersfield. And those plants, handling about 43 percent of Northern California's need for crude, were stopped when the quake hit at 4:42 p.m. Monday. Getty Oil Co.'s 20-inch diameter pipe, which can carry 230,000 barrels a day, will be inactive until workers have a chance to inspect it for leaks for 50 or 60 miles on either side of the quake center, said Getty spokesman Frank Parisi.

A 150,000-barrel-a-day Chevron line wasn't damaged and resumed pumping on yesterday, company officials said.

Coalinga vows to rebuild

COALINGA (AP) - As Coalinga continued to surge with aftershocks, safety inspectors marched door-to-door today signing "death warrants" for scores of buildings as they assessed the cracks and rubble from a devastating earthquake.

"No part of the city is untouched," said Mayor Keith Scrivner. But he added, "We can build again, and we will."

At least 300 houses suffered major damage from Monday's earthquake, the initial inspection showed. The preliminary damage estimate remained at $25 million for the business area downtown alone.

Church stripped of tax-exempt status

By The Associated Press

The state Board of Equalization has ruled that the Rev. Robert H. Schuller's opulent Crystal Cathedral, which holds concerts that command prices of up to $150 a seat, should be stripped of its tax-exempt

The board also ruled yesterday that six other facilities operated by Schuller should lose their property tax exemptions because they have been used by profitmaking groups and other nonexempt organizations since 1979.

The 2,875-seat Crystal Cathedral is the centerpiece of Schuller's $30 million-a-year evangelical empire, which stems from his Garden Grove Community Church. Schuller began operations in a drive-in theater in the community of Orange in 1955.

The cathedral's use for commercial activity is unprecedented in scope, state officials have said, citing appearances by Lawrence Welk, Victor Borge and Fred Waring.

Schuller's attorney, Thomas Bost, said the church would appeal to the board and, if that fails, to the courts.

"This church is commercialized to a much greater extent than I've ever encountered in the state," said a Board of Equalization investigator, William Grommet. "They will have to change their methods of operation in order to receive the tax exemption in 1983."

Of the 29-page ruling, Grommet said, "It's a reminder to other ministers not to hold concerts in their sanctuary."

The state tax investigation covered church activities in 1981 and 1982.

De Beers Consolidated Mines, the South African industrial firm which mines and sells most of the world's diamonds, has given the signal that diamond prices will be going up again. Because de Beers, through its Central Selling Organization, markets more than 80 percent of all diamonds sold, it has been able to raise the cost of uncut diamonds by 3.5 percent. This follows an increase of 2.5 percent last September. The increase came, says De Beers, because of increased demand by consumers in the U.S., Japan and West Germany. In other words, the ancient law of supply and demand is at work. The increased demand for diamonds might also be another indication of economic recovery. The market for gem-quality diamonds had tailed off last year, following a market peak in 1980. De Beers took action. to keep diamond prices firm. They withheld some stones from the

Merit scholars selected

Several students from Orange Coast area high schools are among 2,000 recipients nationwide of college-sponsored four-year National Merit scholarships.

Winners will receive $1,000 to $8,000 over four years of undergraduate study at the college or university financing the awards. The scholarships are sponsored by 190 U.S. higher education institutions, both public and private.

The college-sponsored scholarships, worth $9 million nationwide, were the last of three National Merit award announcements made for 1983.

Area winners included Paul Kevin Wood of Huntington Beach, Huntington Beach High School; Paul G. Floyd, Mission Viejo, Mission Viejo High School; Sharon K. Sprague of Los Alamitos, Los Alamitos High School; and Nora J. Perren of Santa Ana, Foothill High school.

OCC plans to borrow for payroll

Coast Community College District trustees have unanimously agreed to issue $5 million in short-term notes to eliminate a temporary shortage of funds anticipated during part of the coming school year.

The money will be used to meet payroll expenses. The notes will be paid off when the district receives the money it is entitled to from state education funding and tax revenues.

District officials said borrowing through short-term notes is a common practice among local school districts. The Coast district includes Orange Coast in Costa Mesa, Golden West in Huntington Beach and Coastline colleges.

The college district already has issued layoff notices to 114 fulltime teachers and administrators and is studying other means of erasing a $5.5 million deficit anticipated in next year's budget.

Women gaining in financial world

By LYNN KAHN
Daily Pilot Correspondent
"Great opportunities are in the future for women in the savings and loan and commercial banking industry, because government deregulation is leading to more diversified jobs," according to Ruthe Dillon, who started out as a teller and is now a vice president with Great American Federal Savings and Loan.
A resident of Newport Beach,

Dillon said that just 12 years ago there weren't any women managers at Great American, but today the company, which has 138 branches, employs women as managers at 68 percent of their locations.

In fact, the vice chairman of the board is Lorna Mills, who merged her Laguna Federal Savings offices with Great American a few years ago. An assistant vice president, Bonnie Parker, who also is manager of New port; is the incoming president of the Orange County chapter of the Savings & Loan

League, a national organization for both men and women.

