U.S. troops fighting in Grenada, Lebanon

By The Associated Press

Combat involving American troops continued today in both Grenada and Lebanon, with casualties mounting at both sites.

In Grenada, the United States landed about 800 paratroopers in today to reinforce the almost 2,000-strong U.S. invasion force and began evacuating American citizens. Pentagon sources reported six U.S. troops killed, eight missing and 33 wounded in fighting so far.

In Beirut today, American troops returned fire at dawn when they were fired upon with small arms, mortar and bazookas.

Vice President George Bush inspected the devastated Marine base and said "insidious terrorist cowards" will not change U.S. policy. American casualties in Lebanon are now listed at 219 dead and about 70 injured. (For more on the Lebanon crisis, see Page A6.)

In Cuba, a government announcement in Havana said six U.S. helicopter gunships attacked Cuban positions on Grenada before dawn today, destroying the Cubans' main building at the Point Salines airfield. It said the

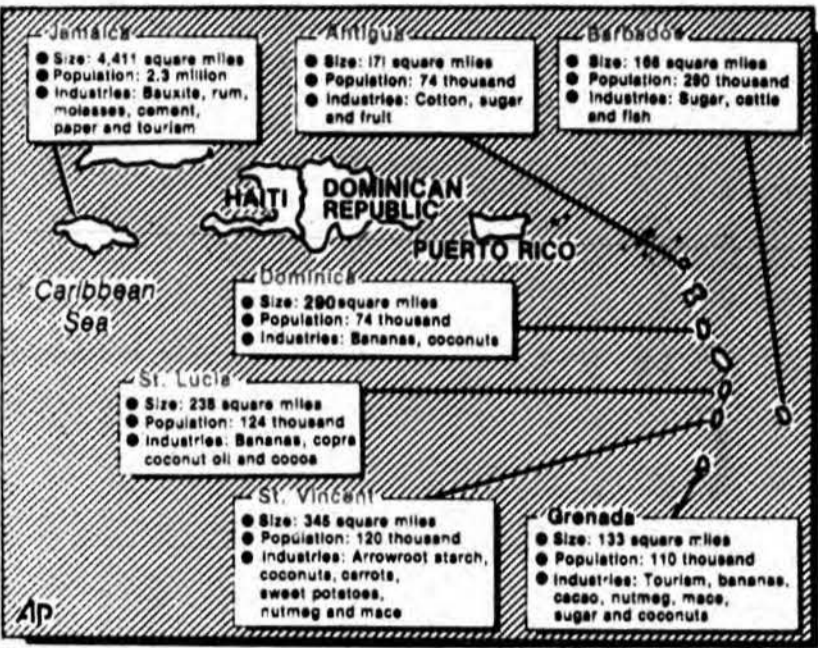

"casualties are numerous. But survivors will continue fighting."

White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes told reporters in Washington that 61 Americans were en route to Charleston, S.C. on the first evacuation flight from Point Salines. There are about 1,000

Americans on the island, many of them medical students.

Pentagon sources, who disclosed the casualties and the number of 82nd Airborne reinforcements, said the Americans were encountering stiff resistance from hundreds of Cubans and

Grenada:

• Six American servicemen have been killed and 33 wounded, Pentagon sources say. U.S. officials also said three Grenadian troops were killed and up to 600 Cubans captured.

• President Fidel Castro vowed today that his countrymen on Grenada would not surrender.

Lebanon:

• Vice President George Bush, standing before the mountain of rubble where rescuers were still looking for bodies from Sunday's Beirut bombing, said: "We're not going to let down friends because of terror." Page A6.

• At dawn, the Marines were fired upon with small arms, mortar and bazookas and fired back.

• The death toll from the suicide bombing is 219 dead and about 70 wounded for the Americans, with French casualties listed at 48 dead, 15 wounded and 10 missing.

Missing car link in Irvine murder

By ANDREA ADELSON
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Irvine police hope a missing car and a business associate can help lead them to the killer of murdered tire store president Boyd W. Finkel.

Sgt. Dick Bowman said today investigators hope to question an unidentified Maryland man believed to be Finkel's financial backer. In the next two days, police hope to ask the man about previous business associates of Finkel who might shed some light on a motive for the homicide.

Police also are looking for a missing silver Honda Prelude with California license plates owned by Finkel, which is "unaccounted for," Lt. Bob Lennert said. The car may have been loaned to a friend or may be a link to Finkel's killer, he said.

Meanwhile, autopsy results revealed Tuesday that the 39-year-old Irvine man, reported missing this week by his co-workers, died Oct. 16 after being bludgeoned over the head with a blunt instrument, police said.

Fingerprints were used to positively identify the partially decomposed body found stuffed in the trunk of a car Monday, Lennert said.

Investigators have ruled out robbery, burglary or drugs as a

Bullet train 'shot down' by analyst

By ANDREA ADELSON
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The proposed multi-billion dollar Los Angeles-to-San Diego bullet train is a "house of cards" built with inflated ridership projections, underestimated costs and overly rosy expected revenues, according to a critic.

Jonathan Richmond unleashed his critical analysis of the $3 billion train system Tuesday in Tustin, after concluding a three-month, $10,000 study for the city.

The 132-mile route proposed by American High-Speed Rail Corp. for Japanese-style high speed trains allies through Orange County. It's been opposed by Tustin residents and some homeowners in Irvine.

The plan for a privately financed rail line, whose rolling stock would whip by at 130 mph, "will inevitably be bankrupt" because underlying planning is based on "totally false" assumptions, Richmond said after a two-hour press conference. (See BULLET, Page A2)

Some kind of hero

Kevin Yoches owes his young life to Bob Heber.

By KAREN E. KLEIN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Bob Heber wasn't supposed to be on patrol that Monday.

But since he'd lost his regular job, Heber was able to substitute for another Costa Mesa police officer who was absent.

If it hadn't happened that way, 13-month-old Kevin Elliott Yoches might not be the happy, vivacious little boy he is today.

And Heber, a 28-year-old reserve officer and a sales representative with a publishing company, would not have made a new friend.

It was that Monday, Sept. 26, when Kevin fell in his backyard pool and nearly drowned. And it was that Monday when Heber became involved with strangers who would just a few weeks later consider him a "dear and special" part of their lives.

Heber was patrolling the southeast part of Costa Mesa when a medical aid call of a drowning in progress came in about 1:40 p.m. Heber remembered all the kids he'd taught swimming lessons to in junior high and high school and sped to the address that came over his squad car radio.

"I went emergency lights and sirens. You're really supposed to let (the station) know when you do that, but I didn't care because it just struck home with me since there was a kid involved," Heber said. (See OFFICER, Page A2)

Speraw may drop out of Senate race

By JERRY HIRSCH
and ROBERT BARKER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A bitter fight for the local state Senate seat may be evaporating to the delight of local Republicans.

State Sen. Ollie Speraw, R-Newport Beach, will meet with his staff Thursday morning to decide if he will drop his challenge to Assemblywoman Marian Bergeson, R-Newport Beach, for the 37th District Senate seat, Speraw's aides said today.

Meanwhile, Assemblyman Nolan Frizzelle, R-Huntington Beach, said today he has no plans to enter the fray.

"I'm happy where I am in the Assembly and there's no virtue for me to be in the Senate," he said.

"This is where the main battleground is to support the positions of the governor and the Republican Party and it's where I want to be," the two-time assemblyman said, hoping to end speculation he might challenge Bergeson if Speraw withdrew.

Speraw, who is beset by a variety of health and personal problems, may want to avoid the bitter fight and devote his time to (See SPERAW, Page A2)

Winds tangle south county power lines

Power to nearly 4,000 homes and businesses was restored Tuesday after Santa Ana winds wreaked havoc on power lines in south Orange County.

Meanwhile, the hot and gusty winds were expected to diminish today, making way for somewhat cooler temperatures Thursday — if you can call temperatures in the upper 70s at the beaches and the 80s inland cool for late October.

"The wind blew trees into the wires in Capistrano Beach and took out power to 3,860 customers," said San Diego Gas & Electric Co. spokesman Tom Larimore.

He said the 6 a.m. outage affected homes from San Juan

Capistrano south to Capistrano Beach and parts of south and north San Clemente. Power was restored by 8 a.m., he said.

The National Weather Service is predicting a cooling trend Thursday under sunny skies. "It won't be as warm as today," said spokeswoman Pat Rowe. "Things should cool down to the mid 70s near the coast to the low 80s inland by the weekend," she said, adding overnight lows will be in the 60s by this evening.

The dry winds prompted Orange County firefighters to go on alert, patrolling the county's brushlands for signs of smoke or flames.

Fire ravages paper plant in Santa Ana

A welder may have accidentally set off a spectacular fire that roared through a Santa Ana paper recycling plant Tuesday night and shrouded a five-block area in thick, black smoke.

Flames shot 20 feet in the air as police officers went door to door in a surrounding neighborhood warning residents to stay indoors or evacuate the area because of possible toxic fumes from burning plastic.

Fire investigators were digging through the remains of the Santa Ana Recycling Center, 2538 S. Main St., today. Authorities said while they had no estimate on the amount of damage they admitted (See PAPER, Page A2) motive in the murder.

No weapon was discovered when police searched Finkel's blood-spotted home at the base of Lockhaven Circle. Police refused to say if any evidence was confiscated in the three-bedroom home.

Police forced their way into the home Monday after two co-workers reported concerns over Finkel's unexplained absence from Supertec Tire Center, the Irvine tire store of which he was president.

Finkel's body was found in the trunk of a dark blue Cadillac parked in the garage.

A burglar alarm in the house had not activated when police arrived, according to Lennert.

Finkel was last seen alive at 10:15 p.m. Oct. 15 having dinner at an Irvine restaurant, Lennert said.

Long-time residents of Lockhaven described their neighbor as a recluse who owned expensive cars and rarely had visitors.

Bill Julian, a former business partner, speculated Finkel may have made enemies in the tire business. Julian said he and Finkel in April were forced to sell their nearly bankrupt chain of six discount tire stores. The stores in Orange and Los Angeles and counties, had debts of $2 million.

Republican efforts to change the reapportionment system, according to Jack Germain, an aide.

Bergeson said she would be pleased if Speraw dropped out but added "it would not change my plans at all."

"I don't know whether there will be any opposition. My race has been run from the start as if there would be opposition. We have the staff, volunteers and financing to run a campaign against opposition," Bergeson said.

Speraw, who lost his Long Beach senate seat to reapportionment, gained the Legislature's approval to represent the 37th District in January. The seat was left vacant by former Sen. John Schmitz last year.

Soon after, Speraw announced his intention to run for the Senate seat in 1984.

Bergeson, a three-term assemblywoman, had already said she would run.

Political analysts expected the battle would be one the most expensive and bitter in Orange Coast history. With the primary nearly a year away both candidates already were sparring over pledges to run a clean campaign only last month.

The end to the Speraw-Bergeson fight would help local Republicans concentrate on unseating Democratic office holders in the area, said Tom Fuentes, a vice chairman of the Orange County Republican Party.

"There was some speculation that perhaps $1 million would be spent between the two sides.

Loser of $47,000 cash in briefcase unable to hire attorney in embezzlement case

By STEVE MARBLE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

"Riches to rags" is how one police detective described the plight of Michael Booth, the 21-year-old man who made flamboyant claims of wealth until he landed in jail late last week on suspicion of grand theft and embezzlement.

Booth made news earlier this month when he reported losing $47,000 in cash at a Newport Beach nightspot. When police admitted they were suspicious of his claim, Booth angrily said he was rich. He said his car alone was worth $70,000.

But as of today, Booth has been unable to raise money to meet his $50,000 bail or to hire an attorney.

He was scheduled to appear in court later today in Fullerton where he will be represented by Diana Polos, a court-appointed public defender.

Booth is suspected of stealing a $30,000 Mercedes Benz from an Anaheim car dealer and unlawfully taking a Porsche 928 from a Newport Beach car lot.

"For a guy with so much money, he sure isn't flashing it now," quipped Anaheim Police detective Al Brubrink. "Riches to rags."

Booth made headlines this month when he called police to Bobby McGee's restaurant in Newport Beach to report that someone had taken his gold-trimmed briefcase that he said was stuffed with 470 $100 bills.

He said he carried the briefcase into the restaurant because he was to meet a client to purchase a Ferrari. The briefcase, he told police, was left with a host at the restaurant.

Police challenged Booth to take a lie-detector test but he failed to show up.

Booth was arrested late Thursday. Police in Anaheim allege Booth took a Mercedes for a test drive and never returned. The car still has not turned up, police said.

Meanwhile, police in Newport reported that Booth "fraudulently" rented a Porsche from a Pacific Coast Highway car lot by using a friend's credit card. Officers said he also failed to return that expensive car.

Police have hinted that other charges against Booth still may be filed.

Santa's entrance not for Placentia youth

By The Associated Press

A 10-year-old Placentia boy has learned the sooty truth about his chimney. St. Nick would stick, the same way Justin Bayless did when he tried to get into his locked-up house after school.

And laying his finger aside of his nose wouldn't get him out, either. Firefighters had to cut a chunk from the chimney to free him.

It was a bad day at black brick, all around, for Justin. His troubles actually began about noon when he was sent to the principal's office for disciplining at Eastside Christian Elementary School in nearby Fullerton, police said. Apparently he left school early after that, they said.

But no one was home and the doors were locked. So Justin climbed to the roof of the two-story house and lowered himself feet-first into the chimney.

Justin apparently lost his grip and fell nearly 25 feet, finally coming to rest on the flue at the top of the fireplace, about three feet short of his goal.

About that time, Palmer said, school officials searching for their missing student arrived at the house and heard his cries for help.

"I want out! Get me out!" the boy hollered all the while.

He was freed, uninjured, two hours later.

Returning to crime scene trips suspect

Fountain Valley police have a nominee for klutzy crook of the month.

It seems that a 20-year-old Santa Ana man was surprised by the intended victim while rifling through a van this week.

The crook bolted, leaving his wallet that contained his driver's license and other identification behind. He did take with him a small security badge he found in the van belonging to an employee of Rockwell International.

Perhaps realizing that things weren't going as smoothly as he would like, the bungling bandit returned to the crime scene at the Tiburon West condominiums at Adams Court. He told police who were there waiting for him that he was looking for somebody and got into the van by mistake.

His story didn't wash, however, and he was booked into city jail on suspicion of petty theft for taking the security employee's badge.

OFFICER SAVES MESA BOY...

The precocious toddler had slipped away from his mother, Toby, who was talking to a neighbor at the door. A couple minutes later, Toby returned to Kevin's playroom to find it empty.

Her son was at the bottom of the swimming pool in her backyard.

Heber was the first one to arrive at the Yoches' home that day. Kevin "was blue. His lips were blue, he was bloated and there were food fragments around him on the floor. His mom was doing CPR on him but she was pretty panicked. I just looked down and said to myself, 'I can't mess up on this.' In business you can screw up and it's not so bad, but here I had a human life to think about," Heber said.

He took over the CPR and noticed Kevin responding with gurgling sounds. "It seemed like an eternity," in the few minutes before the fire department and paramedics arrived on the scene, Heber said.

CPR was not a routine procedure for Heber. "It was the first time I'd ever done it in my life. In my class I always had trouble with the baby doll because I couldn't get my mouth over the nose and mouth like they showed me. I figured it was no time to experiment on Kevin. I just plugged his nose and breathed into his mouth like he was an adult."

In the hours after the boy was taken to the hospital, Heber called Kevin's doctor and his house.

A doctor who treated Kevin told Heber the youngster would live but would almost certainly be brain-damaged from lack of oxygen.

"It was so tragic. He hadn't even begun to live his life yet," Heber said. "I thought, 'Why did we work so hard for that, why did Kevin work so hard?'"

Heber, who had been depressed since losing his full-time job anyway, was devastated.

But he got good news the next day, when all the signs that pointed to brain damage turned out to be negative.

"I just couldn't believe it," Heber said. "Everything had gone from so bad to so good."

In the days and weeks that followed, Kevin's recovery would be complete. But Heber's interest in the boy didn't flag.

"He has been so dear and so special to us," Toby Yoches said. "I think he felt responsible. He called every day to the hospital and to our home."

One recent evening, after Kevin was released, Heber paid a visit to the Yoches' house and brought along a teddy bear for Kevin.

"We were so touched by his sense of involvement with Kevin," Toby said. Heber's actions went beyond the normal call of duty, she said.

But Heber said what he did was just routine. "I did what any other officer would have done. I guess I'm proud because I handled a crisis situation well. I've been scared many times, but this really involved somebody else's life and the responsibility of that is just overwhelming."

AMERICANS FIGHTING ...

Grenadians. The military sources, who spoke on the condition that they not be identified, said U.S. forces were being sniped at and that fighting was continuing around both of Grenada's airports.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger declared earlier in the day, "There will be some more casualties because the price of freedom is high."

Jamaican Prime Minister Edward Seaga said he was told 12 Cubans and three civilians were killed on Grenada when the invasion by Marines and Army Rangers began Tuesday.

On Tuesday, the Pentagon said two members of the invasion force had been killed and 23 wounded on the Caribbean island.

President Fidel Castro vowed his men would not surrender, and Cuba's Prensa Latina news agency said sending in 82nd Airborne troops "gives an indication of the disorder and hysteria provoked in the high command of the United States by the heroic resistance of a fistful of Cubans who were still fighting at dawn today after 24 hours of intense combat in which imperialism has made use of all its technical means of conventional warfare — a really humiliating and demoralizing development for Yankee imperialism."

Weinberger told NBC-TV's "Today" show that "with the airborne and the other units in there we would hope that some of the pockets of resistance would be reduced today."

He said the landing force had taken about 250 Cubans prisoner, including 200 "armed combatants." He said the balance of the Cubans had some sort of reserve training.

"Those operations are proceeding there probably will be more before the day is out," Weinberger said. In addition to the Cubans, about 30 Soviet advisers have been seized by the invaders.

Castro, Marxist-led Grenada's staunchest ally, acknowledged today that an undetermined number of Cubans had been killed and wounded in the invasion, but vowed his countrymen would not surrender.

Richmond said he obtained feasibility studies, which were prepared for American High Speed Rail by consultants. The studies are biased and incomplete, he said.

"I checked every single detail down to the cost of credit card transactions. They didn't even include costs of credit cards, or liability or a reservation system," said Richmond, a rail analyst and former Fulbright scholar with the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

John Lagomarcino, the vice president of American High Speed Rail, responded in equally vitriolic terms. "Richmond's data is out of date and incomplete. He used this same misinformation before a (state) Senate committee.

BULLET TRAIN...

"We stand by our marketing analysis. It's accurate," he said.

"Stonewalling" by American High Speed Rail officials is why the city undertook the study, Tustin City Manager William Huston said. "We got nothing but generalized information to questions we raised."

The project "will have a very serious impact" in Tustin as the proposed lines run behind two large subdivisions, he said.

Huston said the names of experts who have reviewed Richmond's findings will be revealed soon.

The intent is to derail the bullet train. "We can't do it. But we can alert other decision makers," he said.

PAPER PLANT FIRE...

it would be "considerable."

"The fumes were just tremendous. It was very difficult to breathe," said Art Levitt, a spokesman for Pacific Telephone Co. which has a service yard next to the recycling plant.

The fire burned three buildings at the two-acre recycling center and destroyed 14 vehicles parked at the telephone service yard. No one was injured in the 6:41 p.m. blaze.

Santa Ana Battalion Chief Richard Keller said it appears a welder who was working outdoors at the plant may have triggered the fire when sparks from his equipment were swept into paper bundles.

"The Santa Ana (wind) condition didn't help. It was dry and hot and that's not good when you have a fire," said Keller. "But it could have been worse if it was really blowing."

A thin layer of smoke was still visible over the recycling center early today. Firemen said paper and plastic items stored at the plants likely would smolder for hours.

"Because so much of that stuff is in bins or in bundles you just can't get it (the fire) out until you bulldoze it," said Steve Bunting, a Newport Beach fireman who spent six hours on the scene.

Jean Williams said she was on the east side of the El Toro Marine Corps Air Station on Irvine Center Drive when she saw the flames. She said she drove to the scene of the fire, fearing for relatives who live in the area.

"The whole sky was lit up," she said.

As many as 90 firefighters from Santa Ana, Costa Mesa, Newport Beach, Garden Grove and the Orange County Fire department were brought to the scene to battle the blaze, said Santa Ana Fire Chief William Reimer.

As fire units concentrated on containing the roaring blaze, telephone company employees hurriedly moved trucks, cars and heavy equipment from the service yard.

Leavitt said employees were able to move about 50 cars, vans and trucks before being driven back by the heat and the thick smoke. He said four vans, six station wagons, a construction truck and three cars belonging to employees were charred by the flames.

Thompson should get gas chamber, panel decides in second penalty deliberation

By JEFF ADLER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The man convicted of sexually molesting and killing 12-year-old Anaheim newsboy Benjamin Brennenman in 1981 should die in California's gas chamber, an Orange County Superior Court jury recommended Tuesday.

After only one day of deliberation, the 10-woman, two-man jury returned to Judge Francisco Briseno's Santa Ana courtroom and recommended 35-year-old Robert Jackson Thompson receive a death penalty sentence rather than a lifetime prison term. Formal sentencing is set for Nov. 21.

The decision marks the first time a penalty phase proceeding has been retried in Orange County. An earlier jury, which voted unanimously to convict Thompson of Brennenman's murder, deadlocked 9-3 on the death penalty question.

The jury's verdict Tuesday was greeted with a cry of relief and tears from Brennenman's mother, Kay, who testified at the protracted proceedings and attended court virtually every day. She tearfully hugged friends as well as Chief Deputy District Attorney James Enright, who handled the prosecution.

"I'm pleased. It was a right decision by the jury. I believe the case called for the death penalty," Brennenman said. "The people sent a message to other people not to touch children."

She added the verdict came two years and two months after the day her son disappeared while working on his newspaper route at an Anaheim apartment complex.

Thompson, his longish blond hair neatly combed, sat quietly as the jury announced the verdict. He removed his glasses briefly and turned to look over at his mother. Later, he asked to be taken from the courtroom as Brennenman congratulated the prosecutor.

Thompson's mother sat silently as the verdict was announced, closed her eyes for a short time, and then hurriedly left the courtroom before the jury was dismissed.

Jury members all refused comment on their decision. Several jurors left the 11th-floor courtroom with eyes that were noticeably reddened.

Judge Briseno, in accepting the jury's decision, said only, "It seems the verdict is proper."

Across the nation on just 15 gallons?

By STEVE MITCHELL
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Jerry Greer and Chuck Guy figure they can drive across the United States — 3,145 miles from Los Angeles to New York — on only 15 gallons of gas.

If you don't have your calculator handy, that's 209.66 miles per gallon.

They'll be taking turns riding a 246-pound motorcycle that is encased in a fiberglass shell resembling a squashed teardrop — or maybe a special effects prop from an old Flash Gordon serial.

Okay, so it's ugly, but boy, is it fuel efficient.

The fiberglass fairing, still in need of a paint job, encloses a 185 cc, single-cylinder, four-stroke engine, unaltered by Greer or Guy. What has been altered are the fenders and the seat. They're gone. The pair also dropped the front forks, installed a smaller 1.5 gallon gas tank, smaller wheels and changed the gearing for better mileage.

"We want to show that it doesn't take a great amount of money or engineering skill to improve fuel efficiency," said Greer, who operates Greer Sport Fairings out of a 5,500-square-foot factory in Costa Mesa.

That may not be an easy task. For one thing, the two middle-aged cycle enthusiasts will take turns squeezing into the incredibly cramped shell every couple of hours during the seven-day trip. Once inside, they'll lay nearly prone, their chests, beards and elbows resting on the padded gas tank.

For another, they'll have to maintain speeds of between 55 and 60 mph to get the most fuel efficiency from the renovated cycle, which, in its original condition gets only 81 miles per gallon.

"There's never been a vehicle of any kind that has run this distance and maintained anything like 209 miles per gallon," Greer said of the pair's cycle challenge that begins Nov. 2.

Costa Mesa's Tom Heyser donated two standard motorcycles for the economy run — one of which will be cannibalized for parts as needed on the trip. Rider Magazine is sponsoring the run, providing a mobile home to trail the bike and, of course, the 15 gallons of gasoline.

"We want this run to encourage the riding public to get interested in fuel economy contests rather than just speed competition," Greer said.

"Yeah," his 41-year-old partner said with a laugh. "That's because we're old and fat."

'Ransacked' home just well combed

A woman, who told Huntington Beach police that someone had broken into her Toulouse Drive home and ransacked the place, later told officers the mess in her house had been created by her daughter who was having trouble finding something to wear to school.

A briefcase, a set of golf club and a wallet were stolen from a car locked in a garage on Alpine Lane. The total loss was $1,000.

Police were called to a Pacific Coast Highway shop in the downtown area when a person reported seeing an individual who resembled drawings of one of the men who shot television anchorman Jerry Dunphy. Police, though, said the man pointed out to them was the keyboard player in a local band.

Fountain Valley

Burglars forced their way into a home in the 16000 block of Mt. Hutchins Street and stole jewelry, a TV set and an Atari computer worth $1,700.

Vandals caused $2,500 worth of damage when they pushed over and broke an eight-foot lawn fountain in the 8000 block of Hummingbird Avenue.

Someone stole a $130 boys' five-speed bicycle and its lock and chain from a bicycle rack at Fountain Valley High School.

Irvine

A man wearing nothing but a hood covering his face streaked twice through the 3000 block of Claremont Street in Irvine about 8 p.m. Tuesday night, observed by a girl seated in a parked car waiting for her boyfriend who was selling door to door.

Robert Brown, 18, was arrested on suspicion of theft Tuesday morning, after police found the bike he was riding had been stolen in the last week.

Jack Manciel, 24, was taken into custody for allegedly possessing marijuana and contributing to the delinquency of a minor in an arrest about 9:30 Tuesday night.

Newport Beach

A Newport Beach man reported the theft of tools from his car parked in the 1400 block of Superior Tuesday morning. The value of the loss was estimated to be $440, police said.

A Newport Beach man reported the theft of his 1977 Mercedes 450 SEL Monday. The value of the car was estimated to be $19,000, police said.

A retired Newport Beach marine colonel reported the theft of a car stereo and other items valued at $630 from his car parked near Superior and Placentia Tuesday morning.

A Newport Beach woman reported the theft of a 1966 VW beetle from the 600 block of Promontory Drive Tuesday. The value of the car was estimated to be $1,700, police said.

A Newport Beach businesswoman reported the theft of $80 in cash and a $40 music box from her Park Newport apartment Monday night.

Laguna Beach

A bicycle valued by its owner at $100 was stolen in the 1200 block of South Coast Highway, Laguna Beach police reported.

A man seen peering in a window of a house in the 200 block of Ruby Street pounded on a door before disappearing at about 10:30 p.m., police said.

A fire believed caused by clothes igniting in a dryer was quickly put out in the 300 block of Magnolia Drive.

Costa Mesa

A convenience store at the Harbor Chung Texaco station on 3001 Harbor Blvd., Costa Mesa, was robbed early today of $60 cash and $30 groceries. A man, described as a Negro, late 20s, 6-foot-1, 200 pounds, came into the store and put the groceries on the counter. A second man, wearing a Halloween mask and carrying a pocket knife, then entered and demanded the money and goods. The pair were last seen traveling northbound on Harbor in a black-topped car.

Two suspects arrested on burglary charges by the Tustin Police Department have been connected by investigators to 30 burglaries of storage garages in Costa Mesa over the last three months. Harry Wood, 30, of Santa Ana and William Deeter, 36, address unknown, admitted to breaking into the storage areas at 2950 Bear St.

The Sweet Cream Shoppe, at 1170 Baker St., was burglarized over the weekend and $1,901 in cash and merchandise was stolen. Among the items listed as missing: a microwave oven, candy, football cards, meat and 18 three-pound tubs of ice cream.

Sheriff's survey under fire

County manager labels Gates' quiz 'emotional and redundant'

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Orange County Sheriff Brad Gates has attempted to sway public opinion in his favor by circulating a survey to 5,000 county residents that raises questions about the levels of police services they are receiving, a top county official has charged.

County Administrative Officer Bob Thomas, in a letter to supervisors, characterized the sheriff's survey as being "leading, emotional and redundant."

In addition, Thomas questioned the technical validity of the survey and informed supervisors the sheriff may have violated board policy because neither the survey nor its methodology was cleared with the county's program planning division as required.

Gates, who aides said was in his office today, could not be reached for comment.

But according to the Thomas memorandum, the sheriff has asserted his right as an elected official to independently survey his constituents without first clearing it through the CAO's office.

The survey questions residents' attitudes toward certain recommendations made by a private consultant hired by the Board of Supervisors to review sheriff's department operations. The consultant's study was submitted to supervisors several months ago.

Thomas found four areas of concern with the 17-question survey:

• That it is biased because it is a mail-in questionnaire and "those who will respond will have some self-interest."

• That the cover letter signed by Gates "raises fear of change."

• That the wording of the survey is "leading, emotional and redundant."

• That most of the questions were asked in such a way that they don't really fit the survey's response format.

Thomas also said the questions in the survey are posed as if in a vacuum, failing to take into account the financial impact of certain actions. The responses, then, "will be of little or no value."

School slates sale

PLATINUM the enhancer

What is more precious than gold? Well, platinum for one thing. It is heavier, tougher and more valuable than gold. A cubic foot of platinum weighs about 21 times as much as a cubic foot of water. Platinum does not corrode or tarnish. It is impervious to the strongest acids. It is used in the best surgical instruments, in key parts of automotive catalytic converters, and . . . yes, in jewelry. Why is platinum not as popular as gold in jewelry use? Besides the cost, the only apparent drawback of platinum is that people simply are not accustomed to this beautiful metal. It is slightly whiter than silver, and a bit softer than gold. Fashion experts consider it the perfect setting for diamonds, because its soft patina and lack of color reflection make a perfect "neutral" companion which allows a diamond to stand out in all its natural beauty. The same qualities make it also ideal for setting of colored gems, such as emeralds or sapphires. Top world producers of platinum are, in order, Russia, South Africa and Canada.

The Great New Way To Bank

Great choice Great

Today you need more from your bank than ever before.

But not just more accounts to choose from. More and better accounts to choose from. Plus the responsive, personal service that makes the business of banking a pleasure.

And as California's largest savings bank, Great American Federal offers you a great choice of outstanding banking services. Along with the friendly, one-to-one attention our customers have enjoyed for nearly a century.

So here are just some of the reasons why Great American Federal is the great new way to bank.

Apply for one.
And get both.

Most banks and savings and loans offer you either a VISA® or a MasterCard®. Many have only one kind.

But Great American Federal offers you both, VISA and MasterCard. With one simple application. One combined monthly statement.

You can also get as many extra cards as you need for family, members or business associates for just a $15 annual fee.

But best of all, you'll never have to worry whether a store takes Visa or MasterCard. Because you'll have both.

And you don't even need to have an account at Great American Federal to get these credit cards. All you have to do is apply and qualify.

Money to go.

That's just our way of telling you how fast and simple it is to get an Installment Loan at Great American Federal.

Because unlike the stack of complicated forms you'd fill out at other banks, our easy-to-understand 1-page loan application takes just minutes to complete.

You can drop-off your application at any of 130 Great American Federal offices statewide. Or put it in the mail.

Approval usually takes just a couple of days.

So whether you want the loan for a new car, home improvements, college tuition or bill consolidation, you'll have the money when you need it.

You'll find our Installment Loan rates are very competitive. But we'll make those good rates even better for you with a 1/4% interest discount if you now have, or open, a Great American Federal checking account and elect to make automatic loan payments.

That's the Great American way to borrow. Money to go, at great rates. Easy to apply. Easy to repay. So why wait? Go for it!

Call The Financial Line today for information or a loan application: (800) 272-9000.

Choice in checking.

Instead of just one kind of checking account, Great American Federal offers you a choice of four great ones: Convenience Checking, Interest Checking, our Insured Moneymarket Checking, and Business Checking.

So you can choose the type of checking, or combination of accounts, that best fits your needs.

Convenience Checking has low minimum balance requirements.

Interest Checking gives you the ultimate in convenience and pays 5 1/4% interest.

Great American Insured Moneymarket Checking™ pays you high money market interest with easy access to your funds. You can open your account with $2,500 or more.

Business Checking is also available now at Great American Federal. So now you can enjoy the convenience of having your business or professional account at the same place you do all your other banking.

But whichever of these checking accounts you choose, you'll have 'round-the-clock access to your money at over 80 24-Hour Teller machines throughout the state.

Get a Moneybook, Free! Open a checking account today, and you'll receive the exclusive Great American Federal Moneybook. In it you'll find coupons for free "Scenic" or "Soaring" checks, discounts on loans, cash bonuses worth up to hundreds of dollars, coupons for free safe deposit box rental, free travelers cheques and money orders...plus other financial services, all free.

Shuttle repair adds day to launch delay

By the Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — A leaky joint in a rocket booster for the space shuttle Columbia was repaired Tuesday, lifting one more obstacle to the shuttle's already-delayed launch. The leak forced at least a one-day delay in rescheduling Columbia's mission, which is to take aloft the $800 million, European-designed Spacelab.

Slaying suspect critical

GILMER, Texas — A rambling note alluding to the "sacrifice" of a family was found in the car of a 37-year-old man who police say shot himself when approached by a trooper for questioning in the shooting deaths of his wife and three children. Gandabhi M. Patel remained in critical condition today at Marshall Memorial Hospital with a single gunshot wound in the abdomen. Autopsies were scheduled today in Longview on the bodies of Patel's wife, Bhikhibev, 35; the couple's two daughters, Jayben, 9, and Shila, 6; and their son, Jayesh, 2.

Man wanted back in jail

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. — A convicted child molester sentenced to five years for breaking probation was accidentally released from jail, then spent two days trying to convince officials to readmit him, his lawyer says. It finally took a call from the sentencing judge to officials at Prince George's County jail to get Alexander S. Fenwick, back behind bars. Jail officials said his sentencing record had been temporarily lost.

Sinatra criticized by U.N.

UNITED NATIONS — Frank Sinatra was singled out for special criticism today in the first United Nations listing of entertainers said to have performed in South Africa despite a U.N. cultural boycott of the white minority-ruled nation. The 5½-page register listed 211 individuals or groups from 23 countries as having acted, sung, danced, played or conducted in South Africa since Dec. 16, 1980, when the General Assembly adopted a resolution calling for "cultural, economic and other boycotts of South Africa" because of its apartheid system of racial segregation.

Rites held for Savitch

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — The death of NBC News anchorwoman Jessica Savitch meant the "loss of a very beautiful person," said a spokesman who delivered the eulogy at a private memorial service.

Tearful relatives and friends of Ms. Savitch, who began her career at a small radio station here, gathered in tiny Roth Memorial Chapel near the Atlantic Ocean for the service Tuesday.

Mt. Everest climb relived

PEKING — The leader of the first American team to conquer Mount Everest from the Tibetan side says death was only a step away during much of the climb. Dr. James Morrissey on Tuesday credited skill and teamwork for putting six members of the expedition atop the 29,028-foot peak, the world's highest.

500 protest in Philippines

MANILA, Philippines — Led by an 85-year-old activist, more than 500 people protesting U.S. military bases in the Philippines demonstrated peacefully today in front of the U.S. Embassy after the Supreme Court blocked city government efforts to ban the rally.

U.S., Soviet talks held

GENEVA, Switzerland — U.S. and Soviet negotiators discussed limiting medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe while separate delegations from the superpowers debated reductions of long-range ballistic missiles. The meeting Tuesday between U.S. negotiator Paul H. Nitze and his Soviet counterpart, Yuri A. Kvitsinsky, was the 104th plenary session of the intermediate-range nuclear force talks, which began in November 1981.

Gunmen fire at ambassador

ROME — Gunmen fired shots today at a car in which the Jordanian ambassador to Italy and his driver were riding, the Italian news agency ANSA reported. It was unknown immediately if there were casualties. The attack came a day after the Jordanian ambassador to India, Mohammed Ali Khourma, was shot by a lone assailant in New Delhi. Khourma was in stable condition today and improving rapidly from six gunshot wounds, an embassy official said.

Bush views Beirut

VP vows terrorists won't change U.S. policy

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Vice President George Bush, wearing a helmet and flak jacket, inspected the devastated Marine base where a bomb killed 219 American servicemen today and said "insidious terrorist cowards" will not change U.S. policy.

At dawn, before Bush's arrival, the Marines were fired upon with small arms, mortar and bazookas and fired back, said Maj. Robert Jordan, a Marine spokesman.

Bush, standing before the mountain of rubble where rescuers were still looking for bodies from Sunday's bombing, said: "We're not going to let down friends because of terror."

"We're not going to let a bunch of insidious terrorist cowards shake the foreign policy of the United States," he told reporters. "Foreign policy is not going to be dictated or changed by terror."

Bush later left Lebanon, but his destination was not known.

The latest Pentagon figures placed the death toll from the suicide terrorist bombing at the Marine post to 219 dead and about 70 wounded. The French command today put its casualties at 48 killed, 15 wounded and 10 missing.

Jordan, describing the shooting attack on the Marines today, said the Americans "fired two rounds from 81mm mortars" toward the eastern perimeter of the base at Beirut airport.

There were no reports of casualties, and the attackers were not identified.

A convoy of bulletproof cars took Bush from the Marine camp to a Ch-53 Sea Stallion helicopter.

Lebanon's state radio said Bush and his wife, Barbara, wore bulletproof flak jackets and steel helmets as they toured the ruins of the Marine compound.

Accompanying Bush on the tour were Marine Commandant Gen. Paul X. Kelley, who arrived at the base Tuesday, Reginald Bartholomew, the new U.S. Ambassador to Lebanon, and Col. Timothy Geraghty, commander of the 1,600 Marines here who are part of a four-nation peacekeeping force.

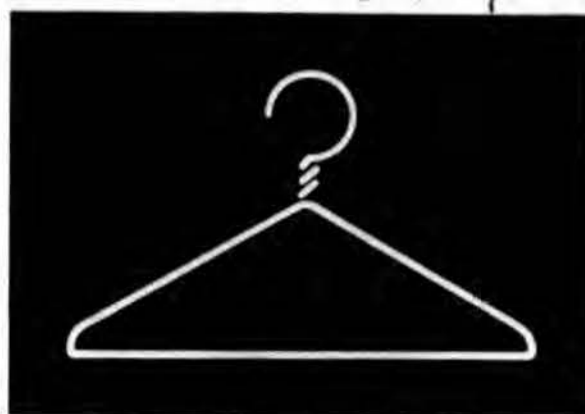

Kelley said Tuesday that security measures at the base were "very adequate" and that it would have been difficult to prevent the terrorist bombing.

Surrounded by a phalanx of Marines, Bush and his party boarded the helicopter. He flew to the Lebanese presidential palace for talks with President Amin Gemayel and Lebanese Army Commander Gen. Ibrahim Tannous, Jordan said.

De Lorean tape leak probed

LA supervisor calls for congressional, grand jury investigation

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The U.S. attorney's office has launched a criminal investigation into a news leak of FBI tapes showing automaker John De Lorean allegedly involved in a drug deal, but CBS-TV defends its use of the tapes.

"What was involved is possibly stolen government property. We are quite upset about what CBS has chosen to do with this material," acting U.S. Attorney Alexander Williams said Tuesday.

He said his office was "vigorously pursuing" an investigation into who leaked the tapes to Hustler magazine publisher Larry Flynt, who turned them over to CBS News.

Los Angeles County Supervisor Kenneth Hahn called Tuesday for congressional and federal grand jury investigations into the leaks, which he said looked suspiciously like "a setup for a mistrial."

"It was very strange and mysterious how FBI tapes could be sold," Hahn said. He asked if "justice could be perverted and bought off."

"Since this case involves people of great wealth, power and influence, the question must be asked if our national justice and law enforcement is being tampered with," Hahn said.

U.S. District Judge Robert Takasugi indefinitely postponed De Lorean's Nov. 1 cocaine-conspiracy trial Monday and said a decision by CBS to show the tapes could have a "devastating effect" on the trial.

Gene Mater, CBS senior vice president for news, said "We didn't obtain the tapes directly. Flynt had the tapes and they were real; and the story was newsworthy. How he got them was not a major issue."

The initial tape showed De Lorean's arrest — allegedly with cocaine present. The latest installment shows De Lorean prior to his arrest, discussing money and "monkeys," said to be a code word for kilos of narcotics, with FBI informant and codefendant William Morgan Hetrick.

Court backs landlords

Berkeley rent control law ruled unconstitutional

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Landlords have a right to a reasonable return on their investment, and they should not be victims of awkward rent control measures, a state Court of Appeal held in separate decisions affecting the cities of Berkeley and Cotati.

The court said Tuesday that Berkeley's rent control law was unconstitutional because it contained an "inexcusably cumbersome rent adjustment procedure."

The court also said the procedure was "not reasonably related to the ordinance's stated purpose of preventing unwarranted rent increases and therefore deprives landlords of due process of law."

The law forced landlords to file individual petitions to have their views considered in the setting of rent ceilings, the court said.

But the court upheld Cotati's rent control law, which requires that landlords get a reasonable return on their investment.

The Cotati law is reasonably related to a valid governmental purpose of rent control, the court said in reversing a Sonoma County Superior Court decision.

Anderson may seek 'Unity' nomination

By the Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Former U.S. Rep. John Anderson, who ran for president in 1980 as an independent, said he would run again if he could be sure a new party he is trying to found would be listed on ballots. Anderson, who as a Republican represented an Illinois congressional district for 20 years, was in California Tuesday to discuss chances for placing a new "National Unity Party" on the ballot.

Arson fire in El Cajon

EL CAJON — An arson fire scorched 100 acres of brush and singed two roofs and a porch on "some very expensive homes" before it was fully contained by firefighters. The blaze broke out at 4 p.m. Tuesday in hills above the Singing Hills Country Club.

Reward offered for gunmen

LOS ANGELES — A TV station offered $25,000 for information on the assailants who wounded anchorman Jerry Dunphy and his female passenger in what police theorized was the latest in a series of random "drive-by" attacks by gangs. Four gunmen opened fire on Dunphy and KABC makeup artist Sandra Marshall as they drove near KABC's studios Monday night. Dunphy was hit in the neck and left arm, a bullet lodging in his neck, but he is in stable condition today. Marshall was shot in the right arm and was also in stable condition at the hospital.

Student named Rose Queen

PASADENA — A 17-year-old high school senior studying for a career in business administration has been selected queen of the 95th Tournament of Roses and parade, officials announced Tuesday. Ann Marie Colborn, a student at Mayfield High School in Pasadena, was chosen from 977 initial candidates.

2 boys, stepdad shot to death

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two young boys and their stepfather were shot to death in the living room of an apartment in the suburban Panorama City section of Los Angeles, police said Tuesday.

All were shot in the head and pronounced dead at the scene by city paramedics, police homicide investigator Andy Monsue said.