Managerial posts at three Bank of America branches in Newport now are held by women, including Dee Mallot, Corona del Mar; Kathy Meany, Newport Hills; and Millie Wright, Balboa.

The first woman to hold a division level managerial position at Pacific Telephone is from Orange County. She is Diane Dailacis of Fullerton who is customer service manager for three Southern California

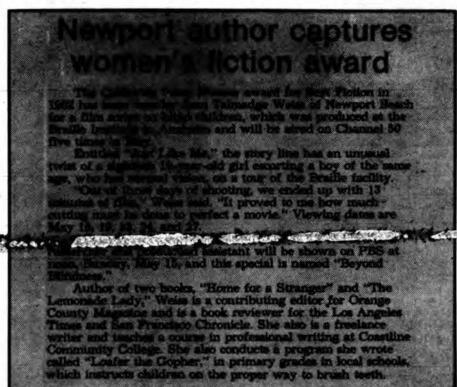

Another corporate giant, Southern California Edison, employs Eileen McClure, who lives in Newport Beach, as city area manager for South Pasadena, Temple City and San Marino. In addition, Gloria Kemper and Virginia Leiphart of Westminster and Phyllis Kyker of Huntington Beach are managers in other divisions.

Sandy McMullen and Joe Ann Grewelle are the service bureau supervisors for Orange County at Southern California Gas Company. McMullen said, "the company is very interested in affirmative action and encourages women by offering training in both traditional and non-traditional roles."

At the Irvine Company, Joan Irvine Smith is a stockholder and a member of the board of directors. They also have two women who are vice presidents. One is Monica Florian, who is vice president of planning and policy development, and the other is Rita Tracy Lamkin, vice president of sales and marketing with Irvine Pacific, the company building division.

are Linda Martz, marketing manager of the commercial and industrial division; Jan Wilson, manager of marketing communications, community development division; Vickie Stowe, marketing manager, community cablevision; Karen King, director of retail shopping centers, and Elizabeth Rutherford, controller of the finance department, property management division.

Women picking up check more easily

Executives offer ways to avoid embarrassment

By JOY DEE ANTHONY

It used to be that a woman never paid for a restaurant meal unless she passed the money under the table.

Today many female executives consider it their prerogative. And they offer advice on how to avoid potential awkwardness, both in picking up the tab and in conducting the luncheon.

the luncheon.

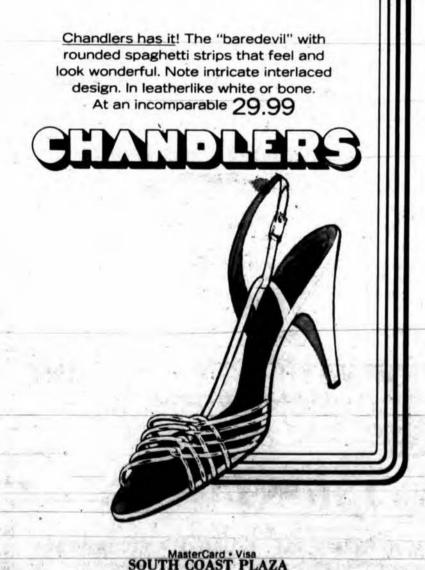

"Awkwardness occurs when the person loses command of the situation," says Barbara Luther, a Newport Beach resident and a regulatory affairs consultant for the Food and Drug Administration who often entertains medical manufacturers in a restaurant

A simple phrase such as "I'd like you to be my guest" quickly establishes who will be entertaining and who will be entertained.

She believes in being "firm, not coquettish. Most men relate to that." If necessary she tells them, "let's not have any arm wrestling over the check." Then when the bill arrives, "draw plastic when ready." Like many others, she feels that credit cards are the most convenient (See WOMEN, Page 10)

Judithe Goldberg advises, 'The waiter knows who will be paying the check.'

Security Pacific offers bill paying by telephone

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Beginning next month, writing checks for bills can become a thing of the past for Security Pacific National Bank checking accounts customers. Customers can instead pay their bills by

Set to begin June 1 for the bank's 1.9 million checking customers, users will be charged $4 a month for the service — the equivalent of 20 postage stamps. Shirley Gonzalez, who is heading the program, said people who use the service will become the base of the bank's future home-banking efforts in which customers will use computer terminals to transfer funds to creditors.

Mattel sues Atari over secrets

LOS ANGELES - Mattel Electronics and Mattel Inc. filed a $40 million dollar lawsuit against Atari Inc. and three former employees yesterday for allegedly stealing trade secrets involving home video cartridges. The lawsuit claimed the secrets allowed Atari to develop a better cartridge that can be used on Mattel equipment.

Suit tries to halt Bekins sale

LOS ANGELES - Far West Financial Corp., run by Canada's wealthy Belzberg brothers, filed a $100 million lawsuit yesterday that seeks to stop Minneapolis investor Irwin L. Jacobs from buying the Bekins Co. moving and storage firm. The suit accuses Bekins Co. Chairman Stanley Hiller Jr. and other company officials of manipulating last month's bidding war over the Glendale-based firm to encourage speculation in Bekins stock that provoked a rapid hike in its price.