The boys' mother, Gilda Reed, discovered the bodies when she returned home from work about 11:30 p.m. Monday, police spokesman Rod Bernson said.

The victims were sprawled on the blood-spattered floor of the apartment's living room, Bernson said.

The dead were identified as the woman's husband, Charles Reed, 33, and her sons, Issac Berkly Miller, 11, and Jonta Miller, 5.

Mrs. Reed was identified only as a secretary in her 30s.

Bernson said no motive for the killings had been established, but he said there were no signs of forced entry, theft or a struggle in the apartment in the 9400 block of Van Nuys Boulevard.

Drilling ban good but it's not enough

When proposals arise for making use of Orange County's coastline, the usual adversaries are those who want to preserve its natural state versus those who would develop and improve it in the legitimate pursuit of making a dollar.

We know from recording continuing battles over areas such as Bolsa Chica, the Irvine Coast and South Laguna that these battles can turn bitter and often end up in court. It is indeed rare when those representing the two sides find themselves united on an issue.

But that's what has occurred when it comes to lobbying Congress to stop oil drilling near the coast from Newport Beach to the Mexican border. Members of both sides want it stopped because they are aware that oil rigs near our coast are not worth the negative — perhaps even disastrous — consequences they would produce.

Today's demand for petroleum doesn't merit the need to spoil a coastline, if only by corrupting a magnificent view or, worse, by spilling a black flood of crude oil to smother our beaches and our tourist industry with it.

When a matter carries such a clear danger to a local population that people harboring opposing points of view on most coastal matters suddenly find themselves united to fight off-shore oil drilling, they must be heard. Credit Sen. Pete Wilson, R-San Diego, for pushing in the Senate for a long-term ban on drilling within a 20-mile buffer zone. His ban wouldn't stop all drilling, we note, but it would protect part of this coastline and its commerce.

Wilson last week won a one-year moratorium from drilling, but Congress, prompted by strong push from oil companies, was reluctant to pass a permanent ban. The moratorium is included in a $7.9 billion Interior Department appropriations bill President Reagan is expected to sign.

One of the concessions Wilson was granted was a hearing next spring to focus on his proposal for a 10-year ban. That hearing would give Wilson a chance to show how, as he says, the concerns of traditional coastal rivals are not always mutually exclusive.

It's easy to give lip service to the need for developing domestic energy supplies, but few areas are less appropriate — aesthetically as well as economically — for the intrusion of drilling rigs than the off-shore region in sight from our homes, our hotels and restaurants, our hillside and our beaches.

"We think the area ought to be the bottom of the barrel when it comes to selecting drilling sites," explained Wilson's press secretary Otto Bos.

We strongly agree and urge Wilson to keep pushing for a more satisfactory length of time for the ban.

OCC fund drive starts Nov. 17

To the Editor:

To respond to the suggestion in the Daily Pilot Letters to the Editor that community colleges should establish appropriate foundations for tax-deductible gifts, we at Orange Coast College agree wholeheartedly.

The community which is served by Orange Coast College should know that we have been at it since 1955. The foundation in support of Orange Coast College was established for the purpose of pursuing and accepting annual and deferred gifts, which will be used to support the large number of academic programs on this campus.

In late 1982, a professional fund-raising firm was hired by the Associated Students to develop a comprehensive fund development program specifically designed for Orange Coast College. The endowment fund was then launched with a five-year, $15 million goal. Plans for such a goal and the realization of it cannot be achieved in a vacuum or without the help of experts. The Orange Coast College Endowment Council was then organized, and highly qualified estate planning professionals in the areas of law, accounting, investing and insurance were recruited. This volunteer group meets regularly to establish gift acceptance policies, to generate donor prospects and to meet with potential donors, to name but a few of their self-imposed responsibilities.

Legitimate fund raising efforts which will help offset educational costs require hard work and take time to generate funds. We are attempting to raise funds and are doing so with great enthusiasm; we believe that we have our community's support and encouragement.

An extensive fund-raising campaign for Orange Coast College will be under way on Nov. 17 with the meeting of the College Endowment Council.

Q. What town was named after a novel?

A. You mean "St. Elmo"? Not just one but numerous towns were named in honor of that piece of fiction — towns in Alabama, Tennessee, Georgia, California, Colorado, Illinois, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, New York, Texas and Virginia. The novel "St. Elmo" was written after the Civil War by Augusta Jane Evans, who had great faith in her opinions.

Q. What's the difference between "naked" and "nude"?
A. Naked implies unprotected. Nude means unclothed.

Iran's signature on bomb attack

WASHINGTON — The Ayatollah Khomeini's fingerprints are all over the suicide attack on U.S. Marine headquarters that literally decimated the American peace-keeping force early Sunday morning.

No one can yet say for sure, of course. There's a possibility that the massacre of Marines was pulled off by a terrorist group that deliberately used Iranian tactics to throw suspicion on the fanatical old mullah.

But there is circumstantial evidence that backs up Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger's remark that Iranian terrorists may have been responsible for the outrage. And it's more than just the call to a French news agency that claimed that the twin attacks — against U.S. Marines and the French peace-keeping force — were the work of "the Iranian revolution's campaign against imperialist targets throughout the world."

For one thing, the attacks had all the earmarks of the bombing of the American Embassy last April: A kamikaze mission by a fanatic driving a truckload of explosives.

JACK ANDERSON

The National Security Agency and the CIA both had advance indications that a pro-Iranian Shiite Moslem group was planning to attack the embassy. The intelligence reports also warned that preparations for the embassy attack were supervised by a high official in the Iranian Foreign Ministry — presumably with Khomeini's approval.

An organization calling itself the Islamic Revolutionary Movement — previously unknown — has claimed "credit" for Sunday's bombings. But my intelligence sources say this group could well be part of a known pro-Iranian organization called the Islamic Jihad.

The Islamic Jihad is a prime suspect in the explosion that killed 17 Americans in the Beirut embassy last April. And its prior record of violence has been closely followed by U.S. intelligence agencies.

The Jihad claimed credit for a car-bomb explosion that killed 12 persons in the French Embassy in Beirut 18 months ago. It also took responsibility for grenade and machine-gun attacks on American and Italian peace-keeping troops in Beirut last March.

The Jihad is an offshoot of Amal, a Shiite paramilitary organization that has tried to export Khomeini's extremist revolution to other parts of the Middle East.

Specifically, the CIA holds Khomeini responsible for an aborted attempt to set up a revolutionary state in Turkey through the Iranian consulate in Istanbul; a planned coup in the Persian Gulf state of Bahrain; a meeting in Cyprus of Saudi Arabian opposition leaders to plot infiltration of the military and eventual rebellion by the large Shiite minority in Saudi Arabia; and the financing of secret trips to Iran by Moslem students who are given revolutionary training by Khomeini's experts.

What is probably most persuasive, though, is the fact that Khomeini has hundreds of Tehran-trained terrorists scattered throughout the Moslem world — from Lebanon to Indonesia. In Lebanon, Khomeini's terrorists are holed up in the northern mountains around Baalbek.

The Iranian terrorists could not, of course, have engineered the Beirut airport attack without the cooperation of the Syrians, who may have given them munitions and certainly let them sneak in Beirut's back door to do their dirty work. Syria is hoping to drive the international peace-keeping forces out of Lebanon and take control of the country once they have left.

Some CIA analysts suspect that Moscow may be behind the Beirut carnage — to keep the United States from sending Marines into the Caribbean island of Grenada to overthrow the hard-line communist regime that just took over in a bloody coup. A U.S. Navy task force was sent to the Grenada area with enough Marines to do the job. So in this view, Yuri Andropov tried to checkmate President Reagan by making a decisive move on the other side of the global chessboard.

Cranston's campaign survives

By THOMAS D. ELIAS

He's still a definite underdog, but the last few weeks have shown that not even the Soviet Union can easily knock California Sen. Alan Cranston out of the race for next year's Democratic presidential nomination.

If anything could have meant an early death for the campaign of a "peace candidate" like Cranston, Russian stonewalling after the Sept. 1 Korean airliner incident should have been it.

The aftermath of that episode showed the Soviets at their worst, lying and covering up for days. It was fraught with potential harm to a candidate who has vowed that his first act in the White House would be a phone call to discuss arms control with Yuri Andropov.

But the record of the last three weeks demonstrates that no matter how naive Cranston may sound, his candidacy did not sink into the Sea of Japan along with the airliner's wreckage.

Instead, Cranston ran strongly in the Maine caucuses and his just-released financial statement shows that when he gets his matching funds from the Federal Elections Commission on Jan. 1, he'll be well enough set to compete in the early going both in Iowa and New Hampshire.

Why did the Soviet behavior not kill the Cranston candidacy? Perhaps it was for the same reasons that President Reagan's restraint won so many plaudits for him.

"I'm convinced that the airplane incident substantiated the case for making an all-out effort to reduce the danger of nuclear war," Cranston said over breakfast recently. "It complicates my candidacy briefly, but I don't think it will be negative for me in the long haul. It simply demonstrates the grave dangers in the world today. It is symptomatic of the danger we all face when we're constantly targeting each other."

But when the public starts taking a real interest in next year's election and Cranston's message is communicated to masses of Americans, how appealing can it be?

That message: "I would sign an arms control agreement as soon as possible, but of course I would not trust Andropov. We would have to have the capacity to check on compliance, so that if they cheated, there would not be irreparable damage to us. That's why we have contracts."

But contracts with the Soviets are often abrogated and they're not enforceable in U.S. courts.

"I'm afraid he's going to come across as extremely well-intentioned, but naive," said one veteran Democratic campaign official. "His message just doesn't sound tough enough."

But Cranston shows no signs of changing his tune, toughening his rhetoric.

And the record shows it hasn't hurt him yet.

"I've traveled to a lot of states since the airplane incident," Cranston said. "And I think the people want us to talk seriously with the Russians. Sure, we don't trust them, and any agreement must be verifiable, but we must talk."

So far, that message has obviously appealed to a lot of Democrats. But can it sway enough Democrats to win the nomination? Or enough Americans to elect Cranston president?

Ronald Reagan, Walter Mondale and John Glenn all obviously believe the answer to both questions is a resounding "no."

A revolt against men's stupidity

I suspect that the fuel that has fanned the flames of feminism in America has been less the social and economic inequities suffered by woman, real and prevalent as they have been, than the simple, pervasive and infuriating fact that the bulk of men are insufferably clumsy in their confrontations with the other sex.

It is an easy assumption made by most men that, while they may not understand women, women do not understand them either — and thus that there is a mutually unexplored terrain that separates the sexes.

I do not believe this. If we have learned anything from the new field of social psychology, it is that minority groups of any kind have a greater awareness of their strengths and weaknesses of their masters than their masters have of them. Dominance makes a ruling group stupid.

It does not matter where you look. Servants have a shrewder perception about their employers than vice versa; blacks have been forced to grasp the inner dynamics of whites, purely as a matter of survival, more than whites have ever bothered to do the same; and homosexuals, I have no doubt, see more clearly into the ambiguities of the straight world than they are perceived by it.

Women, being also a minority group — socially if not numerically — have had to develop a "survival sense" about their male masters. I don't believe in something called woman's intuition (as George Jean Nathan said long ago, "Woman's famous intuition is only man's transparency"), but she does possess an insight into men's motives and moods that he utterly fails to reciprocate, being content to label her an enigma.

Because of this disparity in perception, men drive women up the wall with a repertoire of behavior and responses that corresponds only to what men imagine women are like and not what they really are. The male has set up an image of the female (much as the antebellum southern white did of the "darky"), and women by now are simply refusing to live up, or live down, to this uncomfortable distortion of reality.

What the whole spate of recent feminist books has been saying is that women will no longer put up with the traditional masculine attitudes — which are, to name but a few of the most prominent, condescending, patronizing, whimsical, heavily jocular, stereotypical, sexually demeaning and grossly insensitive to real generic similarities.

It is less, I believe, an economic and social revolt than an erupting psychological one. Just as the black will no longer tolerate being called "Boy," the woman will no longer tolerate being dismissed as "Girl." It is her personhood she is proclaiming, not her independence.

"No, sir. I'm not the secretary. I'm the boss. Are you the secretary?"

Adopted woman

She discovers her natural mother

By KAY BARTLETT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Katrina Maxtone-Graham promised herself she wouldn't write a book. It would be too painful. Then she decided it would be too painful not to write it.

Katrina was an adoptee, one of a growing number who have set out to search for their natural parents. But Katrina's case had a special wrinkle: She was 3½ years old by the time she was adopted and she remembered things from the life before her adoption, shadow memories though they were.

She remembered, for instance, a very matronly woman who had held her and cradled her. She somehow knew it was not her natural mother nor was it the woman who eventually became her adoptive mother. But who was she? She remembered an older boy, a brother she thought at the time, who lived in the same house. Who and where was he? She remembered a field where she played, a piano and, hauntingly, someone who would simply not listen to her, believe her, when she was telling the truth.

The riddle of these ghosts was as strong as the drive to find the woman who bore her, she says.

"The social workers thought I would just dry up and go away once I found my natural mother," says Maxtone-Graham. "But it was really the big three I wanted — my natural mother, that other woman and the brother. I always felt that other woman had been the psychological role model for me as a mother. I knew it when I had my four children."

Her book, eight years in the writing, is called "An Adopted Woman." It chronicles her difficult but successful search for her roots — all of them. Maxtone-Graham, now divorced, relates her metamorphosis from the timid 38-year-old who hesitantly approached the adoption agency to the later activist who was not one bit shy about going to court in an attempt to get her records. She writes of herself as the woman on the very precipice of a crackup changing into a woman assured enough to ring doorbells in strange neighborhoods looking for hints, a woman who sat for hours in public libraries poring over old telephone books, a woman who called up total strangers on a whim they may hold a clue.

Maxtone-Graham's reunion with her natural mother came first and it was joyous. Her mother's first words, when Katrina identified herself on the telephone, were: "I hope this is what I think it is. I hope my little girl has found me."

Her mother then filled in some of the pieces. She was a teen-ager herself, unmarried, when Katrina was born. Her mother desperately wanted to keep her. So she refused to sign the adoption papers. Instead, every Saturday she was permitted to go and visit her daughter at the foster home. Then, for whatever reasons, the foster homes started changing. And Katrina's mother realized she couldn't do that to her little girl. She tearfully signed the papers relinquishing all her rights.

Maxtone-Graham then was able to find the woman she knew had loved her, a woman she calls Mama Hill in the book. Mama Hill was nervous at first meeting but when she learned Katrina had been adopted and grown up with one family, had been well educated and was all right, she warmed up. She began telling Katrina about herself as a child, little things like she liked meat better than candy. She then got out photographs and asked if Katrina would like some. Finally, she went and got her wallet and pulled out the picture of Katrina as a little girl. Mama Hill had carried it in her wallet for over 40 years.

She found the man who she thought of as her brother, she found the woman who didn't believe her, she found half-brothers, half-sisters, uncles and cousins. Her natural father was dead, but she learned a lot about him.

Now 48, Katrina characterizes her search as a search for her survival, despite the pain it would cause her to re-create it all on paper in longhand.

"I cried every time I sat down to write for the first two years, but I knew I had to keep going. It was in one sense a tribute to the people who helped me, the secretaries who were friendly on the telephone, the neighbors near the houses where I had lived, the strangers who wished me good luck."

When Maxtone-Graham finally finished her book, two major publishers were ready to bring it out. But they wanted to end the book at the dramatic point where Katrina is reunited with her natural mother.

"My feelings about the rest of the search were just as intense. I couldn't let them do that."

By then, that shy little orphan who crept to her first appointment with the adoption agency was no more. There was instead a strong woman who knew what she wanted and how to get it.

Katrina published the book herself.

A busy 'babyline'

Golden Cradle is an adoption agency with a difference — it advertises and deals primarily with pregnant women who don't want their children.

By MICHAEL RODDY
Associated Press Writer

Arty Elgart has put salesmanship at the service of infant adoptions. The result is a busy "babyline" in the office of his multimillion-dollar auto accessories business.

"This is what you call progress," the 40-year-old Elgart says, answering calls that divide his attention between business and the network of pregnant women and childless couples who phone the Golden Cradle adoption agency housed in his 60,000-square foot warehouse.

"This is what you call bringing things into this century," Elgart advertises. He spreads his message on billboards. He goes on national television programs, like ABC's "Good Morning America" and CBS's "60 Minutes."

What he says, essentially, is that pregnant women who don't want to keep their children should consider adoption, and he will make it as painless as possible.

"Just because she doesn't have a ring on her finger doesn't make her any less of a person," Elgart says.

It may not jibe with the image people have of adoption agencies as formal, stiff institutions, but Elgart contends that his approach works.

He placed 100 children in 1982, his second year of operation, while more established agencies in the city placed only a third that many, he says.

So far this year he's placed 50, and he expects to top the 1982 level.

He's coming up with white infant children at a time when waiting lists for such adoptions at other agencies are years long. He says he tapped into a lot of black parents ready and willing to adopt any black infants he can come up with.

A one-time high school teacher with no degree in social work, Elgart admits his emphasis on advertising is unorthodox. But he thinks his success speaks for itself.

"We're unique," he says. "We're a model agency."

Elgart is about to step down as the agency's fulltime director, turning over much of his work to a professional social worker. He'll remain involved with publicity.

In the meantime, the phone in his office continues to ring off the hook.

One caller has a proposal from a caller that doesn't sit well with Elgart.

"We're a licensed agency. We can't play games," he says sternly into the phone.

A few minutes later he tries to reassure another caller who is inquiring about the intricacies of adoption.

"I believe anything you say, hon," he says.

Elgart says he started the agency after he and his wife suffered five years of humiliation and embarrassment trying to adopt a child.

"There's just no end. You feel there's no child in your future," he says.

They eventually adopted a son and his wife shortly afterward conceived and bore their daughter. But the adoption experience stuck in his craw.

"I stop and help people on the highway, so why shouldn't I help someone in a situation where they can't have children?" he says.

Elgart started with a blind newspaper ad that said a couple was interested in adopting a child and asking women to call.

The classified ad blossomed into a campaign that includes billboards, bus advertising and newspaper display ads.

He rattled off the list: "We spend $8,000 a month advertising. We're in 22 telephone books, 16 newspapers, six billboards, 11 sidewalk benches, 20 buses on the outside, 20 buses on the inside."

In addition, he takes his message to local and national news programs, which have done much to boost his business.

"That's 50 percent of it," he says of the publicity. "The other 50 percent is the person who answers the phone. They have to befriend that birthmother in the first 10 or 15 seconds or it's downhill. You need somebody who speaks to her, that gal on the line, at her level."

Elgart likes to have pregnant women talk with other women who are planning to give up their children for adoption through Golden Cradle. He arranges for the women to stay for months at a time with families in the Philadelphia area before the birth. His fee? Elgart tells audiences that all he wants for getting a child is for them to support his organization, pay the hospitalization and other expenses, and give him a photograph of the baby — suitable to add to his collection.

"I don't think it's asking too much," he tells his listeners. "And get it framed, please. Splurge."

The approach has brought a sometimes grudging respect from other agencies and specialists in the field.

"What Arty's doing in terms of adoptions is new," says William Pierce, president of the National Committee for Adoption in Washington.

"He has applied marketing techniques from the commercial side of the world to social service agencies. If agencies can just be in touch with the times, and realize they are competing in a noisy media world, they can do it."

"The adoption community was horrified that this guy could come in and do something they were doing," says Carolyn Johnson, executive director of the Adoption Center of Delaware Valley in Philadelphia, an agency specializing in placing older children. "He's not a professional but he's put something into it — warmth and personal attention."

When Golden Cradle started, it was not licensed by the state. It is legal to operate an unlicensed adoption agency in Pennsylvania, but that did not win Elgart any friends in the adoption community.

"There are a lot of well-meaning people out there, but doggone it, there are a lot of mistakes made when they do not meet the basic protections set up by the state," Pierce says.

Elgart says he now agrees with the critics of private adoption and endorses state licensing. After operating privately for two years, Golden Cradle got a provisional license in January.

Whether Golden Cradle is licensed or unlicensed, however, appears to make little difference to the hundreds of people who have heard of the service.

"I'm a very skeptical person, but I not only think it's legitimate, but also Elgart is dedicated to what he's doing," says Larry Fairstone, 31, of suburban Wynnewood.

Fairstone, who says he and his wife Linda had been trying unsuccessfully for five years to have a child, says he was impressed that Elgart could often promise — and deliver — a child within a year while charging slightly under $8,000, much of that for hospitalization.

"There's no financial gain in it for him at all," Fairstone says. "He does it for love. He's not in it for the money."

Stardust Ball attracts 400 guests

Harriet Nelson honored during the evening

By VIDA DEAN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The Home Savings of America Band played "Stardust" and the 400 guests filled into the Newporter Resort ballroom to continue festivities of the Stardust Ball.

The group had been in the patio area for the social hour checking out the silent auction items and jotting down their bids.

Mingling with the partygoers were Harriet Nelson (honoree of the evening), her son David and his wife, Yvonne, and Don Nelson, brother of Ozzie (who died of cancer in 1975). Rick Nelson arrived later at the party and was on the stage with mother and brother during the program.

As we arrived someone whispered, "Everybody that is anybody, is here tonight — and what a good looking bunch." The ball gowns were outstanding with sequinned numbers winning hands down.

Those attending the ball in support of the OC Unit of the American Cancer Society included Virginia and Paul Bender, Shirlee and Bob Guggenheim, Beverly and Horace Coll, Mr. and Mrs. J. Robert Fluor II, Belle and Stan Bestor, Ardite and Burton Reis (she was chairman), the Robert Tellers, Rath and Lock Gee Ding, Mary Ann and Lon Wells, Marnie Fluor Reed, Jim and Mary Roosevelt and JoAnne and Gene Mix.

Others at the ball (which will result in about $85,000 proceeds) were Supervisor Tom and Emma Jane Riley, the Jack di Krulfs, Barbara and Kent Freundt, Barbara and Ben Harris, Donna and George Hill, Toni and Ken Oliphant, the Raymond Osbrink, Suzy and Herb Sutton, Nancy Zinsmeyer Otting, Jack Schoenborn, Frank Terreri and Bud Warrington (he presented a $20,000 check to ACS, results from the recent Grand Prix. He also pledged to raise $1 million for the group in the next 10 years).

Guests dined on ragout of lobster and wild mushrooms, sauteed veal rib eye and finished the meal with white chocolate mousse in a chocolate cup. Centering the black satin covered tables were floral arrangements in star-shaped containers on mirrors to reflect the votive candles. (Chris Lindsay did decorations.)

Stars were also hanging from the ceiling over Mary Healy and Peter Lind Hayes as they entertained (Mary sang "Stardust" to Harriet with good-humored heckling from Hayes). The entertainers flew out from New York special to do the show — left the Newporter the following day for Las Vegas.

Dick Nathanson, auctioneer, kept the live auction lively, but the bidders (they had star shaped bid cards) had begun to thin shortly before midnight and no one purchased the Stutz Blackhawk donated by the Tellers. It's still available.

Ileana Doolin and Shirlee Guggenheim check out auction items.

Brides

Ochoa-Goodfield

Frances Goodfield of Newport Beach and John Ochoa Jr. of Pasadena exchanged wedding vows on Oct. 8 in Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church in Montecito.

Frances Ochoa
After a wedding trip to Tahiti, the couple will live in Pasadena.

Mrs. Carl Troyano of Newport Beach and Llewellyn Goodfield of Carpinteria are the parents of the bride, who graduated from Newport Harbor High School and attended Santa Barbara City College.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ochoa of Covina. A graduate of Royal Oaks High School and The University of Southern California, he is employed by Xerox.

Lindholm-Regnier

Trudy Regnier of Costa Mesa was joined in marriage with Harlan Maxon Lindholm of Diamond Bar in a Sept. 24 ceremony in Waverly Church.

Trudy Lindholm
Juan Capistrano.
The couple are residing in Diamond Bar after a week's wedding trip to Jamaica.

The bride, daughter of Marion Hixon of Costa Mesa and Carl Regnier of Tucson, graduated from Estancia High School and attended Orange Coast College. She is employed by the Fluor Corporation in Irvine.

The bridegroom, son of John and Elvira Lindholm of Anaheim Hills graduated from Norwalk High School and Cal State Fullerton. He is an employee of For Better Living Inc. in San

Shedd-Jones

The gazebo in Laguna Beach's Heisler Park was the setting for the Oct. 22 wedding of Bobbi Lynn Jones of Costa Mesa and Rick Shedd of Garden Grove.

The bride, daughter of Robert and Mary Lu Jones of Costa Mesa, wore a Laura Ashley style white cotton muslin gown with a ruffled off-the-shoulder neckline and a flounce at the hem. She was attended by Sheryl Middleton, maid of honor, Penny Jarris, Susan Mihaylo and Nancy Hauser.

The bridegroom is the son of Bettye Roest of Escondido and Todd Shedd of Garden Grove. Caleb Howard was his best man.

A luncheon reception, attended by 60 guests, immediately followed the ceremony at the Villa Sweden in Corona del Mar.

The couple plan to make their home in Huntington Beach. Shedd is employed by Rock and Water Scape Systems.

Medication: Know facts about the drug before taking it

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Since more people read your column than the news sections, I hope you will print this vital information — especially for older folks.

A lawyer, Paul G. Rogers, who was for many years a congressman from Florida, has started a "Get the Answers" campaign within the National Council on Patient Information and Education. The purpose is to stimulate dialogue between physicians and patients about drugs being recommended.

Even though complete instructions and much information accompany almost every drug sold in pharmacies, a great many people do not read them. This results in the waste of many billions of dollars annually because patients do not use their medication properly.

Rogers says, "Every patient should ask his or her doctor, pharmacist or nurse five questions about any drug that is prescribed." These are:

1. What is the name of the drug and what is it supposed to do?
2. How and when do I take it — and for how long?
3. What food, drinks, other medicines or activities should I avoid while taking this drug?
4. Are there any side effects, and what should I do if they occur?
5. Is there any written information available about the drug?

Thanks for calling this to the attention of millions. — HOLYOKE, MASS.

DEAR HOLYOKE: Thanks for spreading the word. It's no surprise to me that the idea originated with Paul Rogers. He did a splendid job as chairman of the Subcommittee on Labor, Health and Human Services and Education Appropriations. And while I'm passing out roses, the present chairman, Bill Natcher of Kentucky, can step right up and get his. He's extremely competent and a real Southern gentleman.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I have three children between us. My son has never made any demands on us, but the other two are something else.

His daughter (alcoholic) calls collect and talks for an hour. Her only son was taken away by the courts. We paid the $1,000 fine when she drove through the plate-glass window of a storefront. We also paid to replace the glass.

The worst problem is my husband's son, who recently left his wife and two small children. He has decided after seven years that he is not the type who should be married. They live 100 miles from here. When it is his turn to take the children for the weekend, he dumps them on us (me) and goes to play golf and visit with friends. Sometimes he comes without calling and we have to cancel our plans at the last minute. My husband is a peach, but he puts his son ahead of me, and I resent it.

You keep saying in your column that no one can take advantage of another person unless it is permitted. Please tell me how I can help myself. — PUSHED AROUND IN BALTIMORE

DEAR PUSHED: People who enter a second marriage should take a close look at the children of the spouse. When you picked the peach, you also got a couple of lemons.

You can refuse to cancel your plans to accommodate your stepson. Let your husband stay home with the kids. And if the children are too much work, hire some help and let your husband pay for it.

There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet, "Teen-Age Sex — Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Holiday heart: Alcohol to blame

DEAR DR. STEINCROHN: I look forward to holidays and yet I don't. There isn't a Thanksgiving, Christmas, Labor Day or Fourth of July weekend that I don't get into trouble.

I'm not an alcoholic, but I go overboard on holidays. There's something in me that says, "Celebrate!" and I drink too much. I overeat, too. But it's mainly the drinking. It's like eating too much chocolate candy or cake when you have a sweet tooth. Then when it's over, I'm back to my regular diet and not more than one highball a day.

Although I'm celebrating on holidays, I never feel good. My heart keeps running away with itself. At times I think I'm having a heart attack. I suppose it's the alcohol, isn't it? Mr. C.

DEAR MR. C.: Looking for a scapegoat? Pin it on alcohol. Too much of it isn't good for anything, including the heart. In some instances, overdrinking can actually cause death. In others, it can weaken the heart muscle long after the holiday is over. A recent study of the effect of alcohol on the heart is interesting.

It is called the "Holiday Heart" syndrome and was reported in the Journal of The American College of Cardiology by Drs. T.R. Engel and J.C. Luck of the Medical College of Philadelphia. This will explain why your heart "runs away with itself," Mr. C.

They found that even in the absence of heart disease, excessive consumption of alcohol produced either atrial fibrillation or flutter. Your description: "Heart runs away with itself" is close to explaining the thumping of the pounding pulse in the neck and chest, and the feeling you may be having a heart attack.

Fortunately, the symptoms disappear after drinking is discontinued. Moderation in the future, Mr. C., is the answer to more enjoyable holidays.

DEAR DR. STEINCROHN: My doctor tells me that my loss of hearing is due to trouble in my middle ear. Will you explain "middle ear?" Mr. B.

DEAR MR. B.: Prepare for an anatomy lesson. The ear is divided into three regions: External ear, middle ear and the inner ear. The external ear consists of what you can see on the outside and the auditory canal leading to the middle ear. At the inner end of the auditory canal is the tympanic membrane (ear drum) which is the boundary line between external and middle ear.

In the middle ear are the ossicles: the malleus, incus, and stapes, which allow conduction of sound vibration to the inner ear. The latter is encased in a bony capsule which consists of the vestibule, three semicircular canals (for balance) and the cochlea (for hearing). The cochlea converts the sound-pressure energy to electrical stimuli that are transmitted to the brain.

Your middle ear trouble, Mr. B., can often be helped by an operation on the ossicles which no longer normally conducts the sound vibrations to the inner ear.

YOUR HEALTH

DR. PETER J. STEINCROHN

FOR MRS. Y.: Using moisturizers does little to prevent wrinkles. These are caused by redundant, non-elastic skin. Staying out of the sun helps. Wrinkled skin can be treated by the plastic surgeon using medications applied locally, de-mabrasion, surgery, or use of injectable collagen implants and medical-grade silicone.

Dr. Steincrohn welcomes reader mail, but is sorry he cannot answer personally. Letters of widest interest will be answered in his column. Send your questions to him, in care of the Daily Pilot, P. O. Box 1560, Costa Mesa, CA 92626.

SET UP YOUR TRICKS WHILE THE GOING'S GOOD

Bridge is often a race between declarer and the defenders to see who can get their tricks first. You must take advantage of every opportunity you are offered.

South might have done better to pass three diamonds, since he had a near minimum opening bid and there was no good fit available. At a diamond contract North would almost surely have come to nine tricks. South made a fine effort to score his no trump game, but East's careful defense proved decisive.

West led the jack of clubs and declarer did not make the error of covering with dummy's queen. He won the ace and ran the nine of diamonds to East's ten.

East could see that the defenders would have to get their tricks quickly. The diamond suit was going to be established and if the defenders did not get what was due them, declarer would have his nine tricks. It did not seem to East that he could expect much help from his partner, so the major suits were not going to be a source of tricks for the defense. Clubs was the only hope.

The ten of clubs in partner's hand was all that East needed - and the opening lead pretty well marked West for that card. A low club to the ten forced the queen, and declarer had no counter. He could not come to nine tricks without letting the defenders regain the lead in diamonds. But once he did that, they could cash two club tricks and the ace of spades to go with their two diamond tricks - down one.

American Motors Corp.'s sales were up an estimated 41.2 percent.

Ford reported 55,658 autos shipped from Oct. 11-20 compared with 40,922 last year.

AMC estimated 4,800 autos sold, compared with 3,400 a year earlier.

Last year's mid-October domestic car sales were the lowest in 24 years, based on daily sales.

In a statement, AMC said more customers were in its showrooms because of the recent debut of the Renault Encore, a hatchback derivative of the popular Renault Alliance. Ford did not comment immediately.

So far this year, Ford's sales are up 15.5 percent, from 1,070,549 to 1,236,628.

Alliance sales have helped boost AMC's tally 91.2 percent above year-ago levels, or 151,515 compared with 79,253.

Halloween

Fast, fabulous foods real trick for treat

Conjure up a Halloween party menu that looks and tastes fabulous, yet goes together in the wink of a black cat's eye.

Today's busy lifestyles need not preclude a fun and festive party. Even dual-career households and active families will find these menu ideas easy to fit into crowded time schedules.

The featured concoction is Chili Con Carne that combines ground beef and pinto and kidney or pink dry cooked beans. This old-fashioned dish is ideal for informal meals, because it can be prepared in advance and reheated just before serving.

Accompany the chili with cool, refreshing Grape and Green Salad. Lightly tossed with a well-seasoned Vinaigrette Dressing, this salad balances the flavors and textures of juicy fresh grapes with mellow avocado.

Treat little and big goblins alike to individual packages of pistachios. Fun to crack and eat, these memorable treats also are a great snacks to pack into lunch boxes and brown bags.

Another idea for a party entree is Halloween Bean Platter, an array of assorted cold cuts and cheeses served with satisfying portions of a bean-vegetable salad. A quick-to-prepare accompaniment is Toasted French Bread With Pistachio Butter.

CHILI CON CARNE

- 2 pounds ground beef
- 1 cup chopped onion
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 tablespoon oil
- 3 1/2 cups drained, cooked or canned pinto beans
- 1 can (14 1/2 to 16 ounces) tomatoes
- 1 1/2 cups drained, cooked or canned red kidney or pink beans
- 1 cup water
- 1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
- 1 tablespoon chili powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cumin (optional)
- Corn tortillas

Brown ground beef, onion and garlic in oil. Mash and reserve 1 cup pinto beans. Drain tomatoes reserving liquid; coarsely chop. Add whole beans, tomatoes, reserved tomato liquid, water, tomato sauce and seasonings.

Bring mixture to boil. Simmer 30 to 35 minutes; stir occasionally. Add additional water during simmering, if necessary. Stir in mashed beans; mix well. Simmer 5 minutes longer or until slightly thickened. Serve with tortillas. Make 8 (1 cup) servings.

GRAPE AND GREEN SALAD

- 8 cups torn lettuce
- 2 cups halved grapes, seeded if necessary

- 1/2 cup diagonally sliced green onion
- 2 medium avocados, peeled and cut into chunks
- Vinaigrette Dressing

Combine all ingredients except avocado and Vinaigrette Dressing; toss lightly. Just before serving, add avocado and dressing; toss to coat mixture. Makes 8 serving.

Vinaigrette Dressing: Combine 1/2 cup oil, 1/2 cup wine vinegar, 2 teaspoons Dijon mustard, 1 teaspoon salt and 1/4 teaspoon each pepper and sugar; mix well. Makes 1 cup.

HALLOWEEN BEAN PLATTER

- 1 1/2 cups drained, cooked or canned great northern, navy, small white or kidney beans
- 1 cup sliced zucchini
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1/4 cup diced green chilies
- 1 tomato, cut into wedges
- 1/4 cup olive oil
- 3 tablespoons lime juice
- 1 tablespoon honey
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon chili powder

- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- Lettuce

Combine beans, zucchini, onion, green chilies and tomato. Combine remaining ingredients except lettuce and cold cuts; pour over bean mixture and mix well. Marinate at least 1 hour. Spoon mixture into lettuce cups or lettuce-lined platter. Arrange cold cuts around bean mixture. Makes 6 (3/4 cup) servings.

TOASTED FRENCH BREAD WITH PISTACHIO BUTTER

- 1/2 cup butter, softened
- 4 tablespoons finely chopped, shelled pistachios, divided
- 1 tablespoon lemon or lime juice
- 1/2 teaspoon each oregano, crushed and pepper
- Dash garlic powder
- 1 loaf French bread

Combine butter, 2 tablespoons pistachios, lemon juice and seasonings. Halve bread lengthwise; spread both cut surfaces with butter mixture. Sprinkle with remaining pistachios. Broil 5 inches from heat until bread is hot and top is lightly browned. Slice and serve. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Trio's brew: Monster cookbook

By CHRISTINE DECKER
Daily Pilot Correspondent

For this evening's menu our chef is proud to present: Brontosaurus Salad, Carrot Swamp, Screamed Corn, flaming Dragon's Breath as your entree and Vulcan Vudge for dessert. Of course, all this comes with either Gorilla Banana Bread or Killer Bee Honey Rolls.

Sounds like a nightmare of the digestive system or perhaps the menu at Dracula's castle. But it's not.

These, and other scary-sounding recipes are all part of The Monster Cookbook, published this month by three local school teachers.

The 77-page book, designed especially for children, second through eighth grades, has been in the works for three years.

"We were at a convention and noticed most of the children were either buying monster books or books about children," said Barbara Ramet, Newport Beach resident and fourth grade teacher at Taft Elementary School in Santa Ana.

"We also found that the cookbooks out today didn't appeal to modern kids and most of them were not written for little boys. So, we put all these feelings together and started making up the recipes," said Kay Pence, also a fourth grade teacher at Taft and resident of Newport Beach.

Kathy Philipson, Barbara's sister, is also author of the book. She lives in Laguna Beach and teaches at Esperanza in Mission Viejo.

All 49 recipes with such names as Creepy Crawly Limey Slimey, a lime flavored cream dessert, and Rattler's Revenge, a cheesy bread in the shape of a snake, have all been taste-tested by volunteer neighborhood children or by some of their students.

Despite The Monster Cookbook's newness, the trio already has earned a guest appearance on this morning's "AM Los Angeles." They also have plans to come out with a whole line of children's cookware, a children's Christmas book and a children's party planning book — with lots of monstrous ideas.

Their book, which has been ornately illustrated by art student Scott Dunn of Santa Ana, is available at Upstart Crow, South Coast Village; The Children's Book Shoppe, Newport Beach; The Wrapper, Lido; The Kid's Place, Irvine, or by writing: Trio, 18 Wild Goose, Newport Beach 92663.

DRAGON'S BREATH

- 1 cup all purpose flour
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 cup butter, softened
- 6 ounces cream cheese, softened
- 2 red hots for eyes
- 2 peppercorns
- 1 egg (save egg shell)
- 1 tablespoon water
- 1/2 pound ham, sliced thin
- 1/2 cup of your favorite cheese, cut in chunks
- 12 almond slivers
- 1/2 teaspoon lemon extract
- 1/4 teaspoon sugar

Have ready: Pastry brush, rolling pin, knife, two bowls, measuring spoons, measuring cup, cutting board, serving spoon, oven proof platter, matches.

Mix flour and salt in a bowl. Add cream cheese and butter. With hands, mix well and press together into a firm ball. Put in refrigerator for 20 minutes.

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Put egg in small bowl, add water, and beat well. (Save half the egg shell.)

Take dough out of refrigerator and roll out. Use about 1/4 of dough to make bottom part of body. Brush bottom part of body with egg. Stack half of the ham in the middle of the dragon's body — leave room on sides. Place cheese on top of ham. Stack the remaining ham on top of cheese.

Cut about 1/4 of the dough and place on top of ham. Press both pieces together with fork and cut off excess.

Make tail and attach to body. Make four legs and attach to body. Add almonds for toenails. Make two small wings and attach to body. Form dough around eggshell, leaving mouth open.

Make two nostrils out of dough and place peppercorns in them. Attach to body. Make two eyes out of dough and place red hots in them. Attach to body. Take scissors and make little cuts along dragon's tail and back. Brush dragon with egg.

Bake at 400 degrees for 35 to 40 minutes. Put sugar and lemon extract in dragon's mouth and have an adult light the fire.

Lake County vineyards producing award-winning wines

It's difficult to keep up with all the wine-growing regions in California, but if you're not familiar with Lake County, plan on making its acquaintance in the near future.

More than a few award-winning wines are being produced by wineries within the county, and even more by wineries located elsewhere working with Lake County grapes.

More people are familiar with the county's major geographical attractions, Clear Lake, than with its vineyards, but in coming years that is likely to change.

Fetzer and Parnucci in neighboring Mendocino County have been using Lake County grapes for years, as have a legion of famous names in Napa Valley.

Turner Winery has extensive vineyard holdings in Lake County, and while the wines are produced at the family winery in Woodbridge, almost all bear the Lake County appellation.

Within the county's boundaries, Konocci (members of the Barducci family recently purchased a major interest), Lower Lake and Guenoc have been winning a disproportionately large percentage of medals in the state's major wine competitions.

There is one other Lake County winery that is beginning to be heard from, and it looks like 1983 will be its coming-out year.

CHATEAU DU LAC — Almost assured to confuse prospective customers, most of the wines of Chateau du Lac will not be labeled that way. Only the most limited releases will bear the winery name.

The label that you will most often see, and the one that has already started winning awards is Kendall-Jackson, family name of the proprietors, Jess and Jane Jackson (Kendall is her maiden name).

The winemaker of record is Jed Steele, formerly with Edmeades in Mendocino County, a winemaker of considerable stature. Fortunately, Steele's winemaking style is more subtle than his rustic "mountain man" appearance might indicate. Consulting winemaker is Ric Forman, the talented wine man who built his reputation at Sterling Vineyards prior to its purchase by Coca Cola.

While the first Kendall-Jackson wines are just being released, the vineyard operation that supports the winery is anything but new.

The Jacksons planted the vineyards a decade ago, and I mean planted in the literal sense of the word. The Jacksons are not absentee owners.

Jess flinches at the term "gentleman farmer," being the sort of fellow who gets dirt under his fingernails and works up a sweat every time his schedule permits his escape to Lake County. Homemade wines were made by the Jacksons prior to commercial production, while the commercial harvest was sold to other wineries.

Mead on Wine

By Jerry D. Mead

from well known vineyards all over the states to come up with a particular balance and style evidenced in the finished product. The wine is crisp, leaning toward austerity, with just a touch of oak showing to interest without overwhelming.

Kendall-Jackson 1982 "Clear Lake" Sauvignon Blanc ($7): The wine I liked better than the medal winner and the kind of Sauvignon Blanc that I most frequently recommend. It's not grassy. The wine has good varietal definition, never-the-less, with super balance and a pleasant, round, spiciness.

Kendall-Jackson NV Sauvignon Blanc ($6): Less money, but a less successful version in my opinion. This non-vintage selection is a blend of wines from 1981 and 1982, shows much more acid, and is just a little coarse in its overall impression. Not a bad wine, just not as nice as its stablemate.

Kendall-Jackson 1982 "Clear Lake" Chenin Blanc ($5.50): This wine will have many fans. A very fruity wine, with a melon quality that is so intense as to be almost perfumed, and a residual sweetness of 2.5 percent that isn't really all that sweet when crisp Lake County acids finish having their say.

Muffins enhance any meal

As the falling leaves fill your yard, let the wonderful aroma of fresh-baked muffins fill your home. Double Corn Muffins are a delightful addition to breakfast, lunch or dinner. Serve them hot with butter and honey.

DOUBLE CORN MUFFINS

- 1 package frozen corn soufflé
  - 3 tablespoons granulated sugar
  - 2 1/4 teaspoons baking powder
  - 1/4 teaspoon salt
  - 1 cup yellow corn meal
  - 1/2 cup all-purpose flour
  - 3/4 cup milk
  - 2 tablespoon butter
- Defrost corn soufflé, overnight in the refrigerator or 10 to 15 minutes in a 200-degree oven. Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Sift flour, sugar, baking powder and salt into a mixing bowl. Stir in corn meal. Blend corn soufflé, milk and melted butter in a small mixing bowl. Add to dry ingredients. Stir with fork just until thoroughly moistened. Fill greased muffin tins 2/3 full. Bake 25 minutes. Make 12 muffins.

Versatile pumpkin delicious in soup, souffle, dessert

By TOM HOGE
AP Wire and Food Writer

The American poet, John Greenleaf Whittier, once asked "what calls back the past like the rich pumpkin pie?" And how many Americans can recall winding up at least one holiday meal with this rich, custardy dessert?

But far fewer of us have tried this robust vegetable in its many other roles during the meal, from soup to souffle.

The pumpkin, like its cousin the squash belongs to the gourd family, reminds most of us of the early English settlements when friendly Indians introduced it to the colonists.

Actually, the pumpkin goes back to primitive times in Mexico. Eventually it made its way north and long before the white man arrived in the New World, golden pumpkins brightened the fields of North America.

Soon after they arrived, the Pilgrims were growing pumpkins and depended heavily on the vegetable for food. As one commented "we have pumpkins at morning and pumpkins at noon. If it were not for pumpkins, we would be undone."

The Indians taught the white man how to cook the pumpkin in many forms; to prepare it with meat, fish and other vegetables; to add it to soup and grind the pulp into meal.

But it was the settler who learned to make a wide variety of desserts, from the classic pie to cake to souffle.

In the early days, the Pilgrims made a primitive sort of pie by slicing off the top of a pumpkin, scooping out the seeds and filling the cavity with milk, honey and herbs. They baked the pumpkin in hot ashes as long as seven hours, then ate the bubbling filling with a spoon.

As the pies improved and crust was introduced, they became a basic element of the New England diet. During the pumpkin season, some farmers ate them for breakfast, lunch and dinner.

Here's a recipe for a stew that settlers ate in somewhat simpler form.

PUMPKIN BEEF STEW

2 pounds beef round in 1-inch cubes
1 cup flour
3 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 medium onion, chopped
1/2 cup celery, chopped
1 1/2 cups tomato puree

1/2 teaspoon Italian seasoning
2 cups beef stock
2 1/2 cups pumpkin, peeled and cubed
2 1/2 cups potatoes, peeled and diced
Salt and pepper to taste

Dust beef cubes with flour. In pot, brown meat in 2 tablespoons hot vegetable oil. Remove meat cubes and add remaining oil to pot.

Add onion and celery pieces and saute until vegetables are tender. Return beef to pot, add tomato puree, Italian seasoning. Add beef stock and stir until mixture is blended. Bring liquid to boil, lower heat and simmer beef, covered, for 90 minutes.

Add pumpkin and potato bits and simmer stew about 30 minutes, until meat and vegetables are tender. Season with salt and pepper. Good with chilled beer. Serves 4.

Favorites scaled down

When there is one, or two of you, it is hard to imagine making a large casserole or preparing a time-consuming recipe. We have adapted some favorite recipes, very quick to prepare, easy to make, and so delicious to eat.

Relax, and enjoy a traditional beef meal made for the two of you, or simply you.

NOT-TOO-SPICY ENCHILADAS

1/2 pound lean ground beef
1 tomato
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1/2 teaspoon each marjoram and thyme
1 can (16 ounces) tomato sauce
4 corn tortillas
1/2 pound Monterey Jack cheese, sliced
Sour cream (garnish)
Avocado slices (garnish)

In skillet, cook beef, tomato, Worcestershire sauce, marjoram and thyme until beef is browned; drain off excess grease. Spread small amount of tomato sauce over bottom of 1-quart baking dish.

Dip 1 tortilla into remaining tomato sauce, place in baking dish. Place 1 slice of cheese and 1/4 of the beef mixture on tortilla. Roll tortilla around mixture and place seam side down in dish.

Repeat with remaining ingredients reserving some tomato sauce for topping. If desired, sprinkle with additional grated cheese. Bake at 375 degrees for 30 minutes or until hot and bubbly. Top each enchilada with a dollop of sour cream and a few slices of avocado. Makes 4 enchiladas (2 servings).

BEEF STROGANOFF FOR TWO

1/2 pound beef sirloin or top round boneless
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1 small onion, chopped
1/2 pound fresh mushrooms, sliced (1 cup)
2 tablespoons sherry
2 teaspoons prepared horseradish (or mustard)
1/2 cup sour cream (at room temperature)
Salt and pepper to taste
Hot, cooked noodles
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

Cut beef into thin strips. Heat butter and oil in large skillet. Add beef and onions; cook and stir until beef is browned. Stir in sherry, horseradish and sour cream. Heat gently over low heat. DO NOT BOIL. Stir in salt and pepper to taste. Serve over hot, cooked noodles. Sprinkle with parsley. Makes 2 servings.

A spinach salad would add color and Vitamin A to this meal. Fresh orange segments would be a nice finish to this special occasion.

Tip: Yogurt can be substituted for sour cream. Make sure that the yogurt is at room temperature before adding to the recipe. Gradually stir yogurt into the sauce and gently heat. Do not overcook. Yogurt separates more easily than sour cream.

In a hurry? Whip up some rice

Rice is ideal for meals that have to be prepared in a hurry. Here are two recipes featuring it — both are nutritious and can be prepared with minimum effort.

SHRIMP RICE SALAD

3 cups cooked rice, cooled
8 ounces frozen cooked shrimp, thawed
1 can (8 ounces) pineapple chunks, halved (drain, reserve juice)
1 tart red apple, cored and chopped
1 cup sliced celery
½ cup seedless green grapes, halved
¼ cup sour cream
¼ cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt

Combine rice, shrimp, pineapple, apple, celery and grapes. Blend remaining ingredients with 2 tablespoons reserved pineapple juice. Toss lightly with rice mixture. Chill. Serve on salad greens, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

QUICK 'N' EASY DIN-NER IN A DISH

½ cup chopped green pepper
½ cup sliced green onions, including tops
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 cups cooked rice
1 can (17 ounces) whole kernel corn, drained
1 can (14½ to 16 ounces) tomatoes, crushed and drained

1½ cups (6 ounces) grated Swiss cheese
4 eggs, beaten
1 cup cream style cottage cheese
¼ cup milk
1½ teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon marjoram leaves, crushed
½ teaspoon ground black pepper
Paprika

In large skillet cook green pepper and onions in butter until tender-crisp. Stir in rice, corn, tomatoes and Swiss cheese. Combine remaining ingredients except paprika; stir into rice mixture.

Turn into buttered 2-quart baking dish. Dust lightly with paprika. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes, or until edges are firm and center is slightly soft. Let stand about 5 minutes before serving. Makes 6 servings.

Microwave Method: Melt butter in 2-quart microproof dish on HIGH (maximum power) 1 minute. Add green pepper and onions. Cover and cook on HIGH 1 minute, or until tender crisp. Stir in rice, corn, tomatoes and Swiss cheese. Combine remaining ingredients except paprika; stir into rice mixture. Dust lightly with paprika.

Cook at 70 percent power 20 minutes, or until edges are firm and center is slightly soft, rotating dish ¼ turn every 5 minutes. Let stand about 5 minutes before serving.

Chowder's a hit as a hot lunch

New England and Manhattan clam chowders make delicious hot lunches during the fall and winter months.

NEW ENGLAND CLAM CHOWDER

¾ cup (¼ pound) diced bacon
1 cup finely chopped onion
½ cup finely chopped celery
2½ cups water
4 cups (1½ pounds) peeled, diced raw potatoes
¼ teaspoon thyme leaves
½ bay leaf
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons softened butter
2 cups (two 8-ounce cans) minced clams and juice
1½ cups nonfat dry milk
Paprika
Cook bacon, onion and celery in 2½-quart saucepan over medium heat until onion is tender. Add water, potatoes, thyme, bay leaf, salt and pepper. Heat to boiling. Cover and boil gently 15 minutes or until potatoes are tender. Remove from heat.

Stir in butter and clams and juice. Gradually add dry nonfat milk, stirring constantly until blended. Remove bay leaf. Heat to serving temperature. Do not boil. Sprinkle with paprika. Makes 7½ cups.

MANHATTAN CLAM CHOWDER

¼ pound diced bacon
1 cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped raw carrots
½ cup chopped celery
1½ cups (14½-ounce can) whole peeled tomatoes
1 cup (8-ounce can) tomato sauce
½ teaspoon pepper
2 cups (two 7 or 8-ounce cans) minced or chopped clams
1 cup clam liquid
1 cup water

Fry bacon in large saucepan. Drain off all but 2 tablespoons fat. Sauté onion in fat until transparent. Add carrots, celery, tomatoes, tomato sauce and pepper. Stir to break tomatoes. Drain clams; save 1 cup liquid. Add the clam liquid and water to saucepan.

Heat to boiling. Reduce heat; boil gently, covered, 30 minutes. Add clams. Heat to serving temperature. Makes 6 cups.

The flavor of olive oil adds distinction to Mediterranean cuisines, most notably the food of Spain. One way to borrow Spanish flavor — without incurring the caloric debt of olive oil — is to use olives instead of oil.

YELLOW RICE WITH SEAFOOD AND OLIVES

1 cup sliced onion
2 tablespoons liquid from jar of olives
2 cups water
8 ounces uncooked
rice
1/2 teaspoon turmeric
1 green bell pepper, diced
1 red bell pepper,
diced
1/2 cup minced celery
1 bay leaf
8 green stuffed Spanish olives, thinly sliced
1 cup diced small cooked shrimp (or 7-ounce can water-packed tuna)
Optional: paprika
Spray a large,

Whoo-oo-oo wouldn't like this cake?

A scary cake? Why not! If you're going to have a really great Halloween party, shouldn't everything — decorations, music, food — be strange, weird and uncanny?

Of course it should. What, then, could make a better centerpiece for your table than Peanuty Owl, staring fixedly through marshmallow-peanut butter chip eyes accented by red licorice, plus a beak fashioned from a carrot? If he doesn't send shivers of fear down the backs of young fry, he'll certainly send quivers of anticipation through every hungry guest.

This edible owl is fashioned from tempting peanut butter cake covered with chocolate frosting. The cake is a cinch to put together with the help of the diagram shown.

PEANUTTY OWL

1 1/4 cups peanut butter chips
1 1/4 cups milk
cup butter or margarine
2 eggs
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup unsifted all-purpose flour
3 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
Cocoa Frosting (recipe follows)
Marshmallows, peanut butter chips, licorice, carrot for decoration

Combine peanut butter chips, milk and butter or margarine in a medium saucepan; stir constantly over medium low heat until smooth. Remove from heat and set aside.

Beat eggs until foamy in large mixer bowl; gradually add sugar and vanilla. combine flour, baking powder and salt; add alternately with peanut butter mixture of egg-sugar mixture, blending well.

Pour into two greased and floured 8-inch round cake pans. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes or until cake tests done. Cool 10 minutes; remove from pans and cool completely. Cut, assemble and frost cake as follows.

To Make Owl:

Following the diagram, cut cake layers to form head, body and ears; assemble as shown. Frost with Cocoa Frosting. Form eyes and beak with marshmallows, peanut butter chips and carrot stick. Use licorice to outline eyes and to indicate wings.

COCOA FROSTING

1/4 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup cocoa
2 1/4 cups unsifted confectioners' sugar

1/4 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Melt butter or margarine in small saucepan over medium heat. Add cocoa; stir constantly over medium heat just until mixture begins to boil. Pour into small mixer bowl; cool completely. Add confectioners' sugar alternately with milk, beating to spreading consistency. Blend in vanilla.

Pumpkin loaf quick 'n' easy

What can you do with that half-cup of canned pumpkin-leftover from pie baking? Make pumpkin bread, of course.

Pumpkin Walnut Loaf is a simple quick bread that's delicious spread with butter, cream cheese, apple butter or peanut butter. For a dessert, it can be topped with ice cream and applesauce or butterscotch sauce. Or, just slice it and serve it with coffee. It will keep in the refrigerator a couple of weeks and be a welcome gift from the kitchen.

Perfectly flavored for this time of year is a sumptuous Pumpkin Parfait made with a spice pumpkin filling, graham cracker and whipped cream. The filling would also make an easy, no-bake pumpkin pie with a prepared graham cracker crust from the supermarket.

PUMPKIN WALNUT LOAF

2 cups all-purpose flour (unsifted)
2 teaspoons pumpkin pie spice
1 1/4 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup butter or margarine, softened
1/4 cup sugar
1 egg
1/4 cup milk
1/2 cup canned pumpkin
1/2 cup chopped walnuts

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease and flour an 8x4x2-inch loaf pan; set aside. Combine flour, pumpkin pie spice, baking powder, baking soda and salt; set aside.

In a large mixing bowl cream butter. Add sugar and beat until fluffy; beat in egg. While mixing at low speed add one-third of the flour mixture and then one-half of the milk and pumpkin. Repeat, ending with flour, mixing just until combined. Stir in walnuts.

Spoon batter into prepared pan. Bake until a cake tester inserted into the center comes out clean, about 45 minutes. Let stand in pan for 10 minutes. Loosen edges with a metal spatula and turn onto a wire rack to cool. Yield: one 8x4-inch loaf.

PUMPKIN PARFAIT

1/2 cup sugar
1/4 cup cornstarch
1 1/4 teaspoons pumpkin pie spice, divided
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
1 cup canned pumpkin
3 egg yolks, beaten
1/2 teaspoon pure vanilla extract
1/2 cup heavy cream
1/4 cup graham cracker crumbs

In a stainless steel saucepot combine sugar, cornstarch, 1/4 teaspoon of the pumpkin pie spice and salt. Gradually stir in milk and then pumpkin, beating with a wire whisk until blended. Beat in egg yolks.

Bring to a boil over medium-low heat, stirring constantly with a wooden spoon. Boil for 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat; stir in vanilla. Spoon into a medium bowl; cover surface with plastic wrap. Refrigerate until cool.

In a chilled bowl with chilled beater blades beat cream until stiff; fold into pumpkin mixture. Combine graham cracker crumbs with remaining 1/4 teaspoon pumpkin pie spice. Alternately spoon pumpkin mixture and crumbs into parfait glasses. Garnish with additional whipped cream, if desired. Serves 6.

DOUBLE SAVINGS COUPONS

Pudding pumpkins Fun to make, eat

For children of all ages, sneaky black cats, dancing skeletons, brightly lit jack-o-lanterns and flying witches scurrying across a full harvest moon signify American's spookiest holiday — Halloween.

Celebrate the spirit of make believe with a Halloween party in your home, especially planned for pint-size ghosts and goblins. And invite a few adults to attend to help cope with excited young guests.

PUDDING PUMPKINS

- 1 package (3 1/4-ounce) instant vanilla pudding and pie filling
- 2 cups cold milk
- 10 (1/4 cup) pastry tart shells
- Apple
- Raisins
- 1 package (3-ounce) orange gelatin
- 1 cup boiling water
- 1/2 cup ice cubes

Prepare pudding and pie filling according to package directions using 2 cups of milk. Fill tart shells 3/4 full.

Decorate surface of pudding with apple pieces, cut into small triangles and raisins to form Jack-o-lantern faces.

Dissolve orange gelatin in boiling water; stir in ice cubes.

Chill until slightly thickened. Spoon a thin layer of gelatin over faces. Chill until set, about 1 hour. Makes 10 tarts.

Harvest buffet perfect for party

Play it safe this Halloween. Invite the neighborhood goblins to an old fashioned costume party.

A little kitchen witchery transforms ordinary hot dogs into festive Halloween Corn Dogs, and your buffet can be kept simple yet seasonal with Harvest Moon Salad.

HALLOWEEN CORN DOGS

- 1 cup all-purpose flour
- 3/4 cup yellow cornmeal
- 1 1/2 teaspoons sugar
- 1 teaspoon onion salt
- Dash pepper
- 2 tablespoons shortening
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- Spicy mustard
- 3/4 cup milk
- Oil
- 1 pound frankfurters
- Wooden skewers

Combine flour, cornmeal, sugar, onion salt, baking powder and pepper in large bowl. Cut in shortening until particles are the size of coarse crumbs. Combine egg, 1 tablespoon of the mustard and milk; add to dry ingredients and stir until blended.

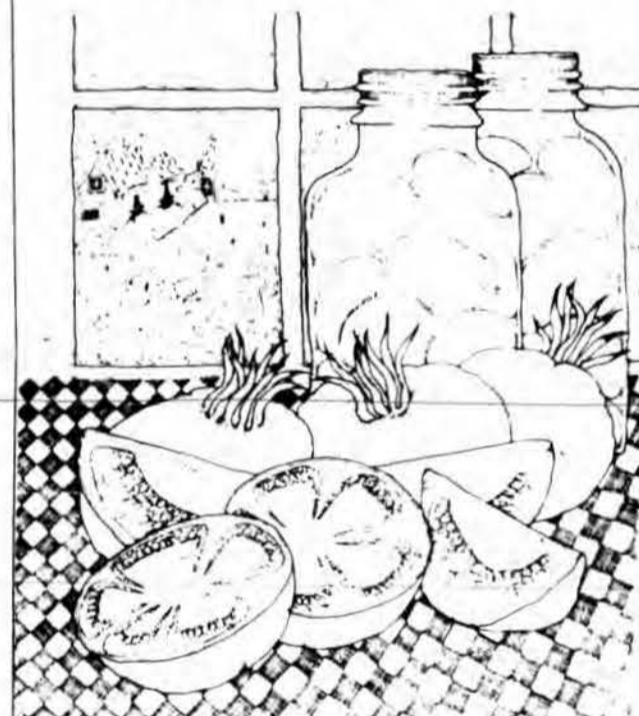

Heat 3 inches of oil in deep saucepan to 365 degrees on a deep fat frying thermometer. Dry off frankfurters with paper towels and insert a skewer in each one. Hold by skewer while spreading with batter.

Push off skewers into hot oil and fry 2 to 3 minutes or until golden brown. Remove from oil and reinsert skewers. Serve with mustard for dipping. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

HARVEST MOON SALAD

- 1/2 cup wine vinegar
- 1/2 cup water
- 1/4 cup oil
- 4 teaspoons sugar
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon celery seed
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 3 large tomatoes, sliced
- 1 small cucumber, sliced
- 1 small red onion, sliced
- 2 carrots, cut into matchstick pieces

Combine vinegar, water, oil, sugar, Worcestershire sauce, salt, celery seed and pepper for dressing. Pour over vegetables and marinate in refrigerator 1 hour. 8 to 10 servings.

Green tomatoes make a tasty pie

Autumn after autumn American cooks have used green tomatoes just plain fried to enjoy for breakfast with ham and eggs. Green tomatoes have also been popular for relishes, mincemeat and two-crust pies.

This year we made a change. We worked out a lovely recipe for a one-crust pie — a deep-dish dessert — and we added apples to the tomatoes.

GREEN TOMATO APPLE DEEP-DISH PIE

- Cream Cheese Pastry, see recipe
- 3 medium (1 pound) apples
- 4 small (1 pound) green tomatoes, see Note
- Grated rind of 1 lemon
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/2 of a 1/4-pound stick butter (1/4 cup), cut into thin pats
- Milk

Make up Cream Cheese Pastry and chill as directed.

Quarter, core, pare and thinly slice the apples — there should be 4 loosely packed cups; turn into a medium bowl. Core and thinly slice the tomatoes — there should be 3 loosely packed cups. Toss with the apples, lemon rind, sugar and cinnamon. Spread over the bottom of a buttered 2-quart oblong baking dish (11 1/4 by 7 1/4 by 1 1/4 inches). Arrange butter pats over mixture.

On a prepared pastry cloth, with a prepared stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out the Cream Cheese Pastry to a 12- by 8-inch rectangle. Cut four 2-inch-long slits, for vents, at equidistance in the center of the pastry. Fold pastry over rolling pin and place over apple-tomato mixture. With tines of a fork, press pastry against the sides of the dish. Brush pastry with milk.

Bake on the middle rack of a preheated 450-degree oven for 15 minutes; continue baking at 350 degrees until tomatoes and apples, when pierced with a fork through the slits, are tender, and the pastry is browned — 30 minutes longer.

Serve hot or warm, spooning the unthickened juices in the baking dish around each portion. The pie will not come up high in the dish.

Makes 6 servings.

Note: In order to have skins at their tenderest, use green tomatoes that are about to begin or are just beginning to be tinged with pink in one or two spots.

CREAM CHEESE PASTRY: With a wooden spoon beat together a 1/4-pound stick soft butter and 3 ounces soft cream cheese until blended; gradually stir in 1 cup unbleached all-purpose flour until blended. Wrap tightly, shaped into a thick rectangle, in saran and chill until firm enough to roll out.

Pork soup dish well Oriented

If your entertaining plans call for a light luncheon, relax and serve an Oriental style meal with ease. Oriental Pork Soup features an artistic combination of pork, cut into thin strips, and sliced carrots, mushrooms and green onion.

Gingerroot and sesame oil distinctly pronounce this light soup as Oriental.

Crunchy Chinese Pork Salad and Chinese-Style Spareribs tastefully complement an Oriental menu. The salad features cubed cooked pork, lettuce, water chestnuts, and green onion lightly tossed with a soy sauce-honey dressing.

Thanks to a flavor-rich marinade, Chinese-style Spareribs are especially appealing. Marinate the ribs for 6 hours or overnight.

ORIENTAL PORK SOUP

1 tablespoon sesame oil
1/2 pound lean pork, cut into 1/4 x 1-inch strips
1/4 teaspoon finely grated gingerroot
6 cups water
2 tablespoons instant chicken

bouillon granules
1/4 cup sliced carrots
1/4 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
1/4 cup sliced green onions
Fresh cilantro sprigs (optional)
Heat sesame oil in a medium skillet. Add pork and gingerroot; saute over medium heat till done. Drain pork and set aside.

Bring water to a boil in a 4-quart Dutch oven; stir in bouillon granules. Add carrots; reduce heat, cover and simmer for 10 minutes. Add mushrooms, green onion and pork. Simmer for 2 minutes.

Ladle in individual serving bowls. Top each serving with a sprig of cilantro, if desired. Makes about 6 1/2 cups.

CRUNCHY CHINESE PORK SALAD

1/2 pound sliced bacon
3/4 to 1 pound cubed cooked pork
8 cups torn iceberg lettuce
1 8-ounce can sliced water chestnuts, drained
1/4 cup sliced green onions
1/4 cup salad oil
3 tablespoons soy sauce
2 tablespoons honey

2 tablespoons catsup
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 3-ounce can chow mein noodles

In a large skillet, cook bacon till crisp; drain and crumble bacon. In a large bowl combine bacon, pork, lettuce, water chestnuts and green onions. Cover and refrigerate 2 to 3 hours.

For dressing, in a screw-top jar combine oil, soy sauce, honey, catsup and dry mustard. Cover and shake well. Chill.

At serving time, add dressing and chow mein noodles to salad, stirring lightly to coat. Serve immediately. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

CHINESE-STYLE SPARERIBS

4 to 6 pounds pork spareribs
1/4 cup hoisin sauce
1/4 cup water
3 tablespoons dry sherry
2 tablespoons honey
2 tablespoons soy sauce
2 cloves garlic, minced
Cut spareribs into serving size portions; set aside.
Place large plastic bag in large bowl. In bag, combine hoisin sauce, water, sherry, honey, soy sauce and garlic; mix well. Add ribs; close bag tightly. Refrigerate 6 hours or overnight; turn bag several times to distribute marinade.

Drain ribs, reserving marinade. Place ribs in shallow roasting pan; cover with foil and bake in a 350-degree oven for 1 1/2 hours. Uncover and brush ribs with the reserved marinade. Bake uncovered for 30 minutes or till done. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Tailgating picnics score a touchdown

Tailgating picnics — so named because the picnic table is the lowered tailgate of a station wagon — require food that is easy to carry and serve, yet substantial enough to keep you warm through even the nippest fall days.

This football picnic menu fits the bill, and, as an added bonus the soup and pita sandwiches can be served either hot or cold.

CHEESY CARROT SOUP

1/4 cup butter or margarine
2 cups shredded carrots
1/2 cup thinly sliced leeks or green onions
1/4 cup water
1 can (11 ounces) condensed cheddar cheese soup
1 1/2 cups milk
Shredded carrots or celery sticks for garnish

To Serve Chilled: 4 hours before servings, in 2-quart saucepan over medium heat, in hot butter, cook 2 cups shredded carrots and leeks until tender, about 15 minutes. Add water. Reduce heat to low. Cover; simmer 15 minutes or until vegetables are VERY tender.

In covered blender container at low speed, combine vegetable mixture, soup and 1/2 cup milk. Blend until smooth. Blend in remaining milk. Cover; refrigerate 4 hours or more.

To serve: Ladle soup into chilled bowls. Garnish with shredded carrot, if desired. Makes 4 cups or 4 servings. Recipe may be doubled.

To Serve Hot: Follow same procedure, but do not refrigerate. Into 2-quart saucepan over low heat, pour soup mixture. Heat thoroughly, stirring occasionally. Do not boil. Ladle into soup bowls; garnish with shredded carrot, if desired.

STADIUM TURKEY PITA POCKETS

1 can (10 1/2 ounces) condensed cream of celery soup
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1/4 cup chopped dill pickle
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 tablespoon cider vinegar
Generous dash garlic powder
4 cups diced cooked turkey breast
1 cup sliced celery
2 hard cooked eggs, chopped
8 pita breads, cut in half
Lettuce, if desired
Sliced tomato if desired

To Serve Chilled: At least 6 hours before serving, in medium bowl, combine soup, mayonnaise, pickle, onion, parsley, vinegar and garlic powder until well blended. Toss with turkey, celery and eggs. Refrigerate 6 hours or more.

Spoon about 1/2 cup mixture into each pita half. Serve with lettuce and sliced tomato, if desired. Makes 5 cups filling or 16 sandwich halves.

To Serve Hot: In 3-quart saucepan over low heat, heat filling thoroughly. Serve as above.

Vikings: Are they for real?

By CURT SEEDEN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The Sunset League football race is evenly split down the middle at this stage of the season with three teams sporting 2-0 records while the other three teams have the numbers reversed.

Obviously, something has to give.

Friday night, two teams from the upper echelon go at it when Huntington Beach High hosts Marina (7:30) in a contest featuring two talented quarterbacks, and two explosive running backs.

Huntington Beach, with a 6-1 overall record is the epitome of confidence ever since the Oilers pulled off a long-awaited victory over Edison High two weeks ago.

Marina is just 3-3 overall but that mark doesn't concern Coach Dave Thompson or Huntington Beach Coach George Pascoe.

"This team has a real good attitude. We didn't get down when we lost before and we could have," says Thompson. "We've played hard all year."

Marina's Eric Karman is the Prep Player of the Week.

An unsung hero Marina's Karman does his job quietly

By JOHN SEVANO
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Marina High's Eric Karman is not the kind of person who openly seeks recognition. And it's a good thing, too, because he hasn't gotten much this season.

Despite the fact the 5-9, 165-pound running back has rushed for 682 yards in 80 carries, which computes to a whopping 8.53 average, Karman has had to take a backseat to headline grabbers Steve Brazas (1,064 yards) of Newport Harbor and, in particular, Danny Thompson (1,052) of Huntington Beach, a Sunset League rival.

Karman is understandably experiencing an "identity crisis," which is comparable to the problem running backs in the Southeastern Conference were subjected to when Georgia's Herschel Walker was around.

"He doesn't get a lot of ink, but all the teams we play certainly know who he is. I know other coaches respect him," offers Vikings Coach Dave Thompson.

"He's a great kid. A super kid. He's just dependable, always there, doing the right thing. There's never a lack of effort on his part in practice or games. He's just a good, gutty little player, the type of kid you like to have on your team."

If a lack of identification annoys Karman, he doesn't show it.

"It doesn't bother me too much," says Karman, who accounted for all of Marina's points in a 19-9 Sunset League victory over Westminster last week with a pair of touchdown runs (of 14 and 42 yards), a pair of field goals (27 yards each) and a TD conversion.

PLAYER OF THE WEEK

"Brazas and Thompson are good backs who are having better seasons. I feel I've gotten more than my fair share (of recognition). A lot of people don't even get what I've gotten."

Coincidentally, Karman and Marina will meet face-to-face with Thompson and Huntington Beach Friday in a big Sunset League matchup. It's interesting, too, that the same parallels that hold true for Karman's lack of attention also hold true for the Vikings in that they've snuck up on the Sunset field with a 2-0 league start after a 1-3-1 pre-season campaign. The Oilers, meanwhile, 2-0 and 6-1 overall, could already fill a scrapbook with the press notices they've received.

"If we can beat Huntington and Fountain Valley we'd be on a pretty big high. I mean, they're the only teams we've heard about all year long," says Karman. "Some teams haven't given us much credit. If we could beat them, it would help us to get that."

Actually, it has reached a point where Karman feels the anonymity might be working to Marina's advantage.

"I feel it gives us an advantage because (See VIKES, Page D2)

Robinson: Rams must continue to get better

By CURT SEEDEN
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

If the Rams have any thoughts of winning their division or earning a wild card berth in the NFL playoffs, they can't afford to stagnate over the final eight games of the season.

That's the assessment by Coach John Robinson at the halfway mark of the NFL season — a campaign which has seen the Rams win five of eight games — only three of which they were favored to win.

"We have to control our own future," cautions Robinson. "The key to this team is that we have to continue to improve. We still have to attempt to get better."

The Rams, picked by many to finish last in the NFC West, are "on an upward swing offensively" and "playing over their heads defensively," in Robinson's words.

"There hasn't been a stinker yet," Robinson continues. "If you've seen the first eight Ram games, you've seen some exciting football."

The excitement came to its peak on Sunday when San Francisco staged a fourth-quarter rally to score a 45-35 victory over the Rams at Anaheim Stadium. The loss marked the first Ram defeat to an NFC West rival in four outings.

The second half of the season opens Sunday in Miami when the Rams meet the Dolphins in the Orange Bowl.

"Our team has proven a lot during the first part of the season. We've shown the ability to compete in every situation. Things certainly get no easier for us, but we'll be ready for the challenge of another eight weeks," Robinson says.

Through the first eight weeks, the offensive heroics have been equally divided between quarterback Vince Ferragamo, who has passed for 1,868 yards and 13 touchdowns, and rookie running back Eric Dickerson, who is en route to making NFL history with 995 yards and 12 touchdowns.

Among the unsung heroes who have supplemented the offense are tight end Mike Barber, who has already caught 38 passes for 428 yards and should surpass his best season when he caught 59 for 712 yards, and youngsters like Gordon Jones and Otis Grant who have come up with some pivotal receptions and provided great depth among Ram receivers.

(See RAMS, Page D2)

Newport climbs in poll

Newport Harbor High was the lone area team to make a move in this week's CIF football rankings, as the Sailors jumped from fourth to third place in the Central Conference.

The Sailors, who defeated Saddleback, 21-0, improved their record to 5-1-1 and leapfrogged over unbeaten La Mirada into third place. Garden Grove League representative Los Amigos held down the runner-up slot in the Central with a 7-0 record.

Meanwhile, Corona del Mar, also 7-0, continues as the unanimous choice for first place in the Central after edging Costa Mesa, 17-14. CdM meets University, while Newport will face Costa Mesa Friday night.

In the Big Five Conference, Fountain Valley (6-1) kept its hold on the second spot after its 33-7 triumph over Edison. The Barons continue to trail Loyola, which received all 13 first-place votes in the Big Five.

Huntington Beach (6-1), on the heels of its 49-6 romp over Ocean View, remained in the fourth position in the Big Five, trailing third-place Fontana which is unbeaten.

How about FV vs. HB at Anaheim Stadium?

Will there be a Sunset League title decider in football at Anaheim Stadium between Fountain Valley and Huntington Beach Nov. 11?

That question and answer won't really be addressed until Saturday, according to Huntington Beach High football coach George Pascoe.

But the odds don't look good, despite the potential glamour.

First there are the Marina High Vikings to deal with, who are also 2-0 in league. The Vikings meet Huntington Beach Friday night, then battle Fountain Valley Nov. 4 before Huntington Beach and Fountain Valley duel.

Marina's speed may give both more than they could handle, but assuming

PREP SPORTS

Huntington Beach is successful against Marina, there are still major hurdles in front of the Oilers, according to Pascoe.

"It's still in the air," he says. "But I've been to Anaheim Stadium a lot of times and to the Coliseum, too, and I've seen what happens to kids."

"I know it'll be a shame for the fans, but Fountain Valley has played at Anaheim, they know what it's like. You get there for the first time and you're in awe of the place.

"Our thoughts are to bring in portable bleachers which would presumably increase the 5,000 circuit televise the game into our auditorium, which would accommodate another 1,000."

"But it's not in stone yet, and really, I didn't want to talk about this at all in the paper before the Marina game."

"We drove by Anaheim Stadium (on the way to the Fullerton game earlier in the year) and I told our kids we're going to play there, but I was talking about the CIF finals."

"But right now, we've got all we need to worry about with Marina. Their speed and talent really worries me."

Fountain Valley Coach Mike Milner has voiced an affirmative response to the idea of moving the Barons' game with Huntington Beach to Anaheim Stadium, which of course can accommodate as many fans as you'd like.

Somehow, from this angle, I'm unable to quite visualize a bunch of shaking Oilers against a band of calm and veteran Barons should things work out for the two and they do play at Anaheim Stadium.

Two years ago the notion that Huntington Beach might be playing for a Sunset League crown at Anaheim Stadium in 1983 would have been a certain ticket to the funny farm.

The only possible way that could (See BIG A, Page D3)

Whalers slow down Kings, 8-5

INGLEWOOD (AP) — Rookie Sylvan Turgeon and Bob Crawford scored 28 seconds apart in the final period to trigger a five-goal Hartford outburst Tuesday night as the Whalers beat the Los Angeles Kings, 8-5.

The teams were deadlocked 3-3 going into the final period when the Whalers cashed in on Turgeon and Crawford's power-play goals to take the lead in the National Hockey League contest.

The Whalers scored five of their eight goals while enjoying manpower advantages against the Kings.

Ron Francis stretched the Hartford lead to 6-3 at 4:59 of the period, and Blaine Stoughton drilled his fourth and fifth goals of the season 50 seconds apart against the beleaguered Kings goalie, Mario Lessard.

Bernie Nicholls scored three goals for the Kings in the second period to keep them even. Nicholls' third goal of the night, an unassisted score, came with the Kings short-handed.

He beat Hartford goalie Mike Veisor from in close on a disputed goal. That gave the Kings a 3-2 lead, but Hartford pulled to a tie with 3:53 remaining in the second period on Norm Dupont's power-play goal.

Boone says nothing has been settled

According to Angels Director of Publicity Tom Seeburg, the club and potential free-agent catcher Bob Boone have apparently reached agreement on a new three-year contract.

"The American League is now studying the contract. Assuming they approve the wording, we believe we are very close to an announcement concerning Boone," said Seeburg Tuesday.

Boone, however, from his home in Medford, N.J., insisted nothing had been settled.

"I can't say what the status is," he said. "All I can say is I haven't signed anything, and until I do, I haven't agreed to anything."

Dull Series teams equal low TV ratings

Nobody came in on the noon balloon from Saskatoon and asked me, but...

•If the television ratings of the World Series hit a 15-year low, it was because the Orioles and Phillies were dull teams and a five-game series doesn't give the viewing public time to warm to dull teams.

•Really now, a Rams-Raiders Super Bowl XVIII is not entirely out of the question if the injury factor turns out well for both sides.

•The really good polo player can balance a martini while the horse is going at full gallop.

•I would not pay to hear O.J. Simpson in a one-man poetry recital.

•If the National Basketball Association has to go with substitute officials, the intimidation factor would be unreal.

Cy Young to Hoyt; Quisenberry finishes runner-up in voting

From AP dispatches

NEW YORK — LaMarr Hoyt, the barrel-bellied Chicago White Sox right-hander who led the major leagues with 24 victories this year, was named the winner of the Cy Young Award in the American League on Tuesday.

The previously unheralded Hoyt, who has won 43 games over the past two seasons and led the

HOYT

White Sox's second-half romp to the AL West title, received 17 first-place ballots and was the only one named by all 28 voters on a special panel of baseball writers.

He had a total of 116 points, easily outdistancing reliever Dan Quisenberry of the Kansas City Royals, who finished second with nine first-place votes and 81 points. Quisenberry, a product of Costa Mesa High and Orange Coast College and who set a major league record for saves with 45, was named on only 23 ballots.

Jack Morris of the Detroit Tigers was third with two first-place ballots and 38 points.

Quote of the day

Rams Coach John Robinson on the club's turnaround from the NFC's worst record in 1982 to a playoff contender this season: "There's no sense doing penance for something that happened in the past. I think that's very important. You get categorized as a player or as a coach as a winner or a loser. This team has been told that they were losers and they're not. They wanted out from under that. Something new has given them that chance."

Monday signs one-year pact

LOS ANGELES — Veteran outfielder Rick Monday has signed a one-year contract with the Los Angeles Dodgers, the National League Western Division champions announced Tuesday.

Monday, 38, has played with the Dodgers for seven years and has completed 17 seasons in the big leagues. He was Los Angeles' top left-handed pinch hitter this year, collecting eight pinch hits and driving in seven runs in that role.

Playing in 99 games overall during the season as a pinch hitter and part-time player at first base and in the outfield, Monday hit .247 with six home runs and 20 runs batted in. He had four game-winning RBIs.

Tollner pondering QB change

LOS ANGELES — USC Coach Ted Tollner, saying he is "looking for someone to get hot and give us a spark," isn't sure who the Trojans will start at quarterback for this week's Pacific-10 Conference game at California.

Junior Sean Salisbury, the starter for the first seven games, was replaced by junior Tim Green halfway through the Trojans' 27-6 loss at Notre Dame last Saturday.

Salisbury completed 5 of 10 passes for 34 yards and was intercepted once, setting up a Notre Dame field goal. Green was 7 of 15 passing for 80 yards, and led USC's 79-yard scoring drive. But he was also intercepted twice, one of those leading to an Irish touchdown.

"I don't like to make changes at quarterback," Tollner said, "but two-thirds of the way through the season we're still inconsistent. Notre Dame was the second straight game we didn't put any points on the board in the first half. We had to try to generate some offense."

Hollypark to undergo facelift

INGLEWOOD — A total of about $100 million will be spent over the next several years to build a new race track at Hollywood Park and totally revamp the entire facility.

The first phase of the four-phase project will begin immediately, Vernon O. Underwood, Hollywood Park's Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer, said Tuesday.

The first phase, estimated to cost $30 million, entails construction of a 100-foot high, heated and air-conditioned building just south of the existing clubhouse and enlargement of the track.

The new building will contain luxury suites, as well as 13,000 seats, which will increase the total seating capacity at Hollywood Park to more than 50,000, Underwood said.

Also, the one-mile track will be enlarged to a distance of 1 1/4 miles, first of that distance in California, with the finish line moved south. The extension of the track also provides for a one-mile turf course.

Holmes, Frazier fight set

LAS VEGAS — Larry Holmes, the World Boxing Council heavyweight champion, will make his 17th title defense Nov. 25 at Caesars Palace against Marvis Frazier, the son of former heavyweight champion Joe Frazier, promoters announced Tuesday.

The bout will be held outdoors in a 15,000-seat arena and be televised live in prime time by NBC, said co-promoters Robert Andreoli and Murad Muhammed.

The fight will be scheduled for 12 rounds if the WBC sanctions the bout, but could be set for 15 rounds if the boxing organization follows through on its threat not to sanction the fight, said Caesars executive Bob Halloran.

WBC officials earlier threatened action against Holmes if he did not defend his title against No. 1-ranked Greg Page.

Barons, CdM triumph

FV shares Sunset lead; Sea Kings roll past Mesa

VOLLEYBALL

Fountain Valley maintained a share of the Sunset League lead with Westminster, while Corona del Mar stayed unbeaten in the Sea View in girls' high school volleyball action Tuesday.

The Barons, 6-1, stopped Edison, 15-12, 16-14, 14-16, 15-3, and CdM was a winner over Costa Mesa, 15-6, 16-14, 15-9. Westminster kept pace in the Sunset by turning back stubborn Marina, 14-16, 15-3, 17-15, 5-15, 15-7.

Christy Svalsted had 19 kills as the Barons improved their loop mark to 6-1. The key game was the second, as the Barons overcame a 14-12 advantage to win the next four points behind the serving of Julie Meyers.

Edison, meanwhile, was sparked by the play of middle blocker Pam Lance, who had nine blocks, the serving of Laura Engdall and the all-around play of setter Erin Tomblin.

Marina gave Westminster a big scare before falling in five games.

Playing excellent defense, the Vikings split the first two games and had a 7-0 advantage in the third before the Lions clawed back. Margo Kuestner was the offensive leader for Marina, providing 18 kills.

Meanwhile, Westminster was paced by Melodie Heximer and Jackie Mendez, who were each credited with 16 kills.

The Lions trailed in each game but the second, but managed to drop Marina a game behind third-place Edison with a 3-4 record.

CdM is 11-0 in the Sea View following its sweep of Costa Mesa.

Kara McGuinness played well for the winners, who started quickly, struggled a bit in the second game, but finished strongly.

The Sea Kings have a date with the CIF's top-ranked squad in 2-A, Rim of the World, tonight at 5.

In another Sea View matchup, Newport Harbor swept past El Toro, 15-11, 15-10, 15-0 behind the back-row play of Sara Allison and Annie McCray. Contributing from the front row were Laura Asper and Julie Evans.

For the CIF Small Schools second-ranked Conquerors, Stella Berkebile and Chris Yearley were the standouts.

In a South Coast League match, Dana Hills outlasted San Clemente, 15-10, 6-15, 10-15, 16-14, 15-6, behind the play of setter Lara Epperson and middle blocker Jody Connors.

VIKES . . .

as much talent as anybody. Their quarterback (Bill Marler) is a very good runner, a great passer and he has some very good receivers."

Marler has completed 55 of 111 passes for 1,052 yards and 12 touchdowns this season. More importantly, he has been intercepted just once all season.

Huntington Beach counters with Eric Lawton who has hit 60 of 120 passes for 969 yards. He, too, has kept interceptions to a minimum with three.

Neither quarterback figures to upstage his respective favorite running back, as Marina's Eric Karman has carried 80 times for 682 yards for an 8.53 yards-per-carry average, while Huntington's Danny Thompson has now gone over the 1,000-yard mark (1,052 to be exact) on 89 carries.

Huntington Beach has been on an emotional high ever since a 24-10 win over Edison two weeks ago.

"We didn't have a letdown last week (in a 49-6 romp over Ocean View), but then, Ocean View didn't play as well as they have in the past. They (the Seahawks) played great against Marina on film and looked like they could do some things against us, letdown or no letdown," says Pascoe.

"Our biggest concern (against Marina) is stopping their outside veer. If they get that wound up and going, they're going to run up and down the field on us," Pascoe adds.

Notes Marina's Thompson: "This will be the best football team we've played. You know, their defense doesn't get a lot of recognition because their offense plays so well. They do a good job of not giving up the big one."

The Vikings will probably be without the services of both starting safeties, Bill Craft and John Whiteman, both of whom have shoulder injuries.

On stopping Danny Thompson, Marina's Thompson says: "We have to be a little lucky and just pursue and tackle and not let him break."

RAMS' ROBINSON . . .

Dickerson, meanwhile, ranks third on the all-time list for most touchdowns by a Ram for a season with 14. Elroy Hirsch (1951) and Wendell Tyler (1981) share the record with 17.

The rookie out of SMU has already carried the ball 203 times leaving very few opportunities for other Ram running backs to join in the fun.

"Barry Redden gives us great depth at running back but I've done a lousy job of getting him the football," admits Robinson.

Redden, the Rams' No. 1 draft pick a year ago, has picked up 149 yards on 22 carries.

Among Robinson's other thoughts at mid-season:

"On Vince Ferragamo: 'I think Vince has really improved. I just feel badly about the way Sunday's game finished up (Ferragamo fumbled in his own end zone to give the 49ers the go-ahead touchdown). He is really coming into his own. He had a hand in all seven touchdowns Sunday.'"

"On the inside receivers: 'Barber, (Mike) Guman and David Hill have all been very effective. We haven't been able to get David the ball much. He's a little frustrated but his attitude is great. Barber's having an outstanding year.'"

"On the defense: 'We have an excellent group that goes to the ball and tackles well. I think we were ranked fourth in the NFC last week but I'm sure that's changed now. We have established an effective defense.'"

"On the special teams: 'Our punt returning has improved dramatically. We don't have the numbers yet, but I've been impressed with the kind of effort we're getting. Our kick coverage teams have also played well.'"

"On Sunday's loss: 'It was a game where you had to come out swinging. You've got to give the 49ers credit for hanging in there. We had them on the ropes for awhile. It was a helluva game.'"

"On San Francisco's controversial TD after Ferragamo's fumble: 'I don't think the official saw it. He just saw the end result. It could have been called a safety. But I really don't have a quarrel with that play.'"

"On how the Rams rate in contrast to the rest of the NFL: 'A top three would be the Redskins, the Raiders and Cowboys. You can put San Francisco up there, too. Us, Minnesota, Miami and New Orleans are the 'whoopses' and some whoopses have gone on to win super bowls. So we're within striking distance.'"

A tale of two teams

Irvine looks for consistency, Estancia looks for win

Estancia High will be looking to get into the win column in league play, while Irvine will find out whether its for real or not as Sea View League action continues this week.

Irvine, after notching its first league win last week, will meet El Toro at Mission Viejo High Thursday night, while Estancia goes up against Saddleback at Santa Ana Stadium Friday night.

Both games start at 7:30.

Irvine vs. El Toro

After giving top-ranked Corona del Mar all it could handle in a 21-7 loss two weeks ago, and beating Estancia last week, 34-20, Irvine Coach Terry Henigan is understandably pleased by his team's progress.

"We played Corona a good game and we improved again this past week and played better against a real fine Estancia team. We'll just see if we can improve for the third week in a row," says Henigan.

Irvine will enter its confrontation with the Chargers 1-3 in league, 3-4 overall. El Toro is 2-2 and 3-4.

"We're 1-3, so we're not doing anything but taking one game at a time," says Henigan. "We've played two good football games, but we're still trying to be a halfway decent football team."

"We have juniors now at all six of our skilled positions. It's taken some time, but I think we're playing at little bit better — at least we're competitive."

Just how competitive the Vaqueros are, however, is a mystery to Henigan.

"The big question is have we become fairly good offensively? Or was last week a fluke," he says. "I don't mean we have to score 35 points, but can we move the ball consistently? I think that will be the key."

"If you look at the opponents we have left — Univeristy, Saddleback, El Toro — I think we're in the ball game against all of them. But like most of our league games, except Newport, the team which plays best will win.

"If we play well, we have a chance. If we play poorly, we're going to lose. That's it."

Estancia vs. Saddleback

Estancia's roster count is 25 . . . and dwindling.

"We've got a couple of more guys hurt," says Coach Ed Blanton, whose Eagles squad has already been crippled by injuries. "Both (Aaron) Dowdy, a guard, and (Sandy) Estes, our starting noseguard, broke their hands last week."

"Heck, with our injuries, and we were hit by the flu bug last week, we had 19 guys out for practice one day last week."

"We can't afford to lose anybody else, that's for sure, or I'll have to suit up."

Asked what position he might play, Blanton laughs and says, "As big and fat as I am, I would probably be a guard."

In the Roadrunners, Estancia will be facing a team that's 2-2 in league, 2-5 overall and possesses tremendous team speed.

"I'm very impressed with their team speed, especially on defense," says Blanton, whose Eagles are 0-3-1 in league, 2-4-1 overall. "Plus, they're much bigger than we are . . . but then everybody has been bigger than we are this season."

"It would be easy for a team like this to get discouraged, with the way we're losing players and all. But we've got a good group of guys who are hanging in there. They've got big hearts. I'm proud of them for that."

DeCinces officially signs pact

Third baseman Doug DeCinces has signed a three-year contract with the Angels.

DeCinces, who was eligible for free agency, officially signed the contract agreed upon several days ago which had to be revised slightly to meet the American League's approval.

Terms were not announced, but the contract is believed to call for a $2.25 million guarantee with a liberal schedule of incentives.

Prep football players of week

Mike Newton, Fountain Valley

A three-year starter, the 184-pound senior defensive back intercepted two Edison passes, and made a 32-yard reception in the Barons' 33-7 win over Edison. He also had 5 unassisted and 6 assisted tackles.

Sean Curran, Edison

A 5-11, 170-pound junior, Curran rushed for 98 yards on 16 carries, the most by any Edison running back this season. He also caught 4 passes for 21 yards.

Eric Lawton, Huntington Beach

The 6-1, 180-pound senior quarterback hit 7 of 9 passes for 97 yards and two touchdowns in a 49-6 victory over Ocean View. Lawton also connected on all seven PAT kicks.

John Spoor, Westminster

A 6-1 senior wide receiver and defensive back, Spoor caught 5 passes for 60 yards and a TD, and intercepted two passes. On the year he has caught 20 for 366 yards and 4 TDs.

Stefan Seanoa, Ocean View

The 6-0, 185-pound senior linebacker recorded 13 tackles, 6 unassisted, in Ocean View's 49-6 loss to Huntington Beach. "It's the best he has played all year," said Coach Steve Colflesh.

Steve Brazas, Newport Harbor

The 6-3 senior rushed for 290 yards on 37 carries in a 21-0 victory over Saddleback, scoring all three of the Sailors' touchdowns. On defense, as a linebacker, he had a qb sack, recovered a fumble and had a quarterback harassment and a stop for a loss.

Scot Hagey, Costa Mesa

The Mustangs' quarterback-linebacker completed 9 of 17 passes for 140 yards and 2 TDs and was in on 11 unassisted tackles and 3 assisted stops, in addition to blocking a CdM field goal attempt.

Don Pryor, Corona del Mar

The 6-3, 185-pound senior wide receiver caught four passes for 115 yards in the Sea Kings' 17-14 victory against Costa Mesa. "He caught some crucial passes for us at crucial times," says Coach Dave Holland.

Casey Swanson, Estancia

The 5-11, 190-pound sophomore offensive guard graded out "at about 90 percent for us," says Coach Ed Blanton. "He did a helluva job for us. He made about six outstanding blocks."

Jesse Hartz, University

The 5-10, 180-pound senior linebacker had six assists and seven unassisted tackles, including a quarterback sack, in the Trojans' 17-3 loss to El Toro.

Remy Rahmatulla, Irvine

The senior running back rushed for 195 yards on 23 carries, including TD runs of 1 and 30 yards, in the Vaqueros' 34-20 victory over Estancia.

Tim Codde, Woodbridge

Says Warrior Coach Gene Noji of the 5-11, 205-pound offensive center and defensive tackle, "He's been our most consistent offensive lineman. Week in and week out he's graded very high."

Chris Bunce, Laguna Beach

The 6-1, 170-pound senior free safety had two interceptions, one of which set up the Artists' only touchdown in a 14-7 setback to Mission Viejo.

Chris Gill, Mater Dei

The 5-10 safety spearheaded the Monarchs defense to a 33-0 victory over Serra, Mater Dei's fourth shutout of the season. Gill had an interception and ran in a fake conversion for two points.

Toughest challenges await league-leading Monarchs in Angelus

The meat of the Angelus League schedule lies ahead for the Mater Dei High football team, but Monarch Coach Wayne Cochran can look at the bright side of the challenge.

"We have our own destiny in our hands," he said looking ahead to the trio of league games which includes St. Paul this Friday night at 7:30 and Bishop Amat and Servite the following two contests.

"The way we look at it, we're in first place right now," Cochran added. "And if we keep playing well, we'll be all right."

The Monarchs are coming off a pair of shutout victories to open the Angelus campaign, 18-0 over Serra and 33-0 against Pius X last week.

But for Mater Dei to assure itself of a post-season berth, it will have to win at least one of its last three games. And the first is at the Swordsmen's field in Santa Fe Springs, not a pleasant prospect for any visiting squad.

"I don't remember the last time a Mater Dei team went there and won," said Cochran. "They're especially tough at home."

St. Paul is 1-0-1, having beaten Serra last week after tying Servite the opening game of league play.

"They have a big offensive line, one that I think will be the best one we've faced all year," said Cochran. "I think they have a better running line than Fountain Valley."

But St. Paul has shown it can also throw the ball effectively and Cochran has respect for the Swordsmen's balanced attack.

"They have a quarterback who is a fine football player and they also have an excellent receiver," says the Mater Dei coach. "They discovered he could throw the ball right after our game last year."

Richest contract for Miami's Shula?

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Robbie, owner of the Miami Dolphins, said Tuesday that he has offered Don Shula a contract that would make him the highest paid coach in National Football League history.

Bob Carolan

Carolan named NOSA chief

Bob Carolan of Balboa Yacht Club and South Shore Yacht Club was elected president of the Newport Ocean Sailing Association at the organization's annual meeting.

NOSA is the organization that stages the famed Newport to Ensenada yacht race, the Cabrillo Beach Argosy and the 14-Mile Bank race.

Other officers seated at the meeting were Jerry Brame, secretary; Jim Emmi, treasurer; and Rod Lippold, judge advocate. New directors elected were Ron Deacon, Jim Nugent and Odin Braathen.

A feature of the meeting was the inauguration of NOSA into the International Order of the Blue Gavel, an organization of past commodores of yacht clubs throughout the world.

NOSA is not a yacht club, but an exception was made because it is supported by and exists through the cooperation of all yacht clubs in Southern California.

PUBLIC NOTICE NOTICE OF COMPLETION OF A SUPPLEMENTAL DRAFT ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT REPORT FOR THE PROPOSED FOUNTAIN VALLEY BUSINESS CENTER JOINT DEVELOPMENT AGREEMENT IMPLEMENTING THE REDEVELOPMENT PLAN FOR THE INDUSTRIAL AREA REDEVELOPMENT PROJECT. NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the City of Fountain Valley Agency for Community Development has completed a supplemental Draft Environmental Impact Report for the proposed Fountain Valley Business Center located within the Industrial Area Redevelopment Project. The action which will be subject to the Draft Environmental Impact Report is: 1. Approval of a Joint Development Agreement for the redevelopment of the development area pursuant to the Redevelopment Plan for the Project area. The proposed development area is located in the City of Fountain Valley and has the boundaries illustrated on the map accompanying this Notice. The proposed development will consist of a series of interrelated public and private actions aimed at the eradication of blighting influences and recycling of land presently containing these blighting influences to uses consistent with the environmental, economic and social goals of the community. Said actions include the acquisition of land, the installation of public improvements, and returning the land to the private sector for development. ## U.S. troops fighting in Grenada, Lebanon

By The Associated Press
Combat involving American troops continued today in both Grenada and Lebanon, with casualties mounting at both sites.

In Grenada, the United States landed about 800 paratroopers in today to reinforce the almost 2,000-strong U.S. invasion force and began evacuating American citizens. Pentagon sources reported six U.S. troops killed, eight missing and 33 wounded in fighting so far.

In Beirut today, American troops returned fire at dawn when they were fired upon with small arms, mortar and bazookas.

Vice President George Bush inspected the devastated Marine base and said "insidious terrorist cowards" will not change U.S. policy. American casualties in Lebanon are now listed at 219 dead and about 70 injured. (For more on the Lebanon crisis, see Page A6.)

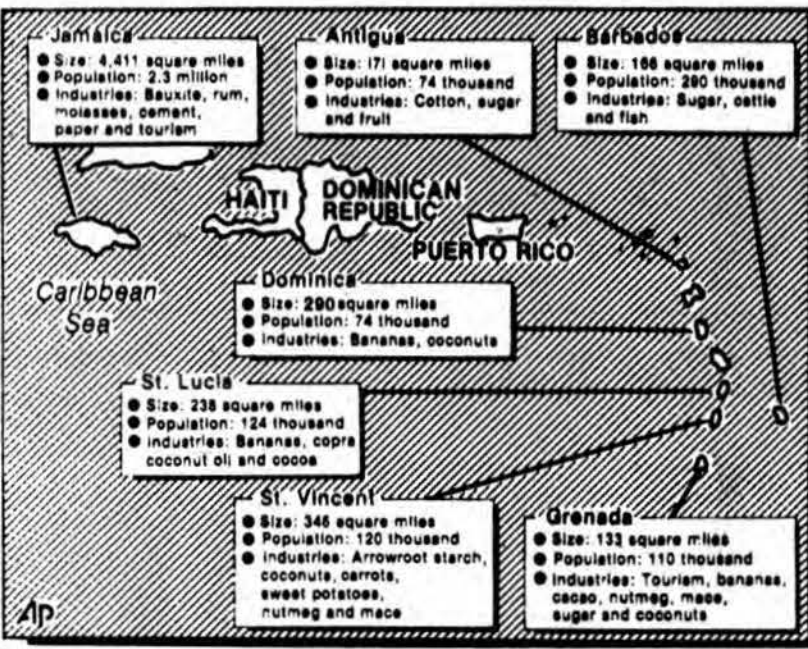

In Cuba, a government announcement in Havana said six U.S. helicopter gunships attacked Cuban positions on Grenada before dawn today, destroying the Cubans' main building at the Point Salines airfield. It said the

"casualties are numerous. But survivors will continue fighting."

White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes told reporters in Washington that 61 Americans were en route to Charleston, S.C. on the first evacuation flight from Point Salines. There are about 1,000

Americans on the island, many of them medical students.

Pentagon sources, who disclosed the casualties and the number of 82nd Airborne reinforcements, said the Americans were encountering stiff resistance from hundreds of Cubans and (See AMERICANS, Page A2)

Grenada:

- More than half of those Americans who had heard of the U.S. invasion of Grenada on Tuesday approved of the action, according to a poll conducted by ABC News.
- Six American servicemen have been killed and 33 wounded, Pentagon sources say. U.S. officials also said three Grenadian troops were killed and up to 600 Cubans captured.
- President Fidel Castro vowed today that his countrymen on Grenada would not surrender.
- Some members of Congress, many concerned that U.S. forces are stretched too thin around the world, urged quick U.S. withdrawal from Grenada.

Missing car link in Irvine murder

By ANDREA ADELSON
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Irvine police hope a missing car and a business associate can help lead them to the killer of murdered tire store president Boyd W. Finkel who was dead eight days before his body was found.

Sgt. Dick Bowman said today investigators hope to question an unidentified Maryland man believed to be Finkel's financial backer. In the next two days, police hope to ask the man about previous business associates of Finkel who might shed some light on a motive for the homicide.

Police also are looking for a missing silver Honda Prelude with California license plates owned by Finkel, which is "unaccounted for," Lt. Bob Lennert said. The car may have been loaned to a friend or may be a link to Finkel's killer, he said.

Meanwhile, autopsy results revealed Tuesday that the 39-year-old Irvine man, reported missing this week by his co-workers, died Oct. 16 after being bludgeoned over the head with a blunt instrument, police said.

Fingerprints were used to positively identify the partially decomposed body found stuffed in the trunk of a car Monday, Lennert said. (See MISSING, Page A2)

$47,000 loss victim needs cash

By STEVE MARBLE
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

"Riches to rags" is how one police detective described the plight of Michael Booth, the 21-year-old man who made flamboyant claims of wealth until he landed in jail late last week on suspicion of grand theft and embezzlement.

Booth made news earlier this month when he reported losing $47,000 in cash at a Newport Beach nightclub. When police admitted they were suspicious of his claim, Booth angrily said he was rich. He said his car alone was worth $70,000.

But as of today, Booth has been unable to raise money to meet his $50,000 bail or to hire an attorney.

He was scheduled to appear in court later today in Fullerton where he will be represented by Diana Polio, a court-appointed public defender.

Booth is suspected of stealing a 1980 Mercedes-Benz from an Anaheim car dealer and unlawful (See THEFT, Page A2)

Some kind of hero

Kevin Yoches owes his young life to Bob Heber.

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Bob Heber wasn't supposed to be on patrol that Monday.

But since he'd lost his regular job, Heber was able to substitute for another Costa Mesa police officer who was absent.

If it hadn't happened that way, 13-month-old Kevin Elliott Yoches might not be the happy, vivacious little boy he is today.

And Heber, a 28-year-old reserve officer and a sales representative with a publishing company, would not have made a new friend.

It was that Monday, Sept. 26, when Kevin fell in his backyard pool and nearly drowned. And it was that Monday when Heber became involved with strangers who would just a few weeks later consider him a "dear and special" part of their lives.

Heber was patrolling the southeast part of Costa Mesa when a medical aid call of a drowning in progress came in about 1:40 p.m. Heber remembered all the kids he'd taught swimming lessons to in junior high and high school and sped to the address that came over his squad car radio.

"I went emergency lights and sirens. You're really supposed to let (the station) know when you do that, but I didn't care because it just struck home with me since there was a kid involved," Heber said. (See OFFICER, Page A2)

Speraw may drop out of Senate race

By JERRY HIRSCH and ROBERT BARKER
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

A bitter fight for the local state Senate seat may be evaporating to the delight of local Republicans.

State Sen. Ollie Speraw, R-Newport Beach, will meet with his staff Thursday morning to decide if he will drop his challenge to Assemblywoman Marian Bergeson, R-Newport Beach, for the 37th District Senate seat, Speraw's aides said today.

Meanwhile, Assemblyman Nolan Frizzelle, R-Huntington Beach, said today he has no plans to enter the fray. "I'm happy where I am in the Assembly and there's no virtue for me to be in the Senate," he said.

"This is where the main battleground is to support the positions of the governor and the Republican Party and it's where I want to be," the two-time assemblyman said, hoping to end speculation he might challenge Bergeson if Speraw withdrew.

Speraw, who is beset by a variety of health and personal problems, may want to avoid the bitter fight and devote his time to (See SPERAW, Page A2)

Winds tangle south county power lines

Power to nearly 4,000 homes and businesses was restored Tuesday after Santa Ana winds wreaked havoc on power lines in south Orange County.

Meanwhile, the hot and gusty winds were expected to diminish today, making way for somewhat cooler temperatures Thursday — if you can call temperatures in the upper 70s at the beaches and the 80s inland cool for late October.

"The wind blew trees into the wires in Capistrano Beach and took out power to 3,860 customers," said San Diego Gas & Electric Co. spokesman Tom Larimore.

He said the 6 a.m. outage affected homes from San Juan

Capistrano south to Capistrano Beach and parts of south and north San Clemente. Power was restored by 8 a.m., he said.

The National Weather Service is predicting a cooling trend Thursday under sunny skies. "It won't be as warm as today," said spokeswoman Pat Rowe. "Things should cool down to the mid 70s near the coast to the low 80s inland by the weekend," she said, adding overnight lows will be in the 60s by this evening.

The dry winds prompted Orange County firefighters to go on alert, patrolling the county's brushlands for signs of smoke or flames.

Fire ravages paper plant in Santa Ana

Of the Daily Pilot Staff and MARGE BITETTI

A welder may have accidentally set off a spectacular fire that roared through a Santa Ana paper recycling plant Tuesday night and shrouded a five-block area in thick, black smoke.

Flames shot 20 feet in the air as police officers went door to door in a surrounding neighborhood warning residents to stay indoors or evacuate the area because of possible toxic fumes from burning plastic.

Fire investigators were digging through the remains of the Santa Ana Recycling Center, 2538 S. Main St., today. Authorities said while they had no estimate on the amount of damage they admitted (See PAPER, Page A2)

MISSING AUTO...

Investigators have ruled out robbery, burglary or drugs as a motive in the murder.

No weapon was discovered when police searched Finkel's blood-spotted home at the base of Lockhaven Circle. Police refused to say if any evidence was confiscated in the three-bedroom home.

Police forced their way into the home Monday after two co-workers reported concerns over Finkel's unexplained absence from Supertec Tire Center, the Irvine tire store of which he was president.

Finkel's body was found in the trunk of a dark blue Cadillac parked in the garage.

A burglar alarm in the house had not activated when police arrived, according to Lennert.

Finkel was last seen alive at 10:15 p.m. Oct. 15 having dinner at an Irvine restaurant, Lennert said.

Long-time residents of Lockhaven described their neighbor as a recluse who owned expensive cars and rarely had visitors.

Bill Julian, a former business partner, speculated Finkel may have made enemies in the tire business. Julian said he and Finkel in April were forced to sell their nearly bankrupt chain of six discount tire stores. The stores in Orange and Los Angeles and counties, had debts of $2 million.

Bullet train 'fired on' by analyst

Tustin consultant assails 'inflated ridership projections' of $3 billion project

By ANDREA ADELSON
Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The proposed multi-billion dollar Los Angeles-to-San Diego bullet train is a "house of cards" built with inflated ridership projections, underestimated costs and overly rosy expected revenues, according to a critic.

Jonathon Richmond unleashed his critical analysis of the $3 billion train system Tuesday in Tustin, after concluding a three-month, $10,000 study for the city.

The 132-mile route proposed by American High Speed Rail Corp. for Japanese-style high speed trains slices through Orange County. It's been opposed by Tustin residents and some homeowners in Irvine.

The plan for a privately financed rail line, whose rolling stock would whip by at 130 mph, "will inevitably be bankrupt" because underlying planning is based on "totally false" assumptions, Richmond said after a two-hour press conference.

Richmond said he obtained feasibility studies, which were prepared for American High Speed Rail by consultants. The studies are biased and incomplete, he said.

"I checked every single detail down to the cost of credit card transactions. They didn't even include costs of credit cards, or liability or a reservation system," said Richmond, a rail analyst and former Fulbright scholar with the

Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

John Lagomarcino, the vice president of American High Speed Rail, responded in equally vitriolic terms. "Richmond's data is out of date and incomplete. He used this same misinformation before a (state) Senate committee."

"We stand by our marketing analysis. It's accurate," he said.

"Stonewalling" by American High Speed Rail officials is why the city undertook the study, Tustin City Manager William

Huston said. "We got nothing but generalized information to questions we raised."

The project "will have a very serious impact" in Tustin as the proposed lines run behind two large subdivisions, he said.

Huston said the names of experts who have reviewed Richmond's findings will be revealed soon.

The intent is to derail the bullet train. "We can't do it. But we can alert other decision makers," he said.

Santa's entrance not for Placentia youth

By The Associated Press

A 10-year-old Placentia boy has learned the sooty truth about his chimney. St. Nick would stick, the same way Justin Bayless did when he tried to get into his locked-up house after school.

And laying his finger aside of his nose wouldn't get him out, either. Firefighters had to cut a chunk from the chimney to free him.

It was a bad day at black brick, all around, for Justin. His troubles actually began about noon when he was sent to the principal's office for disciplining at Eastside Christian Elementary School in nearby Fullerton, police said. Apparently he left school early after that, they said.

But no one was home and the doors were locked. So Justin climbed to the roof of the two-story house and lowered himself feet-first into the chimney.

Justin apparently lost his grip and fell nearly 25 feet, finally coming to rest on the flue at the top of the fireplace, about three feet short of his goal.

About that time, Palmer said, school officials searching for their missing student arrived at the house and heard his cries for help.

"I want out! Get me out!" the boy hollered all the while.

He was freed, uninjured, two hours later.

Overflowing toilet wreaks havoc in NB

While it took less than an hour to fix a leaky toilet in Newport Center's 17-story Wells Fargo Building, repairing the damage it caused took considerably longer.

The toilet, in a 11th floor men's room, leaked water into the building's electrical system shutting it down last Wednesday.

The building's owner, the Irvine Co., hoped to have it fixed by Monday, but temporary repair measures did not work and electricity was not restored until 9 a.m. today, said Bud Dobyns, the Irvine Co.'s director of facilities.

Repairmen had to drill two holes in each of the top 16 floors and run temporary cables through the holes to give each floor electricity, he said.

"We probably put a mile or two of wire in there. It may seem like a long time but the guys worked around the clock to get that building going again. It could have taken two weeks," Dobyns said.

The building will use the temporary cables until its main electrical system dries out, he said.

About 1,000 professionals work in the building.

AMERICANS FIGHTING ...

Grenadians. The military sources, who spoke on the condition that they not be identified, said U.S. forces were being sniped at and that fighting was continuing around both of Grenada's airports.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger declared earlier in the day, "There will be some more casualties because the price of freedom is high."

Jamaican Prime Minister Edward Seaga said he was told 12 Cubans and three civilians were killed on Grenada when the invasion by Marines and Army Rangers began Tuesday.

On Tuesday, the Pentagon said two members of the invasion force had been killed and 23 wounded on the Caribbean island.

President Fidel Castro vowed his men would not surrender, and Cuba's Prensa Latina news agency said sending in 82nd Airborne troops "gives an indication of the disorder and hysteria provoked in the high command of the United States by the heroic resistance of a fistful of Cubans who were still fighting at dawn today after 24 hours of intense combat in which imperialism has made use of all its technical means of conventional warfare — a really humiliating and demoralizing development for Yankee imperialism."

Weinberger told NBC-TV's "Today" show that "with the airborne and the other units in there we would hope that some of the pockets of resistance would be reduced today."

He said the landing force had taken about 250 Cubans prisoner, including 200 "armed combatants." He said the balance of the Cubans had some sort of reserve training.

"Those operations are proceeding there probably will be more before the day is out," Weinberger said. In addition to the Cubans, about 30 Soviet advisers have been seized by the invaders.

Castro, Marxist-led Grenada's staunchest ally, acknowledged today that an undetermined number of Cubans had been killed and wounded in the invasion, but vowed his countrymen would not surrender.

He also raised the possibility of evacuating the Cubans, who have been helping build a new airport that was one of the first areas seized by U.S. Army Rangers Tuesday.

THEFT VICTIM...

ly taking a Porsche 928 from a Newport Beach car lot.

"For a guy with so much money, he sure isn't flashing it now," quipped Anaheim Police detective Al Brubink. "Riches to rags."

Booth made headlines this month when he called police to Bobby McGee's restaurant in Newport Beach to report that someone had taken his gold-trimmed briefcase that he said was stuffed with 470 $100 bills.

He said he carried the briefcase into the restaurant because he was to meet a client to purchase a Ferrari. The briefcase, he told police, was left with a host at the restaurant.

Police challenged Booth to take a lie-detector test but he failed to show up.

Booth was arrested late Thursday. Police in Anaheim allege Booth took a Mercedes for a test drive and never returned. The car still has not turned up, police said.

Meanwhile, police in Newport reported that Booth "fraudulently" rented a Porsche from a Pacific Coast Highway car lot by using a friend's credit card. Officers said he also failed to return that expensive car.

Police have hinted that other charges against Booth still may be filed.

OFFICER SAVES MESA BOY...

The precocious toddler had slipped away from his mother, Toby, who was talking to a neighbor at the door. A couple minutes later, Toby returned to Kevin's playroom to find it empty.

Her son was at the bottom of the swimming pool in her backyard.

Heber was the first one to arrive at the Yoches' home that day. Kevin "was blue. His lips were blue, he was bloated and there were food fragments around him on the floor. His mom was doing CPR on him but she was pretty panicked. I just looked down and said to myself, 'I can't mess up on this.' In business you can screw up and it's not so bad, but here I had a human life to think about," Heber said.

He took over the CPR and noticed Kevin responding with gurgling sounds. "It seemed like an eternity," in the few minutes before the fire department and paramedics arrived on the scene, Heber said.

CPR was not a routine procedure for Heber. "It was the first time I'd ever done it in my life. In my class I always had trouble with the baby doll because I couldn't get my mouth over the nose and mouth like they showed me. I figured it was no time to experiment on Kevin. I just plugged his nose and breathed into his mouth like he was an adult."

In the hours after the boy was taken to the hospital, Heber called Kevin's doctor and his house.

A doctor who treated Kevin told Heber the youngster would live but would almost certainly be brain-damaged from lack of oxygen.

"It was so tragic. He hadn't even begun to live his life yet," Heber said. "I thought, 'Why did we work so hard for that, why did Kevin work so hard?'"

Heber, who had been depressed since losing his full-time job anyway, was devastated.

But he got good news the next day, when all the signs that pointed to brain damage turned out to be negative.

"I just couldn't believe it," Heber said. "Everything had gone from so bad to so good."

In the days and weeks that followed, Kevin's recovery would be complete. But Heber's interest in the boy didn't flag.

"He has been so dear and so special to us," Toby Yoches said. "I think he felt responsible. He called every day to the hospital and to our home."

One recent evening, after Kevin was released, Heber paid a visit to the Yoches' house and brought along a teddy bear for Kevin.

"We were so touched by his sense of involvement with Kevin," Toby said. Heber's actions went beyond the normal call of duty, she said.

But Heber said what he did was just routine. "I did what any other officer would have done. I guess I'm proud because I handled a crisis situation well. I've been scared many times, but this really involved somebody else's life and the responsibility of that is just overwhelming."

PAPER PLANT FIRE...

it would be "considerable."

"The fumes were just tremendous. It was very difficult to breathe," said Art Levitt, a spokesman for Pacific Telephone Co. which has a service yard next to the recycling plant.

The fire burned three buildings at the two-acre recycling center and destroyed 14 vehicles parked at the telephone service yard. No one was injured in the 6:41 p.m. blaze.

Santa Ana Battalion Chief Richard Keller said it appears a welder who was working outdoors at the plant may have triggered the fire when sparks from his equipment were swept into paper bundles.

"The Santa Ana (wind) condition didn't help. It was dry and hot and that's not good when you have a fire," said Keller. "But it could have been worse if it was really blowing."

A thin layer of smoke was still visible over the recycling center early today. Firemen said paper and plastic items stored at the plants likely would smolder for hours.

"Because so much of that stuff is in bins or in bundles you just can't get it (the fire) out until you bulldoze it," said Steve Bunting, a Newport Beach fireman who spent six hours on the scene.

Rapist hits at CM store

A 26-year-old Costa Mesa woman was raped Tuesday by a man who grabbed her when she tried to get into her car in the Von's parking lot on East 17th Street, police said.

The attack occurred at 8:12 p.m. when a man described as white, 20 to 25 years old, 5-foot-10 with a medium build and reddish-blond hair, pushed the woman into her car and drove her away, said Costa Mesa Police Sgt. Bill Bechtel.

The suspect drove to an unknown location, sexually assaulted the woman and then dropped her off near Palmer Street and Westminster Avenue, Bechtel said.

Jury condemns slayer of newsboy

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

The man convicted of sexually molesting and killing 12-year-old Anaheim newsboy Benjamin Brennenman in 1981 should die in California's gas chamber, an Orange County Superior Court jury recommended Tuesday.

After only one day of deliberation, the 10-woman, two-man jury returned to Judge Francisco Briseno's Santa Ana courtroom and recommended 35-year-old Robert Jackson Thompson receive a death penalty sentence rather than a lifetime prison term. Formal sentencing is set for Nov. 21.

The decision marks the first time a penalty phase proceeding has been retried in Orange County. An earlier jury, which voted unanimously to convict Thompson of Brennenman's murder, deadlocked 9-3 on the death penalty question.

The jury's verdict Tuesday was greeted with a cry of relief and tears from Brennenman's mother, Kay, who testified at the protracted proceedings and attended court virtually every day. She tearfully hugged friends as well as Chief Deputy District Attorney James Enright, who handled the prosecution.

"I'm pleased. It was a right decision by the jury. I believe the case called for the death penalty," Brennenman said. "The people sent a message to other people not to touch children."

She added the verdict came two years and two months after the day her son disappeared while working on his newspaper route at an Anaheim apartment complex.

Thompson, his longish blond hair neatly combed, sat quietly as the jury announced the verdict. He removed his glasses briefly and turned to look over at his mother. Later, he asked to be taken from the courtroom as Brennenman congratulated the prosecutor.

Thompson's mother sat silently as the verdict was announced, closed her eyes for a short time, and then hurriedly left the courtroom before the jury was dismissed.

Jury members all refused comment on their decision. Several jurors left the 11th-floor courtroom with eyes that were noticeably reddened.

Judge Briseno, in accepting the jury's decision, said only, "It seems the verdict is proper."

Across the nation on just 15 gallons?

Of the Daily Pilot Staff

Jerry Greer and Chuck Guy figure they can drive across the United States — 3,145 miles from Los Angeles to New York — on only 15 gallons of gas.

If you don't have your calculator handy, that's 209.66 miles per gallon.

They'll be taking turns riding a 246-pound motorcycle that is encased in a fiberglass shell resembling a squashed teardrop — or maybe a special effects prop from an old Flash Gordon serial.

Okay, so it's ugly, but boy, is it fuel efficient.

The fiberglass fairing, still in need of a paint job, encloses a 185 cc, single-cylinder, four-stroke engine, unaltered by Greer or Guy. What has been altered are the fenders and the seat. They're gone. The pair also dropped the front forks, installed a smaller 1.5 gallon gas tank, smaller wheels and changed the gearing for better mileage.

The purpose? "We want to show that it doesn't take a great amount of money or engineering skill to improve fuel efficiency," said Greer, who operates Greer Sport Fairings out of a 5,500-square-foot factory in Costa Mesa.

That may not be an easy task. For one thing, the two middle-aged cycle enthusiasts will take turns squeezing into the incredibly cramped shell every couple of hours during the seven-day trip. Once inside, they'll lay nearly prone, their chests, beards and elbows resting on the padded gas tank.

For another, they'll have to maintain speeds of between 55 and 60 mph to get the most fuel efficiency from the renovated cycle, which, in its original condition gets only 81 miles per gallon.

"There's never been a vehicle of any kind that has run this distance and maintained anything like 209 miles per gallon," Greer said of the pair's cycle challenge that begins Nov. 2.

Costa Mesa's Tom Heyser donated two standard motorcycles for the economy run — one of which will be cannibalized for parts as needed on the trip. Rider Magazine is sponsoring the run, providing a mobile home to trail the bike and, of course, the 15 gallons of gasoline.

"We want this run to encourage the riding public to get interested in fuel economy contests rather than just speed competition," Greer said.

"Yeah," his 41-year-old partner said with a laugh. "That's because we're old and fat."

Bandit hits gas station in Mesa

A convenience store at the Harbor Chung Texaco station on 3001 Harbor Blvd., Costa Mesa, was robbed early today of $60 cash and $30 groceries. A man described as a Negro, late 20s, 6-feet-1, 200 pounds, came into the store and put the groceries on the counter. A second man, wearing a Halloween mask and carrying a pocket knife, then entered and demanded the money and goods. The pair were last seen traveling northbound on Harbor in a black-topped car.

Two suspects arrested on burglary charges by the Tustin Police Department have been connected by investigators to 30 burglaries of storage garages in Costa Mesa over the last three months. Harry Wood, 30, of Santa Ana and William Deeter, 36, address unknown, admitted to breaking into the storage areas at 2950 Bear St.

The Sweet Cream Shoppe, at 1170 Baker St., was burglarized over the weekend and $1,901 in cash and merchandise was stolen. Among the items listed as missing: a microwave oven, candy, football cards, meat and 18 three-pound tubs of ice cream.

Newport Beach

A Newport Beach man reported the theft of tools from his car parked in the 1400 block of Superior Tuesday morning. The value of the loss was estimated to be $440, police said.

A Newport Beach man reported the theft of his 1977 Mercedes 450 SEL Monday. The value of the car was estimated to be $19,000, police said.

A retired Newport Beach marine colonel reported the theft of a car stereo and other items valued at $630

from a car parked near Superior and Placentia Tuesday morning.

A Newport Beach woman reported the theft of a 1966 VW beetle from the 600 block of Promontory Drive Tuesday. The value of the car was estimated to be $1,700, police said.

A Newport Beach businesswoman reported the theft of $80 in cash and a $40 music box from her Park Newport apartment Monday night.

Fountain Valley

Burglars forced their way into a home in the 16000 block of Mt. Hutchins Street and stole jewelry, a TV set and an Atari computer worth $1,700.

Vandals caused $2,500 worth of damage when they pushed over and broke an eight-foot lawn fountain in the 8000 block of Hummingbird Avenue.

Huntington Beach

Police were called to a Pacific Coast Highway shop in the downtown area when a person reported seeing an individual who resembled drawings of one of the men who shot television anchorman Jerry Dunphy. Police, though, said the man pointed out to them was the keyboard player in a local band.

A woman, who told Huntington Beach police that someone had broken into her Toulouse Drive home and ransacked the place, later told officers the mess in her house had been created by her daughter who was having trouble finding something to wear to school.

A briefcase, a set of golf club and a wallet were stolen from a car locked in a garage on Alpine Lane. The total loss was $1,000.

Laguna Beach

A bicycle valued by its owner at $100 was stolen in the 1200 block of South Coast Highway, Laguna Beach police reported.

A man seen peering in a window of a house in the 200 block of Ruby Street pounded on a door before disappearing at about 10:30 p.m. police said.

A fire believed caused by clothes igniting in a dryer was quickly put out in the 300 block of Magnolia Drive.

Irvine

A man wearing nothing but a hood covering his face streaked twice through the 3000 block of Claremont Street in Irvine about 8 p.m. Tuesday night, observed by a girl seated in a parked car waiting for her boyfriend who was selling door to door.

Robert Brown, 18, was arrested on suspicion of theft Tuesday morning, after police found the bike he was riding had been stolen in the last week.

Jack Manciel, 24, was taken into custody for allegedly possessing marijuana and contributing to the delinquency of a minor in an arrest about 9:30 Tuesday night.

PLATINUM the enhancer

What is more precious than gold? Well, platinum for one thing, it is heavier, tougher and more valuable than gold. A cubic foot of platinum weighs about 21 times as much as a cubic foot of water. Platinum does not corrode or tarnish. It is impervious to the strongest acids. It is used in the best surgical instruments, in key parts of automotive catalytic converters, and... yes, in jewelry. Why is platinum not as popular as gold in jewelry use? Besides the cost, the only apparent drawback of platinum is that people simply are not accustomed to this beautiful metal. It is slightly whiter than silver, and a bit softer than gold. Fashion experts consider it the perfect setting for diamonds, because its soft patina and lack of color reflection make a perfect "neutral" companion which allows a diamond to stand out in all its natural beauty. The same qualities make it also ideal for setting of colored gems, such as emeralds or sapphires. Top world producers of platinum are, in order, Russia, South Africa and Canada.

Is motherhood second oldest profession?

MOTHERHOOD: The Second Oldest Profession. By Erma Bombeck. McGraw-Hill. 177 Pages. $12.95.

Erma Bombeck fans, and they are legion, know from her newspaper columns and her books that she can be depended upon to deliver the laughs. And deliver them she does in her latest collection, "Motherhood: The Second Oldest Profession."

There are 42 pieces included in this book and they all deal with mothers in one way or another. The approach to the subject differs from item to item, however.

Some deal with advice to mothers, "One of the biggest complaints about motherhood is the lack of training... I was one of the luckier women who came to motherhood with some experience. I owned a Yorkshire Terrier for three years." Among these is a suggested course of study for mothers. One such course would deal with the legal rights of mothers and answer such questions as "Can you abandon a child along a public highway for kicking daddy's seat for 600 miles."

Another deals with mothers as depicted in television series of the '50s and '60s. Says Bombeck of these women of the flickering screen, "They looked better cleaning their houses than most of us looked at our wedding."

In a very well done article, she wonders what would happen to a father of three young children who gave up his job, sent his wife off to work and became "the first suburban mother in Rochester with a mustache who wasn't on estrogen."

In a sort of reverse article, she deals with a mother who is newly divorced and returning to the job market after a long absence, a woman who puts wrinkle eradicator under her eyes "in an attempt to erase the damages caused by teenagers."

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Greyhound workers reject wage cuts; talks continue

By the Associated Press

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — Greyhound Lines Inc. negotiators met again Tuesday with representatives of the bus line's unionized workers, a day after the rank and file overwhelmingly rejected demands for pay and benefit cuts. The 12,761 workers also authorized union leaders to call a strike.

Inflation reaches 5.7 percent

WASHINGTON — Inflation crept up to a 5.7 percent annual rate last month. The government reported Tuesday that higher prices for cars, food, and housing in September pushed overall consumer costs up 0.5 percent in the biggest one-month increase since May. Prices had risen 0.4 percent in July and August.

Oil firms' profits soaring

WASHINGTON - Exxon Corp. and Standard Oil Co. of California said higher profits on overseas operations contributed to an overall increase in third-quarter earnings.

Exxon, the nation's largest industrial concern, said Tuesday its earnings jumped 20.5 percent in the three months ended Sept. 30, to $1.23 billion. Standard of California, which sells its oil products under the Chevron brand name and ranks as the fourth-largest U.S. oil company, said its profit rose 11 percent to $509 million.

U.S. Steel earns $52 million

PITTSBURGH — U.S. Steel Corp. said it earned $52 million in the third quarter, compared with an $82 million loss in the period a year ago. The nation's largest steelmaker attributed the earnings turnaround to results from its oil and gas operations.

Factory goods orders decline

WASHINGTON — An unusually large drop in the automotive category prompted a 0.5 percent decline in orders to factories for big-ticket durable goods items in September, the government says. But private analysts, noting that orders would have risen by 3.9 percent from August if the 14.1 percent decline in transportation equipment industries were excluded, found the report heartening for the economy.

Dollar rises but gold declines

LONDON — The U.S. dollar edged higher against most other major currencies in early European trading today, while gold prices turned lower. Despite the dollar's rise, traders said foreign exchange markets showed surprisingly little reaction to the U.S. invasion of Grenada to protect some 1,000 American citizens and restore order and democracy on the Caribbean island.
